

Re-zoning request opposed

By LARRY HOLLIS
Staff Writer

A public hearing Tuesday morning on a zoning change request drew comments from an incumbent commissioner, his challenger in the recent elections and a defeated write-in candidate.

The Pampa City Commission conducted the hearing on a request to change the zoning from Retail to Commercial District for the triangular tract of land bounded by Hobart, 23rd Ave. and Perryton Parkway.

Ward 3 Commissioner E. L. "Smiley" Henderson, who has asked for a recount of votes in Saturday's election, and his opponent, Joe Reed, who outpolled Henderson by 25 votes in the race, were both sitting "as observers only" at the commission meeting.

But both used the hearing as an opportunity to speak out as citizens. Also making comments was Floye Christensen, who lost her write-in candidacy against Ward 1 Commissioner Bob Curry.

Reed said he "would stand for any man's right to do business and to protect his domain." But he felt the only benefit from the zoning change would be to permit such businesses as a package liquor store and dance hall.

He said residents in the area had protested the zoning change and he would vote against it.

Christensen said the commission should consider the proximity of schools in the area and the wishes of those "who have homes there." She objected to the request because of the possibilities of liquor establishments moving into the area.

Commissioner David McDaniel pointed out other surrounding areas were already zoned commercial. Forrest Cloyd, technician with the city's Engineering Department, said dance halls can be located in retail districts under current regulations. A commercial district could allow for a package store, he admitted.

Henderson, however, said state liquor laws regulate the distance of liquor stores from certain establishments, such as churches and schools.

He said anyone wanting to put in a dance hall or package liquor store in the area would have to apply for a license and obtain the city's approval. And the commercial designation would permit many other businesses not liquor-related into the tract, he noted.

Don Reed, Joe Reed's father, said the Texas Liquor Control Board (TLCB) would have control

Dogs draw additional complaints

A matter of barking dogs turned into larger issues during discussion at Monday's city commission meeting.

Verl Ferguson, using the citizen's request period, was listed on the agenda as being present "to discuss barking dogs."

"That's just part of the problem," he said.

Ferguson had filed a complaint earlier this year against his next-door neighbor, Suzi Reed, who operates a kennel in her backyard at 1105 Juniper.

The original complaint charged Reed with "allowing an offensive condition to exist by allowing dogs to bark and disturb the neighborhood." City Prosecutor Rick Harris accepted the complaint for prosecution under nuisance ordinances, though there are no specific city ordinances against barking dogs.

Reed's attorney, Mark Buzzard, has said he would file a motion to dismiss the charge, challenging the validity and constitutionality of Ordinance 969 (animal control laws) which permits complaints of animal nuisances in causing offensive conditions.

Buzzard said the ordinance alleging offensive conditions is legally vague. Harris has said the ordinance allows prosecution of a barking dog's owner.

But, Ferguson told commissioners yesterday morning, the matter is more than just a concern about barking dogs. He said neighbors are concerned about living next to a business of selling and grooming dogs in a residential area.

Reed operates Suzi's World of Poodles from her home in northwest Pampa. She breeds and sells AKC-registered toy poodles and Yorkshire terriers and also grooms dogs in her home.

She has operated her business despite zoning ordinances against businesses in a residential area.

It is the establishment of that business in his neighborhood that Ferguson expressed concerns about in his appearance before the commission.

Ferguson said Reed apparently has been operating under claim of a "grandfather clause" which permits already established businesses to continue operating after stricter zoning requirements have been imposed on an area.

But Reed has only been operating the business from her home since 1974. Ferguson said, citing a letter from Gray County Tax Appraiser Charles Buzzard in which Buzzard said the Reeds had not obtained ownership of the property until that year.

Ferguson, who moved next door to the Reeds in recent months, said the "grandfather clause" should not be applicable in this situation.

"She really does not have a right to operate a business there," he said.

Ferguson has complained the dogs' barking disturbs him and his family. But he also objects to the business located. He told commissioners he has been told by a number of people that they wouldn't want to live by such conditions.

Also appearing to speak against the kennel operations was Norman Quick, who lives behind Reed. He said he could handle one or two dogs, but "25 to 30 are too much."

Quick said he had lived in his house since 1969. He said he had tried several times to get the city's

Miami too affluent to get state grants

By CATHY SPAULDING
Staff Writer

MIAMI — New mayor Tom Stribling was sworn into office Tuesday and discovered that Miami does not have enough poor people, minorities or utility problems to qualify for state aid.

Former mayor Paul Goodman administered the oath of office to Stribling, who defeated Goodman and northeast Miami resident Ray McGee in city elections. Also sworn in were Joe Bill Seuchs and Royce Bailey, who were re-elected without opposition, and Chris Gill, who was appointed to the council to replace Ken Brittain, who left due to job commitments.

Goodman, who also represented the city at the Panhandle Regional Planning Commission, told council members Monday that an official with the Texas Department of Community Affairs told him "Miami has no need of the TDCA."

"He said 'you shouldn't even fill out a grant application with the TDCA,'" Goodman reported. The TDCA offers grants to needy communities. In the Panhandle, the TDCA grants are administered through the PRPC. Goodman explained that the federal government turned over $50 million to the TDCA to use as grants. $1.36 million of that goes to communities in the sparsely populated Panhandle.

To get part of state aid, a community must meet at least one of three qualifications: the project to be funded must be of pressing need such as water systems or paving; the town must have a large percentage of minorities or it must have more than 50 percent low income residents.

Goodman pointed out that "we only had about one black family living here" and that he only knows of three black families who have lived in Miami. The percentage of Hispanic families in the town is also small.

He added that, according to state figures, low income in Miami is figured at $16,500 for one person (in Pampa it is figured at about $18,000), $18,650 for two people, $20,950 for three people and up to $26,200 for a family of six. Goodman figured that even in the "poorer" parts of town that residents are living above that norm.

The city also has no projects qualifying as "crucial." The city council is considering a purchase of the water system from

School board schedules runoff election May 4

By LARRY HOLLIS

Trustees of the Pampa Independent School District canvassed election results and set May 4 as a date for a runoff election during their regular meeting Tuesday evening.

Board members Darville Orr and Wallace Birkes canvassed the ballot totals and reported the results to other board members, who then approved the vote totals.

For the Place 4 position, vote totals were incumbent Mary Braswell, 587; G. M. Walls, Jr., 376, and David Robertson, 606. Results for the Place 5 spot were incumbent Curt Beck, 629; Joe Van Zandt, 748, and Mark Workman, 185.

Business Manager Jerry Haralson said there "was not a clear majority in either race," necessitating the runoff election. Place 4 candidates will be Braswell and Robertson; Place 5 candidates will be Beck and Van Zandt.

The board set Saturday, May 4, as the date for the election, with voting from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. Absentee balloting will be at the Carver Educational Service Center from April 15 through April 30.

The trustees delayed reorganization of the board and election of officers until after the runoff election.

In other matters, the board heard a report from Chief Appraiser Charles Buzzard concerning space problems for the Gray County Appraisal District.

Buzzard said the office is facing increased rental charges, a situation which "is alarming to me."

He said the 1986 budget in preparation for the appraisal district will rise mainly because of increased rent. The budgets have consistently increased since the district began operating. The staff has remained about the same, he noted. Most of the increases have resulted from higher rental costs and costs in the preparation of oil and gas rolls.

The GCAD lease is due Sept. 1. Buzzard said. He has been told the rental price will increase from $7.20 per square foot per year to $10 per square foot.

He said the GCAD was looking into several alternatives, including finding new office space or even building its own facilities.

Buzzard said the district will need larger offices, mainly because of the records that have to be stored. There's also a problem with a lack of parking spaces around the current location in the Hughes Building, he said.

He estimated the GCAD needs about 4,000 square feet of office space. He said initial plans indicate the district could build its own office for approximately $135,000, with an additional $50,000 for purchase of land. But with the cost financed for 10 years at 12.5 percent interest, the total costs would be over $300,000.

Buzzard said the district may ask the member entities to share the initial costs on an allocated basis. "We're trying to find something that will be cost effective" for the entities, he said, explaining other alternatives were being considered. He just wanted the school board to be aware of the considerations being undertaken by the GCAD, saying no action was being asked for at this time.

In other business, the trustees approved a request from the Pampa Center of Clarendon College to pave a parking lot west of the building.

Supt. James Trusty said the paving "certainly would enhance that property."

The approval was made subject to Trusty's ascertaining that the paving specifications were within the district's standards.

In personnel matters, the board accepted the resignations of four teachers, all effective May 24. Submitting their resignations were Jamie Walling, Pampa

$26 campaign caused runoff

By JEFF LANGLEY
Senior Staff Writer

He billed himself as the candidate of the "common working man" and vowed that if elected, he'd bulldoze the mayor's driveway.

The 274 people who voted for gas station attendant Jerry Mulanax Saturday apparently supported the proposed demolition.

The ballots for the third candidate in the mayor's race amounted to 13.6 percent of the 2,022 votes cast. Mulanax was surprised by his finish, considering that he spent just $26 on the campaign.

"That's better than I thought I would," he said. "I just wanted to get my feet wet and find out what the political process is all about."

The third candidate helped force a May 4 runoff between incumbent Calvin Whatley and challenger Sherman Cowan.

Whatley drew the most votes with 937, or 46.3 percent, followed by Cowan with 811 votes, or 40.1 percent.

Mulanax's candidacy denied the majority of votes needed by the other two candidates, and his 274 votes would have put either man over the top.

Looking back on the election, the "working man's" politician said he wishes that he could give his votes to Cowan. Mulanax said Cowan would have defeated Whatley Saturday if he had dropped his own campaign. In retrospect, he would have quit his campaign to guarantee a win for Cowan, he said.

The election's spoiler said he doesn't support Whatley, because the incumbent "doesn't seem like mayor material."

When he wasn't campaigning, Mulanax, 33, was pumping gas at the Kerr - McGee service station on Alcock. The attendant is working on an associate degree at the Clarendon College Pampa Center. The former shop foreman at the city garage hopes to attend law school some day. The first-time candidate is married and has three children.

Mulanax made an issue of Mayor Whatley's driveway. His campaign promise was to personally demolish the concrete approach at the end of the drive.

The city's removal of hundreds of driveway pipes and mounds during street maintenance last summer was the biggest underlying issue in the city elections.

The Citizens for Better City Government group was formed because of the driveway pipes issue and sponsored three of the four challengers, including Cowan.

Mulanax wasn't connected with the group but shared its outrage about the driveway pipes.

In an interview after his failed campaign, the station attendant said the mayor should ask city crews to remove his driveway approach and prove that he gets no special treatment.

"He should have had his turn out as an example," Mulanax said.

Zoning protested

over the operations of any liquor establishments. But since there's only one TLCB officer for a four-county area, it would be hard for that officer to check such establishments carefully.

He said he objected to the change because it would be detrimental to the nearby residential area and would increase traffic at late-night hours.

Another public hearing concerned a request to change zoning from Agriculture to Single Family 2 District. The request concerns a tract of land near Briarwood Place. Cloyd said the tract should have been included in previous actions on Briarwood Place but had been overlooked.

That hearing drew no public comments.

The commissioners adopted three ordinances on second reading. One establishes a Parks and Recreation Advisory Board and another reorganizes the Traffic Commission. The third ordinance establishes standards and procedures regarding rotation of wrecker service and impoundment of vehicles.

The commission appointed seven persons to the Board of Adjustments. Appointed board members were Ray Thompson, Coyle Ford, Bob Williams, Mike Conner and David Miller, with Jim Ward and Kenneth Smith as alternates.

Declaring an emergency situation, the commission adopted on first and final reading an ordinance permitting additional routes for transportation of liquid petroleum gas (LPG) within the city limits. The ordinance adds portions of Tyng, Barnes and Frederick to the approved routes.

The request was made by Vernon Bell to aid transportation of LPG to V. Bell Oil-LPG and Vaughn Oil establishments located on Tyng.

In other matters, the commission approved a contract with Don Abbe relative to the preparation of an application for a multiple resource nomination and small historical district within the city.

If the applications are approved, they would provide economic inducements for businesses in the downtown area, Hart said. The designation would allow tax and investment breaks on restoring and maintaining buildings of historical interest.

"This is a wonderful move in the right direction," Mayor Calvin Whatley said.

Commissioners awarded a bid for bank depository service to Citizens Bank and Trust Co. and authorized the mayor to sign the necessary agreements.

The commission approved three resolutions relative to grant applications for the Pampa Police Department. The grants would provide funding for the department's school liaison program, its Neighborhood Watch and crime prevention programs, and a Special Units program on law enforcement.

At Mayor Whatley's request, action on electing a representative and alternate to the Panhandle Regional Planning Commission was delayed until after the May 4 runoff election for mayor.

In his report session, City Manager Bob Hart discussed briefly the mayor pro-tem schedule, cab service matters, the upcoming May clean-up program, Section 8 housing issues, a report on the City Hall building analysis, the Pioneer Cottage, legislative reports from the Texas Municipal League and departmental reports.

The commission also approved accounts payable.

A planned executive session to discuss pending litigation was not held. The mayor said nothing had developed to require the session.

permission to conduct a small business out of his garage, but he had not been granted the okay. "But she's operating her business there," he said, wondering how she has been able to do so even though she moved into the neighborhood after he did.

His wife, Yvonne Quick, said she had been bothered by the smelly dumpsters and piles in the alley from Reed's cleanup of the yard. She said the piles had often attracted flies.

She said efforts to clean up the alley occurred only after complaints were made to the city.

Steve Vaughn, head of the Department of Neighborhood Integrity and in charge of code enforcement, said there might be problems in dealing with the situation.

He said he had not been able to establish exactly when Reed's business started. He said he would need more concrete information to prove she can't claim the grandfather clause exception.

If efforts had been made to stop the business when it first began operation, then an attempt to stop the business would be easy to enforce, Vaughn said. But now that it's been operating in the location for a number of years, it would be harder to enforce zoning requirements against it, he explained.

He said there had been some complaints against the condition of the yard and clean-up accumulations in the past which threatened a possible health hazard. But those matters are now under control, he said, with Animal Control officers and others checking the place twice daily to insure compliance with health standards.

Vaughn said there would be problems in trying to enforce the nuisance aspects before the Municipal Court, especially in a jury trial which would require specific evidence of the existence of offensive conditions.

He has not yet pursued zoning matters against the business, he said.

The weakness in that area is that the problem has been allowed to exist over a long period of time.

Consolidated Utilities and is studying the feasibility of such a purchase. But such purchases are low on the list of items the state considers priorities.

"So we've been paying $75 annual dues to the PRPC, and we keep getting these TDCA letters and brochures and we will never, never need the TDCA," Goodman said adding that the TDCA official told him that the PRPC is "not for you."

City council members agreed that if the town could not be helped by the PRPC, it would no longer be a member. Stribling suggested that when next year's dues are due that the city not pay.

Goodman then asked that the city reimburse him for his travel expenses to the latest PRPC meeting in Amarillo. The city agreed.

The council also heard a request from Santa Fe Railroad asking that trains be allowed to go through town at regular speed.

Bob Dixon, a district Santa Fe officer out of Amarillo, asked that the city eliminate an ordinance requiring trains to slow down when they go through town and that the city allow the trains to go through town at "district speed," which for freight trains is from 45 to 70 miles per hour depending on the load and tonnage of the train.

Citing reports of major train derailments he had seen on television, Gill expressed concern about the trains going so fast through town and asked if Santa Fe screens its engineers.

"Those derailments you saw on TV involved drugs and alcohol," Dixon said, adding that the company carefully screens its engineers. "I'm not saying we're perfect."

But the biggest problem council members had with the railroad was the way it stalls at the town's only crossing for long periods of time.

"It seems like a lot of times the crossing would be blocked for quite a while," Stribling said. "One Sunday morning, it was there for 40 minutes."

Dixon seemed surprised that such a thing would happen.

"Are you saying this is frequent," he asked, jotting notes on a small slip of paper.

Several council members responded "yes."

"We'll see that it is corrected," Dixon said. He then gave each council member a copy of the dispatcher's telephone number and said to report if there is any more problem.

Council members tabled action on the train speed request.

The council also found they could not do anything about a complaint about an alleged violation of a deed restriction on property on Lyon Street.

Ryan Conley owns property on Lyon Street and recently sold a 100 foot portion of the lot to Larry Bryant, the city employee, who put a prefabricated modular home on it. Conley protested, alleging that the modular home violates the original deed restriction against mobile homes.

Bryant argued that his home is not a mobile home.

Stribling said that because the city has no zoning regulation about mobile homes in the area "council members are not here to decide whether it is or isn't."

Such matters would be handled in county or district court, he said. Bryant warned that accepting and acting on Conley's deed restriction complaint could get the city sued. Counsel Kent Sims said that the city can listen to any complaint; that does not constitute action.

City secretary Evelyn Heare provided the new mayor and council members a status report of city finances, which appear better than at the beginning of the fiscal year beginning in October.

Legislature seeks hazardous waste solution

AUSTIN (AP) — About 75 bills have been introduced in the Legislature dealing with hazardous waste but a comprehensive bill to deal with the state's waste problems hasn't, a member of a special panel says.

R. Kinnan Goleman of the Governor's Task Force on Hazardous Waste Management says he is hopeful that a comprehensive bill will be proposed to deal with what has become a serious state problem.

"There are people within all of the interest groups that are meeting and trying to come up with a comprehensive bill and I am optimistic about that," Goleman said.

Currently, the Texas Department of Water Resources and the Texas Department of Health regulate hazardous wastes. The health department uses the same guidelines as the federal Environmental Protection Agency in regulating hazardous waste facilities.

Those include monitoring of ground water in the area, supervising the area for 30 years after the site closes and establishing financial responsibility for the site. The department also prohibits disposal sites near aquifers.

Goleman said the task force concluded that a statewide regulatory system should be set up to oversee management of hazardous waste materials.

He said a state regulatory plan should "create a system where you have a set of rules and regulations that you have to go through. Once you're through that process, you can't be shot down by a county commissioner's court or other local county entities. The state ought to have one hazardous waste program."

The same techniques used to get good air and water quality standards in the state should apply to hazardous waste sites, he said.

Goleman, an environmental attorney with the law firm Brown, Maroney, Rose, Barber & Dye in Austin, said most companies handle their waste on site but "virtually everyone has to ship off site. I am aware of no company that handles all waste on site."

A public hearing Tuesday before the House Environmental Affairs Committee heard testimony on several bills pertaining to hazardous waste. All were referred to subcommittees, said committee chairman Rep. Fred Agnich, R-Dallas.

A bill by Reps. David Hudson, D-Tyler, and Debra Danburg, D-Houston, would prohibit locating hazardous waste facilities in unsuitable areas, would prohibit permits for new landfills if other alternatives exist and would allow local governments to restrict the location of facilities in certain areas.

Another bill by Rep. Stan Schlueter, D-Killeen, would establish state policy on preferred hazardous waste management methods and strengthen the authority of state agencies in dealing with problems surrounding hazardous waste sites.

White rejects invitation to visit in leftist Nicaragua

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) — Gov. Mark White, in Central America to visit Texas National Guard troops training in Honduras, turned down an invitation to visit leftist controlled Nicaragua but said he might take up the offer later.

"I didn't have time to go. I might go at a later date," White said Tuesday evening en route from Tegucigalpa, Honduras, to Panama City.

White was scheduled today to visit U.S. troops in Panama and then head home to Austin.

The invitation to stop in Managua, Nicaragua's capital, during his journey came from Halima S. Lopez, who lives in Houston but is attached to the Nicaraguan delegation to the United Nations, said White's press secretary, Ann Arnold.

The governor said he thought the invitation that was prompted by publicity about his trip and he expected that the Sandinista government wanted him to "come on over and see our side of the line."

On his way to Honduras on Monday, White expressed support for President Reagan's Central American policy, which regards the current government in Nicaragua as an exporter of revolution in Central America.

Although the governor said he might visit Nicaragua, he also expressed concern about "what their real intentions might be" in Central America.

He also said that he did not want to dilute the focus of his trip, which involved visiting the guard troops taking part in joint Honduran-U.S. war games near the Nicaraguan border.

"Basically, what we're here for is just to check with our troops, not be involved in the debate over the national issues... involving Central America," White said.

The governor said he didn't discuss the invitation with the State Department or with U.S. Ambassador to Honduras, John Negroponte, with whom he stayed while he was in Honduras.

In Honduras on Tuesday, White visited the Texas guardsmen at their base camp, called The Alamo, three miles from the Nicaraguan border.

The governor's four-hour visit began with a briefing on Big Pine III war games and ended with the 420 guardsmen digging into barbecue that White brought from home.

In between, White saw more peace than war. The M-60 tanks that guardsmen will use today while playing Nicaraguan attackers remained idle.

White toured two nearby villages where the guard has been spreading good will.

At the tiny rural cooperative of Nueva Concepcion, where 30 families eke out a living on the dusty plain, U.S. military engineers had drilled one of nine wells for water used in the Big Pine III exercises.

The Texans had chipped in to buy a hand pump for families in the cooperative. A small ceremony was held at the well in honor of the governor's visit.

White presented a brass paperweight in the shape of Texas to a barefoot village woman with a baby in her arms and another small child clinging to her skirt.

"I know they'll remember us for years to come for their well," White said, as Vilma Alvarez turned the paperweight over in her hands and smiled shyly.

Earlier, in El Carmen, villagers lined up in the hot sun waiting for attention from a guard medical unit, which set up a clinic for the day.

Dr. Howard Axemrod, a guardsman from Mineral Wells, said he expected to see at least 300 villagers on Tuesday.

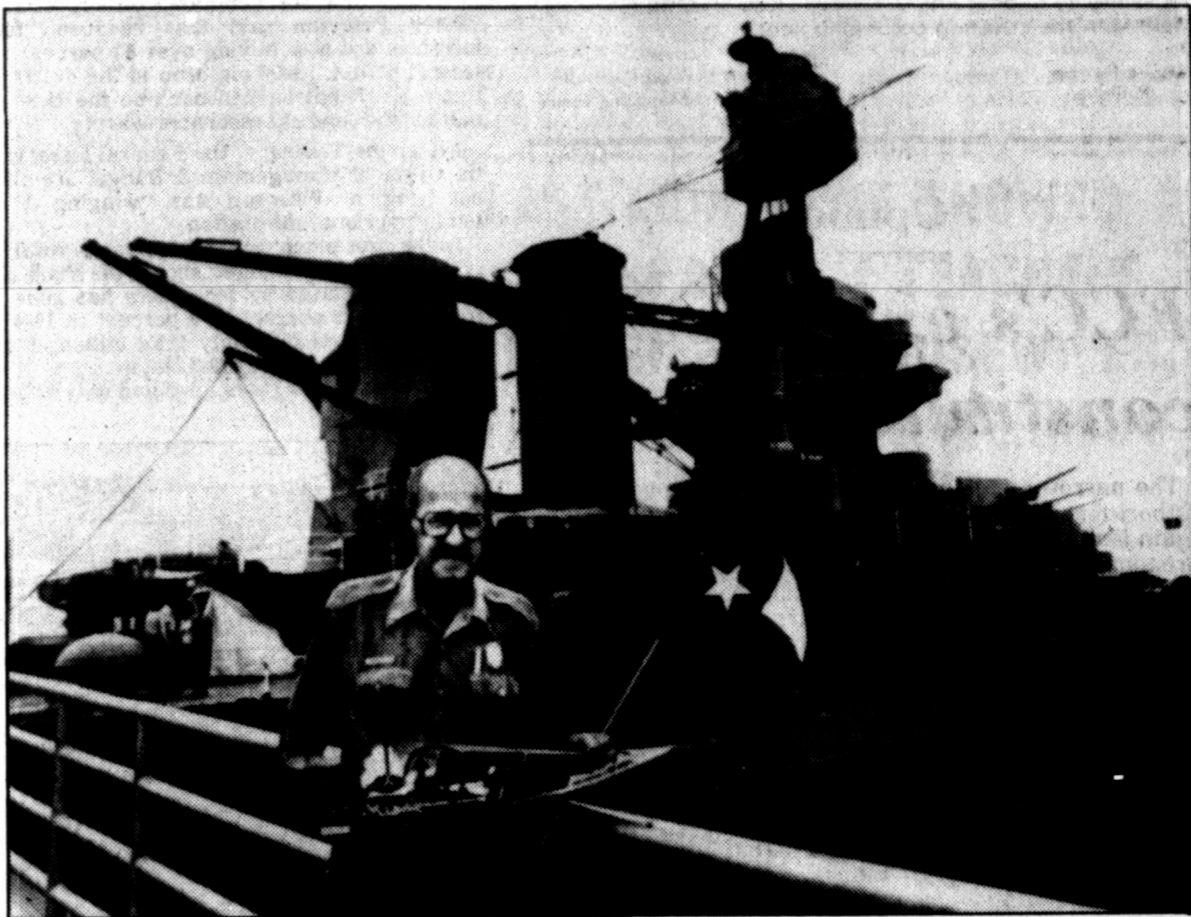

Axemrod said there was time to do little more than listen to the villagers' complaints and give them cursory treatment, largely for parasites and skin problems.

"We're just seeing them and worming them. We don't have time to really examine them all," Axemrod said.

Throughout White's visit, praise was lavished on the guard by the governor and the military brass.

Col. Roy Kimerling, commander of Joint Task Force XI, which is conducting the war games, said he was impressed by the morale of the guardsmen. He said that the fact that most of the Texas guardsmen are Hispanic was not a factor in their selection.

About 3,200 Honduran troops are taking part in the armored exercise scheduled to begin today, according to Col. Rafael Castro, commander of the Honduran 101st Brigade.

GIFT SHOP FOR SALE—Dan Harrison, includes 10,500 match books featuring a picture superintendent of the drydocked Battleship of the battleship, among many touristy Texas, stands in front of his charge which memorabilia which are for sale.

Battleship memorabilia is going on the auction block

HOUSTON (AP) — The state of Texas is getting out of the memorabilia business.

About 1,000 different items are now offered for sale by sealed bid. But there's a catch — the successful bidder must buy all of the trinkets.

The memorabilia includes 18,451 matchbooks featuring a picture of the Battleship Texas, 2,168 key rings inscribed with the ship's name, 151 salt and pepper shakers, 720 toothpick holders and 27 bronze ashtrays.

The Battleship Texas, veteran of two wars, is docked at the San Jacinto Battleground near Houston and is open to tourists.

The Texas Parks and Wildlife Department, which operates and maintains the floating tourist attraction, decided in 1983 to close a gift shop on the vessel, and officials said the state has no plans to get back into the tourist trinket business.

The trinkets make sense for a battleship souvenir store, say officials, but what they can't explain is the 19 clam-shaped piggy banks or the collection of costume jewelry. "I don't know what the hell that has to do with the Battleship Texas, but we have it," said Dan Harrison, superintendent of the docked warship.

Texas is attempting to renovate the battleship and it was decided to remove the gift shop.

Officials said a private concessionaire will continue selling souvenirs at a stand near the battleship. There also is a gift shop inside the nearby San Jacinto Monument.

Don't wait for the funeral

A friend of mine observed a valuable lesson learned last week. And fortunately for the people involved, it was not too late.

Her mother had suddenly become seriously ill, so ill in fact, that even the doctors were not about to give odds on whether she would make it or not. The family watched and waited, praying for her to get well, but all too aware that the chance was there that she wouldn't.

The father was beside himself. He could see that it was very possible that his life-long companion could leave him. She had always been there for him, quiet, reassuring, always able to give him emotional support and love. And now he might lose her.

He had recently bought her a new car and new furniture, in appreciation of all the things she had done for him during the years. Suddenly these gifts became hateful to him. He couldn't stand the sight of them, and was already contemplating how he would get rid of them if she died.

He did not have to face that problem, thank goodness. Within a few hours time, she began to make a full recovery. But perhaps those days of anguish for the family were not wasted.

My friend told her father when it was time to bring her mother home from the hospital, "When you take her home, don't you even stop to feed her. Take her in your arms and hug her and kiss her and tell her how much you love her."

That's something we could all learn from. I've talked about how badly kids need to be reminded, by physical displays of affection, that they're loved. But the same is true of us grownups. We need to be hugged and kissed and reminded that we're worth something. And we need to take the time to show our love to the people in our lives, too.

Like the couple I was discussing. They had been married many, many years. They were comfortable in their life. They knew they loved each other. Otherwise, why would they still be living together after all this time? Yet, somewhere along the way, they began to take it all for granted.

It isn't until something is gone that we realize just how much it meant to us.

Another friend of mine, a woman who was more than a grandmother to me, was slowly dying of lung cancer. Every time I could, I would spend some time with her, although many times it wasn't more than a few minutes.

The last time I went to see her, I could tell she really wanted to talk. She was alone, and she was afraid to be alone. I spent as much time as I felt I could with her, knowing my husband was waiting for me in the car, wanting to go somewhere else. Finally, I reluctantly told her "goodbye" and went on with my husband.

I was so torn, wanting to be with her, let her talk like I knew she needed to, and wanting to please my husband, too. She went into the hospital two days later and died before I got the opportunity to see her again. I didn't get to tell her how much I loved her, how much she meant to me, one last time.

Looking back on it now, I see how I could have asked Vic to go on with his errands and come back to get me later. But as they say, hindsight is 20-20.

But, in spite of it all, I think I learned a hard, hard lesson. Tell the people you love how you feel now. Show them in every way you can. Don't bring the flowers to the funeral.

Prison land could bring state millions

AUSTIN (AP) — A bill to allow the state prison system to sell millions of dollars worth of farm land and plow the proceeds back into land or prison construction has been approved by the Senate.

The Texas Department of Corrections has estimated the value of the 3,620 acres in Fort Bend and Harris counties at $105.7 million, but Sen. John Sharp, D-Victoria, said, "That's what we think is the minimum."

Lewis plans

European trip

AUSTIN (AP) — House Speaker Gib Lewis, acknowledging that the trip sounds more enticing than Gov. Mark White's visit to Honduras, heads to France Thursday as part of a trade mission.

Lewis said he might miss a day or two of House proceedings because of the trip.

"I think they can function without me or anyone else for one day or two," he said.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

FCC's existence constitutes danger

The narrow-mindedness and pettiness of government authorities in South Africa were demonstrated once again last week when the government-run South African Broadcasting Corp., announced that it would no longer play any of Stevie Wonder's music on the air, thus protecting tender South African ears from such obvious heresy as "I Just Called to Say I Love You."

What riled South African authorities was Wonder's accepting an Oscar last week "in the name of Nelson Mandela." Mandela is the best-known political prisoner of South Africa's apartheid system, a one-time Johannesburg lawyer who has been in jail since 1964 for "planning sabotage to overthrow" the white-dominated government.

An obvious lesson of the incident is that such petty, yet all-encompassing, censorship is possible only when broadcast outlets in a country are either owned by the government or tightly controlled by government, as is the case in South Africa. We can all be proud that such a situation doesn't exist in the United States.

Or can we? Here in the land of the free, radio and television stations are controlled by the Federal Communications Commission. They are not controlled so tightly as in South Africa—and the FCC probably knows that trying to ban Stevie Wonder might start a real uproar—but no broadcasting outlet is permitted to operate without a license from the national government.

The FCC can and does force stations to carry some kinds of programming (a certain amount of loosely defined "public service"), dictates how some political issues will be discussed (under the aegis of the "fairness doctrine"), and has engaged in some censorship almost as silly as South Africa's (preventing a station from changing its call letters to WSEX.)

To be sure, the FCC under Chairman Mark Fowler, has loosened some of the more absurd regulations, liberalized licensing procedures, and has encouraged discussion about whether federal regulation of broadcasting is necessary or desirable at all. But so long as the FCC remains in existence, a potential for the kind of abuse we rightly deride in South Africa exists.

Let's leave it to counties like South Africa or the Soviet Union to insist on government control of the media. Here in the United States, it's long past time to abolish the Federal Communications Commission.

Credit crunch not in cards

At the moment, the U.S. economy may be suffering more from the fear of the deficit than the deficit itself - especially when you realize that the total federal share of the U.S. credit market (36.6 percent) is about the same today as in 1980 (34.5 percent)!

Thus when you listen to Wall Street doomsayers with their apocalyptic projections, you must wonder if they have done their statistical homework.

For example, in a recent "McNeil - Lehrer Newshour" former Lehman Brothers Chairman "Pete" Peterson said that because "foreign investors are now buying over 60 percent of the federal deficit," any big drop in the dollar could throw all of that burden back on the U.S. credit market and send interest rates soaring.

Either the Treasury, the Federal Reserve, and the Office of Management & Budget are all flat-out lying, or Peterson was "winging it" with totally spurious information.

In the first place, as OMB's Special Analysis E of the 1986 federal budget shows, the share of U.S. deficits purchased by foreigners has gone down from 1978's 43 percent to 9 percent in 1984 when foreigners purchased only $15.4 billion of a total federal debt flotation of 170.8 billion.

This is why foreigners now hold only 13 percent of all federal debt outstanding - down substantially from the 20 percent they held in 1978!

This, incidentally, coincides with the Federal Reserve's analysis which shows that in 1984 foreigners supplied only 6.2 percent of all the credit raised in the U.S. credit market, about HALF the 12 percent they supplied in 1978.

The Federal Reserve also shows that in 1984 the federal government directly accounted for only 26 percent of all the credit raised in the U.S. market, or only slightly more than the pre-Reagan budget year of 1981 (23 percent).

More important, Peterson and his doomsaying friends are ignoring the enormous strides made by the Reagan administration in stopping the spiral of federally guaranteed and assisted credit, even as the direct federal deficits were soaring.

Under Jimmy Carter, subsidized and guaranteed federal lending to the public soared from $37 billion in 1977 (when it comprised 12 percent of all money loaned in the U.S. credit markets) to $87 billion in 1981 (when it comprised 21 percent).

Since much of this was raised "off budget", it did not appear in the Carter deficits, but it did force the Treasury to raise more and more money over and above the federal deficits. As a result the total Treasury share of U.S. credit shot up from 25.5 percent in 1977 to 34.5 percent in 1980, and 34.1 percent in 1981, the final Carter budget year.

While this in no way rationalizes $200 billion deficits, it does help to put the picture in better perspective, and should reduce the panic a decibel or two.

Of course, one key reason for all this is that the U.S. credit markets have gone through a colossal expansion since their recession year of 1982, soaring from $401 billion to $637 billion in two years, a remarkable 32 - percent "real" growth, the strongest in postwar history.

This is yet another reminder that the old "crowding out" argument has little validity. When the economy is strong, inflation is low, and the potential for after-tax profits large, the credit markets will always expand with great elasticity.

Conversely, during the Carter budget years (1978 - 81), when taxes and inflation were soaring, the U.S. credit market actually DECLINED 23 percent in constant dollars, the worst credit contraction in post-war history, when deficits were much lower.

Thus, while total federal borrowing under Reagan has expanded four times as fast, in real terms, as under Carter, the U.S. credit markets have also expanded at an equally fast pace, so that there has been no serious "credit crunch," except those periodically engineered by the Federal Reserve.

Today in History

By The Associated Press
Today is Wednesday, April 10, the 100th day of 1985. There are 265 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:
On April 10, 1945, during World War II, American soldiers liberated the notorious Nazi concentration camp Buchenwald in what is now East Germany.

On this date:
Ten years ago: President Gerald R. Ford went before Congress to appeal for nearly three-quarters of a billion dollars in military aid and one-quarter billion dollars in humanitarian aid for South Vietnam.

Five years ago: The European Common Market ignored the Carter administration's call for concrete actions against Iran, favoring instead a denunciation of the Iranian government for holding the American hostages.

One year ago: Walter F. Mondale won the Pennsylvania Democratic primary, the Challenger astronaut succeeded in recovering a malfunctioning satellite from orbit, and the Senate went on record against the mining of Nicaraguan waters.

Today's birthdays: Author and former U.S. ambassador Clare Booth Luce is 82. Actor Harry Morgan is 70.

New generation of leaders

Edmund Burke said it of our nation's founders: "It was a time in the affairs of men when we had greatness to spare."

It is such a time again. Any American around long enough to have grandchildren remembers there were so few "giants" around that a Winston Churchill appeared to tower over a world that was up too its ankles in pygmies.

But something has happened since to spawn a generation of worthy leaders.

The political mischief of the 1960s and 1970s eventuated in legislation so punitive that it was feared "good men would no longer seek public office."

On the contrary - on the present scene and on the horizon and in both parties - there are men and women of demonstrated leadership qualities.

Seldom has a vice president been better prepared for executive authority than George Bush.

He makes jokes about his ceremonial duties at foreign funerals:

"You die, I fly." Yet his ongoing association and negotiation with others of the world's leaders is effective grooming for himself.

Either of the husband and wife Bob Doles qualifies.

Rep. Jack Kemp, on his way up, has done everything right.

Among Democrats, New York's Gov. Mario Cuomo is a spellbinding orator and capital administrator. If he wins his re-election next year with impressive numbers, he becomes a front-runner for the Presidency.

Among our nation's governors, several look good. Republican James Thompson of Illinois. Democrat Bruce Babbitt of Arizona.

Babbitt sees his party presently shattered, scattered, in need of new leadership to conform to the now appetite for traditional values.

These paragraphs are insufficient even to skim the cream of worthy contenders.

One would have to include Democrats Lamm, Hart, Jackson, White, Graham.

One would have to include Republicans Baker, Lehrman, Armstrong.

I have not included Ted Kennedy because he remains aligned with the liberal leadership of the party which was so ignominiously rejected last year.

I have not included television evangelists Falwell and Robertson, though they are methodically building enormous constituencies.

In his magnificent score for "Vagabond King," Rudolph Friml wrote, "Give me 10 who are stout-hearted men and I'll soon give you 10,000 more."

That is the way it works, you know. Strong leadership inspires strong leadership, if only by osmosis.

Tax reform idea reborn

WASHINGTON (NEA) - Comprehensive reform of the federal tax code, an initiative consigned to oblivion several months ago by the purveyors of this city's conventional wisdom, could soon stage a remarkable comeback.

When the Treasury Department unveiled its tax simplification proposal last November, a cynical consensus promptly decreed that the concept was a noble one but its chances for success ranged somewhere between slim and none.

The skeptics argued that the broad-based overhaul almost certainly was doomed to defeat because it called for depriving too many powerful interest groups of their cherished tax loopholes, deductions, credits, exemptions and other benefits.

Indeed, even President Reagan initially withheld endorsement of his own administration's proposal, insisting that "all of us will need time to study" the "lengthy and complex" package that calls for elimination of many of the most inequitable features of the tax system.

Reagan was less aloof in his State of the Union speech in January, but no particular enthusiasm was displayed at the time by the two men who head the congressional committees with jurisdiction over all tax legislation.

Now, however, Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, has signaled his inclination to back the proposal. Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore., chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, is reported to be moving closer to supporting it.

Moreover, a tentative strategy has been developed to surmount what Congressional Quarterly describes as "an unprecedented avalanche of lobbying appeals" likely to develop in opposition to the elimination of various tax breaks.

The plan calls for whisking the legislation through Congress so quickly that special interest groups will not have time to mount extensive lobbying campaigns.

Knowledgeable sources familiar with the tax reform proposal say that two especially controversial elements of the Treasury Department's initial version have been eliminated to make the package more appealing.

The first involves the tax treatment of capital gains - profits reaped from the sale of assets held for more than six months. Under the current law, they are taxed at a preferential rate. The original reform proposal would have treated capital gains as ordinary income, but that now apparently has been abandoned.

The second change involves charitable contributions, which are fully deductible under current law. The initial proposal would have allowed deductions only for donations in excess of 2 percent of a taxpayer's income. That approach reportedly has also been scrapped.

Being retained are numerous other provisions mandating the long-overdue elimination of loopholes and special tax breaks relied upon by corporations and wealthy individuals to avoid paying their fair share of taxes.

Individuals could still deduct the interest payments associated with mortgages on their principal residence, but deductions for mortgage interest on second homes would be restricted. The tax-avoiding practice of shifting assets to children through trusts would be severely curtailed.

If Reagan, Rostenkowski and Packwood can transform the reform package into law, they will be performing a valuable public service by stripping dozens of unwarranted provisions from the tax code.

Villagers carry off dead from the night of terror

SANTA CRUZ LOMA, El Salvador (AP) — The villagers, who survived the night of terror count the bodies of those who didn't — some charred or shot, others with throats slashed. They say at least 20 people were killed by guerrillas disguised as government soldiers.

At least seven of the dead were identified Tuesday as off-duty civil defense troops who were dragged from their homes and shot or had their throats cut, they said.

Two children and a pregnant woman were among five people killed when a mortar shell struck their house, said Jesus Valles, the commander of the volunteer civil defense forces in Santa Cruz Loma, a cluster of huts 25 miles southeast of San Salvador.

Villagers gathered at the house and stared. Some wept. One fingered a rosary. Straw crucifixes somehow were damaged although they decorated walls of the one-room cottage that was now a rubble of adobe and brick.

The house once had been civil defense headquarters and was used as a gun repair shop. Roberto Dominguez, 27, said he was on patrol when his house was shelled and machine-gunned and his family inside was killed.

He was the former head of the civil defense in the town and claimed the rebels had passed the word earlier that they were going to kill him and his family.

While bodies still lay on the smoldering rubble, the survivors recounted how 300 to 500 leftist rebels approached the village on Monday evening and left in the dawn light on Tuesday.

"They arrived on foot and we saw them and shot first," said Valles.

"They shouted up not to shoot, that they were on our side," he said. "They did it to confuse us and we stopped shooting. We thought they were part of an anti-insurgency unit" of government troops.

"When they got closer we saw they were not soldiers" but it was too late to stop them, he said.

On Tuesday afternoon a truck loaded with some of the bodies rumbled down the dusty road, stopping to pick up more bodies along the roadside.

In the nearby town of Santiago Nonualco, relatives identified the bodies, a judge recorded their names and workers slipped them into plain wooden coffins lined with sacks used to hold the sugar harvest.

"I gave my blessing to all of them, that was all I could do," said a priest who would only give his name only as Father Octavio and said he had served the village.

Some residents complained bitterly that no army troops were sent to help.

O'Neill meets Gorbachev, delivers a letter from Reagan to Soviet leader

MOSCOW (AP) — Rep. Thomas P. O'Neill, speaker of the U.S. House, met new Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev today and presented him with a letter from President Reagan.

O'Neill and a delegation of U.S. representatives were the first congressional delegation to meet the Soviet leader since he came to power March 11.

The talks were expected to focus on U.S.-Soviet arms control negotiations and the recent speculation about a summit meeting between the U.S. and Soviet leaders.

Gorbachev received the legislators in his personal Kremlin office, located in a secluded building behind the wall that flanks Red Square. No details on the meeting were immediately available.

O'Neill told reporters outside his hotel this morning that he was carrying a letter from Reagan, but refused to disclose its contents.

A pool of American reporters were admitted to the office a few minutes before the meeting began and allowed to photograph Gorbachev, O'Neill, House minority leader Robert Michel, R-Ill., and other U.S. and Soviet officials.

Gorbachev arrived ahead of the U.S. delegation and joked briefly with the journalists. "Can Soviet and American journalists really work together?" he said.

The visit coincides with Gorbachev's first major statement on arms control, published Sunday by the Soviet news agency Tass.

Gorbachev said the Soviet Union was halting deployment of medium-range SS-20 missiles in Europe until November and suspending deployment of other longer-range rockets in East Germany and Czechoslovakia.

He urged NATO to stop deploying Pershing 2 and cruise missiles and said a decision on resuming Soviet missile deployment would depend on "whether the United States follows our example."

On Tuesday, Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko held talks with the visiting congressmen on how to improve relations between the two

Dear Abby

Split in religious belief cause family to splinter

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1985 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Our only daughter, "Sally," lives in a beautiful home 400 miles from us, but her husband, "Joe," has forbidden us to visit her in their home.

I finally wrote Joe a long letter addressed to his office (he's a successful surgeon), telling him that I thought we were entitled to come for a visit. He returned the letter on which he had scribbled, "Tell it to Dear Abby," so that's what I'm doing.

My husband is a Christian church minister—Disciples of Christ—so we sent Sally to a good Bible college, hoping she would marry a fine ministerial student. Instead she met Joe, an Episcopalian. They fell in love, and he won her over to his church. They were secretly married after graduation and we ceased all communication with Sally for several years. Last year she let us know we were grandparents.

Abby, they had our grandson christened in the Episcopalian church, and we know from the Scriptures that all must be baptized by immersion to be saved, so my husband told them they had condemned our grandchild to hell. After that they broke off all communication with us.

In your column you have said that grandparents have the right to see their grandchildren. How do we go about enforcing those rights?

CUT OFF IN VIRGINIA

DEAR CUT OFF: There is a right that outranks grandparents' rights—it's the constitutional right under the First Amendment that grants every citizen freedom of religion. That means the right to worship (or not worship) according to one's own conscience. Your daughter, an Episcopalian, baptized her child in accordance with the rules of that church, so for you to accuse her of condemning her child to hell because your religion differs from hers is an insult.

Until you respect your daughter's right to religious freedom, forget about your "rights" as a grandparent. You have none.

DEAR ABBY: Because I have had a mastectomy, I am all too familiar with the comments of insensitive people concerning breasts.

A large-breasted (and proud of 'em) friend no doubt meant to console me when she said, "Well, you didn't have too much in the first place!"

My husband of 21 years withdrew from me physically, saying, "You just have to understand; I've lost my desire."

Her head is screwed up. His head is screwed up.

My head is on straight. And so is my prosthesis. I feel. I care. I love. I forget. I cry.

A WHOLE WOMAN

DEAR WOMAN: "Man's inhumanity to man makes countless thousands mourn." (Robert Burns)

DEAR ABBY: Set me straight. Since when is it all right for a female guest to wear black to a wedding? I know that black is "in" now, but where I come from, it simply isn't worn to a wedding.

At a recent evening wedding I couldn't believe the black outfits—even the soloist wore black! Lots of white numbers, too, which I always thought should not be worn to a wedding.

Did I miss an issue of Vogue? Tell me true, Abby.

BEMUSED IN BUFFALO

DEAR BEMUSED: For women, colors are preferred over black and white, but neither is forbidden at a wedding.

Lectures begin

Dr. L. Tuffly Ellis spoke to an audience of persons from throughout the Texas Panhandle as he opened the Carson County Sesquicentennial program with the initial lecture in the series, "150 Years of Texas Independence — From Frontier Republic to Sunbelt Empire," Sunday at the Square House Museum.

In 1820, he said, only 2,500 people inhabited Texas, outside of the Indian population. After the territory was opened for colonization in 1821, the population reached 25,000 by 1830.

The first conventions were seeking only to become a separate Mexican state. However, the policies of the Mexican government rankled with the colonists, and the Texas Revolution ensued. The Texans expelled all of the Mexicans and set up the Republic of Texas by action at Washington - on - the - Brazos March 2, 1836. When General Santa Anna was defeated at the Battle of San Jacinto on April 21, 1836, the Republic of Texas was formed, and later for 10 years until Texas was annexed by the United States in 1845.

Three more lectures will be held in April. "Reconstruction in Texas" will be discussed by Dr. Alwyn Barr, head of the department of history at Texas Tech University on April 14. Dr. Joe B. Frantz, professor at the University of Texas at Austin will speak on "20th Century Texas Art" on April 21. "20th Century Texas Art" will be the subject discussed by Ron Gleason, an independent art consultant in Dallas on April 28. All lectures will be at 2 p.m. at the Square House Museum. One continuing education unit will be awarded to anyone attending three of the four lectures if desired.

Cartoonist to autograph biography

Ace Reid's "Cowpokes" could be one of the most famous one-panel cartoons in the world. You know, the ones of the lanky cowboys with a cigarette dangling from their mouths, weathered as a West Texas corral, riding on broom tail mustangs.

Now local Panhandle writer and publisher, John Erickson, has produced a book about the life of Reid, containing a liberal selection of Reid's famous syndicated (in 500 newspapers and magazines) cartoons starring Jake, Maw, Zeb, Wilbur the horsetrader and Banker Tuffnel, plus Erickson's biography of Reid.

Reid is to be in Pampa Thursday to autograph copies of his biography at an autography party at Citizens Bank & Trust from 12:30 p.m. to 2 p.m. The public is invited.

Erickson is known as the author of "Hank the Cowdog" books, plus others like "The Devil in Texas," "Cowboys are Partly Human," and "Alkali County Tales." He, himself, is a cowboy as well as an alumni of the University of Texas at Austin and Harvard Divinity School.

Material for the book was gathered during Erickson's visit to Ace and Madge Reid's "Draggin S" ranch in the hills north of Kerryville.

Reid, who grew up near Wichita Falls, decided to be an artist when he was quite young. "I noticed that the farm and ranch sections of the papers were about as cheerful as the obituaries," he says in one article, "and I decided to come in with some humor."

Lighten up meals in Tex-Mex style

Gone are the days when a calorie-controlled meal meant a cup of bouillon, a mound of cottage cheese and all the celery you could eat. Today's lighter eaters make the quest for more exciting culinary creations an ongoing effort. In Texas and neighboring states, where Mexican flavors have long been woven in to the lifestyle, lively, light versions of south-of-the-border favorites appear frequently on calorie counters' tables.

Bright, fresh-tasting salads always rate highly with the fitness-conscious set. Chicken Tostada Ensalada is a healthy, fresh, year-round complete-meal salad with authentic south-of-the-border flavor flair.

CHICKEN TOSTADA ENSALADA
2 c. shredded or finely chopped cooked chicken or turkey
¾ c. picante sauce
1-3rd c. green onion slices
¼ t. ground cumin
½ t. oregano
6 c. shredded romaine lettuce
2 c. chopped tomato
1 c. shredded Cheddar cheese
Ripe olive slices (optional)
Combine chicken, picante sauce, onions, cumin and oregano in saucepan; simmer five minutes, stirring occasionally. Arrange 1½ cups lettuce on each of four salad plates. Top each with ½ cup of the hot chicken mixture, ½ cup tomato, ¼ cup cheese and olives, if desired. Drizzle with additional picante sauce, if desired, and serve immediately. Makes four servings, 275 calories each.

Single-skillet meals can be a real plus for health-conscious, on-the-go cooks. Speedy Southwest Skillet Supper combines delightfully uncomplicated preparation with satisfying fresh flavor. Fast to fix, with calories kept in line, the chicken and vegetable combo is just right for today's lighter style of eating.

SOUTHWEST SKILLET SUPPER
1 medium onion, cut into ½-inch wedges
1 clove garlic, minced
1 T. butter or margarine
2 c. diced cooked chicken or turkey
2 c. zucchini, cut into ½ inch cubes
1 medium red or green pepper, cut into 1x¼ inch strips
1 t. ground cumin
¼ t. salt
½ c. picante sauce
Cook onion and garlic in butter until onion is tender. Add chicken, zucchini and pepper; sprinkle with cumin and salt. Pour picante sauce over chicken mixture; mix well. Cook over medium-high heat, stirring frequently, until vegetables are crisp-tender and most of liquid has evaporated. About three to four minutes. Makes four servings, 178 calories each.

FRESH AND LIGHT with only 275 calories per serving. Chicken Tostada Ensalada is ideal for the way fitness-oriented folks prefer to eat today. The spicy chicken mixture is seasoned with picante sauce. Served hot on top of cool, crisp romaine lettuce, the lively-flavored chicken mixture provides temperature and texture contrast so typical of south-of-the-border fare, with calories streamlined and preparation shortcut.

Southern food has that down-home taste

By Aileen Claire
NEA Food Editor

A trip to Dothan, Ala., to visit with farmers turned into a pleasant eating venture. Lunch was down-home fried catfish, hush puppies and cole slaw, washed down with lots of iced tea. So good that I recall eating three servings of the sweet-tasting fish! The success of fish farming, especially of catfish, in the South has put this tasty fish into markets throughout the country.

Here are some updated versions of these delicacies stressing low sodium possibilities when special seasonings and no salt are used.

PAN-FRIED CATFISH WITH CORNMEAL
1 1/2 pounds skinned catfish fillets
1 tablespoon herb and spice blend
1 large egg
2 tablespoons cold water
1 envelope salt-free crispy coating mix
1/4 cup yellow cornmeal
Oil for frying
Lemon wedges

Rinse fillets under cold water and then pat dry with paper towels. Sprinkle with herb and spice blend. Beat egg with water in a pie plate. Place coating mix and cornmeal in a second pie plate. Dip one fillet at a time in beaten egg, allowing excess to drip off, and then roll fillet in crispy coating mixture. Heat 1/8 inch vegetable oil in a large skillet over medium heat until hot.

Fry fish, in several batches, for 3 minutes on each side, until golden and cooked through. Drain on paper towels. Serve with lemon wedges. This kitchen-tested recipe makes 4 servings at 338 calories per serving; 126 milligrams sodium per serving.

OVEN-FRIED CATFISH: Heat oven to 425 degrees. Prepare catfish as directed above. Place in one layer in a jelly roll pan. Drizzle with 2 or 3 tablespoons melted butter or margarine. Bake about 15 minutes, until cooked through. Serve with lemon wedges. This kitchen-tested recipe makes 4 servings at 362 calories per serving; 199 milligrams sodium per serving.

PAN-FRIED HUSH PUPPIES
1 cup all-purpose flour
1 envelope salt-free crispy coating mix
1/2 cup yellow cornmeal
1 tablespoon salt-free herb and spice blend
1 teaspoon baking powder
Pinch ground red pepper
1 cup milk

1 large egg, beaten lightly
1/2 cup finely chopped onion
Oil for frying

Mix flour, crispy coating mix, cornmeal, herb and spice blend, baking powder and ground red pepper in a medium-sized bowl. Combine milk and egg in a small dish. Stir milk mixture into flour mixture, stirring until blended. Stir in onion.

Heat 1/8 inch oil in a large skillet over medium heat until hot. Drop batter by slightly rounded tablespoons into oil. Fry 6 hush puppies at a time, 2 1/2 minutes on each side, until deep golden brown. Transfer with a slotted spoon to drain on paper towels. Fry remaining hush puppies in same manner. This kitchen-tested recipe makes about 24 hush puppies at 62 calories each; 27 milligrams sodium each.

BAKED HUSH PUPPY DROP BISCUITS: Preheat oven to 425 degrees. Prepare batter as directed above, but add 2 tablespoons oil along with milk and egg to batter. Drop batter by slightly rounded tablespoons onto a heavy ungreased non-stick baking sheet, 1 inch apart. Bake in lower third of oven for about 20 minutes, until underside is well browned and biscuits are cooked through. Serve hot and spread with lots of butter or margarine. This kitchen-tested recipe makes about 24 hush puppies at 62 calories each; 27 milligrams sodium each.

OLD-FASHIONED COLE SLAW
1 small head green cabbage (about 1 pound)
1 cup grated pared carrots
8 radishes, sliced
1/2 cup vegetable oil
1/4 cup cider vinegar
2 tablespoons lemon juice
2 tablespoons sugar
2 tablespoons low pepper-no garlic seasoning
2 teaspoons instant minced onion

Using a sharp knife or food processor fitted with slicing blade, shred cabbage (about 5 cups shredded); put into a large bowl. Add grated carrots and sliced radishes; toss. Set aside.

Combine remaining ingredients. Pour over cabbage mixture and toss. Chill 2 hours. Toss before serving. This kitchen-tested recipe makes 6 servings at 218 calories per serving; 31 milligrams sodium per serving.

Cherry pie with a cheddar twist

Homemade pies are difficult to resist. Here is a different cherry pie — it combines prepared cherries with fresh pears and apples. The crust is enriched with Cheddar cheese. Serve hot with ice cream, plain yogurt or Cheddar cheese slices on top. It also is good cold.

THREE FRUITS CHERRY PIE
1/2 cup shredded Cheddar cheese
1 package (10 ounces) pie crust mix
1 cup whole red maraschino cherries
2 1/2 cups sliced, pared, ripe pears
2 1/2 cups sliced, pared, baking apples
2 tablespoons flour
3 tablespoons maraschino cherry syrup
2 tablespoons melted butter or margarine
1/2 teaspoons nutmeg
Dash of salt

In a medium-size bowl combine cheese and pie crust mix. Prepare according to package directions. Wrap in plastic wrap and chill, if desired.

On a lightly floured surface, roll out half of the pastry to an 11-inch circle. Line a 9-inch pie plate with rolled pastry. Refrigerate with remaining pastry until ready to use.

In a large bowl combine fruits. In a small bowl, stir together flour, maraschino cherry syrup, butter, nutmeg and salt. Add to fruits and toss lightly with a fork. Turn into prepared pie plate.

Roll out remaining pastry into an 11-inch circle. With knife or pastry wheel cut out 10 strips, 3/4-inch wide each. Moisten edge of shell slightly with cold water. Arrange 5 strips across filling. Press ends to rim. Place remaining strips across first ones at right angles to make a lattice. Press ends to rim. Fold overhang of lower crust over ends of strips. Flute edges.

Bake in 425-degree oven for 40 to 45 minutes or until fruit is tender and crust is golden. Cool on wire rack. This kitchen-tested recipe makes 6 to 8 servings.

CHEDDAR cheese in the crust and pears and apples inside add a surprising taste to cherry pie.

Woman's 'house' catches the light

By GERRY BURTON
Lubbock Avalanche-Journal
MULESHOE, Texas (AP) — Circles of glass catch and toss the light, drawing traveler's attention to a world of bottles nestled under a tree by the roadside.

There, adjacent to a conventional home, a little house and garden area made of bottles, unfolds to the curious eye. A wooden sign hanging from a gateway made of horseshoes reads "Mabel's."

When lighted inside, the house sends a wonderland aura into the night.

Mabel Caldwell used to know exactly how many bottles were going into her eye-catching creation, but over the years she lost count. She was "into the thousands" when she let the fun of creating overcome her desire to keep totals.

Somewhat the bottle count got lost in a raft of crafts inundating the Caldwell home. Any craft rage hitting the area found an eager fan in Mabel Caldwell.

She tramped the countryside in search of antique barbed wire, cracked rocks in an Idaho quarry to find fish preserved inside and dug bottles from sand in a New Mexico pasture.

At home she molded the collected rocks and plastic into table tops. She also did leatherwork, basketry, needlework, plaster casting and any hobby catching her fancy.

But the little bottle house remains a favorite hobby. "I made the house in six weeks in 1968," Mrs. Caldwell, now in her 80s, said. Knowledge of bottle houses and how to build them came from a woman in California who "built a whole string of bottle houses." Hers were square, but Mrs. Caldwell decided in favor of the bottle shape.

Raw material came by the carload from "this place south of town where people went to drink and throw away their bottles."

Carefully, she would pour a layer of cement, put in the bottles with bottoms turned outward, then repeat the process as cement hardened. Soon, a bottle house surrounded a tree in the yard of her home.

For windows, she used an arrangement of clear bottles to allow more light inside. Bottles used for the construction had consistent shape and color, while the unusual were hung around the tree trunk or suspended from the ceiling.

The tree died, she thinks, from lack of air around the roots. Before long, she had run a central chimney resembling the neck of a bottle up out of the house.

As her bottle collection grew, the bottle art spread. A low fence of bottles is topped by insulators gathered between Farwell and Lariat when a new utility line went in.

Coke bottles edging a walkway stand bottoms-up to show the town where it was cast and also to keep water from collecting and freezing, thus breaking the bottles.

An array of cacti grow in planter boxes, and a vine spreads from a wishing well.

Bottles hanging inside the house are "cheapies," Mrs. Caldwell explained.

Flush toilets are social indicator

By ELLIOTT MINOR
Associated Press Writer
TIFTON, Ga. (AP) — For Doug Bachtel, flush toilets are more than a convenience. He uses them to chart progress in a state where people in more than 75,000 homes still trek to outhouses.

Bachtel, a 33-year-old rural sociologist, works for the University of Georgia's Cooperative Extension Service and is the author of the best-selling "Georgia County Guide." The guide, 6,000 copies of which are printed each year, contains information on virtually all aspects of life in the state — divorce, crime, alcoholic beverage consumption and, of course, "housing units lacking complete plumbing."

"Houses without flush toilets are usually discussed in a lighthearted manner, but correlated with indicators, skills test scores. In 1980, west-central in household plumbing with of its: 2,362, 75,618, or 3, 2,012,640 plumbing tha st-selling manner, but interestingly they are correlated with many other social indicators, including low basic skills test scores," he said.

 In 1980, Talbot County, in west-central Georgia, led the state in households without indoor plumbing with 621, or 26.3 percent, of its 2,362 homes. Statewide, 75,618, or 3.76 percent, out of 2,012,640 households lacked plumbing that year, the last one for which the figures are available. "From what I understand, the Talbot County officials recognized through looking at the County Guide that they had a problem and were able to secure a federal grant to provide the people with plumbing," Bachtel said.

 A native of Colorado Springs, Colo., with a doctorate in rural sociology, Bachtel examines reams of statistics to compile the annual guide. The guides — "We sell out every year," Bachtel said — are given to state and county lawmakers and are sold for $7 each to Chamber of Commerce officials, public health workers, bankers, Realtors, businesses, libraries, schools and physicians.

 One veterinarian, Bachtel said, used the guide to help him pick a county to settle in. The vet found one with an abundance of cattle and no one to keep them healthy. "I put together information for planning purposes," explained Bachtel, one of 1,500 people employed by the extension service, which claims expertise in 190 specialties ranging from forestry to nutrition. All but two of Georgia's 159 counties have extension agents whose main job is to help farmers grow crops.

Bachtel estimated there are about 1,000 rural sociologists around the country who study problems in rural America such as poverty, infant mortality, and low scholastic achievement and recommend changes.
 Besides the guide, Bachtel edits a quarterly newsletter that examines problems facing Georgia; in 11 editions to date, he's covered such issues as population growth, unemployment, voter apathy and forestry. Based on five years of studying problems in Georgia, Bachtel predicts that the major issue for the state in the 1980s will be land usage, followed by education, poverty and health.

 Bachtel, who admits statistics can be less than exciting, for the past 12 years has kept black widow spiders as pets in a large pickle jar.

Public school enrollment reported down; teaching staffs about the same

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's public schools enroll almost 6 million fewer students today than a decade ago, but the number of teachers and school administrators has declined only slightly.

The National Education Association reported Tuesday that there are 2.1 million classroom teachers, earning an average of $23,546.

Those teachers are part of a total instruction staff, including principals, supervisors and others, that now numbers 2,435,663, or only 17,527 less than in 1974-75. The average salary for the entire instructional staff is $24,569.

In 1974-75, when the last of the baby boom generation was still in school, more than 45.1 million children showed up for classes in the fall. By last fall, public school enrollment had dropped to 39.37 million.

The staff size has shrunk less than 1 percent in that period, despite the 12.8 percent enrollment drop. Student-teacher ratios have shrunk, but many schools have hired additional teachers for handicapped students and other special needs.

Many governors and school reformers have been pressing for pay hikes in the past two years to attract brighter recruits into the profession. The NEA said classroom teacher salaries rose 7.3 percent in the past year.

The NEA's research department, in a report based on an annual survey of state education agencies, also reported the schools are spending an average of $3,429 to educate each public school student.

That is 7.8 percent more than the $3,182 it cost last year. The per pupil costs ranged from a high of $6,867 in Alaska to a low of $2,182 in Utah.

Average teacher salaries ranged from a high of $39,751 in Alaska — a state with a high cost-of-living — to a low of $15,971 in Mississippi, where thousands of teachers recently staged wildcat strikes to protest their pay.

The Mississippi legislature last month approved a package, over Gov. Bill Allain's veto, that will provide $4,400 in raises — including some merit pay — over the next three years.

Meanwhile, the National Catholic Educational Association reported Tuesday that minorities now comprise more than 20 percent of the students in Catholic schools. Minority enrollment has increased by 127,000 students since 1970, even while overall Catholic school enrollment has fallen by almost 1.5 million.

The association reported Catholic schools suffered an enrollment drop of 66,000 students, or 2.2 percent, in the past year. There are now 7,891 Catholic elementary and 1,449 secondary schools, or 61 fewer than in 1983-84, with 2.9 million students.

For the seventh consecutive year, the largest share of public school funds came from state governments. The states provided 49 percent of the public schools' $137.6 billion in revenues for the current school year, the NEA said. Local governments paid $61.6 billion, or 44.8 percent, while the federal government picked up the rest of the tab: $8.6 billion, or 6.2 percent.

That was down from 6.6 percent in 1983-84 and "is the lowest level of federal funding since the 1960s," the NEA said.

Five years ago, the federal government paid more than 9 percent of the school budgets.

MILK REMOVED—John Kladerabek removes cartons of milk from shelves of a Jewel Foods store in Elmhurst, Ill., Tuesday. State officials said that cartons of Hillfarm 2 percent milk may be responsible for a new outbreak of salmonella poisoning. (AP Laserphoto)

Cause of five-state salmonella outbreak still under investigation

CHICAGO (AP) — Officials say they're unable to pinpoint the source of the second-largest salmonella outbreak in U.S. history, which has forced Chicago's biggest grocery chain to recall its milk and close its main dairy after more than 2,000 people became ill.

"We were optimistic that the investigation would lead us quickly to the cause of this epidemic, but we have been disappointed," Illinois Public Health Director Thomas B. Kirkpatrick Jr. said Tuesday.

"None of the expert investigators can say with any certainty what was responsible for the contamination," Kirkpatrick added.

The Jewel Food Stores removed all milk from shelves Tuesday and closed a Hillfarm dairy in Melrose Park after medical officials reported the death of a 61-year-old woman hospitalized with salmonella poisoning.

The death Monday of William True, 53, of Crystal Lake, was reported Tuesday by Sherman Hospital officials in Elgin, and the cause of death was tentatively listed as salmonella poisoning.

The dairy closing also followed reports that a second batch of 2 percent fat-content milk was suspected in new cases of salmonella poisoning. Equipment was dismantled to permit part-by-part inspection for possible contamination.

"All milk has been withdrawn from sale in all Jewel Food Stores, pending the determination of the presence of salmonella by the Illinois Department of Public Health," said Jewel Companies Inc. spokesman Bill Newby.

The 217 supermarkets operated by Jewel and affiliates "will stock milk from other sources" until it is cleared, Newby said. The stores normally stock only Jewel brands — Hillfarm and Bluebrook.

The stores are located in Illinois, Indiana, Michigan and Iowa. Salmonella cases have been reported in those four states and in Wisconsin.

Two low-fat milk brands are believed to have carried the infection.

State health officials last week started investigating 2 percent milk dated March 29 and marketed under the Bluebrook brand, suspected in the first wave of illness. The investigation was expanded Monday to include 2 percent Hillfarm milk dated April 1, 3, 7, 8, 10, 12 and 14.

There has been no confirmation of salmonella in patients from the second batch of illnesses because tests had not been completed Tuesday, said Barbara Weiner, an assistant director of the Illinois Public Health Department.

Preliminary jury selected in Von Bulow's new trial

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — A nurse and a medical technician are among 16 people who will be questioned by lawyers picking jurors for the retrial of Claus von Bulow, accused of trying to murder his heiress wife with insulin injections.

But some or all of the candidates could be replaced by others who have also passed an initial round of questioning by a judge. Jury selection is expected to last at least an additional week.

Prosecutor Marc DeSisto on Tuesday began asking the 12 women and four men general questions about their backgrounds and whether they were familiar with insulin, hypodermic needles or syringes.

Von Bulow, with hand on chin, carefully studied the potential jurors as they were called to the jury box and questioned.

The Danish-born financier is accused of injecting Martha "Sunny" von Bulow with insulin at the family's Newport mansion during the Christmas holidays of 1979 and 1980, twice sending the Pittsburgh utilities heiress into comatose states. Doctors say she will never recover from the second coma.

In the second day of the retrial, Superior Court Judge Corinne P. Grande eliminated 24 more potential jurors, paring the original 115-member jury pool to 62. A court clerk then selected at random 16 names from the remaining candidates to seat a preliminary jury panel.

Harvesters shut out Levelland

Pampa won its first District 1-4A game after five losses, blanking Levelland, 7-0, Tuesday on a two-hitter by junior Brent Cryer.

Brent Cryer...pitches two-hitter

Both teams entered the game without a district victory. The Harvesters are now 5-9 overall and will play at Levelland Saturday.

Cryer struck out nine batters and lifted his season record to 4-1. "Brent did a good job. It was his best outing yet," said Pampa coach Bill Butler.

Pampa had only five hits off Alex Ochoa, but the Lobos made six errors behind him.

Juan Soto had a double and single for the Harvesters while knocking in a run. Sophomore catcher John Roe had a single and three RBI. Mark Cochran and Jimmy Bridges each had a single.

"It's nice to get a win," Butler said. "It's been a long dry spell."

Levelland falls to 0-7 in district and 1-13 overall.

The Harvesters enter the second half of the season with only a slim shot at a playoff spot.

"At this stage we just have to take them one game at a time," Butler said.

Lubbock Dunbar downed Dumas, 5-3, and Lubbock Estacado held off Canyon, 6-5, in other district action Tuesday.

Estacado is in first place with a 5-1 record. Canyon has a 4-2 record.

Astros win season opener

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Astros had plenty of bad memories to erase in their season opener against the Los Angeles Dodgers.

First, Dickie Thon, who was felled by a pitched ball one year ago and his career threatened, led off for the Astros in an emotional comeback that drew a standing ovation.

Then the Astros rallied for a 2-1 victory to help eradicate memories of horrendous 0-9 and 1-6 starts the past two seasons.

"We knew what we had to do," said Astros first baseman Enos Cabell, who got three hits. "If we had started bad like we have in the past, everyone would be saying 'here we go again.'"

Instead, the Astros got off on a positive note with Nolan Ryan hurling a three-hitter over seven innings and maintaining his all-time strikeout lead by a 3,878-3,874 margin over Philadelphia's Steve Carlton.

Thon drew most of the pre-game applause of the record 44,069 Astrodome fans for his year-long comeback battle—with blurred vision.

"I had a lump in my throat when he went up for the first time," Astros second baseman Bill Doran admitted. "I talked with him a lot during the spring. He's been through so much. We just had to be patient with him and let him come through on his own."

Thon singled in the third inning and scored Houston's first run from second base on Phil Garner's single to leftfield.

Doran doubled in the fourth inning and scored when a grounder by Ryan skipped off the glove of second baseman Mariano Duncan for an error.

The only run loser Fernando Valenzuela had to work with came in the second when Mike Marshall doubled and scored on a single by Sid Bream.

"I was anxious but not nervous," Thon explained. "I'm just glad to be back and we won the game. Everyday now it's going to be playing conditions and I've still got to take one day at a time."

The Dodgers played without infielders Steve Sax and Bill

Russell and the depleted staff worried Dodger Manager Tommy Lasorda.

The Dodgers committed three errors.

"I've never played an opener with 22 players before," Lasorda said. "It's one of the hazards of the game. It puts you in a position where you can't do what you want. I got a guy on in the ninth and I can't pinch run for him because there's nobody to pinch run."

Ryan, who struck out four, had one of his better opening day performances.

"The way to beat Nolan Ryan is to mix in a couple of hits around some walks," Dodger rightfielder Mike Marshall said. "If he doesn't walk anybody like tonight, you can forget it."

"You can't string together enough hits to beat him when he has his control like tonight."

Ryan retired 16 of 17 batters from the second inning through the seventh, when he was replaced by Frank DiPino.

New York City to build stadium

NEW YORK (AP) — City and state officials have formally approved a domed stadium next to Shea Stadium in Queens in hopes of luring pro football back to the city, and are now looking for proposals from private developers for the project, published reports say.

The decision was to be announced at a news conference today by Vincent Tese, chairman of the state Urban Development Corp., and Herbert Sturz, chairman of the City Planning Commission, The New York Times and the New York Post reported.

The papers quoted state and city officials as saying the requests for proposals will go out to real estate developers and owners of football teams across the country and are for return by June 5.

Vikings, Browns after Kosar

EDEN PRAIRIE, Minn. (AP) — Both the Minnesota Vikings and the Cleveland Browns have engineered trades aimed at acquiring University of Miami quarterback Bernie Kosar and the Vikings say they will lose no time in trying for an agreement.

"We've been saying all along that he's been at the top of our list, and now we are in a position to negotiate with him," Minnesota General Manager Mike Lynn said Tuesday night. "We will be talking with his agent and his father very soon."

However, Kosar was said to be contemplating a strategy that would put him with the Browns.

The Vikings made their announcement first, saying they had reached an agreement with Houston for the Oilers' first-round pick, No. 2 overall, in the April 30 National Football League draft. But then the Browns said they had made a deal with the Buffalo Bills for their selection, the first, in the supplemental draft, if one is necessary.

Kosar could not be reached for comment but his father, Bernie Sr., said at his Boardman, Ohio, home, "We'd like to hear Minnesota's story because they have the rights now."

"Minnesota is an option we'd consider," the elder Kosar added. "But we know Cleveland is very interested."

"Bernie is in a unique situation," Kosar said. "If the league does not receive a written notification from us by Monday, April 15, then he is not part of the April 30 draft. That would leave us the possibility of a supplemental draft."

Lynn described as "bizarre" the possibility of Cleveland getting Kosar in a supplemental draft.

"It is something that might have to be addressed by attorneys," Lynn added.

Kosar, who has two years of college eligibility remaining, has not informed the league that he plans to be eligible for the regular draft and has until April 15 to do so.

A source close to Kosar said the quarterback probably would not make himself eligible until after April 30, and thus would be available in a supplemental draft.

Tri-State rodeo results

Pampa High was entered in a Tri-State Rodeo last weekend in Stratford.

Pampa girls placed in five events, but the Pampa boys failed to place.

Amie Greene was fifth in breakaway (7.549) and fifth in goat tying (13.246). Leslie Leggett was fifth in barrels (19.354) and fourth in poles (21.645). Casey Rice was sixth in poles (23.779).

High point girls' team was Canadian with 19 points, while boys' honors went to River Road with 20 points.

Dayla Hash of Canadian won the goat tying with a time of 11.580.

In the boys' division, Denny McLanahan of Canadian won barebacks with a 65, while Billie Billingsley of McLean won steer wrestling with a time of 5.392.

The next rodeo will be held at Dalhart Saturday and Sunday. The Tri-State finals is scheduled for June 6-7 at the Amarillo Fairgrounds.

Kurt Bevacqua

Tale of a bench warmer

By Murray Olderman

SAN DIEGO (NEA) — In a major-league tenure that has endured through parts or all of 14 seasons, his 17 times at bat in the World Series of 1984 have most profoundly affected the baseball life of Kurt Bevacqua.

They have given him visibility, a certain amount of notoriety and, for the first time in his career, a measure of security.

Bevacqua batted a cool .412 for the five-game World Series, getting seven hits in those 17 at-bats — including two home runs and four runs batted in.

Mind you, this performance didn't get him a single commercial or national endorsement or speaking engagement.

But it did, at the age of 37, solidify his spot on the roster of the San Diego Padres, for whom he had spent most of the last three summers watching games from the shade of the dugout.

And it has boosted the circulation of "Baseball Gold," a local newspaper he owns and publishes, to the nice neighborhood of 50,000. Kurt isn't an editorial contributor — modesty forbids — but his picture has run on the front page.

With an effervescent personality (the Italian name means "drink water"), Bevacqua is the only player in World Series memory to blow a kiss toward his wife in the stands while round third base after hitting a homer.

He is also the only bench warmer to hire a limousine to take him to the ballpark during the Series.

With six different major-league teams, Kurt has never been a day-in, day-out regular. He has yet to bat 300 times in a single season. He is a career .235 hitter — whose highest single-season average was .257 with Kansas City in 1973, whose highest RBI total was 40 that same year. Last year he batted a meager .200 in limited appearances during the regular season.

Bevacqua is a utility player who has performed in the field at every position but pitcher and catcher. Now he's a pinch-hitter. Period.

Yet he was able — in his first World Series — to emerge as the Padres' hero in a losing cause, accounting for their only win, in the second game, with a three-run homer.

"I've always had confidence in myself," he says perkily. "I think I'm better than I probably actually am."

"To be perfectly honest, I don't have the ability some of these guys have. I've taught myself. What I lacked in ability, I had to make up in determination and desire. That's where pride came in — to prove people wrong."

His pride was tested most severely in the spring of 1977 when he was released by the Seattle Mariners.

"That was really strange," recalls Kurt, "because I hit .469 in spring training, with three home runs and 15 RBIs — and I got released from an expansion club. I had a tough time finding a job because it was March 31 and everybody broke camp on April 1 and had their clubs set."

"I started calling everybody, but the answer was mostly the same."

No. They didn't need a fringe player approaching 30.

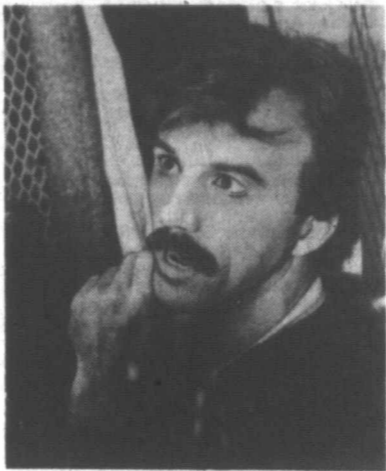

So, he signed a minor-league contract with the Texas Rangers, and went to Tucson, where he hit a resounding .352. He was called back later that season to the majors.

In 1981, Bevacqua was released again in the fall — this time, by Pittsburgh. But he signed for 1982 with San Diego. He had played for the Padres (in 1979 and '80) before being traded to the Pirates.

He stayed in San Diego and made a home for himself these last three years, primarily as a pinch hitter.

"I like to go to the plate in those situations," he says. "I enjoy the visibility it brings. I like the fact that on my at-bat rides us winning or leading the game. I hardly ever hit when we're ahead in the game."

"R's like (manager) Dick Williams says, 'I hope we don't have to use you this year.'

His appearances were limited last year because the Padres then had Champ Summers, a left-hand hitter, to come off the bench, too. Bevacqua is a right-hand hitter. Now with Summers gone, Kurt anticipates a busier summer facing pitchers who throw from either side of the mound.

"I pinched-hit for Dick Williams 90 times over the past three years and got 30 pinch-hits with 36 runs batted in," says Bevacqua. "I feel I can get a hit every time."

"But it took 17 at-bats in the World Series for them to say to themselves, 'Hey, this guy can hit both kinds of pitching.'"

NBA roundup

Cavaliers qualify for playoffs

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD
AP Sports Writer

The victory that gave the Cleveland Cavaliers their first playoff berth since 1978 was a lot like the way their season has gone.

The Cavs, who started by losing 19 of their first 21 National Basketball Association games, rallied from far behind in the second half to rout New Jersey 114-100 Tuesday night. Cleveland outscored the Nets 56-28 after trailing 72-58 in the third period.

"That shows you the character of the team we have," said World B. Free, who led all scorers with 35 points. "If you can get down by 14 points and still make a run at a .500 team, that shows the character of your team."

In other NBA games, it was Washington 130, Atlanta 110; Philadelphia 113, Boston 104; Kansas City 117, Dallas 105; Houston 124, San Antonio 103; Detroit 107, New York 97; Utah 123, Los Angeles Clippers 104; Los Angeles Lakers 148, Denver 119, and Portland 116, Phoenix 100.

Bullets 130, Hawks 110
Cliff Robinson scored 31 points and Jeff Malone 22 for Washington against Atlanta, which dropped out of playoff contention.

The Bullets never trailed after Robinson scored 12 points in the first period to help put them ahead 34-28.

76ers 113, Celtics 104
Philadelphia earned a 3-3 regular-season split with archrival Boston behind Moses Malone's 22 points and 19 rebounds.

The 76ers led by 15 points at halftime and stretched the margin to 97-75 after three periods before the Celtics rallied.

Lakers 148, Nuggets 119
Los Angeles completely dominated Denver in a battle of division champions.

The Lakers led 41-28 after one period and 74-48 at halftime and then relied mostly with reserves to extend the margin in the second half.

Kings 117, Mavericks 105
Dallas, struggling to hold fourth place and a home-court advantage in the Western Conference, lost for the fifth time in its last six games as Mike Woodson had 27 points and Eddie Johnson 25 for Kansas City.

The Kings never trailed, scoring the game's first 10 points and opening a 62-47 lead at halftime.

Rockets 124, Spurs 103
Houston had seven players in double figures, led by Rodney McCray with 18 points, to beat San Antonio.

The Spurs, who got 29 points from Artis Gilmore and 26 from Mike Mitchell, led 32-26 after one period, but a 14-2 spurt helped the Rockets build a 58-51 lead at halftime.

Harvesters fourth in golf relays

AMARILLO — Pampa High finished in a tie for fourth with Lubbock Coronado in the Amarillo Relays Boys' Golf Tournament last weekend. Both teams had a two-round total of 664.

Amarillo High shot a 632 to win the Division One (5A-4A) meet. The Sandies' Charlie Smith was medalist with a 152. Pampa's Dyran Crosier was eighth in the medalist race with a 163. Teammate Clay Jett tied for ninth at 165.

Johnny Snuggs shot a 169 for Pampa. Jeff Langen and Jody Chase each shot 170.

Andrews was second in the team standings at 644, while Canyon was third at 661. Lubbock Monterey was sixth at 682.

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Actress Cicely Tyson says that she regretted having to take action against a theater group created by Elizabeth Taylor and producer Zev Bufman, but she is pleased with the outcome.

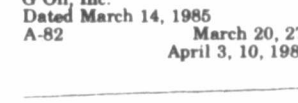

Arbitrator Richard G. Green in New York ordered the Elizabeth Theatre Group to pay Miss Tyson back wages of $607,078 due her since her firing from the cast of 'The Corn Is Green' on Sept. 16, 1983, Miss Tyson's manager said Tuesday.

The company fired Miss Tyson after two weeks of Broadway performances, alleging that she failed to tell management she could not appear one night and that she refused to take direction from the play's director, manager Larry Thompson said.

An airline flight delay caused Miss Tyson to miss one performance, Thompson said Tuesday, adding that Miss Tyson cooperated with the director.

Chen Sam, Miss Taylor's spokeswoman, said Tuesday from New York that 'Miss Taylor has nothing to do with (the dispute). It's between Mr. Bufman and Miss Tyson.'

Bufman and spokesman Charlie Cinnamon were in Tampa, Fla., Tuesday and did not return calls.

LOS ANGELES (AP)—John Ball, author of 'In the Heat of the Night,' will write the script with help from passengers on a cruise to Puerto Vallarta next month while everyone on board takes part in solving a fictitious crime.

Although details and the ending are secrets that will be locked in the ship's safe, Ball says the plot revolves around the theft of Stealth bomber plans.

'One of the things there won't be a murder,' Ball, 73, said. 'You can drag out a body for a short mystery trip. But you can't dispose of anyone for seven days.'
