

Railroad Commission rejects pleas of oil independents

From Staff and Wire Reports

AUSTIN — The Texas Railroad Commission has sided with its staff against "white oil" producers in the Panhandle Field and also has indicated it may search for possible violations by well operators in that huge field.

The commission adopted without comment Monday a staff recommendation to turn down three rehearing motions filed by white oil operators, who challenged an order they claimed could shut down their wells.

The May 13 order would require operators using refrigeration or LTX units to retest them for the purpose of classifying them as an oil or gas well.

E. Ray Grasshoff, RRC information specialist, said the order becomes effective today. Implementation of the order had been delayed since May to allow for consideration of the motions for rehearing.

Under the order, operators using the LTX units on their wells must report their use to the RRC District 10 director in Pampa within 15 days, Grasshoff said in a telephone interview this morning.

Those wells classified as oil wells and using the LTX units must be retested by RRC officials within 75 days to determine their gas-oil ratio for classification purposes, he added. The two periods run concurrently.

Acting on a complaint filed by Phillips Petroleum Co. in 1981, the commission also stated that hydrocarbon liquids "which are not in the liquid phase in the reservoir" may not be counted as crude oil for the purpose of classifying wells.

Austin lawyer Clyde Oldham, representing Panhandle Independent Producers' Group, said PIPG would appeal the decision in court. Independent producers, as well as other Panhandle residents, claim the commission's ruling could devastate the economy of the Panhandle because royalties would dry up and property tax revenue would drop dramatically.

Oil and gas reserves in the Panhandle Field, which underlies 1.5 million acres in eight counties — Hartley, Moore, Hutchinson, Potter, Carson, Gray, Wheeler and Collingsworth — are said to be worth $27 billion. Phillips, a major gas producer in the area, has been aligned for 3½ years against operators who produce white oil.

White oil refers to a water-white liquid produced by chilling vapors to as low as 20 degrees below zero.

Phillips contends that producers use "LTX" refrigeration units to achieve a liquid they call oil in order to meet the definition that an oil well is a well that produces one or more barrels of oil per 100,000 cubic feet of gas.

The commission staff has noted that there are advantages to having a well classified as an oil well: one oil well can be drilled on 10 acres, while a gas well cannot be drilled on a tract smaller than 640 acres. The staff also said an oil well's gas production is not as restricted as that of a gas well, and gas from an oil well gets priority at the marketplace when gas production is curtailed because of low demand.

Phillips alleges that the "gas" produced by the independents, who own only oil rights in the field, captures gas Phillips and other companies eventually would produce.

Commission Legal Examiner Patrick Thompson said PIPG in its motion for rehearing complained of the commission's refusal "to consider evidence of the economic impact of the decision on the Panhandle region, yet we have indicated to you before there is no real evidence on this subject."

Local preacher receives a piggyback heart transplant

From Staff and Wire Reports

OKLAHOMA CITY — The Rev. Ray Lockwood, associate pastor of Pampa's Lamar Full Gospel Assembly, is in critical but stable condition today after transplant surgery in which his heart is being helped to pump blood by a second organ.

However, a spokesman for the Baptist Medical Center, where the operation was performed, assures that it is "routine" to classify heart transplant patients as critical for the first 24 hours after an operation.

The state's third piggyback heart transplant operation began about 7:20 p.m. Monday and was completed about 6½ hours later at the Medical Center.

Dr. Nazih Zuhi, chief heart transplant surgeon at the hospital, said the operation went well.

Zuhi said Lockwood, 63, had been awaiting a transplant since February. The physician said Lockwood had undergone two unsuccessful transplants in Texas.

BMC public relations officer Brenda McGann said that Lockwood was suffering from cardio-myopathy, a general weakening of the heart.

"Both the hearts are doing fine,"

REV. RAY LOCKWOOD

she said, adding that Lockwood was alert this morning.

In a piggyback operation, a donor's heart is sewn on to the patient's heart and the two organs work in tandem.

"A piggyback is considered better in cases of rejection," McGann said.

The spokesperson said surgery was delayed two hours while doctors awaited the "retrieval" heart, which came from an anonymous donor in Oklahoma. She added that, at 63, Lockwood may be the oldest piggyback heart transplant patient in the world.

According to a secretary at the Lamar church, Lockwood's wife Bernita and his sister Evelyn White are with the ailing minister. Church pastor, the Rev. Gene Allen left Monday.

"Brother Allen called at 7 this morning and said (Lockwood) was doing A-OK," she said.

"The doctors sewed him up at 2 a.m., told everyone they can go home," she said. "They let him lay open so they can view his organs."

The secretary said that, although there is no organized prayer vigil, the congregation and the community has been supportive.

"Everybody has been calling everybody they know and they've been praying in their homes," she said. "You'd be surprised how everyone broke down and cried when they heard he was doing okay. We do have a prayer chain, and everyone on it was praying."

Among the doctors who consulted in the operation was Dr. Christian Barnard, who conducted the first heart transplant in 1967.

Joleen McClure of Oklahoma City and Heinz Jobst of Denison, Texas, are the other two piggyback transplant patients. Both are doing well, Zuhi said.

Daughter says dad almost recruited her as a spy

By JEAN McNAIR Associated Press Writer

Laura Walker Snyder, an Army veteran and daughter of accused Navy spy mastermind John A. Walker Jr., says her father almost persuaded her to join the family spy ring that the government says he ran for 18 years or more.

"I came that close to agreeing to do the same thing ... to please my father," she says.

Mrs. Snyder, 25, told her side of the story Monday as her uncle, Arthur J. Walker and her father's friend, Jerry A. Whitworth, were indicted on charges of joining the alleged conspiracy to sell communications secrets to the Soviets in the worst spying scandal in Navy history.

At his arraignment today in Norfolk, Va., Arthur Walker pleaded innocent to seven counts of espionage and requested a jury trial. U.S. District Judge J. Calvitt Clarke tentatively set a trial date for Aug. 5 and a hearing on motions for July 9.

Walker's court-appointed attorney, Samuel Meekins, said he probably would file a motion to suppress Walker's statement to the FBI that he gave secret military documents to his brother John for delivery to the Soviets.

Meekins told reporters afterward that Arthur Walker "has never done anything to intentionally injure the United States or aid a foreign country."

"I don't know what John did but Arthur is a different ball game," he said.

Whitworth, of Davis, Calif., also faceted arraignment today.

The indictment against Whitworth, handed up by a federal grand jury in San Francisco, said he got $328,000 for supplying information to be turned over to the Soviets.

John Walker, of Norfolk, Va., and his son, Michael, 22, were indicted by a federal grand jury in Baltimore on May 28 on six counts of espionage.

All four defendants face potential life sentences.

Mrs. Snyder, of Canton, N.Y., made her first public statement in the case in an interview taped for broadcast today on the Christian Broadcasting Network's 700 Club program.

She said her father tried to use the same persuasive techniques on her that he applied to Michael.

"My father has a very strong personality, and my brother is very sensitive and weak and loving," she said. "I think the brainwashing started with my brother the minute he went to Virginia to live with my father."

Meantime, police in Prince Georges County, Md., said Mrs. Snyder seized her 5-year-old son Christopher during the weekend from the lawn of the apartment where the boy had lived with his father, Philip Mark Snyder. The couple separated three years ago. Neither parent had legal custody, and no charges have been filed, police said.

Mrs. Snyder and her mother, Barbara Crowley Walker, now divorced from John Walker, put the FBI on his trail last winter. She said her mother learned of her father's activities in 1968 or 1969. Mrs. Walker already has said she delayed tipping off the FBI to protect the rest of the family. The Walkers had four children.

"Somehow we had a lot of money when we shouldn't have, and she began to question him," Mrs. Snyder said of her mother. "It didn't take my father long to start bragging about it. He was very proud of himself."

Mrs. Snyder, who spent a year on active duty in the Army in 1978 and 1979, said she didn't have access to the type of classified information her father wanted. So he encouraged her to get a job that would require a tight security clearance, she said.

"I'm a chicken. I wouldn't be able to do it," she said.

As for her father's technique for recruiting other family members: "It's a sales pitch. He makes you think that 'Come on, everybody's doing it. There's nothing to it,'" she said.

"First he'd break you down and make you feel like the lowest form of life," she said. "He'd say, 'You know you're never going to be successful. Why don't you let me help you make a lot of money?'"

CIA Director William J. Casey has called the spy ring "a big success" for the KGB, and the Navy's top officer, Adm. James Watkins, says it handed the Soviets some "very valuable information."

America - rich, visible target for Mideast hatreds, frustrations

WASHINGTON (AP) —

Seventeen of the last 30 American foreign service officers whose names are inscribed on black stone plaques in the State Department lobby were killed in Beirut. Two others were killed in Tehran.

The rapid accumulation of names — it took 187 years to fill the first plaque and only 17 years to nearly fill the second, for a total now of 145 — represents the rising risk in working for the U.S. foreign service.

And it's even riskier to be an American serviceman.

The slaying of Navy frogman Robert Stethem, 23, apparently without provocation, aboard the hijacked TWA airliner is only the latest evidence of the hostility a U.S. serviceman attracts.

The car-bombing of the U.S. Marine barracks near Beirut airport in October 1983 took the lives of 241 Marines and sailors. Seventeen Americans died six months earlier in the bombing of the U.S. Embassy in the Lebanese capital.

Americans, especially visible Americans, such as diplomats and Marines, are on the front lines even though the United States is officially at peace, at war with no one.

One obvious reason is that war takes all forms, and terrorism is the latest and most confounding variety. Another is the U.S. involvement in Lebanon, initially to oversee the Israeli-forced evacuation of Palestine Liberation Organization guerrillas in September 1982 and then in a futile peacekeeper role while the country dissolved into civil war.

To many in the Third World, and in the Middle East especially, the United States is despised for its wealth, democracy and Western ways, for its policies and its friendship for Israel.

The Iranian revolution that swept the pro-U.S. shah from power in 1978 seemed to focus the hatred.

The shah had pushed the country into the modern world, and at the same time taken on the role of U.S. policeman in the Persian Gulf. The opulence enjoyed by a few, and the gleaming jets and other American weapons bought for billions of dollars, stood in contrast to the poverty and piety of the many.

The Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, seizing on the discontent, denounced the United States as the "great Satan."

For 444 days, while American diplomats were held helplessly hostage, the hatred had a systematic and recurring target. The United States did not retaliate. Remaining inhibitions gave way.

In ju. 1982, the Israeli army rolled into Lebanon, first to clear terrorists from striking distance of villages in northern Israel, and then into Beirut, the capital. A Christian-dominated government appeared willing to make peace with the Jewish state, and the United States undertook the job of reconciling their differences.

To many Moslems, this raised fears of the Christians making an alliance with the United States and Israelis to extend their power. In the spreading violence, Americans and Israelis became targets of radical extremists.

Hijackers release three hostages, others said in Beirut

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Greek folk singer Demis Roussos and two American hostages from the hijacked TWA jetliner were released today at a news conference held by a Shiite Moslem militia leader. Forty other Americans are still believed being held hostage throughout Beirut.

In addition to the singer, the freed hostages were identified as Pamela Smith, an American citizen often referred to as Roussos' secretary, and a man the Shiites identified as Targontsidis, apparently Arthur N. Targontsidis, 18, who is a student in Greece, according to his family.

According to U.S. State Department figures, the latest release leaves 40 Americans still held hostage, including a group with "Jewish-sounding" names reportedly taken off the plane during an earlier stop in Beirut.

The release came at the west Beirut house of Justice Minister Nabih Berri, leader of Lebanon's dominant Shiite militia, Amal. He has been negotiating for the Shiite hijackers of TWA Flight 847 since Sunday.

The Shiite extremists who hijacked the TWA Athens-to-Rome flight last Friday, with 153 passengers aboard, have demanded the release of more than 700 Shiite prisoners in Israel and two Shiites held in Spain for trial.

The hijackers earlier agreed to a request to free all remaining Greek hostages.

The release came after Berri's representative at the airport, Bassam Tleiss, had contacted the plane's cockpit and said since the Greek government had released Ali Atwa, who said he was a hijack conspirator, the hijackers should release the remaining Greek captives.

After a 25-minute pause, a voice from the cockpit agreed to the release of the Greek but said: "Don't ask for others to be released. Otherwise we will destroy your control tower."

The hijacker, speaking in Arabic, said the plane could be taxied to the tower and blown up. Freed passengers have said that cabin seats are wired with explosive charges.

Berri, who is attempting to negotiate a settlement, also was quoted as saying the hostages would be safe as long as he was in control.

Berri has said the hostages are now under Amal guard in west Beirut.

In Madrid, Spain, court sources said the trial of two Shiites whose release is being sought by the extremists would go on as scheduled Wednesday. Spain has said it will not release the two.

The U.S. Navy on Monday identified the man killed by the hijackers on a previous stop in Beirut as 23-year-old frogman Robert Dean Stethem of Waldorf, Md. Navy officials said his body would be returned to Andrews Air Force Base late today.

Before the latest release, the State Department said it believed a total of 43 people — 42 Americans and a Greek — were still held hostage, including a group with "Jewish-sounding" names reportedly taken off the plane during an earlier stop in Beirut.

Israeli officials have indicated willingness to free the Shiite prisoners in response to a public request from Washington, but the Reagan administration says Israel must make the decision.

Emphasizing Israel's promise to free the Shiite prisoners eventually, presidential spokesman Larry Speakes said Monday, "If the hijacking situation were resolved, then that would certainly put us back at status quo and seemingly put the Israelis back in position to proceed with their announced plan."

The plane refueled late Monday, but one of the hijackers said the fuel was for air conditioning and lights on the plane.

Jurisdiction questioned in state anti-sodomy law appeal

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Lawyers for both parties to a legal challenge to Texas' anti-sodomy law are trying to persuade a federal appeals court that the other side has no right to a role in the case.

The case was argued Monday before the full 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

Lawyers for Potter County District Attorney Danny Hill said that although the Texas attorney general refused to handle the case, Hill has the right to lead the legal battle for the anti-sodomy law.

Hill is trying to appeal a 1982 decision that threw out the law as unconstitutional.

It was the second time his status had been argued at the appeals court. In 1984, a three-judge panel ruled that Hill had no right to appeal, but the case was brought back before the full 16-judge court.

"Hill is entitled to argue this case, because Mr. Hill wants to step forward as a class representative," said Rod Steakely, lawyer for the district attorney.
James Barber, attorney for Texas gay rights activists, argued, "Hill has no interest in this case.... Is this not just a personal moral crusade of his own?"

Hill's attorneys countered with almost the same argument, questioning whether Barber's principal client, gay rights activist Don Baker, ever had cause to challenge the Texas law.

Charles Bundren said, "Baker has no standing because he was never arrested, injured, threatened or anything else because of homosexual conduct."

Railroad Commission

"Other than PIPG's vague but colorful rhetoric, such as 'a rippling wave of tidal wave proportions' or Consolidated Royalty Owners' unsupported contention that people in Pampa are not buying cars, or the unsworn testimony of investors in Amarillo, this record contains nothing regarding the economic impact," said Thompson.

The commission order requires all "white oil" wells to be retested within 75 days of the effective date of the final order. "Wells which are not retested in compliance with the order shall be shut-in," the order states.

Commissioners delayed for a week a decision on whether to put all Panhandle oil and gas operators on notice about what the commission plans to do about wells that have not been properly completed.

The issue, according to commission chairman Buddy Temple, concerns "perforations made that we didn't know about."

The staff is preparing a letter for all operators but the commission postponed action at the request of commissioner Jim Nugent, who said he would like to have more information before casting his vote.

Grasshoff said the commission has been discussing exactly what to put in the letters to operators requesting information on alleged illegal perforations in the well bores into gas-producing strata. The letter would ask operators to report any perforations that have been made and not previously reported to the commission.

The commissioners reached no conclusions yesterday on what request for information to put in the letters and will consider the letter further at their meeting next Monday, Grasshoff said.

Phillips and other majors have contended independent oil producers have been perforating into other than oil-bearing strata to increase their gas production from their oil wells.

The RRC is considering whether to pursue investigation of those charges under state regulations.

Grasshoff said the commission did not discuss the casinghead gas issue yesterday. The definition of casinghead gas, to which the independent oil operators have lease rights from their oil wells, has become a central issue in the Panhandle Field disputes because of the separation of oil and gas rights in the field.

Reagan prods House to reverse itself, approve chemical weapons

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, hoping to finally win support for renewed U.S. production of chemical weapons, is lobbying the House of Representatives to approve the only weapon denied him as part of his defense buildup.

Reagan met at the White House with 40 legislators Monday with the House about to begin debate on the bill authorizing Pentagon spending for fiscal 1986.

Approval for new nerve gas is part of the huge major fights are also expected over "Star Wars" research, the MX missile, and proposed cuts in military pensions.

Reagan's meeting Monday was to receive the report of a chemical warfare review commission he appointed earlier this year. The panel, composed of pro-nerve gas members, supported the president's request to end the U.S. nerve gas production moratorium, which dates back to 1969.

Zbigniew Brzezinski, national security adviser to former President Carter, was part of Monday's White House meeting and told reporters later he supports new chemical weapons.

"We need to go ahead with it," Brzezinski said, explaining he supports the program because the Soviets have built a large and threatening gas weapons stockpile.

For three years, the Democratic-controlled House has refused Reagan's request for nerve gas and opponents say they have the votes to defeat the program again this year.

The defense spending bill that passes the House will have to be reconciled with the version that passed the Republican-controlled Senate two weeks ago. That bill includes $163 million for the Army to prepare to build a new generation of nerve gases, a proposal approved 50-46.

The current proposal calls for building binary weapons, so named because they would be composed of two non-lethal chemicals kept apart until a shell is fired or bomb dropped, when they would then mix to form a deadly gas.

The Senate approved a defense package of $302 billion, which would permit spending to rise at the expected inflation rate next year. Reagan had first sought a 5.9 percent hike beyond inflation.

Prison head retires, 'out of gas'

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Lane McCotter is taking over as head of the Texas prison system after Raymond Procunier, the feisty 61-year-old corrections warden who overhauled the troubled system, retired because he "just ran out of gas" 13 months into the job.

McCotter, 44, who has served as the department's No. 2 man since last July, was selected by the Texas Prison Board on Monday only 30 minutes after Procunier announced his resignation.

McCotter came to Texas after a military career in which he rose to command the Army prison at Fort Leavenworth, Kan., the Armed Forces' only maximum security prison.

In Texas, he will direct a 37,000-inmate system that Procunier modernized and reorganized but remained wracked by violence, a problem that McCotter said would be his top priority.

"We must reduce violence," he told reporters shortly after being named to the job. "There will always be violence but there's no reason why we must accept this."

So far this year, 13 homicides have occurred in Texas prisons, keeping pace with the 25 killings in 1984, the highest number ever recorded by prison officials. A prison guard was stabbed to death two weeks ago. The most recent inmate slaying occurred Sunday.

Asked if his military background would mean a more conservative approach to handling the prisons, McCotter replied: "We're just going to have to see."

Procunier started as a prison guard in California, rose through the ranks to become director of the California system — the nation's largest, and also had stints with prison systems in Utah, New Mexico and Virginia. He said he will hit the road next week for retirement at a lake home in California's Napa Valley.

Prison Board Chairman Robert Gunn said Procunier's decision was not a surprise.

"We've been discussing his leaving for some time. We knew it was coming," Gunn said.

"I feel badly about leaving with all this dynamic new leadership. But it's time to go," Procunier said. "I'll let people decide what kind of job I did."

During his Texas tenure, Procunier reorganized the department, replaced many of the wardens, formalized training procedures for guards, helped settle a 13-year-old federal court lawsuit on civil rights, added staff and instilled a new confidence in the staff.

"Overall I feel good about how people feel about themselves," he said when asked to name a major accomplishment.

"I didn't anticipate the magnitude of this job," he said, saying it was 100 times more difficult than he expected.

Lucas sues law officers for drugging him

AUSTIN (AP) — Henry Lee Lucas has filed a $1.5 million lawsuit against state and Williamson County law officers, alleging they drugged him to get confessions, many of which he later recanted.

Williamson County Sheriff James Boutwell, one of the defendants in the Lucas suit, called the charges "completely ludicrous and without foundation."

Lucas filed suit in federal court in Austin on Monday, and the case was assigned to U.S. District Judge Walter Smith of Waco, who handles part of the Austin docket.

Smith denied a temporary restraining order, but set a hearing for Friday in Austin on Lucas' plea for a temporary injunction, according to a spokeswoman in the federal clerk's office in Waco.

Lucas' petition also named as defendants Williamson County; Texas Rangers Task Force; Rangers Bob Prince and Clayton Smith; Col. Jim Adams, director of the Department of Public Safety; and DPS assistant chief Bob Werner.

Prince, Smith, Boutwell and Werner are the primary members of the task force, which has been investigating Lucas claims that he committed hundreds of murders.

According to published reports, however, Lucas apparently was hundreds of miles from some of the murders that were termed solved by authorities in several states with assistance from the task force.

Lucas' petition, filed by lawyer Elliott Wood, said the defendants had violated his constitutional rights by administering the drug Thorazine, without his consent or permission, "in order to secure confessions" from Lucas.

The suit said the defendants had threatened to withhold all of Lucas' "prisoner's rights" unless he cooperated with them, and had "questioned and harassed" him without benefit of counsel or advising him of his constitutional rights.

The petition also alleged that the defendants "on several occasions, questioned and harassed" Lucas "without affording" to him "an opportunity to seek and secure counsel and to be advised by counsel during such questioning and harassment."

The request seeks $1 million from Williamson County, where Lucas has been held in jail, and $100,000 from each of the individual defendants.

DPS director Col. Jim Adams was not immediately available for comment. Werner said he could not comment because of a gag order issued last Thursday by State District Judge John Carter.

Drawing determines ballot positions of propositions

AUSTIN (AP) — The two water bond issues will head the list of 14 proposed state constitutional amendments on the November ballot, Secretary of State Myra McDaniel announced.

A drawing was held by the secretary of state's office Monday to determine the ballot positions of the propositions approved by the recent Legislature.

The order in which the proposed constitutional amendments will appear on the Nov. 5 ballot:

- To authorize issuance of an additional $980 million of Texas Water Development Bonds as agricultural water conservation bonds.
- To authorize the Legislature to pass laws permitting a city or town to make assessments for relocation or replacement of water lines on private property.
- To authorize proceeds from the sale of lands in the Permanent School Fund to acquire other land for that fund.

- To authorize the Legislature to regulate the providing of health care by hospital districts.
- To permit state prisoners to be placed in prison facilities in other states subject to an interstate agreement.
- To authorize Chambers County to be divided into two to six precincts.
- Providing $500 million in additional bonding authority for the state veterans housing assistance program and allowing the Legislature to define an eligible veteran for the program.
- To protect public funds by authorizing prior approval of the expenditure or emergency transfer of state appropriations.
- Authorizing the issuance of general obligation bonds to provide financing assistance for purchase of farm and ranch land.
- Changing the manner in which a person is charged with a criminal offense.

- Granting the Texas Supreme Court and Court of Criminal Appeals jurisdiction to answer questions of state law certified from a federal appellate court.
- Providing for reapportionment of judicial districts of the state by the Judicial Districts Board or by the Legislative Redistricting Board.
- To provide for the abolition of the office of county treasurer in Andrews and El Paso counties and abolition of the office of county surveyor in Collin, Dallas, Denton, El Paso, Henderson and Randall counties.

Harsh drug sentence wins praise

BRECKENRIDGE, Texas (AP) — Local authorities praised a Stephens County jury that sentenced a Breckenridge man to 50 years in prison and fined him $25,000 for attempting to manufacture methamphetamines.

Officials said by convicting 46-year-old Don Baxter and levying the harsh penalty on Monday, the jury made a statement that drugs were clearly unwelcome in Stephens County.

"They sent the word that they won't tolerate this type of criminal activity in their jurisdiction," said District Attorney Tim Eysen. "My office, and all the law enforcement officials we work with, will continue to seek out these violators."

Baxter, who kept his head bowed as District Judge R.E. Thornton announced the sentence, was arrested Dec. 20, 1984, shortly before authorities raided his house and business. Chemicals and equipment that officials said were necessary to make methamphetamines were confiscated in the raids.

Baxter was videotaped by Drug Enforcement Administration officials during "Operation Dry Gulch" — a Dallas sting operation run out of Metroplex Scientific and Laboratory Equipment Co. — in which he bought equipment and chemicals.

But defense attorneys Jim Lane and Mike Ware of Fort Worth maintained Baxter couldn't have made methamphetamines if he wanted to because of a mislabeled chemical bottle.

Testimony showed that although the bottle was clearly marked as containing methylamine, a necessary ingredient in producing the drug, the liquid inside was dimethylene.

MUNITIONS EXPLOSION — A helicopter flies overhead Monday checking the damage from an explosion late Sunday night that destroyed an explosives storage plant just east of the Alvarado city limits, south of Fort Worth. The explosives, which were being stored in a concrete bunker, were manufactured by GEOX. No one was injured in the blast.

Federal agents launch probe of munitions plant explosion site

ALVARADO, Texas (AP) — An "in-depth study" will be conducted to find out what caused an explosives plant blast that rocked buildings for 10 miles and lighted up the sky with a huge fireball, federal authorities said.

The Goex plant was closed at the time of the blast and no people were injured. However, five goats kept at the plant by an employee were killed by the explosion, company officials said.

Federal agents began interviewing Goex employees Monday to determine the cause of the blast, said Jerry Loyd, a spokesman for the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms said.

He said the agency will do an "in-depth study" of different explosives stored in a building where the blast originated.

The explosion at the plant, which is 25 miles south of Fort Worth, took place at about 11:40 p.m. Sunday.

"We're scratching our heads about it," said David Boston, Goex manager of corporate administration. "It's baffling, but we fully intend to find out what caused it."

Commercial explosives such as those used for oil drilling and for building demolition were stored in the building, Boston said. Two other buildings storing metal supplies and other non-explosive material were destroyed.

Workers spent the day collecting explosives scattered by the blast to a nearby field. Loyd said he expected the investigation to take up to three weeks.

The explosion was one of several that have occurred at plants run by Goex.

An explosion April 20, 1978 at a larger plant in Cleburne, a few miles southwest of Alvarado, resulted in four deaths. The cause was never determined.

Let's observe the Fourth

People visiting Pampa, Miami, Mobeetie or McLean on the Fourth of July last year would not have been able to tell that it was Independence Day.

Oh, sure, the banks, businesses and city offices were closed and there was no mail delivery. There may have been some cars lining along city streets for family get-togethers and area urchins popping fireworks where they weren't supposed to.

But people wanting to take part in a true, community-supported celebration of this country's birthday had to go to Canadian, Panhandle or elsewhere for their fun.

Canadian celebrated the Fourth with its annual Rodeo and Fourth of July Celebration. Judging from Chamber of Commerce press releases, it was an Independence Day celebration in the purest sense: a parade through downtown, a rodeo, concerts by local bands, a hot dog feed and, of course, fireworks. The Rodeo has been a part of Canadian summer activities since 1888, and I imagine that's where many Miamians spend their Fourth.

Panhandle's celebration, sponsored by local churches and the Panhandle Country Club, also featured a parade and fireworks. But folks there added an early morning "Sun Run" and an afternoon of entertainment on the steps of the Carson County Courthouse.

White Deer honored the Fourth of July by allowing residents to shoot fireworks at the city's community center. Sure it's nothing spectacular, but at least that community recognizes the Fourth of July as more than just "a day off."

Naturally, the communities that don't do something special on Independence Day defend their decisions:

"Everyone's all tuckered out after Cow Calling."

"We have our big celebration later this month."

"We don't have the money. And besides, everyone goes to Lake Meredith or Amarillo, anyway."

"Fireworks are too much of a fire hazard in this dry weather."

Excuses. Excuses.

I can understand why small towns like Mobeetie can't muster the money or manpower for a spectacular Fourth. But surely a town the size of Pampa can think of something?

In Oklahoma, a Fourth of July celebration is a staple of small town summers. Woodward is not as big as Pampa, but the civic groups there are busy and willing enough to host two major events each summer. One is the Annual Elks' Rodeo, held in late July, which is one of the top summer attractions in northwest Oklahoma. Like the Top'O' Texas Rodeo, the Woodward rodeo features a massive parade and several community games and events.

While the Elks have their heyday, other Woodward civic groups sponsor the Fourth of July Celebration at the local park. The celebration features children's games, softball tournaments and a spectacular fireworks display. And, like the Elks' Rodeo, the celebration attracts crowds.

People in other Oklahoma towns — Edmond, Mustang, Yukon, Del City — always found some community-supported action in their towns.

Why am I writing a "Fourth of July" column so early in the summer?

Hopefully someone could start planning some sort of Independence Day celebration. Maybe a church can organize a special service featuring patriotic songs. Maybe a civic group can conjure up some children's games. Maybe a veterans' group can sponsor a flag ceremony. Maybe, like in White Deer, the city can have special places for kids to pop fireworks — how about Marcus Sanders Park or the area near the M.K. Brown auditorium.

Don't fret about small attendance. At least it would show that some group cares.

Then start planning something big for July 4, 1986. If any group or city is planning a Fourth of July celebration, let us know.

After all, Independence Day should be more than just "a day off."

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Opinion

If peace comes, they have to talk

There is a rustle of movement on the West Bank diplomatic front. King Hussein of Jordan, looking beleaguered but a bit more confident than usual, told Washington that Yasser Arafat told him he would accept Israel's right to exist in exchange for a return of Arab lands. That would be a historic step forward for the Palestine Liberation Front, which continues to swear in its charter that Israel doesn't have the right to exist.

But despite Hussein's claim, Arafat has not publicly recited the magic words, "I will accept U.S. resolutions 242 and 338." Until he does, Hussein's diplomatic effort will be whistling in the wind.

The noise coming from the Middle East is the roar of Israeli bulldozers clearing land for settlements on Arab land, the rattle of machine guns in the Palestinian camps in Lebanon and the cacophony of voices speaking for the dispersed and divided PLO.

In comparison to the millimeters of progress registered by diplomats since the Camp David Treaty, tanks have ground up miles of terrain and terrorists have turned up acres of earth for graves. Israel is finally leaving Lebanon, battered and humiliated, three years after marching in with the secret aim of destroying the PLO. And Arafat, who lost a base for his organization and saw it dispersed from Tunisia to Syria, where an anti-Arafat pro-Syrian faction is harbored, has landed in Amman seeking the talks he scorned three years ago.

As long as Israel and the Palestinians fail to speak directly to each other, to recognize each other's right to exist and to negotiate a settlement, the sounds coming from the Mideast will continue to be the wailing of widows and the scream of ambulance sirens. The aim of U.S. diplomacy must be to keep talks going, to get the parties to speak directly to each other.

Recognition, in all its forms, is the key to a diplomatic solution - recognition that both Israel and Palestinian entity have a right to exist, recognition that killing diminishes both peoples and endangers their futures and recognition that time is running out for a trade of land for security.

Berry's World

"I know what you're saying, Harriet! Somehow, I, too, wish the Von Bulow trial had never ended."

BY RICHARD LESHER
WASHINGTON - Imagine, if you will, the following scenario:

A major corporation decides to put down a strike by its employees. Picketers are harassed - and when the president of the union local decides to bring a camera crew to film the goings-on, the camera is destroyed and the union leader is knocked to the ground and stomped. He suffers through two brain operations and spends months in the hospital.

Though local authorities are conspicuously - and suspiciously - absent, federal authorities cannot get involved. The Supreme Court has held that such violence on the part of businesses cannot be prevented by federal authorities as long as the violence was committed in furtherance of a legitimate business objective.

Unions go to Congress for relief but legislation to remedy the situation is blocked by a massive lobbying campaign led by the U.S. Chamber of Commerce.

Just imagine the reaction! The major news media would be on the scene in a flash. The corporation involved would be the subject of boycotts across America. A whole new generation of Mother Joneses, Jane Fondas and Pete Seegers would make their reputations by glorifying the incident to further the union cause. The business organizations fighting the bill would be vilified and I would be hanged in effigy in union halls across America.

But reverse the roles - and you have the shocking state of federal law regarding union violence.

The actual victim of the brutal, near-fatal attack was a business owner who wanted a record of the harassment of his non-union employees by union picketers. Yet his union assailants got off scot-free - as others like them have in countless cases of violence against employers and even fellow workers.

The reason federal authorities cannot get involved in most union violence cases is an actual Supreme Court decision - United States v. Enmons. In the Enmons case, the Court misconstrued congressional intent in the Hobbs Act, the federal anti-extortion law, to hold that violent activity in furtherance of an otherwise legitimate goal of collective bargaining is exempt from federal prosecution.

Justifiably outraged, Sen. Charles Grassley (R-Iowa) has introduced legislation to reverse Enmons. This certainly seems like a fair sensible way to ensure equality of treatment under the law.

But it apparently doesn't seem that way to the leadership organized labor. For several years, they have blocked passage of legislation similar to that proposed by Sen. Grassley.

The general reaction of the nation's opinion leaders to this travesty of justice has been a big yawn. No media mavens have rushed to the scenes of union violence. Few union violence victims have been hailed as martyrs. And no uproar has been raised at the cynicism of union leaders who allow the violence to continue.

I have met with a number of union leaders, and recently collaborated with AFL-CIO chief Lane Kirkland on a joint statement of opposition to the taxation of employee benefits. I know these men and women to be reasonable people, truly concerned about the working people they represent - and about the decline in membership and influence their organizations are now suffering.

Perhaps their behavior on the union violence issue provides a clue as to why unions' standing is beginning to slide. Could it be that the leadership - and the Washington establishment which tends to view them with a less critical eye - has lost touch with the basic notions of fairness and justice shared by the American people?

Sen. Grassley and five other Senators have written Senate Judiciary Committee Strom Thurmond asking for an early vote on the Hobbs amendment. That vote should take place - because violence is wrong, no matter whether perpetrated by business or labor, and it must be stopped.

Lesher is president of the United States Chamber of Commerce.

It was sweat in old days

At a cocktail party the other night, I was introduced to a bona fide Yuppie. He was in his mid-20s, he is rapidly rising in the ranks of his profession, he hangs out in fern bars, and he was wearing a Polo shirt with the collar turned up.

Since we obviously didn't have anything else in common, we talked about the scorching weather we've been having here in Atlanta. It's been so hot lately, it's been necessary to apply suntan lotion just to watch the weather report.

"Hot enough for you?" I asked him. "It's been a disaster," he said. "The air conditioning went out in my BMW, and I had to cancel my racquetball match at the club."

I remember when cars didn't even have air conditioning. "I said,

"Awesome," said my new acquaintance. "I'm serious," I said. "It's only been recently we have had such a luxury."

"What on earth did you do in the summer when your car didn't have air?" asked Mr. Polo Shirt With The Collar Turned Up.

"We simply made do," I replied. "Some people hired small children to ride next to them and fan them while they drove. Others just sweated it out."

"Sweat? You mean 'perspire' don't you?"

"No," I said. "Back then we didn't perspire at all. What we did was sweat. People started perspiring only a few years ago with the advent of the deodorant pad."

"But you didn't have - I hate to be so crude - but didn't you have embarrassing wet spots under your arms?" my young friend asked.

"Sure we did," I answered, "but they were looked upon as evidence an individual was a hard worker. People with dry underarms were considered despicable riffraff who hung out under shade trees all the time."

"This is fascinating," said the Yuppie. "Tell me more."

"When I was growing up, we didn't even have air conditioning in our homes."

"Awesome,"

"It's true. I was 11 when the first air conditioner came to my hometown. The Turnipseeds, a well-to-do family, put one in their window, and people came from all over the country and paid Mr. Turnipseed $3 to sit by his air conditioner for 15 minutes. In one summer, he made enough

Today in History

By The Associated Press
Today is Tuesday, June 18, the 169th day of 1985. There are 196 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:
On June 18, 1983, astronaut Sally K. Ride became America's first woman in space as she and four colleagues blasted off aboard the space shuttle Challenger.

On this date:
In 1778, American forces entered Philadelphia as the British withdrew during the Revolutionary War.

In 1812, the United States declared war against Britain.

In 1815, Napoleon Bonaparte met his Waterloo as British and Prussian troops defeated the French forces in Belgium.

Thought for today: "I cannot understand any woman's wanting to be the first woman to do anything... It is a devastating burden and I could not take it, could not be a pioneer, a Symbol of Something Greater." - Nora Ephron, author.

Rightward shift not over

By William A. Rusher

Is the pronounced rightward shift in the politics of the industrialized world over? In what must be the most premature death notice since Mark Twain's, a number of observers who ought to know better, including the ordinarily sensible Bill Safire, have started suggesting that it is. Noting President Reagan's problems with a balky Congress, Prime Minister Thatcher's low rating in the polls and the sharp defeat of Chancellor Kohl's Christian Democrats in a key local election, the pundits have put two and two together and announced the result: 22. Let us try to be a little calmer, it shouldn't be hard.

In the first place, in a democracy, political victory doesn't end the battle; it simply shifts the battleground. President Reagan, like any other modern president, is doomed to struggle with Congress - and not only with the Democratic House but with ambitious and/or timid Republicans in the Senate. The point is to notice what they are struggling over; and in almost every case it is the details of Mr. Reagan's program: how much to cut domestic expenditures, how extensively to deploy the MX, and so on. The entire liberal Democratic agenda is deep in mothballs, awaiting resurrection (if at all) on some future, very different day. In Europe, Mrs. Thatcher and Mr.

Kohl are in mid-passage of their respective terms, comfortably assured of unshakable parliamentary majorities. Traditionally, that is the time for an incumbent to do the necessary but unpopular things, with the result that the opposition frequently wins contests in this or that allegedly key constituency, and promptly intoxicates itself with visions of victory in the next national election. Reality, however, usually reasserts itself long before that day arrives.

As a matter of fact, the most interesting and probably the most significant development in all three of the countries discussed above is the clear movement of the leftist opposition parties toward the center - a perfectly predictable and altogether healthy process resulting quite naturally from the rightward shift of the three electorates.

In West Germany, for example, the Christian Democrats' defeat in North Rhine-Westphalia was at the hands of a local Social Democratic leader, Johannes Rau, who represents the more moderate, centrist element in that party. If Rau goes on to be the Social Democrats' national standard-bearer in the next general elections, this will constitute a distinct move away from the party's recent uncompromising leftism.

Similarly, the success of the British Labor Party's new leader, Neil Kinnock, in to some extent restoring his party's credibility as a viable alternative to Thatcherism, is the direct result of his repudiation of all the leftist baggage that weighed Labor down the last time around. And, in any case, the real victors in Britain's recent municipal elections may turn out to be the still more moderate Alliance, comprised of the venerable Liberals and the breakaway ex-Laborites now grouped together as Social Democrats. Their ultimate aim is to eliminate Labor altogether and replace it as the official opposition.

Perhaps the most fascinating spectacle of all, however, is the battle now opening for the soul of the Democratic Party in the United States. Not even Ted Kennedy and Mario Cuomo, whose feet are planted deep in the warm ooze of left-liberalism, seriously argue that the old policies and tactics can revive their party. A startling number of prominent Democrats appear to have concluded that nothing can, and have publicly turned Republican. But a handful of moderate Democrats, such as Governors Bob Graham of Florida and Bruce Babbitt of Arizona, and Rep. Richard Gephardt of Missouri, intend to try, and on their success in promoting more moderate policies may well hinge whatever hope the Democratic Party has of surviving as an effective opposition.

Woman seeks career in coal fields

By JEFF LOUDY
Longview News-Journal
BECKVILLE, Texas (AP) — When Perry and Shirley Berry moved back to Beckville from Longview, it was for Perry's job as an oilfield pumper.

Mrs. Berry wasn't able to keep her housecleaning service and gave it up to stay home with the four children.

But one income wasn't enough. So, Mrs. Berry entered the job market.

"I went job hunting and I have looked ever since I've been here," she said.

The only jobs available paid minimum wage and didn't make a big difference in the family budget.

Mrs. Berry decided to try something different.

She signed up for the Coal Employment Project, a non-profit organization that helps women gain the education and confidence necessary to get a non-traditional job.

Mrs. Berry wants to be a coal miner.

Susan Hudson, project coordinator, worked with Mrs. Berry and 18 other women who sought the security and higher incomes of jobs in the coal mines of East Texas.

The project was founded with a grant from the Ms. Foundation in 1977 in the coalfields of Appalachia because studies showed "women did have unusual problems going into a male-dominated industry," Mrs. Hudson said.

Those problems included everything from sexual harassment to lack of knowledge to identify tools.

The project just recently expanded to the Texas and the pilot program of the project, funded by Levi Strauss, took place here in Longview in May.

During the 10-day project, the women studied all aspects of working in the coal industry from union relations to body conditioning.

"We are offering to the companies the best-prepared women for the job they'll ever see," Mrs. Hudson said. "They're willing to put up with the dirt and the rotating shifts and all that."

Mrs. Berry certainly is. "I'm used to hard work and I'm not afraid of hard work," she said.

Mrs. Berry grew up on a hay farm and said that's where she got her fascination with equipment. That farm was located on land that has since been surface mined, and Mrs. Berry said she often drives through the area to watch the mining.

"I've always been fascinated with it," she said.

Even though she has no specific background in coal mining, Mrs. Berry is confident she will get a job.

"They do hire people off the street who don't have the experience," she said.

Her husband is very supportive of her efforts. Berry said that at first he had reservations about his wife holding a coal mine job, and then realized he had nothing to worry about.

"I work with women on my job and I figure she'll be all right," he said. "Right now she seems to be all excited. I'm all for it."

Mrs. Berry has already applied for jobs at a coal mine and power plant and says now she just has to wait.

Completing the project is not a guarantee of getting a job, Mrs. Hudson said.

"It's a women's advocacy foundation," she said. "It doesn't guarantee placement."

Mrs. Berry said she knows that, but still feels better about completing the project.

Dear Abby

Deposits at blood banks pay interest to whole community

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1985 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Regarding the woman who wanted to "build up a blood bank in case someone in my family needs a transfusion." You responded: "It makes sense to me, and so does the idea of giving one's own blood to store at the blood bank in case a family member needs a transfusion."

Abby, there are several problems with this concept:

Blood banks do not operate like money banks: One cannot simply put blood away and draw it out at the time of need. Instead, the nation's nearly 4 million patients whose lives are saved by transfusions each year depend on the selflessness of a steady stream of donors who come into the blood bank regularly, to give blood for anyone who might need it.

Even if blood could be stored beyond its 35-day outdating period, it is highly unlikely that there would be sufficient numbers of units of the right type to meet transfusion needs from the immediate family.

The American Association of Blood Banks, the American Red Cross and the Council of Community Blood Centers have jointly recommended against donors routinely specifying who will receive their blood, stating that a widespread attempt to "direct donations" would seriously disrupt the nation's blood donor system because donors might refrain from routine blood donations while awaiting requests to provide specific individuals with blood. Additionally, the organizations stated that there is no scientific basis for the assumption that blood from family members is any safer than that available from volunteers at community and hospital blood banks.

Our nation's blood donor system is based upon generous individuals giving blood to their local blood bank for patients in need, whether or not those patients are friends or family members.

Please, Abby, encourage your readers to pay a visit to their local community or hospital blood bank and make a life-saving donation.

The faceless patients whose lives depend on volunteer donors will thank them!

GRACE M. NEITZER, PRESIDENT, AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF BLOOD BANKS

DEAR GRACE NEITZER: Thank you for your informative and timely letter. Blood is in very short supply these days, and donors are desperately needed.

This morning I received this heartwarming letter:

DEAR ABBY: Ever since you reminded your readers to donate blood, I have made it a point to donate blood on my birthday.

It makes me appreciate being healthy enough to give blood. I consider it my birthday present to myself.

BALTIMORE BLOOD DONOR

DEAR ABBY: I have recently become engaged, and my fiance and I are planning a very small wedding. I've invited a few close friends from work, but not everyone I work with.

What should I say when people who aren't invited ask, "Am I invited?" I don't want to create any hard feelings.

TONGUE-TIED IN TEXAS

DEAR TONGUE-TIED: Untie your tongue and say, "I'm sorry. It's going to be a very small wedding."

(Getting married? Send for Abby's new, updated, expanded booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send your name and address clearly printed with a check or money order for $2.50 and a long, stamped (39 cents) envelope to: Dear Abby, Wedding Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.)

Peeking at Pampa

Parties, promotions, glimpses and trips! A full schedule promises interesting peeking.

After a week of preparation, John Lee Bell hosted his fifth annual men-only fish fry Saturday down at the ranch for at least 175 guests. Jim Jennings, who assisted as co-supervisor, insisted on cooking the fish all by himself. Listen to the mouth-watering menu: fish, shrimp, buffalo brisket — raised on the ranch, slaw and brown beans. John Lee's specialty is cooking brown beans with his own concoction of spices. Buffalo brisket? Hm m m m m m m m m m.

Edda Lee Haggard, John Lee's grandmother, deserves a word of praise and admiration. Only because of her years — certainly not because of her personality and nerve fitting someone much her junior — can she be called a senior citizen. She picks up the girls for bridge, takes them to doctors appointments, grocery store, or wherever the need might be. On a recent Sunday after she had been dismissed from a hospital stay, she was elated to be in church in her usual seat. It was Anita who crashed — not Edda Lee!

The girls had a party you should know about, too. Gladys Bowers and Glendora Gindorf hosted a Saturday evening party at the Bowers Ranch for a group of ladies. Just the mention of it sounded exciting. The agenda was flexible, but did call for lots of scrumptious food and fun to spare. It was a much-looked-forward-to event.

The time finally came for Sue and Frank Snow to return little Taryn Fallon, baby daughter of Melinda and Ben Jr., to her new home in Norman on their way to Oklahoma City. In true grandpa fashion, Frank called back more than once to be sure the little darling was okay.

Wish you could have heard Jennifer Holland, eight year old daughter of Connie and Joe, hawk her wares at Optimist Ball Park. Her wares? The best of ball game fares — hotdogs! Moms, pops and grandparents make enthusiastic Little League fans. Bobbie West does her share of "fanning" while Dale coaches bases. Congratulations! Best wishes! Good luck! To Vickie Littrell who has been promoted from assistant controller at Coronado Community Hospital for HCA in Gatesville. White Deer's loss of Vickie, Mike and son, is Gatesville's gain.

Whew!! Floyd Sackett made it okay while juggling boxes and more boxes in all sorts of shapes and sizes in front of his office. Birthday wishes tomorrow!

Saw Mary Coward of Skellytown enjoying the visiting that goes with shopping.

Recovery wishes to Judy Grimsley and Vi Cobb as they recover from recent surgery.

It's good to see Mary (Mrs. Lloyd) Summers back on the job in a downtown dress shop. She looks chipper and rested after recent surgery. Margaret (Mrs. Carl) Lawyer was close back with her refreshing pep and enthusiasm.

Administrative personnel and heads of departments and spouses of Coronado Community Hospital, about 25 in all, participated in a two-day workshop at Ruidoso, N.M., recently with an added bonus of golfing, fun and good food.

Bill Fry vacationed in Houston for a fun trip.

Diane and Lee Waters, Dorothy and Dr. Jim Chase attended the Rotary International Convention in Kansas City, Mo. Lee is president-elect of the Pampa Rotary Club.

Cindy and Larry Forson spent a long weekend in the Bahamas. At age three, Bryan Coats of Skellytown knows the thrill of catching two catsfish. He and his mother Janette, sister Jennifer and grandmother Pauline Lillie went south to visit his mom's twin sister Paulette.

Attending the Baptist General Convention of Texas in Dallas from Pampa were Nell and George Warren, Lynn and Herb Smith, Ione and Paul Simmons, Janice and David Nall and Wayne Wilson.

Floyd earns volunteer recognition

FORT COLLINS, Colo. — Elsie Floyd of Pampa has recently been named as a certified volunteer of America by her sorority, Epsilon Sigma Alpha International.

Floyd received this honor because of her contribution of more than 1,000 hours of volunteer time to her sorority and community for the past 10 years. Epsilon Sigma Alpha International's Executive Director B.J. Clark presented the certificate.

Epsilon Sigma Alpha International is a women's sorority dedicated to the threefold purpose of education, service and association. ESA is not affiliated with any academic or professional institution. The major focus of ESA is philanthropic work. The 25,000 members of ESA International annually raise almost $3 million and donate at least 650,000 volunteer hours to worthy causes and national charities.

The honor of being an ESA certified Volunteer of America is awarded only to those ESA members who have achieved the fifth degree of the organization's Pallas Athene program. This program, named for the Greek goddess of Wisdom, sets a standard of excellence for ESA members to follow. In order to achieve the coveted fifth degree of the Pallas Athene program, a member must earn a total of 35,000 points. Points are awarded for leadership, volunteer management and philanthropic work.

Anyone wishing more information about Epsilon Sigma Alpha International, may contact Floyd or ESA headquarters, Drake Office Center, 363 W. Drake Rd., Fort Collins, Colo., 80526.

BACK IN U.S.A. — Adriana Garza talks to reporters during a brief news conference at the St. Louis Lambert International Airport. Standing in the background is Irma Garza, Adriana's grandmother. The Garzas were aboard the TWA plane that was hijacked by the young girl reportedly tricking the hijackers and saving the family's money. They made a brief stop in St. Louis before heading home to Laredo. (AP Laserphoto)

Teen tricks hijackers, relative says

LAREDO, Texas (AP) — A 13-year-old girl who was among the passengers of a TWA flight taken hostage by Shiite terrorists outsmarted the hijackers by stuffing her mother's and grandmother's money inside her socks before the gunmen took the passengers' possessions, a family member says.

Seven Laredo residents were among the more than 150 passengers aboard the TWA flight that was hijacked in Athens, Greece.

Two Laredo businessmen, Vicente Garza Jr., 53, and his son-in-law, Robert Trautmann Jr., 37, still are being held by the Shiite Moslems seeking the release of some of their comrades.

Five other family members arrived in Laredo Monday evening, but avoided reporters.

The five are Irma Garza, 48, her daughter, Irma Trautmann, 31, and Mrs. Trautmann's three daughters, Adriana, 13, Ashley, 4, and Katherine, 3.

Mrs. Garza's brother, Javier Santos, said Monday that Adriana Garza tricked the hijackers when passengers aboard the flight were ordered to give up their possessions, the teen-ager used a trick she learned back home.

"What happened is that she outsmarted the guys when they took the purses. Unbeknownst to her mother and grandmother, she quickly thought of emptying them (the purses) and the way she does when she goes to the mall here to shop, she doesn't like to carry a purse... she stuck everything in her socks, so she had everything that they had," Santos said.

He said when Adriana Garza was reunited with her other relatives in Paris on Sunday, she had hundreds of dollars with her.

The teen-ager had been freed Saturday in Algiers. The other four were among the first to be released in Beirut on Friday.

But although Santos said the teen-ager kept her cool during the ordeal, she cried when she arrived in this border city Monday night.

The family did not wish to speak to reporters, who had gathered along with other family and friends at Laredo International Airport. The five family, aboard a chartered aircraft from St. Louis, Mo., decided to land at another airport.

When Adriana Garza and her grandmother arrived at her grandmother's house, the teen-ager hugged relatives, entered the house and started to cry.

"She just started crying with her grandmother and went straight to her room," said a relative.

Although they did not want to speak to reporters Monday night, some of the family did talk while at St. Louis' Lambert Airport.

"I'm glad to be going home. We are waiting to hear some news about my husband and my son-in-law," Mrs. Garza said.

Mrs. Garza she did not want to say anything else because the two were still captive.

"We will say more when it's over," she said.

Adriana Garza said the hijackers had struck her "for no apparent reason" but she had not been hurt.

A vigil continued, meanwhile, for Robert Trautmann and Vicente Garza.

Trautmann reportedly was among those taken off the aircraft Friday night in Beirut because he had a Jewish-sounding name. Garza reportedly has been taken off the aircraft, also.

Legislators complain about bill vetoes by the governor

AUSTIN (AP) — Some Texas legislators are unhappy with Gov. Mark White's veto of their bills, particularly that he didn't discuss lawmaking problems before voiding the Legislature-approved measures.

"One of the governor's aides called me Sunday afternoon, read me the veto proclamation, wished me a happy Father's Day, and then hung up," said Rep. George Pierce, R-San Antonio.

"The governor did not talk with me," said Sen. Roy Blake, D-Nacogdoches, who protested two vetoes. "I think I could have explained to him both issues."

"I did not even receive the courtesy of a phone call to advise me of the veto," complained Gary Hughes, executive director of the Texas Public Employees Association, who protested the veto of a bill that would have increased the state's responsibility to help defend state employees involved in court fights.

Blake said one veto was in the general appropriations bill and took away $325,000 allocated Stephen F. Austin University to pay claims in a federal court decision.

The other was a Blake bill that would have allowed Texas residents to write directly to members of the Texas Railroad Commission or the Public Utility Commission concerning matters pending before the regulatory bodies.

"It's not that I object to him vetoing bills but I do think he should touch base with the sponsors and tell them beforehand and give them a chance to explain why the measure was passed," Blake said.

White said he vetoed the claims money because there were no claims to be paid at this time and if claims appear they could be paid by the comptroller or presented the 1987 Legislature.

"The veto apparently tells the minorities that they have to wait two years before they get their money," Blake said.

He said federal courts had already ruled against the university in a suit in which some university employees, representing a class of people, claimed they were denied promotions because of sex and color. The $325,000 was to pay claims as they were settled.

Blake said the second bill was introduced after he found it was a misdemeanor for anyone with a matter before the Railroad Commission or PUC to try to communicate with one of the commissioners.

"These people are elected or appointed and should be able to hear from the people," Blake said. "My bill said the communication should be in writing and would be made a part of the record so the opposition could see it too. I don't think he was advised properly to veto this."

White's veto message said Blake's bill "could seriously undermine the integrity and trustworthiness" of the commissions proceedings and would add to the time and expense of the parties concerned.

Pierce said White vetoed a bill which would have repealed the Obstructions to Air Navigations Act, which regulates tall structures around airports.

White said the repeal would "pose a substantial risk to the safety of our citizens who travel by air."

Pierce said the act has never been funded and cannot be enforced.

Bodies of three youths discovered

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Two sisters and a male teen-age boarder have been found stabbed to death in a duplex in this North Texas city, police say.

Officers said all three bodies were bound and had multiple puncture wounds.

The sisters were identified as Renee Lemieux, 12, and Danielle Lemieux, 14. The name of the male victim was not immediately determined, officers said.

Joann Lemieux, mother of the victims, said she returned home from work at about 10:15 p.m. Monday and found her youngest daughter bound and gagged in the bathroom. The second body was found in a bedroom by paramedics who responded to the mother's plea for help.

Police were searching the home more than an hour later when they located the body of the teen-age boy. He had been found and was hidden beneath dirty linens in a laundry room, police said.

Police spokesman Jim Willett said the boy could not be identified immediately.

Agency to stop insuring new Texas S&Ls

DALLAS (AP) — The Federal Home Loan Bank Board will no longer grant insurance to new state-chartered thrifts because it claims the Texas Savings and Loan Department lacks the staff to adequately monitor them, state officials say.

L.L. Bowman, commissioner of the Texas Savings and Loan Department, said Monday the board suspended insurance coverage to all new state-chartered thrifts last month.

Bowman said the board demanded that he agree in writing to add staff and maintain regulatory standards recommended by the federal agency.

The state staff includes 35 examiners and has plans to hire five more to help supervise the estimated 220 state-chartered thrifts, Bowman said.

The federal agency wants officials in Texas, California and Florida to pay closer attention to state-chartered institutions that grow rapidly by engaging in investment patterns considered riskier than traditional home mortgages.

The board guarantees deposits in S&Ls up to $100,000 through the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp.

Bowman said about 22 new Texas thrifts, including three in Dallas, can't open until federal and state agencies arrive at an agreement.

The board's action was criticized by Bowman.

"They're withholding new capital from the industry when they should really be attacking problem thrifts," he said.

Bowman noted that he may close down about a dozen troubled thrifts in Texas starting in September when a new law passed by the Legislature gives him powers to take over direction of S&Ls in trouble.

He said he would sell the assets of the troubled S&Ls to new investors and have the thrifts reopen immediately under new names in order to cause little disruption for depositors.

Tom King, executive vice president of the Texas Savings and Loan League, a lobby group, disagrees with the federal agency's claim that the state lacks skilled examiners.

Students invent, mass produce, market

By DOROTHY GAST
Associated Press Writer
BLACKSBURG, Va. (AP) — Students in one of Jim LaPorte's industrial arts labs at Virginia Tech get a taste of the marketplace by inventing, producing and selling their own products, all within a semester.

"We try to emulate what goes on in industry," said LaPorte, assistant professor of vocational technical education. "It's fun, it's realistic, it's exciting and it's a lot of work. But I think it's meaningful work."

The classes were directed at a common criticism that schools often fail to prepare students for the real world because they give them too much theory and too little practice.

This school year, LaPorte divided his students into three teams of six or seven, each of which formed a company.

Greg Farrar's group formed the D.B. Gramp Co. and produced a walnut case for computer diskettes, a product that won the grand prize in the Stanley-Proto Tools mass production competition this year.

Dave McGuigan's group formed a company called Stan-True Tree Stands, which produced wooden Christmas tree holders. Wright Brothers Furniture, headed by Lori McKee, built foldable oak and canvas chairs.

After deciding on a product, students sought donations of materials for 20 completed pieces or, as an alternative, sold enough shares to purchase the materials.

After building a prototype, each company researched the market potential by asking dozens of students what they liked and didn't like about the product.

D.B. Gramp's survey of 70 students prompted some minor design changes, such as cutting the size to hold from 50 to 100 diskettes. "Our analysis told us this was the size people would be comfortable with," said Farrar.

McKee said students preferred her group's chair to one sold at a local bookstore because of its appearance and stability. McGuigan said 50 to 55 students interviewed liked the tree holder just as it was.

LaPorte said one of the biggest challenges for the students was to design tooling machinery so products could be mass-produced. Each company was required to build 20 pieces of its product in two hours.

None of the groups had enough labor to produce the products without hiring and training workers from other classes. Each company had 20 to 25 production workers.

D.B. Gramp made 24 diskette cases in two hours. Stan-True made its 20 Christmas tree stands in 47 minutes, and Wright Brothers built 22 chairs before the deadline.

The students said they had little trouble selling their products because of the low prices they charged.

Farrar said his group spent $3 to build the diskette boxes, which sold for $15 each. The Christmas tree stand sold for $9, or $4 more than the cost of materials. Wright Brothers "spent" $12 for materials and charged $30 for each chair, or $15 under bookstore prices.

Iacocca, Betty Ford, Baker to get public service honors

WASHINGTON (AP) — Treasury Secretary James A. Baker III, auto executive Lee Iacocca and former first lady Betty Ford are among nine Americans being honored with Jefferson Awards for outstanding public service.

The award ceremony for the nine public and private citizens selected by the American Institute for Public Service was scheduled for today in the East Conference Room of the U.S. Supreme Court.

Baker is being cited for greatest public service by an elected or appointed official. Iacocca is being honored for service by a private citizen, and Mrs. Ford's award is for outstanding public service benefiting the disadvantaged.

A fourth national award will go to Trevor Ferrell, 12, of Gladwyne, Pa., for greatest public service by an individual aged 35 or under. Ferrell won national attention because of his tireless efforts to care and feed street people in Philadelphia.

Each of the four national winners will receive $5,000 and a gold-on-silver medallion.

Five winners of awards for outstanding public service benefiting local communities will each receive $1,000 and a medallion.

Suspect 'Mengele' corpse may have been mutilated

SAO PAULO, Brazil (AP) — Citing broken bones and other abnormalities, police suspect that someone may have mutilated the corpse that they believe belonged to Nazi fugitive Josef Mengele in an attempt to disguise its identity.

"There is a suspicion that someone may have tried to deform the cadaver," Romeu Toma, federal police chief in Sao Paulo, said at a news conference Monday.

"We believe the purpose was that the corpse not be identified." An 18-member forensic team planned to do tests today to determine whether the bad condition of the body was caused by violence or by water and earth.

Tuma said the team hoped to have a final identification by the end of the month of the skeletal remains, exhumed June 6 in the town of Embu, 17 miles from Sao Paulo. Police believe the body belonged to Mengele, the "Angel of death" of the Auschwitz concentration camp in Poland who is blamed for the deaths of 400,000 people.

The specialists planned to use "extremely valuable new information," including Mengele's dental charts and X-rays which arrived Monday from the Simon Wiesenthal Center for Holocaust Studies in Los Angeles, said Dr. Daniel Munoz, one of the Brazilian experts.

When Goldwater is kept waiting, he's keeping track

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Barry Goldwater isn't one to be kept waiting, even by other senators. Especially by other senators.

One of the Arizona Republican's pet peeves is the common practice of stopping the clock at the end of a 15 minute roll-call vote to await senators still on their way to the Senate floor.

So, for the past three years he has had the Senate doorkeeper record how long the Senate has waited beyond the 15 minutes that recorded votes are supposed to last.

The results of his survey: In 1983, the Senate waited a total of three days, six hours and 54 minutes for tardy members.

In 1984 three days and 13 minutes were spent waiting.

"These are 12-hour days, mind you, not eight," Goldwater noted. By mid-June, "we have spent 15 hours and 41 minutes overtime in getting here to vote," he grouched.

"It seems to me we could save quite a bit of time if we made a little better effort to obey the rules."

While Goldwater was tabulating Senate inactivity, Rep. Kika de la Garza, D-Texas, has been keeping track of another set of figures.

The average American, de la Garza notified the House, "eats, on the per capita average, about four gallons of ice cream a year."

"And we know that out of 250 million people in this country, a whopping majority skew that statistic on the high side," de la Garza added.

It was de la Garza's annual tribute to ice cream.

Mullin waits for Santa Claus

ids337 02126MULLIN WAITS
By WILLIAM R. BARNARD
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — All-America Chris Mullin of St. John's, certain to be a first-round choice, said waiting for the National Basketball Association draft is like waiting for Santa Claus.

"Today is like Christmas Eve," Mullin said Monday at a pre-draft press conference. "I probably won't sleep at all tonight. People ask me who's going to take me and when I say I don't know, they act like I'm keeping something from them. But I really don't know."

The only one of next season's NBA rookies who is sure of his future is Georgetown's Patrick Ewing, a 7-foot center whose fate was sealed May 12 when the New York Knicks won the "Patrick Ewing Lottery" by earning the right to draft first in the first round of today's draft.

The 7-foot Ewing, a three-time All-America from Georgetown, said he had no personal goals as a pro player "except to win. There's pressure whatever you do but I just want to try my best. I always give it my all to win."

After Ewing, 6-9 forward Wayman Tisdale of Oklahoma and 7-0 Benoit Benjamin of Creighton were ticketed to go 2-3 by Indiana and the Los Angeles Clippers, or 3-2, depending on which of the two eligible underclassmen was taken by the Pacers.

Tisdale, at the same news conference as Ewing, said he is "excited and anxious to get it over with. Everyone asks me where I'm going, but I just don't know. If Indiana or Los Angeles picks me, I feel I can excel either place."

Seattle and Atlanta were expected to follow the Top 3 by taking 6-7 forward Xavier McDaniel of Wichita State and 7-0 center Jon Koncak of Southern Methodist, respectively.

Others expected to go quickly were center Joe Kleine of Arkansas, forward Karl Malone of Louisiana Tech, swingman Detlef Schrempf of Washington and Mullin.

The first-round draft order after Atlanta was Sacramento, Golden State, Dallas, Cleveland, Phoenix, Chicago, Washington, Utah, San Antonio, Denver, Dallas with two consecutive picks, Detroit, Houston, Boston, Philadelphia, Milwaukee, the Los Angeles Lakers and Portland.

Gervin likely to be late NBA draft choice

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — University of Texas at San Antonio standout Derrick Gervin says it's not imperative he get drafted by the San Antonio Spurs. He's willing to go anywhere in the league.

But the 6-8 forward said he is disappointed at his prospects for getting drafted early in the National Basketball Association draft today.

Gervin, brother to San Antonio Spurs star George Gervin, averaged 25 points a game and was leading scorer during his three years at UTSA.

He dropped out of school in May and made an early entry into the NBA draft.

But after a lackluster showing at the Chicago tryout camp in late May, Gervin is projected by scouts as a late second or early third-round pick.

Gervin said NBA management often make mistakes on players coming out of college.

"Sometimes a first-rounder will be picked and when he gets there he just rides the bench. I guess I'm going to have to go in and earn my spot," he said.

"I haven't even tried to predict where I'll go," Gervin told the San Antonio Light. "I'm just going to sit back and wait. As long as I'm drafted, it doesn't matter."

When informed he might drop to the third round, Gervin replied, "That's fine. It's their (the scouts) fault, not mine."

"It'll just make me work harder. I'll just have to go to training camp and show the people that they made a mistake," he said.

The Spurs own the 35th overall pick in the second round, but have not mentioned Gervin's name as a possible draftee in that position.

Gervin said if the Spurs don't select him, he won't be disappointed.

"I just live here. There's 23 teams in the league. I'd be happy to play anywhere," he said.

Since the tryout camp, Gervin has been playing pick-up games at UTSA trying to keep in shape.

Nearly broke

Cosmos in trouble

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — Less than a decade after becoming the flagship team of soccer in North America, the Cosmos are nearly broke and ready to cease operations unless more financing can be found, team officials say.

The prospect has many in the United States wondering whether the sport has any future in the country that calls baseball its national pastime.

"I hope the Cosmos will be around until my own kids' kids can watch them play," said Peppe Pinton, who resigned Monday as the team's managing director. "The last six or seven months have been atrocious. I love the Cosmos, but one has to be realistic about the future."

The resignation came just one night after Pinton said the team's coffers were near empty and that the program of having the Cosmos play international exhibition matches was losing money.

"The bottom line is money and we don't have it," Pinton said Sunday night. "I had a dream when we started this thing. I thought it might work, but the fans don't seem to want the program."

"On the whole, the Cosmos will be around as long as Cosmos fans want them to be around, no matter who the management is."

Recent crowds lead one to believe the fans don't want the Cosmos around. Playing the international exhibition schedule this summer, the Cosmos have averaged less than 15,000 fans per game in three games, including one against Independiente of Argentina, the world club champions.

It was games like that back in the middle to late 1970s that filled Giants Stadium with crowds in the 60,000 to 70,000 range. Back then, it was trendy to go to soccer games. Mick Jagger did. So did former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger — to see international soccer stars such as Pele, Beckenbauer, Alberto and Chinaglia.

"When you talk about soccer in the United States, you are talking about the Cosmos," Pinton has said. "No matter where you go, you say the Cosmos name and people automatically light up."

The Cosmos name and its stars carried the North American Soccer League to a peak at the beginning of the decade when its membership reached 24 teams. But the number this year had dwindled to two when the league suspended operations.

Pinton said he was at a loss to explain how the Cosmos could draw between 60,000 and 75,000 fans per game during their heyday in the 1970s and fail to match that total over three games this year.

"We managed to put together a tremendous team with outstanding ingredients to bring the fans back," he said. "There is no other excuse for this situation than the lack of fan interest."

Ryan closes in on 4,000 strikeouts

ATLANTA (AP) — Houston's Dave Smith retired all seven Atlanta Braves' batters that he faced for his 11th save, but he felt retiring Glenn Hubbard for the last out was especially important.

"A one-run lead in this ballpark is nothing. That is why I wanted to get Hubbard out," Smith said. "I hated to see (Dale) Murphy and (Bob) Horner come up (the next two men in the batting order). Even with Murph not hitting the way he can, he's so strong he can hit it out any time, and besides he owns me."

Alan Ashby had three hits, including a double in the sixth inning that broke a 3-3 tie, to lead the Astros to a 4-3 victory over Atlanta Monday.

Smith, who has become the ace of the Houston bullpen this season, replaced winner Nolan Ryan, 8-3, in the seventh inning after Horner singled to move Hubbard to second base. He got Terry Harper to ground out, ending the threat.

Ryan scattered nine hits in 6 2-3 innings while striking out eight batters and walking two.

He now has 100 strikeouts for the year and ran his all-time record career total to 3,974, only 26 short of becoming the first pitcher in history to record 4,000 strikeouts. His 100 for the season includes 16 against the Braves.

"They (the Braves) are kind of like us. They've had a lot of injuries and their lineup has changed. They had three guys I have never seen before," Ryan said. "It's (still) hard to get enough runs in this ballpark."

Ashby's sixth-inning double came with two outs and the score tied for the third time. Phil Garner, who had homered in the fourth, and Glen Davis singled, chasing Atlanta starter Steve Shields, 1-1. Ashby greeted Jeff Dedmon with a drive to center, scoring Garner.

Shields said he was hampered by a cut finger on his pitching hand that began to bleed in the second inning.

"It got worse and worse and I kept wiping the blood off it," Shields said. "When you try to compensate for not having velocity, you get behind (in the count). Then they wait for your fastball and beat your brains out."

Brad Kommsink led off the Braves' first with a triple and two outs later scored on a double by Horner.

Houston tied the score in the third. Ashby singled with one out, moved to second on a sacrifice, to third on an infield hit by Bill Doran, and scored on Craig Reynold's single.

A one-out double by Hubbard and a run-scoring single by Harper put the Braves ahead again in the third, but the Astros tied it in the fourth on Garner's third home run of the season.

Houston took its first lead, 3-2, in the fifth when Ashby led off the inning with a single, went to second on a sacrifice and scored on Doran's double. But the Braves tied it once more in their half of the inning when Murphy singled and scored on a triple by Horner.

Following Harper's run-scoring single in the third, the Braves loaded the bases on a walk to Ken Oberkfell. But Ryan prevented any further scoring by striking out Larry Owen.

"We had ample opportunities to win the ballgame," Horner said. "We had runners in scoring position but we didn't capitalize on many of them. When you're struggling like we are, that's when you need to take advantage of any scoring opportunities, but we haven't been doing that lately."

Gamblers rout Gunslingers

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Gamblers quarterback Todd Dillon says he got angry after one of his passes was picked off by the San Antonio Gunslingers and returned a United States Football League record 103 yards for a touchdown.

Dillon, starting his third consecutive game for the injured Jim Kelly, completed 25 of 33 passes for 365 yards and ran for another touchdown as the Gamblers routed their cross-state rivals, 49-21 at the Astrodome Monday night.

The victory gave the Gamblers, 10-7, the eighth and final spot in the USFL playoffs.

Dillon said he felt relaxed during the game, but he became angry when Charles Armstead picked off his pass and returned it 103 yards for a touchdown to give San Antonio a 7-0 lead in the second quarter.

"That interception was enough to tick you off and say, 'Dammit, we have to win this game, so let's get out and get into the playoffs,'" Dillon said.

The Gamblers had lost two in a row and four of their last five games.

Gambler receivers' coach Bob Ford said last week that Dillon had to throw more often to his inside receivers, Richard Johnson, Clarence Verdin and Ricky Sanders.

Verdin caught two touchdown passes and Johnson and Sanders caught one each.

"I figured if I couldn't win one of four games, I'd go back to selling insurance in California," Dillon said.

The Gamblers quickly wiped out the 7-0 San Antonio lead as Dillon threw two touchdown passes and ran for one himself and the Gamblers held a 28-7 halftime lead.

"They came easy after the interception," Dillon said. "You could see it in San Antonio's eyes. They didn't know what they were doing."

Dillon's touchdown run came after Todd Fowler's 6-yard run and Tom Fritsch's extra point tied the game at 7-7.

Texas League roundup

By The Associated Press
Gary Green singled home the winning run as the Beaumont Golden Gators took a 2-1 Texas League baseball victory over the San Antonio Dodgers.

In other Texas League action Monday night, Jackson defeated Arkansas, 6-3, El Paso whipped Midland, 5-1, and Tulsa defeated Shreveport, 6-1.

Green's single came after Mark Wasinger scored in the first inning on an error.

San Antonio's only run came in the fifth inning on a defensive error by Beaumont. During a run-down play between second and third no one was covering home and a runner raced home from third.

Joe Bitker, 1-0, making his first start in the Texas League, was the winning pitcher. The loser was Mike Cherry, 1-2.

Jackson took a 2-1 lead in the sixth inning when Kelvin Elsterr walked and Mark Carreon had a two-run homer.

Umpires tourney is re-scheduled

The Pampa Umpires Association Slowpitch Softball Tournament was rained out last week and has been re-scheduled for June 21-23 at Hobart Park.

Entry fee is $100 for men and $85 for women.

Interested persons should contact Debbie Middleton, Randy Holmes or Nelson Medley before 5 p.m. Wednesday to enter the tournament.

PRIZE PUPPIES — A pair of miniature Schnauzer puppies, owned by San and Weldon Talley of White Deer, have won ribbons in recent dog shows. Talley's Touch of Class, shown above, was a two-point winner in a recent show in Lawton, Okla. She won top honors in Winners Bitch, Best of Winners and Best of Opposite Sex Categories. She's handled by Priscilla Wells under Judge Dr. Alvin W. Krouse. Talley's First Edition won Winners Dog and Best of Opposite Sex at an Albuquerque, N.M. show. He was handled by Kay Chisum under Judge Dr. Lee Huggins. Both dogs will be re-stripped before competing in a Lubbock show in September.

Astro-Graph

by bernice bede osol

June 18, 1985

It will be to your benefit in the coming year to be as actively involved as possible with clubs or social organizations. Fresh opportunities will present themselves through the new people you'll be meeting. GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Try to peer behind the scenes today because there will be goings-on that could benefit you financially. You'll recognize your opportunities. Major changes are ahead for Gemini in the coming year. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail $1 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Even those who already like you will see more to admire in you today. This is because your finest qualities will be very pronounced.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) The very things that others have to struggle for today will come to you with relative ease. Your instincts will place you in the right spot at the right time.

VRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You have the knack for disseminating the good ideas of others today. You'll pick up valuable information from divergent sources and put it to a specific use.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Assume a more commanding role in an enterprise where you have a vested interest. It needs your touch and the momentum you can generate.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Today you may receive long-distance news that will please you considerably. It will be from a person with whom you once had close ties.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Additional compensation is in the offing for something you've done for another. The recipient is eager to give you your just dues.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) This is one of those lucky days. Right at the top of the list will be happenings in the romance department.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Utilize at least a portion of your time today by doing something that is deemed to be productive but, in reality, is actually more fun than work.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) The cycle will start changing as of today and soon you will be popular with people you thought didn't like you. Be nice to everyone.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) People you love and trust could be bearers of material fortune for you today. They'll want to add to your resources.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) It's likely that you'll be in the forefront today. You'll lead not necessarily by choice, but by approval.

It's almost summertime - or is it already midsummer?

By RANDOLPH E. SCHMID
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans, many already sweltering in the heat, soon will celebrate the arrival of summer — on a date many other cultures know as Midsummer's Day.

Although most people can easily tell the seasons by the weather, those seeking "official" starting and ending dates can find plenty of disagreement and even confusion.

The accepted dates for the seasons have more or less evolved over the years, with no official body making the designation, explained LeRoy Doggett of the U.S. Naval Observatory.

It was astronomers who designated the solstice — when the sun seems to hold still at its northernmost point — as the start of summer, a tradition stretching back to Rhodian stargazer Geminus in 70 B.C.

And today many almanacs follow his lead, citing the start of summer as the summer solstice, occurring this year at 6:44 p.m. EDT on June 21. By that calculation, summer will last until the autumn equinox, which astronomers at the Naval Observatory report will occur on Sept. 23.

The solstice occurs when the sun's apparent northward movement reaches its zenith at the Tropic of Cancer and seems to stall for a few days. This provides the longest days of the year in the Northern hemisphere, and the shortest south of the Equator, where winter is beginning.

Astronomers now know that the sun's apparent movement doesn't actually stop, but is so slow as to be barely noticed during this period.

However, the northward movement of the sun has been giving extra warmth to this hemisphere since it crossed the Equator March 20, and many residents of the United States have already experienced plenty of summertime weather.

For that reason, meteorologists often divide the seasons differently from astronomers, listing the months of June, July and August as "summer."

That comes close to actually marking the warmest weather of the year, the definition most individuals probably consider summer.

The 93 warmest days of the year, on average, extend from June 6 to Sept. 7 in the nation's capital, weather historian David Ludlum has reported in Blair & Ketchum's Country Journal. This can vary somewhat, of course, from place to place.

"There are a couple of traditions, here, basically which have to do with the way we divide up the year. Modern astronomers divide it into four sections, marked by the equinoxes and solstices..." Doggett explained.

But, "there is another partition of the year by which are called the cross-quarter days. They fall in between (the solstices and equinoxes) and we know that there are traditions associated with these, particularly in the British Isles and Europe. They have been used for dividing up the year, or the whole set of eight was in fact celebrated in a system."

"Mayday is one of these days. It had more ancient names and may have been the start of summer," making the coming solstice midsummer, he explained.

The date of the solstice is still termed midsummer in cultures that date summer as starting around Mayday.

"We have simply sort of dropped the cross-quarters, except that we still have Mayday and Halloween, but these don't have the calendrical significance in terms of the cycle of the Sun that they once did," Doggett concluded.

The celebration of the solstice as Midsummer's Day remains popular in Northern Europe, with festivals and bonfires common in Germany and Scandinavia and otidely popular as a holiday, at one time the festival center on magic and merrymaking. The festivities were immortalized by William Shakespeare in the play "A Midsummer Night's Dream," in which lovers are caught up in the magic web spun by the moon, the forest and fairy creatures on that special night.

Finally, there was the medieval scheme of seasons, which began on popular saints' days due to the strong influence of the church.

Summer, by that reckoning, began on St. Urban's Day, May 25, and lasted until Aug. 23.

Mexico cuts oil price

MEXICO CITY (AP) — A debt-ridden and economically ailing Mexico, the largest single source of oil for the United States, has announced a $1.50-a-barrel cut in the price of its heavy crude under pressure from buyers and a sagging world market.

The reduction, announced Monday, means an annual loss of $443.3 million in revenue from oil, the country's No. 1 export, and is expected to further aggravate 3½ years of economic troubles.

Mexico has a $96 (b) billion debt, which it has been having trouble repaying since early 1982, when oil prices started sagging. Income from oil last year made up for nearly three-fourths of Mexico's export earnings.

An announcement by PEMEX, the state petroleum monopoly, said the price of Maya heavy-crude was reduced from $25.50 to $24.00 a barrel. PEMEX sources, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said the cut is retroactive to June 1.

These and other industry sources here said there would be no immediate change in the price of the light-type Isthmus, at least until July 5, when the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries meet to further assess the world market.

But, the sources said, there may also be a need to cut the price of Isthmus, which was lowered from $29 to $27.75 a barrel in February after remaining unchanged since February 1983.

Mexico's price cut follows a warning by oil minister Sheik Ahmed Zaki Yamani of Saudi Arabia, a leading OPEC member, that prices may drop sharply if the organization cannot police itself.

Yamani was quoted as saying that unless OPEC members started complying with the cartel's price and production limits, oil prices could drop below $20 a barrel, a level last seen in 1979.

OPEC produced an estimated 14.5 million barrels daily in May, and the cartel's average official price is currently $28.09 a barrel.

Mexico produces 2.75 million barrels a day and exports an average of 1.5 million barrels daily, about 46 percent of it to the United States. Maya makes up 54 percent of current exports and Isthmus 46 percent.

This makes Mexico the world's fourth largest producer and exporter of oil. The country is not an OPEC member but up to now generally followed OPEC guidelines in pricing its oil for export.

President Miguel de la Madrid's administration has been trying to diversify its exports, but oil is still by far the nation's leading source of revenue.
