

Reagan's actions reawaken memories of Allied triumph

By MICHAEL PUTZEL
AP White House Correspondent
WASHINGTON (AP) —

President Reagan's desire to make his visit to West Germany a celebration of peace rather than a commemoration of the Allied triumph over Hitler 40 years ago served to reawaken just those memories Reagan did not wish to disturb.

And in the process, the awkward handling of the president's schedule for a 10-day trip to Europe in May has tarnished the carefully polished Reagan image.

To placate West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl, who was hurt last year by his exclusion from the reunion of Allied leaders on the beaches of Normandy, the White House first agreed that Reagan would remain in West Germany after the seven-nation economic summit in Bonn May 2-4 to be with Kohl on May 8, the 40th anniversary of the fall of Hitler's Third Reich.

That plan, however, left Reagan with several extra days in Germany and little to do other than wait for V-E Day, which was being marked throughout Europe by all sorts of celebrations at which the American president would have been welcome.

Then came an invitation from the European Parliament for Reagan to address that body in Strasbourg, France, on V-E Day. The White House jumped at the opportunity for a multinational audience, and Kohl's government graciously agreed to an abbreviated Reagan visit.

There were published reports in Germany that White House trip planners had been seeking an opportunity for Reagan to visit

Dachau, the former Nazi concentration camp, but that Kohl was resisting any such gesture, which would focus attention on the Holocaust, rather than the nation's emergence as a leading industrialized democracy.

The center-right West German leader, who was 15 when World War II ended, likes to refer to himself as the first chancellor of the postwar generation and contends that Germans should look to the future instead of their tragic past, Reagan agreed.

Presidential spokesman Larry Speakes told reporters in January that Reagan had no intention of visiting Dachau because he "just doesn't think it's an appropriate thing to do."

And when Reagan himself was asked at his news conference last month why he had decided to pass up an opportunity to visit a concentration camp, he replied, "I feel very strongly that instead of reawakening the memories ... and the passions of the time that maybe we should observe this day as the day when, 40 years ago, peace began and friendship."

Then, in an extraordinary observation for someone who served in his own nation's armed forces during the war, albeit not in combat, Reagan added there are very few Germans still living who remember the war "and certainly none of them who were adults and participating in any way."

"I just think it's unnecessary," he said, to rekindle guilt feelings on the part of modern Germans.

However, during Reagan's state visit, designed in part to stress good relations between West German and American military forces, the president was scheduled to lay a wreath at a military cemetery in Bitburg, which served as a German staging area for the bloody Battle of the Bulge, where thousands of American troops were killed.

U.S. veterans' groups objected to the plan, noting that Reagan had no intention of visiting a cemetery where American war victims are buried, as he did a year ago at Normandy.

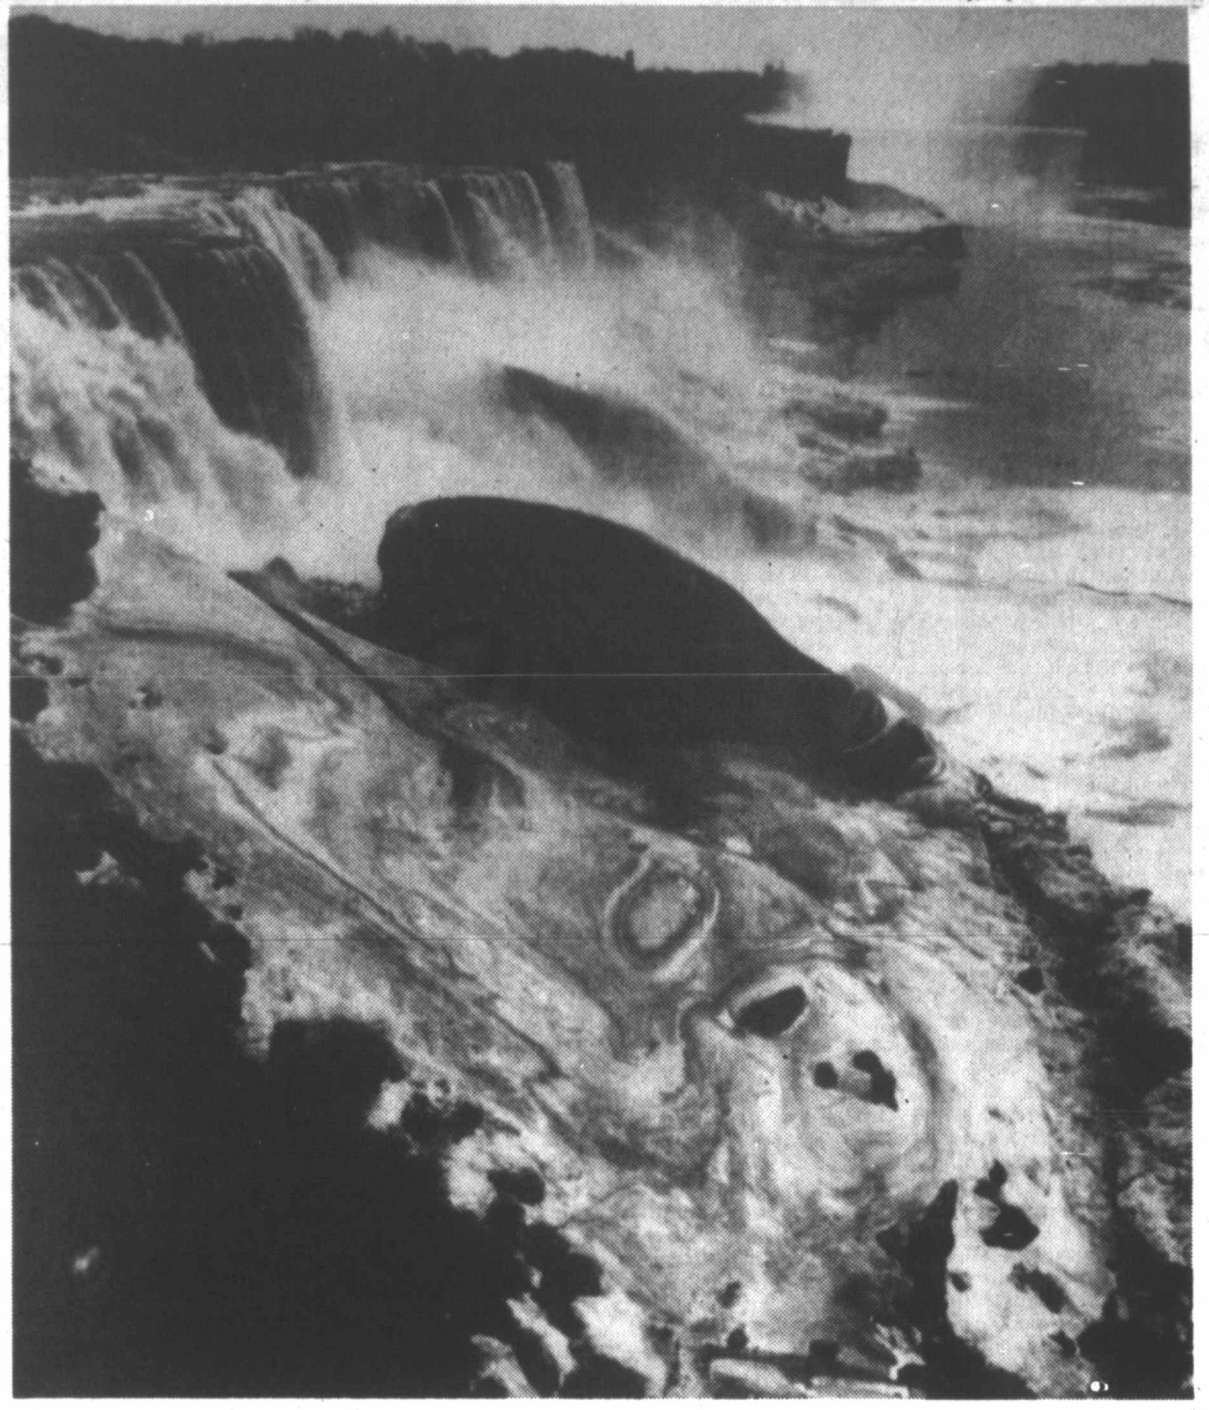

And there was an outcry from representatives of American Jewish groups who complained that Reagan not only appeared to be ignoring victims of the Holocaust but was preparing to memorialize Nazi soldiers, some of whose graves bore the initials of the infamous SS.

The SS, or Schutzstaffel, was formed in 1925 to serve as Hitler's elite guard and, under the command of Heinrich Himmler, later carried out the extermination of millions of Jews and Eastern Europeans.

Reagan, beating a measured retreat this week, said he had hoped his visit would show that the United States and West Germany had turned their backs on the atrocities of war and were able "to cement the 40 years of friendship" between the two peoples.

Despite that concession, however, the incident so far has served only to expose the old wounds Reagan sought to heal.

"We're a great nation of scab pickers," complained Sen. Alan Simpson, R-Wyo. "We go back 40 years and find stuff to give us anguish when we've got plenty of it right here today."

ICE SCULPTURE—As the ice melts in the spring thaw at the American Falls, silt from the frozen waters of the Niagara River leaves shapely patterns behind. Weather around the falls is expected to remain warm for the rest of the week with high temperatures near 71.

SWAT team wears tattoos

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Police Chief Charles Rodriguez says he questions the symbolism and the appropriateness of lightning bolt tattoos worn by a dozen members of the police force SWAT team.

Rodriguez, in a statement Wednesday, said his department is investigating the tattoos, which carry the inscription "Total Hit."

"The department feels there is a question of symbolism and that there is a lack of appropriateness,"

Rodriguez said in the statement. "We are continuing our inquiry into the issues involved," he said.

Rodriguez said the tattoos came to his attention through reports from other officers.

The San Antonio Express-News quoted unnamed sources as saying those wearing the tattoo, which some claim resembles the Nazi SS division insignia of World War II, would be transferred out of the SWAT division.

Summer outfits go from cool to hot

By Florence De Santis

NEW YORK (NEA) — American summer climates vary so widely that fashion designers have to look at comfort and versatility in clothes rather than the trend of the moment. They've laid aside the fitted silhouettes seen in the spring collections for light, airy loose cuts.

Take the problem of dressing for work in hot weather. You go and come in the heat, but are in an air-conditioned office for eight hours in between. The solution is a jacket costume.

Oscar de la Renta does an oversized boxy linen jacket striped in red, green and purple. It's worn with a knee-length navy skirt and a T-top for coolness in the hot outdoors.

The sport house of Regatta uses a Trevira-rayon-flax blend in wide ice-cream pastel stripes, with box pleats loosening the skirt. The jacket can be worn open or buttoned and has amply belled sleeves. You can wear it with a plain shirt or something dressier.

Name designers often mix slim and easy lines. Another de la Renta costume combines a simple, short-sleeved navy T-top and slim pocket-trimmed skirt with a loose painter's smock in caramel cotton linen. Tahari's striped cotton shirt, softly slim skirt and loose shirt-style jacket, in peach and white cotton or linen, are more casual but still right for work. Blassport's white shirt jacket goes with a blue and white front-buttoned scoop-neck top and a yellow floral skirt. All are in summer-cool cotton.

Sweaters, knit in cotton, silk, linen and blends of the same, are essential to summer wardrobes. At Jones New York, the top for a pastel-striped skirt and coordinated plaid cardigan jacket is a pointelle-patterned beige linen-cotton crewneck.

Two-piece summer outfits often have a sweater as the top half. Ms. Sero sections its knit top in royal with white blocking on one half and reverses the colors on the other. The top matches a cotton dirndl skirt.

This is a dress for office, not weekend, as is the nautical version at Gloria Sachs. It features a loose ivory cashmere sweater, with navy banding the shoulders, sleeves and hem, over an ivory pleated skirt. You can create your own two-piece sweater and skirt dresses for city-country wear from the choices offered in many coordinated sportswear collections.

Nautical touches cool off many summer dresses in woven fabrics. Oscar de la Renta uses nautical striping on the top of his silk two-piece in sea blue, green and white, with the skirt in broad color stripes separated by white. Adolfo's two-piece white silk with pleated skirt and loose, sleeveless top, is nautically banded at hem, waist and square neckline in navy and red. Richard Warren uses a nautically navy striped inset to fill the open cardigan front of his white poly tissue faille with a two-button peplum hip detail. The skirt is breezy with unpressed pleats.

The most popular item for the sporty part of a summer wardrobe is likely to be the big shirt, which comes in everything from pure white to plaids and floral prints. Joan Vass's version is a dress which can be worn with a colored sash or let loose over pants and shorts. Cynthia Steffe's is brightly striped silk billowing over white pants. Donald Hopson for Adele Simpson citifies it as a shirt tunic over a brief, slim skirt.

(NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

WORKING SUMMER costume, from Regatta, in pastel-striped Trevira-rayon-flax blend is loose and cool-cut. Jacket about $48, skirt about $49.

NAUTICAL COOLNESS is seen in the striped inset on Richard Warren's white poly tissue faille two-piece dress, with peplum detail; about $240.

Dear Abby

Mom thinks grandparents have failed to do their duty

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1985 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: My problem? I feel neglected because neither my parents nor my husband's have ever offered to watch our children so we could get away for an evening or a weekend. In the four years that "Gary" and I have been parents, my folks have taken our kids for a grand total of two hours! And Gary's parents have had them overnight five times.

Both sets of parents live an hour away, and all four grandparents are healthy, able to drive, semiretired and fairly well-to-do.

I realize our parents don't owe us anything, but when our friends tell us how often their parents ask to keep their grandkids (sometimes four and five days at a time!), I resent the fact that Gary and I get help from our parents once in a blue moon—and then only when we ask for it.

NO NAMES, PLEASE

DEAR NO NAMES: You're right; your parents owe you nothing. But since they respond when asked for their help, count your blessings, and don't push the issue.

DEAR ABBY: My parents will be married 40 years next month. It has been a rough marriage for our mother because all through their marriage, Dad was a tyrant who ruled with an iron fist. The only reason Mom stayed with him was because of us kids. The last five years Dad's health has been failing, and Mom has practically been his nurse.

Now comes their anniversary, and we kids want to give them a party, but Mom says, "What's to celebrate? It would be hypocritical at least, and a farce at best."

Even an anniversary card that says "Many more happy years" would be a mockery when there have been very few happy moments in their marriage, let alone years.

I suppose there are other grown children with the same dilemma. What's the answer?

DAUGHTER WITH A DILEMMA

DEAR DAUGHTER: Have a small family dinner to honor your parents' union, which gave you life—even if the marriage wasn't harmonious. It will be a landmark for survival, if nothing else, and should not be ignored. Who knows, perhaps your father will mellow and grow more loving in the twilight of his life. I hope so.

DEAR ABBY: "Offended" says she goes to a high-class nightclub, talks to a stranger for five minutes, then he asks her to go to bed. And when she says no, she's told not to play "hard to get."

I believe I have a suggestion for such women, as there seems to be a lot of them with this problem.

After the nervy proposition, ask the guy this question: "What is really in it for me? I don't even know you, so why should I risk getting some kind of disease or becoming pregnant, or both, just to provide you with some temporary physical relief?"

Abby, let him think up an answer to that one. It's a lot more effective than just saying "No." Right?

A MALE READER

DEAR READER: Yes!

"Stubbornness is the energy of fools."

Shaving ritual dates back into history

BOSTON (AP) — Shaving, one of the most enduring male rituals, dates back thousands of years and even Shakespeare emphasized the desirability of shaving in many of his plays, according to research by a manufacturer of shaving products.

For example, in "Much Ado About Nothing," published in 1600: "I could not endure a husband with a beard on his face." And, from the same play: "Indeed, he looks younger than he did, by the loss of a beard."

But evidence of shaving goes much farther back in history than Shakespeare and his Globe Theater, says Derek W.F. Coward, vice president of marketing for the Gillette Safety Razor Division, with headquarters in Boston. In fact, archaeologists have traced shaving to as early as 4000 to 5000 B.C., he says.

Some 6,000 years ago, the ancient Egyptians first came to use shaving as a defense, he notes. A common way to slay an enemy was to first grasp him by the hair. In order to make oneself less vulnerable to attack, many men shaved their heads.

"Ancient shaving instruments were very primitive," says Coward. "The first shaving instruments are believed to have been made of flint, like other tools of that date."

Clam shells and sharpened animal teeth were also thought to have been used. The first real breakthrough in shaving instruments came around 3000 to 4000 B.C., when copper appeared. Later, around 2400 to 2100 B.C., the invention of bronze led to stronger and sharper shaving tools.

The introduction of iron and steel in knife-like instruments, between 1500 to 500 B.C., provided a far better shave, Coward explains.

"Although shaving was practiced, it wasn't until around 300 B.C., the time of Alexander the Great, that it became customary for men to shave their faces," Coward says. "Once shaving became common, it remained so for eight centuries. Almost the only men who didn't shave were philosophers, because beards made them seem older and wiser."

A clean-shaven face was also a sign of wealth, and the unshaven face soon became the mark of the lower classes or slaves, he points out. A festival was frequently held to celebrate the first time that a young Roman noble shaved, usually the same day that the toga of manhood was donned.

Various attempts at developing a safer razor began in the 1700s, Coward says, including the first "straight" razor with a guard.

MARTHA SUBLETT

Sublett leads presentations

Martha Sublett, second vice president, Association of Desk and Derrick Clubs, conducted the Award of Merit presentations for the Speakers Bureau contest winners at the annual ADDC Region IV meeting April 11-14, in Beaumont.

Carolyn Malone, Region IV Director, presided for all business sessions. Loretta Owens, ADDC president, spoke on "Awards and Rewards," for the awards luncheon. H.F. Keplinger, banquet speaker, projected an upturn for the oil and gas industry. He predicted that 3,700 drilling rigs would be operating domestically by 1987. His speech, "Middle East Oil and Its Implications for World Peace or World War," outlined the devastation that could occur from terrorist acts upon industry installations throughout the world.

Approximately 245 members attended from Region IV which covers all of Arkansas and the lower half of Texas. Six guests attending from other regions included Nancy Price, ADDC secretary; Lurline Andrus, 1980 ADDC president for Region I; Dianne Poole, ADDC treasurer of Region III; Claudia Deupree, 1983 Region V Director; Sublett, ADDC second vice president of Region V and Yvonne Krouch, chairman 1985 ADDC Bulletin Contest committee, Region VI.

Jealous of Cinderella?

When the shoe fits, therapy sometimes helps

By Ellie Grossman

NEW YORK (NEA) — If there'd been psychotherapists in those days, Cinderella might not have had such problems. Says Judith White, C.S.W., director of public education for New York's Post-graduate Center for Mental Health and a practicing psychotherapist: "Cinderella is a very vivid example of the envious and the envied."

"Envy is stirred up when someone possesses something we feel we don't have and cannot get. The impulse, then, is to steal that quality or possession, or spoil it. In Cinderella's case, her stepisters and stepmother envied her beauty. Since they could not possess it, they tried to spoil it by demeaning her, and by preventing her from going to the ball and the prince from meeting her."

Nasty, nasty, we say, and society agrees. "We're taught that envy is wrong," White says. "I guess that's society's way of trying to stamp out the disastrous effects that can result from envy, but psychotherapists would say no feeling is wrong. But it's important to get in touch with what you feel because it's affecting your behavior. Try to understand it and work it out."

If Cinderella's relatives had sat down with a counselor and tried to find out why Cinderella's button nose and guileless smile galled them so, they probably would have learned the reason went way back. "Some theorists say envy begins with the infant's resentment of his dependence upon the mother for the goodness of her milk," says White. "Others say it comes from our desire to be perfect. When we see someone with something we don't have, we are reminded of our imperfection or inadequacy."

And we get angry, although we usually don't admit it. But then, the anger and envy are often unconscious, although Cinderella's folks seemed to know what they were feeling and precisely what they were doing about it. Still, says White: "Envy can be very subtle. Most of us know people who unwittingly try to diminish our moments of happiness because if they can rob us of them, they don't have to feel envious anymore. They're the people to stay away from if you want to hold onto that feeling."

Actually, though, like Cinderella's family, they're not seeing the entire picture. All those girls ever saw was Cinderella's good looks. They didn't accept her as a whole human being with weaknesses and imperfections like the rest of us. They didn't know, for instance, that she agonized about her intelligence and her lack of athletic ability. No wonder she avoided her siblings and the relationship broke up, which is what can come from envy. Says White, "If it's intense enough, the person you envy will want to avoid you."

Then, too, envy doesn't merely affect the envied; it can do damage to the envier as well. "Envy is admiration gone sour," says White. "For some of us, admiration is a good feeling, so when you are very envious, you are actually depriving yourself of feeling good."

One thing to do to salvage your good humor, she says, is "to acknowledge the feeling. Then ask yourself some questions to find out what it goes back to: What are your earliest and most recent memories of envying someone? What are the traits, special talents and possessions that you envy? This can have a positive effect. By delving, you may become aware of the need for a quality that you can achieve. Or you might gain greater tolerance toward your limitations: I'm not beautiful but I can be attractive."

If your understanding gets better, so might your behavior and you could end up improving or restoring the relationship your envy undid. But if self-analysis proves futile, consider owning up to your feelings to someone who'll understand, perhaps even to the person who has what you want. Says White: "Once the feeling is out there, you are less likely to act on it in a destructive way. And if you really can sort it out, the feeling may diminish over time."

At this point, it pays to note that much of this also applies to envy's colleague, jealousy. The main difference between the two, in fact, is that "the jealous person fears that his loved one may be taken away by a rival," says White. "That usually stems from early jealousy of siblings, or the feeling that you could not win your mother's or father's love no matter what you did. As an adult, then, you feel you won't be able to keep anyone's love."

As it happens, after Cinderella and the prince set up housekeeping, things went bad because she became very jealous, but not just because of her inadequate upbringing: He was coming home at all hours with lipstick on his crown, and once, she found another woman's slipper in his drawer. It was, says White, a case of "someone setting up situations that trigger jealousy in order to reinforce his own feeling of desirability."

Cinderella asked him to stop philandering, which White says is perfectly permissible, but all he said was, "Sue me. That's how I am." So Cinderella packed up and went back home where she opened a shoe boutique. And the prince took up with one of her stepisters who'd been through it.

Naturally, Cinderella was heartbroken at first. But in time, she came around to White's position, which is, "If you lose someone to another, you might question whether the two of you were really meant to be involved." A case, in short, of the shoe not fitting after all.

Moisturizers for spring

Petroleum jelly is a good, cheap moisturizer. However, in warmer weather it feels greasy, rubs off on clothes and works only as long as it's on the skin. Moisturizers known as phospholipids, such as complex 15, have none of these disadvantages. Using natural skin substances, they bind water molecules below the skin surface and leave no film on the skin.

Mousse on your head

By now, most women have probably used at least one kind of mousse, the foam product that provides a new way to style and hold hair. Styling mousses were so popular that makers soon began coming up with variations such as styling mousse with temporary coloring. Now Revlon's new mousse contains sun protection for hair, Zoto's provides a mousse permanent, and shampoo, skin emollients and fragrances are coming up in mousse form.

Mature eye makeup

Eye accenting does most for a youthful effect. Clean up brow line, with special attention to removing hairs under the outer half of brows to keep ends from drooping. Use pastel eyelid colors and not browns or frostings, which look old on a mature face. Use lid tints over a pale beige or peach base foundation all over the eye area to lighten the skin tone, especially under eyes.

Waterproof sunscreens

Suntan products have lately undergone various improvements. The latest are waterproof for as long as 80 minutes. Ultraviolet rays A and B are filtered out, and the new group comes in the Sun Protection Factor range of 4, 6, 8 and 15 developed a few years ago. Waterproofing is an important factor because any sunscreen fails if washed away.

FAMILY REUNION—Richard Flynn and his wife Catherine embrace Wednesday night as they met at the Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport. Flynn, who had been released from a Mexican prison, met his wife in Texas and flew on to Chicago. (AP Laserphoto)

Business executive returns home after three years in Mexico prison

CHICAGO (AP) — Business executive Richard Flynn is spending his first day at home after three years in a Mexican prison, full of praise for those who stood by him but critical of the State Department.

Flynn, 49, of suburban Riverdale, arrived back in Chicago late Wednesday night.

"I kind of feel that Ambassador (John) Gavin didn't do as much as he could have," he told reporters at O'Hare International Airport.

Flynn said he would meet today with his lawyers to discuss his lawsuit against the State Department for failing to provide a witness at his fraud trial, which resulted in his conviction and six-year prison sentence.

"They refused to give me a witness which I think was a violation of my constitutional rights," he said.

He said the attorney general of Mexico had told the State Department that he was being held for political reasons, but the United States did nothing about it.

But, Flynn insisted he wasn't bitter toward either the U.S. or Mexican governments.

"I have no bitterness toward Mexico whatsoever," he said.

Flynn — accompanied by his wife, Catherine, who had flown to Mexico City on Tuesday to be with him — told reporters, "It's wonderful to be home."

Down from about 200 pounds to about 120 — a weight loss he attributed to his three heart attacks while he was imprisoned — Flynn was unshaven and wearing a beige sweater. He looked tired but animated.

Before leaving the plane at O'Hare, Flynn was routinely checked by Dr. John Sanders, a heart specialist at Northwestern Memorial Hospital, where Mrs. Flynn is a nurse.

Sanders said Flynn had a hospital appointment Friday and would undergo heart treatment as an outpatient.

Flynn's four children also were allowed on the plane for a family reunion.

"I'm just glad he's back. It's long overdue," said Flynn's 22-year-old son, Richard, of Munster, Ind.

A large group of friends, relatives and reporters were on hand to greet the Flynn's at O'Hare.

During his imprisonment, his friends and family in the Chicago area had kept up pressure on the Mexican government to free Flynn, including letter writing, lobbying Congress and picketing.

"I want to thank all the people in Chicago who came to Cathy's aid and assistance," Flynn said from a wheelchair at the airport.

His fraud conviction was overturned Monday by the high court and he was released from the North Prison on Tuesday.

Texas may reap water technology

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas farmers could be learning a lot about irrigation of arid lands from their Israeli counterparts under a new agreement between that nation and the state, Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower says.

"Israel's a good 10, 15 years ahead of us in having addressed their water needs in agriculture, so we have something to learn there," Hightower said.

"They have the technology. They're willing to share that with us."

The agreement was signed Wednesday by Hightower and Abraham Katz-Oz, a member of Israel's parliament and that nation's deputy agriculture minister.

The pact calls for a Texas-Israel Exchange committee, composed of Texas and Israeli civic and agricultural leaders, to work jointly on projects from which both sides can benefit.

Hightower said he expects the projects to include swaps of information and technology on water use, marketing, processing of farm products, energy and research data. Direct trade links also may be established through the program, he said.

Israel and parts of Texas have similar climates and similar water shortage problems, said Hightower, who visited that country last year.

The Israelis have developed drip irrigation techniques for arid areas, as well as methods for irrigating with salt water and using city wastewater for irrigation, he said.

"Water is one area that we've found we have a very logical connection in," Hightower said.

"We also definitely are going to see some crop research projects. We're going to discuss trade possibilities. We are interested in talking about grain shipments to Israel and the possibility of some beef (export) potential in there," he added.

Katz-Oz made a three-day tour this week of Texas agricultural areas — including Hereford, Lubbock, Littlefield, Weslaco, Harlingen, San Antonio and the LBJ Ranch at Stonewall.

He said he was impressed by what he found and predicted that Israel will be very interested in working with Texas agricultural researchers.

"You have here very good people, especially in the research field. I hope we will be able to learn a lot from your people in the universities and the field, too," Katz-Oz said.

The confrontation of Americans with self

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — If you can believe the rhetoric, something finally is going to be done about it. No, not the weather, but the federal budget deficit.

The deficit, as almost everyone is aware, has blown away the weather as a conversation piece. Everyone is talking about it — and Congress now promises to do something about it.

Almost every major business group has offered support for spending cuts. Federal fund recipients have assured the public they seek justice — nothing more. The president and congressmen have orated on the need to sacrifice.

The issue couldn't be clearer: The $200 billion budget deficits must be pared, and there are only three possible ways in which to do it:

- Spending cuts.
- Tax increases.
- Creation of an economy that will produce more revenues.

While the issues are clear, the possibilities are not, and that will become clear next week when Congress finally gets down to the issues.

It will find several realities reaffirmed:

— Higher taxes are okay — maybe even necessary, considering the sorry state of Uncle Sam's checkbook — so long as they are applied to the interests and finances of others.

— Spending cuts are highly desirable and, in fact, absolutely necessary, but only when applied to the benefits of others.

— A bigger, more productive, more competitive economy is something that takes years to achieve. It cannot be created in time to solve today's — or yesterday's — financial crises.

Rhetorically, every special interest group has been noble enough to bite the bullet and acknowledge through gritted teeth that "everyone must suffer some pain."

But rhetoric is often expansive, noble, patriotic and self-effacing. It is sometimes mere wind as well. It rarely gets involved with the pain, which experience shows can be unbearable when applied.

The big battle of the budget, therefore, has only begun, notwithstanding all that has been said about it over the past year. In reality, all has not yet been said, and nothing has been done.

Whether, in the end, anything at all is done may depend on such questions as these:

— Will the White House be able to endure greater cuts than already have been made in the Defense Department budget?

— Will pressure groups, such as those representing business and the aged — as well as members of congress who feel obliged to them — be able to accept cuts in benefits or planned increases?

— Will business, including the small-business community, be able to accept cuts in its favorite programs, including elimination of the Small Business Administration?

Ultimately, the question is whether the U.S. citizens are willing and able to change a philosophy that has endured for five decades, and which many of them credit with having raised America from the ashes of the Great Depression.

However expressed, that philosophy was based to some degree in recognition of government as leader rather than administrator and as catalyst rather than regulator.

Many Americans, including President Reagan, believe that philosophy evolved into Big Government — costly and counterproductive — and that more independence and responsibility should be returned to the private sector.

Amish find peaceful life in Texas

By DOUG WINTERMUTE
Stephenville Empire-Tribune
STEPHENVILLE, Texas (AP)

— Most people in this county southwest of Fort Worth look to the future for their lifestyles, but one group tries to live a simple yet sincere life as a world of computers, technology and automation swirls around them.
They are the Amish, a Protestant sect that originated in Europe nearly 400 years ago, and still try to follow a starkly simple way of life.
There are about 23 Amish families — about 120 people — living Erath County, according to Vernon Kramer, an Amish farmer who moved to Texas from Missouri.

“Financial is the reason (for the move),” Kramer said. “I guess this area has been hit, too, but it is more industrial.”

Like many Amish families, the Kramers were forced by dry weather and a depressed Midwest economy to seek employment in other parts of the country.

They hope to return some day to their farm in Missouri, but for now are working at a dairy in Erath County. Kramer also works as a carpenter.

Kramer's four daughters milk 200 cows twice a day at 1 a.m. and 1 p.m. Kramer helps when he's not working as a carpenter, but is confident the girls can handle the milking. “If I didn't I wouldn't leave them in charge of it,” he said.

Simple, traditional occupations attract most of the Amish. Many in this area work on dairies, although many also work as carpenters or have other trades, Vernon said.

The simple Amish life seems to be an affirmation of their religious beliefs. The Old Order Amish, a Christian religion, derive their name from Jacob Ammann, a 17th-century Mennonite, and live a simple lifestyle.

The Amish women wear simple dresses and the men wear button-up shirts and pants with suspenders. Neither sex wears jewelry. The women wear no makeup, and their uncut hair is worn underneath handmade caps.

No radio, no television, and no musical instruments are found in Amish houses. They travel in horse-drawn buggies and use horses for their own farming purposes.

Most of the food is made from scratch and grown on the family farm. All clothing is made by hand or with a treadle-powered sewing machine.

Kramer said the Amish way of life is based on the Bible.

“According to the Bible,” he said, “it says not to follow the trends. It says to try to follow a plain life.”

“We take the teachings of the Bible and try to live a quiet and plain life and try to live up to what the scripture teaches,” Kramer said.

“We try to practice the Golden Rule: love one another,” added his wife, Rebecca.

“We don't want somebody to feel like we've taken advantage of them,” said Vernon. “We try to pattern our life after Jesus when he was here. He was a great prophet, but he didn't hold himself up as such. We try to follow what he left for us in his footsteps.”

“We know we're not perfect,”

Youths wounded in apartment shooting

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston police Wednesday were investigating the shooting and wounding of at least seven young people as a private security guard attempted to quiet a group of teenagers dancing in the swimming pool area of an apartment complex.

Two of those wounded in the Tuesday night incident were listed in stable condition at Ben Taub Hospital. John Buchanan, 18, was shot in the back and Joseph Metheyer was wounded in the abdomen, said Virginia Scott, a hospital spokeswoman. The other five were undergoing treatment and were expected to be released, Ms. Scott said. Ages of the victims ranged from 13 to 20.

The 38-year-old security guard who allegedly fired the shots was taken into custody. His name was not released.

Houston police spokesman J.C. Mosier said detectives believed three shots were fired and that more than one of the bullets ricocheted or hit more than one person. Estimates of the number of youths in the group ranged from 25 to 50.

“First he pointed down, then he just started shooting everywhere,” Jolin Matthews, 14, a witness, said. “I guess he was scared. I saw one person on the ground and then I hit the ground and covered my head.”

The apartment manager, who refused to be identified, said the guard was hired less than a month ago after residents complained about large numbers of youths who congregated around the pool area.

though,” he said, adding that everybody makes mistakes.

Kramer speaks with a slight German accent. The accent varies among the Amish from barely noticeable to apparent.

The traditional Amish language is called “Low German,” which is a combination of English and German.

“We're getting so much of the English in our dialect it isn't really German,” said Kramer. “It's just different.”

Low German is the language spoken by most Amish families, said Kramer. The children grow up speaking German and then learn English by the time they go to school.

Amish church services are also held entirely in German. Songs are sung a cappella at a slow tempo, with some songs lasting 20 minutes. Each service lasts two or three hours. The services are held in a building near Stephenville every two weeks.

Kramer said the services are held every two weeks because of the distance church members must travel by horse and buggy and because most members work on dairies, where cows must be milked every day. “People have been real nice about letting them (the Amish workers) off on every other Sunday,” said Kramer.

The melodies of the songs are not written in the song books, but are passed on from one generation to another through memorization. Words to the songs are written in German.

Some of the faster-paced songs of evening services or “singings” are in German and some are in English.

Many of the songs in the Amish church were written by Anabaptists in prison during the Protestant Reformation.

The Bible used by the Amish is also German, but is a German translation of the King James Version, said Kramer.

While the Amish and some Protestant denominations use different translations of the same Bible, the Amish are sometimes misunderstood because of the impact of their beliefs on their everyday life.

“Some people think we are self-righteous because of the way we dress,” said Mrs. Kramer. “Some people ask us if we think we are saved just because we are Amish. We don't. I believe it's in here,” she said, holding her hand to her heart.

“We still have to live our life and live it right,” added Kramer.

Kramer acknowledges it is hard for those not familiar with the faith to become involved in it. “It's real hard,” he said. “If I hadn't grown up in the faith, it would be very difficult.”

Kramer said Amish children must make their own decision to join the faith, and are not considered a member of the church until they are baptized, usually between the ages of 16 and 22.

“We don't force them (to join the church),” he said. “They make up their own mind...then they are expected to live up to the faith and its rules and regulations.”

These rules and regulations differ from the lifestyle of most Americans.

“We try to be as self-supportive as we can,” Kramer said. “We usually use kerosene cookstoves and kerosene refrigerators.”

Kramer said Amish people in this area have modified the lifestyles of the Midwest. Most Amish families there and in the North live closer to each other, in communities of several families, and there are stores which specialize in supplying the Amish with their goods. Each community usually has its own standards on which appliances and equipment can be used.

The Kramers' landlord is furnishing them with a home, electricity and even a telephone. They have no radio or television.

“Sometimes the environment has something to do with it (use of appliances),” Mrs. Kramer said. She said they don't butcher livestock as much here because of the warmer weather. In their Missouri community, freezers were needed as badly as in Texas, she said.

Some Amish learn to drive farm equipment and will drive pickup trucks on dairies, but not on roads. “We don't have driver's licenses,” said Kramer, smiling.

He said in established Amish communities most people use a horse and buggy for transportation, but distances between families here sometimes makes it necessary to use automobiles. The Amish in this area often hire people to drive them places, said Kramer, usually paying a certain rate per mile.

The horses and buggies seen on area roads are still the primary source of transportation for the Amish. The buggies come in different styles and models and the American Standard horse is specially bred for pulling buggies.

Buggy driving in Erath County has its own difficulties, Kramer said. “People aren't used to the buggies on the road,” he said. “Everybody tries to have a (slow-moving vehicle) sign, and we try to pull off and let traffic pass if it is wide enough.”

Kramer said strangers'

reactions to the Amish vary. “Some will just look at you with their mouth open until you wave,” he said, “then they usually wave back.”

Kramer's 15-year-old daughter, Amanda, is uneasy about the special attention. “I don't like it when people stare at me,” she said. “I'd rather them glance at me, say ‘Hi,’ then mind their own business.”

“It bothers the girls,” said Kramer. “They'll say, ‘He's looking at us,’ and I'll say, ‘Don't let it bother you.’”

Despite the occasional stares, the Kramers say they are happy here.

“We like it down here,” Kramer said. “Most of the people are friendly down here. There are a few of them that could bother you, but we just pass it off.”

The Kramers don't mind the extra glances, but they do object to people photographing them without their permission. To the Amish, photographs which show their faces are similar to “graven images,” something they believe the Bible warns against.

“Some people take pride in pictures,” Kramer said. “It's partly publicity. It's always been like that. In a way it might be tradition, but some of them take pride (in photographs).”

The Amish are a peaceful people Kramer describes as “non-resistant.” They oppose war, which has made them a subject of criticism in the past. The U.S. government has made provisions for the Amish people and allows the young men to serve in alternate service positions such as hospital work, Kramer said.

In spite of the deep-rooted Amish respect for tradition, changes are taking place within the faith, Kramer said. “The temptations for young people are harder than they used to be,” he said. “They're exposed to music more,” he said, as an example.

“I think they recognize movie stars more than they used to,” added Mrs. Kramer. “Even the drinking — they may try to sneak some every now and then.”

Kramer says that while some young Amish may stray away from the faith a little, they usually come back.

Versatile singer may be 'voice of Houston'

By BETTY EWING
Houston Chronicle

HOUSTON (AP) — On a given Sunday in Houston, jaunty singer Richard J. "Dick" Krueger might attend 8 a.m. Mass at St. Michael's Catholic church and then move along to St. Martin's Episcopal to suit out in a choir robe as tenor soloist at two later morning services.

Before nightfall he would put on his tuxedo and show up at a Jewish synagogue to sing at a wedding.

Houston's first gossip columnist, Bill Roberts, commented about Krueger's ecumenical circuit riding back in the 1950s heyday of cafe society when the singer also was fronting a band at the Shamrock Hilton.

"This kid may not know where he's going, but he's sure not taking any chances," wrote Roberts of the entertainer who was to perform for at least two presidential (Kennedy and Johnson) inauguration balls.

Krueger, not a kid any loe1111 the mood for his busy St. Patrick's schedule.

"Her contract says she only has to stay awake for five minutes," chuckled Dick, whose association with Ko-Ko began — in her age — 100 years ago.

The late designer Elinor Hughes, who had decorated Dick's house in the River Oaks area, discovered the abandoned pooch and passed it along to him. Ko-Ko actually isn't a part of the Krueger show biz act, but more of a one-dog backup morale builder for the constantly busy bachelor — Uncle Dick to his sister Elaine Martini's two children and six great-nieces and great-nephews.

If he's not singing and fronting his hand, he's gardening (there are hundreds of plants in his house and garden) or entertaining a bridge foursome or a 100-guest cocktail party group at home. He keeps fit by working out at a health club, playing tennis and running at least two miles a day.

He sings for at least 600 funerals a year at Forest Park. He averages 25 weddings, and his band plays for many dances. He carries 52 different hymnals in the trunk of his Cadillac and has at least 400 songs in his music files.

Not bad for the kid from Keokuk, Iowa, e St. Louis University to study economics, history and math — no music.

"I told that trade-out story to Don McNeil on his "Breakfast Club" program when Glenn McCarthy sent me there from the Shamrock," recalled Dick, "and we got at least two awful puns out of it."

The Krueger family had moved to St. Louis, where Dick's father, the late Dr. Waldo Krueger, did some dental work for voice teacher Irene Blades, whose pupils included Kay Kyser singers Harry Babbitt and Ginny Slims. She offered to trade lessons for the dental work.

"So I was pulled into show business," chortled Dick to McNeil during their interview.

McNeil, ever quick on the retort, replied, "And you discovered quickly that musicians lead a hand-to-mouth existence."

Enough of that, Dick. Obviously, the lessons took because of a sharp Blades.

Young Krueger, once successfully indoctrinated into vocal nip-ups, auditioned with the famous St. Louis Summertime Opera and wound up doing 72 shows in six summers.

He recorded six record sides with the Henri Rene Orchestra ("Many Happy Returns of the Day" and "I'm Alone Because I Love You" were two of them) and then in 1949 went on the road with the national Oklahoma touring company. He played the role of Will Parker.

"Coming to Houston was a lucky happening for me," said Dick. "And fate certainly played a hand in it."

Tired of touring, he left the "Oklahoma" show and went — where else? — to Oklahoma City. He wanted to study voice with Minnaletha White, a former head voice coach at MGM who had returned to her home there.

"Everybody from Clark Gable and Carole Lombard had to take a lesson a week from her, and she was the one who discovered Kathryn Grayson at age 11," said Dick.

Oklahoma City is also where he first started singing for funeral homes.

"Leila Cook who ran the Hahn Cook Funeral Home there, also hired orchestra leader Henry King to play for a dance at the country club and suggested that I sing with him," said Dick. "He didn't have a vocalist, so I did."

Later Krueger joined the Henry King organization in San Francisco and in three months McCarthy signed it on to open the Shamrock Hilton and remain as the hotel band.

Houston became Krueger's hometown in a hurry. The Shamrock was a fascinating showcase for his talent, and it was there he became acquainted with the big show business names whose photos are prominently displayed in his house today.

He was on friendly terms with Dorothy Lamour, Bob Hope, Rosemary Clooney, Carmen Miranda, Johnny Ray, Joe E. Lewis, Sophie Tucker, the Sisters — McGuire and Andrew — Frank Sinatra (when he was married to Ava Gardner — they were always fighting, says Dick) and Dick Haymes (when he was married to Rita Hayworth and they were always fighting), and George Burns and Gracie Allen (who were not fighting), Dinah Shore, Margaret Whiting, ad infinitum.

His favorites? Cowboy singer Eddie Arnold and Cyd Charisse and Tony Martin.

"I never did get used to seeing so many celebrities in the flesh," he laughed.

Later he had his own interview show poolside at the Shamrock.

ECUMENICAL SINGER—On any given Sunday, singer Dick Krueger might attend a Catholic Mass, then move to an Episcopal service and wind up the day at a Jewish wedding. He sings for at least 600 funerals a year. 25 weddings and has a band that plays for numerous dances. He carries 52 different hymnals in the trunk of his Cadillac.

Public Notice

Southwestern Bell Telephone Company, in accordance with the rules of the Public Utility Commission of Texas, hereby gives notice of the Company's intent to implement a new schedule of telephone rates in Texas, effective May 6, 1985, unless otherwise determined by the Commission. The Public Utility Commission of Texas has received the application as Docket 6200.

While proposals as to specific rates vary, it is expected that the requested rate schedule will furnish a 10.5 percent increase in the Company's unadjusted test year intrastate revenues or a 9.7% increase in test year revenues as adjusted for test year customer growth and annualization of test year rate increases. The rate application seeks an annual increase of $323.9 million in revenues. All customers and classes of customers of Southwestern Bell Telephone Company within Texas will be affected by the proposed changes.

Most rates proposed for increase would increase by about 18.5 percent, including local exchange rates. However, there are some exceptions. For example, those customers residing in cities that will be reclassified into larger rate groups will experience local exchange rate increases greater than 18.5 percent. Also, the rate increases proposed for private line services in El Paso, due to a proposal to restructure such rates, are greater than 18.5 percent.

A complete copy of the new rate schedule is on file with the Public Utility Commission at Austin, Texas and with each affected incorporated municipality served by Southwestern Bell Telephone Company. The Commission staff has contended in the past that all rates are subject to change as a result of Southwestern Bell Telephone Company's rate application. This filing includes, but is not limited to, proposals to increase rates for local exchange service, intralATA long distance, intralATA interexchange private line service (which includes foreign exchange service) and to decrease certain access service rates.

Notice to Customers of Other Telephone Companies

This filing includes, but is not limited to, proposals to increase rates for intralATA long distance and for intralATA, interexchange private line service (which includes foreign exchange service) and to decrease certain access service rates. Changes in such rates would also affect customers of other telephone companies because such companies provide certain services in accordance with rates specified in Southwestern Bell Telephone Company's tariffs.

Notice to All Customers Concerning Access Charges and Certain New Service Charges

Southwestern Bell Telephone Company, as a part of this filing, is also proposing to reduce certain access rates charged such customers as AT&T Communications, Inc., MCI and other carriers. The resulting reduction in revenues is proposed to be offset by revenues from two new service charges, late payment charges applicable to business customers only and for certain operator services such as busy line verification, plus stimulation of access service charge revenues. Since this portion of the filing, if granted, would have essentially a zero net revenue effect on Southwestern Bell Telephone Company, Southwestern Bell Telephone Company is proposing that this portion of the filing be expeditiously handled by the Commission and not await Final Order.

Persons who wish to intervene or otherwise participate in these proceedings should notify the Commission as soon as possible. A request to intervene, participate, or for further information should be mailed to the Public Utility Commission of Texas, 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard, Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757. Further information may also be obtained by calling the Public Utility Commission Consumer Affairs Division at (512) 458-0223 or (512) 458-0227, or (512) 458-0221 teletypewriter for the deaf.

Aviso Público

En conformidad con las disposiciones de la Comisión de Servicios Públicos de Texas, Southwestern Bell Telephone Company anuncia mediante el presente aviso su intención de establecer un nuevo arancel de tarifas telefónicas en Texas, con vigencia a partir del 6 de mayo de 1985, salvo disposición en contrario de la Comisión. La Comisión de Servicios Públicos de Texas a registrado esta solicitud bajo el Docket 6200.

Si bien existe variación entre las propuestas en cuanto a las tarifas precisas, se anticipa que el arancel tarifario solicitado aumentará en un 10.5% los ingresos intraestatales no ajustados de Southwestern Bell Telephone Company durante el año de prueba, o sea, un aumento del 9.7 por ciento en los ingresos del año de prueba, después de realizar el ajuste por la expansión de los usuarios y por la anualización del aumento de tarifas para el año de prueba. El objeto de esta solicitud de tarifas es lograr un aumento anual en los ingresos de $323.9 millones. Los cambios propuestos afectarán a todos los usuarios y grupos de usuarios de Southwestern Bell Telephone Company en el estado de Texas.

La mayoría de las tarifas que resultarían afectadas por el propuesto aumento aumentarían aproximadamente en un 18.5 por ciento, incluyendo las tarifas de centrales locales. Sin embargo, existen algunas excepciones. Por ejemplo, los usuarios que residen en ciudades que se reclasificarán para formar parte de grupos tarifarios mayores experimentarían aumentos mas elevados del 18.5 por ciento. Por otra parte, los aumentos de las tarifas propuestas para servicios de línea privada en El Paso aumentarían en más de 18.5 por ciento, como resultado de una propuesta para reestructurar tales tarifas.

Una copia completa del nuevo arancel de tarifas se halla archivada en las oficinas de la Comisión de Servicios Públicos en Austin, Texas, así como en cada municipalidad incorporada afectada que tenga servicio de Southwestern Bell Telephone Company. En el pasado, la Comisión ha sostenido que toda tarifa se halla sujeta a cambio toda vez que Southwestern Bell Telephone Company solicite nuevas tarifas. El registro de esta tarifa incluye, pero no en forma limitativa, las propuestas de aumentar las tarifas por servicios de centrales locales, de larga distancia intralATA y por servicios de línea privada interLATA entre centrales (incluyendo servicios de centrales externas) así como las propuestas de reducir ciertas tarifas de servicio de acceso.

Aviso a los clientes de otras compañías de teléfono

El registro de esta tarifa incluye, pero no en forma limitativa, las propuestas de aumentar las tarifas por servicios de larga distancia intralATA y por servicios de línea privada intralATA entre centrales (incluyendo servicios de centrales externas) así como las propuestas de reducir ciertas tarifas de servicio de acceso. Los cambios en dichas tarifas también afectarían a los clientes de otras compañías de teléfono, puesto que dichas compañías proporcionan ciertos servicios de acuerdo con las tarifas especificadas en los aranceles tarifarios de Southwestern Bell Telephone Company.

Aviso a todos los clientes con respecto a los cargos de acceso y a determinados cargos nuevos de servicio

Al registrar esta tarifa, Southwestern Bell Telephone Company también propone reducir ciertas tarifas de acceso que se les cobran a clientes como AT&T Communications, Inc., MCI y otras compañías de larga distancia. La consecuente reducción de ingresos se piensa compensar por medio de dos cargos nuevos de servicio (cargos por pago atrasado que se aplicarían solamente a usuarios comerciales, y cargos por ciertos servicios de operadora, tales como verificación de línea ocupada) además de la estimulación de los ingresos por cargos por servicios de acceso. En vista de que, en caso de otorgarse esta parte del arancel tarifario registrado, su efecto real en los ingresos de Southwestern Bell Telephone Company sería igual a cero, ésta propone que la Comisión tramite dicha parte de la tarifa en forma expeditiva sin esperar la Orden Definitiva.

Toda persona que desee intervenir o participar en el presente proceso debe notificar a la Comisión lo antes posible. Las solicitudes de intervención, participación o información deben dirigirse a: Public Utility Commission of Texas, 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard, Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757. Para obtener mayor información debe llamar a Public Utility Commission Consumer Affairs Division, (512) 458-0223, o (512) 458-0227, o al (512) 458-0221 si requiere teletipo para personas con impedimentos de audición.

BORDER CRACKDOWN—Last month the U.S. Customs border crossing station at Naco, Ariz., was closed for what officials called security reasons. While it has been reopened and its hours were extended Saturday — in part because of residents' complaints — authorities remain worried about the threat of killings. They say shots fired last month at three agents elsewhere in Arizona justify that concern. (AP Laserphoto)

Reduced hours at border crossing anger residents

By ARTHUR H. ROTSTEIN
Associated Press Writer
NACO, Ariz. (AP) — To Ernest Rogers, Irma Franco and Lionel Valenzuela, U.S. Customs' limited hours at the Mexico border crossing down the street are squeezing their pocketbooks. But Customs officials say the killings of an American drug agent in Mexico in February and a Customs officer last year in Texas warrant the recent reduction in the hours the border gates at remote U.S. crossing sites are open. In Naco, a dusty town about 100 miles southeast of Tucson, heightened security has taken the form of Customs agents in fatigues toting semiautomatic rifles and patrolling around the port of entry. It was the hours, though, that most upset local residents. "It's a helluva big inconvenience, and it's affected business, too," said Rogers, who owns a car repair shop in the unincorporated town of 5,000. Two of his employees who live in Mexico have been forced to sneak through a hole in the border fence to return home after work. During a recent four-week period when the gate was open only eight hours a day, Rogers estimated that business fell off about 30 percent. Irma Franco, a lifelong Naco resident, and her husband operate one of Naco's only two groceries, both within a block of the border. "I think the security of the officers comes first ... (but) it's made it pretty hard to survive," she said. If things didn't improve, she said, Franco's Popular Store could be forced to close. She added, "Business is off that much." Valenzuela, owner of the town's second market, said he had been losing about one-fourth of the $800 or so he used to take in daily when the gate was open from 6 a.m. until 10 at night. They and others said the slash in hours had forced many Mexicans living across the border in Naco, Sonora, to make much longer commutes to and from jobs in Arizona. "It's a blow to everybody because it's just like one family" between the Naco border communities, Mrs. Franco said. Mexico's Naco has a population of about 5,000, too. Customs officials closed crossings at nine remote sites, including Naco, along the 1,760-mile border on March 2, in response to what authorities said were threats made against federal agents by organized drug traffickers in Mexico. By mid-March the gate at Naco, for example, was open only from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. It wasn't until last Friday that Customs officials decided to extend the crossing hours at Naco from 7 a.m. until 8 p.m. Congressional pressure and complaints from local residents led to the longer hours. In addition, Customs spokesman Ed Kittredge said officials in Washington had "more confidence they can ensure the safety of the officers." "We can't afford to take these threats lightly," said Donald Kelly, Customs Southwest regional commissioner in Houston, citing the kidnapping and fatal shooting last year of Customs agent Richard Latham near Eagle Pass, Texas. "Our experience with that one murder got our attention." The threats also came shortly after the February kidnapping of U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration agent Enrique Camarena Salazar and a Mexican pilot in Guadalajara, Mexico, who were both found slain.

Body that of boy missing 23 years

BALDWIN PARK, Calif. (AP) — A skeleton found beneath a home last month has been identified as that of a 14-year-old boy who had lived in the house and was reported missing by his mother 23 years ago. Tests identified the remains as those of James David Gilmore, Los Angeles County sheriff's spokesman David Hogan said Tuesday. "It's mind boggling, really," the boy's mother, Donna Jean Gilmore, told KCBS-TV in Los Angeles in an interview from her home in San Diego. "After all these years, it's shocking ... that's all." The skeleton was found March 28 by a workman readying the now-vacant house for sale. The workman crawled underneath the house to do repairs, Hogan said. "He found a shoe protruding out of the ground. When he attempted to remove it he saw the skeletal remains." Mrs. Gilmore reported her son missing on Jan. 10, 1962. The last reported sighting of the boy was three days earlier, Hogan said. The Gilmores lived in the house here from 1959 to 1974.

Healer's cult still fascinates believers along the border

By RON GEORGE
Corpus Christi Caller-Times
ESPINAZO, Mexico (AP) — It is said a healer once lived here and that he died before his time. It is believed by many that the healer's work continues, that his spirit empowers his followers to heal others as he did. Twice each year, thousands of believers gather here to celebrate the birth and death of the healer, Fidencio S. Constantino — El Nino. On March 19, about 15,000 fedencistas jammed the main street of this isolated rural community in the northern Mexican state of Nuevo Leon, normally populated by scarcely more than 200 people.

They were singing "Las Mananitas," the birthday song, to El Nino, who was legendary for his powers of healing even as an adolescent. The festival of the Nino's birth was a mixture of piety, con artists, food stalls and sellers of soft goods — everything from underwear to religious memorabilia. The smell of incense mingled with the wood fires of pilgrims' campsites and cooking odors heavy with chicken, kid, beef, beans, rice, cactus and corn tortillas. From a cemetery on a hill south of Espinazo, one looks north toward town, across a broad, dusty valley of the Sierra Madre Oriental, from the state of Coahuila into the state of Nuevo Leon. The cemetery is one of several places in and near Espinazo where groups of pilgrims gather with group leaders who "take on the spirit of the Nino" to perform a multitude of healing and blessing rituals. They also lead processions of penitents, who punish themselves in order to feel worthy of the Nino's

"friendship," and those who have made promises of devotional acts in exchange for a favor from the Nino.

The processions, which range in size from half a dozen to several hundred, make their way three times around the Pirulito, a pepper tree where, it is said, the Nino once fought a demon and where, according to the songs, the spirit of the Nino descends from heaven to earth. The processions end at La Tumba, where Constantino is buried in a large building that was once his hospital, but now it is a shrine filled with memorabilia and testimonies from those who claim they have been healed by the Nino. Adjacent to the shrine is the mudhole where pilgrims bathe with muddy, mineral-laden water said to have healing qualities. The mudhole was created by the Nino for use by hospital patients. During his lifetime, Fidencio Constantino was besieged by supplicants. The details of his life are a hazy blend of myth and history, but detractors and adherents agree that he was an extraordinary man.

Those who knew him say he was melancholy and self-effacing, that he lived simply in spite of his notoriety, that he went hatless and shoeless, spending hours and days at a time in solitude and prayer in nearby mountain caves and at the Pirulito, where he also would await the twice-daily train that runs through Espinazo between Monterrey and Monclova.

Fidencio Constantino came to Espinazo from Guanajuato to be a houseboy in the hacienda of the Von Berlich family.

It is said he told his followers he was about to enter a three-day trance and that he would either awaken to continue his work or die. Before three days had passed, a team of doctors was called from Monterrey. Constantino was pronounced dead and immediately prepared for embalming.

NBA playoffs

76ers turn back Bullets

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Moses not only shoots and rebounds, but he talks. Honest. Moses Malone, whose loudest post-game remark this season has been a grunt, was in good voice after leading the Philadelphia 76ers to victory over the Washington Bullets last night. Malone scored 26 points, had six steals and five assists as the 76ers beat the Bullets 104-97 to take a 1-0 lead in their opening round best-of-five National Basketball Association series. Usually, the 6-foot-10 Malone leans his 255-pound body against his locker and turns away all questioners after games. But last night he was almost verbose. "We struggled but we showed our determination," said Malone of the game which the 76ers broke open with seven consecutive points after Washington took a 93-92 lead with 4:21 to play. "Washington has big workhorses," he said of the Bullets' front line, which held him to only five rebounds. "It's going to be tough and we've got to be good defensively. We've got to play hard at all times." The victory was the 76ers' first playoff triumph at home since the second game of the 1983 championship series against the Los Angeles Lakers. Five of the NBA's eight first-round series open tonight, with last year's championship opponents expected to breeze into the second round. Boston posted the best regular-season record at 63-19.

Olajuwon vs. Eaton key matchup as Rockets take on Jazz tonight

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ AP Sports Writer
HOUSTON (AP) — A former auto mechanic and a Nigerian soccer player will be the centers of attention when the Houston Rockets and Utah Jazz meet in a first round game of the National Basketball Association playoffs. The Rockets have Akeem Olajuwon, who started his athletic career as a soccer goalie in his homeland before discovering he could earn a living stuffing basketballs into a net. The Jazz will try to smother Olajuwon with 7-4, 290-pound Mark Eaton, who gave up a career as a mechanic to test his shot-blocking skills in the NBA. "Akeem took a jet to stardom and I guess I'm taking a slow boat," Eaton said. "We certainly have traveled different paths, but right now we've arrived at a particular time in our careers where we're actually on equal footing." Olajuwon was a No. 1 draft choice from the University of Houston, where he carried the Cougars to the NCAA Final Four three straight years.

He is a strong candidate for rookie of the year honors after helping the Rockets return to the NBA playoffs with a 48-34 record and a second place finish to Denver in the NBA's Midwest Division. Eaton took a different route to this year's playoffs. He gave up a $24,000 per year job as an auto mechanic five years ago, spent two years at UCLA and became a fourth round draft pick of the Jazz in 1982. He rewarded Jazz Coach Frank Layden by leading the league in blocked shots the past two seasons and he's caused problems for Olajuwon in regular season games. "He's so tall and big that you have to play him different from other centers," Olajuwon said. "The first time I played against him, I made all my moves and when I went up to make the shot, he was waiting to block it. "The only thing I can do is try to be quicker than him." The first two games of the best of five series are scheduled in The Summit Friday night and Sunday afternoon. Games three and four will be played in Salt Lake City Wednesday and April 26 and a fifth game, if necessary, would return to Houston April 28.

The key Rocket players, Ralph Sampson, Olajuwon and Rodney McCray, all will be participating in their first NBA playoff games and that concerns Coach Bill Fitch. "You try to construct what is really going to happen and what they have to do one (player) through 12," Fitch said. "But it's something you just have to go through to understand that there is really a difference in the two seasons." Veteran Rocket forward Robert Reid says the youngsters are ready, however. "They know all about the pressure from being in the NCAA Final Four," Reid said. Ralph and Akeem saw they could lose games in the final second so they will be ready for 48 minutes of basketball. Olajuwon likes the NBA version of the playoffs better than the NCAA championships. "In the NCAA one game and it could all be over," he said. "But here, if you beat a team, you've really beaten them," Olajuwon said. "Teams can win the NCAA's on luck but not here."

NCAA passes 'death-penalty' policy

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — In what one official describes as "the athletic equivalent of the death penalty," the NCAA Council has approved a plan to close down for up to two years any athletic program that repeatedly violates major rules. "In some cases... it is the difference between sending someone to jail or sending him to the gas chamber," said one observer who asked not to be identified. The policy-making Council concluded three days of meetings Wednesday by giving unanimous endorsement to a series of measures drawn up by the newly created NCAA Presidential Commission. The measures would identify "major" and "secondary" violations and give the NCAA enforcement staff far-reaching new powers. They will be voted on at a special convention of NCAA schools that the commission has scheduled for June 20-21 in New Orleans. If approved, violations which in the past resulted in private reprimands could cause schools to lose scholarships, and players to lose eligibility. Violations that have traditionally drawn strong penalties could result in schools not being able to recruit or give scholarships or even schedule games for as long as two years. "I believe the membership is going to approve the entire package," Jack Davis, president of the NCAA, told The Associated Press in an interview Wednesday. The commission, hoping to increase pressure on schools to go along with the stepped-up war on recruiting scandals, has specified that every school's vote will be made public. "We sense a feeling of urgency among college presidents that something needs to be done immediately to address the issue of integrity in college athletics," said Davis. The proposals are the result of several months of research and meetings and were not prompted by the recent basketball scandals at Tulane. Bill Hunt, the assistant executive director in charge of enforcement, said major violations are those that show a repeated pattern of willful wrongdoing and give a school a clear competitive advantage. Secondary violations will be defined as things that are isolated or technical in nature and provide a limited advantage. The so-called "gas chamber" penalties will come into play when any major violation is found within a five-year period following the starting date of a major penalty. Rogers Hornsby of the St. Louis Cardinals won six consecutive National League batting titles from 1920 through 1925 and hit over .400 three times.

Little League tryouts continue

The response has been heavy for little league baseball and softball tryouts at Optimist Park this week. More than 100 boys 10 to 12 and girls 9 to 12 have signed up for the new season. "We have had a very positive response this year from the parents and kids to the idea of allowing 9 year old boys to have their own league," said one league official. "The 9 year old boys will sign up April 23 and 24 from 5 p.m. to 6 p.m. along with the 7 and 8 year olds who are interested in our 78er league." The Little League season has changed this year with games scheduled for daylight only during the school term and then reverting to the regular 6 p.m. and 8 p.m. starting times thereafter. The first games will be played April 29 with the official opening day scheduled for May 18. Tryouts continue today from 5:30 p.m. to 7 p.m. All youngsters interested in the program who were not on a Little League team last year are urged to attend. Hearing to decide if Oilers have draft rights to Kosar

HOUSTON (AP) — Howard Slusher, representing the Houston Oilers in a dispute over draft rights to University of Miami quarterback Bernie Kosar, said he believes the Oilers will win if National Football League Commissioner Pete Rozelle gives the matter a fair hearing. "I don't see any rational way that Mr. Rozelle can make a decision that would give Kosar the right to escape the April 30 draft," said Slusher, who normally is a player agent but in a strange twist has been hired by the Oilers. "I'm always optimistic that a hearing will always be fair and on its merits. If it is on the merits, there's no way the Houston Oilers can lose. It doesn't even warrant a hearing," Slusher said. The dispute Rozelle must arbitrate centers on whether Kosar should go in the regular collegiate draft or in the supplemental draft. Kosar has said he would give up his two remaining years of college eligibility and graduate early, but he has not submitted a formal letter to the NFL indicating his intent to become eligible for the draft. That could create a supplemental draft for Kosar and give the Cleveland Browns the inside track. The commissioner has said he would rule on the case next week.

Slusher predicted Wednesday that the ruling will be in favor of the Browns. "If the situation were such that a 'have not' club... that is not in the grace of the inner circle of the commissioner, had tried what Cleveland and Buffalo tried to pull off, there wouldn't even be an interview," Slusher said in an interview with KTRH sportscaster Ken Silverstein. "The fact that we have a hearing and the fact that this charade is going on indicates to me that it's not going the way of the Houston Oilers and that Mr. Rozelle is not hearing case on its merits but is trying to find a way to award Mr. Kosar to the Cleveland Browns," Slusher said. Slusher, who has a reputation for advising his clients to hold out for better-paying contracts, showed up Tuesday in New York for a meeting with Rozelle as legal counsel for the Oilers. "While the world knows me as representing players, much of my practice involves corporations," the California-based Slusher said. "In all my years in this business, I've never seen anything like the Kosar dispute." The Oilers, who had the second pick overall in the draft, traded their draft spot to Minnesota and the Vikings hope to draft Kosar. But the Browns also covet Kosar, who grew up in Ohio, and have obtained the supplemental draft rights to him in a deal with the Buffalo Bills. Slusher said Herzog contacted him about a week ago and asked if he would represent the Oilers. Slusher also represents Oiler running back Larry Moriarty, whose contract is in the option year. Tennis Club meets Monday The Pampa Tennis Club will meet at 7 p.m. Monday night in the meeting room of Citizens National Bank. Purpose of the meeting is to discuss the Pampa Open, tentatively scheduled for the first weekend in June. All club members and persons interested in joining the club are urged to attend the meeting.

Jays snap Tigers' streak

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer
The Detroit Tigers won't go 9-0—like they did in 1984. And Manager Sparky Anderson insists they won't go 35-5—like they did in 1984.

The 1984 Tigers didn't lose until their 10th game. The 1985 edition only went 6-0 before succumbing. So?

"This is a better club than 1984, I'll answer that for you right now."

Blue Jays' Jesse Barfield helps snap Tigers' win streak with a three-run homer.

But that doesn't mean they won't repeat as world champions—in 1985. Just when the American League East was starting to fret about another Detroit runaway, the Milwaukee Brewers slowed things down Wednesday by nipping the previously unbeaten Tigers 2-0 behind the two-hit pitching of Danny Darwin.

Anderson said, "I can't even compare the two; this team is just better. But in the American League East you'd better be better." Darwin, who lasted just 4 2-3 innings in his first start, walked one and struck out two in besting Detroit ace Jack Morris, who scattered six hits.

The Tigers' division lead was trimmed to one game over Milwaukee and Baltimore, which defeated Cleveland 6-3. Elsewhere, Toronto shaded Texas 3-1 in 10 innings, Kansas City trimmed Boston 6-1, Oakland whipped Seattle 8-4 and California edged Minnesota 4-3. Chicago and New York were not scheduled.

Blue Jays 3, Rangers 1
Jesse Barfield smashed a three-run homer off reliever Dave Stewart in the bottom of the 10th after Texas had broken open a scoreless game in the top of the inning on Toby Harrah's bases-loaded sacrifice fly off Bill Caudill.

Texas knuckleballer Charlie Hough allowed three hits in 8 1-3 innings while Toronto's Jimmy Key yielded four in 6 2-3.

Royals 6, Red Sox 1
Charlie Leibrandt pitched a four-hitter and light-hitting Buddy Biancalana drilled a three-run homer to lead Kansas City. Leibrandt lost his bid for his first major-league shutout since 1981 with one out in the ninth when Jim Rice singled and scored on Mike Easler's double.

Athletics 8, Mariners 4
Mike Davis belted his fourth homer and scored three runs as Oakland completed a sweep of a three-game series against Seattle, which had won its first six games. Oakland also got three hits from Alfredo Griffin to overcome the continued torrid hitting of Seattle's Jim Presley.

Angels 4, Twins 3
Gary Pettis, who struck out four times in California's previous game, stroked a two-out, two-run single to cap a three-run second inning as the Angels handed the Twins their sixth consecutive setback.

Winner Jim Slaton went six innings for the Angels and Donnie Moore pitched one-hit relief over the final three innings for California's first save of the season.

NL roundup

Mets outslug Pirates, 10-6

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer
The New York Mets got some power from an unexpected source... and put the lights out on the Pittsburgh Pirates.

"I hit a home run a year, but when I hit it, I hit it good," said shortstop Rafael Santana after his homer helped the Mets defeat the Pittsburgh Pirates 10-6 Wednesday night.

The homer was Santana's first of the season and only the second of his 89-game major-league career. He also had a double and scored three runs, duplicating Darryl Strawberry's performance as the Mets won their seventh game in eight starts.

In other NL action, Chicago edged Philadelphia 5-4; Cincinnati trimmed Atlanta 6-1; Montreal tripped St. Louis 2-1 and Los Angeles edged Houston 1-0 in 11 innings.

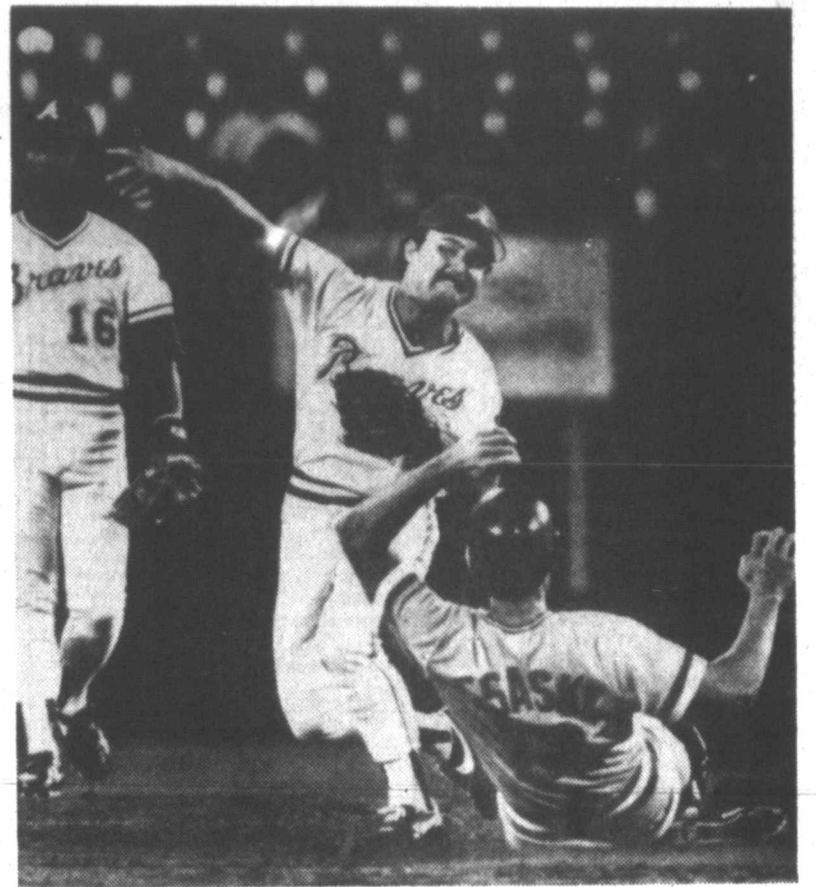

Cubs 5, Phillies 4
Keith Moreland atoned for three errors with a three-run, seventh-inning double that led Chicago over Philadelphia.

Ozzie Virgil's two-run homer off Chicago reliever George Frazier, the first of the season for the Phillies, had given Philadelphia a 3-1 lead in the top of the seventh before the Cubs rallied for their seventh victory in eight games.

Reds 6, Braves 1
Nick Esasky smashed three hits and drove in two runs and Tom Browning scattered six hits to lead Cincinnati over Atlanta.

Esasky singled home a run in a two-run fourth, then singled home another as the Reds broke the game open with three runs in the sixth. Cincinnati added a run in the ninth on Eric Davis' home run.

Browning, 1-0, struck out three and didn't walk a batter in going the distance for the Reds in his second major-league start. Losing pitcher Steve Bedrosian, 0-1, allowed five of the Reds' runs on eight hits. Pete Rose singled in Cincinnati's fourth-inning rally and moved within 86 hits of breaking Ty Cobb's all-time record.

The Braves' Glenn Hubbard forces the Reds' Nick Esasky at second and fires first to complete a double play.

Expos 2, Cardinals 1
Jim Wohlford singled home Andre Dawson from third base with two out in the sixth inning, leading Montreal over St. Louis behind a combined four-hitter by Joe Hesketh and Jeff Reardon. Hesketh, a rookie left-hander, struck out five and walked three in his first start of the year before getting relief help in the eighth from Reardon, who gained his first save. At one point, Hesketh set down 17 straight batters.

Baseball talks stalled again

NEW YORK (AP) — Contract negotiations between baseball's club owners and the Major League Players Association were stalled today as the two sides began an examination of the union's request for detailed financial figures.

The players asked for what management called "comprehensive and voluminous" information, including a club-by-club breakdown, and Donald Fehr, the union's acting executive director, said there would be no further talks until the material is analyzed.

"We have been bargaining for 5 1/2 months and functionally, nothing has happened," Fehr said. "There is no point, against their unwillingness to discuss the issues, to our continuing to meet on an ongoing basis. If they would change their position and talk about the issues, we'd continue. But they have said quite emphatically that they can't discuss the issues until the financial stuff is through."

Lee MacPhail, president of the Player Relations Committee and management's chief negotiator, said, "We are anxious to cooperate by giving the information as promptly as possible so we can direct our attention to important issues involved in reaching a new basic agreement."

He added, however, that the owners wouldn't necessarily give the players everything they had asked for because "there may be some information we feel isn't appropriate."

He also said he thought it might be possible to continue talks while the union studies the data.

Fehr estimated that a study of the information should take a month to six weeks, after which he said he could ask for a strike authorization.

The club owners, for the first time in the history of negotiations, have said that baseball is having severe economic problems and asked for the union's help. That opened the way for the players' representatives to get an unprecedented look at figures provided by management.

At Wednesday's bargaining session, the union for the first time asked for the individual clubs' financial statements.

ROME (AP) — Jean-Luc Godard's film depicting the Virgin Mary as the daughter of a gas station operator is caught in a controversy involving a film club and Roman Catholics offended by the work.

Protesters — including nuns and priests — and supporters marched outside a downtown theater where the film "Je Vous Salue, Marie" (Hail, Mary) made its delayed premiere Wednesday.

The film depicts Mary, played by Myriem Roussel, as a modern woman and shows her nude in some scenes. Joseph, her boyfriend, is a cab driver, and the archangel Gabriel takes a jet to give Mary the news that she will give birth.

Syria said to be pressuring Karami, firing erupts anew

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Syria was reportedly pressuring Prime Minister Rashid Karami to retract the resignation of his national unity government today, as street battles again broke out in west Beirut.

Karami's resignation came Wednesday after fighting between Sunni and Shiite Moslems and their allies from various other militant factions raged for more than 15 hours.

Police said the latest casualty toll stood at 33 killed and 135 wounded.

Machine gun bursts and rocket-propelled grenade explosions shook the city just after 10 a.m. this morning, following a quiet night, sending people diving for cover in the streets.

Shops that had opened after a two-day shutdown quickly lowered their shutters and panicky motorists sped through the streets blowing their horns to get pedestrians out of their way.

Karami, 63, a Sunni Moslem, called the worst fighting in the capital in a year a "horrific nightmare," and announced the resignation after the Sunni militia, Mourabitoun, appeared to have gotten the worst of the fighting.

The Sunni defeat weakened Karami's base of support and he telephoned his resignation to President Amin Gemayel, a Maronite Christian, at the presidential palace in suburban Baabda. Local radio stations said the president asked Karami to stay on until a new government can be formed.

Syria, which has at least 30,000 troops in Lebanon's Bekaa Valley, became the major power broker in the country after the U.S. peacekeeping effort ended in February 1984. Assad sponsored the national unity government Karami formed on April 30, 1984.

In Washington, State Department spokesman Bernard Kalb said the resignation "comes at an untimely moment."

Nation bows in silent tribute

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Rush-hour traffic froze and people halted in mid-stride, heads bowed, at the wail of sirens signaling a two-minute silent tribute today to the six million Jewish victims of the Nazi Holocaust.

Prominent Israelis, angered at President Reagan's plans to visit a West German cemetery in May where members of Hitler's SS stormtroopers are buried, declared the Holocaust must not be forgotten.

Traffic in Israel's cities resembled a frozen tableau at 8 a.m. as drivers halted in the middle of the street, getting out of their cars to stand at attention at the wail of the sirens. Pedestrians bowed their heads.

The annual Holocaust Day observance officially began Wednesday night with commemorative ceremonies for Holocaust survivors.

"We say today to those who took part in the defeat of the Nazi beast that it is their duty too to remember and to remind, to educate and to make sure that this monstrous occurrence never happens again," said Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir at a commemorative Tel Aviv rally Wednesday night, when the annual Holocaust Day observance began.

Although Shamir did not name Reagan, aides who distributed the text of the speech pointed to the remark as indirect criticism of Reagan.

Knesset Speaker Shlomo Hillel told the Israeli parliament Wednesday that Reagan's decision "resembles a contribution, albeit an unwitting one, to the process of forgetting" the Holocaust.

The English-language Jerusalem Post said in an editorial that the commemoration was a chance "to reaffirm the resolve not to allow the memory of the six million ... to be expunged."

Reagan looking toward Contra compromise

WASHINGTON (AP) — Facing stiff opposition to resuming military aid to Nicaraguan rebels, President Reagan appears willing to look at alternatives to his plan for $14 million in new aid, House Democrats say.

As congressional head-counters gave Reagan's plan little hope for House approval, even some longtime supporters of "Contra" aid began publicly calling Wednesday for an approach that would withhold military assistance from the rebels fighting Nicaragua's leftist Sandinista government.

Sen. Sam Nunn of Georgia, a moderate Democrat who has backed Contra aid in the past, proposed a compromise he said would keep pressure on the Sandinistas while putting "military action on the back burner."

"The perception is — right or wrong — that the military option through the Contras has been on the front burner and is the president's course of first resort," Nunn said in a speech to the Coalition for a Democratic Majority, a group of moderate Democrats.

Nunn proposed giving the Contras non-lethal supplies, such as food and medicine, demanding the Sandinistas accept a dialogue with their opponents, and enlisting U.S. allies in an economic embargo on Nicaragua to keep pressure on the Sandinistas. He added if the Sandinistas still refuse to moderate their behavior, Congress should consider resumption of military aid.

Nunn's proposal reflects a growing sense among past supporters of Contra aid that a new approach may be needed to avert Reagan's first major congressional defeat in his second term. The House votes on Contra aid next Tuesday or Wednesday.

Other moderate Democrats who met with Reagan on Wednesday also noted that the president seemed willing to compromise. "He said there is room for negotiation," said Rep. J. Roy Rowland, D-Ga.

But Democratic House members said the president discussed no details of any possible compromise and indicated no intention to reduce the amount of the $14 million in Contra aid, which would start as non-lethal help but could be made military assistance if proposed peace talks fail.

In the Senate, sources who spoke on condition of anonymity said Republican leaders were looking for a way to sidestep any showdown vote at all.

A proposal under discussion by Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, and Sen. David Durenberger, R-Minn., chairman of the Intelligence Committee, would call for a statement of support for the Contras, but end all military assistance, the sources said.

Symposium examines Great Society

AUSTIN (AP) — A group of former White House aides and others gathered at the University of Texas today for a two-day symposium to critique the Great Society programs of President Lyndon Johnson's administration.

The symposium will examine aspects of the war on poverty, civil rights, education and health legislation passed during the Johnson administration.

One session will assess what worked and what failed in the Great Society and the reasons why.

Others will be Vernon E. Jordan, former president of the National Urban League; former labor secretary Ray Marshall; former Johnson press secretary Bill Moyers, now a CBS News commentator; Lawrence F. O'Brien, director of John F. Kennedy's 1960 presidential campaign and an assistant to Kennedy and Johnson, and Sargent Shriver, former Peace Corps director and Democratic vice presidential candidate in 1972.
