Pampa elects new mayor, trustees

Van Zandt, Robertson win easily

By LARRY HOLLIS
 Staff Writer

The incumbents failed to beat back challengers, and two new trustees for the Pampa Independent School District will take positions on the Pampa school board following Saturday's election.

David Robertson, former teacher in the Pampa school system, won election to the Place 4 position by 1,352 votes. Incumbent Mary Braswell received 736 votes.

In the Place 5 race, Joe Van Zandt, Gray County agriculture extension agent, won victory with 1,070 votes. Incumbent Curt Beck received 715 votes.

Both challengers won election with comparable percentages. Robertson had 58.8 percent of the votes and Braswell 41.2 percent for the Place 4 spot. Van Zandt had 59.9 percent of the votes to Beck's 40.1 percent in the Place 5 race.

PISD Business Manager Jerry Haralson reported 1802 ballots had been cast in the runoff election Saturday. That was 233 more than the 1569 ballots that had been cast in the school board election April 6.

A runoff election was necessitated in April after none of the candidates in the two three-way races won a majority of the votes then.

Robertson and Van Zandt had led the incumbents in the April election, too. On April 6 Robertson had gained 606 votes to Braswell's 587. Van Zandt had led Beck by 748 to 629.

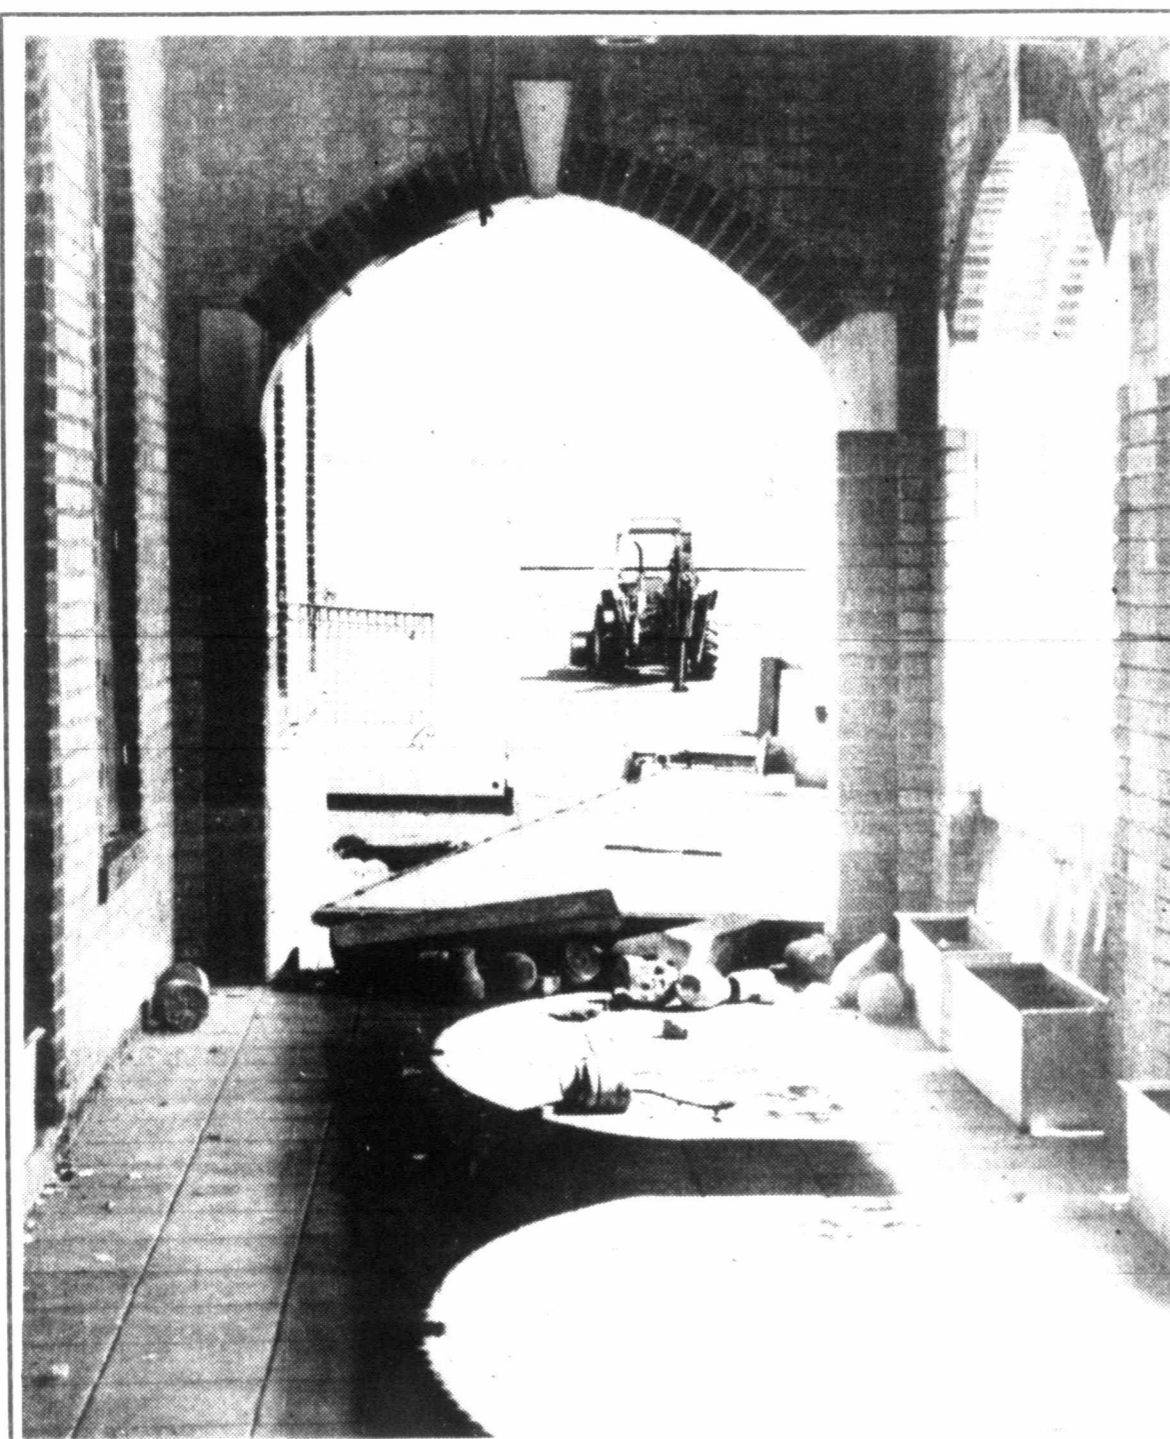

Following a canvassing of the election at Tuesday evening's regular school board meeting, the two new trustees will take the oath of office and join the other board members.

The board will be reorganized with election of officers after the canvassing and administering of the oath.

Both incumbents had campaigned on their previous board experience, work with the school administrators, accomplishments in the system and experience in dealing with the changes being imposed on the public educational system by the state.

Robertson, who graduated from Pampa High School, taught at Pampa Junior High School and has had children in the schools here.

Cowan beats Whatley in runoff for mayor

By LARRY HOLLIS
 Staff Writer

Boosted by strong support from the southern sections of the city, challenger Sherman Cowan halted incumbent Mayor Calvin Whatley's bid for re-election to a second term as mayor in Saturday's runoff election.

Cowan carried the election with 1305 votes or 55.7 percent of the 2343 ballots cast Saturday. Whatley received 1038 votes or 44.3 percent.

Cowan, owner of Cowan Construction Co., led three of the four wards in the voting, with strong margins in the two south wards.

Whatley carried only Ward 2, the northeast section of the city.

In Ward 1, the northwest part of town, Cowan gained 327 votes to Whatley's 260, winning 55.7 percent of the vote there.

Whatley had 589 votes in Ward 2, getting 58 percent there. Cowan had 430 votes, only 42 percent.

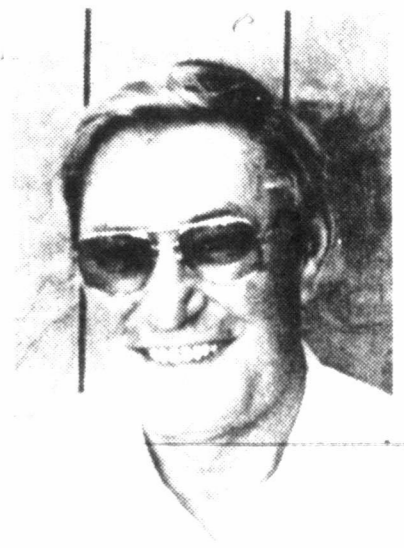

But Cowan easily garnered the edge in Wards 3 and 4. In the southwest section of the city, Ward 3 voters gave Cowan 208 votes or 73.5 percent of the ballots. Whatley had only 75 votes in that ward.

Ward 4 voters supported Cowan with 74.9 percent of their ballots. In the southeast section, Cowan had 340 votes while Whatley had 114.

The city commission will meet in special session at 8:30 a.m. Monday to canvass the election. Municipal Judge Phil Vanderpool will administer the oath of office to the mayor.

In the three-way race for the mayor's spot April 6, Whatley received the most votes, with 937 or 46.3 percent. Cowan was close behind with 811 votes or 40.1 percent. Jerry Mulanax, who gave his support to Cowan in runoff election advertisements, had gained 274 votes or 13.6 percent.

Cowan had run as a candidate for the Citizens for Better Government, a group which organized last summer in protest of the city's removal of a number of driveway entrance pipes and humps during street repair and seal coating operations.

The group had considered trying to obtain a recall election of the mayor and commissioners but later abandoned the effort. Instead, they decided they would put forward a slate of candidates in the regular city elections.

The CBG had already won one victory prior to Saturday's runoff. Joe Reed was elected city commissioner for Ward 3, defeating incumbent E. L. "Smiley" Henderson.

Floye Christensen had filed for the Ward 1 post election, but was disqualified on technicalities. She waged a write-in candidacy against incumbent Bob Curry, but lost in the April 6 election.

Cowan had attacked Mayor Whatley's record, claiming Whatley had showed indifference to the attitudes and opinions of the average resident.

Whatley had campaigned on his accomplishments, citing progress

Securities commission steps into Bethany probe

BY JEFF LANGLEY
 Senior Staff Writer

The state securities commission has stepped into the investigation of the insolvent Pampa-based Bethany Trust and Company.

And the founder of the investments firm — a Bible-toting convicted felon — and his partner still can't be found.

The state banking commission, which regulates trust companies in the state, permanently closed Bethany Trust and ordered its liquidation April 10.

Bethany founder Tom Etheredge and Tim Borka, the man listed as company president, both Pampa residents, left town about the same time the banking commission launched an investigation of the firm April 2.

Assistant District Attorney David Hamilton said Etheredge fled to Kent, England, where Bethany had maintained an office. There was no answer at the number listed for the office in Kent. The men's wives refused to say where the missing partners went, and the pair's Dallas lawyer refused comment.

"I'm sorry, he's not available."

Deborah Etheredge said in answer to a call to her Pampa home Saturday.

The woman said she knows her husband's present whereabouts but refused comment.

"Everyone who needs to know where they are, knows where they are," Mrs. Etheredge said.

"We have owned our house for four years, and along with all of the other lies you continue to print, you keep hanging yourself," she told a reporter. "I have no other comment, good day."

Deborah Etheredge was making reference to an earlier report in The Pampa News that said the company founder bought the family's three-story estate west of

RRC 'white oil' decision expected Monday

By LARRY HOLLIS
 Staff Writer

The commissioners of the Texas Railroad Commission are due to consider a decision on oil and gas rights issues in the Panhandle Field conflict during their meeting Monday morning.

E. Ray Grasshoff, public information specialist for the RRC, said tomorrow's agenda includes consideration of the recommended proposal prepared and issued last February by RRC examiners.

If the commissioners decide to act on the proposal, a decision could be made before noon, Grasshoff said.

The decision has been anticipated or feared since Phillips Petroleum Co. filed an application with the RRC on Sept. 8, 1981, to amend special field rules for oil and gas fields in the Texas Panhandle.

Phillips, later joined by a number of other so-called majors, protested the use of low temperature separation units (LTX units) to separate liquids from gas and then to count the resultant liquids for well classification purposes.

According to Phillips, a number of independent oil producers had begun using the LTX units in the late 1970s to produce liquid hydrocarbons as "crude oil" to maintain their gas-oil ratios and to keep their oil well classification status.

Phillips had asked that the field rules be amended to prohibit the counting of the liquefied gases as crude oil for well classification purposes.

Under RRC regulations, a well is classified as an oil well if it maintains a gas-oil ratio of 100,000 cubic feet or less of natural gas per barrel of oil. Any well producing more than that ratio of gas to oil, whether from a gas producing stratum or an oil producing horizon, is classified as a gas well.

The regulations also permit only one gas well for each section (640 acres) of land but up to 64 oil wells per section, one for each 10 acres.

Phillips and other majors have claimed the increased gas production from the independents' wells will speed up the depletion of the natural gas reserves in the Panhandle Field, one of the largest reserves in the world.

The RRC initiated a series of hearings and collecting of testimony following Phillips' protest, lasting into 1984. After examination of the claims and evidence, RRC examiners issued their recommended decision on Feb. 1 of this year.

The examiners said there was no need to amend the field rules as Phillips had requested since Statewide Rule 79(7) already covered the conditions that Phillips had wanted enforced.

The proposed decision cites as central to the case the following definition included in the statewide rule:

"... the term 'crude petroleum oil' shall not be construed to mean any liquid hydrocarbon mixture or portion thereof which is not in the liquid phase in the reservoir, removed from the reservoir in such liquid phase, and obtained at the surface as such."

Under this terminology, the examiners rule, liquefied gases resulting from the use of LTX units cannot be counted as crude oil for well classification purposes.

Representing the independents, the Panhandle Independent Producers' Group (PIPG) had filed an application requesting that the commission amend the special field rules to permit the product of lease separation equipment to be counted as oil in calculating the gas-oil ratios.

But the PIPG subsequently withdrew its request for the amendment.

The examiners further recommended that all oil wells using LTX units and having counted the resultant liquids for oil well classification purposes be retested within 75 days of the effective date of the order. They also suggested that RRC personnel have the opportunity to witness the tests.

The proposal recommends that liquids produced by LTX units or other similar facilities "may not be counted as crude oil in determining the gas-oil ratio for classification purposes unless the operator can prove by recombined sample analysis, or other reliable method acceptable to the Director of the Oil and Gas Division, that the liquids are in the liquid phase in the reservoir under current conditions, liquid in the well bore and liquid at the surface."

The examiners also recommend that all wells classified as oil wells be subject at any time to retesting.

on street maintenance, the M. K. Brown Auditorium, more citizen involvement in the governmental process of the city, efficiency in financial matters and more availability of the city offices to citizens.

Underlying the election was concern at the actions of the city in removing the driveway pipes without having given prior notice to residents.

Mayor Whatley later admitted the project had been a mistake and expressed concerns over the division it was creating among residents in the city.

Failing to get a petition accepted calling for the city to replace the pipes, the CBG later filed a lawsuit against the city to force the replacement of the pipes and to seek damages for the action.

Though Cowan is a CBG member, his name is absent from the suit.

City Manager Bob Hart, who took office in January filling the vacancy caused by the resignation of former city manager Mack Wofford, met with CBG members on the problems.

He has since proposed an ordinance setting standards for the installation of driveway pipes and calling for the city to replace previously removed pipes if they meet the standards.

That ordinance has had its first reading, with a second reading scheduled at the next regular meeting May 14.

Hearing set for Security Federal

A hearing to decide whether the Pampa-based Security Federal Savings & Loan Association must surrender customers' loan records to the IRS is scheduled for 9:30 a.m. Monday in Amarillo federal court.

The IRS has demanded the loan records in connection with a routine audit of the financial institution for the fiscal years 1982 and 1983.

Security Federal, citing its obligation to keep customers' account information confidential, has refused to give the loan records to the IRS.

The savings institution refused to comply with an IRS summons for the records.

The justice department, on behalf of the IRS, filed the federal lawsuit seeking the loan records Feb. 19 in U.S. District Court in Amarillo.

Assistant U.S. Attorney John Nevins, of Dallas, has said the IRS wants the records in an investigation of the loan association's tax liability for the two years. The current request for documents isn't related to customers' taxes, he said previously.

In demanding the records, the government agency has asked for customers' names, addresses, social security numbers, dates and amounts of loans and the amount of any discounts given for early payment of loans.

Nevins has said the audit has centered on tax deductions taken for the discounts, or forgiving a portion of some loans in return for early payments.

Security Federal employees have been advised by the firm's lawyers not to discuss the case.

acquainted with the school system as a student, teacher, parent and citizen. In his work since leaving the teaching field, he has visited a number of schools on job related matters.

Van Zandt had said he supported some parts of the state educational reforms but he believed some modifications were needed, mentioning specifically the no pass, no play rule on extracurricular participation.

He had also expressed concerns about the tax base, teacher morale, drug and alcohol problems among youth, the safety and welfare of students and the wise use of school tax dollars.

Robertson had stated education was not just a school responsibility, but a community one also. He said teachers were professionals and formed an integral part of the education process.

Contacted after the election, Robertson said he felt "great." He said he would have comments later, he was too busy with celebrating his victory at the time he was contacted and needed time to realize the victory, he said.

Van Zandt was not at home and could not be contacted for comment.

From best to the worst

"There he goes again!"

The headline on the story in the sports section of The Pampa News said it all. It made reference to another managerial change by Yankees owner George Steinbrenner. This time he had replaced Yankee great Yogi Berra with another all-time Yankee, sometime prize fighter and TV star Billy Martin. In a reversal of the current switch, Berra had replaced Martin in Steinbrenner's previous swap of managers.

Will the latest move by baseball's most obnoxious owner work? Don't count on it. It isn't certain that Billy Martin can make it to the end of the season without assaulting another marshmallow salesman.

As Yogi once said, though, "It ain't over 'till it's over," so don't count the Yankees out in the American League East.

Baseball's toughest division also is its hardest for picking a winner. Any of the five top teams in the seven-team division would finish on top if they competed in baseball's other three divisions.

World champion Detroit, New York, Toronto, Baltimore, and Boston all have the horses to finish on top come October.

Really, flip a coin. Any of the above five teams deserve to be champions.

Consider the Boston outfielders, Tony Armas, Dwight Evans and Jim Rice. Between them, they hit 103 home runs last year, seven more than an entire team of Milwaukee Brewers. The three sluggers drove in a total of 349 runs. Throw in former batting champs Bill Buckner and Wade Boggs and Mike Easler, and you have a team of hitters.

Toronto has a team of relative unknowns in the field and at the plate, but the Blue Jays' pitching staff is now among the best.

Steinbrenner, of course, has always fielded the best that money can buy, including last season's batting champ and runner up, Don Mattingly and Dave Winfield. The Yankees pitchers, however, including Ron Guidry, may be getting a little worn out in the arms, with the exception of Phil Niekro. Niekro's arm has been worn out for years; but when it's working, the knuckleball of baseball's senior citizen still can't be hit.

The Orioles, as always, have a solid team. Nothing real outstanding, just solid everywhere, pitching, hitting and in the field. And Baltimore managers have always milked the talent to its fullest.

Detroit ought to be favored to do it again. Sparky Anderson announced in spring training that he'd move sweet Lou Whitaker from second to third base, but he forgot to ask Sweet Lou about it. Sweet Lou didn't think it was such a hot idea. Whatever you say, Sweet Lou, Sparky said, and left his all-star second baseman at the bag he knows best. Willie Hernandez won the Cy Young Award and was named the league's most valuable player last year. Hernandez's good year was a fluke, and the journeyman's luck is about to run out.

Cleveland and Milwaukee aren't worth mentioning.

After going over the division, I still can't pick a favorite, so I'll take a wild guess.

Jeff's picks in the East: Boston, Detroit, Toronto, New York, Baltimore, Milwaukee and Cleveland. Any of the top five can win it and won't be separated by more than 10 games at the end of the season.

Let's go from baseball's best division to its worst, the American League West, a disgrace to the game.

The Texas Rangers are a joke. They paid $600,000 per year for a designated hitter, Cliff Johnson, who has seen his better days. Charlie Hough and his knuckleball can't be hit on some days. Hough and third baseman Buddy Bell, and manager Doug Rader's jokes are the highlights of the team.

Ranger reliever Dave Stewart has lost something since he came over from the Dodgers. Maybe it's his eyesight that went downhill. He was arrested in the off season for soliciting a prostitute. Dave said he knew it was a prostitute; he just couldn't tell that it was a man in drag.

Kansas City won the division at the last minute last season. It was a matter of taking a title that none of the others wanted. KC, the best of the worst last year, was promptly thrashed by Detroit in the playoffs. I don't expect KC to finish on top in the current race of incompetents, even though confidential reports say George Brett's hemorrhoid problems are all behind him now.

The California Angels will flop again. Great promise for the Angels at the start of each season always flops at year's end. Singing cowboy owner Gene Autry knows more about horses' rears than ballplayers. He once bought an all-star lineup that included Fred Lynn, Reggie Jackson, Rod Carew, Brian Downing, Bobby Grich, what's his name that used to play shortstop for Baltimore, and other assorted ball beaters. Somebody forgot to tell Autry that good pitching beats good hitting. The former movie star once let Nolan Ryan go because he didn't want to pay the pitcher $1 million a year, but then he turned around and bought many of the team's hitters, including Jackson, for much more.

The two teams to battle for the top spot among the laughingstock of baseball will be Minnesota and Oakland. Minnesota's young unknowns just had a 10-game winning streak snapped. The As' success may depend on whether designated hitter Dave Kingman "King Kong" finally hits 60 home runs.

Jeff's picks in the West: Minnesota, Oakland, Chicago, Kansas City, California, Seattle and Texas.

Local store robbed

A man wearing a diamond stud earring and brandishing a pistol forced an Allsup's clerk to empty a cash register early Saturday morning and then fled down Alcock St.

According to police reports, shortly before 6 a.m. Saturday a white male entered the Allsup's convenience store at Hobart and Alcock, showed the pistol and demanded money.

He told the clerk, "I have a gun. Don't do anything. Give me all the money in the cash register."

After the clerk gave him the money, the man left the store and fled west on Alcock, police said.

Reporting the incident to the police, clerk Lenay Brown described the suspect as a white male about six feet tall and weighing 150 to 155 pounds.

The robber was wearing a black leather jacket, a white T-shirt, blue jeans and black boots. The clerk said he had a stocking over his face and was wearing a diamond stud earring.

An undetermined amount of cash was taken from the register.

New city marshal hired by Lefors

LEFORS - Lefors Mayor Ben White has announced the city has hired a new city marshal.

Reuben Garcia, who has 25 years of experience with various sheriff's departments, was hired effective May 1.

Garcia, who moved to Lefors recently from Pampa, has worked as a sheriff's deputy at Amarillo, Claude, Tulla, Lamb County, Erick, Okla., and other places.

As city marshal, Garcia will be enforcing city ordinances and state laws within the city limits of Lefors.

The city council and various residents have noted a need to combat such activities as illegal use of three-wheeled vehicles on city streets, public drinking, vandalism, speeding and other violations of city and state laws in the city.

Mayor White said Garcia will be out regularly to patrol the city and issue citations against violators.

Lefors plans to try for grant

By LARRY HOLLIS
Staff Writer

LEFORS - Members of the Lefors City Council moved ahead with plans to apply again for a Texas Community Development Program block grant on water system improvements following a public hearing Friday evening.

The city will apply for a grant of approximately $241,000 to fund the purchase of new water rights, construction of a pipeline into the city and related storage tanks, controls and equipment.

Lefors applied for a similar project grant last year. Its project made the top 10 of approved projects from the Panhandle region but was edged out as the allocated funds ran out before Lefors' project was reached on the priority list.

Speaking at the hearing Friday night at the Lefors Civic Center, city engineering consultant Gene Barber said the project being submitted this year is basically the same as last year.

"It's most important that we re-establish our application" as last year, he stated, "since we came so close then."

Lefors is "quite desperately in need" of acquiring additional water supplies to meet increasing water needs in the future, Barber said.

The grant application for the water project "doesn't mean we're not in need of other things in this city," such as improvements in the streets and gas system, Barber explained. But, he said, the water project has been deemed most likely of acceptance at this time.

Barber and Mayor Ben White said the city would be seeking water sources outside the city. Preliminary discussions are underway on some locations, they said.

Barber said if the grant is approved, the city would develop a well with "good, clean, unpolluted water" to pipe into the city's system.

The water system mainly would operate automatically, he said, with the water being fed into underground storage tanks, he said. The system would operate primarily by gravity flow into the city, which would ensure ability to use the water for a period in emergency situations during a power loss, he explained.

Responding to comments from the audience, Barber and White said the water would be tested thoroughly before any source is acquired to make certain the water is not salty or otherwise in bad condition.

White said he has tasted some samples from locations involved in preliminary discussions and "all have been good."

The mayor said the city's wells are now facing a good possibility of draining the water formation into which the wells have been drilled.

"It's just like a bucket," Mayor White said. "Too many straws have been put in it and it's being sucked dry."

Barber explained that the source of the city's wells is different than the surrounding Ogallala aquifer. Other supplies outside the city will be more stable, less likely to be polluted with salts and more likely to last longer, he said.

One resident asked if the current city wells couldn't be cleaned out to improve the system. White said such operations would more likely stir up the salts. The formation is a small well source, he explained, with the wells too close together.

Attending the hearing were Linda Allen and Gary Pitner, representatives of the Panhandle Regional Planning Commission working with communities applying for the TCDP grants.

The grants are funded from federal money passed to the states, Pitner explained. The state then allocates the funds for various regions within the state.

Texas has allocated $1,368,000 for the Panhandle region, Pitner said. The PRPC, which reviews the applications and approves the regional projects for submission to state headquarters, anticipates 30 to 40 communities will be applying for the TCDP grants, he said.

There will be some stiff competition for the grants, he said.

Minimum grant request is $50,000, with a maximum of $500,000, Pitner explained. The average requests range around $225,000, he said.

The PRPC expects six projects to be funded this year from the allocated funds.

The PRPC reviews the applications, assigns points to the projects and then refers them to the state for final approval.

The grant applications, along with a community survey and a resolution from the city council, must be submitted to the PRPC by June 14. Announcements on the final selection of the projects will probably be made in September, Pitner said.

Councilman Walter Elliott is heading up the community survey project. He said the survey is nearing completion and will be ready for submission with the grant.

RRC decision that all future gas-oil ratio tests for classification purposes in the Panhandle Fields be conducted in accordance with the order and that all classification test results be subject to review.

The recommendation would require any oil well not meeting the gas-oil ratio after retesting be subject to reclassification, positing the possibility some oil wells would be reclassified as gas wells.

In that event, such wells could be shut down if there is already another operating gas well on the section.

The RRC commissioners, ceding to a request by the independents, allowed both sides to argue their positions before the commissioners in a special meeting April 12.

At that time representatives for the independents argued that the production of their wells was vital to the economy of the Panhandle. They also argued the liquefied gases, often referred to as "albino oil," "white oil" or "Panhandle crude," should be considered as crude oil.

In other developments since that time, two West Texas state senators have introduced a bill in the legislature which would redefine casinghead gas.

The bill, co-sponsored by Sen. Bill Sarpallius, D-Canyon, and Sen. Tati Santiesteban, D-El Paso, would define casinghead gas as "all gas produced from a well classified by the commission as an oil well."

The issue of casinghead gas has been a matter of dispute in matters pending before the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC) in Washington, D.C. Under the separation of oil and gas rights in the Panhandle fields, an unique situation in Texas, oil producers can claim rights to casinghead gas produced with their oil.

A recommended FERC decision, also going against the independents, has upheld the RRC's current definition: "any gas and/or vapor indigenous to an oil stratum and produced from such stratum with oil."

The FERC recommendation rules many independents have been wrongfully pumping gas from other than oil producing strata and diverting it from dedicated interstate markets in violation of federal regulations.

The senators' bill is an effort to head off the FERC ruling.

The TEAM for Survival of the Panhandle, a group organized in support of the independents' claims of economic disaster for the Panhandle resulting from the FERC ruling, plans to have approximately 150 people in Austin Monday.

The group plans to attend the hearing on the senators' bill before the Senate Natural Resources Committee, due to vote on the bill Monday. The group also plans mass lobbying efforts in the Senate.

The FERC commissioners have delayed their action on the pending federal proposal to allow the RRC to make its decision.

Bethany probe

Pampa after establishing the trust company in May 1984.

The home's previous owner, Charlotte Bradley of Pampa, confirmed that the Etheredges bought the home about four years ago.

Borkta's wife Rita also refused to reveal her husband's whereabouts in a phone call to the Borkta home Saturday.

"No comment," Mrs. Borkta said in an attempt to locate Tim Borkta. "I'm not going to give you any information. Talk to our attorney."

Attorney Doug Mulder of Dallas confirmed that he represents Bethany and the company officers, but he too refused any comment and refused to reveal his clients' location.

"I don't have any comment. I'm tied up right now," Mulder said in a call to his Dallas office Saturday.

Hamilton, the banking commission and the securities commission have sought to question the pair in connection with the collapse of Bethany Trust.

The company had 140 active investors in four states when the state shut it down. The investors each sank a minimum of $5,000 per contract into the trust company after being promised a minimum 25 - percent return in 90 days, Hamilton has said.

The company told investors that earnings came from the operation of various "global" enterprises, including an oil and gas exploration company, an overseas toy company and one involved in the sale of water filters, an import-export business and purported advertising and travel agencies.

The State Securities Board, the state version of the federal SEC, entered the investigation last week.

Kenneth Hooper, assistant director of enforcement at Lubbock, said Etheredge and company officials are under investigation for the possible sale of "unregistered securities."

"There are serious questions about what they disclosed to people," Hooper said.

He said he has found evidence that the Bethany officials violated state securities laws by failing to reveal to investors information on the history of the company.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Opinion

Giant company bows to rumors

The mighty Procter & Gamble Co.—makers of most everything from disposable diapers to cupcakes—has thrown up its corporate hands and given in to intimidation, insinuation and innuendo.

Rumors have floated like Ivory Soap since 1980 that P&G's trademark—a moon and stars logo—is actually the mark of the devil.

The huge company mounted an aggressive and costly campaign of devil denial—all to no avail. Now, it says, the trademark which it has used on its products for 135 years, will be partially phased out. The giant succumbs to bizarre and untraceable rumors.

P&G's trademark shows the Man in the Moon and 13 stars. It dates back to around 1850 when stevedores sketched it on the company's crates of candles on the docks. It was registered at the U.S. Patent Office in 1882. Now, because of the rumors, P&G will drop the use of its trademark on the packages of products. Dropping of the logo is to be done slowly.

The anonymous rumors that it was the devil's work began about five years ago. People who needed proof were told to hold the logo up to a mirror, that the marks in the Man in the Moon's beard would appear as the number 666—the sign of the antichrist, Satanism, devil worship.

The company fought back. Its consumer services department set up a toll-free telephone number and handled about 15,000 calls a month. It filed lawsuits against people who spread the rumors. Still, it was a losing battle. P&G will continue to investigate the source of the rumors, being spread by means of a one-page flyer that gets duplicated and passed along.

It's a shame, and cause for reflection, that in this supposedly enlightened age there are still so many who can be swayed by bizarre rumors that have absolutely no basis in fact. Let's hope this will be the end of trouble for a company which has supplied America with fine products for more than an century.

Should they fight Santa?

LeGree S. Daniels, who recently resigned from the National Republican Committee's Executive Board, penned one of the finest editorials in quite some time about black bondage to a political party. Her article, "Still in Bondage," Washington Post (4-11-85) laid out the futility of blacks being a one party people in a two-party system.

Mrs. Daniels said, "Black allegiance to a great Republican president, Abraham Lincoln, became the glue that tied blacks to the Republican party at the very beginning of black political history."

Passing years saw Republican interest in civil rights for blacks wane in the face of other concerns. Post-Reconstruction years saw black influence within the party of Lincoln diminish, giving them little voice in national politics. Republicans took the black vote for granted. And the Democrats didn't even try to get the black vote; they figured they didn't owe the blacks anything and would do nothing to risk alienating their Southern white support.

Mrs. Daniels said, "There is a haunting familiarity to this refrain." The despair of the depression years gave us President Franklin Roosevelt and the New Deal. And blacks abandoned the Republican party en masse. Daniels concludes, "Nearly fifty years have passed since the black exodus from the Republican party, and events have come full cycle...We spent the first years of existence in America in bondage. Freed by the Civil War we spent the next half-century indentured to the Republican party. Finally, we forsook that bondage in favor of spending fifty years as captives of the Democratic party."

That's it in a nutshell. Blacks have been bloc-voting for the Democratic party. And since 1972 what has it meant? Jimmy Carter owed his presidency to the black vote, but what did his presidency mean to blacks. Sure there was Andy Young at the U.N., and Pat Harris at HEW, and the unprecedented appointment of blacks to judgeships and other high-level positions, but the Carter years were a period of economic decline for poor blacks.

Then, in 1984 blacks turned out a 90-percent vote for Mondale; still, Ronald Reagan racked up a forty-nine-state electoral sweep. If we needed any more evidence that being the captured constituency of one political party is stupid strategy, a look at the 1984 elections provides it. But what's the black leadership's response to this political "Jonestown" massacre?

Jesse Jackson, who now makes a million a year, says, "At least I delivered the vote." D.C. Mayor Marion Barry says, "At least we did our share." And other black leaders merely say, "Wait 'til '88." They make the Emperor Nero, who fiddled while Rome burned, look like the world's greatest thinker by comparison.

The strategic question is: How can blacks get more competition for their votes? That boils down to: How can Republicans attract more blacks? In a word, Republicans have a Santa Claus problem, and the Democrats who support massive giveaways are Santa's helpers.

If there's a no-win proposition, it's fighting Santa Claus. Even if you prove St. Nick's been delivering stolen merchandise, you're going to have a difficult time proving that YOU aren't the heel. So what should the Republicans do? Should they (party ideologues) insist on fighting Santa? Or do they (party pragmatists) join the ranks of Santa's helpers?

How a newspaper is born

ATHENS, Ga. - Twenty years ago, a group of individuals decided to do something in this college town that didn't make a lot of sense. They decided to start a daily newspaper.

A lot of people laughed at the idea. The smart money knew you didn't go around starting newspapers. Too big of a risk.

And you certainly didn't start a newspaper in competition with one that already had been in town a hundred years.

Yeah, they laughed, but businessman Claude Williams of Atlanta, and veteran newsman Glenn Vaughn, Jr. and a few other investors went ahead and started their newspaper anyway. They called it the Athens Daily News, and one bright morning in 1965 it hit the streets.

It cost a nickel.

That was 20 years ago. It's hard to believe it's been that long. That's what all of us said when we met here to celebrate the 20th anniversary of the founding of what we called "the People Paper," the paper that cared about the people who read it.

I was 19, and wouldn't have known a news story if it hit me over the head, when I went to work for the Daily News a couple of months after its start.

Wade Saye was sports editor, and I was his assistant. Or that's what I called myself. I was the No. 2 man in a two-man sports department. Wade was a fine teacher.

Our newsroom was a remodeled car dealer's showcase. We worked long hours and we didn't make very much money, and like Glenn Vaughn, our editor, said at the reunion: "There were times we had to wait until after the banks closed on Fridays to hand out the paychecks so we could have the weekend to find the money to make them good."

I probably would have worked for nothing, because the subsequent newspaper war that raged in Athens was a classic. Ben Hecht would have loved it.

We were the morning paper and up the street was our rival, the afternoon, Banner-Herald, an Athens tradition, owned by a prosperous chain determined to trample us.

They never had a prayer. We were the epitome of the spirited underdog, and we had some greats.

We had the late Larry Young - for a time our only reporter. The first day we published, Larry picked off a giant scoop that President Lyndon Johnson was flying to Athens that day to attend the funeral of Sen. Richard Russell in nearby Winder, Ga.

We had Browney Stephens, a genius with a camera. We had Cecil Dill, a magician with a press.

And we had Glenn Vaughn, Jr., a great editor. In his suspenders, he even looked the part. He understood what a newspaper should be, a supportive mirror of the community it covers.

His newspaper, our newspaper, cheered Athens and made it a better place to live.

There were so many others who played major roles in writing the Daily News' own story, and I hope they understand they are all in this column; in spirit, at least.

The Banner-Herald, incidentally, never did run us out of town. The chain had to buy us to stop us; The Daily News lives on today, under different guidance, but we gave birth to it.

The reunion was a smashing success. There were tears. At 5:30 in the morning when Glenn Vaughn, now a newspaper executive back in Columbus, Ga. and I finally gave it up, he looked at me and said, "God, I wish we could do it again."

No room for compromise on budget

BY RICHARD LESHER
It would be difficult to overstate the importance of the compromise budget plan now in trouble before the Senate.

If it is approved, we, as a nation, will be well on our way toward eliminating the budget deficit, revitalizing the economy, providing jobs for all who want them and leaving our children and grandchildren better off than we are.

If it is not approved, we face soaring deficits in the future, a stagnating economy, rising unemployment and - for the first time in modern history - the prospect of leaving the next generation with less to look forward to than their parents.

Few would argue that something must be done about the imbalance between government spending and government income. But there are as many schemes to solve the problem as there are schemers.

Each organization, each facet of the economy, each special interest group and each philosophical bent sees things in the federal budget which it considers important - even absolutely necessary.

This is why the compromise bill, so carefully hammered out by the White House and Senate leadership, is so important. It must be adopted as written. There is no room for change.

If group after group announced 98 percent support but asks for just one small change to save a favorite program, the entire package will fall apart and nothing will be left.

In order to solve the budget and deficit problems, it is necessary that pain - and have no doubt about it, there will be pain - must be shared by everyone.

The sacrifice will fall on the elderly who will see less increase in their Social Security checks, the farmers who will have fewer price supports, veterans, students, federal workers, Amtrak riders, the defense establishment and - yes - the business community.

As president of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, I realize that most of our members will be hurt in one way or another if the compromise package is adopted.

Among the programs to be eliminated are: the lending programs of the Small Business Administration and direct loans by the Export-Import Bank - two areas of great importance to Chamber members. Other budget cuts, ranging from lower defense spending to elimination of the Economic Development Administration, will also hurt the business community.

But we are behind the compromise 100 percent - no ifs, no ands, no buts. We support it, not because we like it, but because we know it is absolutely necessary.

When he spoke to a meeting of business leaders here at the Chamber recently, David Stockman, director of the Office of Management and Budget, said, "This package is so delicately balanced, both budgetwise and politically, that if a run on the package - a 'run on the bank' - ever gets underway, even in a few votes, it is very likely that the whole thing will come unraveled in very short order."

"The compromise package," he continued, "probably represents the optimum balance of components that can be achieved in the political world we live in today."

"What is at stake is not the budget of 1986, but the shape of our fiscal affairs in this country for a generation," Stockman added.

If anything, the OMB director understated his case.

It is not too many times in a generation that a nation has a clear chance to redirect its course for the future. We now have such an opportunity, an opportunity which will be lost in a month or so.

The American people must be behind the compromise budget package and demand that their representatives on Capitol Hill vote for it as it stands.

To quote the character Will from the musical "Oklahoma," "It's all 'er nothing." Not only for our own sake, but for the sake of our children, let's make sure in this case it is "all."

Lesher is president of the United States Chamber of Commerce.

Letters to editor Majors' propaganda

To the editor,

Phillips Petroleum harps on the notion that the Independents are going to deplete or exhaust the Panhandle field within 3 - 5 years if they are allowed to continue to develop the field.

First of all, this is nothing but the same propaganda that the majors have used since World War II. The overall number of wells that are in existence throughout the field does not dictate how fast this field depletes. What controls the depletion of this field is the market demand for the residue or stripped gas that the fifteen or so gas processing plants produce.

These plants are owned by Phillips, Cabot, Getty, etc. and are located from Gray to Moore County. These plants currently process approximately 300 million cubic feet of gas per day. You can not move any more gas than this volume to the consumer, no matter how many wells you have completed in the Panhandle Field.

As the production of more and more casinghead gas develops due to future independent oil wells, the 300 million cubic feet of processed gas does not change. What the additional wells create is a pressured up situation in the field where each well moves less to the pipeline, thus the overall production remains relatively constant - 300 million cubic feet per day.

In fact, expert engineers and geologists throughout the oil and gas industry predict a 5 - 10 trillion cubic feet reserve still remaining under the world's largest gas field.

Let's examine the real depletion rate of this Panhandle Field. If the fifteen gas processing plants are delivering 300 million cubic feet of stripped gas to the market each day, then it would take 46 years to deplete the Panhandle Field based on the lower 5 trillion cubic foot reserve figure. This is quite different than the 3 - 5 years Phillips is trying to drive into people's minds - pure propaganda.

In fact, the known reserves actually increase as the Independents drill and expand the boundaries of the field. Do not let Phillips fool you, their propaganda began in 1949, stating that this Panhandle Field was gone or depleted. What Phillips wanted to accomplish was to discourage Independents from drilling so they could use this field as their premier banking collateral. Also they do not want any competition; wouldn't you like to have your cake and eat it too? Let's face it - with more competition maybe the consumer would not be paying quite as much for his gasoline.

I would like to comment on the statement where Dan remarked that the Panhandle communities were thriving prior to 1978. This is a very relative statement - I am sure that these Panhandle communities were not near to thriving as well as they should be considering the fact that these communities lie right dab in the middle of the world's largest gas field.

Dan also stated that the independents are drilling their oil wells on 10-acre tracts, thus resulting in 64 wells per section of land. I challenge Dan to show me just one section of land where this has happened. The real fact is that the average spacing of the Independents' wells has averaged more like 20 - 40 acres per well.

Do not let Phillips trick you into feeling sorry for them. Yes, they have paid several million dollars in taxes but it is only a small part of what they should be paying. They have paid no severance taxes to the state or school districts, etc. on their most profitable operation - gas processing. Their Dumas, Snead, Rockcreek and Gray processing plants pay no taxes on the stripped oil that they process from the rich - high BTU gas.

In fact, Phillips' gross revenue from all their operations in the Texas Panhandle exceeds a billion dollars annually. What dollar contribution Phillips gives back to the Panhandle economy is a mere fraction of what they take with them outside the state of Texas. The Independents pay much more taxes to the state and school districts because they are taxed on every product they produce.

Dan, in his conclusion, stated once the gas is gone, it is gone for good. Wouldn't you rather see the profit from this gas stay in the Texas Panhandle banks than let the majors run with all the profits across the state line.

Corporate taxes reach lowest level in over 50 years

WASHINGTON (AP) — Corporations benefiting from the 1981 tax cuts pushed by President Reagan paid the lowest tax rates in more than 50 years on their profits in 1984, a Congressional Budget Office study said Saturday.

But the CBO report — which called the nation's corporate tax system "seriously deficient" in raising revenue simply, fairly and efficiently — said the benefits of the 1981 reductions are washing away.

The study concluded that by the decade's end, tax increases approved by Congress and President Reagan in 1982 and 1984 will have wiped out the effects of the three-year business tax cuts enacted in 1981.

The 200-page report was released by Rep. Jim Jones, D-Okla., amid growing discussion of overhauling both corporate and personal income taxes.

Last week, the Senate overwhelmingly passed a resolution calling for tough minimum taxes on both businesses and individuals. And the Treasury Department is expected to release a new version of the Reagan administration's tax reform plan later in this month. Changes in corporate taxes are said to be a key element of that proposal.

One conclusion of the CBO study was that the Reagan tax cuts — particularly the changes in depreciation schedules — did dramatically slash corporate tax rates.

"Over the 1960s and 1970s, the average corporate tax remained steady at about 40 percent," the report said. But Reagan's tax cuts "drastically reduced the average corporate rate to 34 percent in 1981 and to 22 percent by 1984."

Actually, the study reported the average tax rate for all U.S. corporations in 1984 was 21.9 percent, the lowest figure found in the study stretching back to 1930. As recently as 1980, the rate was 43.8 percent.

The CBO calculated the average tax rate by dividing total corporate profits by corporate tax liabilities, subject to various adjustments. But that trend may be about to do an about-face.

In another chapter, the report concluded the billions of dollars in tax cuts for corporations are being eroded by tax changes and increases passed later in Reagan's first term.

Focusing on actual and projected corporate tax revenues — rather than average rates — the CBO concluded the 1982 and 1984 tax changes had a bigger impact than some thought.

The CBO projected that corporate tax revenues in 1989 would be $101.8 billion, just over the $100 billion they projected would have been collected if the tax laws had not been changed in Reagan's first term. The next year — 1990 — the CBO said current law will produce $107.3 billion in corporate taxes, versus $104 billion under the pre-1981 laws.

City clean-up drive begins

By LARRY HOLLIS
Staff Writer

The city's annual Clean-Up, Paint-Up and Fix-Up Campaign begins officially tomorrow, though many residents have already begun clean-up operations following the recent hail, wind and rain storms.

With the support of Clean Pampa, Inc., and the Pampa Chamber of Commerce, the city is encouraging residents to use this month to clean up their properties and haul off their accumulated junk, used furniture, old appliances, tree and yard trimmings, and other materials that may be cluttering up households, garages, yards and lots.

As in the past, the city Sanitation Department crews will concentrate on one ward a week at a time for hauling off the trash and junk placed in the alleys during the clean-up drive.

Dates for the 1985 campaign are: Ward 1, Monday through Friday; Ward 2, May 13 through 17; Ward 3, May 20 to 24; and Ward 4, May 27 to 31.

Larry Simpson, head of the Sanitation Department, urged residents to get their materials into their alleys before or during the week scheduled for their respective wards. Items placed out in the alleys beyond the designated week for a ward may result in a delay in pick-up of the materials.

Simpson reminded residents that not everything will be picked up; there are some limits on what may be discarded and placed in the alleys for city crews to pick up or haul off.

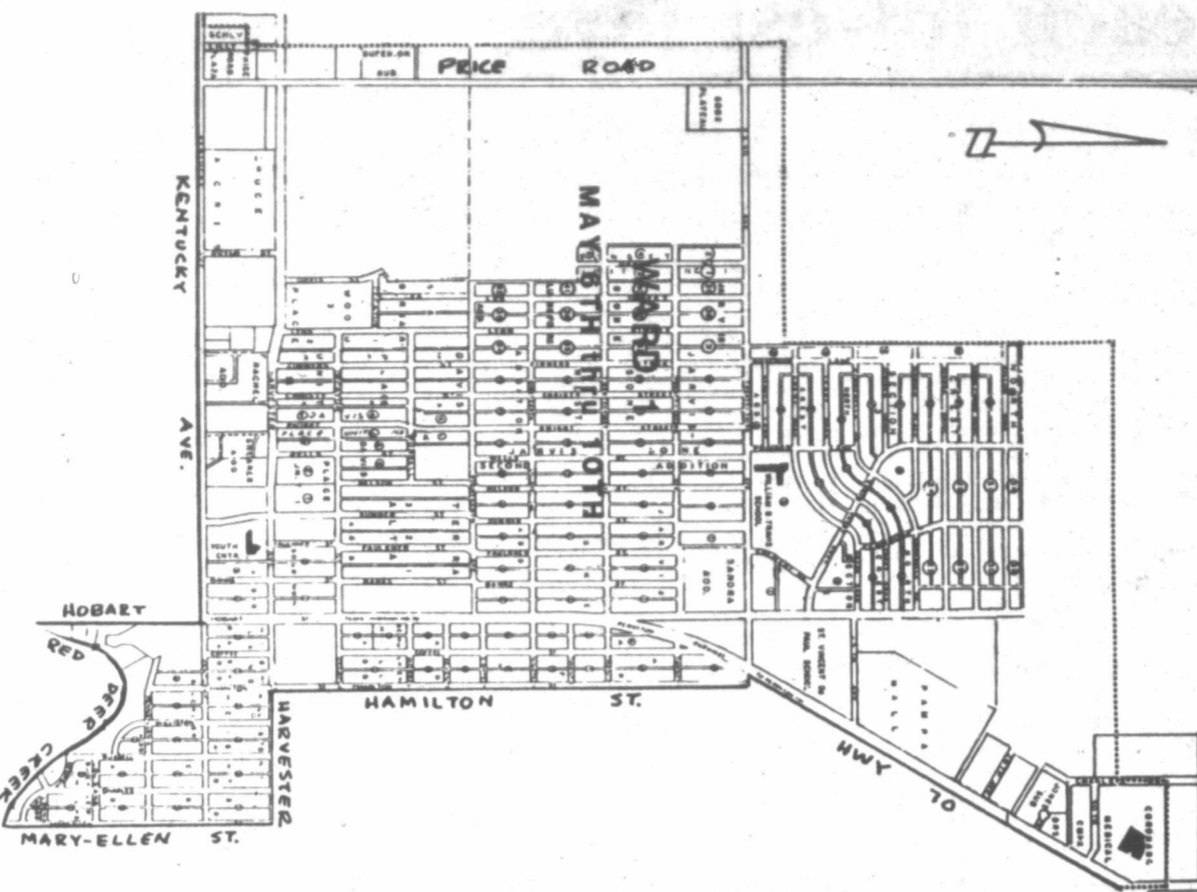

Residents should note the restrictions to avoid finding items left behind their properties after city crews have gone through the alleys during the clean-up operations, Simpson said.

Concrete and cement blocks, large tree trunks or limbs, large metal pipes or pieces, and items that two people cannot lift will not be hauled off. The crews also will not haul off junked cars.

Tree limbs should be cut, banded and tied into one-man loads, Simpson said. If not, they will not be picked up.

No chemicals, oil wastes or hazardous materials will be collected by the city crews. Such materials also will not be accepted at the city landfill, since there are state and federal laws against dumping them there. Residents need to make other arrangements to dispose of such substances.

During the drive this month, yard trimmings and grass cuttings should be placed in plastic bags and deposited in the alley, not in the dumpster, Simpson said. The dumpsters are expected to be fuller than usual during this period, and the trimmings and cuttings could lead to overflows, he explained.

Normal trash pick-up from the dumpsters will remain on the regular schedule during the clean-up weeks. Accordingly, residents are asked to place their larger items and other materials away from the dumpster to avoid hindering collection from the dumpsters, Simpson said.

Everything to be discarded should be placed in the alleys and not on the streets (except for those few areas not having regular alley collection). Materials can be placed behind fences or property lines away from the dumpster. But items should not be placed in the middle of the alley, since that would hinder the trucks going down the alleyways, he stressed.

Simpson said residents should place their items on the section of the alley behind their own property, not across the alley or on either side of their property. Neighbors are likely to be wanting to discard their own items, he noted.

Large items easily handled, such as old appliances or used furniture, will be hauled off if they are placed in the alleys, Simpson said. But city crews will not go into yards, garages or households to carry off such items. Residents need to get such items out to the alleys if they want them picked up.

The elderly, handicapped or ill persons needing assistance in getting used furniture and appliances into the alleys can receive help from students of the local Distributive Education Clubs of America (DECA) chapter.

Persons needing assistance may call the DECA office at Pampa High School at 665-5011 or phone 665-4947 and ask for "Roby." Roby Dehls is heading up the project for DECA. Con Chem Co., Inc., will be providing trucks for the DECA project as needed; the company can be reached at 665-8262 or 665-5544.

Heavy items should not be placed in the dumpsters, Simpson warned, since they could lead to damage of the dumpsters during lifting for collection of trash.

Bagging or boxing of smaller materials will aid the clean-up crews, Simpson said, as will bundling of papers, magazines and similar items. Residents should be careful that such containers are covered or items weighted down to prevent winds from scattering the materials through alleys and yards, he advised.

Simpson said it might take several days for the crews to reach all the areas in the ward during the clean-up campaign sweeps, so residents should take care that materials are not scattered by winds, dogs or other means.

Clean Pampa officials suggested residents could use the campaign period to mow weeds in the alleys behind their properties and to clean up vacant lots throughout the city.

Simpson reminded residents that Air Pollution Board regulations prohibit the burning off of grass and weeds. The city will not issue any burning permits for such operations.

Clean-up operations for the campaign will be only for residents within the city limits. However, residents whose property is outside the city limits but with adjoining alleys within the city limits may take advantage of the campaign.

Anyone having any questions on what will or will not be picked up or wanting additional information may contact Simpson at 665-1689; Director of Neighborhood Services Allyn Moore at 665-8483, or Clean Pampa coordinator Jo Potter at 665-2514.

LAREDO, Texas AP — Trustees of United Independent School District have complied with the Texas Open Records law and released the names and qualifications of six finalists in the search for a new school superintendent.

UISD Attorney Ricardo de Anda and trustee Charles Borchers agreed Thursday in an out of court settlement to give the information to Peter G. Lee, editor of The (Laredo) News, and Raul Perales, publisher of The News. They also said they would turn over the names and current positions of the eight who were rejected.

The agreement marks the end of a week-long battle between The News and UISD over the information.

- Do not climb electrical poles, towers or structures.
- Do not trim trees near power lines.
- Do not set ladders or scaffolds near power lines.
- Do not shoot at insulators on poles, towers or structures.
- Never climb on or go inside a sub-station fence. Call SPS to help you retrieve anything thrown into the substation or caught in its fence.
- Avoid using electrical tools like lawn mowers or hedge clippers when grass and leaves are wet.
- Be careful when digging. Call SPS to find out if there are any buried electrical lines in the area.
- Electrical cords should not be spliced or taped. Repair by shortening them or replace them entirely.
- Beware of exposed wires.
- Don't touch portable appliances (coffee makers, radios, hair dryers, etc.) with wet hands or while standing or sitting in water.
- Don't post signs on utility poles. A lineman hitting a nail with his cleat could slip and fall. Also, nails can snag protective gloves and destroy their insulation value.

President suffers setback at summit

BONN, West Germany (AP) — As protesters converged for his visit to a German military cemetery, President Reagan was dealt a setback at the conclusion of the economic summit Saturday when France prevented the leaders of seven industrial nations from setting a date for new trade talks.

Reagan was described by Treasury Secretary James A. Baker as disappointed with the outcome on the trade issue, but "genuinely pleased" overall with the allies' 11th annual summit.

"We all got what we wanted," Reagan said as he walked with other leaders to hear West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl read the final communique in the Bundestag, the federal parliament.

The statement said summit members believe trade talks "should begin as soon as possible. Most of us think that this should be in 1986."

Despite this disagreement, the seven nations pledged to work toward world economic recovery and to resist pressure to protect their own markets from outside competition.

Reagan's biggest victory was lining up all his partners — Britain, Canada, France, Italy, Japan and West Germany — behind his strategy for arms talks with the Soviet Union.

He had to swallow silence from the allies, though, on his "Star Wars" plan for research into space-based missile defenses. At the last minute, he was heartened by a personal endorsement of the program from Kohl at the closing ceremony.

And Reagan got no help for his trade embargo against Nicaragua.

Two miles from the final session, in a cobblestone square of this Rhine River capital city, protesters 7,000-strong assembled to attack the meetings.

About 250 youths clad in leather, chains and hoods broke from the group and scuffled with baton-wielding police. There about three dozen arrests and about a dozen injuries to police as the youths smashed windows and looted stores.

Near Hanover, 200 miles away, a quieter protest heralded the start of many demonstrations in this country and abroad over the plan for Reagan and Kohl to lay a wreath Sunday at a cemetery with the graves of 2,000 German soldiers, including 49 members of the dreaded Nazi Waffen SS combat units.

A group of 16 American Jews, led by two rabbis from the Hebrew Institute of Riverdale, N.Y., said they would defy police orders to end their sleep-in at the site of the Bergen-Belsen Nazi concentration camp, where the Nazis murdered 50,000 people.

Demonstrators charge down Bonn street

Other protesters, including 15 New York state legislators and 500 students from 17 nations, gathered closer to the military cemetery in Bitburg, 220 miles south of Hanover.

Reagan and Kohl will not speak during the 10-minute ceremony, which has been denounced by heavy majorities in both houses of the U.S. Congress as well as by Jewish, veterans and other groups in many nations.

Reagan, who has described the Bitburg trip as a gesture of reconciliation, was asked Saturday how he feels about going there.

"I am looking forward to it," the president replied.

At the summit, the U.S. drive for trade talks in 1986 was designed to quell demands for import quotas and other trade barriers that have been raised in Congress and in some sectors of the U.S. economy hard hit by imports.

The United States and Japan had hoped to get summit partners to agree to a specific date for talks under the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade, a 90-member body based in Geneva.

U.S. officials made no attempt to mask their displeasure over French President Francois Mitterrand's refusal to go along.

White House deputy press secretary Larry Speakes described France as the lone holdout against setting a date for the talks.

THE GOSPEL PREACHED BY PAUL

"But though we, or an angel from heaven, should preach unto you any gospel other than that which we preached unto you, let him be anathema. As we have said before, so say I now again, if any man preacheth unto you any gospel other than that which ye received, let him be anathema." (Galatians 1:8-9.) Paul, writing by inspiration, warns against preaching anything other than that gospel preached by the apostles. There are other warnings in the New Testament such as I Corinthians 4:6, 2 John 9, and Revelation 22:18-19. Proper regard for the Word of God should cause any an all to heed these warnings.

As we examine various doctrines taught in religious circles today in light of the gospel preached by Paul we can readily see they are not the same as the one he preached. For instance, those who teach the non-essentiality of baptism should notice that Paul taught baptism in the name of the Lord Jesus (Acts 19:1-7.) He also insisted that baptism was a burial in water (Romans 6:3-4; Colossians

2:12.) He, himself, had been baptized in order to wash away his sins by his own testimony (Acts 22:16.)

Paul also taught vocal singing as a means of teaching and giving glory to God (Colossians 3:16; Ephesians 5:16.) There is nothing to indicate that any mechanical instruments of music were included in the commandment given by him in worship to God.

Paul also gave specific instructions regarding the Lord's Supper in I Corinthians 11:17-34. By example (which he says we are to follow - Philippians 4:9), he observed this memorial on the first day of the week (Acts 20:7.) Those who observe the Supper only once or twice a year and teach others to do, do not preach the same gospel that Paul preached.

To avoid the curse of God resting upon us, we should always be sure that the gospel we preach is the same as preached by Paul and the other apostles.

Texas family turned a $60 investment into nation's 12th largest grocery chain

By STEVE REED
Austin American-Statesman
AUSTIN (AP) — A can of corn here, a bag of charcoal there. Milk and bread, butter and eggs, sugar and flour. It has added up over the years.

Operating from the Rio Grande Valley to Ennis and from Bay City to Del Rio, the descendants of Florence Butt of Kerrville expanded her $60 investment into the 12th largest grocery company in the United States, all without leaving Texas.

For 80 years, not a day has passed without a Butt in charge or without a Butt giving credit to H.E.B. employees and customers for the success of the company.

Along the way, they tossed nickels and free chickens off roofs, and gave away shiny new cars, mink stoles, trading stamps, and cash prizes. They survived the Depression, hurricanes, fires, and a sibling rivalry. To keep pace with the technological revolution they automated and computerized.

When 1980s shoppers signaled a desire to get back to basics, they began reinstating the bulk foods that were the staples of Florence Butt's business in 1905.

Shoppers at neighborhood H.E.B. grocery stores today contribute to a home-grown, family-held retailing empire that expects 1985 sales of almost $2 billion.

But at best, the sophistication, diversity, and magnitude of the business register only subliminally on the shopper pushing a cart down the aisle in search of the ingredients for school lunches, Saturday cookouts, Sunday dinner, or the hors d'oeuvres that will be within reach when the neighbors show up for a round of Trivial Pursuit.

From the shoppers' point of view, the grocery store experience is universal. Is the price right? Is there a choice between name and house brands? Is the food fresh? Is the store clean? Are the employees polite and helpful? In recent years, shoppers have asked more. Are there generics, fresh seafoods, a bakery, a deli, at least one express check-out lane, film developing, a pharmacist, a complete drug selection? Can you pay your bills, write a check for cash, or use an electronic teller machine?

Austin shoppers who think all supermarkets operate alike may recall that A&P quit the battle here in the 1960s. Kroger pulled out during the 1970s, and Handy Andy sold out in 1982. Last year in Houston, Weingarten closed or sold its 70 stores. This year Eagle closed or sold its 22 stores in the same city. Neither bigness nor heritage guarantee survival.

With 147 stores in 77 cities and 20,000 employees, the H.E. Butt Grocery Co. prospers in a business where the competition is sometimes ruthless. More than holding its ground against national giants like Safeway and regional competitors like Tom Thumb, H.E.B. is charting expansion beyond its traditional turf. It is a Texas success story, the dimensions of which are little known outside the food industry.

And it started in the Hill Country. For the last 75 years, H.E.B. has been shaped by Howard E. Butt, 90, the man whose name the company bears, and by his son, Charles C. Butt, the president since 1971. But it is a company started by a woman under adverse conditions in a remote section of an adopted state.

Florence Butt came to Texas in 1905 from Memphis because Tennessee doctors had recommended the climate and medical facilities in Kerrville as possibly beneficial to her husband, who suffered from tuberculosis.

With three young sons to feed and clothe and a husband unable to work, she knocked on the doors of Kerrville homes in search of customers for her A&P grocery products, shipped to her by a relative.

According to an eight-page history of the company's origins written more than a half-century later by her son Eugene, one woman slammed the door in her face and said, "I don't buy from peddlers."

"Mother was a very refined woman, and this hurt her deeply," Eugene recalled.

Although she died in 1954, the image that endures today is of a woman of intelligence, fortitude, dedication, and generosity. For $9 a month, she rented a two-story frame building, moved the family in upstairs, and opened the first Butt grocery on the ground floor. It was still the era of the horse and wagon, credit and delivery, and pickle and cracker barrels.

Charlie, 14, Eugene, 12, and Howard, 10, at first delivered orders in a baby carriage, then a red wagon. A horse and wagon were acquired later.

There is no clear record today that accounts for the early success of the business. A family's will to survive cannot be discounted.

Eugene recalled that Howard began to assume management of the business when he was 15 or 16.

"One thing he did was cause mother to stock tobacco," Eugene wrote. "She was always opposed to this, but it was causing loss of trade."

The irony of Howard's early business instincts is not lost on longtime H.E.B. shoppers who remember that his supermarkets added beer and wine to their shelves in the late 1970s only after he, in the role once held by his mother, was convinced by his staff that the change was necessary to compete with rival stores.

Howard graduated valedictorian from his high school class, served in the Navy in World War I, and came home in 1919 to take over the business. A string of failures followed. Stores were opened and closed in Center Point, Junction, Brownwood, Eagle Pass, Uvalde, Crystal City, and San Angelo. It was 1926 before one of the series of "second" stores, in Del Rio, proved profitable.

Along the way, Eugene discovered he did not like the grocery business and left it for the Post Office. The business finally took hold in the late 1920s when Howard bought three Piggly Wiggly stores in the Rio Grande Valley. In 1928 the company offices were moved to Brownsville from Kerrville.

In high school, Howard had given himself a middle name, Edward. In 1935 he lent his name to his 28 stores. C.C. Butt Grocery, which had been named for Florence's husband and which had become C.C. Butt Cash Grocery, then became the H.E. Butt Grocery Co.

"I might tell you just a little bit more about my father and how he got started," Charles Butt said over lunch at El Mirador, a San Antonio restaurant where nothing on the menu runs much more than $4. The meeting had taken weeks to arrange because, as his public relations spokesman said, "Mr. Butt doesn't give interviews."

Guitarist to perform in local schools

Hansford Johnson, classical guitarist from Amarillo, will be musician in residence this week at Pampa public schools.

Under the sponsorship of Pampa Fine Arts Association, Johnson will visit Pampa schools this week to meet with students in music classes.

Johnson's appearance is part of the PFAA artist in residence program. In the past the association has sponsored an artist to visit mainly with high school students, but this year Johnson will be meeting with students at all levels.

The guitarist will visit Mann Elementary School on Monday and Austin Elementary School Tuesday. The schedule is being worked out for his other appearances here during the week.

Johnson received his bachelor of arts degree, with a major in performance, from Wake Forest University in 1979 with cum laude honors. He earned his master of music degree, also with a major in performance, in 1981 at Virginia Commonwealth University.

He studied with Jesus Silva for private instruction and master classes at the North Carolina School of the Arts from 1977 to 1979, with classes in North Carolina, Virginia and Italy. He had master classes in 1977 with Oscar Ghiglia at the Chigiana Accademia at Sienna, Italy.

In September, 1983, Johnson was named artist in residence for the Texas Commission on the Arts. In November, 1983, he brought exposure of the fine arts via his classical guitar for elementary, junior high and high school students in the Panhandle area. He visited eight schools in five cities, with an average of five demonstrations or concerts per day for eight weeks.

In May, 1983, he was chosen to contribute two concerts for the 30-week Talent in Texas television series.

In April, 1983, Johnson was selected to perform at the initial annual event of the Golden Nail Awards, established by the Fine Arts Committee of the Amarillo Chamber of Commerce to award individuals and businesses for their contribution to the arts.

That month he also was featured in the monthly publication of the Texas Assemblies of Arts Councils.

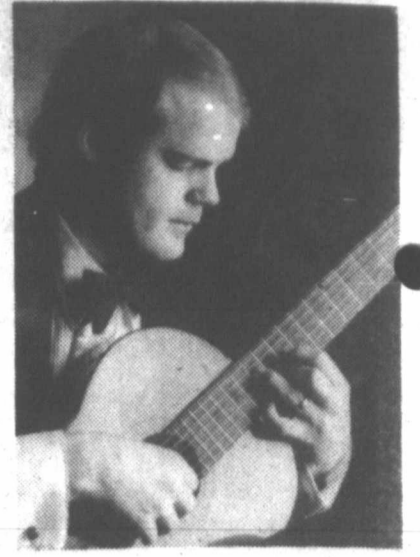

Johnson has had teaching experience since 1970. From 1970 to 1972 he was on the faculty of the Maher School of Music at Denver, Colo. From 1972 to 1974 he was a student assistant at Metropolitan State College at Denver.

He instructed private students from 1977 to 1979 in Winston-Salem, N.C. He was on the faculty of the Virginia Commonwealth University Community Music School at Richmond, Va., from 1979 to 1981.

He has served as artist in residence and faculty member at Amarillo College since 1981, there by invitation to open the guitar department in the music department.

Over the years he has presented a number of formal concerts and performances, including Carnegie Recital Hall in New York in October, 1984.

Johnson has presented other performances at the Virginia Museum Theatre at Richmond, the Don Harrington Discovery Center in Amarillo, the Perryton Arts Council, the Christopher Newport College Fine Arts Series at Hampton, Va., the Temple Junior College Guitar Series at Temple, the Texas Tech University Visiting Artist Series at Lubbock, the Harwood Foundation at Taos, N.M., and West Texas State University, guest artist, at Canyon.

From July to August, 1977, Johnson performed in Italy at Assisi, Sienna, Frascati, Tarquinia, Anagni, Caprarola, Tieti and San Gimignano.

He also worked in a PBS production at Denver, Colo., in October, 1973, on composition and performance of music for a documentary film.

BUSINESS SCENE

Affect of blue law repeal disputed

AUSTIN (AP) — Texans counting on wide-open Sunday shopping if the Blue Law repeal bill approved might be charging ward disappointment, says the sponsor of the repeal measure that is halfway through the Legislature.

"If people are expecting all the stores in the state to be opened on Sunday they are going to be surprised," said Rep. David Cain, D-Dallas.

"I would be very surprised if the department stores that are not opened now on Sundays would just open their doors to a bunch of retail traffic on Sundays," he said. "As far as a bunch of stores in suburban malls opening, I'd be pretty surprised."

Cain will be pretty surprised, some retailers say, predicting the death of the 1961 Blue Law probably would open most stores — either by choice or economics.

"I can tell you with a great degree of certainty that all your major stores will open. When all your major stores open it means all the stores in those shopping centers will open. You can bet your last dollar on that," said Mickey Moore, director of the Texas Retailers Association, which likes the Blue Law.

"I think you are going to see a lot of doors just blow open," said Frank Griffin, consultant for the major retailers who combined to fight for repeal.

Robert Mettler of San Antonio, president of Texans for Blue Law Repeal and chief executive officer of Joske's, indicated his stores most likely would open on Sundays if the Blue Law is stricken.

"I would assume we would. We have plans to be opened each and every Sunday available," he said.

Sunday store hours probably would be about noon to 5 p.m., he said.

Cain's repeal bill, which would keep the Blue Law in effect for auto dealers, was approved 102-40 in the House last week. It's up to the Senate now, where sponsor Ray Farabee of Wichita Falls says he is "very close" to having the needed votes.

"It's looking good in the Senate," Griffin said. "We can smell victory."

Assuming Senate approval and Gov. Mark White's OK, the Blue Law would die Sept. 1, which is a Sunday. Assuming all the stores that joined Texans for Blue Law Repeal would take advantage of the new freedom of commerce, Texans could expect these stores to open Sundays: Joske's, Haverty's Furniture, K Mart, Levitz Furniture, Sears, Target, Toys "R" Us and Zales.

Several stores already opened Sundays for restricted sales also joined the repeal effort, including, Tom Thumb-Page, Handy Dan, Eckerd's, Kroger and 7-Eleven.

Cain said the biggest immediate effect of repeal would be in those stores now opened Sundays for sale of everything but the 42 items banned by the Blue Law.

"The grocery stores, the convenience stores and the hardware stores that are now opened Sundays will not have to worry about fencing off areas," he said.

The Texas Retailers Association support of the Blue Law is based, in part, on the fear that mom-and-pop stores would be forced to open on Sundays — by economics or by mall contracts.

In some malls, the big stores dictate shopping hours.

Stanley Guzik, manager of Benold's Jewelers store in Austin's Highland Mall, has fought repeal.

May tough for market

NEW YORK (AP) — The way it started out, May seems determined to live up to its reputation as a tough month for the stock market.

On Wednesday, the first trading day of the month, the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials took its sharpest drop of the year, falling 16.01 points to its lowest level since mid-January.

Investment adviser Yale Hirsch has long published statistical studies of what he calls "the May-June disaster area."

Over the last 20 years, he says, the Dow Jones industrial average has fallen 16 times and risen just four, for an average decline of 2.1 percent. The last 20 Junes have produced an average loss of 0.4 percent.

There is no ironclad rule, of course, that stock prices must follow a given pattern at any specific time of year. If there were, traders would immediately bend it out of shape by acting to try to take advantage of it.

There was quite a bit to be somber about in the past week, as the Dow Jones industrial average posted a net loss of 27.94 to 1,247.24.

The New York Stock Exchange composite index was down 1.34 at 104.18, and the American Stock Exchange market value index dropped 4.21 to 225.60.

Financial Focus

Two options for income investing are stocks and bonds. There are several differences between these two services. First, let's look at an example of a bond investment.

If you buy a $1,000, 12 percent bond maturing on Sept. 1, 1999, you'll receive $120 each year for the life of the bond. On Sept. 1, 1999, you'll receive the original investment of $1,000.

Generally, bonds pay interest semi-annually, so in this case, you'd receive $60 twice a year for the life of the bond. If inflation continues, the interest will be worth less in the sense that it will buy fewer goods. Also, when the $1,000 is repaid to you in 1999, it will have considerably less buying power. For example, if inflation continued at a rate of 7 percent to 8 percent a year, in 20 years $1,000 will buy approximately $250 in goods, and $120 will be worth about $30. However, you're guaranteed the $120 yearly interest and the repayment of your initial $1,000 investment in 1999.

Stocks differ in the sense that they earn more, but there are no guarantees concerning the interest earned or the principal returned. If you own stock in a company whose earnings increase, you benefit also. This isn't so with a bond. Many blue-chip stocks have a history of annually increasing dividends which generally keep up with inflation. On the other hand, if the company's earnings decrease, the stockholders may receive smaller dividends or no dividends at all.

With a little study and some sound advice from an investment professional, you'll be able to determine whether or not investing in a certain company's stock is worth the risk. For companies with consistent histories of increasing profits, stock investments can be very rewarding.

AGRICULTURE

In Tokyo and Hong Kong, you can get Ripple with your Big Mac

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — In Japan, California wine is making an impression on traditional sake drinkers, and fast-food establishments are opening so rapidly in Hong Kong that there has been a slight decline in Chinese restaurants.

The Far East has long been eyed as a lucrative market for American farmers and food processors. And the Agriculture Department says the changing tastes in Japan and Hong Kong provide further encouragement.

William L. Davis, the U.S. agricultural counselor in Tokyo, says the Japanese "do not yet rank among the world's great wine consumers" but in the last decade have shown a sixfold increase in the per capita consumption of unsweetened fruit wine.

"That demand is expected to continue, bringing with it greater sales opportunities for U.S. exporters," Davis said Wednesday in the May issue of Foreign Agriculture, a magazine published by the department's Foreign Agricultural Service.

Japan's wine imports grew from about 11.9 million liters in 1979 to almost 19.8 million liters in 1984. Imports of U.S. wine during that period grew from 400,000 liters to 1.35 million liters. France is the leading provider, with more than 8.3 million liters in 1984. West Germany was second with nearly 6.7 million liters, and the United States was third.

A liter is slightly larger than a quart. One gallon is equal to about 3.78 liters.

Davis said that while France and Germany have established reputations among Japan's wine drinkers, U.S. wines — particularly those from California — have considerable appeal.

Importers, he said, cite U.S. labeling in English, which "is easier for Japanese consumers to understand" than French or German.

Also, importers say the quality of U.S. wine can be maintained more easily since it does not pass through the tropics, as do European, Australian and South African wines.

In another of the magazine's articles, U.S. agricultural officer Michael Humphrey reports from Hong Kong that American-style foods and eating places have produced "a tremendous change" in consumer eating habits and life styles in the British crown colony.

The fast-food shops have prospered since the first venture — the Cafe de Carol — opened in 1972, Humphrey said. Now there are 26 McDonald's, four Pizza Huts, two Chuckie Cheeses, four Spaghetti Houses, as well as a Wendy's and a Denny's.

And there are local shops that offer Chinese versions of fast food.

"While it has been traditional to treat children in Cantonese teahouses, today's children opt for hot dogs, hamburgers and pizzas," he said. "The bulk of frozen meats and poultry is consumed through restaurants and fast-food outlets."

Another important development has been the expansion of hotel grills and buffets, largely because of a growing tourist trade, Davis said. This also accounts for a rising consumption of the more expensive food items such as beef, salmon, gourmet fruit and wines.

"The expanding business of the hotel grill room is the greatest potential customer for U.S. beef and seafood, which are disadvantaged by the strong U.S. dollar and transportation costs compared to supplies from Australia and Europe," he said.

In 1980, according to Humphrey's report, there were 2,087 Chinese restaurants in Hong Kong — which has a population of around 5.4 million. By 1984, they had declined to 2,000.

WHEAT LEAF RUST

As a general observation, wheat leaf rust has been at a low level of infection up to last week.

However, don't let this lull you into a false sense of security. Wheat fields that didn't get hailed out last week need to be inspected for leaf rust.

The rain and humidity that has occurred served to give the right environmental conditions for rust to infect additional wheat leaves. It may be 10 to 14 days after the rains began before this infection will become real noticeable.

Wheat plants need two to three good leaves to properly fill the grain.

On April 24, we found one field of wheat that was severely infected with enough rust that Dr. Bob Berry, Extension plant pathologist, predicts that the yield will be greatly reduced.

Given the fact that wheat has had moisture on the leaves for many hours last week, and the temperatures were in the 60 to 80 degree range, Dr. Berry believes that a lot of rust infection occurred to good looking wheat leaves.

Our advice is that on irrigated wheat where the yield potential is about 60 bushels or better, you probably should spray your wheat with a fungicide. A good dryland prospect in the 40 bushel range certainly might pay for a fungicide application. The cost of treatment may be in the $17 to $19 range per acre, therefore, you certainly need the yield potential for the spray investment to be profitable. If you have questions, give me a call, 669-7429.

SEMINARS FOR WOMEN LANDOWNERS

Special seminars on Farm and Ranch Business Management for Women Landowners will be held in three different Texas cities in the coming weeks.

Dates and locations of the seminars are May 7-9, Holiday Inn (1911 I-40 East), Amarillo; May 14-16, Holiday Inn South (4440 West Airport Freeway), Dallas-Fort Worth; and May 28-30, Holiday Inn (NE Loop 410), San Antonio.

The seminars are designed to help women explore income-generating and tax-saving opportunities for their farms and ranches, says Dr. Wayne Hayenga, economist and attorney with the Texas Agriculture Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Discussion will center on income taxes, leases, business organization and estate planning. A special section will deal with oil and gas leases.

Farm leases and operating agreements take many forms, notes Hayenga, and many of these will be discussed at the seminar, including benefits and restrictions to both landowners and tenants.

Regarding income tax planning, tax-saving opportunities will be explored for business growth, land sales, retirement income and helping out children and grandchildren.

A session on estate planning will deal with wills, trusts, estate tax deferrals, gifts and property titles, Hayenga points out.

Estate planning tools which will be discussed include use of corporations and partnerships, special farm and land valuation, deferred estate tax payments, life insurance and discounted estate taxes (flower bond).

Attendance will be limited and an $80 registration fee is required to cover all materials and lunches.

For registration, contact Hayenga in the Department of Agricultural Economics, Texas A&M University, College Station, TX 77843, or call (409) 845-2226. For the seminar in Amarillo, you may call the Potter County Extension office, 373-0713.

DYING TO LOSE WEIGHT
Why do overweight adults who are otherwise healthy suddenly die while using very low-calorie diets? A new study confirmed the long-held suspicion that heart problems are to blame. Researchers studied the deaths of 17 people who had been consuming commercially distributed liquid protein diet products offering 300 to 500 calories daily. They found that the deaths were triggered by irregular heartbeats and that the dieter's hearts had actually shrunk in size. New warning labels are now being required. The FDA ordered very low-calorie protein diet products (those below 400 calories daily) to carry labels warning that their use as a total diet, without medical supervision, "may cause serious illness or death."

If you are really trying to lose weight, it is always suggested that a physician be consulted. If he should prescribe a medication or recommend an over the counter product chances are excellent we have it in stock. Spring storms damage crops, again

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — For the second week in a row, spring thunderstorms went rampaging over Texas, bringing heavy rains, high winds and hail to scattered locations and damaging some crops.

The maturing wheat crop took the brunt of the damage from the spring storms, particularly in the Rolling Plains and in parts of Central Texas, said Dr. Zerle L. Carpenter, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. Some young onions in the Munday area of the Rolling Plains also were lost to the violent weather, and young corn, sorghum and cotton were damaged in a few locations.

Although the spring storms brought beneficial moisture to some locations, a general rain is still needed over much of the state, particularly in the Panhandle and South Plains and in western and southern locations, Carpenter said.

Planting operations are continuing to run behind schedule over much of the state due to the adverse weather conditions, Carpenter added. A little cotton and sorghum remains to be planted in the Coastal Bend and Upper Coast areas while cotton planting continues in parts of Central and South Central Texas. Cotton planting is getting under way in the South Plains and Far West Texas while a little corn is still being planted in the Panhandle and South Plains.

Wheat prospects are continuing to look good over the state despite the weather losses and a continuing problem with leaf rust disease, said Carpenter. The disease is expected to reduce yields as much as 50 percent in some locations. Where leaf rust is heavy, a lot of wheat is being cut and baled for hay.

An excellent onion harvest continues in the Rio Grande Valley, but wet fields have slowed onion harvesting in the Winter Garden of Southwest Texas. Cabbage and cucumbers also are being harvested in the Valley, where spring vegetables are making good progress.

Grazing conditions continue to improve over the state except in areas needing rain. Cattlemen in some far western counties are continuing to feed their stock due to short forage conditions, Carpenter said.

Reports from district Extension directors showed these conditions.

PANHANDLE: Scattered rains gave a boost to the wheat crop, but a general rain is still needed. A little corn remains to be planted along with a few onions, potatoes and sugar beets. Cattle are in good condition, with grazing improving where rains fell.

SOUTH PLAINS: Dry conditions are hampering cotton planting and the wheat crop. Some cotton planting has started in irrigated areas. A little corn remains to be planted; early planted fields are making good progress. Pastures and ranges need rain.

ROLLING PLAINS: Heavy rains, high winds and some hail damaged wheat and young onions, particularly in the Munday area of Knox County. Farmers are continuing to plant sorghum grain and hay crops where field conditions permit and to get land ready for cotton planting. Harvesting of wheat and alfalfa hay continues as the weather permits. Leaf rust remains heavy in some wheat.

NORTH CENTRAL: Young corn and sorghum are making good growth. Farmers are gearing up to plant cotton and peanuts. Powdery mildew and leaf rust continue to plague the wheat crop. Peach and pecan prospects look good. Livestock conditions continue to improve as good moisture conditions are boosting grazing.

NORTHEAST: Field work is being hampered by wet conditions. Most corn and sorghum crops have been planted but about half the cotton crop remains to be planted. Wheat continues to make good progress along with hay crops, vegetables, peaches and pecans. Hay crops are about ready for first cuttings.

FAR WEST: The region needs a general rain to boost crop conditions, pastures and ranges. Cotton planting is getting under way. Some ranchers are continuing to provide supplemental feed for livestock due to short forage conditions.

WEST CENTRAL: Scattered rains fell over parts of the area but more moisture is needed. Farmers continue to plant sorghum and to get ready for cotton planting. Leaf rust remains heavy in wheat; a lot of wheat is being cut and baled for hay. Peach and pecan prospects continue to look good although stormy weather has caused some damage. Livestock are in good shape, with sheep shearing continuing.

CENTRAL: Scattered hail, high winds and heavy rain damaged some wheat. Leaf rust remains a problem in wheat over the area. Sorghum and hay crops are making good growth, and farmers are still planting a little cotton. Horn flies are increasing in beef and dairy herds.

EAST: Heavy rains fell in some locations but a few counties remained dry. A little corn, cotton and sorghum remains to be planted. Wheat is headed and generally looks good. Livestock are in good condition but grazing is only fair in locations still needing rain.

UPPER COAST: Rains again halted planting operations in some counties, pushing the crop season further behind schedule. Livestock and forage conditions look good over the region. Spring vegetable gardens are making good progress, and pecan trees have set a good crop.

SOUTH CENTRAL: Scattered rains will help crops and forages although moisture is still short in some locations. Wheat is turning color; yields will be down sharply in fields infected with leaf rust disease. Peach and pecan crop prospects appear good at this time.

SOUTHWEST: High winds and heavy rains caused heavy soil erosion in some locations and damaged young crops. The adverse weather slowed hay baling and vegetable harvesting. Wheat is maturing and yield prospects remain excellent. The rains should boost range conditions although more moisture is needed. Sheep and goat shearing continues.

COASTAL BEND: Rains again halted the completion of planting operations; a little corn, sorghum and cotton remains to be planted. Planting of rice and soybeans is about 30 percent complete. Wheat is turning color. Hay crops are making excellent growth, with first cuttings under way as weather conditions permit.

SOUTH: Crops are continuing to make good progress, with insects light to medium in cotton. Onion harvesting remains in full swing, and cabbage and cucumbers continue to move to market. Some first hay cuttings have been completed. Rain is needed to boost some pastures and ranges.

Farmers seeking operating loans

WASHINGTON (AP) — A senior Agriculture Department official says farmers are still flocking to the Farmers Home Administration for operating loans, pushing the program to a record level with five months still to go in the fiscal year.

Undersecretary Frank W. Naylor Jr. said Wednesday that $2.6 billion in FmHA farm operating loans has been approved.

Actress may be reincarnated again

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Lisa Hartman, who followed her mother and father into show business, has been reincarnated once on "Knots Landing" and could be again.

Miss Hartman made her debut at age 4 in her father's night club act in Texas. As a teen-ager, she was in such musicals as "Cinderella," "South Pacific" and "Peter Pan" at Houston's Alley Theater.

Now she is one of the stars of CBS' "Knots Landing." In fact, it's her second role on the prime time soap opera.

"It's strange to come back as another character," she says. "The first time, in 1982, I signed for 17 shows. I knew I was going to be murdered. I was going to do 'Knots' and then go on the road to promote my latest album. I was working in the movie 'Where the Boys Are' when I got the call to come back."

In her first appearance on the series she was a young rock singer named Ciji Dunne. Her murder was a shocking climax to the season. She made such an impression on the producers that they brought her back in November 1983 as a Ciji lookalike, Cathy Geary, a waitress and singer.

"Ciji was a great character to play," says the lithe, blonde Miss Hartman. "Cathy's a little more street-wise. I always refer to Ciji as Bambi. She was wide-eyed and innocent. Cathy's more capable of taking care of herself. She's a little more fun to play because she has more edge to her."

This season Cathy was married to Joshua Rush, played by Alec Baldwin.

"When Cathy met Joshua he was a virgin," Lisa says. "She fell in love with this guy and she was the first woman he was with. Then, all of a sudden, he changed. He's gone crazy. But they got married."

"What makes it possible for me to play scenes with him, because he's such a creep, is that I keep saying the nice guy is still in there and will come out. We move in with his mother and sister, but I want a place of our own."

She gives him an ultimatum of sorts. "I don't know what's going to happen, but I'm signed for another year," she laughs. "Maybe they'll murder me again."

If so, the producers will probably have to bring her back in yet another incarnation.

Lisa's father is Howard Hartman, a bass baritone who continues to be a popular singer and actor in Houston.

Her mother, Jonni Hartman, had her own production company in Houston, where she worked with Steve Edwards, now a Los Angeles television personality, and Jessica Savitch, the NBC newswoman who died in an automobile accident.

Lisa's parents were divorced when she was 7 and her mother moved to Los Angeles and is a partner in a show business publicity firm. Her sister, Terri, is also a publicist and is married to director Al Footnick.

Lisa has never married. She has starred in a number of TV and theatrical movies, made numerous guest appearances on TV and was in the miniseries remake of "Valley of the Dolls." She also starred in the short-lived ABC sitcom "Tabitha."

"I've been lucky," she says.

Houston Natural Gas, InterNorth merge

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Natural Gas Corp. and InterNorth Inc. announced the two companies have merged, forming what could be the first border-to-border, coast-to-coast pipeline system in the United States.
 The new system would be the nation's second-largest gas pipeline operation, next to Houston-based Tenneco Inc.
 The two companies said last week a subsidiary of Omaha, Neb.-based InterNorth would begin a cash tender offer of $70 per share for all outstanding common shares of Houston Natural Gas, to be followed by a merger at the same price.
 The total price for the merger was estimated at about $2.3 billion.
 The merger also gives InterNorth an option to buy 5.9 million shares of Houston Natural Gas at $70 a share and an option to buy two-thirds of the stock of certain Houston Natural Gas' Texas intrastate pipeline subsidiaries, including Houston Pipe Line Co., for $867 million.
 The merger, approved by directors of both companies, was announced Thursday by Sam F. Segnar, 57, chairman and chief executive officer of InterNorth, and Kenneth L. Lay, 42, chairman and chief executive officer of Houston Natural Gas Co.

 The combined company will operate under the name HNG InterNorth upon completion of the merger. Segnar will serve as chairman and chief executive officer, and Lay will be president and chief operating officer.
 Lay will succeed Segnar as chairman on Jan. 1, 1987, when Segnar will become senior chairman. InterNorth's board of directors will also expand from 12 to 20 members after the merger.
 "We believe that in the economic environment we envision for our industry's future, the strengths to be derived by combining these two companies will produce a company uniquely positioned to serve the shareholders, employees, customers and communities of which we are a part," Segnar said.
 Jay Olson, an analyst with Drexel Burnham Lambert in Houston, said InterNorth's primary motive in acquiring HNG was a defensive move to prevent a hostile takeover attempt.

 Houston Natural Gas has had its headquarters in Houston since the company was founded almost 60 years ago. At the end of 1984, the company employed 3,100. The company's pipeline system runs from Florida to California.
 Lay doubled the size of the company's pipeline system six months after joining Houston gas company.
 InterNorth has 11,000 employees, with 3,100 in Texas. The company has a pipeline system extending from the Texas Panhandle to the Canadian border.
 The two companies have few duplicating facilities, but there are overlapping facilities in Texas.
 InterNorth reported Thursday that the company earned $113.8 million and had operating revenue of $2.9 billion in the first quarter.

Spend A Buck nears the finish line at Saturday's Kentucky Derby. (AP Laserphoto)

Kentucky Derby crown goes to Spend A Buck

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Angel Cordero, described as a jockey who is a master at knowing how fast he's going, went like a jet Saturday in the Kentucky Derby.

It was no contest. Spend A Buck and Cordero reached the end of the 1 1/4 miles in 2:00 1-5, the third-fastest time in the 111-year history of the Derby, and set record fractions in doing so.

"I wanted to be five or six lengths off the lead and that's where I was," said Don MacBeth, who rode 6-5 favorite Chief's Crown, the 1984 2-year-old champion who was unbeaten in three previous starts this year.

The closest Chief's Crown could get to Spend A Buck was 1 1/4 lengths after the first quarter-mile. At the half-mile point, he was second, six lengths back, and he never got any closer than five.

Stephan's Odyssey, who took second from Chief's Crown, was 5 1/4 lengths behind the winner. "The winner ran an awesome race," said MacBeth.

Spend A Buck flashed through the first quarter mile in 23 4-5, then reached the half in 45 4-5. He then broke the Derby record for three-quarters with a time of 1:09 4-5 and set a Derby record for the mile in 1:34 4-5.

The only two Derby winners to complete the Derby in faster times were Secretariat, who won in 1:59 2-5 in 1973 and Northern Dancer, who was clocked at 2:00 in 1964.

Eternal Prince, another speedster, was expected to vie for the lead with Spend A Buck, but he never did. So Cordero and Spend A Buck just blazed their own blistering pace.

"He's a great horse," Cordero said of Spend A Buck, who paid $10.20, $5.40 and $3.40 in winning his third race in four starts this year and his eighth race in 12 career starts. "A good horse makes everybody look good. ... He made an easy lead all the way. He could have run two miles this way."

Cordero, who at 42 became the oldest jockey to win the Derby and who became only the sixth rider to win at least three Derbies, then showed some speed of his own. He left immediately after the race to fly to New Jersey, where he was to ride in the feature race at Garden State Park Saturday night.

Chief's Crown finished a half-length behind Stephan's Odyssey, who paid $10.20 and $5. Chief's Crown was $2.80 to show after finishing a neck in front of Fast Account.

"I can't believe this," said Cam Gambolati, Spend A Buck's 35-year-old trainer, who was in his first Derby. "It's a miracle come true. I don't know what I'm doing. It's the whole underdog story."

The Spend A Buck saga is a movie script story. Dennis Diaz paid $12,500 for the son of Buckaroo to a man who was having a cash-flow problem. The horse had arthroscopic surgery in November.

Diaz retired from the insurance, real estate and construction businesses at age 38 and got into horse racing "because I wanted something to do."

He and Gambolati both had said before the Derby that Spend A Buck had earned a trip here with his 10 1/4-length win in the Cherry Hill Mile and his 9 1/4-length victory in a sensational 1:45 4-5 for 1 1/4 miles in the Garden State Stakes.

But Diaz said after the Derby, "we never thought he would do this. ... It was very encouraging to me that he could be a potential Triple Crown winner."

The second race of the Triple Crown is the 1 3/16-mile Preakness May 18 at Pimlico.

But Spend A Buck could earn another $1 million bonus from Garden State Park by skipping the Preakness and running in the Jersey Derby on May 27. Spend A Buck picked up a $1 million bonus from Garden State Saturday.

Spend A Buck earned $406,800 from a purse of $581,800 and, with the bonus, now has earned $2,398,509.

Lady Harvesters win region track crown

BROWNWOOD — The Pampa High girls' track team just seems to pick up where they leave off. After winning the District 1-4A championship two weeks ago and seven meets before that, the Lady Harvesters kept their unbeaten streak intact by winning the Region 1-4A Girls' title Saturday.

The Lady Harvesters scored 83 points and qualified two relay teams and three individuals for the state meet next weekend in Austin. Stephenville finished second behind Pampa with 72 points. Sweetwater was third, Austin Westlake fourth, Georgetown fifth and Canyon sixth.

"We came back after a disappointing preliminary Friday and put it all together," said Pampa coach Gary Cornelsen. "We dropped a baton in one of the relays, but we got lucky. We didn't go out of the lane, but the team next to us got bumped and were disqualified."

The top two teams and top two individuals in each event advance to state.

Kristi Hughes, a four-time regional qualifier, will be making her first trip to the state meet. Miss Hughes won the long jump with a school record-breaking jump of 18-2. She also placed fourth in the high jump and had qualified for the regional finals in the 100 hurdles by placing third in the preliminaries.

Freshman flash Tanya Lidy continued her domination of the 200-meter dash with a first-place time of 24.4, also a school record. Miss Lidy is also the anchor on the two relay teams which qualified for the Class 4A state meet. Miss Lidy has won the 200 seven times and the 400 twice this season.

Miss Lidy ran a 25.14, the second-best time in the Friday preliminaries.

Andrea Hopkins, a sophomore, will also be headed for the state meet after a first-place throw in the discus. Her 126-11 toss was her best of the season. Miss Hopkins also placed fourth in the shot put with a 38-0 throw, also her best of the season.

Pampa's 1600-meter relay team of Sandee Greenway,

Beverly Paine, Linda Ammons and Tanya Lidy placed second with a school record-breaking 3:57.7. They had the best time in the preliminaries at 3:57.87. The 880-relay team also placed second with another school record performance of 1:42.7. Team members include Beverly Paine, Courtney Brown, Katrina Jackson, Jackie Oglesby and Tanya Lidy. It was quite a turnaround for the 880 relayers, who had placed far down in eighth place in the prelims.

The 440-relay team of Linda Ammons, Sandee Greenway, Beverly Paine and Courtney Brown didn't qualify for state, but they finished fourth and set a new school record of 49.1. Miss Ammons had qualified for the regional finals in the 100 with a sixth-place finish.

Sandra Farrah, another talented freshman, just missed going to state in the discus. She finished third with a throw of 118-4. Farrah had won both the discus and shot at the district meet.

REGIONAL QUALIFIER — Sophomore Andrea Hopkins (above) qualified for the Class 4A state meet Saturday by winning the discus in the regional meet at Brownwood. It was her best throw (126-11) of the season. Also qualifying for the state meet from Pampa were Kristi Hughes, long jump, Tanya Lidy, 200, and the 1600 and 880-relay teams. The Lady Harvesters compiled 83 points as a team to win the championship. (Staff Photo)

Jazz stay alive

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Utah forward Adrian Dantley scored 32 points and reserve forward Jeff Wilkins scored 18 second-half points as the Jazz beat the Denver Nuggets 131-123 Saturday in a National Basketball Association Western Conference semifinal playoff game.

Wilkins, who came off the bench, helped Utah battle a Denver rally in the fourth quarter when he scored two free throws and two field goals.

Guard Rickey Green put the game out of reach when he drilled a long jumper with 30 seconds left, giving Utah a 127-123 advantage.

He scored two free throws eight seconds later and Darrell Griffith slammed home a dunk with 10 ticks of the clock to ice the contest.

Green and Griffith each finished with 24 points. Griffith, who suffered a serious scoring slump in the first two games, connected on three of four three-point shots.

Calvin Natt paced the Nuggets with 30 points, while Alex English had 26. Mike Evans had 19 points, including three three-pointers.

The win trimmed Denver's best-of-seven playoff advantage to 2-1. Utah will try to tie the series Sunday night at the Salt Palace.

Utah built a 10-point lead in the first quarter as Green and Dantley began hitting from the outside. During one three-minute stretch, Utah outscored the Nuggets 11-4. Green gave the Jazz their first lead of the game when he sank a pair of foul shots at 7:47 in the first period.

Wade Howard....Harvesters' winning pitcher

Pampa closes with victory

Brent John hit a three-run homer in the sixth inning to give the Pampa Harvesters a 5-4 win over Lubbock Dunbar Saturday in the final baseball game of the season.

John's home run came with two outs in the sixth and the Harvesters trailing, 4-2, at Harvester Field. The senior first sacker had struck out his two previous trips to the plate.

Pampa closes the 1985 season with a 7-13 overall record and 3-9 in District 1-4A action. Dunbar finishes at 11-11 and 7-5.

Senior righthander Wade Howard went all the way on the mound for the victory. He allowed eight hits while striking out five and walking three.

Pampa took a 1-0 lead in the first inning when Mike Lopez drew a walk and Juan Soto singled him home.

Howard shut out the Panthers on three hits until the fourth when he started having control problems. Howard walked the first two batters and the Panthers went on to score three runs on an RBI single by Terry Norris and a pair of throwing errors.

Dunbar added another run in the top of the sixth on a double by Jim Roothie.

Soto led Pampa's 7-hit attack with three singles in as many trips. Jimmy Bridges had two singles, Trace Robbins, a double, and John, a single.

Norris had two hits for the Panthers.

The victory snapped a five-game losing streak for the Harvesters, who lost a 10-0 decision to Dunbar in their first meeting.

Lubbock Estacado, which has lost only one district game and owns an 18-6 record overall, has already clinched the league title. Canyon played Levelland Saturday and a victory would wrap up the second-place runnerup spot for the Eagles.

Cubs trounce Padres

CHICAGO (AP) — Home runs by Ron Cey, Ryne Sandberg and Shawn Dunston featured successive four-run innings Saturday, leading the Chicago Cubs to a 12-8 triumph over the San Diego Padres.

Graig Nettles homered twice and drove in three runs for the Padres, while Steve Garvey and Garry Templeton added solo homers behind a 24-mph wind.

The Padres pulled within 9-8 after scoring single runs in the fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth innings, but the Cubs scored three unearned runs in their half of the eighth after a two-out error by Templeton at shortstop.

Templeton misplayed a grounder by Davey Lopes, who then stole second. After Leon Durham walked, Keith Moreland drove in a run. Tim Stoddard walked Jody Davis, Cey and Dunston to score two more runs.

Garvey hit his fourth homer in the first and Templeton his second in the second. Nettles made it 4-0 with a two-run shot in the third, and he hit his fourth of the season in the fifth.

The Cubs tied it with four in the bottom of the third and went ahead to stay with four more in the fourth.

Cey hit his third homer to open the third. Dunston doubled, went to third on a pinch single by Gary Woods and scored on Bob Dernier's sacrifice fly before Sandberg hit his third homer.

Dunston hit his first homer in the fourth, and three walks loaded the bases for the Cubs before Leon Durham singled in two and Moreland hit an RBI single.

Chicago added a run in the fifth on a walk to Dunston and a triple by Dernier.

Virginia Slims

Navratilova advances to finals

HOUSTON (AP) — Top-seeded Martina Navratilova dominated her third straight opponent and easily advanced to the finals of the $150,000 Virginia Slims of Houston tennis tournament Saturday with a 6-3, 6-0 victory over former countrywoman Helena Sukova.

Navratilova, Fort Worth, Texas, who has lost only eight games to three opponents this week, will face unseeded Elise Burgin in Sunday's finals.

Burgin blew two match points in the eighth game of the second set but rallied in a tiring tie-breaker to upset second seeded Manuela Maleeva 6-4, 7-6. Burgin upset fourth seeded Zina Garrison in Friday's quarter-finals.

It almost looked like Navratilova was coasting. "I wasn't coasting," she corrected. "When someone has beaten me before, I don't coast. I try to beat them."

Navratilova lost to Sukova in the semifinals of the Australian Open last year that ended Navratilova's record string of 74 consecutive victories.

But Sukova never was in Saturday's match. She was broken in the second game of the opening set and then fell apart in the second set.

"I think she started going for shots in the second set to try to get back in it," Navratilova said.

Navratilova is one match away from her 105th tournament victory as a pro. She has a 35-2 match record this year and has a 59-6 record in sets in 1985.

Burgin, ranked 52nd in the world, stunned Maleeva with an aggressive attack in the first set, breaking Maleeva in the second, fourth and 10th games to get the advantage.

Burgin kept the pressure on during the second set and jumped to a 5-2 lead.

But she allowed Maleeva to escape two match points in the eighth game and Maleeva eventually held with a backhand down the line winner.

Maleeva, rated No. 4 in the world, broke Burgin in the ninth game with a marathon baseline to baseline duel that ended when Burgin's return of Maleeva's drop shot hit wide of the line.

The two players battled to a 6-6 deadlock in the tie-breaker before Maleeva returned Burgin's serve wide to bring it to the third match point. Burgin then won the tie-breaker 8-6 with an overhead winner.

"That last overhead took three hours," Burgin said. "I thought it would never come down and when it did I thought it was hit the net or something. I may need a wheelchair. A third set would have been really tough."

The two players battled for 2 hours, 17 minutes in 88-degree, windless weather on the Sweetwater Country Club clay court.

"I should have been more aggressive," a tearful Maleeva said. "But it was difficult because she hit the ball with so much top spin, so the ball bounces differently."

Yankees trim Royals

NEW YORK (AP) — Kansas City shortstop Greg Pryor's wild throw allowed Don Mattingly to score from first, and Don Baylor followed with a two-run homer in the seventh Saturday to boost the New York Yankees 5-2 over the Royals.

Mattingly singled off Charlie Leibbrandt, 3-1, before Dave Winfield hit a sharp grounder that Pryor fielded and threw past second baseman Frank White.

Winfield reached third and Baylor hit his third home run.

Ron Guidry, 2-3, allowed just four hits, but two of them were solo homers. Darryl Motley hit his third homer in the second and George Brett hit his third in the sixth to make the score 2-2.

The Yankees also had runs in the first and fifth innings.

Trainer grooms dogs for life's trials

By DAVID MONEY
Denton Record-Chronicle
BOLIVAR, Texas (AP) — Abby sat motionless next to the man wearing a hunting cap and holding a whistle. "Back," the man shouted and Abby bolted, heading for her mark. It didn't matter that her mark, a white, oblong, hard-rubber bumper, was a few hundred feet away, floating in a small pond.

Abby is a retriever, and a good one. "She's pretty smart. She's a Labrador, almost two years old," said Bryan Voth, a professional retriever trainer.

Voth has been training Labrador, Golden and Chesapeake Bay retrievers, grooming them for field trials, local and national competitions among retrievers, trainers and owners, for the past four years. But he has been around hunting dogs all his life.

As a child growing up in Minneapolis, he often went hunting near the little burg of Godahl, Minn., north of his hometown. Because he hunted mostly ducks and geese, the dogs came in handy, he said.

"I've always had a hunting dog; they were always around. I've been hunting for the past 24 or 25 years," he said.

There is a big difference, however, in an every day hunting dog, or gun dog as some hunters call them, and one that is competitive in the field trials, Voth said.

"The field trials are very competitive. Their natural instincts come in. About 95 percent to 99 percent don't make it (in the competition)," he said.

There are four classes in the competition: the open class for dogs trained by professionals; the amateur where the owners run the dogs; the qualifying for dogs 2 to 3 years old; and the derby for younger dogs, Voth said.

Voth begins training the dogs for competitions at the tender age of 6 weeks. In the beginning it is basic stuff, he said. "They learn to heel, sit and 'here.' Here means sit in front of you."

In the first few weeks of training, Voth can tell if he has a winner or competitor or just a regular dog on his hands. "After about three or four weeks I can tell if a dog is trainable. Some dogs just don't have the ability or the desire."

In some cases it's not the dog's fault it is untrainable. Voth said there are times when he doesn't get the animal in time. "Sometimes the people just didn't start out early enough with the dog," he said.

The dog doesn't have to be the smartest one around to be a good competitor either. "The smartest dog possible is not necessarily good. Some are too smart and figure out what is going on and decide they don't want to do it."

But he has seen other retrievers on the opposite end of the brain scale. "You get some about as smart as a telephone pole."

"Ideally, you want a dog with middle-of-the-road intelligence, one with a desire to retrieve and please you."

He pointed at Abby, who was leaping and jumping at the bumper in his hand. "She'd rather retrieve than eat."

In the field trials, the dogs are vigorously tested on their ability to spot the mark and stay on line to the mark, then return it to their master. When the mark is blind — the dog doesn't see it go down — the animal has to respond to the master's directions. The dog is lined up with the mark, then with a series of whistles and verbal commands, the master directs the dog to the mark. If the dog veers off line, the master gives a short blast of the whistle and shouts "over" while moving in the direction the dog should go. A trill whistle means for the dog to come back.

But there are obstacles in the way of the dog and the mark; points (water hazards) or land splitting through the water between the master and the mark. The dog has to be able to follow commands to go over the points and stay in line with the mark, he said.

"The field trials provide an environment to test dogs where everything is equal, to find the best dog, male and female, to breed," he said.

Voth comes to Texas to train other people's dogs about twice a year. "This is a good area to come down here and train," he said, referring to 110 acres of land with specially designed lakes and runs for retriever training. The training field is owned by Denton County businessman John Ackerman and approved by the Texas Department of Wildlife for retriever training.

Ackerman put the training grounds together about six years ago because he didn't have anywhere to pursue his latest hobby of training retrievers.

"There weren't any grounds to train on, no place to have somebody teach you. I was using public facilities, parks, any field I could find. But had to watch out for glass and fishing hooks, and in open areas, bird shooters," he said. "I got mad and bought the land out here."

The facility is custom made for training retrievers, he said.

Top grads: the head of the class

SUSAN THOMPSON and TODD LAFFERTY

White Deer High School

Susan Thompson, Todd Lafferty

WHITE DEER — Less than half a grade point separates Valedictorian Susan Thompson from Salutatorian Todd Lafferty, but the differences in their goals and activities are much greater.

Susan, daughter of Guy and Sharon Thompson, has a grade point average of 96.7. She plans to go to Texas Tech University where she will major in special education. With the degree she plans on earning, she hopes to either teach special education or to go into research.

The son of Owen and Cinda Lafferty, Todd plans to go to Texas Christian University to major in pre-medicine. He hopes to be an orthopedic surgeon.

Both Thompson and Lafferty have been involved in the White Deer High School Student Council and are officers in the school chapter of the National Honor Society. Thompson is a twirler with the high school band and has qualified for the state twirling competition, to be held in June. Lafferty was on the football, basketball and track teams and has been active in University Interscholastic League activities.

Keeping at the top of a class of 40 is not easy, especially when taking advanced courses as Thompson and Lafferty have done. But Thompson said it can be done "if you pay attention in class and study."

According to Lafferty, grades were important to "a certain group" of his classmates.

"Most of the students are pretty competitive," he said. "But, I know that college is going to be a lot tougher than high school."

LANITA SCHULTZ and MICHELLE FRIEMEL

Groom High School

Michelle Friemel, LaNita Schultz

GROOM — Starting with the 1985-86 school year, classes at Groom High School will be weighted, with students taking advanced classes earning higher grades.

Valedictorian Michelle Friemel and salutatorian LaNita Schultz will miss this new policy, but it would not have affected them anyway. Through hard work and an interest in their studies, Friemel and Schultz managed to excel in even the more advanced subjects.

The daughter of Roman and Neysa Friemel, Michelle plans to attend Texas Tech University, where she will major in architecture. Her four years of math didn't keep her from a variety of activities ranging from cheerleading to basketball and track to University Interscholastic League literary and academic contests. She graduates with a 94.63 grade average.

LaNita, the daughter of Kenneth and Laverne Schultz, plans to attend Amarillo college, where she will study to be a court reporter. Active in track and tennis, she has a 93.37 grade average.

Attending a larger school than Groom could have made a difference to the students, who said there would have been more choice.

"But here, you know everyone," Friemel said, while Schultz added, "And you get a lot of help here."

"A lot of people I know could have had better grades if they worked at it," Schultz added.

"You have to be interested in what you're doing," Friemel said. "And you have to want to make good grades."

Pampa High School

Cami Dunham, Michelle Eakin

It's not easy to be top student when you have 213 classmates to contend with, but Cami Dunham and Michelle Eakin pulled it off when they were named Pampa High School valedictorian and salutatorian.

The daughter of Richard and Carol Dunham, Cami graduates with a grade average of 3.697 (out of a 4 point system). With her hopes set on a career as with the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, she will major in computer science at Texas A & M University and seek a doctorate.

"Everyone always makes fun about my career choice," Dunham said, adding that she wants to "work behind the scenes, not be an astronaut."

To prepare for college, Dunham took "as many accelerated math and computer courses" as she could. Among her academic honors was the 1985 Texas Chemical Council Science Award. Dunham said she has applied for several scholarships and is now waiting to hear from them.

She admitted that she wasn't really expecting to be named valedictorian.

"I work to keep up good grades, but I never thought if it as a matter of being easy or hard," she said, adding that when she was listed as a top student in her junior year last year, "this year I didn't think I could hold it."

Dunham came to Pampa from Lawton, Okla., her sophomore year. She said that things were different there because the school was larger.

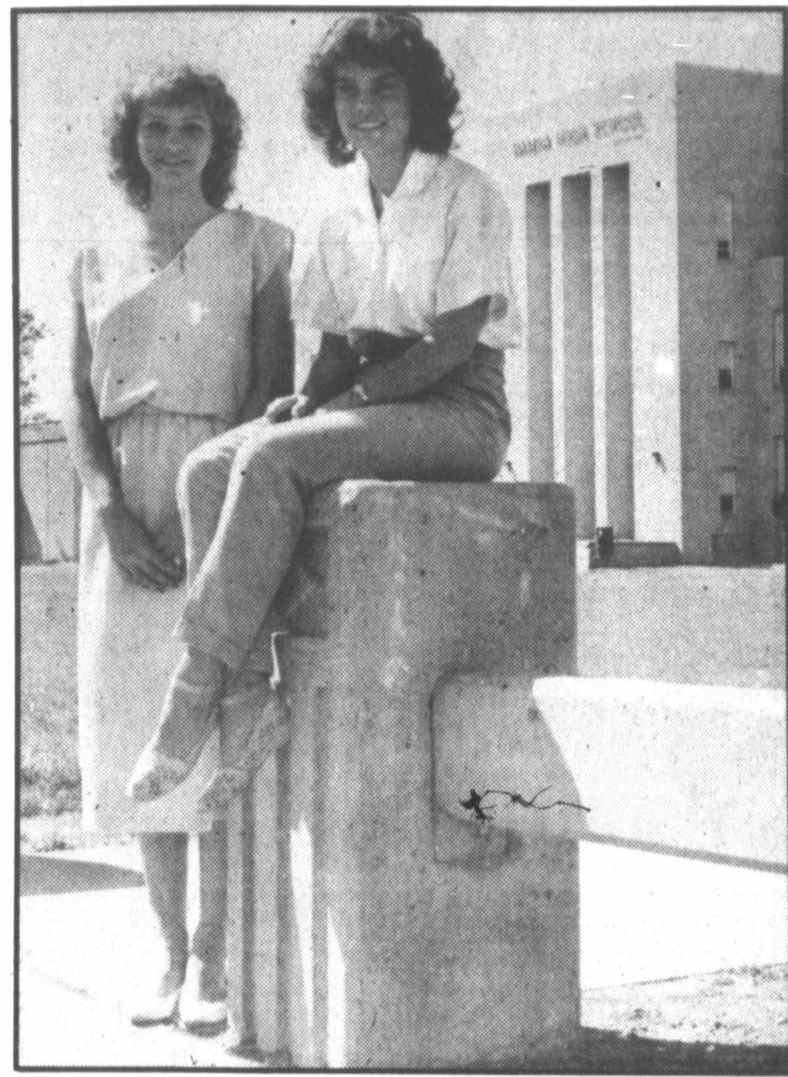

"But the courses I took were equal to the ones here, and they expected the same out of you."

During her high school years, Dunham was secretary of the junior class and the Key Club and was active in the PHS student council. After school, she works at a local clothing store.

The daughter of Jim and Rose Mary Eakin, Michelle is active in the Pampa High School music program, where she sings with the PHS choir and show choir. She has been named to the All District and All Regional Choirs. She was also active in volleyball.

Eakin said she may minor in music when she attends Texas Tech University. She will major in

Miami High School

Kassandra Bailey, Lora Gill

MIAMI — In the eighth grade, Kassandra Bailey had to settle for second fiddle while Lora Gill took valedictorian honors.

After four years of running neck to neck with her classmate, Bailey managed to barely pull in front of Gill to become valedictorian for the Miami 1985 senior class. Gill, trailing by a half a grade point, is salutatorian.

The two girls head what principal Phil Barefield called "an extremely competitive class." The top half of the class averaged a grade point average of above 90, he said, adding that the top grade for the bottom half of the class is 89.9.

But despite the slight difference in their grades — Bailey earned a 97.79 while Gill had a 97.37 — Bailey denies that there was any competition to see who got the top honor.

"Not dirty competition," Gill interjected.

"It was close all through high school," Bailey said. "I just tried to do my best."

The daughter of Wiley and Barbara Bailey, Kassandra was active in cheerleading and track in past years and remains involved in band, where she plays the clarinet. She is also active in the flag corps.

Dondi Rothwell, Kandi Ashford

LEFORS — Dondi Rothwell and Kandi Ashford both want to be lawyers, but they have two different routes toward their goal.

Rothwell, the Lefors High School valedictorian, plans to attend Texas Tech University, where she will major in history. She plans to attend law school there. To help fund her education, Rothwell applied for a grant. She is the daughter of Sonja Hardin.

At Lefors, Rothwell was involved in several activities including cheerleading, basketball, track, student council and the National Honor Society. To her, the small school has been an advantage.

"A larger school would have

MOBEETIE — The school may be small, but the goals are just as large for valedictorian Jennifer Estes and salutatorian Maryann Bunn Tolleson.

Jennifer, the daughter of Gordon and Wanda Estes, hopes to obtain a degree in nursing from West Texas State University. She was also the valedictorian of her 1981 eighth grade class.

"I pretty well maintained my grades through high school," she said. "Some of it was easy, some wasn't. I took trigonometry and chemistry."

John Glass, Von Holwick

MCLEAN — Out of a small graduating class, valedictorian John Glass and salutatorian Von Holwick know where they stand.

The son of Dale and Mary Lou Glass, John has been active in football, band and University Interscholastic league activities. He is listed on the Who's Who of American High School Students and the Society of Outstanding High School Students.

Glass, who plans to attend Texas Tech with a major in engineering, said he expects "an education" in college.

He and Holwick agree that a larger school such as Pampa could not have provided as good an education as McLean.

"We're a small school so you can go a lot further in the book and in class," Holwick said.

The son of Bob and Virginia Holwick, Von plans to attend Southwestern Oklahoma State University where he will major in natural science. He said he might be a biologist. Like Glass, Holwick has been involved in band, basketball and UIL activities.

She plans to continue to play in the band when she attends Baylor University this fall, where she will major in math or computer programming.

"I think I can get into something with computers," she said, admitting that she's "not real sure" about what career that will lead her in. "That's what I'm hoping to find out."

Lora, the daughter of Ronnie and Dee Gill, will attend St. Mary's College in San Antonio where she will major in art or science. Her career plans are uncertain.

"That's too far in the future," she said.

Bailey and Gill admit that they were not expected to do much in high school. But the apparent lack of opportunities and motivation should not be a drawback according to Gill.

"My sister, Beth, did very well in college," she said. "If you have enough drive, you can do it."

Florence Rife was elected recording secretary in place of Mrs. Wood who had submitted her resignation. Plans were made for the installation of new officers at the next meeting. Helen Hogan presented a program on collectibles, telling of articles that are collected and how they tell the personality of the collector. Members displayed their collectibles and gave accounts of the items' histories.

Next meeting is to be May 14 at 11:30 a.m. at Raney's Steak House, 1101 Alcock.

Summer skin perils

The skin needs care and protection at all times. It can be affected by many physical and emotional stresses.

Excess alcohol, for instance, causes tissue swelling from water retention. The moisture rate of the air affects the moisture retention of the skin, which responds constantly to the atmosphere.

Above all, sun easily damages the skin.

Protect your winter clothes

BY DONNA BRAUCHI
COUNTY EXTENSION AGENT

With Springtime also comes a sense of urgency about putting away that winter clothing until next Fall. When storing clothing, especially wool and silk, there are some guidelines which are important to follow.

Carpet beetles and moths can damage your clothing and cost you money. Moths primarily attack wool and silk, although they have been known to attack other fibers, especially when the garments have food or oil spots. Carpet beetles feed on animal-derived products such as wool, silk, suede and fur. These insects may also damage shoes and handbags.

You can protect your clothing against moths and carpet beetles using the same methods. First clean all garments made from wool, silk, suede, or other susceptible fibers. Clean items that do not need professional pressing, like wool gloves or scarves, by hand-washing, coin-operated dry-cleaning or a professional dry-cleaning. Take coats, suits and suede garments to a professional dry-cleaner where they will get the pressing or special cleaning treatment they need. Brush shoes and bags thoroughly to remove any dust and insects.

After removing the clothing for cleaning, vacuum closets, drawers, and other storage areas. Then spray them with a residual spray such as ant or roach spray.

Store your clean garments in cloth or heavy paper storage bags or storage boxes containing moth balls or moth crystals. Hang the moth balls or crystals in a small piece of cheesecloth or some other container near the top of the storage bag. Paradichlorobenzene is the best type of moth balls or crystals. Naphthalen type are not recommended. Crystals are better than balls because more surface area is exposed. Moth balls or crystals need to be changed according to manufacturer's directions. This will usually be every six months.

Seal the bags or boxes during the out-of-season storage time when you are using the clothes, you may want to leave them in the storage bags with the bags unzipped. Remember to replace the moth repellent as it evaporates.

Some general storage reminders and tips:

(1) Avoid using plastic dry cleaner or garment bags. These are made of chemicals that can damage garments by adding or bleeding of color.

(2) Store clothing in as clean an environment as possible. A place that is dust-free and dark. Also avoid extremes in temperature and humidity. Avoid basements and attics.

Clothing may be stored flat with as few folds as possible or hung on padding hangers. Avoid the use of pins and other metal objects which can eventually rust and permanently damage the fabric. Try to use bags that have an opening. A closed bag would destroy air circulation and facilitate the growth of mildew.

Garments made of silk should be subjected to as little stress as possible. It is best to keep them stored flat. They should come in contact with 100 percent silk or 100 percent lightweight fabrics as opposed to 100 percent cotton. Wools should, ideally, come into contact with wools or silks.

Dear Abby

Neighbor's telescope focuses on constellation by the pool

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1985 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I don't know if I'm old-fashioned or not, so please help me understand something. I live in an apartment complex that has a huge pool. Last year I had a few female friends come over and use the pool every once in a while. The problem is this: There is a window on the second story where some guy has a "high-powered" telescope that he uses to get very close-up shots of the ladies using the pool. Lady friends of mine were uncomfortable with this when they visited last year.

Question: Is there anything I can do legally to prevent this intrusion of privacy this year? (The telescope is set up and ready to go.) Am I and my friends old-fashioned or what?

To tell you the truth, you're the only one I had the guts to ask.

BUMMED IN PANORAMA CITY

DEAR BUMMED: If it were a private pool, the guy with a high-powered telescope would be invading your friends' privacy, but since the pool is public, "Where's the beef?"—if the ladies will excuse the expression.

DEAR ABBY: My wife of 44 years has Alzheimer's disease, and I have finally placed her in a nursing home where I know she is getting better care than I can give her now.

My problem is loneliness. I have many friends who say, "Come over—anytime; you're always welcome." Then they tell me how much they admire me for caring for my wife the way I did these last few years.

I don't need admiration—I need companionship. Why can't people be more specific, and say, "Come over next Sunday" or Wednesday or whatever?

Maybe it would help if you put in a plug for those who are widowed, or in a situation like mine. After all, some of your readers may find themselves alone someday. Sign me ...

LONELY

DEAR LONELY: Friends who say "Come anytime" usually mean it, but if you're lonely, don't wait for friends to call you—call and invite them for a pot-luck supper, an evening of cards, coffee and dessert. (It's easy to entertain at home with so many carry-out establishments.)

I'm not talking about casual acquaintances; I mean good friends.

DEAR ABBY: This is a letter from two friends with the same problem: Our boyfriends want too much too soon. The thing is, we really like them and don't want to lose them.

If we don't do what they want us to do, they will find someone else who will.

You will probably tell us to find someone who won't want too much, but that is impossible.

Do you have any suggestions? Please print this because I'm sure other girls have the same problem.

TOO MUCH TOO SOON

DEAR TOO MUCH: The worst mistake a girl can make is to give a guy too much because she's afraid if she doesn't, somebody else will. If he wants "too much," then let the foolish girl who gives it to him have the pleasure (and the pain) of winning this dubious prize.

PEACH LEAF CURL

We have had several calls about Peach Leaf Curl recently.

This is a fungal disease of peaches found in all areas. It affects leaves, flowers, tender shoots and fruits of the peach. Young, developing leaves are characterized by puckering, thickening and curling. Diseased leaves become pale yellow to light green and are shed after a short time.

On young twigs, the disease appears as small, seldom noticeable swellings. Fruit and blossoms are shed when infected and are seldom observed by the grower.

Disease development is related to air temperature at the time of leafout and available moisture. Optimum air temperature for development is about 68 degrees F. Temperatures above 86 degrees F and below 40 degrees F inhibit the fungus.

Surface moisture in rain, dew or mist is essential for infection.

After disease is visible on leaves, control is difficult. Prevent the disease with dormant sprays. Copper fungicide sprays are very satisfactory when applied just after leaves are shed. Kocide 101 is the material of choice. However, it should not be applied before leaf drop in the fall.

PINE, CEDAR TREE CARE

We have had a lot of problems on pine and cedar trees with a condition we call needle cast over the last several years. If you have had needle cast problems in the past, now is the time to spray your trees with a good fungicide. Needle cast shows up as a yellow spot on individual needles which eventually turn brown and girdle the needle which dies from that point to the tips.

Needle cast is best prevented from spreading to new growth by a carefully timed spray program using a copper-based fungicide such as Kocide 101 or Benomyl or an organic fungicide such as Maneb or Zineb.

The first three applications are made in the spring at ten day intervals, starting when the new candles (needles) have emerged. This protects the new needles through the summer. Two applications in September will be needed for winter protection.

This spray program may be needed for more than one year if you have had needle cast problems in the past.

Another important practice to remember for prevention of needle cast is to keep your trees well watered during periods of hot, dry weather. Water trees individually with slow, soaking waterings from a water hose running several hours.

HAIL DAMAGED LANDSCAPES

A lot of home landscapes (trees and shrubs) took a good beating from the hail storms. Severely bruised and broken twigs and small limbs should be pruned off as close as possible to a bigger limb or trunk. Do not leave small stubs protruding as they take a long time to heal, if ever.

Where the bark has been broken or bruised by a hail stone, this open area can serve as an open invitation for insects such as borers to invade. To aid the healing process, make sure your trees or lawn is well fertilized this spring. Keep your trees well watered during dry weather to promote vigorous growth.

A preventative spray program may also serve to reduce the likelihood of borer infestations. The trunk and limbs up to 1/2 inch diameter should be thoroughly sprayed. Use insecticide products containing lindane or chlorpyrifos (Dursban). Apply the first spray immediately and then again about every 5 to 6 weeks for a total of four applications with the last being applied in each around Sept. 1. Always read and follow label directions on the containers.

Cabbage Patch pageant planned

Cabbage Patch dolls, their look-alikes, and "parents" are being sought for the Cabbage Patch pageant set Saturday from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. in the Austin Elementary School gymnasium. Proceeds from the event will benefit the Tralee Crisis Center for Women, Inc.

Entrants will participate in a short "parenting skills class," to help them learn to become loving parents and to help counteract domestic violence in the future. Also planned is a drawing for Cabbage Patch clothes donated by Wal-Mart. All "parents" will receive a certificate and a Cabbage Patch prize. Refreshments will be provided by the Gray County Extension Homemakers Council and McDonald's.

Registration forms are available at Hi-land Fashions, Moses, Walmart, the Pampa Mall and McDonald's. Registration will also be accepted at the door. Children under seven years of age must be accompanied by an adult.

Hospital seeking teen volunteers

Area teenagers are invited to register for summer volunteer work Monday from 4 p.m. to 6 p.m. at Coronado Community Hospital, according to Nancy Paronto, director of volunteers.

"Any youngster who is at least 13 years old is welcome to join our volunteer program," she said. "The juniors perform a variety of tasks in the hospital, from giving information to delivering flowers to typing and filing."

Those wishing to join the program should go to the private dining room of the hospital to register.

Hospital to give service awards

More than 50 Coronado Community Hospital employees will be honored Monday evening at the annual service awards banquet in the Starlight Room of the Coronado Inn.

Service pins will be presented to all three year, five year, 10 year, 15 year, 20 year and 25 year employees.

Bunny Martin, a humorous speaker, who claims to be the Yo-Yo champion of the world, is the featured speaker for the evening. Martin is a regular speaker for the National Football League teams, major league baseball teams, and the Fellowship of Christian Athletes.

Twins association planned

Have you ever wondered what it would be like to look at another person and see an exact duplicate of yourself?

This opportunity is given to about 60,000 individuals in the United States each year with the birth of 30,000 sets of twins.

Because of their unique lives and their problems in common, an organization is being planned to provide help and special interest activities for those people who share a common birthday.

The Texas State Twins Association is in the planning. Preparations are being made to hold an organizational meeting in Pampa on May 13 at 7 p.m. at Pam-Cel Hall at Celanese Chemical Company. The Texas State Twins Association will be affiliate of the International Twins Association which will celebrate its 51st anniversary in Wichita, Kan., next September.

Arriving in Pampa for the developmental meeting will be presidents of the international association - Cody McNair of Caney, Kan. (a former Pampan) and her twin, Dodie Noland of Chanute, Kan.

All twins are invited to attend the meeting. Interested individuals may contact Christy Oxley, meeting coordinator, at 665-1116.

Leg veins

The vogue of opaque hosiery includes a side benefit. Such pantyhose helps conceal purplish spider web veins so visible when wearing short summer fashions.

For best concealment, wear opaques in suntan or deep colors. On non-hosiery days, use tan tint foundation on the legs.

If you want to tan them nature's way, be careful to avoid burning. With spider veins, you don't need to sensitize the leg skin any further.

Peeking at Pampa

Events of last week expanded to include fun and glitz, biggie events, trips, honors, and, of all things! - the weather!

Attention, all opera lovers! Linda (Mrs. David) Holt and Cinda (Mrs. Owen) Lafferty are promoting a guided opera tour with extra treats via bus headed for Santa Fe. Dates include July 29 through August 1.

Employees of Coronado Community Hospital receiving favorable mention in patients' questionnaires received a "WE CARE" button. Margaret Creed, R.N. had to add a two - inch ribbon to her nurse's pin to support her nine shiny buttons. Margaret has 25 years of continuous service in the nursing field. She has worked in every area of CCH except surgery. A super nice gal!

Congratulations to Gail and Gary Shultz, who brought a bit of the Metroplex area to Pampa in opening one of their Hyde Park Stores on North Cuyler. The store features ladies and gents ready - to - wear. Gail, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Culpepper, and Gary, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Pinky Shultz, are native Pampans who live in the Metroplex area. Noreen Marsh is store manager.

Congratulations to Sam White! His beautiful new building with instantaneous landscaping for Sam White Agency is ready for occupancy.

Congratulations to Nancy (Mrs. Brian) Duncan in moving Canterbury's, a mens clothing store, to larger quarters across the street.

When the 10 - minute rain and hail, hit last Thursday, Charles Birkes, a local postman, realized no immediate shelter was in sight. By the time he scurried past three or four houses, he was banged and bruised by hail stones on both legs, forearms plus an elbow and back. He was back on his route in no time at all - sore, but on the job!

People, some with pets, crammed in the basement of the U.S. Post - Office, Combs - Worley Building, Pampa Police Station, Hughes Building, Security Federal, John Maguire Motors, churches, neighbors' storm cellars around town. Roady Spoonmoore and his mother Susie went to the basement of the First Methodist Church minutes after Rody and his pet, a beautiful and exotic cockatiel bird named Spot arrived in town from Dallas. In no time at all children and adults forgot the threats of a tornado and gave full attention to the antics and beauty of the cockatiel. Thanks to his mother's patience, Spot has a vocabulary of eight months example, "I'm a sweet baby!"

Charles Buzzard bemoaned the loss of his brand spanking new TV satellite dish to the storm.

Short hours after the tornado scare about three dozen guests braved the aftermath to attend a bridal shower honoring Alisa Hogan. Alisa, daughter of Martha and Glen, and Dee Orr, son of Myrna and Darville, will be married May 10. Alisa's little cousin Nicole Schoenhals, there with her mother Vickie (Mrs. Wade) of Fritch was a scene - stealer with dark curls, a blue plaid dress over a blue pinafore and adorable in every way.

Anita, Duane Harp and sons Joe Bob and Matthew are a nice family group.

Tammie Pike, secretary to Charlotte (Mrs. Bob) Cooper, director of nurses at Coronado Community Hospital, was luncheon quest of honor during NS Week at a popular eating place on North Hobart. Others attending were Jimmie Ivy, Steve McMindes, Karen Gregory, and Irene Thomas. Another time Irene looked especially spiffy in a long white overblouse over a slim tailored white skirt. She's sporting a new short, curly hairdo, too. Charlotte and Bob entertained four girls from the Up with People group.

Janice and Floyd Sackett entertained five young men from the Up with People group.

Tomorrow night Coronado Community Hospital will host an awards banquet to honor employees with 3, 5, 10, 15, 20, and 25 year pins for length of service. Both Gene Reid, chief laboratory technician and Joy Bivins of the same department have more than 25 years of continuous service at CCH. Honored employees, employees of 10 years service, department heads, and administrative personnel will attend. Norman Knox, hospital administrator will preside.

Margaret Dikal; visited her daughter and family in Gathersburg, Maryland.

Norma and Frank Slagle attended a meeting of Recovery Room Nurses in Amarillo last weekend with the added bonus of visiting friends Norma worked with last fall while employed in Abilene.

Saw a number of people enjoying an all - you - can eat catfish dinner - Tracy Cary, Joe Fischer, O.C. Penn, Charles Fagans, to name a few.

Fun and glitz of the week was the annual Noon Lions Club bash Saturday night with Jack Gindorf as general chairman. Linda and Dr. Jay Johnson pooled their talents to make decorations on a carousel theme. They made no less and maybe more than 200 plaster of paris horses, shiny with beads, which in groups of three were covered with frilly lace canopies centered with flower arrangements in yellow, red and blue. Sandy and Mike Clark, and Donna and Bob Monthey were in charge of the scrumptious party food. Sandy's peach dress in tea - length looked like a sweet and soft confection. Donna, in Chinese blue, commanded a lot of compliments.

Ron Love, Garland Nichols and John Kendall formed the beverage committee. Shirley (Mrs. George) Bullard wore a cocktail length dress in black with tons of sequins. Frances (Mrs. G.M. Sr.) Walls and Sharon (Mrs. Mike) Ward were beautifully dressed for the occasion. Red is definitely Jeannie (Mrs. Mike) McCommas' color! Vickie (Mrs. G.M. Jr.) Walls wore a slinky red dress covered in yards of beads and sequins. Watch for more next week!

Mary Braswell recently returned home from Washington, D.C., where she was working with the undersecretaries of Navy and Defense in charge of audio - visual instruction to get clearance for instructional and study skills films. While there she visited with son Don at the U.S. Naval Academy.

The Rev. Albert Maggard, pastor at the First Pentecostal Holiness Church, received his associate of arts degree from Clarendon College in recent ceremonies. His wife, Mary, gave a dinner party in his honor with 18 family members and friends attending. Out of town guests included their son, Adrian, of Enid, Okla.; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Maggard and an aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Hollowell of Boise City, Okla.

An especially important guest was Vanessa Fisher, three - year - old granddaughter, daughter of Keith and Susan Fisher. Vanessa was dressed in orchid frills from head to toe. She asked Grandmother Mary if she could please sing "Jesus Loves Me" at grandfather's graduation! Congratulations to Becky and Lynn Willis on the birth of a baby girl, Ashley Nicole. Her big little brother is Aaron. Congratulations to Donna and Greg Turner on the birth of Kevin James. He has a brother named Kerry.

Belated birthday wishes to Todd Clement, son of Gwyn and Guy Clement. Todd is a law student at Texas Tech University in Lubbock.

Birthday wishes today to Wallace Bruce, Greg Greenhouse and Dr. R.M. Bellamy. Other birthday people are Nancy and Robert Broggin, Bill Lam, Jerry Davis, Delbert Johnson, Paula Hinkle and Wally Simmons. Anniversary congratulations to the Rev. Gene and Jean Allen, Mike and Sharon Ward.

The St. Mark Usher Boards will sponsor a "Hats & Hair Parade" at Lamar School this afternoon at 4 p.m. Adults $3., children $1. Sounds like loads of fun! See you next week! KATIE OLD MALIBU ROAD—A lone jogger runs along a deteriorating section of Old Malibu Road near Malibu, Calif.

The county of Los Angeles has spent over a million dollars so far trying to prevent the road from sliding into the sea.

Important road wants to slip into sea

EDITOR'S NOTE — It's 2.5 miles of bad road, running through one of the most expensive neighborhoods in Southern California. One resident describes its undulating surface as like overdone lasagna. But no one seems to know what to do about it, except to try to keep it patched up.

By JOHN BARBOUR
AP Newsfeatures Writer

MALIBU, Calif. (AP) — There's a road here that wants to be a river.

So far the county of Los Angeles has spent over $1 million — some say millions of dollars — trying to change the road's mind.

But stubbornly the road goes on, behaving like the unruly child of the mountains above it and the sea below.

One might say, let the road have its way. Hey, let it slip into the sea.

But this is a very important road, old Malibu Road is. And democratic too. Movie stars and show business entrepreneurs jog here. Nurses and school teachers loll on the sunny beaches beneath it. Music headliners and harried businessmen quit the rattle of their lives for the serenity and splendor of the sunsets, the womb-like solace of their hot tubs.

It gives one, they say, a sense of humility, having the strength of the mountains to your back and the soulful sea spread out before you.

But real humility comes from dealing daily with the road which is oblivious to such human values, and to the fact that its 2.5 miles carry the price tag of up to $12,000 a front foot, some $16 million, not counting the 200 or so houses that line its wobbling path. They range in price from $600,000 to over $1 million.

At various times in the last 20 years one could encounter rock musicians and movie stars guiding their Alfa Romeos and Mercedes over the eccentric slips and bobs of the road, only too aware that beneath them the road was dealing bare-fisted with the undercarriage, the tires and suspension systems. Go ahead, they could hear the road saying, give me your best shot, make my day.

It is of little solace to know that such as Burgess Meredith, Miles Davis, Shirley Maclaine, Loretta Swit, Dom DeLuise, Robert Redford, James Whitmore and Billie Jean King dwell here, and dealt with the road.

The road doesn't care — especially about 150 feet of it of particular importance to the county highway maintenance department.

Road crews from the county highway station in Malibu Canyon a few miles away are out here in bad weather up to three times a day, shoring up this one especially bad-tempered slice of the road. In good weather they only come out every few weeks.

This particular part of the road has been known to sink a foot a day, says highway supervisor Earl Voorheis, a man built like an earthmover.

The highway men have considered almost everything in dealing with this nasty stretch of macadam. They could build a sea wall, but the accumulating pressures would be strong enough to bend steel girders. They even considered letting this patch of road go its own way and building a bridge over it. But that would run into millions of dollars more and residents won't pay for it.

Footings would have to go down at least 60 feet, because the slip plane — the line between stability and instability — is 40 feet below the surface.

On a shelf in Marty Cooper's cozy living room, which like all living rooms here looks out on the broad Pacific, is a book called "Lost Highway." Cooper, an advertising executive and musician and president of the Malibu Road Association, assures you that it has nothing to do with the road outside.

IRS shredding report is going straight to Washington

AUSTIN (AP) — The No. 2 man in the Internal Revenue Service says results of an investigation into the destruction of up to 6,000 taxpayer files at the regional IRS center in Austin will bypass local officials and go straight to Washington.

"Our own internal security investigation is under way right now," deputy IRS commissioner James I. Owens said Thursday.

Owens said the results wouldn't go through William L. Grabo, Austin IRS center director, but would be reported directly to IRS Commissioner Roscoe Egger.

Any findings of violations of the law will be referred to the U.S. attorney's office in Austin, Owens said.

The investigation began after Egger testified Monday before a congressional subcommittee. Egger said he first learned of the destruction of the files when a news story appeared last week in the Austin American-Statesman.

Owens said he didn't know when the probe would be finished. "We certainly want to bring it to a conclusion as soon as we can," he said.

The files destroyed reportedly were requests from businesses in the six-state area served by the Austin IRS center for adjustments in their taxes. Each file contained as many as 20 attachments, such as receipts, say officials of the union which represents IRS workers.

Union officials said the destruction apparently was an attempt by an IRS supervisor to remedy an overwhelming backlog of work.

Owens said the destruction of files "is a one-of-a-kind issue as far as I know. We've not found it to be a problem elsewhere."

His comments came during a visit to the Austin IRS center. He said that trip had nothing to do with the investigation.

Company to shift jobs

DALLAS (AP) — Officials of Xerox Corp. say about 1,100 jobs will be shifted from the North Texas area over the next two years in a restructuring in the company's information products division.

Officials said Thursday the company's Lewisville plant will be converted into a software- and hardware-development center for personal computers, electronic typewriters and word processors.

The company's headquarters will be moved from Dallas to Santa Clara, Calif., under the new organization, officials said.

"I was a tough decision done on the basis of competitiveness," William F. Glavin, executive vice president of Xerox, said.

The company will eliminate 600 more salaried jobs from the area, as a result of the organizational changes announced Thursday.

Xerox will try to shift employees to comparable Xerox jobs in Dallas and other parts of the nation, company officials said.

About 1,800 people would continue to be employed in the Dallas area, officials said.

Formed as the office products division in 1975, the Dallas-based section had recorded deficits for a number of years and experienced several management reorganizations.

The information products division, which had employed about 1,350 people in Addison and Lewisville, made the company's Memorywriter electronic typewriters and some of its personal computers.

Veteran investigator familiar presence in court

By S.K. BARDWELL
The Brazosport Facts
ANGLETON, Texas (AP) — He is a familiar presence in the courtroom whenever a criminal trial is conducted. His large frame is usually draped on a chair by the courtroom door, long legs stretched out in front of him, boots crossed, hands clasped over his silver belt buckle. To some, he might appear relaxed, even lethargic. But his eyes never rest. He watches the jurors intently, gauging their reaction to the testimony.

He watches the prosecutor for any sign that assistance is needed. He watches the defendant, and he watches the onlookers. If the defense raises a surprise issue, he will slip quietly outside and return quickly with a note or file for the prosecutor. If a defendant who has been in the jail for a while awaiting trial makes a sudden move or starts looking around the room, he rises and moves silently to the front of the courtroom, always taking an outside seat in case he has to move quickly. He has been involved in virtually every single criminal case that has gone to trial in the county in the past 12 years, and was the crucial factor in many of them, but his name rarely appears in the news. J.R. "Jimmy" Jones keeps a very low profile, and he likes it that way. Jones is the chief criminal investigator for Brazoria County District Attorney Jim Mapel's office. He's been there for 12 years, through three district attorneys. Jones was born in Ardmore, Okla. He moved to Angleton with his family when he was 10, and has lived in Brazoria County ever since.

Cecil Wingo, now chief investigator for the Harris County Medical Examiner's Office, remembers Jones as "just a kid when I was the chief of police in Angleton."

"He was a latent Indy 500 driver," he recalled, "and I had the opportunity of chasing him around a little bit."

"I had a feeling about him, though, even back then. Maybe because a law officer sees something of himself in others, but I felt he'd become a lawman."

Sure enough, in 1955, just after Wingo left Angleton to become a border guard, Jones got his first job in law enforcement, with the Angleton Police Department. Wingo had organized, when then-Police Chief Chester Simon hired him to check the parking meters, long since gone from the city streets.

"I walked meters for him, hoping he'd hire me," Jones said, and he did two months later. Jones began night patrol duties for Simon.

Since then, Wingo has had occasion to work with Jones, and pays him a high compliment today. "He'd do to go to the river with," Wingo said of Jones. The saying harks back to the times when Texas Rangers patrolled for bandits along the Rio Grande, and the integrity of who you went to the river with might mean whether you came back or not.

Jones set his sights on a county lawman's job early, and left the Angleton department in 1956 to work as a dispatcher for former Sheriff J.W. "Jack" Marshall.

The confines of an office didn't suit him, and he resigned a few months later to work as a welder's helper. It was the last time he would ever leave the field of law enforcement.

He became a patrolman for the Clute Police Department in 1957, was quickly promoted to the rank of sergeant, and when Chief Raymond Hill left the department in 1958, was named acting chief of police.

Still anxious to expand his territory, Jones went back to work for Marshall as a deputy later that year, and in 1959 attained the rank of investigator a duty he shared with Robert Gladney, who would later succeed Marshall as sheriff.

Jones met Charlotte Jakubec, a Freeport police dispatcher, while working in the Brazosport area, and they were married in 1959. The couple bought a home in Angleton where their two daughters, Deloras and Loretta, were born.

But even then, he was a lawman first. In fact, Jones recalled his job nearly spoiled his marriage before it began.

Jones said he and the late Bob Elder, a fellow Sheriff's Department investigator who later joined the Texas Rangers, were "up in Fort Worth chasing some crook or the other around."

"Bob said, 'so, you're getting married tomorrow.' Then he asked me, 'hey, isn't there a wedding rehearsal or something tonight?'"

"You never saw a case wrapped so quick, or a faster ride from Fort Worth to Angleton," Jones recalled with a grin.

He made it to the rehearsal dinner, but the incident was just one in what would be many missed family occasions.

"I don't know how she's put up with it all these years," Jones said of his wife. "She raised our children, and I know it was hard on her, because I always put my job first."

"Back then, it wasn't unusual for an investigator to be gone 80 percent of the time."

In 1965 Jones felt the need for a 40-hour (more or less) work week, so he could spend some time with his growing children.

He accepted the position of sergeant of investigation offered him by Alvin Police Chief Leon Levy, and moved his family to Alvin, where he and his wife live now, but in 1967 he went back to the Sheriff's Department as chief of criminal investigation.

"I enjoyed my work in Alvin, but there were still those boundary lines ... and I was used to taking on the whole county," he said.

Jones joined the district attorney's office in 1973, and just about everybody who has worked with him has a favorite memory of the man.

Freeport attorney Ogden Bass was the first district attorney Jones worked for.

"We'd bring sack lunches every day," Bass said, "and we had a little television set we watched at lunch time."

"There was some difficulty over the program. Jimmy liked 'The Untouchables,' but I always favored 'Perry Mason,'" Bass said.

Bass also recalled a time when "Jimmy was tested, and he does indeed have a hard head."

"We were trying a man on a burglary charge, when an onlooker in the courtroom stood up and made some very loud and, as I recall, vulgar, comments to the court."

"The judge shouted 'stop that man!' as the culprit headed for the door, and Jimmy got in his way."

"So he hauls off and hits old Jimmy square on the head with his fist ... and broke his hand," Bass concluded, adding the fellow was subdued after the confrontation.

Mapel, who at that time was an assistant district attorney under Bass, said the picture of Jones that stands most vividly in his mind is one of the lawman and a just-convicted prisoner who broke away from a deputy while making a phone call before being jailed.

"Jimmy caught him at the railing, just before the stairs on the third floor" of the courthouse, Mapel said. "And when I rounded the corner, it looked like both of them were about to go over."

They didn't, and Jones took the wayward prisoner to jail in spite of his protests, but Mapel said the picture of the two of them hanging over that third-floor railing has always stayed with him.

Angleton attorney Jerry Farrer, who was first assistant district attorney under Bass, remembers that incident, and another that left an "impression" on him.

"I was trying this guy for attempted murder," Farrer said. The man's defense was that he had shot the other man accidentally.

"Jimmy told me, 'now, when you get this guy on cross-examination, get hard on him, because you're going to make him mad and he'll break,'" Farrer recalled.

"So I really let him have it." Then, giving the defendant the weapon used in the shooting, Farrer told him "okay, now show me how you shot him five times and it was an accident."

The man got mad and broke, just as Jones predicted, Farrer said.

"He yelled 'I shot that--- and I'm glad of it' and then he hit me with the gun."

"So I looked around for Jones, because I knew he was going to come and protect me," Farrer said. "He was in the back of the courtroom, laughing like crazy."

Matt Wingo, a former lieutenant in the investigation division of the Sheriff's Department, said Jones "engineered things behind the scenes, and then he'd be gone."

"You wouldn't realize what he did until you got to the courtroom and realized you were sitting there making a case because of his work, and he'd never take the credit for it."

Wingo said Jones is one of the best interrogators there is, partly because of his poker face, and partly because of his technique.

"He lets them think he knows everything when he doesn't. He designs his questions to draw them out until he knows more than they do about it, and they think he didn't get anything from them."

Jones says investigation gets easier the longer you've been in the business, because you learn from your mistakes.

"A good investigator follows his cases all the way through appeals," he said.

"If you see one get overturned because of something you did or didn't do, afterward you'll conduct your investigations with that mind."

In some ways, though, investigation is harder now than it was when he started, he said, "but I don't think you can pinpoint one specific reason for it."

"It's not just the law, it's the people, too. They don't want to get involved. They're scared to get involved."

"I don't know if we (law officers) tore that down or ... I don't know how it came about, but it sure makes it hard for the officers and investigators on the street."

"The criminals were professionals back then, too," he recalled, adding that many of them were expert safecrackers whose work he would learn to recognize and identify on sight.

"Now that was law enforcement."

Smokeless cigarette claimed

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Gerald Mazur isn't blowing smoke when he talks about his company's product — a smokeless cigarette.

It's the latest thing in the tobacco industry — guaranteed to raise a few eyebrows and draw some indignation in the nonsmoking section of an airliner.

FAVOR looks like a conventional cigarette, smells like one, and smokers say it even tastes like one. But unlike your usual Marlboro, this cigarette doesn't take to a match.

Consequently, there are no ashes, no ashtrays, no cigarette stubs and no smoke to raise the ire of nonsmokers.

"We make no health claims and we make no cessation claims," Mazur said, one of the original founders of Datapoint Corp. "It's just a viable alternative to tobacco pleasure."

The product began flavor and aroma consumer testing this past week and is scheduled to go on the market in September.

Mazur, chairman and chief executive officer of Advanced Tobacco Products, Inc., says the genius behind the product is Phil Ray, president and chief of technology for the firm.

A mad-scientist type, Ray said he had been a three-pack-a-day smoker for years.

"It got to be less and less popular. I had to ride in the back of an airplane," he said.

So he went to work and developed the smokeless cigarette, a pencil-thick cylinder filled with a fibrous substance laced with a pure nicotine solution. The cigarette also is treated with special flavors and aromas — like vanilla, cocoa and licorice that make it more authentic to the senses.

Ray frequents a laboratory where there are "Thank You For Smoking" signs, a smokeless cigarette dangling from his lips.

He and Mazur go way back — to at least 1968, when they formed Datapoint, the computer manufacturing firm based in San Antonio.

Both eventually left Datapoint for other ventures.

In 1978, Mazur said he heard Ray had developed a smokeless cigarette.

"My first reaction was 'is he out of his mind? Whoever heard of a smokeless cigarette?'" he said.

But the invention piqued his interest enough to prevail upon Ray to sell him a small interest in the idea.

Then about two years ago, Ray approached Mazur for help in raising enough capital to produce a marketable smokeless cigarette.

The two decided to run a survey in selected cities, which found 78 percent of those asked said they would buy the product.

Armed with that assurance, the Mazur and Ray formed ATP and issued a public offering May 23, 1984, that raised $8.1 million.

The money has enabled ATP to hire the expertise Mazur and Ray said they wanted to perfect the product and to move into 40,000 square feet of office, lab and manufacturing space in a new industrial park north of San Antonio.

When the operation is in full swing, there will be two assembly lines with the capacity to produce 51 million packs of cigarettes annually.

Each pack of FAVORS contains six cigarettes that "smokers" draw on. Each one, Mazur said, contains the tobacco pleasure of five cigarettes.

"It's just like chewing gum. When it's lost its flavor, you can tell. You're just sucking air," he said.

Mazur doesn't claim to be part of the nation's competitive cigarette industry, which in 1983 did $160 billion worth of business. ATP is just making a tobacco product in the same leagues as snuff and chewing tobacco, he said, and it's subject to the same regulations as those products.

Test marketing for flavors and aromas began May 1 in Westchester County, N.Y., and FAVOR is due to go on the market in Austin in September. From there, ATP will move into the Dallas-Fort Worth area and Houston.

"We're not going to change the world. It's just an alternative," he said.

City restricts cafes from serving water

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — Some community leaders are worrying that a new ordinance that bans restaurants from serving water unless customers ask for it may put "a black eye on the image of Abilene."

The water policy, which goes into effect Wednesday, is part of a "drought contingency plan" City Council approved last week.

Some community leaders say such a restriction could hurt the city's efforts to lure tourists and businesses.

"That kind of restriction puts a black eye on the image of Abilene," said Jimmy Morris, manager of the Kiva Inn and president of the Abilene Convention and Visitors Council. "I think overall the decision to not serve water is preposterous. It's just a mistake."

"In West Texas, since we have a reputation as being in dry area, it's kind of like admitting our sins," said Sydney Niblo, a member of the Abilene Industrial Development Authority. "I'd prefer there be no restrictions on water unless there's a critical situation."

The measure was recommended by the council-appointed committee, whose members said that water in the glass is not the issue. The real waste comes from the ice-making and the washing of untouched glasses, they said.

Many cities already have similar restrictions, and the local chapter of the Texas Restaurant Association supports the move, the council was told.

"I really don't think it will hurt the city," City Councilman Harold Nixon said this morning. "You're not telling people we're out of water, we're just saying we're trying to conserve what we have. I think you're going to see that in all Texas cities."

Committee member Dan Thompson noted that "we spent a considerable amount of time discussing this. We didn't feel like it would be a problem for the city's image."

But Morris said, "I think they're picking at the small things. I can understand that they are reminding local people to conserve water. That's well and good."

"But to create that image of West Texas as being a dry area is something the Chamber of Commerce and industrial groups have been trying to combat for a while," he said.

'Cancer hotels' offered in El Paso

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — When Dorothy Cole learned she had cancer, her biggest fear was not of the disease or the radiation therapy needed to treat it, but of her ability to get from her southern New Mexico hometown to El Paso daily for treatment.

The 118-mile drive from this West Texas city to Truth or Consequences, N.M., "would have been too much to make each day, especially after the radiation," said Mrs. Cole, 64.

"I couldn't have gone back and forth," she said.

But she and her 67-year-old husband, Jim, also knew they could not afford to stay at an El Paso hotel for six weeks, the average time needed for radiotherapy.

The Coles' fears were allayed when an El Paso Cancer Treatment Center social worker told them of a unique program, available in Texas only in El Paso and Austin, designed to aid people just like them.

Established a year ago by the El Paso Metro Unit of the American Cancer Society and this city's Hotel and Motel Association, the "guestroom" program provides free hotel accommodations for out-of-town cancer-treatment patients.

"We couldn't have gone through with the treatment if they didn't have this program," Cole said. "It made things possible."

Under the program, out-of-town cancer patients who show a financial need are housed at hotels for up to six weeks at no charge. The accommodations usually include one double room for adult patients and their families.

Fifteen hotels currently participate in the program in El Paso, the first Texas city to initiate it.

Individual hotel managers determine how long guests can stay at their inns.

During their six weeks in El Paso, the Coles were housed at five hotels, they said.

"But the moving didn't bother us," Mrs. Cole said. "We were amazed we could stay anywhere for free at all."

Frank Preston, manager of the Texian Inn, a program participant, said, the Hotel and Motel Association became involved when it was "looking for a charity and saw the need of cancer patients for such a deal."

"Let's face it, we've all got empty rooms at times," he said. "And what good do they do us?"

Since April 1984, the program has housed 17 patients and their families for a total of 310 nights, providing for free accommodations worth more than $15,000, the cancer society said. Most of the people taking advantage of the program have been from southern New Mexico, such as the Coles.

Mrs. Cole said that when she learned of the program, "It was a real worry off our shoulders."

She and her husband's sole source of income is his disabled veteran's pension, she said.

"And that's OK except when you need extra things like this," she said.

The Coles stayed in El Paso during the week, while Mrs. Cole received daily radiation therapy for cancer of the colon, and returned to Truth or Consequences on the weekends, she said.

"She needed to rest after the treatment and she could, in clean, nice rooms," he said.

Former prisoners reunited

DENVER (AP) — They've lost hair and gained weight since they were American POWs in Hitler's Germany, but friendships have endured for hundreds of former "Kriegies" who have gathered to commemorate the end of World War II and their own liberation.

All were members of the U.S. Army Air Corps, based mostly in England and flying B-17 and B-24 bombers into the heart of the Third Reich.

About 6,000 Air Corps officers from among the 90,000 U.S. fliers who were confined to German prisoner of war camps wound up in Stalag Luft III, the camp made famous by the tunnel breakout dramatized in the book and film "The Great Escape."

The American POWs began their reunion Thursday. One of their honored guests is Herman Glennitz, 86, a former German soldier whose duty was to stop the prisoners — known in German as "Kriegies" — from escaping, but who occasionally failed.

Former U.S. Army colonel and OSS officer Jerry Sage said Glennitz "threw me in the cooler three times for trying to escape, but we each had our jobs to do. I've never hugged him, but I've shaken his hand."

Sage said he believed President Reagan's planned visit to a West German military cemetery at Bitburg, site of the graves of 49 SS troops, "is a fine idea."

"I say it's time to heal wounds, not keep them open," Sage said. At Thursday night's gathering, there was plenty of food and drink, the air was hazy with cigarette smoke, and the facilities were plush.

It was a far cry from the stark surroundings of Stalag Luft III, where starvation was always around the corner and insanity was an unspoken threat that lurked in the darkened corners with rats and Germans who spied in the night.

"The foremost thing in all our minds most of the time was food," recalled Gordon A. "Bud" Summers, 65, of Topeka, Kan. "We used to sit around making up menus of all the food we'd eat after the war."

"I was obsessed with chocolate. I once wrote a check for $25 to a guy for his Red Cross chocolate bar. After the war he cashed the check, written on a scrap of paper, and the bank honored it."

Maurice "Rosie" Rosener, 66, of Harlingen, Texas, and his brother Neil, 62, of Estes Park, Colo., were both B-17 pilots shot down over Germany. Maurice on his first mission and Neil on his last.

They were reunited at Stalag Luft III and became roommates. They remember their determination to live.

"Ninety-five percent of the men accepted the attitude they were going to get out one day, and they made the best of it," recalled Maurice, "but a few individuals just gave up."
