

Car bomb blast rocks U.S. base

FRANKFURT, West Germany (AP) — A bomb hidden in a parked car exploded outside the headquarters of the U.S. Rhein-Main Air Base this morning, killing two people and injuring 11, authorities said. They said the leftist Red Army Faction was suspected in the attack.

Base spokesman Sgt. Dave McMahon told The Associated Press one of the dead was a U.S. serviceman and the other was a civilian woman. He said the woman's nationality had not been established.

U.S. Air Force Capt. Lorrie Bourland told reporters that names of the dead and injured were being withheld pending notification of next of kin.

Three of the injured were hospitalized in U.S. military medical facilities. Their condition was not made public. The others were treated at the Rhein-Main medical clinic and released.

The bomb went off at 7:15 a.m. (1:15 a.m. EDT) in a parking lot as many base personnel were reporting to duty.

Kurt Rebbmann, West Germany's chief federal prosecutor, said: "The circumstances of the attack point to the Red Army Faction." The leftist terrorist gang has been responsible for several attacks on U.S. and NATO military installations in West Germany in the last decade.

Investigators said that the bomb was placed in a car that had false American Forces license plates on it.

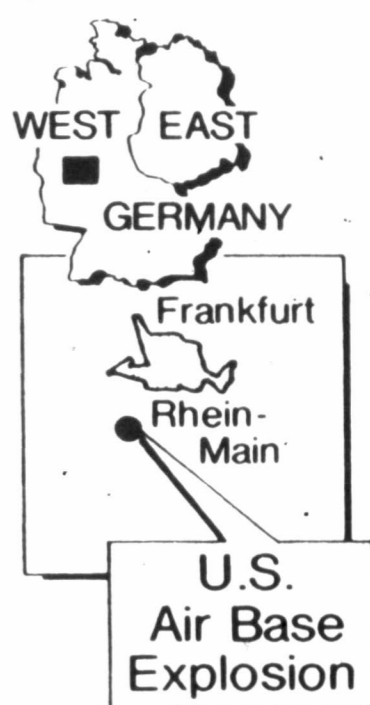

Ms. Bourland said the bomb blew up between the base's headquarters building and a nearby dormitory. The blast shattered windows and turned nearby cars into twisted wrecks.

Wreckage was thrown onto the roof of the building and strewn up to 200 yards away.

West German radio said that a "very, very strong bomb" caused the blast at the heavily guarded base, although the type of explosive was not known. Eyewitnesses said the blast left a crater about 3 feet deep and 6 feet wide.

Cmdr. Tom Connor of the U.S. European Command in Stuttgart, West Germany, said both West German and U.S. investigators were at the scene.

Security at the fenced-in base is tight, and all drivers are stopped at a checkpoint and asked to produce identification before entering the parking lot where the blast

Postmaster: no plans for new facility

BY WALLY SIMMONS
Managing Editor

Congressman Beau Boulter this morning heard as least some Pampa residents say they don't want a new post office here. But Postmaster Richard Wilson said they needn't be concerned because there are no imminent plans to build one.

"How can a new post office be justified in Pampa, Texas," Boulter was asked during an appearance at the Sunrise Rotary Club meeting.

After Boulter said he knew nothing about proposals to build one, he was told that such an effort was underway.

He was answered by a solid chorus of "no's" when he asked "Does Pampa need a new post office?"

Postmaster Wilson said reports about efforts to build a new postal facility here apparently stemmed from discussions held about three years ago, but he said there is nothing in the planning stages now.

"Pampa would be one of the first in this area to get a new post office if funds were available," he said, adding that improved working conditions would now be the main justification for building a new facility.

Boulter also talked about rural post offices, saying that reports that many might be closed were totally unfounded.

He said rumors of rural post office closings apparently stemmed from the Grace Commission study noting that some could possibly be closed. But Boulter said he knew of no proposals to close any rural post offices.

Boulter, a member of the House

Budget Committee, talked mostly about the difficulty in cutting federal spending, saying that huge deficits pose a threat to the future of the United States.

He said if the current rate of spending is projected for 15 years, the annual federal deficits would be around $2 trillion.

"If it continues, the country will go belly-up and become another 'banana republic' and we can't let that happen," he said.

"But there are a lot of people in Washington who profit from waste and big government," he said in explaining why it is so difficult to reduce spending.

Boulter noted that President Reagan's original budget proposals this year called for the elimination of 27 federal programs, but after the Senate and House got through with the budget, only one had been eliminated.

Boulter said the budget that was eventually approved will cut the expected deficit by over $50 billion and he voted for it although he favored elimination more programs.

"Without a budget resolution, there would have been absolutely no restraint on federal spending," he said.

In response to questions, Boulter said the proposal giving the president line-item veto power has absolutely no chance of passing, but he felt the odds are better in favor of a constitutional amendment mandating a balanced budget.

He said the proposed amendment will get out of committee and may come to a vote in the House this year.

"I think we have a shot at it," he said.

Siren song no sweet music for Pampanans

After two days of having city residents stirred out of sleep by blaring weather-warning sirens, city officials are still trying to determine the cause.

Steve Vaughn, coordinator for the Pampa - Gray County Office of Emergency Management, this morning said, "We don't know" what caused the radio-signal activated sirens to go off in the still hours of the night for the past two days.

He said MCA Communications, who installed the system, has been checking the system to see if there is some electrical short or other malfunction causing the sirens to be sounded without city activation.

The main problem siren has been the one located in the northwest section of the city on 23rd Ave. in the North Crest Addition. That one went off in the early hours of Wednesday morning and this morning.

Vaughn said all the city sirens were sounded about 1:40 a.m. today after the North Crest siren had gone off for the second night for some reason. Vaughn said all the sirens were brought up to force and then shut down in an effort to see if would cut off the North Crest siren.

That didn't work, so the siren had to be shut off manually, he said.

The system is designed to be radio-activated from the police station for emergency needs, with an encoder signal needed to gain access to the individual sirens.

Vaughn said the city is not certain now what has caused the siren to go off without being activated from the police station. He said MCA is checking for a short or some other malfunction, including the possibility that some radio signal in the area is accidentally providing the needed code.

If the problem cannot be located within a few days, the city may have to install another encoder, Vaughn said.

The sounding of the sirens in the early morning hours have distressed many residents with the storm clouds and lightning that has passed over the city the past couple of nights.

Vaughn noted no severe weather warnings had been present for the Pampa area during the times the sirens were sounding off.

The Pampa Police Department, however, found itself deluged with calls for about an hour this morning with the sirens screaming throughout the entire city.

Vaughn apologized for the inconvenience experienced by those residents disturbed from sleep, but he said the city and communications personnel are working on the problem and hope to have a solution soon.

Bethany official released on bond

The Gray County sheriff's department released Timothy Borkta from jail Tuesday night after the 32-year-old president of the failed Bethany Trust & Co. posted $20,000 bond.

The bond, originally totalling $40,000, had been cut in half earlier in the day by 23rd District Judge Don Cain at the request of Borkta's court-appointed attorney Harold Comer of Pampa. Borkta, who faces two indictments on securities violations, pleaded not guilty during his arraignment Tuesday. His trial has been set for Sept. 16 before Cain.

The Texas Banking Commission closed Bethany Trust in April and a Gray County grand jury indicted both Borkta and Bethany Trust owner Thomas C. Etheredge on July 25. Etheredge, who has been indicted on three counts of securities violations and three counts of misapplication of funds, has continually eluded attempts to serve him with papers. He reportedly has been seen in England and British Honduras.

Etheredge's securities violations indictments concern incidents where he allegedly misrepresented facts or failed to inform investors concerning assets, the company's liability or his own criminal history. The other indictments concern the alleged misapplication of fiduciary property for his own benefit.

Borkta was arrested July 29 in Zapata, a border town in Zapata County, at what Zapata County law officials said was his residence there. He told the judge Tuesday he was employed by GHR Energy.

Another hearing in the case, concerning the state's motions to seize Etheredge's property and restrain the company from operating under the name of Bethany Trust, is set for Monday afternoon at 1:30. Delays in trying to locate Etheredge caused the writ of attachment for seizure of the property and the temporary restraining order to expire Aug. 1

Indian families flee from rioting blacks

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Fierce rioting broke out for the first time in black townships around Durban, and hundreds of Indian families fled from black looters. Hospital officials said at least 16 blacks were killed and more than 150 injured in 24 hours of clashes with police.

Apart from bitter street-fighting between police and youths, blacks armed with spears and sticks turned on black mourners at a service for a slain civil rights lawyer Wednesday night, wounding several people, said Lechesa Tsenoli, spokesman for the United Democratic Front anti-apartheid alliance in Natal.

Busloads of blacks arrived as the service ended at 10 p.m. and waded into the mourners in Umlazi township, Tsenoli said.

The unrest ended relative calm in Natal, the only province largely untouched by nearly a year of rioting that has left more than 500 blacks dead. Durban is not one of the 36 cities and towns under a state of emergency imposed 19 days ago by the white-minority government to quell black unrest. President P.W. Botha told reporters in Pretoria that his government had no plans to extend the emergency decree to the Durban area, "but if necessary, we will do it. We are quite capable of controlling the situation," he said.

Police confirmed they shot dead five blacks in clashes late Wednesday and early today, and recovered four more bodies of blacks found in riot areas. That brought the official death toll to 11 since late Tuesday.

But an official at King Edward VIII Hospital in Durban, who asked not to be identified, said six people were dead on arrival Wednesday and seven more during the night from gunshot wounds and stonings. The spokeswoman said 102 people were treated for injuries.

Police headquarters in Pretoria said riot patrols used shotguns, rubber bullets and tear gas to break up crowds of rioters in several Durban townships during the night, and arrested 15 blacks.

The violence flowed from student boycotts in Durban's townships this week to protest the assassination on week ago of Victoria Nonyamezele Mxenge, a prominent black civil rights lawyer outside her home in Umlazi township.

Indians in the Durban area were among the targets of the rioters, and many were evacuated.

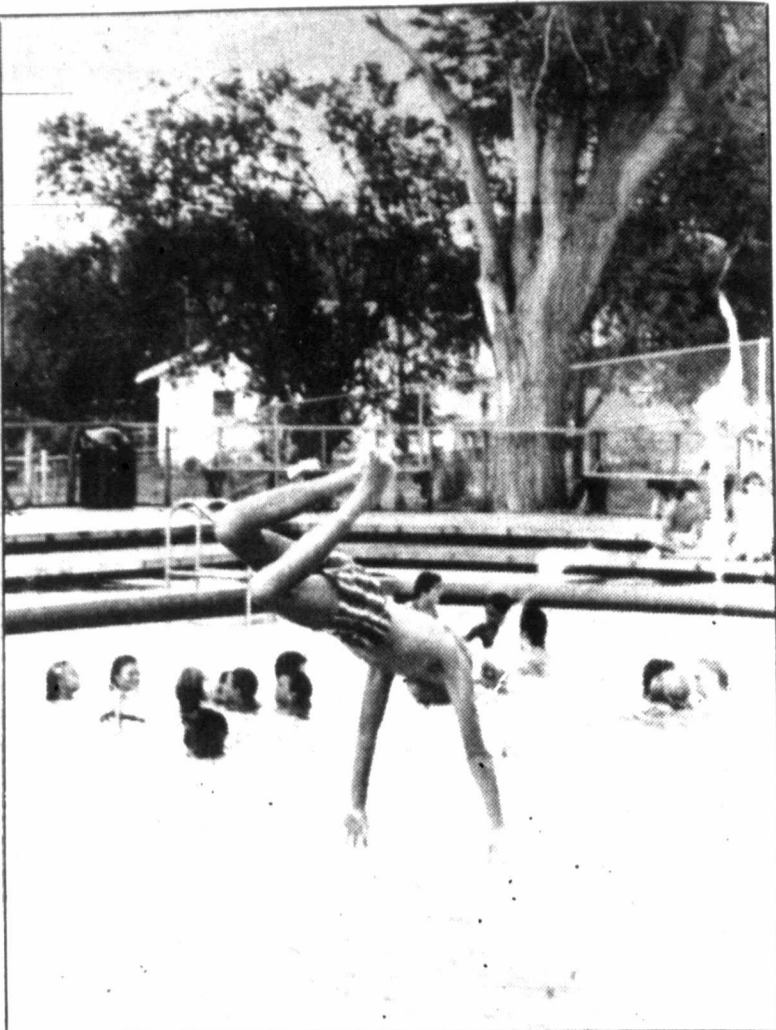

Youths burned a government administration building, a mortuary, the homes of two school principals, and numerous cars and trucks. A number of homes of Indians were gutted and still smouldering this morning, reporters said.

Police also reported scattered incidents of rioting elsewhere in the country, mainly in Johannesburg and Port Elizabeth townships, where the unrest has been concentrated in recent months.

A funeral in Daveyton township for a 16-year-old black girl shot by police in a clash last month ended peacefully, witnesses said. Police provided seven buses to transport more than 1,000 mourners to the grave site, in keeping with restrictions banning marches and political speeches at funerals.

Police say they have detained 1,465 people during the state of emergency, but have released more than a third. By police count, 868 people still are held without charge.

About half of the blacks killed in the past 11 months have reportedly died at the hands of other blacks.

SPLASH AHEAD! - A Pampa youngster hangs in mid-air after leaving the diving board at the M. K. Brown Pool, only moments away from making a big splash. Residents will have a chance to make their splash Saturday with the scheduling of another free-admission Splash Day at the municipal pool at Kentucky and Sloan. Youngsters of all ages will be admitted free to the pool from 1 to 7 p.m. to enjoy a break from the hot summer weather. (Staff photo by Deborah Hendrick)

Enrollment schedules told

Pampa elementary and secondary school students have only about three and a half weeks left for summer enjoyment before schools open for class on Sept. 3.

Enrollment for all elementary (K-5) and Pampa Middle School sixth graders will be conducted Thursday, Aug. 29, from 8:30 to 10:30 a.m.

Buses will run at their regular pickup time and take students home at 10:30 a.m.

Students in grades 7-12 who attended Pampa schools last year have already enrolled. Their schedules will be mailed to them prior to the beginning of school, said John English, assistant superintendent of instruction.

Detailed instructions will be included with the schedule when it is mailed, and English asked the students to read the material carefully.

Transfer students, new to the Pampa Independent School District who have not yet filled out any pre-enrollment information should do so between Aug. 12 and Aug. 23 at the campus which they will be attending.

Further information may be obtained by contacting the district offices or the respective school offices.

Because of a state law enacted last year, all public schools are not allowed to start classes before Sept. 1. Since that date is Labor Day this year, schools will begin classes Sept. 2. The last class day will be May 29.

Faculty and staff will be busy the week before, however, with inservice days Aug. 26-28 and preparation days on Aug. 29 and 30. Labor Day will be a holiday for them.

Holidays for students and employees will be Nov. 28 and 29 for Thanksgiving, Dec. 23 through Jan. 1 for the Christmas break, March 24-28 for spring break, April 21 for Texas Sesquicentennial Day (in 1986 only), and May 26 for Memorial Day.

Students also will have Jan. 17 off for staff preparation day and March 10 for staff inservice day.

May 26 and 30 have been scheduled for weather makeup days, if needed. If May 30 is used for makeup purposes, May 31 will be used as a staff preparation day in place of May 30 as presently scheduled.

Six-weeks periods for grading and attendance purposes will end respectively on Oct. 11, Nov. 22, Jan. 16, Feb. 28, April 18 and May 29.

School officials have asked students and parents to take note of the holidays for arranging any family trips during the school year.

occurred.
 The Rhein-Main Air Base is a tiny city in itself with living quarters and offices for 4,000 U.S. Air Force personnel and 4,000 dependents. It is located across the runways from busy Frankfurt Airport.

Hesse state Interior Ministry spokesman Jan von Trott said the bomb was placed inside a parked car near the headquarters building of the 435th Tactical Airlift Wing. Trott said 29 cars were damaged in the blast.

The Red Army Faction's last major attack on a U.S. military base was the bombing of the U.S. Air Force's European headquarters at Ramstein, in southwestern West Germany, in 1981. No one was injured.

That year, gang members also tried to kill the commander of the U.S. Army-Europe. Gen. Frederick J. Kroesen, with a grenade launcher. He was not hurt.

In December 1984 and January 1985, the Red Army Faction was blamed for more than 30 bomb and arson attacks on NATO facilities and government buildings while more than 30 imprisoned members of the gang were on a hunger strike to win recognition as "prisoners of war."

Washington office said Wednesday the group's goal "is to change U.S. policy toward Nicaragua to one that fosters peace and friendship between the two nations."

Costa Rican officials said they could not verify that the group was in their country.

Nicaragua said the group of captives included 29 American peace activists and 18 Nicaraguan and foreign journalists. The peace group said radio contacts with the rebels and the captured activists indicated no one was hurt in the incident.

President Daniel Ortega visited the organization's Managua office late Wednesday and called the incident "a typical terrorist action executed by mercenaries financed by the North American administration."

"Therefore, it is in the hands of the United States that these terrorists release the kidnapped people," he said.

Rebels accused of kidnapping

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — An American peace group and the leftist government accused U.S.-backed rebels of kidnapping 29 peace activists and 18 reporters on the Costa Rican border.

Guerrillas charged the abduction was a "show" put on by the government.
 The Sandinista government said in a statement Wednesday that rebels intercepted a boat carrying members of the Witness for Peace organization on the San Juan River, 11 miles west of the abandoned rebel camp at La Penca. It said the group was taken into Costa Rica.

Witness for Peace opposes the Reagan administration's support for anti-Sandinista rebels. Yvonne Dilling, head of the organization's

Washington office said Wednesday the group's goal "is to change U.S. policy toward Nicaragua to one that fosters peace and friendship between the two nations."

Costa Rican officials said they could not verify that the group was in their country.

Lefors school board to meet tonight

LEFORS - Trustees of the Lefors Independent School District will discuss the tax rate and budget matters during their regular meeting at 7 p.m. today.

The board will consider an increased effective tax rate for 1985 and set a date for a public hearing on the tax increase.

Trustees also will look at a preliminary budget for the 1985-1986 school year and set a date for budget adoption and amended budget approval.

 In other matters, the board will review insurance, consider redesignation of buildings and set prices for the lunch and breakfast programs.

Other items to be considered for approval are the 1985-1986 calendar changes, Five Year Plan evaluation, grievance procedures for students, a student handbook for the coming school year, personnel matters and bills for payment.

Laws restricting workers' rights ruled unconstitutional

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — A bitter dispute between vegetable growers and union organizers that began five years ago in an onion field ended in federal court Wednesday when a judge struck down seven Texas laws restricting workers' rights.

U.S. District Judge Mary Lou Robinson ruled that the statutes restricting the right to picket and organize unions are unconstitutional because they violate free speech guarantees.

The dispute began when Deaf Smith County officials arrested Arizona labor organizer Karen Kincaid in 1980 for allegedly trespassing on an onion field six miles west of Hereford.

The arrest spurred a group of High Plains growers to seek a court order to stop union activists from organizing protests.

A restraining order was granted by State District Judge Wesley Gulley. But the order was quickly overturned by U.S. District Judge Halbert O. Woodward on July 9, 1980. The case then moved to Robinson's court.

Her ruling strikes down for the whole state of Texas statutes that have limited the ability of workers to picket and organize.

"The attorney general of the state of Texas, the sheriff of Deaf Smith County, Texas, and the criminal district attorneys of Deaf Smith County, Texas, and all those in active concert or participation with them, are hereby permanently enjoined and restrained from enforcing or attempting to enforce the statutes declared unconstitutional..." her judgment says.

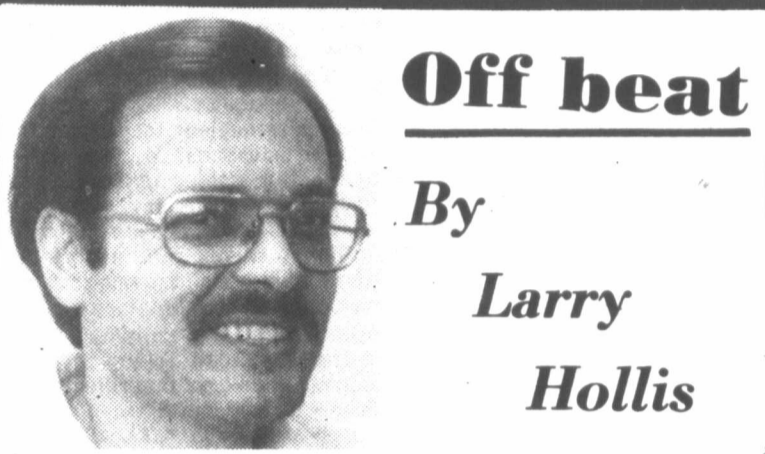

Specifically, the laws:
 — Limit the amount of picketing in a given area near a workplace.
 — Forbid picketing that would stop or intimidate nonpicketing employees from working.

 — Forbid picketing that presented libelous and slanderous statements.

— Make it illegal for a minority of employees to strike or picket with intent to impell, coerce or force and employer to recognize or bargain with any labor union or force or compel any employee to join such an organization.

Judge Robinson's decision forbids law enforcement agencies from enforcing these statutes.

"This prohibition includes, but is not limited to arresting persons for alleged violations of these statutes and ordering persons to disperse or otherwise to cease and exist, from picketing solely or in part because of alleged violations of these statutes," the judgment stated.

"You know, I'm getting a little tired of seeing my name in the paper," my friend said the other day as we were watching - kind of - "People Do the Craziest Things."

"What do you mean?" I asked. "I've never mentioned your name. It's not worth mentioning."

"Well, okay, so you haven't used my name," he said, reaching for the potato chips. "But you sure haven't given people a good picture of me."

"Nor have I used any photos of you," I said. "And with good reason. We do have some standards of quality."

He ignored that remark. "To repeat," he continued, "you haven't given people a good picture of me. I always come off looking like a jerk, and you ride off like some knight on a white horse."

"Not me," I said. "I have vigorously avoided riding a horse for years despite the urgings of some family members."

"You know what I mean: You always come off sounding so great."

"Oh, c'mon. I've told about my failing grades, my less than glorious activities with youth, the mundane incidents that can frustrate me and other things like that."

"Yeah. But even then you make yourself sound so good. Everybody seems to think you're such a nice guy, concerned, compassionate, polite, quiet, aware and so on."

"Obviously you haven't talked to my niece lately. Or other family members. They could give you a different viewpoint," I said, welcoming the opportunity to turn my eyes away from Bert Convy.

"Yeah. But, see, they know you. And so do I. That's what I mean. Those of us who really know you know that behind that exterior image of niceness — he made it sound like a filthy term — of calmness, of civic activities, of... of, well, just being a nice guy, lies a crazy guy likely to burst out in insanity at times."

"Oh, now, that's exaggerating things a bit, isn't it?" I said.

"Oh, yeah? Why don't you write about some of the really crazy things you've done? Or your unusual habits, likes and attitudes? Let people know you're not just another dull, boring, nice guy."

"Dull? Boring?!"

"Yeah. All most people know is that you write dry stories, go to meetings, attend a few movies and read. Boring! They don't know those crazy, weird things you've committed."

"Crazy? What 'crazy' things have I done? Not counting high school, of course; everybody's crazy then. And 'weird' is a bit much."

"I'm not talking about high school. Or even college. I mean things since then, even in the last 10 years or so. Even now."

"Like what?"

"C'mon! This is the nearing-40 guy we're talking about who grooves to Tina Turner and Culture Club and who turns up the radio loud in the morning so he can dance in the shower."

"Lots of people dance in the shower," I muttered.

"Sing, maybe. Dance?" His eyebrows lifted in a sneering manner.

"Well, okay. That's just a little thing, though."

"And what about all those horror books you read?"

"So? I read a lot of good books, too, you know. Lots of people read books they don't readily admit to — like those dumb romance books so many women, and a few men, read."

"But conservative, educated Hollis reading horror, of all things?"

"I don't have to think about them, no depth to them. So I just read them until I get sleepy. Unless it gets really exciting, then I'm up until 2 or 3 in the morning." I squirmed in my chair. "But those are minor things, nothing really crazy there, is there?"

"Maybe not. But what about some of those crazy things you've pulled?"

"Like what?" I said, perhaps somewhat defensively.

"What about that time you put a cigarette out on the back of a friend's hand at a restaurant when you were in the Army in Germany?"

"Well, it just seemed like something to do at the time," I said, shifting around in the chair. "He was making snide remarks about how predictable and... uh, dull I was. And the cigarette was lying there on the table, so, uh, I just... you know, kind of did it without thinking."

"Uh huh. And what about the time you put a small American flag in your mouth and jumped up on a table and danced for the guys in the barracks?"

"Uh, it just seemed like something to do," I murmured. "There was sense to it, though. Kind of. I had been to a church social, and I had had a good time. I came back to the dormitory — we didn't call it a barracks. I was attached to an Air Force unit — and saw these guys sitting around bored and drinking. So, uh, I just did that to show that I could have a good time, be crazy, without having any intoxicating substances in me. It seemed logical at the time."

"Sure. And what about that time you and a friend drove down to Lake McClellan on that near-foggy, cold October night a few years back? Taking off your clothes and then walking out into the lake? That's sensical?"

"Well, yeah," I replied. "See, I had just read articles on disciplining the body and on the Polar Bear Club — you know, that bunch up north somewhere that knocks a hole in one of the ice-covered Great Lakes in January so they can swim. So, it was just kind of taking stock of my own discipline and strength."

"Umm hmmm. A rather 'cold' way of doing it, wasn't it?"

"Well, that's the way it was!"

"Okay," he said, sitting back on the couch. "But how do you explain going to that bar in — where was it, in Lubbock?"

"I don't," I said. "Conversation ended."

"But I could go on..."

"Yeah. And you could go on home. Besides, we all do crazy things at times. It's those crazy and weird moments, those breaks in routines, those small bursts of insanity, that really keep us 'dull and boring' people sane. In fact, I can think of a number of people that could use more of them. Even me."

"What about me?"

"You? You could use a few more moments of sanity!"

Report attacks attitudes

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — The current director of the Texas Department of Corrections may have taken actions that undermined efforts to curb brutality by prison guards, according to a federal court monitor's report.

The report, which was filed Wednesday in U.S. District Court in Houston and had been obtained earlier by the Houston Chronicle, examines guard brutality in the Texas Department of Corrections from May 1984 to February 1985, when Raymond Procunier was prison director.

Actions by Lane McCotter, who was then director of prison operations, apparently undermined TDC's efforts to stop guard brutality, the Chronicle quoted the report as saying.

McCotter replaced Procunier as director after he retired in June.

"Lower-ranking officers are now usually responsible for the actual use of excessive force. Nonetheless, failure to report and false (reporting) continue at almost all rank levels," the report stated. "It appears TDC does not regard the failure to report the use of force very seriously."

The 109-page report, when complete, will be filed with U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice of Tyler, who in 1981 ordered widespread reforms in the prison system.

The document was prepared by court-appointed monitors Paul Belazis and Gary A. Kuiper, according to the Chronicle's copyright story published Wednesday.

McCotter, the document said, in October 1984 promoted TDC guard Richard Simmons to captain at the Coffield Unit in Anderson County. Eight months earlier, Simmons was demoted from the rank of major for his alleged role in the April 1983 beatings of five inmates.

McCotter contended he was not aware of Simmons' demotion, but Simmons said he discussed it with McCotter two weeks before he was made a captain, the Chronicle reported.

TDC Chairman Robert Gunn told the Chronicle that McCotter probably suffered from "sincere fuzzy memories" and did not lie about the incident.

But Kuiper said, "The monitor cannot accept the explanation that Capt. Simmons' promotion was a matter of administrative oversight."

Gunn declined to comment on the report, but said, "We're doing the best job we can and if it doesn't satisfy the public, then they should do something about it."

Contributing to the guard brutality, the report said, are poorly kept records on TDC employees.

In one incident, prison officials erroneously thought a guard who allegedly beat an Eastham Unit inmate in April 1983 had quit his job. But TDC later learned it was the guard's father who had quit.

White says state will win election schedule skirmish

AUSTIN (AP) — Yielding to federal pressure, state officials have agreed to request Justice Department approval of the special 1st District congressional election.

But Attorney General Jim Mattox says Texas will continue to appeal what he called "this important state's rights issue," and Gov. Mark White predicts Texas ultimately will win its case.

Without comment Wednesday, U.S. Supreme Court Justice Byron R. White turned down the state's request for a stay of a lower court order that directed Texas to obtain the Justice Department's OK.

Mattox and Secretary of State Myra McDaniel said the request would be submitted by Friday's deadline.

White, maintaining the Justice Department's motives were political, said he is "confident that eventually the higher court will rule in our favor and the political maneuverings of the Justice Department will be seen for what they were intended to be — politics."

Although Texas will request approval of the June 29 special election and the Aug. 3 runoff, Mattox said the state also will appeal to the full Supreme Court its argument that Justice Department permission isn't necessary.

In Saturday's runoff, Democrat Jim Chapman edged Republican Edd Hargett by less than 2,000 votes. The runoff was scheduled after no candidate got a majority in the June 29 special election to replace Rep. Sam Hall, a Democrat who resigned to become a federal judge.

A three-judge federal court panel last week threatened to void the election results.

China shouldn't get reactors

By MAJ. GEN. HENRY MOHR
Communist China should not be allowed to buy U.S.-made nuclear reactors as proposed in an agreement approved by the president on July 23. The plan, which provides that the United States will sell nuclear technology and fuel to Communist China with no written guarantees against misuse, should be rejected by Congress.

For what its worth, the Red Chinese have joined the International Atomic Energy Agency, saying they will make their nuclear facilities available for inspection. Washington officials, who say the Reds have "clarified" their position, feel confident the Chinese will honor their oral agreement. Just how the Communists have come to deserve such high trust is a mystery.

A major player in the affair is the troubled U.S. nuclear power industry. It wants to compete for an estimated $20 billion in nuclear power sales on Mainland China over the next fifteen years. Paving the way for the pact was an unexplained decision by the Reagan administration that Red China has met those provisions of U.S. law that stood in the way for more than two years. With that decision, Communist China's leaders won a major concession that they don't have to put their promises in writing.

Under U.S. law, exported nuclear technology and fuels may be used only for peaceful purposes. Restrictions exist on resale and possible use for nuclear weapons and nuclear proliferation. Speculation has it that the administration caved in to Communist demands, leaving the question of enforcement of the agreement dangling.

The U.S. says it will stop nuclear aid to Communist China if it doesn't keep its word. In other words, we will leave the barn door open only until after the horse is stolen. What good would cutting off nuclear aid afterwards do? Nuclear technology and fuels that may have escaped to Third-World countries could then be used for dangerous proliferation of nuclear weapons and U.S. hindsight wouldn't help.

We seem to be witnessing the strange phenomenon of a leopard trying to change its spots - with the help of official Washington and the media. Communist China only rarely is called "Communist," or "Red," China these days. Why is not clear. Especially since Communist China is holding fast to its hard-core party status and policies, including plans to seize Taiwan when and if it can.

Americans have not forgotten that the announced goal of World Communism is world domination. President Ronald Reagan, in remarks that were right on target, recently reminded this country of the dark evils of Communism.

By placing such trust in Communist China's leaders, have we overlooked the fact that their representative still sits on the side of the enemy at the Panmunjon conference table in Korea - opposite the United Nations, United States, and South Korea? In Panmunjon, Red China shows its true face, openly siding with Communist North Korea and, indirectly, the Soviet Union.

The U.S.-Red China agreement on nuclear reactors, and presumably on nuclear technology as well, was delayed when Communist Chinese nuclear specialists were spotted at a nuclear plant in Pakistan in May 1984, according to intelligence sources.

This raises more questions: --Has Communist Chinese assistance to Pakistan (believed to involve nuclear weapons) really stopped?

--Will Red China pass nuclear technology that could be used for weapons to Third-World countries? It says no. But, Peking has placed itself under heavy suspicion by refusing to sign an agreement, insisting on only verbal assurances. We should remind ourselves that historically, even written treaties with Communist countries have had little value.

Nothing about the U.S.-Communist China nuclear pact seems iron clad. That fact alone should alert Congress to the fact that rejecting the agreement is its only logical course.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Exploration ban bad for country

Regrettably for the nation's energy future, the environmental lobby has won the battle over offshore oil exploration in California.

Interior Secretary Donald Hodel and members of the state's congressional delegation have announced an agreement that will keep drilling rigs out of most unexplored areas until at least the year 2000.

A spokesman for the National Resources Defense Council, an environmental group, hailed the pact as "an important step toward achieving a balanced policy of offshore oil and gas leasing off the California coast."

It is no such thing. It is a decidedly unbalanced agreement.

Drilling will be permitted only on 864,000 acres, about 2.3 percent of the 37 million acres that are currently off limits under a congressional moratorium blocking offshore drilling.

The moratorium was imposed four years ago at the urging of California lawmakers after former Interior Secretary James Watt announced a plan to open most U.S. offshore waters for oil and gas exploration.

Faced with the probability that the moratorium would be renewed when it expires Sept. 30, Secretary Hodel agreed to negotiate with the California congressional delegation. He was out-negotiated. In exchange for dropping of the moratorium, he gave the California congressmen almost everything they wanted.

This means that the most promising offshore tracts in the nation in terms of potential petroleum deposits cannot be explored for at least 15 years. Since it takes 8 to 15 years to develop offshore fields, any oil and gas from these sites would really be unavailable for up to 30 years.

The American Petroleum Institute, an industry group, charges that the agreement "totally ignores the energy security of this nation and will jeopardize the nation's ability to meet its energy needs in the next 15 years."

It is especially ironic that officials of a state that consumes a tenth of all the gasoline used in the United States would insist on closing off new supplies of oil. If the current world oil glut turns into a shortage in a few years, as could happen, California officials might rue the deal that they are now applauding.

Today in History

By The Associated Press
Today is Thursday, Aug. 8, the 220th day of 1985. There are 145 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:
On Aug. 8, 1974, President Richard M. Nixon announced in a nationally broadcast address that he would resign his office at noon the following day. Nixon's decision to resign followed further erosion of his remaining support in the wake of new revelations connected to the Watergate scandal. Nixon said he "deeply regretted" any injuries he had caused and said some of his judgments had been wrong.

On this date:
Ten years ago: The Associated Press reported that thousands of whites were leaving Angola in the face of clashes between three rival black movements fighting for control of the Portuguese colony, scheduled to receive its independence the following November.

Motives misunderstood

I have astounding publishing news. It comes to me from the marketing manager of a news agency which wholesales books and magazines.

My informant, Lee Mednikow, also sent along a letter he received recently from Arthur Kretchner, editorial director of Playboy, regarding a major change in the magazine as of the October issue.

Get this: Playboy is moving its famed centerfold to the back of the magazine. This results from Playboy's decision to become a "perfect bound" magazine, one whose spine will be rigid, as is the case with such notable publications as National Geographic and Architectural Digest.

But that's still not the big news. The big news is that by moving the centerfold to the back of the book, the centerfold will no longer have the unsightly staple popping out somewhere on the shapely body of the lovely woman pictured there.

Most of the time, as avid Playboy readers know, that ugly staple winds up right in the middle of the centerfold's navel.

Wrote Mr. Mednikow, who works at the Atlanta News Agency, "I grew up thinking all women had a staple in their navel."

I am very happy the Playboy centerfold will no longer have the staple because this means when I tear out the picture to put it on my wall, there no longer will be that unsightly hole in the photograph that the staple makes.

I remember a particularly lovely Miss April once. Her belly-button was an absolute work of art. But when I tried to free her photograph from the magazine, the staple ripped through her navel - and there is nothing more unattractive than a naked 20-year-old with a gaping tear where her navel ought to be.

I realize, of course, this new move by Playboy will not affect everybody, because not everybody reads Playboy and not everybody tears out the centerfolds to tack onto their walls.

There are some people, in fact - probably those who tear out pictures of giant lizards from National Geographic - who likely think hanging pictures of undraped young ladies from Playboy magazine is a sign of some dark, sexual perversion.

Not true. First of all, those of us who enjoy the monthly centerfold know how to appreciate great photography.

Ever look closely at a Playboy centerfold? What marvelous camera work, what style, what imagination. Ever notice Playboy centerfolds never have a blemish on their bodies, never have a bruise and nary a freckle or mole?

That's the result of outstanding photography.

What else we notice is the short biography that comes with each centerfold photograph. The current issue, the last with the staple, indicates Miss September, Venice Kong, 23, enjoys cute, cuddly animals, sunbathing, carried chicken and Bruce Springsteen, and her ambition is "to get as much out of life as I can while helping others get what they want." How touching.

This bright young woman obviously will become a credit to society, and to suggest we Playboy readers are interested in her only from a strict physical context is both grossly incorrect and insulting.

"Don't give me that 'I'm just a house-husband in need of some adult conversation' stuff."

South Africa responds to terrorism

By William A. Rusher

Two nations declared states of emergency in southern Africa last week. In one case, France withdrew its ambassador, banned all future investment there, and brought the matter before the U.N. Security Council, where the offending nation was denounced on all sides. Demonstrators engaged in a mass protest in front of its Washington embassy, while angry speeches were made in the House of Representatives. In the other case, nothing happened at all.

The first nation was South Africa. The second was its neighbor to the north, Zimbabwe.

And yet the case for emergency police powers would seem, if anything, to be far stronger in South Africa than in Zimbabwe. Just the other day Joe Slovo, the white communist who heads the military arm of the outlawed African National Congress, boasted to a Washington Post interviewer that he was behind the bomb attacks on targets in South Africa that have taken more than two dozen lives in the past five years.

And listen to this directive to South African blacks, broadcast in English by the ANC's National Executive Committee, from communist-controlled Ethiopia on May 6:

"Ambushes must be prepared for policemen and soldiers...with the aim of capturing weapons from them. Our people must also manufacture homemade bombs and petrol bombs with material that can be locally obtained. In addition, our people must also buy weapons where possible.

"After arming themselves in this manner, our people must begin to identify collaborators and enemy agents and deal with them. Those collaborators who are serving in the community councils must be dealt with. Informers, policemen, special branch police and Army personnel living and working among our people must be eliminated."

Those are the orders whose consequences you saw on television: the picture of a black man, "suspected of being a police informer," cowering on the ground while Bishop Tutu pleaded with a black mob for his life; the picture of a black woman, similarly "suspected," soaked with gasoline by other blacks and set afire. The good bishop was so shaken by these events that he warned: "If that happens again, I am going to collect my family and leave this country that I love. Millions of people worldwide support our struggle, but when they saw that on TV many said, 'Uh, oh, if these people can do things like that, they are not ready for freedom.'"

The fact is that the South African government would have been far more open to legitimate criticism if it had not declared a state of emergency and moved briskly to protect the country's 20 million blacks from the hot-heads eager to carry out the ANC's murderous orders.

And the irony is that all this is happening, not when the condition and prospects of South Africa's blacks are getting worse, but when they are brighter than ever before. To hear South Africa's critics - in the United Nations, on America's campuses, on Capitol Hill, and in front of its embassy on Massachusetts Avenue - one would suppose that the South African government has slammed the door on black political participation forever. On the contrary, it is moving with impressive speed to devise ways of bringing blacks into the political life of the country. Just within the past two years, South Africa's 1 million "Asians" (i.e. Indians) and 2.5 million "coloureds" (the Westernized mulatto group) have been enfranchised and brought into government, and negotiations on black participation lie straight ahead.

In fact, one almost suspects that it is this rapid progress that has prompted South Africa's enemies to their recent acts of murderous desperation. If they can't destabilize the situation quickly, South Africa's people just may resolve their problem peacefully.

In 1815, Napoleon Bonaparte set sail for St. Helena to spend the remainder of his days in exile.

Crash victims' families are caught in legal tug-of-war

DALLAS (AP) — Lawyers and insurers are involved in a tug-of-war that has swept up victims' families in the wake of Texas' worst-ever air disaster, with one side trying to keep lawsuits to a minimum and the other angling for millions of dollars in insurance money, officials say.

Melvin Belli's San Francisco law firm — which set up shop at a local hotel two days after Delta Air Lines Flight 191 crashed Friday night and left 133 people dead — has been accused of hustling clients to sue Delta. The lawyers deny that.

United States Aviation Underwriters Inc., which represents Delta's insurers, has been accused of trying to persuade grief-stricken victims' families to agree to immediate settlements instead of hiring lawyers and suing. U.S. Aviation denies that.

In the conflict between the two, everyone emerges the loser, said a lawyer prominent in airline torts.

"It puts the insurance industry and the bar in very bad repute," said New York lawyer Lee S. Kreindler, who has been involved in air-crash cases for more than 30 years. "It's unseemly."

Both sides say they are working on behalf of the victims. Both sides have been criticized for hurting the victims.

The effect, Kreindler said, is that bereaved families are victimized twice.

"Their privacy is invaded. It's terrible," he told The Dallas Morning News Wednesday. "It's an awful time for them and everybody is knocking on their damn door."

Famed personal injury lawyer F. Lee Bailey said a close friend who lost a wife in the Delta crash has told him that many victims' families are expressing open bitterness toward both parties.

"The reports that I'm getting is that they are very resentful of being solicited," Bailey said. "It's like invading Bhopal, India, before all the bodies have been buried."

Belli made a highly publicized trip to Bhopal to sign clients in the wake of the Union Carbide toxic chemical leak last year.

Richard E. Brown, a Belli associate who is now operating out of a ninth-floor suite at the Dallas-Fort Worth Airport Hilton, said he is here at the request of potential clients.

He also said a relative of a Delta crash victim told him of solicitations by insurance representatives.

"They (insurance agents) said,

'We'd like to settle before you see an attorney. We'd like to offer you $100,000.'" Brown said.

An attorney for Esther Ledford, a Florida woman who filed suit against Delta Tuesday, said Mrs. Ledford was approached by representatives of U.S. Aviation on Sunday.

"She was approached in the hospital and given (business) cards and told representatives were in Dallas this week and could be contacted," said Miami lawyer Paul Siegel.

Robert L. Alpert, senior vice president of U.S. Aviation, denied that his agents were contacting crash survivors or victims' families to negotiate settlements.

"Absolutely not," Alpert said. "What we're trying to do is get the bodies identified and the bodies back home to the next of kin. It's premature at this point to discuss any claim or negotiation of settlement."

U.S. Aviation, a New York company that represents a consortium of insurance companies, has a reputation in national legal circles for rapid post-crash contact with possible litigants, the Morning News reported today.

"The effort," lawyer Kreindler said, "is to get the cases settled before competent lawyers are retained by the people."

Alpert said Wednesday he is too busy working with Delta to discuss how this case will be handled, or to talk about past cases. A Delta spokesman said the company will have no comment regarding insurance or possible litigation.

Wednesday night, National Transportation Safety Board member Patrick Bursley said the nine-member NTSB operations group, which is spearheading the investigation, had completed its work here and would reconvene Monday in Atlanta, Delta's home city.

Those investigators will examine training records of Delta pilots and the airline's policies about flying in severe weather, Bursley said.

Some of the eight other NTSB investigative teams probing the crash will be working into next week at the airport, he told a press conference.

Tapes from the Federal Aviation Administration controllers in the tower at the time of the crash are expected to be released Monday, Bursley said. The two controllers who handled the approach and landing of Delta 191 are still on duty, he said.

Iranians called terrorists obtain backing in Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — More than a dozen members of Congress who signed letters or statements endorsing an Iranian resistance movement were unaware the State Department had labeled the group a terrorist, anti-American organization, according to interviews with lawmakers and their staffs.

The names of 22 House members appeared in a full-page advertisement in The New York Times on July 28 as supporters of the People's Mujahadeen Organization of Iran, the National Council of Resistance and its leader, Massoud Rajavi.

The State Department says the Mujahadeen — sometimes spelled Mojahedin — took a measure of responsibility for the holding of 52 U.S. hostages in the American Embassy in Tehran for 444 days and was responsible for killing at least six Americans in Iran. The organization denies the State Department evaluation of its role in the cloudy world of Iranian politics.

Within the past 13 months, lawmakers of both parties, including Sens. Gary Hart, D-Colo., Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., and Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., have written messages of support addressed to Rajavi.

Generally, the letters refer to the need to restore democracy in Iran and end human rights violations.

An aide to Kennedy, who spoke on condition of anonymity, called his letter of June 27, 1984, "a mistake ... it wasn't checked carefully enough."

Rep. Mervyn Dymally, D-Calif., one of those whose name appears in the advertisement, says he was duped into sending out a "Dear Colleagues" letter and a petition in support of Mojahadeen and Rajavi.

Dymally said his initial involvement came after some well-dressed and articulate Iranian students visited his office and asked his help.

The students portrayed themselves as peace-seeking, freedom-loving exiled Iranians trying to expose the ruthlessness of the Ayatollah Khomeini regime, Dymally said.

Before learning more, Dymally circulated among colleagues the letter and a petition accompanied by a statement, which talked of the rise of the Iranian resistance and mentioned Rajavi by name.

"The purpose of the petition is to allow members of congress and parliaments to indicate their support for resistance of the Khomeini regime," Dymally's letter said.

Once apprised of the State Department's view, Dymally said he disavowed the material, adding he was "very distressed" to learn his name was on the advertisement.

But another congressman who signed a statement of support, Bob Wise, D-W.Va., questions the State Department's view on the Mujahadeen, his spokeswoman says.

"He will support any resistance to Khomeini and he's not sure the State Department is right," the aide, Erin Splaine, said. "We're asking for more information from both parties."

Richard W. Murphy, assistant secretary of state for Near East and South Asian affairs, told a House committee on July 24 that the organization "has sort of been masquerading under a cover which attracted a surprising amount of support, judging by some letters from Congress."

Of the 22 House members, spokesmen for 14 said they signed statements of support or sent letters to the group out of a belief it was a legitimate organization committed to peace, democracy and an end to terrorism in Iran.

Several congressmen couldn't recall signing the petition.

Storms rake Texas airport

LUFKIN, Texas (AP) — Small planes were overturned at the Angelina County Airport by a severe storm packing hurricane-force winds that moved through the Lufkin area Wednesday night, officials said.

George Ellis, with the Federal Aviation Administration Flight Service Station, said the winds near Lufkin reached 72 knots (83 mph) at 6:45 p.m.

Dear Abby

Man wonders if good cook has right ingredient for marriage

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1985 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Please answer this as soon as possible. I have been living with this wonderful girl since last October. She is a good, clean housekeeper and wonderful cook. She always has supper ready when I get home from work. She is 23 and I am 24, and she wants to get married. I have never been married and neither has she.

The problem is that she had been the same as a wife to four other men before she met me, but she promised to be faithful and true to me as long as we live. I love her very much and told her I would write to you and do whatever you said.

UNDECIDED
IN WHEELING, W.VA.

DEAR UNDECIDED: What's the hurry? A decision that you expect to live with for a lifetime deserves more thought than you have given to it. I have no way of predicting whether this girl will be true to you as long as you both live. (Nor have you—or she, for that matter.) Don't marry anyone because she's a good cook and housekeeper. You can hire someone for that. If you have to ask me whether you should marry her, I say don't. It's easier to get married than divorced. And much cheaper.

DEAR ABBY: Last week, a busload of us senior citizens went to Niagara Falls and Canada for an outing, financed by our town (West Edmeston, N.Y.)

There were 37 of us on this trip and we had a wonderful time except for one thing—the Falls on the American side were grossly neglected and looked terrible. But the Falls on the Canadian side were beautiful, bright with flowers and well-maintained. The comparison made us Americans feel somewhat ashamed and therefore sad.

I know it would cost our government a few dollars to beautify our side of the Falls, but it would be well worth it to restore our national pride.

Beauty Briefs

Humidity and hair

Hair problems seem to intensify in humid weather. Coarse or wavy hair will frizz, while naturally fine, straight hair will go limp.

It's best not to fight nature, although a carefully done body permanent helps such problems. Basically, it's the cut that counts.

Often a "blunt" cut, done with scissors rather than a tapered razor layering, will get maximum volume and control. A protein-enriched hair spray can also help.

I sure hope I see this in print.
SAD SENIOR

DEAR SAD: And I sure hope Secretary of the Interior Donald Hodel sees it, too.

DEAR ABBY: This is for "Tired of Waiting," whose in-laws' graves are still unmarked after five years because one of their sons wanted to put something on his father's headstone crediting him with having served in the Army overseas but didn't know how to word it.

They should contact their local Veterans Administration office and apply for a monument, available in granite or marble. It is free to any deceased veteran who was discharged under conditions other than dishonorable. The serviceperson's name, dates of birth and death, branch of service, last rank attained and war served in can be engraved on the marker or headstone.

The family need pay only for the installation, as even the freight is paid for by the government.

GLAD TO HELP

DEAR GLAD: Thank you for helping to solve this serious problem.

DEAR ABBY: I am presently going with a boy who is five years older than I am, and my mother is having a fit! She says he's too old for me.

Now, here's the kicker: My mother married a man who was 18 years older than she was, so I don't see how she can tell me that a man five years older than me is too old for me. Her marriage isn't perfect, but it's not a disaster either.

Maybe you can shed some light on this situation.

CONFUSED

DEAR CONFUSED: How old are you? If you're 21 and he's 26, that's one thing. But if you're 13, and he is 18, that's something else.

Fall approaches

Designers easily meld seasons

By Florence De Santis

NEW YORK (NEA) — Trans-season is that difficult period when the weather is still warm but fall and cooler days are approaching. Designers solve the problem with light-weight fabrics and fall-like colors. This year's trans-season clothes can meld effortlessly into any true fall wardrobe later.

From California comes a series of prints and patterns. Dennis Goldsmith makes a simple chemise of coral-red cotton knit printed with black graffiti. Rick Beach pairs a rayon sweater with a matching skirt. He uses a garnet-on-beige rose print set in large diamond-shaped frames. Esprit Sport teams a purple cotton jacket and black lamb's wool knit vest with a cotton fleece miniskirt and a rayon shirt, both in different prints.

Separates, of course, are ideal when the weather can change, even during a single day. Gordon of Philadelphia does a soft skirt and matching open-front vest in a cotton-linen-viscose blend, the wide stripes in soft red, brown and yellow, or navy shot with yellow and violet. A silky polyester shirt in mauve or peanut butter goes with them.

Since royal blue is bidding to be a big favorite in fall clothes, Gordon uses it for a trans-season group of skirt and pants in poly-rayon blend. There's a deep raspberry that will carry on equally well into fall. They've also picked up on the resurgence of corduroy, in a cotton-poly pinwale available in cream, horizon blue, mulberry and a soft teal. With it can go their coordinated box plaid shirt and a boatneck pullover in abstract patterned matching tones.

Mixes of patterns and solids open the season for Adri, who does a long-sleeved silky rayon "polo" shirt top in brick red with matching pants in a new high-waist cut. Two-piece dressing means a brick foulard print on a shirred cotton knit skirt with sky blue waist yoke, and a matching top. Adri likes the Big Shirt for the trans-season weather vagaries, but in pale and dark blue floral jacquard with a matching vest, and navy trousers.

For early fall evenings, Margaretha Ley for Escada picks a royal blue silk satin shirt worn as a tunic over a sequin sliver skirt. This kind of shirt-dressing also appears in prints, such as the squiggle print in bright colors used by Nicole Miller for a challis shirtdress with wide shoulders. With some bold jewelry, it can easily go partying. Karl Davis likes a brilliantly colored abstract floral silk for his early fall silk crepe shirtdress for Overseas Designers. For Caroline Simonelli at Levante, a shirtdress with an open back V-neck under the collar looks right in a ponyskin print of brown on ivory.

Although floral prints have usually been associated with spring, the advent of abstract florals is leading designers to use them for two-piece floral cocktail dresses for fall. Lor-

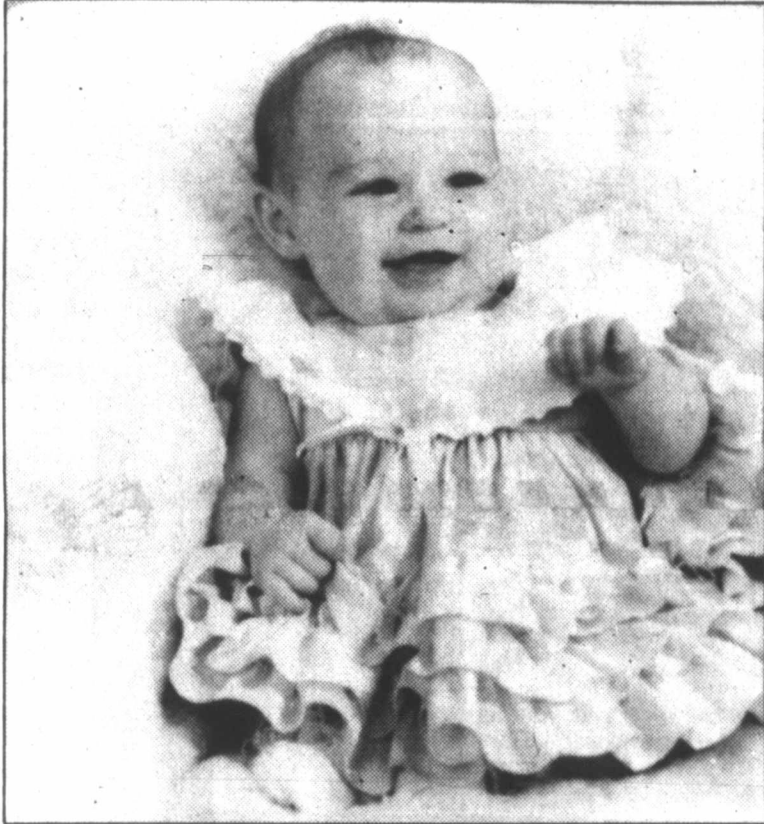

EARLY FALL sweatering, in cotton knit at Gordon of Philadelphia, has a skirt in mulberry pinwale corduroy, with plaid cotton shirt beneath.

JASCO JERSEY goes to early fall parties in Steven Stolman's sweeping dress dramatically divided into uneven halves of yellow and deep rose.

raine Rosenfeld for Gregge Sport likes an abstract of red poppies on navy for her big-sleeved belted shirt and hip-stitched pleated skirt. Tori's acrylic knit tunic and flaring pleated skirt are covered with large, spaced multicolored jacquard pansies.

PAGEANT PRETTIES-Amber Freeman, four months, left, has been named Most Photogenic in her age division at the National Kids of America Pageant in Dallas last weekend. She was first alternate in the 0-5 months division at the local Kids of America Pageant, qualifying her to attend the national finals. Ashley Freeman, 2, right, received third alternate in the 12 to 23 months division at the local pageant which also qualified her to attend the national event. The two girls are the daughters of John and Chalenia Freeman of Pampa, and the granddaughters of Chester and Rose Tackett and Thelma Freeman, all of Pampa.

SUMMER SNOW — A blanket made from foiled used in the space program preserved a pile of snow for mid-summer skiing recently at Sugarloaf USA, Maine. Woodsman Adrian Brochu of Stratton, Maine, developed what he

Pope John Paul II off to Africa

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John Paul II, carrying a forceful message of human dignity, social justice and peace, set out today for a 12-day swing through Africa.

The pope's special Alitalia DC-10 jetliner took off at 10:05 a.m. (4:05 a.m. EDT) from Leonardo da Vinci Airport for the West African country of Togo.

This is the pope's third and longest journey to Africa, where Roman Catholicism is growing faster than anywhere else in the world.

During his tour of seven nations, the pope will seek to consolidate the church's gains and improve relations with Islam, the continent's largest religion.

Togo, a country about half the size of Ohio, is where voodoo originated and still is widely practiced.

Christians constitute about 27 percent of the country's 2.9 million people. About one-fifth of Togo's Christians are Roman Catholic. The rest are voodooists who believe in sorcery and the power of charms and fetishes, and animists — people who follow tribal religions based on the belief that all objects are imbued with spirits and demons.

After a two-day stay in Togo, the pope flies to the Ivory Coast, followed by visits to Cameroon, the Central African Republic, Zaire, Kenya and Morocco. The 15,803-mile journey is the 27th foreign tour by 65-year-old John Paul since he became pope in 1978.

In Togo's oceanfront capital of Lome, women and children on Wednesday swept the streets with homemade brooms. Christian and Moslem leaders as well as priests and sorcerers of the 70-percent animist majority offered special prayer's for the pope's visit.

Tens of thousands of faithful were reported travelling to Lome and other sites of the pope's appearances in Togo from neighboring countries of Ghana and Benin.

Administration reportedly gives direct advice to anti-Sandinistas

NEW YORK (AP) — White House officials have been giving direct advice to rebels fighting to topple the leftist Nicaraguan government, according to a published report.

The direction by the National Security Council officials includes advice and "tactical influence" on military operations and help in raising money from private sources, according to senior administration and Congressional officials quoted in Thursday's editions of The New York Times.

The administration began giving the advice last year after Congress declined President Reagan's bid to give them military aid, the report said.

Congress has since voted to give the rebels $27 million in non-military assistance.

Congressmen said although the NSC has violated the intent of the legislation in giving the advice, it apparently has not acted illegally. "If the president wants to use the NSC to operate a war in Nicaragua, I don't think there's any way we can control it," said Rep. George E. Brown Jr., D-Calif.

Brown, a member of the House Select Committee on Intelligence, said he had discussed the matter with other members of panel, "but we haven't taken any formal action."

Kidnappers release ABC employee

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The Lebanese manager of the ABC News bureau in Beirut was freed unharmed early today, apparently rescued by Druse militiamen from the kidnappers who abducted him five days ago.

Shakib Hmeidan, red-eyed and unshaven, walked into west Beirut's Commodore Hotel wearing a green T-shirt and dirty jeans provided by his captors. "I have no idea who took me or why," the 50-year-old Hmeidan said later as he toasted his release with champagne. "I don't know exactly why they let me go."

Security sources who spoke on condition they not be identified said Hmeidan apparently was not abducted by the kidnappers believed to be holding a group of Westerners, spre than a year.

Meanwhile, Israeli warplanes blasted a guerrilla base of the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine-General Command in eastern Lebanon's Bekaa valley Thursday, Israeli military sources and Lebanese radio stations reported.

The Christian Voice of Lebanon radio said four people were believed buried in the rubble of the three-story building.

It was Israel's second air raid in Lebanon in less than a week and the 10th this year. Observers in Israel noted the raid followed the killing of two Israeli soldiers and the wounding of two others on Monday in a guerrilla attack near the village of Majd Al Salim in southern Lebanon.

They were the first officially confirmed Israeli fatalities, s.e.e Israel withdrew the bulk of its troops from Lebanon in June 10.

Hmeidan, who has a heart condition, was heading to the airport for a flight to Geneva en route to Houston for a medical checkup, when he was abducted last Saturday.

"They put a gun to my head, pushed me into their car onto the floor," he said. "Someone blindfolded me. After a few minutes we transferred to a van."

"I don't know where they took me, but it was in the Beirut area. I haven't seen daylight since then," he said.

His captors constantly came into the room where he was held, asked him questions, and then left, he said. "I was really afraid they were going to kill me ... Then tonight suddenly the PSP were there and they took me to Jumblatt's house and it was all over," he said.

The PSP is Druse chief Walid Jumblatt's Progressive Socialist Party.

Hmeidan's release came after a newspaper in Kuwait reported that some of the seven Americans and four Frenchmen believed held by Shiite Moslem extremists would soon be released in Damascus, the Syrian capital.

The right-wing newspaper as-Siyasah said Tuesday that Syria would arrange the release of five Americans and three Frenchmen to take attention from an Arab summit meeting in Morocco.

Lebanese, French and American officials said they could not corroborate the report. Michael Austrian, director of public affairs for the State Department's Near East bureau, said in Washington that the department had no information to substantiate the report, and that it appeared to be untrue.

The kidnapped Americans are Terry A. Anderson, 37, The Associated Press chief Middle East correspondent; William Buckley, 57, a U.S. Embassy political officer; the Rev. Benjamin Weir, 61, a Presbyterian minister; Peter Kilburn, 60, American University of Beirut librarian; the Rev. Lawrence Jenco, 50, a Roman Catholic priest; David Jacobsen, 54, director of the American University Hospital; and Thomas Sutherland, 53, dean of agriculture at the university.

Involvements with clubs or social organizations will prove to be of benefit to you in the year ahead. You'll make many new friends who will be helpful to you in other areas.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Don't neglect your tasks or duties today, but also try to allocate some time for a pleasurable pursuit. You need a recreational break. Trying to patch up a romance? The Matchmaker set can help you understand what it might take to make the relationship work. To get yours, mail $2 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) An important personal objective can be achieved today, provided you're flexible and able to change tactics as conditions demand.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) It behooves you today to associate with people whose ideas and views you respect. Imaginative thinkers will stimulate your thought processes.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You're likely to be more fortunate today by building upon something another has started instead of attempting a new venture on your own.

H.E.B. moves headquarters from high-rise to arsenal

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — No high-rise, mirror glass office buildings on the freeway for H.E.B. Grocery Co. headquarters. Give this family-owned and operated business, the nation's 12th largest food retailer, a taste of history — a blend of the old and the new. Give them an old arsenal and stable once used by the U.S. Army in what is now part of San Antonio's historic district. Give them a spot on the San Antonio River, where employees can stroll on their lunch hours and have a scenic view from their desks. The grocer is getting all these advantages this month when corporate headquarters are moved from Corpus Christi to San Antonio. When the move is complete, 500 employees will be working at a refurbished 10-acre site, once an Army supply depot for forts from New Orleans to San Francisco.

"There were four Indian tribes centered here and New Mexico," said architect Pat Chumney, who has shepherded the restoration and construction project since it began five years ago. Originally built in the 1860s, the site includes a limestone arsenal with walls and roof 4 1/2 feet thick. The magazine, as it was called, was built to replace use of the Alamo, a mission that had been put into use by the Army. Sometime around 1916 two warehouses and what was once a buggy repair shop were added. The arsenal and a companion limestone stable have been restored to their original condition. The two warehouses and the buggy shop, later used as a garage for Army truck repairs, have been modified and refurbished to suit more modern office use. Also part of the campus-like complex is a completely new four-story building. "H.E.B. could have built or leased a building on the loop or in downtown and not have the impact on the city that they have by doing this to this complex," Chumney said. "It is an extremely important gesture to the city of San Antonio to take this rundown property that had been abandoned since World War II and put it in condition for use by a modern retail grocery chain," he said. The grocery chain, which employs more than 19,000 people and operates 145 stores in 77 Texas cities, plans to settle in its new 160,000 square foot headquarters by mid-August. The move from Corpus Christi, where H.E.B. has headquartered since 1940, is part of the grocery chain's effort to be more centrally located in its marketing territory. H.E.B. spokesman Charles Blackburn said the arsenal site was chosen because of its historical significance and its central location downtown.

Southfork owner former West Texan remembered as 'likeable'

By SUSAN HAMMONS Odessa American
PARKER, Texas (AP) — A year ago, Terry V. Trippet got a telephone call from a friend about a Dallas-area quarter horse ranch that was up for sale. "I had no interest in buying a place like Southfork, until I saw it," Trippet recalled. Love at first sight prompted the Dallas real estate tycoon to purchase the ranch of "Dallas" television series fame last August. "I didn't even know where it was," said the 40-year-old Trippet, who, since he earned a bachelor's degree in finance at Texas A&M University, has amassed a tidy sum buying and selling property, including more than 15 ranches. Trippet, of Terry V. Trippet & Co., said recently that he instantly knew the spread had one heck of an investment potential as a tourist attraction. Sightseers average 1,000 to 1,500 a day, he said. One day in June, 3,800 made the trek to the home of the fictional Ewings, 27 miles north of Dallas. "I think we hit the home run," said Trippet, who won't divulge how much he paid for the 160 acres and the 14-year-old, 8,500-square-foot mansion, except that it was "a whole bunch of money." "Since I bought it, I've put in over $2 million in improvements out here," said Trippet, who is a 1964 graduate of Odessa High School.

Those improvements include the addition of a party pavilion to seat 2,000 and improving the house's interior to the tune of $500,000. Following the lead of the previous owner, J.R. Duncan, Trippet continued to charge visitors $4 a head to view the grounds. At the same time, he added stagecoach and surrey rides, square dancers and cloggers, and food and soft drink sales. Guests who hanker for more can rent the five-bedroom house for a night for a mere $2,500. Trippet said. Or groups can convene there for two hours of cocktails for $1,000. A planned polo ground and rodeo arena will "go hand and glove with the operation," said Trippet, who also breeds and races thoroughbreds and quarter horses. And he donates Southfork for fundraisers, he said. At the recent Cattle Baron's Ball, 200 employees served 2,000 attendees and brought in $1 million for cancer research, he said. The "Dallas" cast films at the ranch no more than 25 days a year, from mid-June through August, Trippet said. He also declined to disclose how much California-based Lorimar Productions forks out for that privilege. "It's quite a lucrative thing. It pays to do business with them, believe me," he said. V. Trippet and Cherry Trippet, his late parents, owned a grocery in Odessa, and Trippet remembers working in the store and oil fields.

His goal was always "to get out of Odessa," he said. Early acquaintances of the 6-foot-3 Trippet, who attended college on a basketball scholarship, remember him for his athletic prowess. Mary Neil Johnson, a veteran Odessa High business education teacher who retired this year, recalled, "He threw a shot from one end of the fieldhouse to the other and made it." Trippet was "a fun-loving, happy-go-lucky kid," she said. "He didn't have too much interest in books." E.H. Cavin, who was Trippet's principal at Bowie Junior High and later at Odessa High, agreed the youth was "a nice, likable person," — traits needed by a successful person. But, "I hadn't anticipated that he would become just super, which I'm sure he has," Cavin said. The former principal said when he went to catch up on work on weekends at the junior high, "the first person who would be here knocking on the door would be Terry Trippet. He would want to shoot baskets." Today, Trippet places his worth "in excess" of $1 million. And, he said, his family lives comfortably in north Dallas and enjoys the trappings of financial success. "I have those little toys," he said. "We don't live fancy, and we don't live poor. We don't go out and buy jet airplanes."

Food poisoning strikes 81 people

MONTERREY, Mexico (AP) — Health officials say they suspect the food poisoning that struck at least 81 people this week was caused by spoiled cream served at a taco stand. Most of those stricken were listed in serious condition at area social security hospitals, said Gregorio Sanchez Montanez, public ministry delegate in Monterrey. It was the most widespread case of food poisoning reported here in recent memory. Authorities closed the taco stand La Siberia on Monday after 17 cases of food poisoning were reported, said Amador Flores Arechiga, chief of coordinated services in the Monterrey public health department. He told the daily Monterrey newspaper El Sol that all those suffering from food poisoning reported having eaten chicken tacos or tostadas at La Siberia. Heavy cream is served as a condiment on the dishes. "We suspect the cream for the violence of the poisoning and the speed in which the symptoms were presented," Flores said. Of the cases reported Monday, all those stricken said they had eaten at the restaurant the day before, he said.

SPORTS SCENE

NOT YET, GARY — Texas Rangers' outfielder Gary Ward was about ready to start the football season when the baseball strike was called off Wednesday. The Rangers resume the season with a doubleheader today against the Milwaukee Brewers. (AP Laserphoto)

Baseball strike over, season resumes today

NEW YORK (AP) — They will play 162 games, the way they're supposed to.

No split season. No intradivision playoffs. No asterisks. None of the things left over from a seven-week strike that wrecked the 1981 baseball season.

This year's strike is over. Two days after it started.

"I'm glad for everyone in America — especially me because I'm probably America's biggest baseball fan. I'm just glad the darn thing is over," Texas Rangers Manager Bobby Valentine said after players and owners reached agreement Wednesday to end the walkout that called off a total of 25 games.

But all of the games will be made up. Five double-headers tonight help get the baseballs rolling.

Commissioner Peter Ueberroth had maintained this should be the Year of the Record, not the Year of the Strike. He wound up with a split — there was a strike, and it was the shortest one on record.

Was this year's one-day walkout necessary? Depends on who you ask.

"I know it seems impossible that we went seven months and couldn't get the job done," said Lee MacPhail, the top representative for team owners. "I'm sorry we couldn't get it done without a strike."

In the end, though, MacPhail and counterpart Don Fehr, head of the players association, did get the job done. They settled the tricky issue of salary caps with some hard bargaining Tuesday and Wednesday and salvaged the season.

Who won and who lost? Depends on who you ask.

"We lost and the owners won," said Rick Miller of the Boston Red Sox.

"I don't like anything about it," said Texas owner Eddie Chiles. "I think it's a totally bad agreement. Very, very heavily weighted in favor of the players."

On the issue that most threatened to wipe out the season, the players won. There will be no limits on how much a player can win in salary arbitration. The owners wanted, and later demanded, that players be allowed to get no more than double his current salary.

The owners did get increased — from two full years to three — the amount of time before a player can file for salary arbitration. That provision goes into effect in 1987, meaning rookies such as Vince Coleman will not be able to go that route then. But second-year players like Dwight Gooden will.

On the pension plan issue, once described by MacPhail as the "most troublesome" matter, the sides compromised.

The owners will contribute an average of $32.6 million annually to the players' pension plan during the five-year agreement. That is more than double the $15.5 million per year the players had been getting, but far less than the $60 million they sought.

All of that money comes from a $1.1 billion network television package signed last year. In the past, the players had traditionally — but not officially — received one-third of the TV amount. This time, one-third would have been $60 million.

The settlement also does away with the re-entry draft, enabling a free agent to sign with the team of his choice, and eliminates professional player compensation for clubs that lose free agents.

Ueberroth was smiling when he made the opening remarks at a press conference to formally announce the settlement. That press conference had originally been scheduled to start at 5 p.m., but did not begin until after 10 p.m. while the sides finished working out final contract language.

The commissioner was just one of many who were smiling.

"Well, this is quite a thrill," said Milwaukee pitcher Pete Ladd. "This is something. I guess we'll have to play a triple-header."

Valentine believes fans will forgive

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Bobby Valentine believes the major league baseball fans will forgive and forget the two-day strike of 1985.

"I believe the fans will come back because both sides used good judgment," the Texas Rangers manager said Wednesday. "Now we want to show the fans we're worthy of their support."

The Rangers and Milwaukee Brewers scheduled a doubleheader today with the Brewers flying into town at noon then leaving immediately after the game for Chicago.

"I'm happy we don't have to do that," said Valentine. "That could be a little tough on the Brewers."

The first game starts at 5:35 p.m. and the mercury has been hovering around the 100-degree mark at that time all week.

Rangers players said

Wednesday night they will vote to ratify the new agreement between the major league owners and the union. Twenty of 24 players showed for an optional workout at Arlington Stadium Wednesday night that drew only three fans.

"I'm happy as hell with the contract," said Rangers pitcher Dave Stewart. "It didn't take long to settle it and everything looks good."

Nicklaus hides from reporters

DENVER (AP) — A poignant little drama, an adult game of hide-and-seek, was played out in the locker room at the Cherry Hills Country Club.

Jim Wartens of the Professional Golfers Association was seeking Jack Nicklaus, with the objective of inviting Nicklaus to a mass interview prior to the start of the 67th PGA national championship.

And Nicklaus was hiding.

"I could tell he was trying to avoid me," Wartens said. "But I asked him anyhow."

Nicklaus, one of the most accommodating and accessible of all the major figures in sports, declined.

"I'm tired of having everybody ask me when I'm going to retire," Nicklaus said.

The questions, however, are normal and naturally arise from the present situation. He recognized it himself only a week ago.

"I haven't won in more than a year," he said in irritation, and disbelief.

And that only scratches the surface.

Nicklaus, who has won almost everything of value the game can offer, has won only once in three years. And it has been five years since he won a major — the U.S. and British Opens, the Masters and the PGA — the tournaments around which he has built his golfing life.

This season, he missed the cut in both the British and U.S. Opens.

Perhaps the most important factor of all is that he's 45.

So it is a legitimate question — has Nicklaus at last reached the end of his unmatched career?

No, said Nicklaus.

"I'm not trying to pretend I'm as good a player as I was 10 years ago. My gosh, I know that. I can still, anytime I tee it up, win the golf tournament, and if you can do that, you've got something to work for," Nicklaus said.

"I happen to enjoy playing golf. The older I've got, the more I enjoyed it. Sure, it's had some frustrating moments to it," he said and, for just a moment, the irritation showed.

"The most frustrating is probably answering some of the questions I get from you guys. They have no bearing on how I feel about the game of golf. As long as I can be competitive and enjoy playing, why not play?"

That little show of annoyance could be just the spur Nicklaus needs, said one of his long-time friends and golfing foes.

"Leave him alone," begged Lee Trevino. "Please leave him alone. I told you 10 years ago, when the Bear is asleep, you don't wake him up. Just leave him alone. You wake him up and you get clawed to pieces."

"Same thing still holds," Trevino said. "He's the best there ever was. No question about it. And he can still be the best there is."

"I don't think it's a case of who won or lost," Niekro said Wednesday. "Everybody had to compromise today."

Nolan Ryan summed the short-lived strike with: "I think both sides received pretty much what they wanted."

Ueberroth says he had no role

NEW YORK (AP) — Peter Ueberroth wasn't able to stop the baseball strike, but at least he got to end it.

The commissioner preferred to give credit for the quick finish of the dispute to others. Still, he was determined throughout not to let the summer season evaporate under the weight of a walkout.

"Some people have talked about my role," Ueberroth said, as he announced the settlement. "I want you to know very clearly that I had no role. This was done by these two teams of people headed by (union chief) Don Fehr and (management negotiator) Lee MacPhail. They put baseball back on the field. They had to be sure they did it right and they did do it right. Now they have a success."

"I was glad I could help them keep going, but I was of no consequence when it came to the actual negotiations."

That is true, but it is also true that Ueberroth kept them working on those negotiations, even when it seemed the collective bargaining process had ground to a halt.

"The commissioner has been very helpful in the whole process," management negotiator Lee MacPhail said. "He encouraged the two sides to keep talking, to keep down the rhetoric. He did everything he could do without interfering in the basic concept of the two parties banging out an agreement. His role was ideal, just what a commissioner should do."

There was no primer for Ueberroth to consult on that subject. Other sports commissioners faced with strikes — Bowie Kuhn in baseball in 1981, Pete Rozelle in football in 1982 — had steered well away from labor negotiations, at least publicly. Ueberroth, however, plunged right in, pledging first that there would be no strike and then promising to take "appropriate action" to prevent one.

Although he fell short in that goal, the commissioner's determination that the negotiators not fail was an important element of the eventual settlement.

"His presence hung over them like the ghost of Banquo," said Edward Bennett Williams, owner of the Baltimore Orioles and a member of the Player Relations Committee's executive board.

Sometimes, it seemed to hang a bit heavily.

Neither side had asked for his help, preferring to bargain for themselves. And, in fact, when he made some settlement proposals, he was derided as an amateur by ex-union boss Marvin Miller, who questioned his tactic of negotiating in public.

But Ueberroth, who wrote an instant end as mediator in the umpires' strike last October in his first week on the job, was not deterred. "These are just ideas," he said last week. "They can reject them, all of them or part of them. I just want them to reach a common ground and compromise."

That hardly seemed likely on Monday, the last day before the strike deadline. After a fruitless 90-minute informal morning session, the two sides held no further meetings. That night, with tension building, Ueberroth asked MacPhail and PRC counsel Barry Rona to seek a resumption of talks. Within an hour, the two sides said they would meet the next morning.

That informal session blossomed into 11 hours of negotiations — the longest and most productive time the two sides had spent together since talks began last November.

On Wednesday they were back at it, and when the framework for an agreement began to fall in place, they were joined by the commissioner. Shortly afterwards, he announced "a tentative understanding." Twelve hours later, that understanding had evolved into a full-scale settlement.

Astros are happy strike is over

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Astros are to set for tonight's game against the Padres in San Diego following the short-lived major league strike and players couldn't be any happier.

"I'm glad it's over," said outfielder Kevin Bass. "I was kind of sweating it out for a while. We figured it would last all season."

Bass, and his teammates are departing from Houston today on a charter airplane that will carry a four-game winning streak to the West Coast.

"We're leaving tomorrow to play the Padres tomorrow night," Astros General Manager Al Rosen said Wednesday following the announcement of an agreement between players and owners.

The Astros play the Padres today and Friday and then take on the San Francisco Giants next week in San Francisco. The strike cut the Giants and Astros three-game series in Houston down to two with the Astros sweeping both games.

All the Astros except one are expected to board the charter plane to San Diego, said the team's public relations director Rick Rivers.

"The only player that left Houston was Bob Knepper," Rivers said.

Knepper, the Astros' player representative, had already made plans to fly home to Oregon even before the strike became official, Rivers said.

"It was of such short duration that it shouldn't hurt our momentum," Astros Manager Bob Lillis said. "I'm just happy it was such a short strike, and we can get back to playing baseball."

Joe Niekro, who will be the starting pitcher for the Astros tonight, spent Wednesday morning caddying for his daughter at a local junior golf tournament.

Women's doubles tourney planned

A women's doubles tennis tournament is planned for Tuesday, Aug. 13 at the high school tennis courts.

A, B and C divisions will be included with placements at the discretion of the directors. Starting time is 9 a.m.

Matches will consist of two out of three sets with a 12-point tie-breaker at 6-all. No-ad scoring will be used until the finals. A consolation bracket guarantees each team at least two matches.

Entry fee is three dollars per person and entry deadline is Aug. 13.

Entries can be mailed to Sharron Hurst at 1505 North Nelson, Pampa, Tex. 79065. Call (806)-669-9410 for more information.

The tournament is being sponsored by the Pampa Tennis Club.

Rangers call up Russell

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — The Texas Rangers purchased the contract of pitcher Jeff Russell from their Triple-A farm club at Oklahoma City, the American League club announced Wednesday.

Russell, 24, was expected to join the Rangers in time for the team's twi-night doubleheader against Milwaukee Thursday night at Arlington Stadium. He was listed as a probable starter in the first game.

He fills the roster spot left vacant when rookie pitcher Glen Cook was sent back to Oklahoma City Monday.

Redskins' Butz joins Dorsett on fine list

Defensive tackle Dave Butz is reportedly being fined $1,000 a day until he signs a new contract with the Washington Redskins, an action the National Football League Players Association says is illegal.

"This is totally out of line," Gene Upshaw, president of the NFLPA, said of the report. "This is ridiculous. We are going to look into it. Are the Redskins negotiating in good faith with Dave Butz?"

The Washington Times reported the Redskins are offering Butz, a 13-year NFL veteran, a $200,000 signing bonus, a salary of $325,000 for this season and $450,000 for 1986.

On Wednesday, the Washington Post quoted Butz as saying he was "disheartened" by the reported fine.

Upshaw said the collective bargaining agreement allows teams to fine players under contract who do not report to camp. But Upshaw said Butz is not subject to that rule because he is a free agent.

Also still holding out is Dallas running back Tony Dorsett, who has charged the Cowboys "double-crossed" him on his contract.

Dorsett said he wants to be traded unless his contract demands are met.

"Tony has himself in a predicament and I guess it's just his way of fighting his way out," said Cowboys Coach Tom Landry. "I guess he is doing what he thinks is best."

Landry said he thought Dorsett could come back the week before the Cowboys' season opener against Washington Sept. 9 and still be able to play.

"Tony has been in our system a long time," Landry said. "He could come in the week of the game and still play. I'm just not sure how good he can play."

Free agent Bobby Hebert, a former United States Football League quarterback, signed Wednesday night with the New Orleans Saints of the National Football League.

"I know I'm going to enjoy this situation. I'm looking forward to playing for Bum Phillips and being in a situation where people can pronounce Hebert," said Hebert, pronounced Ay'-bair. He played with the Oakland Invaders last year after two seasons with the Michigan Panthers.

Crenshaw would like to forget '85

AUSTIN (AP) — This has not been the best of years for Ben Crenshaw.

Since the 1985 PGA tour started in January, the Austin golfer has earned just $14,675. He ranks 151st on the money list. He has entered 19 events, missing the cut in 12, including six in a row. He's been disqualified twice. His best finish was an 18th.

"I feel like waking up into 1986. I've lost all confidence. I'm cursed this year," Crenshaw says.

In April 1984, Crenshaw won the Masters, finally taking a major title. But after winning $201,000 by April 30 last year, he finished with $270,989.

Crenshaw and many others blamed his 1984 slump on a lack of concentration resulting from post-Masters celebrations and the divorce he and his former wife, Polly, were going through.

But in January, he said the slate was clean. "I feel at ease now," he said then.

But his condition has worsened, both psychologically and physically. He worries constantly and has been unable to regain the 10 pounds he has lost since the Masters. Once a sturdy 5-foot-9, 170 pounds, Crenshaw now is a frail 160-pounder.

"My metabolism has changed," he said.

Weakened by the weight loss, Crenshaw has averaged 249 yards off the tee, 162nd among tour pros.

Brent Buckman, a friend who will be the head pro at the new Barton Creek Club, says Crenshaw really wasn't mentally ready when the season began.

"We all (friends) felt this wasn't going to be a good year. We felt he still had so much on his mind. He's just hanging on, trying to overcome himself," Buckman said.

Crenshaw speaks of the frustration.

"I wake up every day feeling well and then I play badly. It's my 13th year and I should know about this game. But everything has gone wrong and it adds up. I've missed (hotel and airplane) reservations, bad business deals. All I can do is laugh about it."

More than a month ago, the last time he was home, Crenshaw visited Dr. Richard Coop, an educational psychologist at the University of North Carolina who works part time at the Academy of Golf at Austin's Hills of Lakeway.

"Coop pointed out some things, like I'm a very soft-hearted person. My mom died suddenly in 1974 and I've gone through life missing her. Maybe I just worry about things too much, think too much. But I'm 33 and can't change," Crenshaw said.

Fellow Austin resident and touring pro Tom Kite says Crenshaw likely will have to change.

"I'll bet he'd like to give up some niceness for cockiness," Kite says. "You have to have a cocky attitude to win. Most good golfers do. And I don't mean that as a derogatory term. When he was playing well, he was cocky. You need more than just a nice swing."

Crenshaw also is having trouble putting, once one of the strongest aspects of his game. He ranks 140th on the greens, averaging more than 30 putts per round.

"I consider myself one of the best putters in the world. Standing over the ball I'm confident. But I've seen so many putts miss that it hurts," he said.

Buckman says that problem is causing Crenshaw to take too many chances from the fairways, going for the pin.

"He's feeling pressure and has the attitude that he has to go for the flag. So he misses the greens and the rough is tougher than it used to be ... He ends up with a difficult shot from the rough. He needs to just shoot for the middle of the green and let the putter do the work," Buckman said.

"His problem is mostly mental. He'll come out of it a much better person if he ever climbs out of the hole," Buckman added.

Crenshaw, encouraged by making the cut at the British and Western opens, just hope that day comes.

"I figured I was over some hurdles," he said. "But it's going to take some time."

Van Nostrand advances to quarterfinals

TORONTO (AP) — American Molly Van Nostrand, who has lost her share of safe leads in the past, decided to see what the view was like from the other side of the court.

"I was thinking I've been here before," Van Nostrand said. "I was up 5-1 in a set against Laura Gildemeister and lost the match."

"I thought, here I am in the same position with the other girl ahead. I felt I had nothing to lose and decided to go for it."

"I tried not to be nervous, make her win it. I didn't want to blow it on errors."

In the muggy weather it was the younger player who kept cool while the veteran tired as Van Nostrand emerged with a 6-4, 2-6, 7-5 victory Wednesday in the $260,000 Player's Challenge.

Van Nostrand, who advanced to the quarterfinals at Wimbledon, faced a Turnbull match point while trailing 5-4, but brought the game to deuce when she hit the line on a back-hand passing shot.

"Oh God, I was praying on that one," she said. "I didn't believe it (hit the line)."

Her win was one of two upsets as the field was trimmed to 16. In a match that was interrupted for two hours due to a thunder shower, Marcella Mesker defeated 10th-seeded Bettina Bunge of Monaco, 6-2, 5-7, 6-4.

Carling Bassett of Toronto, the No. 8 seed, won her first match ever at the Player's Challenge when she downed Terry Phelps of the U.S., 6-0, 2-6, 6-3. Bassett missed last year's tournament because of mononucleosis and was eliminated in the first round in 1983.

Bassett, 17, is the lone Canadian remaining in the singles draw. Jane Young, the national champion from Waterloo, Ontario, was eliminated by 11th-seeded Sylvia Hanika of West Germany, 6-3, 6-3.

The other seeded players all advanced easily.

Top-seeded Chris Evert Lloyd, had an easy opening match, disposing of fellow American Tina Mochizuki 6-2, 6-0.

Following Lloyd into the round of 16 were third-seeded Hana Mandlikova of Czechoslovakia; Helena Sukova of Czechoslovakia, the fourth seed; West Germany's Claudia Kohde-Kilsch, No. 5; and 12th-seeded Andrea Temesvari of Hungary.

Mandlikova defeated Rosalyn Fairbank of South Africa, 6-3, 6-3; Sukova defeated compatriot Iva Budarova 6-1, 6-3; Kohde-Kilsch downed Sabrina Gemes of Yugoslavia 6-2, 6-1; and Temesvari dropped Rene Blount 6-2, 6-2.

Wednesday's sports briefs

By The Associated Press

BASEBALL
NEW YORK (AP) — Major league baseball ended its shortest strike ever, with Commissioner Peter Ueberroth announcing a formal agreement between the two sides late Wednesday.

The five-year agreement was principally crafted in the final 24 hours of negotiations. It came only after both sides compromised on the most pressing issues — the players getting large pension raises, the owners receiving salary arbitration concessions they sought for future financial stability.

With play resuming Thursday, the American League plans to begin making up for lost time immediately — five double-headers are scheduled. The National League, however, while also planning to make up the games postponed by the walkout, will stick to its original schedule of six single contests.

TENNIS
STRATTON, Vt. (AP) — The top three seeds — John McEnroe, Ivan Lendl and Jimmy Connors — cruised into the third round of the $315,000 Volvo International Tennis tournament with clinic-like, straight-set victories over unseeded players.

Texas League roundup

Jackson outlasts Shreveport, 9-8

By The Associated Press

Greg Olson scored the winning run in the bottom of the ninth inning to break an 8-8 tie as the Jackson Mets edged the Shreveport Captains 9-8 in a tight Texas League baseball game Wednesday.

In other Texas League action, the Tulsa Drillers defeated the Arkansas Travelers 3-2, the Beaumont Golden Gators beat the Midland Angels 11-4 and the El Paso Diablos romped over the San Antonio Dodgers 9-0.

The Mets' Stanley Jefferson also turned in a powerhouse performance for Jackson, slamming a two-run homer in the bottom of the fifth and a solo homer in the top of the seventh, while Barry Lyons drove in his 100th run for an all-time Jackson Mets RBI record.

Mets pitcher Joe Graves, 4-7, got the victory. The pitching loss went to Kurt Mattson, 7-7.

The Jackson Mets improved to 29-16. Shreveport fell to 25-21.

Drillers 3, Travelers 2

Tulsa broke a 2-2 tie in bottom of tenth on a double to center by Larry Klein, scoring Javier Ortiz who singled.

Earlier, Klein had tied the game with a squeeze bunt in the bottom of eighth that let Mark Gile triple.

Dwayne Henry was the winning pitcher for Tulsa. Mick Shade took the loss for Arkansas.

Golden Gators 11, Angels 4

Beaumont regained second place in the league's Western Division by pounding out 15 hits in an 11-4 rout over Midland.

The victory was especially sweet coming off a five-game road trip to El Paso in which the Golden Gators lost four of the contests to the division-leading Diablos.

The Gators' Joe Bitker kept his pitching mark spotless, recording his seventh victory of the year without a loss. He struck out six and walked just two in going the distance.

The Gators took off on Angel starter Don Timberlake (5-8), the first of four Midland pitchers for the night, for eight runs and 10 hits in a brief span of 2 innings.

Diablos 9, Dodgers 0

With 24 games remaining in the season, El Paso has an 11½-game lead over second-place Beaumont and any combination of 13 Diablos wins and Beaumont losses will clinch the second-half championship for El Paso.

Pitchers Mike Birkbeck and Eric Barry combined on an eight-hitter. It was the second shutout at Dudley Field this season; Juan Nieves, now pitching with Vancouver, beat Jackson 7-0 on May 18.

Birkbeck (7-9) was cruising toward a complete-game shutout but had to be taken out of the game in the sixth inning when twisted an ankle fielding a line drive.

Biondi sets another swim record

MISSION VIEJO, Calif. (AP) — It appears only experience stands between Matt Biondi and a world record in the men's 200-meter freestyle.

Biondi, of Moraga, Calif., swam the event for the 10th time in his career Wednesday night, set an American record and missed the world mark by little more than a half-second.

The 6-foot-6, 195 pound Biondi turned in a clocking of 1:47.89, breaking Mike Heath's American mark of 1:47.92. Biondi, who twice lowered the world record in the men's 100-meter freestyle on Tuesday night, swam his first 200 freestyle 16 months ago and knows his experience in the event is lacking.

"I've only swam the 200 10 times," Biondi said. "I still don't have too much confidence in this event."

"I know Michael Gross has swam the 200 more than 10 times," Gross of West Germany is the world record holder with a mark of 1:47.44, set at last summer's Olympics.

The long course nationals, which began Monday, continue through Friday.

Biondi's development into a world class freestyler has not surprised his peers in the swimming relay.

"Last summer we talked about the future, and he was looking forward to this summer," said Mary Wayte, who won the women's 200-meter freestyle.

"I had a feeling he was at the point (last summer) of untapped potential. I am impressed with his performance here, but I am not surprised."

Other winners Wednesday night were Jeff Kostoff, in the men's 400-meter individual medley, and Erika Hansen, who took the women's 400-meter individual medley.

Jody Chase shot a 78 to win the Junior Club Championship held Wednesday at the Pampa Country Club golf course.

Jeff Langen followed with a 79 while Monty Dalton was third with an 81, in the 18-hole category.

Tyson Paronto had a 53 to win the 9-hole category. Jay Wyatt Earp was second with a 54 and Brandon Brashears was third with a 62.

Todd Lockwood shot a 43 to win the 6-hole category. Ryan Osborne was second with a 44 and John Lehman, third at 47.

Chase wins junior tourney

Clear your backyard of flying pests with a John Deere Insect Killer

Rid areas of troublesome night-flying pests with a John Deere electronic insect killer. Choose from four models — 100-watt for indoor use; 45-, 70- or 175-watt for use outside. All models use ultraviolet light to draw insects into the electrically charged, self-cleaning grid.

Outdoor units handle areas of 3/4 of an acre, one acre, or two acres, respectively. The indoor unit is effective in an area of approximately 1000 square feet.

Plated protective screen keeps birds, butterflies and animals away from charged grid surface. Heavy-duty transformer provides plenty of power.

Take care of flying insect problems the easy way, with an electronic insect killer from John Deere.

Mexico inflation continues to soar

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Consumer prices rose 3.5 percent in July, bringing inflation for the first seven months of the year to 30.1 percent, the government announced.

Prices at the retail level rose 53.7 percent in the 12 months that ended in mid-July, well below the 64.5 percent accumulated increase of the year that ended in July 1984, the Treasury Department and the central Bank of Mexico said in a joint statement.

The government had said it hoped to hold inflation to 35 percent this year, reducing it from 59.2 percent in 1984. But officials have conceded that the target was unrealistic.

July's increase in consumer prices was up from the June rate of 2.5 percent. The year-to-date inflation was 4.7 percentage points lower than at this time a year ago.

Meanwhile, the peso continued to gain strength against the U.S. dollar on the free market used by tourists and at the border, with bank-owned exchange houses reporting a steady drop in demand.

In Mexico City on Wednesday the peso stood at 336 to the dollar to buy and 343 to sell, up from Tuesday's closing rates of 342 to buy and 347 to sell.

Exchange houses on the Texas border reported a strengthening of the peso within a few hours Wednesday morning. The Casa de Cambio Reynosa in Hidalgo, Texas, was buying dollars at 342 pesos apiece and selling them for 350 pesos apiece to open, but dropped the prices to 337 to buy and 345 to sell by noon.

Rodolfo Blinder, president of the Border Money Exchange Corp., predicted the peso would continue recovering gradually. The peso has dropped as low as 370 to the dollar since the government on July 1 began allowing exchanges on the free market.

On the controlled market in which exporters and importers exchange currency, the peso was set for Wednesday at 282.60 per dollar.

The government this week began using a controlled float system for setting the peso's value on the controlled market. The previous daily devaluations are replaced by a formula that takes supply and demand into account but lets the central bank buy or sell currency to help avoid abrupt changes in the exchange rate.

President Miguel de la Madrid announced the new system three weeks ago as one of several steps, including budget cuts and layoffs, to help control inflation.

The inflation report said the biggest price hikes from June to July were in furniture, up 4.1 percent; clothes and shoes, up 4.0 percent; and health care, up 3.9 percent. The category of food, beverages and tobacco rose 2.9 percent.

Producer prices, meanwhile, rose 3.8 percent from June to July, for an accumulated rate of 28.7 percent through July. The accumulated rate for the same period of 1984 was 36.5 percent.

Gas canister blamed for Athens blast

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — An explosion ripped through a seaside hotel packed with more than 130 vacationers early today, injuring 14 people, and triggering a fire that gutted the building, police said.

A police spokesman said investigators believed a leaky gas canister caused the powerful explosion at the Hotel London, occupied mainly by Britons. He said several hotel residents had noticed a strong smell of gas in the building before the 3 a.m. blast.

"We think we've traced the explosion to a leaky gas canister in the hotel kitchen. It definitely wasn't caused by a bomb," said the spokesman, who declined to be identified.

The blast in the hotel basement tore a gaping hole in the lobby floor at the hotel, and an ensuing fire gutted the five-story building that sat on King George Avenue.

The hotel is one of dozens set along a main avenue in Glyfada, a seaside suburb near Athens Airport, about six miles from downtown Athens.

Last January, a bomb blast in a crowded bar in Glyfada injured more than 60 people, almost all American servicemen from the U.S. base at Athens Airport. No arrests were made following that explosion. A little-known extremist group claimed responsibility.

At the Hotel London, vacationers tied bedsheets together to escape from their rooms when the main staircase collapsed. Some complained they were unable to find an emergency exit.

Police said the injured included six British tourists, four Greeks, two Iranians and two others whose nationality was unknown. They were treated for injuries sustained by flying glass.

News in brief

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Communications Commission met behind closed doors to discuss information leaks and remind commissioners and staff to honor secrecy rules regarding commission business, a spokesman said.

William A. Russell Jr., the FCC's director of congressional and public affairs, told reporters after the Wednesday meeting that it served as a reminder about secrecy rules established to provide "procedural protection for people appearing before this agency."

He said there was concern about recent unauthorized information appearing "in a variety of publications." CBS, Inc., has claimed that certain attributed and unattributed statements appearing in print indicated that the commission had prejudged issues in the Atlanta broadcaster Ted Turner's fight for control of the network.

In addition to the five commissioners, members of their staffs and Russell, participants included the commission's managing director, general counsel and internal security chief.

Fugitive killer back in federal custody

GREENSBURG, Pa. (AP) — Convicted killer and master burglar Bernard Welch enjoyed three months of freedom after a prison escape, deluding an elderly couple who considered him "one of the family," until he was snared by a parking violation, authorities say.

Welch, who escaped May 14 from a Chicago prison where he was serving a 143-year term for the murder of a prominent Washington, D.C., cardiologist, was arrested Wednesday by police checking on an illegally parked car.

"I don't think it was Bernard Welch's finest hour," said Associate Deputy Attorney General Jay Stephens, who prosecuted Welch in 1981 for the 1980 murder of Dr. Michael Halberstam.

Halberstam was shot outside his home after he surprised Welch during a burglary there. He ran Welch down with his car before collapsing from the bullet wound.

Halberstam's widow, Elliott, said Wednesday night she was "exhilarated" by Welch's capture.

"I could not stand the idea of his being out there somewhere, being free after my husband had given his life to catch him," she said in a telephone interview from her Washington, D.C., home.

Her brother-in-law, journalist David Halberstam, said from his home in Nantucket, Mass.,

"Everybody in the family is relieved that he's been picked up. After what we went through as a family, we're glad there's less possibility it will happen to another family."

A sullen, unshaven Welch was led in shackles from the Westmoreland County Detention Center on Wednesday and taken to the federal penitentiary in Marion, Ill., the most secure facility in the federal prison system, said Howard Safir, assistant director for operations of the U.S. Marshals Service.

Authorities say they believe the 45-year-old Welch had been pulling burglaries while living a quiet life in a rented room in this Pittsburgh suburb. The couple who had rented the room in their home to him since mid-June were stunned.

"He was a clean-cut fellow, very respectable," said Richard Pershing, 65. "He'd sit on the front porch like one of the family."

In 1980, police searched two homes and a car belonging to Welch and found stolen property worth more than $4 million from what were believed to be thousands of burglaries.

Welch and another inmate, Hugh Colomb, 31, escaped from the barless prison in Chicago by breaking through a concrete wall and descending six floors to the street using a 75-foot electric cable.

Colomb remains at large, with a $10,000 reward on his head.

Accused FBI agent is described as legendary bumbler

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Richard W. Miller was an FBI legend, a fat, inept bumbler whose final bid for glory as an FBI agent landed him in prison on espionage charges, his lawyer told a jury.

But defense attorney Stanley Greenberg insisted Wednesday that no matter how incompetent Miller was, he never spied for the Soviet Union.

"He is not on trial for being a perfect person or not," Greenberg said. "The question is whether he intended to betray his country."

The government launched its case Wednesday against Miller, 48, the first FBI agent ever charged with espionage. Miller is accused of passing classified documents to the Soviet Union for a promise of $65,000 in cash and gold and a gift of an expensive trenchcoat from his lover, emigre Svetlana Ogorodnikov.

Three members of Los Angeles' Russian community testified about emigre life and the anti-U.S. sentiments of Mrs. Ogorodnikov and her husband, Nikolay. More government witnesses were scheduled to take the stand today.

The Ogorodnikovs pleaded guilty to conspiracy in June and were sentenced to prison. Mrs. Ogorodnikov may testify against Miller.

Greenberg described his client as undisciplined, overweight, of low intelligence and out of his element in the FBI.

"If you picture Ralph Kramden without the humor, you've got it," he said, referring to the blustering bus driver played by Jackie Gleason in the 1950s TV series, "The Honeymooners."

Miller sat with his back to the packed courtroom as his lawyer spoke. He did not flinch as Greenberg pointed and said, "We all know what an FBI agent looks like, and he was not it."

U.S. Attorney Robert Bonner earlier had portrayed Miller as a vulnerable agent lured by Mrs. Ogorodnikov with money and sex.

Miller confessed his affair with the Soviet woman to his supervisor, P. Bryce Christensen, on Sept. 27.

'Nihilism,' 'secularism' threatening religion, Reagan officials say

WASHINGTON (AP) — Religion is an integral part of America's heritage but is increasingly under siege from people demanding separation of church and state, according to two top Reagan administration officials.

Education Secretary William J. Bennett warned Wednesday of an "assault of secularism on religion" that he said is comparable to past intolerance of Catholics and Jews.

And Attorney General Edwin Meese III decried "this idea of religious nihilism as a principle of government," pledging the administration will resist that notion.

The two cabinet members made the comments in speeches to the Supreme Council of the Knights of Columbus, a Roman Catholic lay organization meeting in Washington.

Both men said people who demand total separation of church and state are mounting an assault on religion.

The speeches recalled a theme President Reagan enunciated on Aug. 23, 1984, in Dallas on the day he accepted renomination from the Republican Party.

Addressing a prayer breakfast, Reagan said, "The truth is, politics and morality are inseparable. And as morality's foundation is religion, religion and politics are necessarily related."

Bennett, in his speech Wednesday, declared: "Our values as a free people and the central values of the Judeo-Christian tradition are flesh of the flesh, blood of the blood."

American history — the fundamental shape of the American experience — cannot be understood without reference to the Judeo-Christian tradition, a tradition which gave birth to us and which envelops us," he said.

By contrast, Bennett said, the Supreme Court seems to treat entanglements of religion and the schools "as something akin to entanglement with an infectious disease."

Speaking a few minutes later to the gathering, Meese said the framers of the Constitution wanted to give Americans the freedom to express their religious beliefs in their own way and without "the heavy hand of government" or a national church.

But they also believed that "without a sense of public and societal morality, that society would not endure," Meese said, arguing the First Amendment was never intended to "preclude federal aid to religious groups, so long as that aid did not favor one group over another."

"The government should be able to distribute tax benefits to parents regardless of where they send their children to school," Meese said, "and we have contended that government should be able to extend aid to all people, whether they intend to use it for secular or religious education."

Meese did not mention the Supreme Court. But Bennett repeatedly criticized the court, saying it has consistently failed to recognize the strong bonds between religious values and American values.

Bennett said a recent ruling limiting aid to parochial schools is the latest in "four decades of misguided court decisions" that have shoved religion out of the schools, to the detriment of both children and society.

Bennett said the department will work with local school authorities "to devise other means to provide service."
