Phillips claims it is independents who threaten economy

By LARRY HOLLIS Staff Writer

EDITOR'S NOTE; Phillips Petroleum Co. has finally begun to publicly counter claims being made by independent oil operators and supporting groups. A Phillips representative has been visiting the Panhandle to combat predictions of economic disaster. This is the second of a two-part series on Phillips' position on the gas and oil disputes and related economic matters.

> By LARRY HOLLIS Staff Writer

Long-term economic problems involving gas and oil production operations in the Texas Panhandle are more likely to come from increased gas production by the independents' than from the majors' actions, a Phillips spokesman claims.

Dan Harrison, public information coordinator for Phillips, disputes the independents' claims that the economic strength of the Panhandle comes from their activities

TEAM for the Survival of the Panhandle, a group of oil operators and others, has issued an economic report predicting the shutdown of some 8,000 wells and the loss of some 12,000 jobs if pending decisions are upheld by the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission and the Texas Railroad Commission

'The economic study commissioned by oil operators ignores the fact that Phillips and other companies opposing their practices provide many jobs, taxes and other benefits to the economy,

'These companies have thousands of employees who live, shop and send their children to school," he stated. "These companies pay taxes, royalties and contribute to the economic health of the Panhandle

TEAM representatives and others have contended economic disaster threatens the Panhandle economy if the state and federal recommendations against them are upheld.

But Harrison claims that economic problems will develop if the independents are allowed to continue the depletion of the gas reserves in the Panhandle Field under the cover of producing gas from oil

"Panhandle communities, businesses and schools were thriving prior to 1978" when widespread use of low temperature separation units to liquefy natural gases in oil wells began, Harrison observed

Only the few operators who have drilled and operated these wells, and perhaps those who have loaned money for those wells, need to be concerned" about the RRC and FERC decisions, Harrison said.

Some royalty owners and tax districts have received additional income from the higher prices many independent oil operators have charged, he admitted.

However, when the source of inexpensive gas from the Panhandle Field is exhausted - as Phillips claims will happen if the independents are permitted to continue their operations unchecked - cities and other entities "will be forced to find a new source of gas which undoubtedly will be more expensive,' Harrison charged.

"Not surprisingly, Phillips is hopeful the (independent) oil operators will be stopped," he said. "We think we and those who have prudently developed the hydrocarbon reserves in the region through orderly drilling have been good stewards of an irreplaceable resource.

"That good stewardship should not be reversed for the sake of a quick gain, "he declared.

Harrison said the FERC and RRC decisions will not affect any oil well producing true crude oil. Only those oil wells improperly producing large quantities of gas with little, if any, oil, are subject to being closed as a result of those decisions, he said

The independents' and TEAM's contentions that between 8,000 and 12,000 wells would be shut down is based on the assumption that every well producing more than a 2,000 to 1 gas-oil ratio would have to be closed. Harrison said.

'That is not true,' he claimed.

Harrison said Congressman Beau Boulter, who has studied both decisions, agrees the decisions do not require wells producing above that ratio to be

Harrison said the independents' current operations and price charges affect consumers now and will affect them more in the future unless changed

'So-called oil well operators maintain that some royalty owners, well operators and taxing authorities benefit from the higher prices which are collected for the gas they produce," Harrison said. "Ultimately, the consumer must pay these higher

Adjustment board making first ruling

By LARRY HOLLIS Staff Writer

The newly appointed Board of Adjustments today was scheduled to return a decision on the first appeal it has heard.

The board has considered a request by Mrs. Eblan Hernandez for variance from compliance with Section 18, Paragraph 23, of zoning Ordinance 690 regarding a home occupation at 1318 E. Kingsmill, located in a Single Family 2 District.

Hernandez appealed to the board after the city denied her a permit to move a building onto her property for a beauty shop operation.

The board, after discussion of the issues last week, took no action on the case and decided to meet again at 3:30 p.m. today to make its decision.

Hernandez said she planned to attach the building to her house so she could operate the beauty shop at home. She said that would save her the costs of having to pay rent at her

Having the beauty shop at her home also would be more convenient for her and save her time on days of bad weather. Presently, she drives to her shop on bad days and then faces the possibility of several cancellations. But she has to stay in the shop to keep the appointments that are not cancelled, she said.

Hernandez said she had a petition from her neighbors on the 1300 block of E. Kingsmill and those across the alley in the 1300 block of E. Foster. No one objected to her having a beauty shop at home, she said

Forrest Cloyd, technician with the city Engineering Department, said letters had been sent to all property owners within 200 feet of Hernandez's home; only one owner protested the action, he reported.

Steve Vaughn, head of the Neighborhood Integrity Department and code enforcement, said he denied the permit in accordance with his interpretation of the city ordinance defining standards for a home occupation

Vaughn said the ordinance specifies home occupations must be operated from the structure already on the property. He said the ordinance, as he interprets it, prohibits moving in a structure strictly for the purpose of operating a business at home

Under the criteria established in the ordinance. Vaughn said he had to deny her the Hernandez said state regulations for a home beauty shop require that there be no entrance from the shop into the living quarters. She said her building would meet those standards.

She also said there are numerous other beauty shops at homes throughout the city. She again said none of her neighbors objected to her proposed shop.

Mike Connor, acting chairman, said, "I don't think anybody here has an objection to your

Wells Fargo robbery total to hit millions

NEW YORK (AP) — Four armed men broke through a wall and overpowered employees at a Wells Fargo terminal early today, then fled in an armored truck with millions of dollars in cash, police police spokesman Sgt. Ed 'It's the largest (robbery) that I've ever heard of," LeSchack said.

The thieves ordered four employees at gunpoint to open a vault where the money was held, then handcuffed the men to a hand truck and loaded the cash onto the van, according to Chief Robert Johnston, chief of operations for the Police Department.

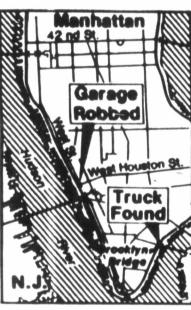

The employees "were told they weren't going to be hurt" if they cooperated, Johnston said.

The van was found empty and abandoned several hours later underneath the Brooklyn Bridge, a few miles away, LeSchack said.

Johnston said the four guards were surprised after they arrived at the garage at 1:20 a.m. In accordance withstandard procedures, they made a search of the building, then went to open the Johnston said there normally are no guards on duty at the terminal on Sunday night. The four thieves had been in the garage a total of about 20 to 30 minutes, he said, and had apparently been waiting for the employees to arrive.

The robbers got into the Wells Fargo area by breaking through a cinderblock wall on the second floor of an adjoining building, he

The building houses a mailroom and storage center of Merrill Lynch Pierce Fenner & Smith, said Bill Clark, a spokesman for the brokerage house. He said he had no information immediately about how entry was gained or whether alarms had to be bypassed.

There were alarms at Wells Fargo, "but none that we know of went off," said LeSchack. He said it was too early to speculate on whether the robbery may have been an inside job.

Johnston said the age of the robbers, described as between 40 and 45, was significant because it indicated they were professionals, not amateurs

Reagan reported 'anguished'

WASHINGTON (AP) -President Reagan, preparing for the first European trip of his second administration, is said by his top aide to be deeply troubled by the controversy caused by his planned visit to a Corman military cemetery

"Anguish, I believe, is a good choice of words to describe his mental condition," White House Chief of Staff Donald T. Regan says, adding that the president is standing firm about going the graveyard near Bitburg, West Germany next Sunday as part of his 10-day trip. Reagan departs Tuesday evening.

"He is wounded by this internally," Regan said. "In his heart, he will be hurt at what has been said about him and his insensitivity when he's a very sensitive person. Appearing Sunday on CBS-TV's

'Face the Nation," Regan said Reagan is simply "carrying out his word" to West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl to visit the cemetery as a way of demonstrating reconciliation 40 years after the end of World War II.

The cemetery contains the graves of 2,000 soldiers, including 49 members of the Nazi SS, the elite corps blamed for the attempted extermination of Jews and other minorities and massacres of other European civilians and Allied soldiers The New York Times said in its Sunday editions that some of the SS dead buried there were from the 2nd Waffen SS Panzer Division, which was held responsible for murdering 920 Soviet Jews in 1941 and the 1944 massacre of 642 civilians in Oradour-Sur-Glane,

The stop has drawn fire from Jewish leaders and U.S. veterans groups

Regan said that because of the criticism, "the president has been quite upset, as he's been a staunch friend of Israel. ... The president feels that being a friend as he is to Jews everywhere - to have this now overshadow a state visit is distressing."

interstate price that "operators of true gas wells" are allowed to charge, he claimed.

Harrison also countered TEAM's arguments about the pending loss of taxes to governing entities

The Phillips spokesman noted his firm had paid more than $7.3 million in taxes in 1984 to four Panhandle counties: Gray, Carson, Hutchinson and Moore. He said the company has 2,600 employees in the area and pays $9.5 million in monthly salaries. The independents and TEAM have contended the area and state faces loss of property taxes and severance taxes

"While severance taxes have increased due to the 'oil' wells, this increase will be short-lived," Harrison charged.

"If this practice continues and the Panhandle Field is prematurely depleted, severance tax collection will fall precipitously," he claimed. "Properly operated, the field should provide a stable severance tax base for many more years.

Harrison said the TEAM economic study also overstates projected losses to school districts.

"Tax income received by school districts primarily comes from ad valorem taxes, which in large part is based on oil and gas reserves in the ground," Harrison explained. "The rapid depletion of those reserves by 'oil' operators will sharply decrease the tax base for the school districts and reduce their income.'

The premature exhaustion of the Panhandle Field will also affect tax revenues from refineries, plants and pipelines that depend on the field for feedstock, Harrison claimed. Such revenues "may decrease sharply within a relatively short period of time," he Feedstock is the supply of oil, natural gas liquids and natural gas to a refinery, fractionation facility or processing plant to be refined or processed.

'In addition, without feedstocks, many of these facilities may have to be shut down," leading to further economic problems in the region, Harrison

Royalty owners also will receive a temporary windfall on increased revenues from the independents' so-called oil wells, he said.

"However, like the tax windfall, this too will be short-lived," Harrison explained. "The early depletion of gas reserves in the field will result in the early depletion of royalty payments."

If the independents' operations are halted, royalties will continue over a longer period of time,

"The increased royalty payments that result from these 'oil' wells come at the expense of the legal owners of the gas and the gas royalty owners," he stated. "While some royalty owners are reaping a windfall, others are being deprived of revenue that rightfully belongs to them.

It's the independents' practices that will lead to economic disaster for the Panhandle, not those of the majors, Harrison implied.

Under RRC regulations, up to 64 oil wells can be drilled in each section of land, while only one gas well is permitted. But the oil wells are permitted to pump up to 500,000 cubic feet of gas per barrel of oil each day, Harrison noted.

The disputes at state and federal levels have arisen from the gas that many independents have been producing from the oil wells.

Phillips and other companies argued successfully before RRC examiners that the independents had wrongfully been counting liquefied gas as crude oil to maintain their oil well classifications.

Dorchester Company contended successfully before FERC hearings that many independents had been wrongfully producing natural gas to which it had claim and not "casinghead gas," to which oil producers have rights.

The independents' production of gas is leading to depletion of the field, Harrison argued.

If the independents are allowed to continue their widespread gas production techniques, a boom-and-bust cycle will develop, Harrison said, with speculators coming in from all over the country "to grab a piece of the action."

And if that happens, the gas reserves will be quickly depleted within three to five years, with a handful of people making a lot of money in a short time, he claimed.

But such actions will adversely end the economic benefits that could continue to accrue to the area for at least another 15 to 20 years with better conservation efforts on the gas reserves, Harrison

"Once the gas is gone, it's gone for good," he said.

During a severe weather watch (whether a tornado watch or severe thunderstorm watch) you should be alert and listening to the warning sources (outside, the sirens; inside, the radio stations or cable television)

You should also remember that a WATCH is when conditions are favorable for a tornado to form, and a WARNING is when a tornado has actually been sighted and confirmed on the ground

The following information is provided to help you be prepared when storms approach.

When caught out in the open, you should move away from a tornado at a right angle from the tornado. If the tornado is overtaking you, then you should find a low-lying ditch or culvert and get into that area and lie face down, protecting the head and neck areas from injury as much as possible

If you are in a vehicle, you should drive away from the tornado at a right angle. If it is apparent that the tornado will overtake you, you should abandon the vehicle and run on foot at a right angle away from the tornado.

Items collected for family after fire damages home

A rental home at 931 E. Francis sustained heavy fire and smoke damage in an early Sunday morning fire.

Fire fighters responded to the fire call at approximately 5:40 a.m. at the property owned by Larry Beck. Renters Ima Beyer and Pam McNeely and her two-year-old son escaped the blaze without injury. A spokesman for the Pampa Fire Department said the fire was caused by a malfunction in the water heater

There was heavy fire damage to the kitchen, bathroom and utility room and heavy smoke damage to the rest of the home.

Employees at W-B Supply, where McNeely works, are collecting clothing and housewares for the two women and boy. The boy wears size three toddler clothes. Those interested may call W-B Supply.

A trust fund has been set up at First National Bank for the fire victims.

Why should the city do it?

In Sunday's edition of The Pampa News we published an editorial in which we applauded our city fathers for taking an unusual step for Pampa - of turning city functions over to a privately owned

The topic was the decision by Pampa's City Commmission to turn over operation of the city's water treatment and waste water (read sewage) treatment plants to a private firm for operation.

Of course, the city will continue to own the two facilities with the firm undertaking the operation. Hopefully, the local residents will get the benefits of better operation at a lower annual cost.

We hope that this is only the beginning in Pampa of a change in attitude by both city officials and the city's taxpayers. I have felt for several years - since my first reporting days on city government operation here nearly 30 years ago — that there has been attitude concerning city operations that "we've always done it that way, why

I was gone from Pampa for more than 20 years, working as a journalist on other papers in the Freedom Group, but upon returning I found there had been no change in city government operations or in the attitude of city officials.

With new thinking apparently prevailing at City Hall, maybe the turning over of these two treatment plants to private business for operation will only be a beginning of the city removing itself from the so-called "municipal services" which seem to historically have been expected by local residents.

There are several other services presently being provided by the city which might conceivably better be handled by private enterprise. One example of this which comes to mind is the collection of refuse throughout the city.

Several years ago I had the opportunity to observe and report on a city in Ohio which was plagued by its municipal refuse collection service. The city crews were supposed to collect the refuse from the residental areas at least once each week, but actually it was nearer to being every other week because of various reasons given by the city employees in that department.

With the wisdom that usually comes from government officials, it was suggested that the city nearly double the monthly rates for residental refuse collections. (Collection of refuse from businesses was handled by a privately owned firm which based its rates on the frequency of collection and the amount of refuse.)

The city offiicals theorized that if there was more money to be spent on refuse collection the city could purchase more trucks and hire more people, thereby improving the time between collections in residential areas.

But, before the city could increase the rates, the businessman who operated the collection service for the businesses, came forward with a proposal for his firm to take over the refuse collections in the

Needless to say, there was much wrangling as the politicians and city officials fought to keep from reducing their importance by having one less city operated service. But, in the end wisdom and the demands of numerous city taxpayers prevailed and a contract was signed, turning over the city refuse collection operation to a private Collection of a monthly refuse fee by the city, along with the bill for water and sewer services, continued with the money derived from the refuse fee going into a special fund from which the payment was made to the private firm whose rate was determined by the number of residences within the city.

Instead of an increase in monthly rates, as planned if the city had continued to operate the service, there was actually a reduction in the monthly charge within a short period of time and the private business increased the collection efficiency to twice a week - with less equipment and manpower than had been needed by the city.

And, while turning over of the two treatment plants to a private business for operation may sound like a good idea, one must question why the city must even be in the utility business. Other utilities in the city - electricity, gas and telephone - are privately owned.

Could it be possible that private business, if given the chance, would operate the entire water and sewage system better than the city? There have been improvements recently, I will admit, such as fewer city employees being used on repair jobs on city water lines. But, the question remains - why must the city own these two

There are numerous examples of government operation of various services being more costly for the taxpayers. Consider the recent revelations of the costly parts purchased by our nation's military establishment and the "frills" billed to the governemnt by many firms. Or take, for instance, the government-owned U.S. Postal Service operations compared to those of private package carriers.

Another area Pampa officials and residents might explore for operation by a private firm is that of fire protection. In many areas of this country, providing of fire protection is handled, under contracts, by private businesses or by non-profit organizations whose members are usually the organization's firefighters.

Historically, this is not so far-fetched since the first fire fighting organization in this nation were privately owned fire companies. Today such privately owned fire departments are usually to be found in smaller towns and rural areas.

Where such privately owned fire fighting companies exist, they provide fire protection services through a contract with a municipality or township for an annual fee. In areas where I have seen them in operation, they do as good a job as the taxpayer owned fire departments

And, could it be feasible for police protection to be handled by a privately owned business contracting with the city. Presently many local businesses and residents hire private protection agencies to provide additional security, paying monthly charges according to the type of security provided

If all police protection was provided by a private firm, would such added security be needed?

While city officials should be applauded for their present forward thinking, I wonder if they shouldn't examine all areas of city-provided services to see which could be turned over to private businesses for more efficient operation at less cost to the taxpayers.

If, after careful study, it is found that the city should continue to operate the various services, then I hope they will strive towards city operation in the cost efficient way that would be undertaken by private business. Personally, I feel that all areas of government should be operated with a more business-like approach.

I hope that what I see as a change for the better at City Hall will continue and our local government will become much more efficient.

Nine dead in violent storms

DALLAS (AP) - A flash flood and tornado watch remained in effect today across North Texas in the wake of violent thunderstorms that spawned damaging winds, hail and torrential rain, resulting in the deaths of at least nine people.

One person was reported missing following 24 hours of violent thunderstorms, which also generated at least four reports of tornados late Sunday and early

An 81-year-old Shep woman died when a twister lifted her frame house off its foundations and hurled it more than 100 yards into a field Sunday night, Taylor County sheriff's officers said.

The body of Emma Talley was found in the wreckage. Her husband, 83-year-old Alva Talley, was admitted to Ballinger Memorial Hospital with cuts and abrasions, said sheriff's Deputy Ricardo Campos. said.

Kevin Linch, a geological consultant, said the crew of a nearby oil rig saw the twister form in a field. Linch tried unsuccessfully to flee the tornado in his truck.

'Then we were all looking to where we were going to jump in a mud pit," Linch said, when the tornado started moving northeast.

The twister moved about 11/2 miles before striking the Talley home, located in the southwest corner of Taylor County near the Nolan County line.

Authorities said three Rockwall residents, including the town's fire chief, died at a flash flood Saturday night in the community about 15 miles northeast of Dallas.

A Dallas man and his two children drowned in the suburb of Duncanville after their car was swept away by a rampaging creek Authorities continued their search for the man's wife who was carried away by flood waters.

William Blair III, 41, of Dallas drowned when his car was washed off the road Sunday morning, said Duncanville police. Blair and the bodies of his two children, Ebony, 14, and William, 7, were found near the banks of Ten Mile Creek on

The search for Blair's 42-year-old wife, Barbara, was to resume today, said Duncanville police dispatcher Donna White. Nightfall had prompted a delay in searchers' efforts Sunday.

Authorities said the Blairs were last seen leaving a relative's home in Duncanville between 4 and 5 a.m. Sunday. Their empty car was found in a creekbed shortly before 8 a.m. and Blair's body was found about half a mile downstream about 40 minutes later.

About 5,000 fan braved rainy weekend weather to pay tribute during the 14th annual Bob Wills Day celebration.

'They enjoy getting together and swapping old stories about Bob," said Betty Wills after Saturday's activities. "Regardless of the weather today, they like to just get out here and have a good time.'

Musical performances by the Original Texas Playboys, all of whom were with the legendary Wills when he shot to stardom in the 1930s, were featured at the celebration. But promoters also organized a parade and barbecue.

After Wills' death on May 13, 1975, Mrs. Wills said she was faced with many problems in trying to keep his sound true in the face of many groups claiming to be part of the Texas Playboys.

Mrs. Wills' efforts eventually led to the formation of the Original Texas Playboys that performed in Turkey Saturday

Prior to their performance Saturday, Mrs. Wills reminisced about her husband. She said she first met Wills in 1941 while attending her first public dance at the Cains Academy in Tulsa, Okla.

'I'd gone up to the front of the stage where he was playing to request a song. When he finished, he leaned over and asked 'What can I do for you, little lady?' When I went to tell him I couldn't remember the name of the song," Mrs. Wills said.

The couple, after making arrangements through mutual friends, met backstage after the performance. After nearly eight months of dating, they were married in the spring of 1942.

Fans didn't let rainy weather stop them from enjoying Wills'

More tax dollars going up in smoke

Perhaps no commodity displays government's schizophrenia as well as tobacco.

For years, while the surgeon general and various health agencies have been trying to crack down on cigarettes, the Department of Agriculture has subsidized tobacco farmers. Now comes the news that the federal agriculture folks are at it again, spending a bundle on attempts to develop a "safe" cigarette.

The conflict cuts across local and federal lines, often pitting smokers and non-smokers in battles not of their choosing. In each instance, there is one constant: taxpayers are being forced to speda a great deal of money unnecessarily

We've discussed the conflict between tobacco subsidies and attempts to ban cigarettes before. If government believes in spending money to convince us that cigarettes are harmful, it shouldn't be spedning money to aid in their manufacture. If it believes cigarettes should be manufactured and distributed, it shouldn't be spending millions to prevent exactly that.

Yet the government persists in its silly schizophrenia. carrying it now into "safe" cigarette research. Is it necessary? The Department of Health and Human Services says no—researchers for that branch concluded years ago that there can be no such thing as a "safe" cigarette. But the Department of Agriculture says yes-it has at least four laboratories and a host of researchers working to prove it.

One of the government's own researchers provides the best reason for not studying safe cigarettes. She says at least two of the leading cigarettes manufacturers are doing the same basic and applied research as the government. Does it make any sense for the government to duplicate the efforts of private industry

Cigarette manufacturers deny that they're doing research on "safe" cigarettes, yet they provde yet another reason why government shouldn't be spending taxpayer money on the question. They say they don't believe cigarettes are "unsafe" in the first place.

Is it any wonder taxpayers are increasingly questioniong why they are forced to subsidize this foolishness'

What Reagan should say

Suggested speech for delivery by President Reagan at the Bitburg Military Cemetery, West Germany, on the occasion of the fortieth anniversary of the end of World War II:

Distinguished visitors, friends of humanity: It is a historic moment we mark here - the end of the bloodiest, most brutal war in all history; such a war as, please God, Mankind will never fight

How brutal, how bloody I think we can judge from the fact that, forty years later, passions still run high concerning that war. There are those who asked me not to come to this place. Particularly was I moved by the plea of Eli Weisel, the writer, at a ceremony in which he received one of his country's highest civilian awards, the Congressional Gold Medal of Achievement.

The horrors that Mr. Weisel and millions of others saw in the concentration camps of Nazi Germany! May Mankind never again see such

It seems to me right and fitting to remember the victims. I cannot emphasize too strongly that they were innocent victims, from babies to the very oldest people, preyed on by a brutal ideology that identified them as "subhuman." The world can never be permitted to forget their fate. This is why I elected on this trip to visit the death camp of Bergen - Belsen

Then why am I here, at a cemetery where lie the remains of soldiers who died for the regime that operated the death camps? For a good reason, I hope. To draw attention to something that has received far too little attention the common lot of World War II's dead. The military, the civilians; the Allies, the Axis; the old, the young; the prisoners, the captors.

I would ask you please to understand. This is not

Now that we've reached mutually assured Destruction.

whaddya say to a freeze??

another way of saying, they're all dead, what's the use of talking about it? That would be obscene.

It seems to me that we have to ask why they died. There are, of course, many reasons, but one is larger than the rest.

They died because one man infected a group of men, who then infected a whole country, and afterward a continent.

Infected them with what? With something radically evil, yes, and also radically modern: the notion that man needs no gods to guide his footsteps; needs no standards or traditions - only the light of his inner vision.

The Jewish and the Christian traditions alike tell us that the first and great commandment is: Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind. Totalitarianism - to put a name to the evil I speak of - says, no! God is a majestic irrelevance. Forget Him. Man is what counts. Man himself can be God, by his own efforts, his own extortions. So man builds idea systems, and into them he pours his idealism and visions; yes, and his rages and frustrations and petty, narrow obsessions. One such system he calls Nazism. For the kindgom of God, he substitutes the nation - state; for God Himself, a fuehrer; for love, hatred; for peace, war. What can such a system result in - but death and destruction for all who come within its compass?

Thousands of Nazism's victims lie at Bergen -Belsen. Thousands lie here at Bitburg. Sacrifices alike to the mad vision of evil men.

But I would do wrong to encourage you to think that the evil died here, forty years ago. One great totalitarian system lies in ruins. Another lives. It is called communism

I know this offends many of the West who see communism as just another economic system, slightly misguided and more than a little behind

Not so. For what is its kingdom of heaven? The oppression of millions by thousands. What is its God? The Communist Party, all - wise, all -

The distinctions between Nazism and communism are minute, having more to do with style than with substance. Communism, too, had its death camps, described so eloquently in Alexander Solzhenitsyn's "Gulag Archipelago." As Hitler himself said, in 1934, "There is more that binds us to bolshevism than separates us from it.'

It is worth remembering, on such occasions as this, that Josef Stalin and Adolf Hitler were allies on the day World War II began; that, indeed, their alliance made possible the German invasion of Poland, an invasion in which Stalin joined only two - and - one - half weeks later. On the eve of Hitler's attack on the Soviet Union in June 1941, Stalin was supplying the oil that ran the conquering Wehrmacht's tanks and dive bombers.

Nor is all this a matter of merely historical interest. In Afghanistan, Soviet totalitarianism marches on. Hundreds of thousands of Afghans have perished in the flames of an Asian Holocaust.

On German soil lie millions of totalitarianism's victims. How we all wish they were the last. How we mourn that they are not. Let us do them, then, the homage of remembering, and deploring, the evil that took their lives.

Let us do them a still greater homage - that of vowing, never again! No more following of evil visions, no more spurning of God, whose broad arms enfold alike Jews, Christians, Germans, Americans, men, women, and children of every race and color.

From death let the world rise to life.

God bless you all.

Today in History

By The Associated Press Today is Monday, April 29, the 119th day of 1985. There are 246 days left in the year

Today's highlight in history: On April 29, 1945, American soldiers liberated the Nazi concentration camp in Dachau, Germany, where tens of thousands of people had perished.

On this date:

Ten years ago: Americans and South Vietnamese were frantically evacuating Saigon, which was on the verge of falling to the Communists. Five years ago: President

Weapons make us strong

SOVIET EUROMISSILES

The day Congress finally voted approval for more MX missiles, Rep. Edward Markey (D.-Mass.) called it "the end of the world.

Some Americans are genuinely fearful of military technology, convinced that weapons of annihilation - like Frankenstein's monster eventually will consume their creators.

Others of us believe that technology has now taken the fun out of war; that since nobody can win one nobody will start one.

Each of us does well to listen to the other. President Reagan and Moscow's head red, Gorbachev, will probably get together in New York in September

We have to assume that each new Soviet leader may be an improvement, though history offers us no encouragement.

Historically, Moscow fights dirty.

While the Soviets presently condamn our development of Star Wars weapons, the Soviets are developing Star Wards weapons. While they are seeking arms - control agreements with us they are presently violating existing arms control agreements with us.

The Soviets are ahead of us in Star Wars weapons and, even now, have 10,000 Soviet scientists and engineers assigned to work on high energy lasers

They have others working on a heavy - lift rocket

They have others working on a space plane for defending space stations.

The Soviets right now have ground - based lasers which could interfere with our satellites and the two new ICBMs under development.

These are the Soviets who repeatedly publicly accuse us of waging an arms race.

It is understandable that some Americans fear a cataclysmic collision between them and us which could render planet Earth uninhabitable

They insist that "nuclear disarmament" is our only chance for survival.

But nuclear disarmament - even if we could get all the major league and bush league dictators of the world to agree to it and abide by it - would leave our 6 percent fraction of the planet's population numerically overwhelmed and potentially altogether as dead.

On the other hand, decisive weapons make us -U.S. - as big as anybody

Unless we let them talk us out of ours. (c) 1985, Los Angeles Times Syndicate

Bitburg visit another teapot tempest

By William A. Rusher

The uproar over President Reagan's proposed visit to the German war cemetery at Bitburg is still in full cry as I write, though the administration may find some way to still the waters, or at least limit the damage, before these words reach print. But enough has already happened to insure that the final acts of the drama will be played out according to the inexorable rules for the production of these teapot tempests.

Taking off from the indisputable proposition that somebody - or arguably everybody - blundered, the media will pounce upon this as evidence that Mr. Reagan's entire presidency is "in trouble." The hitherto smooth White House operation will be described as in deep "disarray," with allegedly incalculable consequences for the future. Inevitably, comparisons will be drawn between the supposedly flap-free reign of former White House Chief of Staff James Baker and that of his successor, Don Regan. I will be surprised if one school of liberal opinion doesn't try to blame it all on the new communications director, Pat Buchanan.

But as usual the real target will be Mr. Reagan. Will he in fact (the pundits will ask) ever regain his balance after this "disaster"? Or is his whole second term now hopelessly compromised? Various predictable setbacks in Congress - over aid to the Nicaraguan contras, over the budget, etc. will be laid at the door of the Bitburg episode. Mr. Reagan will be depicted as a mortally wounded bull elephant, with the vultures circling ever closer overhead. Etc., etc.

In two or three weeks Harris and Gallup will report breathlessly that the president's "approval rating" is sharply "down" — although a look at the question asked will indicate only that the American people think (quite rightly) that he's had a bumpy spring. Gradually the wounds will heal, and ultimately a certain sense of proportion will reassert itself.

Meanwhile it is certainly worth finding out what went wrong, and how such a mistake can be prevented from happening again. According to one account, the president's advance party visited the war cemetery at Bitburg, but the gravestones were covered with snow. They were also given a list of the approximately 2,000 soldiers buried there, but apparently overlooked the presence on the list of 47 SS officers. It is these 47 graves that provide what justification there is for calling Bitburg a "Nazi

Mr. Reagan, unaware of the SS officers and thinking only of the German youths in the other 1900-plus graves drafted and sacrificed by the Nazi regime in a desperate effort to save its hide - just made matters worse when he suggested that these young-sters were "as much" victims of Nazism as the Jews

Beside the protests of Holocaust survivors like Elie Wiesel, those of the spokesmen for American veterans' organizations sound oddly thin and routine. The perpetuation of ancient hatreds may scratch their itch, but an American president has more important things to watch over: allies to keep, and a future to defend.

File those back tax returns

By Bruce Williams

DEAR BRUCE — I have a problem that I'm afraid to discuss with anyone. For the past nine years I haven't paid any taxes. Or rather, I should say that I've paid taxes, but I haven't filed a return.

I'm reaching a point where every time the phone rings, I jump. What should I do? —

DEAR FRIEND - You didn't say how much money you've earned or how much money was withheld from

I assume you're an employee. If that's the case, things probably aren't as bad as you fear. Chances are the proper amount was withheld from

But if you had earnings from which nothing was withheld for taxes - dividends or commissions, for example you could owe a small fortune.

In any event, the IRS will treat you much more kindly if you go to them, rather than waiting for them to find

Your first step should be to find a tax accountant who is also an attorney. He or she will help you prepare the back returns, file them and calculate the penalties you'll have to pay for filing late.

Don't put this off another day. The IRS eventually will catch up with you. The complex computer environment in which we live makes that a virtual certainty. And the consequences could be much more serious if you wait for their computers to track you down. Get going and good luck.

DEAR BRUCE - Several weeks ago I did some housecleaning and decided that I didn't need my stereo and wasn't using some of my clothes, so I took them to our local secondhand shop

I have sold things through that shop before and never had any problem. They take 25 percent of whatever the sales price is, and they pay promptly. Today, however, I got a very upsetting telephone call. They said that the store was broken into, the stereo was stolen and there's nothing they can do about it. They said they're sorry, but insisted that they have no responsibil-

I took my receipt out and looked at it. It doesn't say anything about their responsibilities or mine. It just says it's a receipt for the merchandise, and they agree to take 25 percent.

What shall I do? — R.H. ATLAN-

DEAR R.H. - You didn't say whether you have a homeowners insurance policy. If so, would the form that you're carrying cover a loss of this kind?

That's the first thing to check.

Harrah recalls pioneer days

Editor's note: The following family history is an excerpt from the Gray County history book Stories of oldtimers, newcomers and ex - residents are welcomed. Deadline is April 30. Histories may be turned in at the White Deer Land Museum.

HARRAH, LEE Lee Martin Harrah is a pioneer

born in Gray County on Dec. 26. 1894. Both of his parents were from Coshocton County, Ohio. His father was Wesley W. Harrah, born Jan. 14, 1864. His mother was Ella Etta Barrett, born Oct. 1, 1872.

His father came to visit "Uncle Harrah's Cantonment Creek in 1892. Joe was Wesley's half brother. A year later Wesley returned with his bride and they built a half dugout in the breaks southeast of Moody Farms is located today. Two years later they had built a house so their son Lee would not be born in a dugout. The house was a tall, two - story house built by Ohio standards. But when the Panhadle wind blew, it would "almost take off," so they had to prop long 2x4s tied together against the house to keep it from swaying in the wind.

Lee's father, a farmer, had homesteaded the land. Someone wrote a letter filing a claim, and Wesley heard about it, so he rushed to Miami and sent a telegram to Austin. It was "first come, first served," and the Harrahs retained their land. Lee remembers the quiet solitude out on the prairie the space and the silence. Having

Steinbrenner fires Yogi, rehires Martin

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) -Billy Martin is back. Yogi Berra is gone. The Bronx Zoo is back in business

"I'm very happy. I never did leave the Yankees," Martin said Sunday night, hours after he was named the New York Yankees manager for the fourth different time in his career.

Yankees principal owner George Steinbrenner fired Berra after the team lost 4-3 Sunday in Chicago to the White Sox. During spring training, Steinbrenner promised that Berra's job would be intact in 1985.

"Yogi will be the manager this year. A bad start will not affect Yogi's status,'' Steinbrenner

That all changed Sunday after just 16 games. The loss was the team's third straight and 10th

"The action was taken by the Yankees and we felt it was in the best interests of the club." Steinbrenner said in a statement.

Ironically, Martin was in Arlington, where the Yankees open a three-game series against the Rangers tonight, when Steinbrenner telephoned Sunday afternoon.

"He called me and said he wanted me to take over the club, and here I am," Martin said. "I never had any hard feelings with George I have no problems with

Martin, who twice was fired by

Steinbrenner and once resigned under heavy pressure from the owner, was working as a consultant and scout for the Yankees since being replaced by Berra after the 1983 season.

That job, though, did not offer the excitement that Martin

"Anybody who tells you retirement is a lot of fun, they're crazy," Martin said Sunday night. "How many times can you water the garden? And I'm tired of playing golf."

Berra said he did not know whether he would take another job with the team, if Steinbrenner presented one.

"He hasn't asked me yet," Berra said. "Right now, I'm just going to go home and play golf." The Yankee players, whose bumpy flight to Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport symbolized an already bumpy season, were visibly upset when they arrived at their hotel.

Back off! Back off!" several of them shouted at reporters and photographers who had gathered in the hotel.

Phil Rizzuto, who played with both Martin and Berra with the Yankees and now is a broadcaster with the team, stopped for a minute.

Asked whether the rough ride had affected the team, Rizzuto said: "No, they are all upseO because Yogi was let go. Among the players who declined comment was veteran Don Baylor, considered one of the team's emotional leaders, who had once vowed he would not play again for Martin.

Martin, who said he did not "feel any pressure at all" working again as Steinbrenner's manager, said one of his first tasks with the Yankees would be to get the players "in the proper frame of mind.'

The New York clubhouse was gloomy following Sunday's loss, which occurred when starting pitcher Joe Cowley walked home the winning run in the bottom of the ninth inning.

'Shame, shame, 'shame,' said All-Star outfielder Rickey Henderson, who played under Martin wih the Oakland A's before being traded to New York during the off-season.

"Yogi showed he had a lot of confidence in me. He made me a better pitcher," Cowley said. "I'm going to miss him. Shame, Dale Berra, Yogi's son, met with his father behind closed doors after the dismissal was announced.

The Yankees had traded with Pittsburgh for Dale, an infielder, before the season began, and the reunion of father and son had been a cause for happiness in the Yankee family.

Early Sunday, it was announced that Dale had suffered a hairline finger fracture during Saturday's game. Then came the news that his father had been fired.

Dale Berra emerged from the meeting with his father with tears in his eyes.

Utah rallies despite loss of its 'tower'

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD AP Sports Writer

The Utah Jazz came back from a two-tower deficit to eliminate the Houston Rockets.

Utah lost 7-foot-4 defensive ace Mark Eaton shortly before halftime with a hyperextended knee Sunday, forcing the Jazz to go with 36-year-old Billy Paultz and veteran Rich Kelley against Houston's strong and youthful 'Twin Towers,' 7-4 Ralph Sampson and 7-0 Akeem Olajuwon.

But with Thurl Bailey scoring 15 of his 20 points in the fourth period, the Jazz outscored the Rockets 37-21 in the final 12 minutes to win 104-97 in the fifth and deciding game of their National Basketball Association first-round playoff series. The Rockets had finished the regular season seven games ahead of the Jazz in the standings.

"I thought we'd already won when we went up 10 points and the big guy (Eaton) was gone," said Olajuwon, who finished with 32 points and 14 rebounds. "I still don't believe we lost the game. I think we took them for granted because the big guy wasn't there."

In other games Sunday, Denver beat San Antonio 126-99 to win its first-round series 3-2, and Boston routed Detroit 133-99 and Philadelphia ripped Milwaukee 127-105 in the openers of their second-round series. On Saturday, the Los Angeles Lakers took a 1-0 lead in their second-round series against Portland with a 125-101

On Tuesday, Detroit is at Boston, Philadelphia at Milwaukee and Portland at Los Angeles for the second games of those best-of-7 series, while Utah is at Denver for Nuggets 126, Spurs 99

Alex English had 33 points and Denver held San Antonio to 39.2 percent shooting from the field to coast to victory.

English had 29 points after three quarters as Denver cruised to a 97-69 lead entering the final period. The Spurs came into the game shooting 56 percent from the floor for the series — a playoff-record pace — but they hit only 31 for 79 in the final game.

In the first half, the Nuggets outscored San Antonio 23-6 over the last six minutes for a 65-45 margin at halftime. Artis Gilmore led the Spurs with 19 points, while Calvin Natt had 20 points and 10 rebounds for Denver. 76ers 127, Bucks 105

Moses Malone scored 27 points and smothered Milwaukee's three-man center rotation to lead Philadelphia over the Bucks. Alton Lister, Randy Breuer and Paul Mokeski committed 10 personal fouls and scored only 17 points against the 6-10 Malone.

"I think my all-around talent is better than them," Malone said. 'To overcome their depth just got to work hard.'

Terry Cummings topped the Bucks with 17 points, while backup guard Clint Richardson hit 11 of 12 shots and scored 22 points for Philadelphia.

Celtics 133, Pistons 99 Boston, which won three games in its first-round series against Cleveland by a total of just seven points, routed Detroit as frontcourt starters Robert Parish, Kevin McHale and Larry Bird all scored more than 20 points. Parish had 27 points and grabbed 16 rebounds, McHale added 26 points and Bird 21.

Houston win big for Floyd

THE WOODLANDS, Texas (AP) - Raymond Floyd posted his 19th PGA victory with a one-stroke triumph in the $500,000 Houston Open, but as far as he's concerned it was the most important win of his 23-year career

"The last three tournaments I've gone to bed on Saturday night with the lead," he said after taking the $90,000 first prize with a 69 Sunday and 11-under-par 277 for the tourney. "It was important to my career to take advantage of leading and not let another one slip away. He didn't.

After blowing third-round leads at Greensboro, N.C. and two weeks ago at The Masters, Floyd charged onto the new 7,042-yard Tournament Players Course at The Woodlands on Sunday with birdies on the first two holes and never looked back.

Even at No. 18, with Payne Stewart making a charge and tour rookies Bob Lohr and David Frost in the clubhouse just two strokes back, he intentionally aimed his approach shot beyond the water-guarded green, hoping for the rough or a bunker and settling for the bleachers.

"I was not going to lose the tournament," Floyd said. "The only way to blow the tournament was to put it in the water."

That's where Stewart wound up for the second time in the final round, effectively killing his chances

"I'm a little depressed, I guess, that I didn't win," the be-knickered Stewart said. "But I was never leading and hit the water too many times. I should have known better.

Stewart's watery demise opened the door for Lohr and Frost to cash in their biggest paychecks ever, each earning $44,000,

Ozzie walks to first, Yogi walks the plank

AP Sports Writer

Ozzie Guillen and Yogi Berra both took a hike - but Guillen's was a happy 90-foot trot to first base while Berra walked the plank. Owner George Steinbrenner of the New York Yankees was on the firing line again Sunday. Sixteen games into the season, Steinbrenner recanted his promise earlier this year that Berra's job was safe for 1985, win or lose.

Shortly after the Yankees lost for the third time in a row and 10th in 16 games this young season — the Chicago White Sox beat them 4-3 when Joe Cowley walked Guillen with the bases loaded and two out in the bottom of the ninth inning to force in the winning run - the hard-to-please owner fired Berra and replaced him with - who else? - Billy Martin.

"He's the boss," said Berra, who had been hearing rumors of his dismissal all week. "I had an inkling when you hear it every day. This weekend? I don't think it had anything to do with it. What can you do when you lose three one-run games? This is a good ballclub. They'll get it together."

It was the 12th managerial change since Steinbrenner purchased the Yankees in 1973 and Martin's fourth term - provided he lasts until tonight's game in

Tommy John allowed seven hits in 5 2-3 innings for his first victory since last Aug. 6, leaving the game when he strained an abdominal

'I've always pitched well in this ballpark (the Kingdome) and against the Mariners," said the 41-year-old John, who snapped a personal five-game losing streak. Tigers 5, Brewers 0

Terrell, who entered the game with a 5.68 earned run average, hurled a four-hitter while Alan Trammell and Lance Parrish cracked eighth-inning home runs off loser Teddy Higuera. It was the third straight victory for the Tigers after a brief slump in which they dropped six of eight.

Twins 10, A's 1 Mickey Hatcher went 4-for-5, extending his consecutive hit streak to nine at-bats before flying out in the seventh inning. Hatcher, who went 5-for-5 Saturday, scored twice and capped the Twins' five-run sixth inning with a two-run single. He tied Tony Oliva's team record of nine straight hits and major-league record of 12, set by Mike "Pinky" Higgins of Boston in 1938 and equaled by Walt Dropo of Detroit in 1952. Hatcher also tied several players for the AL record of nine hits in two consecutive nine-inning games. Mike Smithson allowed seven hits and extended his string of shutout innings to 16 2-3 before surrendering an eighth-inning run.

Orioles 8, Indians 7 A two-run double by Eddie Murray tied the score and the winning run scored on pinch-hitter John Lowenstein's sacrifice fly as Baltimore came from behind with three runs in the eighth inning. The Indians, who led 7-1 in the fourth inning, used five pitchers in the Blue Jays 6, Rangers 3 Willie Upshaw hit two home runs and Buck Martinez and George Bell also homered while Doyle Alexander scattered 10 hits, including home runs by Cliff Johnson and Gary Ward. Loser Mike Mason went 5 2-3 innings, giving up four runs on five hits.

Royals 5, Red Sox 2 Frank White hit two home runs in a game for the third time in his 12-year major-league career to pace the visiting Royals. White, who also had a double, lined his second homer of the season off the light tower atop the left-field wall in the second inning and drilled his 90th career home run into the screen in left-center in the sixth. Both came with the bases empty.

Future of USFL to be decided

TEANECK, N.J. (AP) — Its fans deserting it, its television network asking for rebates and its owners bitterly divided, the United States

Football League meets here today to try to decide when it will play next season — if it plays at all.

The main item on the agenda is whether to reaffirm the USFL's decision of last August to switch to the fall next season or remain in the spring, and it's a bitterly divisive one. John Bassett of the Tampa Bay Bandits, leader of the pro-spring forces, has suggested he might form his own league if the vote doesn't go his way.

But there may be even more pressing matters for the 3-year-old league that lost more than $100 million in its first two seasons and could lose another $50 million this

One is the future of the Los Angeles Express, which signed Steve Young and a half-dozen other high-priced players a year ago, but has never been able to make an impact on the Southern California

Unable to find an owner, the team is being run by the league. which may either fold it or sell off some of that expensive talent. Team and league officials say there's a 75 percent chance the team will be dissolved.

But the future of the league may also be at stake.

Attendance is plummeting. Throuigh nine weeks, the league was down 6 percent over last year, and will be down a lot more after this weekend. Denver, which averaged 44,000 per game in 1983 and 33,000 last year, had its lowest attendance in history Friday night 8,207 — while Los Angeles, in what may be its final game, drew just 7,188 on Saturday night.

Floridians flock to USFL games

By The Associated Press

The football fans in Florida turned out in force to see Jacksonville and Tampa Bay win. If the fans in Los Angeles followed the Express in the same fashion, the United States Football League's owners might not be meeting today.

The Birmingham Stallions were in Jacksonville. They figured to beat the Bulls on Sunday. They were wrong - and an announced crowd of 41,298 was on hand to see Ed Luther's TD pass and Mike Rozier's scoring run help the Bulls win 27-17.

In Tampa, an announced crowd of 41,226 paid its way in to see John Reaves' third-quarter touchdown bombs of 47 yards to Larry Brodsky and 57 yards to Jerry Price propel the Tampa Bay Bandits past Baltimore 28-14 and into a first-place tie with Birmingham in the Eastern

Also Sunday, before 9,723 fans in San Antonio, Jim Kelly threw four scoring strikes, two apiece to Gerald McNeil and Richard Johnson, as Houston shot down the Gunslingers 38-29 and stayed one-half game ahead of Oakland atop the West.

The Express' attendance, which has been declining steadily all season, rose slightly Saturday just slightly - to 7,188. Los Angeles beat Portland 17-12 as Steve Young and Frank Seurer each threw for a

Also Saturday, Oakland defeated

Arizona 27-11. On Friday Showboats beat Denver 33-17 before the smallest crowd in the history of the Gold.

Denver, once among the strongest USFL franchises, attracted only 8,207 fans.

Tonight, Orlando visits the New Jersey Generals. Just down the road from East Rutherford, N.J., in Teaneck, the owners of the league - all of whom own a share of the LA franchise, which doesn't have an owner of its own - will be meeting to decide the future of the league and possibly the fate of the franchise. There is speculation that Saturday night's game may have been LA's last.

Senate sponsor Tati Santiesteban kept at least 17 or 18 votes on his side in beating back amendments by Parker, D-Port Arthur, and Truan, D-Corpus Christi.

During the two-hour debate Thursday, Truan said, "I'm not going to stand for regulatory authority to apply to the counties I represent," and he asked his colleagues to extend to him the courtesy of exempting five counties. They refused 17-11.

Debate broke off after Parker had proposed an amendment that would automatically remove Parks and Wildlife Department regulation of shrimp and oyster fishing after two years.

Parker joked that tampering with the industry could "cut out shrimp at the private clubs' legislators frequent in Austin. 'You wouldn't be able to get a shrimp cocktail at the Austin Club,

Backed up behind the shrimp and oyster bill is a proposal to triple college tuition this fall. Several conservative senators balked Thursday at accepting a two-year limit on tuition increases

Sen. Roy Blake, D-Nacogdoches, said limiting the tuition increase to two years, awaiting a study of higher education before the 1987 legislative session, would leave students confused.

'We need to let the (entering) students know what the costs are going to be so they can plan,' Blake said.

The bill tripling tuition this fall and raising it again for the 1986-87 school year has been tentatively approved by the Senate on an 18-11 vote. Those 11 in opposition, however, could block a final vote, and Sen. Gonzalo Barrientos, D-Austin, said, "We've got 11 votes, and we're sticking.'

Landfills failing to comply in monitoring groundwater

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Environmental Protection Agency would like to let some of the nation's landfills off the hook on this fall's deadline for meeting groundwater monitoring requirements, but a skeptical Congress is armed with a new report suggesting widespread

The oversight subcommittee of the Energy and Commerce Committee says in a staff report there is "extremely high" noncompliance among the 1,246 landfills, impoundment ponds, lagoons and land treatment facilities subject to federal groundwater monitoring requirements.

'Clearly, some of the data are shocking, especially when viewed from the perspective that the regulations called for compliance ... 3½ years ago," Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., chairman of both the committee and the subcommittee, wrote to committee members.

The subcommittee released its report Sunday, the day before it opened hearings on the subject.

A 1963 study by the General Accounting Office said 78 percent of landfills had failed to meet the requirements. Congress then extended the deadline to Nov. 8 of this year, but said landfills must close then if they are not in compliance.

At a briefing Friday, Jack McGraw, acting EPA assistant administrator for solid waste and emergency response, was asked if EPA had discretion to let non-complying landfills stay open past Nov. 8.

"The lawyers are looking at that," he said.

"We want to close the laggards," said John Skinner of the EPA. But many landfills have been trying to meet the requirements, and closing them raises 'questions of equities," said EPA enforcement chief Gene Locero.

'We're going to talk to Congress. We're fully prepared to enforce the law," said Locero

Locero said he was not prepared to discuss recommendations to

Rep. James J. Florio, D-N.J., a subcommittee member, said through spokeswoman Rena Steinzor that an extension of the deadline without congressional authority would raise questions of executive branch compliance with

Florio said he intends to 'demand satisfaction' on EPA's

Landfills without contamination are listed as having adequate monitoring wells if they have four in groundwater, one upstream and three downstream, sampling four contaminants. Statistical tests on the sample results indicate whether an expensive full-scale assessment must be performed.

Some findings from the subcommittee report:

Of all facilities, 559 had some indication of groundwater contamination, either by statistical tests, by confirmed sampling or by the undertaking of full-scale monitoring. EPA officials said this figure was misleading in that they were now starting to require complete monitoring of all facilities regardless of what statistical tests showed, and the statistical tests yield a high rate of 'false positives'' - false indications of contamination.

-Of the 508 listed as having adequate wells, 204 had similarly shown some indication of contamination, using the same criteria.

-There are no monitoring wells at all at 188 sites, and enforcement action had been started against only 89

-EPA regional offices do not know the adequacy of the wells at

On economic summit reform, France: no trade talk without currency reform

PARIS (AP) — Days before a Western economic summit, President Francois Mitterand has announced France will refuse to discuss new international trade agreements without parallel talks on a new world monetary system.

Mitterand's statement reflected widespread concern over the beating that European currencies have taken in recent months against the dollar, which has been buoyed by high U.S. interest rates. 'It is not possible for us to accept negotiations on commercial affairs if on the other hand there is a refusal to engage in conversations on currency," Mitterrand said in a live TV interview Sunday.

President Reagan departs Tuesday for the West German capital Bonn, where the summit will be held Friday and Saturday. Also participating are the leaders of Canada, Japan, West Germany. Britain and Italy.

The seven nations, the world's largest industrial democracies, are currently enjoying the third year of an economic upturn, but their concerns about the future, and their strategies, vary.

Mitterand's statement line with general French economic strategy - a strategy generally opposed by Washington - but this was the first time he had publicly and explicitly linked trade and monetary talks

On the world economic front, France is pressing for a radical revision in the way international currencies are valued against each other. The French essentially want to create three monetary zones the dollar, the yen and the major West European currencies - with built-in mechanisms to prevent wide fluctuations between those

That would replace the system of floating exchange rates.

The United States, as it made clear at a recent meeting of the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development in Paris, is only willing to consider looking at some studies which would alter, but not dramatically change, the current exchange system

Instead, Washington has indicated it will press its partners at the Bonn summit for a specific date early next year to expand and modify the current General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT), a series of guidelines for world trade.

The Americans want to roll back current protectionist measures. postpone others now planned and bring trade in high technology under the GATT guidelines.

The French, who see themselves as the champions of the developing nations in these matters, say the developed world should first abandon protectionist measures
