Driveways, dogs, cabs on city meet agenda

BY LARRY HOLLIS
Staff Writer

Pampa city commissioners will discuss driveways, dogs, taxi cabs and water treatment matters during their regular meeting at 9:30 a.m. Tuesday.

To be considered on first reading will be an ordinance regulating the installation of pipes within the gutter line of residential driveways.

The proposed ordinance is in response to problems arising last summer when city crews removed pipes, concrete and asphalt humps from a number of driveway entrances during street repairs and seal coating operations.

The action drew angry reactions from a number of residents, with a citizens' group formed. The group later filed suit against the city and ran a slate of candidates in the recent city election.

City Manager Bob Hart, who was not in office at the time of the removal of the driveway entrances, has met with city officials and involved citizens in preparing the ordinance he will submit Tuesday for consideration.

The ordinance will establish standards for the installation of pipes and other entrances to driveways to alleviate such problems as cars dragging bottom when entering and leaving the driveways. In addition, the ordinance will permit the city to pay costs of replacing the pipes removed last summer under specified situations and conditions.

Also on the agenda is consideration of city action relative to the impoundment of dogs and the operation of a business within a residential area.

The action relates to a request made at the last regular commission meeting by Veal Ferguson regarding the operation of a kennel and grooming service by Suzie Reed at 1105 Juniper. Ferguson has made complaints about the noise of the dogs and the operation of the dog business in a residential area.

A court case between Ferguson and Reed is due to be heard in Municipal Court on Wednesday.

The commissioners will consider issuing a permit to the Texas Panhandle Community Action Corporation for the operation of a transit and taxi cab service within the corporate limits of the city.

Panhandle Transit began operations in the city in February, offering transportation for the general public but especially for senior citizens and the handicapped on a "reserve-a-seat" basis. The cab system is the result of a contract funded through the U.S. Department of Transportation and subcontracted through the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation.

David Webster, owner of Yellow Checker Cab, has claimed the government-subsidized operations has adversely affected his private business, with his revenue dropping since Panhandle Transit began operations.

At the time of its beginning operations, Panhandle Transit did not apply for the city permit, but it has since done so. Company officials said the failure to apply for a permit was an oversight and they wish to be in compliance with city regulations.

In other business, commissioners will consider authorizing a contract with Operations Management International, Inc., in which OMI will take over the management and operation of the city's water treatment plant and waste water treatment plant.

OMI will take over the plants on May 1. Under the terms of the contract, the city employees now at the plant will become employees of OMI; the employees will not lose sick leave or vacation time and pay accumulated under city employment.

The city will still be responsible for capital expenditures and utility and maintenance costs, with OMI responsible for repairs, keeping the water standards up to state and federal requirements and maintaining the plant efficiently.

In zoning matters, the commission will consider on first reading two ordinances relating to zoning changes. One is a request for a change from Agriculture to Single Family 2 District for a tract northwest of Briarwood Place. The other involves a change from Retail to Commercial District for the triangle tract bounded by Hobart, 23rd Ave. and Perryton Parkway.

Commissioners will consider setting May 14 as the date for public hearings on three other zoning change requests.

In other matters, the commissioners will consider awarding bids for construction of a restroom facility at Hobart Street Park, approving a contract with Wagner and Kline, Inc., architectural firm on renovation services for City Hall, appointing members to the Traffic Commission and the Parks and Recreation Board, approving a fire support service contract with Carson County and paying bills.

Hart will report on Panhandle Industrial paving, Kentucky St. paving, wading pools, enforcement of the ordinance against abandoned vehicles and the runoff election canvassing meeting.

An executive session is planned for the discussion of litigation against the city.

Girls coach facing child sexual assault charge quits

BY JEFF LANGLEY
Senior Staff Writer

Two girls coaches in the Pampa schools — women who both attended college at Fort Hays, Kan., and share a home here — have resigned, and one has been charged with molesting a child, authorities and school officials said.

Allison Renee Ott, 26, the Lady Harvesters' junior varsity basketball coach, was arrested Saturday and charged with sexual assault of a child.

Ott surrendered on the charge at the police station about 2 p.m. Saturday. She was arraigned before Justice of the Peace David Potter, who set bond at $10,000. Ott was in police custody about four hours. She was released about 6 p.m., after a bondsman posted her bail.

Superintendent James Trusty declined to say whether the reported victim of the alleged sexual assault was one of Ott's student athletes. The child involved was a 15-year-old white girl, police said.

Police said the case has been referred to the district attorney's office for prosecution. An office spokeswoman said District Attorney Guy Hardin and assistant David Hamilton were unavailable for comment.

The high school girls coach and health teacher had given her immediate resignation Thursday, Trusty said.

Ott's roommate, middle school girls coach and physical education teacher Beverly Morlan, also gave her immediate resignation Thursday, the superintendent said.

Morlan has not been charged with any crime, according to police records.

The women coaches live together at 1129 N. Starkweather, according to school and police records and the city directory.

The two coaches could not be contacted for comment Monday morning. Morlan's Pampa phone number is unlisted at her request, and Ott has no listing.

Trusty said the resignations of the coaches were "accepted administratively" and effective immediately. He declined to give the reason for the resignations.

The superintendent said he couldn't comment about the charge against Ott, saying it was a "police matter."

"The school has acted on information we had," Trusty said, adding that he couldn't comment on specifics.

Both women were hired by the Pampa school system for their first teaching jobs, the superintendent said. Both were hired as coaches and teachers after finishing school at Fort Hays (Kansas) College, he

Chamber off, running in membership drive

The horses have left the starting gate and taken the first turn on the track as Pampa Chamber of Commerce members continue their 3-R's Sweepstakes Derby membership drive.

The 3-R's are Retain, Renew and Recruit as the chamber seeks new members for its stables.

Eleven teams, all named for horses, are competing in the sweepstakes as they strive for a goal of 65 new members and $12,000 in investments to better finance the chamber's operations and services to the city.

At the first check-in late last week, Sir Glow was in the lead with 1377 points accumulated under the rules of the competition, with Sleepinbird close behind with 1335 points.

In the show position at the first turn was Isle B Read with 1060 points.

Keeping close behind in the stretch were N Finette with 649 points, Investment Credit with 609 and Imreddy with 520. Vinegar Roan maintained seventh place with 470 points, with Metallic Gray and Freedom's Jet running neck-to-neck with 300 points each.

Lagging behind were Whatabargeen with 200 and Loose Dollar with 100. But the race has yet a ways to go, with no winners declared yet.

In honor of the chamber drive, Mayor Calvin Whatley appeared at the racetrack to issue a proclamation designating the membership drive period as Chamber of Commerce Member Recruitment Weeks. The race started April 15, with the horses to cross the finish line on Friday, April 26.

"Enthusiasm is real high," reported Chamber Manager Floyd Sackett.

In his proclamation, Mayor Whatley states the chamber "is the voice of the people and the businesses in Pampa" and notes the chamber is supported solely by member investments, with no tax monies from any source.

The chamber had 735 members at the start of the race. Phil Gentry, chamber president, said

Clements says he may have to run

DALLAS (AP) — Former Gov. Bill Clements says he may have to run for governor next year unless he can find a strong Republican opponent for Democratic Gov. Mark White.

Clements has spent much of the past six weeks talking to people like Roger Staubach and Ross Perot but none of those has given much inclination to run for governor.

Clements is still searching for qualified candidates to carry the GOP banner against White next year, the Dallas businessman said in an interview with The Dallas Morning News.

Despite past statements that he wouldn't run for office again, Clements said there is a possibility he himself will oppose White, who stunned Clements with an upset win in 1982.

"With all the ifs and ands and buts, which makes it speculative, I guess you'd have to say that's probably correct. But it's not anything I'm wanting to do or I'm running for," Clements said.

Clements met last weekend with some high-ranking Republican officials to discuss potential candidates, including himself, the newspaper reported Sunday. Clements said his recruitment drive is not aimed at any particular candidate.

"I'm not trying to recruit one of my big buddies in order to say this is my candidate. If we can get two or three or four viable, outstanding and highly regarded candidates, why not?" Clements asked.

Sen. Phil Gramm, a conservative Democrat and leading Boll Weevil before changing parties and winning election to the U.S. Senate, has made overtures toward former Rep. Kent Hance, suggesting that Hance oppose White as a Republican in 1986.

Hance wouldn't rule out a switch of parties, saying he'd learned "never to say never," but indicated such a strategy is not in the cards, the News reported.

Rep. Tom Loeffler, R-Texas of Hunt, also indicated last week that he is considering a race for governor.

Corporate raider T. Boone Pickens of Amarillo has also said he has considered a bid for the governor's mansion, but that his current business ventures might keep him too busy to enter politics.

Area appraisers doubt state figures

Report claims property still not appraised at same rate

BY CATHY SPAULDING
Staff Writer

The Texas Research League has published a report showing that despite several years of effort taxable property in Texas is still not appraised at the same ratio and much of it is not taxed at 100 percent of market value as required by law.

The report shows that property across the state is appraised at rates ranging from less than 30 percent of market value up to a high of 165 percent. In the Pampa area, it says appraisal rates range from a low of 81.5 percent in the Pampa school district to a high of over 104 percent in the Grandview-Hopkins district.

But area tax appraisers doubt some of the figures used in the report.

The report, Appraisal Practices and Tax Burdens of Texas Local Governments, lists independent school districts and the percent appraisal of market value by property category as determined by the State Property Tax Board in 1983.

Although state law prohibits the use of an assessment ratio other than 100 percent, the state and county appraisers often disagree on the actual ratios being used. As a result, county appraisers in Roberts, Carson, Gray and other counties have often taken issue with the state figures and asked that they be changed.

"It's hard in the first place to do mass appraisals," Gray County Appraiser Charles Buzzard. "Private appraisers are allowed to go into the houses and check the actual value. And improvements obviously make a difference in the value of the house."

"We have 8,500 homes in the Pampa ISD and 900 pieces of commercial-industrial property," he said.

Buzzard also took issue with figures the state report listed for commercial property in Alanreed and Grandview-Hopkins School Districts.

"We have to run a battle with the state tax board," he said. "I feel like the value they placed on Alanreed ISD vacant lots were not correct."

The report listed the value of vacant lots in Alanreed at 66 percent of market value. Commercial and industrial property there was estimated at 64 percent. In Grandview-Hopkins ISD, it said commercial property was appraised at 54 percent. "But everything is closing there," Buzzard said, observing that appraisers from the lower more populous part of the state are not fully aware of the economic condition of the area.

The report listed the average ratio in Pampa ISD at 81.6 percent, with single family residents appraised at 77 percent and commercial and industrial listed at 79 percent.

Buzzard explained that appraisals in the Pampa ISD are still underway, while appraisals in the other school districts have been completed. Buzzard expects that appraisals in Pampa ISD will be completed in about a year.

One state figure that Buzzard doubted was the one listing the value of bank property stocks in Pampa at eight percent, compared with 24 percent in McLean ISD. He said that current legislation and litigation concerning how banks are taxed may change that. Starting this year, while banks still must pay property tax on real estate, stocks are not counted as property tax. Banks must now pay a franchise tax.

"We're higher than that," he said. "But that may be a typographical error. It could be 80 or 88 percent."

Other average assessment ratios in Gray County school districts were 99.9 percent for Alanreed, 99.0 percent for Lefors, 100.9 percent for McLean and Grandview-Hopkins at 104.6.

"I don't put a lot of faith in the state figures," said Carson County Appraiser Diane Lavake, adding that the state board is in "kind of a different world."

The report listed the average ratio in Groom ISD at 98.2 percent, Panhandle ISD at 99.4 percent and White Deer ISD at 95.9 percent. Despite the close range of ratios, Lavake pointed out that there are several discrepancies and variables in the different property classifications.

For example, the value of bank property in Panhandle was listed at 61 percent, compared to 149 percent in White Deer.

"I'm sure Jim Weese (president of the White Deer bank) would gladly pay 149 percent of property value," she said sarcastically.

"And you know oil companies would not pay 111 percent (the oil and gas ratio) the state claims for Groom ISD," she added. "The schools are funded on how close we are to the state figures. If they want to say we're over the market value, that's just more money the school gets."
Oil and gas ratios in White Deer-Skellytown were set at 96 percent of market value while ratios in Panhandle were 103 percent.
"Groom School is the one that hurts the most because the other districts have so much oil and gas revenue," she said.
In appraising local properties, the State Property Tax Board contracted with professional appraisers to work each of the 1,070 school district areas. The estimate of market value is made separately for each category of property. For those categories readily sold, for the sales of the land, houses or lots are obtained. The selling price is verified and compared with the appraised value for tax purposes and a ratio calculated for the sample of properties. That ratio is then applied to the total for that category of properties.
If there were no sales of that type of property, the professional appraisers made an independent appraisal of a sample of properties which was compared with the appraised value for tax purposes.

But such sample appraising is inaccurate, Lavake claimed.
"In White Deer school district, if they picked up a sale in Skellytown and used it, it would not be the same ratio as in White Deer."
However, the system might change. Lavake pointed out that the SPTB now has a full-time field appraiser who will be available to work with school districts year-round. In the past, an area appraiser worked part time for various entities.
With this, she hopes, the rates could be higher and closer to the market value.
Roberts County Appraiser Debbie Stribling agrees that the current system of appraising market values is inaccurate.
"When they came into our county, they used land and sales just north of Pampa to determine the market value," she said, adding that land values there are not the same as in other parts of the county.
The state said the average ratio for Miami, the county's only school district, is 82.9 percent. Stribling's figures were rounded up to 83 percent.

State and Roberts County ratios were similar in other areas except for banking and non-business personal property. The state set the Miami bank figure at 22 percent; Stribling had no current bank ratio figures. The state set non-business personal property (airplanes, mobile homes, trailers, boats) at 58 percent. Stribling's figures for "other" personal property were higher than that at 90 percent.
"We know our mobile home ratios were higher than that (58 percent)," she said.
Still, Stribling is not too upset at the discrepancies.
"We could have fought it, but our school district is budget balanced (dependent almost entirely on local taxes for funding), so we're not hurting," she said.
Ratios in school districts in Wheeler County varied, according to the report. The highest ratio was in Briscoe ISD, which had 97.5. The lowest ratio, Shamrock, was 89.2. The ratios for Mobeetie and Wheeler were each 90 percent. Kelton listed a ratio of 91.3 while Allison's was 92.5. The Lela ISD listed a ratio of 94.4.
In Hemphill County, Canadian ISD was listed with an average ratio of 93.6.

Coaches

An acquaintance said the women grew up in Pampa.
Ott was in her third year with the local school district, Trusty said. She was a health - P.E. teacher at the high school and was an assistant coach for the Lady Harvesters varsity basketball, volleyball and track teams. She was head coach of the girls junior varsity basketball team.

Morian was in her second year with the district. She was a P.E. teacher at the middle school and an assistant coach for the middle school girls basketball, volleyball and track teams.

State Department dismisses Nicaragua peace proposal

WASHINGTON (AP) - A new Central American peace proposal set forth by Nicaraguan President Daniel Ortega is being dismissed by the State Department as a meaningless gesture designed to ensure the consolidation of a "Marxist-Leninist order" in that country.
In a statement Sunday night, the department said Ortega's proposal, which includes a call for a conditional cease-fire, was unacceptable because it does not allow for a dialogue with opposition groups.
"Without such a dialogue, such a cease-fire is meaningless and essentially a call on the opposition to surrender," State Department press officer Gilbert Callaway said.
Alfonso Robelo, a former Sandinista loyalist who has since joined the opposition forces, described the initiative in a telephone interview as "old poison in a new bottle."

Ortega's proposal was worked out with two Democratic senators, Tom Harkin of Iowa and John Kerry of Massachusetts, during lengthy meetings late last week in Managua. They presented the offer to members of the Senate Democratic leadership here on Sunday.
Ortega promised a more flexible policy provided the United States ends all forms of support for the Nicaraguan Contra forces.
His proposal added a new dimension to the ongoing congressional debate over renewed U.S. assistance to Nicaragua as deeply divided senators and House members prepared for a Tuesday vote on the issue.
Ortega's offer represented an 11th hour bid to turn congressional sentiment against the administration. The Contras have received no assistance for a year, and the administration has placed the highest priority on reviving it.

The proposal Kerry and Harkin brought back to Washington contained no provision for an internal reconciliation through dialogue but the Nicaraguan leader appeared to hold that option open in an interview Sunday night with NBC News.
"First, the war must be ended against us on the part of the U.S. Then the appropriate conditions will have been created for further steps and dialogue," Ortega said through an interpreter.
He added that if the United States rejects the cease-fire plan, "then it's quite clear (President) Reagan wants war and not peace."

Trim trees for traffic safety

BY BOB HART
Pampa City Manager
Springtime is upon us. Trees are beginning to leaf out, flowers are blooming and, unfortunately, corners are becoming traffic hazards due to the growth of all these plants.
If you own a corner lot and your trees obstruct traffic control signs such as stop or yield signs, please call us here at the city and let us come out and trim those trees back. It would be unfortunate for an unnecessary traffic accident to occur.
City ordinances provide that no fence, screening wall or any other visual barrier shall be located or placed so that it obstructs the vision of a motor vehicle driver approaching any street, alley or drive intersection. All street intersections should have clear vision for a distance of 15 feet from the property line along both streets.
Your help in keeping our city as accident free as possible would be greatly appreciated.

In other areas this week, our Neighborhood Integrity Department is beginning to move forward with the enforcement of the ordinance against abandoned vehicles.
Clean Pampa, Inc., has recently completed a survey of the community and has presented that to our office with a request that the ordinance be enforced. Letters are being sent on all properties identified by the survey.
Persons who receive a letter may contact our Neighborhood Integrity Department at 665-8483 if they have any questions.
Abandoned vehicles may be kept in a way so that the vehicle is in compliance with the ordinance in a number of different ways. Vehicles may be kept in a place where it cannot be seen from the public street. The owner may place a tarp over the vehicle, covering it and hiding it from view.
Additionally, you may place the vehicle behind a solid wall fence. Chain-link fences which enclose an abandoned vehicle may have fast growing shrubs such as hedges planted around the fence, or blinds may be inserted in the chain-link fences to hide the view.

If you have a vehicle that you would like to discard, you may contact the city and we will provide for the removal of the vehicle at no cost to you.
Abandoned vehicles are public nuisances if they are in a place where they are visible from a public place or within a public right of way. They tend to reduce the value of private property and often invite vandalism or create fire hazards.
We want to work with every citizen in Pampa to provide a clean environment so that all of us can enjoy the fine quality of life that we have here in Pampa.
I would also be remiss if I did not remind you once again that the runoff in the mayor's race will be on Saturday, May 4. Absentee voting is continuing in City Hall from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday until Tuesday, April 30.

the chamber is planning to keep all the present members and reach a goal of at least 800 total membership this year.
In addition to its promotion of new businesses and recruiting of new industries and businesses for the city, the chamber serves as a resource center for citizens needing to contact other cities.

The chamber maintains a city directory library, with cross-reference city directories for more than 200 cities in the nation. These are available for the public to use while the chamber is open, Sackett noted. To purchase these directories on an individual basis would cost in excess of $30,000.
The chamber also has a

Gentry noted the chamber also maintains a state map and brochure library, with maps from almost all of the 50 states. The only states not available are those which charge for the maps. All maps are given free to the public at the present time.
City maps of several major cities are also available, as well as brochures of many tourist attractions in the nation.

Senate committee works on two-year budget

AUSTIN (AP) — A Senate committee moving toward completion of a two-year state budget of about $36 billion scheduled another session today in hopes of wrapping up final details on the proposal.

The Senate Finance Committee worked Sunday on the spending plan, approving a budget for the Texas Education Agency, which is charged with overseeing the broad educational reforms adopted by the Legislature last summer.

Sen. Grant Jones, committee chairman, said the Senate appropriations bill includes about $36 billion for 1986-87. The House proposal, which is for $36.4 billion, is scheduled for a floor vote Wednesday.

Jones, D-Abilene, said balancing the Senate bill would require a tuition increase and an increase in numerous state fees.

A major difference in the House and Senate bills is that the House proposes raising state employee salaries by 3 percent each year of the biennium if seven fee bills also are passed.

The Senate bill contains no raises for the 180,000 people employed by the state.

"I don't see that we've got prospects of passing anything that leaves having enough money to make a significant employee pay raise," Jones said.

Another difference is in kindergarten funding. The Legislative Budget Board staff also told the Senate committee the House bill includes funding for full-day kindergarten. Senators indicated they prefer half-day state funding with the additional money going to the basic pupil allotment.

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby attended the 4½-hour committee session as senators questioned new State Education Commissioner William Kirby on how the TEA would spend the money it has requested.

Afterwards, Kirby told reporters the Senate bill would provide the agency with about $36 million a year to administer public school programs — about $2.3 million less than in the House budget bill.

Much of the Senate committee discussion centered on what to do with a $10.37 million the state is saving by postponing competency tests for teachers on their specialties and $1.67 million that would be raised by certain education fees.

A motion was accepted 9-2 to use the money for other TEA projects, including training teacher appraisers, certifying teachers, helping school districts remain accredited and developing a common curriculum for all public schools. These are items required by the Legislature.

An additional $325,120 was earmarked for school guidance centers, which now get a total of $3 million a year, and $1.5 million was added for community education, much to the surprise of Sen. Bob Glasgow.

"I'll be damned," he exclaimed when his amendment passed 7-4.

The committee also approved special provisions, called "riders," that would restrict hazardous duty pay for state prison employees and provide $660,000 a year to reimburse counties that prosecute crimes committed by prison inmates.

The House turns its attention to money this week, with debate on a fee bill today and the appropriations bill Wednesday.

Included in the fee bill is about $101 million worth of increases. The measure would add $2 to the cost of a four-year drivers' license and raise the cost of a variety of other state licenses.

Gov. Mark White has been pushing for additional increases, including a 400 percent hike in the fee for filing a lawsuit. It now costs $25 to file suits in state district courts.

The fee bill, and several other revenue measures, are needed to balance the $36.4 billion two-year state budget proposed by the House Appropriations Committee.

Appropriations committee members worked for weeks to produce a bill they hope will balance without a tax hike. Chairman Jim Rudd and Speaker Gib Lewis said they are confident the goal can be met.

In addition to the $101 million fee bill, it will take a state college tuition hike of about $280 million to help balance the proposed House measure.

Bill is intended to protect children from fatal misstep

DALLAS (AP) — When his 22-month-old son fell into the family swimming pool and suffered permanent brain damage, University Park oilman Jim Francis thought he was alone with his tragedy.

But after spearheading a statewide effort to compile statistics on similar accidents, Francis learned there were hundreds of other families suffering as well.

Each year in Texas, 250 children either die or suffer severe brain damage after falling into neighborhood swimming pools. In an attempt to reduce that toll, two Dallas legislators have introduced bills in Austin to require fences around residential swimming pools.

"Young children are like unguided missiles, zipping and zagging their way to the pools," Francis told The Dallas Morning News. "People put their children in playpens because it keeps them there. We want to make pools secure, like playpens."

The bill is being modified by members of two legislative subcommittees, but in its original form it would require pools at single-family residences and apartments to be surrounded on all sides by fences.

Municipal ordinances in many Texas cities already require pools to be enclosed, but a building can serve as one side of the fence.

Under the proposed state legislation, a fence with a locked gate would have to separate the home from the swimming pool if a window or door opened from the residence to the pool.

Property owners who violate the law could be fined a maximum of $200.

"We think hundreds of children's lives could be saved," said Lee Jackson, R-Dallas.

But the proposed legislation has met with opposition from the apartment, swimming pool and fence industries.

"We think it places an undue burden and expense on the homeowner," said Bob Dalchau, who is vice president of the Austin chapter of a swimming pool-industry organization, the National Spa and Pool Institute.

"Every major city in the state has its own fencing requirement," Dalchau said. "We support anything that will prevent additional drownings. But we don't think this will."

Lynn Heimerl, director of the Austin-based International Fence Industry, said the bill is too vague.

Francis, who served as director of former Gov. Bill Clements' campaign, said he believes his son would have benefitted from just such a law.

One Sunday morning four years ago, 22-month-old Bo Francis wandered out a partially open back door of the family's home, walked through the unlocked gate to the family pool and fell in.

Vasectomy auctions said ridiculous

DUNCANVILLE, Texas (AP) — One vasectomy auction in this usually peaceful and conservative town was pushing things — but two in less than a month is ridiculous, some citizens say.

"They've gone too far. I really think people look at it and say that's a dumb thing to auction off," said City Councilman Gene Gilmore.

The latest auction — on Saturday — was sponsored by local builders and real estate agents. The vasectomy attracted six bidders and brought in $350, the Dallas Times Herald said.

"They're just trying to gain publicity," Gilmore said. "We can find better ways to promote Duncanville than that."

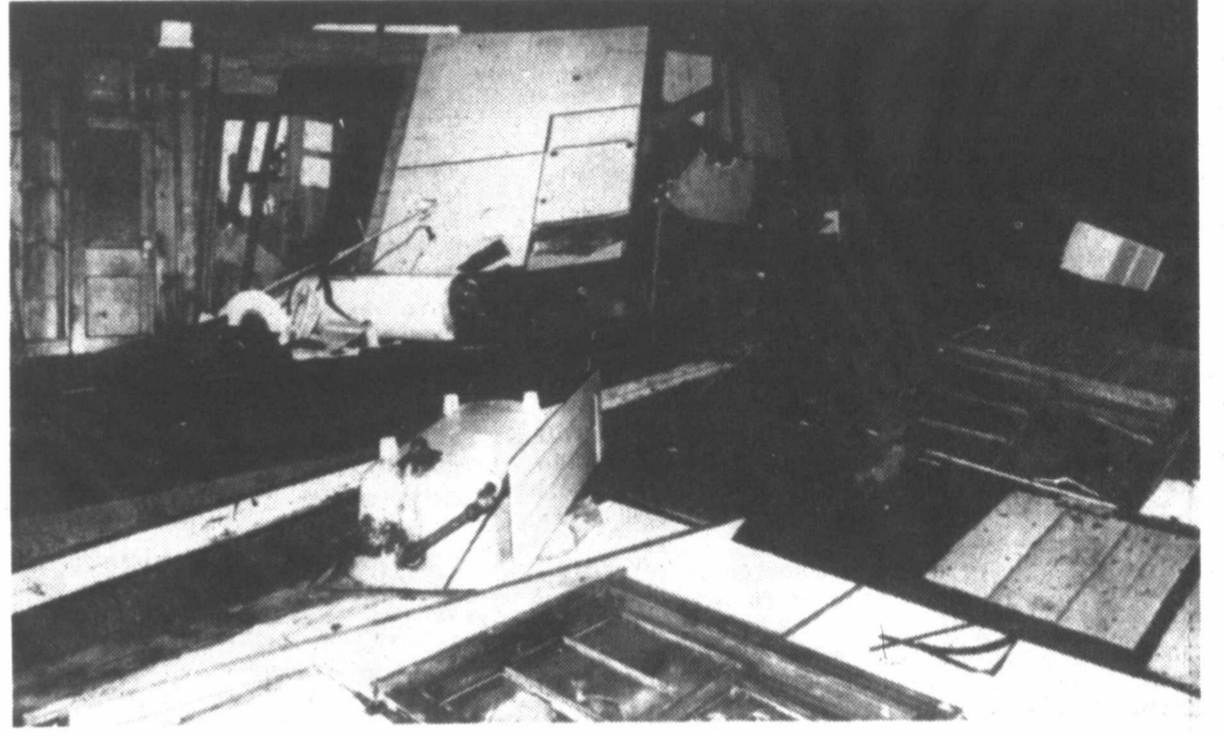

Builder Jim Sargent, past president of the Duncanville Builders Association, admitted that the vasectomy was included in the auction to "draw a little more attention to our city — a very selfish reason."

The first auction, which drew national attention, was sponsored by a preschool PTA. The March 30 sale added $650 to the money raised in what the group called its most successful auction ever.

While the PTA auctioned off the operation by sealed bids, the builders took public bids.

Some citizens of this city of 33,000 question the propriety of the auctions.

"I don't understand auctioning off something like that," said the Rev. Jerry Duesman of Holy Spirit Catholic Church. "I certainly want to encourage and foster the quality of life, but I don't see where the vasectomy fits in."

TORNADO DESTRUCTION—Tornadoes killed three persons, injured two others and destroyed two homes in the Olney area Sunday. Shown here is what remained of the home of George Roach, who suffered multiple injuries when the tornado struck. (AP Laserphoto)

Three die, several injured in North Texas tornadoes

OLNEY, Texas (AP) — A small frame house "exploded" when it took a direct hit from a tornado, and all three people who lived there were killed, a sheriff's officer said.

"This is the worst I've ever seen," Sgt. Joe Hall of the Young County sheriff's department said Sunday night.

"I think this one here just exploded. It just whipped the whole place apart. It wasn't recognizable as a house," Hall said.

The bodies of Arch Curtis, 88, and his wife, Beulah, 85, were found in a field 200 to 300 yards from the house, authorities said. The body of their son, Malcolm Curtis, 64, was found near the house beside a pickup truck.

Trees were split apart, power lines ripped down and barns destroyed as several tornadoes bounced around the area, officials said.

The Curtis family lived at the end of a winding, muddy dirt road about a quarter-mile off Texas Highway 79. The property is right on the Throckmorton-Young County line, about halfway between Olney and Throckmorton, which are 30 miles apart, and about 60 miles southwest of Wichita Falls.

The tornado covered an area about 50 to 100 yards wide, Hall said. Spotters said the tornado traveled about four to five miles, touching down several times.

Several other homes in the area had flooded yards.

The twister that hit the house about 6:20 p.m. Sunday was one of "at least seven" tornadoes that were reported to have touched down in Throckmorton and Young counties late Sunday afternoon, civil defense officials in Throckmorton said.

A house belonging to George H. Roach about six miles due north of the Curtis residence was struck from another tornado from the same storm, officials said.

Roach, 43, and his daughter, Robin, 15, were injured when their pickup truck was hit as they tried to drive home during the storm. Roach was thrown 100 feet from the truck, and the truck was thrown 100 yards, he told authorities.

Roach's wife took shelter in a hallway and escaped injury. Roach was treated at an Olney hospital for multiple fractures and lacerations and transferred to a Wichita Falls hospital, where he was in the intensive care unit. Robin Roach was released from the Olney hospital after treatment for minor cuts and bruises.

Earlier, about 4 p.m., the National Weather Service had reported a tornado five miles west of Throckmorton, moving north-northeast at 15 miles an hour.

A weather service observer said that although the tornado was one mile wide and stayed on the ground for several minutes, it was in a sparsely inhabited ranching area and caused no injuries.

An unoccupied trailer house was destroyed, as were numerous oil tanks, said weather service spokesman Les Hiesler. Extensive crop damage is expected, he added.

Golfball-size hail was reported in Throckmorton, Anson and Knox City, marble-size hail at Lake Stamford, and pea-size hail at Haskell.

In Archer City, about 15 miles south of Wichita Falls, sirens sounded moments before 7 p.m. and again at 7:35 p.m. as "heavy, heavy rain and marble-size hail" pounded the area and fire department spotters reported seeing a funnel cloud near the city.

Tornado watches were posted Sunday for much of the eastern Panhandle and the western portion of North Texas. Another tornado watch was issued at 1 a.m. today for 44 Texas counties in a 70-mile-wide area reaching from San Angelo and Big Spring to Vernon and Wichita Falls.

The weather service reported as much as 2 inches of rain in parts of North Texas and southern Oklahoma, and a flash flood warning was in effect early today for Wichita, Archer and Clay Counties as the new storm system moved through.

Four tornadoes were sighted southeast of Colorado City in West Texas Sunday evening, the weather service said, and police in Nacogdoches also said they spotted a funnel cloud.

Community mourns girl

SUNNYVALE, Texas (AP) — More than 300 people assembled to pay their last respects for Christi Meeks, a 5-year-old Mesquite girl found dead more than two months after she vanished from her mother's apartment complex.

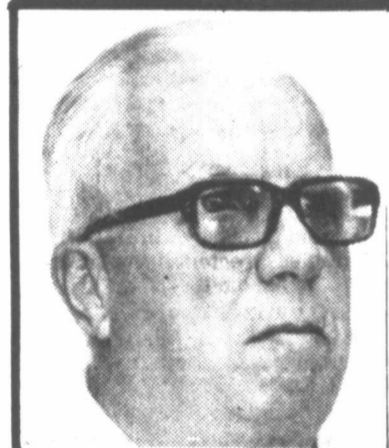

A picture of the child adorned the top of her flower-covered, ivory casket until it was lowered into the ground Sunday inside the ornate gates of the Long Creek Cemetery east of Mesquite.

The Rev. Amos Cowart told mourners assembled at the Long Creek Baptist Church to pray for Christi and her family.

"Weep not for Christi. Christi is in heaven," Cowart said. "Weep for your own loss. Our loss."

The child's body was found April 3 in Lake Texoma. Although law officers thought the body was that of a male, a later check by medical examiners revealed it to be female and was identified as Christi on Thursday.

This snack has its points

What started out as a slice of ethnic culture has traveled the full course from exotic delicacy to American tradition.

The pizza pie explosion in our country has even rocked the foundations of Texas gluttony. Pepperoni and mozzarella have elbowed a spot amongst the chili and barbecue as a favorite way to achieve that post-euphoria feeling known as indigestion.

Pizza has come a long way, baby. All the way from Italy, to be accurate. But those old - country roots have been pretty well disguised by now.

But, as Americans are wont to do, we've added some touches of our own for the sake of marketing.

For starters, we've turned pizza pie into a fast food. And then it became more familiarly known by its first name — "Let's get a pizza," — probably because we want to reserve pie for more traditional values like moms and apples.

For years in our corner of the world, pizza was basically pushed by a couple of restaurants. And, you had to buy the whole thing — none of those by-the-slice operations had appeared as yet.

Well, there were some alternatives. You could always pick up a mix in the grocery store and spend several hours building something that usually turned out with a soggy crust. Or you could join the ranks of indiscriminant nibblers by visiting the freezer food section and coming home with one of those early versions that might make you wish you'd thrown away the product and ate the box.

So most pizza fans found it was easier to shell out a few bucks to get a specimen that came out bubbling hot from a restaurant's commercial oven and had nice stringy cheese to tickle your chin.

Then, everybody and his brother started selling the darn things. Naturally, some variations had to be introduced or all the shops would have had products that tasted the same.

So now, some pizzas are billed as thick and chewy. Others are thin and crispy. We have deep - dish and deep - pan pizza. We have Sicilian pizza.

Others became known as supremes — loaded with all sorts of yummy ingredients. Then, somebody decided to add more toppings. Presto, super - supreme was born.

Plus, some non - traditionalists even started selling pizzas that weren't even round.

For a while, a recipe for "fruit pizza" — an amalgamation that takes away all tradition, including tomato sauce and cheese — was making the rounds.

In deference to the man and the woman tastes, it became commonplace for pizza pushers in most parts of Texas to include jalapeno peppers among the options.

Nothing is sacred.

Gradually our perception of the product changed. Instead of conjuring up visions of some fat guy wearing a fluffy hat and spinning sheets of dough high into the air, pizza became associated with those cardboard boxes that allow home reheating.

Advertising techniques had to be stepped up as more and more shops with more and colorful names borrowed from both fact and fiction cropped up.

The Americanization of pizza became complete when the restaurants started appealing to coupon clippers and some of the frozen varieties were developed to the point they could be zapped in a microwave oven.

A couple or three decades ago, it wasn't unusual to find people so uninformed that they couldn't pronounce "pizza" properly. (My wife tells me I still don't have the hang of it. But, then her generation grew up with the things — mine didn't.)

Now a lot of those same folks enjoy the luxury of making a telephone call and having someone beat a path to their door with one of the darned things.

One thing about us Americans. We know a good thing — once a few brainwashing techniques have been conducted.

But, I sure wish some of those places that dish out the pizzas would quit using that artificial cheese — it tastes awful.

Social Security compromise fair

The compromise cuts in the cost-of-living increase in Social Security benefits would cost recipients $1,667 a person over the next five years, according to the Center on Budget and Policy Priorities, a Washington lobby group which opposes any reduction in the benefit increase.

The reduction breaks down to $81 in 1986, $198 in 1987 and $314 in 1988.

That's based on the budget compromise reached by President Reagan and Senate Republicans. It would limit the cost-of-living increase to 2 percent in 1986, 1987 and 1988, unless inflation exceeds 4 percent. Then the cost-of-living increase would be the rate of inflation minus two percentage points.

The plan seems fair. It will require a small sacrifice for most of the 36 million Social Security recipients.

Social Security is not a means-tested entitlement program. So everyone collects, millionaires as well as middle-income elderly and the poor. Most of the recipients are not poor. All of the recipients are receiving benefits way out of any actuarial proportion to the amounts they or their spouses paid in. The benefits are generous.

Keeping down the growth in cost of these benefits would have not direct impact on the federal deficit since the money saved would be kept in a special Social Security fund apart from the general revenues that support the government. Yet the effect would be to reduce the amount of money that the federal government has to borrow.

In the long run, the entire Social Security program depends for its fiscal soundness on the health of the U.S. economy and the federal government. If some restraint in increasing Social Security benefits at this time helps prevent a new depression and helps keep the federal government solvent, it will be accepted by most Social Security recipients as a justified sacrifice.

The retired elderly are entitled to the respect and gratitude of all working people. Most of them have willingly contributed their lifelong labor to make this country what it is today. They are not the kind to ask for special favors. They would not want to stand in the way of the fair, across-the-board reduction in government spending which is absolutely necessary today if we are to keep the economy healthy, reduce interest rates and lower our foreign trade deficit.

The voices of the old-folks lobby will be heard loud and long in Washington, protesting any tampering with their special interest. They usually have the support of many of the elderly for their protests. But they do not speak for all retired Americans on this one.

Blacks embrace statism

One of the most distressing phenomena on the 1985 political landscape is that, even as the nation is moving toward a less government-dependent, more market-oriented political perspective, black Americans appear to be moving further toward central statism.

Just twelve years ago, almost a third of black Americans voted Republican in the national elections. Now that figure is down to 10 percent or less - while most American black leaders are now on the most extreme left of the ideological spectrum.

This is why the elevation of soft-spoken Congressman William Gray of Philadelphia, a minister, to the chairmanship of the House Budget Committee is such a hopeful sign.

While Gray's politics are liberal, he has already shown an intellectual capacity to turn away from the dismal Third-World threnody of despair sung by Jesse Jackson, and make convincing arguments for liberal moderation of the conservative agenda.

Nevertheless, Gray and other more-moderate black leaders and the Republicans must face the fact that "black statism" represents much more than the politics of poor-versus-rich. Hispanic Americans are also poor - but over 40 percent of them vote conservative.

The real reason for black statism is the spiraling sociological breakdown in the black family - and like it or not, the growing necessity for the state to play both father and mother.

Last August, the City of New York reported that nearly 80 percent of black children in its major central city ghettos were born out of wedlock to fatherless homes, and this was TRIPLE the 1963 rate - a shocking sociological breakdown.

Yet the same figures can be found in the vital statistics of Detroit, Chicago, Boston, and Philadelphia: Over 70 percent of urban black children now lack the family support system so fundamental to both social and economic development.

Indeed, the single greatest reason for rising poverty since 1977 is the geometric rise in single-parent families - especially among blacks. Female-headed households earn only 48 percent of the income of married couples - while male-headed single-parent households earn only 65 percent. Since 1970, female-headed black households have risen from 28 to 48 percent of all black families.

As Senator Daniel Patrick Moynihan (D-N.Y.) said in a speech at Harvard on April 8, "Poverty is now inextricably associated with family structure. Half of all poor persons now live in female-headed households."

It does no good to point out, as many black scholars (and Senator Moynihan, himself) already have, that this family genocide is the predictable result of the social policies of government over the past twenty years. The reality, today, is that three-quarters of young urban black Americans now start out with a very high risk of unemployment and crime, and no family push toward achievement.

We were reminded of this painful challenge by an article by Harvard's Richard Freeman and Harry Holzer in the recent Public Interest Quarterly called "Young Blacks and Jobs - What We Now Know."

Freeman's ten years of exhaustive studies for the National Bureau of Economic Research (NBER) demonstrate conclusively that the major share of rising black youth unemployment is associated with the rising level of welfare recipients and single-parent families.

In 1954, black youth unemployment was identical to that of whites (14 percent) and black youth employment rates were actually HIGHER than those for whites. At that time less than 16 percent of black households were single-parent female-headed, less than 20 percent of children born out of wedlock, and only 5 percent of black families were on welfare.

But by 1983, black youth unemployment had soared to 45 percent, and employment rates had dropped by more than 50 percent - while out-of-wedlock black births rose to more than 55 percent, and black families on welfare had risen to 20 percent.

As Freeman notes, "One of the most-depressing findings of the NBER project was that...youths from welfare homes, with the same family income and other attributes as those from non-welfare homes, do far worse in the job market..."

Interestingly, NBER also found that "church going turned out to be a significant factor in reducing such socially deviant activities as crime and drug use, in increasing school going, and in increasing employment," even when equal incomes are compared. Family and morality do prevent the devastation of dependency.

Sadly, the National Conference of Catholic Bishops almost totally ignored these lessons in their pastoral letter on "Catholic Social Teaching and the Economy," which merely reinforced the destructive anti-family welfare - statism, and redistributionist economics of the '60s and '70s, while ignoring the central role that morality and spirituality must play in restoring family structure.

This may be why the bishops have now wisely decided to postpone final publication for a year, to allow a fuller range of policy input, and, hopefully, more constructive approaches.

They, along with the rest of us, must determine whether it is now realistic to expect that the same state that created this family-poverty problem can solve it - and whether, in particular, it is even possible for government to "be family" for the more than 70 percent of urban blacks, who now have none.

Today in History

By The Associated Press

Today is Monday, April 22, the 112th day of 1985. There are 253 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On April 22, 1864, Congress authorized the use of the phrase "In God We Trust" on U.S. coins.

On this date:

Ten years ago: Following the resignation of South Vietnamese president Nguyen Van Thieu the day before, Vietnamese Communists said the Ford administration's "only way out" would be to stop all involvement in South Vietnam.

Five years ago: In the Pennsylvania presidential primary, George Bush upset Republican front-runner Ronald Reagan while Massachusetts Sen. Edward M. Kennedy narrowly beat President Jimmy Carter in the Democratic contest.

One year ago: Britain broke off diplomatic relations with Libya and ordered the occupants of the Libyan embassy in London to leave the country.

The one-teacher school

Once upon a time they had no-frills education in the United States.

Acknowledging that most school-agers are weary of hearing grandpa tell about trudging through the snow to his one-room schoolhouse - indulge me this once more.

They taught "four R's" at the one-room log schoolhouse on Montana's Musselshell River. "Four R's - readin', ritin', rithmetic and rattlesnakes."

While the frontier was yet untamed the teacher, Miss Wittmier, and her students had to get to school any way they could...

Wintertime they strode through the snow and over the ice of the Musselshell...

When the ice broke up they'd ford the river on horseback or wade, swim or float themselves across on a makeshift raft.

Recess and lunchtime there was time for snowmen and snowdrifts sometimes - but mostly there were chores - wood for the stove - or trapping the river bottom for furs - always remembering to sidestep the rattlesnakes.

Miss Wittmier saw her fourth graders become eighth graders and grow up and go to work - cowboyin' or farming - or, a few, away to get some advanced education.

In this once-upon-a-time school the plumbing was outdoors, of course...

In autumn a family of skunks would try to hide under the schoolhouse...

Flushing them out was an exciting diversion...

One year the skunk family resisted eviction and the Ross School had to hold classes outdoors for quite a while.

Those classes were also attended by rabbits and deer and coyote and an occasional mountain lion - and-or rattlesnake.

Those "good old days" on the Montana frontier include today.

That's right; today. The one-room log schoolhouse on Montana's Musselshell River is in session at this moment.

And listening at this moment to the big radio station in faraway Billings...

Miss Karla Wittmier says they listen every day to Paul Harvey News...

And afterward have an open discussion on current events.

Montana is a lot of real estate.

If you flattened it out it would cover the United States. Even as is, if you moved it east, it would extend from Chicago to Washington, D.C. And yet its total population is less than one million.

So... There are still a hundred one-teacher schools in Montana.

But what intrigued me most was to learn from the Montana Office of Public Instruction - that in the basics - readin', ritin' and rithmetic - the frontier children score better than our national average. And on "rattlesnakes" better than anybody.

"WE'RE SENDING A MESSAGE TO TED TURNER: FORGET CBS - TAKE OVER AFGHANISTAN."

Vietnam lessons are still being learned

By Don Graff

Ten years after the last helicopter lifted off the roof of the embassy in Saigon, we're still fighting the war in Vietnam.

The shooting has ended, but not the shouting. Was the American involvement in the conflict a "noble cause," as Ronald Reagan sees it, or a tragic mistake as so many other Americans, now as then, maintain?

We are awash in retrospectives of the war, asking the questions but coming up with little in the way of satisfactory answers.

Richard Nixon is out with a book,

"No More Vietnams," which has the merit of putting the matter in succinct perspective with the first sentence: "No event in American history is more misunderstood than the Vietnam War."

But what follows doesn't do much to clear up the misunderstanding.

To every president except himself, he gives a share of the blame for what went wrong - all the way back to Eisenhower, who held back on aid to the French. Yet it was Nixon who presided over the conduct of the war for four crucial years, ending in the withdrawal of American combat forces.

It's his predecessor, however, who will go down as the "war president." For Lyndon Johnson, so determined not to be the first president to lose a war, Vietnam was unquestionably tragic. The war destroyed his presidency and crippled the Great Society, which was his real interest.

Somewhere along the line something went very wrong.

The rationale for prolonging a brutal war became not the national interest but the national image.

Remember?

If the United States did not stay the course and prevail, dominoes would fall and the world would doubt American resolve.

It has not come to pass. True, Laos and Cambodia did go the way of Vietnam. But they were in the soup already. The rest of Southeast Asia has held firm and is, if anything, strengthened in its anti-communism by the Vietnamese example.

Elsewhere, no ground has been lost as a direct consequence of Vietnam. American allies welcomed the disengagement and it made possible the long-term rapprochement with China, a net gain for us and a severe setback to the Soviet Union.

The real damage to the nation from the war has been not external but internal - in failed presidencies, polarized politics, mistrust between Congress and the White House.

Driving was not Street's forte

Dear Abby

Those who don't pay for fire protection could get burned

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1985 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: There is absolutely no justification for the actions of the Salem, Ark., volunteer firefighters who stood around and watched a $150,000 home burn down because the owner hadn't paid the $20 annual dues.

I am a volunteer firefighter in Boles, N.M., and I sincerely hope that what happened in Arkansas doesn't reflect on all volunteer firefighters.

The majority of us are hard-working, dedicated people whose only pay is the satisfaction of helping others.

Our priorities are:
1. Rescuing people from burning buildings.
2. Protecting adjoining property from catching fire.
3. Putting the fire out.

Nowhere is there any mention of money. I hope the citizens of Salem, Ark., will do something to correct this problem.

TAMI HARRIS, CAPTAIN,
BOLES ACRES
VOLUNTEER FIRE DEPT.

DEAR ABBY: Please point out the fact that there are three Salems in Arkansas. They are: Salem, Ark., in Fulton County; Salem, Ark., in Pike County; and Salem, Ark., in Saline County.

Abby, please make it clear that the volunteer firemen who refused to fight a fire because the homeowner had not paid his $20 dues were not from Fulton County—they were from Saline County.

I feel that people who would stand by and let a home burn when they could have saved it should not be allowed to be firemen.

DONNA JUSTUS,
NEWPORT, ARK.

DEAR ABBY: I am amazed that you would criticize the volunteer firefighters for refusing to risk their lives to save the home of someone who was too cheap to pay $20 a year to protect it.

If you don't carry automobile insurance and are involved in a collision, do you really think you could call an insurance agent and say, "Quick, write me up a policy to cover the wreck I just had!"

W.W. McCULLOCH,
WENATCHEE, WASH.

DEAR ABBY: So you think the volunteer firefighters should have saved that $150,000 house even though its owner had not paid his $20 annual dues? Oh sure, just like Blue Cross should pick up your $50,000 hospital bill even though you failed to pay your premiums, and the Los Angeles Police Dept. will respond to a burglary in Santa Monica.

I have no sympathy for a nut who owns a $150,000 home and refuses to pay a measly $20-a-year fee in case he has a fire. He took a gamble and lost!

If the volunteer firefighters had fought that fire, nobody in the community would ever pay his dues again. Why should he, if he can get the same service free?

FOR THE VOLUNTEERS

DEAR ABBY: I would like to defend the action of the firefighters. We have a similar situation in Rantoul, Ill. The taxpayers support our volunteer fire department within the city limits. Protection is offered to residents and businesses outside the city limits for a fee of $25 annually.

Most residents pay the fee willingly, but some ignore the bills repeatedly.

I have instructed our chief to respond only to save lives (not property) should we receive a call from anyone who consistently fails to pay.

If people were allowed to pay at the scene of the fire, there would be no incentive to support the department through fees.

The homeowner whose home was burned made his choice long before the fire started.

KATY B. PODAGROSI,
MAYOR, VILLAGE OF RANTOUL, ILL.

Editor's Note: The following family history is an excerpt from the Gray County history book. Stories of oldtimers, newcomers and ex-residents are welcomed. Deadline for stories and photographs is April 30. Histories are to be submitted to the White Deer Land Museum.

STREET, GEORGE WASHINGTON AND LULU BELL.
G.W. Street was born George Washington Travelstreet in Illinois on June 4, 1867. His father, Solomon Travelstreet, was from Holland. The family moved to Tennessee when G.W. was about 12 years old. At that time, Solomon shortened the family name to Street. Six boys were in the family. One of them died at 16 while he was "logging" and slipped off and drowned.

Lulu Bell Barnard was born on Aug. 16, 1870. She married G.W. on July 12, 1888. They moved to Alanreed in 1914. They had three grown sons, Ted, M.C. and W.L., who did not accompany them at that time. Their three-year-old daughter, Juanita (now Mrs. Raymond Smith) made the journey with them in a covered wagon from Erick, Okla. They spent the first night in a wagon yard in Shamrock for 50 cents. Unlike today's world, there were no "pet rules" and

Juanita said "dogs and all slept there."
The next night was spent with a family in Lela, Juanita

G.W. Street's first car was driven home with great anticipation. He pulled an old that had a foot feed (accelerator). The brave family went with him to see about a sick mule. Mrs. Street rode in front and Juanita was in the back seat with her new baby. They enjoyed a visit with the neighbors while Mr. Street tended to the sick animal, then they went home. By this time, G.W. had built a better garage. It was solid concrete, five inches thick, with no pumpkins stacked in it. They drove confidently into this fortress. But he had made one small miscalculation.

He stepped on the foot feed instead of the brake. "We bounced into the garage and back out into the road five times before we got stopped," Juanita remembered. And her father's comment? "She just wouldn't stay in there."

G.W. operated a service station on old Highway 66 and was well known for his knife trading. He was a self-taught veterinarian which kept him busy, along with his farm work. He took care of animals for people around Alanreed, McLean, the Parker Ranch and Heald. He is lovingly remembered by his daughter, Juanita, as "never contrary or hateful." He lived with Juanita and her husband, Raymond for the last few years of life and enjoyed his great grandchildren. He died in 1951.

Family Histories

remembered. "At that time, friend or stranger was welcome to stay all night. The people were isolated and glad to see anyone." The long trip ended with the third night stay north of Alanreed with the Tom Roby's at the hotel. The Streets then spent a week in the home of the real estate dealer, Elmer Reeves, who was helping them find a place to live. They bought land 2 1/2 miles north of town.

Juanita was only about seven years old but vividly remembers an evening during World War I when the people of Lefors, McLean and Alanreed turned out for a big supper on the porch of Dr. Coppedges' home. It was in honor of local boys going to war. In that group was one of the Kennedy boys, Ollie Hommel and Thurman Purdue. A speech was made by W.J. Ball and a tearful group finally sang "Away, away, Away down south in Dixie" as the young building up by his house for a garage with railroad cross ties to drive the car onto. The pumpkin crop was good and there were huge stacks of them by the garage. G.W. entered the garage, drove right through the back end, knocked the wall out, made a sharp turn, driving through the pumpkins which were flying left, right, up and down. Another sharp turn took him back through the wall and the pumpkins. On the third try he was able to come to a halt. His comment following the incident: "That doggone thang just wouldn't stop."

G.W. almost got all the way home with his first Ford when it died. He got out and cranked for almost an hour when someone came along and suggested he might have kicked off the switch key. He found that he had — after that the car started easily.

In 1926, he bought his first car

Smart Money: city can't zone out

By Bruce Williams

DEAR BRUCE — My husband and I have a small mobile-home park here in Florida.

When I say small, I mean small. We have only 10 spaces on 1 acre.

When we purchased the mobile-home park, it was in the county, but now we've been annexed by the city. The city recently passed an ordinance stating that only eight mobile homes can be parked on 1 acre, and we have been told that we must conform to the new ordinance.

I've been to planning-commission meetings, zoning-commission meetings and council meetings, but so far the city officials say we have to go along.

What are we going to do with our two tenants that we have to get rid of? How do we handle this? — W.M., FT. PIERCE, FLA.

DEAR W.M. — First, there's no way that any city can zone you out of business. You are what is called, in the language of zoning, a non-conforming use.

That means that you were there legally prior to the enactment of the zoning ordinance. (I'm assuming that 10 to an acre was proper when you took over the property.)

City officials can prohibit you, without a variance, from expanding, improving or altering your mobile home park, but they cannot force you to reduce the spaces from 10 to eight. I urge you to have an attorney write the city attorney and advise him of this fact of life, of which I'm certain he's aware.

DEAR BRUCE — I have a very touchy problem.

My dad is 68 years old, has considerable assets, but he will not even entertain the idea of drawing a will. He says that it's not necessary; he's not worried about it, and furthermore, he doesn't want to talk about it.

I know your position on wills is that everyone needs one, but how do I convince my dad? — J.J., SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH

DEAR J.J. — Unhappily, there isn't much that you can do. You can't force your father to meet his responsibilities.

Having a will drawn is like saying in writing "I am going to die." This is a very difficult thing for many people to face. If some of the property is jointly held in your mother's and father's names, that property will not present a problem if she survives him. But other assets will.

If your father dies without a will, you or your mother will be obliged to appear before the surrogate and have someone — your mother, yourself, a brother or a sister — appointed administrator to carry out the laws of your state.

You might point out to your father that this will be a whole lot more expensive, since the administrator will have to purchase a bond with your father's money.

Maybe that will convince him. But if he simply refuses to make out a will, remember that old saying: You can lead a horse to water, but you can't make him drink.

Job burnout topic of program

"Job Burnout — What It Is and How To Survive It" is to be the topic of a special, free program Thursday at 7 p.m. in Lively Hall of the First United Methodist Church. The program is sponsored by the Gray County Extension Service and Family Living Committee.

Special guest speaker for the program will be Dorothy Taylor, extension family education specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service in College Station. Taylor specializes in family relationships, stress management, career development, crisis management, support systems, work and family, motivation and human potential.

The program is to focus on characteristics and symptoms of job burnout, and how to prevent burnout, and how to cope with burnout once experienced. For more information, contact the Gray County Extension Office.

Astro-Graph

by bernice bede osol
April 23, 1985

In the year ahead you will make several important and advantageous changes in your basic lifestyle. Each will be triggered by an event you won't control.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Financial conditions could be a trifle tricky for you today. If you make gains, be extra careful not to do something foolish and have them slip through your fingers. Looking for romance? The Matchmaker wheel can help you select the right person for you. To get yours, mail $2 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Strive to be as self-reliant as possible today. People you're counting on may let you down through no fault of their own.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Try to keep your priorities in order today. If you devote too much time to frivolous activities, you might never get around to your duties.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) When socializing with friends today, keep one eye on the clock. Although they'll enjoy your companionship, you must still be careful not to wear out your welcome.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) In important career matters today, don't take anything for granted. If you get careless, something you think you've tied down could suddenly dissolve.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Luck will attend you today in most of your involvements but this does not mean you should push it to the limits. Use your common sense as well.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You'll get a lot of mileage today out of funds spent on things beneficial to your family. This won't be true for money spent in fulfilling self-desires.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your initial judgment will be surprisingly accurate today. When you get over-analytical, you'll be indecisive and impede your own progress.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Things that you take a personal hand in managing should work out profitably for you today. Operations you delegate to others might end up in the red.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Don't let yourself be jockeyed into supporting a new acquaintance, instead of standing by an old friend today.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Focus your attention now on situations that have the promise of an immediate return. Don't dilute your efforts by trying to live in both today and tomorrow.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your judgment regarding proposals presented to you by others may not be up to par today. Don't make any instant commitments; instead, request time for additional study.

Guards pave the way for Rockets' rebound

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD
AP Sports Writer

Guards Lewis Lloyd and John Lucas, not the Houston Rockets' young and heralded front line, are the reason they are even in their playoff series with the Utah Jazz.

In Friday night's 14-point defeat to the Jazz in the opener of their first-round National Basketball Association series, starting guards Lloyd and Lionel Hollins managed only 19 points.

On Sunday, the Rockets got 27 points from Lloyd and 18 from Lucas, who was making his first start since his suspension for drug use last December, en route to a 122-96 victory and a 1-1 series deadlock.

"I was ready tonight. I came out fired up," said Lloyd, who surpassed his first-game total with 16 points as Houston took a 63-43 halftime lead. "I knew if we were going to win I'd have to hit jumpers, and that's what I did."

In Sunday's other playoff games, Milwaukee, Philadelphia and Detroit took 2-0 leads in their best-of-five series. The Bucks beat Chicago 122-115, the 76ers routed Washington 113-94 and Detroit defeated New Jersey 121-111.

On Tuesday night, Boston will take a 2-0 lead into Cleveland and the Los Angeles Lakers will have the same margin going into Phoenix. In two series tied 1-1, Denver will be at San Antonio and Dallas at Portland.

The Rockets' game plan was to run, thus negating the shot-blocking and intimidation of 7-4 Jazz center Mark Eaton.

"They knew they had to get their fast break going and therefore Lloyd became involved more," Eaton said. "We accomplished our goal and that was a split. We felt we controlled the big men, but their outside shooting was uncontrollable."

The Houston front line of Ralph Sampson, Akeem Olajuwon and Rodney McCray scored 19, 16 and 16 points, respectively.

Pistons 121, Nets 111
Isiah Thomas scored 29 points and reserve forward Terry Tyler tallied all of his 16 points in the fourth quarter as Detroit rallied to beat New Jersey.

The Pistons led 64-59 at halftime after Thomas ended the second period with a three-point basket from beyond the midcourt line. But the Nets outscored Detroit 31-23 in the third period to take a 90-87 advantage into the final 12 minutes.

Then Tyler took over in the fourth quarter. His three-point play with nine minutes left gave the Pistons the lead for good at 95-94.

Albert King led the Nets with 27 points, while Buck Williams had 23 and Micheal Ray Richardson 22.

Bucks 122, Bulls 115
Terry Cummings scored 30 points, Sidney Moncrief added 25 and Paul Pressey 22 to pace Milwaukee's balanced attack against Chicago.

The Bucks broke away from a 95-95 tie with 8½ minutes to play on consecutive buckets by Cummings, Pressey and Craig Hodges. The Bulls never got closer than three points thereafter.

A fight nearly broke out between Woolridge and Moncrief with 50 seconds left in the game when Orlando Woolridge was fouled while driving to the basket. Chicago Coach Kevin Loughery was hit with a technical foul for his protest of the call.

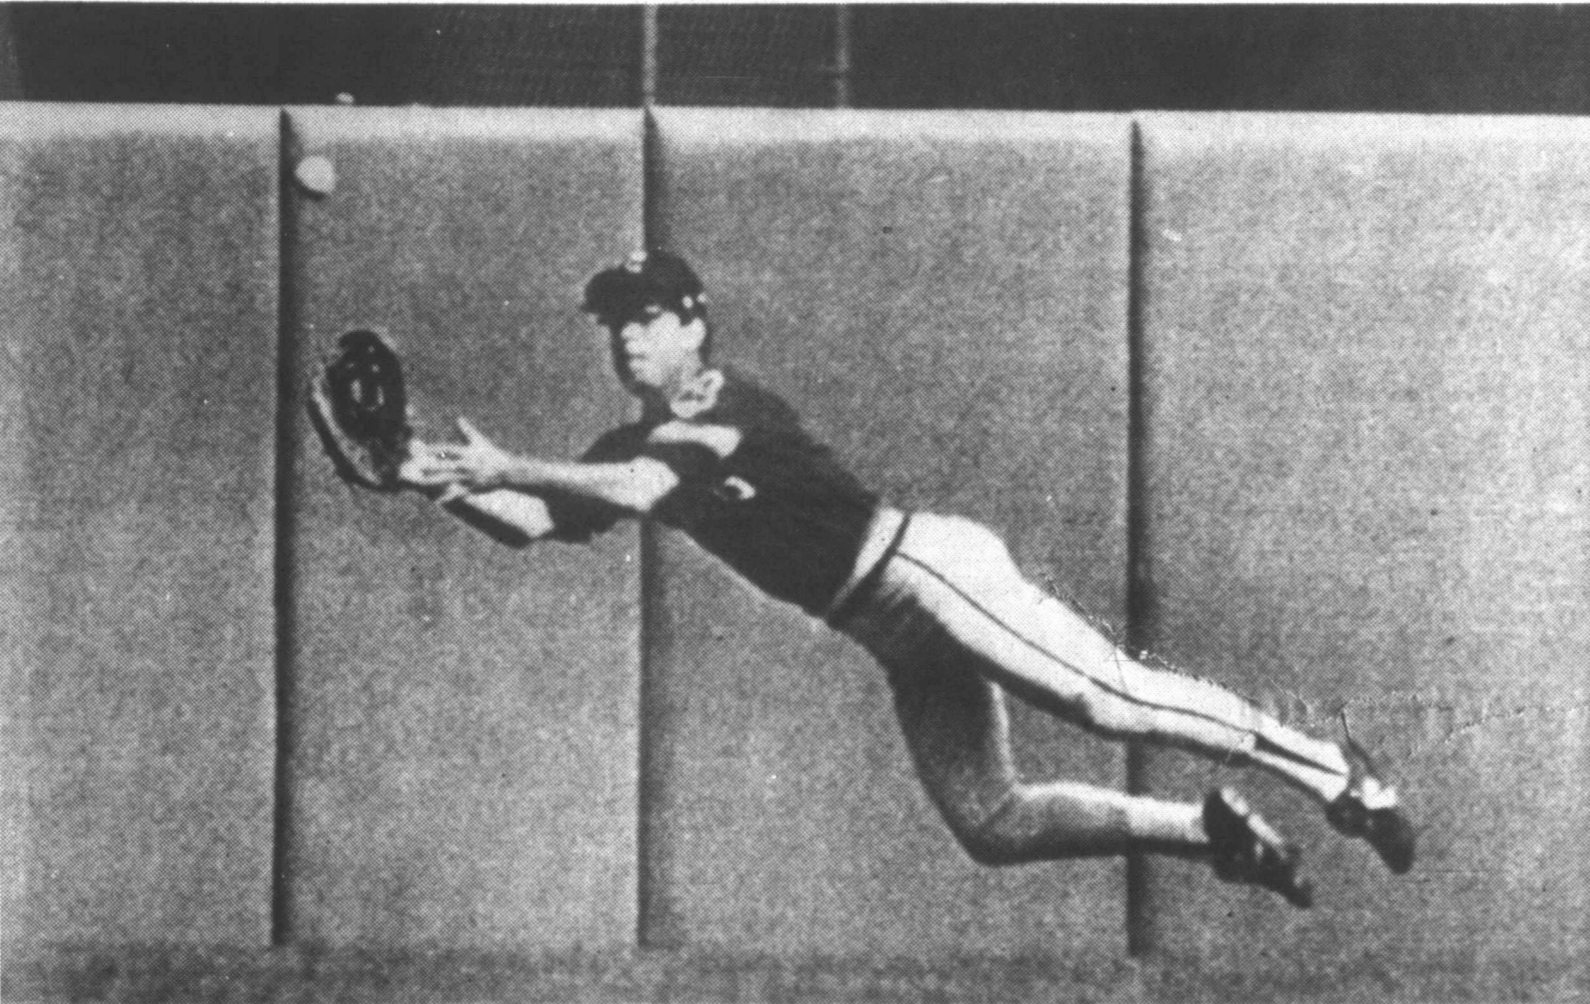

Michael Jordan led Chicago with 30 points, while Woolridge added 26.

76ers 113, Bullets 94
Andrew Toney, who missed the final four games of the season because of an ankle injury, hit 13 of 22 shots from the field and scored 31 points in Philadelphia's romp over Washington.

The 76ers took control of the game with a 16-8 spurt in the third period, expanding a four-point lead to 72-60 with 5:12 remaining. The closest the Bullets came after that was eight points.

Julius Erving added 23 points and Moses Malone and rookie Charles Barkley each had 14 rebounds for the 76ers.

Jeff Malone, who left the first playoff game with a wrenched back, scored 30 points to lead the Bullets.

BUTLER DID IT—Cleveland Indians' centerfielder Brett Butler takes to the air to snag a long drive off the bat of New York Yankees' Scott Bradley in the first inning of Sunday's game at Yankee Stadium. Butler later made another great catch on the Yanks' Juan Bonilla as Cleveland won, 3-0. (AP Laserphoto)

Harvesters qualify for golf regionals

BORGER — The Pampa Harvesters, defending Class 4A state golf champions, played without their top player in the lineup Saturday, but still managed to qualify for the regional tournament.

The Harvesters shot a 330 Saturday in the fifth and final District 1-4A round, giving them second behind Canyon in the standings. Canyon shot a 321 Saturday.

The top two teams advance to the regionals April 30-May 1 in Brownwood.

"If you would have asked me a year ago if we had a chance of qualifying for regionals I would have said no," Pampa coach Mike Brent said. "They did a super job and really deserve a pat on the back."

The Harvesters had to play without their number one golfer, Clay Jett, who sustained a broken hand in a fall Friday. Jett did compete in the singles category and shot a 94. He was the No. 3 player in the district medalist standings going into Saturday's round.

"I think it hurt our morale when Clay didn't play," Brent said. "He's the only senior and the other players looked to him for leadership. I think that's one reason we didn't play as well as we're capable of playing."

Johnny Snuggs shot an 80 to lead the Harvesters in Saturday's round. Jody Chase and Dyrán Cross each had an 83, followed by Jeff Langen 84, and David McGill 91.

Pampa's B team shot a 342 to place fifth. Their scores were Brian Loeffler 88, Brian Hogan 82, Scott Pope 86, Johnny Starnes 107, and Monte Dalton 83.

For the first time, district coaches selected an all-district squad. Those players include Jeff Ray, senior Canyon; Phil Behrens, senior, Canyon; Jeff Langen, junior, Pampa; Cam Thrutchly, freshman, Borger; Dyrán Crosier, junior, Pampa; Swift Fletcher, senior, Canyon; Johnny Snuggs, junior, Pampa; and Clay Jett, senior, Pampa.

"These kids put more hours into golf than any other sport and the coaches felt they deserved more recognition. Picking an all-district team is one way of doing it," Brent said. "There's no medals or trophies for second and third place like there is in track and other sports, and we felt that just wasn't fair to the kids."

Brent said the Harvesters would be working out every day to get ready for regionals.

"We're just going to try and keep improving. We feel like we've got as good a shot as anybody," he added.

Rangers learning all about teamwork

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Texas pitcher Mike Mason says keeping the Milwaukee Brewers' bats under control can simply be a matter of altitude.

Mason said he delivered his pitches high Sunday as the Rangers completed a sweep of a three-game weekend series with a 5-2 victory over Milwaukee.

"I moved the ball in and out," he said. "The kind of team they are, if it were down three or four inches, they'd have hit it. This way, they popped up."

Milwaukee did not get a run from Mason until the eighth inning, long after the Rangers had utilized what they call a new sense of teamwork.

Third baseman Buddy Bell, who drove in two Ranger runs, said the three victories are sweet compensation for losses earlier in the season when the club's batting was less impressive. "When you sweep a team that crushed us in Texas, a victory feels pretty good," he said.

"The longer we play together the more we are going to play like a team," Don Slaught said, having entered the game batting only 250 before hitting a home run and two singles.

"Our pitchers have really been doing a job this last week, and our hitters are now coming around and scoring some runs for them," Slaught said.

Bell helped Mason and reliever Dave Stewart by making a pair of diving stops that allowed him to throw out two runners.

"Bell made a couple of excellent plays that probably cost us a couple of runs," Milwaukee manager George Bamberger said.

"There is nothing you can do about it."

"Everybody has been contributing," Bell said. "When that happens, you don't feel you have to take it all on your own shoulders, not only me but everybody."

Texas took a 1-0 lead against Milwaukee starter and loser Ray Davis, 1-2, in the third inning. With one out, Toby Harrah walked and Gary Ward singled to third. Bell followed with an RBI single.

Slaught hit his first homer of the year with two outs in the fourth.

Cliff Johnson hit a two-out solo homer in the sixth off Burris, and said he might not have been as successful had he been facing the pitches of Milwaukee's Moose Haas.

"I've got to give Haas credit. He keeps them up and away. Ray wasn't that fortunate today," Johnson said.

The Rangers added two runs to their 3-0 lead in the seventh when Harrah led off with a walk, moved to second on a ground out, and scored on another single by Bell.

Pete O'Brien walked, Larry Parrish singled and Bell scored when O'Brien was caught in a rundown between second and third.

Mason, 2-1, scattered three hits through seven innings before Milwaukee's Randy Ready scored in the eighth.

Ready led off with a double. One out later, Paul Molitor and Robin Yount followed with consecutive singles.

Stewart relieved Mason and was greeted with an RBI-single by Cecil Cooper before settling down to get the save.

Gamblers put run back into offense

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD
AP Sports Writer

The Houston Gamblers broke a three-game losing streak by putting the run back into their "Run and Shoot" offense.

Houston rushed for a season-high 131 yards on 18 carries, including Sam Harrell's 17-yard touchdown run in the first quarter, and Jim Kelly threw two touchdown passes to Scott McGhee in the second half for a 33-17 victory over the Arizona Outlaws Sunday night.

The triumph gave the Gamblers a 6-3 record and tied them with Denver for first place in the United States Football League's Western Conference.

The loss was the Outlaws' third in a row and second straight at home as their record fell to 4-5.

Kelly, the league's Most Valuable Player as a rookie last year after throwing for 44 touchdowns, completed 22 of 34 passes for 238 yards against Arizona. He now has 3,128 yards and 26 TD passes in nine games.

In other games Sunday, Baltimore tripped Portland 26-17 and Birmingham routed Tampa Bay 30-3.

Stallions 30, Bandits 3
Birmingham made a shambles of this battle for the Eastern Conference lead as Cliff Stoudt threw two touchdowns passes against Tampa Bay, which managed barely half of its average offensive output.

Stoudt passed two yards to Joe Cribbs midway through the first period and 15 yards to Jim Smith late in the second. Cribbs, who finished with 117 yards rushing, also scored on a 19-yard run to open the fourth quarter.

The Stallions lead the conference with a 7-2 record, while the Bandits fell to 6-3 and into a second-place tie with New Jersey.

Birmingham's defense harassed Tampa Bay quarterback John Reeves all day, intercepting five of his passes, including two by Herb Spencer. The Bandits, averaging 404 yards per game, got only 213 against the Stallions.

Stars 26, Breakers 17
Kelvin Bryant, making his first start since pulling a hamstring against Birmingham four weeks ago, rushed for 185 yards and two touchdowns to carry Baltimore past Portland.

Antonio Gibson intercepted a pass by Breakers quarterback Matt Robinson early in the game and returned it 50 yards for a touchdown. Four minutes later, Bryant took a lateral and ran 82 yards down the left sideline for the Stars' second touchdown on the longest run from scrimmage in club history.

Houston captures SWC golf crown

LAKEWAY, Texas (AP) — Steve Elkington fired a final round 67 Sunday to take medalist honors and boost the Houston Cougars to the championship at the 60th annual Southwest Conference golf tournament at the Hills of Lakeway course.

The Cougars needed Elkington's five-under par performance to hold off Arkansas and fast-closing Texas.

Houston started the day only two shots ahead of Arkansas with the host Longhorns only 13 shots behind.

Fire chief gave five minutes notice

HOUSTON (AP) — Fire Chief Robert L. Swartout says he quit his job with five minutes notice because he didn't think he owed the city any more than that.

Swartout quit on Friday, April 12, leaving the note on Mayor Kathy Whitmire's desk at 4:25 p.m. It said his resignation was effective at 4:30 p.m. the same day.

City officials tried unsuccessfully over that weekend to find Swartout for an explanation of his resignation, but could not reach him.

TANCREDO NEVES
...thwarted by death

New president promises to carry out policies of Brazil's Tancredo Neves

SAO PAULO, Brazil (AP) — Vice President Jose Sarney promised a mourning nation today that he would carry out the policies of Tancredo Neves, who died before ever taking office as Brazil's first elected president in 21 years.

Neves, 75, died Sunday night of severe heart and lung complications, after a 39-day struggle through seven operations that began hours before he was to have been inaugurated.

Sarney, 54, a compromise candidate who had previously been allied with the nation's military party, was to be declared president at a special meeting of Congress today. He has been acting president since March 15, when everyone in the new civilian government took office except Neves, who underwent emergency surgery for an intestinal infection on the night of March 14.

"Our program is Tancredo Neves' program," Sarney said in a breaking voice on national radio and television early this morning.

The government decreed eight days of mourning and declared today a national holiday.

Neves' body will be on public view throughout the day in the capital, Brasilia, officials said. On Tuesday, foreign dignitaries will pay their respects, and military honors are scheduled.

Government spokesman Antonio Britto announced Neves' death on television at 10:23 p.m. (8:23 p.m. EST) Sunday at the Heart Institute of the Clinical Hospital in Sao Paulo.

About 300 Brazilians, many weeping and some screaming, gathered outside the hospital. The crowd sang the national anthem. Police took away some who were hysterical.

"In the past 50 years, the public life of Tancredo Neves was an integral part of the hopes and ideals of Brazilians: Union, democracy, social justice and liberty. From now on, Brazil will have to attain those ideals without the leader it has just lost," Britto said.

Dr. Warren Myron Zapol, a physician from Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston specializing in lung illnesses and intensive care, said Saturday that Neves was suffering from fibrosis, a hardening of the air sacs in his lungs, because of high doses of oxygen being pumped into his lungs. Neves also was hooked up to an artificial kidney machine.

At Zapol's recommendation, doctors made a last-ditch effort to save Neves by lowering his body temperature Sunday to 86.9 degrees to reduce his need for oxygen. Normal body temperature is 98.6 degrees.

In Washington, the State Department said in a statement: "We are greatly saddened by his untimely and tragic demise. Our deepest condolences are offered to the family of the president-elect and to the people of Brazil."

Neves, whose political career spanned a half-century, was highly popular, but Sarney has many enemies.

The armed forces, which stepped down voluntarily after their regime had become highly unpopular, have pledged to follow the constitution and support Sarney as legal head of state.

Until mid-1984, Sarney headed the military-backed Social Democratic Party, acting as the leading voice and defender of the policies handed down by the military regimes that had ruled since a 1964 coup.

He and other dissidents quit the Social Democrats to align with Neves' Brazilian Democratic Movement Party, which gave Neves the majority needed for his January victory. In exchange, Sarney was put on the ballot as vice president. Neves and Sarney were chosen by an electoral college.

Jewish leaders say Kohl rejected appeal to cancel visit

BERGEN, West Germany (AP) — Chancellor Helmut Kohl told concentration camp survivors that Germans must accept "shame" for the Holocaust, but rejected an appeal from Jewish leaders to suggest that President Reagan cancel his visit to a military cemetery.

Kohl spoke Sunday at a Jewish memorial gathering marking the 40th anniversary of the Bergen-Belsen concentration camp's liberation by Allied troops. His speech was broadcast live on West German television.

"Bergen-Belsen ... remains a mark of Cain branded in the minds of our nation, just like Auschwitz and Treblinka, Belzec, and Sobibor, Chelmno and Majdanek, and the many other (Nazi camp) sites testifying to that mania for destruction," Kohl told 5,000 people at the camp site in northern West Germany.

Hundreds of Bergen-Belsen survivors and their families were among those who attended the two-hour ceremony organized by the Central Council of German Jews.

"Reconciliation with the survivors and descendants of the victims is only possible if we accept our history as it really was, if we Germans acknowledge our shame and our historical responsibility, and if we perceive the need to act against any efforts aimed at undermining human freedom and dignity," Kohl said.

World Jewish Congress leaders, in West Germany to attend the service, said later that they met with Kohl to ask that he suggest that Reagan cancel his planned visit to the Bitburg military cemetery.

Among the bodies buried at Bitburg are those of 47 Nazi SS troopers and nearly 2,000 German soldiers, most of whom were killed in the Battle of the Bulge in December 1944. That battle also resulted in 19,000 American deaths.

"Our mission failed. The chancellor stood firm. We gave it our best shot but Kohl will not change his mind," Elan Steinberg, director of the Congress' American section, said in a telephone interview.

There was a storm of criticism in the United States and abroad, and on Friday the White House announced Reagan and Kohl also would visit Bergen-Belsen on May 5.

"Kohl told us that there were no Nazis buried at Bitburg, only young boys," said Kalman Sultanik, a vice president of the Jewish congress. "He told us the Bitburg visit was important for German-American relations, and for Germany."

Quarterly statements indicate slumping Texas bank profits

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A slump in the energy industry was a key factor in declining quarterly profits for all but two of Texas' seven largest bank holding companies.

Five of the banking giants reported lower profits in the first quarter of 1985 than the last quarter of 1984. Three of the seven also showed lower earnings for the same periods, the Fort Worth Star-Telegram reported Sunday.

All six of the bank companies that provided figures for non-performing loans showed higher levels of bad loans, compared both to the fourth quarter and to the first quarter of 1984, the newspaper reported.

Bad, or non-performing, loans are those on which no payment has been made for at least 90 days.

MCorp of Dallas declined to provide figures for its non-performing loans because of accounting difficulties in the aftermath of its merger with Southwest Bancshares Inc., the Star-Telegram said.

"This just shows that we're in for a tough year for earnings," said Frank Anderson, analyst for Weber Hall Sale & Associates in Dallas.

Several bank chief executives agreed. They issued warnings at their respective shareholder meetings that 1985 shows little potential for earnings growth. They blamed the continuing slump in the energy industry, long the lending bulwark for Texas banks.

Every major Texas bank showed a profit for January through March, the newspaper said. However, there were disappointments.

Texas Commerce Bancshares Inc. of Houston saw its record of consecutive quarterly profit increases snapped at 64.

Fort Worth-based Texas American Bancshares Inc. was a strong performer in 1984, but reported a 15 percent decline in profits for the first quarter of this year compared to its first quarter last year.

First City Bancorporation of Houston reported earnings of just $7.6 million on nearly $18 billion in total assets.

The lead in non-performing loans belonged to InterFirst Corp. of Dallas with $797 million, down slightly from the $816 million reported a year ago.

Texas Commerce reported non-performing loans of $485 million, compared with $242 million a year ago and $367 million at the end of 1984. RepublicBank Corp. of Dallas showed non-performing loans of $495 million, up sharply from $352 million last year.

"Those non-performing loans are cutting seriously into earnings," Anderson said. "As long as there is no improvement in the non-performing loan level, it will be hard for earnings to improve."

Most of the bank companies reported drops in earnings, citing problems with energy borrowers.

"With the price of oil flat, we're seeing problems developing with some of the better-capitalized creditors in the drilling industry," Anderson said.

The high office building vacancy in Houston and Dallas has prompted some analysts to suggest that the consequences of overbuilding eventually will hit Texas banks in a manner similar to the impact that declining oil prices had on the industry beginning in 1983.

Chance to view rare confrontation of entrepreneur and corporate manager

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — There is no greater contrast in business types than that between the entrepreneur and the archetypal corporate manager.

And many people who follow the battle between Ted Turner, who seeks control of CBS Inc., and Thomas H. Wyman, its chairman, will see in it a rare confrontation between the two types.

Entrepreneurs usually are not well connected, not well educated in business, scornful of tradition, and without great assets. Many seem to have had problems as youths. They dislike working for others. They take risks.

Typically, big-business managers must be well-connected in order to get their jobs. They must respect the business establishment, which fears boat-rockers. Many are graduates of business schools, and most of them work well with others. They are not risk-takers.

Entrepreneurs are usually original thinkers. Many big-business executives go by the book. Entrepreneurs like to create, while managers tend to stick with what has worked. Managers often can't afford to dream; entrepreneurs can.

Big-business managers usually pride themselves on knowing what is going on in their companies, and do so through frequent meetings with subordinates. Entrepreneurs often have a distaste for administrative matters, preferring to hire others for day-to-day operations while they deal with the big picture.

Entrepreneurs often must live by their wits. Corporate managers have staffs of advisers. Entrepreneurs usually are strapped for cash somewhere in their development; managers have lines of credit to use. Entrepreneurs often are scorned by the establishment; managers often are the establishment.

Managers tend to have instant respect; entrepreneurs have to fight for it, and sometimes never get it.

Not all entrepreneurs run their own companies. Many, such as Lee Iacocca, the Chrysler chairman, manage large operations, and in some large companies there are entrepreneurial types throughout all levels of management.

While still rare, these "intrapreneurs" have become more common in recent years, a consequence of the more competitive business environment and recognition by Big Business that the industrial world is rapidly changing.

Some large companies, such as General Electric and IBM, have traditions of entrepreneurship. Other industries, such as autos and steel — ironically, the products of entrepreneurs — have accepted it more recently.

In fact, Roger Smith of General Motors and David Roderick of U.S. Steel have won reputations as innovators in the entrepreneurial style, having broken with traditional views of their industries, taken risks and instituted changes.

Wyman, in spite of the role in which he seems to have been cast — as defender of the tradition against an intruder — is also known as an innovator, a man of action, and a risk-taker in high-level jobs at Polaroid, Nestle, Green Giant, Pillsbury and CBS.

Inevitably, however, he will be viewed by many as the defender of tradition, of the status quo, of the establishment against a newcomer who wants to push his way in.
