Home Town Talk by Betty. It appears that Jim Ferguson is growing a little desperate. You know, he always runs like a scared rabbit in April and May, holds up pretty strong through June and the July primary.

As we said 'way back in the spring about the time Mrs. Ferguson announced her candidacy, this is the best year in history for the Fergusons to run. Unhappily, there are a good many people who still persist in blaming the governor for everything from drought and hail storms to the price of cotton and crude oil.

He's either growing desperate or a little dull in his old age. Down at San Angelo the other night he said that the statement that federal road aid to Texas was withdrawn during his wife's administration "is a lie".

Hard To Get Out
UNCLE SAM'S wartime fleet in shipbuilding, one of the most extravagant governmental gestures in all history, has not come to an end but the situation is steadily improving.

For instance, only the other day the membership of the shipping board was reduced from seven to three, at a saving of $40,000 annually in salaries. The three commissioners will receive $10,000 each under the new economy plan, instead of the $12,000 formerly paid them.

While reducing the board membership, no step will be taken at this time to reduce the board's employed personnel. T. V. O'Connor of Buffalo board chairman, says that all of the 700 employees will be retained.

The war has been over 15 years, and the government has been making constant efforts to get out of the shipping business, but in spite of everything we are still it up to our necks, and probably will continue to be for some years to come.

Hundreds of ships have been sold as junk, and hundreds more remain tied up in various harbors.

The government shipping experience serves to illustrate anew the difficulty of turning loose once we have placed the government in business. It is easy enough to get in, but extremely hard to get out.

Beaudine Is Director Of 'Mad Parade'

Nine Women Stars Perform In New Kind Of World War Picture

Some sort of a record for background or directorial experience is held by William Beaudine, who directed the Paramount release "The Mad Parade," which will be shown Thursday only by R & R Ritz patrons.

Beaudine, since first meeting the light of day in New York City, three or four years before Dewey began strutting the imperial naval emissaries of Spain, has hit the high spots of all that is to be hit along producer way.

He began in the New York studios of Biograph in 1909, that com-

Claudette Colbert And Clive Brook In 'Man From Yesterday'

A quick courtship, a quicker honeymoon and a husband who, even more quickly, disappears from the life of his affectionate wife.

These are some of the ingredients—and there are more just as copiously packed with heart-tugging drama—in "The Man From Yesterday," Paramount's newest offering, featuring Claudette Colbert and Clive Brook. It will be featured at the Ritz theater Wednesday of this week.

Both of these fascinating personalities play their parts with a fine éclat. There can be no doubt that they are established favorites with Big Spring folks as a result of numerous fine performances of the past on the Ritz screen.

Brook is seen as the British army officer, a role which is not new to him, since he only recently donned the olive-drab in "Shanghai Express." He marries a nurse (Miss Colbert) in the hectic last hours of a leave of absence in Paris during a bombing raid. Their impetuous wedding, nevertheless a sincerely romantic one, is suddenly terminated when Brook is called back to the battle front.

This is only the beginning of a series of events that keep the screen action in a turmoil of alternating romance, drama and a bombing raid. The right is reserved to reject or edit all advertising copy.

Brook, thought dead, meets Claudette several years later, after she has fallen in love with Charles Boyer, a French surgeon. Claudette tries to make a go of the out-worn love, but Brook is sure that she is impelled more by a sense of duty than by a romantic regard for their hasty marriage.

How their problems are solved is one thing that this reviewer, out of deference to the suspense of the unique stirring climax will not tell you.

A director he has since remained with Kalem, Universal, Triangle, Christie, Goldwyn, Fox, First National, United Artists, Mary Pickford Productions, Warners, Famous Players and Metro-Goldwyn.

For several of these companies he worked again and again, his results justifying and making welcome his services to any company which has an especially difficult or different problem. Handling nine actresses, each jealous of her rights as a featured performer, was probably enough in "The Mad Parade."

Beaudine is a member of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences and the Hollywood M. P. D. A., two of Hollywood's classic orders for those who have attained recognition in the making of bigger and better photoplays.

In between times, when he finds those rare intervals, he rates fishing, hunting and golf as his prime hobbies.

West Texas Boy Becomes World-Famous As Only Hunter Of Big Game In Tropic Jungles Who 'Brings 'Em Back Alive'

Frank Buck Started By Forking Rattlesnakes Near His San Angelo Home; Picture At Ritz Today And Monday Shows Terrific Fights Of Jungle Kings

Down along the algeria studda hillsides of the San Angelo country twenty years ago and more a small boy took time off from swimming in the Concho and following joyful pursuits of a typical boy of West Texas to browse around with a forked stick—catching rattlesnakes.

But this boy not only was good at forking rattlers. He kept up with a lot of things that were going on in the world. So he learned that in far-away Rochester, New York, a man who made snake oil as a remedy for rheumatism and who paid fifty cents apiece for every rattler delivered alive in his laboratory.

"A lead pipe cinch" it was for this boy. He made good sums of money furnishing the deadly reptiles to the snake oil man.

The next profit the boy made on animals was one of his few departures from his code, which is "bring 'em back alive."

Tom Green county offered a bounty of 50 cents for every coyote scalp delivered at the court house. So the lad invented a scheme. Whenever butchering time was near, he would take the carcass of a calf and slip a rope around it and drag the carcass round to a spot he had chosen. The coyotes would get the scent and follow it to a ditch the boy had dug. It was then a case of good shooting and bringing the scalps to the court house.

West Texas Product
That boy was Frank Buck, member of a family that has resided in the Tom Green county many years. Most of its members still live in San Angelo.

Less than a year ago Frank Buck, now a famous grown man, in his holster and carrying a looped stick, captured a 30-foot python in the Sumatran jungle.

Between the days of forking rattlers in West Texas and looping pythons in Sumatra Frank Buck has become famous around the world as the one man who can go into jungles of the tropics on any continent or isle and 'bring 'em back alive.' To this ability, born of long study of animals, and his fearless, intimate knowledge of the jungles and a lot of common horse sense, most of the greatest zoos and circus menageries of the nation owe many of their finest live specimens.

The people of this section of Frank Buck's native West Texas will experience thrills greater and more unusual than any they have ever had from sound screen presentations when they see Buck's picture "Bring 'Em Back Alive" at the R & R Ritz theatre here today and Monday. The picture also was shown at Saturday night's matinee performance.

"Bring 'Em Back Alive" is one picture every foot of which was taken in the Malayan jungles.

Added Thrill
There have been a few successful jungle pictures in the past. But one element abounds in "Bring 'Em Back Alive" which has never been brought into any other picture.

That element consists of the fights between animals of the jungle.

There was a preview of the picture at the Ritz Saturday morning. Those who have seen and heard the picture (for sound of the beast's battle certainly is hard to forget) felt chills along the spine when a Royal Bengal tiger and a monster python tied up in their native jungle arena, when a black leopard (called the lowest, meanest beast on earth by Buck) decided to have it out with a tiger when another tiger, for no purpose except to fight matched one with a huge alligator.

You see Buck and his trusty native helpers would build various types of traps in which animals are captured. You see him raise his rifle and fire to save the life of a baby elephant lost from the herd and attacked by a tiger. You see a tiger steal into a native village near Buck's own camp and rescue an infant by its mother. You see natives with "blowtubes" send arrows into a leopard, which had climbed a tree near scene of a native festival and the natives' dance of thanksgiving over being rid of the danger.

Can't Resist
This expedition, arranged for the purpose of bringing back 'alive' on the sound screen for the people of America the things that Frank Buck has been doing for years, was doubly successful. Not only did the camera get what RKO-Radio wanted, but Buck, unable to resist adding a few live specimens when he went on this, the Van Beuren-Buck expedition, planned purely as a motion picture assignment, directed by Clyde E. Elliott.

When Buck left Texas as a youth he went to Chicago, where he worked as a bank clerk, always maintaining some contact with animals; and always following his self-planned study of natural history. He did not attend college, but through his own efforts he acquired considerable scientific knowledge of animals, their habits, anatomy and peculiarities. In those days he acquired a great deal of information on some specimens which appear in "Bring 'Em Back Alive," the RKO-Radio picture—the giant monitor lizard and the honeybees, to name two—but which Mr. Buck did not actually see until years later.

He scrimped and saved enough money to finance a personal trip to South America, and with his knowledge of ornithology and several lucky "breaks," he was able to show the expenses of his trip and do a small profit. Obtaining financial backing, he began his career in earnest. In two years he made another trip to South America and his first to Africa. Since then not a year has passed which did not find him, some of the time, in a part of the uncivilized world, "bringing 'em back alive."

Miss Bankhead Studies Under Noted Father

Star Of "Thunder Below" Is Well Versed In Literature

A United States Senator was Talulah Bankhead's first dramatic teacher.

Her instructor was her father, Senator William B. Bankhead, of Alabama. Miss Bankhead recently revealed while starting in the production of Paramount's "Thunder Below," which is the Ritz theatre's feature picture for two days beginning Friday of next week.

The seasons always were in Shakespearean roles, enacted in their home. Senator Bankhead always has been an admirer of the famous Bard and today is considered one of the nation's most thorough students of Shakespeare.

"Father used to train me in Shakespeare when I was at school long before I went to New York to try my fortune on the stage," the Paramount star states. "Many are the times when I have been Juliet to his Romeo. It was extremely hard, because I always knew father was as familiar with my speeches as his own and I worked in fear of forgetting."

It was inevitable that Miss Bankhead should choose the stage as her vocation. She was literally brought up on drama. To act, to impersonate was an inherent quality of her temperament. Her early convent and private school education was followed by a course in a dramatic school and after graduation she immediately sought a job on the dramatic stage.

SPORTS ON PARADE

By CURTIS BISHOP

Sunday afternoon the Cosden Refinery and the White Collars, who have been playing baseball just two weeks, come together in a duel that will set a precedent for spirited rivalry at least.

Lex James' team, playing almost every day, has compiled a good record, holding victories over Jones Valley, Tigers, R-Bar, and Midway. The team was organized in order that a group of enthusiasts might have the chance to play, and their success has been as big a surprise to them as to anyone else.

Now with their recent acquisitions, Albert Garcia and P. Fierro, the class of the Mexican sandloters, the Jamesmen are admittedly a tough nut to crack. Ray McMahan, the red-headed pressman, will probably start against the Refinerymen Sunday.

McMahan for two years has served Cosden in the role of a utility man, never once trying to be a moundman. After watching him turn back R-Bar 9 to 3 one of the Cosden players remonstrated him as follows:

"Red, you oughta been pitching for us all season. Why didn't you tell us you were a pitcher?"

Ray deliberated a moment. "No one ever asked me," he retorted.

Two of the sandlot youths that James discovered are "real" finds. Sally Smith, the blonde-headed shortstop, has to date fielded twenty-seven chances with but one miscue. Warren, the hard-hitting center-fielder, has a slugging average of slightly over .500 and has yet to miss one in the middle pasture. But at that Warren isn't the leading hitter on the club. That honor goes to Joe Pickle, Herald reporter. The exact percentage, we believe, is around .600.

Babe Didrikson announces that she is taking up golf and that she intends to win the national women's championship this season. The Dallas girl has played approximately twelve rounds in her lifetime, yet in California she defeated Grant Rice, annual winner of the Author's and Writers' tournament, by five strokes, carding an 82.

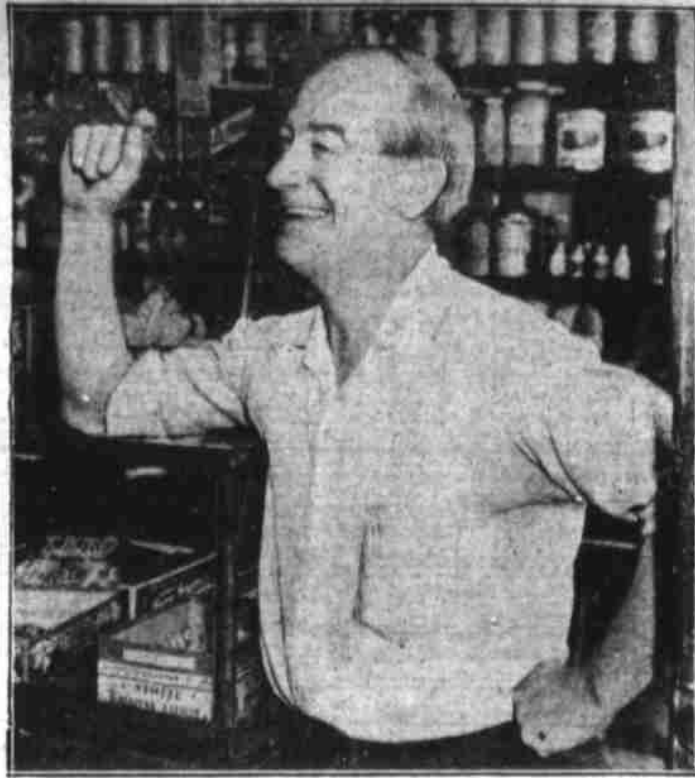

Since leaving a month ago Miss Didrikson has won eight first places, two seconds, and a fourth in national and international competition and has shattered eight world records and tied two others.

"Skeet" Rawlings, former San Angelo second-baseman, has been signed by Ft. Worth. Rawlings is to be remembered as the bald-headed slugger who spent most of his time while in Big Spring wisecracking with youthful friends in the stands, and generally taking the decision.

And speaking of baseball we were privileged to "sit in" at an exchange of reminiscences between Sammy Sain and Miller Harris. Harris recalled the career of a baseball promoter who organized teams at Colorado, Hamlin and other places. Sain recognized the character, remembering that it was the same man who offered him four hundred dollars per month to manage the Hamlin club in the old West Texas League.

"I know something was wrong," the veteran infielder smiled. "I told him over the phone that no class D manager was worth that

NEW WIDE SLEEVES
PATTERN NO. 760

From Paris comes the news of higher neckline, width in sleeves and a straighter silhouette as illustrated in this model. The seaming of the blouse lends decorative interest, too. Prints with plain color for contrast would be smart variation for this style.

It is adaptable to silks or woolens, and has fashion interest that will carry it smartly through the fall.

Sizes 14, 16, 36, 38, 40, 42. Size 36 requires 3 3/4 yards of 36-inch fabric, and 3 5/8 yards of 39-inch fabric. 3 1/2 yards for contrast.

Simplified illustrated instructions for cutting and sewing are included with each pattern. They give complete directions for making these dresses.

promises to be a busy one as far as athletics are concerned. Sometime in the near future Coaches Firlow and Brown are due to send out their first call for gridiron volunteers, and football training will quite naturally put other sports in the shade.

August 19 and 20 will find the West Texas Press Convention in Big Spring, and one of the entertainment features will be the annual newspapermen's tournament.

Early in September the Country Club invitational tournament will have the line-up. Conflict with the dates for the Thurber meet will restrict the entry list somewhat, but nevertheless the champion will have to play very, very near to par for three consecutive days.

A dispatch from Odessa assures the entry of Morgan Nell, young Odessa star. Among Nell's victims in the Sand Belt inter-club pairings is Shirley Robbins, so his threat for the title now held by Charlie Qualls cannot be taken too lightly.

Bright Spots In Business

UTICA, N. Y.—Employment will be given 200 persons August 15, the date set for the re-opening of Richardson and Boynton, manufacturers of heating equipment.

CHICAGO—An estimated $4,000,000 in merchandise for fall delivery was purchased by 7,000 store owners and buyers representing 20 states, officials of the Interstate Merchants Council said at the close of the meeting.

CHICAGO—Orders for new airplanes to speed up service between Chicago and Oakland, Calif., have been placed by United Air Lines at a cost of $2,000,000.

DETROIT—Automobile registration in Wayne County, Mich., in the first week of August was 713 against 451 for the corresponding week of last year.

DETROIT—Graham-Paige Motors has increased its production schedule by 50 per cent because of improving sales.

WASHINGTON — Chairman James C. Stone of the Federal Farm Board in commenting on the government crop report said that "the outlook is very promising and I expect to see a good psychological effect on the farmer as a result of these encouraging predictions."

PHILADELPHIA—As a result of co-operative effort of men and management to secure a wider distribution of employment, more than 2,000 furloughed employes of the Pennsylvania Railroad were put back to work in July.

Catholics In Second Victory Over Jonesmen

Napoleon had his Waterloo, Caesar had his Brutus—and Lex James' White Collars have the Catholic Athletic Club. The boys from across the tracks took their second straight decision from the South Siders Friday afternoon, battering Prichard hard to accumulate eight runs while Aguilar and Fierro limited the Jamesmen to four tallies.

Albert Garcia and Silva led a batting attack that threatened to score continuously as Prichard was given only half-hearted support by his mates, and clever base-running gave the North Siders at least two unearned runs. Fierro, Hernandez, Marquez, and Aguilar also contributed timely hits to the Athletic's attack.

Aguilar and Fierro conspired together to hold the White Collar slugging trio, Warren, Pickle and Bishop, to two scratch hits between them and to limit the entire club to nine safeties. The former walked in the first score after a wild third inning and was touched for another marker when Jones' double to left center scored Prichard. Miller Harris' home run accounted for the other two scores.

Box score:

Slain Shepherd's Personal Effects Are Exhibited Here

Personal effects of Anisito Martinez, murdered sheep herder on the Tom Keeling ranch near Foran, are now a part of the curio collection in the sheriff's office. Martinez left a leather hat, two sling shots, a sheathed butcher knife, a "nigger shooter" and plated leather whip. Investigation of Martinez's death took officers to San Angelo Friday where they questioned several persons. They made known nothing of their findings save to say that three more are to be quizzed in connection with the Mexican's death. Unfounded reports were that Martinez left $350 in a San Angelo bank.

Martinez was discovered Wednesday afternoon, his skull crushed in two places. Officers have attached themselves to the belief that the sheep herder was the victim of a brawl. Robbery has been practically eliminated as a motive.

500 Bottles Of Beer Taken In Raid Here

More than 500 bottles of beer and a quantity of whisky were seized in a raid on a house on West Third street, Charlie Moore, taken in the raid Friday night by Sheriff Jess Slaughter and Deputy A. J. Merrick, was held late Saturday afternoon unable to post $750 bail.

Moore stood examining trial Saturday before Justice of the Peace Cecil Collins, who fixed bond at $750, binding the defendant over for action of the 32nd Special District Court grand jury in September.

Many Cast Absentee Ballots In Run-Off

Three days of actual absentee voting have brought a total of 23 ballots and 28 applications for ballots. Ten additional days remaining before law prohibits absentee voting, prospects for a heavy pre-run off vote are bright. More than two hundred voted absentee prior to the first primary.

HOSPITAL NOTES

Two Measures To Make Ownership Of Homes Easier Submitted For Action In Texas General Election

Two measures to make home-ownership easier and to take hardships off the buying and owning of homes and farms, will be among the nine constitutional amendments to be voted Nov. 8.

One of these is to exempt up to 1,000 assessed valuation each resident homestead in Texas from all state taxes. The average assessed value of the homesteads upon which Texans live is below $3000 so that the average homestead will be free of state taxes. On larger homesteads the first $3000 will be exempted and the owner will pay on the assessment above that value.

Permit to Clear Titles
The other amendment is to permit the state to clear titles to hundreds of thousands of homes, farms and ranches now clouded by delinquent tax claims. The delinquent taxes have seriously affected the value of property. They have prevented sales. They have discouraged owners from paying current taxes and each year have rendered the owner less capable of paying out.

Many of the pieces of property would not bring the accumulation of taxes penalties and interest against them.

A constitutional amendment will give the state discretion to settle the old delinquent tax claims and permit cities and counties to do likewise on all delinquent taxes of over 10 years' standing. In this way, it will not encourage delay or refusal to pay current taxes. The cities, counties and state will get what can be collected and will be permitted to wipe off the old uncollectable, worthless claims and clear titles to property.

Several Other Amendments
Other amendments to be voted Nov. 8 include:

The legislature may designate time and place for Texas centennial exposition and to appropriate money to pay part of its cost. No person may vote for a bond issue who has not rendered property for taxation.

Counties and cities along seaboard may levy taxes for seawalls. Consolidate offices of county tax assessor and collector. Owner may redeem land sold for taxes.

Abrogate right of university to issue bonds against permanent fund.

Permit soldiers, sailors, national guard and reserve to hold state offices.

Last Texas Hearing Called August 29

AUSTIN (UP)—A hearing on the East Texas oil field probably will be called by the state railroad commission Aug. 29, R. D. Parker, chief of the oil and gas division of the commission, said here today.

The present top field limit of 325,000 barrels daily expires Sept. 1.

Hearings on Southwest Texas, Van, Yates and gulf coast fields pose of revising production orders for those pools. Data secured by engineers of the commission will be presented at the hearing.

Complaints from East Texas operators and royalty owners that their wells are being pinched in out of proportion to other oil fields in the state are likely to be heard at the same time.

A readjustment of the per well allowable for the East Texas field is to be made Aug. 15. A reduction from the present per well allowable of 44 barrels daily to 42 barrels is in prospect in order to keep the field's total output within the 325,000 top limit.

Third Party Sought In Death Of Spinster

NATCHEZ, Miss. (UP)—A search for a third suspect in the famous Jane Surget Merrill slaying case started today after a night of investigation had plunged deeper into mystery.

With elderly eccentrics already charged with murder in the case, J. E. Chancellor, state finger print expert, announced last night he had found prints of a third person in his photographs of blood-smeared marks found at the scene of the killing. He had already found prints of the two suspects there, he said, but on rechecking his prints, he found evidence that a third person was involved.

Millions Earned By Rin Tin Tin, Canine Film Star

HOLLYWOOD, (UP)—Rin Tin Tin, greatest of animal motion picture actors, pursued a ghostly villain in canine happy hunting grounds today.

There, if there exists an animal heaven, the weight of his 14 years was lifted and a reward of strength flowed through legs paralyzed by age.

Rin Tin Tin died Monday. More than 100 years old, as comparative human age is measured, the big German Shepherd dog lay down in front of his master, Lee Duncan, with whom he had been romping.

His brown eyes looked up for a moment, questioning, then closed. Duncan found the dog was paralyzed. Before a veterinary arrived, Rin Tin Tin had died. The veterinary said it was from natural causes.

Duncan told no one. It was a dear friend had died and words could not assuage his grief. But today Rin Tin was to have started production in a new picture, the first of four "All Star" films scheduled for him this year.

Rin Tin Tin's earnings for his master were estimated in the millions of dollars. He had worked in pictures for 13 years, showing a remarkable intelligence before the camera, demonstrating an ability to act ferocious one moment and gentle the next.

Three months ago he was adjudged one of the two most popular actors in the films during a popularity contest held in astern theaters.

Studio officials and Duncan announced that Rin Tin Tin's son, Rinty, Jr., would carry on in his father's footsteps. Screen tests have shown the younger dog to have much of his elder's ability. Rinty, Jr., now two years old, bears a remarkable resemblance to his famous father.

A simple funeral ceremony was held for Rin Tin Tin. His body was placed beneath a bower of flowers in his master's yard. Only Duncan and a few friends were present.

Mrs. and Mrs. C. E. Hahn left Saturday for a two weeks vacation trip to be spent in Austin, Georgetown and San Antonio.

Mrs. Chas. Koberg has a bad case of tonsillitis.

CHAPTER XVI

The first weeks of spring passed swiftly. Bud's contributions to the household finances began to arrive regularly, putting the flat on a much more comfortable basis. Ma had devised an agreeable fiction concerning her son's new job in Connecticut. She even spoke of the girl he was interested in. Later she announced to her neighbors that Bud's employer had sent him south on a business trip.

"He's working for one of them big Wall street men," Ma confided to Mrs. Callahan. "Think the world of Bud, too, he does."

Kitty was easily consoled over the absence of her brother who had been chief opponent in many a battle across the dinner table. She was delighted now to have a room of her own. Knowing that her school friends would not, upon Bud's arrival, be rudely hustled out of his favorite chair, Kitty took to inviting Isabel and Kathleen to come home with her. She and her friends could play the radio as much as they wished and Ma would never object.

Moreover a brother "down south" gave Kitty a certain prestige among her friends. Ma packed Bud's scant wardrobe and asked Steve to forward it to him.

"But we've already sent word to have Bud completely outfitted. Steve told her. "He won't need these things."

"The lad left without so much as a toothbrush on him. Poor boy!" Ma lamented to her friend.

"Seems to me you put on a lot of airs for life in the jungle," Mona suggested when Steve mentioned some of the items of Bud's newly ordered wardrobe.

"Why not? In the army the men had to shave and make themselves spic-and-span to go over the top, didn't they? We live in a jungle, though we don't call it that—but we make ourselves comfortable there. Have lots of servants. Barry and I always dress for dinner. We send to Haiti for clothing. And you should see the island we have in the Caribbean for holidays. When we're there we get linen suits from Haiti. We learned about the tailor from the captain of a cruiser. Our orders go over by one mail boat and the suits come back on the return trip. Tailored to measure, too."

"Just as if I had lived on Long Island," Mona exclaimed.

"Herald Square? Say, you'd ship on Fifty-seventh street or Madison!"

They laughed together as if their talk was the most amusing in the world.

"Barry wanted me to ask if you and Lottie can't come up to Twilands for Sunday. He's going Friday and I can drive you and Lottie up Sunday morning if you'll come. We'd have a great time together."

"I'd love it!" Mona agreed accepting for Lottie as well as herself. She knew that Lottie would be only too glad to throw over any other date she might have for such an invitation.

"Barry's uncle is out of town," Steve volunteered as if in answer to unspoken questions.

Mona smiled. "Yes, I know. He's at White Sulphur with Mr. Garrettson. Their friends you know. She stopped rather suddenly. Mona had just remembered that she and Barry had never mentioned to Steve the fact that they had met before Steve's introduction.

"So Garrettson knows old Townsend eh?" Steve said without suspicion. "Well they played a rather mean trick on him, you must admit."

"But that's not Barry's fault," "Of course not. But his uncle can't forget it. That's the way of the world, my child."

"Get along?" Steve eyed her. "Oh, so?" It isn't the old man's fault, I suppose. It's his imagination. He thinks—well, it's not exactly his imagination either. He's taking out on Barry the ill feelings he had for Barry's father and mother. Making their son pay what he owed them."

"Owed them?" Mona queried.

"Well they played a rather mean trick on him, you must admit."

"But that's not Barry's fault," "Of course not. But his uncle can't forget it. That's the way of the world, my child."

"Get along?" Steve eyed her. "Oh, so?" It isn't the old man's fault, I suppose. It's his imagination. He thinks—well, it's not exactly his imagination either. He's taking out on Barry the ill feelings he had for Barry's father and mother. Making their son pay what he owed them."

Mona stepped back from the mirror for a final survey of her costume. Yes she was satisfied. The blue frock brought out the color of her eyes. Its trim lines revealed—quite modestly—the slender graceful figure. Mona knew that she was as becomingly and suitably dressed for the holiday in the country as any of Barry's debutante friends might have been.

The girl's eyes were shining. It was the radiant glow of happiness, more than the blue gown, the cosmetics, the painstaking minutes before the dressing table that made Mona Moran on that spring morning a real beauty.

Steve was coming for her. Steve

The Morans were awake early Sunday morning. Kitty was to go to spend the day at Alice's as usual. Ma was making her weekly trip to the hospital to see her husband.

Kitty eyed her older sister rather approvingly. "You and Steve certainly make a nice looking couple," she announced.

"You and Isabel have decided that, have you? Mona returned. As she interrupted the conversation calling Kitty into the kitchen. A chicken for Dad was all ready roasting in the oven and fragrant hints of the bird's tenderness filled the air. Kitty was far from being in accord with arrangements for the day. She said the kids in Alice's neighborhood were dumb. She would have to wheel the baby for an hour before she could settle down with the newspaper and section. Kitty wanted to go to the hospital with her mother to see Dad.

"Children, even, all would and you know that. Kathleen Moran. This Ma disapproved of the argument. The doctors say, though, that Dad's getting better. Glory be to God! A few more tugs at her overshoes and Kitty was ready to go. She departed with remarks indicating that she found these visits to Alice's flat less and less agreeable.

Ma drew a basket from the closet and packed it lovingly. The baked chicken, fresh rolls, currant jelly. Dad's illness was such that his weekly basket might contain almost anything—within realms of discretion—that they cared to pack.

"Give Father a big kiss for me," Mona called to her mother. "Tell him I'll be up to see him Tuesday."

Steve had all ready telephoned that he was on his way. Mona had answered his call gaily.

She stood before the mirror in her bedroom, touching her cheeks with rouge, then powder, with the utmost care. She brightened her lips with lipstick, pressed her hair into dark becoming waves about her face and added the faintest dash of perfume to her ear lobes. Then she drew a smart little blue sport frock over her head and settled it into place. The blue hat—the same shade as the dress—was adjusted at just the right jaunty angle.

Mona stepped back from the mirror for a final survey of her costume. Yes she was satisfied. The blue frock brought out the color of her eyes. Its trim lines revealed—quite modestly—the slender graceful figure. Mona knew that she was as becomingly and suitably dressed for the holiday in the country as any of Barry's debutante friends might have been.

The girl's eyes were shining. It was the radiant glow of happiness, more than the blue gown, the cosmetics, the painstaking minutes before the dressing table that made Mona Moran on that spring morning a real beauty.

Steve was coming for her. Steve was looking forward to the long drive into the country with Mona. But they were not thoughts of Steve Saccarelli that brought the flush of color to the girl's cheeks. Mona went to the living room window and looked down on the street to watch for Steve's long gleaming motor car. It should be there any moment now. Steve had had time enough to travel the 10 blocks even in the worst of Sunday morning traffic jams.

The hands of the clock across the room pointed to 10 minutes past 10. "What can be keeping him?" Mona thought. "If he isn't here in a few minutes we'll be late."

She could not bear to lose even 10 minutes of the day at Twilands. Mona was eager to see the beautiful Townsend estate—the home Barry had known as a child.

"I'm going to have a whole day with him!" Mona's heart was singing. "One whole day! I'm going to be a guest in his home!"

Suddenly the blue eyes darkened. She was remembering that Steve Saccarelli had been her childhood playmate. Mona understood Steve, knew that he cared for her and accepted this affection in a matter-of-fact way.

Barry Townsend, in spite of all his protestations, was from a different world. How could she know if Barry's feeling toward her was friendship or something deeper? How could she know if Barry was learning to care as she had learned? "Perhaps," Mona thought with a quick intake of breath, "today will tell me!"

Jury Investigation Of Election Ordered Asked By Ft. Worthian

FORT WORTH (UP)—A grand jury investigation of alleged irregularities in the July democratic primary election in Tarrant county was asked by County Democratic Chairman Hugh L. Small.

Small, in a letter to H. H. Gregory, foreman, requested the grand jury make a complete investigation of "every charge" of irregularities. He pledged full cooperation of the county executive committee.

Two candidates, Frank B. Potter, defeated for judge of county court at law and A. E. Harding, defeated candidate for the legislature, have charged irregularities. Potter asked a recount of 12 boxes but later withdrew his petition. Harding has asked a grand jury investigation.

CHAPIN SWORN IN AS SECRETARY OF COMMERCE

of everything. If Jim Ferguson or his wife could figure that out they wouldn't be running for governor of Texas. They'd more than likely be a king and queen on a throne ruling in splendor over a widespread kingdom of their own. Yeah, if you could figure that out you could be general manager of the world.

Such a statement goes, in some measure, to show just how little Roy Ferguson knows about the oil business.

While he squirms around in his effort always to have something on tap to arouse anger and envy and prejudice, without really committing himself to anything except a promise to "pour it on 'em" on anybody, anywhere, in any way so long as somebody can pay him for his efforts he just naturally slips a cog once in awhile.

His so-called highway plan, which would split up the gasoline tax revenue between the schools, the general fund and the highway department offers the people nothing in the way of tax relief. In fact, he has seen himself that its a weak "plank" and has started declaring that "if necessary" he would advocate raising the gasoline tax rate an additional cent per gallon.

How many people in this part of Texas, which depends so much upon the oil industry, wish to see gasoline and other petroleum products taxed any heavier. Four cents per gallon state tax, not to speak of the federal tax already levied.

And in the next breath Jim cries about how much the people have to pay for gasoline.

The people ought to be able to discern the difference between conditions that would result from enactment of measures advocated by the Fergusons and by Governor Sterling.

Mr. Sterling's action in placing East Texas oil field under martial law already has been the principal reason for increase in price of oil not only in that field but in all others, including that of this county. Ferguson's only promise is "not too much and not too little."

Mr. Sterling urges payment of road bonds voted by counties to help build state highways. He urges continuation of support of schools with one cent per gallon of the gas tax. He urges retention in the highway department treasury of sufficient funds to keep the benefit of federal aid for the state to make possible proper maintenance of existing roads and to provide funds sufficient to carry out needed road construction.

Included in the needed construction that would be assured under the Sterling plan and made impossible under the Ferguson plan is reconstruction of No. 1 across West Texas, of No. 9 across Howard county, and important projects in Sutton, Crockett, Pecos, Reagan, Upton, Irion, Glasscock, Coke, Runnels, Menard, McCulloch, Coleman, Sterling and Tom Green counties.

If you think for yourself and take the facts, the records of the candidates and their promises as they are without injecting any old differences or old prejudices you will have no difficulty in arriving at a decision to cast your ballot for Mr. Sterling on August 27.

Spring, Texas, all members of the court being present: S. A. Penix, judge; C. A. Merrick, Precinct No. 1; J. S. Creighton, Precinct No. 2; L. S. Patterson, Precinct No. 3; M. L. Murgrove, Precinct No. 4.

"Claims on to be considered the petition of W. G. Hayden, said petition is as follows: "We, the undersigned resident property tax paying voters of said county respectfully pray your honorable body to order an election to determine whether or not bonds of the amount of $300,000 to be issued at a rate to be fixed by the Commissioners Court not exceeding 5 1/2 per cent and that said bonds may mature at such times as may be fixed by the Commissioners Court serially or otherwise, not to exceed 30 years from their date, for the purpose of construction, maintaining and operating macadamized, gravelled or paved roads and turnpikes or in aid thereof; and whether or not a tax shall be levied upon the property of Howard county subject to taxation for the purpose of paying the interest on said bonds and to provide a sinking fund for the redemption thereof at maturity; dated May 24, 1929."

Signers Signers of the petition were headed on the list by W. G. Hayden and numbered 261.

The election was held June 26, 1929 and the issue was approved by a vote of 514 for and 80 against issuance of the bonds.

Considerable difficulty was met in selling the bonds. The county set aside $146,201.55 from proceeds of the bonds for the purpose of reconstructing highway No. 1. Judge Debenport, who was not then occupying that office, said that shortly after he took office in 1923 as county judge that the highway department sent Howard county a check for $18,000 which had been found on deposit with it and unexpended.

The commissioners court December 1, 1929, after James T. Brooks became county judge, found that condition of the bond market made it expedient that interest on the bonds be made payable semi-annually and asked the attorney general, who had approved the bonds as they stood, with interest payable annually, to cancel his approval and again examine them.

January 31, 1921 a contract was entered with Harold L. Wise and Company of Houston for sale of the issue at par and accrued interest, but providing that that company as commission, attorney's fees and expenses in effecting sale of the bonds.

March 28, 1921 the court rescinded the contract with Harold L. Wise and Company, the minutes setting out that the company had failed to comply with terms of the contract, and the order paying the company $28,500 was canceled.

The West Texas National Bank, through John Thurman, vice-president, filed on April 8, 1921 a bid for purchase of the bonds at par an accrued interest less ten per cent discount.

Judge Brooks reported on September 5, 1921 to the commissioners court that on a trip to Austin he had talked with the state highway commissioner and had been told it would not be agreeable for the county to do the work on highway No. 1, insisting that it be let to a contractor. The judge was directed to advertise for bids.

Bids were opened at Midland in conjunction with Martin, Midland and Ector counties, which voted bonds at about the same time to provide a four-county improvement program on No. 1.

Low bidder was the Womack Construction company. The total of the Womack bid for putting gravel on the 34.25 miles of highway 1 in Howard county was $275,997.56 and the county set aside $137,998.78, federal aid having been obtained through the state to pay half the cost.

Estimate of cost of work on No. 9, approximately twelve miles was $25,613.75 and state aid was offered for half of the expense.

The commissioners court minutes show payment of estimates of work previously completed on No. 1 totaling $64,846.98 to April 30, 1922. Payment of no additional estimates is listed on the minutes.

The Womack Construction company's contract for graveling part of No. 9 was $29,130.90, and it bid $14,579.72 for work done wholly by the county on the Gail road.

The administration of Mrs. Ferguson, 1924-26, topping was placed on No. 1 and the gravelled portion of No. 9 by the state. Railroad men here recall that chat and other materials for this work was shipped from Shattuck, Okla. This topping work was of the type that brought on some of the suits that brought on the Ferguson highway commission to recover excess cost for the state, testimony having been introduced to show the contractors were given work at considerably more than the cost of placing the topping on the road.

"We, the undersigned resident property tax paying voters of said county respectfully pray your honorable body to order an election to determine whether or not bonds of the amount of $300,000 to be issued at a rate to be fixed by the Commissioners Court not exceeding 5 1/2 per cent and that said bonds may mature at such times as may be fixed by the Commissioners Court serially or otherwise, not to exceed 30 years from their date, for the purpose of construction, maintaining and operating macadamized, gravelled or paved roads and turnpikes or in aid thereof; and whether or not a tax shall be levied upon the property of Howard county subject to taxation for

Junior Culture Club Of Garden City Holds Party, Visits Shut-Ins

GARDEN CITY—The home of Mr. and Mrs. S. R. Cox was the scene of a slumber party Wednesday night when a group of small girls met to play dolls, games and give cheer to shut-ins. As the sun set the leader of this, the Junior Culture club, Mrs. V. Hill Long, led the girls to the home of Grandma Everett and Aunt Lucy Randall, where they sang inspiring songs. They then went to Mrs. White's for a helpful call. They then located a grassy spot for a lunch, which consisted of sandwiches, tomatoes and cakes.

Returning to Mrs. Cox' home they were entertained by their mothers and Mrs. Long gave a reading "My Dolls" by Bertha Gerneaux Davis. Many interesting stories were told the girls as they sat on the lawn, which was brilliantly lighted.

The girls were in bed at 11 o'clock and arose at 6 a. m. for a sunrise breakfast, which was enjoyed at Henry Currie's tank, a short distance from town.

Watermelons were served at the Court House at 9 o'clock and the party returned to Mrs. Cox' lawn and played games until ten o'clock when they sang songs for Mrs. Cox and agreed they all had had a wonderful time.

Those in the party were Roberta and Ruby Nell Ratliff, Myrl Bryans, Abby Crouch, Delphine Proffitt, Leta Mas Burks, Elizabeth Heath, Phiniasa Cunningham, Dorothy Roundtree, Marjorie Cook and Natalie Parker.

Waxahachie Ban Killed In Small Dallas Hotel

DALLAS, (AP)—John H. Pierce, 34, Waxahachie oil field worker, was shot dead in the lobby of a small hotel here where he was staying.

He was dozing in a chair when another resident of the hotel, 64, walked up and awakened him and killed him with a pistol.

The slayer left during the confusion but was arrested later. Pierce, has been unemployed since he was slightly injured recently in an oil field accident.

Withdrawal Of Road Aid Under 'Ma' Is Proven

DALLAS — Sterling campaign headquarters Saturday produced certified copy of a letter from A. R. Losh, then division engineer of the Federal Bureau of Public Roads, to the highway commission under the administration of Mrs. Ferguson notifying that federal road aid was being withdrawn from Texas.

The letter was produced after Jim Ferguson had in an address at San Angelo branded as "a lie" the statement that federal aid was withdrawn during his wife's administration.

The letter said that on directions from the chief of the bureau, was notifying the highway commission that aid was being withdrawn on all projects not contracted for, giving as reasons financial condition of the state highway department, and declaring that such aid would not be returned until the bureau was convinced contractors would be paid as their contracts matured and roads into which federal funds had gone were re-constructed or maintained in proper manner.

Excavation Soon To Start At Point Of Huge Meteor's Fall

ODESSA—Excavation work will start in two weeks at Los Cruces, N. M., where on June 25 a huge meteor fell on the Silva ranch.

The work will be in charge of Roscoe Conklin, El Paso geologist. At the place where the meteor fell there has been torn a huge crater in the rock mass and the surrounding vegetation shows signs of searing heat.

Geologists believe that in excavating this meteor they might make some new discoveries.

Graham-Paige Official Drowned In Ontario

CHATHAM, Ontario (AP)—Ray A. Graham, 45, secretary-treasurer of the Graham Paige Motor company of Detroit, drowned in McGregor's Creek here Saturday. Police quoted witnesses as saying that Graham had returned to his hotel after attending church service and remained there only a few minutes before he ran out and jumped in the creek. Detroit advices said that Graham recently suffered a nervous breakdown and was being taken to a New Jersey hospital.

has been one of unappetizing drab poverty than with dreams of the destiny of the mighty empire they are helping unconsciously to build. They are, in fact, so well done that the reader wanders if this isn't a first book and if, when the author gets such mechanics as atmosphere and the more subtle beauties of the English language better in hand, she will not produce a real epic of the Southwest. In the meantime "Prairie Chronicle" makes enjoyable reading.

AGF.
August Kaleidograph
My favorite of the poems is by one of the consulting editors of this magazine. It is called "August Afternoon" and it is written by John Richard Moreland.

The soft insistent dust lay everywhere. On clock and mantel, desk and polished table. If frosted window-panes, silvered the gable. And on the porch was tracked like snow. The air was suffocating when the thoroughfare

Knew the swift whir of passing wheels, or slower Ox-driven wagon—creaking to its core—Went by a skeleton of pale despair.

Broad fields were sun-baked, weed and vivid grass Had died of thirst, parched vines church here.

Wesley Memorial
Special singing will be presented by Marcella King, Lella Pittman, Pauline King and Louise Pittman. The Pittman girls are from Seminola.
