Flames flaring over ruins of Mexico City

CARL MANNING
Associated Press Writer

MEXICO CITY — Fires flared across this devastated city today and desperate rescue teams clambered over the ruins as the hemisphere's greatest metropolis dug out of one of its greatest tragedies, a giant earthquake that tore at the midsection of the Americas.

Officials and witnesses confirmed at least 230 dead in the Thursday morning quake, but the toll was expected to go much higher. Mexico's Channel 2 television, in a report that was not attributed, said 770 people were killed.

"I would not dare give a number," said a grim-faced Mayor Ramon Aguirre.

He said an estimated 1,000 people were entombed in collapsed buildings in this huge, teeming city. Five thousand people had been treated for injuries, he said.

Mexico City and four coastal states, Colima, Guerrero, Jalisco and Michoacan, were hardest hit by the 7:18 a.m. (9:18 a.m. EDT)

Former area resident safe

A Pampa woman has been informed that her daughter and son-in-law who live in Mexico City were not harmed by the devastating earthquake Thursday.

Janita McAdams said the U.S. State Department telephoned her about 6 a.m. today with news that Floyd and Laverne Travis were safe.

Mrs. Travis grew up in White Deer and taught school there and in Pampa. She is a teacher at the American University in Mexico and her husband is superintendent of the school.

"Somehow I felt like they would be all right," Mrs. McAdams said, despite having to wait until today for the news. She said there are few high-rise buildings in the area around the university where they live.

take care of the injured. The army is in a state of alert."

quake, which leveled cathedrals, schools, hospitals, hotels and scores of other buildings — at least 250 buildings in Mexico City alone, according to Aguirre.

The tremor measured 7.8 on the Richter scale of ground motion, making it the strongest to rock Mexico since 1973.

"It's like a big monster," said a disbelieving volunteer rescue worker, Juan-Carlos Christy, outside a destroyed hotel. "It's like being bombed or in a war."

"We know there are people in there, we know," a soldier said sadly as he stood outside a badly damaged apartment building. "But it's just too weak ... and smoky and we just can't go in there."

Associated Press reporter Mike Cochran visited one of several temporary morgues in Mexico City and counted 89 bodies. Officials earlier had confirmed 60 dead in Mexico City.

Between 110 and 150 people were killed in Jalisco state, 100 miles northwest of here, and about 1,500 injured, a fire lieutenant, Juan Manuel Sanchez, said from the state capital of Guadalajara. In Michoacan state, 30 people were reported killed when two hotels collapsed at the beach resort of Playa Azul.

In Washington, the State Department said early today it had no reports of Americans killed or injured, and authorities in Mexico City said there was no immediate indication any Americans were among the victims.

The State Department said President Reagan sent a message to President Miguel de la Madrid and Secretary of State George P. Shultz sent one to the Mexican foreign minister, offering full U.S. assistance.

De la Madrid declared a state of emergency and appealed for calm.

"Unfortunately there appear to be many dead," de la Madrid said on Mexican television. "All of the hospitals are on a state of alert to

THE MEXICO CITY television station Televisa said 10,000 soldiers were deployed in the city of 17 million to prevent looting and keep people away from buildings still in danger of collapse.

Thousands of people reportedly spent the night outside because they had no homes to return to or feared buildings still standing might collapse. Temporary shelters were set up in offices and public buildings.

Bulldozers and cranes removed mountains of broken concrete, bricks and glass, and Aguirre said 50,000 workers were taking part in clean-up and rescue operations for the 1,000 people believed trapped under crumbled buildings.

Survivors wept as they ran through gutted streets screaming out the names of loved ones.

Schools, hotels, hospitals and high-rises in Mexico City were flattened and snapped gas and power lines touched off dozens of fires that still burned hours later. Half the capital remained blacked out after nightfall, and there was no water or telephone service.

Mexico City's airport had been closed while officials checked for possible cracks in the runways, but was open today.

One fire destroyed the Hotel Regis and trapped an unknown number of people inside the old landmark before it buckled.

The Roman residential district near downtown was cordoned off because of gas leaks. Radio announcements urged residents not to light matches, smoke or switch on electrical instruments.

Hundreds of citizens pitched in to help, forming impromptu ambulance squads and taking victims away in private vehicles. Red Cross workers raced downtown by any transportation available, from ambulances to commandeered taxis.

Senate farm bill faces fight

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Agriculture Committee, after months of delays and maneuvering, has approved a new four-year farm bill that freezes current income subsidies for four years and virtually assures a bruising floor battle over efforts to rein in its cost.

"It's a budget-buster, any way you look at it," said Sen. Jesse Helms, who became the first Senate Agriculture Committee chairman ever to vote against sending a farm bill to the full Senate.

The bill was endorsed on a 10-6 vote, with three Republicans — Majority Leader Robert Dole of Kansas, Thad Cochran of Mississippi and Mitch McConnell of Kentucky — joining the Democratic minority on the final balloting.

Explaining the GOP defections, Helms added, "They were just voting to get a bill out onto the floor. That's where the action is going to be." Aides said Helms expected a friendlier reception in the full Senate when attempts are made to cut farm subsidies.

As it worked toward completion of the bill, the committee voted 10-7 to freeze farm income-support subsidies for the legislation's full four-year life, adding an estimated $2 billion to its cost.

Democrats argued that with economic conditions in many farming areas at their worst in decades, and with provisions in the bill to ease commodity price supports downward, farmers needed some assurance their incomes will not be reduced for the near future.

They got last-minute help with a lobbying appearance by country singers Willie Nelson and John Conlee and rock musician Neil Young, leaders of a scheduled weekend Farm Aid benefit concert. The musicians met with several committee members to urge maintenance of farm income.

"There must be a better idea than to cut off the family farmer at the knees," Young told reporters after the meeting.

Committee staff members said the bill exceeded by at least $11 billion the $45.6 billion target for farm spending in the congressional budget, and Agriculture Department economists said a more realistic figure would be $19 billion.

"Obviously, a bill like this can't be sustained on the floor," said Dole. He said he would attempt to bring the legislation before the full Senate the first week in October.

The massive legislation covers everything from the income subsidies to commodity price supports, farm credit provisions, export programs, food stamps, overseas famine relief and agricultural extension and research.

Meanwhile, the House Rules Committee cleared the way for consideration today by the full House of that chamber's version of farm legislation. Final House action is not expected until early next month.

The bills are intended to replace current farm law, which expires in just 10 days.

Helms had delayed taking the matter up since July. But he suddenly relented Thursday after an agreement was worked out to make it more likely that a bill substantially overhauling the tobacco program — which is not a part of the farm bill — would be reported to the Senate as part of a grab-bag money-saving measure.

Helms denied there was any connection between the farm bill movement and the tobacco legislation, but Sen. David Boren, D-Okla., said, "We're attempting to rebuild the farm coalition."

Decision on zoning change delayed following protests

By LARRY HOLLIS
Staff Writer

The Planning and Zoning Commission deferred any action Thursday afternoon on a zoning change request concerning locating a new office in a residential area in the north part of town.

Lot owner Albert Nichols has requested a change from Single Family 2 to Office District for Lot 10, Block 63, Fraser Annex No. 3, a nearly triangular tract located at the intersections of Perryton Parkway, Charles and 26th Ave.

The land, located east of the Pampa Mall, is being sought by Steve Thomas and others for the construction of an office for Caprock Engineers, Inc. Thomas said the building will have a residential look, with landscaping of the tract in keeping with the residential appearance of the surrounding neighborhood. The entrance to the lot will be off Perryton Parkway, he said.

But residents in the area have split over the proposed lot use, with separate petitions presented to the commission concerning the issue.

Addressing the public hearing, Dan G. Michael, 112 W. 26th, said he opposed the application for the office district and presented a petition bearing the names of other residents and property owners objecting to the zoning change.

Michael said he didn't want any more "commercial type" entities in the area, since he already had one to the north of his property. He said he believed the lot could be sold for residential use "if a strong effort" was made.

Michael suggested Thomas could buy a commercial lot "across the street" instead of trying to locate in a residential area.

He said under "common sense zoning" a dedicated effort should be made to sell the lot for residential use. He asked the commission to deny the zoning request so that a residential sale could be sought.

Nichols, who lives immediately south of the lot, said the lot was not being sold for commercial use but only for a business type office. He said he had talked to a number of his neighbors and most indicated approval of the office structure.

He also presented a petition of people supporting the office building, saying he had 179 names on the list. Nichols said there was some split of views between the petitions; in some households, for example, one person had signed his petition and another had signed Michael's petition.

Nichols said the office would not detract from the appearance of the neighborhood. "There's going to be a fine building there," he said, adding it wouldn't "hurt anybody's property."

But Geneva Michael, claiming experience as a realtor, said there is "no question" that an office building in a residential area would devalue the residential property.

The biggest single investment a home owner makes is his home, she said, and that investment should be protected.

"We were there first," she stated. "We look to you to protect us."

Mrs. Louis Haydon, 111 E. 28th, said there have been changes in the residential appearance of the area. She said the office buildings along Perryton Parkway have been "very constructive use" of formerly vacant lots. They have created no disturbances, with only minimal traffic changes involved. She said she had no objection to Caprock's office.

But Rick Parnell, 106 W. 26th, and Shirley Woodridge, 116 E. 28th, joined the Michaels in opposing the office use for the lot.

Nichols said zoning changes are bound to happen in a growing community. "If we stayed the same, we'd never grow," he claimed. "That's why we have this board (the zoning commission) to come before" and to provide for orderly change and better use of the land in some areas.

Thomas said the lot, because of its small size and unusual shape, is "not likely to ever be sold for residential use." No one would want to build a home so close to the Perryton Parkway frontage, he said.

He said he wanted to take into consideration the

Texas SAT scores up

AUSTIN (AP) — State education officials are pleased by a report that the average Scholastic Aptitude Test score in Texas climbed by 12 points this year.

Reacting to scores reported Thursday in The Dallas Morning News, Education Commissioner W.N. Kirby said, "We are delighted to see that Texas students' scores on the SAT are rising at an even faster rate than the national scores."

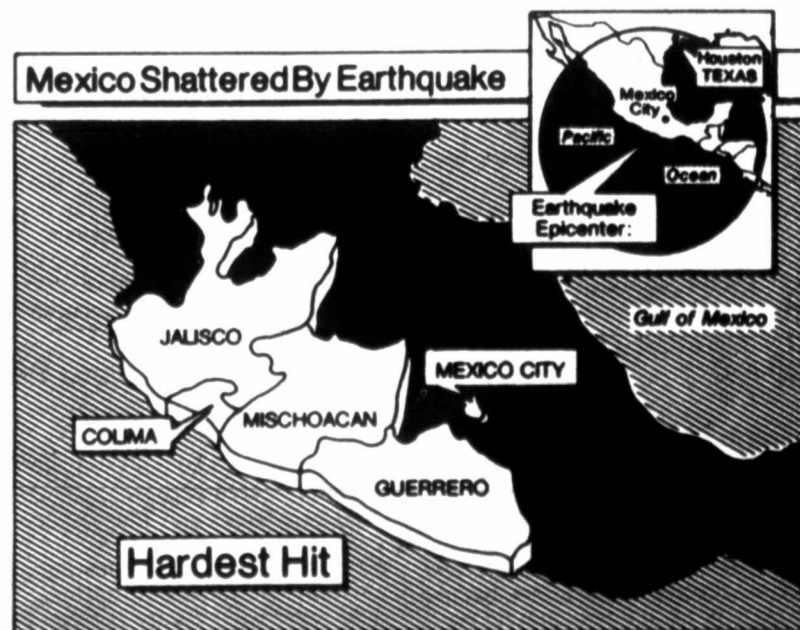

Nationwide, the average SAT score made its biggest leap since 1963 this year.

The combined national average score on the two-part test climbed nine points to a total of 906. The average math score was 475, up from 471 in 1984. The average verbal score was 431, up from 426 the previous year, according to the newspaper.

In Texas, the average math score was 459. The average verbal score in the state was 419. Both scores are six points above the 1984 results.

State education officials look to the SAT scores as some measure of the effectiveness of recently enacted public school reforms.

H. Ross Perot, chairman of the special committee that recommended the reforms, said, "There is a greater focus on learning in our schools today than there has been in the past."

feelings of nearby residents and had designed his office building with a brick and wood structure to blend in with the neighborhood. He said he would be willing to work on landscaping for the lot to further improve its overall appearance.

"I don't see how this will devalue anyone's property," he said.
 The commission members discussed the possibility of granting a Specific Use Permit for the office to prevent the future sale of the lot for other use and to insure that any other change would have to come before the commission for its approval.

Commission member Ralph Milliron noted that a zoning change attaches to the land, while a Specific Use Permit is tied to the use only.

The members noted there are already similar offices in the area making use of previously vacant lots, but they realized there is always a problem in appealing all who live in the area.

The commission deferred any action until next month to allow time for further study and a look at the proposed plan.

In another public hearing, no one spoke concerning a proposed ordinance amendment relating to a "columbarium," defined as a structure, room or other space in a building containing niches used to contain cremated human remains.

The change would amend the city's land use regulations to permit the establishment of a columbarium within the definition of a church or rectory.

Forrest Cloyd, senior technician with the Engineering Department, said a columbarium in a church or rectory is allowed under state law. But an oversight in the preparation of city codes had left the term out of city regulations, he said.

The change was initiated by a letter from St. Matthew's Episcopal Church indicating the church was considering the establishment of a columbarium.

The commission approved recommending the city commission to approve the ordinance change.

In other action, the commission approved recommending the city commission consider annexing and a zoning change from Agriculture to Specific Use Permit for a 1.5 acre tract east of the city limits.

The Mary Ellen and Harvester Church of Christ, owners of the land, are planning to sell the tract to a social services agency for its use.

The commission took no action on a request for payment of driveway repairs for a resident since the matter had been settled privately.

Private citizen helped in arrest

AMARILLO — Call them Pampa's own dynamic duo.

Pampa police Lt. J.D. Laramore said this morning the citizen who helped him foil the heist of a jeweler's cash at the Tri-State Fair Wednesday night was Calvin Timmons, 2632 Evergreen in Pampa.

Laramore was working a crime prevention booth sponsored by the Panhandle Regional Planning Commission in the commercial exhibits building at the fair. Across the aisle was a jewelry booth.

The lieutenant said he was watching youngsters and handing out football cards to those who came up to the booth when Timmons tapped him on the shoulder and said a young man had just taken some cash from the jeweler's cash box. Laramore shrugged off any sense of heroism for himself.

"At that point, it was a mere fact of mechanics about it," he said. "I was just doing what I've been trained to do for 18 years. I was just lucky about it, that's all."

Laramore said he ran after the suspect, and after jumping a fence, apprehended him in the parking lot "behind the last pickup in the corner of the parking lot." He said $88 was found in the suspect's pants.

Laramore said he feels most of the credit should go to Timmons for reporting the crime. He noted the purpose of crime prevention programs is to encourage citizens

Police investigate missing money

Pampa police are investigating the disappearance of $1,200 from an Allsup's store, a police spokesperson said today.

The money is believed to have been stolen early Thursday morning from a safe at Allsup's store No. 81 at the intersection of Wilks and Faulkner.

A clerk at the store was questioned by the department for several hours Thursday. He was later released.

The clerk had complained to police early that morning that an assailant struck him over the head with an unknown object, causing minor bruises. He said the robbery must have occurred after that, police reported.

Pampa man held in ice pick attack

A 29-year-old Pampa man was arrested and charged with aggravated assault Thursday after allegedly attacking a woman with an ice pick.

The house in which the alleged attack took place belongs to Neal F. Henin, 68, 2523 Aspen. Police believe the assailant kicked in a door to the residence and waited for William to walk by.

William told police the suspect screamed, "Why can't I see my kid," during the attack.

Police originally responded to a sexual assault call at 1056 Varnon, records show. William's clothes apparently were torn when police arrived.

Quake disrupts Texas-Mexico business, relief efforts

By The Associated Press

Business and relief efforts between the United States and Mexico ground almost to a halt after the quake that rocked central Mexico cut all communications lines into that country's battered capital.

Texas banks reported that routine transactions with banks and affiliate offices in Mexico City could not be conducted because of disrupted telephone and telex lines after Thursday morning's quake.

Some bankers feared the entire Mexico banking system, already reeling from repeated devaluations of the peso, could be paralyzed because of heavy damage in Mexico City.

"Banking revolves around Mexico City," said Roger Fry in the international division of InterFirst Bank San Antonio. "We do quite a bit of peso business. We couldn't do anything because we couldn't get through. No one knows what is going on."

AT&T officials in Texas said workmen were trying to restore communications lines to Mexico, but "we have no idea at this point when power can be restored," said AT&T spokeswoman Jane Young.

Downed telephone lines disrupted efforts by the American Red Cross, the Salvation Army and other relief agencies to find out what help was needed in Mexico City, officials said.

"We have been unable to reach the Mexico Red Cross," said Brian Ruberry, a spokesman with the American Red Cross in Washington. "We're prepared to help, but we have to know what we can do or what they need."

In Dallas, "we are on alert, ready to go when needed," said Bob Dixon, executive director of Texas Baptist Men of the Baptist General Convention of Texas.

His group was one of many standing by to help out once communication and transportation lines between Texas and Mexico were reopened.

The earthquake — which forced water to slosh out of swimming pools from El Paso to Corpus Christi, each more than 1,000 miles away from the quake's epicenter — was one of the largest ever in North America and released thousands of times more energy than an atomic explosion.

"It was huge, no question about it," University of Texas at El Paso geophysics professor Randy Keller said of the quake that registered 7.8 on the Richter Scale.

Keller said dozens of people with backyard swimming pools called the university's seismic observatory to ask what was happening.

Zita Caesar, an east El Paso resident, said she thought she was going crazy when she noticed the water moving in her pool.

"It just kept going back and forth, over one side and down on the other," she said. "I couldn't believe what I was seeing, so I went outside and my dog was running all around like crazy."

Martha Russell in San Benito said her swimming pool had 4-foot waves around 9 a.m.

"The deck was all wet like it had been raining," she said. "When it leaped up, it scared my yard man half to death."

Tremors from the quake's epicenter were also felt in other Texas cities such as Houston, where skyscrapers swayed and blinds slapped against windows.

Volanda Walker said her Brownsville National Bank couldn't contact Mexico and was unable to transfer funds. And San Antonio's Frost National Bank also reported that the earthquake halted transactions with Mexico financial institutions on Thursday.

EARTHQUAKE HORROR — Ruth Arauza of Abilene holds up a copy of the Mexican newspaper El Sol de Mexico which she brought back from Mexico City, where she and her husband Isabel were vacationing. They arrived on a Mexicana Airlines flight at Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport late Thursday, where she stopped to telephone relatives.

Officials ponder seat belt law effect on auto rates

AUSTIN (AP) — The State Board of Insurance has postponed a decision on auto rates after hearing conflicting views of what the seat belt law should mean to ratepayers.

The board staff has recommended a 1.3 percent overall average rate cut that would slice $35 million from premiums. The insurance industry wants a 10.6 percent, $288 million hike.

Specific rates vary widely, depending on location, type of vehicle, age of driver and use of the vehicle. The board took no action after hearing several hours of testimony Thursday.

Chairman Lyndon Olson gave no indication on when the rates would be set.

As a result of a law approved this year, Texans riding in the front seat of vehicles must wear seat belts. State officials expect the law to greatly reduce deaths and injuries in wrecks.

Gaylon Daniel, the board's staff actuary, said his Thursday recommendation to the board includes a projected 15 percent cut in losses to insurance companies as a result of the seat belt law. That projection was based on 50 percent compliance with the law.

"There is not a calculation I'd say is concrete. This is a case where judgment is involved very heavily," he said in response to board members' questions. "We know not everybody will use seat belts even though the law says they should."

Industry spokesman Charles Bryan told the board, "There is no question that there will be a reduction in losses paid as a result."

But Bryan, chief actuary for USAA insurance company in San Antonio, also said, "We cannot be sure of the ultimate effect until we have several years of insurance experience from which to deal."

The Texas Automobile Insurance Service Office recommendation figured in a 10.4 percent cut in losses as a result of seat belt use. The TAIISO proposal is based on 40 percent compliance with the seat belt law, Bryan said.

While the seat belt law could lower rates, recent Texas Supreme Court rulings could counteract some of that decrease. The staff recommendation takes into account the high court ruling that a person who wins a personal injury lawsuit — such as that can arise from a car wreck — can collect interest calculated back to the time of the injury.

Also figured in is a Supreme Court decision throwing out the state's Guest Statute.

Authorities hunt for van

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A white van with faded red lettering was the target of a police search, launched after a banker's wife was slain in an alleged extortion plot.

FBI spokesman Pat Cowley said a witness noticed a van, described as an older model with no side windows, in the neighborhood about the time Rebecca Jo Patton was shot to death Wednesday.

"The person who saw it believes it said 'air conditioning' or something like that," Cowley said.

"What if any connection it has to this event is unknown," he said, "but we are trying to identify that van and the driver."

Authorities said they found the 42-year-old Mrs. Patton dead in her home in affluent Alamo Heights after her husband received a telephone call from an alleged extortionist.

The caller told Frank Patton Jr., president of Castle Hills National Bank, to take a large amount of money to North Star Mall and wait for another telephone call.

Cowley said some money was put together at the bank and taken to the mall, but he would not say how much.

Patton called police immediately. They went to the home and found the body.

Cowley and other authorities have said they have no suspects.

Investigators returned to the neighborhood Thursday to question residents and "see if anyone saw that van," Cowley said.

Mrs. Patton was shot several times with a small caliber weapon and there were no signs of a struggle, he said.

He said he could not theorize on why the woman was shot before the extortion money was turned over.

The Bexar County Medical Examiner's office ruled the death a homicide Thursday.

Mrs. Patton's death was announced during Wednesday night services at First Presbyterian Church, where a minister said she was very active.

"We all prayed. There were lots of tears," said the Rev. Jim Singleton, a pastor at the church. "She was one of the cutest, most attractive people. She was so loving, caring and compassionate."

Singleton said Mrs. Patton and her husband worked with junior high youth.

"She has been about as model a youth advisor as you'd want to see," he said. "She's a tremendous mother. Those kids are so well-adjusted."

The Pattons have two daughters, Amy, 14, and Kathleen, 10.

Singleton said Louis Zbinden, the lead minister of the church, was at the house shortly after the shooting was discovered and he identified the body.

Airline passengers tell of fear, effects of earthquake

GRAPEVINE, Texas (AP) — Passengers stepping off Mexicana Airlines Flight 790 at Dallas-Fort Worth Airport still quivered from the intense shaking they felt and destruction they witnessed hours earlier in Mexico City.

"It was terrible," said Ruth Arauza, a hairdresser from Abilene whose four-day vacation in Mexico ended with Thursday's devastating earthquake. "It was like the end of the world."

As she and her husband cleared U.S. Customs, Mrs. Arauza held up a Mexican newspaper. A page-one headline in 3-inch-deep black letters read: "Horror, Muerto" (Horror and death).

"It was devastating," said Roberto Lopez, a student at Iberoamericana University in Mexico City. "I've never seen anything like it."

Flight 790 landed at 8:15 p.m. CDT Thursday, carrying students, vacationers and businessmen, many who were in their hotel rooms 12 hours earlier when the earthquake rolled through central Mexico. Buildings were toppled, fires ignited and at least 60 people were killed in the capital city of 17 million.

"It banged me against the walls," said Steve Tatum of Oklahoma City, whose hotel was three blocks from downtown Mexico City. "I'd compare it to being in the middle of the ocean during a storm."

Outside, he said, "It looked like they had been in a war zone. You couldn't get through the center of town."

Lopez, driving into the city to get to the airport, said he saw numerous ambulances, people with blood running down their faces and school children in the streets crying "Mommy, where are you?"

"A lot of people were running around in their pajamas," he said.

Jean Benaar of Tulsa, Okla., said she had been advised to stay in the Hotel Reforma because the

Hearings scheduled on Delta crash

DALLAS (AP) — The National Transportation Safety Board said it has scheduled hearings beginning Oct. 29 on the crash of Delta Air Lines Flight 191, which killed 136 people.

A transcript of the cockpit voice recorder on the flight, which crashed on final approach Aug. 2 at Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport, will be released on Sept. 30.

Texas couple flees Mexico resort

DALLAS (AP) — It wasn't the best way to end an anniversary celebration, but Dale Zolnai and his wife, P.J., say they're just happy to be alive.

The Zolnais had been vacationing in the Mexican resort city of Ixtapa when a mighty earthquake rumbled off the Pacific coast Thursday morning, spreading devastation throughout central Mexico.

Zolnai, 45, was about to check out of the 10-story Krystal Hotel when the lobby's ceiling began to crumble from the shocks sweeping in from the earthquake just 40 miles away.

"I thought, 'Oh my God, my wife is on the fifth floor,'" Zolnai recalled from his Dallas suburban home Thursday afternoon. "I ran up those stairs in 10 seconds, grabbed her and we ran for our lives."

"Huge chunks of cement and glass started crashing down," said the Defense Department staff specialist. "The desk clerk jumped over the counter and everybody ran out into the open lobby."

Zolnai and his wife, 38, had gone to Ixtapa to celebrate their first anniversary, and the fete "definitely ended in a big bang."

"TVs were flying everywhere," Mrs. Zolnai said. "It was just a mess — some hotels looked fine on the outside but were terrible inside, and some swimming pools cracked. I'm still shaking."

Zolnai said he and his wife were able to get out of the hotel "without a scratch" and then saw that "waves were hitting the hotel. The water is usually at least 80 feet away. The damage was just massive."

The pair managed to flag down a taxi to flee to the airport, and during the 15-minute ride, "we saw boulders, trees and cars lying everywhere. But we couldn't tell how many people were hurt," Zolnai said.

Mrs. Zolnai said she and her husband boarded a plane that then was rerouted from the devastated Mexico City area north to Puerto Vallarta.

"We must have been the first plane to get out of there," she said. "I just thank God we were lucky enough to get out when we did."

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Government plan should be derailed

First the government decided to get into the railroad business. There's Amtrak, the government-run passenger railroad, and Conrail, the government-run freight railroad.

Now the government's going to get into the employee-counseling business. Specifically, it's going to start a program to counsel all railroad employees—not just those of the government-run lines—on the evils of mixing alcohol with work.

Quite possibly, such a program will fill a need. A 1979 study by the Federal Railroad Administration found that nearly one out of four railroad operating employees was a problem drinker. But we question the way the government's going about it.

Although Alcoholics Anonymous has been around for ages, alcohol and drug rehabilitation programs are a growth industry in tune with these trendy times. So much so, in fact, that many private companies now offer help—either footing the bill or offering time off to attend some sort of program for alcohol and drug-addicted employees.

A whole host of companies has jumped into the counseling business, lobbying employers, running advertisements here and there, and, in general, doing their best to drum up business.

In search of just these sorts of programs, did the government turn to the private sector? Not really. The House last week instead approved a bill that requires the Department of Transportation to help create—you guessed it—a "private" non-profit corporation to do exactly what many private firms already are doing—counseling employees (in this case, railroad employees) on their alcohol problems.

Faced with a choice between using existing programs or creating new ones, the government invariably chooses the latter course. If the government wants railroad employees to receive counseling, then it should steer them in the direction of existing firms that already offer that service, not create a new one.

The Senate approved a railroad safety bill earlier this year, so a House-Senate conference committee now gets a chance to put the legislation in order. The plan to create a counseling firm should be stopped dead in its tracks. That's a heck of a way to run a railroad.

An answer to terrorism

During and just after the TWA 847 hostage crisis in June, there seemed to be an enraged conservative on every street corner demanding that President Reagan retaliate instantly and effectively. If anybody inquired against whom this retaliation was to be directed, how its success was to be assured, or even whether the lives of the hostages were to be forfeited in the process, he got very little in the way of specific and satisfactory answers.

Still, the basic impulse behind the demands for retaliation was perfectly sound, and the objection that ways and means were and still are difficult to visualize doesn't alter that fact in the least. What was inexcusable about the conservatives' criticism of Ronald Reagan was not their desire for retaliation against the terrorists, but their infantile insistence upon its instant gratification. Bulge-eyed hysterics like that simply don't live in the real world.

Alvin Bernstein does. In fact, he is chairman of the Department of Strategy at the U.S. Naval War College in Newport, R.I. And recently, while serving as a Visiting Fellow at the Heritage Foundation in Washington, he drafted a paper in which he asks — and answers — the tough questions that the June Thunderers glided noiselessly past.

Who is behind these terrorist attacks — not just the TWA 847 hijacking, but the bombing of our Beirut embassy, the Marine barracks, and the embassy annex? Professor Bernstein refuses to get bogged down in the maze of overlapping Shi'ite sects in Lebanon. His answer is that the terrorist groups are all trained, equipped and broadly directed by the Islamic Revolutionary Guard Corps, a separate ministry of the government of Iran and "almost certainly the most powerful organization" in that country. The short answer to the question, "Who is behind the terrorists?" therefore is: Iran.

Very well; now, what can the United States do to Iran to deter future acts of terrorism and retaliate for past ones?

We must be careful here. An outright declaration of total war against Iran would probably drive that wretched country, sooner or later, into the Soviet Union's waiting arms. Instead, Professor Bernstein argues, Iran is highly vulnerable to U.S. attacks on arms shipments in Iranian vessels and aircraft on or over the world's oceans — including, but not limited to, such home waters as the Persian Gulf and the Arabian Sea. Such attacks could be carried out by relatively small U.S. naval and air units, out of sight of the world's media, without risk to civilians, at a gratifyingly low cost in U.S. casualties, and without capture of U.S. personnel. The reduction in Iran's arms flow would seriously handicap it in its war against Iraq, and the tourniquet could be eased or tightened by the United States at will. Best of all, Iran's ability to retaliate effectively against the United States is relatively small, and its options few.

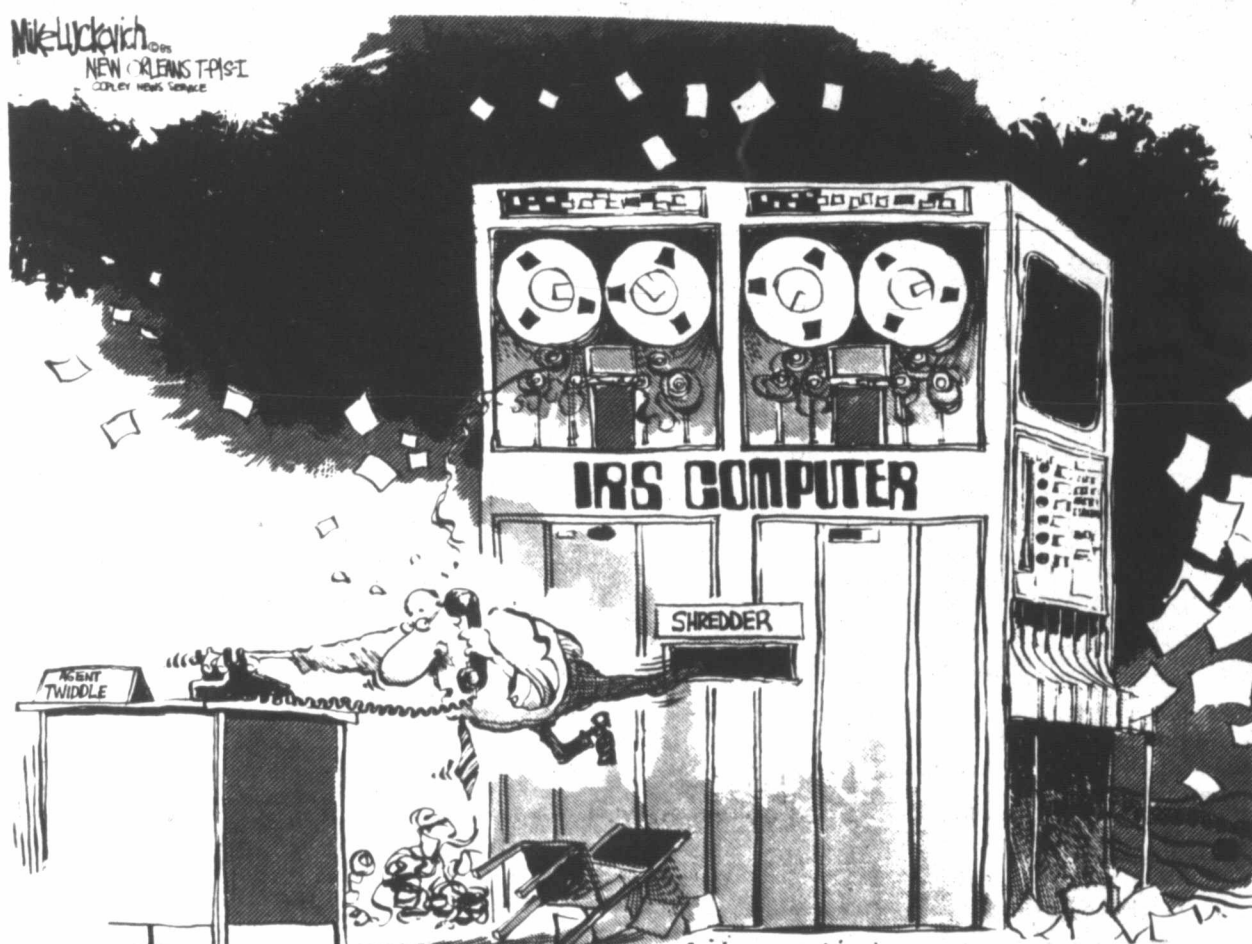

As Professor Bernstein points out, "All the Iranians could do is what they have been doing — and what they will surely continue to do anyway as long as it costs them nothing." The United States, on the other hand, could easily launch attacks on Iranian naval patrol boats and reconnaissance aircraft if it ran out of arms carriers.

"But that would be war!" Yes — exactly the kind of low-intensity war that Iran is now waging so effectively against the United States.

Perhaps there are even better ideas for striking at America's implacable enemies in the Middle East, but Professor Bernstein's proposal is one of the first, and arguably the best, yet to surface. What is certain is that retaliation there must be. Those conservatives who defended President Reagan against his right-wing critics last June placed their faith in his patient determination to select and order an appropriate response. Just possibly, Professor Bernstein's proposal is the solution.

Today in History

By The Associated Press
Today is Friday, Sept. 20, the 263rd day of 1985. There are 102 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:
On Sept. 20, 1519, Portuguese navigator Ferdinand Magellan set out from Spain on a voyage to find a western passage to the Indies. Magellan was killed en route, but one of his ships eventually circled the globe.

On this date:
In 1870, Italian troops took control of the Papal States, leading to the unification of Italy.

Ten years ago: Sargeant Shriver announced in Washington, D.C., he would seek the 1976 Democratic presidential nomination.

Five years ago: Iran and Iraq reported new ground and air battles along their disputed border.
One year ago: A car bomber attacked the U.S. Embassy annex in suburban Beirut. The explosion in front of the building killed more than a dozen people, including the driver.

Today's birthdays: Former Boston Celtics Basketball Coach Red Auerbach is 68. Psychologist Joyce Brothers is 57. Actress-comedian Anne Meara is 56. Actress Sophia Loren is 51. Former hockey player Guy Lafleur is 34.

Can we bypass the hen?

Our adventuring in space is paying its way "with interest."

Fallout from our starships includes benefits we might never otherwise have known — electronic, mechanical, metallurgical, medical.

The next shuttle mission next year has scheduled an experiment which can be performed only in weightless environment. It involves 32 chicken eggs.

It is impossible for NASA to include more than a selected few experiments each mission. Elimination is accomplished through National Science Competition. One winner of that competition is John Vellingger of Purdue University's School of Agriculture.

Vellingger has researched the process by which a hen produces eggs and then hatches those eggs. The hen somehow seems to know that she must move about, rolling these eggs over at intervals. Otherwise gravity would cause the yolks to settle to the bottom and the embryo could not develop properly.

The hen on the nest rotates each egg five times each day.

Though it takes 21 days for an egg to hatch, the chick's main development takes place during the first 11 days.

Working in a Louisville laboratory, Vellingger designed a cradling carrier which can fit into the locker of a space shuttle.

The carrier is heated and cushioned to protect chicken eggs from gravitational phenomena, liftoff thrust and whatever vibration might be encountered.

His idea is for these incubated eggs to be returned to earth and to remain at Kennedy Space Center for the ensuing 10 days until they hatch.

Alongside these will be a second control group of similar eggs simultaneously incubated on the ground.

In space it is assumed that because of zero gravity there will be no need to turn the eggs five times a day — unless, of course, the hen knows something that we don't yet know about the significance of this frequent movement.

There are certain parallels in the development of the human embryo.

From what happens to these eggs we will learn more and may learn enough about whether humans can reproduce themselves in a weightless environment.

Certainly we will learn whether chickens can be raised in space as a food source.

I have identified John Vellingger with Purdue University. He is not a professor; he is a student there.

Indeed, when he conceived the idea for this experiment and submitted it to NASA's National Science Competition he was a 15-year-old schoolboy!

Which came first, the chicken or the egg?

Well, only the hen knows for sure and she is daring us to do this without her.

Time gentle to Gorbachev

In the approach to the Summit Conference there is a big propaganda battle going on between Ronald Reagan and the Soviet Union's General Secretary Mikhail Gorbachev. It's an interesting competition.

Suppose I told you that the No. 1 news magazine in America — Time — had just run an exclusive interview with Reagan. Time precedes the interview with a portrait of Reagan. He has — we are told — "naturally controlled energy." Reagan, Time tells us, "dominates a meeting with three extraordinary tools." What are Reagan's remarkable tools? Why, his eyes, his hands and his voice.

His eyes — oh, his eyes. They will "lock into a listener and not let go until the listener gives some sign of acknowledgment, agreement — or flinches." What else about those eyes? They "are neither harsh nor kind. They are big and strong, and sometimes quick, too."

How about Reagan's hands? They "have a variety of specific functions."

(Stop the presses!) The right one holds his glasses. But "the left hand talks." It can "lecture" or "declaim" or "thump... karate style" — but "always quite gently." (A gentle karate chop?)

And his voice? It is "deep, but also quite soft... melodious." But sometimes, "without warning, his voice can cut across the room... not angry or bullying, just stronger than any other sound in the room."

Reagan! What a man! Put it all together: "Occasionally the eyes, the hands, and the voice reach peak power at the same time, and then it is clear why this man is president."

Oops, sorry. "General secretary" — not "president." The howler above is from Time's cover story on Gorbachev, not Reagan. Time submitted six puff questions in writing in advance to Gorbachev — a practice rarely offered to American politicians. Then five top Time journalists spent two hours talking to this remarkable leader who actually has eyes, hands and voice. Their questions make a slow-pitch softball pitcher look like Dwight Gooden.

Here are some of them: What are your impressions of President Reagan? Do U.S. anti-satellite testing and spy-dust charges damage the summit? Do you enjoy mingling with workers? Are people afraid of you? Only one question — about why the Soviet Union is taking an all-or-nothing position on space weapons — even half-challenges Gorbachev.

Time did not ask a question about Afghanistan, and why the Soviets are committing genocide there — a million people have already been killed. They did not ask about human rights in the Soviet Union, did not ask about the health of Andrei Sakharov or Anatoly Scharansky. Time did not ask why the Soviets feel it is all right for them to have space weapons, but not us. Time did not ask about the Soviet repression of Poland. They did not ask why communism has lost its appeal around the world.

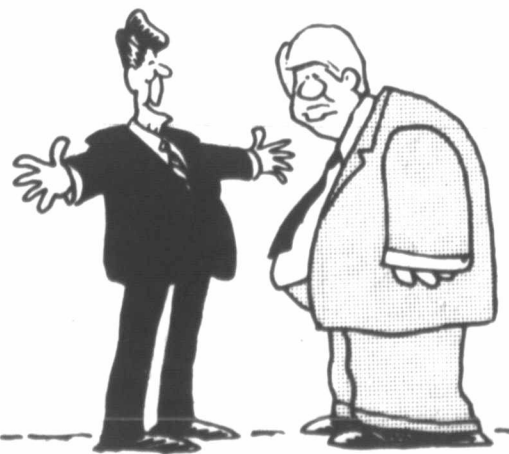

Time's editors did not even have the sense of decency to laugh out loud when Gorbachev — who came to power as the protégé of former KGB chief Andropov — said that his policies "have led to a... flowering of our democracy." They did not laugh when Gorbachev sorrowfully noted a global condition where "hundreds of millions of people go hungry" — including those in Afghanistan whose food supply is being scorched by the Soviet military.

Would Time interview Reagan without challenging him about his problems — "South Africa, deficits, civil rights?"

It has been noted that there is an unfair aspect to the propaganda battle between us and the Soviets. We have a free and critical press; they have a controlled applause factory. That lets them try to play our media like a violin without fear of being undercut at home. We can live with that imbalance, and even prosper. But it is not asking too much of our press to — at least — be as critical of our adversaries, as they are of us.

Nicaragua seeks U.S. compensation

THE HAGUE, Netherlands (AP) — Nicaragua today asked the World Court to order the United States to pay $375 million for allegedly breaking international law by trying to topple the leftist Sandinista regime.

In his summary of the Nicaraguan position in the U.S.-Nicaragua aggression case, Carlos Arguello, head of the Sandinista legal team at the court, said that "as a consequence of the (United States') violation of international law, compensation is due to Nicaragua."

"Nicaragua asks the court to award the sum of $375 million in compensation from the United States, which reflects the minimum direct damage suffered by Nicaragua as a result of the United States' violations of international law."

Arguello was referring to the U.S. government's alleged support to the Contra rebels fighting the Managua government. The Reagan administration maintains that only "non-lethal" aid is being given the Contras.

Arguello also asked the tribunal, officially known as the International Court of Justice, to rule "in clear terms" that the United States must "bring to an end" its support to the Contras.

In his summation, Arguello charged that the "policy of the 'big stick' has permeated, and still permeates, the attitude of the United States towards Latin America, a policy that has been applied with particular cruelty to Nicaragua."

The U.S. government has boycotted the proceedings in the case, claiming the Nicaraguan government is using the World Court as a "propaganda forum." It also maintains that the court, the judicial arm of the United Nations, has no jurisdiction.

The World Court, presided over by Indian judge Nagendra Singh, has no enforcement powers and depends on voluntary compliance with its rulings.

Arguello's presentation to the court caps seven days of testimony and arguments before the 15-member panel.

On Thursday, Abram Chayes, a Harvard University law professor arguing for Nicaragua, charged that the rebels were "under the direct command of U.S. military and intelligence officers, including direct operational command in the course of their attacks."

U.S. financial support was "the life blood of the Contras," said Chayes, legal adviser to the State Department in the Kennedy administration.

Phillippine soldiers fire at demonstrators

BACOLOD, Philippines (AP) — The military said soldiers opened fire today on demonstrators protesting the 13th anniversary of President Ferdinand E. Marcos' declaration of martial law, killing 14 people. Troops arrested 172 protesters in another demonstration in Cebu City.

Regional military commander Brig. Gen. Isidro de Guzman said that in addition to those killed, four people were seriously injured during the clash in Escalante, about 60 miles east of Bacolod, the provincial capital on Negros Island.

He did not say whether any police or soldiers were injured.

The incident was the bloodiest protest violence in two years of rallies and marches against Marcos' government following the Aug. 21, 1983 assassination of opposition leader Benigno Aquino in Manila.

In an interview broadcast over a Bacolod radio station, de Guzman said, "The incident started when the demonstrators assaulted troopers when they were dispersed." Witnesses said the police fired on the crowd.

The protests were among strikes and rallies on the eve of the anniversary of Marcos' declaration of martial law in 1972, an official national holiday.

Martial rule was lifted in January 1981, but protesters still denounce Marcos as a dictator.

De Guzman said no demonstrators were arrested in Escalante because they fled after the bloodshed.

Defense minister resigns

PARIS (AP) — Defense Minister Charles Hernu resigned today, a day after President Francois Mitterrand ordered a reorganization of the security service because of the Greenpeace scandal, the premier's office said.

Premier Laurent Fabius also recommended to Mitterrand that the head of France's main espionage agency be fired. France has said members of its espionage agency, the General Directorate for External Security (DGSE), were in Auckland, New Zealand, when the environmentalist organization's flagship, the Rainbow Warrior, was sunk at its berth July 10 by two mines attached to the hull. A crew member was killed.

JON JONES

Church plans 'Come Home' special series

The Mary Ellen and Harvester Church of Christ will have its Come Home Meeting II beginning Sunday and running through Wednesday. Featured speaker will be Jon Jones of Fort Worth.

Jones will be teaching the Combined Adult Class in the auditorium at 9:30 a.m. Sunday and will bring the message for the 10:30 a.m. worship service. A fellowship luncheon will follow the morning service.

Evening services will be held at 6 p.m. Sunday and at 7:30 p.m. Monday through Wednesday. A fellowship will follow each service Monday through Wednesday.

Jones will be speaking at each of these meetings. He also will teach the Wednesday morning Ladies Bible Class, which will be followed by a luncheon.

Born and reared in Texas, Jones is a graduate of Abilene Christian University. He has served the Richland Hills congregation in Fort Worth since 1977. Previous to that, he served congregations in Texas, Alabama and Florida.

His service has included nine years at the Central Church of Christ in Miami, Fla., and five years at the University Church of Christ in Austin. He was minister of the Mary Ellen and Harvester Church of Christ from 1956 through 1960.

Jones has appeared on lectureship programs and has conducted numerous religious seminars through the United States and in many foreign countries. He has written articles for the Firm Foundation, 20th Century Christian and Power for Today.

He serves on the Advisory Board of Abilene Christian University. He is married to the former Joan Brooks of Amarillo. They have three children, Jan Patterson, Jeff Jones and Julie Brown, all graduates of Abilene Christian University.

Free Will Baptist schedules revival

Evangelist Burton Perry of Oklahoma will be heading a revival series Sunday through Friday at the Free Will Baptist Church, 326 N. Rider.

Services will begin nightly at 7:30 p.m.

A widely known minister and evangelist, Brother Perry is leader of the Oklahoma Home Mission Board of Free Will Baptist.

Rev. L. C. Lynch, pastor, said the revival will feature Bible preaching, gospel singing and special musical numbers.

Pastor Lynch invited the public to "come and enjoy a refreshing week of worshipping the Lord."

Religion Roundup

CROMWELL, Conn. (AP) — Roman Catholic emphasis on recruiting only young men is partly to blame for the shrinking number of priests, says the director of a campaign to recruit older men as priests.

The Rev. Francis Fajella told National Catholic News Service that church officials "came into the church at an early age, so it's difficult for them to perceive being anything but young to become a priest."

Fajella, a member of the Missionaries of the Holy Apostles, directs his order's Second Career Vocation Project headquartered here. The project seeks to recruit men of 40 to 60 for the priesthood.

Fajella, who was ordained at 43, said that only since the mid-1800's has the church focused on recruiting young priests. Before 1850, he said only 20 percent of new priests were young. But since then, the church has tended to exclude what previously had been "the norm of older men becoming priests."

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Baptist World Alliance, which includes 131 Baptist denominations totalling about 34 million members in 93 countries, is scheduled to move Oct. 1 from its offices in the nation's capital to suburban McLean, Va.

Catholic women get post-abortion help

By LAURA A. SALSINI
Associated Press Writer

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Roman Catholic women who have had abortions can now get spiritual help through a church program that emphasizes forgiveness and reconciliation.

Project Rachel, named after the Old Testament figure who wept over the loss of her child, seeks to bring healing to the psychic wounds of women who have terminated pregnancies.

"We led the pack in opposition to abortion, so we ought to lead the pack in reconciliation," says Vicki Thorn, coordinator of the program. "We've got an awful lot of walking wounded."

She said the program, which began last October under the auspices of the Milwaukee Archdiocese, does not contradict Catholic canon law, which says women who have had abortions face excommunication in certain circumstances.

"The church has always said every sin is forgivable," Mrs. Thorn said. "The church really cares about the pain of these women."

She added that priests involved don't tell women who participate in the program that they made the right choice.

"She wouldn't be there if she thought she made the right choice," Mrs. Thorn said. "The hardest part for a woman who's had an abortion is to forgive herself. Once she knows God has forgiven her, she can forgive herself."

herself. Once she knows God has forgiven her, she can forgive herself."

About 20,000 abortions are performed in Wisconsin annually, and Mrs. Thorn estimates that at least a third of those involve Catholic women.

A small faction within the diocese has objected to the program, but Mrs. Thorn attributes that opposition to a lack of understanding.

"They think we're selling short the church's stand on life," she said. "These women have to come to grips with God. The priest is there to reconcile her."

The 70 priests involved in the program, all trained in post-abortion counseling, have expressed their support of Project Rachel.

Rev. John Brophy, a pastor at St.

Gregory the Great, said helping these women "is the church at its best. It's offering them mercy."

Rev. Joe Jukialis, an associate pastor at Christ King Church, said the women "find a sense of peace" through the counseling. He emphasized, however, the church's unyielding opposition to abortion.

"We're saying, how does the church respond to the issue after the fact," he explained.

In Mississippi

Southern Baptists reporting new spirit of racial rapport

By PHYLLIS MESSINGER
Associated Press Writer

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Mississippi's Southern Baptists, the last in the denomination to establish black churches, have opened two in the last year in what they say is a new spirit of racial cooperation.

"It was strictly because of racial relations that we didn't have black churches before this," said Jim Dalrymple, associate director of missions in the Gulfport area. "It boils down to a new willingness to work together."

Both of the state's black Southern Baptist churches are on the Gulf Coast.

"This is still something that is somewhat regional in Mississippi," he said. "The coast area, the Jackson area and north Mississippi near Memphis (Tenn.) are most receptive to the idea."

For years, Baptists in the South joined denominations divided along racial lines. Southern Baptists were the largest of the predominantly white groups, while the National Baptist Convention was the biggest of the black organizations.

The Rev. Rossi Francis, pastor of one of the two black Southern Baptist churches, said he has encountered no problems from white Southern Baptists. In fact, he said, "there's an eagerness because they're realizing that we're all heading in the same direction."

In Mississippi, Southern Baptists have about 600,000 members, while the General Missionary Baptist Convention, affiliated with the National Baptists, has about 300,000.

The two groups agree on theology but have different methods of operating, with the National Baptists relying more on pastoral leadership and the Southern Baptists giving the congregation more of a voice on policy and financial matters.

In the last decade or so, the lines between the groups have become more blurred.

Press guidelines not aimed at censoring Baptist agency

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Proposed guidelines for the Southern Baptist Convention's news agency are not intended to censor coverage, a church official says.

A panel was appointed to study guidelines for the Baptist Press, which publishes about 1,000 articles a year for 450 news outlets.

"Guidelines will help Baptist Press maintain a high level of responsibility to John Q. Baptist," said the Rev. Jimmy Jackson of Huntsville, Ala., a member of the convention's executive committee and chairman of the study group.

"We're not talking about a limitation of freedom. But we do want to assure that all individuals are given a fair shake in Baptist Press," he said as the executive committee ended a three-day meeting.

Guidelines were proposed this year after Judge Paul Pressler of Houston, a conservative executive committee member, complained of unfair coverage.

Wilber C. Fields, head of the Baptist Press, gave the panel a preliminary guideline draft, outlining operating policies the agency has followed for years.

The study group reviewed the draft and requested further study until a February meeting of the executive committee, which must give final approval of the proposal.

Jackson said some guidelines may be strengthened. "We live in a climate in our country now — not just in our denomination — where lawsuits and complaints, at industry and corporate levels and elsewhere, are common," he said.

"There are more and more reasons to spell out such guidelines and give the scheme of our thinking," he said.

In other action, the chairman of a panel appointed this year to help heal the rift between moderates and conservatives asked executive committee members "to pray daily for the peace committee and grow not weary in doing it."

Pampa Bible Church sets fall conference

The Bible Church of Pampa, 300 W. Browning, is having its fourth annual Fall Bible Conference this weekend, with services scheduled for Saturday and Sunday.

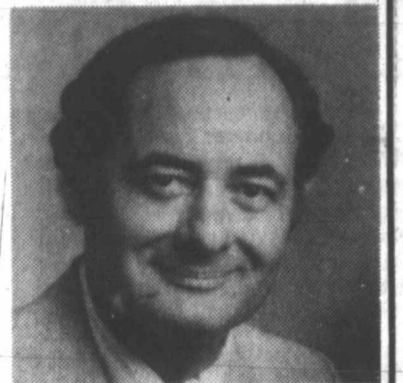

Featured speaker will be Dr. Kenneth Gangel, chairman and professor of Christian Education at Dallas Theological Seminary in Dallas.

Theme of this year's conference is "What the Bible Says About Worship."

Rev. Roger Hubbard, pastor, said, "There are a lot of people engaging in worship today without even knowing what the Bible says about it. We are excited to have Dr. Gangel show us what the Bible says about worshipping God."

The two-day conference will have four services. The first will be held at 7 p.m. Saturday. Professor Gangel's first lesson is entitled "Worship as Spirituality."

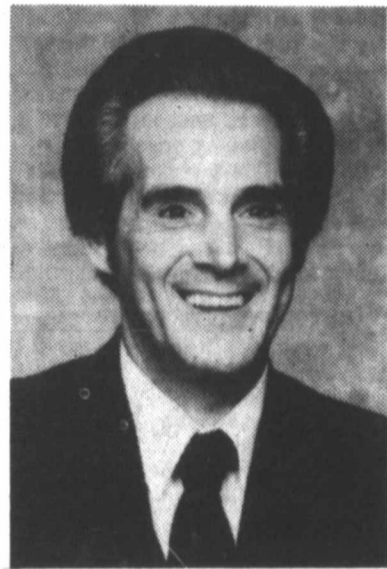

The three meetings on Sunday will be at 10 a.m., 11 a.m. and 6:30 p.m. The titles of Dr. Gangel's Sunday messages are "Worship as Supplication," "Worship as Submission" and "Worship as Service."

DR. KENNETH GANGEL

Elizabeth Gangel, Dr. Gangel's wife, will present a special lesson for the women at 3 p.m. Sunday entitled "Worship and Your Heart."

REV. J. D. STUMP

Church conducts revival services

Rev. J. D. Stump, national evangelist for the Church of God, is conducting revival services through Sunday at the Pampa Church of God, 1123 Gwendolyn.

Services will be held nightly at 7:30 p.m. today and Saturday and at 6 p.m. Sunday.

Stump has served as an evangelist and pastor for the past 26 years. He has pastored in Kentucky, Illinois, Ohio and Michigan and evangelized in West Virginia, North Carolina, Illinois, Ohio and Virginia.

He served as director of State Evangelism and Home Missions in Michigan from 1982 to 1984. He has also served on state councils, state Boards of Education, state Evangelism and Home Mission Boards and many other state committees.

When not in revival, Rev. Stump resides in Taylor, Mich., with his wife, Brenda.

Pastor T. L. Henderson invited the public to attend the special revival services.

Pampa ABWA plans Fall Enrollment Event

Pampa's charter chapter of the American Business Women's Association (ABWA) plans its Fall Enrollment Event, at 2 p.m., Sunday, at Lovett Memorial Library meeting room. Any employed women interested in joining ABWA are welcome to attend the event.

ABWA's Fall Enrollment Event focuses on the growing spirit of ABWA to unite working women for personal and professional advancement in today's business world, said Nancy Dunlap, chapter president. The event is also the local chapter's observance of American Business Women's Day.

Founded in 1949, ABWA is a national organization with more than 2,100 chapters and a membership of 110,000 women employed in all aspects and on all levels of business throughout the United States and Puerto Rico.

The national association is dedicated to the professional, educational, cultural and social advancement of women. Last year, ABWA chapters awarded more than $2.5 million in scholarships to women students. In addition, the ABWA national scholarship fund awarded more than $400,000 during the same period.

Women who are employed are eligible for membership. For further information about ABWA and this special event, interested business women should contact Babe Mastin, membership chairman, at 665-2665 or Bessie Franklin, Enrollment Event chairman, 669-7514.

OLD RURAL COUPLE—Make Amos and Agnes Appleknocker the newest additions to your youngster's doll family, or put them in your own collection. These elderly charmers are each more than three feet tall. Amos wears bib overalls and boy's size five shirt. Agnes' cotton print dress is trimmed in lace.

Charming old couple easy to make

By STEVIE BALDWIN

Like old pets, old wine and especially old money, old dolls make you comfortable. Years in the doll school of hard knocks, tugs and pulls have given Amos and Agnes Appleknocker virtues such as homespun dignity and unquestioning love.

This adorably rustic old couple are each more than three feet tall. Ready for a day in the front-porch rocker, Amos wears bib overalls and a boy's size five shirt. The sleeves, neckline and front of Agnes' cotton print dress are trimmed in lace.

To make the bodies, you'll need five pounds of fiberfill, 1 1/2 yards of 45-inch, flesh tone, single knit polyester and two pairs of regular weave, flesh tone pantyhose or four nylon stockings. You'll also need 1 1/2 yards of 45-inch cotton print fabric for Agnes' dress, 1 1/2 yards of 45-inch denim for Amos' overalls, and two 8x45 inch pieces of corduroy (one black and one blue) for the shoes.

First, cut two body pieces and stitch them right sides together. Leave a four-inch neck opening and three-inch armholes. Leave the lower edge open as well. Clip the corners, turn right side out, press the seam allowances along the neck to the inside and stuff firmly.

Cut one 8x14 inch arm piece and fold it in half lengthwise, right sides together. Stitch along the long edge, leaving both ends open. Turn right side out and stuff, then insert one end of the arm into an armhole and whipstitch the arm in place. If necessary, work through the neck opening to add stuffing at the shoulder. Make and attach another arm.

Stitch the 8x17 inch leg pieces in the same manner as the arms. Before turning and stuffing the legs, stitch one corduroy shoe to the end of each leg. The leg-shoe assemblies are then stuffed and basted to the lower edge of the front torso. Whipstitch the lower torso pieces together.

To form a head, tie a knot at the top of a hose leg. Cut across the leg 10 inches below the knot and turn the knot inside. Stuff the head until it is approximately 20 inches in circumference and tie the hose at the neck. Each hand is formed from an eight-inch circle of hose wrapped around a fiberfill ball.

Amos' and Agnes' facial features and fingers are soft sculpted. The faces are finished with acrylic paints. The hair, Amos' mustache, and his eyebrows are tufts of fiberfill.

If you would like to order plans for the Appleknocker dolls which include a complete materials list, step-by-step cutting and assembly instructions, detailed diagrams, full-size patterns and sewing tips and techniques, please specify Project No. 1324-2 and send $4.95. The price includes postage and handling. Mail to Makin' Things, Dept. 79065, P.O. Box 1000, Bixby, Okla., 74008.

Gena on Genealogy

By GENA WALLS

Family histories should include all members of the family. A familiar statement, "I haven't anything to write about myself. I stayed home and raised a family." Men write that they worked to support the family but have nothing for a character sketch. All of us cannot be presidents! We do have personalities or character!

Make a list of the volunteer positions that occupy your time. Are you active with your church? Perhaps you sing in the choir or teach a Sunday School class. Include the name of your church and the denomination. Many family religions have been proven with just one sentence of information.

Over the years, parents usually have participated in activities with their children which adds color to the character sketch. Have you been a room mother, scout leader, little league coach or carpool organizer? Do you remember a particular incident relating to an activity and your child? Whether it seems important, if you remember it clearly, write it in the history book. This is the part of your genealogy that will make you seem "real" and not just names on paper to future generations. Something as trivial as "I always fried chicken on Daddy's birthday," makes enjoyable reading for someone trying to get to know your family and its traditions.

A second list might be the different types of employment or hobbies or vacations. Include a physical description of your family listing height, weight, and coloring. Insert a photograph of all the members including any pets. Always identify everyone in the picture. You know who you are but will a third cousin 20 years from now remember your name?

Describe your home or include a sketch or picture of interior and exterior. Think about your book and what would make it meaningful to your descendants. The possibilities are endless.

Do you have a suggestion for a column, a query you would like published or a research question? Write me, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope for a personal reply: Gena Walls, 8825 S.W. Maverick Terrace No. 1009, Beaverton, Ore., 97005.

Dear Abby

More than faith needed to bridge religious gap

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am a devout Catholic girl in love with a strictly Orthodox Jewish guy, so I'm sure you know what we're up against. My parents met Daniel just once, briefly. I had told them that he was Catholic because I didn't want them to be prejudiced against him before they got to know him. When they know him, I'm sure they will love him as I do, then I'll tell them the truth.

However, Daniel told his parents he was dating a gentile girl and they haven't asked to meet me yet, so it looks like I'm going to have a hard time getting them to accept me.

How can Danny and I improve our chances for acceptance by both sets of parents? We're talking about marriage in June of 1986, and would like to have both a rabbi and a priest. Two of my uncles are priests (one is a Monsignor). Daniel's grandfather is a rabbi. Please help us.

RELIGIOUS DIFFERENCES

DEAR DIFFERENCES: First, you must tell your parents that Daniel is Jewish. Since you are seriously considering marriage, you must share your plans with both sets of parents—then talk to a priest and a rabbi and seek their counsel. The more you learn about the other's religion, the better your chances for happiness together—if that is to be. It's up to you. Your chances for a successful marriage will depend on you—not your parents.

DEAR ABBY: Please help me with this problem. I'm 52 and look young for my age. My problem is my nose. I think it's too large for my face. I had plastic surgery on it about 25 years ago, and it didn't turn out the way I had hoped it would. In the meantime I got married and had three children, who are all grown now.

Do you think I'm silly to want to have cosmetic surgery at my age? My nose is on my mind morning, noon and night.

Arms control deal is less likely now

By BARRY SCHWEID
AP Diplomatic Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's refusal to offer his "Star Wars" missile defense plan as a bargaining chip and a slowdown in U.S.-Soviet relations could mean his November meeting with Mikhail Gorbachev will be more of a "get-acquainted" session than the problem-solver some optimists had hoped for.

The Soviets apparently have no higher priority than stopping, or at least slowing down the futuristic research program on a shield against nuclear attack. Gorbachev hinted in an interview with Time magazine before Labor Day that he would look the other way as far as "research in fundamental science" was concerned.

But the Soviet leader proposed limiting "field tests" of the developing technology through a verifiable agreement with the United States. Presumably this could be tied to reductions in big, land-based Soviet intercontinental ballistic missiles.

The top U.S. goal in the arms control talks that re-opened this week in Geneva, Switzerland, is cutting back those missiles and the threat they pose to the American arsenal. The basis for a tradeoff — American concessions on Star Wars in exchange for Soviet concessions on offensive missiles — seemed a distinct possibility.

But Reagan vowed in his news conference this week not to give up testing or development for the Strategic Defense Initiative — popularly known as Star Wars — in exchange for deep Soviet reductions. And the State Department on Wednesday declared "certain kinds" of tests were permissible under the 1972 U.S.-Soviet Anti-Ballistic Missile Treaty.

"Technology moves along," a senior department official told reporters. He said the drafters of the treaty, which was signed at the 1972 summit by former president Richard Nixon and the late Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev were aware of science's relentless course.

The $26 billion research phase of SDI anticipates about a dozen "demonstrations," or field tests. Critics have warned that the treaty and the entire arms control process might unravel. But supporters of the Strategic Defense Initiative insist the United States would live up to its restrictions on anti-missile defenses.

There are still two months before Reagan and Gorbachev sit down in Geneva. The rough outline of their agenda has already been prepared, but an arms control agreement appears highly unlikely with the two sides so far apart.

Even the cultural, scientific, consular and air safety agreements that top U.S. officials said appeared in the bag in July have not been completed. They are small stuff in comparison to the arms control treaties signed at the 1972 and 1979 summit meetings, but were seen as contributing to an easing of superpower tensions.

The senior State Department official, who gave reporters a somewhat downbeat summit assessment, acknowledged he wished there was "more in the bin" for Reagan and Gorbachev to ratify in Geneva. But, he said, the agreements were not ready. Besides, he said, there was no point in preparing meaningless agreements to be signed by the leaders just for the sake of appearances.

Ever since Reagan proposed a summit in a letter to Gorbachev last March, he and his top advisers have pondered what kind of meeting should be held.

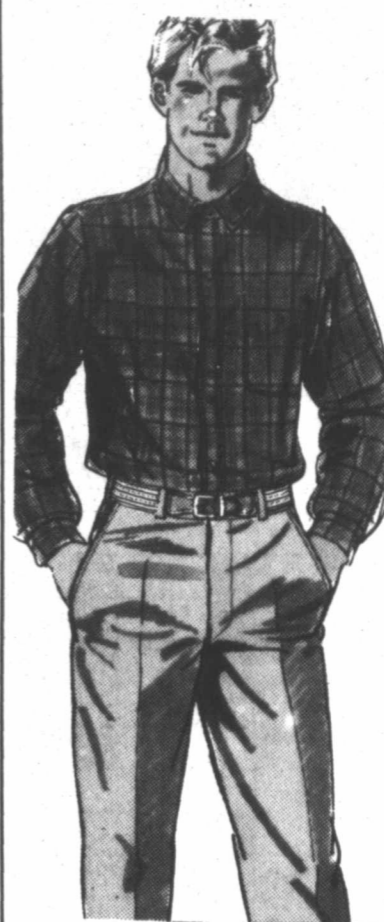

Reagan was inclined to the "get-acquainted" variety. "I would look on it as an opportunity to clear the air and express our desire to have a relationship that would eliminate this great threat that seems to hang over the world," he said.

At the other end of the spectrum was Secretary of State George Shultz. He told the Senate Appropriations Committee in April that "a pure and simple get-acquainted session was not the way to go." Shultz said the administration was trying to work out problems with the Soviets in order to "give some substance" to a Reagan-Gorbachev meeting.

Robert McFarlane, the president's national security adviser, stood someplace in the middle. He said "there need not be a specific agenda" but also stressed the importance of preparations.

If the U.S.-Soviet relationship continues on its current course, Reagan's view of a summit probably will prevail. He and Gorbachev would have a full range of problems to discuss over two days in Geneva. But there may not be much in the way of solutions for them to ratify.

Royals, Angels tied for lead

By JOHN NELSON
AP Sports Writer

Kansas City and California were tied, and the New York Yankees were fit to be.

In the closest division race in baseball, Seattle beat the Royals 6-4 to complete a four-game sweep, and the Angels shut out the Chicago White Sox 8-0 behind John Candelaria's six-hitter to produce a tie for the lead in the American League West.

The idle Toronto Blue Jays, meanwhile, took advantage of the Yankees' seventh straight loss, a 10-3 drubbing at Detroit, to expand their lead in the AL East by a half game to 5 1/2.

In the only other AL game Thursday night, Milwaukee beat Baltimore 5-2.

"I'm really enjoying this pennant race," said Candelaria, who came to the Angels last Aug. 2 in a trade from Pittsburgh and pitched his first shutout since July, 1984. "I've been in them before, and I know what it takes to be successful."

"If we keep playing the way we have, this thing is going to go down right to the end. Hopefully, we'll come out on top," Candelaria said.

The Tigers hit five home runs, including two by Darrell Evans, and chased newly acquired Joe Niekro in the second inning to further dampen New York's pennant hopes.

"It happens to great teams," Yankees manager Billy Martin said. "You can't give up. It's very frustrating. All of a sudden our pitchers stop pitching and our hitters stop hitting. Usually, you have one or the other. But both of them?"

Mariners 6, Royals 4

Alvin Davis and Dave Henderson doubled in Seattle's two-run ninth inning, boosting the Mariners to their 10th victory in 13 games and their ninth in 10 games this season against Kansas City.

"Now we're right back to opening day," Howser said. "I knew it would be close, but I didn't want it to be this close this late."

The Mariners tied the score 4-4 with two runs in the eighth off Dan Quisenberry, then beat the Royals' ace reliever in the ninth. Davis led off with a double and pinch-runner Ricky Nelson was sacrificed to third. Henderson doubled for the tie-breaking run and scored on a ### single by John Moses.

When Kansas City scored on Lonnie Smith's two-run homer in the fifth, it broke a club-record string of 30 scoreless innings. Darryl Motley added a two-run single in the seventh for the Royals.

Tigers 10, Yankees 3

The Tigers hit 13 homers in their three-game sweep of New York during which they outscored the Yankees 24-6. Five of the homers were by Evans, who took over the league lead from Chicago's Carlton Fisk by one with 36.

John Grubb, Kirk Gibson and Alan Trammell also homered for the Tigers.

SWC roundup

Longhorns favored over Missouri

By DENNEH. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

The Texas Longhorns finally open their 1985 season Saturday night as Southwest Conference football teams enter a busy intersectional period of their football schedules with only Southern Methodist idle.

The Longhorns are 10-point favorites in Austin over the Missouri Tigers, who lost last week to Northwestern.

In other games, Texas Christian was a 14-point favorite over Kansas State in a regionally televised game at noon from Manhattan, Kan.; Arkansas was a 10-point favorite over Tulsa in Little Rock; Baylor was an 11-point underdog to Southern California in Los Angeles in a night game; Texas Tech was a field goal choice over North Texas State in Lubbock; the Houston and Washington clash in the Astrodome was a pick'em affair. The Rice Owls were 14-point underdogs to Air Force, and the Texas Aggies were 15-point favorites over Northeastern Louisiana in a twilight (6 p.m.) kickoff at College Station.

The SWC is 6-4 against outside competition after breaking even last week.

Baylor faces a big task in beating USC on the road particularly since the Trojans are 18-1 against SWC teams. The Trojans have the best record in the nation against SWC clubs.

"They are the biggest football team I've ever seen," said Baylor Coach Grant Teaff. "How big are the Trojans? They have a freshman right guard who looks like a D-9 Caterpillar tractor," said Teaff.

Texas Tech is seeking to get off to a 3-0 start for the first time since 1960 defeating the Eagles in Lubbock. For Tulsa, it is the third of four games against SWC teams. The Golden Hurricane opened by beating Houston then lost to Texas Tech. Tulsa also plays Texas A&M.

"Tulsa has beefed up its schedule," said Arkansas Coach Ken Hatfield. "Playing Southwest Conference schools is a big incentive for them. They've played very well so far. They would rather beat Arkansas than any of the other Southwest Conference schools."

Texas is the next to last NCAA Division I school to start. Only Oklahoma has a later kickoff in 1985, waiting until next week to open its schedule. Texas Coach Fred Akers is keeping secret who will start at quarterback against the Tigers. It will either be Todd Dodge or Brett Stafford with both expected to play. The game also marks the debut of Texas freshman running back Eric Metcalf, the son of former St. Louis Cardinal great Terry Metcalf.

The SWC regular season begins next Saturday with Texas Tech at Baylor and Southern Methodist, currently ranked No. 5 in the nation, at Texas Christian.

Wrestling sign-up slated Saturday

Registration for the Pampa Road Runners Wrestling Club will be held Saturday at the Pampa Mall. The registration is for youngsters in the second grade through high school.

Workouts begin Sept. 30 at the Pampa Youth Center from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. Mondays, Tuesdays and Thursdays.

"If a youngster is already in another sport, he can come out for the wrestling team when that sport is finished," said Road Runners Coach Manny Holden.

Beside traveling to different tournaments throughout the year, the Pampa Club will host its first wrestling tourney Nov. 30 at McNeely Fieldhouse.

For more information, call Holden at 669-1856.

Shockers win

Kenny Stewart quarterbacked a well-paced offensive attack Thursday to lead the Pampa Shockers to a 30-6 victory over Palo Duro in a junior varsity football game at Harvester Stadium.

Stewart scored once from nine yards out and passed for 44 yards to Tommy Bowden and 30 yards to Jeff Sumpton for two other TD's. The Shockers rolled up 423 total yards to 99 yards for PD. Stewart was four for eleven in passing for 137 yards and rushed eleven times for 33 yards.

The Shocker running attack was evenly paced between Troy Owens (16 carries for 70 yards), Shawn Frye (12 for 65 yards) and Jerrod Inel (12 for 60 yards). Bowden caught two of Stewart's passes for 103 yards, including a 59-yarder just before halftime.

WARREN HASSE

THE CLOVIS WILDCATS (2-1-0) don't even have the best record in their district (Roswell, 3-0-0), yet they are ranked as the No. 1 schoolboy football team in the state, a position they have held all year. This is undoubtedly recognition of four consecutive state titles, and the coaching ability of the Cat mentor, Eric Roanhaus.

His is another story of an athlete, for whatever reason, being unable to play his chosen sport but taking advantage of that item to learn at a master's knee. There are many of them down through sports managerial and coaching history. Lasorda, Frey, LaRussa to name a few currently in baseball; Knox, Walsh, Coryell in the NFL; Motta, Layden, Albeck in the NBA.

Born in Chicago, Roanhaus' family moved to California, where he earned 10 high school letters in various sports. Two seasons at Ventura, Calif. J.C. brought honors of all-conference, leading passer, total offense leader, and a scholarship to West Texas State. There he was to join a Joe Kerbel-coached ballclub that contained future professional starts like Duane Thomas, Mercury Morris, Ralph Anderson and Raymond Brown, who between them spent a cumulative near 30 seasons in the NFL, earning various top honors.

But knee surgery and the presence of two players judged superior at quarterback kept his playing time almost nil. In fact, in two seasons he threw five passes, completing three for one touchdown, and having to carry the ball a total of six times. Surprisingly, this inactivity was the foundation of his tremendously successful career.

Roanhaus did what all the other quarterbacks did, except direct the team on the field. He practiced every day, he attended all the squad meetings, he attended the unending quarterback meetings with Kerbel, who handled that department personally. During games he stood beside the head coach on the sideline, connected to the press box coaches by headset. Roanhaus relayed information to the sideline decisionmakers. And he used his great intelligence to observe, study and learn game situations and how to handle people from Kerbel, a master at his trade.

This first-hand training experience, coupled with his sharp mind, competitive nature, motivational talents and quick wit are reasons the Wildcats have averaged 10-plus wins per season in his seven years at the helm, and why his coaching career comet can soar as high as he wants it to fly.

GAME NOTES: The most points ever scored by a Harvester football team is 83, against Clovis, during an 83-2 romp in 1944. The current series between the two resumed in 1982, when PHS Athletic Director Loyd Waters used his strong Clovis connections to provide Pampa fans with a chance to see the best in New Mexico offer a challenge to the Green and Gold. The teams first met in 1932, Pampa winning 20-0. The series now stands even, four wins apiece. Pampa has been outscored 76-7 in the three meetings since John Kendall inherited the resumption of the series. The Harvesters have scored 45 points in their first two contests, compared to a total of 67 all of last season. However, they are giving up an average 34.5 per game, compared to 26.3 last year. It's the poorest defensive effort since the 1967 squad allowed 37.2 points per game. The 75 yard passing TD for AHS' first score last Friday was a series record, surpassing the 64-yard effort in 1954 from Bobby Powell to Bob Crump. In case you missed it, running back Dana Amos romped for 172 yards last Friday, including TD runs of 1, 25 and 64 yards, to lead Monahans past Hobbs, 30-6. Clovis will be the site of the 1987 AAU Girls Junior Olympics national basketball tournament for players 16 and under and 18 and under. Clovis was selected over Seattle. The event was also played there last year under auspices of the Clovis Chamber of Commerce, which reported it brought $4 million into the local economy. In other games involving 1-4A teams tonight, Wichita Falls Rider is at Borger, Canyon at Portales, Dumas at Dalhart, Andrews at Levelland, and Midland at Lubbock Estacado. Tomorrow Lake View plays Lubbock Dunbar. The two Lubbock schools are the only unbeaten, while Borger has produced the only other district victory over a non-conference foe. Estacado, with 55 points in two games, is the most prolific scorer, Pampa is second. Dunbar has the stingiest defense, 14 points, while Pampa is worst. Weather permitting, the strong Canyon tennis team plays Pampa here tomorrow. Volleyball opens district play by hosting Dumas next Tuesday. Thursday football next week has Ninth at Valleyview, Shockers at Canyon, and on Friday, Pampa hosts Perryton. Band candy sales start Monday. 98 girls have signed up for seventh grade athletics. "We have more girls in the entire program than we've ever had. They're also stronger," says AD Kendall. "For the first time in years we have a football player in band, and athletes playing both football and basketball. Whether you're going to tonight's game, or listening, a reminder that Clovis is on MST. Pampa's last opening road game win was 1979, over Hereford, 22-0.

Pro Football Picks

By DAVE GOLDBERG
AP Sports Writer
This may be momentum year in the National Football League. And reverse momentum year.

The Dallas Cowboys were sky-high for the Washington Redskins the first week, then went flat and were knocked off by Detroit. The Green Bay Packers were dreadful against New England, Forrest Gregg jumped all over them and they went home and beat the Giants.

In other words, who knows? Which brings us to the Kansas City Chiefs, who were flying when they beat the Raiders last week. Does that mean they'll be flat in Miami Sunday against the Dolphins?

Maybe. On the other hand, the Dolphins are down to five linebackers and are without Mark Duper. The Chiefs, with 10 days to prepare, are a legitimately good team with an offense that mirrors Miami's — a lot of passing and not much running.

The Dolphins are favored by 4. Kansas City keeps the momentum going. The pick, CHIEFS.
San Francisco (minus 3) at the Raiders. 49ERS.
Rams (plus 7) at Seattle (Monday night). SEAHAWKS.
Cleveland (plus 7) at Dallas. BROWNS

St. Louis (plus 1 1/2) at the Giants. CARDS
Houston (plus 5 1/2) at Pittsburgh. STEELERS
CINCINNATI (minus 4) over San Diego. BENGALS.

Also (Home Team in Caps):
Detroit (minus 5) over INDIANAPOLIS
New England (minus 6) over BUFFALO
Philadelphia (plus 14) over WASHINGTON
Denver (minus 6) over ATLANTA
Tampa Bay (plus 2) over NEW ORLEANS
GREEN BAY (minus 5) over Jets.

Straight up: Chiefs, 49ers, Seahawks, Cowboys, Cards, Steelers, Bengals, Lions, Patriots, Redskins, Broncos, Bucs, Packers.

Last week: 5-7-1 (spread), season 13-12-2
8-5 (straight up); season 18-9.
Best Bets 1-1.
BEST BET: 49ers.
One man's NFL rankings: 1. 49ers; 2. Seahawks; 3. Cards; 4. Chiefs; 5. Bears.

D'Amato predicts Holmes win

By Murray Olderman

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (NEA) — That old boxing oracle, Cus D'Amato, would be tempted to pick Michael Spinks in his challenge for Larry Holmes' heavyweight crown (IBF version) which will take place here Sept. 21 — "if he were a better fighter."

This may come as a shock to those who check the boxing records and find that Spinks, the reigning undisputed light heavyweight champion of the world, has never lost a professional fight. (Neither, of course, has Holmes, who will tie the late Rocky Marciano at a perfect 49-0 if he gets by Spinks.)

The fact is, D'Amato, who once managed Floyd Patterson to a heavyweight title and is now grooming a youngster named Mike Tyson, doesn't think much of Holmes either, despite the champ's spotless record.

"Holmes has been able to intimidate opponents," says D'Amato. "The public has built up an illusion of greatness in Holmes, who is vulnerable. Fighters who threw right hands could hurt him."

Further, Holmes has been sent sprawling to the canvas by such unrenowned punchers as Renaldo Snipes and Tim Witherspoon. And he has been extended mightily in more recent bouts by such flawed opponents as James "Bonecrusher" Smith and Carl "The Truth" Williams.

In those tests, Holmes did show he has the will of a champion to go along with his stiff left jab and the craftiness built by 13 years of professional experience. But D'Amato recalls seeing Holmes quit as an amateur in an Olympic trial, and his handler having to persuade Cus to talk the young Larry into continuing his career. Ostensibly, Spinks has the perfect weapon to counter the heavyweight champ's weight edge, which could be as much as 35 pounds. He is a powerful puncher, particularly with his right hand.

"But he's not elusive enough," argues D'Amato. "He just stands there in a peekaboo stance. He's got to slip Holmes' jabs, and he can't slip a jab. Against Williams, Holmes showed he can't get away from a left jab himself, but Spinks can't jab either."

Cus doesn't think the disparity in weight should be a factor. He notes that Jack Dempsey was a mere 182 pounds when he tore into 245-pound Jess Willard at Toledo in 1919 and destroyed the Pottawatomie Giant (they had good nicknames in those days). But basically, history goes against such mismatches.

Since the era of padded mitts and Marquis of Queensberry rules began in 1892, 10 light heavyweight champions have attempted to step up in class and win the heavyweight crown. None has succeeded.

They are Jack Root, Philadelphia Jack O'Brien, Georges Carpentier, Tommy Loughran, John Henry Lewis, Billy Conn, Gus Lesnevich, Archie Moore, Joe Maxim and Bob Foster. All but Maxim were knocked out, and Joey was half a pound heavier than the incumbent titleholder, Ezzard Charles, in their 1951 fight.

Two middleweights have had the temerity to step into the ring with the big boys. Stanley Ketchel, the Michigan Assassin, actually floored Jack Johnson in the 12th round of their 1909 bout, but was knocked out with the next punch.

Bob Fitzsimmons, at 167 pounds, stunned the world when he upset Gentleman Jim Corbett in 1897 for the heavyweight title, but Ruby Robert was something of a physical freak, built like a heavyweight from the waist up, and Corbett was a modest-sized 183-pounder. When Fitzsimmons took on burly James J. Jeffries (The Boilermaker) two years later, he was knocked out in 11.

The challenger who most approximated Spinks was Foster, who stood 6 foot 3 (Spinks is 6 foot 2 1/2) and could also punch. But he was well into his 30s when he took on Joe Frazier in 1970 and was knocked out in two rounds.

This historical backdrop is only vaguely applicable to Spink's quest. He's taking on Holmes not for glory, but because the fight will be the biggest payday of his career. His own division is bereft of talent, with old Marvin Johnson, who's been punched out more times than a time clock, listed as the No. 1 challenger.

For that matter, Holmes says the $3 million payday interests him more than the prospect of tying Marciano's record.

With such sentimentality involved, the fight isn't stirring much genuine excitement, say the way the public was intrigued when Billy Conn stepped into the ring against Joe Louis back in 1941 and was outpointing Louie until he got cocky and tried to slug with him. Billy was knocked out in the 13th round.

A Spinks knockout would generate boxing fervor. Taking my cue from D'Amato, I don't see it happening. Prediction: Holmes will stop him in eight.

Pampa CC hosts golf tournaments

Two tournaments, involving several thousands of dollars in prizes, is scheduled next week at the Pampa Country Club golf course.

A Pro-Member Tournament tees off at 9 a.m. Tuesday with 25 pros and 75 amateurs entered in the 18-hole event. Each team is made up of four players with the two low balls on each hole counted as score. A pro division is also included. Over $10,000 in prizes will be awarded.

The West Texas PGA Chapter Championship will be held Wednesday, Thursday and Friday with about 40 club professionals entered in the 54-hole tournament. Starting time is 9 a.m. all three days.

Ronnie Rosson, the 1984 champion, returns to defend his title. West Texas Golf Cars of Pampa has contributed $5,000 to the $15,000 prize fund.

Record pine beetle destruction noted

CONROE, Texas (AP) — Forest service officials in Texas are faced with a record-breaking year of pine beetles and say the pesky insects are responsible for some 15,000 infestations in the state's woodlands.

"It was shocking. We didn't realize the damage that had been done," said David McCallum, ranger at Camp Strake, a Boy Scout campground south of Conroe.

Officials with the U.S. Forest Service, the Texas Forestry Association and other lumber companies point out the camp as a prime example of how the tiny beetles — smaller than a grain of rice — are ravaging pine forests.

"It's been exasperating all summer," said Don Whitmore, a forester for Louisiana Pacific Co., a lumber products firm. "I feel defeated. I've been defeated all summer. But my efforts have been worthwhile. The beetles are slowing down."

Officials say they've counted about 15,000 pine beetle infestations, exceeding the record 11,000 detected in 1976.

Camp Strake is 2,200 acres of heavily forested land with about 80 percent of the trees pines. Because the only economical way to rid an area of the beetles is to clear a buffer zone about 200 feet away from the infestation, the camp is scarred with patches of bulldozed land and piles of rotting cut trees.

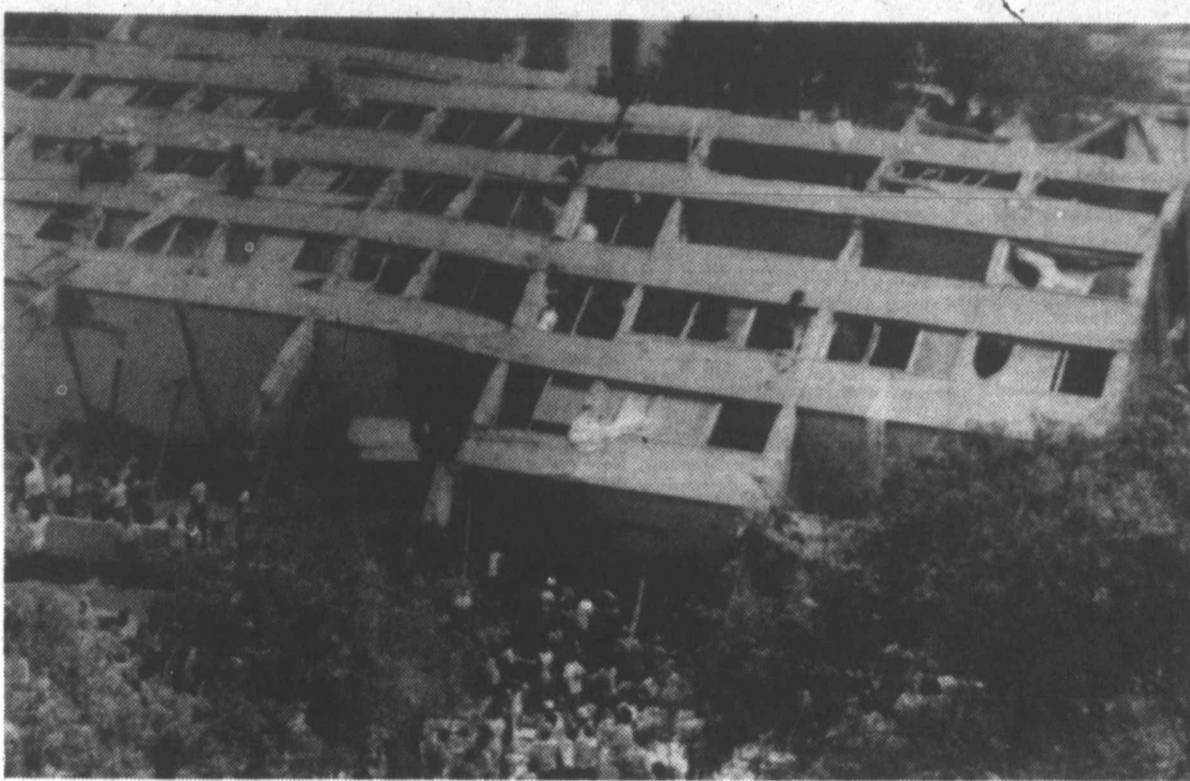

Lumber mills in the area say they are already overworked and cannot use the razed trees.

"So much timber has come on the market so fast," said Bill Carroll, a manager for Louisiana Pacific Co., a lumber products firm. "This is on the order of a natural disaster."

Don Whitmore, a forester for Louisiana Pacific, said when the beetles were first detected, they were confined to eight small areas.

"Before we could get loggers in here, they all grew together," he said.

Now, Whitmore said, so many areas around the state have been infested

Judge refused to dismiss Texaco-Pennzoil lawsuit

HOUSTON (AP) — Attorneys for Texaco Inc. began presenting their case after a state district judge denied their motion to issue an instructed verdict in a $15 billion lawsuit brought by Pennzoil Co.

State District Judge Anthony J.P. Farris on Thursday denied Texaco's request to grant a decision against Pennzoil, which is suing Texaco for allegedly interfering in a proposed Pennzoil-Getty Oil Co. merger.

Last year, Texaco acquired Getty's outstanding stock for $10.1 billion — or $125 a share — in the second largest merger in U.S. corporate history.

But Pennzoil claims that when Texaco moved to acquire Getty Oil it forced Getty to break a previous agreement with Pennzoil. But Texaco claims Pennzoil and Getty never had a definitive agreement for the merger.

Testimony in the case was to continue Friday.

Texaco attorneys filed a motion Wednesday contending evidence presented in the past 12 weeks of testimony showed Pennzoil had no binding agreement to merge with Getty Oil Co.

"The evidence before the court at the conclusion of Pennzoil's case proves conclusively that there was no valid and binding contract with which Texaco could have interfered," according to Texaco's motion.

Texaco attorneys argued that evidence not only showed Pennzoil did not have a binding contract with Getty Oil, the Sarah C. Getty Trust and the J. Paul Getty Museum but that such a contract would violate Securities and Exchange Commission regulations.

Thursday attorneys for Pennzoil filed a motion seeking a summary judgment in the trial on the grounds of Texaco's illegality defenses.

JP: nursing home death a homicide

PALESTINE, Texas (AP) — Because of an autopsy that found water in the woman's trachea, authorities have ruled that a 92-year-old nursing home patient found dead in her bed had actually been a homicide victim.

But though Anderson County Justice of the Peace Ben Perry ruled Minnie Williams' Aug. 23 death a homicide Wednesday, Palestine police detective Dan Mogan said no charges have yet been filed.

"Somebody just wasn't watching her," Perry said of Mrs. Williams' death at the Villa Inn Nursing Home.

Herman Williams of Mount Alba, Mrs. Williams' nephew, said he received a phone call two days after her death from two women who said they were Villa Inn nurses.

The two told him that after Mrs. Williams drowned when left unattended in a bathtub, home employees took her body out of the tub, wiped her off and put her back in bed, Williams said.

Local nursing home officials declined comment, as did Sharon Flippen, spokeswoman for Pasadena, Calif.-based Beverly Enterprises, a nursing home chain that owns Villa Inn.

Weir brought no cheer for relatives of two hostages

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Rev. Benjamin Weir returned from Lebanon with some good news about four of the remaining American hostages. But his message also served to raise new fears about two others.

After spending most of his captivity in solitary confinement, Weir revealed on Thursday, he finally met Terry Anderson, David Jacobsen, Thomas Sutherland and the Rev. Lawrence Martin Jenco, fellow Americans kidnapped at gunpoint in Beirut since his own abduction on May 8, 1984. They seemed well, he said.

But Weir said he could offer no word about William Buckley, an embassy political officer taken hostage on March 8, 1984, or Peter Kilburn, the American University librarian who disappeared in early December last year.

"I have not seen them," said Weir. "I have not been in contact with them."

Because Buckley is a representative of the U.S. government, there is obvious concern that he might be singled out for harsher treatment by the radical Shiite Moslem group, which seeks to barter the lives of the Americans for comrades held in Kuwaiti prisons.

But Buckley, at least, has been seen in photographs and one videotape released by his captors over the last year. In the case of Kilburn, a San Francisco native who suffered heart disease, hypertension and other ailments when he disappeared, virtually no physical evidence has surfaced to indicate he's still alive.

Shortly after he disappeared, statements made in the name of the shadowy "Islamic Jihad" said Kilburn was in fact taken hostage. But subsequent communications from the captors omitted his name.

Last May, before Jacobsen and Sutherland were seized, the kidnappers sent an ominous warning about the Americans to several Beirut newspapers, accompanied by grainy photographs showing Anderson, Weir, Jenco and Buckley. There was no mention of Kilburn.

Moreover, virtually all the other hostages except for Buckley have sent letters to their families. If Kilburn, who was unmarried, has communicated with anyone, the government is unaware of it.

Hostage pleads for release; as U.S. officials work with quiet diplomacy

WASHINGTON (AP) — In the face of emotional pleas from Americans held in Lebanon and their families, the Reagan administration is sticking to a policy of "quiet diplomacy" and publicly resisting the one demand insisted on by the kidnappers.

In a letter to his family, delivered Thursday by newly freed Rev. Benjamin Weir, the Rev. Lawrence Jenco — another hostage — said release of 17 prisoners in Kuwait is "the only condition for our release" and pleaded for compliance with that demand.

"Please!! Do everything possible to work not only for our release but also theirs," he begged his relatives. "We so desperately want to go home and I am sure the 17 in Kuwait also want to go home. Pray for all of us that soon we will all be going home."

Weir, 61, a Protestant minister abruptly released Saturday after 16 months in captivity, said his captors had threatened to kidnap more Americans and execute their hostages if the U.S. government does not pressure Kuwait into releasing 17 prisoners convicted in 1983 of a series of bombings.

The hostage relatives, some of whom have been vocal about what they consider inadequate efforts by the administration, were meeting this afternoon with Vice President George Bush.

"We want to work with Vice President Bush. We have never wanted to be enemies of the administration or critical of them.

We have a common goal here. We have seven — now six — Americans being held. We need to work together," said Peggy Say, sister of hostage Terry Anderson, chief Middle East correspondent for The Associated Press.

"This is an exchange of prisoners," she added. "It's been done before. It can be done again."

Freeing the six Americans still captive in Lebanon is "the highest priority" of the Reagan administration, said spokesman Edward Djerejian at the White House and Bernard Kalb at the State Department.

However, they reiterated the administration's public policy — no concessions to terrorists and no pressure on other governments "to make concessions to those holding hostages." Significantly, though, Kalb refused to say whether discussions were going on between Kuwait and the United States. He said the administration was in touch with "numerous individuals and governments in the area" and believes "quiet diplomacy" is the best way to proceed.

At the White House, meanwhile, a senior administration official, speaking on condition he not be identified publicly, told reporters the threat of executions has to be taken seriously "and the United States has to weigh its profound concern for the safety of these people, which is very deep and abiding."

Weir said he personally believes his captors are serious.

Grapefruits turn national attention to apartheid

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — In 1880, Irish peasants rebelling against exorbitant rents ostracized their English landlord's rent collector, Capt. Charles Boycott — and in the process coined the word "boycott."

A century later, 11 young supermarket cashiers in recession-hit Dublin are employing the same tactics to fight South Africa's system of apartheid.

What began 14 months ago as a seemingly inconsequential gesture against South Africa's policy of racial separation has become a national issue in Ireland and a cause celebre for European anti-apartheid activists.

On July 19 of last year, Mary Manning refused to ring up the price of two South African grapefruits for a customer, obeying her labor union's instructions not to handle such produce.

She was suspended indefinitely by her employers, Dunnes Stores, an Irish supermarket chain. Ten fellow sales assistants at the Henry Street store in downtown Dublin walked out in sympathy.

"They've been on picket lines ever since."

Their stand has drawn the Irish government into the dispute and taken Miss Manning and her supporters on a trip to South Africa, where they got even more publicity when they were refused entry to the country.

Their doggedness has aroused widespread admiration.

Although consumer boycotts of South African fruit and vegetables, wine, leather and tobacco are not unusual worldwide, boycotts organized by workers or labor unions are rare, according to Simon Sapper of the Anti-Apartheid Movement.

The 22,000-member Irish Distributive and Administrative Trade Union, Ireland's third-largest union, voted for the boycott at its annual conference in April 1984. Three months later, it instructed its membership to put the policy into effect.

The boycott call apparently went largely unheeded by union members.

"We do get frustrated that people in the other shops are not supporting us, but people are afraid of losing their jobs," Miss Manning, 22, said in an interview. "There'll be other people to fill their jobs if they lose them."

Irish unemployment is about 18 percent.

At least three days a week, the strikers — 10 young women and one man — join in an eight-hour picket outside the Henry Street store urging the public to boycott the store.

"The dispute has destroyed the trade in the store," said a Dunnes Stores spokesman, who refused to give his name or figures on lost business.

The store has remained open, he said, because 60 mostly female staff, including cashiers, pass the picket daily and "we don't want to see these 60 people out of a job."

Although a small number of Dublin department stores have removed South African products from their shelves, Ireland's four major supermarket chains have refused to budge.

The Irish government, although publicly critical of apartheid, has kept a low profile.

Ireland's trade with South Africa weighs heavily in its favor — $40 million in exports of mainly chemicals, computers and pharmaceutical products and $18 million in imports of fruit, fertilizer, coal and textiles.
