

Hurricane leaves thousands dead

DHAKA, Bangladesh (AP) — A hurricane that rose in the Bay of Bengal and whipped mammoth waves across the islands and coast of Bangladesh has killed 1,464 people by official count, and news reports today said 10,000 people were feared dead.

President Hussain Mohammed Ershad flew to the stricken areas and ordered air force helicopters and four navy ships to join army and air force rescue teams.

Officials at the Cyclone Control Room at the chief martial law administrator's office said Sunday the confirmed death toll from Saturday's hurricane in southeastern Bangladesh was 1,464.

But the mass circulation Bengali-language daily The Ittefaq reported more than 10,000 were killed in the hurricane and 25-foot-high waves, and The Bangladesh Observer, an English-language daily, quoted unofficial sources as saying more than 25,000 were missing.

The Ittefaq, quoting an unidentified forestry official, said 7,000 of 10,000 residents of Urirchar Island were feared dead. The paper quoted survivors as saying the island was hit by 25-foot-high waves. Ittefaq's reporter said 3,000 others were dead in coastal areas.

Sultan Mahmood, the chief air force vice marshal, told the AP after touring the area that a 60-mile strip from Noakhali to the islands of Pirbkhsh and Char Clark had been ravaged, and he did not see any houses standing except for hurricane shelters.

Residents told Mahmood that 6,000 are missing on those islands, he said.

At least 50,000 families have lost their homes in Noakhali, Mahmood said.

Everyone who remained on the tiny island of Urirchar was dragged into the sea by 10 to 15-foot waves, said officials at the control room.

The officials said some of the estimated 10,000 islanders on Urirchar were evacuated to the mainland before the hurricane hit, but at least 500 were reported missing. Only a family of four has been rescued, officials said.

No contact could be established with the island, 35 miles off the coast from the town of Noakhali and near Sandwip island.

But the officials, who cannot be identified under martial law regulations, told The Associated Press a plane that flew over the area reported the island raked clean by waves.

In 1981, people began settling on the four-mile square island after erosion ate away their land. Many islanders lived on small boats.

A Dhaka journalist who visited Urirchar two years ago told the AP the settlers probably ignored the hurricane warning for fear of being displaced from their newly acquired land.

The control room reported 1,000 dead in Sudharam, 181 dead in other areas of Noakhali, 217 on Sandwip island, 24 on Bhola island and 42 from Sonagazi in the district of Feni, all near the mouth of the Ganges River.

Meanwhile, floods caused by the storm have affected about 50,000 people in northeastern India, the United News of India reported Sunday.

Bangladesh has a tropical monsoon climate during the summer with a short dry season. It receives an annual rainfall of about 80 inches during the summer months.

The country lies on a low delta region, fed by the Ganges, and is subject to severe flooding from monsoon rains, hurricanes and tidal waves.

In November of 1970, a hurricane killed at least 300,000 people.

Whaley won't back down on health agency

From Staff and Wire Reports AUSTIN (AP) — Texas senators have voted for state regulation of abortion clinics and to keep in operation a state agency the House wants to kill off.

The disagreement over the Texas Health Facilities Commission could force a special session of the Legislature, lawmakers said. The current session ends at midnight tonight.

State Rep. Foster Whaley of Pampa said he will not budge on his opposition to continued operation of the Health Facilities Commission, even if it does mean a special session, and he doesn't think the rest of the House will either.

"It is one of the sorriest and most useless agencies in state government," Whaley said of the commission, which has the authority to determine whether new hospital and nursing home facilities are constructed.

The battleground in this struggle is the Department of Health, which would go out business Sept. 1 if not continued by the Legislature.

House members have approved the Department of Health bill, but the Senate on Sunday added amendments that would allow the state to license and regulate abortion clinics and would revive the Health Facilities Commission. The House voted 98-49 Friday to let that commission die. The agency controls construction of hospitals and nursing homes.

Rep. Whaley said he will vote against the Health Facilities Commission, even if it means discontinuing operation of the Department of Health. He said he thinks if the House stands firm, the Senate will back down on the issue.

Speaker Gib Lewis also said he sees little chance the House will back down.

"I think the House has spoken pretty firmly on the Health Facilities Commission. The votes are out there and it's pretty firm," Lewis said, adding that he would rule the Senate amendment is not pertinent to the Department of Health bill.

Rep. Brad Wright, D-Houston, led the fight to kill the agency, which he said is controlled by the industry it is supposed to regulate. He said the Senate action would force a special session.

"Obviously, that would give the lobbyists time to regroup and squeeze people for another 30 days. That could cause some people to waffle," he said.

Wright said the House probably would not object to the abortion regulation amendment. Pro-life and pro-choice forces have said the state should try to guarantee that abortions are performed safely. Abortion clinics are not now regulated in Texas.

"The state has a right and duty to regulate hospital-like procedures," said Sen. Ted Lyon, D-Rockwall, whose amendment would create the Texas Abortions Facilities Reporting and Licensing Act.

"For the first time we will know how many abortions are performed in Texas and under what conditions," Lyon said. "This is designed to protect women. This is the first time we have right-to-life and pro-choice people supporting the same thing."

Lyon's proposal would have the Texas Board of Health adopt rules for licensing places where abortions are performed and set out minimum standards of operation.

Abortions could be performed only by a physician.

Commission to consider oil well issue

Pampa city commissioners Tuesday morning will hold a public hearing regarding the issuance of a Specific Use Permit for the drilling of oil wells within city limits.

Meeting at 9:30 a.m. in their regular meeting, the commissioners will also consider a proposed ordinance arising out of the request by Triple J Oil Co. to drill new wells in the Tumbleweed Addition area southeast of the Kentucky and Price Road intersection.

Triple J partner Joe Curtis, noting the oil rights on the land had existed prior to its annexation by the city, had applied for a Specific Use Permit with the Planning and Zoning Commission for the drilling of at least two new oil wells in the area.

But following a public hearing

May 16 at which a number of citizens protested the health and safety aspects of the wells to nearby residents, the Zoning Commission voted to recommend the city commission deny the permit.

Since then, City Manager Bob Hart has asked the city staff to draw up the ordinance for consideration by the city commission. The ordinance, if passed, would permit the drilling of the wells with limitations and restrictions designed to minimize the possible health and safety hazards.

In other matters, the commission will consider on second and final reading the proposed ordinance concerning setting guidelines for the installation of driveway entrance pipes and providing for the replacement of pipes removed last summer.

In zoning matters, commissioners will consider two ordinances on first reading. One would change the zoning from Single Family 3 District to a Specific Use Permit for Lots 22 to 26 of the Wilcox Addition for the operation of a day-care center. The other would approve a zoning change from Office to Retail District for the NBC Plaza Addition.

Commissioners also will consider approval of the final plan for the Morgan Addition, located northeast of the Coronado Medical Complex.

In other business, the commission will consider awarding bids relative to the purchase of traffic sign materials and printed paper goods. Commissioners also will consider authorizing payments relative to architectural services and engaging a firm to perform the 1984-1985 audit and prepare a comprehensive financial report.

In addition, commissioners will consider passage of the ordinance setting regular commission meetings at 6 p.m. on the second and fourth Tuesdays of each month, adoption of a deferred compensation plan for public employees and approval of accounts payable.

In his report session, Hart will discuss a proposed oil and gas well ordinance and meetings involving the Texas Municipal League and the Canadian River Municipal Water Authority.

Local woman dies in Saturday crash

GROOM — Helen Thompson, 74, of Pampa and a 2-year-old Mississippi girl were killed Saturday when the car Mrs. Thompson was driving during a heavy downpour hit a pick-up truck on Interstate 40 ten miles west of Groom.

Mrs. Thompson died at 2:46 a.m. Sunday at Northwest Texas Hospital in Amarillo. The child, Jennifer Fairley of Lucedale,

Obituary, Page two

Miss. was pronounced dead on arrival at the hospital.

According to Texas Department of Public Safety trooper Gary Davis of Groom, Thompson was driving west on the eastbound lane of the interstate at about 6:10 p.m. Saturday when she hit, head-on, a pick-up truck driven by Jack Fairley, 30, of Mississippi.

Fairley was listed in good condition at N.W.T.H. His wife Jean Fairley, 33, and daughter Jacqueline Fairley, 7, were listed in satisfactory condition this morning.

"Thompson had been on the wrong side of the road for about ten miles," Davis said. "It happened during a heavy downpour. Visibility was bad. You could hardly see a hundred feet in front of you. I had just driven out of some hail, a mile east (of the scene) when I came upon the wreck. It looked like snow. It was hailing so bad."

Thompson and the Fairley family were transported to Amarillo by Groom ambulance.

HONORED—Texas Ranger Bill Baten of Pampa receives a copy of a Senate resolution recognizing his contributions of law enforcement from Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby. Sen. Bill Sarpalius, who introduced the resolution, watches in the background.

Texas Ranger Baten nominated for award

After 22 years as a Texas ranger and many more years as police chief and sheriff's officer, Bill Baten of Pampa is being considered for the state's highest honor afforded law enforcement officers.

In a State Senate resolution drafted May 20 by Sen. Bill Sarpalius, Baten was nominated for the Tom Telespen Award, which is sponsored by the Texas Sheriff's Association. Baten was presented with the nomination resolution recently at the Texas state capitol.

According to Gray County Sheriff Rufe Jordan, the Telespen Award is presented each year at the annual Texas Sheriff's Conference. This year the conference will be held in Corpus Christi. The award is named for Tom Telespen, a Norwegian immigrant who became a wealthy Texas industrialist. The award is handled through the Telespen estate.

Jordan commended Baten for being "a fine man and a fine officer."

"He has helped throughout the Panhandle," Jordan said.

The resolution, however, notes the accomplishments of Baten's nearly 40-year law enforcement career, which began in 1946 after a post-World War II job at a Memphis Cotton mill. He served as chief of police of Memphis before becoming deputy Sheriff in Hall County in 1948. In 1954, he was elected Hall County Sheriff. He has been a Texas Ranger in the Pampa area since 1962.

The resolution notes that Baten, who is expected to retire in 1986, "never forgets the name and the face of a criminal."

He is "known to his fellow officers and those under his command for his high moral character, loyalty and leadership capability."

Baten's wartime career is equally impressive, having served in the South Pacific. Among his war commendations are the Philippine Liberation Ribbon, the Victory Medal, the Pacific Theater Ribbon, the Good Conduct Medal and the Bronze Arrowhead. He joined the Army in 1942 and was discharged at war's end in 1945 as a first sergeant.

He was born June 15, 1921 in Breckenridge and was reared in the Brice Community in Hall County. He and his wife Mary have two daughters, Treba Joy and Janetta Sue, and four grandchildren.

Committee chairmen agree tax plan a 'starting place'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairmen of the congressional tax writing committees agreed Sunday that President Reagan's tax-overhaul plan will be a starting point for enacting sweeping legislation this year to streamline the federal tax code.
In addition, Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore., chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, appeared to drop his earlier concerns and said he is "satisfied with what I think the president's going to announce" to the nation Tuesday night.
Speaking on ABC's "This Week," Packwood said he had "worked extensively" with Treasury Secretary James A. Baker III during the drafting of the plan, "and if it comes out as we've talked, I'll be very pleased."
Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, was more circumspect about his views on the plan Reagan will unveil in a nationally broadcast address from the Oval Office. But Rostenkowski declared on NBC's "Meet the Press" that Democrats are ready to work with the president on the issue.

When Packwood was tapped to become chairman of the Finance Committee late last year, he publicly questioned the value of a sweeping rewrite of the tax code that would not raise revenue to trim the budget deficit and would end various deductions and credits aimed at promoting social goals.
Reagan has said his aim is to streamline the tax system, close various loopholes, end some tax breaks and use the money to lower personal tax rates.
Last month, Packwood declared that if the president's proposal called for taxing health benefits for employees and other benefits, "I will do everything I can do to defeat the bill no matter what else is in it."
But on Sunday, Packwood's tone was different and he indicated his support.
"I think almost everything that the president recommends, almost everything, is going to be adopted," Packwood said. "By and large, the president's bill will be the skeleton we work from and will be very close to what we pass."

Advance indications are that the president's plan will be less stringent than the one outlined by his own Treasury Department last November. That plan would have raised corporate taxes by about 35 percent to pay for slashing taxes paid overall by individuals by about 8.5 percent.
Packwood acknowledged, "There were some changes made in it ... to attempt to mollify some of the opponents."
Packwood and Rostenkowski agreed that it will be a difficult task passing such legislation, but they also said it can be done this year.
Rostenkowski's panel, which will act first on the tax plan, is beginning hearings June 4. He said the full House can pass a bill by "the first or middle part of October."
Packwood, whose panel begins hearings June 10, said, "We can have a bill out of the Congress and to the president by the end of the year."
Rostenkowski said that the most important element in passing a package will be convincing the public that the legislation is fair.

Summer Youth Program offered free of charge

By BOB HART
Pampa City Manager

Our Summer Youth Recreation Program is offered free of charge to youth ages 9-14 at the Optimist Park. It is a five-week program that runs from the second week in June to the second week in July.
This year the dates are June 10 through July 12. Registration will begin June 10.
From 9 a.m. to 10:45 a.m. the children participate in arts and crafts or sports and games. They are dismissed at 10:45 a.m., at which time they go to the City Pool for an hour of swimming. However, they must participate in the first session in order to take part in the swimming session.
Included in arts and crafts are leather craft, weaving, pottery, metal craft and plaster craft, just to name a few. Our sports and games program includes dodge ball, jump rope, basketball, volleyball, kickball, softball, ping pong and board games.
The children have a choice and may take part in both arts and crafts and in sports and games, provided they complete a craft they have started or there is an opening for them to participate in a game.

Last year we enrolled approximately 300 young people. We would very much like to gradually expand the program to cover a larger part of the city and to include a larger percentage of the youth of Pampa.
We feel that this is a very worthwhile program and gives our young people something creative and fun to do during the summer.
Our Summer Adult Recreation Program is comprised of four Summer Softball Leagues and two Fall Softball Leagues.
Team participation is as follows:
Summer Softball 1985
Men's Open League - 32 teams.
Women's Open League - 10 teams.
Men's Church League - 15 teams.
Women's Church League - 7 teams.
Fall Softball 1984
Men's Open League - 30 teams.
Mixed League - 20 teams.
The figures for the Fall Softball program is based on teams enrolled last fall.
The Summer Leagues began March 28 with the Men's Preseason Tournament, which is open to both the Men's Open League and the Men's Church League. The regular season got underway on April 22 and, with a little help from the weatherman, should end the week of July 8.

Fall League registration will begin immediately following the close of the Summer Leagues. Deadline for the Men's Open is July 15, and July 17 for the Mixed League.
There are approximately 900 men and women presently participating in our Summer Softball Program. Games are played Monday through Friday at Hobart Street Park and Lion's Club Park.
Generally, there are eight games per night scheduled at Hobart Street Park beginning at 6:30 p.m. and ending at 10:30 p.m. When it is needed, there are two games per night scheduled at Lion's Club Park.
The public is always welcome, so COME ON OUT TO THE BALLPARK and enjoy an evening of fun and entertainment.

Soccer fans die in tunnel crush

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Thousands of soccer fans jammed a tunnel into Mexico City's second largest stadium to watch a playoff match, and eight people died and 29 were injured in the crush, authorities said.
The official news agency Notimex said the eight died of asphyxiation. But Angel Corona, the Public Ministry official leading the investigation, told The Associated Press any comment on the cause of death would be "pure speculation."
He said autopsies would be conducted today.
Angel Corona said two boys, ages 12 and 15, were among the dead and the other victims were men over 20. Seven people perished in the tunnel and an eighth died after being taken to the hospital, he said.
An estimated 90,000 people were inside the 70,000-capacity stadium when the match began at noon, Notimex said.
Notimex said thousands of people were trying to force their way into the stadium without tickets and found the doors to one entrance shut. The people in the pedestrian tunnel then "went crazy," the news agency said.

Texas may become biggest

HOUSTON (AP) — Throughout the years Texas has found itself on the wings of populous states like New York who have dominated the nation's limelight.
But as the 21st century rolls around, Texas could take center stage by becoming the most populous state, officials say.
Texas could conceivably jump from its current third place slot behind California and New York to the top with its population reaching 20 million, the Houston Post reported Sunday.

The U.S. Census Bureau predicts Texas to come in second to California in the year 2000 — with respective populations of 20.7 million and 30.6 million.
But the Lone Star boom could put Texas in first place that year, according to Susan Szanislo, coordinator of the Texas Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations in Austin.
The commission also projects Texas to pass New York in 1990.
The Texas Department of Health predicts Texas actually will have a population of about 27.8 million by 2000, including 14.3 million Anglos, 11.2 million Hispanics, and 2.3 million blacks.
The anticipated population explosion is expected to include a massive influx of senior citizens seeking Sun Belt comfort and a continuing increase in the numbers of Hispanics seeking to better their lives by moving into Texas from Mexico, officials say.
The estimated 3.8 million Hispanics in Texas today are expected to almost triple to just over 11 million, exceeding today's Anglo population of 10 million plus.

Officials at the state's two largest airports say their facilities are well-prepared for the future.
Houston aviation officials say Intercontinental Airport will expand from three to eight terminals by 2000, handling 53 million passengers. It handled 13 million in 1984.
Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport, which has built on only a third of its 17,800 acres and also has plenty of area for expansion, handled 32.2 million passengers last year.
Joe Dealey Jr., the airport's public information officer, said the airport can handle more than 70 million passengers and can expand from its current 96 airport gates to 234.
In addition, the state highway department's Strategic Mobility Plan through the year 2005 shows the state spending about $38 billion on 5,688 highway projects.

Fundamentalist-moderate battle reaches Baptist seminary

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — In six years of fighting over degrees of conservatism, Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary has become more strongly polarized with fundamentalists and "liberals" at bitter odds.

In the latest battle, fundamentalists, who are trying to gain control of Baptist institutions, are locked in a power struggle with moderates who oppose them.

The controversy at Southwestern, the world's largest school for training ministers, began last year when the seminary's president, Russell Dilday, joined in the interdenominational fray.

Since then, a few professors have banned tape recorders in class, while others have used them to record conversations with administrators and reporters, the Dallas Times Herald reported Sunday.

Faculty members have shown "a little more suspicion of one another, wondering, 'Where does he stand?'" said Curtis Vaughn, a New Testament professor.

Next month, Baptists attending their annual convention in Dallas will elect as president either the Rev. Charles Stanley of Atlanta, a fundamentalist, or the Rev. Winfred Moore of Amarillo, a moderate.

Fundamentalists have elected four successive convention presidents in an effort to end what they call a "liberal drift" in Baptist institutions.

Dilday said he began speaking against the fundamentalists a year ago because they were coming close to taking over Southwestern's board.

"Within two years ... if this trend in our denomination does not change, we will lose this institution," Dilday said recently.

Fundamentalists have charged that some professors at other Baptist seminaries do not consider the Bible inerrant — or correct in all scientific, historical and theological details.

For example, they accuse some professors of teaching that the first 11 chapters of Genesis, including the stories of creation and the great flood, are symbolic rather than literal history.

But no one has made such charges against Southwestern.

"I believe that the first 11 chapters of Genesis were not mythological, and I've never heard any professor here say otherwise," said Craig Price, student president of the school of theology.

Southwestern's professors do tell students whether Bible scholars disagree about a passage, however, and some fear fundamentalist trustees would have them present only one view.

"There'd be no room to test ideas, to grow," said Ruth Ann Foster, a doctoral candidate. "That's frightening."

Some students and officials believe Dilday's decision to become involved in the fray has been the main issue at Southwestern. It was because of the respect accorded Dilday that he entered the dispute at last year's Southern Baptist Convention, said Bruce Corley, an associate professor of New Testament.

"His speaking out is the only speaking out that would have made any difference," Corley said. "It's just the prestige and influence of this place."

Last October, Southwestern trustees tabled a resolution that would have "instructed" Dilday to be silent. But in March, the board refused to support Dilday's request to fire a tenured associate professor, Farrar Patterson, who had been accused of academic incompetence and cursing a dean.

Critics said Dilday had launched a vendetta against a professor who had criticized him.

Trustee Bill Grubbs of Dallas said, "The only thing he had (against Patterson) was six years ago he said 'damn.'"

Fire continuing to burn; most evacuees return home

EASTLAND, Texas (AP) — A railroad tanker carrying propylene gas burned for the third straight day after a huge truck slammed into a train carrying dangerous chemicals and forced a mile-wide evacuation of homes, city offices and businesses, authorities said.

About 1,000 people who fled their homes after the accident returned home Saturday and Sunday as flames and wisps of black smoke continued to rise from the wreckage of rail cars.

Hazardous chemical experts still considered a half-mile area around the spill site unsafe and barred about 200 other town residents from returning to the area late Sunday.

The burning tanker, one of 25 cars that derailed, exploded in a huge fireball Friday after a truck hit the train at a railroad crossing.

Late Saturday, officials reduced the mile-radius evacuation area to an eight-block radius, and then to about five blocks Sunday, fire officials said.

Meanwhile, the cleanup process progressed slowly as work crews moved the 25 derailed cars and transferred containers of dangerous chemicals to other transport vehicles.

Railroad officials said they hoped to have the track at the junction of Texas Highway 69 re-opened by late today, said Mark Davis, a spokesman for Union Pacific.

"From here on out, it's just a process of hour by hour getting more of it cleaned up. We're estimating we might have the track open by late tomorrow," he said Sunday.

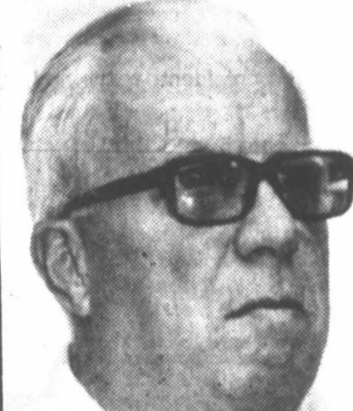

One city official who declined to be named said the highway would remain closed for at least a week.

Eastland Mayor Charles Marshall issued a plea to Gov. Mark White to declare Eastland a disaster area. Marshall declared a disaster about 5 p.m. Friday.

"It appears, at this time, damage will run into millions of dollars, not counting business losses for several days and evacuation of population from their homes," Marshall said in a

Life's experiences can hurt

There must have been a slight typographical error when one of our familiar sayings was created.

It should have read, "Into each life a little pain must fall." And maybe whoever said it first was misquoted. There's no such thing as a "little" pain.

We learn about pain at an early age. When babies first start toddling and reaching for objects they shouldn't, slaps on the hand — or a more strategic part of the anatomy — induce an aching incentive to cease and desist.

Before long, infants grow to an age where they can start hurting themselves. Humans are terribly prone to bumping their bodies against unyielding and sometimes sharp items. The fact that little kids haven't achieved a high level of equilibrium usually results in more accidents.

But then, some people never grow up.

Cuts, scrapes, bruises and broken bones are facts of life. Alas, some unfortunate souls seem more prone to accidents.

Perhaps they are merely unlucky, or maybe they are more careless in their actions. For whatever reason, they have to allocate more time out of each day for writing and wincing.

Remember all those cowboy movies where the hero gets plugged in some isolated locale and the bullet has to be extracted soon? In typical John Wayne fashion, the tough guy takes a swig of whiskey and puts a bullet between his teeth while some friend, sweat pouring off his brow, takes a huge knife and digs out the offending piece of lead.

Now that's pain.

We were led to believe that anyone who couldn't handle a bit of suffering was a sissy, pure and simple. When hurt occurred, it was acceptable to curse and scream, but no whining was allowed.

In fact, many victims became fond of flaunting their infirmities. Such people love to relate graphic details of the incident that created the injury and then give expansive descriptions of the medical treatment as if they deserve a medal for surviving the agony.

Thankfully, society's position toward such macho antics is changing. We are allowed to show anguish without being pegged with any lasting stigma. Whimpering after being inflicted with a paper cut is standard procedure.

Plus, technology has developed wonderful chemical concoctions to dull, or eliminate pain. Why chew on a figurative bullet when you can ingest a literal capsule?

As if self-induced pain wasn't enough, age tends to make the body rebel against itself — something akin to the warranty lapsing. Backs give way under years of strain, bones become more brittle, arthritis and related disorders tend to attack joints and muscles.

By the time such ailments come on the scene, presumably, we have lived long enough to expect and endure pain.

A few types of common pain are harder to accept than others: backaches, toothaches and headaches immediately come to mind.

Any pain associated with the head seems worse, probably because the nerve endings are that much closer to the brain. Just the mention of a root canal is enough to give most people goose bumps.

But there's a funny thing about this. When someone is in the throes of pain, he or she acts like the most miserable person alive. "Boy, does that smart!"

Then, once the problem has been alleviated, the hero suddenly returns. "Oh well, it wasn't that bad. I'm tough." Exaggerated gory details always follow.

At that point, a former pain-sufferer is turning into a pain in the, for lack of a shorter word, tush.

House approves fee hikes, sent to governor

AUSTIN (AP) — Lawmakers have approved a $146 million fee hike package in which Texans would help balance the state budget by driving, filing lawsuits, drilling for oil and buying personalized license plates.

The compromise measure now goes to Gov. Mark White.

House members voted 94-53 in favor of the fee hikes. Senators voted 25-6 for the bill. Both chambers acted on the measure Sunday. The session ends today.

Speaker Gib Lewis, who rarely votes, voted for the bill.

"I step out and vote when you've got an issue that people get very concerned about, like voting for a tax bill or what's perceived as a tax bill. If I'm going to ask my members to do it, I'm willing to come out front, too. I'll take the heat just like they do," he said.

The fee bill is a compromise between measures approved in the House and Senate. The compromise was reached last Thursday night as one way of financing the state spending bill for 1986-87.

The new fee schedule would be effective Sept. 1. Included is a hike from the current annual $5.25 motor vehicle inspection fee for all cars to a $7.75 a year fee for cars two years or older.

Inspection of new cars would cost $15, but be good for two years.

Other fees raised by the bill:

- Drivers' licenses, good for four years, from $10 to $16.
- Filing a civil law suit in a district court would cost $75 instead of the current $25, except for no increase in filing child custody cases. The county, which handles the filing, would get $10 of the $75. They get nothing now.
- Personalized auto license plates would increase from $40 to $75 a set.
- Probation fees would increase from $15 a month to not more than $40 monthly, to cover administration costs of the service.
- Permits for fleets of emergency medical vehicles would increase from $500 to maximum of $2,000.

- A new fee of $120 per acre for surface mining was levied.
- Drillers of oil and gas wells would have to pay a special $50 fee to get their permit expedited through bureaucratic red tape.

- A new fee of $300 to $750 would be charged for the attorney general's review of bond issues to assure their constitutionality.
- The Department of Water Resources would be authorized to charge $2,000 to $50,000 for hazardous waste permits.

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Private schools shouldn't worry

Some private school administrators are worried about the possibility that they might be dropped from the state's accreditation program. They should not be. They should rejoice, and echo one of The Rev. Martin Luther King's most famous phrases, "Free at last! Free at last!"

If that state goes ahead with a reported recommendation that it no longer send teams to inspect private schools for accreditation purposes, it will not harm the private schools of Texas. It will give them an opportunity to achieve status and prestige that the public schools system may never attain.

The state's accreditation process involves sending a team of examiners to each school to check into nearly all aspects of its operation. The state was doing the inspections every five years, but the Legislature has now put in a requirement that they be done each three years. In addition, the Legislature had demanded that it also make certain all schools are following new directives included in the school reforms package passed by the legislature last year.

This, of course, would be much more expensive and it has been reported that Education Commissioner W.N. Kirby will recommend to the Board of Education that it stop monitoring private schools.

Some private school administrators are concerned because colleges usually require incoming students to be graduates of an accredited school. What this means is that the private schools in Texas will have to adopt their own accreditation process and sell it to colleges in order for their graduates to gain admittance.

The private school administrators who oppose the state dropping its accreditation process complain that they need more time to institute one of their own. Others are worried that the public will perceive the private schools as sub-standard if their quality is not certified by the state.

While such a process may take some time, the fear of an adverse public perception of private schools accredited by their own organizations rather than the state is unfounded. For example, who would take seriously any state accreditation team that chastises schools for such asinine things as referring to cheerleaders as "she" and to Future Farmers of America as "he" in the school handbook. One area school was criticized by the state team for exactly those reasons recently. Any inspection process that concerns itself with such Mickey Mouse activities is unlikely to have much respect in the first place.

We think the private schools will be given a golden opportunity if the state does stop giving them accreditation. If they establish their own process, based on academic standards and eliminating some of the political idiocy that marks the state program, it won't be long before their program is held in much higher esteem than the state's.

When that happens, students from private schools will not only be welcomed by universities and colleges. They will be sought.

The case for tax reform

It is time for President Reagan to get the country "to wake up and smell the coffee": The only real solution to the deficit problem is economic growth - and the key to that is tax reform.

Indeed, without serious tax reform, the economy will not grow fast enough to keep deficits from rising, no matter what kind of budget cuts the president finally wins from Congress.

He should now ignore Sen. Robert Dole's (R - Kan.) politically motivated opposition to tax reform, and press the case for its potential for real economic and revenue growth, by selling it directly to the American people - not once, but often.

He should point out the irrefutable fact from International Monetary Fund and World Bank data that countries with low marginal tax rates have much faster rates of real revenue growth (and therefore lower deficits) than those with high rates.

For example, from 1975 - 82, Jamaica had a net loss in real government revenues of 14 percent, while Panama with 30 - percent lower top marginal tax rates, had real revenue growth of 128 percent. In Jamaica, the top tax rate kicks in at only 2 times per capita GNP ($2,800) - in Panama it doesn't kick in until 100 times per capita GNP ($200,000).

Since 1975, virtually all of the high - tax less - developed countries (LDC) have experienced real revenue declines - while all of the low - tax (LDC) and Asian countries have experienced huge real revenue increases.

A 1983 - 84 study of World Bank economist Keith Marsden shows that in ten pairs of high - tax vs.

low - tax countries of comparable economic and cultural development, in the '70s the average annual rate of GNP growth was 7.3 percent for the low - tax countries, and only 1.1 percent for the high tax burdens.

He also found that "higher rates of economic growth (in low - tax countries) allowed a substantial rise in real living standards...and an expansion of the tax base - generated increased revenues, which financed more rapid spending growth for government services..."

He concluded, "Lower taxes are compatible with a pattern of development that raises output and reduces poverty, significantly."

It should be no surprise that in America, the year following all five tax increases since World War II produced sharp DECLINES in real revenue growth, while six out of seven tax - rate reductions produced sharp INCREASES in real revenue growth - with ALL of the revenue growth coming from the top 5 - 10 percent of taxpayers.

This is why a major econometric analysis by Harris Bank shows that significant tax reform will greatly increase U.S. economic growth and government revenues, and therefore lower the federal deficit sharply from "current policy" projections.

Harris' Dr. Robert Genetski, a pioneer in studies of the relation between individual state tax burdens and their varying rates of growth, "modelled" the three major reform packages, Treasury - 1 (T - 1), Kemp - Kasten (K - K), and Bradley - Gephardt (B - G).

He found that without reform "the present system contains hidden increases in tax rates...that could cause the productivity trend to slow by as much as 1.5 percent per year," and by 1990, without tax reform, the budget deficit will GROW to $271 billion (1985 dollars) at 6.1 percent of GNP, compared with 4.7 percent today.

By contrast, "the leading tax reform proposals would enable the economy to produce anywhere from $450 to $750 billion (1985 $) more output," and generate between $30 and $100 billion in 1990 deficit reduction, to the 3 - 4 percent of GNP range.

He found the K - K and B - G plans were by far the best, with K - K the most "efficient," leading to "an additional $750 billion (1985) in potential output in 1990, over what would be the case under present law. This represents more than $5,000 of additional real income per worker." It also represents a real revenue gain of $140 billion a year (1985 $) by 1990.

While K - K was best, the Genetski study shows a stunning gain for all three tax - reform proposals, with 1985 - 90 cumulative growth for K - K at 31 percent, B - G at 24 percent, and T - 1 at 22 percent, compared with only 12 percent under present law. With all three, unemployment drops to 4.8 percent compared with 7.2 percent under present law.

It also shows that K - K and T - 1 result in significant declines in short term interest rates (to the 5 - percent range) and mortgage rates (to the 7 - percent range).

Most important, Genetski found that because of higher growth and lower unemployment all three tax reforms would cut federal spending's share of GNP from its 1990 projected 26 percent (under current law) to 21.4 percent (K - K), 23.6 percent (B - G) and 22.6 percent (T - 1). These, combined with the current "deficit reduction" packages, would balance the budget.

This is why tax reform is so basic to total deficit reduction.

Today in History

By The Associated Press

Today is Monday, May 27, the 147th day of 1985. There are 218 days left in the year. Memorial Day is observed today.

Today's highlight in history:

On May 27, 1937, the Golden Gate Bridge spanning San Francisco Bay was opened.

On this date:

Ten years ago: President Gerald R. Ford said in a televised address that he would double the $1-a-barrel oil import fee. Tearing pages off a calendar to make his point, Ford accused Congress of failing to act swiftly on energy conservation.

Five years ago: President Jimmy Carter won Democratic presidential primaries in Arkansas, Kentucky and Nevada, moving to within 86 votes of the delegate majority he needed for renomination.

One year ago: Thirteen people were killed in floods in Tulsa, Okla. Today's birthdays: Actor Vincent Price is 74.

Our misguided indignation

The "scapegoat concept" went out when the New Testament came in.

No longer can we dump another's blood on the altar or nail somebody else to a cross to atone for our sins; from now on each of us pays for his own.

From what you are hearing, seeing and reading you would surely conclude that the government of South Africa is the world's worst. It's not.

This springtime's demonstrators on some campuses in the United States protest and parade under banners demanding: "No more trade and aid for South Africa."

If the young petitioners had done their homework they'd know that South Africa gets no foreign aid from the United States and that United States investments there - compared to total foreign investments in South Africa - are negligible.

South Africa's black neighbors have no reluctance about trading with South Africa. Indeed, neighboring Mozambique - though a Marxist state - has concluded a non - aggression pact with Pretoria.

Our selective indignation is nowhere more apparent than in our con-damnation of South Africa while ignoring - and even foreign-aiding - other nations with much worse records for repressing, discriminating, murdering opponents, jailing critics and expelling unpopular minorities.

Ritual abuse of South Africa is conspicuously hypocritical if one dares to recognize that social and economic improvement for blacks has been greater over the past three years in South Africa - than in Chicago.

Selective indignation.

The first whites settled in South Africa at the same time the first whites settled on American soil.

South Africa has since required blacks to live on "reservations" much as we have moved American Indians onto reservations - only in South Africa the blacks got fertile land with favorable climate.

The nation of South Africa is in need of further reforms; what nation isn't?

But there are tyrannies in Africa so much worse that refugees continue to flock from black neighbor nations into South Africa where living standards and job opportunities are infinitely better than at home.

For South Africa is the most vigorous, the most productive and most progressive country on that continent.

Beer war threatens EEC

HAMBURG, West Germany (NEA) - Will drink be the downfall of the European Economic Community?

One might almost think so from the ruckus about beer being raised by some of West Germany's partners in the 10-nation association.

The problem is that they haven't been able to crack the German beer market. They say this is because West German law bars their brews, in flagrant violation of community ground rules. Every country is supposed to be open to the products of every other country.

Out-and-out protectionism, they charge.

Nonsense, the Germans say. The law, which predates the community by four centuries, is on the up-and-up. Its purpose is solely to protect the public health. Any economic side effect is entirely incidental and accidental.

The law in question is based on a decree originally issued in Bavaria in 1516 and subsequently adopted throughout Germany. It limits ingredients that can be used in making beer to grain malt, hops, yeast, water and, in some cases, sugar.

Nothing more. All natural. No additives. Beers from other EEC countries are barred because they include coloring agents, preservatives and the like.

The Germans say that if non-German brewers want to enter the German market, they need only conform to the German recipe for pure beer and eliminate the extras. It's as simple as that.

It is not, the excluded brewers say. They do not deny doctoring their beers, but say it is ridiculous to claim that that poses any risk to the health of the Germans, who use the very same additives in other food products legally produced and sold in Germany.

They would seem to have a point there, but the Germans still aren't buying it or their beer. So the issue has been taken to the European Court of Justice, with a decision possible by the end of the year.

Meanwhile, the Germans continue to drink only German beer. Copiously. Almost 10 percent of all expenditures for comestibles goes for beer. There is a wide choice with well over a thousand breweries pouring out several types of beer - dark, light, "white" (made from wheat rather than the usual barley) and on and on.

A true connoisseur, such as my acquaintance Wally, approaches beers much as oenophiles do wines, savoring the distinctive characteristics and drinking several different ones during the course of a meal to complement the dishes being served.

Wally's expertise is not limited to German beers. He travels and has sampled alternatives not available at home. He finds merit in a few. Danish beer he judges "very drinkable," if not up to German standards.

But most non-German beer is to be disdained.

"I wouldn't put my foot in it," sniffs Wally.

Loyalists like Wally are legion. They recently had cause to be shaken, however, by an expose in Stern magazine. Numerous German breweries, it was charged, have been secretly doctoring their beers to enhance such consumer-pleasing characteristics as color and a stiff head of foam.

The government has taken up the investigation, which continues and might appear to strengthen the case of the excluded EEC brewers. But then again maybe not.

Even if the outsiders eventually succeed in beating down the legal barriers to the German market, they must contend with the fierce preferences and prejudices of the German loyalists who won't drink just any beer simply because it is available. Not even just any German beer.

Male nurses cross the line dividing the traditional roles

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1985 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: You asked your readers how they felt about male nurses. Well, let me tell you. If I caught a male nurse tending my wife, he would leave her room faster than he went in. Men should stay in man's work, or confine their nursing to men only.

My wife goes to a woman doctor. She started going to a male doctor, but I wouldn't let her go back to him a second time. I made her find a woman doctor.

My wife had to see a specialist once, and he was a man, but I insisted on going into the examination room with her. If a doctor won't allow a husband in the room, he shouldn't be a doctor. I hope to see a law passed that says no male doctor can examine a woman unless her husband is present.

KNOXVILLE, TENN.

DEAR KNOXVILLE: Would you hope to see a law passed that says no female doctor can examine a man unless his wife is present? Just asking.

DEAR ABBY: Are male nurses discriminated against? This is the way it is in Vancouver, Wash.

Hospitals have nurses' lounges—but the males aren't allowed to use them. Female nurses are often provided with uniforms and laundry service—males aren't, unless they want to wear the "scrub" uniforms, which lack the crisp, professional appearance most nurses like to maintain.

A male's sexuality is always suspect. Many female nurses assume that a male nurse must be somehow "less of a man"—otherwise he'd be a doctor, not a nurse. It's amusing to see the slightly shocked expression with which one nurse meets another nurse's wife for the first time.

How do I know all this? I am a nurse, and so is my husband.

NURSE'S WIFE

DEAR ABBY: You asked, "Are male nurses discriminated against?" This may answer your question:

During the final hours of Christmas shopping last year, a hysterical woman ran out of the ladies' room in a large department store screaming, "A woman fainted in there, and she's on the floor white as a sheet—somebody come help her!"

I immediately handed my packages to my wife and started for the ladies' room saying, "I'll help her—I'm a nurse." Some woman behind me shouted, "You'd better say you're a doctor!"

F.D.H., RN, DETROIT

DEAR ABBY: If I ever have to go to a hospital, I will give strict orders not to send me a male nurse to even give me a bedpan. (I would sooner be looked after by the cleaning woman.)

Women are traditionally caretakers by nature. We nurse our babies, and when our husband and children are sick, we take care of them. And in the end, we women take care of our elderly parents.

Men, on the other hand, are traditionally the child molesters, perverts, wife beaters, exhibitionists, serial murderers and general all-around louses. We women can consider ourselves lucky if we can find one decent man to spend our life with and have children.

Men are expecting too much if they expect to be trusted until they improve their record and their reputation.

If a man wants to be a nurse, let him find a job in a veterans hospital.

LOIS IN NEW YORK

DEAR ABBY: I know a lot of people who think the only reason a man wants to be a nurse is so he can be around more women in various stages of undress. I doubt it.

I have two good friends who are both lesbians. They have been in the nursing profession for over 20 years, and neither one of them has ever been accused of making a pass at a patient.

SUPERINTENDENT OF NURSING

DEAR ABBY: I encountered so many problems as a male nurse that I changed jobs, became a paramedic and worked on an ambulance, instead. There I was accepted because it was more "male"—even though I earned less and used fewer medical skills. Men who enter the nursing profession are constantly explaining and apologizing. Some are called "orderlies," and in many hospitals we are excluded from OB-GYN duty unless a female nurse is present.

HAD IT WITH NURSING

DEAR ABBY: I have given birth eight times and have had two miscarriages and then a hysterectomy. Fortunately I was never attended to by a male nurse. It is bad enough that I had to expose my body to a male doctor, but a male nurse? Never!

CALL ME OLD-FASHIONED

DEAR ABBY: I am that most obnoxious of all creatures—a mother-in-law. I just read the letter from "Anonymous Wife," who said she was the one who handed her husband the pen to sign the Mother's Day cards, Father's Day cards, etc.

Well, I'm the one who hands your father-in-law the pen to sign those generous checks for all those special occasions such as birthdays, anniversaries and Christmas. I'm also the one who provided the funds and encouragement so your husband could have all those fancy letters behind his name, like M.S., Ph.D. and M.D.

If you object to anything, why don't you do what I did when I still had my mother-in-law? I figured that God gave me two ears—one for things to go into, and the other for things to go out of. I also had enough sense to realize that if it had not been for that good woman, I would not have had the kind, considerate man who was my husband.

Nobody's perfect, but one thing I know—there is nobody as imperfect as your mother-in-law. Just wait until you are one!

SOMEBODY'S MOTHER-IN-LAW

Volunteers and staffs of local health and human services agencies will be treated to an appreciation party from 4:30 to 6 p.m., Wednesday, hosted by the board of directors of the Pampa United Way.

The party, given as a thank-you by the United Way, will be held in the Hospitality Room of Citizens Bank and Trust.

In honor of the occasion, Mayor Sherman Cowan has proclaimed Wednesday as Pampa Volunteer Appreciation Day.

Jan Lyle, UW office secretary, said invitations have been sent out to the volunteers and staffs of 18 local agencies.

She said some 1,200 people are involved in assisting the agencies, though some are duplicates, working for two or more agencies.

Lyle said she had made an effort to get names of all the volunteers, but she may have missed a few. If anyone who has done volunteer work for one of the agencies does not get an invitation, they are still invited to the party, she said.

Agencies involved in the party include 12 local United Way agencies and six other local agencies.

The 12 UW agencies are American Red Cross, Boy Scouts of America, Girl Scouts of America, Genesis Houses, High Plains Epilepsy Association, Meals on Wheels, Pampa Community Day Care Center, Pampa Family Services, Pampa Satellite Center, Salvation Army, Senior Citizens Center and Southside Senior Citizens Center.

Also being honored are staffs and volunteers of the Coronado Community Hospital auxiliary, volunteers for the Coronado Nursing Center and Pampa Nursing Center, Good Samaritan Christian Services, Tralee Crisis Center and the Junior Service League.

Lyle said the UW board of directors just wanted to show appreciation to the great number of volunteers who donate their time and service to the operations of the health and human services agencies in the city.

HONORING VOLUNTEERS - Mayor Sherman Cowan, seated, reviews some information about 18 local health and human services agencies before signing a proclamation designating Wednesday as Pampa Volunteer Appreciation Day. Meeting with the mayor in his office are

John Curry, left, president of the Pampa United Way board of directors, and Joan Vining, UW publicity chairman. The UW board is hosting a party for the volunteers from 4:30 to 6 p.m. Wednesday at Citizens Bank and Trust. (Staff photo)

Senate votes on sunset bills

AUSTIN (AP) — The Senate has forced last-minute scrutiny of the Texas Air Control Board by rejecting House amendments to a bill that would extend the life of the board with a five-member majority from the general public.

Senators, at the urging of Carl Parker, voted 16-13 Sunday not to accept House amendments and to appoint a conference committee to resolve differences in Senate and House bills continuing the agency.

Votes on renewing several agencies that otherwise would go out of existence on Sept. 1 are crucial, because failure to continue them could lead to a special session this summer.

Time is especially important now with the Legislature adjourning at midnight tonight.

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby told Parker, D-Port Arthur, and Sen. Kent Caperton, D-Bryan, to start work at once on a possible Air Control Board compromise.

Caperton said nine amendments added by the House had made "something of an improvement" in the Senate version of the board.

Parker and Sen. Bob Glasgow, D-Stephenville, questioned five of the nine board members being members of the general public.

"The theory is that the board needs public members who are sensitive to the environment," said Caperton.

Asked about a provision to "sunset" the board in two years, unless continued by the Legislature, Caperton said, "The House feels the board has not been as concerned with environmental concerns as it could be."

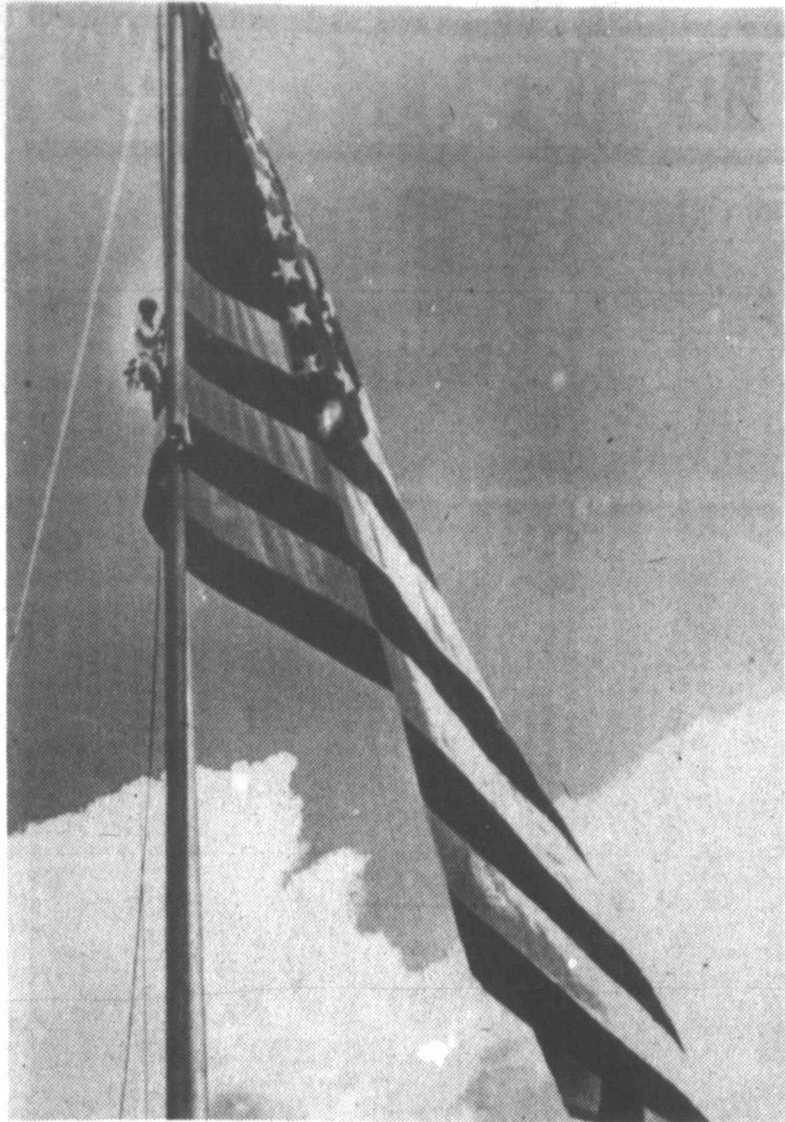

Parker said he wanted a board that would be "free of public sentiment" in making decisions.

"House amendments are not going to be detrimental to industry," said Caperton, but a 16-member Senate majority voted with Parker to reject House amendments.

An attempt to go to conference committee on a bill that would continue the Texas Commission on Alcoholism failed 14-15, and the agency, with the new name of Texas Commission on Alcohol and Drug Abuse, was continued when the Senate accepted House amendments 15-13.

Several senators objected to transferring drug abuse programs from the Texas Department of Community Affairs to the alcohol-drug commission. Senate debate indicated the transfer could affect 20 state employees.

A BANNER EFFORT — Painter Ed Brown of El Paso appeared to be hanging from a huge flagpole at the Fort Bliss National Cemetery Saturday. In reality, Brown was climbing a pole situated about 30 yards behind the flag-bearing pole in the foreground. He was painting the pole near the entrance to the cemetery in preparation for Memorial Day ceremonies.

Senate again attempts changes in education

AUSTIN (AP) — Senators have voted to give House members a second chance to enact proposed Senate changes in the public school reform measure approved by the Legislature last summer.

The House has held up the Senate proposals since mid-April, and the 140-day legislative session ends at midnight tonight.

"We want to give the House one more chance. I believe it will consent to a conference committee," Sen. Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur, said Sunday.

Parker, also chairman of the Senate Education Committee, said the Senate already had voted for "many, many small but very important adjustments" to education reform.

On Friday, the Senate took three House bills and added proposals from the Senate "omnibus education" bill that was sent to the House on April 11. Two of the bills were returned to the House, and a final Senate vote on a third measure is pending.

Parker said he would not asked the House to tamper with the controversial no-pass no-play provision.

The bill approved by the Senate in April stated that the State Board of Education "may provide" for a grade reporting period of less than six weeks. Currently, a student who fails a single course is ineligible for extracurricular activities for six weeks.

Other states profiting from Blue Law repeal

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston residents got their first taste of mall shopping on Sundays when two leading retailers — Foley's and J.C. Penney — jumped the gun on the repeal of the Blue Law and opened their doors for business.

If the experience of other states is any indication, buyers and retailers in Texas can expect Sunday to become one of the busiest shopping days if Gov. Mark White signs the legislation, effective Sept. 1.

Sunday's action by the two retail stores marks a benchmark in a national trend that has seen states all over the country discard the closing laws.

States that have discarded Blue Laws have found that employment increases and retail sales significantly rise with seven-day shopping.

Blue Laws, which supposedly got their names because they were written on blue paper, were an accepted part of American life for centuries.

In 1961, 38 states still observed Blue Laws. Now, only 14 states retain restrictions on Sunday shopping.

Massachusetts is among the states that made the switch.

Sullivan masters fastest lane

Jet set playboy spins his way to Indy 500 crown

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Danny Sullivan, a master of life in the fast lane, now is master of the Indianapolis 500, the fastest lane of all.

Sullivan, a jet-set playboy from Louisville, Ky., who earned his racing stripes on the European road courses of Formula One, drove into and out of trouble twice Sunday and sped away from the fastest qualifying field ever to win his first victory in the world's richest auto race.

Most importantly, he mastered "The Spin," the newest route to success at Indy. Last year, Roberto Guerrero spun all the way around and went on to finish second. This year, Sullivan spun all the way around and went on to win, adding yet another frustration in Mario Andretti's 16-year quest for a second 500 crown.

And just four laps after he attacked "The Spin," he mastered his own aggressiveness, wisely hitting the brakes when another potential disaster loomed in front of him.

From there, it was just holding on, hitting 205 mph on the next-to-last lap to diffuse Andretti's final challenge and coasting into Victory Lane, finishing 2.4 seconds ahead with an average speed of 152.982 mph. The vace record of 163.612 mph, set last year by Sullivan teammate Rick Mears, was saved by nine caution periods.

Eighty-one laps from the end, Sullivan didn't think he would make it.

"We were racing pretty good. I needed to get in front of Mario because the (air) turbulence was pretty bad," Sullivan said. "I went down onto the apron of the track."

He added rather sheepishly that thought there were 12 laps left, and "I thought I had to get ahead of Mario quick."

He passed Andretti, a daring move. But it backfired. The rear-end of his car fishtailed and suddenly he was careening up the track.

He missed the wall but spun right in front of Andretti, who had been eliminated by crashes in each of the three previous years. The 1969 winner, who had led most of the first half of the race, barely avoided the spinning Sullivan and regained the advantage temporarily.

"That was horrifying. I thought it was rather weird that he tried to do it (pass)," Andretti said. "I kind of sucked him in and he took the bait. It was shades of two years ago, when (Johnny) Parsons spun in front of me and took me out."

On lap 124, rookie Rich Vogler spun in almost the same spot, slamming off the wall and spewing debris over the track. Former winner Tom Sneva spun behind him and met the wall, too. This time, Sullivan opted for caution.

"When those two guys got hooked up, I just backed out of it," Sullivan said.

After that, Sullivan stayed close and twice tried to pass Andretti along the main straightaway before taking the lead for good with 60 laps to go.

Conservative is not Sullivan's way. Last week, for instance, he was asked how he gets in shape for the race. His reply: "Lots of sex."

"Second here means nothing. Yecond is really losing," said Andretti, frustrated at Indianapolis since his lone victory in 1969. "When you get to a certain stage of your career, winning seems to be the only thing."

Andretti led 107 of the 200 laps, Sullivan 68. The only other lap leaders were Bobby Rahal, a front-row starter who paced the pack for 14 laps; Emerson Fittipaldi of Brazil, who challenged until he departed 12 laps from the end, led 10 laps; and Scott Brayton, another front-row starter, led one lap.

Pancho Carter, the record-setting pole starter, was the first to pull into the pits, completing just six of the 200 laps.

Only 12 cars were running at the end. Among the drivers who went out early with mechanical problems were Rahal, one of the pre-race favorites; Al Unser Jr., who was running third when he was sidelined, and Josele Garza of Mexico.

Sullivan smiles in victory lane

Toughest courses easiest for Irwin

DUBLIN, Ohio (AP) — Playing difficult golf courses seems easy for Hale Irwin.

Irwin displayed another example of that ability Sunday, winning Jack Nicklaus' Memorial Tournament for the second time in three years.

The two-time U.S. Open champion solved gusty winds and Muirfield Village's swift, undulating greens for a par round of 72, a 7-under-par total of 281 and a one-shot margin over Lanny Wadkins.

Wadkins, the leader over Irwin by one going into the last round, slipped to 74 for a 282 total. Irwin collected $100,000 and Wadkins $60,000.

Irwin, 39, now has won 17 times in a PGA Tour career that began in 1968. And his victories have also come on such tests as Winged Foot, Riviera, Inverness, Butler National and Harbour Town.

Irwin revealed his formula for beating the tough courses, saying: "You have to have shot-making abilities — to curve the ball left or right depending on the conditions. You can't have pure length or be a one-shot player."

"You have to use common sense. You have to know where the mounds are to get the ball to the pin. If you get carried away with birdies and bogeys, either way, you can't catch up. And you have to take an extra large tablespoon of patience each morning. I managed very well all week."

The formula for Irwin, 39, fifth on the Tour career money list with $2.7 million, has clicked over Muirfield Village's 7,106 yards near Columbus. He was beaten by Roger Maltbie in a 1976 playoff before his two Memorial triumphs.

Wadkins watched Irwin's performance first-hand in the final round. "He plays within himself very well. He keeps it in play. Very seldom does he make a dumb play," said the runner-up.

Irwin, 39, a former Colorado defensive back, built a 4-shot margin over Wadkins on the 12th hole with his fourth birdie of the sunny, pleasant day.

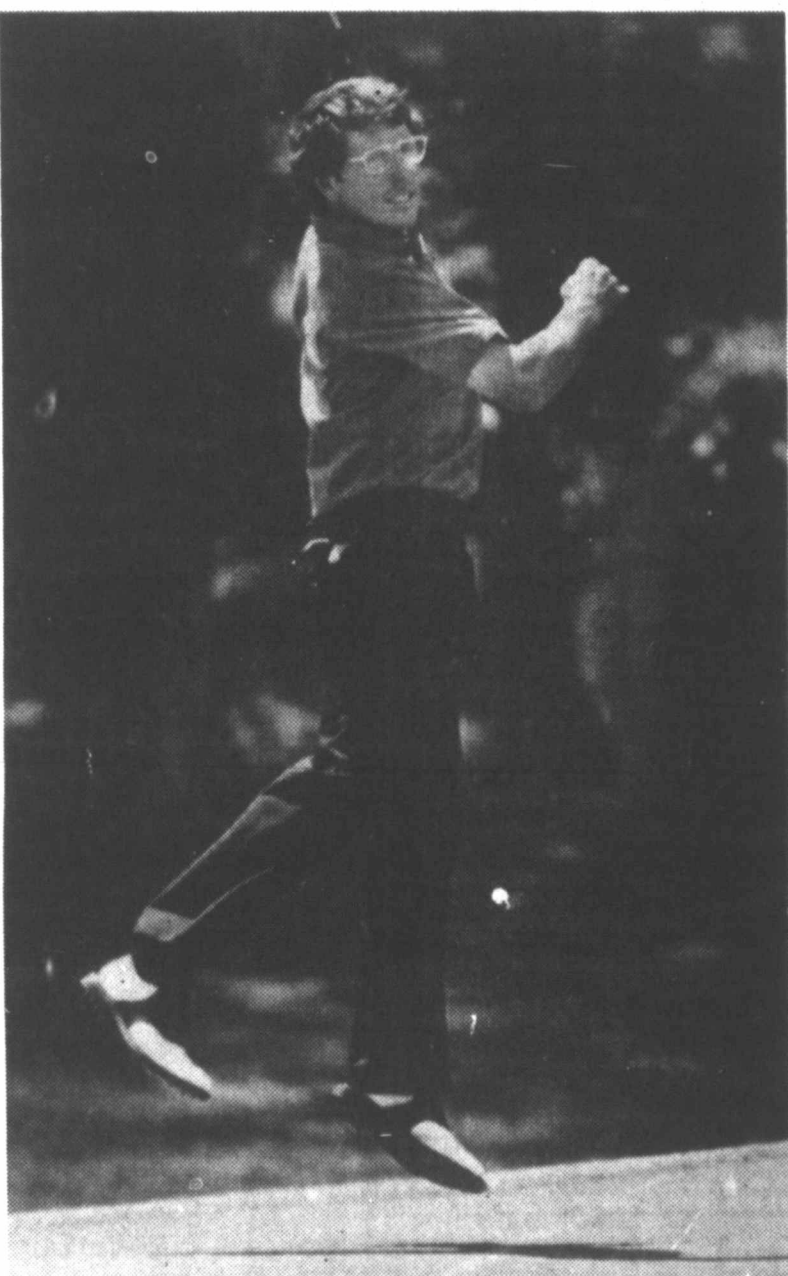

However, he bogeyed 16 and 18 and, if Wadkins had holed a downhill 20-foot birdie putt on the last green, there would have been a playoff.

Wadkins said of the key putt: "I goosed it too much on the high side. I hit it too hard. It was a speed putt."

Irwin was prepared for a playoff, saying: "I knew Lanny had a tough putt, but he's the kind of guy who specializes in those."

Bill Kratzert earned $37,780 for finishing third with 73-284. Corey Pavin, the winner a week earlier at Fort Worth, shared fourth place with George Burns and Keith Fergus at 286. Burns shot 69, Pavin 70 and Fergus 72.

Jack Nicklaus, the creator, host and defending champion, was 18 shots behind at 78-299. "I ran out of gas on the seventh hole in the second round and couldn't find a station," he said of his total, matching his worst performance in this event's decade.

Jim Kelly goes down

Houston Gamblers lose their top gun

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston quarterback Jim Kelly must have realized that something sinister was about to happen in Sunday's United States Football League game against the Arizona Outlaws.

Kelly crammed a full game's work into two quarters with three touchdown passes enroute to a 41-20 victory before leaving the game for good on the final play of the first half with a torn ligament in his right knee.

Seldom-used Todd Dillon came on to finish the game and the Gamblers pulled away in the fourth period but there was little celebrating in the Gamblers' dressing room following the game.

"It won't require an operation but he'll be in a brace for three to four weeks minimum," Houston Coach Jack Pardee said. "There was no swelling so that's a good sign. We'll just have to look at it week to week."

Kelly threw touchdown passes of 60 and 11 yards to Clarence Verdin and 46 yards to Richard Johnson and Toni Fritsch kicked a 37-yard field goal to stake Houston to a 24-10 halftime lead before Kelly's departure.

Dillon, used sparingly this season, likely will be the Gamblers' starter for the rest of the season.

"It's just a frame of mind and if you are positive that you are the guy it's a lot easier," Dillon said. "Being a second string quarterback is a tough position to be in."

Dillon was sacked in his first series in the game and finished with six completions on 14 attempts. Kelly hit 13 of 18 passes for 258 yards in his two quarters of work.

Arizona quarterback Doug Williams threw touchdown passes of 16 and 18 yards to wide receiver Greg Anderson and Louis Zendejas added field goals of 35 and 47 yards.

"Their receivers made the big plays on our secondary," Arizona Coach Frank Kush said. "We just didn't stop them defensively and on the other side of the ball, we didn't convert our third downs."

The Gamblers second half scoring got a big assist from the defense with a 41-yard interception return for a touchdown by Dennis DeVaughn and a fumble recovery by Mike Hawkins that set up Sam Harrell's two-yard touchdown dive.

Arizona defensive end Ken Gillen said the Outlaws thought with Kelly out, they could rally.

"We expected to hold them better," Gillen said. "He's (Kelly) their big man and makes their offense click. We hoped to get our offense going and get the momentum away from them and get some points."

Pardee said he was pleased with Dillon's progress in the game.

"Jim Kelly being hurt on the last play of the half and then to see the team rally around Todd Dillon makes me feel good," Pardee said.

"They really tested Todd with the blitz. But it's good to see him get out and play the way he did."

The Gamblers, 9-5 and still hoping to make the playoffs, now must rally around Dillon in practice.

"We've only seen him in practice, he's relatively untested in games," Pardee said. "We'll have a week to work with him in practice. Our practices will be devoted to Todd Dillon.

Arizona dropped to a 5-9 record.

'Oldtimers' boost Cubs past Astros

CHICAGO (AP) — The way Ron Cey and Davey Lopes have been going recently one might be tempted to say not bad for a couple of old Los Angeles Dodgers.

But, then, don't use the adjective old, not in front of Cey.

"I don't think we're that old," said Cey, who is 37 and two years younger than Lopes. "I'm sick and tired of that 'old' business. Call us veteran players and remember we're doing our job. Calling us old doesn't fit what we're doing."

What they've been doing has been outstanding. Cey had a pair of homers and a double Sunday to lead the Chicago Cubs to a come-from-behind 10-8 victory over the Houston Astros.

Lopes contributed a two-run homer Sunday after both of them had homered in Saturday's 5-4 triumph over the Astros with Lopes providing the winning blow, a two-run homer in tie eighth.

Although Cey has been struggling to get his average above .200, it hasn't bothered him as far as the numbers go.

"The numbers will be there when the season is over," has been Cey's cry since he joined the Cubs in 1983 when he finished with 24 homers and 90 runs batted in. Last year he had 25 home runs and 97 RBIs.

"It's only a matter of time before things work out," said Cey. "It's a long season."

Cey's numbers are climbing this season. He homered in the second inning after the Cubs fell behind 5-0. Lopes hit a two-run homer in the fifth and Cey doubled in a three-run sixth.

Still, the Cubs found themselves trailing 8-6 going into the seventh inning when Ryne Sandberg singled and Lopes walked.

Keith Moreland, breaking an 0-for-17 slump doubled to tie the score and Cey followed with his No. 8 homer to take the team lead in that department. It was also the 15th time in his career he has hit two home runs in a game.

"I like that, I'm proud of that," said Cey, who now has 286 career homers and is 12-for-27 in his last eight games.

"The important thing today was that we kept coming back," said Cey.

He said that while he's not happy struggling around the .200 mark, "I don't get any infield hits or broken bat singles. My hits provide positive results."

They also erased what started out as if it would be an easy triumph for the Astros who jumped ahead with a run in the first and four in the second inning capped by Enos Cabell's two-run triple.

Terry Puhl doubled to launch a two-run sixth and he also doubled in a run in the seventh.

"They keep coming back at you," said Houston Manager Bob Lillis. "If we had kept the ball in the park, we would have had a chance but our middle relief couldn't hold them."

Mike Scott started for the Astros and left for a pinch batter in the top of the sixth.

In the fifth, Cub Manager Jim Frey asked umpire John Kibler to inspect Scott's glove but apparently he found nothing wrong.

"We thought he was scuffing the ball," said Frey.

Rangers may be recovering

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — With only 10 games played under new manager Bobby Valentine, it is a bit premature to say he has turned the American League West's last place team around.

But it can be said, coincidence or not, that the Texas Rangers have shown signs of recovery since Valentine took over the managerial duties of Doug Rader.

The Rangers' latest triumph, a 5-3 come-from-behind victory over the Boston Red Sox on Sunday, marks a four-game sweep of Boston, the Rangers' first four-game series sweep since June, 1984 and Texas' first sweep of the Red Sox since 1976.

The Rangers completed their latest homestand with a 5-2 record and are 6-4 under Valentine.

The four-game winning streak matches the Rangers' longest of the season (April 19-22) and revoked their distinction as the worst team in baseball (Pittsburgh slipped into that role).

"If there's an attitude change," said Valentine, "it's the idea of playing good enough to win instead of playing good enough to lose. Now, when they get close, they feel like they can win."

Rest the right stuff for Barfield, Toronto

By BEN WALKER
AP Sports Writer

The right food and the right amount of rest are adding up to the right stuff for Jesse Barfield and the Toronto Blue Jays.

Barfield was again smiling Sunday after cracking a two-out home run in the top of the ninth inning that lifted the Blue Jays over the Cleveland Indians 6-5.

The home run prolonged three different streaks. It extended Toronto's winning skid to a team record-tying seven games, stretched Barfield's hitting streak to 16 — longest in the American League this season — and handed Cleveland its fifth straight loss.

"I'm just enjoying myself, eating right and getting to sleep early," Barfield said after his 10th home run of the season.

Gary Lavelle, 2-0, pitched two-thirds of an inning for the victory and Bill Caudill got the game's final two outs for his ninth save.

The triumph kept the Blue Jays three games ahead of Detroit, which beat Seattle 6-0, atop the American League East standings.

In other AL games, Kansas City nipped Chicago 3-2, Milwaukee downed Minnesota 5-3, California bopped Baltimore 10-4, New York pounded Oakland 13-1, and Texas defeated Boston 5-3.

Royals 3, White Sox 2
Frank White led off the bottom of the eighth inning with a home run that sent Kansas City over Chicago.

White's seventh home run of the season, on a full-count pitch from reliever Bob James, 1-2, gave the Royals their fifth straight victory.

The loss was the sixth straight for the White Sox.

Brewers 5, Twins 3
Robin Yount lined a two-run homer over the center-field fence as Milwaukee batters hit for the cycle during a four-run uprising in the third inning that gave visiting Minnesota its fifth straight loss.

Rookie Teddy Higuera raised his record to 2-3. He departed in the seventh inning with the bases loaded and one out, and Bob Gibson came on to record his first save.

Angels 10, Orioles 4
Ruppert Jones and Brian Downing hit home runs to help California overcome an early deficit against Baltimore.

The visiting Orioles pounced on Kirk McCaskill for four runs in the first inning.

Rookie Pat Clements, 3-0, went 6 2-3 in relief of McCaskill for the victory.

The loser was Mike Boddicker, 6-3.

Yankees 13, A's 1
New York banged out 19 hits, including four each by Bobby Meacham and Billy Sample, to bury Oakland.

Meacham went 4-for-4 and drove in three runs while Rickey Henderson, the former A's star, added three hits, scored twice and stole his 13th base in 13 attempts with the Yankees. Willie Randolph contributed his first home run of the season to New York's attack.

Ron Guidry, 5-3, won his fourth straight game.

Patti Rizzo wins, but misses record

CORNING, N.Y. (AP) — Patti Rizzo, even though she fell a single stroke short of the lowest score ever in an LPGA tournament, says there is nothing easy about the course where she won the $250,000 LPGA Corning Classic golf tournament.

"I think this course is a very big challenge. I don't understand why the scores were so low," she said Sunday after closing with a 71 for a 16-under-par 272, one stroke better than Jane Crafter of Adelaide, Australia.

Crafter agreed the par-72, 6,050-yard Corning Country Club layout can be treacherous, even though some of the par-5s regularly produced birdies and even eagles.

"You only have to look a few yards off each fairway to see the trouble you can get into," said Crafter, whose sole possession of second place was her best finish since joining the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour in 1981.

Crafter, who had been three strokes back going into the final round, led by a stroke at one point and finished with a 69.

Crafter bogeyed the 17th hole, falling two strokes back. Her par at the 18th was not enough to overtake Rizzo, even though Rizzo chipped her approach shot on No. 18 into the gallery for a bogey.

Rizzo, of Fort Pierce, Fla., picked up a $37,500 first-place check and her second victory since joining the tour in 1982. Her first was the Boston Five Classic in 1983.

Rizzo's just missed the LPGA record of 271 set by Hollis Stacy in the Rail Charity Classic in Springfield, Ill., in 1977. But her 272 total tied the Corning record set by Patty Sheehan in 1983.

Pat Bradley dogged the leaders until near the end, when the No. 3 money-winner double-bogeyed the 17th hole. She shot a 70 and finished third at 12-under 276.

Muffin Spencer-Devlin shot a 68 to end at 11-under-par 277. Sherri Turner, who led the first two rounds, shot a 73 to tie with Amy Benz, who had a 69. They were both at 10-under-par 278.

JoAnne Carner, Corning's defending champion, shot a 68 Sunday to finish well back at 281, seven strokes under par for the 72 holes.

Stars sink Gunslingers

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — The Baltimore Stars gained only 286 yards Sunday, but the offense, for the second week in a row, showed that it remembers the way into the end zone.

The defending USFL champions averaged only 18 points through their first 13 games, but they have scored 62 in their last two games, including 28 Sunday in a 28-10 triumph over hapless San Antonio.

Quarterback Chuck Fusina, who had thrown only 11 touchdown passes in 1985, threw three against the Gunslingers — a 21-yarder to Victor Harrison, an 11-yarder to Tom Donovan and a 31-yarder to James Caver.

The victory improved the Stars' record to 7-6-1 and kept them in the race for a playoff spot. They have the ninth best record in the league — Jacksonville and Memphis are each a half-game ahead of them — and only the top eight teams qualify for the playoffs.

"We're more confident offensively than we have been," said Fusina, who was 14-21 for 190 yards and was not intercepted. "This is the perfect time, too, since we've got four games left, and it's time to make a run for the playoffs. Of course, it would have been nice if this had come earlier, but this is still real good timing."

"We got some good performances today from some guys who haven't played much before," Baltimore coach Jim Mora said. "The key was the way we came back in the second half after that disastrous end to the first half."

SWC to consider tough regulations

IRVING, Texas (AP) — With reports that Southern Methodist is about to be hit with a new round of NCAA sanctions, top officials of the Southwest Conference are considering tough new proposals that will be the subject of a special NCAA convention next month.

SWC Commissioner Fred Jacoby indicated Saturday the conference would not begin any investigation involving SMU until the NCAA announces whether it will impose a new round of sanctions against the school.

Although Jacoby never mentioned SMU by name, he said, "On a major case, we don't like to run a parallel investigation."

with integrity and financing of athletic programs that will be considered by a special NCAA convention next month in New Orleans.

The faculty representatives did not take a vote Saturday on the proposals — including the so-called "gas chamber" proposal that would close down the athletic programs of habitual violators of NCAA policies, Jacoby said.

The council will review the proposals again in New Orleans before attending the NCAA meeting, Jacoby said.

In another matter involving SMU, Jacoby said the conference had found there was "no foundation" to support claims the school had used improper inducements in signing Reginald Muhammad, a basketball player from Wilmer-Hutchins High School.

Faculty representatives also adopted a proposal to expand the officiating staff of SWC football games from six to seven members.

Jacoby said the move, which follows a national trend among major collegiate football conferences, will help officials deal with a game that has "increased emphasis on passing."

"In a nutshell, what we are trying to do is put the officials in a better position to make the calls," Jacoby said.

The SWC will maintain a staff of about 36 football officials, Jacoby said.

Speaking to reporters after the close of the conference's annual meeting of football and basketball coaches, athletic directors and faculty representatives, Jacoby was asked what affect NCAA sanctions prohibiting television appearances by a member school would have on the conference's TV contract.

Jacoby and Dr. Edwin P. Horner of Baylor, the outgoing conference president, both said it would be "premature" to speculate.

The SMU football program, under investigation by the NCAA since March 1983, has been charged with "major violations." The Dallas Morning News reported over the weekend. The newspaper quoted an unnamed source who has read a final report by the organization's Committee on Infractions.

SWC representatives also reviewed a list of proposals dealing

Another train is derailed

DUBLIN, Texas (AP)—Most of the 300 residents evacuated after a train derailment were back home Sunday as investigators attempted to find out why 14 cars tumbled off the tracks.

The accident took place Saturday about 40 miles southeast of Eastland, site of an explosive train-truck collision on Friday. The train, operating on alternate tracks because of the destruction of the Missouri Pacific rails in Eastland, was the third to derailed in Texas in two days.

The cars derailed a quarter of a mile from the center of Dublin around 6 p.m. Saturday, destroying one bridge and damaging another. Nine of the cars were said to contain flammable benzene.

A small fire ignited at one of the derailed cars, but Dublin firefighters were able to douse it without incident, according to the Department of Public Safety.

Grass fires sparked by the derailment were also doused immediately. Dublin Fire Chief James Fritts said the chemical was leaking from valves that attach to some of the cars, but there was no imminent danger.
