Layers of disaster

Mexico counts dead as second quake hits

MEXICO CITY — A stricken Mexico on Saturday counted at least 2,000 dead from the giant earthquake that struck a savage blow at the world's largest capital. A second quake spread panic as exhausted workers struggled to rescue people believed still trapped in collapsed buildings.

U.S. Ambassador John Gavin, who flew over the city Saturday, told reporters he believed the number of dead could reach 10,000, but added that his estimate was "just a guess."

He noted that 1,000 people may have been killed or injured in just one high-rise apartment complex in the Nuevo Leon neighborhood.

Mexico City newspapers earlier said the number of dead could reach 4,000.

The second quake hit Mexico City and four states Friday night, toppling some buildings already damaged by Thursday's devastating quake.

President Miguel de la Madrid said, "We still have neither precise nor final figures. There are still people trapped in many buildings whom we have not been able to rescue."

He told his grieving and frightened nation in a speech broadcast on television that the second quake Friday night, which measured 7.3 on the Richter scale, did not cause so much damage. It was "less severe but provoked panic," he said.

De la Madrid appealed for national unity and said, "We will bury our dead with sadness but at the same time we will renew our will to live and to cure our wounds."

"The truth is that in the face of an earthquake of this magnitude we do not have the resources to confront the tragedy with speed and sufficiency," he said.

The first quake hit a mighty 7.8 on the Richter scale, which measures ground motion.

People ran from their apartments and hotels and many slept in the debris-strewn streets. The tremor knocked out electricity on some subways and people streamed from the stations.

"We got out, walked up the tracks to a station and came up," said one passenger. He joined thousands of other Mexico City residents who slept on sidewalks or stood in groups all night discussing "El Grande," Thursday's giant earthquake.

Mexico's Minister of Tourism, Antonio Enriquez-Savignac, said in Houston Saturday the situation in the capital was "under control" and that subways, buses and trains were running normally.

Enriquez said power was restored to 65 percent of the city, although 35 percent of the capital remained without water because of broken water pipes.

Local telephone service was operating, but long distance lines still were out Saturday, two days after the first quake.

In Washington, President Reagan announced his wife Nancy would visit Mexico City Monday on her way to the West Coast to "explore the support of the American people and explore how we can land a hand in this ordeal."

More than 18 million people live in the sprawling, 7,800-foot-high capital that is the world's most populous urban area, according to United Nations figures.

Unofficial accounts spoke of hundreds killed in less densely populated areas closer to the epicenter of the quake, including in the states of Colima, Guerrero, Jalisco and Michoacan.

A government spokesman placed the death toll at 2,000, but agreed with others that the full extent of the casualties and damage could not be assessed.

Greg Laguna, spokesman for the State Department Earthquake Task Force in Washington said three Americans were killed. He identified them as Mary Vallejos and her two children, of Nebraska.

Cable News Network quoted John Adams, director of the task force, as saying Mrs. Vallejos was a native of Cozad, Neb., and was married to a Mexican national and had lived in Mexico City for several years.

The U.S. Embassy reported to Washington that a number of Americans apparently were injured, according to Dan Lawler, a State Department spokesman. He said their names were not released pending notification of relatives.

No specific casualty count or damage reports were available from the Friday night quake, which was centered about 250 miles southwest of Mexico City in the same area as the giant, killer quake.

Gavin estimated that 4,500 American tourists and 130,000 resident Americans were in the Mexico City area this week. The State Department said another 120,000 U.S. citizens live in other parts of Mexico.

Tens of thousands of emergency volunteers, using picks, heavy construction equipment or their bare hands, searched for survivors.

In Washington, Secretary of State George Shultz said Mexico has asked for American demolition teams to destroy unsafe buildings and technical experts to detect bodies crushed under flattened buildings. Lawler said an airlift of generators, fire-fighting, earth-moving and demolition equipment was expected to leave Saturday for Mexico.

Other offers of aid poured in from around the world.

Officials reject rumors of local Social Security office closing

By CATHY SPAULDING
Staff Writer

The manager of the Pampa Social Security office denies rumors that the Pampa office is closing, but that won't keep concerned area senior citizens from lobbying to keep it open.

Manager Larry Mayo said he knows of no plans to close the office, to reduce the local staff or to change its services in any way.

"I have no idea of how the rumor got started," Mayo said. "It started here about two weeks ago."

Mayo remembers a man who came into the Pampa office asking him for the "letter which says when the office is going to close."

"And I had a heck of a time convincing him that we had no such letter," he said.

He also remembers hearing about an article published in an Abilene newspaper earlier this year listing 700 S.S. offices throughout the country that may close due to cutbacks in services and personnel. A similar story ran in USA Today, Mayo said.

A librarian with The Abilene Reporter-News confirmed that such a list ran in on March 8, 1985. It listed 16 Texas S.S. offices — including Pampa and Plainview — that the story said may close if the cuts are made in Social Security.

The newspaper librarian read an Associated Press story over the telephone that concerned a discussion between U.S. House Democrats and Health and Human Services Secretary Margaret Heckler about possible Social Security cuts.

The article stated that some House Democrats are worried that the cuts may close 388 of the 1,340 Social Security offices across the country, and eliminate one-fourth of the agency's payroll.

The story quoted a Social Security director as saying that local offices with less than 10 employees should be closed, converted or consolidated, that offices with ten to 16 employees be reviewed for possible closing, conversion or consolidation and that larger offices also be reviewed for possible cuts.

The Pampa office has 10 employees, Mayo said, adding that the office serves 14,400 people in eight eastern Panhandle counties. Borger and Canadian are served out of the Pampa office. The nearest Social Security office is 60 miles away in Amarillo.

"Supposedly Social Security is trying to reduce the work year by 20 percent," he said. "But, that doesn't necessarily mean closing."

But members of the Pampa chapter of the American Association of Retired People are still worried. This week, they drafted letters to Senators Phil Gramm and Lloyd Bentsen and to 13th District Representative Beau Boulter asking them to use their influence to keep the Pampa office open.

"Its service is filling a great need in the community and we want it continued," the letter said adding that going to Amarillo would be an impossibility for some senior citizens and a great effort for others.

"Oh my word," a secretary at Boulter's Amarillo

Sarpalius staying put

AMARILLO — State Sen. Bill Sarpalius, who is in Pampa several weeks ago he was considering races for Congress or Texas agriculture commissioner, has decided to do neither.

Sarpalius announced Friday that he has ruled out both races and decided to remain in the Senate. He said he did not have either the money or the time to get involved in either race.

Sarpalius had told a group of Pampa Democrats on Aug. 15 that he was considering a race against either state Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower, a fellow Democrat, or U.S. Rep. Beau Boulter, a first-term Republican from Amarillo. At the time, he indicated he was leaning more strongly toward the statewide race for agriculture, using strong language to lash out at Hightower and his agricultural policies.

In his press conference Friday, Sarpalius still had strong criticism for the incumbents. He said Hightower has been a "poor excuse for a commissioner of agriculture" and the "Panhandle deserves better representation" than it gets from Boulter.

Aides to Boulter, who is up for re-election in 1986, gave strong indications that the congressman will seek re-election when Kevin Burnette, his top aide in Washington, returned to the 13th District to begin preparing for the race. A fund-raiser featuring Rep. Jack Kemp (R-N.Y.), a potential 1988 presidential contender, is in the works.

Former Rep. Jack Hightower, whom Boulter defeated in 1984, has indicated he may run again for the seat, although he also has sent signals about the possibility of a race for state Railroad Commission or a judgeship. Hightower, who has been working as a lobbyist in Washington, plans to return to his home in Vernon next month. Hightower was unavailable for comment.

RRC still waiting for judge's order

One week after a state district judge indicated his intention to declare an order against Panhandle independent oil operators null and void, Texas Railroad Commission officials still have made no decision on an appeal.

E. Ray Grasshoff, RRC information specialist, said Friday afternoon that the commission is still waiting to receive the final, binding order from 250th State District Judge Harley Clark.

Judge Clark, in a letter read Sept. 13 in the Austin court, overruled a May 13 commission order against the counting of liquid hydrocarbons, or white oil, as crude oil for meeting gas to oil ratios for well classification purposes.

The judge said commissioners had erred in procedures they had followed leading up to the issuance of the order against the use of refrigeration or low temperature extraction units (LTX units) in the Panhandle Field.

In his letter, Judge Clark said the case should have been handled as a "rulemaking case" as required by the state administrative procedures act. Instead, the commission had treated the issue as a "contested case."

The order, which was implemented in June to require the retesting of oil wells using LTX units, was declared "null and void" because it did not follow the rulemaking case procedures.

Early last week, RRC information specialist Brian Schaible said the letter was not an official order. Instead, it was advisory in nature, indicating only how the judge would rule in his final order.

Schaible said the last paragraph of the letter indicates that the official, binding order will follow later after attorneys for the independents draw up an order draft for the judge to sign.

Grasshoff said Friday that the commission staff is still waiting for the order.

"We haven't heard they (the independents' attorneys) have even given it to the judge yet," he said.

Both Grasshoff and Schaible have said the commissioners will wait until they see what the order says before they make any decision or whether to appeal to the 3rd Court of Appeals or to proceed with handling the case again under rulemaking case procedures.

The commission will need to study the exact language of the order before determining the next steps in the case, they stated.

RRC commissioners and staff conferred with the Attorney General's office last week about the possibility of appealing the judge's ruling, but no decision had been reached yet.

Grasshoff said the commissioners feel it would be better to wait and see what the language is in the judge's signed order before deciding what steps to take next.

After the order is received and analyzed, the commission will confer again with the Attorney General's office before announcing a decision. Under state law, the Attorney General represents the RRC when the state agency is sued.

Representing the 14 Panhandle

Field independent operators or interest owners who had filed the suit against the commission, attorneys Ivan Hafley, Clyde Oldham and Bill Boyd reportedly are preparing the order for Clark to sign.

Though Judge Clark overturned the RRC order on procedural issues, he said he had found no error in the decisions and actions of the commission in regard to the substantive merits of the order.

The order, resulting from a complaint filed in September, 1981, by Phillips Petroleum Co., held statewide rules regarding the use of LTX units and the resultant liquids applied to the Panhandle Field wells.

Under those rules, white oil is not considered crude oil for counting purposes in gas to oil ratios for well classification status. The order cites state regulations that liquid hydrocarbons must be liquid in the reservoir, liquid in the well bore and liquid at the surface to be classified as such.

office responded.
 "We haven't heard a word about it," said Boulter assistant Ernie Houdashell. "I wouldn't say it isn't a possibility. But we would have been notified if it were."
 "But I don't think it's going to happen and I kind of think they'd let us know," he added.
 Pampa AARP member George Flaherty said the information he received concerning the possible Pampa closing came from Amarilloan Melvin Kunkel, the assistant state director of the AARP.
 Flaherty said Pampa elders are concerned about the reports.
 "I asked the manager at the Social Security office to show us the communique about the closing, and he said as far as he knows he didn't have one," he said.
 "Mr. Kunkel said that the office manager would be asked not to say anything about it," he added.
 "If our office closes, and we don't do anything about it, that would be foolish," Flaherty concluded.

United Way workers train for fund-raising activities

Volunteer workers for the 1986 Pampa United Way campaign have been meeting in training sessions in preparation for fund-raising activities to support the 17 United Way funded agencies and programs in the Pampa area.
 Drive chairman Charles Loeffler, board president John Curry, office secretary Jan Lyle, board members and division chairmen have been conducting the training of workers who will be going out to solicit contributions from businesses, industries and individuals.
 The United Way has set a goal of $301,760 for this year's drive.
 During the kick-off luncheon last week, Loeffler noted the increase is needed to cover inflation and to add two new programs to the United Way funding: the Latch Key Program and the Tralee Crisis Center for Women.
 Last year the goal of $275,000 was met and exceeded, and United Way officials are expecting to reach the goal this year through the dedicated efforts of the volunteer workers and the concern and interest of Pampa area businesses and residents.

 Workers last week received their packets and pledge cards to use in their solicitation efforts.
 Volunteers will be coordinating the drive through six divisions: Major Firms, Commercial, Special Gifts, Public, Professional, and General and Individual Gifts.
 Heading the divisions and forming the campaign cabinet are Brian Vining and Darrell Nordeen, Major Firms; Dean Copeland, Commercial; Doug Carmichael and Steve Jones, Special Gifts; Tommy Lindsey, Public; Mike Ruff, Professional; and Evelyn Johnson, General and Individual Gifts.
 The division chairmen will receive weekly reports from their staffs of volunteers. As the contributions come in, the totals will be marked on the United Way percentage "thermometers" placed in three locations in the city, indicating the progress toward the goal.
 Also assisting in the drive activities will be 10 loaned executives, personnel provided by local firms and industries to aid the efforts of the campaign.

 Businesses, industries and other groups are invited to contact United Way campaign staff members or to call the United Way office to arrange presentations on the agencies for workers and members. The office also can arrange tours of the various agencies assisted by the United Way effort.
 Agencies and programs included in the United Way organization are the American Red Cross, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, the Community Day Care Center, the Latch Key Program, Genesis House, Meals on Wheels, Pampa Family Services, Pampa Sheltered Workshop, the Salvation Army, Pampa Senior Citizens Center, the South Side Center and Tralee Crisis Center for Women.
 Also assisted by the United Way campaign are High Plains Epilepsy, the Southwest Diabetic Foundation, the USO (United Services Organization) and Warm Springs Rehabilitation Hospital.

Police films show how to fight crime

The Pampa Police Department has purchased three new films it hopes will help in the fight against crime.
 One of the films, "America's Toughest Gang," details the importance of Neighborhood Watch groups in fighting crime and explains how a watch group is formed and the duties of each member.
 Another, "Every Eight Seconds," provides tips from a convicted burglar named Wayne on preventing residential burglary.
 "On the Lookout" teaches viewers how to recognize suspicious situations as well as protect themselves from "con men." The film points out criminals often use everyday activities to mask their purpose.
 The programs may be obtained through the department's community relations office and are available for free showing to schools, civic clubs, churches and parent groups. For additional information, or to schedule a showing, contact Detective Mark King of the department at 669-7407.

counted as crude oil.
 The LTX units use extremely low temperatures, as low as minus 20 degrees, to obtain the water-white liquid often called white oil, albino oil or Panhandle crude.
 Phillips contended many independents had been comingling the white oil with regular crude oil to increase the amount of crude oil reported to the commission for the maintenance of proper gas to oil ratios needed to keep their wells classified as oil wells.
 Under RRC regulations, an oil well must produce no more than 100,000 cubic feet of natural gas for each barrel of crude oil produced. Wells producing a higher ratio of gas are subject to classification as gas wells.

 The order required the retesting of wells with LTX units to determine gas to oil ratios and other standards for gas or oil well classification. That testing was completed by District 10 RRC personnel from late June through the end of August. Independents had sought unsuccessfully to get the testing halted.
 Of the 612 wells with LTX units that were eventually tested, 316 wells, or 51.6 percent, were considered to have passed the tests and could keep their oil well classification.

 District 10 personnel reported 219 wells had failed some test requirement, with another 77 wells considered as failing for other reasons. That made 296 wells, or 48.4 percent, listed as subject to reclassification as gas wells.
 Oil wells reclassified as gas wells face shut down of their operations because of the unique separation of oil and gas rights in the Panhandle Field.

Young Brian Byrd monitors earthquake news at home in Fort Worth

Young ham's absence is excused

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Brian Byrd didn't go to classes at Arlington Heights High School on Friday. Instead, the 15-year-old spent hours at his ham radio, monitoring the news from earthquake-stricken Mexico, and connecting separated families.

School principal Frances Alles had no quarrels when Byrd's mother, Judie, called early Friday to say her son would be taking the day off.

"I just told her that if he was my son and he was doing that much good, I'd let him do it," Ms. Alles said. "He'll be able to make up his work."

Through Byrd's long-range contacts, two Dallas women learned their relatives in Mexico were safe.

"It's a high point of every ham operator's hobby. It's really what you live for. But the best feeling is when you can call up people on the phone and tell them that everything's all right," Byrd said.

Since Thursday, when the first of two major earthquakes hit Mexico City, Cathy Dennis of Dallas spent anxious hours waiting for word of her father, Paul Flato, a jeweler who lives in the central section of Mexico City.

Her wait ended with a phone call Friday afternoon. Byrd had contacted a Mexico City operator and confirmed her father was safe.

"He got in touch with my father," Ms. Dennis said after hearing the news. "He's terrific."

The other Dallas woman wept when Byrd told her that her daughter in Mexico City was unharmed.

"It does give you a feeling of self-satisfaction that I can listen to the news about what's going on in Mexico before almost anyone else in the country because I have a ham license," said Byrd, seated at his radio.

Ham radios remained virtually the only direct communications link to Mexico City Saturday after an aftershock measured at 7.3 on the Richter scale struck the area Friday night.

Byrd earned his license about a year ago. He says his instructor in a ham radio course at General Dynamics told him he was the youngest operator in Fort Worth at that time.

"I consider myself one of the youngest in the nation," Byrd said. "I won't be much longer, though, because I'm getting too old."

The youth became interested in the hobby through his father, Bill Byrd, who has been a ham operator for about 20 years.

"I would see him in there talking to someone from New Zealand. That really inspired me. I decided to study up and take the test," the younger Byrd said.

Who are the real heroes?

Until Wednesday, I had planned to do my weekly column on the sorry state of America's heroes.

On how sorry I am every time I read or hear of some White House scandal involving a dead president. We learn often these days of White House infidelity involving former presidents JFK, FDR and Ike in particular.

Even in my cynical reporter's chair, I've always felt that, before Nixon, and even a little bit afterward, U.S. presidents were somehow above mere mortal behavior. The mystique of the high office, I guess. To learn they're susceptible to the same human failings and sinful trappings as the rest of us is always a rude awakening, a slap in the face akin to the old Mennen (Thanks, I needed that) Skin Bracer commercials.

Or, again, on how sorry I feel when I see drug scandals rocking the professional sports ranks. Today's rock musicians can chant all they want about uppers, downers and round 'n' rounders and, at least until the rate - a - record movement came along, hardly anyone took any notice. But let Joe Schmo, centerfielder for the Oshkosh Orangutans, get caught with some dope stashed away in his batting glove and the whole world knows about it.

I'm not condoning his behavior, let me assure you, but it still makes me sad.

When I lived near Kansas City, the ballclub there was shaken by the discovery that several top players, one of whom I knew in high school, were involved in a cocaine ring. Even though I wasn't a great fan, I had to admire the way that club battled all year long and clawed its way to the top of its division.

We read about Babe Ruth, the Sultan of Swat, being an alcoholic. A new movie, "Insignificance," loosely based on the life of Marilyn Monroe, portrays Joe DiMaggio, one of the most popular sports figures ever, as a pot-bellied slob.

And now, and this is the worst of it, Willie Mays, the closest thing I had to a childhood idol, is accused in the baseball drug trial of '85 of keeping some kind of "speed juice" in his New York Mets locker during the final days of his great career.

My near-worship of the Say Hey Kid goes back to my Little League days when I played centerfield for a team called, you guessed it, the Giants. Not coincidentally, I wore number 24.

I can remember how excited I was when Mays was traded to the Mets to finish out his career in the city where it began. And the even bigger thrill of actually getting to see him hit a home run in person to lead the Mets to a victory over the Phillies.

Or how he was the inspiration behind the Mets making it to the World Series that year (or at least I thought so). Or how I cried the night Mays announced his retirement before a capacity Shea Stadium crowd. (Pardon me, if you will, while I wipe a remaining tear from my eye.)

I had planned this week to stop here, sullen, depressed and wondering if I should take issue with Tina Turner's tuneful statement, "We Don't Need Another Hero."

But, during the course of my travels around Gray County this week, an interviewee showed me something. It was a copy of a nearby daily's District I - IA football roundup that had somehow escaped my attention. It had this to say about two Gray County football teams:

"McLean — Forget the Tigers scored only 18 points last year. Forget they gave up a district - high 397 points. You say you can't. Neither can I." And,

"Lefors — Lethrees - Letwos - Leones - Lezeroes — this could be a familiar chant from the Pirates opponents fans come game's end. It's not going to be a pretty season for Lefors."

Notwithstanding my feelings that this constitutes at least a resemblance to irresponsible journalism (it seems the newspaper in question could have found SOMETHING nice to say about these two teams), I got to thinking, with a little prodding from my interviewee, about the kids that make up the Tiger and Pirate football squads.

Who are the real heroes anyway? Are they the Willie Mayses and the Pete Roses who are clearly winners, at least from an athletic perspective. Or are they the kids that come out every week and try their darndest, knowing full well they're not going to win many games and having to read about it in the downgrading tones of the nearby metropolitan daily.

It's easy to be a member of a Panhandle or Wheeler football squad that everyone expects to be a winner. Oh, I know it takes a lot of hard work and all but so does playing for a smaller team that doesn't win as much. And how many of us would be willing to stand up and do battle week after week against bigger and better schools? How many of us take that attitude in life?

Back in Kansas, I attended a tiny little church — 50 members or so — and directed a choir of about eight women. The Mormon Tabernacle Choir we weren't. One lady was even 90 percent deaf.

But week after week they sang their hearts out, adding to the beauty of the service. Did we improve any? Maybe, although I doubt much with my limited directing abilities. But the important thing was they were willing to risk embarrassment and maybe even condescension from the larger churches to do the Lord's work.

Our minister often remarked that despite our limited size and ability, the sounds we made were among the most beautiful he had ever heard in any church because of the determination.

And that's the key word. Determination. Maybe Tina's right — there are heroes all around us, if only we opened our eyes.

One more thing. As this column is being written prior to Friday night's Wheeler - McLean game, I'm going to make a prediction. I predict Wheeler probably will win the game, maybe even by a big score. But I also predict the smaller McLean team will play its heart out, much to the delight of its fans, and will do so next week, and the week after that and the week after that...

'Orderly panic'

Travelers describe second quake

GRAPEVINE, Texas (AP) — Passengers arriving Saturday at Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport from Mexico City said the second earthquake that hit the capital caused already weakened buildings to collapse and sent people running into the streets for safety.

"We were completely caught by surprise by the second one," said Genie Davis, who helped out a Red Cross relief station in Mexico City after the second quake.

"Everyone ran down to the lobby of the hotel. But it seemed very orderly. Everyone was trying to keep people from panicking. Some elevators malfunctioned. The building was shaking quite a bit," she said.

At least 2,000 people were reported dead from the giant earthquake that struck Mexico

City Thursday morning. A second quake stunned the city and four states Friday night as exhausted rescue crews tried to find more victims in the rubble.

"Ambulances were bringing in more people. There were all sorts of rescue teams," said Mrs. Davis, who lives in Wichita Falls. "We heard there were more people trapped after the second one. More ambulances were being sent out for those trapped in the second quake."

Many private vehicles were being used Friday to transport injured on streets that were packed with vehicles, Mrs. Davis said. Some buildings already damaged by the mighty first quake were toppled by the force of the second one, she said.

The first quake hit 7.8 on the Richter scale, while the second one registered 7.3 on the Richter scale, which measures ground motion.

Ralph and Kristen Hemphill of Puerta Vallarta went to Mexico City to attend a relative's wedding. They were in the city during both quakes.

"The second one actually was more frightening to us," Mrs. Hemphill said Saturday. "We were leaving the condominium when everything started shaking. We ran for a doorway."

Mrs. Hemphill said the second quake caught people off guard, causing many to flee buildings and run into the streets for safety.

"They were camping out in parks," she said.

Hemphill said rescue workers were working around the clock digging through the rubble left by the quakes.

"One of the most impressive things we saw was the rallying of the Mexican people," Mrs. Hemphill said. "We could hear the sirens continually. For the first 48 hours, that's all we heard."

Hemphill said he heard news reports that the water supply was short in the city and authorities had ordered water rationing. The city government also was asking people to boil what water they had, he said.

The quakes caused damaged to nearly all parts of the city, but Hemphill said the most destruction seemed to be centered downtown.

"It was very sad," Hemphill said. "A lot of the population is going to (downtown Mexico City) to help with digging out. They are using hand picks, shovels."

Two nabbed in slaying of officer

PARIS, Texas (AP) — Two men sought in a robbery that led to a hostage situation and a policeman's death were captured about 15 miles north of here Saturday after they were surrounded in a wooded area near the Oklahoma line.

"We must have had between 50 and 100 officers in there looking for them," Assistant Police Chief James Barnett said late Saturday afternoon. He added that charges have not yet been filed against the pair.

Earlier in the day, Paris police officer Dave Roberts, 23, was slain after stopping a car on U.S. 271 on the city's north side, police said. The car resembled one sought in the robbery of a Braum's ice cream store about 9:30 a.m.

Authorities said Roberts was shot twice, once in the neck and once in the back. Police said bullet holes were found in the windshield and a side window of the officer's squad car.

Roberts was pronounced dead on arrival at a Paris hospital at about 11:15 a.m.

Two hostages were taken after Roberts' death, police said — one, an invalid woman, was left handcuffed but apparently unharmed in her home as the men hot-wired her car and fled.

A man whose pickup truck was commandeered a short time later either escaped or was released when the vehicle was wrecked and the suspects fled into the woods near the Red River bottoms.

Glenda Helm, 50, who lives in rural Lamar County off Farm to Market Road 197, said two men knocked on her door at about 10 a.m., saying they had car trouble and asking her to take them for help.

Mrs. Helm, an invalid who was alone, said she told the two men she was unable to drive.

Cricket keeping Dallas hopping

DALLAS (AP) — Great jumping crickets!

Residents of area cities are hopping mad over swarms of pesky insects that have evaded insecticides while invading homes, streets and even the Cotton Bowl, where they took on Bruce Springsteen.

The veteran rocker was plagued by the pesky insects on stage at a recent concert, where hundreds of the winged adult crickets swirled around bright stage lights.

Springsteen, batting away a few crickets between songs, told the crowd he was glad to be in Dallas except for "these giant flying Texas grasshoppers."

The Cotton Bowl has been sprayed twice in as many weeks for the insects, actually field crickets. As many as 400 eggs laid last fall by each female cricket are now hatching, said officials.

Larry McMillan, operator of the A-1 Pest Control in Dallas, said he was called to fumigate the Cotton Bowl press box and concession stands on Saturday after reports of "thousands" of crickets.

The complaints of cricket infestation came after Springsteen's Sept. 13 night concert, he said.

"I heard they were louder than he was," said McMillan.

A Sherman police dispatcher said she was attacked by "50,000 of 'em, hopping and jumping around" her car as she stopped at a traffic light.

Millions of the crickets have begun moving to warm spaces, such as basements and beneath patios, as the hot summer temperatures drop, said Beverly Brewer, an urban entomologist for the Dallas County Agricultural Extension Service.

At night, the crickets are attracted to bright building lights in downtown areas, said Ms. Brewer. She said homeowners should cut down outside lighting to cut down on the insects.

"It's that time of the year," she said. "Until the first freeze, there are going to be a lot of them."

Kelly Olson, a police dispatcher in Sherman, said she was surrounded by a swarm of insects one night last week as she came to a stoplight at a downtown intersection.

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Our opinion

Both sides wrong in shirt squabble

The city of Pampa's use of taxpayer funds to purchase Pampa Harvester shirts for employees has created more than a little controversy here in the past week.

Opponents of the action have argued that it is improper to use the general public's funds to support a football team. They have suggested that taxpayers' money should be spent only on projects that benefit "all the people."

Supporters of the action think it is wonderful to see the city taking an active role in showing community support for the Harvesters. They have pointed out that when you divide the $700 paid for the shirts by the number of taxpayers in Pampa, the cost amounts to only a few cents per person.

We find ourselves in disagreement with the arguments advanced by both sides. While we don't think it's right for a government entity to spend money to support an athletic team, we don't think the alternatives proposed by those who don't like it are any better.

It is obvious to anyone that having a community united in support of any worthwhile project is a great thing. But it is equally obvious that it is wrong to use money taken from citizens in the form of taxes to pay for things that all may not care about, or which don't benefit them in any way. Whether the cost to individuals is 7 cents or $7 is beside the point. It is their money.

Statements that the city government buying Harvester shirts is no different than private businesses doing the same thing are ridiculous. The businesses use their own money; the city uses other people's money.

But while we disagree with those who support the purchase, we also disagree with arguments by opponents, who have suggested that it would somehow be more proper to expend taxpayer funds on such things as parks improvements. We, frankly, fail to see the difference.

In both cases, a government entity is taking money from citizens and spending it in ways that do not benefit all citizens. Why is it right to take money away from a person who has no interest in parks and spend it in that area, but wrong to take it from someone who has no interest in the Pampa football team and spend it supporting the Harvesters?

There is a letter to the editor in today's paper in which a lady pinpoints the problem with all government spending. She notes that if government tries to do only those things that benefit "all the people" it will wind up doing very little.

Her assumption that there are few, if any, government endeavors that benefit "all the people" is correct. And this again points out that any government activity at any level essentially consists of taking money away from some citizens and using it to benefit others.

In short, it shows that government is based on legalized theft and is, therefore, not a moral institution. That is why we constantly advocate having as little of it as possible.

Education's smoking gun

In the D.C. suburb of Alexandria, Virginia, school officials recently revealed that in grades one through eight black students trailed white students by between 29 and 42 percentage points on standardized national tests. In Prince Georges County, Maryland, another D.C. suburb, the disparity was twenty points. The National Commission on Excellence in Education found similarly disturbing data: nearly 47 percent of black seventeen-year-olds are functionally illiterate. These black-white statistics are dimmer yet when we consider that white academic achievement is grossly deficient.

Back in June 1980, a Time magazine cover story, "Help! Teacher Can't Teach," described teacher incompetence. A Chicago teacher told a reporter, "I teaches English." A Portland, Oregon, teacher, who received A's and B's in her education courses at Portland State University, was found to be functionally illiterate. Three-quarters of the Houston, Texas, teachers, who took a reading exam, failed it.

Now, Reginald G. Damerall's recently released book, "Education's Smoking Gun: How Teachers Colleges Have Destroyed Education in America" (Freundlich Books, $17.95), tells it all. With insight, wit, and compassion, Damerall, a former professor of education at the University of Massachusetts, exposes the education establishment, particularly university education departments: the people who supposedly teach teachers to teach.

Damerall minces few words. Quoting Dr. Thomas Sowell, Damerall says, "Schools and departments of education... (are) 'the intellectual slums' of the universities." He says, "Empty credentials are all that any school or department of education in any university gives to its graduates."

Damerall offers some personal evidence for his indictment. Mary, a candidate for a Masters Degree in Education (M. Ed.) at the University of Massachusetts, was in his class. She couldn't perform the simplest of assignments. Only after she had applied to the university's doctorate program did Damerall discover that Mary's Graduate Record Examination (GRE) scores indicated she did not have the tools of the mind to organize and remember. On the quantitative part of the test Mary scored 210 out of a possible 800. And her verbal score of 240 wasn't much better - especially when you realize that on GREs a student gets 200 just for writing his name (presumably, even if he gets it wrong). In effect, Mary scored zero, making her "innumerate" and semi-literate. Yet, she was granted a M. Ed. and is now possibly teaching.

Damerall cites the case of another student, Spencer, who was barely literate, yet won a teaching assistantship at the university's Communication Skills Center. Damerall protested, but the chairperson and the school's chief affirmative action lobbyist said, "I would advise you, Reg, NOT to exercise your integrity in this." Spencer was black.

Comedian Bill Cosby is always funny, even in the case of his doctorate in education. He's another U. Mass. product. U. Mass. solicited Cosby; and according to Damerall the degree he received has little relationship "to genuine academic achievement." Cosby, who grew up in the slums of North Philly with this columnist, is an exceptionally intelligent man, with the smarts to earn a real degree. And the fact that he has a giveaway one, like some other celebrities, is harmless. He'll continue his brilliant career acting, telling jokes, and selling Jello instant pudding. But the Marys and Spencers are going to teach our children, and the joke's on us.

Damerall points out that teacher competency is not racial; his indictment applies to whites as well as blacks.

"Education's Smoking Gun" is serious, must reading. It's packed with evidence that should be the foundation for an official inquiry into educational fraud. While there are probably many reasons Johnny can't read, the one that Damerall exposes is a national scandal.

Today in History

Watch out for salad bars

(Editor's Note: Lewis Grizzard currently is hospitalized in Atlanta, Ga., recovering from surgery to replace a heart valve weakened by a blood infection. During his absence, columns will be selected from his book, "Don't Sit Under the Grits Tree With Anyone Else But Me.")

It finally happened to me the other night at dinner in a restaurant. First, the waiter brought water and bread, and then the menu.

After taking my order, he said, "You may help yourself to our salad bar."

It had been some time coming, but the band of restraint inside me finally snapped.

"I don't want to help myself to your salad bar!" I screamed.

"Salad bars drive me insane!" I continued, my eyes rolling back in my head.

"I think he's speaking in tongues," a woman said to her husband in the booth next to mine.

"Shut up, Gladys," said the man. "He's just high on jalapeno pepper."

"You can take your stupid salad bar and shove it!" I went on, now completely out of control.

The waiter, in complete shock, fetched the restaurant manager, who calmed me with buttered saltines.

I have been foursquare against the idea of salad bars since they first reared their ugly lettuce heads in American restaurants.

It is a matter of principle with me.

Whenever I go out to a restaurant, and pay good money, I expect the following:

--Good food.

--No loud music or pinball machines in the area where you actually eat.

--To be waited on hand and foot.

If I want to go to the trouble of preparing my own salad, I will do it in the privacy of my own home, where I can eat it in my underdrawers if I so desire.

"But," salad-bar types are always arguing with me, "with a salad bar, you can put exactly what you want, and how much you want of it, on your salad."

I can get the same thing and never move one inch from my seat.

"Waiter, what do you have available for salads in this establishment?"

"Sir, we have lettuce, tomatoes, cucumbers, mushrooms, radishes, peppers, onions, bacon bits, and Italian, Thousand Island, French and Groovy Garlic dressing."

"I'll have a heaping serving of everything but the radishes (radishes taste like a Ping-Pong ball would probably taste if it were solid), heavy on the Groovy Garlic dressing."

I sit there while my waiter, who is a trained professional in this sort of thing, prepares my salad.

Frankly, it is difficult to find my sort of restaurant these days, one that doesn't dispense its salads from a salad bar. Even the fast-food chains have come over.

Welcome to El Flasho's Taco Take-Out: Mi Salad Bar Es Su Salad Bar."

Soon, I expect all sorts of other establishments, even those that aren't normally associated with food, to get involved.

"Bubba's Transmission Shop: If We Can't Fix It, It Ain't Broke, Visit Our Salad Bar."

Or, "Henning, Henning, Henning, Watts and Schmedlap, Attorneys at Law. Featuring the Best Salad Bar in Town."

I simply can't understand the appeal of making your own salad in a restaurant. If you think that's fun, try something really dynamite like grinding up your own hamburger.

Which probably is the next fad in American restaurants. You stop off on the way to the restaurant and pick up a few pounds of hamburger, potatoes and salad mixings.

At the restaurant they show you into the kitchen, where you cook your own dinner, and then you serve your own table. Afterward, you get to clean your table, and then wash your dishes and mop. Hot water is extra.

And will the last customer to leave please remember to turn off the lights?

Everything we say is not 'opinion'

When one of our reporters went into city hall last week wearing a Pampa Harvester shirt, one of the employees remarked that it was odd that someone who worked for The Pampa News, "which had criticized the city" for buying shirts for its employees would be wearing one.

A White Deer resident wrote a letter saying The Pampa News is obviously biased because we published a story on what Phillips Petroleum Company told a district judge in Austin.

The friend of a guy sent to the pen a few weeks ago asked why "we talked about his tattoos and past record" since they had nothing to do with whether he was guilty or innocent.

In each case, the complaining party objected to what they considered "opinions" expressed by The Pampa News. They were wrong. None of the stories they mentioned had anything to do with opinion. But readers who confuse opinion with what is simple reporting is a continuing problem with most newspapers.

I'm telling you this is hopes of averting similar misunderstandings in the future. It probably won't help that much, but let's give it a try.

The city hall worker obviously thought we had criticized the city because we published a story telling readers where the money came from to buy Harvester shirts for city employees. When we say the city paid for the shirts, that is not "criticism." It is a simple statement of fact. If there was any opinion involved, it was the fact that we thought our readers should know who paid for them.

The White Deer resident said the story about a brief Phillips presented to the court was so biased "it could have been written by Phillips." He's right on one count. The brief was written by Phillips. The story was about what Phillips said. That is not an "opinion." It is a simple statement of what occurred. In fact, if the distraught oilman had noticed, we didn't even write the story. The bulk of it was written by an Associated Press reporter in Austin who was reporting on the Phillips argument.

In the case of the guy sent to prison, we didn't "talk about his tattoos and past record." The assistant district attorney did. We reported what the prosecutor said to the jury. That's not expressing opinion. It's simply telling readers about a trial.

There is one thing I wish readers would remember: If you read something on the front page, or any other page of The Pampa News, you are not reading our "opinions." You are reading an account of something that happened.

We hope the only "opinion" you ever read in The Pampa News appears on this page, which is clearly labeled "Viewpoints." This is where our opinions are published. We hope you agree with most of them, but we suspect you won't. But at least, if you will remember what I've said, you will recognize them for what they are.

Simmons is managing editor of The Pampa News.

Letters to the editor

A wonderful idea

Dear Editor,
In regard to City Manager Bob Hart's decision on the recent purchase of green and gold polo shirts for our city employees, I as a concerned citizen think it is a wonderful idea.

I feel that Pampa should support their school activities. When I was in Pampa High School only a small portion was behind the school activities. Now on Fridays, you can see the school colors almost all over town. Friday night the stands were packed supporting the Harvesters and you could see green and gold colors all in the stadium. The excitement was great. I am sure the players can see a difference and appreciate all the support they are receiving now.

The citizens who are griping about their hard-earned money being spent foolishly, which is only $12.95, should think about the city employees, who are also tax paying citizens, and are out in the early morning hours way before 8 a.m. sanding the streets, fixing the street lights and patrolling our community. These employee department heads (who are the only ones who wear the shirts) do not get paid over-time for this, and what are they doing? Helping the tax paying citizens. I am certain all the employee department heads have paid for their shirts themselves.

Also, in regard to the letter to the editor in last Sunday's paper about street maintenance, Mr. Marsh, should think about last year when we all voted on the bond issue for street maintenance. Who rejected it? The hard-earned tax paying citizens.

NAME WITHHELD

Thanks for support

To the editor and Mr. Hart

The main theme of this letter is a thank-you, but it also pertains to the article by Ms. Spaulding regarding the purchase of green shirts for city employees.

This is my third year with the Pampa ISD and I have always been ashamed and disgusted by the last of student body and community support for Pampa High achievers, whoever or whatever they have done.

Within recent months there are those who are new to Pampa that have shown more support and spirit in our institution than some Pampa natives. Pride is something that one must instill in themselves and it works kind of like this in regard to learning. If one has pride in his school, it creates a better learning atmosphere. If there is a better learning atmosphere then the teachers are better able to prepare our future leaders for tomorrow.

We now have in Mr. Hart, and many others, those trying to show pride in a very valuable institution, and I for one thank you.

In regard to Ms. Spaulding's remark that city employees would not wear their green shirts on Tuesdays when the Lady Harvester Volleyball team plays—well to that who cares (has Ms. Spaulding been to any of these matches). We have a long way to go before the pride in this school reaches where it needs to be, so let's start somewhere.

Oh yes, I am the Head Girls Volleyball Coach at Pampa High School and my team and I are in full support of any action taken to show that school spirit and pride are developed and sooner or later we all will catch the overflow.

To Mr. Hart and those merchants that are donating trophies for our J.V. Volleyball tournament, and the many more in the community who are trying to show pride and spirit in a very valuable institution, we say thank-you and please do not let someone dampen your spirit. Hope to see you on Mondays or Tuesdays or Thursdays or Fridays or Saturdays where ever Pampa achievers are showing their stuff.

Give them a chance

Dear editor,

I was most surprised and disappointed by the letters in Sunday's paper criticizing our new city manager for trying to show support for our school and athletes.

Our city has been split for months over various issues, and the morale in our school system has been at an all time low.

We now have a new, enthusiastic city manager and an outstanding new high school principal who is well on the way to turning attitudes around. Let's get behind them both and give them a chance.

On a per capita basis, those green and gold shirts cost each of us about 3 1/2 cents and I can guarantee you they and the gold and green painted intersections have been a tremendous boost to the teachers and the student body.

Surely, Cam hasn't forgotten that he gave us the motto of "Best in the West." We just all need to remember that and try to live up to it—not only the school system, but the whole community.

ANNE MCANELLY

Don't be negative

Dear folks of Pampa,

If there were only 10,000 taxpayers in Pampa, $700 comes to only 7 cents apiece to buy green shirts. Come on all you Negative Nellies, can't you be nice? Just because you didn't play sports in high school, or don't have kids, or your kids are grown and gone, or you just don't like people who smile a lot and are gung-ho for something, can't you really try to see the psychological benefits of what our super city manager is trying to do? The taxpayers' 7 cents is reaping priceless community spirit and pride.

And remember, the "taxpayers as a whole" are made up of "taxpayers in small interest groups." Fixing driveway pipes doesn't benefit me, but I can see the need of those people. I may not have kids, but I can understand the pride everyone would feel seeing the Harvester logo on a Pampa water tower. If we say that everything we do must be for the benefit of everyone, we will quickly come to the realization that we can't do anything for anyone.

Come on folks, call or write Bob Hart to express your support. He really seems to be on the right track.

POSITIVE PAULA

Let him buy them

Dear Editor,

Perhaps someone should check into the legal aspects of our city manager spending taxpayers' money as a "bonus" for city employees' shirts. Anyone who thinks this is okay must still be running for political office.

Isn't this the way a politician thinks: "Tax everyone and I spend the money collected the way I see fit. I don't have to ask those same people (taxpayers) who pay my salary what they think."

I wonder what the city manager has in mind for our basketball team or band to "show our support?" Why the football team and no one else?

I appreciate his desire to show support for our high school and our football team. But wouldn't he really feel better if that "support" came from his own pocketbook and not mine? I most certainly would.

RAY VELASQUEZ

Is budget really tight?

To the editor,

Well what do you know? "$10 million city budget gets initial okay." Very tight, so we are told, a $300,000 increase over last year. For what? To spend on personal wearing apparel for city employees while the streets have chug holes or bumps here and there so there's no way to miss one?

The budget allows setting aside 2 percent of revenues to build up the contingency or reserve funds towards unexpected expenses. To buy shirts for city employees? Now, they are provided a salary or wage, so they can do as any other citizen—go buy a shirt to support the Harvesters out of their own pocket.

Oh yes, the banks and businesses are doing it, but not at taxpayers' expense. One wonders how they stay in business, with a dip here for a good cause, then comes along another good cause. Pretty soon it reminds us of the giraffe story. The good man of the house lets the giraffe in gradually and finally he is pushed out into the cold.

It is absolutely preposterous to dip into the tax bill to buy personal things for employees, whatever the reason.

So, we study the garbage rate hike. The needs here are astronomical. Here again, the residential and commercial citizens, the backbone of the city, gets a hike in rates.

Our city manager reports that the city departments are busy. Well, there's plenty to be done. One time this citizen observed a group of workers spraying the alley. One fellow had a little sprayer walking down the alley shooting a little of "whatever," while several other fellows sat around a pickup drinking something.

So Mr. Supervisor said he could not watch all the workers. Well probably not, especially if he'd rather rest comfortably with his feet propped upon his desk.

Now, if those extra people each had a hoe, those weeds could have been felled in no time and perhaps the spraying would have had more effect.

No sir. No public funds for personal wearing apparel for city, county, state or federal employees for that matter. There are too many loopholes. Wake up citizens. The pipe removal issue is not over. Oh, by the way, I have not seen where a pipe has been replaced at the taxpayers' expense.

Honesty still exists

Dear editor,

On Sept. 18, I was loading a large heavy box in the back of my car. While doing this, I had placed my purse in the trunk.

After getting the box in the car, I left for the Post Office, forgetting my purse was in the trunk.

On arriving at the Post Office, I realized what I had done. I retraced my route looking for my purse on the street. It could not be found.

My purse contained $150 in cash, several credit cards, check book, my son's paycheck already endorsed and numerous other things.

Some 30 minutes later, a Mr. Picther returned my purse and all of its contents. He had picked things up off the street and put them in my purse.

What stopped him from taking my cash, my son's paycheck and my credit cards? Honesty. There is still in this troubled society honesty after all.

Thank you Mr. Picther.

BARBARA LALLEMENT

Bad state of affairs

Dear editor,

I would like to express my opinion on the state of affairs. I think it's pretty bad when someone can't leave their car setting beside the road for a day or two without some lowlife coming along and destroying it. I am referring to a Mustang I saw parked nine miles west of Pampa on Highway 152 the other day.

I would also like to say that judges are losing sight of justice when they will let a cold-blooded killer like Pinkerton have a stay of execution when he has been found guilty on two counts of murder and given the death penalty.

Thanks to officer

Dear editor,

The people in the 2220 block of N. Dwight recently had a block party. We had the pleasure of having a fine young policeman come and share our good time together.

He gave a talk on the new seat belt law, bicycle safety and safe driving for our young people. I think we all learned something.

We all want to say thank you to officer Gary Boydston for coming and sharing fellowship with us. It's good to know there are fine, decent men like you in our police service.

City needs ramps

Dear Pampa,

I take care of a handicapped black lady through the Health Care Services of Amarillo. She is the victim of a degenerative nerve disease and is in a wheelchair.

On Sept. 12, I took her downtown to do some shopping. She very rarely gets out except for doctor appointments and was really looking forward to the trip.

I parked my car in front of a store on Kingsmill and got her out of the car and into her wheelchair. This was quite a feat as the chair had to first be put on the sidewalk and she had to be gotten up the double curb to the chair. This was accomplished with the aid of another lady who had pulled into the space next to my car. This lady was using a cane and also had difficulty negotiating the curb.

After finishing our shopping, as we left the store I began to wonder how we would manage the sidewalk-to-auto transition. I pushed her around the corner on to Russell Street to see if the alleyway had an easier access to the street. No luck. Back to the alleyway on Kingsmill. No luck. Faced with no choice, I placed her chair by my car facing the street and locked the wheels. I put our purchases and purses in the car and went back to get my lady. As we were scooting her forward to get out of the chair, the chair tipped over forward and she fell between the car and the curb with the wheelchair on top of her.

A saleslady in the store saw what happened and came out to offer assistance. During these few seconds, one of Pampa's "good citizens" came down the street. When she saw what was happening, instead of even offering to help us, she grabbed her daughter and made a hasty retreat inside the nearest store. Her compassion overwhelmed me. But what can you expect of a "good" citizen when they see a handicapped black lady lying in the street.

All of this terribly traumatic experience could have been avoided if Pampa only had the foresight and compassion to provide access ramps on the sidewalks. When I think of the places in town that I go to out of necessity that are inaccessible to the handicapped, the list is staggering. It is much easier to name the places that are concerned enough to provide them access: The Lovett Memorial Library, Clarendon Community College, the Mall, and now the high school.

It would seem that we who are concerned citizens could negotiate with our new city government to provide some kind of sidewalk ramps in at least the downtown area. Say even one removable wooden ramp per block? How about it Pampa?

South African view

Dear editor,

Herewith is my view of the South African situation which has been so much in the news lately.

The 22 million blacks in South Africa own a goose that lays golden eggs. They are going to kill the goose and then—no more golden eggs.

S. Africa's blacks are as free and as prosperous as most people of the world and more so than many. They are immeasurably better off now than they were before the white man came and set them free from ignorance, poverty and disease.

The majority of S. African blacks are contented with things as they are. They have good housing, nourishing food, free medical care and educational opportunities. But some of them are confused because of the agitation of a few Communists, whose only aim is to weaken and then take over the nation. Those disturbers of the public peace care nothing about the freedom of the 22 million blacks or their right to vote. If these rabble rousers win, they will murder thousands of blacks who oppose them and then enslave the remainder.

Total freedom for every person sounds good, but it is impractical and even immoral in a real world. For example: Who would grant total freedom to a small child to cross a busy highway or use a butcher knife or use matches? And even as adults, all of us, to a greater or lesser degree, need restraints for our own protection and benefit. Freedom can hurt and destroy us if we are inexperienced or irresponsible.

To whatever extent we are dependent upon others for our survival, to that degree we are not free. As we gain experience and become more responsible, as we become less dependent on others, we move up to a place where we can receive more freedom for ourselves and those under our care.

The real question in S. Africa, as I see it, is now: "Will the 22 million blacks win the right to vote?" No. The real concern is, "Will S. Africa fall into the hands of the Communist murderers and dictators as a result of this present crisis?"

Demos call many, but some not answering

WASHINGTON (AP) — When Democratic leaders sat down this year to plot strategy for regaining control of the Senate in 1986, they moved aggressively to enlist past and present governors in several states as challengers to Republicans.

But while strong candidates the Democrats coveted in Idaho and Florida have heeded the call, others in Oklahoma, Arizona, Wisconsin and North Carolina have not, and another, struggling with a statewide savings and loan crisis in Maryland, is on the fence.

The result has been to weaken Democratic prospects and raise GOP optimism about maintaining control of the Senate for the final two years of President Reagan's term. But if Democrats have problems, so do the Republicans as they bid to preserve a Senate majority that now stands at 53-47.

Sen. Paul Laxalt, a cinch for re-election in Nevada, stunned his party with a decision last month to retire. Sen. John East has decided to retire because of illness and a fierce GOP primary may be waged over ideology in North Carolina. Incumbent Republicans Arlen Specter in Pennsylvania and James Abdnor in South Dakota face possible primary challenges from GOP governors.

Thus, nine months after the candidate slating began and more than a year before the ballots are cast in 1986, the two parties are like teams settled in for a long season, girding for highly competitive, pivotal races in Idaho, Florida, North Carolina, South Dakota, Louisiana, Missouri and Nevada, trying to patch weaknesses in their lineups and guard against the surprises that both know are inevitable.

The subplots within the main drama are enough to entertain political junkies for months to come.

Will Democrat Gary Hart forsake another Senate campaign in Colorado to concentrate on his 1988 presidential hopes, as most of the signals now indicate?

Can the right candidate emerge from a crowded GOP pack in California and knock off 71-year-old Alan Cranston, thus achieving a key GOP goal of defeating at least one Democratic incumbent?

Will former Rep. Geraldine Ferraro, Walter F. Mondale's running mate last fall, decide to challenge Sen. Alphonse D'Amato in New York?

Can the freshman Republicans whose re-election prospects now appear relatively good — ranging from Robert Kasten in Wisconsin to Mack Mattingly in Georgia to Don Nickles in Oklahoma and Slade Gorton in Washington — dodge last-minute upsets?

The odds should favor the Democrats, who need only to switch the party labels on four seats to regain control of the Senate.

Republicans must defend 22 of the 34 seats on the ballot next year, many of them held by freshmen swept into office on Reagan's coattails in 1980. This time, of course, Reagan will not be on the ballot. In addition, the party out of power normally makes inroads in mid-term elections.

Also, the Democrats are keying in on several issues, including the nation's trade imbalance, while the Republican unity so prominent during Reagan's first term is fraying.

On the other hand, the GOP chances are boosted by a president whose personal popularity remains high, and the party has an enormous financial advantage.

While Republicans and Democrats disagree about the outcome, there's scant dispute over the races likely to be pivotal:

North Carolina is a wide open race, with East and former Democratic Gov. Jim Hunt bowing out within a few days of one another.

Millions may be raised

FarmAid concert all set to happen

By DAVID FOX
Associated Press Writer

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — Lights were in place and a bright blue roof covered the revolving stage Saturday as scores of crew members hurried to prepare Memorial Stadium for Sunday's 14-hour FarmAid benefit concert, expected to draw nearly 80,000 people.

The country, rock, blues and bluegrass extravaganza will feature 50 performers including organizers Willie Nelson, John Cougar-Mellencamp and Neil Young, who hope the concert will raise millions of dollars to help the nation's family farmers.

"The biggest problem I foresee is too many bodies on stage at once ...," said worker George Graves of Schenectady, N.Y. "But at the same time, these people are professionals. You've got the best people in rock 'n' roll producing it."

About 1,000 people were at work in the stadium Saturday.

Twelve hours of the outdoor concert at the University of Illinois stadium will be carried live by The Nashville Network, available to about 25 million cable television households, and by more than 300 radio stations. In addition, organizers said 156 television stations will broadcast a three-hour, prime-time segment of the show Sunday night.

Viewers and listeners will be asked to call a special telephone number, 1-800-FARMAID, to pledge donations.

More money will be raised through concession sales, the $17.50 concert tickets — which sold out in three days — and from promoters of several small, local concerts who promised to turn over their profits to FarmAid.

The national accounting firm of Price Waterhouse will monitor all money collected for FarmAid, and Nelson will decide how to distribute it, said the singer's manager, Dave Anderson.

Nelson has said he plans to use the money for direct cash grants to some farmers and legal assistance, counseling and job placement for others.

"It's great because they might be able to help a few farmers who really need it," said Larry Junkin, a farmer from Armstrong. "But there ain't no way they can give everybody a little bit and do any good."

"The way I see it, the best thing this can do is make more people aware of our problems," he said.

Nelson came up with the idea for the concert after hearing of the plight of farm families faced with rising bills, falling income and declining land values.

Experts have said at least 25 percent of America's farmers are in serious financial straits. According to government figures, the total farm debt is about $212 billion, with interest of about $21 billion in 1985 — an average of $58 million a day.

The FarmAid and make a donation.

Carson, who was born in Iowa and raised in Nebraska, said of the nation's farmers: "They're not looking for a bailout ... all they're asking is for a little time."

Workers comp plan is delayed

AUSTIN (AP) — The State Board of Insurance appears ready to reconsider its recent decision to add $577 million to workers' compensation premiums by raising the rates 30.7 percent.

Gov. Mark White had asked the board to take another "peek" at the decision, board chairman Lyndon Olson said Friday.

White and some business people have questioned the hike. Olson said it is needed to guarantee that insurance companies will offer workers' comp coverage in Texas.

In a 3-0 vote Friday, the board delayed the deadline for a rehearing motion until Sept. 27. Without that vote, Friday would have been the final day to ask the board to reconsider its Sept. 5 decision.

Board members David Thornberry and Carole Kecton Rylander indicated Friday there is a chance the rate hike could be reduced.

MOTIVATIONS

"The lamp of the body is the eye: if therefore thine eye be single, thy whole body shall be full of light. But if thine eye be evil, thy whole body shall be full of darkness. If therefore the light that is in thee be darkness, how great is the darkness! No man can serve two masters: for either he will hate the one and love the other: or else he will hold to one and despise the other. Ye cannot serve God and mammon" (Matthew 6:22-24.) A person will travel the road of his own thinking and determination, whether good or bad. That is, if his eye be "single", devoted to God and the ways of God, his life will be properly directed. But if his motivation be the evil lusts of the flesh, or "darkness", then his entire life will be consumed in that darkness.

It is so true that a person will do that which he is motivated to do. But the motivation can be determined by many different things. For example, a person can be motivated by covetousness. To be covetous is to desire that which belongs to someone else. Paul says covetousness is idolatry (Colossians 3:5.) But people, motivated by covetousness, have committed many grievous crimes and sins such as murder, theft, etc.

A person might be motivated by selfishness. To be so completely oblivious of anyone or anything other than one's own self can lead to ruin spiritually and morally. Our Lord taught, "It is more blessed to give than to receive" (Acts 20:35.) To be guided by selfishness is to lose sight of the greatest source of satisfaction and joy, and that is doing for someone else. Such is taught in Matthew 7:12; Galatians 5:14; 6:1-2. Because of selfishness many marriages fail, children are neglected and abandoned, and men are reduced, many times, to nothing more than animals.

While we can be motivated by things which are evil we can also be motivated by those things which are good, such as love, faith, hope. Things always produce after their own kind (Genesis 1:11-12.) Good motivations always produce good things and evil motivations always produce evil things.

Public panic prodding Congress to hike AIDS funding

WASHINGTON — Congress, prodded by public panic over AIDS, is moving to increase money for research into the deadly disease, and a Republican senator says "whatever resources are needed" will be provided.

Several lawmakers on Capitol Hill said they will provide the money that federal scientists believe they must have to find a cause and cure for acquired immune deficiency syndrome.

"Let me forcefully quash that aspect of public panic over AIDS that can be attributed to the belief that the federal government is holding back on funding to find a cure for this disease," said Sen. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., chairman of the Senate Appropriations health subcommittee.

"It is my firm intent that whatever resources are needed to meet the AIDS crisis will be provided," Weicker said.

Some medical professionals, homosexual activists and others have criticized the federal government for failing to recognize the urgency of the problem early enough.

Rep. Henry Waxman, D-Calif., whose House subcommittee on health and the environment first held hearings on AIDS in April 1982, contends the Reagan administration held back on spending because of prejudice against homosexual men, the group most afflicted by AIDS.

But Waxman said Friday he's certain his colleagues will vote for more AIDS research money this year. Skimping a few million dollars for research is foolish, he says, because it could save the nation billions of dollars in future health costs.

A House appropriations subcommittee recently approved about $196 million for AIDS' research and education programs, including $141 million for the National Institutes of Health.

That amount, expected to be considered by the full committee this week, compared with the Reagan administration request for fiscal year 1986 of $126 million. The new fiscal year begins Oct. 1.

Weicker's subcommittee generally went along with the administration's suggestions.

Nancy to investigate ways of getting aid into Mexico

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan announced today that the first lady will travel to Mexico on Monday to explore ways to deliver U.S. aid to earthquake victims.

Reagan made the announcement in his weekly radio address delivered from his presidential retreat at Camp David, Md.

"The desire to be a good neighbor is basic to the American character and to our foreign policy," Reagan said.

The president said his wife, Nancy, would be going to "express the support of the American people."

Mrs. Reagan's press secretary, Elaine Crispin, said she did not know yet where Mrs. Reagan intends to travel, whom she will meet, or how long she will stay.

"It's all being worked out now,"

Mrs. Crispin said.

Mrs. Reagan is making the Mexican visit as a stop-off on her way to the West Coast, Mrs. Crispin said.

"The president said his wife would express the support of the American people to our courageous friends in Mexico and to explore how we can lend a hand in this ordeal."

Reagan called the Mexican earthquake a "tragedy" that had sparked a great outpouring of sympathy and offers of assistance from the American people.

"We greatly admire the bravery and resolve of the Mexican people to dedicate all their resources to overcome this calamitous event," said Reagan.

Reagan said the United States has already provided some technical assistance that has been requested by the Mexican government and that it stands ready to "help in every way in the days and months ahead to aid in their effort."

The president made the surprise announcement about his wife's visit to Mexico at the end of a wide-ranging radio address in which he touched on U.S. policy toward the Middle East and the Soviet Union, as well as the mounting pressure of protectionist legislation in Congress.

Reagan said he looked forward to his meeting Monday with Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak and a meeting Sept. 30 with Jordan's King Hussein, to further explore efforts toward peace in the Middle East.

Reagan said that the United States was "doing all we can" to help seek peace between Israel and its Arab neighbors.

Reagan recovery said 100 percent

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan is relaxing at his Camp David retreat in Maryland this weekend after doctors pronounced his recovery from surgery for colon cancer "100 percent complete."

Reagan returned Friday to Bethesda Naval Hospital outside Washington for what the White House described as "normal and routine postoperative exams" following the removal on July 13 of a 2-foot section of his colon containing a cancerous tumor.

Presidential spokesman Larry Speakes refused to disclose just what tests were performed, although a brief White House statement issued earlier in the week said they would include chest X-rays and blood tests.

Reagan spent about 50 minutes at the hospital before reboarding his helicopter and taking off to spend the weekend at the presidential retreat atop Catocin Mountain.

His only comment to waiting reporters following the tests was that he had made a "100 percent complete recovery" from the surgery. The White House later explained that Reagan was repeating what doctors had told him.

The brief written statement said the president's physicians told Reagan they were "ecstatic" about his condition.

"The results of all the postoperative tests were normal," the statement said without noting what tests were conducted or precisely what they showed.

S. Africa leaders pressured

By MAUREEN JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — South Africa's big businessmen are pressing the white-minority government to make fundamental reforms in the apartheid system under which they once prospered.

Their message is increasingly angry and impatient. "Time has run out," Anton Rupert, head of Rembrandt, the country's largest cigarette manufacturer, told a recent news conference. Rembrandt also has large mining interests.

"This is the government's final opportunity to correct past wrongs and introduce the sort of reforms the country is so strongly signaling it needs so urgently."

Rupert is an Afrikaner with close links with the government, and now is adding his voice to the clamor from English-speakers who dominate South Africa's big business.

An AP news analysis

As economic recession deepened and the rand currency crashed last month when foreign bankers worried about the political crisis refused to renew loans, the men who control much of this country's vast mineral and industrial wealth declared that only fundamental reforms would do.

Gavin Relly, head of South Africa's mining giant, the Anglo American Corp., did what once was unthinkable.

Accompanied by a six-member delegation, he met Sept. 13 in neighboring Zambia with black guerrilla chiefs of the African National Congress, which is fighting to overthrow the white government and then nationalize the big corporations. Botha accused Relly of "showing weakness to the enemies."

The business community is deeply angry about what they see as Botha's lost opportunity in failing to announce any reforms in an Aug. 15 speech that had been billed by white officials as a major policy statement.

Botha's government since has proposed eroding the grand design of apartheid with two concessions. One would give South African citizenship to people in black homelands, and the other would ease black movement into white areas.

Most business leaders believe Botha could have headed off limited U.S. sanctions and, more importantly, calmed foreign bankers by announcing the moves Aug. 15.

Instead, "South Africa is facing the worst of all worlds," commented Johannesburg's Business Day, an influential newspaper that closely reflects the views of the English-speaking business community. The paper is calling for the 69-year-old Botha to resign. Many businessmen believe that dismantling apartheid and its battery of racial discrimination in education and housing, without conceding a timetable for black rule, will satisfy foreign bankers and Western countries.

The demands of business leaders, who are hurt by the economic crisis and could lose everything in a black revolution, range from desegregating schools and ending restrictions on black movements to releasing top black leader Nelson Mandela, who is serving a life prison term.

Black labor leader James Mndaweni, president of the Council of Unions of South Africa, said it was right for the businessmen to meet with leaders of the African National Congress.

"But it's too late," he said. "If they'd embarked on this program even in the early 1980s, it would have been better in terms of maintaining their credibility."

Spy fever sweeps across Europe

BONN, West Germany (AP) — The spy affairs gripping Western Europe have strained East-West relations, embarrassed governments and offered a rare glimpse into the murky world of defectors and double agents.

From Oslo to Athens, spy scandals, expulsions and a trial have brought "spy fever" out of paperback thrillers and into real life.

British officials say the retaliatory espionage-related expulsions by Moscow and London have undermined relations between the two countries.

West Germany's spy scandal has cost the job of the nation's foreign intelligence chief and threatened the career of the Cabinet minister responsible for internal security.

The Greenpeace ship-sinking affair in New Zealand and surrounding espionage allegations brought about the resignation Friday of French Defense Minister Charles Hernu and the dismissal of the head of France's secret service, Adm. Pierre Lacoste.

Also on Friday, the Soviet KGB announced the arrest of a Soviet citizen, A.G. Tolkahev, for allegedly spying for the CIA. The KGB said Tolkahev, a staff member at one of Moscow's research institutes, gave material to Paul M. Stombaugh, who worked in the U.S. Embassy's political section until he was ordered out of the Soviet Union on June 14. The announcement did not say when Tolkahev was arrested.

Many diplomatic analysts and security experts say the spy revelations will not do permanent damage to European public life.

"We have always had and always will have spy affairs," said

Karl Kaiser, director of the German Society for Foreign Affairs, a private research and study organization. "That is particularly true here because this is a divided country."

West German officials strenuously emphasize that the scandal, in which seven suspected East German agents have been arrested or defected, will not permanently harm improving relations with East Germany.

The British-Soviet affair, in which each side expelled 31 diplomats, journalists and businessmen, began with what British officials hailed as one of their biggest espionage coups in recent years: the defection of 46-year-old Oleg A. Gordievski, identified as the Soviet KGB spymaster in Britain.

The West German spy scandal includes the defection Aug. 19 to East Germany of Hans-Joachim Tiedge.

Ranch stepping stone for the brain-damaged

By SHEILA ALLEE
Associated Press Writer

SAN MARCOS, Texas (AP) — Susan was a model and a college student with plans to become a corporate attorney when her car collided with an 18-wheel truck on a New Jersey highway.

Four years later, she tends plants in a nursery and dreams of the day she can be on her own again.

Susan lives and works at Tangram Rehabilitative Network, a unique ranch-nursery-camp setting designed to help brain-damaged people ease back into the mainstream of life.

Most of the 45 or so residents at Tangram Ranch have been victims of serious automobile accidents. Born with normal IQs and motor skills, they suffered mental impairment because of serious head trauma. Many have sustained physical disabilities from their accidents.

Susan's hip was crushed in December 1981 when her car was involved in a crash with an 18-wheeler.

Now she walks with a slight limp and says she has lost her sense of smell.

"I used to be a very go get 'em-type person," said Susan, who did not want her last name used because of pending litigation against the truck driver.

"I wanted to be a corporate lawyer, but that's not a reality now," she said.

Susan, 22, who says she hopes to attend commercial art school, is one of the more fortunate residents at Tangram.

Not all the others are as alert and articulate.

Each client pays $6,000 a month for room and board, a highly structured environment and the opportunity to learn a job skill.

Administrator David Seaton says Tangram is the first facility in the nation to provide a non-institutional, non-hospital setting for brain-damaged people.

"There needs to be an intermediate stage between hospitals and regular life," he said.

The network has four facilities — an isolated 155-acre camp and adjoining ranch southwest of San Marcos; a 15-acre commercial nursery just outside town and a halfway house in the city near Tangram headquarters.

The network is built on the foundations of self-reliance and accomplishment.

"The biggest difficulty people with head injuries have is they don't learn how to take care of themselves in hospitals," Seaton said. "They learn how to be taken care of."

Most people with severe brain injuries go through a critical stage in the hospital, then, once stabilized, are moved to a rehabilitative facility where they learn to walk, talk, eat and other basics.

Once they are functioning, they are discharged. And that's when their longterm problems begin, Seaton said.

"The biggest thing affected with head injuries is memory," he said. "These people may not remember what they had for breakfast. That affects your self confidence and creates frustration, then anger. These people experience explosive anger. You don't put up with 8-year-old behavior from a 22-year-old person."

Many end up on medication in psychiatric hospitals or in nursing homes. Some land in jail, Seaton said.

Because of more sophisticated medical technology, the number of brain injury survivors has mushroomed in the past 10 years.

Approximately 70,000 to 100,000 people survive serious brain trauma annually. Two-thirds of them are under 30, according to Joan Ligon of the National Head Injury Foundation.

This rapidly growing class of people has put a strain on families, who don't know how to deal with brain-injured relatives, and on insurance companies, who don't want to pay for longterm psychiatric or nursing home care.

Stanley Seaton, Seaton's father and a Dallas psychiatrist, started the Tangram network after a friend's son went through a serious head injury.

"He came up with the rural setting," Seaton said of his father. "It was a test, but it made sense."

Many new clients are sent to the Tangram camp, a quiet, isolated setting that has proven calming for many.

Clients who live at the ranch are assigned animals to feed, water and care for and have other tasks. They are "paid" with token money, used in turn to pay for room and board.

At the nursery, clients must fill out a job application, get hired, work an 8-to-5 day and learn job skills.

Clients who remain employed at the nursery or other jobs in San Marcos stay at the halfway house in town. Work, recreation and other activities are planned from 6 a.m. to 10 p.m. seven days a week.

The staff of 65 includes speech and physical therapists, occupational counselors and experts who run the ranch and nursery.

About 60 percent of the clients have insurance coverage that pays for their stay at Tangram. Another 20 percent have gotten settlements from lawsuits and the rest pay out of their own pockets.

Currently, there are no government funds specifically set aside to help brain-injury victims, Seaton said.

Texan flies flags of 19 foreign countries

WICHITA FALLS, Texas (AP) — Hal Yeager Jr. is a real flagwaver.

Yeager is so serious about his flag-waving that every day for the past two years — weather permitting — he has raised the banner of some country or special observance onto the 25-foot flagpole in his yard.

"I like the way it looks when a flag waves. I just enjoy it. And I enjoy color — lots of color. This is the only hobby I've ever had that's kept me home," Yeager said.

Yeager's collection includes the flags of 19 foreign countries and five states, nine special observance flags and two religious flags. He began his colorful hobby, however, with only two flags.

"I first started off with the Texas and American flags. Then the Danish squadron in the NATO group presented the Maverick Club (of which Yeager is a member) with a Danish flag, and I ended up with it. I couldn't properly entertain the other NATO groups and not fly their flags, so it just kind of kept growing from there," Yeager said.

Yeager erected the $300 aluminum flagpole in his yard two years ago, and has flown one of his flags every day since.

He chose aluminum because, he said, "It's prettier than an ordinary pole, and it doesn't wear out the flag as much."

He buys the 4-by-6 foot flag at a cost of $35 each from the J. Hugh Campbell Co. in Dallas, where he says he is on a first-name basis with the employees.

"First I acquired the flags of all the NATO countries. Then I got one for Sweden because Betty (his wife) and her parents are Swedes. Then I got flags for France, Mexico, Australia, Iceland and all the Nordic countries. Then as an afterthought I got a birthday flag, a smile face, a Christian flag, a Christmas flag and several other holiday flags," he said.

To make sure he's flying the appropriate flag for a particular holiday or occasion, Yeager keeps a handmade calendar of each country's national or special holidays. Foreign personnel at Sheppard Air Force Base keep him informed about dates on which to fly their countries' flags, he said.

Government pruning list of state-owned firms

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Over the past five decades, Mexico's government gradually acquired an unwieldy jumble of nearly 1,000 companies, from airlines to metal foundries, many of them money-losers.

Now, in an uphill drive to promote efficiency, it is trying to get rid of hundreds of the operations. Some are being sold, others are being closed down and some are being transferred to state governments.

But officials of President Miguel de la Madrid's administration call the move only a pruning and say it will not change the government's longstanding policy of maintaining a firm grip on the economy.

What we're aiming for is rationalization — getting rid of the marginal companies and using the resources to further improve the remaining government companies and making them more efficient," said Ignacio Lara, spokesman for the Department of Energy, Mines and Government Industries, which oversees most of the companies.

The government's wholly or partly owned companies enable it to control an estimated 65 percent to 70 percent of the nation's economic activity. The rest is in private hands.

Because the constitution stipulates that "national strategic" enterprises should be owned by the state, the government is keeping full or controlling ownership of such giant monopolies as Pemex for the petroleum industry, Telephones of Mexico in telecommunications, the railways, electric power and uranium.

Report: Temple to head study group

AUSTIN (AP) — East Texas timber baron Arthur Temple Jr. is Gov. Mark White's choice to head a blue-ribbon committee that will study Texas colleges and universities, according to a report published Friday.

The Austin American-Statesman, quoting unnamed sources, also said Temple apparently is reluctant to take the job.

Temple was traveling outside Texas and unavailable for immediate comment.

White on Thursday told his news conference a chairman hasn't been chosen yet and said all the committee appointments would be announced next week.

The committee is being assembled by White, House Speaker Gib Lewis and Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby.

The panel will study higher education in a fashion similar to the way the select committee headed by H. Ross Perot examined public education.

It also is keeping shares, in partnership with private enterprise, in shipbuilding and ship repair industries, petrochemicals, steel-making, airlines and other major industries, even though some of them lose money.

Lara said in an interview that the purpose in retaining those companies is to assure their continued development, despite big administrative difficulties.

Pemex, for instance, handles all oil and natural gas sales, which made up nearly three-fourths of the nation's $20 billion worth of exports in 1984. But an overblown, corruption-riddled bureaucracy keeps its productivity low.

The divestiture program, which began in March, calls for the disposal of 236 companies, some of them acquired as far back as the early 1940s. They include movie-making and book publishing concerns, restaurants and night clubs, service stations and laundries in remote areas, lumber mills and distilleries.

Seven wholly owned, money-losing state corporations are being transferred to state governments that want them for political or social reasons but up to now have been unwilling to put up the money to keep them running.

An additional 55 companies are being closed, including a string of tortilla factories, some laundries and others that — like a sugar mill hundreds of miles from the nearest sugarcane field — were started on paper years ago but never got off the ground.

The rest are being sold, either as units or piecemeal as shares on the stock market. The powerful Mexican Labor Federation, which represents more than 4 million workers, recently bought the Condor bicycle factory and said it is interested in acquiring a handful of others, including a mineral water bottling plant.

"Many of these non-strategic industries were started by the government in fields where private enterprise either was afraid to venture in, did not have the money to do it or lacked the expertise," Lara said. "And, to preserve jobs, many more companies were acquired by the government over the years as they went bankrupt."

Jobs are a foremost issue in Mexico.

The country has had a combined unemployment and under-employment rate estimated at nearly 40 percent for several decades. And, with an annual population growth rate of 2.6 percent, it needs to create 850,000 new jobs annually just to keep up with the number of youths seeking employment for the first time.

For the past three years, since falling world oil prices helped plunge Mexico into economic crisis, the number of new jobs has been about half that.

"A lot of these companies were neither strategic nor priority ones, but were acquired for social and political reasons. And they made the government obese. They once served their purpose. But the limit has now been reached," Lara said.

The government's control of the economy was increased when then President Jose Lopez Portillo expropriated Mexico's 34 private banks three months before de la Madrid took over the presidency in December 1982.

Lopez Portillo accused the banks' owners of "sacking" the country of badly needed dollars. The banks' holdings in private companies became part of government holdings and are gradually being put back on the market.

State control of the economy has long been an important political issue in Mexico. The takeover of the oil industry in 1938 still is marked by ceremonies on March 15.

Lack of moisture a concern in many areas

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Many Texas farmers and ranchers benefitted from rains this week across the state, but lack of moisture remains a concern in many areas, says Dr. Zerle L. Carpenter, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

While scattered rains and cooler temperatures ended a siege of extended hot, dry weather, a general rain is still needed over the state to improve the agricultural outlook, Carpenter said in his weekly report on the state's agriculture.

Last week's rains will give a tentative boost to fall grazing and will enable some producers to plant small grains — wheat and oats. Some farmers had already "dusted in" small grains, but most have been waiting for planting moisture, Carpenter said.

The rains will also help the moisture-stressed pecan crop as well as peanuts and soybeans. And producers in some locations will also be able to get an additional cutting of hay. Hay supplies vary from short to abundant over the state, depending on spring and summer rains.

Cotton harvesting remained in full swing in central, north central and northeastern counties that missed the rains as well as in Southwest Texas where dry conditions persisted. Cotton yields continue good to excellent in most locations, noted Carpenter. Some early harvesting has started in the Rolling Plains, and early cotton is opening in the Panhandle and South Plains.

Corn harvesting is in full swing in the Panhandle and South Plains, and early sorghum harvesting is getting under way. Some vegetable harvesting also continues in these areas, and sugar beet harvesting is about to start.

Sweet potato harvesting remains active in eastern counties while fall vegetables are off to a good start in the Winter Garden and Rio Grande Valley. However, many fall vegetable gardens have gotten off to a slow start due to the extended period of hot, dry weather.

While last week's rains will help grazing on some pastures and ranges, many ranchers are continuing to provide supplemental feed for livestock, Carpenter said. Culling of herds also remains active despite a depressed cattle market.

Reports from district Extension directors showed these conditions.

PANHANDLE: Good rains in scattered locations should boost wheat planting and fall grazing. Wheat planting ranges from 5 to 45 percent complete. Corn harvesting is up to 60 percent complete in Moore County. Some early cotton is opening, sorghum is maturing and sugar beet harvesting is about to start. Some vegetable harvesting continues in Deaf Smith County.

SOUTH PLAINS: Corn harvesting remains in full swing and sorghum harvesting is increasing. Early cotton is opening. A few vegetable crops are still being harvested, and sugar beet harvesting will begin soon. Wheat seeding continues.

ROLLING PLAINS: Cotton is opening rapidly, with boll weevils still a problem in some counties. Some wheat has been planted, but many farmers are still waiting on planting moisture. An excellent peanut harvest is expected in Haskell County. Most counties are boasting abundant hay supplies. Some stocker cattle are being shipped into the area in anticipation of fall wheat grazing.

NORTH CENTRAL: Scattered rains have hampered cotton harvesting but have provided some moisture for planting small grains. However, late sorghum, peanuts and pastures still need rain. Also, the pecan crop remains under moisture stress in many locations.

NORTHEAST: Some locations received rains that will help fall grazing and small grain planting and enable another hay cutting. Corn harvesting is about complete while the cotton harvest remains active. Sweet potato harvesting is about one-third complete. Pecans are continuing to shed due to moisture stress.

FAR WEST: Farmers are shutting down irrigations as crops move toward maturity. Scattered rains of up to 5 in. should help ranges and boost small grain plantings. Sheep shearing is under way while goat shearing is about complete. Some mohair is being shipped from warehouses due to good prices.

WEST CENTRAL: Dry conditions persist despite some scattered rains. Hail in Mitchell County damaged about 400 acres of cotton. Most cotton is suffering from moisture stress. Sorghum harvesting continues, with good yields of 1,500 to 4,000 lbs. per acre. Some farmers are "dusting in" wheat and oats, but most are waiting for planting moisture. An abundance of broomweeds on ranges is causing a lot of pinkeye in cattle.

CENTRAL: Cotton harvesting is about complete, with generally good yields. Farmers that received recent rains are planting small grains. The rains also have given a boost to grazing conditions. Although moisture remains short in many counties, early peanuts look good but the late crop is suffering some from moisture stress.

EAST: Scattered rains of up to 3.5 in. should help fall grazing and small grain planting as well as enable an additional cutting of hay. Armyworms are active in some hay meadows. Some stockmen are feeding livestock due to poor grazing conditions, and pecans are continuing to shed because of moisture stress.

UPPER COAST: Moisture conditions have improved in some counties due to scattered rains, giving a boost to pastures, soybeans, peanuts and fall gardens. Some producers will be able to make an additional cutting of hay. Cattle prices are at a five-year low.

SOUTHWEST: Cotton and peanut harvesting remains in full swing. Also, pickling cucumbers, collard and mustard greens are being harvested for processing. Forage conditions remain short as the region has not had any significant moisture since last March. Ranchers are providing supplemental feed to livestock.

COASTAL BEND: Despite a few heavy rains of 3 to 5 in., most of the region remains dry. A few fields of cotton and sorghum remain to be harvested. Some farmers have started planting wheat and oats, but most are waiting on planting moisture. Pecan drop has been heavy due to moisture stress, and ranchers are feeding livestock due to poor forage conditions.

Soviet Union makes large corn purchase

WASHINGTON (AP) — The huge U.S. corn crop and depressed market prices apparently have been more than Moscow's grain buyers could resist, judging from the hefty order placed this week.

Agriculture Department officials said Wednesday that the Soviet Union ordered 600,000 metric tons of corn — about 23.6 million bushels — for delivery in the year that will begin Oct. 1.

It was the first Soviet purchase of grain for delivery in 1985-86, the third year of a long-term grain supply agreement with the United States. Although good news for corn farmers who are harvesting a record crop, the Soviet Union still has not fulfilled its promise to buy more wheat for delivery in the current year of the agreement.

Officials said 350,000 tons of the corn were new export sales and that 250,000 tons had been reported previously by exporters as going to "unknown destinations."

The sales are reported to USDA by private exporters as required by law. No prices or other details were disclosed.

However, the department says the latest estimated farm price of corn is $2.32 per bushel. A metric ton is about 2,205 pounds and is equal to 39.4 bushels of corn or 36.7 bushels of wheat or soybeans.

Thus, the latest sales would have an estimated farm value of about $55 million.

Under the five-year agreement, the Soviet Union is committed to buy at least 9 million tons of wheat and corn annually. At least 4 million tons of that must be wheat and 4 million tons corn.

SEPT. 30 DEADLINE TO INSURE SMALL GRAINS

Gray County farmers have until Sept. 30 to insure small grain crops.

Producers who insured wheat, oats and barley last year will have their contracts renewed automatically unless they cancel them. However, those desiring to make changes in the level of coverage or price election must do so by Sept. 30.

Crop insurance protects a farmer from large, unpredictable yield losses. It can assure a farmer a minimal cash flow in case of a major crop loss so that he will have a chance to farm the next year.

Multiple peril crop insurance for small grains will be available only under the Actual Production History (APH) program. Under APH, yield guarantees are based on actual production records of the insured or grower rather than on county average yields as was the case under the area coverage plan.

Thus a farmer must provide evidence of previous year's production and acreages.

To select crop insurance, a farmer must choose a yield guarantee and a price. The yield guarantee is either 50, 65 or 75 percent of past production history. Price elections are $1.30, $1.50 or $1.80 a bushel for barley; 80 cents, $1 or $1.25 a bushel for oats; and $2, $2.80 or $3.30 a bushel for wheat.

The combination of yield guarantee and price election determines the level of insurance coverage and cost of the premium, which reflects a federal subsidy. Interested producers can obtain additional information by contacting a local firm that offers multiple peril crop insurance.

FARM RISK MANAGEMENT SHORTCOURSE OFFERED

Managing risk is one of the keys to farm financial survival, so the Texas Agricultural Extension Service is offering a shortcourse on that topic early next month.

The shortcourse is slated for Oct. 1-3 at the Computer Training Center at Stiles Farm near Thrall.

The farm is located on U.S. 79 about a mile east of Thrall or six miles east of Taylor.

Purpose of the shortcourse is to acquaint crop producers with numerous yield and price strategies.

Included in the training will be crop insurance, summarizing information for risk evaluation, crop enterprise budgets, accounting reports, cash flow projections, and whole farm production and financial planning.

A microcomputer will be used for evaluation strategies for managing yield and market risks, and computer software will be featured during evening sessions.

A day also will be devoted to market outlook and commodity options plus grain futures and options hedging.

Because the training facility at Stiles Farm can only accommodate a limited number of people, interested individuals should register as soon as possible by calling Rosemary Pivonka at Texas A&M University at 409-845-1861.

Canadian explodes in second half for win over Panhandle

By WALLY SIMMONS

PANHANDLE—The Canadian Wildcats knew they had a defense, but they were still looking for an effective offense after scoring only six points last week.

Well, they found one in the second half against the Panhandle Panthers Friday night.

The Wildcats scored three touchdowns on a soggy field in the second half and lambasted the Panther, 27-7, to score their third victory without a loss this season.

The Wildcat defense, turning in perhaps its best effort among three good ones, kept the pressure on Panhandle throughout most of the game. But a combination of Canadian fumbles and penalties ruined several scoring opportunities and left the Wildcats clinging to a 7-7 halftime tie.

But they worked the kinks out of the offensive machinery after intermission and ran away with the victory.

Jeff Kirkland broke the tie in the early minutes of the third period with a 19-yard scoring sprint around left end, stiff-arming the only defender who had a shot at him as he turned the corner.

Geoff Dockray's extra point made it 14-7 with 9:23 left in the third quarter.

The Canadian touchdown spurred Panhandle into its only sustained drive of the night. The Panthers, launched by a 15-yard penalty, drove from their 33 to the Canadian 29 before the Wildcat defense asserted itself again.

Canadian's 220-pound tackler Keith Ellison, an immovable object and unstoppable force throughout the night, hammered Panhandle quarterback Kent Nix just as he released a fourth-down pass and the ball fluttered harmlessly away. Nobody threatened for the remainder of that quarter and the Wildcats' lead wasn't all that secure after a pinpoint punt by Panhandle's Chris Koetting pinned them back on their 14 early in the period.

That's when their offense started clicking. Kirkland, Shawn Wright and Dockray started finding holes in the Panhandle defense and it took them only five plays to get across midfield at the Panther 49. Then Wright pretty well iced the victory with as determined a touchdown run as you'll ever see. He broke two tackles as he went through the middle of the line and brushed off two more defenders at the 20, somehow maintaining his balance and going on in for the score.

Canadian recovered a fumble on the Panther 25 minutes later and, on first and 10 from the 14, quarterback Bobby White floated a scoring pass over the middle to split end Brad Rogers. That, and Dockray's conversion, made it 27-7 and erased any doubts about the outcome.

Neither team moved the ball effectively in the early going and Panhandle's golden opportunity came when Koetting came through with his first excellent punt of the night, putting it out of bounds on the four and pinning the Wildcats in dangerous territory.

On the second Canadian play, the Wildcats fumbled and lineman Steve Frow stormed through to cover it in the end zone for Panhandle's only touchdown.

That turned out to be the Panthers' last opportunity because the Canadian defense didn't let them out of the shadow of their own goal for the rest of the half.

Canadian had four golden opportunities to get on the scoreboard in the second period as the Panthers were continually forced to punt from deep in their own territory. But the Wildcats were able to capitalize only once.

Ellison jarred Koetting loose from the ball at the 20 and the Canadian recovery set up the Wildcats' first score. On third and 17 from the 25, White hit Kyle Prater coming across the middle at the 10 and the senior back sped into the left corner of the end zone for the TD. Dockray's kick tied it with 4:51 left in the first half.

Canadian almost scored again before halftime when Dockray, the big fullback, powered his way to the six-inch line. White sneaked over for the apparent TD, but it was wiped out by a penalty and the threat finally ended when Dockray missed a rushed field goal attempt from the 15.

Wright, a 180-pound junior, was the running star of the night with 129 yards on 12 carriers, 100 of them coming in the second half. Kirkland had 51 yards and Dockray 39 as Canadian rushed for 239 yards.

Canadian had 13 first downs to Panhandle's seven and held the Panthers to 81 yards on the ground and 18 in the air.

The passing percentage for the Wildcats wasn't impressive, but the results were. They completed only three of 19, but two went for touchdowns and none were intercepted. Kirkland came up with a fine interception for Canadian when he literally took the ball away from a Panhandle receiver in the second quarter to give the Wildcats one more scoring opportunity.

Canadian hosts Sanford-Fritch Friday night, then will have an open date before its monumental district opener against Perryton the following week.

Cowboys picked over Browns

IRVING, Texas (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys are rated a touchdown favorite as they prepare for Sunday's Texas Stadium bout with the Cleveland Browns, one of five National Football League teams with a series edge over Dallas.

But in the contest between two old rivals who used to battle for championships in the same conference, curiosity will have to stay piqued until noon's opening kickoff as to whether Dallas quarterback Danny White's passing hand will be in good shape.

White suffered a sprained right thumb and wrist against the Detroit Lions and sat out the fourth period while Gary Hogeboom rallied the team with three touchdowns.

White's wrist and thumb caused his playing status to be graded "questionable" earlier in the week, but he has been upgraded to "probable" as a starter. The Browns are 15-8 over the Cowboys, having lost 31-14 in 1982 in the last meeting between the two teams. In 1974, the only other time Cleveland has been to Texas Stadium, the Browns lost 41-17, and the last time Cleveland defeated Dallas was 26-7 in 1979.

The Browns will have help at wide receiver for the game, although it's not certain whether Coach Marty Schottenheimer will use newly acquired John Jefferson.

The Green Bay Packers dealt Jefferson to Cleveland this week.

The Browns are 1-1 under Schottenheimer, winning 17-7 Monday night over Pittsburgh after dropping a 27-24 overtime heartbreaker to the St. Louis Cardinals.

The Cowboys also are 1-1 after a

44-14 victory over Washington followed by a 26-21 loss to the Lions. Gary Danielson is the Browns' starter while sensational rookie Bernie Kosar learns the Cleveland offense.

Dallas Coach Tom Landry said he expects to start White "if he continues to improve."

Kelley leads Clovis past Pampa

CLOVIS, N.M. — Darren Kelley, who could probably make yardage in an oil slick, rushed for 223 yards and three touchdowns on a wet, slippery field to lead Clovis past Pampa, 32-8, Friday night.

Two of Kelley's TDs were of the long-distance variety — 53 and 76 yards — and sandwiched around a 45-yard pass interception return by Drooper Greenwalt to spot Clovis a 20-0 first-period advantage.

The Wildcats, four-time defending Class 4A champions, upped their record to 2-1 win the lopsided victory while the Harvesters dropped to 0-3.

Pampa, saddled with 70 yards of penalties, could make little headway even without the infractions against a Clovis defensive line that averaged 240 pounds. Meanwhile, the Clovis offense controlled the ball for almost 16 minutes of the first half while building a 26-0 halftime bulge.

Trailing 32-0 in the closing seconds, the Harvesters went on a 10-play, 81 scoring drive with quarterback Brent Cryer going over from the Clovis 22 with 12 seconds to play.

Each team had four turnovers on the wet field, but the Wildcats could make up for any deficiency by putting the ball into the hands of Kelley, an all-state running back who averaged almost 11 yards per carry.

Kelley's final score came on a 39-yard run with 4:17 to go in the third quarter. Anthony Hall, Kelley's running mate, added a Clovis TD on a four-yard run in the second quarter.

Clovis gained 288 yards in total offense, all on the ground, while Pampa finished with 150. Reserve back Dean Larue, who also does the punting for the Harvesters, rushed for 40 yards in five carries and also caught a 17-yard pass. Mark Williams added 33 yards in 17 carries for the Harvesters.

Defensively, Shawn Greene recovered two fumbles for the Harvesters while David Carter covered one. Lance Ripple picked off a pass for the Harvesters.

Pampa hosts Perryton next Friday night in the annual football homecoming game.

Groom captures league opener

GROOM — Groom picked a good time to snap a two-game losing streak, defeating Follett, 20-6, in a District 1-A football opener Friday night.

Groom jumped out to a 14-0 first-quarter lead on Jack Britten's three-yard run and Brent Thornton's four-yard pass to Ken Ruthard.

Groom added its final score in the third quarter on Britten's 31-yard run.

Follett had cut the margin to 14-6 in the second quarter when Brent Boone went over from two yards out.

Horned Frogs hold off Kansas State

MANHATTAN, Kan. (AP) — Texas Christian's defense, stripped of four starters when Coach Jim Wacker suspended six players for accepting illegal booster payments, batted down a pass during Kansas State's conversion play in the last minute to preserve a 24-22 victory Saturday. The losing Wildcats of the Big Eight Conference rallied for a touchdown with 49 seconds left as they trailed 24-16 in their first game under interim coach Lee Moon. But reserve quarterback John Welch's pass for two extra points to tie was deflected and fell between two K-State receivers in the end zone. Kansas State, 0-3, regained possession with an onside kick recovery after missing the conversion, but could not get within field-goal range as the Horned Frog defenders twice sacked Welch in the final seconds. TCU, 2-0, trailed 16-7 at halftime but came back with a touchdown and field goal in the third quarter to take the lead, 17-16. The Frogs then seemed to put the game away with a 49-yard scoring drive in the fourth quarter.

Quarterback Scott Ankrom led the TCU rally, passing 41 yards to halfback Tony Jeffery for a third-quarter touchdown and running 11 yards himself for the final Horned Frog score with four minutes left. K-State made it close at the finish by recovering a fumble at the TCU 16 to score its last touchdown, then recovered the onside kick for one last effort. TCU played without star running back Kenneth Davis, one of those suspended by Wacker on Friday. His replacement, freshman Bobby Davis, gained 47 yards on 12 carries.

Threshers win

DUMAS — The Pampa 9th Grade Threshers opened their district football schedule Thursday with a 20-12 win over Dumas. Although plagued by penalties and muddy conditions, the Threshers opened the scoring in the second quarter when Quarterback Bradley Bass passed to tight end O.J. Garcia for a 40-yard TD bomb.

Valley View Vikings at Valley View next Thursday at 7. This will be the third contest for the Threshers after opening the season with a 20-14 win over Amarillo Fannin.

Dumas' star running back Cliff Williams retaliated with a 60-yard TD sprint to knot the score at 6-6 at halftime. Led by fullback Cam Moore, the Pampa freshmen drove the length of the field in the third quarter for the go-ahead touchdown and a 14-6 lead. The TD came after a halfback pass from Kerri Brown to Ricky Sewell, which carried the ball down to the 10-yard line. From there, tailback Benny Martinez swept in for the score. Cam Moore powered in for the extra point. Tight end Dustin Miller iced the game for Pampa in the fourth quarter when he pulled in a bullet pass from Bass and raced 50 yards to paydirt. The Demons scored again with 10 seconds left in the game against Pampa's third-team defense.

Outstanding defensive plays by Benny Martinez, Jason Garren, Chris Didway and Robert Perez kept the impish Demons out of the end zone throughout the contest. The Threshers will take on the

Pampa rodeo results

The Pampa High School girls won the team trophy last weekend in a Tri-State Rodeo held at the Gray County Fairgrounds.

Leslie Leggett of Pampa tied for all-around honors, but lost a coin flip to Jane Templer of Amarillo for a new saddle. Miss Leggett also placed second in barrels and goat tying and fourth in poles.

Amie Greene won the goat tying while Amy Cockrell was second in breakaway roping. Tammy Greene was sixth in poles, Tammy Sexton was seventh and Debbie Stubbs was eighth.

In the boys' division, Shawn Johnson was second in ribbon roping and was fourth in calf roping. Monty O'Neal was second in steer wrestling and seventh in ribbon roping. Eddie Douglass was second in bullriding and Rodney Wren was third in steer wrestling.

In coronation ceremonies, Amie Greene was crowned the Pampa Tri-State Queen for 1985-86. Leslie Leggett was runnerup and DeLette Laney was second runnerup.

Falcons bomb Rice

AIR FORCE ACADEMY, Colo. (AP) — Quarterback Bart Weiss ran for 172 yards and three touchdowns and the Air Force special teams contributed to two other scores as the Falcons punned Rice 59-17 Saturday in college football.

Air Force, 3-0 on the season and winner of its last six games, broke open a tight game with a 24-point second-quarter explosion to hand Rice (0-2) its 11th straight defeat — the longest losing string in the nation among Division I-A schools.

Dallas Carter remains unbeaten

By CHARLES RICHARDS
Associated Press Writer
Darren Lewis scored five touchdowns, including dashes of 93 and 61 yards, to lead Dallas Carter to its third straight victory and strengthen the Cowboys' standing in the Class 5A state rankings.

Carter, the No. 7 team in the Associated Press 5A Top 10, allowed Arlington Sam Houston only 91 yards and took an easy 33-0 victory Friday night.

Lewis also scored on runs of 42 and 32 yards and dashed across from the 1-yard line for his fifth score. He piled up 309 yards rushing for the night.

Odessa Permian, the top-ranked team in 5A, played Fort Worth Eastern Hills on Saturday. Fifth-ranked San Antonio Clark also was in action Saturday, in a game against San Antonio Jefferson.

Electra, No. 1 in 2A, had an open date, and the three other top-ranked high school teams posted easy wins. Tomball, the 4A kingpin, crushed Friendswood 42-0; Hempstead, the top 3A team, humbled Somerville 63-0; and Munday, the defending 1A state champion and ranked No. 1 again this year, sailed past Rotan 59-6.

The city of Brownwood was poised for a big celebration Friday night. The Lions, ranked No. 8 in 4A, took the field against 5A Killeen hoping for a victory that would give coach Gordon Wood his 400th career victory.

Killeen's Kangaroos prevailed, 7-0, however, dropping Wood's coaching record to 399-85-12 over 41 seasons. Wood is the winningest coach in football history. Mike Murphy scored the game's only touchdown. He broke three tackles on his 57-yard touchdown run in the fourth quarter.

Wood, who had two state championship teams at Stamford and five at Brownwood, gets his next chance for win No. 400 in two weeks. The Lions are idle next week, then play at Crowley the following week.

Ranked teams clashed on two occasions Friday night.

In 5A, second-ranked Conroe was beaten by sixth-ranked Aldine, 28-24, while in 4A, second-ranked Denison routed sixth-ranked Wichita Falls Hirschi 48-6.

Denison's victory was its 19th in a row. The Yellow Jackets rushed for 363 yards and passed for 113 more. Aaron Jackson rushed for 221 yards on 15 carries, scoring on runs of 30, 87, 72 and 2 yards.

Houston Yates, the No. 3 team in 5A, remained unbeaten with a 26-7 victory over Houston Worthing.

Playoffs postponed

Due to the rainy weather, the Pampa Mixed League Softball Playoffs have been postponed until Oct. 1-5.

The Men's Post Season Tournament has been postponed until Oct. 7-12.

Brackets for the Mixed League Playoffs should be ready to be picked up after 1 p.m. Sept. 27.

Brackets for the Men's Post Season Tournament should be available after 1 p.m. Oct. 1.

Wheeler shuts out McLean

MCLEAN — Wheeler quarterback Randall Hugg fired three touchdown passes and ran for two more as fourth-ranked Wheeler ripped McLean, 53-0, Friday night in a District 1-1A football game.

Hugg led an offense that produced 466 total yards, while the Mustang defense limited McLean to just 96 total yards.

Hugg's touchdown passes covered 27, 18 and 39 yards, and his scoring runs covered 41 and four yards. Wheeler back Dicky Salyer added three TDs on runs of two, 13 and 33 yards. Toby Collins caught TD passes from Hugg from 18 and 39 yards out. Hugg also hit Bubba Smith with a 27-yard scoring pass.

Salyer has scored six touchdowns already this season, while Collins has tallied four.

Carl Knutson booted five extra points for the Mustangs.

Wheeler's defense recovered four McLean fumbles and swiped three passes. The Mustangs lost two turnovers on a soggy field made sloppy by day-long rains.

Wheeler, now 3-0, entered the game ranked No. 4 by the Harris Rating System and No. 5 by AP in state-wide polls.

Wheeler has not allowed a point in three games while its offense has reeled off 122 points.

The Mustangs try for victory No. 4 Friday night against Booker on the home field.

Florida State rallies

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Kirk Coker threw a 13-yard touchdown pass to Darrin Holloman and Derek Schmidt kicked four field goals Saturday as sixth-ranked Florida State bounced back from a lethargic start to beat Memphis State 19-10.

Coker replaced injured Florida State quarterback Danny McManus in the final minute of the first half, and his TD flip to Holloman gave the Seminoles a 13-10 lead with 3:05 left in the third quarter.

The final outcome was not assured, however, until Coker's fourth field goal — a 24-yarder with 50 seconds.

Schmidt, whose field goal on the final play of the game enabled Florida State to tie Memphis State a year ago, also boomed three-pointers of 51, 51 and 46 yards Saturday. He missed on a 47-yard attempt.

The triumph before a Doak Campbell Stadium crowd of 54,887 boosted Florida State's record to 3-0. Memphis State, which played ties the last two weeks against Mississippi and Murray State, dropped to 1-1-2.

Iowa quarterback goes on record-setting spree

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) — Chuck Long passed for 270 yards and five touchdowns, three to Bill Happel, as fourth-ranked Iowa shattered two school passing records and tied another in a 48-20 romp over Northern Illinois Saturday.

Long, who was 18 of 28 but had three intercepted, led an Iowa attack that overwhelmed the Huskies on offense, 534 yards to 85.

Happel, a 5-foot, 11-inch, 186-pound senior from Cedar Rapids, finished the afternoon with nine receptions for 207 yards, 15 more than the old single-game receiving mark of 192, set two years ago by Dave Moritz.

Royals, Angels remain tied for lead

By BEN WALKER
AP Sports Writer

Steve Balboni got the big hit for the Kansas City Royals. Bob Boone provided the big hit for the California Angels.

As a result, the two teams both won Friday night and remained tied for first place in the American League West.

"Everybody came to the park with nothing but business in mind," Balboni said after hitting a first-inning, grand-slam homer that helped the Royals break a four-game losing streak by beating the Minnesota Twins 5-1.

Boone's hit came in a different fashion as the Angels beat the Cleveland Indians 7-5.

Boone was on second base with the score tied 5-5 when Rod Carew singled to center field. Brett Butler's throw to the plate was in plenty of time, but Boone crashed into catcher Jerry Willard and jarred the ball loose to score the go-ahead run.

"You do what you got to do," said Boone.

While the Royals and Angels remained tied, the Toronto Blue Jays moved closer to their first-ever AL East title.

The Blue Jays downed Milwaukee 7-5 and extended their lead to 6½ games over New York, which lost its eighth straight game, 4-2 to Baltimore.

Toronto reduced its magic number to 10 and the victory also mathematically eliminated last year's World Series champion Detroit Tigers, who topped Boston 6-2.

In other AL games, Chicago ripped Oakland 10-4 and Texas outslugged Seattle 10-9. Royals 5, Twins 1.

Balboni broke out of a 3-for-30 slump with his grand slam, which was enough for Kansas City. Balboni has hit 33 home runs this season, and he tied a team record with his 14th of the year at Royals Stadium.

Winner Charlie Leibrandt, 16-8, gave up eight hits in 7 1-3 innings. Bert Blyleven, 14-16, yielded Balboni's homer. Blue Jays 7, Brewers 5.

Jim Key allowed only one hit over seven-plus innings, and two-run singles by Garth Iorg and Rance Mulliniks helped Toronto take a 7-1 lead that was enough to hold off Milwaukee.

Key, 14-6, gave up just a fourth-inning home run to Paul Molitor before leaving in the eighth with two on and no outs. Orioles 4, Yankees 2.

Cal Ripken hit an RBI single against New York starter Rich Bordi and Eddie Murray followed with a run-scoring single off Dave Righetti as Baltimore broke a 2-2 tie in the seventh inning.

Alan Wiggins started the inning with a two-out single and Lee Lacy walked on four pitches. Ripken, who had singled home a run in the first inning, then put the Orioles ahead.

Mike Flanagan, 4-4, pitched seven innings and Don Aase finished up for his 13th save. Bordi, 5-8, took the loss in only his second start of the season.

Rickey Henderson scored both runs for the Yankees. He doubled in the first, stole his 71st base of the season and came home on a groundout by Don Mattingly, who leads the majors with 127 RBI. Henderson doubled again in the third and later scored on a grounder by Dave Winfield.

The Yankees' eight-game losing streak is their longest since they dropped nine straight in September 1982. White Sox 10, A's 4.

Floyd Bannister, struggling through an off-year, pitched six shutout innings and Ron Kittle drove in three runs, two with his 19th homer.

Bannister, 7-14, gave up three hits. He won for just the second time in his last 11 decisions.

Chicago has won 11 of its last 15 games, while Oakland has dropped 12 of 15.

The White Sox rapped 10 hits in 3 1-3 innings off Tommy John, 5-4. Rangers 10, Mariners 9.

Bobby Jones and Ellis Valentine led off the ninth inning with home runs, lifting Texas over Seattle.

Valentine's first homer in the major leagues in almost two years came after Jones connected for his second home run of the game. Both blows came off reliever Ed Nunez, 7-3, who entered the game to start the ninth.

The Rangers finished with 17 hits, including home runs by Gary Ward and Steve Buechele. The Mariners had 16 hits, including homers by Jim Presley, Dave Henderson and Phil Bradley. Presley got four hits and drove in four runs. Tigers 6, Red Sox 2.

Chet Lemon's two-run single keyed a four-run uprising in the eighth inning that carried Detroit over Boston.

Lemon, who had homered earlier, greeted reliever Steve Crawford with his hit, which broke a 2-2 tie. A single by Bob Melvin and a two-out double by Alex Sanchez had chased Bruce Hurst, 10-12, and set up Lemon's single.

Jack Morris, 15-10, gave up seven hits and won his first game since Aug. 24.

Jim Rice hit his 27th homer for the Red Sox and Wade Boggs went 2-for-3 and raised his major league-leading average to .373. Boggs needs one hit to tie Tris Speaker's club record of 222 set in 1912.

Tigers 6, Red Sox 2

Chet Lemon's two-run single keyed a four-run uprising in the eighth inning that carried Detroit over Boston.

Yankees down Orioles

BALTIMORE (AP) — Joe Cowley and Brian Fisher combined on a five-hitter and Ron Hassey and Ken Griffey hit home runs Saturday to help the New York Yankees break an eight-game losing streak with a 5-2 victory over the Baltimore Orioles.

The Yankees began the day trailing American League East-leading Toronto by 6½ games. Toronto played Milwaukee on Saturday.

Cowley, 11-5, who had not won since Aug. 10, held the Orioles to three hits in six innings. Brian Fisher relieved Cowley and allowed two hits for his 13th save.

Hassey led off the second with his 13th homer. The Yankees made it 3-0 in the third when Griffey led off with his ninth homer and Mike Pagliarulo drove in a run with a two-out double.

Pagliarulo's double, a line drive off the right wrist of Baltimore starter Storm Davis, drove in Dave Winfield, who had singled and moved to second when Don Baylor was hit with the pitch.

Davis, 10-8, who had a five-game winning streak snapped, left the game after Pagliarulo's hit. It was the second straight game that Davis left early after being hit by a line drive.

WINDOW OF OPPORTUNITY is the phrase they use, I believe. And that situation presents itself right now to do something to improve athletic team scheduling at PHS.

Here's the situation. This is a realignment-reclassification year. That means the University Interscholastic League is evaluating enrollment figures of its member schools in preparation for announcing what classifications (5A, 4A, etc.) they qualify for, and then placing them in districts with somewhat similar enrollments, keeping in mind geography and the need to maintain 16 and 32 district alignments for playoff purposes. It is never easy, and meets with many complaints when it is done every two years.

The results MUST be announced prior to Feb. 1, 1986. Then there is a one-month waiting period for appeals before the results are set in stone for two years. And member schools CAN NOT enter into any performance contracts with another school prior to March 1, 1986, conclusion of the appeals procedure.

Meanwhile, school schedulermakers can only reach tentative agreements on game dates and sites, subject to final action by the UIL. For instance, there appears little doubt 1-4A will have a facial. Current rumor is that Hereford will drop back and Canyon will move up to 5A. A one-for-one trade is no major problem. But if another school, reportedly Frenship, is added to the district, it eliminates one non-conference football game, two non-conference basketball and most other sports, boys and girls, competitions. Meanwhile, Clovis in football, and various tournaments in basketball, need firm commitments of Pampa's availability next season, and they needed those promises yesterday.

In addition, considerations must be made to the demands of HB 72 concerning absence from school, practice time, etc. This is the window of opportunity that should be pressed by the Pampa School Board. And it may take Board muscle to get it done.

Football, and basketball scheduling primarily, has left much to be desired in recent years. Longtime rivals, geographically close, have been dropped in favor of lengthy, more costly, time-consuming trips to play teams or compete in tournaments that mean little to Pampa supporters.

A basketball schedule which once meant 15-17 home appearances, fell to nine home games last year, ten are scheduled this season, six mandated district affairs. Taking the place of what could be home dates are trips to Roswell, Lawton and Fort Worth tournaments, and two games in Raton, N.M.

Where is the problem here? First, the taxpayers' pocketbooks. When you don't play at home the travel expenses mount. Home games, with quality rivals produce income to finance the athletic department, which only has football and boys basketball as major revenue producers. Hopefully, eventually girls basketball will help carry the burden. Meanwhile, when there is no income, the taxpayers make up the deficit. This should be a major consideration in scheduling, lest high school athletic programs be closed down as is already the case in some areas because school patrons refuse continued blind support.

Secondly, consider the wear and tear on athletes, physically, mentally, academically. That is the problem Ross Perot was speaking directly to, and trying to correct.

Thirdly, the athletic program, in addition to being for the participants, is supposed to involve the student body, parents and community. How many can afford either the time or money to travel constantly to provide that support. Instead, they hear complaints of non-support, no community spirit.

Why this type scheduling? "We can't get anyone else to play us; they won't come to Pampa," are some of the answers given. Here is where the school administration and school board can step in and move the communication between schools up a level. Each is confronted with mounting, similar difficulties. If the core of the problem lies in personality conflicts between coaches, fears of not being able to win, concern over personal coaching records, placing the difficult chore of scheduling in different hands could be a solution. People whose shoulders carry the burden of financing and missed classroom time need input.

Monahans and Clovis are great programs to see play in football, but so are Palo Duro, Caprock and Tascosa. Basketball games with all four Amarillo schools, Plainview and Perryton provide opportunities for students, parents and fans to see our programs perform. In addition, businesses who support the athletic program, voluntarily through donations or program advertising or involuntarily through taxes, at least get a chance at some return on that investment as visiting fans come to Pampa. Teams eat, overnight, buy gas, etc.

I am reminded of a choir director of a decade or more ago, who was so proud of that his group was being invited annually to sing at a Christmas tree ceremony at an Amarillo shopping center. After he had done it two years, a friend explained to him that the taxpayers of Pampa were paying his salary, buying his choir robes, financing trips, and in return he was taking is group to a visiting town to help promote Christmas season sales in direct competition with Pampa merchants. He never went again.

We have a similar situation with our athletic program. With the mandated delay in contract signing for next season, the window of opportunity is here to do something about it. Will it be business as usual, or will the local school patrons be given consideration?

White Deer shuts out Sunray, 14-0

SUNRAY — Ron McIntosh scored touchdowns in the second and third quarters and that was all that was needed as the Bucks blanked Sunray, 14-0, in a non-district football game Friday night.

McIntosh scored on a 34-yard run in the second quarter and Lance Cross booted the extra point to give the Bucks a 7-0 lead. McIntosh's 59-yard jaunt and Cross' PAT in the third quarter gave the Bucks an insurance TD. McIntosh has now scored six touchdowns in three games.

White Deer had 286 yards total offense while Sunray had 167, all but four yards on the ground. White Deer also had the edge in first downs, 13-9.

The Bucks had to overcome 10 penalties for 61 yards on the wet, slippery field. There were six turnovers in the game, four by Sunray.

The Bucks are now 3-0 on the season and visit Stinnett next Friday night.

Judge runs court with iron hand in velvet glove

By PEGGY McCRACKEN
San Angelo Standard-Times

PECOS, Texas (AP) — U.S. District Judge Lucius Bunton rules his court with an iron hand gloved in velvet.

"Judicial temperament. That's what I'd call it," said prosecuting attorney Jose A. Toro. "He brings in the right measure of judicial temperament."

Toro represented the U.S. government in Bunton's court on last month for the second time in two years when he prosecuted an unusual pet smuggling case in the Pecos Division.

Bunton had been an attorney 30 years and three days when he presided over his first trial in Pecos May 12, 1979. He began practice in Uvalde, where he lived 32 years, spent nine years in Marfa, and has lived in Odessa 26 years.

He is responsible for all the cases in Odessa, Midland and Pecos, and 25 percent of the El Paso docket.

"He moves the cases along quickly, but is careful to serve the rights of all the parties," Toro said. "Even though he's very formal, he injects a little humor to relieve the tension."

"I hold him in high esteem. That's not to say he is easy on me. I find him impartial."

As if to punctuate Toro's words, Bunton emerged from his chambers. "You have a felony indictment on that pet case that we just took a guilty plea on. I want the dismissals on my desk before you leave," he said.

Protesting that he didn't have a typewriter, Toro asked if he could have his secretary send the motions by courier.

"There's a typewriter right there in the clerk's office," Bunton said, pointing across the hall. "You can use it."

"I guess I'd better get busy," Toro said, and headed for the clerk's office.

Bunton says he learned the hard way not to delay court matters.

"I made a mistake," he readily admitted.

The result of the mistake was that Bunton took a year to render a decision in a discrimination suit brought by the U.S. Department of Justice against the Texas Department of Highways and Public Transportation.

"I allowed the government and Texas attorneys to wait to submit briefs until after the entire record had been typed," he said of the complicated case that he heard in Pecos in August 1982.

"There was a lot of testimony and a roomful of exhibits," he said. "It was October before the court reporter got the record typed, and Christmas before I received the briefs. A lot of it was out of my mind, and I had to reconstruct it. It was hard to get the various facets."

"I learned my lesson, and don't give them that much time now. They have it in by the time we are through."

Despite the delay, Bunton's ruling that Texas did not discriminate against women, blacks and Hispanics in its employment practices was so well thought out that the government didn't appeal.

Another discrimination case that was not appealed involved elections in Pecos and the Pecos-Barstow-Toyah School District.

Frank R. Perea, Olga Ornelas and the League of Latin American Citizens sued for a change in the method of elections from at-large to single-member district.

The at-large method, they claimed, provides Mexican-Americans "less opportunities than other members of the electorate to participate in the political process and to elect legislators of their choice."

In denying their petition after the April 1984 elections in which a Hispanic mayor and councilman and two Hispanic school trustees were elected, Bunton ruled that Mexican-Americans are the clear majority of the populace and registered voters in Pecos and the school district, and can, therefore, elect any candidate they choose.

"I don't know of any county where Hispanics are in the majority that they have prevailed in this type of suit," Bunton said.

A similar suit against the City of Midland did result in a change to single-member districts, but that was a different situation, Bunton said, because Hispanics were not in the majority. "The law is pretty obvious," he said.

Civil suits filed in the Pecos Division since Bunton took the bench in 1979 have ranged from a dog bite to a labor dispute involving more than 700 individually named plaintiffs and 20 or 30 vegetable growers along the Rio Grande.

Deputy Marshal Steve Balog, is a favorite target of Judge Bunton's humor in the courtroom because, "I am able to sometimes retaliate, which he enjoys. He keeps levity in the courtroom at a high."

Not only does the humor break the monotony, but it puts jurors and defendants alike at ease, according to Balog.

But Balog added that Bunton "knows exactly what he is doing and where he is at all time in that courtroom. He keeps us on our toes. He is probably the most efficient man I have ever worked with."

In his quest for efficiency, Bunton has experimented with using three-member civil juries, side-by-side with the regular six-member panel.

"I have finished the experiment, but am still writing on it," he said.

The three-member jury made the same decision as the six-member jury in many of the cases, and Bunton gives civil litigants the choice of three or six members.

"I have included it in an order I send the lawyers," he said. "When they file a new case, I ask whether or not they would be willing to submit it to a three-person jury. I would try it if they agree," he said.

A felony jury has 12 members, but Bunton said the defendant may legally submit the question of his guilt or innocence to fewer than 12 people. "But I have never had anyone ask for less than 12," he said.

Since coming to Pecos, he has reopened the clerk's office and added a probation office.

MEDICAL EMERGENCY!
Who should you call for help?
How long will it take to get help?
Will you be able to reach your doctor?
Is it serious enough for an ambulance?
Will they even send an ambulance?
How will you pay for the service?

NO TIME FOR CONFUSION
When injury or illness strikes without warning, reacting quickly and correctly can mean the difference between life and death. Yet all too often, the confusion and fear which accompany a medical emergency cause people to lose precious time in getting help — or worse yet, to do the wrong thing entirely. Death or crippling complications have resulted, for example, because someone decided to rush the victim to the hospital in an automobile rather than summon paramedic ambulance service.

THE SECURITY OF REDICARE
No longer is there any reason for you to run the risk of not knowing what to do in a medical emergency. Now you can enjoy the peace of mind and sense of security from knowing that you or any member of your household will have expert paramedic ambulance care available anytime you need it.

The RediCare ambulance service membership program will provide you with this service, plus other benefits, for a full year for a one-time annual membership fee of only $32.00 per individual or only $49.00 for your entire household.

QUALITY CARE AS A COMMUNITY SERVICE
RediCare is a community service program offered by Medical Services, the provider of paramedic ambulance service to the city and county under contract.
Medical Services was recently recognized as the Outstanding Paramedic System of the Year in Texas. So as a member of RediCare, you can be sure of receiving the very best ambulance care available.

HOW REDICARE WORKS
As a member of RediCare, you authorize Medical Services to bill directly your insurance company, Medicare or other third-party agency for any benefits that might be payable for ambulance service. However, regardless of what those benefits might amount to, you will not be billed for any additional amount such as deductible or non-covered charges.
Enrollment entitles you (and any member of your household if you have a household membership) to emergency ambulance transportation and expert paramedic care anytime you need it, anywhere in the city/county response area. Non-emergency service will also be provided when authorized by a physician.

As a RediCare member you will never have to hesitate to call for an ambulance because of concern about the cost or uncertainty as to whether your illness or injury is serious enough to require paramedic care. Paramedics will respond to the location, evaluate your condition, provide ambulance transportation if needed and contact a physician at the hospital to notify him of your arrival and status.

Octoberfest camp open to older folks

Where can a person over age 55 "getaway to" for: (1) three days and nights of fun-filled activities; (2) learning opportunities; (3) other lively, fun, life-loving people; (4) fantastic food and special events in natural lakeside surroundings; and all with modern conveniences?

There may be many places in Texas that offer such a fare but not many can match "Octoberfest," an Extension Camp for People 55 and over. Five sessions are scheduled for this Fall: October 1-4; October 8-11; October 15-18; October 22-25; and October 29-November 1.

Some of the featured educational presentations will include: cooking demonstrations, family life, gardening, astronomy, history, and travel programs. A variety of learning centers will offer "hands-on" experience in areas such as oil painting, bread making, archery, needlecrafts, and chair caning.

Participants will also have opportunities to go for boat rides, nature hikes, or fish on the waters of Lake Brownwood. Card and table games, tennis, horseshoes, and volleyball will be available at all times.

Evenings will be filled with such special social events as dances, "A Night in the Old West", and a big talent show.

Each camp is limited to the first 100 participants and cost is $78 per person for three days of activity.

LOUISE RICHARDSON
Retiring after 25 years

Teacher to be honored at reception today

Louise Richardson, long-time Pampa music teacher, is to be honored today with a retirement reception from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. in the First Baptist Church parlor. Friends are welcome to attend.

Mrs. Richardson has spent her entire teaching career in the Pampa public school system. Most recently she has taught at Austin Elementary School until her retirement on July 31.

Born in Dallas, Mrs. Richardson is a graduate of Harlingen High School. She attended Baylor University in Waco and is a cum laude graduate of Texas A&I University with a bachelor of music degree, majoring in voice and minoring in piano and organ.

She came to Pampa in 1952 when Celanese transferred her husband Lonnie here. That year she began teaching choirs in both the high school and junior high. She was choir director at Pampa Junior High for 11 years.

When the school was torn down,

Mrs. Richardson moved to the position of assistant choir director at Pampa High School where she stayed four years before moving to Austin Elementary.

Her junior high and high school choirs have received many first division ratings at UIL competitions.

Mrs. Richardson has been an active member of the Texas Music Education Association. She has served eight years as secretary for Region I and eight years as a state board member of the TMEA.

For four years, Mrs. Richardson served on the state University Interscholastic League Music Memory contest committee.

The Richardsons have four children, Cheryl Kirk, Steve Richardson, Lynn Richardson and Susan Richardson, and five grandchildren. Mr. Richardson retired from Celanese after 38 years on Sept. 1.

The two now serve as directors of the Young Married Adult II department at First Baptist Church.

Down Syndrome topic of program at hospital

An informational program on Down Syndrome has been scheduled at Coronado Community Hospital at 7 p.m., Thursday, announced Karen Gregory, RN, coordinator of in-service training at CCH. Presentation is to be made by Margaret and Gary Haynes, parents of a five year old Down Syndrome child.

"With the birth of Josh five years ago, we were suddenly faced with the reality of dealing with a mentally retarded child," Mrs. Haynes said. "My husband and I began to read everything we could find, and talking to everyone to learn how to handle the problem," she said.

Mr. and Mrs. Haynes are both former teachers, and used their training in the classroom to research the problem. "We immediately became active in various associations, including the Association of Retarded Citizens," she said.

Mrs. Haynes attended a conference in Dallas a few years ago on Down Syndrome. "I've wanted to share the things we learned ever since that time," she said.

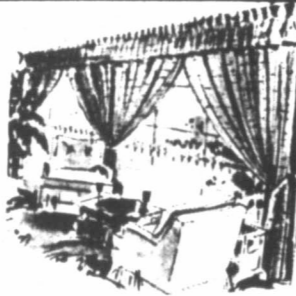

The program, designed for the general public, will address such issues as the emotions of the parents of an afflicted child, the characteristics of a Down Syndrome child, and the educational opportunities available for the child.

"We also have a slide presentation of an 18-year-old girl with Down Syndrome, who talks about her hopes and dreams. It presents a new way of looking at people with Down Syndrome," she said.

Although the information is designed for the general public, Mrs. Haynes does not recommend it for new parents of Down Syndrome children.

"I think a friend or a relative could benefit from the presentation, but the program is not designed for parents who have just learned their child has the affliction," she said.

Dear Abby

Well-traveled grandchild has envious half-sisters at home

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1985 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I am the mother of four lovely daughters. The eldest is 11. I'll call her Agnes. When Agnes was 3, her father died. Two years later I remarried. Every summer, the parents of my first husband take Agnes for a month. Their son was their only child, and Agnes is their only grandchild.

So far Agnes has seen Disneyland, Hawaii, Mexico and Europe. My husband and I cannot afford to take our other three children on trips like that, and they are understandably envious and resentful.

I'm sure with all the divorces, deaths and remarriages, this is a common problem. If you or any of your readers have a solution, I'd appreciate knowing it.

TORN

DEAR TORN: What are your alternatives? To deny Agnes those exotic trips with her grandparents in order to avoid being envied by her half-sisters? Not fair to Agnes.

To ask the grandparents to take one of the half-sisters along every year in the interest of family unity? Rather presumptuous. It would be very generous if they were to offer, but that idea would have to originate with them. Readers?

***

DEAR ABBY: I'm a married woman with three sons. After I had my second child, my husband (I'll call him Micky) started to go out on me, so to get even, I called up my old boyfriend (I'll call him Sam) and started up with him again. Sam was also married, but had no children.

Well, I ended up pregnant. I'm not sure the baby is Sam's because I was also sleeping with Micky, but the baby looks more like Sam than Micky. Micky thinks the baby is his. Sam was sure the baby was his. He said he loved me and wanted to divorce his wife and marry me. That meant I would have to divorce Micky and probably lose my older sons, and I couldn't do it.

Anyway, Sam became so upset, he killed himself. I feel terrible about this, but I am wondering if I should tell Sam's parents that my youngest child could be their grandchild. Sam was their only son.

MADE A MISTAKE

DEAR MADE: Since the baby could be your husband's, you'd be wise to assume it is. To share your suspicions with Sam's parents could cause more problems than it would solve.

***

DEAR ABBY: My problem is my boyfriend (possibly fiance). When we're together, he constantly notices other women and comments on how good-looking they are. I cannot begin to tell you how much this bothers me.

I am 24 and have been told many, many times by women as well as men how beautiful I am and what a great body I have. So, if that is true, why does my boyfriend comment on the beauty of other women, and when he's going somewhere without me, make statements such as, "There is this cute blonde who will be there?"

I act like none of this bothers me, but it really hurts and makes me feel somewhat insecure. I don't think he has ever been unfaithful, and he tells me he cares for me. Do all men do this?

ANGUISHED IN MISSISSIPPI

DEAR ANGUISHED: All men do not do this—only those who are either very insensitive or want to make their girlfriends jealous.

If you want to know why he does this, don't ask me, ask him. And don't pretend it doesn't bother you, when actually it does. If he really cares for you, he'll cut it out.

***

(Do you hate to write letters because you don't know what to say? Thank-you notes, sympathy letters, congratulations, how to decline and accept invitations and how to write an interesting letter are included in Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Send your name and address clearly printed with a check or money order for $2.50 and a long, stamped (39 cents) self-addressed envelope to: Dear Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.)

Time to be energy conscious

By DONNA BRAUCHI
County Extension Agent

With cooler weather approaching, it is important to be energy conscious. One way to conserve energy is to make sure window treatments are as energy efficient as possible.

One window treatment usually cannot satisfy both a homeowner's particular energy requirements and her specific desires in the area of design. Therefore, for the sake of efficiency and appearance, select a variety of layers to use as a window treatment.

A number of combinations may be created from available treatments. Often mini-blinds, vertical blinds, shades or shutters are used directly against the window. Using this as a base, the homeowner may then choose some combination of sheers, draperies, curtains, valances, cornices, or other treatments, or choose just one to supplement the base.

To significantly reduce heat loss through windows, an interior treatment should have an air-tight installation which will stop air infiltration and cut convective heat loss. It should be of a non-permeable, insulating material that will reduce consecutive heat loss.

Advertising for venetian-style blinds and woven shades often make claims for energy-effectiveness. Any covering across a bare glass will help make a room seem and feel more comfortable.

Both blinds and woven shades allow air to filter through even when they are in a closed position. So their effectiveness in stopping conductive heat loss would be minimal. When these products are installed inside the window frame or attached flush to the window frame, convective heat losses are reduced effectively.

Vertical and venetian-style blinds have an advantage in light and air control, providing options between completely opened or closed positions. Therefore, they enhance the use of daylight and natural ventilation, which can help reduce the overall household energy load.

Remember that each type of window treatment varies in degree of energy efficiency. Various types of shades are more effective than shutters or blinds, and layered draperies with cornices are more effective than sheers by themselves.

Cornices and sealed shades are more effective than other treatments because they keep warm air from recirculating against a cold window and losing its heat. When this happens, the air requires more energy to be reheated. Lined draperies and shades are also better insulators in themselves.

Window treatment manufacturers and retailers are picking up on energy concerns in promoting their products. New interior products are being designed to cut down on household heat loss.

MENSTRUUAL PAIN-RELIEVERS

Research into the cause of menstrual cramps suggests that the number one culprit of menstrual pain is an excess of hormone-like substances called prostaglandins. The latest medications dealing with menstrual pain work by inhibiting prostaglandin production. Although these medications previously were only available by prescription, the Food and Drug Administration has cleared the way for one type of prostaglandin inhibitor to be sold over the counter in low dosages. Known as NSAIDS (non-steroidal anti-inflammatory drugs), these medications were originally developed to alleviate arthritis. Doctors, however, have found them so useful in treating cramps that they now routinely prescribe NSAIDS for this use.

Our pharmacists at B&B PHARMACY are always available to answer your questions about prescription medications or over the counter remedies and in private, if you prefer. Delivery is available and special discounts are offered to senior citizens. We are located at Ballard and Browning, 665-5788. We have an extensive health aids and appliance department where you will find Hollister urinals, ostomy appliances, incontinent items, wheel chairs, walkers and bedside trays.

Open: Mon.-Fri. 9-6 Sat. 9-2

Fruit growers plan discussion

By JOE VANZANDT
County Extension Agent

A shortcourse for new fruit growers plus discussion focusing on peaches, blueberries, Asian pears and grapes will highlight the 1985 Texas Fruit Growers Conference Sept. 30 - Oct. 2 at the Hilton Hotel and Conference Center in College Station, Texas.

The annual conference is a joint effort of the Texas Fruit Growers Association and the Texas Agricultural Extension Service and generally attracts more than 150 commercial fruit growers from across the state.

The shortcourse for beginners the first afternoon will feature discussions on all the basic practice, such as selecting sites, varieties and rootstocks; preparing the land, spacing and planting; training trees and thinning fruit; controlling weeds and diseases; fertilizing and irrigating; marketing; and managing cash flow.

Particular emphasis will be given to pruning peach trees and thinning peaches at the opening session the second day. Featured speaker will be Dr. Stephen Myers, Extension horticulturist with the University of Georgia. Use of a liquid fertilizer spray, ammonium thiosulfate, to thin peaches, also will be discussed. At another session, Myers will discuss "inking" of peaches, a skin discoloration problem in some varieties.

The afternoon program will feature Dr. W.V. Welker, research leader in weed science with the USDA's Appalachian Fruit Research Station at Kearneysville, West Va. He will discuss orchard floor management to maximize peach production. The following day Welker will review the fruit research program at the Appalachian Station.

Girdling (cutting through the bark layer) of peach tree limbs has shown promise in increasing peach size and quality and will be another topic of discussion along with low chill peach production in South Texas and alternatives for marketing Texas fruit.

The closing session of the conference will feature discussion on the Texas Horticulture United Council, a lobbying group for all segments of the state's horticultural industry; the use of computers in a small farming operation; and a grower panel dealing with fruit production problems.

CUT FIREWOOD NOW

It's not too early to cut firewood for next winter.

Firewood cut now will be dry by the time cold weather rolls around.

It takes as much as a year for split and stacked firewood to reach an 'air dry' condition. This is when 20 percent of the wood's weight is water. However, for to six months storage will dry wood enough for use.

I suggest to stack the wood off the ground, in an open area to allow air circulation. Covering the wood pile to keep off the rain will speed up the drying process.

When cutting firewood, safety should be a primary consideration. A chainsaw is probably the most dangerous piece of equipment most people ever handle. Chainsaws cause more than 30,000 accidents each year, mostly due to operator carelessness.

A copy of the Extension Service publication, "Safe Chainsaw Operation" is available at our office.

If buying firewood, be sure you know what you're getting. First, ask if the wood is green or dry.

Then, check on the amount and price. Firewood is often advertised for sale by the cord, but the seller usually means a 'face' cord.

A cord of wood is a stack 4 feet wide by 4 feet high and 8 feet long. A face cord is a stack 4 feet high and 8 feet long, but the pieces are only 18 to 24 inches long. From the front, or 'face', it looks like a cord, but is only one-third to one-half a cord. A pickup load of wood is generally equal to a face cord.

Plan to cut or buy your firewood early, so that it will be ready to burn once the winter season sets in.

Beauty Briefs

Moisture needed

Homes soon will be closed up and heated, electric blankets will come out, and hot baths will be in season. All these can dry out your skin. Dermatologists say most skin moisture should come from your daily environment.

Use a humidifier in rooms, or place a container on each radiator or safely near a heat source.

Bathe in warm, not very hot water.

History book proofs returned to printer

Proofs have been corrected and mailed for the Gray County Heritage history book. The original number of pages has been expanded from 520 to 660. An additional number of pages will include the extensive genealogical index as well as a complete index for the general history, memorial, tribute, and business sections of the book.

The 9x12 inch book is to be maroon with gold lettering, including the Texas Sesquicentennial seal as well as the logo designed by Amarillo artist Richard Thompson, a former Pampan. Additional art work includes pen and ink sketches by Pampan artists Jerry Richards, Jackie Kastor, Evelyn Epps and Lois Minnick.

A map of Gray County with historical points marked will be printed on the front endsheet of the book and a place for family records and a genealogical tree will be printed on the back endsheet.

The general history section is to include 130 pages, many of which contain three or more photographs. The introduction will include a foreword by Dr. Frederick Rathjen, author and professor of history at West Texas State University in Canyon.

Book orders should be mailed by Oct. 1 to Box 2196, Pampa. Gift certificates are available for Christmas giving.

The book is a limited edition and orders must be in by the time the second proofing is returned and the book is printed. Plans are for a December delivery.

Additional information may be obtained by calling coordinator Eloise Lane at 665-1064 or the White Deer Land Museum, 665-5521.

The book is being printed by Taylor Publishing Company of Dallas, a company known nationwide for the publication of yearbooks and history books.

Pampans attend ADDC convention

Twenty-two members of the Pampa Desk & Derrick Club plan to attend the 34th Annual International Convention of the Association of Desk & Derrick Clubs, Sept. 18-22, at the Hilton Hotel, San Francisco, Calif.

Members planning to attend include Martha Sublett, ADDC second vice president; Doris Odom, 1986 Region V Director-elect; Connie Ball, Pampa club president, who will also serve as delegate; Georgie Sadler, Pampa club vice president and alternate delegate; Charlotte Lewis, secretary; Marilyn Lewis, treasurer; and directors Menhynne Beckham, Marquetta Joiner, Carolyn Kitchens, and Carla Schiffman.

Also attending will be Nancy Allen, Mary Ann Ashley of Canadian, Norma Briden, Knoxie Cotham, Glenda Fletcher, Esther McAdoo, Betty McKinney, Kathy Pratt, Linda Slaybaugh, Scena Snider, Teresa Snow and Emily Washington.

Martha Sublett was to be presented as an official candidate for 1986 ADDC first vice president during a reception for the candidates Friday evening. She now serves as ADDC second vice president.

The San Francisco Desk & Derrick Club is to host this year's convention. Loretta Owen, president of the ADDC, is to preside over all the activities of the convention including a series of business meetings, field trips and seminars on all aspects of the petroleum and allied industries.

George M. Keller, chairman of the board and chief operating officer of Chevron, U.S.A., and Carol Hallett, assistant to the Secretary of the Interior will be the featured speakers.

Keller was to address industry guests and association members Friday at the annual ADDC "Salute to the Industry" luncheon.

Hallett was to discuss the role of the Department of the Interior in association with the petroleum industry at the Saturday evening banquet.

Attending the pre-convention board meeting and convention were the 1985 board of directors and the 1986 directors - elect, as well as the 1985 Region V directors and the 1986 Region V directors - elect.

ADDCC is an organization of women employed in the petroleum and allied industries. With a goal of educating their members about their industry, the ADDCC has 123 clubs and more than 10,000 members in the United States and Canada.

Peeking at Pampa

Shall we talk about a down-to-earth subject: news of the past week?

High on the list is the annual picnic for employees and families of Coronado Community Hospital last week at the Optimist Club Park, coordinated by Tamme Pike, activities chairman. Employees furnished dessert. Linda Haynes brought a scrumptious apricot cobbler from apricots grown in her yard. She took a dunking or two from the dunking board, as did other administrative personnel, Rick Smith and Tamme Pike to name a few.

Steve McMIndes won the tug of war and Carl Sims won the "big" pot in bingo. Kids searched diligently for money in the sandbox. Karen Gregory and James Smith won the milk-drinking contest — four ounces each from a baby bottle! A dance that night completed the schedule of activities.

Fran (Mrs. Don) Morrison has been busy remodeling a building to house her art gallery and antique accessories to be called Bunkhouse. On a recent trip to England, she purchased some paintings and furniture. Plans call for one or two person showings of local or area artists plus craft work — quilting, for one, on consignment. Watch for an October opening.

Calvin Lacy is recovering nicely from chest injuries suffered when a car fell on him recently. The accident convinced him he is not a human car jack! Can you believe this? He took leisurely walks around the hospital with tubes in his chest, an almost-never-heard-of accomplishment. Factors in his recovery have to be his good physical condition and careful attention to proper diet.

AFTER A THREE-year leave,

Cindy (Mrs. Rick) Harris is back at Stephen F. Austin Elementary as a Spanish teacher for grades one through five.

Majunta (Mrs. Forrest) Hills has a knack for meeting friends or relatives of Pampans on her travels. On a bus ride to Dallas from Tyler, she met a friend of Ernestine Pulse and her son, Dr. Terry Pulse, plus a friend of Gienna Lee and Jack Miller.

Minnie McKnerney of Los Angeles came to visit Patsy and John McKnerney. In 1920, Minnie saw her first snowfall in Amarillo while touring with a dance company. Jeannie Willingham, local dance instructor, has Minnie's handmade Russian dance boots, circa 1920.

Special guests in the home of Goldie and Simon Ward were their grandchildren Megan and Brett Ward of Liberal, Kan.

Rufe Jordan, our local sheriff, and his Miss Honey Poodle took off for a camping trip in the Red River area of New Mexico. Miss White Kitty of the Forrest Hill's household makes a distinctive noise somewhere between a meow and purr when she has an item for show-and-tell. Her latest "item" was a 12-inch rattlesnake!

Emmett LeFors, who will be 96 years young on Sept. 27, was named the oldest person present at the Labor Day shindig at Mobeetie. Q.V. Morgan, 93 years young, won the title last year. Recovery wishes to Q.V. as he recovers from recent surgery.

Shelly Kay and Steve Flaherty and their cute little daughter Ashley Dawn, who will be one year old on Sept. 25, moved to Weatherford, Okla., recently. Steve has entered Southwestern University school of pharmacy.

CASSIE RICHTER IS super-elated over her new car, a gift from her husband Leon (?). It's been said Cassie can cook red beans like nobody else can. She cooked 20 pounds for the last Golden Agers monthly luncheon at the Salvation Army. Lts. Carl Hughes and Sam Foden of the Salvation Army became almost instant wonderful Pampans. Carl's "God bless you, ma'am!" would make anyone's day a bit happier.

Peggy Ennis' warm and cheerful smile have the same effect on everyone she meets. She's one courageous lady!

Charlotte Cooper attended an executive management workshop at the home office of HCA in Nashville, Tenn. Next was a few days vacation at Chattanooga, Tenn., with her parents. Bob tended the home fires in Pampa.

Did you know that Doug Carmichael always answers to the name of "Digger"?

Evelyn (Mrs. Jay) Johnson looked absolutely stunning in a black skirt 'neath a black and white patterned blouse, cinched at the waist with a yellow belt. Tres bonne!

It was good to see Jo Edwards out again. She was her usual immaculately and impeccably dressed self.

Kathy (Mrs. Russ) Parsons, Debbie (Mrs. Johnnie) Bailey, Shannon (Mrs. Ronnie) Baldwin and Gloria (Mrs. Jerry) Holt made up the planning committee for a cleverly done scavenger hunt for members and guests of Upsilon chapter of Beta Sigma Phi. Gathering place was the home of Kathy Parsons before searching out clues that led to the scene of the party. The last clue, "Listen to the angels sing..." took them to the home of Gloria and Jerry Holt. Fare for the hilarious evening was a variety of fun games and lots of party munchies.

APOLOGIES TO ANGELA (Mrs. Bob) Sanford, a 1935 PHS teacher. Her name then was Miss "STRNAD," pronounced "stir-nod," not "Strand" as reported last week. Reports say her ace-high standing with students had remained constant for the past 50 years.

One more note about the 50th anniversary reunion Class of '35, Pampa High School. Marcile Glison Turney, daughter of Frances Glison, and her photographer son Matt made lapel souvenir buttons from individual pictures shown in the 1935 annual, the better for 1985 identification. And a treasured keepsake from a wonderful day.

Have a wonderful day, too. See you next week! KATIE

HOMECOMING NOMINEES - Six nominees have been named as Homecoming Queen nominees at Pampa High School. From left are Kelly Finkenbinder, Kellye Welborne, Mary Cross, Kim Bowers, Shannon Churchman and Ragena Fly. The Queen and her court will be presented during halftime activities Friday night at the Harvester and Perryton football game. Other homecoming activities include a student pep rally Friday afternoon and a dance at M. K. Brown Auditorium after the game. (Photo by Darren Poore)

Local cancer society wins awards

The local chapter of the American Cancer Society (ACS) received two awards for public awareness programs at the 15th annual District 15 meeting Sept. 14.

The Gray-Roberts Unit of the ACS, represented by 1984-85 president Shirley Wooldridge, received an award for outstanding school and college public education programs and for total adult audience public education programs.

Mrs. Wooldridge also presented a workshop on public education in the morning session of the meeting.

After lunch, Barbara Walliger Serafin, director of supportive care for the Harrington Cancer Center, was guest speaker.

The following Pampans, in addition to Wooldridge, attended the meeting: Betty Bohlander, Mary Nelson, Nellie Norman and Nadine Fletcher. District 15 of the American Cancer Society includes 25 counties of the Texas Panhandle.

Class of '41 makes plans for 45th class reunion

Plans are underway for the 45th reunion of the Pampa High School Class of 1941. All graduates, family and friends are asked to call or write with address information.

The classes of 1940 and 1942 are also to be included in the reunion.

Any information may be sent to Bettye McAfee Ward, Box 158, Canadian, 79014, telephone 323-6626 or to Phyllis Followell Laramore, 517 Magnolia, Pampa, 669-7574.

Club News

Beta Alpha Zeta
Down Syndrome was the topic of a program given by Margaret and Gary Haynes at the Sept. 3 meeting of Beta Alpha Zeta. Hostesses were Beverly Alexander and Toni Howard.

New year books were distributed to members and career chapter information was read and discussed.

Highland Hobby
New officers were elected at the Sept. 10 meeting of Highland Hobby Club. They are Elsie Nail, president, Vera Ratliff, vice president; Gloria Norris, secretary - treasurer and Jewel Holmes, reporter.

Members discussed making a quilt for a person who had belongings destroyed by a fire. A program on quilts by Mrs. Nail followed. Next meeting is to be Oct. 1 at 7:30 p.m. at the home of Gloria Norris.

Preceptor Chi
Mary Baten hosted the Sept. 16 meeting of Preceptor Chi chapter of Beta Sigma Phi. New member Jody Hall and Louise Fletcher, Beta Sigma Phi Woman of the Year, were welcomed.

Girls of the Year, Shirley Stafford, Millie Bond, Retha Jordan and Alberta Jeffries are to be honored at the Fall Fling, Sept. 28, at M.K. Brown Auditorium. "The Good Steward," a parable for our times from READER'S Digest, was presented by Mary Baten. Next meeting is to be Sept. 23, at 7:30 p.m. at the home of Millie Bond.

Upsilon
Upsilon met Sept. 16 in the home of Sue Little. Pam Been was co-hostess. President Rebecca Lewis welcomed guests Kay Swart, Dianne Maestes and Vickie Ward. Vice president Kathy Parsons welcomed new members Carla Allen and Kim Epps. She also reported a successful Mystery Rush party where members and guests had to find clues hidden in various local homes and businesses before finally arriving at the actual party in the home of Jerry and Gloria Holt.

Members agreed on a money making project for the area convention in Dumas next month. They also decided to make a memorial donation honoring Martha Fisher, Preceptor Chi member.

Before closing ritual, Deborah Bailey was elected 1985-86 Sweetheart. Members then played "In Pursuit of Beta Sigma Phi," a game prepared by Melinda Haskit and Rebecca Lewis.

The Tubes may be Two pianos may also be twice as bad down the tubes

By WALTER BERRY
Associated Press Writer

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — They once were the septet darlings of the shock-rock music world. Now, singer Fee Waybill says The Tubes may be down the tubes.

"There's a lot of talk about us breaking up. That seems to be the way things are going ... but I don't know what's going to happen," Waybill said. "At this point, there really hasn't been a decision made. The band's kind of chewing it over. Everybody's just kind of feeling it out and seeing what the real world is all about."

"To go this long without ever really having a hit record is truly amazing. But this (breaking up) seems to be the natural course of things. You can't be in a band your whole life. It just doesn't work. A lot of us have a bunch of outside things we want to do, including myself."

He was known as John Waybill while growing up in nearby Scottsdale, delivering afternoon newspapers to Boston Red Sox slugger Ted Williams during spring training and appearing in plays and musical comedies before becoming a rock 'n' roller in the late 1960s and changing his first name to Fee.

Given a choice, the 36-year-old Waybill said he would love to return to acting. "It's a very scary move because it takes you out of your sphere of power. All of a sudden, all the influence and the background that you're developed over 15 years in the music business doesn't mean" a thing, he said. On the concert stage, Waybill brought outrageous characters from the theater of his mind to life — from the drugged-out British rock star Quay Lewd, to the politico Feedel Castrol, to his impersonation of Adam complete with a fig leaf costume.

The Tubes are the product of two Phoenix-area groups of the late 1960s — the Red, White and Blues Band (with Waybill, drummer Prarie Prince, lead guitarist Roger Steen and Michael Cotton on synthesizer) and The Beans (featuring bassist Rick Anderson, keyboardist Vince Welnick and rhythm guitarist Bill Spooner).

The two bands merged in San Francisco to form The Tubes in 1971.

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Two pianos can be better than one, but they also may be twice as bad.

Steven Gordon, who is half a piano team, says plunkers who think they can team up, hide each other's mistakes and become rich and famous, better just forget it and try their luck with the lottery.

"The idea that two bad pianists can get together and make it good is impossible," Gordon says.

Gordon is quite well attuned to his other half. Not only has Nadya Gordon been his wife since 1971 but they studied with the same teacher, Sergei Tarnowsky, who also taught Vladimir Horowitz.

For their first Carnegie Hall recital, in 1983, the Gordons made a book of poster-size pictures of nine famous piano duos, the ones they consider "the core of the art form," and played music associated with each of them. A similar concert in Atlanta two months later was taped for a TV special. PBS showed it in Atlanta. The Arts and Entertainment cable channel obtained the rights.

The special, "Album of Two-Piano Masterpieces," will be shown twice on Oct. 10 on the Arts and Entertainment channel and will be repeated often over the next three years.

The Gordons take turns showing the pictures of the nine duos and talking about them.

Most were husband and wife teams, like Robert and Gaby Casadesu, Josef and Rosina Lhevinne and Vronsky and Babin. Jose and Amparo Iturbi were brother and sister.

Gordon thinks a close tie is a good idea. "Friends wouldn't stay friends through all the rehearsals. 'Why are you going so fast there?' 'I like it fast there.' 'I don't like it that fast.'"

He says there's plenty of literature for twin pianos. Brahms, Beethoven, Liszt — almost all the major composers — wrote something for two pianos. Bach wrote three concertos for two harpsichords and one for three harpsichords, which can be played on two or three pianos. Mozart wrote four-hand piano sonatas because he wanted to play them with his sister.

Ravel transcribed his "Bolero" for two pianos because he wanted to play it with a friend. Ravel also transcribed Debussy's "Nocturnes for Orchestra" for two pianos and "Afternoon of a Faun" for four hands on one piano.

Sometimes composers wrote a piece for two pianos, as Rachmaninoff did his for "Symphonic Dances," before scoring it for orchestra.

In the 19th century, most two-piano literature was played by family members at home. Four-hand, one-piano pieces were written for families that owned only one piano.

Twin piano concerts became a rage in the 1930s and 1940s.

In one season alone, Luboshutz and Nemenoff appeared nine times with the Philadelphia Orchestra and nearly that often with the Boston Symphony. Mrs. Gordon says, "Bartlett and Robertson had a massive career as well. Ethel Bartlett was painted and sculpted. They talked about her gowns. It was almost like a movie star situation."

Gordon says, "After Vronsky and Babin stopped — he died in 1962 — things really slowed down. Teams went out of vogue."

"It has regained quite a bit of its popularity," Mrs. Gordon says. "Our concerts are always full. People love to hear orchestrally scored piano music. This wall of sound hits you when you've got two pianos."

The Gordons met at 16 when both entered a San Fernando Valley Symphony competition. He won. She entered again the next year and won.

Prado gets major face lift

MADRID, Spain (AP) — After years of neglect in Spain's labyrinthine bureaucracy, the Prado Museum, home of masterpieces by Velazquez, Goya and El Greco, has entered a new era.

Although Spaniards and foreign visitors have managed to enjoy the treasures housed in one of the greatest symbols of Spanish culture, the lack of modern amenities and exhibition and storage space were serious drawbacks for an internationally esteemed museum.

Under a recent government decree, the museum and its 9,000 works of art will be independent of the National Museums board, within which they languished during the latter years of the 40-year regime of Gen. Francisco Franco.

Now, only a third of the museum's works, collected primarily by Spanish royalty, can be displayed at a given time.

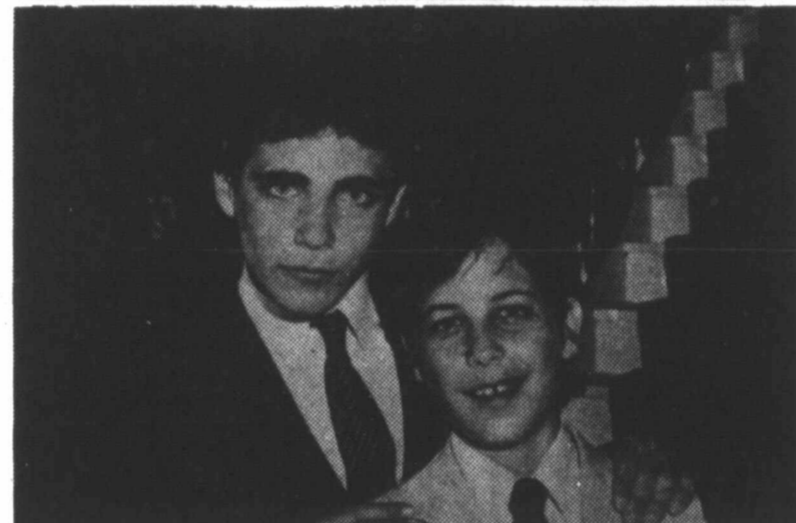

"Administrative independence will give us the means to take care of the immediate needs of the museum and give it a major face lift," director Alfonso Sanchez Perez said in an interview.

A 1968 decision by the Franco government to unify all state museums under one board treated the Prado as just another museum. And even minor changes at the Prado had to pass through a maze of bureaucratic channels before being implemented, which helped the museum to fall into general disrepair.

Grime covered most of the paintings, which were neither displayed nor stored in a climate-controlled environment. Lighting in the exhibit rooms was insufficient and distracting. And plans to train and enlarge the staff of 385, make acquisitions, update the museum's catalog and plan expansions were never implemented.

A July 31 decree returns administrative independence to the board of directors of the Prado, enabling them to purchase the Villahermosa Palace.

AS THE WORLD TURNS—Tom sets up a meeting with McCloskey to ask him to give Margo a vacation. Wearing a sexy dress, Marie is quite prepared for Kevin who arrives full of rage at her and her conniving ways. Marie grows genuinely frightened as Kevin treats her roughly. Steve arrives home from the hospital, and as Heather and Betsy prepare lunch, he scims through the company checkbook. To his horror, he discovers that Kevin's made a whopping book-keeping error. As Marie watches, Kevin rifles through their belongings in an effort to find the diary. Trying various tactics, Marie tries to convince him that he doesn't belong with Frannie, he belongs with her. Tom assures Margo that he does respect her work, and although he was wrong to approach McCloskey, they do need time away together. Nancy receives a phone call from a very upset Marie who needs to speak to Frannie immediately. Nancy assures her she'll pass the message along and as we go to Marie's room, we see that she now has several self-induced bruises and is about to launch her vindictive plan.

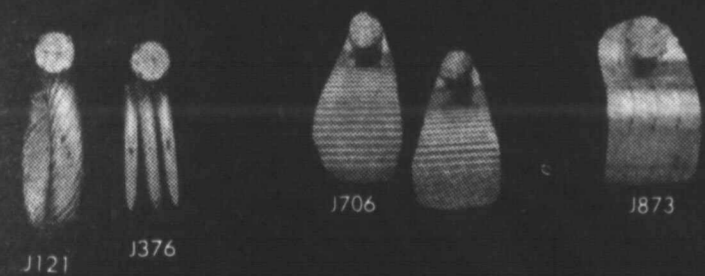

THE YOUNG AND THE RESTLESS—Brent dies. John hires Brad full time for the family business. Neil is shocked when Lauren tells him the truth about Frances, and no amount of explanation softens her position with him. Victor leaves for Corsica with Ashley when he discovers that Jack has been located there. Paul walked out on Lauren not sure whether or not their marriage can be saved. The doctor advises John to hold off starting the divorce proceedings while Victor and Ashley are off to Corsica. Nikki is truly shocked when she opens the door to Jack.

Ex-LULAC chiefs finding other ways to stay in politics

By DAVID SEDENO
Associated Press Writer

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — A potpourri of pictures, plaques and proclamations adorns the walls of the Ruben Bonilla Sr. Building in west Corpus Christi.

The salutations from celebrities, presidents and governors are addressed to the Bonilla brothers — Ruben Jr., Tony and William — once among the most powerful Hispanic leaders in the country.

Their surname had been synonymous with the League of United Latin American Citizens, the country's oldest and largest Hispanic organization, founded in their hometown in 1929.

Each of the brothers ran the national organization in the 1960s, '70s and '80s, leading voter registration drives, fighting for bilingual education and battling against immigration bills they said would hurt Hispanics.

Ruben and Tony Bonilla have been cheered, but they also have drawn antagonism and been called egotistical and even racist for their outspokenness on Hispanic issues.

"We suffered the pangs of discrimination, segregation," said Tony. "We'll never forget being called Mexican 'pepper bellies.' We experienced and lived through that and in the process became better people. If people understand that part of us, then maybe they can understand why we do the things we do."

It's been two years since a Bonilla has held the national presidency of LULAC, a succession halted by the organization's constitutional rules.

But the Bonillas don't see their departure as a comedown, rather as an evolution of LULAC and an opportunity for them to move on.

Recently, Ruben Bonilla, LULAC national president between 1979-81, was elected state chairman of the Mexican American Democrats, a 12,000-member organization he said could be much stronger than LULAC.

Tony Bonilla, a former state representative, is chairman of the National Hispanic Leadership Conference, a think tank he founded after leaving the LULAC presidency in 1983. He still remains on the LULAC national board, and frequently courts corporate America to help small Hispanic businesses.

William Bonilla, LULAC national president in 1965 and head of the family law firm, helped found and still is active in SER Jobs for Progress, a program that helps train and gets jobs for disadvantaged workers.

He is not as outspoken or politically active as younger brothers Ruben and Tony, who say criticism came with the territory.

"I am a marked man," said Ruben, 39. "I am viewed as a person interested only in ethnic issues, that my concern is only for Mexican-Americans."

"On some occasions, I have been called a racist, but I just shrug those off," he said. "In LULAC, the irony is that I have worked very hard for full assimilation, integration."

Said Tony, 49: "I would describe our attitude as one of impatience. We were impatient with the establishment to fully accept and embrace Hispanics. We were impatient with the institutions that close the doors of opportunity."

"The Hispanic community was programmed to believe we were to live in barrios, live certain ways, drop out of school," he said. "We were impatient with the difficulty in deprogramming our people. In the process, we stepped on a lot of toes. But after the smoke cleared, I think people began to see the reality of what were were talking about."

These days, Ruben and Tony Bonilla criticize the organization they once pushed to national prominence, and the group's president, a San Antonio Republican named Oscar Moran.

"LULAC will never be more than a skeleton of what it once was because these guys don't have the commitment or vision that we did," Tony said.

The Ruben Bonilla Sr. Building was named for a man who came to the United States from Mexico City in 1920. He met his wife-to-be, Mary, in Cameron, moved to the Central Texas community of Calvert, and eventually had eight children, four of whom became attorneys.

The interior of the building is lined with wall-to-wall autographed pictures of Vice President George Bush, the Rev. Jesse Jackson, U.S. senators, congressmen, celebrities and of the Bonillas growing up.

Telephones ring constantly as about 30 people sit in the large lobby waiting to speak with one of the 15 attorneys, including about eight Bonilla family members.

To understand the Bonillas — where they have been, why they're so vocal — it's essential to spend time with William Bonilla, the second oldest of eight children.

William is not a polished public speaker like Ruben or a storyteller like Tony but, along with his mother, he is the backbone of the Bonilla clan, which also includes 30 grandchildren and 16 great-grandchildren.

He is the one others call the child prodigy, the one who set an educational and financial pace for his siblings. At age 16, he was the first in the family to graduate from high school, the first to finish college and law school and, in 1965, the first Bonilla to serve as LULAC national president.

The 54-year-old attorney has been practicing law for 32 years, setting up shop in Corpus Christi in 1954.

William is the conservative of the family, the respected lawyer, a devout Catholic who stresses heritage, education and the importance of family. Like his brothers, he also is idealistic about ridding the country of discrimination.

Growing up in Calvert, Texas, as a typical Mexican-American family was not easy, the Bonillas say.

They harvested cotton, onions and other vegetables and, by the 1940s, Ruben Sr. had his own service station. The older boys began working there after school, while the girls stayed at home with their mother.

Discrimination was overt in Calvert, the Bonillas say, but they stayed for one important reason — it was home.

By 1960, Ruben Sr. had suffered a heart attack. William already had been practicing law for seven years and been sending money to his parents. He went to Calvert, sold the family service station and the family followed him to Corpus Christi.

With William's financial help, brothers Tony and Ruben and sister Mary Helen Bonilla Berlanga, now on the State Board of Education, finished law school and joined the firm.

In 1965, William served his year as LULAC national president and his brothers, spurred by the discrimination they felt in Calvert, joined LULAC and rose through the local and state ranks.

Ruben took over the national office in 1979 and quickly appointed a congressional liaison. A devoted Democrat, he assailed Republicans.

Two years later, Tony took over from his brother and appointed him LULAC general counsel, a position Ruben still holds.

During the Bonilla years, chapters spread from 26 to 45 states and membership swelled from 70,000 to about 120,000, including more Puerto Ricans and Cubans.

The brothers crisscrossed the country, joined with black organizations and leaders to try to influence legislation, and called news conference everywhere they went.

The Bonillas say they moved the organization from a "Mexican-American rotary club" to an organization that dealt with national and international issues facing Hispanics, which by the year 2000 are predicted to be the largest minority in the country.

Although LULAC is a non-political organization, the Bonillas personally endorsed political candidates and officially denounced others who they said had not shown they were friends of the Hispanic community.

"When I took over LULAC, LULAC was dormant," Ruben said. "There was racism across the country. There still is racism in Texas, in America. I am repelled by those notions, so I speak out against them. I had to step on some toes. My job was to spotlight Hispanic concerns."

The Bonillas were criticized and praised not only by outsiders, but by those within the group.

"They did a lot for the organization, even though maybe sometimes they weren't on target," said Moran, the San Antonio businessman who currently serves as LULAC president.

Ruben and Tony Bonilla contend Moran is threatening to divide Hispanics by moving the organization's core from Washington to San Antonio and regionalizing LULAC, but Moran says he wants to concentrate on beefing up membership, which is most abundant west of the Mississippi River.

Today, critics of Ruben Bonilla, the die-hard Democrat, say he should look to his brother William, who has supported Republican candidates. Ruben is criticized for saying the Republican Party is wooing Hispanics with false pretenses.

"Ruben sometimes plays to that television tube more than he does to his own folks," said Texas GOP Chairman George Strake. "Ruben is so hung up on being a Democrat, he does what's good for Democrats before what's good for his people — and sometimes that's not the same thing."

The Bonillas may be divided in political philosophy, but they say that is not unique within a large family. Instead, they concentrate on the obstacles they have tackled — poverty and prejudices — as a family.

White downplays critics

AUSTIN (AP) — Republican Party leaders say it was bad management and Gov. Mark White says it was only a minor problem that caused a state agency to be closed for several days with its telephones shut off.

Texas GOP Chairman George Strake said Thursday the temporary shutdown of the Texas Department of Community Affairs was a "fiasco." He called it "another example of the poor leadership and poor management of Gov. Mark White's administration."

The department administers federal grant money for cities, counties and the poor.

White downplayed the problem, saying it was caused by the agency moving from one building to another.

"Any business knows that sometimes we have little problems getting moved from one office to another. That's all we had here. I think you'll find there was no irreparable damage done," White told his weekly news conference.

The agency, which has a $246 million annual budget, closed on Aug. 29, sending employees home, Strake said. It didn't reopen until Sept. 3, and phones were out from the last week of August until Sept. 10, Strake added.

Part of the problem was that the city of Austin hadn't issued a certificate of occupancy for the new building, so when employees tried to move in they weren't allowed inside, Strake said.

"Most managers handle transitions much more smoothly, making provisions to keep phones and basic services operating during a move," the GOP leader said.

Telephone friends help latchkey kids

HOUSTON (AP) — Former nurse Bryn Doyle sometimes comes home from her pre-med classes to find her 11-year-old son, London, has baked a cake, started dinner or cleaned the house.

The sixth-grader says he learned some of the household skills with the help of Vera Williams, a telephone friend who also has become a confidante.

Ms. Williams is a counselor with Chatters, an acronym for Children Home Alone Telephone Reassurance Services. The non-profit program is for so-called "latchkey children" who are home unsupervised after school.

Chatters is coordinated by Neighborhood Centers, a United Way agency that offers recreation, learning and daycare programs in the Houston area.

For $5 a school year, Ms. Williams acts as an electronic buddy to some 150 children between the ages of 8 and 13.

"She's a telephone friend to these kids and a link between the children and the mother in case of emergency," says Irma Freeman, program manager for Neighborhood Centers.

Chatters started in 1981 as an alternative for working mothers whose jobs sometimes do not allow them to be accessible to their children by telephone or for whom daycare is too costly or inconvenient, said Ms. Freeman, who believes the program to be unique.

The system makes Ms. Williams available from 2 p.m. to 6 p.m.

"Children are going to go home after school and they're going to go home without supervision," Ms.

Williams says. "We have been told that in private industry, around 2:30 or 3 p.m., production goes down because the phones ring, saying, 'Mama, I'm home, or 'Can I have a sandwich?' or 'He hit me' or 'The pet's out.'"

Originally, Chatters consisted of five Houston-area offices staffed by counselors prepared to go to a child's home in an emergency while the mother was at work. But some parents did not want the counselor having access to their homes.

"We felt like part of the reason this did not work is because Houston is a metropolitan area with a high crime rate, so people are not as trusting," Ms. Freeman says.

Now Ms. Williams, a mother and grandmother who has some 25 years of experience working in day care facilities, takes all the children's calls from her office at a Houston church.

Her main job is to make sure the children get home safely, but she often gives her charges cooking lessons, praises them on good report cards and counsels them on a variety of problems.

"The main thing I try to get over to the child is that I am their friend," says Ms. Williams. "The mother and the child decide how they want to use the service. It doesn't have to be a check-in every day. They can call when they want and when they need me."

Ms. Freeman says Chatters children come from all family and economic backgrounds.

1 Card of Thanks

FLOYD E. BUTCHER
What would we give to see your smile. To set and talk with you awhile. We often sit and think of you. The things you used to say and do. We miss you now. Our hearts are sore as time goes on. We miss you more. Your loving smile. Your gentle face. No one can fill your vacant place. The blow was sudden, the shock severe to part with you whom we love so dear. Wonder why you had to die without a chance to say goodbye. Many a lonely heart aches often a silent tear, but always a beautiful memory of one we love so dear. With our deepest gratitude we extend this word of thanks for the kind acts of sympathy expressed by friends and neighbors. This kindness has meant so much to us. Special thanks for many beautiful flowers and the blow was sudden, the shock severe to part with you whom we love so dear. Wonder why you had to die without a chance to say goodbye. Many a lonely heart aches often a silent tear, but always a beautiful memory of one we love so dear.
