Hance makes party switch official

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Democratic congressman Kent Hance today ended weeks of speculation by announcing that he will switch his allegiance to the Republican Party.

"I'm a Republican," Hance told a news conference attended by Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas.

Gramm, who switched parties two years ago while a Texas congressman, said he welcomed "the newest Republican" and added, "I know you won't be the newest one for long."

Hance did not commit himself to any political race, but did mention Gov. Mark White, a Democrat. Some Republican officials have urged Hance to run against White next year.

Hance said he talked with White on Wednesday and told the governor he was "leaning heavily towards making this decision." White had said that Hance had told him he was not switching parties.

"I think he may have been misreading me like he's been misreading the people of Texas for the past couple of years," Hance said.

A conservative from Lubbock, Hance came within 1,400 votes of being the Democratic nominee against Gramm in 1984. Since then, he has been heavily courted by top Republicans.

Hance for weeks had said a party change wasn't "in the cards." He recently told several fellow Democrats, including state party chairman Bob Slagle, that he wasn't planning to "change parties or wives."

White said he talked with Hance by telephone on Wednesday and that Hance said he intended to remain a Democrat.

"Yesterday, he said he wasn't going to do it. I don't know what he's going to do today," White said Thursday. "He's said (in the past) he hadn't planned to switch. That's what I'd heard, and that's what he confirmed yesterday."

Gramm has been a prime mover in the GOP's efforts to convince Democrats to change parties. He has attended news conferences in Texas where local elected Democratic officials announced their switches to the Republican Party.

White said he didn't discuss a possible gubernatorial bid with Hance during their phone call.

"I didn't ask if he was going to run against me. I would think that certainly he would have better judgment than that," White said.

State GOP spokesman Byron Nelson earlier said that a switch by Hance "could be the biggest event in the Republicanizing of the state of Texas."

Hance's background could lead many other conservative Democrats, particularly in West Texas, to change parties as well, Nelson said.

Campaign Two school board spots heats up on the line

By LARRY HOLLIS
Staff Writer

With Saturday being election day in the runoff for Pampa mayor, the campaign has heated up in the race between incumbent Mayor Calvin Whatley and his challenger, Sherman Cowan.

Cowan, a candidate from the Citizens for Better Government, has turned on the attack against Whatley through the advertising medium, hitting at Whatley's experience and claims.

In his ads, Mayor Whatley disputes the claims made against him by Cowan and the CBG.

"Let's set the record straight. The city government is in the hands of the people," Whatley states.

The CBG has gone after the alleged indifference of Whatley and other city commissioners toward the opinions of residents. The group organized following the removal of many driveway entrance pipes and humps last summer, an action that was done without prior notice to the residents.

In letters, public comments and a lawsuit, the CBG has attacked the pipes removal program initiated by Director of Community Services Allyn Moore last June. The group presented a petition to the commission demanding that the pipes be replaced.

The petition was rejected by the commission when submitted. But since that time, following the arrival of new City Manager Bob Hart, the commission has initiated an ordinance establishing standards for driveway pipes and offering to replace many of those that had been removed.

Mayor Whatley has publicly stated the city made a mistake in the way the removal program was handled. "We all know that," he said at the commission meeting last week. "we all grant that."

He admitted the commission should have stepped in earlier to halt the program, leading to hardships for some. The city was considering a number of matters to reach a solution and put some of the pipes back, "but then we were threatened with a lawsuit," he said.

"The issue has divided the city more than I like," he said. "But it's Voters will select two trustees for the Pampa Independent School District in runoff elections Saturday for the Place 4 and Place 5 positions.

The candidates are incumbent Mary Braswell and challenger David Robertson for Place 4 and incumbent Curt Beck and opponent Joe Van Zandt for Place 5.

The polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m., with all balloting in the Music Building at Pampa High School.

Braswell in her candidacy for Place 4 re-election cites her experience in working with Pampa school administrators, teachers and new school laws and regulations. She says she has the time to devote to the trustee job, attend meetings and visit schools.

With a master's degree in accounting and a bachelor's degree in English, she claims knowledge of business, budgeting and tax matters. She taught school for six years and college accounting for one year.

She has been active in school and community service, including Parents Teachers Association, PHS Career Clinic, Talented and Gifted program, Harvester Band Booster, the Pampa Fine Arts Association and the American Field Service exchange student program.

Saying she is dedicated to continuing improvement of Pampa schools, she cites her service on long-range planning, budget, computer selection and scholastic committees of the school board. She supported a reading assistance program in high school and the expansion of the summer school program.

Robertson cites his "unique experience of being in the system as a student, a teacher, a parent and a citizen who sees our system in comparison to others."

Robertson is a 1965 graduate of PHS. He received his bachelor's and master's degrees from West Texas State University. He taught at Pampa Junior High School and Dalhart High School.

From 1978 to 1984 he worked with Princeton Industries Corp., visiting a number of schools in job related trips. He is now regional manager of J. H. Schuler Co.

Spring principal offered Pampa job

Following a lengthy executive session Thursday night, trustees of the Pampa Independent School District extended a contract offer to Oran Chappell, Jr., of Spring to be Pampa High School principal.

Chappell, who has been principal of Spring High School for four years, was one of two applicants interviewed for the position.

Supt. James Trusty said the offer was extended to Chappell last night. "Now we're waiting for his reply," he said.

Chappell plans to bring his wife to Pampa to visit the community before he makes his decision, Trusty said.

Chappell has been principal of Spring High School since 1981. Prior to that, he was director of ancillary services in the Spring Independent School District in 1980-1981.

His other administrative experiences include serving as principal of Wunsche Middle School at Spring, located north of Houston, from 1976 to 1980. He was also assistant principal at the middle school from 1973 to 1976.

From 1963 to 1973 he taught at Sam Houston High School in the Houston Independent School District. During that time, he taught algebra, geometry, chemistry and physics and served as chairman of the Science Department.

In other personnel matters, the school board accepted seven resignations.

Pampa High School teacher

resignations accepted included one from girls coach Allison R. Ott, who was recently indicted on charges of indecency with a child.

Other high school resignations accepted were from Dale Minor, physical education and coach, and Tom Pollock, history and coach. Ott's resignation was effective March 18; the others will be effective May 24.

At Pampa Middle School, resignations were received from Kathryn O. Moore, English; Beverly Morlan, P.E. and coach; and Dixie J. Phillips, science. Morlan's resignation was effective March 18; the others will be effective May 24.

Also submitting a resignation was Patricia Ford, Lamar Elementary School, early childhood education for the handicapped.

The board also approved retirement for Lucy Vivian Craig, third grade teacher at Baker Elementary, effective May 24.

The trustees approved the employment of four personnel for the district: Harry Jay Holmes, PHS auto mechanics, Mitchell R. Begley, PHS biology; Yvette Bryan, Baker resource personnel; and Rosa Brisen, Baker third grade. Holmes' employment will be effective July 30; the other three, Aug. 26.

Beginning at 5 p.m., the executive session to interview applicants and discuss personnel matters lasted until nearly 9 p.m., Trusty said.

National jobless rate unchanged

By PETE YOST
AP Labor Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Civilian joblessness stayed stuck at 7.3 percent in April, the government said today, with the pool of unemployed Americans holding at more than 8.4 million.

It was the first time in a year that the rate was unchanged for three months running.

A survey of businesses showed the economy created 215,000 new jobs last month, with significant increases in service jobs and construction. But a household survey, on which the unemployment rate calculation is based, said civilian employment was little changed from March.

The business survey showed that manufacturing employment continued its dismal showing, falling by 44,000. Jobs in service industries rose by 182,000 while construction employment was up 70,000.

The high-technology sector was especially hard hit, with large job losses in electrical and electronic equipment manufacturing. Employment in that sector has now fallen to the level of last summer, about 2.3 million.

In addition to manufacturing job losses, the average factory workweek also fell.

Despite the business survey finding that more than 200,000 jobs were created in April, civilian unemployment has been at 8.4 million since February.

Commenting on today's report, the commissioner of labor statistics, Janet L. Norwood, told a congressional committee that "not only was the overall unemployment rate steady in April, but there were no significant movements among the major worker groups."

Indeed, today's report showed these unemployment rates for April:

- Adult men, 6.3 percent, up from 6.2 percent.
- Adult women, 6.8 percent, up from 6.7 percent.
- Teen-agers, 17.7 percent, down from 18.2 percent.
- Whites, 6.3 percent, up from 6.2 percent.
- Blacks, 15.3 percent, up from 15.2 percent.
- Hispanics, 10.3 percent, up from 10.2 percent.

An alternate unemployment rate, combining the 106.9 million-member civilian labor force with the roughly 1.7 million members of the armed forces stationed in the United States, also was unchanged, at 7.2 percent.

Total civilian employment fell 174,000, the household survey showed, to 106.9 million.

Over the last 12 months, total civilian employment has risen just 2.5 million, almost half the previous 12-month figure of 4.8 million.

Civilian joblessness has been moving in a narrow range of 7.1 percent to 7.5 percent for the last year.

The rate, which hit a post-Depression peak of 10.7 percent in November 1982, dropped to 7.2 percent in June, then went up before falling to 7.1 percent in November, the low point since the 1981-82 recession.

Some 11.9 million Americans were out of work when unemployment reached that post-Depression peak.

In the 29 months of recovery through April, the number of jobless people has been cut by 3.5 million and the jobless rate has declined 3.4 percentage points.

Medicare, Medicaid budget cuts approved

Reagan denounces defense-slashing vote

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate leaders battled today to hold together the remaining pieces of a shattered Republican budget compromise, while President Reagan denounced as "an irresponsible act" a vote scaling back his proposed military buildup.

On a 93-6 vote, the chamber approved an amendment offered by GOP leaders themselves to cut Medicare and Medicaid funds — but by $2.6 billion less over the next three years than the administration asked.

It was the latest major modification to the plan originally designed to trim nearly $300 billion from federal spending by 1988.

Republican leaders, seeking to contain further damage to the budget plan, offered the measure to blunt a Democratic move to restore the full appropriation for the Medicare and Medicaid programs.

Under today's action, Medicare and Medicaid funds would be cut $17.5 billion over the next three years instead of the $20.1 billion in the administration-backed budget plan.

Medicare premiums for out-patient treatment would rise beginning in 1987 under today's action, but by 5 percent instead of the 10 percent sought by the administration. And states would be required to take over a smaller proportionate share of Medicaid expenses, under today's action.

Meanwhile, Reagan voiced clear disgust over the vote of the day before cutting proposed military spending increases, calling it "an irresponsible act. We've already made reductions we could make in military spending without reducing our ability to maintain the security we must have. He was stopped by reporters in Bonn, West Germany, where he is attending an economic summit.

Presidential spokesman Larry Speakes told reporters the president feels he has compromised enough on defense.

"We may be able to turn it around in the final resolution of the matter," said Speakes, echoing comments of Senate Republican leaders.

On a 51-48 roll call on Thursday, the Senate voted to slice the administration's military buildup by $17.7 billion over the next three years, holding the 1986 rise in Pentagon spending to the inflation rate.

Reagan originally requested a 6 percent increase over the rate of inflation for next year and later compromised with Senate GOP leaders on a 3 percent after-inflation increase.

"I hope the president will understand," Senate Majority Leader Robert Dole, R-Kan., said after the vote, saying he had done the best he could to try to win approval of the Reagan defense levels. Dole said the vote would force him to "try something different."

Then, temporarily turning aside from budget cuts, the Senate on Thursday night then voted 79-17 to recommend a minimum income tax on both corporations and individuals.

In the past, Reagan has opposed all efforts to raise taxes, challenging Congress to "make my day" by sending him a tax-increase bill he could veto.

However, the measure approved by the Senate was a non-binding resolution that would do nothing to reduce the $200 billion federal deficit.

The vote on the "sense of the Senate" tax resolution came as the chamber continued to dismantle the administration-backed budget.

The vote to pare back defense spending increases was a day after the chamber rejected another major part of the plan negotiated by the White House and Senate leaders, scuttling proposed limits on Social Security cost-of-living increases.

time to put the issue behind us" and move on, he said.

"We're going to put them (the pipes) back," he said. But now the city will establish criteria and standards instead of the haphazard manner in which previous administrations had let the situation develop, he said.

Moore, who has been the center of controversy over the pipes, submitted his resignation Wednesday morning to become public works director in another city. But his resignation was not the result of any pressure, he said.

Whatley in his ads says the city is now more open to the residents, citing the citizen's comments on the agenda for commission meetings, advisory committees for the M. K. Brown Auditorium and for Parks and Recreation, and the opening of city offices during the noon hour.

But in his ads, Cowan claims that it was Hart, not Whatley, who initiated those programs. Hart was hired by Whatley and the commission in January to bring new programs to the city.

Whatley also stresses street improvements being made during his administration. Cowan counters, "What has happened to our (street) maintenance program for the last two years?"

Whatley notes the city spent approximately $900,000 last year on street rebuilding and seal coating projects. "This program will be concluded this summer and our streets will be in the best condition in many, many years," he states. Proper maintenance will keep them in good condition, he adds.

Whatley cites work to be done in the future, including completing street programs, repairing City Hall and making it accessible to the handicapped, creating a program to preserve historical structures in Pampa and constructing a new fire substation for the northwest section of town.

"These and other programs will be accomplished without an increase in taxes, because of sound financial planning," he states.

Cowan disputes the claims of sound financial planning. "Is it sound financial planning to allow our parks to get in such a state through neglect and then try to repair rather than maintain them regularly?" he questions. "Is it sound financial planning to commit future tax dollars to try and make up for past neglect?"

But he offers no program in his ads on how such neglect, which has existed for a number of years prior to the current commission, can be taken care of without spending tax money.

Cowan also hits the recently approved issuance of Certificates of Deposit "that were passed by your city government without your knowledge... really pledges of your future tax dollars. Do you know what they were for?"

The commission meetings on the CD's were announced in the news media, as were the programs for which the certificates would be used: street and drainage improvements, City Hall and Service Center improvements and construction of the proposed new fire substation. The CD's will be issued without any new increase in taxes.

Whatley states he is concerned with efficiency in city government. "This year we will realize a saving of $240,000 by consolidating positions, by bidding the bank depository agreement and by contracting the operation of the water and waste water facilities."

Cowan implies Whatley's claims come about because "it's election time."

Voters will make the decision between the candidates when they go to the polls between 7 a.m. and 7 p.m. Saturday.

Robertson notes a daughter graduated from PHS in 1984 and he currently has a son at Pampa Middle School. His wife Debbie is currently a teacher at Wilson Elementary School.

He states his 20 years of educational experience will enable him to be objective about classroom situations and perceptive about the administrative aspects of school business.

In the Place 5 race, Beck cites his support of back to basics education in the district, the Special Education program, college preparatory courses, the updating and weather-proofing of school buildings and improved maintenance programs.

Beck notes House Bill 72, passed last summer, sets new, high standards for Texas schools and believes all aspects of the laws should be obeyed. He supports the higher requirements for passing and academic standards, saying he believes Pampa wants these improvements.

Beck says he has no ties with any specialized school program nor with any state or governmental agency, stating he represents the people of Pampa.

Van Zandt has stated his support of a well-rounded education, higher academic standards, more input from parents and teachers, wise use of tax dollars and new ideas and objective views.

Area residents to receive recognition for conservation

LUBBOCK - A Pampa woman and two Miami residents are among people to be honored tonight at the seventh annual Region I Texas Conservation Awards program in Lubbock.

The awards, to be presented at a 7 p.m. meeting in the Student Union Ballroom at Texas Tech University, are to acknowledge, recognize and honor individuals who have dedicated themselves to the conservation and wise use of renewal natural resources on private lands or who have contributed time and talent to promoting sound soil and water conservation in their communities.

The program is presented by the 48 soil and water conservation districts in the Panhandle and High Plains Region, covering a 51-county area. Sponsors of the regional awards program are the Texas State Soil and Water Conservation Board, the Association of TSWC Districts and the 210 local SWCDs in Texas.

Roselle Collingsworth of Pampa will receive the Conservation Homemaker award. She is sponsored by the Gray County SWCD, headquartered in Pampa.

Frederick Gordon of Miami will receive the Resident Conservation Farmer award for superior land management and conservation systems applied to his agricultural enterprise. Gordon was nominated by the Roberts SWCD, headquartered at Miami.

Bike rodeo set Saturday

The Pampa Police Department will sponsor two additional bicycle rodeos this month.

The first will be held from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday at Baker Elementary School. The second will be held Saturday, May 25, at the Pampa Mall, also from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

"These rodeos are being put on with the hope that this will help reduce the likelihood of our bicycle riders being involved in a traffic accident," said policeman Mark King, school liaison officer.

Prior to participation by youths, the bicycles will be inspected for safety features, King said.

The participants will be required to perform in various events so their riding skills can be judged. Each participant will be given a ribbon, indicating first, second or third place. The youths also will be given literature on bicycle safety.

At the end of each of the rodeos, prizes donated by local merchants will be given away. Following the third and final rodeo on May 25, a bicycle will be given to one of the youths.

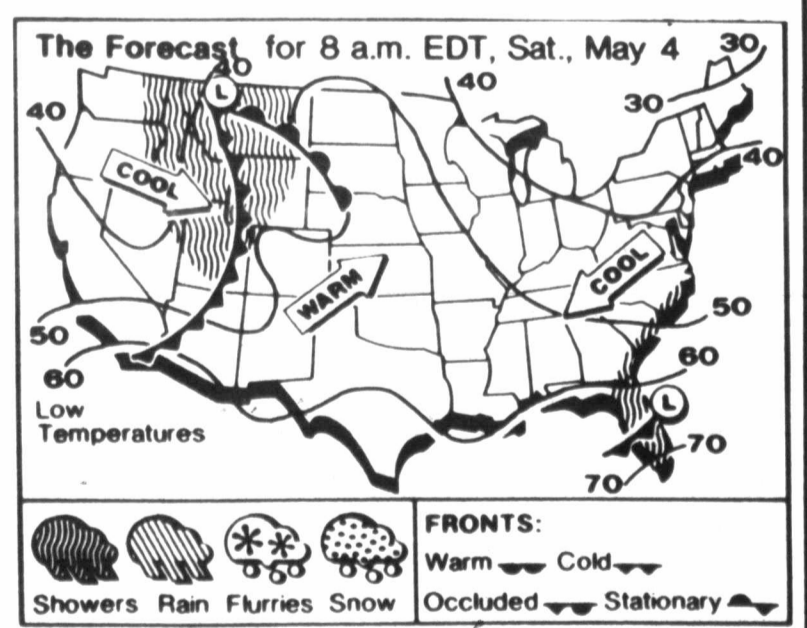

The bicycle is donated by White's Auto Center.

Bingo buff survived muddy ordeal, gets free game trip

BROWNWOOD, Texas (AP) — A 92-year-old woman who stoically weathered a muddy ordeal two months ago has earned a round trip to California to engage in her life-long love of bingo.

Fannie Payne was on her way home from a bingo game in March when her car mired in an isolated field's mud. The ensuing search for her attracted national attention, as did the calm, confident way she handled her 36-hour wait.

Stories of her bravery prompted the Sycuan Band of Mission Indians in California to award the bingo buff round-trip plane fare and accommodations to play bingo with them Saturday.

She and her daughter, Martha Metz, were to leave today for San Diego to play for an $80,000 first prize. "I'm happy to be going, but I'm not excited," Mrs.

Payne said as she prepared to play bingo at the Lake Brownwood Lions Club this week. "I think to myself — 'Why make such a to-do over someone getting stuck in the mud?'"

She may have gotten stuck in the mud, but Fannie Payne is no stick in the mud. She plays bingo five nights a week and spends one day visiting friends at the Brownwood Senior Citizens Center.

It was Ms. Payne's Quaker upbringing on a High Point, S.C., farm that makes her the easy-going person she is, Mrs. Metz believes.

"I never heard a cross word when I was growing up," Mrs. Payne's daughter said. "Mother never swore. She never drank or smoked. She never did anything against the church — except bingo, if the church doesn't believe in bingo."

It was after a Tuesday night game at St. Mary's Catholic Church that Mrs. Payne got stuck in the mud and gained her fame.

Leaving the church about 10 p.m. in a heavy rainstorm, she took a wrong turn on the way home. The dirt road she was driving on ended in a field, where her car bogged down.

"I tried to get out of the car, but when I put my foot down on the ground, it felt heavy. I pulled it back in the car and my shoe stayed in the mud, so I knew there wasn't any way I could go anywhere.

"I knew they couldn't see me or hear my horn where I was, so I got in the back seat and put my blanket over my feet and went to sleep," she said.

During her entrapment, she read her Bible, watched horses in a nearby pasture and slept.

Fannie spent another night in the car before policemen tapped on her car window about 9 a.m. March 21.

Richard Metz, her son-in-law, said "some people told me after her incident to take her keys away from her, but I told them I might as well put her in her coffin as take her keys away.

"She's not like people of my generation," Metz said. "We sit around and watch television. Grandma used to watch Lawrence Welk. But since he's been off, I'll bet her TV hasn't been on three times."

No, Fannie doesn't watch television at night. She plays bingo.

"Why do I do it?" she said. "Why for the pleasure, for the friends I've met. What else is there to do?"

Ag loan program is short in House

AUSTIN (AP) — Brookston Rep. Pete Patterson is searching for four more votes that would keep alive his proposed $500 million bond program to back loans to family farmers.

The House voted 96-40 Thursday in favor of the constitutional amendment for the program, but it takes 100 House votes to send the measure to the Senate.

Patterson, D-Brookston, said, "There are some young people in agriculture trying to hang on. This would give them an opportunity to buy a little land."

But opponents branded the measure as special interest legislation.

"Let's be real certain what we're doing here," said Rep. Ed Emmett, R-Kingwood. "We are treating a special interest group in a very special way."

The sale of $500 million worth of bonds would allow the state to back $5 billion in loans to farmers and ranchers.

"I don't see it as a giveaway program or a welfare program," Big Spring Rep. Larry Don Shaw said in support of the Patterson plan. "It's an incentive program."

Abilene Rep. Gary Thompson agreed with Emmett, and asked Patterson, "Would you extend this principle to the oil and gas industry or to manufacturing, which is in a lot of trouble in this state?"

Patterson said the state has a special duty to farmers.

"We have to depend on farmers to produce food and fiber," he said. Emmett said an existing loan program for family farmers has been a "disaster." So far, only one loan — out of 800 applications — has been approved. It was a $644,000 loan that Republicans have complained went to a borrower who should not be classified as a family farmer.

"We have a $10 million program right now that is not working. We don't need to jump off into a $500 million program," said Emmett.

On another matter, the House voted 126-3 in favor of an emergency $5.3 million appropriation to pay for guards at a new 800-bed prison scheduled to open this month.

Tentative approval was given to Farmers Branch Rep. Bill Blanton's bill setting up special provisions for the handicapped in the "no-pass, no-play" rule that bars failing students from extracurricular activities.

Under the Blanton bill, handicapped students' eligibility would be based on the individual education program set for that student — not routine grades.

The House gave final approval Thursday to a bingo bill aimed at steering the proceeds out of profiteers' pockets and into charity coffers.

The measure includes provisions to:

- Limit bingo games to organizations that have been in existence for at least five years.
- Bar bingo equipment makers from owning halls leased for bingo.
- Increase penalties for some violations.

FINDS MISSING CHILDREN—Dr. Edwin McDonald and his present wife Kimberly at a press conference in Denton Wednesday after arriving from Fresno, Calif., to seek return of his children, missing since 1983. (AP Laserphoto)

Custody hearing is rescheduled

DENTON, Texas (AP) — After a one-day delay, a judge was to consider late today a California man's efforts to regain custody of the children he located through a nationwide telecast about missing children.

At issue is whether two children — one of them a 9-year-old girl located through a nationwide telecast of "Adam," the story of a missing child — can return to Fresno, Calif. with their father, Dr. Edwin A. McDonald III.

McDonald, who arrived in Denton Wednesday, says the children, Teresa McDonald and her 7-year-old brother Edwin, were abducted in August 1983 by their mother after a bitter divorce.

"It felt so good to really see them," he said. "I'm so relieved." "We grabbed them and hugged them and kissed them," said Kimberly McDonald, his new wife. "We both cried."

The children were found Tuesday and are in temporary state care.

Has Duval County moved?

Duval County in South Texas was for a long time the butt of many election jokes. Political kingpin George Pharr, the "Duke of Duval" had a curious habit of holding back votes from some precincts in his county until all others had been counted. Not surprisingly, when the ballots from Duval County finally came in, they usually gave Pharr's favorite candidate enough votes to win the election.

That, basically, is what happened when Lyndon Johnson was first elected to the U.S. Senate, defeating Coke Stevenson by 87 votes and inspiring critics to nickname him "Landslide Lyndon."

So Duval County, along with Chicago, where residents are said to be so patriotic that they continue voting even after they're dead, lives in the minds of many Americans as the prime example of political chicanery.

But now there is very probably a new "Duval County" in the minds of many. It is called the U.S. House of Representatives and its dubious new image was born this week when it seated a Democratic candidate, even through the state of Indiana had declared a Republican the winner.

The seating of Democrat Francis X. McCloskey over Republican Richard D. McIntyre climaxed six months of Duval-like comedy. In case you haven't followed the case, it unfolded like this:

The Democrat appeared to have won by 74 votes on election night. But after the official canvass, the Republican was declared the winner by 34 votes and was certified by the secretary of state and governor. Then came a recount. This time the Republican was given a 418-vote margin.

But when McIntyre presented himself to the U.S. Congress as the representative of the 8th district, for reasons that are still unclear, he was denied admission. His opponent had not protested or contested the outcome, but the Democrat-controlled house refused to seat him. The House decided to appoint a task force to conduct still another recount. The task force was composed of two Democrats and one Republican.

In the initial recount, state officials had thrown out hundreds of disputed ballots. The task force, however, counted those disputed ballots — up to a point.

When Democrat McCloskey pulled ahead by four votes with 25 of the disputed ballots still uncounted, the task force, by a 2-1 vote, I assume, decided that the remainder should not be counted.

McCloskey was declared the winner and was seated as the newest member of Congress. The Republican minority in the House cried foul, pinned on buttons reading "Thou shalt not steal" and staged a brief walkout. But that didn't change anything.

Does that make the Democrats the scoundrels and Republicans the paragons of virtue? Not necessarily.

Earlier in one of the Indiana state races, a Democrat was declared the victor on election night. A recount was ordered and Republican state officials decided to count ballots that had previously been declared invalid. With the help of the disputed votes, the Republican state legislator was declared the winner and seated.

All this from politicians who would, no doubt, stand before you and, with a straight face, say things like "Your vote counts."

The Duke of Duval and "Landslide" Lyndon would have been proud.

Blue Law repeal heads to Senate

AUSTIN (AP) — The Senate is within a "few votes" of mustering the number needed to join the House in backing repeal of the Blue Law, which has prohibited Sunday shopping for many things since 1961.

Final approval in the House came Thursday in a 58-25 vote. The margin was far wider — 102-40 — in the more significant preliminary vote Wednesday.

"I think the strength with which the bill came out of the House is indicative of broad public support," Senate sponsor Ray Farabee said.

House sponsor David Cain, D-Dallas, said, "The chances for repeal went up manifold yesterday. When you send 102 votes over for strong repeal, it gives them a real message."

The Cain bill would clear the way for Texans to shop for everything but a car on Sundays. The Texas Automobile Dealers Association long has fought repeal efforts.

The Blue Law now bans the sale of 42 specified items on both days of a weekend, effectively closing many stores on Sundays.

"I think we're within a few votes," Farabee, D-Wichita Falls, said of the bill's prospects in the Senate. "There are five or six members of the Senate that are not committed on the issue."

Final approval came in the House Thursday with no debate. "This repeals ol' blue in Texas," Cain said in his only comment before the vote.

Farabee said his State Affairs Committee would look at the House bill next week, and probably send it to the Senate floor shortly after that.

Farabee is scrapping to find the 21 votes he needs to bring a measure up for debate in the 31-member Senate. He said he is within two or three.

Gov. Mark White said Thursday he is not ready to commit to signing the bill, if approved by the Senate.

"I haven't had a chance to review it," he said. "I'm very concerned. My concern is that there be no business pressure placed on individuals to work seven days a week."

"Hopefully, we will not do anything that will diminish the opportunities for our families to be together when they have that chance," said White.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Our opinion

Politicians squirm on indigent care

Some of the folks in the Texas Legislature are in a bind. They figure the public should be forced to pay for the health care of indigents, but they're afraid to impose the taxes it would require for fear they'll get voted out of office the next time around. That has resulted in at least a couple of interesting developments.

The first proposal floated around in Austin was a tax on the revenue of private hospitals. That didn't fly, so the next proposal was a tax on revenues of all hospitals, both public and private.

We don't know who it was, but someone down at the capital understands that it is impossible to tax businesses and corporations. They pointed out that hospitals would simply raise their prices to cover the additional tax and hospital patients would wind up paying for indigent care.

Someone then labeled the indigent care proposal a "sick tax" and, for all practical purposes, that was an end to the plan to tax hospital revenues. After all, what red-blooded, all-American politician wants to be accused of taxing sick folks. That would be as politically damaging as refusing to give Social Security recipients cost-of-living increases even if the cost of living didn't increase.

Now there's a new proposal. Put more taxes on cigarettes. That makes more political sense. Only about half the people in Texas smoke, while everyone is probably going to be sick at one time or the other. From a political standpoint, having half the people mad at you is vastly preferable to having all of them upset. Besides, part of the federal tax on cigarettes is supposed to be discontinued in a few months. Add the state tax when the federal tax is lifted and the price of a pack will be about the same. Those smokers won't even know they're paying for indigent health care.

But there's another problem. The folks who have declared war on cancer also want to add a tax to cigarettes. If the cancer folks and the indigent health care folks both add taxes to cigarettes, those smokers are bound to notice they're paying more than they did before. Can the politicians afford to make even half the people mad at them? Not likely, not now, not with almost everyone still upset about the special session taxes of last year and the public school "reforms."

This has the makings of a stalemate. But there is a way out. Come up with a system which allows people who want to help pay for indigent health care pay for it, and leave everyone else alone.

The politicians who are pushing the legislation apparently have more concern about the problem than anyone else. So we invite them to make the first contributions.

Wishes instead of reason

The notion of a town declaring itself a "nuclear free zone" would be funny if it weren't so pitiful. It's sad that there are any communities in this country where people imagine that they can opt out of the real world. Indeed the "nuclear free zone" movement brings to mind the children's crusades of the Middle Ages - well-intentioned but absurd.

I was reminded of the movement in reading an article entitled "How One Town Is Saying No To The Bomb." It appeared in a recent issue of Northwest Review, a little magazine published at the University of Oregon.

The community of Ashland, a small town in southern Oregon, which passed a city ordinance in 1982 declaring itself a "nuclear free zone." According to the article, the ordinance "prohibits the production or storage of nuclear weapons, component parts, or products associated with nuclear weapons and the production of nuclear energy or the storage of nuclear waste."

Passage of the city ordinance followed "a Candlelight Vigil and Silent Procession for Nuclear Disarmament." After this, participants in the vigil heard a taped talk by a leading anti-nuclear activist. A group of legal women then made a tape in which they recorded their feelings about the nuclear issue.

A "peace symposium" was held at which clergymen opposed to nuclear arms and nuclear energy were speakers. There also were dramatic performances on anti-nuclear themes. Members of something called the Affinity Group For Creative Non-Violence were active in Ashland in the effort to pass the ordinance. Finally, a "Peace House" was set up to serve as a center of anti-nuclear activity.

How nice it would be if the great problems confronting the free world could be solved by passing municipal ordinances. Why, if Ashland could escape the danger of living in the nuclear age, perhaps it could pass another ordinance saying "no" to poor economic conditions, high crime rates, marital discord, hay fever, or whatever. Only few people are likely to imagine that passage of a city ordinance is the way to deal with such problems.

One wonders: do the people of Ashland who supported the "nuclear free zone" ordinance seriously believe that their ordinance is read and respected by the commanders of the Soviet missile forces in Moscow? It appears so. Then, I suppose those who supported the children's crusades in the Middle Ages seriously believed that the children could drive the Turks out of the Holy Land.

As for the municipal ban on nuclear energy, well there isn't any suggestion in the article that anyone wants to build a nuclear power plant in Ashland. Even if they did, a municipal ordinance would be irrelevant. Town councils don't license nuclear power plants. One also wonders whether Ashland's opponents of nuclear power stay out of states where a considerable part of the power supply is generated in atomic plants and where nuclear wastes are buried. Incidentally, one wonders exactly what Ashland's anti-nuclear activists would do with the nuclear wastes which exist in large supply. It isn't possible to pass a town ordinance against their existence.

No one in the United States will be much affected by what happens in Ashland, Oregon, but the article, unintentionally, does highlight the strange currents of emotionalism in our society. The proponents of "nuclear free zones" are simply substituting their dreams and wishes for the power of reason.

Today in History

By The Associated Press

Today is Friday, May 3, the 123rd day of 1985. There are 242 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On May 3, 1802, Washington, D.C., was incorporated as a city, with the mayor to be appointed by the president, and the council elected by property owners.

On this date: Ten years ago: During the commissioning of the nuclear aircraft carrier USS Nimitz in Norfolk, Va., President Gerald R. Ford pledged the U.S. would keep its commitments abroad and remain militarily strong.

Five years ago: Genuine Risk won the Kentucky Derby, becoming the second filly in the history of the race to do so. The first was Regret, in 1915.

One year ago: Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger presented to Congress the Reagan administration's plan to cut military spending in fiscal 1985 by $13.9 billion.

Today's birthdays: Writer Betty Comden is 66. Folk singer Pete Seeger is 66. Former boxing champion Sugar Ray Robinson is 65. Singer James Brown is 57.

The angels sing again

Captain Eddie Rickenbacker's lifeboat ordeal during World War II has become an adventure classic: 'We Thought We Heard the Angels Sing,' a book by James Whittaker.

And the book begat a movie and no red-blooded boy could relive those desperate 21 days without being chilled by the ordeal and thrilled by its triumphant ending.

The men were weeks without food or water until a gull landed on Captain Eddie's shoulder and gave its life for the lives of those eight brave men in the life rafts.

The book ends with the rescue of the men. Son Paul's "Rest of the Story" relates how Captain Eddie in his twilight years made a daily pilgrimage to the Florida waterfront to feed the gulls - in memory of that one.

Hazel Jacobsen, a sixth-grade schoolteacher in Ames, Iowa, regularly read from that book to her students. Her copy of 'We Thought We Heard the Angels Sing,' though dog-eared and disintegrating, was re-read a hundred times.

One of her wide-eyed student listeners was Suzanne Kelly. Suzanne grew up, graduated and one day did herself become a sixth-grade teacher. Remembering how the book had inspired her, Suzanne perpetuated the tradition of reading to her classes from "We Thought We Heard the Angels Sing."

And Suzanne Kelly told them "The Rest of the Story" about Captain Eddie's lifelong gratitude.

But her youngsters began wondering what had happened to others of the eight men in those life rafts.

One of them, Amy Murphy, wrote to me. I could not tell her where the survivors are now.

So the youngsters - sixth-graders, remember - as a class project set out to find out on their own.

They combed old newspapers, library books and museum files. They located the son of one survivor and he led them to others; those contacts led to others.

The youngsters report to me that they have now located the four of the eight men who are still alive: John Bartek in New Jersey, James Reynolds and Bill Cherry in California, John DeAngelis in Pennsylvania.

And the youngsters invited the four to a reunion in Ames, Iowa.

American Airlines provided transportation free. A local Holiday Inn provided lodging free.

The four visited Warren Meeker School on Burnett Street where another invited guest was former teacher, Hazel Jacobsen.

The rest of the time the men had to themselves.

Four men who survived together the starvation, the sun, the sharks and the sea - but then lost touch.

After 42 years they have "heard the angels sing" again.

Business before politics

Forget for the moment the duel over missile arsenals and the standoff over summit talks. There is one area in which Soviet-American relations have never been better. It's the grain trade.

Remember that? It has been big news on occasion, most especially with the embargo declared by Jimmy Carter back in 1980 in retaliation for the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan.

The latest news is also big, although not of a similarly sensational political nature.

Soviet purchases of American grain during the current year are approaching 18 million metric tons - a record high - and are still heading up. A bit of background: The Soviet-American grain trade is governed by long-term agreements initiated in 1976 during the Ford administration to control market-disturbing fluctuations in Soviet purchases.

The current five-year agreement was negotiated in 1983. It commits the Soviets to purchase a minimum of 9 million metric tons annually. If they need more, they can buy up to 12 million tons without checking back with Washington. But anything above that figure requires further agreement during consultation.

This has been the case the last two years, and both times Washington has agreed to an additional 10 million metric tons, raising the permissible total to 22 million. Last year, the Soviets did not need it all. Purchases topped out at 14.5 million tons.

But with six months still to go for 1985 (the grain-agreement year runs from October through September), the Soviets are expected to take almost 20 million tons already authorized.

And if they need more, they will probably get it - according to the State Department people who keep track of the grain trade - in consultations scheduled for Moscow in late May.

The trade that is now thriving as never before never really stopped. Following the Carter embargo, existing commitments continued to be fulfilled by U.S. shippers. Only additional purchases were barred. The volume did dip briefly, but the incoming Reagan administration's speedy rescinding of the embargo precluded an interruption in the flow.

As for the Soviets, they have never let political differences interfere with their best business interests. They have diversified sources since the embargo, buying in considerably greater volume from Canada, the European Economic Community and Argentina. But they have shown no inclination to walk out mad on their American deal.

They can't afford to, the United States is the most reliable surplus grain producer in the world.

The Soviet Union, despite a succession of disappointing harvests, is itself the world's largest producer. But it requires even more, not only to supply the needs of the Soviet population but as cattle feed.

A major Soviet domestic goal is to expand meat production in order to increase consumption by the average citizen.

And that goal, according to the people at State, is one they are beginning to meet with considerable success - with considerable American assistance.

Now, back to missiles and summits. (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

Snipers duel from Beirut skyscrapers

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Snipers duelled from skyscrapers and rival militias traded hit-and-run grenade forays across Beirut's green line today, and the shaky national unity government failed to convene to curb the escalating fighting.

Warplanes streaked over the Lebanese capital at midday. Local radio stations said they were Israeli jets filming war preparation by Moslem and Christian militias along the 3-mile demarcation line slicing Beirut into Christian and Moslem sectors.

Police said six people were killed and 40 wounded in dusk-to-dawn hostilities that involved sporadic barrages of mortar and tank fire to back grenade-throwing assaults.

The new casualty figures raised the death toll to 14 killed and 80 injured since the latest Beirut fighting began last Sunday.

The Barbir Hospital on the Moslem edge of the green line in west Beirut was hit by seven artillery shells from the Christian side before dawn, wounding one employee and causing damage to three floors of the seven-story hospital. Gaining wealth of research knowledge in space lab

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Challenger's astronauts sailed into the second half of their space science mission today, with a spinning ball of cellophane symbolizing their success in fixing and operating experiments that are yielding a wealth of research knowledge.

The one-inch ball, twirled by sound waves echoing through a chamber, calibrated a fluids experiment which two hours before had been considered dead. It had been revived by 2 1/2 days of intense troubleshooting on the ground and some handyman electrical work by astronaut Taylor Wang.

"It's working, it's working!" the Chinese-born Wang exclaimed late Thursday after power surged to an instrument called the Drop Dynamics Module.

"When it came on, you've never seen such joy on anyone's face," said astronaut Don Lind, a shuttle crewmate.

A television picture of the rotating sphere was being relayed as Challenger passed the halfway point of the seven-day mission early today. It marked a smooth start to the downhill leg.

Twelve of 15 experiments were operating, many of them rescued from the brink of failure by crew repairs. Two of the three failed instruments produced valuable data before they gave out.

Research today concentrated on materials and fluids processing, medicine and observation of the two monkeys and 24 rats on board.

Pope takes unprecedented actions against film

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John Paul II, incensed by a French film that portrays the Virgin Mary as a cabbie's girlfriend and shows her nude, is taking his campaign against it to the international airwaves.

Last week, the pontiff sharply criticized "Je Vous Salue, Marie" (Hail Mary) directed by Jean-Luc Godard, saying it "distorts and insults the spiritual significance" of Christian beliefs.

Italian newspapers said it was the first time in his nearly seven-year pontificate that John Paul, a frequent critic of what he considers media excesses, attacked a work of art by name.

But now he is going even further. An announcement carried Thursday by Vatican Radio and the Vatican daily, L'Osservatore Romano, said that the pope will recite the rosary in front of the Apostolic Palace on Saturday evening "to repair the offense inflicted" on the mother of Jesus by the film.

It will be carried live worldwide by Vatican Radio, the reports said.

The film depicts Mary in modern times as the daughter of a gas station attendant and the girlfriend of a taxi driver named Joseph. She is depicted nude in some scenes.

A message from Cardinal Agostino Casaroli, the Vatican secretary of state, said John Paul had joined members of the Roman Catholic Church's Rome diocese in "unanimous deploration" of the film.

The movie "affronts fundamental themes of the Christian faith and distorts and insults their spiritual significance and historical value," the message said.

The telegram prompted satire as well as protest from the Italian press.

A leading Italian newsweekly, Panorama, ran a cover of a bare-breasted woman on a cross, entitled "Our Lady of the Scandal."

Director Godard told Il Messaggero the pope's comments were "a great reference" for the film. But the 54-year-old director, who helped pioneer the French New Wave with the 1960 film "A Bout de Souffle" (Breathless), complained that John Paul "hasn't even seen the movie. And if he hasn't seen it, how can he condemn it?"

Vatican spokesman Joaquin Navarro said he could not say whether John Paul had seen it or not. But Vatican sources, who spoke on condition they were not identified, said a copy of the movie was at Vatican City.

Scientists detained during search

BENAVIDES, Texas (AP) — A distinguished group of scientists from all over the world was more than miffed when their chartered buses were detained in far South Texas, but Border Patrol agents say they were just doing their job.

In a passport check Wednesday, agents halted two buses carrying about 70 educators from 20 different nations who were attending a conference at Texas A&I University in Kingsville.

The buses were returning on Texas Highway 359 from a field trip at a ranch near Benavides when a patrol car pulled them over at about 1:30 p.m. and detained them for about 1 1/2 hours.

Eighteen foreign scientists weren't carrying passports and were taken to a patrol car and questioned, officials said.

Dr. B.V. Nimbkar of India said Dr. Peter Felker, an organizer of the field trip, pleaded with the officer to call the university and verify their attendance at the symposium, which continued through Thursday.

"I was very embarrassed for the United States," Felker said. "I was deeply embarrassed that our guests had to go through this. Some of these people are the most distinguished in the world in their field."

"One quick call to Texas A&I would have cleared this up," he added. But Wesley Jacobs, a Border Patrol spokesman in Hebbronville, said his agents were doing what they normally do — checking public transportation near the border for illegal aliens.

"There were 18 undocumented aliens in that group," Jacobs said.

"They could have been removed and detained until proof of their documentation was presented."

"It is United States law that aliens must carry passports or documentation while within the United States," he said. "They might think it is a joke, but it is not."

For Place 5, Pampa Independent School District, Board of Trustees

I am concerned about: The Tax Base in our area, teacher morale, the education and training of youth, the drug and alcohol problem among youth, the apparent low promotion standards at Middle School, the safety and welfare of students, the wise use of school tax dollars.

I offer you: An independent, common sense voter; a Panhandle native; professional educator for twenty years as County Extension Agent; B.S. and Master of Education degrees, Texas A&M; two children attend Pampa Schools — two have graduated; daily contact with youth and parents; new ideas; a desire to know the facts; objective view towards policy decisions.

I support: Higher academic standards; a well-rounded education — a balance between classroom and extracurricular activities; parts of the State Education Reform Package, but I do not give all of it my unqualified support.

Veterinarian battles dreaded diseases

EDITOR'S NOTE — Whether it's taking blood from a giraffe, on a forklift 16 feet off the ground, or tending rare South American birds that bark like dogs, veterinarian Percell Taylor is helping protect this country's animals from dread diseases.

By RANDOLPH PIGHT
Associated Press Writer
NEWBURGH, N.Y. (AP) — After a day chasing a camel or grappling with a giraffe, Percell Taylor says he feels more like "Tarzan than a veterinarian."

But Taylor doesn't work in the jungle, or even a zoo.

Taylor is assistant veterinarian at the U.S. Agricultural Department Quarantine Center, located at Stewart Airport. It's part of one of this country's most important flanks of border defense.

The center guards against 'imal diseases, such as the recent outbreak of avian influenza that killed millions of chickens in Pennsylvania and Maryland.

What makes this quarantine center one of five in the country — unique is that it also handles "exotic animals," from bizarre birds to rare ruminators.

"We get every kind of bird that God ever created," Taylor says. "I can remember birds that we got from South America that barked like a German Shepherd and ate hamburger. When they shipped them, they put live mice in the crate so they would have something to nibble on."

Several months ago the center received a shipment of 21 rare reticulated giraffes from Africa, headed for a zoo in Florida.

"Taking blood from the giraffes was less than comfortable," Taylor says. "I just didn't like being 16 feet off the ground on a forklift with the giraffe kicking and rocking and all I could see was a long fall down to the concrete."

With the giraffe shipment came a ruminator called a black-backed duiker. "It looks like a big water rat with horns and it sounds like a pig," Taylor says.

Seeing animals that look like creatures from a science fiction movie is something Taylor has learned to accept. However, for the most part, the center handles the basic "animals we've grown up with," such as horses, cows and pigs.

"I remember once we got 185 pigs on a plane. Boy, that was a fiasco," Taylor says. "The pigs ate up all of the false flooring and plastic on the plane ... they just about gutted the man's airplane."

"There's always something exotic here, though, because of the steady exchange of zoo animals across the Atlantic."

A zebra here, some antelope there, maybe a few wildebeeste, they trickle in, says Taylor, who is expected to be able to go from examining a woolly haired alpaca to a stud racing pigeon like any other veterinarian might go from cat to dog.

"If there's a cow you just go in and treat it," he says. "But if it's something like an antelope, they have no respect for man and are frightened to death. They never stop shaking. There have been times things have died just because they were caught."

The center has been in Newburgh for the past five years. It had been in Clifton, N.J., since 1903, but moved, in part, to gain better access to an airport runway.

Two veterinarians and about 30 other workers process and watch over the animals housed in 13 corrugated-metal barns surrounded by a barbed wire fence.

Animals that are required to come to the center — all birds, cud-chewing mammals, equine and swine — are tested for various diseases and sent on their way after being kept for anywhere from three days to two months depending on the animal.

Diseases such as New Castle in birds, foot-and-mouth in cattle and equine infectious anemia in horses are the primary ailments the center is interested in.

The 1983 avian flu outbreak killed 17 million birds resulting in $63 million in losses to the poultry industry, according to Larry Mark, a spokesman for the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service in Hyattsville, Md.

I greatly appreciate your support in my write-in candidacy for City Commissioner for Ward 1. You have shown that you support a change in city government toward your having a voice.

FIRST WORKING SESSION—The seven government chiefs and EC President of the Commission Jacques Delors, foreground left, back view, sit around a table in the Palais Schaumburg in Bonn, West Germany, Friday for their first working session of the present World Economic Summit. They are clockwise, starting from Delors, Yasuhiro Hakasone, Japan; Ronald Reagan; Bettino Craxi, Italy; Brian Mulroney, Canada; Francois Mitterrand, France; Helmut Kohl, West Germany; and Margaret Thatcher, Great Britain.

Reagan gains support for arms control

BONN, West Germany (AP) — President Reagan won his summit partners' backing today for arms control talks with the Soviet Union and a Reagan meeting with Soviet Mikhail Gorbachev to resolve "far-reaching differences between East and West."

A political statement issued by leaders of the seven major industrial democracies urged the Soviet Union to "conduct itself in a positive and constructive way so meaningful agreements can be reached" at the U.S.-Soviet arms control talks in Geneva.

The importance of the summit leaders' support for the U.S. negotiating position at Geneva was underscored by Secretary of State George P. Shultz. "A show of strength and the actuality of strength by our allies has always been an important factor in these negotiations, and continues to be so," he said today.

Welcoming the resumption of the Geneva talks, the summit leaders from the United States, Britain, France, West Germany, Italy, Japan and Canada declared that "we are ready to conduct a dialogue at the highest level over the far-reaching differences between East and West."

Shultz said in an interview on NBC-TV's "Today" show from Bonn that a Reagan-Gorbachev meeting "is likely to take place one of these days," perhaps when the new Soviet leader travels to the United Nations in New York next fall.

Nevertheless, discord overshadowed the first formal session of the 11th annual economic summit, held in a small room in the Palais Schaumburg, the official residence of West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl. The initial meeting lasted 3 1/2 hours — a full hour longer than scheduled.

French President Francois Mitterrand reiterated his intention to oppose a U.S. and Japanese drive to set a target date for a new round of trade liberalization, unless there is a parallel to reform the international monetary system.

But the simmering controversy the plan by Reagan and Kohl to lay a wreath at a German military cemetery Sunday seemed to subside today with word that relatives of anti-Nazi war resisters would attend the ceremony. The four major U.S. television networks arranged to carry live broadcasts of the Bitburg ceremony.

Shultz, defending Reagan's plans, said the purpose of the widely criticized wreath-laying at Bitburg, where 49 Nazi SS soldiers are buried, is "to recognize the past, to grapple with it and at the same time to say something about the future."

Sitting around a 10-foot-wide table at the first summit session were Reagan, Kohl, Mitterrand, British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, Italian Premier Bettino Craxi, Japanese Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone, Canadian Prime Minister Brian Mulroney and Jacques Delors, president of the European Community Commission.

Speakers also disclosed that during a dinner Thursday night, the summit partners discussed international drug traffic and how they might cooperate to curb it.

Mitterrand made clear Thursday in a private meeting with Reagan that differences remain over a U.S.-Japanese move to win agreement on starting a new round of international trade talks early next year.

Mitterrand insists that the new round of trade talks be linked to a conference on the international monetary system aimed at dampening erratic changes in the U.S. dollar against other major currencies, a move rejected by the United States.

The leaders met amid unprecedented security measures in this usually sleepy Rhine River town, with about 12,000 gun-toting police on duty. The police fill the nearly empty streets, demanding passports and identity papers of everyone within a large zone of the summit meetings.

The leaders appear ready to endorse Reagan's call for each nation to follow domestic policies that would promote faster economic growth in the industrialized world.

While the first working session of the summit was today, informal meetings began Thursday with a series of bilateral sessions among the participants.

The leaders clinked their Water panel votes out bill

AUSTIN (AP) — House Speaker Gib Lewis, D-Fort Worth, predicted the House "will quickly concur" on a compromise $1 billion statewide water plan approved by the legislative water conference committee.

House and Senate conference committee members finally reached the compromise Thursday on the long-delayed plan for water conservation, improved water quality projects and flood control.

The plan should go to both houses next week for a vote. If it passes and is signed by Gov. Mark White, it will be put before voters in November.

The conference committee had been under pressure from legislative leaders and the governor to reach an agreement.

Sen. John Montford, D-Lubbock, presented a peace pipe to Rep. Tom Craddick, R-Lubbock, after conferees approved the water legislation they have been negotiating since February.

"A lot has been said about mine and your ability to get along. I hope this demonstrates we can work together," Montford told Craddick as he presented the long-stemmed pipe, wrapped in a blue ribbon.

The proposal would provide money for water use and conservation projects around the state.

Sen. Carlos Truan, D-Corpus Christi, approved the compromise, although he said he probably won't support it in an election.

Truan for weeks has fought what he says is a lack of adequate protection for coastal areas.

"I had a commitment to support the conference committee before, and I am living up to that commitment," Truan said.

Other conference committee members said the compromise plan is a good first step toward conservation and management of the state's water resources.

"What we've done is pass a bill and put forth a constitutional amendment to the people," Craddick said.

RE-ELECT CALVIN WHATLEY, MAYOR

Let's Set The Record Straight

The City Government IS in the hands of the people

- At EACH Commission Meeting there is a place on the Agenda for CITIZEN'S COMMENTS.
- Advisory Committee for the M.K. Brown Auditorium to develop better community use of the facility.
- Parks and Recreation advisory Committee to improve and maintain Pampa's Park System.
- City Hall Offices are open during the noon hour.

Let's Set The Record Straight

- The 1983-84 budget for the City of Pampa was approximately $7.7 million. Of this amount 89 percent was spent locally—the remaining 11 percent spent outside of Pampa was for material not available locally. CALVIN WHATLEY believes that every dollar should be spent locally when possible.
- Improvements of M.K. Brown Auditorium are paid for from a dedicated trust fund created in 1981 by the M.K. Brown Foundation. Interest from the fund amounts to $42,000 annually and cannot be used anywhere else. It is NOT tax dollars.
- CALVIN WHATLEY is concerned with efficiency in City Government. This year we will realize a saving of $240,000 by consolidating positions, by bidding the Bank Depository Agreement and by contracting the operation of the water and wastewater facilities.

Let's Set The Record Straight

- A street repair program was mandated in the 1983 election.
- A major street rebuilding and seal coating program was accomplished last summer at a cost of approximately $900,000.
- This program will be concluded this summer and our streets will be in the best condition in many, many years.
- CALVIN WHATLEY says proper maintenance will keep them in good condition.

Let's Set The Record Straight

- CALVIN WHATLEY believes in Pampa and always pays his taxes on time.
- CALVIN WHATLEY has worked hard for Pampa—one year as a commissioner and two years as Mayor.

Work To Be Done In The Future.

- Complete the street programs—Repair the neglected City Hall and make it available for the HANDICAPPED—Create a program to preserve historical structures in Pampa—Construct new fire substation for the Northwest section of town—These and other programs will be accomplished without an increase in taxes, because of sound financial planning.

Vote for Proven Leadership, not promises. CALVIN WHATLEY is a retired corporate executive with time and a genuine desire to continue working for a sound and responsible City Government.

RE-ELECT CALVIN WHATLEY, MAYOR, MAY 4, 1985

Dallas woman studies to become rabbi

DALLAS (AP) — Nina Bieber Feinstein's dream was to be a rabbi, even though her religion told her not to dream, not to challenge the centuries-old laws of the Talmud.

Through the years, the dream grew despite the constant reminders of reality. And now, Ms. Bieber Feinstein has found, a dream can be stronger than religious tradition.

In May 1986, the 29-year-old Dallas woman will become one of the first 19 female rabbis in the Conservative branch of Judaism, an event so controversial that many of the 1.5 million members of the country's largest Jewish movement are thinking about leaving it.

The sex barrier will be officially torn down this month when Amy Ellberg, 30, of Bloomington, Ind., is ordained. Ms. Bieber Feinstein is a member of the second class of women to be ordained.

The decision to ordain women in the Conservative branch reverses thousands of years of religious tradition — tradition that has prevented Jewish women from leading congregations, partaking in certain services and wearing various religious raiments.

Among many women, this "first" is as significant as Dr. Sally Ride's trip into space or former Rep. Geraldine Ferraro's bid for the vice-presidency. Yet Ms. Bieber Feinstein sees herself not as someone forging a new road for women — though she does consider herself a feminist — but as a woman forging a road for herself. Her ordination, she said, will be the culmination of 14 years of determination and disappointments.

"I've always been a very stubborn person," Ms. Bieber Feinstein said. "I always hoped I would become a Conservative rabbi. That's really what I wanted to do. I just never gave up my dream at all."

The youngest of four children, she said she was more religious than her siblings when they were growing up in Los Angeles. One of her earliest memories is attending synagogue with her parents when she was 3. She also retains vivid memories of the way her parents kept a kosher home in accordance with Jewish laws of the Talmud.

"I lived in a very integrated neighborhood, which was turning black when I was very young," she said. "By the time I was in the upper grades of elementary school, I was the only Jewish kid in school.

I could have become assimilated and not shown my Jewishness, but I chose to go the other way. I used to give little lectures about Judaism. That was my nature. That's just the way I went."

"I think it was the harder way to go because I felt anti-Semitism from the kids. I was pushed around; I was not a popular kid in school. I was very white; I was very Jewish, and I was an excellent student. I guess all of that combined didn't make me too popular."

When she was 11, her family moved to Los Angeles' heavily Jewish suburb of Westwood. Once in her teens, she enrolled in Hebrew High School and took voice lessons with intentions of becoming a singer. But at school, she also heard several young, recently ordained rabbis who had come to teach. Soon, they became role models for Ms. Bieber Feinstein.

"I met these rabbis," she recalled, "and they had such a wonderful way of life that I decided I wanted to be like them. They were living in the real world yet they were very Jewishly oriented, and they combined the two so well. They comfortably observed tradition yet were raising families in the 20th century."

She began meeting with the rabbis to talk about various subjects and eventually became an assistant teacher at a branch of the high school. She and 14 other teen-agers established a troupe that put on Friday night Sabbath services of singing and dancing.

Ms. Bieber Feinstein and her sister became the first teen-agers to lead Saturday morning services at Los Angeles' Sinai Temple, and she later was the congregation's first woman to read from the Torah on Yom Kippur, Jews' holiest holiday.

"In general, it was a very tolerant atmosphere," she said. "We got a very equal education to all the men, and for women growing up in that era (the early '70s), anything was possible. I really didn't know at the time that there weren't any women (rabbis). I just thought, 'Gee, that's what I'd like to do.' It was after I revealed that, that I learned there was no such thing, and the struggle began."

"I talked to various people about it — all who had different opinions. I knew a ton of rabbis, and I talked to a ton of them. Some thought, 'Oh it will never happen' and discouraged me, and others thought, 'Oh, it will happen within the next 10 years.' At the time, I was 15, and I thought, 'Well, 10 years. That's not bad. I'll be 25. That's possible.'"

It is taking Ms. Bieber Feinstein five years longer than even the skeptics predicted.

In 1977, she entered the Jewish Theological Seminary of America in New York, the only school that trains rabbis for the Conservative branch. Women have been allowed to study at the seminary for 50 years; they just haven't been allowed to be ordained.

For the next three years, Ms. Bieber Feinstein worked toward a master's degree in the Talmud and rabbinical literature. At the same time, the seminary faculty and the Rabbinical Assembly, the organization that leads the Conservative branch, voted again and again not to allow women to become rabbis.

After those votes, many Conservative Jewish women turned to the more liberal Reform and Reconstructionist schools because both branches have been ordaining women for more than a decade. The more conservative Orthodox branch does not and is opposed to ever doing so.

Ms. Bieber Feinstein said she filled out an application to a Reconstructionist rabbinical school, but "I just couldn't get myself to do it. I knew that it wasn't the path for me. I figured if everybody gave up and left the seminary, they wouldn't know that there were people who still wanted to do it."

While working on her master's degree, she met and married rabbinical student Edward M. Feinstein. In 1980, she enrolled in the seminary's doctoral program called "Religious Ministry." It was created for women such as Ms. Bieber Feinstein who wanted to be rabbis but couldn't.

"It was, in a way, a slap in the face because you had to get a doctorate to complete the program," she said. "Rabbis don't have to have doctorates. You had to get this super degree to be something lesser."

Ms. Bieber Feinstein spent the next two years working toward the doctorate but left in 1982 to come to Dallas with her husband, who is associate rabbi at Congregation Shearith Israel and director of the Solomon Schechter Academy.

The seminary agreed to let her complete her course work through correspondence, but she took a four-month break from studies in early 1983 for the birth of her son. Finally, in November 1983, shortly after Ms. Bieber Feinstein resumed her studies, the seminary faculty voted to ordain women rabbis. The Rabbinical Assembly followed suit this February. Ms. Bieber Feinstein was able to transfer several of her course credits to a rabbinical degree.

But Ms. Bieber Feinstein still has a way to go before reaching her goal. Since last fall, she has spent an average of seven hours a day studying, in addition to making trips to Jewish libraries in Los Angeles for research materials not available in Dallas. She will return to New York this summer to complete her last courses at the seminary and present her "senior sermon" to the faculty and students before being ordained there in May 1986.

Pistons shock Celtics, Nuggets win in overtime

It was a tough loss, and therefore an easy one for Milwaukee Brewers Manager George Bamberger to second-guess.
"There couldn't be a worse way to lose," he said after the Oakland A's put together four consecutive two-out hits in the bottom of the ninth off Rollie Fingers and Ray Searage for a dramatic 5-4 victory Thursday that snapped a seven-game losing streak.
Bamberger admitted he might have made a mistake when he lifted Fingers, the major league's all-time save leader, after the relief ace had given up a two-out single to Bruce Bochte.

"In the middle of the year, I might not have taken Rollie out," Bamberger said. "Right now, I wish I'd have left him in."
In other American League games, the Boston Red Sox defeated the Seattle Mariners 2-1, and the California Angels beat the Toronto Blue Jays 3-2. There were no National League games scheduled Thursday.
The Brewers had taken a 3-0 lead in the top of the first inning on an RBI double by Cecil Cooper and run-scoring groundouts by Robin Yount and Ted Simmons. But the A's came back in the bottom of the first on a two-run homer by Dave Kingman, his fifth.

The Brewers made it 4-2 in the fourth on an RBI single by Jim Gantner. The A's got that run back in the fifth on Griffin's run-scoring grounder.
"There was a lot of excitement out there," Hill said. "It was like a World Series game. We needed something like this after losing so much."
Bamberger, of course, couldn't feel anything but sick.
"A game like that," he said, "could put a man in his grave."
Red Sox 2, Mariners 1
Al Nipper and two relievers combined on a five-hitter and Rich Gedman cracked a solo homer to lead Boston over Seattle.

Nipper, 1-1, held the Mariners scoreless until they punched across a run on Phil Bradley's sacrifice fly in the eighth inning. Bob Ojeda and Bob Stanley finished up, with Stanley recording his fourth save as the Red Sox snapped a five-game losing streak.
Gedman, the Boston catcher, lined a homer off Seattle starter Mike Moore, 2-3, in the second inning for his second homer of the season. The Red Sox scored their eventual winning run in the fourth inning on an RBI single by Jackie Gutierrez.

Cowboys draft SMU's Leach Martin returns to Yankee Stadium

DALLAS (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys have signed former Southern Methodist wide receiver Bobby "Miracle Man" Leach to a free-agent contract.

Several all-Southwest Conference players went unclaimed by anyone in Tuesday's National Football League draft, and were left wondering why. In the 5-11, 170-pound Leach, the Cowboys signed someone who not only didn't make all-conference, he never even broke into the starting lineup at SMU.

Leach got his nickname during the 1982 season, when he caught only six passes, but several of them were game-winners. His most famous play was a 91-yard kickoff return in the final seconds that turned a 27-27 tie with Texas Tech into a dramatic 34-27 victory en route to SMU's 11-0-1 season.

He also turned a deflected pass into a 79-yard touchdown in SMU's win over Texas and made a key catch to set up the game's only touchdown in the Mustangs' 7-3 Cotton Bowl victory over Pittsburgh.

"His past performance of making big plays makes him an excellent prospect," said Dallas Cowboys director of player personnel Gil Brandt.

"I think he has a chance to make our team and inject some big play potential we haven't seemed to have lately. He can be real exciting," Brandt said Thursday morning, minutes after signing Leach.

Leach had been considering going to Denver or San Diego.

Two other Mustangs, offensive lineman Andrew Campbell and linebacker Anthony Beverley, were studying offers from several NFL teams on Thursday, but were puzzled why they weren't drafted.

Campbell, a 6-5, 270-pound guard, made all-SWC twice for a Southern Methodist University team that was ranked high nationally both seasons.

"It's a cut, a rip, more than anything else," Campbell, a four-year letterman from Highland Park, said about not being drafted.

"I'm afraid the public will think I'm an overrated player," Campbell told The Dallas Morning News. "I don't think the guys I played against will think that, but the fans might."

Campbell was not invited to the scouting combine camp in January in Arizona, officials said.

"I knew over the last few weeks my stock had gone down," Campbell said. "But I didn't have any indication why. My agent (Joe Courge) doesn't know why either."

"When I didn't get invited to the combine, I knew there might be a problem," he said. "I talked to scouts and general managers, and they said it would not make any difference, but I think it did. It hurt my exposure."

Campbell said his agent told him five NFL teams had made offers for him, with the best coming from Detroit and the Los Angeles Raiders.

Arkansas guard Marcus Elliott Texas Christian safety Byron Linwood each made first-team all-SWC last year, but were passed up Tuesday.

But Beverley is "95 percent sure" of signing with Seattle, said his agent, Lloyd Bloom of New York.

Officials said Beverley did not report to SMU spring training and scouts did not know that the 6-2, 215-pound linebacker was available until it was too late for full evaluation.

Texas linebacker Tony Edwards and Baylor guard Joel Barrett were not drafted.

NFL officials said Linwood's 4.8 second time in the 40 was too slow, even though he was instrumental in helping TCU to the Bluebonnet Bowl, the school's first bowl appearance since 1959.

"Linwood was a good college player, but he has a speed deficiency," one NFL executive said. "Lyle Blackwood (Miami) runs about 4.9, I know, but he is so smart he can get away with it."

"It will be hard for Linwood to survive until he gets that experience," the executive said.

Scouts said Elliott, at 6-2, cannot hold more weight on his frame than his 260 pounds last season.

Harvesters fall in regionals

BROWNWOOD — The Pampa Harvesters finished in ninth place with a 659 after Thursday's final round in the Region 1-4A Golf Tournament.

Belton won the championship with a one-hole sudden death victory over Andrews. Both teams were tied at 733 after the regulation 36 holes.

Ricky Bell of Mansfield was medalist with a 145. Randall Carpenter of Stephenville was runnerup with a 147.

Johnny Snuggs led the Harvesters with a 163. Dyrant Crosier and Jody Chase followed with a 164. Jeff Langen had a 168 and Brian Loeffler, 188.

In the girls' division, Brownwood won the title with a 613, but Borger's Audra Parker won medalist honors with a 613.

Brianna Marsh led the sixth-place Lady Harvesters with a 183. Becky Starnes had a 194, Jessica Baker, 202; DeLynn Ashford, 204, and Kim Harris, 217.

NEW YORK (AP) — Billy Martin, who usually gets a rousing Yankee Stadium reception every time he returns as manager of the New York Yankees, finds out tonight what the man in the seat thinks about George Steinbrenner's latest managerial move.

In his three previous stints, Martin replaced Bill Virdon, Bob Lemon and Clyde King, none of whom ever played for the Yankees. This time, he follows the popular Yogi Berra — he also preceded Berra — one of the team's authentic folk heroes.

"I'm more concerned about our ballclub (than the fans' reaction)," Martin said Thursday shortly after rain forced him to cancel an off-day workout for the 7-12 Yankees, who begin a three-game series tonight against Kansas City. "I don't like everybody trying to pit Yogi against me. We're friends. I just hope we start drawing some fans and start winning some ballgames."

The Yankees are 1-2 under Martin, having beaten Texas 5-1 Wednesday night.

"It's a good feeling to come back with a win," he said. "It was a good ballgame and we played well."

Asked if he thought he had to do a selling job on New York fans in view of the sudden popularity of the crosstown Mets, Martin said: "No, the players will do the selling. Once you win, that's your ticket right there."

Mickey Mantle was introduced Thursday as the club's new color man for 25 cable telecasts. Mantle noted that he lasted only one year in his only previous role as a broadcaster, in 1969 for NBC-TV when he worked with Curt Gowdy and Tony Kubek on the Game of the Week.

"I just stood between Curt and Tony and smiled a lot," Mantle said. "I hope to do better now. If I think Billy makes a mistake, I'll probably say it. If I think it, I'll say it."

Noting that Steinbrenner has a horse, Eternal Prince, in Saturday's Kentucky Derby, Mantle quipped, "I saw George getting on a plane for Louisville with a rifle."

They shoot horses, don't they?

Dumas shuts out Pampa

Randy Baker tossed a two-hitter as Dumas blanked Pampa, 11-0, in a District 1-4A baseball game Thursday at Harvester Field.

Baker had a no-hitter going until Trace Robbins spoiled it with a single in the sixth inning. Jimmy Bridges added a single for the Harvesters in the seventh.

Dumas had eight hits off Pampa pitcher Grant Gamblin, including a two-run homer by Dale Ridley in the sixth inning. Ridley also added a base hit.

Dumas is now 5-7 in district play and 8-11 overall. Pampa dropped to 2-9 and 6-13.

The Harvesters close the '85 season at 12 noon Saturday against Lubbock Dunbar at Harvester Field.

Lubbock Estacado has already clinched the District 1-4A championship.

Derby favorite not invincible

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Trainer Wayne Lukas, who knows what it's like to have a Kentucky Derby favorite, isn't sold on the notion that Chief's Crown is a super horse.

"Chief's Crown is a nice horse, the horse to beat, but he isn't invincible," said Lukas, who trains Tank's Prospect, a mild outsider in the field of 13 3-year-olds entered Thursday for Saturday's 11th Derby.

The race is worth $581,000 if all start, with the winner to receive $406,800.

Chief's Crown, the Eclipse Award winner as a 2-year-old and winner of all three starts this year, was made the early 9-5 choice for the 1 1/4-mile classic which attracts about 130,000 fans each year.

Perhaps because of the impressive record of Chief's Crown, the field is the smallest since 1980 when 13 also raced. Chief's Crown's victories this year have come in the Swale, Flamingo and Blue Grass stakes, giving him the top earnings in the Derby field with $1.2 million.

Proud Truth, the late-closing Florida Derby winner who finished second to Chief's Crown in the Flamingo, is the second choice at 9-2. Wood Memorial winner Eternal Prince and Everglades winner Rhoman Rule, coupled in the betting because Brownell Combs II has interests in both, are next at 5-1, followed by Garden State Stakes victor Spend A Buck, 6-1, and Tank's Prospect and Stephan's Odyssey, each 8-1.

Lukas has saddled Derby horses every year since 1981 but has yet to have a winner.

Gary Stevens, 22, who has never had a Derby ride, will be aboard Tank's Prospect.

The colt was named after Tank Younger, the former Los Angeles Rams fullback.

Tank's Prospect finished second, three-quarters of a length back of Chief's Crown in the $1 million Breeders' Cup Juvenile. There were 20 Derby starters the previous two years, and 19 and 21 the years before that.

The complete field, in post position order, includes: 1, Irish Fighter, 30-1; 2, Chief's Crown, 9-5; 3, Rhoman Rule, 5-1; 4, Tank's Prospect, 8-1; 5, Eternal Prince, 5-1; 6, Stephan's Odyssey, 8-1; 7, Enclosure, 30-1; 8, I Am The Game, 30-1; 9, Floating Reserve, 20-1; 10, Spend A Buck, 6-1; 11, Proud Truth, 9-2; 12, Skywalker, 12-1; and 13, Fast Account, 20-1.

Lukas dominates Kentucky Oaks

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Trainer D. Wayne Lukas, still looking for his first Kentucky Derby victory, has had a much better record in the Kentucky Oaks, Churchill Downs' big race for 3-year-old fillies.

He went after his third Oaks win in four years today.

Lukas, who won the 1 1/4-mile Oaks with Blush with Pride in 1982 and with Lucky Lucky Lucky last year, sent Wising Up out this time.

His candidate for the Derby on Saturday is Tank's Prospect, the Arkansas Derby winner. Lukas has saddled seven starters in four previous Derbies, and his best finish was a third with Partez in 1981.

Wising Up went into the $150,000-added Oaks with two wins in five starts this year. The victories were in the Pasadena and Santa Ynez stakes at Santa Anita in January. In her most recent start, she finished 10th in the Fantasy Stakes April 13 at Oakland Park.

The two top contenders in the nine-horse Oaks field appeared to be Fantasy winner Rascal Lass and Fran's Valentine, winner of the Las Virgenes and Santa Susana at Santa Anita before finishing fifth as the 1-2 favorite in the Ashland Stakes at Keeneland April 20 in her only other start this year.

Other Oaks contenders included Kolokots's Jill, Lucy Manette, Foxy Deen and Savannah Slew.

Run for the Roses lineup

The field for Saturday's 11th Kentucky Derby, with post position, horse's name, jockey's name and odds:

1. Irish Fighter, Day 30-1
2. Chief's Crown, McBeth 9-5
3. Rhoman Rule, Vasquez 5-1
4. Tank's Prospect, Stevens 6-1
5. Eternal Prince, Migliore 8-1

It was a tough loss, and therefore an easy one for Milwaukee Brewers Manager George Bamberger to second-guess.

Hannibal celebrates Twain's 150th birth anniversary

By ED SCHAFFER
Associated Press Writer
HANNIBAL, Mo. (AP) — Later in life and far from Missouri, Mark Twain liked to daydream about his childhood days in Hannibal, a "white town drowsing in the sunshine of a summer's morning, the streets empty, or nearly so."

But if Twain were to return this summer, he might find it difficult to find a room.

City officials hope that nearly 750,000 people will visit Hannibal to celebrate the 150th birthday anniversary of Twain, the first American author to achieve worldwide critical acclaim.

The town — which nestles in a valley between bluffs overlooking Twain's beloved Mississippi River — is staking big money that its most famous native son will lure millions of tourist dollars during the seven-month "Mark Twain Sesquicentennial," which begins Saturday.

"We really have three objectives in mind," said Mayor John Lyng. "Hannibal normally gets about 250,000 visitors a year. We want to double or triple that number. We also want to put Hannibal in the spotlight, nationally. And we want to leave the city with some permanent public improvements."

Considering the relatively short time that Twain actually lived in Hannibal, the bond between them is remarkable. Although Twain traveled widely and spent most of his later life in Connecticut, his major works centered on St. Petersburg, his name for Hannibal. Most Americans consider it his home.

Twain was born Samuel Langhorne Clemens in nearby Florida on Nov. 30, 1835. His father, a justice of the peace, moved the family to Hannibal, about 100 miles upriver from St. Louis, when Samuel was four.

He left town at 18 to become a printer in St. Louis, New York, Philadelphia, Cincinnati and other cities. He went on to be a steamboat pilot, a Confederate soldier for a brief period, a gold prospector, a newspaper reporter, a lecturer and, finally, an author.

His books about Hannibal were written while he lived in Hartford, Conn. He rarely returned to Missouri, and then only for short visits.

Twain died a relatively poor man on April 21, 1910. He is buried in Elmira, N.Y., alongside his wife, Olivia, daughters Jean and Susy, and son Langdon.

"The last time he was here was in 1908, when he stopped in while en route to Columbia, Mo., to receive an honorary degree from the University of Missouri," said Henry H. Sweets III, curator of the Mark Twain museum.

"The town has grown since then, of course, but it has expanded to the west, and left much of the downtown area intact," Sweets said. "Twain would recognize much of the old area today."

Young Sam Clemens' experiences in Hannibal provided the inspiration for the actions of Tom Sawyer. Huck Finn was Tom Blankenship, one of the author's mischievous companions. Becky Thatcher was Clemens' childhood sweetheart, Laura Hawkins, and Aunt Polly was his mother. Other literary characters such as Injun Joe and the slave, Jim, had counterparts in real life.

Most experts agree that it was Twain's ability to capture the times, the places and the conditions of his subjects that made him such a popular writer. He didn't always give the reader what was expected.

Visitors to Hannibal today can still climb "Cardiff Hill," which is really Holiday's Hill, and Lovers' Leap. They can explore the cave in which Tom and Becky got lost. Young boys still swim and play pirate on Jackson's Island.

When Twain lived in Hannibal, 3,000 people lived here, most in small houses on unpaved streets. Today, there are 20,000.

Cunningham said preliminary computer data should be compiled "pretty soon," and then will be submitted to the corporation's executive committee and board of directors.

The announcement of the Saturn project spurred a steady stream of state officials seeking to lure the project to their areas.

By Wednesday, half the U.S. governors had either visited GM headquarters in Detroit, Saturn Corp.'s temporary headquarters at the GM Technical Center in Warren or spoken with GM Chairman Roger Smith out of town.

GM says it hopes to have a site decision within several weeks. However, a tentative May 1 deadline was missed and no new deadline has been set.

GM has said it must locate near a community that can absorb the 25,000 increase in population that the 6,000 Saturn jobs will generate.

Saturn is GM's plan to make a significant profit on a subcompact car through use of high technology and flexible work rules, thus competing with the Japanese.

GM and United Auto Workers union members will design, build and market a line of cars under the Saturn nameplate beginning in 1989 or 1990. The first will be a four-door sedan. GM said it will commit $5 billion to the project.

Automaker: computer to pick high-tech auto project site

DETROIT (AP) — A computer will make the initial decision on where General Motors Corp. should build its coveted Saturn Corp. manufacturing complex, a GM official says.

The automaker already has fed data into the computer from local communities and states competing for the automaker's high-tech carmaking project, said Alexander A. Cunningham, GM executive vice president for North American operations.

"It's a highly complex computer model which contains in it all the upfront and ongoing costs associated with a new plant development," Cunningham said. "There's everything from local taxes, inbound and outbound freight, the cost of getting material in and out, electricity costs, availability of labor — all of these things are plugged into the computer."

If the computer selects more than one area as appropriate for the plant, Cunningham said GM officials will render the final decision.

"Then you look at the more subjective things such as relationships to the community, the availability of higher educational establishments for training, all of those things which are a little more subjective, you can't hang dollars and cents on them," he said.

Reagan may change views

By BARRY SCHWEID
AP Diplomatic Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Bitburg and the budget are shadowing Ronald Reagan as he makes his way through Europe a little more than 100 days after his second inauguration. Add Nicaragua and the slumping American economy and there could be a prescription for a disappointing White House term.

In the past, when trouble lurked about him, Reagan showed a remarkable talent for overcoming it, sometimes by taking a position at variance with his past statements and philosophy.

That's what he may have to do this time in the face of congressional resistance to the White House budget package.

But on Bitburg and Nicaragua the current presidential strategy apparently is to tough it out. The president intends to visit the German military cemetery on Sunday where 49 soldiers of the Waffen SS, the combat arm of Adolf Hitler's elite guard, are among the 2,000 buried soldiers.

And on Nicaragua, he has rebounded from congressional rejection of aid for the Contra rebels with an economic battle plan to squeeze the Sandinista government. A total trade embargo and other measures, including a cancellation of landing rights for the Nicaraguan airline Aeronica, is Reagan's way of recovering from his setback on Capitol Hill.

In other words, on Bitburg and on Nicaragua the president is not retreating.

"In the end," said Secretary of State George Shultz the other day of critics of the cemetery visit, "they may wind up admiring the person who stood by his decision."

Henry A. Kissinger, who also supports the president on Bitburg, Initially, at least, Reagan is getting mixed reviews on his trade embargo of Nicaragua.

"It's about time," said Senate Republican leader Bob Dole of Kansas. "I hope it's effective."

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen of Texas, a Democrat who supports sanctions, said the embargo "can help persuade those in power in Managua to send home the 2,500 to 3,500 Cuban and Soviet military advisers now in that country."

But other Senators and a number of House members said that instead of encouraging Nicaragua to negotiate an end to the civil war, the country will become more like Cuba.

An AP News Analysis

said "the president's record on the issue of the Holocaust victims is impeccable."

But the question arises: Has Reagan done damage to himself?

An overwhelming majority of both the House and Senate registered its opposition to his cemetery visit. Jewish and veterans' organizations urged him to call it off. So did some West Germans.

Reagan may be admired for standing fast. But his reputation for having the right instincts could slide.

Moral questions also surround the president's policy toward Nicaragua. There, however, the judgment of his actions is likely to be based on whether the trade embargo is effective or drives the Sandinistas into the arms of Moscow.

Shootings appear to be gang-related

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A series of apparently gang-related shootings near a high school in south-central Los Angeles left at least three people dead and several wounded Thursday night, officials said.

"We're investigating shootings at as many as four locations right now," police Detective Ray Paik said. "We have yet to determine if there is a relationship."

Two young men were shot to death around 9 p.m. in an apparent gang-related incident, police reported. Lt. Steve Coker said the shooting apparently was not connected with a spree at Fremont High School, about 30 blocks south.

Police Lt. Lindsay Harmon said the series of attacks near the high school occurred within a 10-minute period shortly after 10 p.m. on or near Avalon Boulevard, a broad street that cuts through some of the toughest gang territory in south-central Los Angeles.

One shooting victim was found in a car that smashed through a fence at Fremont High, killed by a shotgun blast fired from another speeding vehicle. The victim had been shot in the head, said Sgt. Tom Jones of the anti-gang unit.

Broken glass and spattered blood covered the street by the school, and dozens of neighborhood bystanders looked on.

At least one other person was in critical condition after another shooting in the area, city fire spokesman Jim Wells said, adding that there were unconfirmed reports of as many as five dead.

Police Officer Mercy Fernandez said several of the wounded had been taken to Martin Luther King Jr. Hospital.

"They're all possibly gang-related," she said.

Dear Abby

Nightclub act was more (and less) than expected

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1985 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: All the employees of the restaurant where I recently took a job as cashier went to a nightclub to celebrate the birthdays of those of us who were born in March.

First a young girl came out and did a singing telegram number that turned out to be a striptease, but that wasn't too bad. Then a man ran out on the stage wearing a false face mask with long gray hair attached to it. He danced around, removing first his mask, next his shirt, then his shoes and socks. Then he took off his trousers, revealing a pair of shorts on which was printed some vulgar messages. He continued his dancing, left the stage and came out into the audience making a lot of sexy movements, twisting his buttocks in everybody's face. Pretty soon he was down to a G-string, and when that came off he was bare naked except for a garter around his neck!

Abby, I've been married for 18 years, and the only man I've ever seen naked was my husband.

If I had been told what was coming and asked if I wanted to leave, I would have left, but I had to sit there for the whole show, which lasted 30 minutes. The entire audience was laughing and screaming. I wanted to crawl into a hole.

What are my constitutional rights? At least movies are rated so people know what to expect. Why not nightclub entertainment?

DISGUSTED IN ILLINOIS

DEAR DISGUSTED: Minors are protected under the law, but it is assumed that adults who go to such clubs know what kind of entertainment to expect.

The moment you felt uncomfortable, you had a constitutional right to walk out.

DEAR ABBY: My fiance and I have been living together for the last year. Before we lived together, my parents offered to pay the entire cost of our wedding. We are being married soon and have started to make the final arrangements, but their offer has not been mentioned again.

What is the tradition regarding who pays for the wedding? And does living together change the rules?

CURIOUS BRIDE-TO-BE

DEAR CURIOUS: Traditionally, the bride's parents pay for the wedding, but there are no "rules" that obligate them to do so. (It's a gift.)

Traditionally, the couple wait until after they are married to live together, so possibly your parents broke with the tradition of paying for your wedding because you and your fiance broke with tradition by living together. I suggest you discuss this with your parents.

DEAR ABBY: I have been going with this guy for eight years. He lives with his mother and I have never met her. They live on the other side of town, and I have never even seen his house.

He gave me a ring four years ago, but I am beginning to wonder if that means anything. I am not getting any younger and neither is he. I want to get married, but I don't want to lose him by being too pushy. Have you any advice for me?

NOT PUSHY

DEAR NOT: Unless you want to wait around for another eight years, my advice for you is to give this man a deadline. Tell him that if there are no definite plans for marriage by July 4th, he can have his ring, and you can both declare your independence. Then you might see some fireworks!

(Problems? Write to Abby. For a personal, unpublished reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Abby, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038. All correspondence is confidential.)

Cary appointment announced today

The appointment of Tracy D. Cary of Pampa as Texas Panhandle chairman of the 1986 sesquicentennial activities of the Texas State Song Association has been announced.

The announcement was made by Mrs. Charles Stephens, president of the association; at the Texas Historical Preservation Conference during a joint session of the Texas Historical Commission and the song association.

Commemorating the state's 150th birthday and the 57th anniversary of the adoption in 1929 of "Texas, Our Texas," by the state legislature to be the state's official anthem, the Texas State Song Association has planned wider recognition of the song during the remainder of 1985 and all through 1986.

During ceremonies here today a historical grave marker honoring William J. Marsh, the composer was dedicated to be placed in Fort Worth's Greenwood Cemetery. Delegates and guests from Texas' 254 counties heard a performance of "Texas, Our Texas" by the Texas Boys Choir and a dedicatory address by Duane Gage, chairman of the Tarrant County Historical Commission.

Cary and his family have been long-time supporters of the song. His interest comes from two sources: the composer was Cary's teacher when he studied music at Texas Christian University in Abilene and Cary's cousin, State Sen. Margie Neal (the first woman senator of Texas) headed the state senate committee named by Gov. Pat M. Neff to select the song. Later she also helped raise the $1,000 cash prize to be divided between the composer Marsh and the lyricist, Gladys Yoakum Wright.

Cary and Senator Neal shared a family interest in patriotic song since both are members of the family of Francis Scott Key, composer of the lyrics to "The Star Spangled Banner."

On May 23, 1979, during the 50th anniversary celebration of the adoption of "Texas, Our Texas," Cary organized and presided over the Golden Birthday program and observance in the rotunda of the Texas State Capitol in Austin.

As fate would have it, this was the day on which a group of state senators called the "honeybees" returned to the capitol after many days unexplained hiatus which left the senate proceedings, without a quorum, at a standstill.

The capitol building was packed and television cameramen, reporters and media representatives from every state in the union and 15 foreign countries recorded the program and sent it all over the world under the mistaken notion that the program was celebrating the senators' return instead of the 50th anniversary of the adoption of the state song. Nevertheless, this incident gave the state song its "world premier."

For his contribution to the Texas Historical Movement, Cary has been awarded citations for distinguished service by Governors John Connally, Preston Smith, Dolph Briscoe, William Clements and Secretary of State George Strake.

In celebration of the 40th anniversary of the song in 1969, Cary wrote a history of "Texas, Our Texas" distributed by the Texas Historical Commission to schools and individuals. It is now being enlarged into book form and will be available during the Sesquicentennial.

Gena on Genealogy

By GENA WALLS
Settlement in NEW YORK began as early as 1624 and many records are available to the genealogist. Write The Municipal Archives and Records Retention Center, 31 Chambers St., New York, N.Y., 10007 for an inventory of the records in that collection. Some birth and death records are on file dating from 1866 so this is a big help.

However, New York has a law that no information may be obtained from a birth certificate that is not at least 75 years old, a death certificate must be at least 50 years old and a marriage license at least 50 years old. The State Department of Health may conduct the search or you might try the local registrar for the information.

Hopefully, you will be able to get back beyond 1910 with information readily available from relatives. Do not assume that records were destroyed because of a known disaster. For example, the marriage bonds 1753-1783 have been largely restored although badly damaged in the 1911 fire.

Orphan trains originated from New York and might be a place to search if you know your ancestor was adopted and living in the West during the middle to late 1800s.

Numerous societies print newsletters that will publish a query free or charge a small amount to a non-subscriber. If you know the county, this might be the best way. When writing, remember to ask if a family research file is used by the organization. Many will include your information if you request the service. Never assume, always ask. In fact, include a request for "any additional information and - or suggestions" as a matter of routine with all your correspondence.

Group to sing 'We Are the World'

A group of community residents will be presenting a special performance of "We Are the World" and a hair and hat style show at 4 p.m. Sunday at Lamar Elementary School.

"We Are the World" is the current Number 1 song recorded by a group of pop, rock, soul, jazz and country recording artists under the name USA for Africa.

Money from the record will be used to aid the famine victims in Ethiopia and other parts of Africa.

The song will be performed locally by approximately 30 residents.

Sponsored by the St. Mark CME Church, the show also will feature a selection of hat and hair styles, with local residents as models.

Bicycle is redesigned

By RENA A. PAPA
Beaver County Times

ALIQUIPPA, Pa. (AP) — It's called a Human-Powered Vehicle. In its most basic form, it's a bicycle.

But Joe Kochanowski has rebuilt it, refined it and redesigned it to a point where it has 72 gears and serves as his primary means of transportation around Aliquippa and neighboring communities. And he's not done yet.

His home in Aliquippa parallels the laboratory of a mad professor. There are skeletons of old bikes scattered everywhere — frames, wheels, handlebars — occupying every available nook. Magazines and brochures on the subject lie scattered around, opened to the page that had his attention before he returned to the hands-on work.

And there is the fruit of his labors. Kochanowski owns six recumbent vehicles, down from the 17 that he had at one time. "There are two different types, recumbent and semirecumbent bikes. It's determined by the position of the driver, whether he is almost completely reclined or in a partially sitting position," he said.

"I keep building them, improving them, making them better. I can't believe more people aren't interested in them."

The 26-year-old Aliquippa native began building souped-up bikes in 1981, after going to a bike show in Cleveland.

"I needed plans the first time. Now, I don't use them," he said.

His interest stems from his childhood days and his tricycles. His definition of tricycle today, however, is far from the tiny three-wheeled red bike most children remember.

Kochanowski's tricycles have gears, a brake system that equals that of a truck and a steering system that "enables me to round corners with no problems."

Kochanowski practically lies in his vehicle, his line of vision falling just above the pedals. Gears for each hand stem from handlebars that look inverted and elongated. His latest model is enclosed with sheets of lightweight metal that, to date, make it his best.

"My feet never get cold. That's a big plus. Enduring the elements is the hardest part about riding," said Kochanowski, who rides in all kinds of weather. He has traveled to nearby towns as easily as if in a car. In fact, he doesn't own a car, and has mastered running errands and making short trips in his HPV.

Around town, most people have gotten used to seeing the helmeted, goggled, bundled-up man driving on the streets. There's always someone who hasn't, though, and the stares are followed by curious inquiries.

Kochanowski tends to get on a soap box when allowed to discuss the merits of his mode of transportation.

—It's less expensive than a car. In fact, his HPVs are made from scrap metal and discarded materials.

—It's safer than a regular bike. If he crashes, he falls over because his body is about three feet off the ground.

—It's easier on the body, more comfortable. "When I rode long distances on a conventional bike, my whole body would be tired. Now, after a drive into Pittsburgh, for example, only my legs are tired. The rest of me has been practically lying down the whole way."

—It's faster than a conventional bike. Kochanowski has gone about 37 mph in his vehicles.

Although he's a die-hard devotee of HPVs and intends to keep building them, Kochanowski doubts if he will go into business and sell them to the public. There are still too many kinks he has to work out.

Group asks change in classroom size

AUSTIN (AP) — A spokesman for a group of educators and parents said Thursday a scheduled change in the ratio of teachers to pupils could cost Texas school districts $142 million to hire 2,368 new teachers and provide 1,854 more classrooms.

Dr. Eli Douglas, superintendent of Garland schools and president of Texans for Local Control of Public Education, urged legislators to provide more flexibility in putting into effect the 1:22 ratio set by the 1984 public school reform bill.

He said TLECFE was a statewide organization of about 600 teachers, school administrators and trustees and concerned parents.

"Under current law and State Board of Education policy, if a campus has three first-grade sections, with enrollments of 24, 22 and 23, a district has no leeway when another student enrolls on that campus," Douglas said. "The district would be required to employ another teacher and establish a fourth section."

Douglas urged legislators to adopt a pending House bill that would allow more flexibility in putting the teacher to pupils ratio into effect. He said a survey by the Educational Research Service found there was little if any decisive impact on academic achievement of most pupils in classes of 25 to 34 pupils.

Join Us In Worship IN THE CHURCH OF YOUR CHOICE

It is no Secret...

One of the great joys that children have is in telling a secret. This is one way that secrets have of becoming known.

However IT IS NO SECRET what God can do for you. This was never intended to be a secret, for God wants all to know the good news.

Isaiah said: "The Lord hath anointed me to preach good tidings... to proclaim the acceptable year of the Lord."

Attend church regularly and hear God's word preached.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Barrett Baptist schedules annual Spring Revival

Barrett Baptist Church, 903 E. Beryl, will be having its Spring Revival this Sunday through Wednesday, with evening services starting at 7 p.m. Evangelist will be Rev. Joe W. Howard of Oklahoma City, Okla., formerly of Borger. Born in Okmulgee, Okla., he attended Oklahoma Baptist University and began his preaching career in 1947. He has served as a pastor for 28 years and director of missions for eight years. He has a great liking for small and rural churches. The Bill Murphy Evangelistic Team will be leading the music. Murphy grew up in Hobbs, N.M., and attended Eastern New Mexico University and Hardin-Simmons University. He began his fulltime evangelism in October, 1984. Rev. Barry Sherwood said the public is invited to attend each evening service to hear the revival team.

Catholics plan School-a-Thon

St. Vincent de Paul School will be sponsoring a School-a-Thon this Saturday at Central Park. All Catholic schools in the Amarillo Diocese will be joining in a mass effort to show support for Catholic schools and to raise funds. Amarillo schools will hold their School-a-Thon at the Tri-State Fairgrounds, while the outlying schools will host theirs locally. St. Vincent principal Jon Wolcott said anyone interested in the value of private education is welcome to collect pledges and walk, run or jog Saturday. Participants are encouraged to go at their own pace, he said. "They may walk or run a couple of laps, take a break and then continue," Principal Wolcott said. Families are encouraged to bring a picnic lunch and compete together. Check-in time will begin at 9 a.m. and continue until 1 p.m. Those taking part in the event may show up at any time during those hours to do their laps, Wolcott said. Each lap consists of half a mile. Prizes will be awarded to the oldest and youngest participants, the person who does the most laps and the person who collects the greatest dollar amount in pledges.

Recording artist slates appearance at First Assembly

International television and recording artist Lowell Mason will be appearing at 6:30 p.m. Sunday at the First Assembly of God Church, 500 S. Cuyler. Mason has been called the world's smallest gospel singer because of his unique height of only 46 inches. But he sings with a booming bass voice. He performs a variety of songs, ranging from hymns like "Hallelujah" to hand-clapping southern gospels like "Daddy Sang Bass." Mason began his career when he was only 9 years old, when he joined the staff of the "Children's Bible Hour" radio broadcast in Grand Rapids, Mich. He was a regular feature on the weekly radio show for seven years. During his teenage years he worked with the Youth for Christ organization, making a number of weekend and summer appearances. After completing high school in 1955, Mason joined the Cecil Todd Evangelistic Team at Joplin, Mo. In 1965 the Todd Team established the Christian Evangelists Association, which produced a weekly television series, "Revival Fires," with Mason as a regular feature. Currently, Little Lowell and the Masons travel nearly 100,000 miles each year taking the gospel in song to people of all faiths. The program here is open to the general public.

May 4, 1985

This coming year you will form a number of new associations that will play important roles in your life. Be cautious, however, that you check the credentials of strangers before entering into partnerships.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Decisions must be carefully weighed today. Don't make judgments in haste because what you agree to today may not be to your advantage in the long run. Major changes are in store for Taurus in the year ahead. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail $1 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) A responsibility you have brushed aside might cause you frustration today. It could also leave someone disappointed and even a little angry.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Socialize selectively today. Avoid an individual who comes on strong in order to impress others. He'll turn out a bore.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Today you will find that your household is not large enough for two strong-willed chiefs. You may have to give a little ground if harmony is to reign.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) In discussions with others today you'll be able to get your points across but this doesn't mean they'll be well received. Be tactful, not forceful.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Be on guard in financial dealings today or you could suffer a loss through a person with whom you're involved. Do your own accounting.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) In competitive situations today, size up your opposition realistically. Your competitor may hold a higher trump card.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You might have to take care of certain responsibilities that won't be to your liking today. Instead of dodging them, do what needs doing.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Do not take gambles today on hearsay information, even if it's passed on to you by a reliable old pal. His facts may be faulty.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Be honest with yourself today regarding your motives when doing things that could affect others. Only virtuous intentions should be expressed.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Negative thinkers will turn out to be poor companions for you today. They could implant doubts in your mind and cause you needless worries.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) In joint ventures today, it's possible that either you or the person you're involved with will expect more from the other than is reasonable.

Plants of many lands grow in Honolulu Botanic Gardens

By HARRY WHITTEN
Star-Bulletin

HONOLULU (AP) — A major collection of the world's tropical plants, many of which are becoming scarce in their native lands, is on Oahu in the four units of Honolulu Botanic Gardens. These gardens contain more than 8,300 species, according to an inventory just published.

The story of Hawaii's botanic gardens dates back to King Kamehameha III, who established such a garden on land now occupied by St. Andrew's Priory. Surviving from his plantings is a specimen now listed as one of Honolulu's Exceptional Trees.

A little later, in 1850, the German physician Dr. William Hillebrand purchased a five-acre plot and started to import tropical trees and other plants, with the help of visiting sea captains.

This was the nucleus of Foster Garden, named for Thomas and Mary Foster, who purchased it in 1867 and later bequeathed it to the city. The garden now includes 20 acres with 1,153 species, among them huge old trees planted by Hillebrand.

Foster Garden was the first unit of Honolulu Botanic Gardens, which today includes Wahiawa, with 30 acres and 1,419 species; Koko Crater, with 200 acres and about 1,000 species; and the spectacular garden on the Kaneohe side of the Koolau Pali, Ho'omaluhia, with 400 acres and 1,633 species. Some species are still in the nursery.

Ho'omaluhia's plant propagator, Dan McGuire, has planted 10,000 individual plants there and an average of 200 new species a year. They include specimens of species that are rare, threatened or endangered, from such places as Uganda and Sri Lanka.

Since the time of Hillebrand, plants for the gardens have come from many parts of the world. Paul R. Weissich, Honolulu Botanic Gardens director, and his staff have about 100 contacts, all over the tropics, for plant acquisition.

Most plants are obtained on an exchange basis but the gardens pay for some. Funds to buy the plants are raised from the plant sales held by the Friends of Foster Garden, a non-profit organization that helps Honolulu Botanic Gardens obtain rare plants.

E.F. Hutton admits fraud charges

WASHINGTON (AP) — E.F. Hutton & Company Inc. Thursday pleaded guilty to violating federal mail and wire fraud statutes stemming from the company's handling of its checking accounts at commercial banks between July 1, 1980 and Feb. 28, 1982, the firm announced.

In advance of an announcement by the Justice Department's Criminal Division here, Washington representatives of E.F. Hutton confirmed that the guilty plea had been entered by the company in U.S. District Court in Scranton, Pa.

A federal grand jury there had been investigating the cash management practices of E.F.

Hutton & Co., the nation's fifth largest investment firm.

In that filing with the federal court, Hutton said it understood that the practices being examined "do not involve or relate to any relationships with E.F. Hutton's public customers or investment banking clients or any securities, commodities, insurance or other transactions with such persons."

Shortly after E.F. Hutton announced the guilty plea, the Justice Department said it had filed a criminal information against the firm charging it with 2,000 counts of mail and wire fraud.

"The essence of the charges was that Hutton obtained the interest-free use of millions of dollars by intentionally writing checks in excess of the funds it had on deposit in various banks," the department said in a statement.

Attorney General Edwin Meese III said the filing of the criminal information in Scranton was followed immediately by the entry of the guilty plea to all 2,000 counts of wire and mail fraud by the firm.

"In accordance with a plea agreement between Hutton and the government," the department said, "Judge William Nealon Jr. imposed the maximum criminal fine — $2 million — and assessed costs of the investigation" estimated at $750,000.

I want to Thank all of you who supported me in my successful bid for the Ward 3 seat on your City Commission. I pledge to represent your interests to the best of my ability.

I encourage you to continue your support for real change in your Pampa City Government by casting your vote on May 4th for

SHERMAN COWAN FOR MAYOR

Thank You,

Joe Reed

PRIVATE PROPERTY WEEK What is a REALTOR? PAMPA BOARD OF REALTORS

The terms REALTOR, REALTORS & ASSOCIATE and the accompanying block "R" symbol are registered collective membership marks that identify and are owned by the National Association of Realtors who are members of the National Association of Realtors. Membership in the National Association, and the consequent privilege to use one or more of these marks, is available only to real estate professionals who are willing to be bound by the National Association's strict Code of Ethics. That Code of Ethics was designed to protect sellers as well as buyers and to encourage cooperation among real estate professionals in bringing buyers and sellers together.

By selecting a broker who is a REALTOR, buyers and sellers avail themselves of helpful mortgage and market information.

The National Association of Realtors is comprised of more than 625,000 concerned real estate professionals, active in civic affairs in this country throughout the nation. They also monitor and assist in the legislative process and represent the interests of property owners in the fight to preserve private property rights. REALTORS are not just members of the National Association; they are valuable contributors to your community.
