Big business analysts see '86 recession

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's economy is likely to suffer a recession beginning sometime next year, brought on by soaring federal budget deficits, high interest rates and further deterioration in foreign trade, economists for major corporations predicted today.

The National Association of Business Economists said a survey of its members found basic agreement that the economy will move ahead at a moderately good clip this year with inflation remaining under control.

But the economists predicted that things would turn sour next year. A majority, 52 percent, expect the next recession will begin in 1986, with only 17 percent of those surveyed predicting that the current growth will last into 1987 or beyond.

These expectations were a good deal more pessimistic than the Reagan administration, which in its forecasts has predicted steady growth through 1990.

Huge federal budget deficits are cited most often by the economists as the main reason they believe the current recovery will be shorter than the average of 46 months.

Other problems the economists believed would short-circuit the recovery were high interest rates and the country's record trade deficits.

"It is clear that the basic problem is the budget deficit. That is the thing we have to change in order to improve the outlook for interest rates and the trade deficit," said Ben Laden, president of the association and chief economist at the investment firm of T. Rowe Price Associates.

Scantily-clad suspect held in Panhandle jail

BY JEFF LANGLEY
Senior Staff Writer

When police arrested Melford Neil Hanks, 29, 859 S. Sumner, Saturday, the scantily-clad fellow had little to protect him from the cool evening breeze.

The strapping oilfield worker wore only a white T-shirt, purple string bikini panties with white lace, knee-high stockings and red-metallic high-heeled pumps, police said.

The state of undress in slinky women's clothes led to the man's arrest after he walked into the Allsup's convenience store in White Deer and into the view of a startled female clerk, Carson County Sheriff Connie Reed said this morning.

Hanks was arraigned this morning on a charge of indecent exposure. Carson County Justice of the Peace A.C. "Buddy" Davis set a $5,000 bond for the Pampa man, who remained in custody in Panhandle this morning.

"He walked into the store with a pair of women's bikinis on, and I mean they're skinny (panties)," Reed said.

"You could stick everything he had on in your pocket — and you wouldn't need a very big pocket," the sheriff added.

He said the clerk said the man "pulled the panties down," adding that Hanks denied doing that.

"With the skinny panties he had on, he didn't have to," Reed remarked.

"Apparently, the man's got a problem. He doesn't think there's anything wrong with it," he said.

Reed said Hanks is about 6'1" tall and weighs about 180 pounds. He has a beard and long reddish hair. The sheriff said the married Pampa man works in the oil patch. The suspect left the White Deer store and headed east on U.S. 60 in a yellow Toyota Landcruiser, authorities said.

The female clerk got the tag number and description and reported the incident to White Deer City Marshal Tam Terry, Reed said.

Pampa police were asked to stop the jeep, which "would be occupied by one scantily-dressed white male."

Hanks was stopped on the highway at Price Road and arrested about 8 p.m. Saturday.

Police Chief J.J. Ryzman said the man also is a suspect in connection with a Dec. 29 incident at the Pampa Mall.

The chief said the suspect and vehicle match the descriptions of a man dressed in a see-through woman's negligee who asked if he could help a Pampa woman with her packages in the mall's parking lot.

The woman told police she had carried a load of packages to her car, when a man driving a yellow Toyota Landcruiser parked in the next space. The suspect — reportedly dressed in a sheer, two-piece, purple "baby doll" nightgown with spaghetti straps and white lace and covering nothing underneath — got out of his vehicle and made the offer to help, the woman reported.

She declined the help and ran into K-Mart to notify authorities, police reported.

The scantily-clad fellow also was seen by several others at the mall, and he also made an appearance at the Sonic Drive In, 1418 N. Hobart, police previously reported.

DEA official says Mexico helped kidnap suspect flee

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mexican police aided the escape of an alleged marijuana grower believed to have been involved in the kidnapping of a U.S. drug agent, the head of the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration charges.

DEA Administrator Francis M. Mullen Jr. said Sunday that Rafael Caro-Quintero, "one of those whom we suspect, one of those traffickers involved in the kidnapping," boarded a plane in Guadalajara late Saturday despite attempts by Mexican judicial police to detain him with a warrant.

"We have now learned he had as protection members of the (Mexican) Department of Federal Security," Mullen said, referring to the Mexican equivalent of the FBI. "We have an element of the police letting this individual go..."

Mullen, appearing on ABC-TV's "This Week With David Brinkley," said Caro-Quintero, who was believed to have left Mexico, was "responsible for the plantation where 3,500 tons of marijuana were located in Mexico. This concerns us, and we wonder why he was allowed to leave."

Caro-Quintero was wanted for questioning regarding Enrique Camarena Salazar, a DEA agent abducted at gunpoint Feb. 7 in Guadalajara. The lack of arrests in the case has caused friction between U.S. and Mexican officials.

In a case similar to Caro-Quintero, DEA agents lost track of alleged cocaine kingpin Juan Matta Ballesteros this month in Mexico City when a Mexican police official delayed his arrest, Newsweek reported Sunday.

The DEA notified Mexican officials of the whereabouts of Ballesteros on Feb. 14, but two days later, Manuel Ibarra Herrera, head of the Mexican Federal Judicial Police, personally delayed the raid for nearly a day, the magazine said.

By the time the police arrived, Matta had vanished, Newsweek said.

A DEA spokesman, Robert Feldkamp, could not be reached immediately for comment on the Newsweek report. Telephone calls to Feldkamp's home went unanswered Sunday evening.

Mullen continued his criticism of Mexican law enforcement officials for their response to the kidnapping of Camarena, whose fate remains unknown.

Women arrested in checks theft

Pampa police have arrested two Amarillo women in connection with the weekend forgery of payroll checks reportedly stolen from a Pampa business.

Betty Ann White, 22, and Gloria Moore, 29, both of Amarillo, were arrested about 4 p.m. Sunday at 800 W. Wilks. The suspects were charged with forgery and remained in custody here this morning.

Police said nine payroll checks were stolen from McBroom Motor Co., 807 W. Foster. It is unknown when the checks were taken, reports said.

The women allegedly forged the stolen checks and either cashed or attempted to cash them Sunday at the Ideal Food Stores, 801 W. Francis and 300 E. Brown, Furr's, 1420 N. Hobart, and Safeway, 2545 Perryton Parkway, police reported.

White says military should guard borders

WASHINGTON (AP) — Drug smugglers are staging the "biggest invasion" in United States history and the military ought to consider it a threat to national defense, said Texas Gov. Mark White at a meeting of southern governors here.

White made the remarks at a meeting of the Southern Governors Association on Sunday, the first day of a three-day National Governors Association conference.

U.S. Rep. Glenn English, D-Okla., told the governors that the military is increasing its aid in the so-called "War on Drugs," but that use of the military to curb drug smuggling cannot have "any negative impact" on defense.

"Frankly, how on earth can we spend hundreds of billions of dollars to protect this country and its national security interests and fail to take account of the biggest invasion that has occurred in the history of the country?" White asked.

English, a member of the House Government Operations Committee, said the military is going to loan more radar and interception planes to the drug war. He said there would be 33 Air Force radar aircraft in operation in the Gulf of Mexico and in the Caribbean by 1987 and six new Army radar aircraft will be added soon.

The Air Force also has agreed to use routine training flights over the Gulf of Mexico for drug surveillance, English said.

"I want to stress that up until now, there has not been a real 'War on Drugs,'" he said.

Over half of the drugs that come into the United States from South America are smuggled in by air, English said. Land-based military radar installations detect fast, high-flying planes, but the drug smugglers fly below the radar line in smaller aircraft.

English said the "route of choice" by smugglers of drugs originating in South America has been in between Cuba and Haiti and into Florida. With stepped-up surveillance, such as three Air Force radar balloons off Florida's coast, the drug smugglers are turning to routes up through the Gulf of Mexico, he said.

Between the hours of 8:30 a.m. and 6:30 p.m. on Thursday, Feb. 7, 1985, an unknown person or persons entered a residence at 2905 Duncan by prying open the back door with an unknown instrument.

Once inside the residence the intruders removed stereo equipment consisting of wood grain stereo speakers, AM-FM receiver, cassette recorder, turntable, a wood grain stereo cabinet with rollers on the bottom and glass doors, and an 8-track stereo player. Brand names on the stereo equipment are Sanyo, Hitachi and Sony. Also taken was a cable television converter box, a white Eureka brand upright vacuum cleaner and numerous record albums. Estimated loss is $1,000.

Crime Stoppers will pay $500 to anyone giving information leading to the arrest and indictment of the person or persons responsible for this burglary.

If you have information about this burglary or any other crime, you can report it and remain anonymous by calling 669-2222. Rewards are available for other crimes not in this announcement.

Rivers remain out of banks from Oklahoma to Vermont

By MARK BERNIS
Associated Press Writer

Rivers and streams remained over their banks from Oklahoma to Vermont today and warm-temperature records continued to melt after floods forced hundreds of people from their homes and caused millions of dollars in damage.

Parts of Montana, Wyoming and the Dakotas were buffeted today by rain and snow, and winds gusted to near 60 mph between Cheyenne and Laramie, Wyo.

Flood warnings continued today across western New York, northwestern Pennsylvania, northern Ohio and northeastern Indiana. Ice jams caused flooding on the Winooski River of Richmond, Vt., and floods continued in Oklahoma.

The temperature early today at Atlantic City, N.J., was 68 degrees, 3 degrees above the 1976 record for the date.

A weekend of unseasonably warm weather sent snow-swollen rivers to flood levels in Oklahoma, Michigan, New York, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Missouri and Vermont.

High water took at least three lives in Indiana and Missouri, but flood waters were receding by late Sunday in most areas, officials said. Dense fog in Michigan was blamed for five deaths in traffic and plane crashes.

"We're hurting quite drastically, but we're busy digging out," said Mayor Bob Kehler of Skiatook, Okla., where flood damage was estimated at more than $1 million after Bird Creek overflowed. "Floors buckled, sheetrock is falling; it's a state of mass confusion around here right now."

Temperatures on the East Coast were summer-like Sunday. Roanoke, Va., and Worcester, Mass., had their warmest February days ever at 80 and 71 degrees, respectively. Record highs for the day fell in 27 cities and for the month in 12 of those, the National Weather Service said.

An estimated 100,000 people surged into Central Park in New York City on Sunday as the mercury climbed to 75 degrees, 10 degrees above the previous record for the date set in 1971.

Flooding in north-central Indiana, especially along the Wabash River, "will be the worst it's been in 20 to 30 years," weather service hydrologist Albert Shippe said Sunday. "In portions of the northern part of the state, it will be worse than it was in 1962," he said, referring to heavy floods that inundated Fort Wayne and other areas.

In addition to high water, floating ice caused damage. At Vermilion, Ohio, on Lake Erie, Mayor Hobart Johnson estimated damage at about $10 million. He said 50 to 75 families had evacuated but returned Sunday.

Scattered flooding also was reported in western Pennsylvania, where a four-mile ice jam on the Allegheny River flooded out the main road to the town of Rimer.

fire report

No fires were reported by the Pampa Fire Department in the 40 - hour period ending at 7 a.m. today.

Appearance does not dispel doubts

MOSCOW (AP) - President Konstantin U. Chernenko has appeared in public after being out of sight for two months, but his faltering manner and the way Soviet television managed his appearance did little to dispel doubts about his health.

Carefully edited television footage less than two minutes in length was aired Sunday on Soviet television. It showed Chernenko, 73, sitting, standing and murmuring a few words as he voted in an election for the Parliament of the Russian Republic.

Western diplomats said they do the ruling Politburo, appeared smiling and confident as he and his family voted at a polling place crowded with Western reporters.

Gorbachev turned to the cameras several times during his visit to the polling place, and posed with his granddaughter as she stuffed his ballot into the box.

Western diplomats, who spoke on condition they not be identified, suggested Chernenko's surprise television appearance was staged to show the leader without straining his evidently poor health.

He is said to suffer from emphysema, a lung ailment that makes breathing difficult and can cause heart strain.

Diplomats said the telecast at least showed Chernenko was capable of speaking, sitting and standing, and ended rumors that a stroke had left him unable to talk.

During his 59-day absence, rumors persisted in Moscow that Chernenko was seriously ill.

"They've done I suppose the best they could in the circumstances," said a West European diplomat.

"It would have been difficult not to have a picture of the leader voting."

Chernenko, who was a candidate in the election, failed to give a traditional election speech Friday because of illness. He had not been seen in public since Dec. 27, when he was shown on television at a Kremlin awards ceremony.

Cancer study volunteers sought

TYLER, Texas (AP) - Workers who have been exposed to asbestos are being asked to volunteer for a five-year study that would involve experimenting with two possible cancer-preventing drugs.

Scientists are recruiting more than 350 volunteers from among 1,200 former insulation plant workers in this East Texas city.

The volunteers, who worked with asbestos at a Tyler plant between 1954 and 1972, are considered to have a high risk of developing lung cancer.

"The large majority feel they have everything to gain and nothing to lose," said nurse Linda Riley, one of the recruiters.

The $1.7 million study is financed by the National Cancer Institute and headed by Dr. Jerry W. McLarty of the University of Texas Health Center at Tyler.

"It's a unique approach because we're trying to prevent cancer, not cure it," he said.

The federal government in 1982 began looking for chemicals, foods and vitamins that might prevent lung cancer or halt its growth. NCI is funding 26 clinical trials of the most promising substances.

The Tyler cancer study involves beta-carotene - a source of vitamin A found in carrots, broccoli, spinach and winter squash - and retinol, a form of vitamin A found in liver, eggs and milk.

While scientists don't know exactly how the two chemicals fight cancer, experts believe the drugs prevent the disease from taking root and becoming malignant.

But McLarty warned against "raiding the health food store" in search of miracle drugs.

"It would be dangerous for anyone to self-prescribe these drugs," he said. "They may hurt themselves and it could cost them a lot of money."

In the study, half of the volunteers will take pills containing beta-carotene and retinol. Others will be given look-alike placebos containing no active drugs, the Dallas Times Herald reported.

Pampa City Manager

I want to mention this week that the Logo Contest is continuing. We have had more than 40 entries submitted to date.

I am very excited about the entries that have been submitted and encourage every one that if they have not submitted an entry to the City Logo Contest, to do so by mailing it to Logo Contest, c/o City Hall, P. O. Box 2499, Pampa, Texas, 79065.

Or simply bring your entry to the City Manager's office at City Hall.

The City Commission has instructed me to repair the Pioneer Cottage. Prior to beginning the work, we must notify the Texas Historical Commission of the work to be done.

It is important that the work be done accurately. Therefore, if anyone has photographs of the cabin, please consider loaning them to me here at City Hall. I can copy and return them. Any photographs would be helpful.

Also, we are investigating the renovation of City Hall. The City Hall building is a very good historical structure and should be restored as accurately as possible.

If anyone has photographs of City Hall (all four sides), I would like to borrow them so that an architect can review them. If you have photographs, please call me or drop them by City Hall.

As a result of several of the phone calls that I have received over the past couple of weeks, I want to share some information with you that may interest you.

The Fire Department has a Tot Finder program. Tot Finder stickers are available at all fire stations and are free to anyone living within Pampa. We urge parents to place these stickers on the bedroom windows where their children sleep.

Upon arrival at all structural fires, a member of the Fire Department circles the structure. Upon finding a Tot Finder sticker, the firemen will immediately concentrate on entry to that room to look for occupants.

The Fire Department also has a sticker for the bedroom window of invalids that will receive the same urgency at a fire scene.

You can pick up the stickers at the main fire station or at one of the two fire substations. In addition, there is a sticker that you can place on your telephone with the emergency fire number on it.

The Police Department has numerous programs to assist the public in reducing their chances of becoming a victim of crime.

One of the most popular programs is the Neighborhood Watch. At the request of a person on a block, the crime prevention officer will go to that particular block and talk with the residents to help them set up the program. He give advice in the areas of protecting yourself and your property.

After the block is established, the neighbors purchase a sign for each end of the block signifying that the neighbors do participate in Neighborhood Watch and will notify the police of suspicious activities.

The Police Department also has engravers available for loan. Residents can engrave their driver's license number on their property, thus making identification easily obtained.

Also, timers are available to be loaned to residents on vacation to give the house a lived-in look. By placement of a light on the timer, the light will come on automatically at established times.

Both items are loaned free of charge.

The crime prevention officer is available to inspect homes. If you would like to have your home inspected by an officer, call for an appointment to have your home inspected. The officer will provide suggestions on the types of locks you need, how your windows are locked and in general how secure your home is in terms of burglary prevention.

If you need information about any of the Crime Prevention programs, contact the crime prevention officer at 669-7407.

The Sanitation Department provides numerous services of which you need to be aware. The landfill is open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday, and from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. on Sunday.

As a resident of Pampa, you may dispose of large items by taking them to the landfill. There will not be a charge for admission to the landfill. If you cannot take the items or have tree limbs, you should stack them behind your fence, away from the dumpster, call the Service Center at 665-1689 and request that you be placed on a list to have your large items or tree limbs picked up.

Tree limbs should be cut in lengths of less than six feet.

Way cleared for Williams' imprisonment

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Supreme Court today cleared the way for the imprisonment of former Teamsters union president Roy L. Williams and two others for conspiring to bribe former Sen. Howard Cannon, D-Nev.

The court, without comment, refused to hear arguments that federal prosecutors unlawfully used FBI wiretap evidence in the case.

The court also rejected an appeal by a fourth defendant in the case, alleged underworld figure Joseph Lombardo, 56. He was sentenced to 15 years and already in prison.

Williams, who will be 70 on March 22, was sentenced to 55 years in prison. Teamsters trustee Andrew G. Massa was sentenced to a year and a day, and union trustee Thomas F. O'Malley received a 2 1/2-year sentence.

Williams and Lombardo each were fined $29,000 as well, and Williams was forced to give up his Teamsters position.

FBI agents made more than 2,000 reels of court-authorized tape recordings over a 14-month period.

The four defendants were convicted Dec. 15, 1982, of scheming to bribe Cannon in return for his help in trying to defeat a trucking deregulation bill. Cannon was not implicated in any wrongdoing in the case, and the bill later became law.

Another convicted conspirator, Teamster pension fund consultant Allen M. Dorfman, was shot to death in gangland style in a suburban Chicago restaurant parking lot in January 1983.

Lawyers for the four defendants said their clients' privacy rights were violated because of the extensive nature of the wiretaps.

They said that the wiretaps were in place for three months before federal authorities in early 1979 began to suspect a bribery attempt.

The appeals said the wiretaps were installed on Dorfman's office phones because the authorities were investigating possible hidden ownerships in Nevada casinos.

The 7th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruled last June that the government's use of the wiretaps had been lawful.

Mattox's commercial bribery trial resumes

AUSTIN (AP) — The prosecution's commercial bribery case against Attorney General Jim Mattox — a complex action full of lawyers, legal jargon and money — resumes today in Travis County district court.

In two weeks of testimony, jurors have heard a tangled story involving a billion-dollar oil lease case, $300 million in public bond issues, taped telephone calls and a threat allegedly made by the state's highest law enforcement officer.

Mattox, 41, was charged with the felony in 1983 under a seldom-used statute. If convicted, he could face up to 10 years in prison and a $5,000 fine.

He is accused of threatening to destroy the lucrative bond business of the high-powered Houston law firm Fulbright & Jaworski unless one of its lawyers quit trying to question his sister, Janice Mattox, in an unrelated case.

Mattox has said the disagreement was only "a spittin' contest between lawyers," and steadfastly maintains his innocence. But Fulbright & Jaworski lawyers Wiley Caldwell and Thomas McDade have testified that they believed Mattox meant to ruin their bond business.

During the trial, which is expected to last two more weeks, prosecutors have led the four-man, eight-woman jury through a complicated chain of events that occurred in the spring of 1983. The events culminated in phone calls from Mattox to Caldwell, Fulbright & Jaworski's top bond lawyer.

Caldwell, a soft-spoken, balding, bookish man testified that Mattox told him he would "go to war" with the Houston firm, that he wanted Caldwell to "muzzle McDade" and that he would withhold approval of $300 million-plus in public bonds the firm had pending in the attorney general's office. Under state law, the attorney general must approve such bonds before sale.

What led to those calls, Travis County District Attorney Ronnie Earle maintains, was another case — one involving oil.

That was a lawsuit wealthy South Texas rancher and oilman Clinton Manges filed against the Mobil Oil Corp.

Manges charged that Mobil had violated the terms of its lease on some 65,000 acres of his land. The state, which shares in oil revenue and is represented by the attorney general, joined the suit on Manges' side.

Fulbright & Jaworski's McDade represented Mobil. He quickly sought to have state District Judge Ruben Garcia of Laredo removed from hearing the suit. Garcia had received a campaign contribution from a Manges-financed political action committee. Mattox also got campaign money from Manges, prosecutors said.

In the move to disqualify Garcia, McDade wanted to question the attorney general's sister — Dallas lawyer Janice Mattox — about a $125,000 loan she and another brother, Jerry Mattox, received from a Seattle bank with which Manges was doing business.

Prosecutors said Mattox grew irate over the treatment of his family, phoned Caldwell at Fulbright & Jaworski and sought to have him intervene.

Caldwell testified that on June 17, 1983, Mattox threatened to withhold approval of the firm's bonds.

Mattox, Caldwell testified, "said until we got that matter straightened out, there would be no bond approvals from his office."

"I had been practicing law for 33 years. I have known every attorney general, some of them very well ... I have never yet seen that kind of conduct out of any of them," Caldwell said. Then, nodding toward the gray-suited Mattox, he added, "The man sitting over there had threatened me."

The jury also heard five telephone conversations secretly taped recorded by McDade.

On one, Mattox accused McDade of waging "a personal vendetta" and pledged close scrutiny of Fulbright & Jaworski bonds.

The attorney general told McDade he wouldn't allow his sister to be questioned and advised the lawyer that they were "in a trap."

However, the jury also heard Mattox and an aide advise McDade and Caldwell there was "no general embargo" on the firm's bonds.

Police step up patrols, fear more violence after fire

MESQUITE, Texas (AP) — Police have no suspects in the arson-ruled blaze that caused more than $1 million damage to an abortion clinic in this Dallas suburb.

But in the wake of that fire, Dallas police are stepping up patrols at local abortion clinics in an effort to avoid possible violence.

Officials of Dallas-area abortion clinics said they fear more violence at their centers because people arrested for attacking clinics are often repeat violators. "All those arrested have been charged with multiple acts," said Glenna Halvorson-Boyd, president of the National Abortion Federation and an administrator at Dallas' Fairmont Center.

"There hasn't been any isolated attacks," she said. "You must predict further violence."

Deputy Police Chief George Reed said authorities were also concerned about more violence and had ordered increased patrols of Dallas clinics. "When there's been one, there's always a possibility of another," he said.

Police said Sunday they have no suspects in the blaze that destroyed the Women's Clinic of Mesquite Inc. and nine other offices in the one-story building in this Dallas suburb.

Arson was ruled in the multimillion-dollar blaze, which was reported at about 10:30 p.m. Friday. Investigators say they believe the fire was the work of an anti-abortionist.

About 250 protesters demonstrated again Saturday near the rubble.

Complaints were missing

For those of us who can recall the days of the three-cent postage stamp, the idea of having to pay 22 cents to mail a letter is most aggravating, yet necessary, thanks to the U.S. Postal Service.

Although the increase in the charge for mailing a letter, up two cents from the previous 20 cents, is now in its ninth day, the hue and cry that used to accompany such increases doesn't seem to have materialized this time.

Oh, there has been some minor grumbling, especially from those of us caught with a bunch of 20 cent stamps who were forced to by an equal number of two-centers so we could use up the old stamps.

But, all in all, the grumbling has been minor. Here at the newspaper we haven't received the first "Letter to the Editor" attacking the increase.

Perhaps we've all been so numbed by the constant nibbling by various government agencies that a couple of pennies pales in comparison to lots of dollars. Maybe two cents is not worth the trouble these days.

Back when the topic of raising the postage rate from the historic three-cent rate was first announced, it seemed as though the world was coming to the end.

Mail carriers ducked and ran whenever they saw a patron, lest they get blamed for what had been done in Washington, D.C. People wrote their letters to Congressmen and to the newspapers, complaining about the increased costs.

Little old ladies went out and bought large amounts of stamps thinking, wrongfully, that they could mail at the smaller amount until their supply ran out.

Many subsequent postage rate hikes ended up as the biggest topic of conversation around town for days. Outrage persisted and there was talk of boycotts.

Then of course, everyone settled down and accepted inflation. We need the mail system, yet at the same time, the post office always seems to need a little more of our money. That's just a fact of life.

Nowadays, an increase in postage is minor compared with some of the other indignities being forced upon us. For example, the feds whacked car owners with a five-cent increase per gallon of gas; most of us send a lot fewer letters per month than gallons of fuel we flow out our car's exhaust pipes.

And the extra money the state is extracting for auto license plates this year probably would keep us in stamps for months.

Compared to other recent price increases, especially in the family grocery bill, the inconvenience of a two-cent hike in postage seems more of a subject of consternation than the increase itself.

Twenty cents was a good round figure. You could put a quarter in a stamp machine and get a stamp and a nickel in return, or you could drop in $1 and get five stamps.

Now the whole system is out of whack again. We're probably going to have to take three one-cent stamps along with a 22-center when we're dealing with machines. Ever try pasting 22 one-cent stamps on the same envelope?

Besides which, the stamp dispensers always seem to be out of order.

Right now I'm suggesting something I never thought I'd say — why not go straight from 20 cents to 25 cents?

That would save postal clerks from wasting their time counting out pennies all day long — maybe giving them time to more rapidly sort and deliver the mail. And the dispensing machines would be on an even keel, when they are in operation.

In our present society one cent doesn't mean much on an individual basis. You can save your coppers for a month and still not have enough for a movie ticket. But you collect all those extra three cents for each stamp purchased in the nation and you could have some big money.

Maybe the postal people could take the resulting extra funds and do something really nice for customers like get mail to Pampa from Houston and Dallas in less than a week or even provide free coffee for everyone who waits in long lines at the post office.

Or maybe some of the money could be used to hire a person who does nothing but keep watch over and fix those confounded stamp machines when the rest of the post office is shut down.

Custom officials relaxing border searches

HOUSTON (AP) — Agents along the U.S.-Mexico border say things should return to normal by tonight after the relaxation of vehicle searches that bogged down traffic for the last two weeks and angered Mexican officials.

The search of cars entering the United States from Mexico began Feb. 15 after a U.S. Drug Enforcement Agency official was allegedly kidnapped at gunpoint in Guadalajara, Mexico.

American officials said they hoped the searches would turn up clues to the disappearance of Enrique Camarena Salazar.

Mexican officials complained that the huge traffic jams created by the searches cut the number of tourists visiting the Mexican border towns and caused businesses to sustain heavy financial losses.

Last week, Mexico's ambassador to the United States, Jorge Espinosa de los Reyes, delivered a note to U.S. officials expressing "deep concern" by the Mexican government over the inspections.

Charles Conroy, public affairs director for the customs region that includes Texas, New Mexico and Arizona, said Sunday that operations along the entire 1,760-mile U.S.-Mexico border should return to normal by tonight. "The U.S. Customs Service will begin returning gradually to a more normal operation (Sunday)," Conroy said. "We will still be keeping alert for information on the missing DEA agent."

Conroy said orders to relax the searches came from customs headquarters in Washington early Sunday morning.

Border inspectors had been searching the trunks, passenger compartments and even under the hoods of cars entering the United States from Mexico.

Many Ciudad Juarez residents boycotted businesses in El Paso, Texas, where thousands of Mexicans work and shop daily, to protest the searches.

In Tijuana, across from San Diego, Calif., a radio and newspaper advertising campaign is urging Mexican residents not to visit the United States.

Despite the deployment of hundreds of federal police on the Camarena case and a $50,000 reward offered by the United States, there has been no hint of the agent's fate.

Lawmakers begin eighth week; water debate is expected

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas legislators returned today for their eighth week of the 69th Legislature with most attention concentrated on an expected big water plan debate Tuesday in the Senate.

The Senate had mostly a local bill session set today.

The House, which was to convene at 2 p.m., had a brief agenda including a Senate-approved bill that would make it a crime to make money off selling or buying human organs in Texas.

A joint session of the two houses is scheduled Wednesday to hear Vice President George Bush.

Rep. Hugo Berlanga, D-Corpus Christi, has said a House bill to declare a moratorium on licensing of low-level nuclear waste disposal sites would be brought up early in the week. The bill would give preference to locations on state-owned land and disposal methods other than burial underground.

The Texas Low-Level Radioactive

Waste Disposal Authority on Friday rejected staff recommendations for a site in McMullen County and approved a $200,000 study to try to find a site on state-owned land.

One of the major debates of the session is expected Tuesday when the Senate is scheduled to take up a statewide water plan package that is considered one of the priority items of the session.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the covering commandment.

A seed is planted in communist China

Shanghai once was one of the leading trading and banking centers of the world. It was called the "Paris of the Orient." Then the communists took over.

Since that happened, in 1949, the finance game has been played under the old Power Rule. The communists have the power, and they make the rules. The people owned nothing. Thus, there was little need for a stock exchange and the banking houses. They were closed.

But a curious thing happened recently. The Communist government, under enlightenment from Deng Xiaoping, decreed that business firms could finance expansion plans by selling stock to the public.

First to take advantage of the new order was Shanghai Yanzhong Industrial Co. It put 100,000 shares on sale at $17.38 per share—first come, first served.

How did the firm make out? It sold the entire issue in less than eight hours. Shanghai citizens quickly forgot the warnings about the evils of capitalism. Thousands formed a queue a mile long.

The first man in line bought 40 shares. Behind him was an elderly woman who must have had some capitalistic spirit left over from the pre-communist days because she whipped out 10,000 yuan (about $3,500) and bought 200 shares. Most buyers, however, purchased only one share of stock—enough for a small taste of capitalism.

The stock-sale breakthrough and other recent developments certainly don't mean that China is going to become capitalistic overnight—far from it. But, if you plant a seed....

Berry's World

"Can you BELIEVE it? My mother didn't know the difference between ACID rain and PURPLE Rain."

Anthony Harrigan

Even liberals see the light

Well-intentioned groups, such as the Bread For The World organization, continue to press for what they regard as compassionate action in sending food to hungry people around the globe. Apparently it doesn't occur to them that they are encouraging a dependency that locks people into destitution.

Bread For The World lobbies for increased U.S. food aid to foreign countries irrespective of their political systems. For example, it favors expanded food assistance to the People's Republic of Mozambique.

Those citizens who belong to the Bread For The World group would profit from reading what prominent liberal publications are saying in regard to the worsening famine conditions in the world today.

On December 17, The New Republic said in an editorial "that politics is at the heart of the misery besetting nation after Third World nation." It criticized the prevalence of the "one-party state 'socialist' governmental model." The People's Republic of Mozambique, with its Marxist regime, fits that description.

On December 3, The Washington Post published a detailed article on the effect of foreign aid in Tanzania, which was supposed to be a model for the Third World to follow. More than $2 billion in assistance has been given to Tanzania since 1970.

"A country that once had been able to feed itself," said Post writer Glenn Frankel, "and whose farmers had produced surpluses large enough to sell overseas collapsed into chronic dependency on Western grain and emergency food shipments."

Mr. Frankel said that "Food aid programs provided cheap Western grain that depressed the prices paid to local farmers for the grain and allowed the government to postpone necessary agricultural reforms."

Aid has had a corrosive effect on Tanzanians, precisely as food stamps have created dependency on the United States. Roger Young of the North-South Institute in Canada says that there exists in Tanzania today "a deep-seated psychological dependence."

Mr. Frankel reports that the $150 million in American food aid to Tanzania has wound up in the cities. He notes that rural areas generally feed themselves. "The cities," he adds, "have lived off cheap food supplied from overseas." The government of Tanzania has compounded the food problem by coercing peasants to resettle in what amounts to state collective farms.

These, as I say, are comments from liberal journals and hence should be heeded by liberally-oriented groups such as Bread For The World. It's not enough to feed the hungry today. People who are concerned about the hunger problem have to look at the long-range threat and identify the root problem of mistaken and destructive economic and political systems.

Americans are a charitable people, but their charity will be wasted if they don't insist that the nations that receive food assistance reform their systems. Without reforms, dependency will increase. Organizations such as Bread For The World should realize that they have much to learn.

A helluva way to live

You've heard by now that Bernhard Goetz who shot those four muggers on a New York subway was not indicted for the shooting. The grand jury called it "self-defense."

For the record, before he shot those four there were an average 154 holdups on New York subways every week.

The week after he shot the muggers only 80; about half as many.

A grandmother of my acquaintance has been increasingly anxious about her grandson, Steve, as he prepared for his enlistment in the Air Force.

I could tell by the questions she asked me about developments in the Middle East, in Central America. Did I think we might become involved in war there?

And she wanted to know about the relative safety of military planes; "they seem to crash a lot."

It was mostly to comfort her that I sought comparative statistics.

Steve's likelihood of being killed in our peacetime Air Force is 1.73 per 100,000 flying hours.

Even in combat, at worst his odds are three-in-a-thousand.

Steve is in seven times that much danger from being killed by traffic or by criminals on Chicago's streets!

Have not our nation's preachers, teachers, pundits, politicians and missionaries been overshooting the target in their preoccupation with the faraway?

Americans, as never since the wildest days of the early West, are risking the wrath of the law by arming themselves against alley-rats.

Just in my home-base city of Chicago, Daniel White, 79, confronted by a 19-year-old armed robber, shot him dead.

Elderly plumber Harold Brown, confronted by an armed robber, pulled a .32 and shot the robber dead.

There were 764 homicides in Chicago last year. Seven were decreed to be "justifiable." That means an intended victim, in self-defense, killed his assailant.

Nationally, 2.5 percent of robbery victims are now resisting their attackers.

Mary Sheard, 41, went after work to her parked car. Before she could get it started, three men smashed her car window, climbed in, began beating her.

Months earlier Mary had been mugged. That was when her husband gave her the gun she carried in her purse. She managed to reach the gun and shot dead one of the three; the others fled. Even if those other two let her live, it's a helluva way to have to live.

Legal profession corrupting country

BY ROBERT LEFEVRE

The legal profession of the United States, from top to bottom, has managed to corrupt the populace of this country in a remarkable manner. I am excluding no portion of the profession. From the Supreme Court to the neophyte attorney taking his first case, lawyers and members of the court have managed to completely alter the way in which ordinary people look at and recognize the reality of the world around them.

It is impossible for me to identify the point in time where the practice began. It might have been when the Congress decided that Social Security was a legal "right" which quickly then, became an "entitlement."

Or it may have been on the occasion when a youngster's snowball first knocked off the hat of a church Deacon; whereupon the Deacon, not having seen the particular marksman who splattered his silk-topper, grabbed the biggest lad in the ambuscade, giving him a caning. Possibly the origin can be found in a particular legal interpretation wherein the following circumstances were reported in the press: a. A worker on his way home from a tiring day, stopped at a bar for spiritual irrigation. b. He imbibed too freely (despite the owner's standing order to all bartenders to watch for signs of intoxication and to refuse service appropriately) and left the tavern in a moistened condition. c. On his way home, the driver, now thoroughly damp, slammed into another vehicle and an occupant of the second car was killed. d. The court found that the OWNER of the tavern was responsible for the accident and assessed the costs against him.

What has occurred in each of the examples given is that a strange and completely illogical interpretation has been legally provided respecting responsibility. No longer do we try to discover the miscreant. If we can punish anyone in the neighborhood who may be able to identify the real miscreant, we can trust the punishment to "trickle down." There are some real cute variations to this one. And if it should turn out that an accidental death ensues, we must not seek the party who was guilty of causing it, we must find the person who can be tied into the accident who happens to have "deep pockets."

All of these legal detours are passageways counter to reality. The actual fact of the matter is that the perpetrator of an act is responsible for the act, not his employer, his father, his school teacher or Adam and Eve.

These legal precedents, now numbering in the thousands are part of what stands in the way of providing sound and reasonable education to our children. Few young people are given to understand that their own survival is really and truly up to them. Nor are they admonished that we live in a world where there is a cause and effect relationship.

Recently the press informed us that children were being flunked in the lowest grades, including kindergarten. Immediately came the cries of anguish from the addled. "How dreadful to let a little one know that he didn't perform as well as he should have! Won't that impair his future life if he can't think well of himself?"

Of course it might. But think how it will impair the future life of everyone else if the kid doesn't get that message! If a child doesn't learn that some kinds of actions (or non-actions) will not be tolerated, why should he endeavor to improve?

That's the price LIFE demands. We learn by trial and ERROR. When we make mistakes, and we all do, we get hurt. Getting hurt isn't pleasant. That's why, if the legal profession will clean up its act, we are motivated to do better next time. It's to avoid hurt. And to reap some kind of satisfaction for improved performance.

Twisted and distorted legal interpretations in matters relating to individual responsibility have wreaked dreadful punishment against those who had no responsibility whatever. And they have let those truly responsible go on their way, whooping it up. Because they are sure, that somewhere there is someone with "deep pockets," who can be legally compelled to take the consequences for others' bad behavior.

Dear Abby

President Reagan sends his dollars to March of Dimes

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1985 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Although I've enjoyed your column for many years and consider myself a fan, I haven't often had the occasion to sit down and pen a "Dear Abby" letter of my own. But like most of your readers, I have some hope I'll see my message in print anyway.

As a result of your plea in a recent column, I received an avalanche of birthday greetings. I deeply appreciate this outpouring of friendship and good will. The response by your readers to your request was truly heartwarming, and I hope they'll understand why I cannot possibly thank them all individually for helping make this Feb. 6 especially memorable. Please pass on to your readers my gratitude for their many cards and kind words.

I am also grateful to you for taking the opportunity to encourage public support for the important work of the March of Dimes. As you know, January 1985 was March of Dimes Birth Defects Prevention Month. In honor of this observance, I urged all Americans to support the efforts of this organization in the battle against birth defects. The response to this call—especially as shown by the mail we received at the White House—has been truly outstanding.

Although we cannot acknowledge the many writers who sent contributions to the White House for the March of Dimes, I want you and them to know that we have turned over their donations to the March of Dimes Birth Defects Foundation for use in its research program.

Your readers can best help the March of Dimes in the future by sending donations directly to: March of Dimes Birth Defects Foundation, P.O. Box 2000, White Plains, N.Y. 10602. This will alleviate any delay in those contributions reaching the March of Dimes, and it will also solve the tremendous logistical problems that arise when monetary items of any kind are sent to my attention at the White House. Your readers' cooperation in this request will make my staff much happier, and it will also allow the March of Dimes to get to work immediately on the vital activities your readers are supporting.

Thanks again for all the birthday greetings, and God bless you and your many readers.

Sincerely,
RONALD REAGAN

DEAR MR. PRESIDENT: Thank you for your gracious letter. The March of Dimes is profoundly grateful to you for making this year's March of Dimes the most successful since its goal has been the prevention of birth defects—our nation's No. 1 child health problem.

DEAR ABBY: I feel great! I sent a check to the president for the March of Dimes. I didn't send a dollar, I sent five—one for me, and four more for others who can't afford to.

Two films recommended by Texans' War on Drugs have been purchased by Drug and Alcohol Total Education (DATE) for use in Pampa and the area with elementary and older youth.

Through the use of animation and conversations with young people, the films are based on the premise that well-informed youth are more capable of making intelligent decisions.

In "Get the Message," young people are concerned with the messages they receive daily about drugs and alcohol, and how the use of these drugs affects their families and peers. Alternative ways for having a good time without the use of drugs are illustrated.

"How Do You Tell?" for elementary students repeats the theme of how to tell your friends they shouldn't be doing something bad that will hurt them.

Donations to cover the cost of the films can be made to DATE, Box 2754, Pampa, 79065. The films should be available in about one month.

Newly elected officers for DATE include Wendell Palmer, president; Nancy Paronto, vice president; Patsy Strawn, secretary; Jerry Sims, treasurer and Louise Fletcher, Parliamentarian.

Excerpts from Texans' War on Drugs Communique reviewed included a questionnaire parents can take regarding their children's behavior. Some questions included are as follows: Do you, as a parent, find it difficult to communicate with your child, make excuses for bad behavior, blame your spouse, blame the school, blame his friends, avoid being with your family, find reasons to work on the weekend, feel powerless, wonder if you love your child?

At home does your child avoid the family, disregard or break rules, receive mysterious phone calls, often listed to LOUD rock music alone, act rebellious, have friends you don't like or know, argue over nothing, use bad language, sleep a lot, crave sweets, act secretive, stay up until all hours, display declining morals?

At school does your child arrive late, skip classes, cheat, vandalize, have declining grades, blame teachers for problems, disrespect authority?

If you answer yes to some of these questions, the problem could be alcohol or drugs.

A national Gallup youth survey reported that of 1,000 teenagers, 25 percent had not discussed their day's activities with their parents, 42 percent had not received parental words of praise during a 24-hour period tested. Half had not received a hug or kiss, 54 percent had not heard the words, "I love you."

Linda Davis, chairman of the Youth Committee, DATE, reported that the committee was exploring the possibilities for a youth building for youth activities that would include dancing as well as sports.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If you're with friends today who are in a convivial social mood, try to get caught up in the spirit of things. Don't put a damper on their enjoyment.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Instead of being a self-starter today, you might look for reasons to delay what needs doing. Don't make alibis, make good.

Who's Flutie?

Houston's Jim Kelly steals show in USFL openers

By BARRY WILNER
AP Sports Writer

All the pre-game hype and hoopla was directed at the rookie quarterback with the million-dollar contract, a Heisman Trophy winner with virtually no preparation. While Doug Flutie was struggling in his professional debut, the United States Football League's resident star passer was picking up where he left off last season.

Jim Kelly, the USFL's Most Valuable Player in 1984 when he threw for 44 touchdowns, began the '85 campaign in style Sunday with five scoring tosses and an American professional record 574 yards passing in leading the Houston Gamblers to a stunning 34-33 comeback victory over the Los Angeles Express before a crowd of 18,828. The Gamblers trailed 33-13 in the final quarter.

"I've been in some comebacks before but never anything like that," said Kelly. "Pulling out that win was the best feeling I ever had in my life."

Kelly completed 35 of 54 passes and threw for three touchdowns in the last 10 minutes.

Elsewhere on opening day of the USFL's third season, Flutie got off to a horrible start and his late recovery wasn't enough as the Birmingham Stallions beat the New Jersey Generals 38-28 before 34,785. The Oakland Invaders downed the Denver Gold 31-10, the Jacksonville Bulls surprised the Baltimore Stars — who won the title while playing in Philadelphia last year — 23-14 and the Arizona Outlaws took the Portland Breakers 9-7.

On Saturday, the Tampa Bay Bandits routed the Orlando Renegades 35-7 before 45,045 in Tampa. Tonight, Memphis is at San Antonio.

Kelly's 574 yards passing surpassed Norm Van Brocklin's 554 set with the Los Angeles Rams of the National Football League in 1951. Kelly was 12 yards shy of the pro record of 586 by Sam Etcheverry of the Montreal Alouettes of the Canadian Football League in 1954.

Tony Zendejas kicked four field goals for the Express.

Stallions 38, Generals 28
Flutie, fresh from Boston College, where he set NCAA passing marks, looked anything but ready for the pro ranks as he misfired on his first nine passes, with two being intercepted. It wasn't until late in the third quarter that the $7 million QB collected his first completion, a 6-yard pass to Clarence Collins.

By then, Birmingham had built a 31-7 lead behind quarterback Cliff Stoudt, who finished hitting 21-of-33 for 220 yards and three scores. He also ran nine times for 65 yards.

The game at Birmingham was tied 7-7 when Joe Cribbs scored from the 2 with 19 seconds left in the first half. The Stallions scored 17 straight points in the third period before Flutie found his stride. He wound up with 12 completions in 27 attempts for 189 yards and was picked off three times. He did hurl a pair of fourth-quarter touchdown passes.

"I think I'm ready," said Flutie, who had only two weeks of steady practice after signing with the Generals. "I didn't prove it today, but I believe I will next week."

Invaders 31, Gold 10

At Oakland, before 23,622, Bobby Hebert — who came to the Invaders when the team merged with the Michigan Panthers — hit four touchdown passes. Hebert connected with Anthony Carter on a 50-yard TD pass on the first play of the fourth quarter to snap a 10-10 tie. A pair of interceptions by Derrick Martin led to two more scores.

The Oakland defense held Denver QB Vince Evans to 14-for-45 for 150 yards and stole three passes.

Bulls 22, Stars 14

Host Jacksonville was led by placekicker Brian Franco's USFL record-tying five field goals — including 51 and 50-yarders — in beating the '84 USFL titlists. The Bulls lost starting QB Brian Sipe in the first quarter with a shoulder separation.

Baltimore moved within eight points with a minute to go as Tim Riordan hit Herbert Harris with a 3-yard scoring toss and connected with Willie Collier for a 2-point conversion. The Stars then recovered an onside kick but could not move the ball.

Outlaws 9, Breakers 7

Luis Zendejas, the brother of the Express' Tony, kicked three field goals. His 43-yarder with 6:33 remaining provided the winning points at Tempe, Ariz., and was set up by a Carl Allen interception. The game was by 20-32.

The Breakers, who played in Boston two years ago and New Orleans last season, got their only points on Marcus Dupree's 11-yard touchdown run.

Bizarre finish highlights McCumber's Doral victory

MIAMI (AP) — A palm tree, a couple of rumors, a lost ball that wasn't lost and some moments of sheer panic all had roles in the bizarre wind-up of Mark McCumber's victory in the Doral-Eastern Open golf tournament.

"I was in a state of shock. I lost control," McCumber said of a few frantic moments Sunday when it appeared, or was rumored, that his tee shot on the 18th hole had lodged in a palm tree.

"It was a very scary moment. I didn't want the tournament to get away from me on some freaky thing," McCumber said after he had outlasted Jack Nicklaus, Tom Kite — and the rumors — for a one-shot decision in one of the more unusual finishes the PGA Tour has produced in recent years.

This was the situation: Seven players, Nicklaus, Kite and McCumber among them, had led or shared the lead over the final round. One by one they fell back until, going to the tee on the 18th — some say the most difficult finishing hole on the Tour —

McCumber held a 2-stroke lead over Kite and three over Nicklaus.

The stocky little man, who previously won this title in 1979, purposely played his tee shot far to the right to, he said, "totally eliminate the water (a lake on the left) from the hole."

He hit the ball precisely where he was aiming.

Moments later, however, McCumber said, "a CBS cameraman told me my ball was stuck in the top of a palm tree." The information also was relayed over the national telecast of the tournament.

Such a situation would raise the possibility of a lost ball. McCumber was faced with the need to positively identify his ball within a five-minute period or suffer a loss of stroke and distance, which would send him back to the tee to hit his third shot. And that would raise the probability of a double bogey on the final hole and the loss of the tournament.

"Sheer panic," McCumber said. "I knew it wasn't near the tree, but I also thought that maybe somebody had picked the ball up and run away with it."

That, too, would result in a lost ball.

When he approached the tree, surrounded by hundreds of fans, PGA Tour officials and television personnel, McCumber declined to send his caddy up the tree looking for the ball and, instead, instituted a search in the rough well away from the tree.

The ball was found.

"It was such an incredible feeling of relief," McCumber said. He played his second shot up short, pitched on in three and made the bogey-5 he needed to finish off a wind-blown round of 71.

Kite, playing behind him, had a chance to tie with a 30-35 foot birdie putt that just missed.

"I hit putts on 16, 17 and 18 as good as I can hit them. If any one goes in, we have a tie. I just came up short," said Kite, the defending champion who had a closing 73.

McCumber won, collecting $72,000 from the total purse of $400,000, on a 284 total composed of rounds of 70, 71, 72 and 71.

Raiders face a tough task

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

Texas Tech will have to beat Southern Methodist the hard way in their Southwest Conference basketball leadership showdown on Wednesday night.

SMU is 15-0 at home in Moody Coliseum this season.

SMU beat the Texas Longhorns 64-60 Saturday, bringing the school a record number of home victories.

Texas Tech stayed tied for the SWC lead with a 58-50 victory over the Texas Aggies in Lubbock.

SMU and Tech each have 10-4 records. Tech upset the Mustangs by a point in an earlier meeting in Lubbock.

Rice's 71-66 upset of Arkansas on Sunday also made the Owls' game against Baylor in Waco on Wednesday night an important one. Rice and Baylor are tied for the eighth and last place in the post-season SWC tournament.

Baylor gave outgoing Coach Jim Haller his 100th victory, an 88-84 victory Saturday night over the Houston Cougars.

"I never pulled for Arkansas before and I guess it didn't help much," said Haller, who has resigned effective at the end of the season.

Tech had five seniors contributing to the victory over A&M.

"This was our last home game and we really wanted to celebrate," said Texas Tech Coach Gerald Myers. "We'll start getting ready for SMU on Monday."

SMU Coach Dave Bliss said the free throw shooting won the game for the Mustangs.

"We had a bad stretch there early in the second half like we have in several ball games," Bliss said. "It just seems to be one of the characteristics. But we rallied and hit the big free throws at the end."

SMU hit 13 straight free throws in the second half.

Ninth ranked SMU is 21-6 overall and 10-4 in league play while Texas dropped to 14-11 and 7-8.

Texas Tech is 10-4 and 18-7.

In other games on Wednesday night, Texas A&M is at Houston, Rice is at Baylor and TCU is at Texas.

The way Pickens sees it

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — T. Boone Pickens Jr. obviously had decided in advance to ignore the subtle introductory rites of speechmaking, and so he gave it to them straight:
"Shareholders are the entire reason for our companies' existence," he told an audience of corporate establishment members — executives who sometimes tend to view activist shareholders as nuisances.
"More often than not they (shareholders) are the forgotten people in corporate America," he said. "And I think it's great that they are standing up for their rights."
Pickens, chairman of Mesa Petroleum Co., is known among more traditional executives as a corporate raider, a rustler of shareholders, a troublemaker who challenges management to make better use of its assets.
Some of them think so lowly of him that they brand him a shakedown artist, a fellow who spots an opportunity to grab off corporate assets by convincing shareholders to dump their company's management in favor of his.

Whatever he is, he and others like him — Carl Icahn, Irwin Jacobs, William Farley, Victor Posner, David Murdock, Asher Edelman and Ivan Boesky — have brought tension to executive suites and clubs where little existed before.
Their mission, often heavily laden with self-interest, is to stir up once-silent shareholders by reminding them that they are the owners and that their managers are doing a poor job of utilizing corporate assets.
To demonstrate the conviction that they can do better, they offer to buy shares in targeted companies at better-than-market prices, hoping to unseat management and obtain better returns on assets, even if they have to sell them.

Huge issues are involved, such as:
—Do prospects of being raided destroy the long-term plans of corporate managers, forcing them to focus on short-term rewards? Or do they force management idlers to get more out of their companies?
—Are corporate raiders, Pickens included, in the game simply to make quick bucks, sometimes with no intention of running the company they seek, and sometimes with the aim of dismantling it for its parts?
—Should institutional investors such as pension funds, mutual funds, educational endowments and the like sit by idly and allow management to do as it pleases? What about their fiduciary responsibility to their own members?
Pickens had a simple answer: Your companies should be run for the shareholders. Too often, he told them, hired managers run companies for their own benefit.

Meese jubilant after confirmation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Newly confirmed Attorney General Edwin Meese III says he bears no grudges over his long struggle for the Cabinet post and is promising "fair, compassionate and forward-looking" policies at the Justice Department.
Following his approval by the Senate, Meese, 53, said he intends to work with members of Congress "in a spirit of reasonableness and common effort to secure the best system of justice for the country."
Accompanied by wife, Ursula, and daughter Dana, 18, Meese beamed jubilantly as he talked with reporters at the White House following his confirmation by the Senate on a 63-31 vote Saturday.
His enthusiasm for the new job was not diminished by the fact it took him 13 months to get there, Meese said, declaring:
"I am not bitter at all. I think politics played a very big part in what took place, but that's all behind us now. Right now, I'm just glad it's over."

Bruce Chapman, an aide, said the new attorney general planned to be sworn in today privately by a notary public so he could assume his duties at once.
A ceremonial swearing-in, with Supreme Court Chief Justice Warren E. Burger likely to preside, will be conducted within a couple weeks, Chapman said. He added that Meese "will be in between this place (the White House) and that place (the Justice Department) in the meantime."
Meese becomes the nation's 75th attorney general, succeeding William French Smith, 67, who held the post during President Reagan's first term and who has returned to his private law practice in Los Angeles.

Meese said President Reagan, who was spending the weekend at his Camp David, Md., mountaintop retreat, "congratulated me and said it had been a long time and appreciated the fact that we had held up."
Meese surmounted allegations that he helped obtain government jobs for friends who loaned him money and that he improperly accepted a promotion to colonel in the Army Reserve and a $10,000 payment from a presidential transition fund.
"I think that a lot of people had questions," he said. "We answered all those questions."
Meese will find many items awaiting his attention at the department, including top staff appointments and decisions on more than a hundred vacant federal judgeships.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Broadway veterans Nell Carter and Dolph Sweet put that experience to good use as they and the cast and crew of "Gimme a Break" performed the first live TV situation comedy in nearly 30 years.
"We did it!" Miss Carter yelled at the end of the show Saturday night.
An audience packed with friends, relatives and NBC executives applauded the cast and crew for several minutes.
The half-hour comedy, which is usually taped on Tuesday nights, went live across most of the country and was taped for broadcast three hours later on the West Coast.
"NBC called and asked us if we'd do it," said Rod Parker, the show's co-executive producer with director Hal Cooper. "We said, 'Yeah, it'd be fun.' Not every week, thank you."
It's not that producers were worried the actors would flub their lines.
Mostly, they were hoping the audience wouldn't find the gags too funny — or not amusing at all.
"The audience laughter usually takes up about two to three minutes of air time," Parker said. "But if the audience really thinks it's funny, it can go for as much as four minutes."

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) — Retired Brig. Gen. Chuck Yeager, the first person to break the sound barrier, would rather be hunting and fishing than filming TV commercials and posing for newspaper ads, but he says it still "isn't work."
Yeager, a native of nearby Hamlin who was portrayed in the recent movie "The Right Stuff," said over the weekend that he turns down "100 requests a month" to do commercials, in part because he does not want to make advertising a full-time occupation.
"I still fly and don't want to change my life," he said.
"He's a pleasure to work with," said Stephen Morris of Ad-Mark, the agency coordinating savings and loan commercials Yeager was filming. "He's a true West Virginian, real easygoing. And he's a real professional."
HONOLULU (AP) — Actor Tom Selleck received plaques from the state and city proclaiming "Tom Selleck Day" as he was given the Variety Club of Hawaii's Heart of Show Business award for raising funds for children's charities.
"I thank Variety Clubs for giving me the opportunity to help, and for the wonderful work they do with handicapped and disadvantaged kids," the star of television's "Magnum, P.I." said Sunday.
Selleck was given the awards at a luncheon attended by more than 1,000 people who paid up to $100 each.
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Author James Baldwin, honored as part of Black History Month, says life in the ghetto hasn't changed much from 25 years ago when he warned of "The Fire Next Time" that became the race riots of the '60s.

Bankruptcies keep lawyers busy

HOUSTON (AP) — Continental Airlines, which filed for court protection from its creditors almost 18 months ago, is expected to spend two-thirds of its 1984 net profits on bankruptcy proceedings, a Houston newspaper reported.

The airline spent about $15 million in federal bankruptcy court last year and a current trial involving the acquisition of new aircraft is expected to cost the airline another $5 million, according to a story published Sunday in the Houston Chronicle.

Continental filed for protection from its creditors under Chapter 11 of the federal bankruptcy code in September 1983. The airline reported a $30 million net profit in 1984, its first profit in five years.

The projected $20 million expense figure is about two-thirds of Continental's operating profits for last year and is more than twice the amount Braniff Inc. spent during its 21-month reorganization proceedings.

The carrier is entitled to file a final plan by April 13 to reorganize its debts unless the court extends the deadline or allows creditors to file a plan.

"We are working as quickly as we can to file a plan of reorganization," Continental spokesman Mike Cinelli said. "We hope to have it filed by midsummer."

Houston has only two bankruptcy judges, so the court proceedings have become almost as lengthy as they are expensive and complicated.

U.S. District Judge Glover Roberts of Biloxi, Miss., was called in to help with the massive case. Since then, Continental's expenses mounted with the costs of shuttling between Houston and Biloxi.

Earlier this month, the New York law firm Weil Gotshal & Manges, which is preparing Continental's reorganization plan, opened a Houston office with two local attorneys as partners.

Last year, Weil Gotshal charged the airline court-approved fees and expenses of $879,941.93.

Continental's lead counsel in the bankruptcy proceedings, Sheinfeld, Maley & Kay, last year had fees and expenses approved by the court that totaled more than $1.2 million.

Arthur Anderson & Co., another prominent accounting firm, charged Continental $2 million in 1983 and 1984 for the bankruptcy petition, according to documents kept by a group of Continental's unsecured creditors.

In March 1984, the Houston law firm Foreman & Dyess dissolved, and several of its commercial attorneys formed the firm of Dotson, Babcock & Scofield, which represents Continental's unsecured creditors.

The carrier also was billed $3.7 million by Washington law firm Akin Bump Strauss Hauer & Feld to defend Continental against its union employees in litigation.

During a recent proceeding concerning fees approved in the case, Roberts said, "I'm extremely sensitive to the dollars going out here. I'm cognizant of the fact that the debtor has to write the check for it."

"Everyone's in this boat together, and it's time to paddle in the same direction," Glover told attorneys for the airline and its creditors.

But some attorneys and accountants say Continental's old financial woes have made the airline one of their biggest customers.

Bruce J. Ruzinsky, an attorney with Dotson Babcock, said Continental's fees are "a very large billing" for the new firm. As of Dec. 4, up to $808,948.03 of Dotson Babcock's fees and expenses were court-approved in the case.

Farrell Kupersmith, an accountant for Touche Ross & Co. was scheduled to testify Monday in an airline acquisition trial involving Continental that began Dec. 18.

Despite filibuster victory in Senate, real battle is still ahead on farm aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farm state lawmakers who won credit term concessions for their hard-pressed constituents following a Senate filibuster were warned that the big battle still lay ahead on President Reagan's efforts to reduce federal aid to farming.

Those senators, who planned to introduce farm credit amendments today to an Ethiopian famine relief bill, were told by Majority Leader Robert Dole, R-Kan., that they should relish what they got out of the bitter four-day filibuster and be prepared for tougher sledding ahead.

"If you don't like what we have, I'm not certain you're going to get much more," Dole said after farm state senators agreed late Saturday to end the filibuster, which had tied up the confirmation of Attorney General-designate Edwin Meese III. Meese finally was confirmed 63-31.

The anticipated credit proposals, which could allow struggling farmers to get loans in time for spring planting, were not spelled out Saturday, but could be similar to a bill now working its way through the Democrat-controlled House, said Sen. J. James Exon, D-Neb., one of the filibuster leaders.

The measures could include advances on crop loan money, ways to buy down interest rates for farmers and further ease credit restrictions, Exon said.

Dole, however, called the credit battle "a preliminary bout. We haven't got to the main event yet" — the battle over President Reagan's efforts to reduce farm spending as part of an overall attack on the budget deficit.

But delegates at a meeting of the National Governors Association on Sunday vowed to fight any effort to trim farm price supports and subsidies.

Republican Gov. Terry Branstad of Iowa called Reagan's farm recommendations "seriously flawed." Arkansas Gov. Bill Clinton, a Democrat, called Reagan's push for market-oriented farm policies "ludicrous" and said, "We shouldn't allow the most fundamental destruction of rural America in 50 years."

South Dakota Gov. William Janklow, a Republican, said "the farmers' greatest enemy is the Congress of the United States because they don't have the guts and the courage and they won't make the hard decisions to straighten out America's fiscal mess."

Instead of cutting farm programs, the administration should institute an across-the-board budget reduction, Janklow said on NBC-TV's "Meet the Press." Janklow said he engineered such a cut in South Dakota several years ago.

"I cut the blind, I cut the deaf, I cut people on kidney dialysis

Two miners dead

FORBACH, France (AP) — An explosion more than a half-mile underground rocked a coal mine at Forbach in the Lorraine region of eastern France today, company officials said. At least two miners were killed and 16 were missing.

It was not immediately known how many miners were working at the Houilleres du Bassin de Lorraine mine when the explosion occurred at about 7:30 a.m.

August Lionell, an official of the miners' union, said: "There are at least two dead."

Company officials confirmed the figure of two dead and said that 16 more had not been accounted for.

machines, the governor's office, the court system, the Legislature, everybody," he said. "The people of our state supported this because we all suffered together. No special interests. No special deals."

Meanwhile, Agriculture Secretary John Block pledged Sunday to aggressively help farmers secure loans in time for spring planting.

"The public knows we mean business," Block said. "We will implement these programs aggressively, immediately. There will be adequate funding for guaranteed loans and direct loans."

"The short term is right now, between now and planting season. We need quick action. That's why I want the banks to go to work and make these loans and get the farmers in the field," said Block, also appearing on "Meet the Press."

The changes in the credit-aid package are designed to put more government weight behind farm loans that bankers might otherwise find shaky.
