•Reagan takes budget case to people

'Make your voices heard'

By TOM RAUM WASHINGTON (AP) -Congressional leaders say a Republican package of spending cuts faces an uphill struggle in Congress, despite President Reagan's nationally broadcast appeal to Americans for "making your voices heard" in support of

The 1986 budget proposal, which includes limits on Social Security cost-of-living increases and the elimination of many popular federal programs, was to undergo its first test in the GOP-run chamber today. Majority Leader Robert Dole, R-Kan., said Reagan's speech on the eve of the start of Senate debate on the plan "raises the odds" for

"It was a good, tough speech, just what we wanted," Dole said. However, he said that, as of now, he still lacks enough commitments for its approval — a vote he said was not likely to be taken for at least 10 days.

Speaking from the Oval Office, Reagan said: "Please tell your senators and representatives, by phone, wire or mailgram, that our future hangs in the balance, that this is no time for partisanship.

The White House said that in the first 40 minutes after Reagan's address, the White House logged 546 telephone calls expressing support for the president's stand and 128 calls voicing opposition, according to deputy press secretary Rusty Brashear.

Reagan said the plan, which would cut $300 billion in federal spending over the next three years, not only deserves your support, it must have your support to pass.

Many senators of both parties have voiced reservations over some of the more sensitive elements of the package including the limits on Social Security and proposed elimination of programs like Amtrak rail passenger service, the Jobs Corps and loans for small businesses

"We stand at a crossroads. The hour is late, the task is large, and the stakes are momentous,' Reagan declared. "I ask you to join us in making your voices heard in the Senate this week and later in Today's Senate vote would permit the plan negotiated by the White House and key Senate Republicans to be formally debated as a package - a vote that Senate and administration officials said was important both symbolically and procedurally.

"It's critical that we win that vote," Budget Director David Stockman told reporters Wednessday night after Reagan's address. "We're throwing everything into it. It isn't the end of the road but it gets us over a major hump in terms of bringing the package through.

Senate Minority Leader Robert Byrd of West Virginia, delivering the Democratic response to Reagan's address, said "I listened carefully. I was disappointed.'' He said the president's plan "shortchanges the future" with its deep spending cuts and is "unfair to most American

And, Byrd said, in proposing a 2 percent cap on Social Security cost-of-living increases in each of the next three years for rates of inflation of up to 4 percent, the president had broken his own promises to the nation's elderly not to tamper with Social Security

"In the absence of strong presidential leadership ... we will propose our own plans for the future," Byrd said.

However, Senate Democrats remained divided on many budget issues and as of late Wednesday had made little progress toward offering an alternative plan.

The White House-backed plan would trim $52 billion from the nation's deficit of more $200 billion in 1986 and reduce the deficit to just under $100 in 1988, without raising

Texas paper wins top Pulitzer prize

Freedom flagship newspaper among award recipients

NEW YORK (AP) — A fiddle band played in the newsroom and the publisher announced $250 bonuses after the Fort Worth Star-Telegram captured the Pulitzer Prize for public service for revealing a design flaw in helicopters that led to the deaths of nearly 250 U.S. servicemen.

The Philadelphia Inquirer and Newsday of Melville, N.Y., each won two Pulitzers for journalism Wednesday. The prize for drama went to the Broadway hit "Sunday in the Park with George," whose music and lyrics were written by Stephen Sondheim with a book by James

The Star-Telegram's reporting by Mark J. Thompson ultimately led the Army to ground almost 600 Huey helicopters pending their modification, the Pulitzer board said. The helicopter, a mainstay of the Army's fleet, was plagued by a design problem called "mast bumping," ' which occurs when the rotor tilts too far and strikes the mast that attaches the blade to the craft.

At the Star-Telegram on Wednesday, champagne flowed, a country music band played in the newsroom, and President and Publisher Phil Meek announced $250 bonuses for everyone on the editorial and circulation staffs.

Newsday won the award for international reporting for a

Nicaraguan policy left in shambles

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Democrat-led House, after two days of bitter debate and dramatic votes, has left President Reagan's policy of aiding Nicaraguan rebels in a shambles, killing all active proposals for resuming U.S. assistance this fiscal year.

Despite presidential lobbying, the House on Wednesday defeated a Republican alternative for $14 million in non-lethal aid by two votes. 215-213. Republicans then joined with liberal Democrats to kill a moderate Democratic alternative, 303-123.

House Majority Leader Jim Wright, D-Texas, said he hoped the bill's defeat would give both the leftist Nicaraguan government and the Reagan administration a "good little breathing spell that might give both sides (the United States and Nicaragua) a cooling-off

But Reagan declared that he had no intention to give up and planned to "return to the Congress again and again to seek a policy that supports peace and democracy in Nicaragua. Our friends in Central America look to us for help against totalitarianism. The president added that the House vote "damages national security and foreign policy

House Republicans said they might try to revive aid to the rebels before the current fiscal year ends Sept. 30 and would definitely seek approval of Reagan's request for $28 million in military support for the rebels in fiscal 1986, which starts Oct. 1.

House Minority Whip Trent Lott, R-Miss., said the Republicans voted against the Democratic alternative, even though it contained $10 million for Nicaraguan refugees, because it would have extended a flat ban on U.S. support for military actions in Nicaragua into the future.

"You might as well send (the rebels) a love letter and tell them they're on their own," said Lott in dismissing the Democratic plan that had cleared the House in a preliminary vote, 219-206

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, D-Mass., who led Democratic efforts to defeat the president's plan, predicted that the Republicans would try to attach aid to the Contras to other legislation this year.

O'Neill said that before the vote, he received a call from Reagan, who wanted the speaker to release members who had pledged him their

The kidney function was stable early Wednesday "but not satisfactory" Lansing said. He was placed on dialysis in the afternoon but doctors noticed substantially decreased breathing sounds from the left chest late in the afternoon and dialysis was stopped, he said.

X-rays showed "a good deal of fluid had accumulated on the left side," Lansing said.

Burcham's blood pressure began falling about 8:30 p.m., and doctors detected blood in the lungs and saw that Burcham was having more difficulty in breathing.

There was rapid deterioration of his condition in the 30 minutes before his death.

Implant surgeon William C. DeVries, who was attending a heart conference in downtown Louisville Wednesday evening, was called to the hospital about 9 p.m. and said he was in Burcham's room of the coronary care unit about 15 or 20 minutes before doctors turned off the key that controlled the life-support machinery

At the time of his death Burcham was hooked not only to the heart's drive system but also to a respirator that controlled his breathing

Fined legislator cuts RRC budget

AUSTIN (AP) - A House member whose company was fined by the Texas Railroad Commission has persuaded the House to cut the commission's 1986-87 appropriation by $900,000.

Railroad Commissioner Jim Nugent said the fine and cut might be related. But Rep. Richard Williamson, D-Weatherford, called that a 'damnable lie.

The $900,000 reduction approved by the House Wednesday was the only reduction in the $36.4 billion two-year budget recommended by the appropriations committee. Williamson said the committee gave the commission $450,000 a year more than it needs for oil and gas

Nugent said the money is needed. "It's just more than we can reasonably stand," he said of the cut. 'I just wonder whether it was motivated by the fact we treated Mr.

Williamson like everybody else, and when he violated the law last year we fined him $3,500.

Raw Energy, a Weatherford company of which Williamson is president, paid a $3,500 fine in an agreed judgment that said the firm failed to comply with commission rules

Mobeetie doing survey of earnings

MOBEETIE - In an effort to secure a state grant for a back-up water well, city officials are asking residents how much they earn.

The city is seeking a grant from the Texas Department of Community Affairs to pay for a water well to back up the one the city built in 1982. To qualify for this grant, the city must meet one of three criteria: to have an urgent need for the project, to have a sizable minority population or to have more than half the community in low income earnings bracket.

"We have no minorities, but the council decided to go ahead with it," Mobeetie Mayor Leona House

But what Mobeetie lacks in minorities, it may make up for in the number of low income residents, according to House, who is surveying residents on their income. She hopes to present the survey at the next Mobeetie city council meeting next week. "You don't get the grant if you don't have the low income," she explained. "The 1980 census had us pretty high, but that was before the oil went out. If everyone tells the truth we should get 51 percent. 'We started the survey to see how many low to moderate income people there are in town;" she said, adding that she expects that a $90,000 grant would cover the costs. The well the city is hoping to fund will back up the city's current 350 foot deep well. "We haven't found a location yet," a city secretary said. "We're still seeing if we're going to be

WASHINGTON (AP) -Secretary of State George P. Shultz, drawing the administration's tightest parallel yet between Vietnam and Nicaragua, today warned that U.S. failure to continue fighting communism in Central American could lead to the same results as the U.S. pullout from Vietnam.

The secretary, pleading for a renewed congressional commitment to the administration's support for guerrillas battling the leftist regime in Managua, said of the Sandinistas:

State budget given tentative OK in House

AUSTIN (AP) — The $36.4 billion two-year state budget scheduled for final approval by the House today can get Texas through the next two years without a tax hike, says Speaker Gib Lewis.

The House has cut where possible, spent where mandated and skimped throughout. A 135-11 vote on Wednesday gave tentative approval to the 1986-87 spending plan.

"We addressed the needs for the next biennium and certainly this will cut off any need for a tax increase," Lewis said. "I think this might not be what everyone wants, but I think it's what everyone can live with."

Though some still fear a tax hike is needed to balance the budget, Lewis is confident the $106 million fee hike bill and a college tuition increase of about $280 million will pay the way.

The final appropriations bill will be penned by a House-Senate conference committee. The Senate version is still undergoing committee scrutiny.

Spending for the current biennium is $32.4 billion, about 12 percent less than the House recommended for 1986-87. But the proposed budget is 3.2 percent less than current spending when inflation and growth are figured in, according to budget analysts.

Declining oil prices and expensive court-ordered reforms in state prisons and mental health care have contributed to this year's budget crunch.

"There were severe cuts made in some areas," said Lewis. "We addressed the priority issues, such as the social problems of this state, the prison system which we had to address, the mental health and mental retardation facilities — and at the same time we tried to restore adequate funding to higher education and public education."

The Department of Corrections spending would increase by 17 percent to $842 million for the two years. The Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation budget, $1.2 billion for the two years, includes $64 million for additional staff required in a federal court order.

The package includes a possible 3 percent per year pay hike for the 180,000 state employees. The raises are contingent upon passage of seven revenue bills.

Two major floor fights broke out during Wednesday's debate in the House Funds for University of Texas of the Permian Basin and Texas A&M at Galveston were restored, but only after some heated words about Odessa Rep. Kelly Godwin. The freshman wanted the UTPB money put back in, but he voted against the fee bill Tuesday.

Houston Rep. Al Luna reminded Godwin there is no "free lunch."

The other fight ended with repeated rejection of attempts to kill funds for teacher competency tests mandated last year by the Legislature. The appropriations committee recommended $6.5 million for the basic skills tests approved as part of the education reform package.

Teachers who don't pass the test by June 1986 would be barred from Texas classrooms. The test was targeted by several members who thought they had better ways to spend the $6.5 million

"It's a bad use of our dollars, a very poor investment," said Rep. Tony Polumbo, D-Houston, who wanted to use the money to help the unemployed.

Abilene Rep. Gary Thompson, who wanted to use the $6.5 million to raise the amount spent to help students pay private college tuition, said the competency test has "certainly earned the hostility of a great many of our teachers."

Both those efforts failed. Polumbo came back with a straight kill-the-test amendment. It was defeated 85-54

"Why is it we single out one profession? Why is it we always pick on the teachers as an easy target?"

he asked, calling the tests "insulting" to teachers.

But Dallas Rep. Bill Hammond said the school reform bill and accompanying tax hike included a promise to Texans that incompetent teachers would be weeded out of the classroom.

Final tuition vote is delayed by Senate

A final vote on a tuition increase bill was expected after a day's delay to muster 21 votes to put the measure into immediate effect.

The Senate starting time was moved up two hours today to 9 a.m. On Wednesday, the Senate approved a bill that would shorten the period a felon must wait before being allowed to vote.

Senators tentatively approved a $279 million tuition increase Tuesday on an 18-11 vote, but Sen. Gonzalo Barrientos said Wednesday the opposition was solid — "men of steel," he joked — and could block a final vote.

Also, 21 favorable votes would be needed to put the bill into immediate effect, and Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby said, "We need money this biennium. I need immediate effect."

Barrientos, D-Austin, said amendments were being prepared that would raise tuition for only two years and would allow colleges to waive tuition for certain students.

The bill tentatively approved would triple tuition this fall for Texans, to $12 per semester hour. Out-of-state students also would pay three times as much, or $120 per semester hour. The second year, residents would pay $16 a semester hour, and non-residents the same $120.

Tuition for resident medical and dental students would go up from $400 a year to $800 in the fall and to $1,219 the next year. Veterinary students would pay $600 and $800 respectively. Non-residents would pay four times as much.

"The third year just stays the same as the second," said Hobby. "That doesn't hurt anything. This biennium there's going to be an interim committee on higher education, and they'll look at the whole thing again so the whole issue will be open next session anyway."

The Senate approved on voice vote the first extensive revision of the Texas Election Code in 34 years. Sponsor Chet Edwards, D-Duncanville, described the current code as a "maze of confusing language with gaps and duplications."

He said the new version, which now goes to the House, would "bring the election laws of this state into the 20th Century."

Debate focused on restoring the voting rights of felons, who now must wait five years after their must wait five years after their sentences are completed to vote. An amendment that would reduce the waiting period to two years was approved 16-13.

Sen. Craig Washington,

D-Houston, argued for an amendment that would eliminate the waiting period altogether but it was rejected 16-14. "Once you've paid your debt to society, it has been paid," said Washington.

Edwards sided with Washington, saying, "Punishment should be left to the TDC (Texas Department of Corrections), not the election system."

The proposed code also provides that the biennial state party convention currently held in September be held in June so that in presidential years it can be held in conjunction with the state convention for selecting delegates to the national nominating convention.

Time change nice, simple

Daylight Savings Time arrives Sunday, and I am ready for it.
Unlike some complainers, I'm all in favor of it. I enjoy the sun and its light. Since I'm usually at work during the day, I don't get much of a chance to enjoy the spring and summer sun at its optimum, so I welcome the additional hours of light DST gives me after work.

I don't go to drive-in movies much, so I have no quarrel with the cutback in double features there.

Over the years, the initial complaints against DST have dwindled. You know the ones: "The extra sunlight is killing my plants." "The extra hours of daytime have messed up my chickens' roosting habits."

. I at first found such complaints unbelievable. How could anyone be so dumb, I thought. But then I recalled the people who have been elected president in the past couple of decades, so I didn't find the DST complaints so incredible to believe anymore.

And while such idiocies have dwindled, they haven't disappeared. They'll show up in some humorous news feature on television or on Paul Harvey's broadcast.

One complaint with perhaps some validity is the protestation of some parents about their children having to go to school while it's still dark outside. But having taught some, I don't see that as a really valid complaint; most students are constantly in the dark anyway, light or no light.

But there are some drawbacks to DST. For one, the sun still comes up too early in mid-summer. That sure interferes with my attempts to sleep late, especially when those up - with - the - sunners drag out their lawn mowers before we decent people are awake.

For another, DST doesn't last long enough, Winter comes, DST.

For another, DST doesn't last long enough. Winter comes, DST disappears and the sun goes back to its early afternoon withdrawal, barely giving me time to get home before the shadows of night fall across the road.

In fact, I would like to see the whole system of measuring days change.

The spring, summer and early fall days should be 25 or 26 hours long, allowing us to enjoy the light more, and the warm weather, the laid-back enjoyment offered by the milder seasons and the extra time remaining after our eight-hour workdays.

Parties could last longer. We could work more in our yards and gardens to make greater inroads against the weeds and pests. And we could just settle down and truly enjoy the peace of sitting out on our porches or terraces on warm nights, relaxing, easing the tensions, enjoying conversation with family and friends.

In contrast, late fall, winter and early spring days should only last 22 or 23 hours long. Then the cold days and nights, the blustery winter storms and, worst of all, those dang windy days wouldn't last so long and we could get through them more quickly.

Now admittedly there's some problems in devising such a system.

I'm sure our technological expertise could devise clocks and watches to match the times of the days under such seasonal shifts in time. We manage to take care of the extra day in Leap Years okay.

So some mechanism could be devised, I'm sure. As long as we kept the government out of it, anyway.

But there's the greater problem: How do we get Mother Nature to accept such an arrangement?

I'm smart enough to know changing the clocks won't actually change the length of a day.

So I know it wouldn't actually work. Still, it's nice to think of the

For those who wonder what to do with their clocks Sunday, just remember: "Spring forward, fall back." In other words, before you go to bed Saturday night (or early Sunday morning, depending on how you spend your weekends), set your clock forward one hour. For example, if it's 11 p.m., move it forward to 12 midnight.

Simple to remember, right?
Want to take any bets on how many phone calls the newspaper, radio stations, television stations and libraries get Friday and Saturday asking whether to set the clocks forward or backward?
Simple is too simple for some people, I guess.

Two whooping cranes lost during winter

AUSTWELL, Texas (AP) — One of an 85-member flock of endangered whooping cranes was killed and another was lost during their annual fall migration to Texas, wildlife officials said.

This year's flock was the largest since the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service began counting the endangered birds in 1937, said Frank Johnson, manager of the Aransas National Wildlife Refuge.

The flock lost a chick — one of 15 young whoopers making the trip — that wandered off and settled in a rice farm with a flock of sandhill cranes, Johnson said.

But Johnson said wildlife officials did not try to retrieve the bird.

"They're pretty shy and if you try to catch one, they may go into shock and die," Johnson said. Another crane was killed by a predator bird, officials said.

The flock was making its annual trip to the Aransas Refuge from summer nesting grounds in Wood Buffalo National Park in Canada.

Five whoopers were still at the refuge last week while the remaining cranes headed north to Canada via Oklahoma, Kansas, Nebraska, and the Dakotas, Johnson said.

There were only 14 of the large birds in existence in North America in 1942. Today 149 whooping cranes live in captivity and in two flocks, including the Texas-Canadian birds and an

the West.
Florida, Georgia and Michigan are being considered as sites for a second experimental flock, officials said.

experimental flock established in

Although the whooping crane population is increasing, the species is still in danger of extinction, officials said.

In 1981, scientists began a three-year tracking project to study the birds' migratory patterns. The researchers attached small radios to some birds' legs and tracked the radio's beep from Canada to Texas and back.

Wildlife scientists also learned power lines are a hazard to the whoopers, which are awkward travelers with their 5-foot height and 7-foot wingspans.

Environmentalists to square off with EPA over burning

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Environmentalists hoped thousands of South Texas residents would join them and state-elected officials today to voice opposition to proposed ocean burning of toxic wastes in the Gulf of Mexico.

"I think that will be the only thing that will affect the decision," said Sue Ann Fruge of the Gulf Coast Coalition for Public Health. Ocean incineration "has the scrutiny of the nation," she said.

The coalition has had the most vocal opposition to the burning of toxic wastes. In November 1983, more than 6,000 people attended a public hearing to voice their opposition. The Environmental Protection Agency delayed the granting of permits to companies wishing to burn toxic wastes in May 1984 so that more studies could be conducted.

Among those scheduled to testify at the all-day hearing today were Gov. Mark White, Attorney General Jim Mattox, area state legislators, members of the coalition, students, and officials from Chemical Waste Management Inc., which owns two ships that burn toxic wastes.

"There's a misconception. This is ocean incineration, not ocean dumping," said Bill Brown, director of marine affairs for Chemical Waste Management. "It's very easy to oppose something because it's a big ship that's carrying a lot of waste."

The Brownsville hearing is the third in a series of public hearings being conducted across the country on proposed ocean incinceration.

Environmentalists have complained the EPA is not making the public aware of hearings or making available the agency's background reports on ocean incineration.

Opponents also protest a proposal to grant 10-year permits to companies to operate ocean incinerators. They contend that the technology has not been properly tested.

EPA officials, although saying they are neutral on the issue, have said their reports conclude ocean incineration poses no greater risk than land-based incineration, but also said continuing research is needed.

Federal officials are considering at least two ocean incinerations two sites, 200 miles off the Texas-Louisiana coast and one off the Delaware-New Jersey coast. On Wednesday, Mrs. Fruge and community leaders addressed a rally at Texas Southmost College and the group of about 50 walked 10 blocks to another rally.

Along the way, marchers, some wearing gas masks and carrying placards, chanted, "No more PCBs."

PCBs — polychlorinated biphenyls, once used as electrical coolant until manufacture of the substance was banned in 1977 — are only part of what's proposed to be burned at sea.

Mrs. Fruge said the proposed ocean incineration issue has unified Rio Grande Valley residents.

The coalition has newspaper advertisements telling about the public hearing and also has hit the airwaves.

A television commercial shows a family of four on the beach and the theme of the movie "Jaws" begins.

"Just when you thought it was safe to go into the water —— ocean

Wonderful world of the computer

Those of us who spent time in the Army won't be surprised at such a snafu. And those of us who have ordered a pair of shoes from a mail order catalog and ended up with a lawnmower can take humorous satisfaction in someone else's plight.

Army officials at Fort Carson, Colo., say human and computer error conspired to place a ship's anchor on the grounds of a land-locked U.S. Army base.

A maintenance unit at the fort, located outside Colorado Springs, ordered a $6.04 incandescent lamp, but wound up with a $28.560 anchor, probably build for use on a destroyer or light cruiser.

The anchor's journey began early in March when the bulb was requisitioned by computer. Instead of typing in the correct order number — 2040-00-368-4792 — a clerk typed in 1040-00-368-4772. The one-digit error in the order number made it an order for "anchor, marine fluke" instead of a light bulb.

The ordering error was not caught in requistion review on base and, because the order number did correspond to an available item, the computer validated the order. The anchor then was shipped from Sharpe Army Dept in Lathrop, Calif., and was delivered to Fort Carson on March 25.

'Someone astutely observed that it was not a lamp... an army officer wryly observed.

All is not lost, though. Fort Carson officials are using the "anchor example" in their training for parts-ordering clerks, showing them what can result from giving a computer the wrong command.

Still, returning a ship's anchor has to be more difficult than exchanging a lawnmower for a pair of shoes. The anchor example gives new meaning to the adage that if you really want to foul things up, use a computer.

The Vietnam connection

But, Dr. Kirkpatrick, why? Why would Americans NOT support Nicaraguans fighting the Marxist - Leninists who grabbed control of their country six years ago?

We are talking about - what? Fourteen - million dollars of aid. Not much in all conscience to give to people committed to pluralism and democracy. Yet powerful elements in Congress, even unto the speaker of the House, won't have any part of the president's aid request.

Jeane Kirkpatrick leans forward. Outside the Dallas hotel room, appropriately enough at this Gothic juncture, it's raining cats and dogs.

"I just think it's extraordinary," says Dr. Kirkpatrick. "I think it's kind of a Vietnam hangover. For reasons that are not wholly clear to me, the leadership group which opposes the support to the CONTRAS (i.e., the freedom fighters) and also opposes military assistance to the government of El Salvador and tries to cut assistance to the government of El Salvador and tries to cut assistance to Honduras regularly, the best thing I can imagine is that they're simply bogged down intellectually in a false analogy between Vietnam and Central America.'

No, $14 million isn't much money - and by the way the president promises it would be used for food and medical supplies so long as the Sandinistas talked seriously to the rebels about peace and free elections. What makes the $14 million count mainly is symbolism.

To give is to show solidarity with people fighting for freedom in a vital region very near America's borders. To withhold is - well, it doesn't take a Jeane Kirkpatrick to infer the meaning of THAT.

Dr. Kirkpatrick came to Dallas last week to

If anyone knows the Sandinistas, Robelo knows them. He once fought alongside them. A businessman, he helped to overthrow the Somoza regime. He was one of five members of the Junta of National Reconstruction formed in July 1979. Nine months later he resigned.

speak in behalf of the president's aid request. Likewise in town was a leading anti - Sandinista political figure, Alfonso Robelo Callejas.

It was plain by then that Nicaragua had merely exchanged one despot for a whole gang of despots with a program far deadlier to freedom than any ever concocted by Somoza Robelo, like Dr. Kirkpatrick, called the $14 million a symbolic thing. So also a practical thing: If the Sandinistas know the United States is standing by its friends, they may decide to talk seriously about free elections and the restoration of civil liberties. "It would be beautiful," he says, "if we could stop the bloodshed.

The trick of course is selling this entirely sensible view of things to a House controlled more or less by Tip O'Neill. It isn't plain exactly what O'Neill hopes to accomplish by batting down the aid request.

Would this stop the fighting? Clearly not. The anti - Sandinistas are patriots; they want their country back. Without U.S. aid - which was cut off nearly a year ago - they will fight less effectively. But they will fight.

Let us be clear what they will be up against. The Soviet bloc last year delivered 18,000 metric tons of military supplies to Nicaragua (up from 6,700 in 1982). Some forty Nicaraguan military facilities were built with $70 million of Soviet aid, among them the longest military runway in Central America, still under construction. The Sandinista armed forces, 62,000 strong, have 110 Soviet tanks; they are advised and trained by Soviets, East Germans, Libyans, and PLO members

And Tip O'Neill begrudges $14 million in American aid!

It IS "extraordinary," to borrow Jeane Kirkpatrick's word. What moral or intellectual justification can there possibly be for cutting the CONTRAS adrift? Do our congressmen know who this country's friends are, or do they not?

The question is the more unsettling, because Dr. Kirkpatrick is right: There is a Vietnam parallel, albeit not the kind O'Neill may think.

Ten years ago this month Congress sold out meaning, refused to aid - Cambodia, Laos, and South Vietnam as the Communists closed in for

On March 12, 1975, a Connecticut congressman, Christopher Dodd, protested in this rise against further U.S. aid to Cambodia:

"The greatest gift our country can give to the Cambodian people is not guns but peace. And the best way to accomplish that goal is by ending military aid now.'

Military aid was duly ended. Cambodia fell promptly to the Communist Khmer Rouge. There were then seven - million Cambodians. Within three years the Communists had murdered or starved to death more than two million of them.

Congressman Dodd is today a U.S. senator. He opposes aiding America's friends in Nicaragua. He wants that country, too, at last to have peace.

We learn that after we leave home to go off to work or school. Before, when we lived in the house kept by our mothers, we thought all sorts of things were necessary to keep body and soul together. Things like extra sheets and pillowcases, more than one towel, a place other than the floor to put your socks and underwear, baking soda, casserole dishes, dishwashing liquid, little ceramic figures of ducks and sheep and milking maids all over the Men soon learn you don't need any of that stuff. Give a man a bed to sleep in, a chair to sit on, a television and one of those neon beer signs he stole when he was in college and he's set.

Problem with cracking Japan market

place, and a mop.

A Japanese friend some time ago told me of a minor family dispute. His daughter had demanded that he change his brand of beer. She had recently gone to work for one of Japan's huge business combines and wanted only its beer in the house. although her own job had nothing to do with brewing or selling the stuff. Company loyalty is taken seriously

My friend said he resolved the matter — to his if not her satisfaction by agreeing to switch, provided she paid for the beer. Loyalty lessened a

In its very small way, the incident is revealing of one aspect of the Japanese trade problem.

A few great conglomerates dominate the Japanese economy — producing or importing raw materials, manufacturing products and marketing them to consumers. Mitsubishi, for an example, mines coal, makes autos, builds ships, operates retail stores and owns hanks.

It is a complex and in most cases enormously profitable production and distribution system that in the United States would run afoul of the antitrust laws. It is not only legal in Japan, it is the accepted way of doing business. But it makes it difficult for foreigners to do business in Japan. It can be extremely difficult to break into the production-distribution chain, especially with a competitive product. This is one contributing factor to the swelling American trade deficit with Japan. It has nothing to do with tariffs, restrictive product quotas or Japanese government policy, things that account for most of the criticism from our side. The government probably would be unable to change the system - at least not without a lengthy and bruising political battle if it tried.

But there is another factor that is the government's doing. It is the Ministry of International Trade and Industry - MITI, for short.

Unlike the closed system of domestic cartels, MITI arouses more envy then anger among Japan's trading partners. It has acquired an awesome reputation as the master planner of explosive economic growth and relentless assault upon foreign markets In reality, it is something less than all-powerful and all-knowing. MITI's mission is to take a long-range view of the Japanese economy's potential and problems, recommending expansion in the most promising growth areas and phasing out industries in decline.

It can only recommend, however, not order. It has no enforcement powers as such over private industry, although its control of government research and development expenditures can make its recommendations powerfully persuasive.

MITI has had its misses as well as hits. Japanese automakers, for example, began their export drive more than a decade ago against the advice of MITI, which regarded the long dominant American industry as too solidly entrenched to be challenged successfully.

Still, MITI provides a continuing and comprehensive overview of the economy that is not matched by any other major industrial nation.

Where it has been most effective, in respect to the overall well-being of the economy, has been in overseeing the orderly withdrawal from industries in which Japan has lost the competitive edge. Resources are redirected to areas of growth. Shipbuilding, where the cost-effective leadership has passed to South Korea, is a current example.

Which suggests that MITI may be one Japanese product that is not for export

The American way has been to protect the dying industry no matter what the cost to the economy - and judging from the protectionist sounds coming out of Congress, it still is.

New faces around Reagan under Regan house-cleaning

By MICHAEL PUTZEL AP White House Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) - Donald T. Regan, who took over less than three months ago as White House chief of staff, has replaced almost every key aide to President Reagan in a quiet revolution that has cemented Regan's authority at the outset of the second term.

From the president's personal aide to his personal physician and from the assistant handling the paper flow to and from his desk to the person in charge of status symbols and perquisites in the president's house, Reagan is surrounded by new faces.

When Deputy Chief of Staff Michael K. Deaver leaves after the president's European trip next month, Reagan will be practically the only veteran of his long march to the White House who still has an office in the West Wing, the epicenter of presidential power.

Although Chief of Staff Regan's effectiveness in carrying out the hasty turnover can't be questioned,

An AP News Analysis

it remains to be seen whether his new team can learn to give the president the kind of support and protection that enabled Reagan to score two landslide election victories and a series of stunning legislative triumphs before the second-term changeover. When Treasury Secretary Regan swapped jobs with James A. Baker III in February, each took his closest aides with him, which was to be expected. But for Regan, it was just the beginning of a broader housecleaning.

Under the committee-style leadership of Reagan's first term, Baker had assembled a legion of aides with the title of assistant to the president, the highest rank of presidential service.

At times there were more than 15 members of the senior staff who enjoyed at least theoretical access to the president.

The lengthening list of resignations has left White House counsel Fred F. Fielding as the only member of the senior staff Reagan named on Jan. 20, 1981, who remains at his post.

Pair indicted in 'revenge bombing'

HOUSTON (AP) - Two men have been indicted on charges of bombing the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms to avenge a firearms seizure that agents conducted at one of the suspects' homes, a federal prosecutor says.

Kenneth James Martz, 40, of Humble and Michael O'Shaughnessy, 38, of Houston were indicted Thursday on malicious damage and weapons

The March 24 bombing took place two days after agents seized a huge cache of firearms, ammunition and bomb parts at Martz's home, Assistant U.S.

attorney Jim Powers said.

"It was a clear revenge act for searching his house," Powers said of Martz. "It was my understanding he was quite upset."

No one was hurt in the blast and the second-floor ATF office was not damaged, but 11 windows in the building were blown out, authorities said.

Powers said Martz denied the bombing at an earlier hearing, but authorities have linked fragments of two hand grenades found in the building with 49 hand grenade components seized at the Martz

Martz is charged with nine felony counts, including maliciously damaging a building with explosives, possessing unregistered hand grenades and other unregistered weapons and illegally possessing the weapons as a felon. He was on probation for a previous counterfeiting conviction

O'Shaughnessy is charged with two counts of malicious damage and one count of illegally possessing hand grenades. Martz's wife, Sharon Steele Martz, 27, also is charged with four counts of possessing unregistered

Dear Abby

Husband's forgetfulness no longer thorn in wife's side

By Abigail Van Buren

my husband of forgetting special occasions such as my birthday, our anniversary, etc. We had been married only three years when I had a feeling "George" was going to forget again, so I phoned the florist and had him send me a dozen roses with a card that read: "From someone who loves you very much.'

When George came home, I met him at the door with a big kiss and thanked him for the flowers. He didn't say anything, but he looked surprised. About half an hour later he picked up the card and read it, then he admitted that he had not sent the roses-but he demanded to know who did. (Yes, he was really jealous.) I burst out laughing and told him I had sent them to myself. He looked relieved. That was the last time George forgot my birthday. SNEAKY IN SAN DIEGO

DEAR SNEAKY: Lovely. Read on for another "sneaky" giftgetting gimmick.

DEAR ABBY: We'd been married two years when my husband forgot both my birthday and our anniversary, which are only a week apart. I was hurt, and also angry, so the next day I went to the most exclusive ladies' store in town and bought myself an outfit that cost about three times as much as I usually paid.

That night, I modeled my new outfit for my husband and he said he liked it very much. I told him I was glad because since he'd forgotten my birthday and our anniversary, I would consider it his gift to me-then I gave him a big hug and dropped the bill in his lap!

Twelve years have passed, and my darling has never again forgotten

HAPPY IN WISCONSIN

DEAR ABBY: I'm 83 years old and have two lovely daughters who love me dearly and would do anything for me. I have never had a problem concerning them, but I have one now.

My days are numbered, I'm sure, and before I go, I'd like you to tell me what to do.

You see, I have a ring that I'm sure both girls would like to have to Hollywood, Calif. 90038.)

DEAR ABBY: Here's how I cured remember me by. I don't want any hard feelings between them, so I am torn. The oldest lives out of town, so she isn't able to spend as much time with me as her sister, who lives close by. The younger one takes me shopping, to my doctor's and does my errands. I'm sure her sister would do the same if she could. She calls and writes and sends me gifts. I ask you, Abby, who should have the ring? NO NAME, PLEASE

DEAR NO NAME: Tell your daughters that you want both of them to have the ring, so each may keep it for six months, then give it to the other for six months. And if that's not agreeable, they can draw straws.

DEAR ABBY: This is in response to "Worried Sick," the bride whose parents are divorced, and whose mother threatens to stay away from the wedding if the father gives the bride away.

I faced the same situation. I felt that if I couldn't give my daughter away and escort her down the aisle, I would be publicly renouncing my parentage. But I didn't want to force my daughter to choose between her mother and me, so the problem was resolved this way: I asked the minister if it would be possible for the bride to meet her future husband at the back of the church so that he could escort her down the aisle. I reasoned that since they would be spending the rest of their lives together (hopefully), why not let them begin by walking down the aisle together?

The minister thought it was an excellent solution.

Goya's print series on exhibit

PANHANDLE - Presently on display at the Carson County Square House Museum is the first exhibition in the Texas Panhandle ever devoted to the last, and most critical, of Francisco Goya's print series, "Los Proverbios."

The exhibition comes to the Square House Museum through the Sarah Campbell Blaffer Foundation of Houston. It is to be exhibited until May 20. For further information on the exhibition or on tours of the show, contact the museum at P.O. Box 276, Panhandle, or call 537-3118.

The artist, Francisco Jose Goya y Lucientes, was born in 1746 in a peasant village near Saragossa, Spain. Although his father was merely a poor frame gilder and his mother a member of the improverished Spanish nobility, he was endowed with a combination of Spain's political turmoil and his artistic talent and restless ambition which carried him to the highest levels of the Spanish royal

By 1781 he was appointed personal painter to King Charles IV. Goya's zest for living seldom deserted him, even though it was subjected to brutal tests. He suffered two serious illnesses, one of which left him totally deaf at age 46. He watched with horror the barbaric Napoleonic wars as they ravaged Spain, and he witnessed sickening displays of ineptitude by the Spanish rulers. In his etchings and paints, however, he revealed a fervent sense of humanity, a passion for reason, and a deeply felt empathy for the sufferings of the world around him.

Against the background of own bouts with crippling illnesses, Goya began to explore through etchings the dark underside of the pretentious, court society which surrounded him. By 1824 he had completed his most personal and devastating satires of Spanish life, "Los Disparates" (follies) or "Los Proverbios," the proverbs. With these works, Goya took etching and social comment - to heights seldom reached before or since. Students and admirers of Goya have been puzzled by this last series of prints since their publication in 1864, 36 years after his death. Goya had worked on these plates as an elderly man and had stored them in Madrid unnumbered, unpublished and unexplained. Based loosely on Spanish proverbs, these prints transcend mere illustration of folk sayings in order to present biting satires on the social and political follies of man using images drawn from the distorted world of dreams and nightmares.

Such satire was dangerous, however, in 18th century Spain which was still controlled both by a petulant aristocracy and by the powerful Catholic Inquisition; the subjects of the etchings are therefore nearly obscured in the intensely personal reinterpretations of reality Goya presents. Yet it is this very subjectivity which lies at the heart of modern art. In studying Goya's works, we are studying the first public confrontation between modern history and a modern

Junk mail isn't junk in this small Iowa city

By CYNTHIA BENJAMIN Associated Press Writer

MOUNT PLEASANT, Iowa (AP) - Mailboxes crammed full of "junk mail" may cause you to complain, but this small southeastern Iowa city has an 80,000-square-foot warehouse full of the stuff - and no one complains.

Metromail Corp. is one of Mount Pleasant's largest employers, with 325 full-time workers out of a population of 7,320. It sends out 400 million pieces of mail a year, generating more than $20 million for the city's post office. Every day three or four post office trailers, laden with up to 40,000 pounds of third-class mail, roll out of Metromail's plant. And every day up to 90 trailers filled with brightly colored brochures, sweepstakes cards, free samples and mail-order offers arrive at the plant to be processed for mailing. Keith Koch, vice president and plant manager for Metromail, wants it known first and foremost that his company is not in the "junk mail" business. The preferred term, he said, is "advertising

"We feel very strongly that we're servicing a large part of the advertising industry with a product that is not junk, with a product that is very expensive material," Koch

George O'Brien, vice president of the Mail Advertising Service Association in Washington, said the term "junk mail" was coined by newspapers when advertising mail cut into newspaper revenues. Metromail is in the business of targeting markets for specific

The targeting is conducted at the company's headquarters in Lincoln, Neb., where a computer stores information on 75 million households and 85 million individuals, which may be the largest mailing list in the nation, Koch said.

Advertisers send truckloads full of their unassembled advertising mail to Mount Pleasant, where it is assembled, addressed, sorted and Targeting has become so sophisticated that an advertiser can request that products be sent to a city, or just a ZIP code or even just to homes along one specific mail carrier's route.

Advertisers can also target people to receive their mailings based on age and income, and whether they own homes or regularly buy by mail.

Metromail, which is one of the largest mailing services in the country, has mailed orders from 500 to 20 million pieces, Koch said. On a single day, more than 4 million pieces of mail may move out of the plant.

O'Brien said that in 1984, the U.S. Postal Service handled 48.2 billion pieces of third-class mail, compared to 22.5 billion pieces in 1974. Of the 1984 volume, members of the Mail Advertising Service Association accounted for about half, he said One of the myths that has helped villianize "junk mail" is that the post office is forced to subsidize third-class mail, O'Brien and Koch said. Actually, third-class mail pays for itself and then some, they

Another myth, Koch said, is that people do not like junk mail.

But after all is said and done, if junk mail is still just junk to you. you can ask advertisers to remove your name from their lists

Withdrawal add uncertainty to relations with Syria

By NICOLAS B. TATRO Associated Press Writer

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) Israel's withdrawal from a confrontation line with Syria's army in eastern Lebanon has created new uncertainties that could lead to Syrian-Israeli clashes

As part of its ongoing withdrawal from Lebanon, Israel's army on Wednesday pulled back about 12 miles from the line that zig-zagged across the farm fields of the Bekaa

P&G drops controversial trademark from packages

CINCINNATI (AP) - Jerry Falwell, Billy Graham and the archbishop of Chicago couldn't stop people from spreading "outrageous, vicious lies" suggesting that Procter & Gamble Co. has links to Satanism, and the soap giant has decided to drop its century-old moon-and-stars logo.

"How it started originally we have no idea, and how it restarted we have no idea," P&G spokesman Bill Dobson said Wednesday after the company announced it would phase out use of the logo on its products.

The trademark now appears on such products as Ivory soap, Folger's coffee, Cheer and Tide detergents, Scope mouthwash, Crest toothpaste, Crisco shortening and Jif peanut butter.

The decision was prompted by frustration over an inability to quash a wave of rumors that first crested with 15,000 telephone calls from consumers in July 1982, said officials of P&G, which ranked 22nd on the Fortune 500 list of U.S. corporations in 1984 with sales of $12.94 billion.

The rumors say P&G put the trademark - showing a crescent man in the moon and 13 stars - on all packages as a symbolic link with Satanism

More than 14,000 people have called the company about the rumors this year, including more than 7,000 so far this month, Dobson said. In all, more than 100,000 consumers have called or written about the rumors.

Public Notice

Southwestern Bell Telephone Company, in accordance with the rules of the Public Utility Commission of Texas, hereby gives notice of the Company's intent to implement a new schedule of telephone rates in Texas, effective May 6, 1985, unless otherwise determined by the Commission. The Public Utility Commission of Texas has received the application as Docket 6200.

While proposals as to specific rates vary, it is expected that the requested rate schedule will furnish a 10.5 percent increase in the Company's unadjusted test year intrastate revenues or a 9.7% increase in test year revenues as adjusted for test year customer growth and annualization of test year rate increases. The rate application seeks an annual increase of $323.9 million in revenues. All customers and classes of customers of Southwestern Bell Telephone Company within Texas will be affected by the proposed changes.

Most rates proposed for increase would increase by about 18.5 percent, including local exchange rates. However, there are some exceptions. For example, those customers residing in cities that will be reclassified into larger rate groups will experience local exchange rate increases greater than 18.5 percent. Also, the rate increases proposed for private line services in El Paso, due to a proposal to restructure such rates, are greater than 18.5 percent.

A complete copy of the new rate schedule is on file with the Public Utility Commission at Austin, Texas and with each affected incorporated municipality served by Southwestern Bell Telephone Company. The Commission staff has contended in the past that all rates are subject to change as a result of Southwestern Bell Telephone Company's rate application. This filing includes, but is not limited to, proposals to increase rates for local exchange service, intraLATA long distance, intra-LATA interexchange private line service (which includes foreign exchange service) and to decrease certain access service rates.

Notice to Customers of Other

Telephone Companies This filing includes, but is not limited to, proposals to increase rates for intraLATA long distance and for intraLATA, interexchange private line service (which includes foreign exchange service) and to decrease certain access service rates. Changes in such rates would also affect customers of other telephone companies because such companies provide certain services in accordance with rates specified in Southwestern Bell Telephone Company's tariffs.

Notice to All Customers Concerning Access

Charges and Certain New Service Charges
Southwestern Bell Telephone Company, as a part of this filing, is also proposing to reduce cer-tain access rates charged such customers as AT&T Communications, Inc., MCI and other carriers. The resulting reduction in revenues is proposed to be offset by revenues from two new service charges, late payment charges applicable to business customers only and for certain operator services such as busy line verification, plus stimulation of access service charge revenues. Since this portion of the filing, if granted, would have essentially a zero net revenue effect on Southwestern Bell Telephone Company, Southwestern Bell Telephone Company is proposing that this portion of the filing be expeditiously handled by the Commission and not await Final Order.

Persons who wish to intervene or otherwise participate in these proceedings should notify the Commission as soon as possible. A request to intervene, participate, or for further information should be mailed to the Public Utility Commission of Texas, 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard, Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757. Further information may also be obtained by calling the Public Utility Commission Consumer Affairs Division at (512) 458-0223 or (512) 458-0227, or (512) 458-0221 teletypewriter for the deaf

Aviso Público

En conformidad con las disposiciones de la Comisión de Servicios Públicos de Texas, Southwestern Bell Telephone Company anuncia mediante el presente aviso su intención de establecer un nuevo arancel de tarifas telefónicas en Texas, con vigencia a partir del 6 de mayo de 1985, salvo disposición en contrario de la Comisión. La Comisión de Servicios Públicos de Texas a registrado esta solicitud bajo el Docket 6200.

Si bien existe variación entre las propuestas en cuanto a las tarifas precisas, se anticipa que el arancel tarifario solicitado aumentará en un 10.5% los ingresos intraestatales no ajustados de Southwestern Bell Telephone Company durante el año de prueba, o sea, un aumento del 9.7 por ciento en los ingresos del año de prueba, después de realizar el ajuste por la expanción de los usuarios y por la anualización del aumento de tarifas para el año de prueba. El objeto de esta solicitud de tarifas es lograr un aumento anual en los ingresos de $323.9 milliones. Los cambios propuestos afectarán a todos los usuarios y grupos de usuarios de Southwestern Bell Telephone Company en el estado

La mayoría de las tarifas que resultarían afectadas por el propuesto aumento aumentarían aproximadamente en un 18.5 por ciento, incluvendo las tarifas de centrales locales. Sin embargo, existen algunas excepciones. Por ejemplo, los usuarios que residen en ciudades que se reclasificarán para formar parte de grupos tarifarios mayores experimentarán aumentos mas elevados del 18.5 por ciento. Por otra parte, los aumentos de las tarifas propuestas para servicios de línea privada en El Paso aumentarían en más de 18.5 por ciento, como resultado de una propuesta para reestructurar tales tarifas.

Una copia completa del nuevo arancel de tarifas se halla archivada en las oficinas de la Comisión de Servicios Públicos en Austin, Texas, así como en cada municipalidad incorporada afectada que tenga servicio de Southwestern Bell Telephone Company. En el pasado, la Comisión ha sostenido que toda tarifa se halla sujeta a cambio toda vez que Southwestern Bell Telephone Company solicite nuevas tarifas. El registro de esta tarifa incluye, pero no en forma limitativa, las propuestas de aumentar las tarifas por servicios de centrales locales, de larga distancia intraLATA y por servicios de línea privada interLATA entre centrales (incluyendo servicios de centrales externas) así como las propuestas de reducir ciertas tarifas de servicio Aviso a los clientes de otras compañías de teléfono El registro de esta tarifa incluye, pero no en forma limitativa, las propuestas de aumentar las tarifas por servicios de larga distancia intraLATA y por servicios de línea privada intraLATA entre centrales (incluyendo servicios de centrales externas) así como las propuestas de reducir ciertas tarifas de servicio de acceso. Los cambios en dichas tarifas también afectarían a los clientes de otras compañías de teléfono, puesto que dichas compañías proporcionan ciertos servicios de acuerdo con las tarifas especificadas en los aranceles tarifarios de Southwestern Bell Telephone Company.

Aviso a todos los clientes con respecto a los cargos de acceso y a determinados cargos nuevos

Al registrar esta tarifa, Southwestern Bell Telephone Company también propone reducir ciertas tarifas de acceso que se les cobran a clientes como AT&T Communications, Inc., MCI y otras compañías de larga distancia. La consecuente reducción de ingresos se piensa compensar por medio de dos cargos nuevos de servicio (cargos por pago atrasado que se aplicarían solamente a usuarios comerciales, y cargos por ciertos servicios de operadora, tales como verificación de línea ocupada) además de la estimulación de los ingresos por cargos por servicios de acceso. En vista de que, en caso de otorgarse esta parte del arancel tarifario registrado, su efecto real en los ingresos de Southwestern Bell Telephone Company sería igual a cero, ésta pro-pone que la Comisión tramite dicha parte de la tarifa en forma expeditiva sin esperar la Orden Definitiva.

Toda persona que desee intervenir o participar en el presente proceso debe notificar a la Comisión lo antes posible. Las solicitudes de intervención, participación o información deben dirigirse a: Public Utility Commission of Texas, 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard, Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757. Para obtener mayor información debe llamar a Public Utility Commission Consumer Affairs Division, (512) 458-0223, o (512) 458-0227, o al (512) 458-0221 si requiere teletipo para personas con

Investigator devotes life to documenting UFO

By TOM MINEHART

Associated Press Writer LINCOLNTON, N.C. (AP) - In 1944, a 15-year-old Boy Scout named George Fawcett read a news story about "silver balls floating in the air" that the Nazis apparently planned to use to confuse and frighten the Allies during bombing raids.

The Associated Press clip led to a 40-year interest in unidentified flying objects - a mission that has cost Fawcett $27,000 of his own money and at least one job, sent him around the country to investigate some 1,000 reported UFO sightings and filled more than 20 file drawers in his Lincolnton home with UFO-related documents.

"I'm not the Billy Graham of UFOs, I'm more like the Curious George," Fawcett, 55, said during an interview at his wife's Lincolnton sandwich shop, which features a "UFO Room" full of framed pictures and clippings.

"It was just curiosity," he said. 'Too, there was the deep feeling I got that they were not being treated with the respect due them. I felt that anything that's been going on for four decades in 140 nations deserves close scientific scrutiny

"But it's never been given yet," he added. "There's never been a real scientific investigation. Or, if there has, the government's not telling us about it."

Fawcett is the public relations director for the North Carolina chapter of the Mutual UFO Network, which has 75 field investigators in 45 cities across the state. He was MUFON's state director from 1969 to 1980

But this year, for the first time since 1952, he won't be providing his annual report of North Carolina UFO activity for the previous year.

He's had to look for a job because the newspaper where he worked closed down. He's also been spending more time on worldwide research - particularly a study comparing human reactions to UFOs with the hard evidence of radar trackings and ground

Fawcett said his early efforts at researching UFOs had been met with ridicule. But he said a wave of sightings in his hometown of Mount Airy in 1973 had vindicated him

He's seen one UFO personally, he says - an object "like an orange cut in half" hovering over Lynchburg College in Virginia in Later, he was one of three candidates for a YMCA post in Florida. But when officials found out about his interest in UFOs. someone else got the job, he said.

UFOs gained credence in the 1960s and 1970s, and from 1979 to 1983, Fawcett taught a three-credit, 12-week course on UFOs at the Lincolnton campus of Gaston College. His total of 125 students came from 24 -North Carolina cities and from a variety of professions and trades

When he began his research, Fawcett had four dreams: to lecture on UFOs, to teach an accredited course; to write a book, and to found a museum.

He's finished one book, "Quarter Century Studies of UFOs in Florida, North Carolina and Tennessee," and is starting another. And he's begun to get nibbles on his proposal to build a UFO museum in Boone. All he needs is money and material to add to his considerable collection.

"Not only would it be for research, it would be a real tourist attraction," he said. Fawcett has collected 44 North Carolina cases from 1842 to 1983 in which people reported UFO landings or encounters with UFO occupants.

"I feel more comfortable with someone flying them," he said with a smile. "A taxicab without a driver is far more hazardous.

Fawcett, however, said UFOs are a "serious problem to national security and human survival." At least two North Carolina people have reported being abducted by UFO occupants, and other people worldwide have claimed they were burned, tested or knocked down, he weapons.

Civil War buffs refight major battles

By TIM DeMARCE Mankato Free Press MANKATO, Minn. (AP) - Arn

Kind belongs to a paramilitary unit that is still fighting the Civil War.

They'll take their black powder muskets and field artillery just about anywhere to tangle with a unit of Johnny Rebs, but - funny thing - the battles always turn out the way they did in the history books.

Kind, a sixth-grade teacher at Franklin Elementary School in Mankato, belongs to the First Regiment, Minnesota Volunteer Infantry, a unit of about 75 history buffs from around the state who specialize in living the lives of Civil War soldiers. The group is headquartered at Fort Snelling and meets monthly, in uniform, at the visitors' center there. It also meets for two annual "musters" and for participation in community events, demonstrations at state historic sites and a growing number of Civil War re-creations around the country

Kind also gives some school programs. He described his uniform during a recent school session: "The zipper wasn't invented yet. These are all pewter buttons. Just think how long it would have taken back then to jump out of bed and get dressed when the bugle sounded.

Kind explained the function of each piece of equipment, including unauthorized ones: the floppy "forage" cap got its name because soldiers used it to store groceries they picked up along the march. The heavy caped overcoat was seldom carried during the summer. "They knew that in the fall, if the battle lasted long enough, they could pick up another one off a dead soldier.'

Kind passed out "hardtack" biscuits he had made from a "regimental recipe" the night before, warning students to be careful not to break their teeth.

Civil war you hardtack might have been made months before." Soldiers put it in coat," (Kind made his from two soup, and didn't worry about it spoiling. "No self-respecting mold would grow on this," Kind said.

"Some guys cheat and put a little oatmeal in the recipe," Kind said later. "They actually make it taste good. It helps get through a four-day re-enactment.

Re-enactments of specific Civil War battles and events have come a big hobby, with dozens scheduled each summer, and organized groups like the First Minnesota are sought after because they stress authenticity.

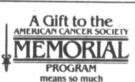

"At some of those places, if your stripes are sewn on with synthetic thread, or with a zigzag stitch, that's unforgivable," Kind said. Likewise, only pocket watches and wire-rim glasses are to be seen.

The unit has followed in the footsteps of the First on the Gettysburg battlefield, making the same charge as on July 2, 1862, when the real First was ordered into the breach to blunt a Confederate counterattack and incurred the highest proportional losses of any unit in the war - 215 killed, wounded, or missing out of 262 engaged.

"The guys took orders," Kind said. "They got the job done."

Last year the First attended a re-creation of Confederate harassment of railroads, held on a stretch of historic railroad near Eureka Springs, Ark. The sponsors provided free train rides for those in costume, and "firewood, water, straw, hay, raw foodstuffs." The weekend culminated in a full-scale Confederate attack on the depot, ending in a social.

New recruits in the First must assemble a uniform and kit that includes a McDowell pattern forage cap, an unlined "sack

Buying American is difficult

By WILLIAM M. WELCH Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — If you're thinking of buying American to help right the Japanese trade imbalance, you may find less of a choice than you'd guess, especially if you're shopping for many household products.

For automobiles and clothing, including shoes, American consumers are in the middle of an international battleground. But for many other products, foreign vs. domestic isn't as much of an issue, say experts whose job is to test such products.

"All of this back and forth about buying American — you don't have that choice except with cars and clothing," said R. David Pittle, technical director for Consumers Union, publisher of Consumer Reports magazine.

"That seems to be the only place where it makes a difference because all the rest of the market has been decided ... at least in the things we've looked at,' said Pittle, a former member of the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission.

The marketplace is segmented, he said, with Japanese products dominating some areas, American products dominating others.

In cameras, for instance, there are a handful of European brands but most 35mm cameras sold in this country are Japanese, he said. Some instant or disc-type cameras are American made. But, said Pittle: "For serious photography, there is no choice. It's all imported."

Similarly, nearly all televisions and video equipment is Japanese. Some Japanese-brand television sets are assembled in the United States, but the videorecorders or televisions bearing the familiar American brand names are made in Japan, he said.

American manufacturers dominate the market in other consumer goods, he said. For instance, clothes washers and dryers, freezers and full-size refrigerators, which are called major white goods, are generally American made, he said.

Even in autos, the lines are blurred. American manufacturers have joined the Japanese in joint production projects, sell Japanese cars under U.S. names, and put foreign-made engines or other components in U.S. cars. Japanese manufacturers have established plants in the United States.

For many consumer products, particularly electronic, much of the competition now is not so much U.S. vs. Japan but Japan vs. the "new Japans," the Asian countries of Korea, Hong Kong, Taiwan and Singapore.

Joe Bhatia, executive staff engineer for Underwriters Laboratories Inc., an independent product tester, said those countries rely on lower labor costs to produce less expensive goods.

Some Asian countries other than Japan have gained significant shares of U.S. markets, such as Korea has with black-and-white televisions. But Bhatia said he has found products from those countries often lower in quality than Japanese or U.S. products.

"Those are quick and dirty," he said. "They're aiming for the low end of the market and are full of problems, mostly ... We've had a lot of complaints from retail

Those countries, he said, are where Japan was several decades ago when they were imitating, not

"The Japanese were known for their cheap products, lower quality. They went completely around, and now they're known for good quality and reliable products," he said. "They invested highly in research and development and it's paying off."

The new competition means Japan "has to keep going on up the high-tech scale," making more complex and more expensive

He's also proud that he learned his trade the hard way.

"I never took an art lesson in my life," Diaz said with a mirthful grin as he sat down to tell the story of his life.

"But I taught myself how to draw and all about physics, mathematics, anatomy, mechanics and English. My first job was as a photographer. I used to buy magazines of Hollywood stars and pose my clients the same way. They loved it. Unfortunately, I never knew how much to charge them. So I went broke."

Diaz, who was born and reared in Juarez, said he had wanted to be a sculptor since childhood. But having to make a living got in his way.

"Yet, I learned to be a sculptor with every job I had," said Diaz, 59. "After my photo shop went bankrupt, I started out as a carpenter. Then I went into the construction business working with plaster of paris or gypsum that could be molded into different figures."

One of his many jobs was with the Mexican railroad as a master mechanic, Diaz said. He was the last man to repair the steam engines, which ran from Juarez into the interior of Mexico until the late 1960s.

"With the railroad, I learned to work the foundry," he said. "But I did not become a sculptor until I started working with the city government. I had more time to work in my studio."

Diaz said his first commission was the statue of the "Ninos Heroes," the child cadet heroes who hurled themselves from the Castillo de Chapultepec during the U.S. invasion of Mexico.

Made in white cement, the

"Actually, most of my works on display in the city have been commissioned through a series of odd circumstances," Diaz said.

He explained how a monument to revolutionary leader Emiliano Zapata came to be in a colonia on the city's outskirts.

"The winds of politics are funny and change directions in a minute," he said. "The delegate in charge of San Isidro, a little cooperative farming community in the valley, had ordered a bust of Zapata for the town square. But the work was delayed. Meanwhile, elections were held in the village. The delegate lost the elections because he failed to account for the money he had given me for the bust. I returned his money and kept the bust."

Years later, he said, during the administration of Jose Reyes Estrada, the city built a school and named it Emiliano Zapata. The city's urban renewal department asked for bids for a bust of the revolutionary hero.

'By using the same bust, I was able to offer them a larger-than-life monument for the cost of the additional materials," he said. "I lost money on that sculpture and on many others. But cost and value are two different things. Value depends on what the object means to a person. Cost is only the material value."

A sculpture can be made of many different materials, Diaz said, adding that an artist should know how to work with such dissimilar materials as marble, bronze, fiberglass, wood, clay, aluminum, cement and even stone.

Vladimir Alvarado, a sculptor who has a foundry in Juarez and worked with the artist, described Diaz's work as belonging to the realist school.

"Diaz is completely academic in his work," Alvarado said. "He sculpts only what he sees. I have forged several of his bronze works including the huge historical relief of the agricultural school. Because of its 14-foot width, the sculpture later developed a crack in the middle which will have to be repaired."

Diaz said he never has done any modern or abstract work because nature is better at expressing ideas.

"Modern or abstract art is the refuge of those artists who do not know how to draw," Diaz said. "Nature is the best teacher.

Pistons eliminate Nets, 116-115

AP Sports Writer Isiah Thomas knows just how the New Jersey Nets feel.

"Last year ended so fast that it was the worst feeling I've ever had in basketball,'' Thomas said Wednesday night after knocking the Nets out of the National Basketball Association playoffs by hitting a 15-foot jumper with two seconds left to give the Detroit Pistons a 116-115 victory.

"We were up so high and then went down so low," the 6-foot-1 point guard added, referring to one-point and overtime losses to New York that knocked Detroit out of the 1984 postseason. "I don't ever want that to happen again."

The victory gave the Pistons a 3-0 sweep in the best-of-five, first-round series and advanced them into the Eastern Conference semifinals against the Boston-Cleveland winner.

In other playoff games Wednesday, Utah tripped Houston

112-104, Chicago edged Milwaukee 109-107 and Washington routed Philadelphia 118-100.

In tonight's games, Boston is at Cleveland and Dallas is at Portland in series the Celtics and Trail Blazers lead 2-1.

On Friday night, Milwaukee is at Chicago, Philadelphia at Washington, Denver at San Antonio and Houston at Utah. The Bucks, 76ers, Denver and Utah each lead 2-1. Thomas made his game-winning shot from behind the basket and with the outstretched arm of 6-8 Buck Williams in his face. "Isiah's last shot was only something a super talent like him can make," Nets Coach Stan Albeck said.

"I was there right on top of him, and Isiah made a great shot," said Williams, who scored 28 points to share game-high honors with teammate Albert King. "We played as hard as we could, but Detroit played better."

the first quarter, 63-58 at the half and 91-84 after three quarters.

Detroit led on eight occasions in the game, five times in the first three minutes and three times in the final seven minutes. None of its leads was more than two points.

Cliff Robinson, who saw no playoff action in his first five NBA seasons, scored 14 of his 21 points in the third quarter, giving him one more than the entire Philadelphia team for those 12 minutes.

Gus Williams, held to 27 points in the first two games, led the Bullets with 28, while Jeff Ruland added

Moses Malone led Philadelphia with 17 points, but Andrew Toney, who scored 31 in Game 2, managed

Chicago got 35 points from Michael Jordan, including seven points in the final three minutes and the game-winning baseline jumper with 17 seconds left, to stay alive in its series with Milwaukee. Orlando Woolridge added 28 points for the Bulls, who won their first playoff game since 1981. Jordan broke a 104-104 deadlock with 1:48 left. But Sidney Moncrief's three-point play gave Milwaukee a 107-106 advantage. Moments later, the Bucks lost the ball on a 24-second violation, and Jordan hit his game-winning jumper after a Woolridge shot was

David Greenwood hit one of two free throws to give Chicago a 109-107 lead, then stole Milwaukee's inbound pass with seven seconds left to clinch it.

Red-hot Langer among the favorites as Houston Golf Open tees off today

THE WOODLANDS, Texas (AP) - Three weeks ago Bernhard Langer was a face in the crowd on the PGA tour until he won the Masters tournament at Augusta, Suddenly, he became THE face in the crowd, pursued by galleries and media. The pursuit only increased when he won his second tournament in a row last week in the Sea Pines Heritage Classic at Hilton Head Island, S.C.

Now that he's going for three in a row in the $500,000 Houston Open beginning today, he's learning what it feels like to be a "star.."When someone else wins, that's okay," Langer said. "Everyone expects it.

"They didn't expect it from me. But I knew I had it in me. It was just a matter of time.

Langer will be among the avorites today when the tournament begins the first round over The Woodlands' Tournament Players Course for the first time. Previous Houston Opens have been played on the West course.

Langer will be trying to become the first player to win three consecutive tournaments since 1978 when Gary Player won the Masters. Tournament of Champions and the Houston Open.

Player, who is in the field, thinks Langer has a shot at the triple victory

"He's a great ball-striker and this course rewards that," Player said. "It's a tough course. It penalizes bad shots but Langer doesn't make many of those and he goes for the pins no matter where they are.

Langer ended last week's Sea

Pines Heritage Classic tied in regulation play with Bobby Wadkins but parred the first playoff hole to capture the $72,000 first prize. "You've got to be doing everything right to win three in a row," Player said. "It's a lot like surfing. When you're fighting the waves, it's no fun, but when you get up and you're riding the crest, nothing can stop you.

"Right now, Langer is riding the crest. He's oozing confidence.'

Langer didn't decide to go for the triple until Sunday when he told Houston Golf Association executive director Duke Butler he'd play

"I don't think anyone even expected me to win two tournaments in a row," Langer said. "But you can't think about that with 144 good players on the course and everyone of them capable of winning. You have to be at the top of your game all the Langer will find a new, demanding course awaiting his challenge. It will play to a 36-36, 7,042 yards and is filled with water hazards and one island green.

The TPC course was designed by Bruce Devlin and Bob von Hagge and opened in 1978. With renovations and improvements, it was last year designated a TPC course by the PGA tour.

Calvin Peete, the No. 2 money winner on the tour this year, also has entered the Houston Open. He'll be seeking his third tour victory this year after earning titles in the Phoenix Open and Tournament Players

Mark O'Meara, another two-time tour winner, is also entered aong with Joey Sindelar, winner of the Greater Greensboro Open.

V for victory, Vuckovich and Vukovich

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON AP Sports Writer

Their names are spelled almost the same so it's not surprising that Vuckovich and Vukovich are often misspelled. Just so there's no mistake, it was Pete Vuckovich who tamed the Chicago White Sox and George Vukovich who did in the Detroit

Pete, a 32-year-old right-hander who missed most of the last two years with shoulder problems, recorded his first pitching victory since his Cy Young Award season of 1982 Wednesday night by scattering six hits in seven innings as the Milwaukee Brewers defeated the White Sox 3-2.

"I never doubted that I'd come back from my arm problems. I just didn't know how long it would take. Right now, my arm feels great," said Vuckovich.

George, a 28-year-old outfielder, drove in three runs with three singles, including the game-winner in the bottom of the ninth inning, giving the Cleveland Indians a 7-6 victory over the Tigers.

"You don't become world champions by pitching around people. You go right at them," said Vukovich, who came into the game with a .209 average and delivered his winning hit after the Tigers pitched to him with first base open.

In other American League games, Oakland downed California 6-4, Boston edged New York 7-6, Toronto shelled Kansas City 10-2, Baltimore nipped Texas 2-1 and Minnesota pounded Seattle 10-0.

Indians 7, Tigers 6 With the score tied, Joe Carter walked with one out in the ninth and moved to second on a wild pitch by Aurelio Lopez. The Tigers elected to pitch to Vukovich and he ripped a hard line drive to right, scoring

The Tigers, who roared to a 35-5 start last year, have lost five of their last seven games and are 8-5 overall. The Indians, who have won six of nine, climbed out of last place in the American League East, passing the New York Yankees.

Athletics 6, Angels 4 Mike Davis continued to feast on California pitching, contributing to a pair of three-run uprisings. The A's jumped on Ron Romanick for three unearned runs in the first inning.

After Angels' first baseman Rod Carew made an error on Dave Collins' leadoff grounder, Carney Lansford and Bruce Bochte followed with singles to score Collins. Dave Kingman's groundout and Davis' single produced the other two runs.

Reds spoil Ryan's no-hitter

HOUSTON (AP) - What appeared to be a sweep for the Houston Astros and possibly a sixth no-hitter by Nolan Ryan ended up as two and two-thirds innings of disaster.

Ryan appeared to be on his way to his sixth career no-hit performance through 6-1-3 innings until Cincinnati right fielder Dave Parker singled sharply to center. Duane Walker followed with a two-run homer to right as the Reds went on to defeat the Astros 8-3 Wednesday to break a tie for first place between the two teams in the National League's western division.

"The way he (Ryan) was throwing the ball, I didn't ever think we would score on him," said Reds' pitcher Mario Soto.

Ryan struck out six and allowed only one base runner on a walk to Dave Concepcion before Parker extended his hitting streak to five games and Walker hit his third career home run off Ryan with one out in the top of the seventh inning.

"I felt good and had good stuff," said Ryan. "They just put two hits

According to Astros' Manager Bob Lillis, Ryan's fastball was up to 96 mph in the fourth and fifth innings and it appeared that Ryan had no-hit stuff.

Ryan gave up three runs and struck out seven over eight innings, but ended up with no decision as the Astros were only able to get three runs off Soto, 4-1, and releiver Ted Power.
