

Rodeo gets under way: parade set Saturday

BY CATHY SPAULDING
Staff Writer

The Top o' Texas Rodeo grounds were filled with beef, broncs and beauties Thursday as Pampa's Annual Top O' Texas Rodeo began.

While the Country Critters band from San Antonio played and former Oklahoma State Senator Clem McSpadden called off the entries, professional rodeo riders from across the country joined a host of local talent in competition in seven events.

The opening-night performance, preceded by a free barbecue for all ticketholders, drew a crowd estimated at over 3,000. The rodeo continues tonight and Saturday, with the action beginning at 8 p.m. and the Country Critters performing at 7:15 p.m.

The annual rodeo parade will wind through downtown Pampa beginning at 10:30 a.m. Saturday. The parade will form at M.K. Brown Auditorium, travel south on Hobard to Ward, down Ward to Francis, east on Francis to Cuyler then south on Cuyler. Parade chairmen are Bill Skaggs and Bobby Hendricks.

In the bareback bronc riding competition Thursday, Mitch Haynes of Weatherford managed the best ride as he hung on to Dukes of Hazard to score 88 points. Lee Lowrey of Pampa scored 65 while Hadley Reed of Spearman scored 63.

David Porter of Leesville, La., could have taken the top Thursday time in calf roping at 9.7 seconds. But, by breaking the barrier, he was levied a 10 second penalty enabling Tom Bewbre, no address given, to take the lead with 10.6 seconds. Mike Ray of Albuquerque, N.M., tied his calf in 11 seconds. Gary Dean of Hammon, Okla., had 12.2 seconds. Jim Rothwell of West, Okla., and Bob Ford of Clinton, Okla., 15.

In saddle bronc riding, Van Hale of Snyder riding Jug of Velvet scored 73. Bodie Gilbert of Electra and Hadley Reed each scored 69 seconds while Joe Merrick of Sayre, Okla., scored 67 and Dave Fisher of Elkhart, Kans., 65.

In steer wrestling, Junior

Shorter of Canyon had the best time, bringing his steer down in 6.9 seconds. Cole Cates of Elmwood, Okla., brought his down in 8 seconds. Mack Ford of Clinton, the son of Bob Ford, 9.2 seconds. David Burrows, 9.5 seconds and Reece Taylor, 9.7.

Mark McClure of Houston had the best score in the dangerous bull riding competition as he earned a score of 75. Randy Queen of Dallas rode for a score of 74 while Craig Rhodes of Stamford scored 68.

The steers took top honors from all four entries in the amateur double mugging competition.

Announcer McSpadden said that it would be hard for barrel racers to beat the time of Jackie Bob Cox of Del Rio, who raced her horse around the three barrels in 16.74 seconds. He was right.

State board vote favors 'exit tests'

AUSTIN (AP) — State Board of Education members have conditionally approved a final examination that high school students must pass in order to get a diploma.

The preliminary vote came Thursday as the 15-member board began a three-day session. A final vote on "exit tests" will be taken Saturday.

Today, the board's Committee on Students was scheduled to act on proposed rules that would let schools expel or suspend students who bring drugs, alcohol or guns to the classroom. A final vote on the proposal also was set Saturday by the board.

"I think we have done everything we could possibly do to follow the Legislature's instructions," said board chairman Jon Brumley of Fort Worth. "I think we have balanced equity and quality as well as we could."

The 11-1 approval of Texas Assessment of Minimum Skills tests came after a two-hour closed session then another hour of debate over the public vote.

The new test is the result of the major school reform bill passed by a special session of the Legislature last summer. It will be given first this October to 11th graders. If a student fails, there will be three more opportunities to retake the test before the end of the 12th grade.

"This follows up the requirements of House Bill 72, when the Legislature said we must expect more of the educational system of this state," said state Education Commissioner W.N. Kirby.

"We believe it is not only legal, but fair," Kirby added.

Board member Carolyn Crawford of Beaumont suggested that the approved test was too strict and a test now given at the 9th grade level should be used at least the first year.

"I fear we will be in the courts for years," she said.

Kirby said the Texas Education Agency staff didn't believe the current 9th grade test would fulfill the Legislature's requirements.

Kirby estimated that about three-fourths of Texas students would be able to pass the new test this fall.

"This means that about 25 percent will need additional help in the next two years, when the test will be revised again," he said.

The commissioner said the proposed test will have 72 questions on mathematics and language arts.

Of that number, he said, it is possible that 20 of the math questions haven't been studied by some students in some districts because new school curriculum laws don't take effect until this fall.

Eight of the language arts questions also could be ruled out, he said.

The provisions of the test will be revised in two years and again in four years, Kirby said in order to keep pace with hoped for development of school curriculums throughout the state.

All students will have to answer the 72 questions, but their answers won't be counted if their school districts haven't taught the subject matter of the 20 math and eight language questions, Kirby said.

"What is proposed for the children who fall in the cracks, who do not pass this test?" asked board member Mary Helen Berlanga of Corpus Christi.

"We believe that in two years time, a very high percentage of this 25 percent will be able to pass the test with adequate help from their school districts," Kirby said.

Board recommends reopening of pool

Members of the Parks and Recreation Advisory Board have recommended the city repair and reopen the Marcus Sanders Pool in the south part of the city.

The board, meeting in a special called session, also voted to recommend that the city not resubmit a grant application for a pool and other improvements in Prairie Village Park.

Though the board has recommended the repair of the pool, City Manager Bob Hart said the city budget for the next fiscal year will be tight, with some loss of revenue expected. He said the city would have problems meeting the matching funds for the grant if it was approved, with approximately $200,000 required for the previously considered project.

He said the city probably could repair the pool or pay for the initial development of the proposed Northcrest Park, but both could not be undertaken in the next year. He said initial estimates indicated both projects would cost between $20,000 and $25,000 each.

Hart suggested the board rank the projects on a priority basis, along with other projects and improvements, to decide which one would be pursued for the coming fiscal year.

Hart said the city staff was preparing cost estimates for the Marcus Sanders Pool repair for consideration by the board at its regular monthly meeting.

While recommending against resubmission of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department grant application for the Prairie Village development, the board agreed there was a need to check on other sources of funding for the pool, Northcrest and other parks projects.

Hart said the board's recommendation on designation of the Northcrest park will be considered by the city commission. If the commission decides to designate the area for park development, then the board will be asked to study development plans and make further recommendations.

In other matters, the board discussed matters concerning Cabot Park located northwest of the Hughes Building and possible development of other parks along Red Deer Creek in the east section of the city.

The board also considered ways of making the members more accessible to public input. Hart suggested the city could publish a pamphlet listing the members of all the citizen advisory boards and the meeting times of the different boards.

State radio says Lebanon will prosecute hijackers

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The state radio said today the government has ordered the prosecution of the alleged hijackers of TWA Flight 847, who killed a U.S. Navy diver and held 39 Americans hostages for 17 days. The radio also identified them for the first time.

It said the government had told judicial officials in the district of Mount Lebanon, who are responsible for the Beirut

International Airport, to prosecute the sky pirates.

It identified them as Shiite Moslems Ali Atwi, Ali Younis and Ahmed Gharbieh but said it had no further information about them.

The radio did not specify whether warrants had been issued for the trio's arrest or whether they were in custody.

Mission accomplished: Ohio family 'arrested'

By CATHY SPAULDING
Staff Writer

Thursday, 3:30 p.m. I was working the daywatch with Gray County Sheriff's Office, Hospitality Division, on a routine traffic call.

The assignment: find an out-of-state motorist and transport the family to Pampa for a one-night sentence to the Top O' Texas Rodeo.

Assigned to the job were Gray County Sheriff's deputies Doug Davis and Jerry Holland. They provided back-up for Texas Department of Public Safety License and Weight Trooper Dan Copeland, who was to do the actual arrest.

We waited under the shady overpass on I-40 between the Pampa and Groom exits watching the cars go by and taking note of the license plates. Texas, Texas, New Mexico, Texas, Oklahoma.

Radio traffic picked up. The truckers were getting suspicious.

Approximately 3:40 p.m., we saw one. A small grey compact nestled inside a convoy of truckers, Pennsylvania plate. Copeland caught up with the driver with Davis following close behind. He pulled her over. It was a Pennsylvania woman driving west in a packed car with a grandma in the front seat, a young woman in the back.

Davis tells her she is entitled to a box seat at the Thursday rodeo performance, plus the pit barbecue and an evening at Pampa's Black Gold motel. All paid.

"Just the facts, ma'am." "Am I allowed to refuse," the driver says meekly. She is allowed to drive on.

Same underpass, eastbound lane. Troopers watch as numerous Texas and Oklahoma cars pass.

Then they passed. Driving a yellow and brown family van: Ohio plates.

Copeland apprehended the driver, a woman, and informed her of her rights. Davis walked over the other side of the van, where the husband was waiting.

George Egnor, wife Irene, her mother, Gloria Bustos and their three children Rodney, 13; Steve,

10 and Renae, 6, were returning to their Paulding, Ohio, home from a trip to Los Angeles. They agreed on the terms and were accompanied to Pampa by Copeland and the sheriff's deputies.

Holland radioed Pampa police headquarters: "Tell Floyd Sackett at the Chamber we have our Hospitality Arrest on its way."

Dispatcher: "You have a fatality?"

Holland tried again.

At the Black Gold, they were greeted by Chamber of Commerce president Floyd Sackett and their hosts for the evening, Mr. and Mrs. Bud Welch.

The procedure, part of the Courtesy Arrest program sponsored by the Top O' Texas Rodeo Association, is to be repeated for the Friday and Saturday performances of the rodeo. The Gray County Sheriff's Office and the Texas Highway Patrol are participating in this game in which out-of-state families are taken to Pampa for a free rodeo visit.

COURTESY ARREST — Paulding, Ohio, resident George Egnor, center in spread-eagled position on his van, is not in trouble with the law. He and his family are the first of this year's families to be treated to an evening at the Top O' Texas Rodeo. Witnessing the "arrest" are, from left, family members Rodney Egnor, within that range with a time of 17.05. Other times were Shanna Bush, 17.40; Gene Anne Jeffus, 17.72; Lori Maynes, 17.26; Sherri Altizer, 22.12 including a five-point penalty for knocking over a barrel; Nancy Eaton, 27.58 including a 10-point penalty for knocking over two barrels; Kimbra Dorsett, 17.20; Tamara Hammonds, 17.49; Sammy Burrows, 18.60; Peggy Bleicker, 17.56; Dawn Bleicker, 17.64; Brenda Bogart, 18.47 and Janice Rucker, 18.55.

The rodeo also features synchronized riding by the Pikes Peak Rangerettes, a horseback drill team from Colorado Springs. The Rangerettes, dressed in red and white vested outfits, performed once before the competition, once during the competition and participated in the opening flag ceremony.

Vickie Tyre did two stunt performances on horseback. The first time, she showed rodeo-goers what she can do while she straddled two horses galloping in tandem. The second time, she performed more dangerous stunts, including the rarely-attempted move going under the belly of a running horse.

Among the guests at the rodeo were eight engineers from the People's Republic of China, staying in Pampa as part of an Ingersoll-Rand training program, and George Egnor of Paulding, Ohio, and his family who were "arrested" and brought to Pampa to see the rodeo.

Tonight's rodeo performance will be followed by a dance in the Clyde Carruth Pavilion.

Saturday's festivities include a parade through downtown Pampa at 10:30 a.m. and a dance following the Rodeo.

authorities) as a prelude to prosecuting them and to take adequate legal procedures against them," the radio said, without naming its sources.

A police spokesman said of the radio report, "We don't have any information. I can't say yes; I can't say no." Mount Lebanon Prosecutor-General Maurice Khawam told reporters in Christian East Beirut after a meeting Wednesday with President Amin Gemayel that his office "will move against the TWA hijackers."

A leader of the Shiite Moslem Amal militia, which negotiated for the hijackers and said it shared their goal of gaining the release of Shiites held in Israel, has said Amal chief Nabih Berri does not oppose putting the gunmen on trial.

Akef Haidar, Amal Politburo head and No. 2 man under Berri, told The Associated Press on July 6 that Berri "is not against having a trial." But he said Amal could not identify them because it dealt only with their leaders.

"Mr. Berri will not be against ... justice," Haidar said. Berri also is Lebanon's minister of justice.

The hijackers shot dead U.S. Navy Petty Officer Robert Stethem and dumped his board on the tarmac of Beirut International Airport, pistol whipped and punched other passengers and vowed to kill the others unless more than 700 Lebanese prisoners were freed by Israel.

They held 39 American hostages in Beirut for 17 days before agreeing to free them under pressure from Syria.

Lefors school trustees hire elementary school principal

LEFORS - Trustees of the Lefors Independent School District have employed Bill Crockett as Lefors Elementary School principal.

Crockett, who will be in charge of students from kindergarten through the eighth grade, has been employed by Celanese Chemical Co. for the past year.

Prior to that, he taught public schools in El Reno for five years, served as County Co-op counselor for two years at Claude and Clarendon and was a principal at Lavaca for six years.

He received his degree from the University of Arkansas.

During their regular meeting Thursday night, the school board also employed three new teachers. Mike Kumor will teach social studies and coach girls basketball. Dorothy Farrington will teach English and art at Lefors High School, and Rebecca Robinson will instruct computer courses.

The board accepted two resignations: Randall Morrison as coach and Rita Schindler as kindergarten teacher.

Arnold Story, board president, welcomed new Supt. Earl Ross to his first board meeting in Lefors. Ross replaces Jimmy Collins, who has moved to the Austin area.

Story said one of the top priorities of the district is the remodeling of the high school building. He charged Supt. Ross with the development of plans for the remodeling.

The trustees accepted the bid of

First National Bank of Pampa to serve as the depository bank for the district for 1985-1987. The board also adopted a resolution accepting transfer students in grades 7-12 from the Grandview - Hopkins Independent School District. Ross noted the written agreement is required by the state.

The board appointed Ross as the authorized representative for the National School Lunch Program in the Lefors public schools as required by the Texas Education Agency.

Lefors High School Principal Gene Gee discussed the scheduling of teachers and classes for the upcoming school year. Gee said the district will be offering 90 classes at the high school compared to the 70 offered last year.

Gee said the district needs to hire two additional teachers to help cover the additional courses required under state mandates in recent education reforms.

Trustees discussed the possible establishment of a Moxon Scholarship being considered in memory of Wayne Moxon.

Ross reviewed manners in which the scholarship could be set up, administered and awarded to students. He said the founder of the scholarship could not control the selection of the students to receive the scholarship if she wanted to obtain tax deductions, though she could establish guidelines for the selection process.

The board took no action on the scholarship, awaiting further information.

Ross reported Southwestern Bell Telephone was also considering establishing a scholarship fund.

Ross also reported further work still needs to be done on the playground area in relation to the demolishing of the former elementary building. The ground is slanting now and needs to be leveled to avoid problems of water drainage running up against a building, he said.

In other business, the board approved bills for payment.

Groom school board buys hats for band

What is a school band to do with 40 new red and black band hats when its shool colors are red and white?

The Wellington schools, which ended up with the mismatched hats when it received shipment of new band uniforms, sold its botched batch to Groom Independent School District, which wants to eventually buy new uniforms - red and black ones - for its Tiger Band.

Groom ISD Trustees approved this interscholastic hat trick Monday at their regular board meeting. The school bought the 40 hats at $12.50 each. Superintendent Rex Peoples explained that the school district plans to order new band uniforms for the 1986-87 school year.

"We just won't buy new hats," Peoples said.

Faced with a tight budget which could get worse if oil and gas revenues decline, the district considered in May cutting back or dropping the band program. In June, trustees hired Groom resident Jerry Crowell, who has two years teaching experience, as a part-time band instructor.

In other business, trustees approved the annual Accreditation Evaluation Report, a five-year plan in which the school sets goals for improvement in a certain scholastic area. The five year plan approved Monday emphasizes mathematics. Peoples said the plan will concentrate on 85 percent mastery in all areas of mathematics. The district's recently completed five-year plan to upgrade its language arts department was a success, the superintendent reported.

The school also bought two $432 IBM Action Writer electronic typewriters for its business education department and agreed to seek bids on a replacement for the 1968 pick-up truck used by the school maintenance department.

Also approved was a subscription to the Texas Association of School Board policy manual.

No-pass, no-play litigation far from over, official says

AUSTIN (AP) — The executive vice president of the Texas High School Coaches Association says he has a "gut feeling" that someone will challenge Texas' no-pass, no-play rule in federal court. The rule was upheld Wednesday by the state Supreme Court, and Donald Jay of the THSCA said Thursday, "That's just the state. I think it will go to the federal level now. And then you've got a whole new ballgame."

The attorney for 45 Houston-area students and parents who are challenging the rule disagrees with Jay. Anthony Sheppard said federal courts are reluctant to address the issue of athletics. Sheppard agreed, however, that the case is probably far from over.

He said the Supreme Court's ruling stated only that extracurricular activities such as football or band are not First Amendment rights. The justices failed to decide whether the rule infringes on the rights of students excluded from activities such as student government and working for the student newspaper, he said.

"I'm afraid there will be 100 lawsuits, come fall," Sheppard said. "We will try to dispose of all of the issues in the final trial of our case," which is set for state district court in Houston Aug. 28.

"But if we can't do it by football season, it will be considered an open issue," he added.

Sheppard said the next step will be to ask State District Judge Marsha Anthony of Houston to accept his original suit as a class action on behalf of all students in the Alief and Spring Branch school districts who were excluded from extracurricular activities by the rule.

Sheppard also said he would ask the state Supreme Court to reconsider Wednesday's decision. Jay, who coached high school sports for 22 years, told the Austin American-Statesman he still opposes the rule, which took effect in January. He said House Bill 72, which included the rule, discriminates against many students.

The intent, to force students to put academics first on their list, has backfired, Jay said. He cited surveys indicating that in the major Texas cities, there were more failures the second six-week period under the rule than the first.

Under the rule, a student is prohibited from taking part in any extracurricular activity for six weeks if he or she fails a course.

"It's not been the incentive they thought it would be," Jay said. "Starting in September, it's going to prevent kids from taking challenging courses. You tell a 16-year-old kid that football or band is not a big thing to him. They're going to start taking watered-down courses. We're penalizing the smart kid and rewarding Joe Average."

In the past year, the THSCA has found instances of students who made five A's and one B but were ruled ineligible despite an overall B-plus average, Jay said. Other students would make 70s on all their courses but maintain their eligibility.

Austin High lost one baseball player last spring who was an "A" student but flunked an honors course.

"It's hard to tell a kid with a B-plus average who's sitting at home that somebody with a 70 average is eligible," Jay said. "They want to know if this is American justice."

Authorities say

Reward led to capture of kidnapper

BLOSSOM, Texas (AP) — After escaping from a county jail and eluding authorities for a week, convicted kidnapper James Wesley Foote was captured in his parents' hometown with the help of a $2,000 reward offered by the father of the kidnap victim.

Authorities tracked Foote down Thursday after being tipped that he was hiding in a house in this community outside Paris, about 150 miles northeast of the Johnson County Jail in Cleburne, Lamar County Sheriff's Lt. Jerry Robbins said.

Foote had escaped July 4 by scaling a fence at the Johnson County Jail during an exercise period. He had been sentenced to life in prison for his part in the January kidnaping of 13-year-old Amy McNeil — an ordeal that ended several days later in a shootout with authorities. Authorities said a $2,000 reward offered by the girl's father, Alvarado businessman Don McNeil, led to Foote's arrest. Officials said Foote had threatened revenge against the McNeil family and Johnson County authorities.

McNeil said the reward would be paid to the tipster, who was not identified.

"I'm relieved," Amy McNeil said Thursday from her Alvarado home. "We've had a guard outside all the time, and I haven't been able to go anywhere since all this started."

Foote, 34, was wearing only drawstring trousers and was covered with chigger bites when he was arrested, officials said. Foote told authorities he was on his way to see his parents, Robbins said. As he was led to the Lamar County jail, Foote told The Paris News that revenge against the McNiels "never entered my mind."

"If it had of, I would never have been up here. I should have been down there," he said, referring to Alvarado.

Foote was returned to Cleburne Thursday afternoon, and Johnson County Sheriff Eddie Boggs said he would be transferred today back to the Texas Department of Corrections.

Foote had already begun serving prison time for the kidnaping, but was taken to the Johnson County Jail to be interviewed.

Jury rules man who killed himself had slain wealthy father

STEPHENVILLE, Texas (AP) — Despite testimony from his mother that moved some jurors close to tears, an Erath County jury has ruled that suicide victim Don Marshall Thompson murdered his wealthy father in 1982, even though the elder man's body was never found.

Don Thompson, who killed himself Jan. 19 as lawmen attempted to arrest him in Stephenville, killed retired airline pilot Jo Bert Thompson Nov. 12, 1982 by shooting him with a gun, the civil jury decided Thursday in a wrongful death suit that ended with the elder Thompson's sister being declared sole heir of her brother's estate valued at more than $1 million.

The six-man, six-woman jury's decision capped four days of testimony in the suit filed by Jo B. Thompson's sister, Leonette Mayes.

After the verdict was returned, District Judge Don Jones ruled that Mrs. Mayes, of Fort Worth, was the executor of the estate and that neither Don Marshall Thompson nor his heirs were entitled to any of the estate.

The father's body has never been found, except for gold bridgework lawmen maintain came from Jo B. Thompson's teeth.

As the verdict was read and Jones released the jurors, one woman dabbed her eyes. Jury foreman Quentin Bailey declined comment, saying, "I have nothing to say at all."

Nancy Thompson, the mother of Don Marshall Thompson, 32, and ex-wife of Jo B. Thompson, 62, also declined comment as she was wheeled out of the courtroom by her attorney Curtis Brown.

Mrs. Thompson, wheelchair-bound because of polio, is her son's heir, but was denied any part of the estate by the jury's decision. When the verdict was announced, Mrs. Thompson reached up, grasped her attorney's arm and smiled as if consoling him.

Although testimony proved her brother Jo Bert is dead and the body has not surfaced in more than 2½ years, Mrs. Mayes said, "My main purpose is to find my brother ... to find the body. I'll never give up on that, and I know the officials here will faithfully continue looking."

A Cubs' fan? Holy Cow!

I think there is something wrong with me. I am developing into a fan of the Chicago Cubs. I even find myself liking Harry Caray, an announcer I have disliked from way back.

This is not something that happened overnight. It is an insidious thing that slipped into my consciousness over a period of time, and it resulted from a combination of things.

Let me explain.

I have been a baseball fan most of my life, but I gave up on the game completely at the beginning of last season.

In my early years, I pulled for the Yankees and the Philadelphia Phillies.

When I was growing up, the Yankees, I thought, were the epitome of greatness. They had hitters like Mantle and Maris and Skowron and Berra. They had pitchers like Whitey Ford, Vic Raschi, Allie Reynolds and Easy Ed Lopat, perhaps the greatest pitching corps ever assembled.

I became addicted to the Phillies in the other league in either 1950 or 51, the year of the Whiz Kids. I was attracted because they were a young team that defied the odds and won the National League pennant, with youngsters Robin Roberts and Curt Simmons (that name helped me identify with them) pitching nearly every other day and a reliever named Jim Konstanty finishing up when they couldn't. Besides, who could help but like a team with a third baseman named Puddinhead Jones and a shortstop called Granny Hamner.

But I couldn't make myself stick with the Yankees after Mantle retired and Maris and Martin were traded. The greatness was gone.

Still I remained a Phillies fan for years, mainly, I suppose, because they kept a few great players from the Whiz Kid era. Roberts and Simmons would win around 20 games each season. Richie Ashburn would hit over .300 and the Phillies would remain one of the strongest contenders for last place.

There is also a certain distinction about being a Phillies' fan living in Texas. Think about it. How many Phillies fans do you know? None. I'll bet. I am the only person in this part of the country I've ever heard of who was a fan of the Phillies.

The only thing as rare as a Phillies fan in Texas is a Cubs fan. I never met one until about five years ago when Dick Howe came to work at the Odessa American where I was employed. Now I know two, and if you read our sports pages you know the identity of the other one.

But after the Phillies either traded, released or benched most of the players I liked a couple of years ago, I went for a full season without keeping up with any baseball team. But I suddenly find myself looking at the standings and the box scores again and to see how the Cubs fared, checking the TV schedules to see when they're playing, and even looking forward to the boisterous good humor of Harry Carey.

This is more than a little odd. During my life as a baseball fan, I have hated the Dodgers and the Cardinals because they beat the Phils with regularity and the White Sox and the Red Sox because they posed the greatest threat to the Yankees. I hated Harry Caray when he was an announcer for the Cardinals because he always gloated when they beat Philadelphia.

But the only feeling I ever had for the Cubs was gratitude that they were in the league. That often meant the Phillies had a good chance of finishing higher than last. The Cubs have been so mediocre through the years that it never occurred to me to either like or dislike them.

I don't suppose it is unusual for a person to become a fan of a different team, especially if he is exposed to that team by television a lot. And I don't suppose it is unusual to regain interest in baseball after a period of indifference.

But to be reborn as a fan of the Cubs? A team that until last year hadn't won anything as long as most of us can remember? A team that you hardly realized even existed? The Millard Fillmore of major league baseball?

Holy Cow!

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Synfuels program a proven failure

A House subcommittee recently took a most unusual step. It agreed to abolish an unnecessary and wasteful government entity, the Synthetic Fuels Corp.

One subcommittee vote, however, does not mean that sanity reigns in the hallowed halls of government. House Majority Leader Jim Wright of Texas has been able to overcome challenges in the past and keep the SFC wallowing in the taxpayers' money. Many in the Senate have been equally steadfast in defense of this boondoggle.

Nevertheless, the vote is encouraging. The synfuels program is a legacy of the energy-scare days of the late 1970s. Launched by the Carter administration with an initial funding of $20 billion, it was flawed from the start by the fact that it takes more energy to extract synthetic fuels from oil shale and other sources than is produced.

Such fundamentally flawed concepts are the backbone of many government programs, which do little but siphon money from one group of people (taxpayers) to another, in this case the private oil companies whose half-hearted synthetic fuel projects are funded by the SEC.

The bill to abolish the corporation cites the SFC for "unreasonable and excessive personnel and administrative costs" as well as sloth in bringing production on line. Indeed, during its five-year history, the SFC's 200 employees have spent more than $70 million on salaries and luxurious offices while backing just a half-dozen projects.

The bill would immediately dismiss the five current directors of the SFC, require the energy secretary to complete its business within 90 days and transfer responsibility for current projects and contracts to the Energy Department. Projected savings: $6.2 billion.

To be sure, the bill contains a little methadone for those who cannot stand to drop a program cold turkey. It would authorize $500 million for future synthetic fuels projects, but it gives Congress 90 days to disapprove any project costing more than $20 million.

Even those handouts aren't necessary. The energy and utility industries between then have more than enough money to fund synthetic fuel projects if there is a reasonable chance that this energy source will even be cost-effective. Shell Oil, for one, is undertaking a coal-gasification plant without federal handouts. Privately funded projects like Shell's should be the rule, not the exception.

The Synthetic Fuels Corp. was a bad idea when it started; it is now a proven failure. If the House and Senate fail to go along with its abolition, it will be because they have put a political payment for the few ahead of the public good.

BY CHARLES VAN EATON

There's a well-known American truck manufacturer which uses a catchy slogan in some of its advertisements: "It's time for American industry to quit the bull and start acting like a bulldog." Well folks, I've just returned from a week of intensive consultation with the plant managers, executive officers, and shop workers of seven U.S. manufacturing firms, and I'm more convinced than ever that our people - shop workers and managers alike - are starting to act like bulldogs. Even though the immediate object of their dogged determination varied from firm to firm - some more interested in foreign, rather than domestic, competition - hard work and commitment to quality was the common denominator among all of them. American manufacturing, I am persuaded, is not on its death bed.

"It's been a tough market and we're determined that we've got to get lean and agile," the chief operating officer of one firm told me. "Don't you mean 'lean and mean'?" I asked him. "No, not mean," he said. "We've asked a lot of our employees and they've given us everything we've asked, and more. We cannot and will not knowingly do anything which smacks of meanness. But we - and that includes everyone from the newest hire to me - know that to survive we've got to be able to read the market and react to it, and that's what being lean and agile is all about."

I liked the answer. Although not as articulate as was this particular gentleman, all the other plant managers and operating officers I spoke with at the other firms said essentially the same thing. Whether small or large (the plants I visited ranged from fewer than one hundred employees to over fifteen hundred), they had all gone through a traumatic period of cost cutting with the bulk of sacrifice having been borne by their white-collar, middle-management ranks.

The first, and smallest, plant I visited was in many ways the most interesting. When I asked the firm's president (who was also its principal shareholder) how he would describe his business, he gave a simple and direct answer: "We're in the sheetmetal-bending business," he said.

This was not a flippant response. Bending sheetmetal is exactly what they do. They bend it into brooder bins, heaters, feeding troughs and watering troughs, all for the poultry industry. Based on their experience with brooder house heaters, they have expanded to manufacture high quality fireplace insert stoves for homes. Most recently they have begun to "bend sheetmetal" into highly efficient incinerators for hospitals which, under new health and sanitation guidelines, must find a way to dispose of infectious waste on site rather than shipping it to a community waste disposal dump.

This little firm has begun to export. The day I was there they were preparing shipments for Iraq, Jordan, and Mainland China. Moreover I discovered that machine operators and assemblers not only knew where their products were going, but also what these sales meant for their jobs. They were proud of what they were doing and wanted to do it well. In the midst of all this activity there were only three managers - including the company president. They were all "lean and agile."

Another company I visited was on its way back from near-bankruptcy. It was this firm's president who gave me the phrase "lean and agile." "We made a lot of mistakes," he said. "We had grown fat and sloppy, and it cost us. There are three hundred men and women out on that shop floor. They're the ones who make the product which earns all our incomes. For years we had built layer upon layer of management without thinking that anything could ever go wrong. But it did. Now we have reduced staff to the bone. We've asked for, and gotten, wage cuts. And, on top of all this, our workers have overwhelmingly rejected a tough market and we've determined that we've got to get lean and agile."

And they have. They're going to turn a profit this year, and they're going to restore some of the wage cuts to their shop employees. But, at best, they can't expect the old ways to ever return - and they don't want them to. "We're ready for the future - whatever it is," was the president's closing remark. And I believe they are.

Cutting the ranks of white-collar, middle management was the central theme at another plant I visited. This plant is part of one of the world's largest industrial corporations - a corporation which has, over the past three years, divested itself of several operations and facilities to concentrate on three distinct and related market areas. One such market area - high-tech factory automation - was managed from the site I visited. Again, as in all other firms I visited - the principal concern was with cost control and product quality. "We have no more than an eighteen month product life-cycle," said the executive I interviewed. "If we're going to make it, we've got to involve everybody in producing a quality product at a competitive price. And we don't intend to fail."

More and more I'm worried less and less about American manufacturing. We're in good hands - from the shop floor to the executive suite.

Today in History

Today is Friday, July 12, the 193rd day of 1985. There are 172 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: One year ago - on July 12, 1984 - Democratic presidential hopeful Walter F. Mondale announced that he had chosen New York Congresswoman Geraldine A. Ferraro to be his running-mate. Ferraro became the first woman to run for the vice presidency of the United States on a major ticket.

On this date: Ten years ago: U.S. Army Colonel Ernest R. Morgan was released unharmed after being kidnapped by leftists in Beirut June 29.

Five years ago: Freed U.S. embassy hostage Richard I. Queen arrived in West Germany for treatment of a neurological disorder at the U.S. Air Force Hospital in Wiesbaden. Queen had been released from Iran the previous day.

Today's birthdays: Comedian Milton Berle is 77. Oregon Sen. Mark Hatfield is 63. Pianist Van Cliburn is 51. Comedian Bill Cosby is 48. Actress Cheryl Ladd is 34.

Protectionism won't help

The last war we won was World War II. It was won by American steel and American-made machine tools.

Should there be a World War III - and should we have to rely on our stateside supply of steel and machine tools - we could not whip Costa Rica!

Some future Gibbon looking back on your life and times will date the decline and fall of the American industrial complex to the day when we turned the running of our companies over to financial people and started shipping junk.

Stateside manufacturing in the United States is in a severe slump. Our industrial production declined another four-tenths during the month of May; no growth since July. Forty percent of our machine tool industry has gone under or merged.

That erosion of American production can be traced directly to increasing imports. Why don't we just phase out imports of steel until our own sick steel industry can get well?

After all, segments of our steel industry are doing fine. The mini-mills which have updated their equipment and are not bound by archaic union rules - they are able to compete with imports and prosper.

But the older, integrated, outmoded mills which lie rusting along the south shore of Lake Michigan are scarcely worth salvage.

During the month of July we will try to get Europe's and Japan's steel producers to agree to a ceiling on worldwide imports.

It would allow imports to increase no more rapidly than the domestic market increases.

Even the possibility of such an agreement has exporters deluging our market with all the steel they can deliver.

The problem relating to steel and machine tools are not unlike similar import competition in chemicals, shoes and TV sets - except that national security is a consideration where the survival of our heavy industry is in jeopardy.

And all these hurting industries subtract from our nation's economic vigor, with unemployment in manufacturing - 7.7 percent - higher than in any other segment of our economy.

Our country's export-import trade has gone from an $11 billion surplus to $100 billion deficit in three years!

Manufacturing used to be 25.4 percent of our total economy; today it is 21.2 percent.

We dare not allow it to erode further.

While an eventually softer dollar may alleviate our trade imbalance some, no amount of protectionism can keep our heavy industry vigorously viable unless we learn - as our auto industry is learning tardily - to make a better product for less.

Here's hoping the party's really over

By Rusty Brown

Martinis are old-fashioned and Old Fashions are unheard of these days. Yet, it used to be that hostesses served them by the pitcher at cocktail parties.

Now, Americans are cutting back on the hard stuff. Manhattans are archaic and Perrier - called "designer water" by some - is ubiquitous. White wine is still the all-consuming favorite, according to a recent article in Time magazine, but non-alcoholic watermelon coolers and strawberry crushes are spiraling in popularity. So is Cit-Jet, lemon juice in a can imported from France.

In response to diners' preferences, one Chicago restaurant chain, reports the Wall Street Journal, has introduced a line of fruit juices and ice called "Mocktails."

If heavy-duty cocktails are losing their punch, how long before the cocktail party is declared dead? Soon, I hope, I'll be happy to be a pallbearer.

I never much liked them - especially the large bashes with yards of strangers. I thought my dislike of this longtime symbol of conviviality and hospitality made me somewhat peculiar, but in a recent study of what causes social anxiety, nearly 75 percent of the respondents said it was partying with strangers. That is more nerve-racking, they said, than a job interview or being the victim of a practical joke.

Cocktail parties always bring out my feelings of inadequacy. I'm terrible at balancing a drink on a flimsy plate of hors d'oeuvres, and I invariably spill shrimp sauce on my dress. I am also terrible at carrying on a conversation above the roar of the mariachi band in the corner. No wonder what we say on such occasions is usually inane and trivial.

People who introduce me to others never seem to say the names distinctly enough to be understood. That makes me nervous. I could ask someone what he does and for all I know, he'll answer, "I'm the mayor."

Upon being introduced to a woman at a recent cocktail party, she immediately said, "Oh, I understand you know Betty So-and-So." She then gave me 15 minutes' worth about Betty because neither of us knew how to change the subject.

It's so embarrassing when people come up and I can't remember their names. If I see them in time, I dart over, so I won't have to introduce the group I'm standing with. And if I don't see them in time... well, talk about social anxiety.

I have never mastered the art of graciously circulating through a room. In fact, I've found only one acceptable reason for moving on: "Excuse me, but I think I left my lights on."

Arriving late, as I usually do, is another problem. First, all the convenient parking places are gone. Then, as I cruise around looking for a spot, I see people leaving and guess again whether I dressed right.

When I finally get in, most of the good food is gone. At a cocktail party last week, the salmon was reduced to a rib cage by the time I arrived. Only the lemon in its mouth had not been devoured. The pate was there, but the crackers were gone, and the sculptured ice basket had been stripped of the shrimp it held and was solemnly dripping into oblivion.

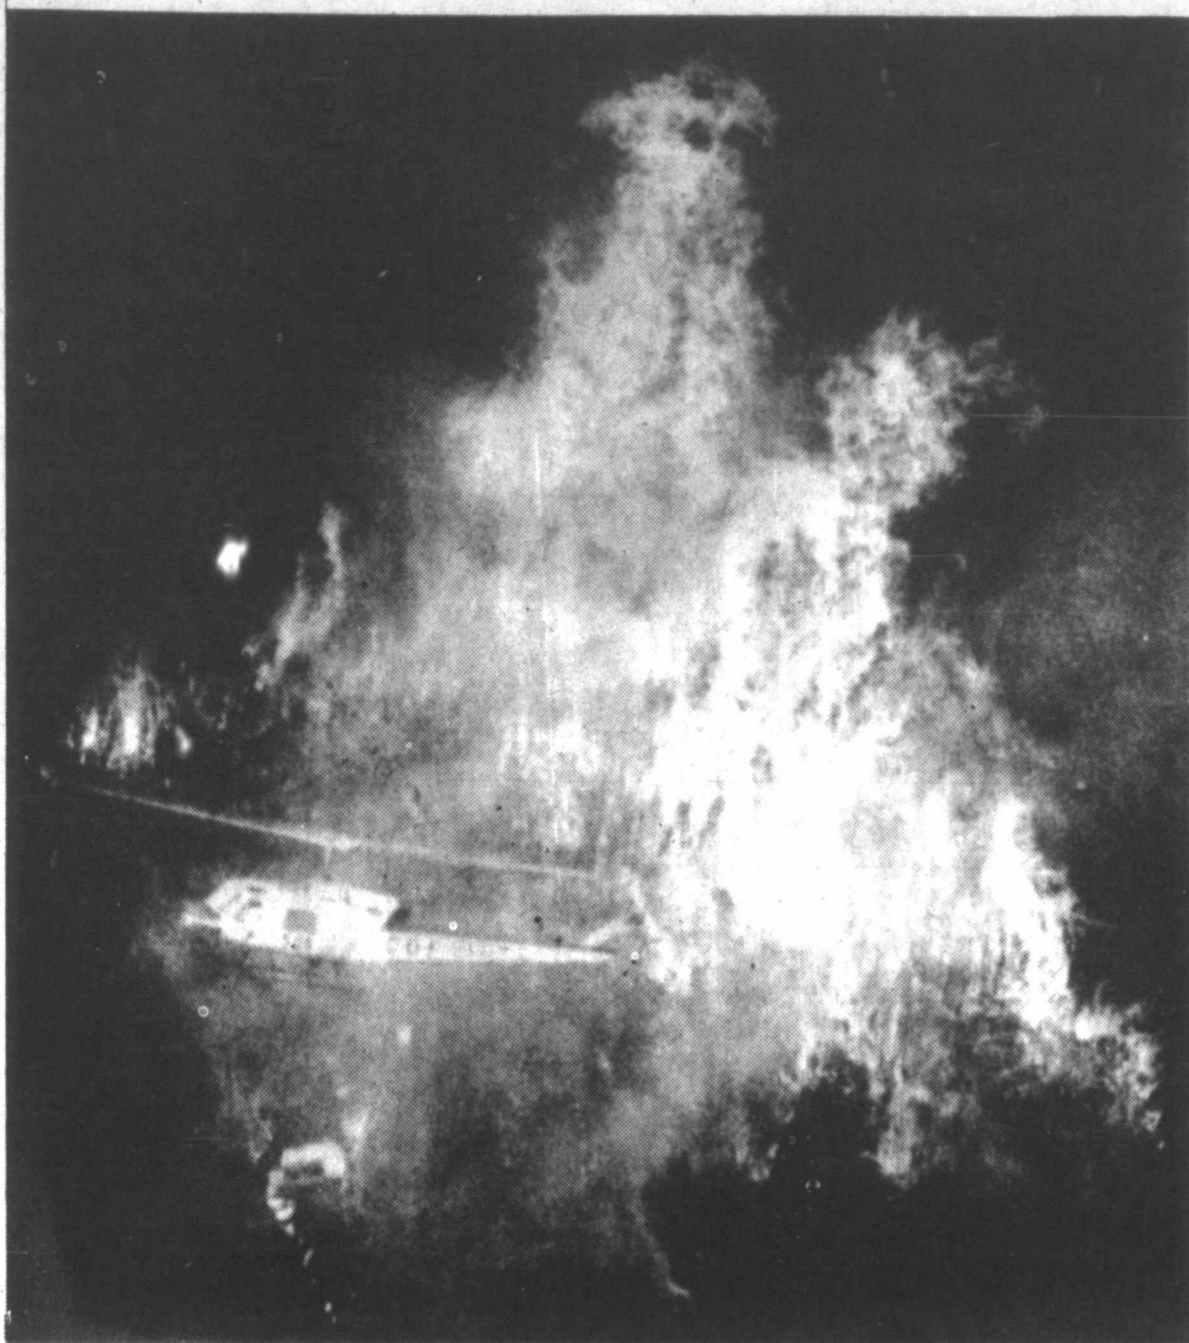

And the timing of cocktail parties is all wrong - too much food too close to dinner, but too little food to make you comfortably full.

Is it any wonder that many of us make up excuses not to go to cocktail parties?

USING FIRE TO STOP FIRE—A California Department of Forestry helicopter drops a flammable chemical to start a back fire in an effort to control the Lexington Reservoir fire near Los Gatos Thursday. The fire has already consumed 14,000 acres. (AP Laserphoto)

Moist weather aids firefighters

By The Associated Press
Moist air helped a legion of firefighters battle Western fires that have charred more than 1.2 million acres, but new blazes left one area looking "like a moonscape" today and one frustrated evacuee was arrested when she tried to drive past a police roadblock.

Humidity "has just given us a chance to take a breather and maybe make some headway," said Scott Brayton, a spokesman for the Interagency Fire Center, a logistics and information center in Boise, Idaho. "The general situation is still very critical."

However, the moisture that helped crews against the 13,800-acre Los Gatos, Calif., fire and a 150,000-acre blaze in Idaho, was only temporary. More hot weather was forecast today with temperatures in the 90s.

The 6th Army put 1,000 troops on alert in case help is needed, a spokeswoman said at the Presidio in San Francisco. Officials haven't decided whether to use the troops, and so far "we're holding our own," Brayton said of the force of at least 17,000 firefighters.

In Southern California, 150 trailer park residents fled a 300-acre fire near Malibu that authorities said may have been arson. About 400 Girl Scouts and residents of 75 rural homes were moved away from a 350-acre fire at Lake Hemet, 100 miles east of Los Angeles.

The respite allowed some of the 4,500 people evacuated Sunday around Los Gatos, 60 miles south of San Francisco, to return home.

But some of the evacuees were turned back by California Highway Patrol officers blocking unsafe areas.

One frustrated woman tried to drive her sports car into a restricted area and brushed the leg of an officer who was trying to stop her, said CHP Sgt. Greg Manuel. She was arrested for investigation of two counts of assault and one of resisting police officers, he said.

Crescent Valley trailer park residents were allowed to return after about seven hours.

Iraqi jets hit tanker

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — Iraqi warplanes fired a missile into the Turkish supertanker M. Seyhan today, setting it ablaze in the Persian gulf near Iran's Kharg Island oil terminal, marine salvage experts reported.

M. Seyhan is the sister ship of the supertanker M. Vatan, which the Iraqis raided Tuesday at almost the same location.

The Iraqi military command said the warplanes inflicted an "accurate and effective hit" today and returned safely to base.

Bahrain-based maritime shipping sources said the 225,000-ton M. Seyhan sustained an enormous blast in the port side as a result of the raid.

M. Seyhan was on its way to Kharg to take a load of crude oil and move it to Iran's Sirri Island in the southeastern sector of the gulf.

Iran has been using an undisclosed number of supertankers in a shuttle service to move oil from Kharg to Sirri, out of the normal range of the Iraqi jet fighters.

On Tuesday, the M. Vatan was "badly hit," according to marine salvage sources in Bahrain. It lost about 20 percent of its load of about 350,000 tons of oil and was being towed to Sirri for unloading and repair.

Makin' Things: una pollo pinata

By STEVIE BALDWIN
 It's a giant, yellow chicken.
 "Nah, it's a giant, yellow pollo."
 "A giant, yellow what?"
 "Pollo, pollo. That's Spanish for chicken." Mom told me.
 My youngest had discovered my latest fabric creation. After he found out what it was called, he entered into that vigorous and informative debate with his brother. What the kids don't know yet is that the giant, yellow pollo is actually a pinata.
 The secret of this reusable pinata is a fabric pouch filled with candy. A circular piece of plastic forms a trap door bottom for the pouch. Four ribbons hang from the plastic piece. A lucky tug on the jackpot ribbon opens the trap door, releasing a shower of sweets.
 Our pinata measures 22 inches long from beak to tail, 18 inches high, and approximately nine inches wide. The feathers are made from yellow rug yarn, and the pollo's comb is made from red and gold yarn. The body is cotton fabric stuffed with fiberfill.

 The pinata is easy to make, using our fully-illustrated plans. They include a complete materials list, detailed assembly diagrams, tips and techniques on cutting and sewing, and full-size patterns for the body, beak and base.
 If you would like to order the plans, please specify Project No. 1702-2, and send $4.95. We are also offering plans for our kitchen chickens, Project No. 1504-2. These plans include full-size patterns for four friendly chickens to decorate your walls and kitchen items. If you would like to order both plans, please specify both project numbers, and send $8.90.

Our color catalog lists hundreds of additional fabric and wooden projects, and is available for $2.95. All prices include postage and handling. Mail your order to: Makin' Things, Dept. 79065, P.O. Box 1000, Bixby, Okla., 74008.
 To make the pinata, you'll need 1½ yards of 44-inch-wide cotton fabric, 10 skeins of rug yarn, and one skein each of red and gold rug yarn. You'll also need one yard each of ½-inch ribbon in four different colors for the pull cords, a 12-inch length of ribbon for the hanging loop, and a 12-inch length of narrow elastic. An 8-inch plastic coffee can lid works well for the trap door. I used a scrap of yellow felt for the beak, and two ¾-inch diameter buttons for the eyes.
 Cut two body-pouch pieces from cotton fabric and stitch the long contoured seam, leaving the straight lower edge open. To make the casing, turn under and press a ¼-inch hem around the lower edge of the pouch, and then turn it under another ¼ inch. Stitch the casing, leaving an opening for the elastic. Begin with the head and tail and stuff the pinata with fiberfill, up to about six inches from the casing.
 Turn the pinata upside down, and insert a 7½ x 9½ inch oval base piece inside, flush against the fiberfill. Stitch around the edge of the base piece, securing it to the body and gathering the excess fabric. Thread elastic through the casing.

 To begin making the feathers, tack one end of a skein of yarn to the top of the head. Wrap the yarn into about 20 large loops and tack. Using all the skeins of yarn, repeat this procedure until the body is completely covered with feathers. Don't attach feathers below the gathered line of the base.
 The comb, wattle, and tail are made from two strands of red and gold yarn. For the comb, attach two yarn clusters along the ridge of the head. Make one cluster for the wattle beneath the ridge of the head. Make one cluster for the wattle beneath the beak, and one for the tail.
 The pinata hangs from a folded 12-inch length of ribbon. Before you attach the hanger, adjust so that the pinata won't tip backward or forward when suspended.
 Cut four ¼-inch slits in the center of the plastic lid. Cut four one-yard lengths of ribbon. Make the jackpot ribbon by tying a button onto one end. Thread the jackpot ribbon through one slit in the lid, until the button is against the inside surface. When this ribbon is tugged, the plastic lid will come out of the casing, along with the candy. Insert the remaining ribbons, tying a knot in the free lower ends. Fill the base area with individually wrapped candy. Place the plastic lid inside the base. The elastic will keep it in place.

Dear Abby

Power of love makes ugly engagement ring sparkle

By Abigail Van Buren
 © 1985 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: You were way off base in your answer to "Confused in Queens" who "loved" the man, but hated the engagement ring her fiancé had surprised her with. You said, "Tell him you love him and you know he wants to please you, so if it's possible to exchange the ring, you'd like to go with him and select one that's more in keeping with your taste."
 Abby, whatever happened to "It's the thought that counts"? To me, the uglier the ring, the more special it would be. It may not be my taste, but it's obviously my future husband's taste, and to exchange it would be wrong. Living with a ring that is not my taste would be small potatoes compared to hurting my fiancé's feelings.
 Your answer had an ERA ring to it.

ROMANTIC IN SACRAMENTO

DEAR ROMANTIC: ERA's my eye! A woman who hasn't the courage (or good sense) to tell her fiancé how she feels about the engagement ring he surprised her with will surely withhold her feelings about the more important aspects of their relationship for fear of "hurting his feelings."
 I am not suggesting she use a meat cleaver to make her point, but a marriage doesn't stand a chance unless both parties speak their minds about what they like and what they don't like.
 Read on for an opinion from a jeweler:

DEAR ABBY: Having been in the retail jewelry business for many years, I've waited on hundreds of men who come in alone to buy engagement rings, and most of them haven't the faintest idea of what their intended would like.
 I show them plain rings, fancy rings, all kinds of rings, and they all end up asking me, "What do you think she'd like?"
 Of course I don't know the lady's taste, so I select a ring and tell him it can be exchanged. Then I suggest he bring the lady in and give her a voice in the selection.
 No names, please. I don't want this to sound like a commercial.

RON IN OMAHA

DEAR ABBY: I am 54, divorced, and for the last three years I've been in love with a married man I'll call Roy. He and his wife are separated. She says she is satisfied with things the way they are, and she will fight any divorce action Roy initiates. She refuses to seek employment, saying Roy has to support her.
 Roy hesitates proceeding with a divorce because he will have to give her practically everything he has worked for all his life. He is 59 and concerned about income for his retirement.
 I love him and feel life would be meaningless without him. Do you see a solution?

ROY'S WOMAN

DEAR WOMAN: If it's marriage you want, Roy will have to pay the high cost of leaving in order to free himself and marry you.
 If he can't—or won't—you are just another woman who's in love with a married man.
 You can either stick with him and accept things as they are, or say goodbye. The choice is yours.

DEAR ABBY: I am pregnant for the first time, and I get very upset when people start telling me about miscarriages, stillbirths and other horror stories about crib death and any number of tragedies that have happened to them and other people. It really bothers me because I realize something like that could happen to me, but why remind me of it just before I have my first baby?
 I suppose they want to prepare me for these tragedies in case they happen to me, but are we ever prepared?
 I hope this makes your column. You can't imagine how upsetting it is for a woman who is pregnant with her first child to hear these depressing stories.
 Thanks for being there, Abby. I feel better just being able to write this. Maybe someone will see this and think twice before she speaks.
 ENOUGH TO WORRY ABOUT

Pillows brighten any decorating scheme

By Joanne Schreiber

ROUND or square, tailored or ruffled, solid-color or patchwork, pillows are ideal decorating accents for the home.

Pillows make wonderful decorative accents. They can brighten a color scheme, put summertime into a winter-weary room, soften a tailored corner, show off a talent for patchwork or applique and make marvelous use of remnants.
 Best of all, pillows are simple to sew. You can use a ready-made pillow (they come in standard, square and round sizes) or make your own from loose fiberfill. You don't even have to finish the seams to make covers fit, and you can close the cover with zippers or tapes.
 Simplicity House offers a collection of 10 pillow shapes to make up in an assortment of coordinated fabrics. There are no tissue patterns for these pillows, rather the envelope contains cardboard sheets with easy-to-follow instructions for each of the pillow shapes.
 Patchworkers will be charmed by two of the pillows — the classic Dresden Plate, with its sunburst of different fabrics, and the Puff Pillow, made of 32 individually stuffed squares.

 The ruffled heart pillow is a boudoir special, while the ruffled 16-inch square has a country feeling. A long bolster, prettily tied at the ends, is designed for use with a sleigh bed, or to use in pairs on a regular bed. The round box pillow is a sofa classic.
 In case you've wondered how to create the contemporary Turkish pillow, the directions are simple. All you do is run a double row of stitching across each corner, on the wrong side, pull up the thread ends to gather the corner and wrap the threads to secure.
 If you're doing decorating-on-the-run and haven't time to sew, you can do a wrap-and-tie job on a pillow form to create a Japanese-look pillow.
 If you are decorating the bedroom, note that decorators are loading the bed with a minimum of seven pillows. Begin with two big squares, covered in shams. Add two sleeping pillows in matching cases. Then add two small square pillows — his is tailored and hers is ruffled. You may also include a single small neck roll or a ruffled heart. A French manufacturer of elegant bed ensembles shows several hearts in large and small sizes scattered about the bed — an interesting concept for American bedrooms.
 Pillows are also the ideal way to show off your handwork, whether it is needlepoint, crewel embroidery or applique. Once you master the basic technique for sewing neat, firm pillows, you will have an unending supply of gifts and decorative projects to do.

Fritch museum to show local artist's paintings

Jacqueline Kastor of Pampa is to exhibit a selection of her paintings through July at the Lake Meredith Aquatic Museum in Fritch.
 Kastor, 1985 Pampa Fine Arts Association Artist of the Year, has recently returned from Cloudfcroft, N.M., after studying with artist

Jan Herring of Clint. Emphasis of the class was on contemporary painting using some of the glazing techniques of the old masters.
 While in Cloudfcroft, Kastor also studied drawing with Bill Herring of Clint.

Gena on Genealogy

By GENA WALLS

Are you planning a reunion? Have you noticed a decline in attendance? Try a new tactic. Call it a party and send invitations. Purchase plain postcards and use your own design. A basic lineage chart, a map with directions for the party, or the old standby — a tree.
 My choice would be a scavenger hunt. List items that you are missing and ask each family to bring as much as possible. Information on Great Grandpa's place of death, the family Bible, pictures, or questions about residences might be on the list.
 This procedure uncovered an old clay pipe that belonged to my great-grandmother and led to many stories of how she would hide to smoke. Without the scavenger hunt, I might never have known this about Granny because the people that knew the details did not think it important.

 Advertise your family reunion. Genealogy columns, family newsletters, a chain letter, the classified section of the paper are all possibilities. A small fee is charged for the classified ad, but often will reach people not interested in tracing the family.
 Happy Hunting!

COLA WARS IN SPACE—Representatives of Pepsi-Cola and Coca-Cola compare their carbonated beverage containers designed for use aboard the space shuttle Challenger during mission STS 51-F at a press conference Thursday at Kennedy Space Center. ## Cola battle moves from earth

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — With all the world their battleground already, Coca-Cola and Pepsi-Cola are taking their soft drink rivalry into space as NASA officials fret about being caught in a commercial fizzle.

The Hatfields and McCoys of the soft drink business put four cans each on board the shuttle Challenger, scheduled for liftoff at 4:30 p.m. today, for the first space test of carbonated-drink technology.

"One giant sip for mankind," said T-shirts handed out at the launch site Thursday by the Pepsi people.

"Drink Coca-Cola," said the red caps distributed by guess who.

That sort of commercial boosterism gives the National Aeronautics and Space Administration heartburn, and the agency told Challenger's seven astronauts they are not to be seen on ship-to-ground television drinking either beverage during the seven-day flight.

But NASA could not stop representatives of the two soft drink giants from engaging in a bit of hucksterism as they faced the press Thursday.

"Do you know why I'm excited?" asked Ashis Gupta, a Coke scientist. "Because when you have something that you believe in, something that you know is fantastic, you want everybody to know about it."

The man from Pepsi, vice president Tom Williams, managed to weave his company's ad theme into his remarks, conceding that space was a small market but "symbolic on how we view the future and future generations."

The flight comes on the heels of an announcement by Coca-Cola Wednesday that due to popular demand it would begin marketing cola with its old formula 2½ months after it was replaced by a new version.

Dr. Sam Poole, chief of NASA's medical science division, said the agency is always on the lookout for new ways to dispense food and drink in space.

Conventional soft drink containers do not work in the absence of gravity, and astronauts have sipped drinks from straws in plastic containers that collapse as they are emptied.

Coca-Cola offered its experiment and NASA accepted, Poole said.

According to Coca-Cola, the "space can" has an internal dispensing mechanism that compensates for the absence of gravity. The package has a drinking spout activated by a valve.

Pepsi-Cola, sensing a public relations coup by its rival, wanted in. It turned to a vice president in its own company, Max Friedersdorf.

"I wrote to NASA saying any company in the soft drink business should be allowed to bid on it and that NASA should take the lowest and best bid," Friedersdorf said.

A reporter wanted to know whether the space Coke would be "the old, the new, or the newly reissued old?"

"We are sending Coca-Cola," Gupta said without a smile. "Right now we have only one Coca-Cola."

Allies forcing moderation

By GEORGE GEDDA
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The release of the TWA hostages has given President Reagan a boost in popularity. But beyond the water's edge, few seem to see things the way he does, allies included.

On issues ranging from terrorism to deterrence to subversion, Reagan has been able to attract scant international support for his policies, leading some to detect the whiff of neutralism in the air. On one issue after another, Reagan has ignored his instincts and been forced to retreat.

His call for a global boycott of Beirut airport has elicited expressions of support only from Britain and Jordan. The NATO countries are skeptical of his Strategic Defense Initiative known sensing this yearning, has dropped his previous conditions for a summit and will meet with Gorbachev in November.

In June, under intense allied pressure, Reagan also ignored conservative advice when he decided to continue to abide by SALT II limits on nuclear weapons despite perceived Soviet violations. On the other hand, he has remained firm on going ahead with SDI research for a high-tech shield against Soviet missiles attack even though NATO has declined to endorse the program.

An AP News Analysis

as "Star Wars," and most Latin American countries feel the same way about U.S. backing for Nicaraguan resistance forces. The economic embargo of Nicaragua, imposed 2½ months ago, has been criticized almost everywhere.

All of this seems to have had a moderating influence on the president. His conservative supporters are particularly disappointed with his more benign approach to the Soviet Union and wish he would have stuck by his earlier pledge to take "swift and effective retribution" against Middle East terrorists.

On the East-West issue, mainstream opinion both here and abroad holds that Reagan should at least make an attempt at improving Soviet-American relations by meeting face-to-face with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev. And the president,

Area priests receive title of Monsignor

AMARILLO - Monsignor Clifton J. Corcoran of White Deer and Kevin Hand of Groom are among six priests of the Roman Catholic Diocese of Amarillo who have been named Prelates of Honor by Pope John Paul II, according to an announcement by Bishop L. T. Matthiesen.

Others receiving the title of Monsignor are Norbert Kuehler and O. R. Blum of Amarillo, James Sonderman of Umberger and B. A. Erpen of Happy.

Diplomas will be presented to the new Monsignors on Sunday, Sept. 1, at 4 p.m. in the Holy Family Chapel of the Bishop DeFalco Retreat Center.

Also to be honored in the ceremony are 16 deacons, women religious and members of the laity, who will receive Pro Ecclesia et Pontific ("For the Church and the Pontiff") medals.

Monsignor Corcoran is pastor of Sacred Heart Church at White Deer. He was ordained May 29, 1954, and has served at Amarillo, Dalhart, Groom, Olton, Muleshoe, Vega, Pep, Petersburg and St. Francis prior to his assignment in White Deer.

Monsignor Hand is dean of the Pampa Deanery and a member of the Diocesan Board of Consultors. He is also chairman of the Priests Personnel Committee. He has been a priest for 33 years and has served in Amarillo, Childress, Wellington, Dalhart, Vega and Dumas prior to coming to Groom in 1981.

1st Methodist plans school

The First United Methodist Church of downtown Pampa will be hosting its Vacation Bible School July 22-26.

There will be classes for children ages three years old through the fifth grade.

Registration will be held Monday morning, July 22, prior to the 9 a.m. opening exercises held in the chapel of the Education Building at Foster and Ballard.

Theme of this summer's school is "The Bible Helps Us to Live Together." A highlight of the school will be visits from representatives of several service organizations in Pampa; they will share with the children their special role in helping everyone to live together.

A short program and open house will be held on Friday evening, July 26, at 7 p.m.

Church officials said the public is invited to attend, with an open invitation extend to children of the community to make plans to attend the week of fun and learning activities.

Those wanting further information may call the church office at 669-7411.

Church of Christ to hear speakers

Minister Gene Glaeser of the Mary Ellen and Harvester Church of Christ has chosen two sermon topics for the Sunday services July 14.

His morning sermon is entitled "Use Your Intelligence to Strengthen," and the evening sermon will be on "Hosea."

Pastor Glaeser invited the public to attend the services.

Brent Adams, minister of the University Church of Christ in Canyon, will speak at the Wednesday evening services series. Featuring a series of special speakers, the Wednesday services begin at 7:30 p.m. with a short devotional and then the featured speaker.

A group of 15 youths from the church will leave Sunday for the annual church-sponsored camp. The young people will travel to the Black Mesa Bible Camp in Oklahoma.

Serving as sponsors for this year's trip will be Joe Johnson and Keith Feerer, youth minister. The group will return on Saturday, July 20.

Religion Roundup

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) - A survey of Episcopalians finds that strong majorities of bishops, clergy and laity favor the ordination of women to the priesthood - a practice by the church since 1976.

The poll, made by the Gallup organization for the Prayerbook Society which seeks to continue usage of a 1928 prayerbook along with a 1979 revision, found the laity strongly favors freedom to worship in either, while clergy are evenly split about it.

The poll also asked preferences among four candidates for the office of presiding bishop, but withheld results at the request of the current presiding Bishop John M. Allin, who this year completes a 12-year term. His successor is to be elected at a convention this fall.

Officials battle over making airport security gaps public

WASHINGTON (AP) — Since the hijacking of TWA Flight 847 the government has stepped up its search for security gaps at foreign airports, but the Reagan administration and Congress are at sharp odds over whether the findings should be revealed to travelers.

The House has approved two measures — one of them unanimously — that would require disclosure to the traveling public of airports with substandard security. A Senate committee is to vote on similar legislation next week.

airports to the public might hamper diplomatic efforts to get security at those airports improved — or worse, provide directions to terrorists.

"Any legislation that forces our government to deal with a foreign government in a prescribed public manner would be counterproductive to the international cooperation that... is necessary to deal effectively with terrorism," Transportation Secretary Elizabeth Dole argued in a letter this week to the chairman of the House aviation subcommittee.

"This includes requiring our government to make a public determination of the adequacy of security measures at foreign airports," she continued.

The subcommittee chairman, Rep. Norman Mineta, D-Calif., made the letter public Thursday and questioned why travelers should not know whether an airport they are flying to has security problems.

Mineta sponsored the measure, which has cleared the House and is before the Senate. It would require deficient airports to improve security within 120 days or be listed on the back of airline tickets and at all U.S. airports as not meeting security standards.

Matt Scocozza, assistant secretary of transportation for international affairs, said there is concern within the administration such a publication of substandard airports would provide "a road map" for terrorists that can be used to target certain airports.

"One of our concerns is the publication of lists," he told Mineta at a hearing Thursday.

But the congressman wasn't impressed. "A professional terrorist already is going to know (an airport's security reputation)," he responded.

Administration officials also are concerned that if they are forced to publish lists of airports where security needs to be improved it will cause diplomatic problems that could hinder talks aimed at improving security at the airports in question.

Those advocating disclosure of the airports respond that the threat of being singled out as a security risk might, in fact, spur government to making security improvements for fear of losing U.S. tourist traffic.

Death row inmate wants an attorney

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — The next Texas death row inmate scheduled to die by lethal injection wants an attorney to help him get an execution stay.

"I don't want to die. If an attorney tells me we can beat this case in five to six years, then of course I'll take it," convicted killer John Michael Lamb, 27, said Wednesday.

Bruce Griffiths, an attorney with the American Civil Liberties Union in Houston, said he has not found an attorney to represent Lamb, but hopes to have one by the end of this week.

"There are more cases now than a couple years ago and less of a chance of success" in getting a stay, Griffiths said. Once an attorney handles an execution appeal, "you don't want to do it again," he added.

Lamb, a California drifter scheduled to die July 22, received the death penalty for the Nov. 6, 1982 robbery and shooting death of a man in a Greenville motel room. He fled to Florida in the victim's car, but was arrested and returned to Texas.

Attorney General Jim Mattox said Tuesday that Lamb probably will be successful in obtaining a stay if he wants one.

The inmate has maintained he is innocent and that he was convicted because his court-appointed attorneys did not represent him properly.

Quit the dumping on Jersey

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — Everybody loves to dump on poor old New Jersey, not just the trucker with the toxic waste or a gangster with a dead body.

Much maligned, its major industry reputed to be "the distance between New York City and Philadelphia," New Jersey just sits there and takes it.

No, New Jersey's official state bird is not the mosquito — it's the Eastern Goldfinch.

And no, the finch doesn't prefer to live out of state and commute.

New Jersey Rep. James Saxton says he's tired of hearing jokes like, "If this is New Jersey, just imagine what old Jersey was like."

Now comes a Texas humor publisher to the Garden State's defense, proposing that this week be declared "Be Nice to New Jersey Week," in which Americans atone for their put-downs.

"We have determined that New Jersey is the most picked-on state in the country," says Craig Scharf of Lone Star Publications of Humor.

"No place could be as bad as the jokes say," said Scharf, who happens to be a New Jersey native.

"New Jersey is a great place to be from, just ask all the people who have moved away," said Scharf whose firm has a combined nationwide circulation of about 3,000 for its newsletter, joke book and a digest of humorous stories and drawings. He has asked readers to write friends or relatives in New Jersey and apologize for "picking on their great state."

What is there to apologize for? Jokes like, "The Mafia is feeling the recession — they laid off four judges in New Jersey."

Or, "Swine flu was discovered in New Jersey — where else?"

Or, "The state gem is concrete. The state flower is swamp algae. The state tree is dead."

Lone Star says if readers don't know anyone in the state, they should apologize directly to Gov. Thomas H. Kean.

On Thursday, Saxton endorsed the idea of a "Be Nice To New Jersey Week" by entering a complaint into the Congressional Record: "Our great state never asked for the wild assortment of unfair humor which has been directed our way over the years."

State Commerce Commissioner Borden Putnam says the New Jersey shore, the state's historical sites and scenic beauty make it a top attraction for tourists, who pump $10 billion into the state's economy annually.

"This was the cockpit of the American Revolution," Putnam says. "There were more revolutionary battles fought in New Jersey than anywhere else."

Scharf has an appropriate comeback: "During the Revolutionary War, 100 battles were fought on New Jersey soil, and in every case both sides lost."

Mosque bombing reasons differ

HOUSTON (AP) — Two former convicts charged with bombing an Islamic mosque say they damaged the building in protest to the U.S. hostages in Beirut but authorities say the duo used the captives as an excuse.

Curtis D. Williams, a Houston agent with the federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, testified in a preliminary hearing Thursday that Daniel Allen Russell told authorities he helped bomb the mosque to express anger over the American captives in Beirut.

"He said the mosque was chosen on the basis of the TWA hostage situation as a protest," Williams testified before U.S. Magistrate H. Lingo Platter, who decided the case will be presented to a federal grand jury.

Russell and Randy James Jones, both 21, were being held in lieu of $50,000 bond on charges of illegal possession of explosives. The charges stem from the June 22 bombing of the Daar US Salaam mosque in Houston.

Authorities previously said they believed the bombing was not in retaliation of the hijacking of the TWA flight 847 and the 17-day captivity of its passengers.

But, Tom Berg, a federal public defender representing Russell, said his client offered that explanation after the bombing "as a justification for his actions."

"I don't feel that it was retaliation, especially in light of all the other stupid stuff they were doing," Berg said, referring to previous bombings Russell and Jones claim to have staged.

"It was a thrill bombing," Berg said. "The Moslem community doesn't need to feel threatened by this."

Russell, an apartment maintenance worker, is on parole for a 1984 robbery and Jones, an air conditioning service worker, is on probation for a 1983 burglary.

Williams said Russell, Jones and a third man, who has been linked to the mosque bombing but not charged, have been experimenting with bombs for some time.

Russell and Jones, both of Houston, told authorities that in April and March they bombed a portable toilet, trash dumpster, car, postal mailbox, newspaper box and a telephone booth, Williams testified.

"I can only theorize that it was for the thrill of vandalism or the excitement," he said.

Williams said he is pursuing charges against the third man that Russell and Jones implicated in the mosque bombing, which caused an estimated $50,000 in damages.

Federal authorities arrested Russell and Jones on June 28 after a confidential informant told them he heard the men bragging about the bombing at a Houston night club.

Politics emerging in debate over oil industry tax breaks

By MATT YANCEY
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Subsidized for half a century by tax breaks to fuel America's economy, the oil and gas industry is being eyed critically as Congress begins dissecting President Reagan's proposed tax reforms.

Whether those tax breaks survive may depend more on politics than economics.

"It's going to be a long, hot summer," says Lloyd Unsell of the Independent Petroleum Association of America, the chief lobbying arm for 15,000 independent oil and natural gas producers in the country.

"If I were you, I'd be scared to death," Sen. William Armstrong, R-Colo., a member of the Senate Finance Committee, told an oil investment seminar audience last month. "There isn't any industry more subject to demagoguery than the oil industry."

Reagan's tax reform package would increase taxes paid by oil and gas producers by $4 billion over the next five years. However, the original plan drafted last November by Donald Regan, then Treasury secretary and now White House chief of staff, raised them by 10 times that amount — $44 billion.

"Although the president didn't embrace the (first) plan, it remains the mark against which his own plan will be initially judged," says Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, chairman of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee.

Rostenkowski, D-Ill., said his committee will use a "critical eye" particularly on tax breaks for oil and gas producers.

He has indicated that four members of his committee from oil and gas producing states will not be a part of his team negotiating a tax compromise with the Senate.

Critics of the industry say they have an uphill fight in removing the breaks.

"I suspect that the reform fever is going to turn into re-election hots," said Ed Rothschild of the Citizen-Labor Energy Coalition, a group that has long opposed the tax preferences given the oil and gas industry.

"In the end," Rothschild opined, "there will probably be a tradeoff in which the oil and gas breaks will be retained in exchange for keeping the deductions for state and local taxes."

Already, Rep. Tony Coelho, a liberal California Democrat and chairman of his party's congressional campaign committee, is working with House Majority Leader Jim Wright of Texas to court independent oil producers back to the Democratic fold.

The mass defection of the independent drillers, with both their hearts and wallets, to Republican candidates in the 1980, '82 and '84 elections, is blamed for further eroding the once-solid political hold that Democrats had on the oil-producing Southwest.

Attempting to win oilmen back to the Democratic side, Coelho helped form the Council for a Secure America, a lobbying group teaming drillers with East Coast Jewish leaders who fear that the United States will once again become too dependent on Arab oil.

Rep. James Jones, D-Okla., a member of the Ways and Means Committee, also believes politics rather than economics will be the driving force behind how the oil and gas industry is treated in any tax legislation.

Jones, former chairman of the House Budget Committee, said Rostenkowski will use the issue in trying to upset House Majority Leader Jim Wright, D-Texas, in the race to succeed Rep. Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. as House speaker.

O'Neill, D-Mass., has announced he will not seek re-election in 1988.

By promising greater tax relief for middle-income families and heavy industry through higher taxes on oil and gas, Jones said, Rostenkowski can "put Wright in the position of having to defend the oil lobby."

The potential political impact of the Treasury Department's original tax proposals in four pivotal states — Texas, Oklahoma, Louisiana and New Mexico — did not go unnoticed by Republican leaders either.

Vice President George Bush and Treasury secretary and former

White House staff chief James Baker III, both Texans, are widely credited by producers with restoring 90 percent of the tax breaks that Regan's proposal would have removed.

Interior Secretary Donald Hodel, one of the administration's biggest fund-raisers in the last election, and Energy Secretary John Herrington also attacked the original Treasury plan from the beginning.

Despite the growing use of nuclear power, coal and solar energy — oil and natural gas still represent two-thirds of the nation's energy consumption. In addition, oil imports totaling $56 billion accounted for half the U.S. trade deficit last year, providing the administration with a "national security" argument for maintaining tax breaks for domestic drillers.

Landmark education reform act to have third birthday

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Mississippi's landmark Education Reform Act is approaching its third birthday facing major tests of its strength — a $35 million price tag for statewide kindergartens and continued pressure to increase teachers' salaries.

The sweeping reform act had raised hopes that Mississippi would reverse years of neglecting its public schools and pull the state from its last-place standing in many national categories.

However, some educators now wonder if the act will fulfill its promises.

"There's almost a depression about whether the act is really bringing meaningful reform," said Olon Ray, superintendent of the 6,500-student Biloxi school system. "There's a real danger that the state will go through the process of implementing the act technically but not in spirit."

A major problem has been coming up with the money such comprehensive reforms demand.

"I'm not sure when the Education Reform Act was written (in 1982) whether anyone figured out what the reforms would cost the state and whether the state could afford it," said James Schnur, dean of the College of Education and Psychology at the University of Southern Mississippi. Educators already have begun to lobby for funds for the kindergarten program, which the act said would go into effect in the 1986-1987 school year. The Legislature will have to appropriate funds in the 1986 session.

And both the Mississippi Education Association and the Mississippi chapter of the American Federation of Teachers have announced efforts to fight for more money for teachers, both at the state and local levels.

State law requires school districts to augment state funds for teachers' salaries but some give only a token amount while others pay up to an additional $4,000 a year.

The act, which became law in December 1982, faced its first major test in February, when teachers mounted a three-week, statewide strike for higher salaries.

The act had promised that teachers, whose salaries averaged $15,971 annually, would receive salaries matching the average throughout the Southeastern United States. At the time of the strike the Southeastern average teacher's salary was several thousand dollars higher.

The teachers' rallying cry was that their salaries were the lowest nationally and were at the heart of Mississippi's education problems.

They also were angered by the 1984 Legislature, which had not increased their pay.

Over the governor's veto, lawmakers approved a $4,400 pay raise over three years for the state's teachers, but teachers said they will continue to receive less than their Southeastern counterparts and will still be the lowest-paid in the nation.

Gov. Bill Allain said the state couldn't afford more than a $1,500 hike because added taxes would deter new industry from settling in the state.

To date, only two parts of the reform act have been implemented.

Sports Forum and Agin 'Um WARREN HASSE

IT WAS A GOOD QUESTION. Since the first Top O' Texas Rodeo was held in 1945, how come this is only the 39th annual?

The answer just amplified the hard work, frustration, dedication, worry, and even occasional fun, that the various volunteer Rodeo Association Boards have endured for 40 years. The two missing shows are the result of back-to-back years of last minute cancellations caused by a stateline embargo on horse and cattle movement due to animal encephalitis and a tornado. The first quite obviously eliminated participants, while the second caused extensive damage to the facilities. In each case, the problems were incurred only short weeks before the show date, after many major expenses had already been incurred.

It was just one of many times the members of the Board had gone to the bank and gotten a loan from a friendly banker, to be repaid by anticipated revenue from the next year's performances. That double cancellation caused extreme financial plague, the bulk of which was inherited by a longtime, devoted Board member, Bill McIntyre. When he became president, Bill knew he was suffering from a fatal illness. But he dedicated whatever time he had left to eradicating that debt, a fact he successfully accomplished through individual effort, spending many, many hard hours in doing so. If any person deserves a seat on the top rail, it belongs to Bill.

When the final performance is completed tomorrow night, planning begins immediately for No. 40. As soon as all bills are in, a financial statement will be prepared, the Board will convene to evaluate this year's effort. The Kid Pony Show committee will determine what changes in events need to be made, times, dates, age groups. And the entire Board will revue those same perennial questions: Should the show stay professional, or return to its onetime amateur status? Should a big name, expensive western star be brought in to key each performance? How was the stock, too soft, too tough? Did you like the special attractions designed primarily for the youngsters? Did the crowds like the music at the dances? Did we have any parking area problems, concessions, rest rooms, tickets, dust? Should we move the dates to attract more and better cowboys? Did we handle the advertising well enough? Was it the kind of show we can be proud to put our name and Pampa's name on? Did it help the businessmen?

Those are just a sampling of the questions that are always considered. And for many, the answer must come quickly in order to secure dates, sign up a stock contractor and special events people, or start renovations and remodeling of facilities as finances will permit. Unfortunately, the answers to some of these questions through the years have resulted in such strong feelings that some friendships of long standing have been lost as strongheaded individuals fought for their point. But in the most part, wonderful new and lasting friendships have been developed as they board expanded, doubling in size and bringing in a good mix of city businessmen with the original group composed primarily of ranchers.

The original cutting horse phase of the annual show, beautiful as it was to the knowledgeable observer, was too lengthy and slowed down the pace of each performance. It finally was removed and became a separate group of afternoon performances, attracting the nation's very finest animals, but very few customers. Due to varying causes, it was finally dropped.

Efforts to get top-ranked professional cowboys is always a major problem. Some stock producers attract a good string of contestants automatically. Purses available at other shows on similar dates are the major consideration. Loyalty and friendship are important. And the type of cowboy has changed completely, from the true working cowboy to quality professional, college graduate people. Vacationing doctors, summering school teachers and career-building upstarts board these bucking animals. Missing are the Larry Mahans and Freckles Browns who used to grace the arena at every show they could possibly make by hard nighttime driving or, as Mahan did so many times, flying his personal plane, loaded with other contestants, from an afternoon show in Colorado to a nighttime effort in Pampa.

The Triangle Rodeo Association was a ploy used to attempt to get and hold top cowboys, creating a special purse for entrants who performed in the shows at Pampa, Elk City and Woodward. It ran one year, 1962, and was reasonably successful. Tater Decker of Clayton, Okla., won steer wrestling; Glen Franklin, House, N.M., took calf roping; Duane Henigh, Laverne, Okla., won bullriding, all among the best in their business. Roy Barrington of Lubbock took bareback honors, while Bob Walker of Carlsbad was the saddle bronc winner.

While the ultimate goal of each contestant is to win money, because each dollar counts as one point toward a spot in the National Finals, there is a bit of honor in holding an arena record. For the Top O' Texas Rodeo, the most accurate figures available, show these as the best performances:

- Bareback - 76 points scored - Sid Savage, Melrose, N.M. (1972 on Tommy Steiner's Red Rock) and Buddy Reynolds, Slaton, (1984).
- Calf roping - 8.9 seconds - Paul Peska, Norman, Okla. (1974)
- Saddle Bronc - 75 points scored - Claude Groves, Lubbock (1972) on Steiner's Tall Timber and Terry Chapman, Haskell, Tx. (1984)
- Steer Wrestling - 4.2 seconds - Larry Dawson, Gruver (1977). Dawson also holds the second best time, 4.3, set in 1972.
- Bull Riding - 78 points scored - Kyle Whiting, Greenville Springs, Tx. (1981)
- Girls Barrel Racing - 16.15 Diltze Edmondson, 1982. Second that same year with 16.16 was Tamara Hammons, Canyon, Tx.
- Amateur Double Muggin - 26.6 - Ron Parnell, Freddie Ehrman, and Joe Richardson (1981).

And with two performances remaining, tonight and tomorrow, our hat is off to the many, many men and women who have volunteered to worry about and struggle all year long with producing each annual event, simply to show off and maintain interest in the one single sporting event born, bred and nurtured in the Southwest, and primarily in this cattle producing area of Texas, rodeo.

Spurs sign first-round pick

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The San Antonio Spurs have signed first-round draft pick Alfredrick Hughes to a contract, team General Manager Bob Bass announced Thursday.

Bass declined to reveal terms of the contract for Hughes, a 6-5 forward from Loyola University in Chicago.

Hughes' signing comes on the heels of a contract agreement between the Spurs and second-round pick Mike Brittain, a 7-1 center from South Carolina.

"I am impressed with his attitude," Bass said of Hughes. "He really wants to be a player and he wanted to get the contract signed so he could be in our rookie camp next week. He is so intense. He is a no-nonsense type guy who wants to be an NBA player."

Hughes was the 14th player overall to be picked in the NBA draft June 18.

He averaged 26.3 points a game last season to rank second in the NCAA.

Softball tourney set

The second annual Coors Men's Slowpitch Softball Tournament is set for July 19-21 at Hobart Park. Entry fee is $100 and the deadline is July 12.

All proceeds will go to the Satellite Center in Pampa. Entry fees should be paid to the Pampa Umpires Association, P.O. Box 1214, Pampa, Tex. 79065. Kim Snell, Randy Holmes, Debbie Middleton or Nelson Medley can be contacted for more details.

Pampa advances to 13-15 finals

The Pampa All-Stars posted a 12-3 victory over Top O' Texas Thursday night to advance to the finals of the District One 13-15 Tournament.

Pampa must defeat Randall County twice tonight to win the championship. The first game starts at 6 p.m. at Optimist Park. Randall County downed Pampa, 11-2, in their first meeting Tuesday.

Pampa did its damage against Top O' Texas in the first three innings, scoring 11 runs. Five of those runs scored as a result of errors.

James Ward and Grant Gamblin paced Pampa's hitting attack with two base hits each. Gamblin had three RBI in the second and third innings while Ward knocked in two runs. Ward was also the winning pitcher. He pitched two and a third innings before being relieved by Dustin Miller.

In the 16-18 district tournament at Dumas, Pampa lost a 4-2 decision to Dumas in an eight-inning game. Pampa plays again at 7 p.m. Saturday night.

A Minor League Baseball Tournament will be held July 19-20 at Pampa's Optimist Park. The tournament for eight and nine year old players is considered to be the first ever held.

"The Waco (state little league) office said it will be the first of its kind for this age group," said Larry Gilbert, who, along with Terry Moore, will coach Pampa's all-star team.

Pampa will host a team from Canyon, Wheeler, Berger, Stinnett and Phillips, plus two teams from Dumas. The eight-team tournament will be double-elimination.

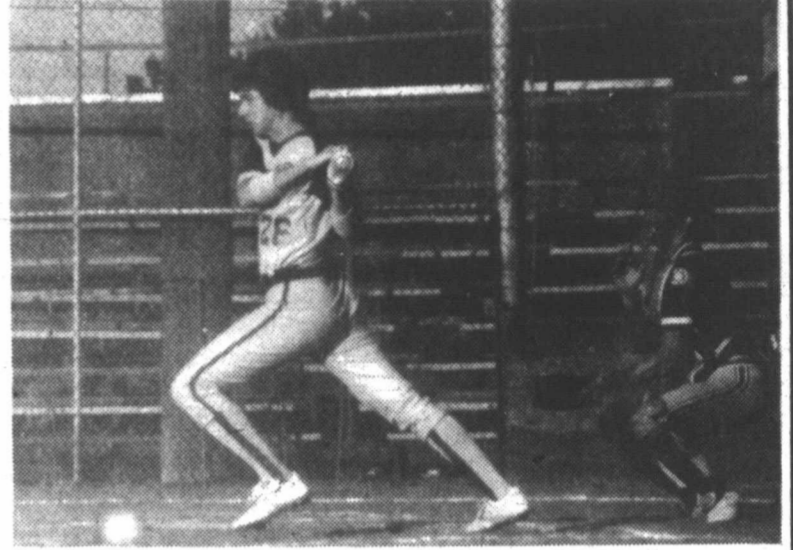

Pampa's all-star players include Chris Gilbert, Gregg Moore, Bret Queen, Matt Edgar, Justin Long, Chad Ziegelgruber, Kelly Dewey, Tracie Peet, Chad Dunnam, Kelly Forson, Hank Gindorf, Dwain Nickleberry, Mannie Munoz, Tommy Cox and Devin King.

Tournament pairings will be announced at a later date.

Girls' district softball tournaments are set to begin in Dumas.

In the 12-year-old tournament, Pampa's National League All-Stars play at 6 p.m. Saturday while the American League All-Stars play at 8. The senior tournament begins Tuesday.

Grant Gamblin singles in two runs.

Trio deadlocked for U.S. Women's Open lead

SPRINGFIELD, N.J. (AP) — Janet Anderson remembers the feeling and the cheers during the walk up the 18th fairway at the Del Paso Country Club in California in 1982.

The U.S. Women's Open belonged to her, her first triumph as a pro.

Within six months, her game and her swing had deserted her and she was ready to quit golf.

Anderson walked up a different 18th fairway Thursday, the one at the par-72, 6,274-yard upper course at the Baltusrol Golf Club. There were fewer cheers, but the feeling of accomplishment had returned.

Anderson capped a 2-under-par 70 by ramming home a 20-foot birdie putt on the final hole and grabbed a share of the first-round lead in the 40th U.S. Women's Open with red-hot Nancy Lopez and 24-year-old Kathy Baker.

"I was the best player that week," Anderson, 29, said, recalling her Open triumph. "But I haven't done anything since then."

In the year following her Open triumph, Anderson slipped from No. 13 to No. 39 in earnings on the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour, then to No. 53 in 1984.

However, she says her game has been improving gradually since 1983 when she began working with Ed Oldfield, an Arizona-based professional.

Lopez is seeking her fourth victory in seven outings and her first Open title. She has won 32 times during her pro career, including an LPGA Championship title.

An Open victory would qualify her for the LPGA Hall of Fame once she completes 10 years on the tour in 1987.

"I feel so good about how I am playing," said Lopez, who lost sole possession of the lead when she bogeyed the final hole.

Baker, seeking her first victory as a professional, reached four under after 10 holes, but bogeyed two holes on the way home.

"Things seemed to go my way," she said.

The 1983 Open champion, Jan Stephenson, finished a stroke behind the leaders due to a one-stroke penalty assessed after she accidentally moved her ball marker on the 11th hole.

Stephenson finished at 1-under par with six other players.

Poll backs USFL

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — The United States Football League, which throughout its three-year history has used polls to justify its actions, has a new one that says just what the league wants to hear — that the American public believes the league should continue.

While the Baltimore Stars and the Oakland Invaders continued to practice Thursday for Sunday night's USFL championship game — the last to be played in the spring — Commissioner Harry Usher was up in the press lounge unveiling the latest poll.

It found that 70 percent of the 1,000 people surveyed believed a new league should grow and exist, and 52 percent believed that the National Football League was trying to do in the USFL — the point the USFL is trying to make in its $1.2 billion antitrust suit against the older league.

The USFL said the New York firm of Penn & Schoen conducted the survey. A USFL press release said the poll was based on telephone conversations with more than 1,000 people — 700 of whom were identified as football fans.

Told of the contents of the poll, Joe Browne, communications director for the older league, said: "Sports have invariably found that paid attendance and TV ratings are better barometers of public interest than polls."

The game itself is being overshadowed by non-football events. Today, USFL owners meet in nearby Teaneck to continue their discussions on the shape of the league when it moves to the fall in 1986. At stake could be the survival of the league itself — at least eight of the current 14 franchises are on shaky financial ground.

In 1982, the league was founded on the basis of a poll that showed the public was ready for spring football. Then, after the owners voted in August to go to a fall schedule, they produced another survey that showed more support for fall play than spring.

Usher maintained Thursday that the latest poll was absolutely neutral. "You'll find some negative things in there," he said, pointing to one question that indicated only 39 percent of those questioned thought favorably of the USFL.

But it was also sprinkled liberally with such questions as:

"Some people say the NFL has been using its power with the networks to keep the USFL off TV in the fall and winter. Others say that the NFL is not involved in this. Which is closer to your view?"

Fifty-two percent of the respondents said they agreed that the NFL purportedly is using such power, which is one of the principal allegations in the lawsuit. It has been vigorously denied by the NFL.

Today's meeting, meanwhile, will concentrate on the transition to the next USFL season. Usher said Thursday that he would hope the league would have 12 teams but conceded: "it could be less."

JUNIOR WINNER — Jennifer Harper of Pampa won all-around honors in the junior division of the Gray County Horse Show held recently. Jennifer won five of eight events to take the first-place belt buckle. Senior division winner was Lisa Norris.

Astros' Ryan notches 4,000th strikeout

HOUSTON (AP) — It took him 18 years and 10 months to be in a position to notch his 4,000th career strikeout, and when the opportunity came Houston's Nolan Ryan knew exactly what to do.

Just as he had done so many times in his strikeout-filled major-league career, Ryan played New York Mets left fielder Danny Heep exactly as he planned Thursday night, sending the former Astro into the record books as the strikeout ace's 4,000th victim.

Ryan needed only three pitches against Heep, a fastball Heep fouled away, a changeup, which he took, and a curveball that Heep chased and missed.

"That's exactly what I wanted to do," Ryan said. "I went over those three pitches in my mind and I decided that's the way I wanted to do it if I didn't get behind him."

Following the historic strikeout, Ryan doffed his cap to the standing ovation that greeted him.

"This was special; I wanted to do this at home," said Ryan. "This was my last start before the All-Star break. After the All-Star Game we have a long road trip, so that was my motivation."

Ryan started the game with 3,993 strikeouts and an 85-strikeout lead over his nearest rival, Philadelphia's Steve Carlton, currently on the disabled list with a shoulder injury.

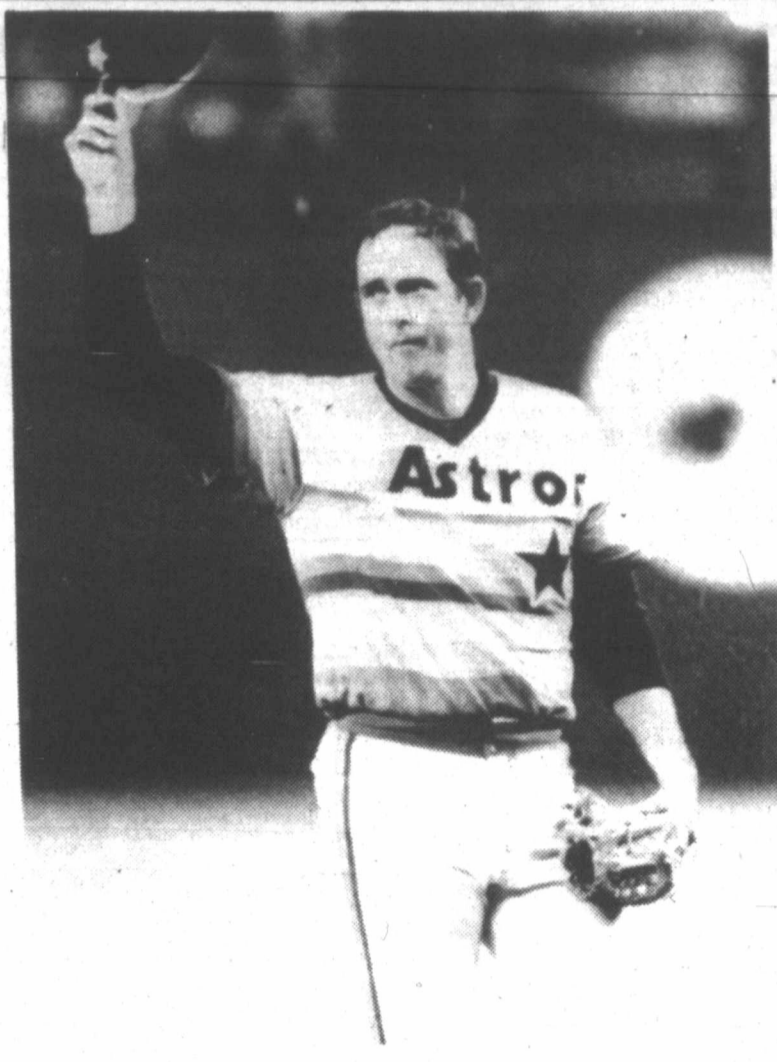

He pitched seven innings and had 11 strikeouts, running his career total to 4,004. It also extended his career total to a major-league-record 158 games of 10 or more strikeouts.

"He's one of the most consistent pitchers around to throw as hard as he does for as long as he has," said Mets outfielder George Foster. "He's lost some of his fastball but not much."

Montreal's Brad Mills was Ryan's 3,509th career strikeout on April 27, 1983, breaking the career strikeout record of Walter Johnson that had stood for 55 years.

Ryan recorded his first major-league strikeout in a Mets uniform on Sept. 11, 1966, fanning Atlanta's Pat Jarvis.

Ryan, who has five career no-hitters, says he never imagined early in his career that he'd still be pitching in his late 30s.

Nolan Ryan doffs his cap after recording his 4,000th strikeout.

Pitchers selected for all-star tilt

NEW YORK (AP) — Rich Gossage already was looking forward to the cherished memories. Bert Blyleven was trying to remember what it was like. Scott Garrelts was nervous. And Ron Guidry was just being honest.

All but one of the above were among those named to pitch Tuesday night in major league baseball's 56th All-Star Game. Guidry, who leads the American League with 11 victories and has a 2.89 ERA, asked to be left off the list since he was starting for the New York Yankees Sunday.

Guidry, who has won 10 in a row, said he knew about his impending selection by American League Manager Sparky Anderson on Tuesday.

"I was as honest as I could be," Guidry said. He said he told AL Executive Vice President Bob Fishel that "I'd be taking a spot someone else could put to better use."

"I'm not a rookie. I've been to four, so I know what it's all about. That has nothing to do with why I won't go," Guidry said. "What happens here (with the Yankees) is more important."

With Guidry off the list, Anderson chose eight other pitchers, including three of his own — Jack Morris, 10-6, Dan Petry, 10-7, and Willie Hernandez, who has 18 saves.

Cleveland's Blyleven and two Toronto Blue Jays, Dave Stieb and Jimmy Key, were the other starting pitchers selected. Besides Hernandez, the relievers are California's Donnie Moore and Jay Howell of Oakland.

The National League staff, selected by Manager Dick Williams of San Diego, included two of his own pitchers, starter LaMarr Hoyt and reliever Gossage. The other starters were Joaquin Andujar of St. Louis, Dwight Gooden of New York, Nolan Ryan of Houston and Fernando Valenzuela of Los Angeles. The relief staff was completed by Garrelts and Jeff Reardon of Montreal.

Ryan, selected for the sixth time but first since 1981, became the only pitcher ever to break the 4,000 lifetime strikeout barrier Thursday night when he struck out 11 against the Mets to give him 4,004 for his career.

Moore, Petry, Howell, Key, Garrelts, Hoyt and Reardon are first-time All-Stars, while Gossage leads all pitchers with nine selections.

"There will be a point in my life when I'm going to look back and think about it — probably when I'm in my 70s," said Gossage, who has 17 saves and a 1.79 ERA. "It's always an honor."

Both managers are expected to announce their starters on Monday.

Walker named top player

NEW YORK (AP) — Herschel Walker, called one of the best college football players ever after his three years at the University of Georgia, has finished his third year as a pro by being named the United States Football League Player of the Year.

In an Associated Press poll of 28 writers and broadcasters, two from each USFL city, the New Jersey Generals' running back got 27 first-place votes. The other vote went to Bobby Hebert, the quarterback for the Oakland Invaders.

Walker, hampered by injuries in his first two seasons with the Generals after his Heisman Trophy-winning junior year in 1982, rushed for a professional-record 2,411 yards in 18 regular season games. That was nearly twice the total of the USFL's next-best rusher, Mike Rozier of Jacksonville, who picked up 1,361.

Walker credited 1984 Heisman Trophy teammate and quarterback Doug Flutie, and his offensive line for much of his success.

"Doug made things a great deal easier for me," Walker said. "He took a lot of the pressure off me, and he gave me an opportunity to learn a lot more about offense. I got a chance to read defenses like a quarterback and got a chance to become a receiver."

"The offensive line we have is one of the best in both leagues. If I don't get 100 yards, I'm not doing my job."

Walker averaged 5.5 yards per carry, scored 21 touchdowns rushing and one receiving, and also led the Generals with 37 receptions.

The USFL now has had three different players of the year in as many seasons. Quarterback Jim Kelly of the Houston Gamblers, injured for the last part of this season, was the 1984 winner and Kelvin Bryant of the then-Philadelphia Stars won the honor the first year.

Dolphins compete in swim meets

The Pampa Dolphins competed recently in swim meets at Carlsbad and Santa Fe, New Mexico. Both were the largest meets attended all year by the Dolphins.

Eight Dolphins entered the Santa Fe meet which had 300 swimmers representing 13 teams. Team points were not scored at this meet.

Five Dolphins entered the Carlsbad meet and placed 15th in the team standings. This was a 20-team meet involving 430 swimmers.

In the girls 8 and under division at Santa Fe, Jamie Hill won the 50 fly, 100 IM and 50 backstroke. She finished second in the 50 free and 100 free. At Carlsbad, Jamie again won the 50 back, and was fifth in the 50 breast and 100 fly, sixth in the 50 fly, 7th in the 100 back, and 8th in the 50 free. She also swam the 100 free, but did not place in the top eight. Jamie improved all her times at both meets.

Rene Hill also swam in the girls' 8 and under division. She entered the same races as Jamie, but did not place in the top eight. She also improved all her times at both meets.

Amelia Schmidt competed in the 9-10 girls age group. She swam the 100 free, 50 back, 100 breast and 50 fly, but did not place in the top eight. She improved her times in two out of four events.

Rhea Hill competed in the 11-12 girls age group. At Santa Fe she finished seventh in "C" division in the 50 breast. She also swam the 50 free, 100 free, 200 free, 50 back, 100 back, 100 breast, 50 fly, 100 fly and 200 IM, but did not place in the top eight. At Carlsbad she was fourth in the 200 free and seventh in the 50 back and 200 IM. She also swam the 50 free, 100 free, 50 fly, 100 fly and 200 IM, but did not place in the top eight.

Pam Morrow competed in the girls 13-14 division. She placed second in the 100 breast, third in the 200 breast, fifth in the 200 IM, 100 back and 200 back, and seventh in the 100 free. Pam also swam the 50 free, 200 free and 100 fly, but the final standings had not been posted when the meet was over.

Richelle Hill also competed in the girls 13-14 age group. In the B division, she won the 500 free and was third in the 100 breast and 200 breast. Richelle competed in the A division in seven other events, but did not finish in the top three. Awards were given only to the top three in the A division at this meet.

At Carlsbad in the A division, Richelle won the silver medal in the 200 back and was sixth in the 100 back. She also swam the 100 free, 100 breast and 400 IM in the A division, but did not place in the top six. In the B division, she won the 50 free and was sixth in the 400 free.

Renita Hill competed in the C division of the Senior Girls age group. At Santa Fe, she was fourth in the 200 back, sixth in the 100 breast and eighth in the 100 free. She did not place in the top eight in the 200 IM, 100 back, 200 free and 50 free. At Carlsbad, Renita was eighth in the 200 breast and did not place in the 50 free, 100 free, 100 back and 100 breast.
