

Mandatory seat belt law closer to legislative approval

AUSTIN (AP) — The House has joined the Senate in voting to fine Texans up to $50 for riding in the front seat without wearing seat belts.

The 79-56 preliminary vote Wednesday advanced the measure to the formality of a final House vote that would send it to Gov. Mark White.

House members praised the bill as a life-saver and criticized it as typical of over-protective government.

"Next thing after seat belts and next thing after air bags is going to be helmets in cars," said Rep. Keith Valigura, R-Conroe.

Several lawmakers have said the proposed seat belt law has drawn more constituent correspondence than anything else this year.

"This bill would beat me in my district," said Rep. Tom Craddock, R-Midland, who failed with an amendment that would raise the state speed limit to 65 mph if the federal government allows such a change.

Rep. Foster Whaley, D-Pampa, said, "People like to be left alone" and don't want to be forced into wearing seat belts.

Whaley failed with an amendment to exempt farmers working along highway right-of-way.

The House also rejected an amendment by Roby Rep. Steve Carriker that would have allowed penalties only in cases where a seat belt violation was accompanied by another traffic offense. Carriker said police could use the seat belt law to "rag around" — harass — minorities.

The U.S. Department of Transportation has said air bags would become mandatory in cars in 1989 if seat belt laws are not enacted in states representing two-thirds of the nation's population.

The federal threat comes after years of education and advertising aimed at urging, cajoling and scaring motorists into buckling up. Bill sponsor Rep. Bill Messer, D-Belton, said about 15 percent of Texans now use seat belts. The law could immediately spark 80 percent usage, he said.

"There's not anything this Legislature has the opportunity to do to save more lives, reduce injuries on the highway and save more money," said Messer.

The bill would require seat belt use by drivers and front-seat passengers in autos and pick-up trucks with a load capacity of 1,500 pounds or less.

Violators would face fines of $25-$50. The law would go into effect Sept. 1, but penalties would not be meted out until Dec. 1.

Rep. Rick Perry, D-Haskell, offered the "Bubba amendment" that would exempt more pick-up trucks. But the House voted 84-52 to kill Perry's plan to exempt passengers in pick-ups with 1,500 pounds of carrying capacity.

The West Texas lawmaker said the so-called "34-ton pick-ups" are commonly used as work vehicles in rural Texas.

"They're used out in the country. You're in and out of them a lot," he said.

Messer was not sympathetic. "Bubba has written me," he said, acknowledging that many Texans have expressed their displeasure with the bill.

"Bubba may think he has got a right to ride out there on the roads any way he wants to. Bubba does not have the right to go out on the highway and endanger you or kill himself," Messer said.

Rep. Patricia Hill, R-Dallas, said the federal threat seemed to be the only reason the bill was being pushed.

"We are really passing this bill so the auto manufacturers don't have to put in air bags," she said.

The bill does not meet the federal requirements because it does not include a provision allowing juries in auto wreck cases to know whether the parties were wearing seat belts.

Americans' captors issue 'final warning'

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The Islamic Holy War group has sent color pictures of six missing Frenchmen and Americans to Beirut newspapers and threatened "catastrophic" consequences unless alleged terrorists held in Kuwait are freed.

The stark "final warning" was published in Beirut newspapers today along with photographs of the men, kidnapped in Lebanon between March 16, 1984, and March 22 this year.

Saying it will not wait long for Kuwait to act, the group declared: "We shall terrorize America and France forever."

The photographs, sent in plain envelopes to the dailies, were accompanied by three typed Arabic-language statements signed by Jihad Islami, or Islamic Holy War, a shadowy group which is believed to be holding seven westerners hostage.

The three different statements were addressed to the families of the hostages, to the Rev. Jesse Jackson and "the international public, namely the American people."

It was not clear whether Jihad Islami meant it would punish the hostages if Kuwaiti authorities did not free the alleged terrorists, or take some other action.

The six men in the color photos were identified as U.S. Embassy official William Buckley, the Rev. Benjamin Weir, the Rev. Lawrence Jenco and Terry A. Anderson, the chief Middle East correspondent of The Associated Press, all Americans; and Frenchmen Marcel Fontaine and Marcel Carton.

There was no picture and no mention of Peter Kilburn, 60, a U.S. citizen also said to be held by Jihad Islami. Kilburn, a librarian at the American University of Beirut, was reported in poor health when he disappeared on Dec. 3, 1984.

The packages were the first public communication from Jihad Islami and the first time any conditions for the release of the hostages were publicly spelled out.

The letter to the hostages' families said: "For the last time, we wish to stress that all contact with your abducted relatives will be cut off and the consequences will be catastrophic if you do not act seriously and force your governments to intervene for the release (of the alleged terrorists in Kuwait)."

The statements gave no details of the number or nationality of the people Jihad Islami wants released in Kuwait. But the newspapers said seven Iraqis and three Libyans are held in Kuwait on bombing charges.

The statement directed at the "international public" said: "Kidnapping is not our hobby and it is not our habit to deal negatively with matters. We are a specimen of a tortured nation that has suffered numerous tragedies from America's tyranny and oppression ..."

House budget panel meets in secrecy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Budget Committee, meeting in unprecedented secrecy, has a tentative agreement to preserve next year's Social Security cost of living increases, but no accord so far on a package of spending cuts needed to reduce huge federal deficits.

"There was really very little enthusiasm on either side" for curtailing the Social Security benefits, Rep. Charles Schumer, D-N.Y., said as the panel met for nearly five hours, breaking up shortly before midnight with an agreement to resume in the morning.

In addition to the Social Security agreement, Rep. Pat Williams, D-Mont., said there was a consensus for granting full inflation allowances for low-income programs.

But several sources, who spoke only on condition they not be identified by name, said the panel made little progress on domestic or defense spending, despite what one participant described as a "lovefest atmosphere" free of the partisan wrangling that characterized open debate earlier in the day.

"There's some hope out there that we haven't had before" that a bipartisan agreement is possible, said Rep. Delbert Latta, R-Ohio.

The decision to clear the committee room of reporters, television cameras, lobbyists and the public came on a bipartisan, 26-3 vote, and Rep. William Gray, D-Pa., said, "It seems we ought to stop making long speeches and start talking turkey."

Democrats went into the session seeking Republican support for a freshly minted plan to trim spending by $56 billion next year without raising taxes or curtailing Social Security benefits. The proposal also calls for more domestic spending and less defense spending than many Republicans would like.

Several sources said Schumer suggested Democrats increase their proposed level of defense spending for next year by $6 billion — in exchange for Republican agreement to the balance of the Democratic budget. Schumer could not be reached to confirm the proposal, but sources said no vote was taken.

The committee is drafting an alternative to the budget approved narrowly last week in the Republican-controlled Senate. That plan would freeze Social Security benefits for one year, reduce defense below what Reagan had said previously he would accept, and trim billions more from domestic programs to achieve savings of $56 billion next year and $295 billion over three years.

Gray said the Democratic plan would make a major contribution to deficit reduction, while dividing savings evenly between defense and domestic savings.

In all, about $20 billion in spending would come from domestic programs. Medicare would be hit the hardest under the Democratic proposal — a cut of $3.5 billion for 1986, including a freeze on payments to doctors and hospitals that would save $2.5 billion.

Other programs targeted for cuts below a freeze include agriculture, $1.8 billion; reductions in the strategic petroleum reserve amounting to $1.2 billion; rural housing, $400 million; and revenue sharing, cut $850 million next year and eliminated in 1987.

There would be smaller cuts in Amtrak subsidies, urban aid, the Small Business Administration, veterans and other programs. Federal employee salaries would be frozen for a year.

Roberts commissioners discuss renovation of jail

By CATHY SPAULDING

MIAMI — By cutting out "fancy" facilities and using good, serviceable materials, a Miami man believes the Roberts County jail can be built for less than what has been quoted to county commissioners.

The county must add a kitchen, booking room and new cells to its 72-hour "holding facility" to conform with state jail standards.

Miami resident John Sebastian told commissioners Monday that the work can be done for $75,000 to $85,000. The commissioners have been told earlier that it could cost up to $231,563, or $99 per square foot, bring the facility up to state standards.

In March, Amarillo architect Pat Tunnell presented commissioners with two sets of plans showing how the jail remodeling can fit into the city-county building where the current facility is located. The plan quoted at $231,563 moves the sheriff's offices to an addition adjoining the present building.

Sebastian's plan is similar to Tunnell's in that the offices are moved to a new addition. His addition would be smaller, 30 by 25 feet.

"I talked to sheriff Eddie Brines who showed me what he would need," Sebastian told

Chamber banquet to become 'Country Fair'

By LARRY HOLLIS
Staff Writer

Pampa residents will have the opportunity to attend "A Country Fair" with the change in format for the Pampa Chamber of Commerce's annual fall membership meeting.

Instead of the traditional banquet with a speaker, the meeting now will feature a buffet, silent and live auctions, and a dance, all around the theme, "A Country Fair."

Efforts are underway to obtain a television personality to assist with the live auction.

"The evening promises to be very entertaining and enjoyable," said Phil Gentry, Chamber president.

The event will be held Saturday, Oct. 19, in the Heritage Room at M. K. Brown Auditorium.

Gentry said the success of the evening will depend on the success of the auctions, designed to assist the Chamber financially as a fundraising activity.

Chamber leaders are hoping to obtain as many as 300 items for inclusion in the auctions, to be conducted by a professional auctioneer. The chamber has organized some 60 members to serve on a Solicitations Committee to obtain items for the auctions.

"The chamber would appreciate your donating an item for the auctions," Gentry stated. "Anybody can give anything."

Gentry said the chamber hopes to obtain a wide range of items and services for the auctions, anything from an abacus to a zither.

Suggested items include a trip with lodging and transportation provided, professional services, furs, hunting trips, or merchandise of all shapes and sizes, he noted.

Members of the committee will be contacting merchants and other people within the next 60 days to explain the project in detail and to solicit the donated goods and services.

Participation in the donations will not be limited to chamber members, Gentry said. Anyone can donate to the auctions since the meeting is intended to be a citywide event.

Attendance will be limited to 500 people because of space limitations in the Heritage Room.

The change in format has been under the direction of a Steering Committee headed by Dona Cornutt. Planning is already underway to make the event an exciting success, Gentry observed.

The Decorating Committee, headed by Mike Keagy, is involved in efforts to transform the Heritage Room "into a place of beauty," Gentry said.

Cornutt is overseeing the planning activities for the annual meeting, coordinating the fundraising, decorating, solicitation activities and other aspects of the new format.

Gentry noted no administrative money from the chamber is being used for the project. Instead, members have donated funds to get the project going, he said.

Referring to the limited number of tickets that will be available, Gentry said, "From the enthusiasm we have seen and from what we have heard, tickets should be purchased very early or members will be on a 'waiting list' wishing they could attend."

The tentative schedule calls for the buffet dinner and silent auction to be held from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. The silent auction will close at 7:30 p.m., with the live auction beginning at 8 p.m. A dance featuring a live band will begin after the live auction, probably around 9 p.m.

The change in format is being modeled on similar events which have been sponsored by other chambers in the state.

Chamber Manager Floyd Sackett noted the items and services donated at similar meetings in other places have shown a wide range, with some imagination used in donated items.

Of course, a lot of them are merchandise-oriented, such as lamps, ceiling fans, gift certificates, clothes, oil, appliances, restaurant meals and the like, he said. Services have included car repairs, legal aid, advertising, photography and such.

But other donations have added more thought and excitement, Sackett said.

He mentioned a dinner for 10 cooked by "a local individual who is well known for his ability" auctioned off at one meeting.

Others have included two days of horseracing for four, bridge lessons, paving material and labor, handmade quilts, limousine service to surrounding towns, a hayride and chili supper, one week of day care, and a weekend, boat ride and private concert at a lakeside home.

Also showing up on auction lists have been such things as a DWI defense, personal hairstyling and manicuring, weekend trips to various cities and resorts, tickets for a New Year's Eve event, piano tuning, consultation with a CPA firm, evenings at hotels, charter plane rides, original paintings, shopping sprees and fitness center and aerobics memberships.

"Things that can be donated are limited only by the imagination," Sackett said.

PACs helped Gramm more than any Senate candidate

WASHINGTON (AP) - Phil Gramm received $1.3 million from political action committees - more than any other Senate candidate - in his successful bid for John Tower's open seat last year, according to a report by the Federal Election Commission.

Among Texas congressional candidates, only Jack Fields, an incumbent Republican from Houston, made the top 10 for PAC money receipts and spending.

The FEC report listed the 50 top spenders, including Texans Mac Sweeney of Wharton, a Republican who won his race against incumbent Bill Patman and incumbent Democrats Charles Wilson of Lufkin and Martin Frost of Dallas.

Unsuccessful Democratic challenger Andrew Stein of New York spent the most among the House candidates - $1,779,281. Fields spent $934,921.

All 435 House seats were up in 1984 as they are every two years. Senators have staggered six-year terms, so about a third were up for election.

Gramm, won big in his race to fill the seat John Tower left. Gramm received $1,326,875 from PACs, according to the FEC. He defeated Democrat Lloyd Doggett, who was 11th among PAC money raisers, getting $802,687.

The election commission, which monitors adherence to campaign finance laws, said its analysis was based on candidates' reports dating from Jan. 1, 1983 to Dec. 31, 1984.

Gramm was fourth in spending at $9,452,357, according to the report. Doggett was sixth, spending $5,889,458.

The biggest spender was North Carolina's incumbent Republican Sen. Jesse Helms, who spent $16,499,387 to keep the seat. His challenger, Gov. Jim Hunt, was third, behind successful West Virginia Democrat Jay Rockefeller, who was running for an open seat.

The top House PAC money recipient was then-Budget Committee Chairman James Jones, D-Okla. He received $662,861 from the special-interest groups.

Once they register with the FEC, PACs can donate up to $5,000 to each candidate for each election (primary, runoff, general). Individual contributors can give a maximum of $1,000 per candidate per election.

Fields, at seventh, received $345,216 from PACs.

Some fear S&L problems could spread across nation

WASHINGTON (AP) - The shock waves from the thrift institution crisis that has hit Ohio and Maryland could well spread beyond the borders of those two states, some industry observers are warning.

However, others contend that the only lasting affect from the current upheaval will be the disappearance of private insurance funds for savings and loan institutions.

Financial experts who believe that the problems may spread point to past difficulties that they contend are far from being corrected.

"The savings and loan industry in general has some serious problems," David Wyss, a financial analyst for the consulting firm of Data Resources Inc., said Wednesday. "If the S&Ls were held to the same accounting standards as banks, many of them would be bankrupt."

He said the fact that thrifts in general face lower requirements for capital on hand has been a key to their remaining solvent.

Wyss said the basic problem is that many savings and loans are saddled with a "lot of low interest loans that they can't get rid of and they are paying more for deposits than they are getting from these loans."

Some in the banking industry have also been raising alarms.

Willard C. Butcher, chairman of the giant Chase Manhattan Bank, expressed fears that the current problems would spread to other parts of the country.

"We've got billions of dollars of assets in the thrift industry with inadequate capital under it and my guess is the banking industry will be called upon" to help avert a nationwide crisis, Butcher told reporters last week. Butcher's bank has already applied to buy two Ohio savings and loans which were ordered closed during the crisis there.

The governors of both Maryland and Ohio were forced to act after panicky depositors began withdrawing their money from savings and loans operating without federal deposit insurance.

In Ohio, 71 savings and loans were temporarily closed in March while in Maryland, 102 savings and loans were placed under state control on Tuesday with restrictions placed on the amount of money depositors could withdraw.

In addition to Ohio and Maryland, the states of North Carolina, Pennsylvania and Massachusetts have private insurance funds for thrift institutions.

Clock ticks on spending bill

AUSTIN (AP) - Senate-House budget writers planned to spend long hours again today trying to reach a 1986-87 state spending compromise.

Senate and House differences must be worked out and present it to all legislators before the May 27 end of the regular session, or a special session will be needed.

Wednesday's progress included agreements over the budgets for two major state agencies - the Texas Railroad Commission and the Department of Public Safety.

Agreement has been reached on only four major agency budgets since the 10-member conference committee began meeting May 10.

The other major budgets approved are the governor's office and the Parks and Wildlife Department.

Spending plans of other major agencies, including state colleges and universities and the Department of Corrections have been discussed but no decisions made.

The negotiators are working toward a Sunday night deadline for completing their decisions on differences between the $36.4 billion appropriations bill passed by the House and the $36.8 billion Senate measure.

It will take several days for the compromise bill to be printed and assembled and must be presented to Senate and House members at least two days before May 27.

For the Railroad Commission, the conference committee approved totals that were almost $3 million more than the House version. Money for oil and gas regulation was reduced about 10 percent below current levels, but less than the 15 percent recommended by the House.

commissioners.

"My plan is mainly a duplicate of what they have now," Sebastian explained later. He said that the cost of the building would "depend on the type of construction."

"The jail standards say you need a concrete building," Sebastian said, adding that concrete block would cost less than a stand-up concrete structure. "You could take it to a professional jail planner and he'd build a fortress, like they have in Hemphill County."

"Unless you have a design that meets jail standards, no matter how much you put into it, it's down the drain," county attorney Bob McPherson.

The commissioners tabled action on the jail renovation. The county has to show progress on jail renovation by October or the facility will be shut down. Commissioners also discussed what work needed to be done in the county courtroom. No action was taken.

"The courtroom is getting old," County Judge Newton Cox told commissioners. "We need to have it accessible for the handicapped. The jury box is a disgrace."

Commissioners accepted a bid of $121,841 by A-B Steel Buildings of Amarillo to build an addition to the Roberts County Museum. Commissioners opened the bids Thursday and Architect Tunnell recommended the firm. The museum wants to build a 50 by 95 foot addition to its current facility and repair its roofs. The repairs will be funded through donations to the museum, certificates of deposit and $50,000 from the county.

Tunnell also reported that work on the courthouse elevator was running "ahead of schedule." The elevator will run from the county library in the courthouse basement, through a first floor office and end at what used to be a men's restroom on the second floor. Because of the elevator construction, the Roberts County Appraisal Office moved from the first floor to the basement, switching offices with the Soil and Water Conservation office. Tunnell said the elevator will be delivered by May 22.

In other business, commissioners accepted a bid of $97,777 from West Texas Equipment for a front-end loader. Included in the bid was a trade-in allowance of $14,500. The firm guaranteed to "buy back" the loader for $79,000.

Compromise ends filibuster

AUSTIN (AP) — A Senate filibuster on proposed extension of the state's wiretap law came to a halt early today after proponents agreed to allow new restrictions on the use of covert entry to plant electronic devices.

Sen. Craig Washington, D-Houston, began the filibuster at 11:40 a.m. and kept the floor for 12 hours and 14 minutes. Washington said the present law is like using a "shotgun to kill a mosquito. It's overkill."

The filibuster ended at 11:54 when Senate leaders including Lieutenant Governor Bill Hobby compromised on an amendment by Washington that would allow covert entry for planting of a "bug" only as a last resort.

Language on the compromise was drafted overnight to be taken up on the Senate floor.

"I'm glad we worked something out," Washington said early today, after his filibuster ended. "What I was trying to do all along was to help the innocent, but at the same time not handcuff law enforcement to the extent that they couldn't get at the bad guys."

However, despite the compromise, Washington said he will vote against the bill when it comes up for a vote.

Before the filibuster, Washington and Sen. Ed Howard, D-Texas, sponsor of the bill, debated the pros and cons of wiretaps, which were first authorized by the Legislature in 1981. The statute included a "sunset" provision requiring that the law expire in 1985 unless given new life by the Legislature.

In objecting to provisions in the law that allow covert entry for planting listening devices, Washington said "This is not a law-and-order issue. This is a Fourth Amendment issue. This is an encroachment on our right to privacy."

Howard accused Washington of overreacting. He said there are adequate safeguards already in the law to protect individual rights and that law enforcement agencies have shown a trend toward less use of wiretaps, but that authorities need to have the authority to use electronic surveillance when necessary.

"The overriding concern is to give our law enforcement agencies the ability to stop the horrendous problem of drug trafficking," Howard said.

Since the Texas law became effective, the Texas Department of Public Safety has sought only 47 court orders for a wiretap, Howard said. Those investigations resulted in 175 arrests and 57 convictions, with other cases pending, and the seizure of drugs worth $13 million, Howard added.

He said even the Texas Civil Liberties Union, which opposes wiretaps, has acknowledged that the DPS has used the law "judiciously."

Washington is the third Senator to filibuster this session.

Mission residents begin big cleanup

MISSION, Texas (AP) — A storm system that dumped more than 10 inches of rain in six hours in this South Texas community dissipated, but bad weather still lurks in the area, officials said.

"The same thing happened to me in 1980 with Hurricane Allen," Casimiro Juarez said Wednesday as he stood outside his flooded home. "I'm going to have to pay for all of this."

The downpour that started late Tuesday flooded several businesses and homes in southern Starr County and Western Hidalgo County, but the eastern portion of the Valley was spared.

The National Weather Service said there is a possibility of more rains through the weekend.

"We expect the thunderstorms to still continue in the area," said weather service meteorologist Joe Arellano of Brownsville.

Although no injuries were reported, the heavy rains gave Mission city officials a scare. Mayor Pat Townsend declared a state of emergency so he could make all the decisions.

He dispatched all available city-owned vans, pickup trucks and fire department vehicles to evacuate 150 residents in low-lying areas and move them to three temporary shelters.

By 7:30 p.m. CST, the three shelters had been reduced to one, with 40 people seeking shelter, said Lucio Guerra, the Mission emergency management coordinator. He said that when waters began receding the more than 100 others returned home.

Townsend said he was concerned about 1,400 elementary school making it home safely and even thought about keeping them at school overnight. The rains, however, died down in the afternoon and the children were released from schools.

Many residents began making back to their homes late Wednesday to start clean-up efforts.

The same storm system caused street flooding in Rio Grande City in Starr County, but no injuries were reported there.

The meteorologist said the storm system was moving northeast, but when it got to the Gulf of Mexico the system gained strength and returned inland.

"It still remains critical because of the rainfall earlier. Any more rain will aggravate the situation," Arellano said.

The rain, however, pleased citrus growers.

East Texas violinist enjoys country, classical music

GREENVILLE, Texas (AP) — The sign advertises "fiddle shop", but the man is a violinist.

Just off Highway 69 in southern Hunt County, long-time cabinet maker Ron Falconer practices his hobbies: repairing fiddles, writing symphonies and playing the violin.

Falconer, 64, has a positive attitude about life and a personality based on precision and perfection.

"I do not have a music degree, but I have studied violin all my life," said Falconer, who is also a custodian at Greenville Intermediate School. He went on to explain that he started writing symphonies in Salt Lake City when he was a part of the Westminster College Community Orchestra.

"Our assistant conductor, Roger Wangerin, taught me to write music, but more to listen to the music, to know which instruments to use for a mood, oboes for melancholy, French horns for a proud sound."

Falconer maintains a side room in his home for fiddle repair. He recently renovated an old fiddle that was missing a top board. The resulting tone indicates success.

"I was born in Detroit where I lived until my '40s. I am a cabinet maker by trade. Music has always been my hobby and my second love," Falconer says.

The musician made his way to Hunt County following his second marriage. His wife, the former Annie Agee, brought him back to her home in Northeast Texas which she called "The Promised Land."

The house where this man plies his hobbies is located down a rough gravel road south of Greenville five miles from the Sabine River.

The road up to the house is circular, punctuated by a simple wooden sign stating "fiddle shop," and occupied by two dogs, friendly to the last.

In the back yard, Falconer and his wife maintain a small grove of native trees.

It is a nice sight to see Falconer sitting amid the grove of trees in an old, comfortable rocking chair, playing a violin while his dogs nuzzle for an extra pat on the head. A classical piece floats through the leaves. Country living is seen here in a new light; this is classy.

"I have written symphonies for some time, however, it is one thing to write them and another to have someone play them," Falconer said. "One of my pieces, 'Romantic Symphony in G Minor', was played by the Westminster College Community Orchestra in Salt Lake City."

The problem with essays

At a recent school board meeting, Lefors High School Principal Gene Gee offered some criticism of the grading of student essays in the Texas Assessment of Basic Skills testing program.

Gee cited the case of a freshman student who had high scores, both in his classwork and in other areas of the TABS test. Gee noted the young man probably has the best grades in his class.

But on the composition required in the TABS testing, the student got a 1 on the scale ranging from 0 to 4, Gee said. A zero, of course, is as low as you can get, while a 4 is considered excellent.

This led Gee to wonder how some of the essays are scored. The problem is complicated because only skimpy guidelines are given for interpreting the scale system - no A's, B's, etc., just vague numbers and too brief explanations of what the scores are supposed to mean.

Lefors Elementary Principal Jess Baker noted the tests, though supposedly designed for Texas schools, are actually prepared and graded in Iowa - with the grading being done by college students.

All that led me to recall my own experiences in grading student essays while a graduate teaching assistant at a Utah university. That experience proved frustrating in many instances and raised many doubts in me about composition courses, both as a teacher and as a grader.

Now many tests can be graded easily - fill-in-the-blanks, multiple choice, true-false guess type. Others, such as those involving mathematical calculations, can also be graded fairly easily - in most cases, the answer is either wrong or right (if the teacher has made the right calculations himself, anyway).

English compositions, however, often lead to problems of objectivity. Especially if they are supposed to be graded according to strict standards.

I encountered that problem while teaching freshman composition courses. The weekly paragraph and essay assignments were no big problem. I had made the assignments, I knew what I had taught or failed to teach, I knew what standards I had established for the grading.

Knowing my own guidelines, standards and instructions, I could read the essays and award the resultant A's, B's, C's, the occasional F's.

The problems arose at the end of the semester when the students were exposed to the ravages of "departmental exams."

Now in theory departmental exams seem valid.

The department supposedly had set standards and guidelines as to what the students should have learned to receive certain grades. And the department supposedly had trained the instructors as to those standards and guidelines by which they were to teach the students.

Accordingly, it should have been an easy matter for teachers to grade student essays in an objective and consistent manner. In fact, in efforts to assure that objectivity, we teachers were not to grade essays of our own students, in case we had been influenced by any apples dropped at our desks.

And to further ensure fairness, each essay would be graded by two teachers, with a combined score assigned to determine the quality of writing.

The students were assigned numbers to put on the essays in place of names, so even if by chance we got one of our own student's essay, we wouldn't know it. In theory.

However, our periodic training sessions indicated some flaws in that system. In exercises, we would all look at copies of previous student essays, assign them scores (we used a 0 to 6 scale) and then discuss the results.

That revealed some discrepancies in the standards by which the essays were graded.

Generally there were few controversies on the graded essays. The scores tended to group within the same range - 2's and 3's, for example, or 4's and 5's.

But then an occasional essay would nearly break up the meetings. We'd all look at one essay, the scores would be tabulated - and there would be a range from 1 to 5, no easy clumping of scores. And we would all argue convincingly in justification of the scores.

The problems occurred from the manner in which we would grade the unusual, the unique, the innovative essays.

Some of us - myself included - tended to reward originality and imagination, tired of the old routine essays, the trite phrases, the repetition of platitudes, the superficial reasoning. Others, more conservative and dulled, would argue, "It doesn't fit the basic five-paragraph standards. It doesn't stay within the assigned topic. The dolt actually used (horrors!) a sentence fragment for effect!"

The phrasing, punctuation and grammar could be technically correct, even exciting. But some dullard couldn't handle a departure from expected form and would give it a low grade, fearing originality (creativity) and rewarding predictability (conformity).

Now I don't know if that's the situation with the Lefors student's essay. It's a possibility he had an off day, misunderstood the assignment or just drifted off into some other realm while writing.

But some means needs to be developed to allow such students to have a recourse if they think their essay has been graded unfairly. After all, under new rules to go into effect next year, those tests - graded at the whim of some unseen personage at a great distance and basically unaware of the student's existence - may determine whether a student receives a diploma despite all the work he may have accomplished prior to that test.

It's frightening in some aspects.

House approves plan for hazardous waste

AUSTIN (AP) — House members have approved a hazardous waste dump bill that would set waste reduction as the top priority.

A 144-0 Wednesday vote sent Killeen Rep. Stan Schlueter's bill to the Senate. Schlueter fended off all major amendments except one, Beaumont Rep. Mark Stiles' addition that bans new waste dumps in flood plains.

The bill also would ban new hazardous waste dumps over aquifers, or near schools, churches or parks. In all cases, dumps should be a last resort, according to the bill, which sets priorities on reduction of waste and recycling.

Schlueter said the plan was worked out during three months of negotiations involving the Texas Municipal League, Texas Chemical Council, Sierra Club, Texas Association of Business, Texas Trial Lawyers Association and the League of Women Voters.

"For the first time, in state policy, we are setting up a policy for the management of hazardous waste," Schlueter told the House.

'Sea World' bills signed by White

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Mark White has signed legislation providing incentives for Sea World to locate one of the nation's largest recreational theme parks near San Antonio.

Sea World currently is negotiating with city and Bexar County officials for concessions should it acquire a 427-acre site in the western part of the county for the park.

City and park officials said locating Sea World in Bexar County would create 1,500 jobs and could add some $1 million to sales tax revenues from gate receipts. Additional revenue would be generated from hotel-motel taxes and other development, they said.

Sen. Cyndi Taylor Krier, R-San Antonio, said the project represents a $100 million investment to create one of the five largest recreational parks in the country.

"By providing short-term incentives to new businesses, this legislative package will allow long-term benefits to the community," Mrs. Krier said.

The bills White signed on Wednesday allow deferral of a portion of property taxes and a non-annexation agreement between the city and Sea World.

One of the bills will allow Bexar County to designate the proposed Sea World site as a reinvestment area under the Property Redevelopment and Tax Abatement Act. The second bill allows cities to designate sites of tourism-related businesses as industrial districts.

Mrs. Krier said the legislation would benefit Bexar County immediately and other parts of the state in the future.

"While these bills will help bring Sea World to Bexar County now, in the future other governments can rely on the measures to bring business and industry to other parts of our state," she said.

"The ripple effect on our tourism industry and additional development in the area cannot be understated."

White also signed a bill Wednesday that will allow the state's General Land Office to review uses of excess state land.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP 'O TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the covenanted commandment.

Our opinion

They're just taxes by another name

Is it a fee or is it a tax? That is a question that has been the subject of considerable debate ever since proposals started flowing out of the Texas Legislature to increase "fees", rather than taxes, to raise funds to pay for state government.

A lot of folks, including Gray County Judge Carl Kennedy, have castigated state politicians for attempting to disguise taxes as fees so the state can take in more money without the politicians acquiring the label "tax hiker," which often proves fatal at the polls.

The proposals have included raising the "fees" for a variety of things, ranging from getting married to drilling an oil well; from getting your car inspected to obtaining a license to drive it.

So, again, are these fees, or are they taxes by another name?

State Rep. Foster Whaley said in his column this week that it is not a tax if the state does not charge as much for a service as it costs the state. We suspect he was thinking about tuition increases in state colleges which he supported—and he makes a good point.

If, for example, it costs the state more to operate a college than it charges students to attend, you really can't call the tuition a tax. It is a bonafide fee.

But we think you have to go beyond that and determine if the thing you're paying for is really a "service" before you can decide if you're paying taxes or fees.

A service is something that benefits you and you pay for it voluntarily, such as college tuition. Nobody is forced to go to college, so any tuition charges would, indeed, have to qualify as a fee, not a tax.

But what about all those other things? Are they services? Is the state providing you with a "service" by giving you permission to get married, drill an oil well or drive a car? Obviously not. They only reason you pay for such permission is because the state requires it. You get nothing of value in return.

We conclude, then, that you cannot accurately call it "increases in fees" when you are forced to pay more for licenses, permits and inspections because they never were fees in the first place. They have always been taxes, they still are, and increasing their cost is, plainly and simply, increasing taxes.

High output farmer's foe

Historically, the principal agricultural problem in the United States has been overproduction of food and fiber. It has led to low prices, farm foreclosures and enormously expensive federal assistance programs designed to rescue farmers.

In World War I, American farmers were encouraged to expand planting to the utmost in order to feed and clothe the allies. This led to overproduction in peacetime and the farm depression of the 1920s.

The United States is in another period of overproduction caused by overplanting for foreign sales. Though the burden of farm subsidies totaled $22 billion last year, farm groups and their political spokesmen are demanding more assistance. The Reagan administration has wisely resisted the more extreme aid proposals.

The situation is likely to worsen in the next few years because the U.S. is losing many of its overseas customers for farm commodities. The Soviet Union, Japan, South Korea and other countries, which bought from the United States in the recent past, are now shifting their purchases to other countries. All but the foolhardy will see that American agricultural production must be limited and shaped primarily to serve the domestic market.

I am reminded of these trends and developments in reading a recent fund appeal from the American Farmland Trust, a private agency. It's concerned that the loss of prime farmland to developers means that we stand on the threshold "of a threatening crisis - a worldwide food shortage." The Trust suggests that we shall run out of food products in the United States, asking "What's going to happen when they're scarce?"

The American Farmland Trust is engaged in a variety of projects "to encourage farmers to keep and till their land." Well, no one wants to discourage land ownership by farmers, but reasonable people have to conclude that cutbacks in farm production are necessary. If the acreage in cultivation is not reduced the economic plight of farmers will worsen.

The American Farmland Trust also suggests that farmers should be encouraged to keep their farmland "by paying them the difference between the land's assessed agricultural value and its development value." Certainly, that isn't a well-thought out proposition. This would amount to a new farm subsidy on a colossal scale. Where would Congress find the money for such payments?

Other suggestions by the Trust are reasonable, including donation of easements to local environmental trusts or local zoning to assure that land will be held for farming purpose. Such matters are for individuals and local communities to decide.

The American Farmland Trust is concerned about urban development covering farm land. Here and there, this may pose special problems. The United States, however, has vast regions, the potential of which for agricultural use has not been tapped. Improvements in farming also are resulting in vastly increased yields. It isn't proper to create a specter of food shortages and high farm prices.

Farming is one of the three basic sources of national wealth—manufacturing and mining are the others—and close attention should be paid to it. The American Farmland Trust, however, needs to rethink its emphasis on maintaining the current level of farm production.

...It's our cost of living adjustment... it says eat less and move to a cheaper place..

A good way to sell pizza

Have you seen the new Susan Anton commercial for Pizza Hut? If you haven't, go to the nearest television set and wait until it appears.

Most commercials I see on television I hate. I especially hate car commercials where car dealers bang on the hoods of cars. It should be against the law for car dealers to appear in their own commercials.

I make it a point never to buy a car from a dealer who has made his own commercial. If others would do the same, we could put these people back in their offices and off the television screen, and, yes, I am including Lee Iococca here.

Anyway, I got carried away for a second, so let's get back to Susan Anton and her pizza commercial.

Susan Anton is a blonde who does a little acting here and there. She does not speak in her new Pizza Hut commercial, which is something else I like about it.

She doesn't have to speak, quite frankly. What she does is eat a slice of pizza with some music in the background.

It's the way she eats the slice of pizza that got my attention.

Watching somebody eat can be a very sensual experience. Recall the eating scene in the movie "Tom Jones," for instance, which featured a man and woman devouring a baked chicken. The censors couldn't exactly ban the scene, so they simply told the actors and actresses involved to try not to chew with their mouths open.

The Susan Anton Pizza Hut commercial has the same effect. She caresses the slice of pizza. She teases it, and then she devours it.

If the commercial were turned into a racy novel, it would read:

"Susan, her burning desire growing in pulsating rushes, cupped the slice of pizza in her trembling hands, and..." You get the idea, I'm certain.

The commercial has had its desired effect on me, at least. I've never been much of a pizza fan, but that may all change now.

One reason I have never particularly liked pizza is because it's a copout food. People eat it when they can't think of anything else they want and when they're too lazy to cook something else for themselves.

Plus, I don't trust any food that has a "z" in its name. Like Zucchini. Yuk.

Also, I have never been quite certain exactly what some of the ingredients are that they put into pizza. Is an anchovy some sort of fish or a hairy little insect?

And have you ever noticed that most pizza places are manned by teen-age children with lots of pimples? What if some of that Clearasil got on my pizza?

But after I watched Susan Anton frolic with that slice of Pizza Hut pizza, I decided I couldn't live another moment without having some pizza of my own.

I was too lazy to get it myself, however, so I called Domino's and had it delivered.

A pimply-faced kid driving a Chrysler brought it to my front door.

Don't worry about women

Much ado was made recently about the NBC White Paper "Women, Work and Babies: Can America Cope?" A few weeks ago I would have considered that an authentic '80s dilemma. Today, I say nonsense! Of course we can cope.

This national hand-wringing about the stress and guilt of working mothers is being blown out of proportion. American women have triumphed over much greater challenges in the past. We have deeper strengths and greater survivor skills than we are aware of. So do our kids.

If you doubt this, read the accounts of our maternal ancestors who cleared land for homesteads in Pennsylvania and Ohio in the 18th century, and in the next, headed into the western wilderness with husbands, babies, wagons and mules.

A women's studies professor introduced me to all this recently when she lectured on early settlers of the Southwest. She told about Lydia Spencer Lane, who chronicled her adventures from 1854 to 1870 as the wife of a lieutenant in the Mounted Rifles. Her journal is called, "I Married A Soldier."

Lydia seldom complained about the hardships of child-rearing on long marches with the regiment, once traveling 1,000 miles from Texas into New Mexico. After being on the trail all day, she helped set up camp each evening and stooped over a cooking pot to make dinner. Next morning, she mixed dough for fresh biscuits, served with molasses on tin plates.

Some nights it rained, then snowed, and the tents froze. "It was with difficulty," she wrote, "that (the tents) could be made small enough to be packed in the wagon the next morning. It was a bitter cold ride (the next) day and when we camped at night, it was in the frozen tents on top of ice and snow, which had to be cut away for a place for the mattress. We slept in all our clothes, rolling our heads in shawls."

Numerous accounts of women who mothered while trail blazing appear in Lillian Schlissel's "Women's Diaries of the Westward Journey." Many became pregnant on the way, yet still walked beside the wagons in the hot afternoons to save the oxen. One woman gave birth on two chairs in "a covered wagon leaking rain and the floor deep in water."

Some had nothing but boiled wheat and peas to feed their children for months at a time. Others traded calico to Indians in exchange for salmon and buffalo.

Many accompanied their men to the tent cities of mining camps and went into business feeding miners. One ambitious woman started the day she arrived. She took just enough time to wash the prairie dust off her face, then chopped stakes and drove them into the ground to balance a wide board. By the time her husband returned from gathering wood, 20 miners were sitting around the table eating dinner at $1 a plate.

A good number of these stalwart wives lost their husbands to cholera or typhoid on the journey; when they finally arrived in Oregon or California, they had to devise ways to support themselves.

It is well-known that the great majority of working mothers today combine home and job responsibilities because they have no choice financially.

So why agonize about it, wondering if we can manage it all?

Let's take a lesson from our foremothers.

Police criticism builds as death toll mounts

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The police assault that incinerated at least 11 people in the fortress of the radical cult MOVE came under official attack and was targeted by lawsuits, but the mayor again defended the raid and a poll indicated he had strong public support.

Police and fire investigators, assisted by federal weapons agents, found guns, ammunition, a mortar and a basement bunker Wednesday while searching rubble from the MOVE house, which burned with 60 others after officers bombed the home's rooftop bunker on Monday.

Police also found the remains of five bodies Wednesday, bringing the toll to 11: four children and seven adults. They estimated that up to 15 people were in the house belonging to the cult organization that espouses a back-to-nature, anti-establishment philosophy.

Amid the MOVE debris, a charred, soaked tablet bore the message: "The cops will be coming for us. Don't be impressed by their numbers. Pick them out one by one."

Police, armed with warrants for four of the radicals, assaulted the house on Monday with bullets, water hoses, tear gas and finally a two-pound bomb. The ensuing fire left homeless at least 255 people who had been evacuated Sunday.

As the homeless began trying to rebuild their lives, criticism mounted. U.S. Civil Rights Commissioner Mary Frances Berry said she may consider asking the commission to investigate the assault on the MOVE row house.

Two lawsuits were filed on behalf of the homeless. One, filed in U.S. District Court, alleged that the damage is twice the city estimate of $5 million and named Mayor W. Wilson Goode, city Managing Director Leo Brooks and Police Commissioner Gregore Sambor. It was filed by attorney Richard Greenfield.

The second suit, filed by attorney

Anthony Dennis Jackson in Common Pleas Court, seeks $10 million in damages. It names Goode, Sambor, Gov. Dick Thornburgh and the unidentified helicopter crew that dropped the bomb.

State Rep. Hardy Williams, a Democrat representing the neighborhood, called for the resignation of Brooks, a former Army major general who directed the assault.

"I haven't got anything against generals, but anytime you bomb a house, it's about time they get rid of you," Williams said.

City Councilwoman Joan Krajewski called for the resignation of Goode's entire administration, including Sambor and Fire Commissioner William Richmond. "They have been poor leaders and they should be removed," she said.

Goode bristled at the suggestion. "I'm not second guessing ... one single person that I gave authority to act on my behalf," Goode said. "I stand full-square behind all the people in the field who made decisions."

"The whole purpose of the operation was to preserve life. What happened was an accident. ... I am fully and totally responsible," he said.

A poll, conducted by WCAU-TV and Steve Teichner and Associates, showed that residents in the five-county Philadelphia area did not share the criticism. The poll, which carried a margin of error of 5.8 percent, showed 71 percent of those surveyed looked at Goode's actions favorably.

The mayor said Wednesday he would have ruled out use of the bomb if he had known the radicals had stockpiled explosives or incendiary materials. But one day earlier he said the decision to undertake the assault was made on police intelligence showing the group had obtained enough explosives to possibly "blow up the entire neighborhood."

Bush residence questioned

HOUSTON (AP) — A June 3 hearing has been set to decide whether Vice President George Bush is a resident of Texas and therefore entitled to vote in the state.

The hearing was scheduled after State Rep. Clint Hackney, D-Houston, filed a complaint before last November's election challenging Bush's voter registration in Texas.

The vice president lists a home in Maine as his residence.

The hearing was set for Harris County Tax Assessor-Collector Carl Smith's office, which handles voter registration complaints.

Quilts, quilters sought

AUSTIN — "The Great Texas Quilt Roundup" offers contemporary Texas quilters the chance to win more than $5,000 in prizes for exciting quilts on Texas themes.

The top quilts will tour the state during the Sesquicentennial, Texas' 150th birthday, as part of an exhibition of the best modern quilts in Texas.

A special Sesquicentennial project, "The Great Texas Quilt Roundup" is jointly sponsored by the nonprofit Texas Sesquicentennial Quilt Association and The Rouse Company and its "Arts in the Marketplace" division.

The contest is open to all Texas quilters or quilters who have lived in Texas previously. Quilters can enter the contest in six categories: Texas history and symbols, Texas cultural influences, nature in Texas, traditional Texas quilt patterns, Texas industry, and Texas myths and heroes. Texas

Sesquicentennial Quilt Association offers a brochure describing these categories in detail and providing examples of each.

First grand prize winner will receive $2,000; second grand prize winner, $1,500; third grand prize winner, $1,000; and top winners in each category will receive $100.

Bonnie Leman, editor and publisher of "Quilter's Newsletter Magazine," the largest circulation quilt publication in the United States, will select the winners from finalists chosen by presidents of Texas quilt guilds.

Texas Sesquicentennial Quilt Association is officially sanctioned by the Texas Sesquicentennial Commission. The Rouse Company's "Arts in the Marketplace" division is corporate supporter of the contest and exhibition.

Quilters who want information or an entry form should send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to "Great Texas Quilt Roundup," TSQA, 10885 Katy Freeway, Suite 968, Houston, 77079. Deadline for sending TSQA a completed entry form with a photograph of the quilt is Dec. 1, and deadline for sending the finished quilt for judging is Jan. 15, 1986.

Dear Abby

Minister says Christian unity outweighs doctrinal disputes

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1985 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: As a minister of the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ), I want to applaud your response to "Cut Off in Virginia," whose son-in-law has forbidden her and her minister husband from visiting their home. You said, "Until you respect your daughter's right to religious freedom, forget about your 'rights' as a grandparent. You have none." Good for you!

"Cut Off's" letter indicates a lack of understanding of both the Gospel and of the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ). Sure we believe in "believers baptism" and understand that to be immersion. However, we have never claimed to be the only Christians, and have worked to bring the unity of Christ's people, recognizing all Christians, whatever the denomination, to be brothers and sisters in Christ.

I can only pray that "Cut Off" will someday be able to ask the forgiveness of her daughter and son-in-law and come to know their love and the love of the grandson.

RONALD E. NOWLIN,
A DISCIPLE MINISTER,
REDONDO BEACH, CALIF.

DEAR DISCIPLE MINISTER: I heard from many Disciple ministers, including Kenneth L. Teegarden, general minister and president of the Disciples of Christ in the United States and Canada, conveying the same message.

However, not all my readers agreed with me. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: Your curt response to the grandparents who told their son-in-law that his son was going to hell indicates that you are as intolerant as you accused these grandparents of being.

If you were in a burning building, would you be insulted by a warning from a fellow man? The intent of religious zealots is not to insult, but to warn.

It would behoove us all to examine and re-examine our beliefs. For just because the Constitution of the United States guarantees us freedom to worship God in any manner that we choose, it does not guarantee that God will be pleased with that choice.

We must put aside the popular misconception that as long as we are sincere, we'll be pleasing to him. Many, many examples in the Bible show that he wants and demands our very best in the way that he commanded it.

AN ASPIRING
PLEASER OF GOD

DEAR ABBY: In response to "Cut Off in Virginia": How sad that a Christian couple alienated themselves from their daughter and grandchild because they accuse her of "condemning" their grandchild to hell for being christened in the Episcopal church!

Our beautiful granddaughter was recently christened in an Episcopal church, and we are so proud that our daughter and her husband are providing our grandchild with the love and support of the Christian faith in whatever church they feel comfortable in. When so many other families are burdened with illness and severe problems, "Cut Off" should thank God that she has a healthy grandchild with loving parents.

"Cut Off" and her minister husband should reread the rich heritage of the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) and remember that one of the founders, Barton Stone, was a Presbyterian, and the purpose of the Christian Church was to unite Christians.

Your advice was strong, but as usual, excellent. Religious freedom must come before freedom to be prejudiced!

I will pray for Pastor and Mrs. Cut Off, that they might set aside their pride, embrace forgiveness and love, and enjoy their family.

ANOTHER MINISTER'S WIFE,
MRS. JAMES BRADFORD,
WATSONVILLE, CALIF.

Sun tanning extras

It takes more than suntan lotion to build a tan. Moisturizing is needed. Unless the lotion includes it, add a moisture lotion to treat dryness.

Tanning can be controlled after the desired tone is attained by using a sun block lotion on all exposed skin. Such lotion also will help prevent "age" spots, which result from permanent sun damage.

Hair removal

While you need time for repeated treatments, electrolysis remains the only proven method of permanent hair removal. This process must be done by a professional electrologist or a dermatologist who has also trained in electrolysis.

While electrolysis seems basically a simple matter of applying a mild current by a hair-fine needle in the hair follicle, it is really a delicate procedure needing both study and experience. Don't try any do-it-yourself methods. They can be either temporary or dangerous.

Official: General Dynamics 'fairly accused'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chief executive officer of General Dynamics, conceding that the giant defense contractor was "fairly accused" of submitting unallowable bills to the Pentagon, says a 700-person team is scrutinizing past billings to weed out questionable charges.

But a congressional investigator said Wednesday the Defense Department, sensitized by the controversy over those charges, has alerted its auditors to make sure the company does not submit a bill to cover the cost of the operation.

"Let me say that our past procedures with respect to our overhead account submittals for reimbursement have left something to be desired," General Dynamics Chairman David S. Lewis said in a letter to the House Armed Services Investigations subcommittee.

There was testimony earlier this year that, in billing for millions of dollars of unallowable overhead expenses, the company had charged the taxpayers for such things as the cost of boarding an executive's dog.

"The fact is that some inappropriate cost items were included ... which has been a cause of great embarrassment to us," Lewis said.

He noted that the Defense Contract Audit Agency has questioned $63.6 million of a total request for reimbursement of some $170 million for the years 1979 through 1982.

"We have voluntarily conceded approximately $23 million of the questioned amount ...," Lewis said.

He said the company now has put in place procedures assuring that "General Dynamics will never again be fairly accused of submitting inappropriate or unallowable bills for payment by the government."

But Williston B. Cofer, the staff member who led the Armed Services subcommittee investigation, said General

Dynamics has hundreds of people going through its records and that "government auditors have been alerted to watch for a bill from General Dynamics for it."

The full Armed Services Committee will hold hearings next week on legislation providing penalties for the submission of unallowable costs.

Meanwhile, the subcommittee on Wednesday released a report which members said demonstrates that the unallowable costs submitted by General Dynamics are in no way unique.

The committee, analyzing Pentagon audit reports for varying one-year periods for seven defense contractors, including General Dynamics, found a total $109 million in questioned bills.

"Now that our auditors have completed their review ... we are convinced that the General Dynamics billings were not unusual, neither in the amount nor the type of costs submitted," said Rep. William Nichols, D-Ala., the subcommittee chairman.

Nichols said that while General Dynamics was questioned on $15.3 million of its bills for the one-year period, the questioned billings of McDonnell Douglas Corp. totaled $31 million and those for the Boeing Co. totaled $29 million.

The other companies whose records were examined also had large questioned billings. They are Rockwell International, $12.3 million; Sperry Corp., $9.9 million; Newport News Shipbuilding and Drydock, $7.1 million, and Textron Corp., $4.9 million.

Cofer said the auditors found no evidence of criminal activity in the submission of questioned bills. He said there are many "gray areas" in federal acquisition regulations which make it advantageous for contractors to bill every possible expense.

An example of challenged items, according to the report:

Boeing charged $11,750 for the costs of the World Paper Airplane Championship.

Hearing turns into forum for E.F. Hutton criticism

WASHINGTON (AP) — As a lawyer, Sen. Joseph Biden says he saw eight of his clients go to jail for kiting checks. How then, he wants to know, have E.F. Hutton & Co. Inc. officials managed to avoid prison for the same scheme on a massive scale?

"They went to jail and they didn't even do one-one hundredth of a percent of what they did at E.F. Hutton," Biden, D-Del., said of the clients he unsuccessfully defended. "I'm supposed to go around talking about jailing people for drunken driving," Biden said, "and you can go out and steal a million dollars and it's, 'hey, see you around the club.'"

Biden joined other senators Wednesday in denouncing the Justice Department's decision not to prosecute any officials at E.F. Hutton while the company was charged with 2,000 felony mail and wire fraud counts.

The Senate Judiciary Committee turned an otherwise quiet confirmation hearing for D. Lowell Jensen, nominated as deputy attorney general, into a forum for complaints about handling of the Hutton case.

Biden called the failure to prosecute individuals a "travesty" that "undermines the credibility of the law."

Agreeing were senators on both sides of the aisle. "Why did the kingfish get away?" demanded Sen. Charles Mathias, R-Md., who questioned Jensen at length.

E.F. Hutton and Co. Inc. pleaded guilty on May 2 in federal court in Scranton, Pa., to the fraud counts, which were in connection with a $4.35 billion scheme from July 1980 to February 1982 to intentionally write checks in excess of deposits.

Court dispute stops 5A baseball playoffs

HOUSTON (AP) — A court dispute over the eligibility of two Aldine High School players has taken the state Class 5A high school baseball playoffs off the diamond.

University Interscholastic League Director Bailey Marshall started notifying the 32 Class 5A teams Wednesday that playoffs in their classification would cease until the court dispute is settled.

Playoffs in the other four classes will continue, Marshall said.

Marshall made the move after State District Judge Marsha D. Anthony extended a temporary restraining order that prohibits the Aldine school district from enforcing the state's education rules that prohibit a student from participating in extra-curricular activities if he or she is not passing all subjects.

Judge Anthony is hearing the cases of seven school districts that have challenged the new statutes that went into effect in January.

The case involving Aldine is last on the list of those pending and the state playoffs can't resume at least until it is resolved, Marshall said.

Marshall acted under provisions of another restraining order obtained by the mother of a West Orange Stark parent which asks postponement of the playoffs if Aldine is allowed to play. A hearing in that case is scheduled May 23.

Aldine defeated West Orange Stark last week in the first round of the Class 5A baseball playoffs using two players school officials said did not qualify under state guidelines that require students to pass all courses to be eligible for extra-curricular activities.

Bennie Dallas, mother of West Orange Stark third baseman Johnny Dallas, obtained the Orange restraining order. Mrs. Dallas said her son was ineligible at the start of the season but that she abided by the stricter rules and thought other students also should comply with those rules.

Marshall said the playoffs likely would be delayed at least until the weekend.

"We'll just have to wait until the courts decide," Marshall said. "But the big problem is when this is over with and we have to decide how to resume the playoffs. Then everything we do will be wrong."

Marshall said the UIL, which administers high school competition throughout the state, could decide to play games over a shorter period of time or complete the Class 5A schedule one week later than the rest of the state playoffs.

The judge began hearing the case of the Spring Branch Independent School District, involving Houston Stratford football player Nick Stamos, who was declared ineligible after failing a geometry class.

The student's father, Chris Stamos, testified that his son should be able to play in the school's final spring practice game Wednesday night.

The judge allowed the youth to participate in the game without ruling on the restraining order.

Stamos testified he did not understand the rule at the time it was implemented. He also said the rule was too strict and arbitrary.

The Stamos case was the only one considered so far in the day-long proceedings.

Doug Rader ponders future

Doug Rader expected to be fired

NEW YORK (AP) — Doug Rader is apparently about to be fired as manager of the Texas Rangers.

Rumors that Rader's job was in jeopardy were confirmed Wednesday night when New York Mets' third base coach Bobby Valentine said he had been offered the Texas post.

Valentine was to meet today with Rangers' majority owner Eddie Chiles, team President Mike Stone and General Manager Tom Grieve in Houston, where the Mets are playing the Astros.

"I've been offered the Rangers' job. Grieve gave me a verbal OK, but he said everybody has to agree. They might just drag it out until the weekend," Valentine told the Stamford (Conn.) Advocate.

"Tom told me that Eddie and (Stone) have to finalize everything and that's why they're all flying down here," he said. "I'm asking for a three-year contract. If they decide to offer me only one year, well, I guess that's something that could go wrong."

Youth baseball's formal opening slated Saturday

Barbecue and baseball will be in the spotlight when the Pampa Optimist Club holds its youth baseball opening day ceremonies at Optimist Park Saturday.

Thirty teams of boys and girls will participate in baseball and softball games throughout the day and barbecue will be served from noon until 5 p.m. Formal opening ceremonies are scheduled for 7 p.m.

Tickets are $5 for adults and $3 for children under 12. Optimist officials said the public is invited and urged families of all participating youths to attend.

Twenty-four of the teams will sponsor princesses in the Optimist Club's summer contest. They will hold various fund-raising events this summer to raise money for the Optimist sports program.

The princess and team which raises the most money will earn a $100 savings bond for the princess. The second-place princess will receive a $50 bond. Any team which earns as much as $5,000 will receive a pitching machine.

Contestants and the teams they represent from the National League are Pamela Hubbard, Dunlap; Brany Chase, Moose; Carilyn Downs, Celanese; Michelle Hines, Cabot; Carrie Barr, Dixie; Jill Aderholt, Duncan; Jessica Millie, Glo-Valve; and Shannon Lehman, OCAW.

American League princesses are Shana Greene, Harris; Amanda Dunlap, Rotary; Tiffany Soukup, One Bull; Gia Nix, Keyes; Kelly Winborne, Citizens Bank; Julie Rousser, Dean's; and Jamie Hardman, Holmes.

Names and teams for girls' softball have not been announced.

Home court doesn't mean much to Lakers, Nuggets

DENVER (AP) — Homecourt advantage? What homecourt advantage?

The reputed edge, which is supposed to loom larger in the playoffs, doesn't seem to mean much to the Los Angeles Lakers or the Denver Nuggets.

After knocking off the Lakers 136-114 in the Forum on Tuesday night to square their National Basketball Association playoff series at one game apiece, the Nuggets return home for Games 3 and 4 Friday night and Sunday afternoon.

The odds of winning the Western Conference championship series would seem to have shifted in the Nuggets' favor, except that Denver's McNichols Sports Arena doesn't look so friendly right now to the home team.

The Lakers, you see, have won eight straight games here, a string that dates all the way back to January 1982.

And Denver Coach Doug Moe says his team probably has lost its psychological edge as well.

"We had a psychological advantage playing in L.A., because nobody expected us to win," said Moe. "No one gave us a prayer of winning. We won't have that advantage at home the next two games."

Undaunted by the prospect of playing two straight road games, Laker forward James Worthy said, "I think at this point it doesn't matter where we play. It's all business. We've got to get to work."

Denver, of course, can always look forward to returning to Los Angeles for Game 5, set for next Wednesday. The Nuggets have won four of their last six games there.

The Nuggets outscored Los Angeles 47-28 in the final quarter of Tuesday night's game to reverse the outcome of the series opener, won by the Lakers 139-122.

"We're not going to beat the Lakers if they play like they did in the first game," Moe said. "We have to have them make mistakes, and we did that in the second game."

"You got to get lucky in this game. They won easy (in Game 1), and they probably thought they were going to win easy again. They were a little flat, and we took advantage."

Denver's fourth-quarter surge was helped by the absence of Los Angeles center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, who was ejected with 6:18 to play after wrestling Denver's Danny Schayes to the floor.

Abdul-Jabbar, apparently frustrated by a 4-for-16 shooting performance, earlier was assessed a technical for elbowing Schayes.

"They played a very physical game," said Lakers Coach Pat Riley, adding he expected to see more of the same for the remainder of the series.

Stewart seeking Colonial comeback

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Payne Stewart, golf's tarnished golden boy, says it may be this week, next week or next year, but he will erase the nightmare that began here a year ago on the banks of the Trinity River.

"Hey, keep giving me the chance, and one day I'll finish it off," said Stewart, 28, prior to the start of today's $500,000 Colonial National Invitation Tournament.

The former SMU sharpshooter was ruled as one of several favorites in the select field of 102 competing for a $90,000 first prize and the red plaid jacket that symbolizes a Colonial championship.

"I know I'm going to win again," said Stewart, who lost the NIT title here last year under conditions almost identical to his well-chronicled collapse Sunday at the Byron Nelson Classic.

"It may be this week, next week, two weeks or three years, but I'm going to win again," vowed the colorful Stewart, who won the Quad Cities Open in 1982 and the Walt Disney World Classic in 1983.

He brought a one-shot lead into the 72nd and final hole here a year ago but had to scramble for a bogey that took the tournament into sudden death.

Peter Jacobsen beat him on the first hole of the playoff, where Stewart again worked overtime for a bogey.

After squandering a 3-shot lead on the 72nd hole last week, he took a double bogey 6 on the first hole of sudden death and lost the Nelson crown to Bob Eastwood.

"This wasn't my week," he sighed after a lonely trek through the woods. "This wasn't my time to win. Maybe I'll have to win the Colonial."

For the man who brought pastel plus-fours, argyle socks and cap back to the links, and who won a record $288,795 last year without a tournament victory, that may be no easy task.

Curtis Strange, twice a winner this year and the tour's leading money winner, and eight former NIT champions head the field along with Tom Watson, Tom Kite, Ray Floyd, Lanny Wadkins, Mark O'Meara and Eastwood.

Besides defending champion Jacobsen, the former Colonial winners include Lee Trevino, Fuzzy Zoeller, Ben Crenshaw, Bruce Lietzke, Jim Colbert, Dave Stockton and Al Geiberger.

The rose-ringed Colonial course is a 7,096-yard, par 70 bit of treachery built along the turbulent Trinity River and known as Hogan's Alley, a tribute to five-time winner Ben Hogan.

Hogan won the inaugural NIT in 1946 and nailed his last title in 1959.

Several members of the 1985 field pronounced the course in prime condition and Stewart, making his second appearance here, said the greens could hardly putt better.

Sounding cheerful and confident despite his most recent disaster, the blonde Missouri native shot a one-under-par 69 in Wednesday's pro-am and said:

"I'm playing good. I'm playing good enough to win. Who knows? Maybe I'll win the next three."

Maybe.

Braves finally break through

By DICK BRINSTER
AP Sports Writer

Steve Bedrosian figured the frustration of the Atlanta Braves couldn't continue much longer and he was right — barely.

"I know these guys are going to score some runs," Bedrosian said Wednesday night after Gerald Perry homered in the ninth inning to tie the game and Terry Harper hit one out in the 10th to give the Braves a 3-2 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies.

Those three runs exceeded — by one — Atlanta's total for its previous seven games, five of which were shutouts. Atlanta, getting 6 1-3 strong innings from Bedrosian, won for just the third time in its last 11 games.

"That ball almost tore down the teepee," Perry said of Harper's blast into the left-field seats off loser Kent Tekulve. "Hopefully, this will get us going. We haven't been supporting our pitchers at all."

Elsewhere in the NL, it was Pittsburgh 3, San Francisco 2; Cincinnati 2, Montreal 1; New York 5, Houston 3; St. Louis 14, San Diego 4; and Chicago 3, Los Angeles 2.

Pirates 3, Giants 2
San Francisco reliever Scott Garrelts was disgusted with himself after walking Pittsburgh pinch-hitter Jason Thompson with the bases loaded in the ninth inning to score Bill Madlock with the winning run.

"On the 3-2 count, I tried to throw a perfect pitch," Garrelts said. "That was stupid. I should have thrown the ball down the middle and taken my chances."

Winner Don Robinson, 2-0.

worked two perfect innings.

Reds 2, Expos 1
Cincinnati's Joe Price was interrupted during a meal and told he'd be starting against Montreal in place of Mario Soto, who had a sore arm. Price performed like a hungry pitcher, allowing just three hits over eight innings.

Making his first start of the season, Price struck out eight and retired the last 17 Expos he faced. Though he had little time to prepare for his start, Price said he had no trouble adjusting.

"I've been around long enough to be able to do this kind of thing," he said.

Pete Rose had two hits to give him a career total of 4,123, 69 shy of Ty Cobb's all-time major-league mark.

Mets 5, Astros 3
Dwight Gooden, 6-1, the major-league leader in strikeouts with 57, fanned just one Houston batter in 6 1-3 innings, but relief ace Jesse Orosco made up for it by fanning five in 2 2-3 innings of perfect relief to gain his fifth save.

"I didn't have my best hard curvball tonight," said Gooden. "It's a good feeling to know that you have guys in the bullpen to pick you up when you don't have your best stuff."

Cardinals 14, Padres 4
Jack Clark homered, doubled and drove in four runs and Andy Van Slyke added three RBIs as St. Louis routed San Diego.

Joaquin Andujar, 6-1, went 6 2-3 innings to collect the victory, allowing 10 hits, walking one and striking out three.

The Cards launched their biggest inning of the year — a six-run first — off LaMarr Hoyt, 2-4, who gave up four consecutive hits to open the game.

Cubs 3, Dodgers 2
Scott Sanderson and Lee Smith combined on a five-hitter and Chicago survived two ninth-inning errors to hold off Los Angeles.

Sanderson, 2-1, who won for first time in a month, pitched 8 1-3 innings. Smith got the last two outs to record his ninth save after Ron Cey's error spoiled Sanderson's bid for his first shutout since 1981.

Catcher claims he called good game, but lost 19-3

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Catchers Jerry Narron of California and Charlie Moore of Milwaukee are prime candidates for American League Understatement of the Month.

"I was just trying to hit it back up the middle," Narron said of his pinch-hit, grand-slam home run off Toronto relief ace Bill Caudill. The clout came with two out in the ninth inning Wednesday night and capped a six-run outburst that gave the Angels a 9-6 victory over the Blue Jays.

"I really thought I called a good game," Moore said, although six Milwaukee pitchers were bombed for 19 hits and issued eight walks in a 19-3 loss to the Oakland A's, the worst shellacking in the Brewers' history.

In other American League action, Minnesota nipped Detroit 5-4 in 11 innings. New York edged Texas 6-5 in 10. Chicago downed Baltimore 5-2. Kansas City beat Cleveland 5-1 and Seattle trimmed Boston 7-1.

Mike Davis led Oakland with his 11th and 12th homers plus a single — he drove in six runs and scored four — and Dwayne Murphy also homered. The A's got five runs in both the second and eighth innings and scored off every Milwaukee pitcher, starting with Teddy Piguera.

Said Moore: "I can't remember a game like this ever. They hit everything we threw up there. Good, bad, it was unbelievable."

Twins 5, Tigers 4
Randy Bush rapped a tie-breaking, bases-loaded single with two out in the 11th off Aurelio Lopez following an intentional walk to Kent Hrbek and an error by Detroit first baseman Barbaro.

Garbey, Kirby Puck5 ngled with one out and Mickey Hatcher hit a line drive off Garbey's glove for a two-base error. After Hrbek was walked to load the bases, Tom Brunansky grounded into a forceout at the plate before Bush's hit.

The Tigers tied the game on Kirk

Gibson's two-run homer, his fifth of the season, with two out in the ninth inning off Minnesota starter John Butcher, who also yielded a two-run homer to Darrell Evans in the sixth.

Yankees 6, Rangers 5
The Yankees were held hitless by Texas relievers Greg Harris and Dave Schmidt after the third inning but Dave Winfield led off the 10th by drawing a walk and stealing second. He moved to third on Don Baylor's fly ball to deep left center, barely beating the throw. After Ken Griffey was intentionally walked, Butch Wynegar hit a chopper that first baseman Pete O'Brien charged but bobbled for his first error of the season.

New York relief ace Dave Righetti, 2-2, went 1 1-3 innings for the victory.

White Sox 5, Orioles 2
Greg Walker blasted a tie-breaking, three-run home off reliever Don Aase in the bottom of the eighth. Aase replaced starter Dennis Martinez at the start of the inning and was greeted by Rudy Law's double. Law was sacrificed to third by Scott Fletcher and Harold Baines was intentionally walked before Walker foiled the strategy with his fourth home run of the year.

Tom Seaver allowed four hits in eight innings for his 292nd career victory, including home runs by Cal Ripken and Jim Dwyer. Chicago's Tim Lulett hit his first major-league homer.

Royals 5, Indians 1
Steve Balboni cracked a two-run homer and Charlie Leibrandt fired a six-hitter. Jorge Orta opened the Kansas City second with a double off Don Schulze and Balboni hit his seventh home run. The Royals added three runs in the eighth.

Mariners 7, Red Sox 1
Mark Langston held Boston to one hit in seven innings and Gorman Thomas, Alvin Davis and Jim Presley belted solo home runs. Langston walked seven but the only hit he surrendered was Marc Sullivan's first major-league homer in the fifth.

Arkansas chasing fourth straight title

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Olympic silver medalist Mike Conley leads the Arkansas track team as it seeks its fourth straight Southwest Conference outdoor track championship this weekend.

Add to that the advantage of competing on their own turf and the Razorbacks look like the favorites. A tight race for second is to pit Texas, Houston, Southern Methodist University and Baylor.

Arkansas, coached by John McDonnell, also has won five straight SWC indoor championships and 11 straight cross country championships.

The last team other than Arkansas to win a league track title was Texas A&M in 1981. Arkansas also is the 1984 and 1985 NCAA indoor champion and won the NCAA cross country title last fall.

Conley, who won his medal in the triple jump at the 1984 Summer Olympics in Los Angeles, holds the conference meet record of 56-2 1/4 in that event. His best this season is 56-4 1/4.

Assistant track coach Ted King of Arkansas said there will be a new triple jump record after the meet Friday and Saturday. "Mike will beat that and rightly so," King said. "The new runway, particularly at the take-off point, has a beautiful consistency and is bouncy. So, there should be a lot of great performances this weekend."

The teams will be competing on a new long jump and a triple jump runway built in front of the grandstand at the Razorback track.

Conley has won every SWC long jump competition the past four years. His best jump this year — 26-7 1/4 — is short of the meet record set in 1981 by Olympian Carl Lewis.

Highlights of the meet include competition by four NCAA champions and defending conference champions in 12 of the 17 events.

Three runners entered for the 1,500-meter run have posted times below the SWC record of 3:42.53, set by Baylor's Todd Harbour. SMU's Paul Rugut ran a 3:37.81 two weeks ago. Arkansas' Paul Donovan has run 3:39.88 and Rice's Gawayn Guy has turned in a 3:41.00.

SWC record-holders entered in the meet include high jumper Bill Jasinski of Arkansas, pole vaulter David Hodge of Baylor and 200-meter sprinter Kirk Baptiste of Houston.

In the women's competition, Houston and Texas are to continue to dominate the overall championship. Houston has won the women's title the past two years.

Inmate: executions like 'eating potato chips'

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Death row inmates, reflecting on the execution of fellow prisoner Jesse de la Rosa, say executions in Texas now are "like eating potato chips — it's hard to stop."

De la Rosa, at 24 the youngest convict executed in Texas since the Supreme Court reinstated the death penalty in 1976, was put to death early Wednesday. He was the third Texas Department of Corrections inmate to die by lethal injection this year and among the seven to die since the state resumed executions in 1982. Five other convicts have death dates set through July 22.

Henry Martinez Porter, scheduled to die July 9, said de la Rosa had hoped he would get a stay.

"He was hopeful and his family was hopeful he'd get a stay from a court," Porter said. "He never expected to get a stay from (Gov.) Mark White."

White, as in previous last-minute pleas from inmates, refused to grant de la Rosa a 30-day reprieve.

The next Texas inmate with a death date, G.W. Green, said the increasing number of executions "is like eating potato chips — it's hard to stop."

But Green, convicted of confessing to the slaying of Ghazali. He refused, however, to identify the triggerman.

He was convicted in the 1979 slaying of Masaoud Ghazali, a former Iranian Air Force captain who had worked as a 7-11 convenience store clerk in San Antonio for about three weeks.

"God, I give my life for my brothers and sisters," he said in a final statement spoken in Spanish.

De la Rosa's attorneys began trying for a stay after two days of unsuccessful appeals. The execution date was the second for de la Rosa, who said a week ago that he was coerced into

New tax plan: higher exemptions, fewer deductions and lower rates

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan has settled on major elements of a tax overhaul plan that would mean a higher personal exemption, lower rates and fewer deductions for most Americans.

Reagan, however, will delay the proposal a week while the House struggles with the 1986 budget.

The president plans to launch a speaking blitz on behalf of the plan with a televised speech from the Oval Office on May 28, White House spokesman Larry Speakes said Wednesday.

Reagan agreed to the delay at the request of Senate Majority Leader Robert J. Dole and House Minority Leader Robert Michel. A splashy introduction of the sweeping tax measure could divert House members' attention from the urgency of slashing the deficit by reducing spending, the GOP leaders contended.

Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., whose House Ways and Means Committee originates tax legislation in Congress, the delay could be costly. "Delay saps the cause of tax reform — and raises doubts about the president's nerve," Rostenkowski said.

Nevertheless, "The basic decisions are essentially made," Speakes told reporters. "There may be some additional refinement by the Treasury Department as they put the president's decisions into the computers. But the basic, fundamental decisions are made by the president."

According to an administration official, who asked not to be quoted by name, the president's proposals will include:

—Reduced individual tax rates. Present law has 15 rates for couples and 16 for single people, ranging from 11 percent to 50 percent. Reagan wants to compress those brackets into three: 15 percent, 25 percent and 35 percent.

—Boosting the personal exemption. Present law permits a taxpayer to avoid taxes on $1,040 for himself or herself, the spouse and each dependent. Inflation is expected to raise the exemption to $1,090 in 1986. The president's plan would boost it to $2,000.

—Eliminating many deductions and limiting others. The plan will continue to allow deduction of home mortgage interest, for example, but seeks to repeal the writeoff for state and local taxes paid. People who itemize deductions would be allowed to continue deducting most charitable contributions, but the special writeoff for those who do not itemize would be repealed.

—Most employer-paid fringe benefits would continue tax-free. The major exception would be to tax the first $300 per year of health insurance premiums that employers pay for workers.

—A tougher minimum tax on corporations, which — like the present minimum tax — is designed to assure that profitable firms pay some federal income tax no matter how many deductions and credits they use.

AUSTIN (AP) — A bill that would end state tax credits for out-of-state gasohol producers has been approved by a Senate committee.

Since the credits became available in 1981, 98.5 percent of the credits have been awarded to out-of-state gasohol producers, said Rep. Jim Horn, R-Lewisville, who is sponsoring the bill.

The bill approved by the Senate Finance Committee Wednesday limits tax credit to gasohol produced in Texas with Texas grown ingredients.

"A small number of unbranded markets that sell gasohol are being subsidized by through the state tax exemption," said Dave Fellers.

"It seems unfair to us that the state would subsidize these alcohol producers and limited number of blenders."

Guidelines for a great GARAGE SALE

With a little planning and preparation, you can turn your garage sale into a big event! To assure that both you and your customers have the best possible garage sale experience, follow these tips:

1. Advertise what people want! Children's clothing, dishes, collectibles, tools, books and antiques are the most popular items.
2. Make it convenient to shop at your garage sale! Be sure there is adequate parking space. Post signs with directions to parking areas. Make arrangements with neighbors.
3. Hope for the best. Expect the worst. Be prepared for accidents. Have small bandages, aspirin and a rest area for minor problems. Also, be sure to have emergency numbers for police, ambulance, fire and doctor in a handy location.
4. Make it easy to pay! Have plenty of change and a system for handling it: muffin tins, nail aprons, small compartments of some kind to keep coins separated. Make sure one person is on duty at all times at a centralized location, preferably with a calculator or adding machine.
5. Checks? No checks? Decide ahead of time if you will accept checks; then stick to your decision.
6. Be kind to your customers. Assist them with purchases. Provide a place to try on clothing. Answer all questions courteously. Help them carry large or unwieldy purchases to their cars. Offer a free cup of coffee.
7. Provide prices. Do not make every person ask, "How much is this?" Prices make for quick, effective sales or a good place for customers to start bargaining.
8. Get an early start! Set up displays the evening before, if possible.
9. Departmentalize. Separate the inexpensive items from the more costly ones. Group furniture, clothing, toys, lawn equipment and other items with similar merchandise.
10. Specialize. Establish one area for "Under $5," another for "Under $1." Consider having a batch of items that are "Free with purchase of $3." Remember the youngsters, too. Children enjoy visiting garage sales and buying treats for themselves and gifts for family members. Encourage this with small, low-priced items that are appropriate for this purpose.
11. Time your sale carefully! Do not hold it on or near a holiday. Have it at a time when most people are at home and unconcerned with special events.
12. Combine your efforts! Incorporate your sale with a neighbor for more variety and greater impact. If you follow this suggestion, be sure to label all items with color-coded tape or initials so proper credit can be given. Use an inventory sheet to keep track of sale items as they are sold.
13. Be specific! When advertising your sale in the newspaper, list individual items. Don't simply say, "several things available." Each time you list an item, you are broadening the list of potential customers.
14. Be generous! If you have items left over, give them to a charitable organization. If you see that some items are not moving well during the sale, mark them down during the last hours. Remember, the prime reason for holding the sale is to turn your unwanted items into cash!
