Hijackers free all but 50 Americans aboard TWA jet

ALGIERS, Algeria (AP) — Arab hijackers who seized a TWA jet and killed one man flew back to Algiers Saturday and freed all aboard except about 50 Americans, officials said.

The sky pirates also set a new deadline for meeting their principal demand, the release of Arab prisoners held by Israel.

If Israel does not free 700 prisoners by 9 a.m. GMT Sunday (5 a.m. EDT) the hijackers told Algerian negotiators they would "leave Algiers for another destination and the price will be paid," the official Algerian news agency reported.

It said the gunmen did not specify what action they would take.

There were conflicting reports about the number of hijackers and the number of hostages still on the Boeing 727, which was commandeered Friday with 153 people aboard after taking off from Athens, Greece, en route to Rome.

David Venz, a TWA spokesman in New York City, said there were more than 12 hijackers on the jetliner. The U.S. ambassador in Algiers, Michael H. Newlin, said he thought there were four. Earlier, it was believed there were only two.

One of the passengers freed in Algiers, Christine Cooke, from Boston, Mass., said that on the second stop in Beirut, "about six more guys (hijackers) ran onto the plane. They were heavily armed."

Venz also said there were 43 people still held aboard the plane, all believed to be American men. But another TWA spokesman in New York, Sally McElwreath, said: "The numbers are very tricky, but according to my count there should be 49 passengers and three crew, plus the hijackers."

And in Washington, State Department spokesman Tom Krajeski said it was believed the hijackers still hold 51 or 52 hostages, including three crewmen.

The hijackers said in a communique reiterating their demands, carried by the Algerian news agency, that they still held "about 40" captives.

The hijackers freed 53 passengers, mostly women and the elderly, and the five female flight attendants in Algiers after Greek authorities released an accomplice of the air pirates.

About an hour later, the hijackers freed 10 male captives, who were taken by bus to a VIP lounge at Houari Boumediene airport.

"It was terrible. It was the most terrifying experience I ever had," said Penny Bamford, 34, from Hanover, Pa. She said the hijackers "were a little nervous but also also kind to us. They fed us and gave us water but sometimes they kind of shoved us with their guns."

The plane was forced to land in Algiers for the second time in 24 hours Saturday morning.

Before the flight left Beirut the second time the hijackers killed a male passenger and dumped his body onto the tarmac, apparently to convince the control tower they were serious about their demands, which included refueling the plane.

The hijackers said he was a U.S. Marine, but no American official has confirmed that. "We haven't got the body yet. We don't know," said a State Department official, who asked not to be identified.

In Beirut, the Christian Voice of Lebanon radio station said the victim was 25 and his last name was Brown. But hospital sources said there were no identifying papers on the body.

The State Department said there initially were 122 Americans on the plane, TWA Flight 847, including eight crew members.

Compromises made on airport contract

By CATHY SPAULDING
Staff Writer

Gray County Commissioners and the private operators of the Perry Lefors Airport reached some compromises on their airport operations contract, which expires July 1.

The commissioners met with Pampa Aircraft owners, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Devore, Friday at their regular meeting.

Pampa Aircraft has operated the airport since April 1983. The "fixed base operator" assumed the airport operation in the middle of the current contract. In May, County Judge Carl Kennedy said the contract should be amended to better reflect a "landlord-tenant" relationship between the county and Pampa Aircraft.

At an earlier meeting, commissioners considered amending the contract to charge $150 per month rent and a fuel charge of five cents per each gallon sold by the operators. They also pondered shortening the length of the lease from five years to two years.

But the DeVores told the commissioners Friday that the five cent charge was too steep and the two year lease was not long enough. Henry Veech, chairman of the Gray County Airport Board, agreed that the two year contract was also not long enough.

Precinct 2 Commissioner Ronnie Rice suggested shortening the contract to three years instead of two years, while Precinct 1 Commissioner O.L. Presley, agreeing with the DeVores that the five year contract was adequate, asked if a four-year contract would be an acceptable compromise.

The DeVores agreed.

The couple also suggested charging a two cent per gallon fuel charge, perhaps raising it to five cents "if business improves." Commissioners countered with a rate of 2½ cents per gallon fuel charge.

The DeVores told commissioners they had no dispute with an amendment asking the private owners to pay the heating and utility costs.

The commissioners are expected to iron out final details of the contract and sign it at their next meeting July 1.

In other business, Pampa businesswoman Ruth Osborne offered to distribute U.S. Department of Agriculture food commodities at her lumber yard June 19.

The USDA commodities — usually butter, cheese, dry milk and flour — have been distributed at the Salvation Army until the SA board decided to withdraw from the program that had grown too large for it to handle.

"We were serving over 2,100 people per month," Salvation Army Secretary Maggie Ivey said Saturday. "We've had well over 1,000 in our files, although not all of them came each month."

The Salvation Army's withdrawal left Gray County, the agency responsible for local distribution, without a dispensary.

"If we don't find one, they'll take the program away," Osborne said, offering the use of the barn at the Pampa Lumber Yard as a dispensary "until we find someone else to do it."

Kennedy said that some community action organizations have expressed an interest in commodity distribution.

"We've had some conversation with the Red Cross and the Altrusa Club about it," Kennedy said.

In other business, commissioners tabled action on a request for a $1,000 contribution to the Texas Panhandle Community Action's Panhandle Transit program providing transportation for low income residents. Kennedy said commissioners need more information on the proposal.

County Clerk Wanda Carter serves on the TPCA board, Kennedy said, adding that he will talk with her about it.

Commissioners also:

- agreed on an airport hangar lease transfer from Diamond Flying Service to Texwell Oil and Gas Co.
- accepted a bid of $12,660 from Pemco of Oklahoma City for mineral rights in Gaines County School Lands.
- appointed Roy Sparkman to the Panhandle Regional Housing Finance Corp.
- appointed I.W. Tinney, Milo Carlson and Dudley Steele to the Appraisal Review Board.
- tabled a decision on an elevator maintenance agreement for the White Deer Land Museum.

Budgetary aspects of session discussed by Whaley

By LARRY HOLLIS
Staff Writer

Rep. Foster Whaley of Pampa discussed his observations of the recently concluded legislative session during a joint luncheon Friday of the Downtown Kiwanis Club and the Pampa Chamber of Commerce.

Hitting a varied number of topics, Rep. Whaley emphasized the budgetary aspects of many of the Legislature's decisions. Whaley is in his third term as a member of the House Appropriations Committee.

Whaley said some of the Legislature members were told at the beginning of the session that there would be a tax raise and they might as well face it.

But though there were increases in fees and tuitions, with some charges made that they were only taxes under other names, a general tax hike was avoided, Whaley said.

Whaley observed that many Republicans called the measures "revenue enhancement," while Democrats called them taxes just under a different name.

As a member of the Appropriations Committee, Whaley said he worked to make budget cuts. The budget proposals were developed by a number of committees, "a massive project," he said. "Our task was really a big one, to cut that thing down" and help eliminate a $1.3 billion deficit in state funds.

Additional revenue was obtained from the increased fees and college tuition, he said, "most of them user fees."

Whaley supported the tripling of tuition charges for state colleges from $4 per credit hour to $12, a price change that "should have been adjusted years ago," he claimed. Despite the increase, state tuition is still one of the lowest in the nation, he said.

He claimed many out-of-state students had been moving to Texas, living here for one year to get residency and then attending college to avoid the higher tuition rates of other states. The recently enacted tuition hike should eliminate much of that, he said.

Whaley said the tuition hike was justified — "those that dance pay the fiddler," he quoted. College graduates generally earn more than non-college employees, he said, and it's only right that they should pay more for that privilege, he said.

Whaley also supported increased court fees. "I see nothing wrong with charging the people who use the courts," he said, though noting some exemptions had been made in some areas of the court system.

He noted the price for auto inspection stickers had gone up, with much of the increase going into a retirement fund for public employees. "And I think that's very good," he said.

The four-term legislator also upheld the action leading to the repeal of the Blue Law, supporting claims it will raise $40 million more in state revenues, much of it going toward care for the indigent. He said he could support the action since it allowed for employees to observe time for worship and could not require an employee to work seven days a week unless he was willing to do so.

On other matters, Whaley said he thought it was "an excellent idea" for drivers and passengers to buckle up their seatbelts. But that should be left to their prerogative, he said, adding he had done everything he could to prevent the mandatory seatbelt law.

Whaley said the elimination of the Health Facilities Commission was "one great success we had... we rubbed it out."

Too often the HFC had awarded hospitals and other medical facilities to communities and counties which had the best lawyers and spent the most money. Areas should determine whether they need the facilities without the state awarding them by decisions that were not always fair, he said.

Whaley claimed an earlier indigent care bill "would have wrecked counties in our district," requiring them to fully take care of the indigent care costs. And the bill never defined exactly what an indigent patient was, he said.

The new bill limits counties' liability for indigent care costs, with the state participating in the costs to a large extent, he said.

A conservative coalition attempted to take all liability off the counties and tried to offer amendments to "make it a better bill," Whaley said, but lost. He said he liked the idea of the bill but felt it could have been better.

"The conservative caucus" composed of both Democrats and Republicans "is growing," he said, offering "some ray of hope" and expectations of changes in the leadership and programs of the state Legislature over the next several years.

While a school discipline bill is "very good," Whaley expressed reservations about the House Bill 72 education reforms passed last summer in special session. "In fact, it could use major surgery, in my opinion," he said, though he had succeeded in making some changes in the appropriations for it.

Discussing a hazardous waste bill that will require funds from businesses and industries, Whaley said the original bill would have taxed the Pampa Celanese Chemical Co.'s plant "in the millions." But the new bill has greatly decreased the costs, with the charges being part of the so-called user fees increases. "It will not be tough at all," he claimed.

Before giving his luncheon address, Whaley presented Pampa News publisher Louise Fletcher with a copy of a resolution he had had passed in the House on her behalf.

The resolution notes she had been named Pampa's woman of the year by Beta Sigma Phi and praises her for being "an exceptional woman" and "a remarkable individual... a concerned private citizen" involved in civic activities and "countless contributions... to the betterment of her community."

Whaley said he had also had a resolution passed on the behalf of John Rogers, retiring District 10 director for the Texas Railroad Commission office here.

Expert: Star Wars system could block third-world war

HOUSTON (AP) — A "Star Wars" defense system implemented by the United States might allow this country to block Third World nations from firing nuclear-armed missiles at each other, a Rice University laser expert says.

"The U.S. would be in position to compel abandonment of plans for nuclear attacks anywhere in the world," said Tittel, an advocate of the defense system.

SLOW PROCESS — United Airline passengers line up for seat selection on one of the seven United flights leaving Los Angeles International Airport Saturday. Even though the striking United Airlines pilots reached a settlement in the 29-day strike against the airline late Friday night, it will take weeks before United's buildup of flights reaches pre-strike levels.

Dance to benefit community building fund

With the addition of three new musicians to strengthen their performances, the Clyde Logg Band of Amarillo will be performing Saturday at a benefit dance for the current community building project fundraising efforts.

The dance will be held from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. in the Heritage Room at M. K. Brown Auditorium.

Proceeds will go toward the community building project being conducted by the Pampa Chamber of Commerce Foundation, Inc., to provide facilities for various non-profit organizations and for use by civic clubs and city residents for meetings, receptions, small conventions and other activities.

The Clyde Logg Band is celebrating 10 years of playing in the Tri-State area, offering a variety of music from country-western to rock.

The band has shared the stage with such recording artists as Pure Prairie League, Gary Morris, Michael Murphey, Hoyt Axton, Head East and others.

New members joining the group are Mike Hardwick, Rick Simms and Charlie Clinton.

Hardwick has played three and a half years with Jerry Jeff Walker. He plays steel guitar, slide guitar and lead guitar.

Playing piano and synthesizer is Clinton. Also a strong vocalist, he has brought new sounds to the band.

Simms joins Max Albers as the foundation and beat for the band with drums and bass. Albers and Simms also sing lead and harmony vocals.

Remaining members of the group are Mark Bowers, fiddle and vocals; Richard Denny, rhythm guitar and vocals; and Gary Guinn, a "jack-of-all-trades" through guitar, bass, banjo, harmonica, drums and lead and harmony vocals.

The seven-member band has played in Pampa numerous times in the past, developing a local following.

Admission will be $15 per couple or $10 for a single person. The tickets may be purchased at Pampa Feed and Seed, the National Bank of Commerce and the Pampa Chamber of Commerce office. Tickets also may be purchased at the door Saturday night.

Set-ups will be provided at the dance.

City pool hours extended

The M. K. Brown Municipal Pool has extended hours Monday and Tuesday nights for families and senior citizens.

The pool will open from 7 to 9 p.m. Mondays for family night. At least one parent and one child will constitute a family for the special swimming period, according to Jackie Harper, recreation coordinator for the Parks and Recreation Department.

Tuesdays from 7 to 9 p.m. will be set aside for use by senior citizens, Harper said.

Harper said the two periods had been added in response to a number of requests from residents.

Regular hours for the pool through July 19 are 1 to 6 p.m. seven days a week. After July 19, the pool will be open from 1 to 7 p.m. Monday through Saturday and 1 to 6 p.m. Sunday.

Admission charge is $1. Children 5 years of age and under will be admitted free accompanied by a suited adult.

The pool also is available for rental by groups, Harper said. Persons wanting further information may contact her at the PARD office, 665-0909.

Awards remember Thoms

Awards in memory of the late Bryon Thoms of White Deer were to be presented during the 1985 National Junior Santa Gertrudis Heifer Show in Tulsa, which concluded this weekend.

The first annual Byron Thomas High Point Individual awards were to be presented to the leading junior and senior participants in the Tulsa competition.

The memorial awards were made possible through donations from friends of Thoms from across the state and area. Their presentation will be an annual event, made possible by a continuing fund established for that purpose.

Thoms, who was killed in an industrial accident early in 1984, was one of the first Santa Gertrudis breeders in the Texas Panhandle. He was also an ardent supporter of 4-H and FFA activities.

He was a 1968 graduate of White Deer High School and graduated from Texas Tech in 1975. He taught school in Allison until 1979 when he returned to White Deer.

The awards at the national show were made possible through memorial contributions made through the Santa Gertrudis Breeder International.

Also, Thoms' friends established a scholarship fund that is presented annually to a White Deer graduating senior.

4 choir members win several honors

Four members of the Pampa High School Concert Choir won several honors in the recent University Interscholastic League state solo and ensemble contest held in Austin.

Stacy Bennett won a first division ratings performing "Se Tu Ma'Mi," an Italian Aria.

The trio of Mary Cross, Juline Hamilito and Beth Reddell won a second division.

Third divisions were won by Beth Reddell and Mary Cross.

In order to qualify for the contest, the singers were required to win first divisions at the regional level.

Singers and instrumentalists from all over the state competed in the contest. Less than four percent of those participating were awarded first division ratings.

Accompanist for the Pampa soloist was Jennifer Scoggin. Sponsor for the trip was Fred Mays.

Local woman on Keep Texas Beautiful advisory board

By LARRY HOLLIS
Staff Writer

Betty Henderson, trustee of Clean Pampa, Inc., was recently elected a new member of the advisory board for Keep Texas Beautiful, Inc., during the organization's 18th annual meeting in San Antonio.

Henderson and Jo Potter, Clean Pampa coordinator, attended the leadership training meeting June 5-7, joining others from throughout the state in discussing campaigns against littering problems in the state.

Henderson is the only member of the advisory board from the Panhandle area, with the other nearest board members being from Lubbock, Abilene and Midland in the West Texas regions.

The members formally adopted the Keep Texas Beautiful, Inc., name at the meeting in accord with its affiliation with Keep America Beautiful, Inc. The organization was formerly called the Beautify Texas Council, Potter explained.

Texas is the ninth of 10 states to be certified by the national organization. New Mexico, which joined shortly after Texas, is the 10th KAB state. There are more than 40 KAB certified cities in Texas, including Pampa, Potter noted.

The State Highways and Public Transportation Commission has set aside at least $4 million to fund a litter reduction program and provide a more comprehensive approach to Texas' litter related challenges.

The funding will include a $2 million media campaign, a $1 million beefed up enforcement of the state's litter laws, $700,000 in highway landscape funding to the 1986 winning cities of the Governor's Community Achievement Awards, and $300,000 operating funds enabling KTB to work in partnership with the state department.

Henderson said the state is now spending $20 million annually for litter pickup along state highway rights-of-way, with the amounts of litter growing 17 to 20 percent annually.

The State Highway Department has stated it's impossible to pay enough people to keep the litter picked up, Henderson said. It's adopting KAB's view that the best method to fight against litter is to change people's attitudes toward the problem, she said.

The newly allocated funds will be spent on enforcement of state anti-litter laws, providing money to aid local community police units to patrol more to catch litterers and to increase the number of citations and convictions under the state laws, Henderson said.

The state department is aiming initially at a 25 percent reduction of litter along state highways, she said.

Cities receiving the Governor's Community Achievement Awards will get allocations, based on population size, to help with anti-litter programs.

Pampa, if it wins one of the awards, could get an allocation of $50,000, Henderson noted.

Though the money would go to the cities, the local KTB units would have a say in how the money is spent to combat littering, Potter explained.

"The state, and maybe cities, too, have made it too easy for people to get away with littering," Henderson said. The state and city governments have not been making its citizens aware of their responsibilities in regard to observing anti-litter laws, she claimed.

The KTB also will be putting more emphasis on its public school program, "Waste in Place," Henderson said. The state organization will be making efforts to get the program adopted for use in 50 percent of the elementary schools in the state within the next three years, working with the State Board of Education and public school administrators.

The annual meeting featured leadership training sessions to give volunteers structured training, information on training others, ideas on developing community projects and ways for improving the organizations' images, Potter said.

The KTB members discussed a Scope of Work program for use in 1985-1986, Henderson said.

Goals include implementing more KTB programs in other communities, improving the quality of existing programs, increasing voluntary community recycling activities, gaining more publicity for the organization and its programs and assisting the State Highway Department in better enforcement of anti-litter laws.

The KTB members also plan better education programs to inform the public and make it more aware of the problems of littering, including involving more youth in activities and projects.

Clean Pampa will be considering the possibility of seeking community awards for its activities, Potter said.

Honored at the meeting in San Antonio was "O. P." and Lillian Schnabel. Schnabel, 88, a San Antonio resident, has been instrumental in promoting anti-litter programs for at least 35 years, Potter said.

"O. P." stands for "Old Pushbroom." Though a millionaire, he would take a cart and a pushbroom and stroll along streets, cleaning up the litter. Becoming a familiar sight to many San Antonio residents, he gained the designation "O. P."

He drives around in a Cadillac now and will still stop on a street to pick up trash someone else has carelessly tossed out, Henderson said.

The organization has adopted some of his sayings for bumper stickers and other materials, including "Nice people don't litter" and "Litter bugs me."

The man's been an example to many people, the two women said.

Mattox suspicious of DPS investigation by Waco D.A.

WACO, Texas (AP) — The district attorney who headed an investigation into how the Texas Rangers handled the Henry Lee Lucas cases is now the target of an investigation himself, said Attorney Jim Mattox.

Mattox said he was concerned that the Texas Department of Public Safety investigation into McClellan County District Attorney Vic Feazell was sparked by Feazell's grand jury probe of the Ranger task force.

"The timing looks somewhat suspect," Mattox told the Dallas Morning News.

A McClellan County grand jury has been looking into allegations that the special Ranger task force provided Lucas with information he later used to make hundreds of murder confessions. Lucas later recanted the confessions.

Mattox said Friday that the grand jury found no evidence of "inappropriate or illegal" conduct on the part of the task force.

He also said the DPS investigation of Feazell "went into high gear after this Lucas thing started."

The Rangers are an elite corp of the DPS.

Col. Jim Adams, head of the DPS, has refused to either confirm or deny the Feazell investigation.

"I've said in the past that I would be deeply concerned if there was any type of retaliatory investigation taking place," Mattox said.

Mattox said the DPS is investigating Feazell's handling of drunken driving cases in McLennan County. He also said the probe "covers quite a bit more" but refused to elaborate.

Feazell said Friday night that he is the victim of a "smear campaign" initiated by the DPS and federal authorities.

Television station WFAA in Dallas said that it had learned the FBI was probing Feazell and "a half-dozen defense attorneys in Waco, looking into how they handle DWI cases."

It said the federal investigation centers on reports that suspects charged with drunken driving got cases dropped after paying "about $3,000 to any one of a handful of Waco defense lawyers."

White calls off bill signings

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Mark White Saturday put off until Father's Day his final decision on the state's first mandatory seat belt law, tripled college tuition increases and a $37.2 billion measure to finance state government in 1986-87.

The approximately 50 remaining bills passed by the 1985 Legislature will be signed or vetoed Sunday, White's office said. Sunday midnight is the deadline for White to act, or the measures become law without his signature.

"It's not a matter of dissension," said White spokeswoman Janis Monger. "It's merely a matter of him and the aides wanting to take a second look at these measures to be sure everything will be all right."

Ms. Monger said there would be some vetoes Sunday.

Most attention is now focused on what the governor's staff calls the "big three" bills, which include:

— The two-year general appropriations proposal, which must be signed into law before the state can start its new fiscal period on Sept. 1. Comptroller Bob Bullock has already said revenue is in sight to cover the $37.2 billion from all sources, including federal grants. It includes a 3 percent a year employees' pay raise. White has said he will sign the bill although there could be some vetoes of specific appropriations.

— A measure that would provide penalties of $25 to $50 for anyone in the front seat of a car or pickup caught not wearing a seat belt. Recent statistics show only 15 percent of Texas motorists wear seat belts. The law would be effective Sept. 1 but no fines would be levied until Dec. 1. Although White has refused to declare himself on the bill, he has said repeatedly he wished it could be voluntary.

— A bill that triples state college tuition fees for students living in Texas, from $4 a semester hour to $12. Another $4 would be added the second year. Tuition for out-of-state students also would be tripled, from $40 per semester hour to $120. The $285 million revenue from the bill is needed to finance the state spending bill. White has said he will sign it.

Murder case missing corpse, officials say

HOUSTON (AP) — Prosecutors say they have almost everything they need to charge an ex-convict with murder — except the victim's body.

Terry Wilson, prosecutor in charge of the Harris County District Attorney's major offenders office, said Friday he and police believe Joyce Lomas, 39, a Joske's department store clerk, is dead.

"We have reason to believe she has been killed and the body may have been burned on Pelican Island or Bolivar Peninsula," both in Galveston County, Wilson said.

Wilson and other law enforcement officials are hoping to locate two or three people who they believe drove by in a pickup truck while the 34-year-old ex-convict was burning Ms. Lomas' body on May 18 or early the next day.

Police Sgt. Dave Collier said an informant has told officers the suspect said he nearly got caught when the passers-by stopped to ask what was going on.

"He's supposed to have disguised his voice, using a Spanish accent, and said, 'What's wrong with burning some trash?'" Collier said.

The passersby apparently drove off, not realizing anything was wrong, Collier said. Police want to find out where to look for the body by learning where the fire was, he said.

The man suspected of killing Ms. Lomas was convicted of attempted murder in 1974 and sentenced to 12 years in prison, Collier said.

The suspect's girlfriend, Moryn Kraft, 23, was charged Friday with credit card abuse for allegedly using Ms. Lomas' name and credit card to fly to San Francisco on May 19.

Prosecutors said the suspect made Ms. Kraft call him because he believed his phone was being tapped by police.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Public helps pay for seal hunting

Did you know that the U.S. government is a signatory to a treaty that requires taxpayers to finance the slaughter of seals off Alaska? The treaty is up for renewal in the Senate on July 8. At the very least is should be reviewed skeptically. Better yet would be to reject it.

The Interim Convention of the Conservation of North Pacific Fur Seals began in 1911 with the ostensible purpose of protecting seals from open-sea hunting and eventual extinction. Sound laudable, but what it means in practice is that the United States and the Soviet Union each July hunt down 2-to-3 year old male seals of "bachelors." Last July about 22,000 were killed.

One may argue that this is effective game management, contributing to the well-being of the seal population as a whole by "thinning" the herd and keeping an optimum balance.

However, the Humane Society of the United States points out that the seal population left on the Pribilof Islands where the U.S. hunt is conducted has declined by 60 percent since 1957. Each year the numbers drop by 6 percent to 10 percent. This seems like a strange way to prevent extinction.

The Commerce Department argues that the hunt is important to the economic well-being of Aleut natives. Some facts suggest otherwise. Congress established a $20 million trust fund in 1983 to enable the Aleuts to become more self-sufficient. Between 1979 and 1984 the U.S. government spent more than $60 million on the Aleuts.

Such spending does tend to induce government dependency on the part of the Aleuts, and if the seal hunt made economic sense, it might be a sensible alternative to such programs. However, selling the seal pelts brings in less money than it costs the government to hunt the seals in the first place. Perhaps that wouldn't be the case if the hunt were a private-sector operation, but as long as the treaty is in force it is required to be a government operation.

The administration approved the renewal of this treaty last October, which would mean seal hunts for the next four years. The Senate must ratify the treaty, which is scheduled to consider in July.

At a time when politicians claim to be looking for ways to reduce spending, this treaty looks like a good candidate. Not only does the hunt appear to be depleting rather than conserving the seal herd, but it is also economically questionable (something the private sector left to itself probably would not do) and costs taxpayers money.

Walter Williams

Not perfect, but it's better

The president has put the power and prestige of his office behind tax reform. But tax reform is not what's needed. Instead we must eliminate our present tax code and replace it with one that's rational, unbiased, and, above all, constitutional. Our present federal tax code has all the characteristics of having been put together, if not by an enemy, an insane person.

A much more polite discussion of the insanity of our current tax system is presented in a new book, ASSESSING TAX REFORM, by Henry Aaron and Harvey Galper, senior economists at the Brookings Institute in Washington, D.C.

In highlighting one insanity, Aaron and Galper point out that the effective tax rate on a broad category of investments ranges from 91.2 percent to a minus-21.5 percent, depending on the type of investment, source of funds, method of finance, and tax status of the owner. This produces enormous economic distortions and social costs. Suppose investment A's yield is taxed at 80 percent, B's at 40 percent, and investment C is tax-free. If investment C pays the investor six cents a year on the dollar, what must be the return on investments A and B to make them equally attractive? Investment B would have to earn ten cents on the dollar to equal C (a 40 percent tax on ten cents leaves six cents). And investment A would have to earn thirty cents on the dollar to equal investment C (an 80 percent tax on thirty cents leaves six cents).

Clearly, a prudent investor would not invest in A if it paid only twenty-nine cents on the dollar; his AFTER-tax income would be higher by investing in C. Therefore, when tax rules cause investors to give up an investment paying a 29 percent return in favor of one paying a 6 percent return, the economy sacrifices a 23 percent potential gain. For growth and prosperity, we don't REFORM such a tax rule, we get rid of it.

Aaron and Galper cite many other examples of tax lunacy that result from Congress' using deductions and credits to play favorites with various clout-yielding special-interest groups. But the most useful part of ASSESSING TAX REFORM are the principles laid out for an ideal tax system. The three most important principles are that people with equal incomes should pay equal taxes, that taxes should distort economic choices as little as possible, and tax laws should be easy to understand, obey, and enforce.

Our current tax system violates all these principles through ever-growing exemptions, deductions, and credits. Income from capital gains is treated differently than income from wages or savings. Our tax system penalizes people who save, and rewards those who consume their income as they earn it. The system gets bogged down with more and more tax preferences. After all how can Congress deny one clout-yielding group a miracle it has given to another.

Because congressmen are elected on their promise to give one American a privilege denied another, we probably will never have an ideal tax system. So, faced with this political reality, the president's proposal, with a few important modifications, is our best hope. Even that requires a commitment from taxpayers to give up their many special privileges so the nation as a whole, and we as individuals, can be more prosperous.

ASSESSING TAX REFORM is a fine guide and must reading to help understand just what's at stake and what are the alternatives. Aaron and Galper have done a commendable job.

Today in History

Today is Sunday, June 16, the 167th day of 1985. There are 198 days left in the year. This is Father's Day.

Today's highlight in history: On June 16, 1963, the world's first female space traveler — cosmonaut Valentina Tereshkova — was launched into orbit by the Soviet Union.

On this date: Ten years ago: The U.S. Supreme Court unanimously banned the uniform minimum legal fees that many lawyers charged homebuyers for real estate transfers, ruling the fees violated antitrust laws.

Five years ago: By a 5-4 vote, the U.S. Supreme Court decided that new biological organisms created in the laboratory could be patented under federal law.

One year ago: Canada's Liberal Party chose John N. Turner to be its new leader to succeed the retiring Pierre Elliot Trudeau. Turner would become Prime Minister on June 30, but lose the job more than two months later to Conservative Brian Mulroney.

Today's birthdays: Washington Post publisher Katharine Graham is 68. Author Erich Segal is 48. Author Joyce Carol Oates is 47. Actress Joan Van Ark is 42.

They got the point across

An Atlanta father whose daughter is graduating from high school this year called and asked, "Do you know what's going on with senior proms?"

"I confessed I didn't. The last time I thought about a senior prom was 21 years ago."

"A lot of things have changed since you and I were that age," the father said. "I asked for specifics."

"First, you wouldn't believe how much some girls are paying for the dresses to wear to their proms. My daughter has classmates who are spending up to $300 and $400."

"Most of the boys rent their formal, but they still have to buy their dates flowers, and many parents fork over the money to their sons to rent limousines."

"Kids today are taking limos to their senior proms?"

"It's because of all this concern about drunk driving. Parents had rather rent their kids a limo and not have to worry about them being in a wreck or getting thrown in jail for driving under the influence."

I said that sounded like sound thinking to me, but why didn't they simply drive their kids to the prom and then pick them up when it is over, thus solving the drunk-driving thing and saving the money they would have to spend on a limo?"

"I asked my own daughter the same thing," the father replied, "and she said any kid whose parents drove them to the prom would be the laughingstock of the school."

It's been a long time and I suppose I have forgotten how tough peer pressure can be on a teen-ager.

"You haven't heard it all," the father said. "I know one group of parents who chartered a bus for their kids and put a bar and bartender on the bus so the kids could ride from party to party without having to worry about getting stopped by the cops."

"A lot of proms are at hotels. Some parents are even renting hotel rooms for their kids, so they won't be out driving drunk."

"The hotels make parents come down and pay in advance and give permission for their children to stay in the rooms."

"I'm sure the parents know that their kids wind up sleeping with their dates, but again they say it's better to have them in bed with their dates than in a car with them."

I asked the man if he allowed his daughter to take part in any of this.

"No," he said, "and she says she'll never speak to me again."

What appears to be happening here is today's high school students are no dummies and they are holding the drunk-driving hysteria over their parents' heads in order to get to do a lot of fun things like riding in limos and shacking up with their dates.

I'm not a parent so don't look for any answers from me, but I do know what my own mother would have said to me if I had said to her: "Mom, I need money for a limo to the senior prom and for a hotel room or else I might get drunk and drive."

She would have said, "Have your butt home at a decent hour and if I find out you've been drinking, I'll tan your hide."

Parents apparently were better at explaining things back then than they are today.

Freedom and politics simply don't mix

BY ROBERT LEFEVRE

I am continually appalled at the workings of the political mind. Political liberals, so-called, wish to be generous with the unfortunate. But since they are frequently penurious when it comes to giving of their own, they wish to be generous with other people's money. Hence, they are constantly posing as Mr. Gotrocks by promising to loot the rest of society for the benefit of the halt, the lame and the malingering.

Unhappily, political conservatives, so-called, are no better. Professing to believe in the sanctity of private property, they do not believe that a person's person or behavior belong to him. They will roar with rage if anyone proposes to take their money for any purpose: but they will champion any number of new laws which are aimed at the behavior of any who disagree.

In the long and ugly sway of the political liberals which began to be phased out with the advent of Reagan, the American government became little more than a gang of thieves. Politicos loved to posture and strut, pretending to be rich Uncle Whoosit by periodic forays against workers and owners in the realm of grand theft.

Now, under the equally un-beautiful dictates of the Reagan gang, a great many serious inroads against personal freedom are already in the books or slated for early insertion.

Among the items I refer to are: The military draft, laws requiring the use of seat belts; (possibly the new and highly debatable air cushion); laws to control smokers; laws to control women in their pregnancies; laws to control access to public areas, etc. etc.

Whether a political liberal or a political conservative is in power, you can anticipate that laws AGAINST freedom will be enacted. Both major parties are and always have been, enemies of the concepts on which this country was founded.

Let us consider the nature of freedom. It manifests at three levels: mental, material and moral. When a person is mentally free, he is free to think and believe as he wishes. He can accept the trivial or the profound, or both. He can believe the logical, the illogical or the non-logical. He can practice the religion of his choice or abandon religion altogether. He can favor clothing of his own choice, can select special kinds of food, prefer the company of some to others, and make whatever choices he cares to make.

If we examine mental freedom closely we will discover something which may be shocking to some. In this arena, government is virtually powerless. While the government can ban certain kinds and types of information (and does so) it cannot prevent any individual from believing whatever he wishes to believe about what he does know.

Under threats of violence, confiscation, confinement or death, the government may cause a person to publicly state a falsehood, or take a position for the benefit of others, which, lacking the duress, the individual would not take. The point is that threats do NOT cause opinions to change. Threats may cause STATEMENTS about opinions to change.

Thus, in a very real sense, we are all of us mentally free regardless of the wishes of politicians. We may genuflect and pucker-up when we think there is a subsidy to be had or a benefit to be gained. We are far more likely to take such a pose to escape punishment of some kind.

Letters to the editor

Royalty owners should act now

To the editor,
If there was ever a time for royalty owners to take immediate action, the time is now.

As a royalty owner, my sister, Wilma Jeanne Gilmore, and I have protested two gas wells that do not have separators on them. Rule 26 of the RRC states that all gas wells in Texas must have a separator of sufficient capability to separate liquids and gas in order to measure the liquids accurately on the premises.

Monday, June 11, 1985, the Natural Gas Pipeline Co. of America allowed us to put a "separator" on their well for a 30-day test period. When we arrived at the location, the officials of NGPL had already removed a "drip pot" at the well head and blown the line; consequently no liquids were in the "pot". The RRC representatives were not present when the drip was blown and could have cared less that it had been blown prior to any witnesses' arrival on location.

We then requested the well be shut in and the drip blown at the meter house just prior to entering the meter. To the surprise of everyone, 5 gallons of liquid was removed from a 1.46 gallon drip. The drips were locked and it was ordered that a recheck of the wells be done in 24 hours. On the 12th of June, they were checked again, and the drip pot at the well head that was setting above ground in the middle of June collected approximately a pint of liquid. The pot at the meter house had collected another five gallons of liquid.

The RRC has refused to call the drip pot more than a scrubber and allow it to be used as a separator. There is already a ruling that a drip pot is not a separator yet we got liquid anyway. The word "scrubber" was used in the RRC report when most people know a scrubber is only found on an oil well, not a gas well.

These gas companies tell us these are dry gas wells and they make no significant liquids. One gallon of liquid represents 110,000 BTU of gas. In 24 hours, we drew enough liquid from a well to equal over a million BTU of gas.

As a royalty owner, we have never been paid for the condensate on these wells, when our lease contract says we are to be paid 1/4 royalties of all production at the well head. This well was drilled in 1936, so there has been an untold amount of liquid condensate stolen from us.

Dorchester had refused to even answer our demand for a separator on their well. Also, we have good pictures and soil samples of an oil spill at the Dorchester well head. Now why would oil be spilled at the well head of a dry gas well?

We have also requested NGPL and Dorchester to allow us to bale their wells at our own expense. So far, we are getting the runaround from the RRC on one well and Dorchester won't answer at all. What do they have to hide? If these are truly dry gas wells, it will be shown; but it would be rather embarrassing if crude oil were baled out of these wells.

Any royalty owner that cares enough to get involved, we will be glad to show you the law and all of the evidence we have. Incidentally, it will cost you nothing. No need for a lawyer and nothing to join.

Today, as I write this letter, it was announced that FERC has cancelled its meeting against Stowers for Friday the 14th of June. It is also funny that these hearings were cancelled within hours after Ron Slover presented our evidence and his against the majors to FERC.

Ron Slover is working his heart out for the royalty owners, and if we will wake up and listen, the royalty owners will get what has been stolen from us and this mess will be straightened out once and for all. The first question FERC asked Ron Slover after seeing his evidence was, what are the royalty owners going to do about this. The royalty owners are the ones that actually own all of this gas and oil in the Panhandle and FERC, the RRC, the majors, and the independents know it. Also, until now they couldn't care less about a royalty owner.

It is way past time to get involved, or we will get just what we deserve, if we don't make a stand now and not let up until we receive justice.

I will be most happy to talk to any royalty owner and show what we have done and where to start.

Respectfully,
Harbord L. Cox, D.D.S.

Liability insurance law is a rip-off

Dear Editor:

Rules and regulations created by people who could care less about the hardship they put on the common man are draining our hard-earned money. Take for instance the auto-liability insurance. I am not against liability insurance, but the person driving the auto should be responsible, not the automobile. The insurance should be a personal liability or at least we should have our choice of insurance to help us afford protection. A man can only drive one auto at a time and could be protected if the law was fair.

If a family has only one car and three drivers the insurance could be bought for that car. Only one person at a time can drive anyway and the liability protection would be there.

In my case, I have an old truck I drive to work, an old car I love to drive around town, an old van I love to take my grandkids riding in on country roads to see the animals, and my wife has her own car.

Times are hard right now and I can't afford insurance for all this. Two years insurance would cost me more than I have invested in all the autos put together.

If I had a personal liability card (like a drivers license) I could be protected because no matter what car I chose to drive I can only drive one at a time.

If we are forced to have liability insurance, the insurance people should be ordered to accept every applicant and all at the same price, no matter what. The insurance companies created the bed, so let's all get together and make them sleep in it.

If what I hear is right, an unlawful thing has happened and some of our Texas lawmakers should be in jail for it.

Insurance companies get together and put up what is called pack money (bribe money) and the lawmakers make the new rules like the insurance companies want and divide and put in their pocket the pack money (bribe money).

This money doesn't go to the state or roads or schools, it goes in the pockets of ----s who could care less the hardship on the working man. The insurance money doesn't go to the state, it goes in the pockets of the insurance companies.

What would we do to a local policeman if he were caught taking bribe money? But we are sitting on our butts and this happens all the way to our federal government.

They even have a silly rule where they can check back records of trucking companies and any load that was moved in the past that was an overweight load merits a fine. If this can be done, why can't we have checked the bribe money accepted by our lawmakers and they be fined accordingly and made to give that much money to the state of Texas. Our teachers could get a raise with money left over to fix a few roads.

I think if anyone agrees with this article they should clip it out and send it to: State Senate, Capital Station, Austin, Texas, 78769

"WE CANNOT BUT SPEAK"

No preaching ever raised more opposition than the preaching of the apostles in those early days of the church. In Acts 4, Peter and John were taken into custody by the priests and captain of the temple. The high priest, Annas was there, and Caiaphas with all their kin folk, along with their enemies, the Sadducees. It seems everybody was upset by the preaching and teaching of the apostles. The Pharisees didn't like it because the apostles preached that Jesus was the Christ, the Son of God. The Sadducees didn't like it because they preached the resurrection of the dead. So it seems their preaching was not favorably received by any of the prominent religious groups of that day.

Peter's answer to their charge that the apostles not speak nor teach in the name of Jesus is classic in simplicity and clarity: "Whether it is right in the sight of God to hearken unto you rather than unto God, judge ye: for we cannot but speak the things which we saw and heard." (Acts 4:19.) They stood before the high council of the Jews and declared that no power on earth could keep them from speaking their convictions about Jesus Christ.

There are still a few preachers today who "cannot but speak" that which they believe to be the truth. They, like Paul said, "But having the same spirit of faith, according to that which is written, I believed, and therefore did I speak, we also believe and therefore also we speak;" (2 Corinthians 4:13.) The apostle Paul had the same spirit of faith which has characterized true followers of God down through the ages.

Shunning to declare the whole counsel of God may be the popular thing to do insofar as getting along with everybody is concerned, yet it simply amounts to preaching another gospel than that which Paul preached (cf. Galatians 1:6-10.) The complete gospel of Christ, the truth, is the only thing which will free people from their sins (Romans 1:16; John 8:32.)

But deep down we know what we believe and all that prancing and posturing is merely to impress the dummies who think they can control our minds. Be sure they would like to, whether liberal or conservative.

When it comes to material things, freedom is invariably in jeopardy. It is freedom of action which governments can effectively control. The government CAN physically take your money, irrespective of your wishes. That is to interfere with your freedom to act.

The government can force a person into the army against his will. It can compel women to go through an unwanted pregnancy or break the law, by making it illegal for any woman to have an abortion. The party being drafted is dragooned in the same manner British seamen were once forced to enlist in his majesty's navy. The government is able to destroy your freedom by so doing.

Any government can prevent you from reading or even looking at what you wish to examine, by banning or confiscating the offending item. It is now attempting to do this in respect to sexually explicit films or books. It has done so and tries constantly to do more of it.

The government can physically grab your money or your property. And unless you know how to run fast without leaving a trail, the government can grab you for failure to physically comply.

What is meant by moral freedom? Thanks to the actual inability of government to control our thinking the government is baffled and frightened about what you might have in your mind.

This means that the poet was correct when he pointed out that "strong locks do not a prison make; nor iron bars, a cage." Even though the government may constrain you in various physical ways and in respect to many material things, you can learn to spend your constructive hours in thinking what you please.

If the significance of this escapes, you might remember that were you physically at liberty to provide your own environment you might still find that your happiest and most exciting moments will come to you while considering ideas or while making plans, or while dreaming of places you wish to visit but may never see. In this sense, freedom has a spiritual quality which government cannot cancel or control unless it kills.

But there is another level in which the moral factor of freedom can be glimpsed. Freedom happens to be shaped like a kiss. You never receive it until you are in process of giving it. To be free does not mean that you escape the controls which some wish to impose on you, and that's all there is to it.

What is difficult to accept is the bleating of present day conservatives who are temporarily in power, that in all these matters wherein they act to destroy the freedom upon which this country was presumably founded, they claim they are being patriotic and doing what is "right."

LeFevre is a libertarian philosopher.

Texas crop scene is one of stark contrast

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — The Texas crop situation is one of stark contrast this week — some crops lost due to heavy rains and others suffering from not enough rain.

Heavy rains drenched much of the Panhandle and South and Rolling Plains last week, causing extensive damage to some mature wheat and young crops, said Dr. Zerie L. Carpenter, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. At the same time, farmers in some central, southern and coastal counties are concerned about their crops suffering from moisture stress. Most crops in these areas are in critical stages of growth, with cotton setting bolls and corn ears and sorghum grain heads filling out.

The heavy rains in the Plains and parts of Far West Texas, accompanied by scattered hail, caused heavy damage to young cotton in a number of counties. A lot of the damaged cotton will be replanted, but farmers north of Lubbock will likely plant soybeans due to the lateness of the planting season for cotton, Carpenter noted.

Farmers in irrigated areas of South and Southwest Texas are watering crops to boost growth.

Wheat harvesting remains a major farm activity in northern and western areas of the state although last week's rains caused delays in some counties. About 90 percent of the crop has been harvested in the Rolling Plains, and harvesting is starting in southern counties of the Panhandle and South Plains. This year's harvest should be a record, Carpenter said, although yields are less than expected in some counties due to problems with leaf rust disease.

A little peanut planting continues in Central and North Central Texas, with a few fields being replanted due to recent heavy rains.

Producers in central and eastern areas are harvesting good first cuttings of hay, Carpenter noted, but rain is needed for additional cuttings.

A good peach harvest continues over the state. This year's crop is of excellent quality and volume is also good.

Grazing conditions vary widely over Texas, Carpenter said, with pastures and ranges in good to excellent shape in the plains and northern sections but starting to decline in some coastal and southern counties.

Reports from district Extension directors showed these conditions.

PANHANDLE: Last week's rains, accompanied by high winds and some hail, damaged some maturing wheat as well as young cotton. Some cotton will be replanted. Wheat harvesting is getting under way in southern counties, and a good harvest is expected. Most young crops are making good progress and ranges are improving.

NORTH CENTRAL: Heavy rains over parts of the region slowed wheat and oats harvesting and peanut planting. Most crops are making good progress. The rains should boost second cuttings of hay and forage growth on pastures. Early peaches are being harvested.

NORTHEAST: Moisture conditions vary widely, with rain needed in a few locations. Wheat harvesting is active along with hay making. Most first cuttings of hay have produced good yields. Peaches and vegetables continue to move to market, and pecan trees have a good nut set. Pastures are excellent.

FAR WEST: Parts of the area got rain and some hail last week, damaging some young cotton. Some cotton will have to be replanted for the second time. Harvesting of wheat, barley and hay is making good progress, and onion harvesting is in full swing. Ranges are improving where the rains fell, but some areas remain dry.

WEST CENTRAL: Hot, dry conditions allowed the wheat harvest to make good progress, with yields above average in most locations. Dryland wheat is continuing to average 20 to 25 bushels per acre. Oat harvesting also remains active. Farmers have finished planting peanuts but are still planting a little cotton. Pastures are fair to good. An excellent peach harvest continues in Gillespie County.

CENTRAL: Farmers are replanting some peanuts due to recent heavy rains. Corn is setting squares, with fleahoppers and lygus bugs a problem in some fields. Corn prospects are excellent. First cuttings of Coastal bermuda and sudan are producing good yields. Cattle are in excellent shape, with good grazing.

EAST: Corn is silking and needs rain as do pastures. Vegetable crops remain in production and a good peach harvest continues. Pecan trees have set a good crop. Pastures are declining with dry conditions, and rain is needed for additional hay cuttings.

UPPER COAST: Scattered rains fell around the Houston area this week but the rest of the region remains dry. Dry conditions are hurting developing crops as well as pastures. Hay harvesting remains active and vegetable gardens continue in production.

SOUTH CENTRAL: Heavy rains in the Hill Country last week boosted pastures and ranges, but rain is needed in other counties for developing crops and for forage growth. Peach harvesting remains in full swing along with hay making. Gardens continue to produce a good volume of vegetables.

SOUTHWEST: Heavy rains of up to 15 inches caused some crop and livestock losses in parts of Bexar County. Most crops are doing well, with irrigations under way as crops are in critical stages of growth. Harvesting of hay, onions, potatoes, watermelons, squash and peaches continues, with excellent yields. The cantaloupe harvest is in full swing.

In Agriculture

BY JOE VANZANDT
County Extension Agent

Farmers are very busy these days — grain sorghum needs planting and wheat is ready to harvest. One good result from the recent rains is that irrigated farmers don't have to worry about starting these wells up for a few weeks at least.

At time of writing this article there had not been a lot of wheat harvested. I have heard a few early reports that some fields are having good test weights of 60 and above. However, I have also heard that some fields are testing light in the mid 50's range. A few early yield reports look like they will be generally average or better.

SICK PLANT CLINIC
June 19 is the date for the annual Sick Plant Clinic and Pressure Canner Gauge Testing at the Pampa Mall.

The event will be from 2 to 6 p.m. in the mall area. The clinic will assist home gardeners by diagnosing sick plants, soil or insect problems. There will be three Extension specialists on hand to assist homeowners with problems.

Anyone planning to do home food preservation can bring their pressure canner lids with geared (dial) gauges. My co-worker, Donna Brauchi, says that only the canner lid is needed for this service.

Mark the afternoon of June 19 on your calendar and plan to bring any of your "problems" to the clinic.

FOUNDATION WHEAT FIELD DAY
A field day will be held June 18 at 1 p.m. at Richardson Seed Farms, southwest of Vega.

The field day will feature a look at foundation seed fields of TAM 105, TAM 107, TAM 108, a hard red winter beardless wheat - Milburn and a triticale - Council.

Producers interested in seeing these are invited to attend. Also, producers might want to consider trying to grow some registered seed from these fields for next year. Information I received indicate that this field of TAM 105 has had the stray white heads taken out of it for a more pure line of 105. The beardless variety is a private company release and shows a lot of promise for wheat farmers interested in having a good beardless wheat.

Directions to Richardson Seed Farms are: go south from Vega on U.S. 385 or 10 miles to intersection with FM 2587. Turn right and go for 6 miles then go north for 2 miles.

VACCINATE HORSES FOR SLEEPING SICKNESS, TETANUS

Though sleeping sickness is no longer a major problem in the horse industry, it still exists and all equines should receive a protective vaccine each year.

A high effective combination vaccine is available for horses. It protects against Eastern, Western, Venezuelan types of sleeping sickness as well as tetanus.

Losing horses to sleeping sickness is unnecessary.

Last year cases of the disease were reported in Florida, Georgia, South Carolina, and Alabama, probably due to an unusually high mosquito population during the summer months.

Equine encephalitis (sleeping sickness) is carried naturally by several special species of birds. When mosquitoes bite an infected bird, the disease can then be transmitted by the mosquitoes to other animals.

Early signs of the disease include fever, loss of appetite and depression. The animal is usually restless, may walk aimlessly in circles and be sensitive to sound and touch.

One common symptom is a horse that stands with his head hung low like he's sleeping. He doesn't fully chew hay or forage, and as the disease progresses, the tongue may actually hang out of the mouth.

Once a horse is infected, treatment is generally unsuccessful. That's why proper immunization each year is so important.

The disease can also be transmitted to humans and some other animals. The virus has been found in dogs, goats, pigs, and domestic birds.

All equines should be vaccinated each spring before mosquitoes become prevalent. This should give them the protection needed for another year.

Consult your veterinarian regarding available vaccines to combat sleeping sickness.

WATCH

Power lines can be dangerous.

Touching irrigation pipe to a power line can divert the electricity through the pipe . . . and to anyone in contact with it. In this part of the country, this is the leading cause of farm injuries and deaths in electricity-related accidents. Any equipment of unusual height represents a potential danger. Lift arms on field equipment, combine auger spouts and even radio antennas can cause serious injury or death if they, and you, make contact with a power line.

Keep an eye up for power lines. Watch up, for safety's sake.

Block: Europeans concerned about farm export policy

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary John R. Block says the new $2 billion export subsidy program designed to regain some U.S. farm markets is making European farm leaders edgy.

"They are definitely concerned about it," Block said Wednesday. "It is a threat to relations. It's a threat to the trading system — they're just plain concerned."

But Block, who just returned this week from a five-day visit to Belgium, France and the Netherlands, said he told Europeans that the 10-nation

Common Market has "been using export restitutions for 20 years — especially the last five — and that's all we're doing" with the new export subsidy program.

The program, which involves the government giving away some surplus commodities to lower the price to foreign buyers, is aimed at making U.S. products more competitive in certain markets where foreign competition has undercut American farmers.

Algeria was selected last week as the first such target, a market in which the U.S. share of wheat sales dropped from 41 percent in 1979-80 to 16 percent in five years. And officials say Algeria has been a primary market for European countries, particularly France.

Block told reporters that the U.S. subsidy program — including additional target countries — will be carried out in accordance with the international trading rules set forth in the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade, or GATT.

"Our program will be GATT-legal, just as theirs is GATT-legal," Block said. "That tells me, and I hope it tells them, that we need to reform the GATT and write some rules and discipline into that program."

For years, Block and others have criticized the European Community's policies of subsidizing exports in order to undercut U.S. commodity sales. But he also told the Europeans that the U.S. export subsidy plan was poor policy.

"It's not good policy for us, but it's not good policy for them, either," Block said. "It's not good policy for countries to be in the business of subsidizing exports, because the only winners are those that buy."

Block was asked if he might have been looked upon skeptically by Europeans who heard him say the subsidies were bad policy but saw also that the United States was going to use them.

"No," he said. "I think it went over fine, because they understand politics."

The subsidy program, often called export PIK or payment-in-kind, was promoted heavily in Congress. The Reagan administration, which had been cool to the idea, finally accepted the plan in return for a budget compromise worked out between the Senate and the White House.

Block said he could not support a European claim to a "fair share" of the world farm market because the term is too vague. Fair share, he said, "doesn't mean a thing, because it's a changing ... moving target" and cannot be determined by carving out country shares.

Commodities showing the greatest decline from year-earlier levels included soybean meal, soybeans, wheat, wheat flour, corn and cotton, the department's Foreign Agricultural Service said Wednesday in a weekly trade report.

Soils information available to Gray County residents

Valuable information about most of the soils in Gray County is available from the Soil Conservation Service office located in the Courthouse Annex on East Frederic, according to County Judge Carl Kennedy.

"Many people could save money and avoid a few headaches if they would only consider the soil first when planning to build a home, construct a road, building a pond or planting a crop, garden, shrubs or trees," the judge said.

According to Lee McDonald, district conservationist, the soils in Gray County are different.

"They have personality and individuality just as people do," McDonald said. "Some of the soils are deep and fertile, others are shallow to bedrock. Some are sandy, some are clayey. Some shrink when dry and swell when wet. Some soak up water well, others stay wet. Some are acid, others are alkaline. All of these are important when considering the soil for different uses."

Descriptions of the soils showing thickness of layers, structure, percentage of sand, silt and clay and other physical characteristics are available. Interpretative information such as percolation rates, natural fertility, drainage, ponding, flooding, runoff, depth to bedrock, seasonal high water tables, bearing strength and shrink-swell potential is also available.

"Detailed soil maps or general soil maps of the county are also available," McDonald continued. "A soil map might be called a blueprint of the land. It can be interpreted to show the best areas for cropland, pastureland, rangeland and wildlife habitat, as well as more suitable areas for homes, shopping centers, schools, parks, factories and highways."

Judge Kennedy said anyone having a need for soil information should contact the SCS. This information is available through the local Gray County Soil and Water Conservation District and can be obtained by calling 665-1751 or writing Gray County Soil Conservation Service, Star Rt. 2 Box 32, Pampa, TX. 79065.

Obsolete oil platforms for fishing?

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Obsolete offshore oil platforms in the Gulf of Mexico and along the West Coast could provide the foundation for a lucrative sport-fishing industry, a recreation and parks expert says.

Instead of scrapping the rigs, Dr. Robert Ditton of Texas A&M University says the some of the structures should be left because they act as artificial reefs which attract fish.

"Fifteen to 30 years ago the fish were distributed all over the Gulf of Mexico. Then the oil and gas industries came in and built these vertical steel columns which attracted the fish that attracted commercial fishermen and spurred the development of a recreational fishery," Ditton said.

Ditton, who serves on a National Academy of Science panel looking into a variety of alternatives for disposing of the platforms, said there is a lot of interest in retaining some of the structures for fishery purposes.

"The platforms are preferable to using ships because if you sink a ship for an artificial reef it doesn't come up that high in the water column and there's really not the same diversity of fish," Ditton said.

Fishermen quickly discovered that the platforms provided good fishing grounds and often dock around them, Ditton said.

IT RAISES CROPS AND PROFITS.

The new Kubota M4950 is an efficient farm worker. It has a strong, reliable Kubota diesel engine that's a real miser on fuel. And money you don't spend on fill-ups ends up in your pocket after the harvest.

The M4950 also works like a tractor much bigger than its 47 PTO hp. Because of some new engineering refinements. And because Kubota's 4-wheel-drive system with a unique bevel-gear design adds up to 35% more pulling power than comparable 2-wheel-drive tractors.

The M4950 could be just the tractor you need to raise profits on your farm.

Production, inflation reports stir speculation of fed easing interest

By The Associated Press
The continued low level of inflation in May gives the Federal Reserve Board room to counteract lagging industrial production by encouraging lower interest rates, analysts say.

Bond and stock prices jumped and interest rates fell in the wake of the reports, and speculation grew that the Fed would make another reduction in its discount rate, the interest charge on its loans to financial institutions.

But the failure of the Fed to make any such announcement by the end of the business day Friday prompted bond prices to retreat somewhat from their highs of the day.

On Wall Street, stock prices pulled out of a three-session slump as the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials climbed 10.86 to 1,300.96. It lost 15.46 points for the week, however.

In the first of four government economic reports released Friday, the Fed said output from the nation's mines and factories fell 0.1 percent in May after a 0.2 percent decline in April.

Analysts said that meant the economy, which grew at a rate of 0.7 percent in the first quarter, is unlikely to show any dramatic turnaround in the second three months of the year. The first figures on second-quarter growth become available next Thursday. In a separate report, the Labor Department said its Producer Price Index rose 0.2 percent in May — an increase attributed almost totally for the third straight month to higher energy prices.

John Albertine, president of the American Business Conference, said the industrial production figures "offer corroborating evidence of the pervasive sluggishness of the economy."

"However, it is not unusual for the economy to go through growth pauses such as the one we seem to be experiencing, and with falling interest rates and low inflation the stage should be set for a pause that refreshes," he said. In another report Friday, the Commerce Department said inventories of manufactured goods rose 0.4 percent in April, after a 0.1 percent dip in March that marked the first decline in two years.

The report, which covers manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers, said overall sales were up 1.2 percent in April.

In its final economic report of the day, the government said Americans took on $8.27 billion more in installment debt than they paid off in April.

Justice still probing whether U.S. forces once detained Nazi doctor

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department will continue probing whether U.S. military occupation forces had Josef Mengele in custody following World War II, even if it's proven conclusively that the one-time Nazi concentration camp doctor is dead, a department investigator says.

"The other aspect of our investigation (involving any U.S. role in Mengele's escape) will continue even after we have concluded the other part," Neal Sher, head of the Office of Special Investigations, said Friday.

Sher briefed reporters after meeting with Attorney General Edwin Meese III to report on the continuing investigation in Brazil to determine whether the remains of a body found near Sao Paulo are those of Mengele, the "Angel of Death" doctor at the Nazi prison camp at Auschwitz, Poland.

Meese had told a news conference Thursday that the emphasis of the OSI's investigation was to identify the body and that historical documentation of the allegations that Mengele had been in custody was secondary to that.

In Sao Paulo, meanwhile, a woman who claimed she harbored Mengele for 17 years in Brazil said Friday that Mengele once told her he was detained briefly by American soldiers.

The woman, Gitta Stammer, said in an interview with The Associated Press that Mengele "told me that after the war he was a prisoner of the Americans in Germany. But since his name was not on any wanted list they released him."

Meese said in statement Friday that resolving the questions about Mengele's whereabouts continue to be "a top priority" of the Justice Department.

Sher said U.S. officials are "not taking any position" on whether the continuing investigation in Brazil will prove beyond dispute that Mengele died there in 1979.

On June 6, Brazilian officials exhumed the body of a man who drowned in 1979. They are conducting tests to determine whether it is Mengele.

Texas facility is censured

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Southwestern Adventist College in Texas was among four institutions the American Association of University Professors has censured for faculty cutbacks and other actions that it contends has violated the principles of academic freedom and tenure.

The association also has removed two other colleges from its censure list, including the University of Texas Health Science Center at Houston.

The three other institutions that professors at the annual meeting Friday voted to censure are Temple University in Philadelphia; Westminster College of Salt Lake City and the Oklahoma College of Osteopathic Medicine and Surgery.

Harris-Stowe State College in Missouri was removed from the list after being censured since 1977. The Houston health science center was censured in 1977.

The association is a combination of professional organizations and, on some campuses, a union for professors.

It charged that Southwestern Adventist College also let a professor go without observing due process. It said the Oklahoma osteopathic school dismissed three professors "who had been outspoken critics of the administration."

Financial Focus

The purpose of any financial plan should be to provide a secure future. The best way of achieving financial security is through safe, reliable investments.

Insured tax - exempt unit trusts are sound and dependable. Thousands have invested in these instruments with many investing in them more than once. The primary reason they're so popular is their high degree of security. They offer three distinct features which make them one of the safest investments available today. First, the majority have received a AAA rating by Standard & Poor's Investment Rating Service. This is the highest rating given to any investment including government securities. Second, each trust is insured for the timely payment of all principal and interest on the municipal bonds contained in the trust. Finally, separate insurance companies have entered into insurance agreements that provide you with the same timely payment of interest and principal. Some of the largest, most respected insurance companies in the industry are behind these trusts.

Insured tax - exempt unit trusts are made - up of a wide selection of individual high - quality municipal bonds which are selected for the trust by a team of professional analysts. The trust gives the investor an excellent balance of diversity and stability that might not be available by purchasing individual bond issues. The variety of securities within each trust, as well as the overall favorable record of municipal bonds, add even more safety to this investment.

In addition to safety, most people want investments with a regular, dependable flow of income. With most insured trusts, interest is paid monthly, quarterly or semi - annually. Of course, the yield will be slightly different depending on the payment option.

Each bond in the trust pays interest twice a year. Because they don't necessarily pay interest in the same months, the first interest payment you receive may not include earnings from all the bonds. Interest which is earned by the bondholder but not yet received is called accrued interest. Remember, interest earned on these trusts is free from current federal income taxes which makes them even more attractive.

One more positive nature of this investment is the units may be redeemed on any business day for their current market value. This may be more, less or exactly the same as the original purchase price. Also, you aren't obligated to hold the trust for a certain number of years before you can sell your units. It's good to know, if the need arises, units of these trusts can be sold at any time.

Tax - free income may not be for everyone, but if you feel taxes are a problem, you owe it to yourself to investigate tax - exempt bonds and trusts.

Wall Streeters fear more bad news on corporate earnings

By CHET CURRIER
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Corporate earnings reports don't rank very high on Wall Streeters' summer reading lists this year.

Concern has mounted lately that the profit figures many businesses will announce in the next few months will be as weak as, or even weaker than, the last batch that came out for the first quarter.

"Earnings performance during the first quarter was poor," says Hugh Johnson at the investment firm of First Albany Corp. "The level of confidence in second and third quarter earnings is understandably shaky."

"We will see either a dull stock market or a correction in the stock market down to around the 1,240 area on the Dow this summer," predicts Greg Smith at Prudential-Bache Securities.

"Then, after the market has a chance to react to second-quarter earnings (which could well come in below even our limited expectations), we can go on to a much better market in the second half."

Worries about the earnings outlook were heightened in the past week when International Business Machines, the most prominent of the blue chips traded in the market, pulled back from its optimistic view of the outlook for the second half of the year.

The IBM news came as the latest disappointment in a computer-industry slowdown that has become a cover story for magazines like Business Week.

"Technology should prove a disaster area" for the second quarter, says Donald Trott at Mabon, Nugent & Co. But Trott also argues that the problems of computer makers won't be an isolated case.

"We foresee vulnerability to significant disappointments within numerous sectors, including autos and auto parts, building and building materials, chemicals, paper and steels," he says.

In its latest report on the outlook, the Value Line Investment Survey lowered its second-quarter estimate of growth in the gross national product, after adjustment for inflation, to a 2 percent annual rate from an earlier projection of 3 percent.

Reagan still seeks groundswell for tax plan

By CLIFF HAAS
AP Economics Writer
BLOOMFIELD, N.J. (AP) — Despite appeals on national television and spirited, campaign - style appearances from Florida to Wisconsin, President Reagan is still searching for a formula that will rally the public around "America's tax plan."

He has mixed optimistic, partisan, bipartisan, populist and anti-government themes as he tries to strike a spark. He has evoked images as grand as a second American revolution and as modest as a family sitting around the kitchen table trying to figure how his proposals would affect them.

So far, though, he has produced little more than hoopla. Before Reagan arrived last Thursday in this ethnic, working-class town in northeastern New Jersey — the eighth state he had visited in less than three weeks — Mayor John Kinder said people were talking "very little about the (tax) bill, the excitement is about him coming."

It was almost a movie version of small-town America as thousands of flag-waving residents jammed the square in front of the municipal building. The bronze door to the town hall was given its first cleaning since 1927.

The Bloomfield High School band, in red and white uniforms, smartly played "Hail to the Chief."

For 18 minutes, the president explained that the current tax system is "ready for the ash heap of history."

He told his listeners that his proposals for reducing individual and business tax rates and raising the personal exemption and standard deductions could save a typical New Jersey family of four more than $650 on their tax bill.

Those tax changes would be paid for by killing or cutting various deductions and credits and increasing the corporate tax burden somewhat.

He reassured his audience that they would not be hurt by the loss of the deduction for state and local taxes they pay.

"It's simply not true," Reagan said flatly. He warned the crowd about "the sharks" that are "circling our tax plan and trying to Reagan came and still thought so after he left.

"I get the impression that the people agree with him but don't seem to want to go out of their way to tell their representatives. ... They like him and they agree with him but what does that mean?" Kinder said.

"Someone's got to keep them (the public) going" after the president leaves, Kinder added.

But there is no evidence that is happening. "In terms of the president stirring up the public, it (mail response) is very light," said William Diefenderfer, chief of staff of the tax-writing Senate Finance Committee.

White House officials have been expressing concern privately that although the public supports the president's tax goals in general there is still no groundswell for his particular proposals.

In addition, there have been reports of a debate within the administration over how best to sell the plan and what ideas to stress.

Some of that apparently is spilling into public view.

For example, the prepared text for Reagan's speech during a Flag Day salute last Friday at Fort McHenry in Baltimore included a call to discard "a tax system that works at such cross purposes with the American Dream."

In the prepared text, he said both political parties can come together on tax overhaul and he reiterated that "America's tax plan" can help bring "a second American revolution of hope and progress to match the great aspirations of our first revolution — and this we are determined to do."

An AP News Analysis

take a bite. "We happen to have a fool-proof shark repellent in the will of the American people," the president said. "But your voice must be heard."

Then Reagan left. The next day, Kinder, a Republican, was proud of the way his town turned out and he praised the president for trying to change the tax system. It had been a big day in the city's history.

"We would like to get the paint brush out and 'x' mark the spot where he stood so that everybody can remember he was here," the mayor said.

As for overhauling the federal tax code, people thought it was a good idea before

WARREN HASSE

ARROGANT, POMPOUS, OBNOXIOUS, vain, cruel, verbose, a show-off.

A self-description, by Howard Cosell, the man who tells it as it is. "I have been called all of these. Of course, I am," he says in his autobiographical "Cosell", a 1973 best-seller.

And the man America's sports fans and sports communicators love to hate returns to television sports center stage tomorrow night as he joins Al Michaels and Jim Palmer on ABC-TV's Monday Night Baseball. His return from a self-imposed exile which, whether by demand of his bosses or by desire, is hoped and expected to pump some life back into the national ratings of the sports show. From a miserable "40" ranking last week, that effort is virtually guaranteed by the product, teams representing the two major population centers of the country, battling for first place in their first meeting of the year, with possibly the two best pitchers in the game going head to head.

Cosell has been pretty well hidden from public view confined mainly to his weekly Sports Magazine and occasional special bits. He publicly denounced his love affair with professional boxing was over, and that he disdained having to associate on the air with the "jock mentality" of athletes. And it has been that forthrightness...telling it like it is, if you will, or at least how he thinks it is...that has turned many against him. Another of his targets was America's Favorite Pastime, baseball, which he openly lambasted as being too slow, too mild, and of which he is obviously lacking in technical understanding.

Many have utilized this general national dislike to their advantage. Associates in the sports communications industry take extreme pleasure and get great compliments for attacking him over any little thing. We (the Mutual Radio Board) thought our network president Ed Little was crazy when he told of plans to carry Monday Night Football in direct competition with the telecast. But it was a tremendous success, due in great part to fans who delighted in reporting they "turned off the television sound to get rid of Cosell, and listened to the radio broadcast." Success of Little's venture is substantiated by CBS Radio outbidding Mutual for broadcast rights when the initial pact expired, and now NBC wrestling the broadcasts from CBS starting next season. And each time with a "thank you, Howard" softly uttered by the decision makers as well as the ultimate financial beneficiary, the NFL.

But what is the man REALLY like? He had to write his own life's story in an effort to let the world know him. A couple of years ago Kansas City sportswriter Jack Craig related an incident that tells an off-camera side. It was Sunday night, prior to a Monday telecast from KC, and the ABC crew was returning from dinner when the limousine stopped at a red light. Cosell noticed a fight taking place between two young black men while three others watched.

Cosell instructed the female driver to make a left turn to the site of the trouble. She protested it was the wrong way on a one-way street, and more than that, it was dangerous getting involved. After setting the automatic door locks, she reluctantly followed Cosell's orders and was told to stop within 15 feet of the group. Cosell lifted the lock on his door and stepped out. In open sports shirt, Cosell began a typical monologue, jokingly demeaning the boxing challenges of both men and declaring their bout ended. The five black men turned silent in disbelief. After a few seconds one of them approached Cosell, stopped and stared, then threw his arms around him. The others quickly surrounded the broadcaster, shaking hands and laughing. After a short visit Cosell returned to the car. A possible tragedy had been averted where most people would have driven past, not getting involved.

We've had two brushes with him. The first in 1968 when the Pride of Pampa was performing at Shea Stadium for the AFL playoff between Oakland and the NY Jets in late December. Our press box seat was next to him, and it was before he had reached national prominence.

The second occurred a few years later when the ABC crew was in Chicago for a Monday telecast. An old junior high coach of mine, who was traveling secretary for the Chicago White Sox, had invited me to noon lunch. Present were the Sox owners, Cub and Bear officials, and Howard, who was dominating the conversation answering questions of the table guests.

"We're just like any other television program, sitcom or news," he said. "Once we drop out of the top 20, we're in trouble. So my job is to make the telecasts interesting, even if it means being abrasive. I'm not totally happy with sportscasting. Of course, I'm doing it partially because of the economics." Throughout the luncheon, people were constantly approaching for autographs, most of them youngsters sent over by parents. Having been one of those at one time who found sports heroes reluctant to respond to a child's request, I appreciated Cosell turning from the table and taking time to hold a quick conversation with each while offering his signature.

Or can a guy who gives a check, unsolicited, and reported to be well up in the five-figure range, to the Dick Risenhoover Scholarship Fund be all bad? Dick was our longtime associate on WTSU football broadcasts who died of cancer shortly after attaining a lifetime goal of becoming a major league broadcaster with the Texas Rangers.

We relate these items in hopes we can sugarcoat Cosell's personality and make him a bit more palatable for you on telecasts. Most people know he is a lawyer, a writer, an actor, and a hard-working, digging reporter. Few realize he also wanted to be a minister, but had one overwhelming failure. He could not recite the Lord's Prayer correctly. To him it went:

"Our Father, who art in Heaven, Howard be thy name..."

Always telling it like it is! Happy Father's Day, Howard.

Tze-Chung Chen...still in the lead.

Chen leads Open by two strokes

BIRMINGHAM, Mich. (AP) — T.C. Chen, ducking from beneath his umbrella long enough to drop the putts he needed, scrambled to a one-under-par 69 and opened up a two-stroke lead Saturday in the third round of the United States Open Golf Championship.

The 26-year-old Taiwanese completed three rounds over the Oakland Hills Country Club course in 207.

That's seven strokes under par, equals the best 54-hole total the Open has ever seen and placed Chen in command — in control of the tournament, the title his to win or lose — with one round to go in his quest of one of the great upsets in the 85 years the U.S. Open has been played.

No Oriental has ever won the U.S. Open, nor, in fact, any of the game's recognized Big Four events which also include the Masters, PGA and British Open.

They've come close. Isao Aoki of Japan chased Jack Nicklaus to the 1960 U.S. Open crown. Lu Liang-Huan of Taiwan was second to Lee Trevino in the 1971 British Open. They came close.

But, in Japan and Asia, Lu and Aoki were recognized, familiar figures, frequent winners.

Chen, who has played without victory or particular distinction for two years on the American PGA tour, possesses less impressive credentials.

He entered the American national championship as one of the more obscure of the touring pros. His greatest claim to fame were victories, earlier this year, in the Korean and Japanese Opens.

It was another three strokes back to Canadian Dave Barr, who matched par 70 in the difficult, trying conditions and was at 208.

Rookie pro Rick Fehr, 22, who spends most of his time on the mini-tours, was the only other man under par. He had a 73 and was at 209, one under and six off the pace.

The group at 210, even par, included British Open champion Seve Ballesteros of Spain, Tom Kite, and South African Denis Watson.

The defending title-holder, Fuzzy Zoeller, shot 72-212.

Major Leagues draft nine Texas players

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Major league baseball teams chose nine University of Texas players in last week's draft, but the player they coveted most on the College World Series runnerup team wasn't even eligible.

Greg Swindell was ranked by many scouts as one of the top collegiate players in the nation this year after compiling a 19-2 record and 1.67 earned-run average for the Longhorns. But the 20-year-old is only a sophomore, which left him one class standing short of being eligible for the 1985 draft.

"I'd say he's the best pitcher in the United States," Charlie Smith, area scout for the Atlanta Braves, told the Austin American-Statesman. "I'd say he'd have been the No. 1 pick in the United States this year if he was eligible."

Tom Chandler, a scout for the Cleveland Indians, agreed. "Oh, my goodness. He'll go high, high. He's the likely No. 1 pick next year."

In the meantime, the scouts had plenty to talk about in connection with the pro potential of the Texas players who were drafted. Highest on the rave list have been pitchers Bruce Ruffin and Michael Poehl, second baseman Bill Bates and third baseman Dodd Johnson.

Poehl, a junior righthander, was taken by the Indians on the ninth pick of the first round. Ruffin, a junior lefthander, was one of three Horns taken by the Philadelphia Phillies, going on the fifth pick of the second round.

Senior outfielder David Denny and backup shortstop Rick Parker also went to the Phillies. Phillies scout Doug Gassaway was expected at the Horns' welcome home rally Wednesday night to try and sign the trio.

Bates, an All-American second baseman, went to the Milwaukee Brewers in the fourth round, while third baseman Johnson was picked by the Braves with the 14th pick of the first round of the secondary phase. Other Horns selected were pitcher Wade Phillips, 28th round to California, outfielder Dennis Cook, 10th round to the Pirates, and substitute outfielder Mike Simon, 18th round to Seattle.

Poehl (7-1, 3.49) and Ruffin (13-3, 3.35) were projected as future front-line major league pitchers. "Ruffin's got a good arm and good stuff. It's just a question of getting consistent," said Phillies scouting director Jack Pastore, who said Ruffin and Denny will start at Clearwater, the Phillies' Class A Florida State League team. "The only way to do that is to get experience."

"Michael Poehl has a good, loose arm, to use the vernacular of the trade, so he should never experience arm trouble," said Chandler, a former coach at Texas A&M and now a hitting instructor with the Class A Batavia Trojans of the New York-Penn League. "He also has an 85-88 mph fastball with good motion. Everything is so natural for him. He has a beautiful motion."

Chandler said Poehl also needs to polish his slip pitch, which drops like a split-fingered fastball.

Scouts called Bates, who hit .486 this season, an exciting player but questioned whether his size would hurt his progress.

"Billy Bates is a ballplayer who's confusing to a certain degree," said one scout, who asked to remain anonymous because he's not in the Brewer organization and could face a fine for tampering.

"If you just put the stats on, and forget he's 5-foot-7, 155 pounds, he's done remarkable things. But we go on percentages. I'm sure Bates has heard it all his life, that he's not big enough...I'm not trying to throw a cold blanket on the young man, because he can do some things very well."

Said another scout, "I think Billy Bates could play in the big leagues now, defensively. His switch-hitting will help, and how quickly he can adapt to wooden bats from aluminum (will also be a factor)."

Johnson, who hit .345 this season while also playing first base and outfield, will be tried at third by the Braves, Smith said. Smith said he likes Johnson's agility and size.

"It's not normal to find a 6-4 third baseman," he said. "They tend to be too long-legged to make the choppy steps necessary. He's only played 30 games at third, so he's just getting started. And of course you have to remember he's the only guy to have hit two home runs over the centerfield fence (at Disch-Falk Field on the UT campus)."

Despite a draft that could strip them of four starters and two of their top three pitchers, the Longhorns have talent remaining, the scouts say.

Kevin Garner and Kurt Krippner, a pair of right-handed pitchers who saw limited action as freshmen this season, head the list of future prospects. Both are projected as having major league arms, and could combine with Swindell to form a strong staff next spring, scouts say.

"Krippner is a good pitcher. He's got a good arm, a strong arm," said Boyd Bartley, a scout for the Los Angeles Dodgers. "I was surprised Garner did not pitch more. I thought Garner was the best (high school) pitcher in Texas last year."

Moose, Glo-Valve post little league victories

Unbeaten Moose Lodge downed Duncan Insurance, 11-5, in National Little League baseball action Friday night.

Moose is now 12-0 for the season while Duncan dropped to 9-3. Duncan was unbeaten at 4-0 in second-half play.

Winning pitcher was Brent Skaggs while Tyson Beck took the loss. Chris Howard was credited with a save.

In other NL action, Glo-Valve defeated Dixie, 15-8. Kelly Quarles knocked in five runs with a homer and double for Glo-Valve.

Winning pitcher Andrew Ramirez ran his mound record to 4-1. Outstanding defensive play by third baseman Jeff Lamb also helped Glo-Valve's winning efforts.

Lossing pitcher was Russell Stevens.

Both Glo-Valve and Dixie have 7-5 records.

This is the final week of play for the little league teams. Monday night, Cabot meets Duncan at 6 p.m. while Moose goes against Dunlap at 8 p.m. On Tuesday night, Glo-Valve meets Celanese at 6 p.m. while Dixie clashes with OCAW at 8 p.m.

Padres blank Giants

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — LaMarr Hoyt pitched a five-hitter for his sixth consecutive victory and Tony Gwynn knocked in the only run of the game with a fifth-inning single as the San Diego Padres beat the San Francisco Giants 1-0 Saturday.

Gwynn's two-out hit off loser Jim Gott, 3-4, was all Hoyt needed as the Giants were shut out for the fifth time in their last 10 games.

The winning rally started with a one-out single by Garry Templeton. Hoyt, 8-4, sacrificed and Templeton went to third on Gott's wild pitch.

After Tim Flannery walked on four pitches, Gwynn looped a run-scoring single to left for his fifth game-winning RBI of the season.

White Sox edge Angels

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Harold Baines snapped a 2-2 tie with a two-out double in the seventh inning Saturday as the Chicago White Sox edged the California Angels 3-2.

Rudy Law, whose grounder had forced Ozzie Guillen following his leadoff single, scored from first base on Baines' double to left-center off right-hander Kirk McCaskey, 1-5.

Dan Spillner, 1-1, went 1-1-3 in the eighth, but was pulled after taking over when Chicago starter Floyd Bannister was forced out after five innings by a blister on his pitching hand.

Bob James, the last of four Chicago pitchers, went the final two innings for his league-leading 16th save.

Red Sox trip Jays

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Red Sox scored two runs on a pair of two-out, bases loaded walks by Gary Lavelle to rally for a 7-5 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays Saturday.

With their third consecutive victory over Toronto, their 12th triumph in the last 13 games and 15th in the last 17, the Red Sox charged to within 4 1/2 games of the first-place Blue Jays in the American League East.

The Red Sox took a 5-1 lead with three runs off Toronto starter Doyle Alexander in the seventh inning, and staged another rally as Toronto pulled into a tie with four runs in the top of the eighth.

Jim Acker, who replaced Alexander at the start of the eighth, gave way after surrendering a walk to Wade Boggs and a single to Jim Rice. Lavelle replaced Acker.

Boggs made the tie-breaking run off a walk, and Marty Barrett walked on a 3-2 count, forcing home Rice.

Bob Stanley, 2-2, picked up the victory although he was hit hard after replacing starter Bob Ojeda in the eighth. Acker, 3-1, was the loser.

Top seeds win titles in junior tennis tournament

AUSTIN (AP) — T. J. Middleton, Diana Merrett, Nancy Webster and David Di Re validated their No. 1 seedings by taking Texas Junior Sectional Tennis Tournament titles Saturday.

But Mitch Michulka and Michael Wesbrooks, also top-ranked, couldn't withstand the challenges offered by 1984 winners.

While Middleton in boys 18, Merrett in girls 18, Webster in girls 14 and Di Re in boys 12 were taking straight-set victories for singles championships, Michulka was blasted by No. 2 seed Tommy Alfano in boys 16 and Wesbrooks was conquered, 6-4, 6-4, by second-ranked Michael Flanagan in boys 14.

Middleton, Alfano and Flanagan were all sectional winners last year, moving up one age bracket to their Saturday victories.

Saturday's other title winner was Abilene's Racquel Colvin, who beat San Antonio's Chesley Seals, 6-1, 2-6, 6-3, in girls 16, the only match to go three sets.

Middleton, who has bypassed high school tennis in Richardson for more intense competition, turned back Class 5A state singles champion Barry Richards of Spring Klein, 7-6, 6-2, finally negating his opponent's scorching forehand.

His 7-4 edge in the first set tiebreaker, Middleton said, gave him the momentum he needed to break Richards' first two services in the second set.

"I'm happy with my tournament," said Middleton, who lost only one set in five matches. "I'll probably take a week off, then go back to work for the rest of the summer."

Middleton's next venture is the United States Junior Davis Cup trials in California in late June.

Merrett, also from Richardson, played a peerless baseline game to beat fourth seeded Lynda Taté of Irving, 6-3, 6-0, to move up from a 1984 girls 18 second place finish.

Alfano, from San Antonio, took a 5-0 first-set lead over Dallas' Michulka and carved out a 4-0 second-set edge to add the boys 16 title to the boys 14 trophy he won last year.

Flanagan, a diminutive 13-year-old from Dallas who had won the 1984 boys 12 title in straight sets, beat Wesbrooks by keeping the ball in play, inducing a barrage of unforced errors by the Beaumont athlete, who had lost only one set in four previous tournament matches.

Webster, from Corpus Christi, swept through the tournament without losing a set, turning back eighth-seeded Vicki Paynter of Humble, 6-1, 6-4.

Colvin, seeded fourth in the tournament, kept the second-seeded Seals' power game under control in taking a 6-1 first set in girls 16, but then bowed, 6-2, in the second. Regrouping, she dominated most of the way in the third, closing out the match at 6-3.

Pampa shooters win honors in state meet

Four members of the Pampa Trap and Skeet Club have trophies to show for their sharpshooting abilities during the Texas State Trapshoot Tournament held last week at the Amarillo Gun Club.

Jerry Stephens hit 96 out of 100 targets to win the Class A doubles title while Bob Reeves downed 97 of 100 to win the Class B singles championship. John Moan scored 96 of 100 to take third in the handicap category.

In the ladies' division, Diana Prouse knocked down 93 of 100 targets to win the doubles championship.

Brady Brogdin, Robert Brogdin, David Rippetoe, Kenneth Williams and Dale Prouse competed in the state tournament, but did not place.

Moan, who is president of the club, will compete in the World Skeet Shoot later this summer in San Antonio. This is Moan's third straight year to compete in the world meet. He placed second in the B Division in 1983.

"In world-class of competition, you can't miss too many times or you're out of it," Moan said.

Moan started trap and skeet shooting in 1979 and has since become one of the sport's most avid boosters.

"I just fell in love with it," Moan said. "The main thing about it is you can go out and have a good time, that's the main thing. It's also the safest sport in the world. I've never heard of anyone getting shot."

Moan is trying to get other people interested in the sport, which has been in Pampa since the 1950s.

"Our club membership isn't what we'd like it to be because of the economy, but I believe more people would come out if they were aware we had a club here," Moan said.

The group's clubhouse, which was also the first schoolhouse in Gray County, is located just north of the Gray County Rodeo Arena.

"People can come out at 2 p.m. every Sunday or 6:30 p.m. every Thursday and shoot or just watch," Moan said. "A lot of people won't shoot because they're afraid they'll be laughed at. We don't laugh at anybody. "Even the best had to start sometime."

Moan said club members also tutor beginners in every safety aspect of the sport.

"I've taught a lot of kids. The 4-H kids were out here not too long ago and they had a lot of fun," Moan said.

Club membership dues are $10 yearly, but a person doesn't have to be a member to come out and shoot or just watch, Moan pointed out. Members can shoot 25 rounds for $2.50 while non-members pay $3.00.

Turkey shoots are held in the fall and many of the club members compete in state and national meets throughout the year.

"We've got some outstanding shooters in the club, but the main thing is that we come out here and have fun," Moan said.

And that funtime can result in bringing home some championship trophies.

Spurs drafting for muscle

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The San Antonio Spurs, hoping to put some muscle in their ranks, will be gunning for a power forward or a center in Tuesday's National Basketball Association draft, the team's general manager says.

Bob Bass said the team is eyeing 6-foot-10 Keith Lee of Memphis State, 6-9½ Charles Oakley of Virginia Union and 6-9 Terry Catledge of South Alabama in the power forward position.

At center, the possibilities are 6-11½ Bill Wennington of St. John's and 7-foot Blair Rasmussen of Oregon.

"I think we can get one of the five," Bass said. To do it, they'll have to wait until the No. 14 comes up in the first round of the draft.

The Spurs, who finished last season with a lackluster 41-41 record, need a much higher draft position to come up with a star.

Most of the first-rate draftees are expected to be gone before the 10th pick.

Bass said he doubts the Spurs will be able to work out a trade to maneuver into a higher spot.

The No. 14 slot is a far cry from the Spurs' first-round draft pick of No. 7 last year, their best ever.

Last year's first round selection yielded Alvin Robertson of Arkansas, who played on the U.S. Olympic basketball team.

The 6-4 guard averaged 9.2 points and 3.4 rebounds a game, playing sparingly through most of his rookie year.

He broke his foot April 7 in a game against Houston, missing the rest of the season.

The Spurs will pick No. 11 in the second round, moving up in a deal worked out when John Lucas was traded to Houston.

San Antonio will be out in the third round after trading away that draft opportunity to Detroit for Edgar Jones. Jones since has been traded to Cleveland.

Cowboys hire juggler

DALLAS (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys, a team known for such innovations as recruiting by computer and floating players in isolation tanks, has a new one for football aficionados.

They've hired a juggling coach.

"I think it's good for the reflexes and hand-eye coordination," said defensive end Ed "Too Tall" Jones. "I think it's good to be creative."

Conditioning coach Bob Ward said professional juggler Logan Daffron is working with the team a couple of times a month to give players "total body awareness."

Daffron, 28, who also teaches juggling at the Dealey Recreation Center, said he's thrilled to be working with America's team.

But he said several players thought the whole thing was a joke when they saw him walk into the first training session wearing shoulder-length hair and a full beard.

Once the training started, the Cowboys got down to business — learning to juggle eight-pound bean bags.

Daffron said some have advanced so far they can juggle three footballs.

The juggler reasons that "if a receiver can juggle three footballs, he should be able to catch one."

Boston College sets Cotton Bowl record

DALLAS (AP) — Boston College is the first institution to make more $2 million from a bowl game, Cotton Bowl Athletic Association officials said Saturday.

The Boston College Eagles received a check for $2,003,181 from the Cotton Bowl Athletic Association. The Eagles won the record payoff by defeating Southwest Conference co-champion Houston in the Cotton Bowl Classic in Dallas on Jan. 1.

Since Boston College is an independent and does not have to share the payoff, it becomes the first college team to keep all of a single game post-season check for more than $2 million.

Houston received the same amount as Boston College, but it will share the money with eight other Southwest Conference members. But the Houston Cougars will receive a record $717,818 based on conference formula. The other eight conference members get $225,000 each.

The take-home pay for the two institutions is a record Cotton Bowl purse. The Cotton Bowl Athletic Association has paid more than $41 million to its participating teams since 1970, with the Southwest Conference receiving more than $23 million.

More students needed for Pampa golf clinic

More students are needed for the second session of the Clarendon College Golf Clinic, which begins Monday at the Pampa Center.

The session continues through Thursday with three classes each session. The first class is from 8 to 10 a.m. and the second class is from 10 to 12 a.m. The third class for adults only is from 6 to 8 p.m.

Cost will be $40 per person with our without clubs.

For more information, call instructors Frank McCullough at 665-7367 or Mike Brent at 665-1355, or Larry Gilbert at Clarendon College-Pampa Center.

Thomson fires 66 to lead Senior Pro-Am by one stroke

DALLAS (AP) — Australian Peter Thomson chipped in from 45-feet for a birdie on the first hole then tamed tricky winds to shoot a 6-under par 66 Saturday and seize a one-shot lead after 36-holes of the Senior Players ReUnion Pro-Am.

The 54-year-old Thomson, who has won five tournaments and is the leading money winner on the PGA Seniors Tour, was 10-under par 134 to hold a stroke lead over Lee Elder going into Sunday's finale in this event patterned after the Crosby Pro-Am.

Elder had only 29 putts to post a 4-under par 68 for a 135 total over the Par 72 Bent Tree Country Club.

Aussie Harold Henning shot a 4-under par 68 to finish at 8-under 136.

Billy Casper, who had the first round lead with a 65, faded to a 1-over par 73 for a 6-under 138 along with Gay Brewer, who bogeyed the final hole for a 69, and Gordon Jones, a 68 shooter.

"I've got everything working well," said Thomson, five times British Open champion. "I've got no worries but it should take at least a 68 on Sunday to win. There is a whole list of blood red (sub-par numbers) on the scoreboard."

Thomson said the chip-in got him in the right frame of mind.

"It was a great feeling," he said. "I knew the Gods were with me. They've sort of been with me this entire year. I've been lucky."

Thomson's round also included two 30-foot putts for birdie.

Elder had a fine putting round, using only 29 putts during his round.

"You're a putting dude," Casper told Elder.

Casper said "I was just miserably on the greens. I went from 25 putts on Friday to 35 putts today. It was just pathetic."

In the team division, Canadian Al Balding and partner Patrick Wallace, a 17-handicapper, fashioned an 11-under par 61 for a 24-under par total of 120. They had a two-shot lead over the field.

Using the Crosby format, the top ten teams qualified for Sunday's final round with the winning pro getting $5,000 and the amateur receiving merchandise.

Holmes downs Rotary

Erin Fry pitched a one-hitter as Holmes Sporting Goods slipped by Rotary, 9-8, Thursday in an American Little League baseball game.

Donnie Medley led Holmes hitting attack with three hits in three trips to the plate. Darin Jones went two for four.

Garet Scribner had Rotary's only hit.

Holmes now has a 3-8 record and will play Keyes Pharmacy Monday night.

A Top O' Texas Summer

So, you thought all the summer fun was out of town or in Amarillo.

Well, summer activities in Pampa and other surrounding communities prove that there's plenty of action right in our own back yard.

From Miami's National Cow Calling Contest the first week of June through Pampa's Labor Day Chautauqua festival and all the rodeos, homecomings and festivals in between, a Top'O Texas Summer is full of activities for all ages to enjoy.

So don't spend summer dreaming of places far, far away. Come experience the variety, beauty, history and, most of all, fun of a Top'O Texas Summer.

Rundown of Fun

JULY 8-10: The Top'O Texas Kid Pony Show, 7 p.m. at the Pampa Top'O Texas Rodeo Grounds.

JULY 11-13: The 39th Annual Top'O Texas Rodeo, Pampa Top'O Texas Rodeo Grounds. Dance featuring Joel Weaver and the Saturday Night Heros follows July 12 event while Vern Gosdin plays July 13. The Country Critters will perform at 7:30 nightly.

JULY 13: Top'O Texas Rodeo Parade, 10:30 a.m. Downtown Pampa.

JULY 25-27: White Deer Rodeo. Free Pit Barbecue begins at 5 p.m. July 25. Amarillo Sky Diving Club will present an air show on Rodeo Grounds at 7 p.m. with the rodeo to follow. Dance follows each rodeo with the bands to be announced. A parade will be held the afternoon of July 27.

JULY 26-28: Old Mobeetie Bluegrass Festival. Old Mobeetie Jail, one mile south of State Highway 152. Events to be announced.

AUGUST 3: Groom Day. Arts and crafts booths, bake sales, and volleyball tournament slated throughout the day with the parade "The Second 50 Years of Texas" scheduled for Saturday morning. Other events to be announced.

SEPTEMBER 2: Chautauqua. Arts and crafts booths, games, food and entertainment throughout the day. Festivities begin at 9 a.m. at Central Park.

Photos and story by Cathy Spaulding

SPILLS and CHILLS are in store at the annual Top'O Texas Rodeo, which features professional rodeo riders from across the country. Announcer for the three day event July 11-13 will be Oklahoma personality Clem McSpadden. Joel Weaver & the Saturday Night Heros will highlight a dance following the rodeo July 12 while Vern Gosdin will be featured at a dance July 13. The Country Critters band will perform at 7:30 nightly. (Photo by Ed Copeland)

SUITING UP — Professional and amateur cowboys from the area and across the country will be suiting up for a number of rodeos. Top area rodeos include Pampa's Top'O Texas Rodeo, the White Deer Rodeo, the XIT Rodeo in Dalhart, Canadian Rodeo and Clarendon Rodeo. The Annual McLean Rodeo and Ranch Horse Cutting Contest was held this week.

SUNSET VIEW — Sometimes one has to improvise to get the best view of the White Deer Rodeo, just like these youngsters had to do at the 1984 festivities. The 1985 rodeo will be July 5-27. A barbecue supper, featuring the famous kettle-brewed coffee and the best pit barbecue in the area, will precede the opening events. The rodeo will also feature a Saturday parade.

CUDDLY CRITTERS — One of the highlights of the 1984 Groom Days Celebration was the Groom Pet Show in which area youngsters display their favorite animals. Among the cuddly favorites at the pet show are bunnies and kittens, although puppies and ducks are also entered. The Groom Days celebration also includes cutting horse contests, volleyball tournaments, a pit barbecue and a parade.

MOBEETIE MUSIC — The twangs of banjos and the trill of fiddles will fill the air July 26-28 at the Old Mobeetie Bluegrass Festival. Bands from across Texas and Oklahoma meet at the historic Old Mobeetie Jail grounds to entertain travellers, residents and fans of that "pickin' and grinnin' music. The Mobeetie Volunteer Fire Department sponsors a concession stand.

- SOCIAL SECURITY NUMBER FOR MAJOR STOCK SHOWS
- Anyone wishing to exhibit an animal at a major stock show next year must have a Social Security number when you complete entry. This rule is for all species at all major stock shows.
- RECORD BOOK WORKSHOP
- A Record Book workshop will be held from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Friday at the Courthouse Annex.

At this day-long workshop, we will sit down with each 4-H'er and actually help with assembling your record book. We will have typewriters available and help you fill out your report forms if you need help.

You can come in anytime during the day at your convenience and we will help any way we can. We will also have a pizza party at lunch.

You will need to bring all of your 1984-85 project record forms to the workshop, as well as your project pictures for your picture story.

We still have many of your record forms at the office. You may get them when you come to the workshop. Record books will be due for county judging by 5 p.m. July 11.

STEER VALIDATIONS

Anyone planning to exhibit a steer at a major stock show next year needs to contact the County Extension office so we can make arrangements to validate your steer in the month of June.

Volunteers aid Red Cross's disaster relief

Numerous volunteers aided the American Red Cross, Pampa chapter, in their efforts to help those here who were affected by the unexpected hail storm on April 25. The storm has caused up to $7 million in damages.

Many of those whose homes were damaged in the storm were uninsured or under-insured, qualifying them for assistance from the American Red Cross Disaster Relief.

The program was able to provide funds to aid the victims, but it took the efforts of the many unselfish volunteers of the Red Cross and area to provide the work to repair the damage wrought by the fierce hail storm in a matter of minutes.

Those helping the Red Cross implement their relief plan include The Pampa Board of Realtors, who helped with the initial survey; Red Cross's Chapter Chairman Mike Keagey; Ted Gikas, Disaster Chairman; The First Methodist Church, which provided space for three weeks for the disaster headquarters; the amateur radio operators, Mark Buzzard, Jim Baker & Gene James; the news media, The Pampa News, K.G.R.O. and K.S.Z.N. Radio. Also volunteering help was the City of Pampa, Steve Vaughn, Pampa - Gray County Office of Emergency Management coordinator and former mayor Calvin Whitley.

Those assisting on the second survey included Vickie, Perry and Perry Lee Moose of Pampa. Children's volunteers were Lloyd and Janice Luck, Jim Moody, Julie Wright, Doris Teague and Phil Klapper.

National Red Cross staff and volunteers also giving their time to help the program include Joann Settle of Chicago, Ill., director of the Disaster Center and Operations; Paula Martin, Field Service Director Territory II, Amarillo and Wynona Tascott of Fort Worth. Also of the American Red Cross were Jan Bradford and Charlotte Thomezek of Arlington; Martha and Art Espersen of Panburn, Ark.; Jinny Johnson and Bill Jean, both of Amarillo.

Local volunteers who were trained for case work applications were Donna Reynolds, Brenda Hampton, Pat Bolton, Sharon Glasgow, Zonia Williams, Mickey St. Aubyn, Janice Carter, Peggy Nipper, Marjie Holland and Lillian Esson.

Those who assisted in registration were Gay Ammeter, Warren Hasse, Edna Chisum, Billie James, Agnes Brumfield, C.C. Davis, Neva Mackey, Margaret Nichols, Teresa Curfman, Ruth Hutchins, Edith Osborne, Marion Fugate and Irene Mullinax. Leona Walker worked in the local Red Cross office, assisting Joyce Roberts, chapter manager.

Mennonites who left their homes and farm to come to Pampa and assist in disaster repairs were Emery Kauffman, A.E. Becker, Clifford Brunan, Clayton Brunan, Ray Osborne, Bob Schooling and Ruben Karber, all of Perryton. Arriving from Dalhart were Gary Eicher, Gary Schmidt, Quinn Schmidt, and Donovan Nikkel. Randy Ratzlaff and Les Koehn came from Sedan, N.M. Mennonites who came from Thomas, Okla., were Paul Engle, Arlen Penner and Ronald Showalter. Also assisting were Larry Piece from Corn, Okla.; and Ricky Huebert from Weatherford, Okla. David Berger and Richard Berger of the Church of the Brethren at Wauka also volunteered their time for the relief program.

Those who worked on local work teams were organized and assisted by Darrell Nordene and Brian Hanson at Celanese Corporation; members of the Rotary Club were a part of this team. These local work teams include Doug Abernathy, Doug Coffee, Jerry Carlson, Don Lehman, Milo Carlson, Irwin Williams, Roy Sparkman, Cecil Basher, Johnny Snuggs, Mark Sherrod, Peter Berzanski, Peter Ackermann, Eddie Vic, Ed McGee and Le Roi Ogden.

A group from the Zion Lutheran Church also composed a team which included Bill Thomas, Bill Hammer, Tim Thomas, Orville Smith, J.M. Thompson, Hilmer Heinritz, Lane Shipman, Jay Mitchell and the Rev. Charles Paulson. B.B. Bearden and S.T. Friend worked many hours helping the hailstorm victims, also.

Local corporations and banks along with individuals and business clubs contributed to helping the victims of this hail storm. Included are The Golden K Kiwanas, Cabot Corporation, Celanese Corporation, First National Bank and Citizens Bank and Trust.

Many volunteer hours have been given by individuals such as Vickie Moose who did records and reports; Betty Casey, chapter treasurer, who has taken care of financial transactions; Janice Carter, volunteer chairman, who handled all volunteer scheduling. Bob Seagroves of Childress designed a special hail storm certificate.

The many hundreds of volunteer hours and more than $55,000 in Red Cross dollars have worked to put 189 families' homes in more livable condition following the April 25 storm.

Boss Night banquet set

The Pampa charter chapter of the American Business Women's Association will hold their annual Boss Night Banquet honoring the members' employers at First United Methodist Church Thursday at 7 p.m.

Connie Sitterly, assistant professor of mid-management at Amarillo College, is to be guest speaker at the banquet. Sitterly, a native of Pampa, graduated from Pampa High School in 1971. She earned an associate of arts degree from Frank Phillips College in 1973, a bachelor of science from West Texas State University in 1975 and a master of arts degree from WTSU in 1978. She is now working towards a PhD.

Sitterly instructs a "Women in Management" course at Amarillo College which she implemented in 1981. She is the instructor of four other courses, as well. One of the books authored by Sitterly, "The Promotable Woman" is the instructor's text used in the Women in Management course.

Sitterly has conducted numerous in-house training seminars, in addition to producing and authoring many training films on women in management topics such as assertiveness, negotiation, success strategies, time management and fast tracking.

Foster parenting: a dedication

By DEE DEE LARAMORE
Lifestyles Editor

Carlah Dauer was 20 years old when she saw a woman take a board and hit a little girl on the head. Never one to mince words, or actions, Dauer proceeded to get right in the middle of the altercation. She got hit with the 2x4, too.

But Dauer isn't bothered one bit to step in when she feels a child is being abused, used or neglected. In fact, she's aided 60 such children since that day she helped the little girl beaten with a 2x4.

Dauer didn't just intervene at the time of the beating. Steadfastly, she also went through the long, and sometimes frustrating, legal process it took to have the mother punished. And Dauer's not too shy to say that she's glad she did and would again.

A social worker friend often told Dauer that she would make a good foster parent. Eager to do what she could, she agreed. Her first foster children came to her before she was even licensed. The youngest was one day old. The father died in an auto accident and the mother died in childbirth after the wreck. There was a brother and a sister, too.

Today, Dauer and her husband Alvin have retired from foster parenting, but they encourage others to enter the field.

"The children we get are victims of circumstances that can't be helped," Dauer explained. "Some people get idea that the DHR (Department of Human Resources) take the children away from their parents. But what they want to do is help get a home for the children, get help for the parents, and then to get the children back into their home when the parents can cope. (The DHR) wants to help the parents as much as the children."

Children taken from the home by the DHR generally go back to their home in time, she said. "If the health of the child is in danger, though," Dauer said, "they will not return."

She emphasizes that foster children are not "hoodlums." They usually come from homes where "children are raising children," she said.

"When we take a child into our home, his eyes are so big and he's so scared — 'What's gonna happen to me?' he thinks; 'What are they gonna do to me,'" she explained. "They just steal your heart away."

"99 percent of the children are scared to death of everything when we first get them," Dauer said. "By the time they leave us, they're not afraid of anything."

"We teach them respect for things — but not to be afraid, she added. "I have a monster getter and a boogy man getter." The monster getter is a bottle of green liquid to spray under the bed or around the room when monsters lurk in the night. The boogy man getter is a broom that sweeps boogy men out of closets and other places where they might hide to scare little kids, she explained.

Once Dauer said she a little girl arrived who was so afraid at night that she would hunch in the center of her bed and shake all night long, even with all the lights left on. She heard the child crying one night about 3 a.m., so she went in to check on her.

"There's a big yellow tiger under my bed," the little one sobbed. "Make him go away."

So Dauer promptly got out her monster getter and proceeded to spray all under the bed, leaving the monster getter by the girl's bed so she could use it if needed. From that night on, the little girl would sleep well, as long as the monster getter was sprayed under her bed.

"They have such a vivid imagination," Dauer said. "It is so real to them."

"I think of the children as beautiful flowers popping up and making magnificent blooms: But some are mean little rats, too."

"Once in a while you're gonna get a street kid. Well, there's a way to handle them," Dauer recommended love and discipline — sometimes "tough love" for the hard to handle ones.

"But you have a right as a foster parent to say I don't want that child," she added.

"About 10 years ago, I got a little boy. I just didn't like him. I tried, but I realized, 'I'm doing him more harm than good,' so he went to a place where he would be happier. Just that one out of 60 kids, so that's not so bad," she said.

"Sure I got mad at them. And we would have the runners (the one who would run away), but I tried my best to work with them. I'd go to group therapy with them. And I make sure that there's always somebody at the door when they come home. We give them their own room, a clean bed and their own body's always here for them."

Interested?

If you are interested in sharing your home with foster children, call John Spradling at the Amarillo Department of Human Resources office, 358-6211, or call the Pampa DHR office at 665-1863.

"I've never had to whip a child. If they do wrong, I'll take something away from them, toys or privileges, and that has always worked. The kids are so thrilled to have someone care about them."

"When they first come, we have dinner out to get them used to us. We buy one little thing just for them. And I tell them that I'm not trying to be their mother. I explain that I'm just a stand-in until they can go back home to their mother."

Because of that explanation, one of Dauer's foster sons, Mike, started calling her "Mom 2," about 15 years ago. All her foster children have called her that since.

When Dauer first entered foster care at 20, an 80-year-old lady who had been a foster mother for years and years gave her some advice she has never forgotten — although it's been hard at times.

"All the rest of your life, always remember: help these kids to continue loving their parents," this wise woman told her.

"And you know, it's worked," Dauer said. "Especially when I get angry with the parents for what they've done to those children. But I have to step back and look at the parents and realize that they're hurting and they need help, too."

Dauer is glad, however, when her foster kids admit that they're angry at their parents. "I want them to say, 'I'm mad! I'm damn mad at my parents because they haven't treated me right,'" she explained. "All of the kids think 'It's my fault.' I was sexually abused, but it's my fault because... Well, they have to realize that it isn't their fault. And they have to admit that they're mad deep down inside. They have to let it out."

"There's a lot of kids holding their arms out, saying 'Help me. I don't have anybody that cares. I don't ask to be brought into the world and now nobody cares," she said.

"We are in desperate need all over the Panhandle for foster parents. Especially the grandmother and grandfather types. Why not share your home with them? I can tell you, it keeps you firm and thin!" she added, with a laugh.

Foster parenting has a honeymoon period that lasts for a few days, then the relationship has its ups and downs until it levels off, Dauer said. "Anyone who goes into foster parenting has to realize that they have to keep trying for at least 30 days. After that, they'll keep it up for 30 years."

"There's no money in it, she said. "We're luckier than most because the Lord's blessed us with a little more than most people." The state does pay an allotment for each child, but it is not always enough to cover some expenses like new clothes, she said. "Many of our kids have come to us with nothing more than just the shirts on their backs," Dauer added.

But she said the DHR has been extremely supportive of her during the years she has been a foster parent both in Kansas and in Texas. "I've called workers anytime, day or night, and they're always jumping to help out," she said.

"I'd like to see people around here form a committee to learn more about these kids. About why parents beat their children and why they can't stop it," she said.

Dauer said she wants to see people take a stand, as she did when she saw that mother beat a little girl with a 2x4 so many years ago. No longer does she want to hear parents say, "Not my kids," or "Not my friend. She wouldn't do something like that," she said.

"I get tears in my eyes when I see grandparents, friends, and neighbors see parents beat their children and not do one thing about it," she explained.

"It makes me so mad that we as humans don't have brains enough to stand up and say 'You're treating your child wrong,'" Dauer said with vehemence.

"There is so much more child abuse going on in our area that people would just open their eyes and see and quit saying 'I didn't want to get involved.' I wish the public would quit turning their backs on these children. Dogs have more rights than our children."

"I guess I'm lucky. I came from a real good home environment. My mother died when I was real young, so my grandmother raised me with my 16 aunts and uncles," she said. "This is what gives us a good outlook on life — how we're raised and taught."

"I don't believe in criticism. Anyone who is criticized all the time will grow up to criticize others. And this causes mental problems in their little minds. They don't know how to be normal. They want to, but they don't know how."

"We try to change that by loving them and setting boundaries for them. When they come to our house, they know that if you do something wrong, you're punished. You do your work, you do your chores, and you get rewarded. And most of all, we listen to them."

"When that door opens for them to leave, it tears your heart out," Dauer admitted. "But I have this good feeling because I know that they're going home or going to a place where they can be helped. Still it does not get easier with time. It's hard to explain. Every child is an individual to me."

But Dauer said she remains satisfied with what she is able to do for each foster child. "I know that I have put happiness in that child's life, even if for one day. I have a good feeling — they're going off better than when they came."

Mr. & Mrs. Irl M. Smith celebrate the 50th anniversary of both marriage and business today.

Smiths mark two 50th anniversaries

Irl and Irene Smith of Pampa are to be honored for two 50th anniversaries today with a reception from 2 p.m. to 3:30 p.m. in the parlor of the First United Methodist Church here.

The couple not only is celebrating their 50th wedding anniversary, but also their 50th year of partnership in the photography profession. They continue to own and operate Smith

Studio, which they purchased in 1939.

Hosting the event are the couple's children, Dwayne Smith and Rochelle Lacy, and grandchildren, Gail Threet, Glenna Martinez and Greg Wilkins.

The couple were also honored during an open house Saturday followed by a family covered dish dinner that evening in Lively Hall of the First United Methodist Church.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Smith have held numerous offices and participated on committees in photographic organizations. Both are past presidents of the Panhandle Photographers Guild and Mrs. Smith was the second woman to become president of the five-state Southwestern Photographers' Association during the organization's 50th anniversary year in 1970.

VACATION TIME. TAKE YOUR PULSE.

It is dark — late and you are five hundred miles from home. You are tired. The kids are cranky. And, your wife has had it!

Sooooooo, you pull the family fun wagon into the parking lot with the flashing 24-hour super saver motel sign. Ya get out . . . and you prepare to unload.

Oh no! No credit cards! No cash! And, they will not take an I.O.U. What, I say what are you going to do?

TAKE YOUR PULSE.

That's right. Your Pulse Card. That incredible little piece of plastic magic . . . good anywhere anytime for CASH. It doesn't cost you anything to own one . . . or use one.

It's a safety net man! A piece of personal insurance for times like these. And you can get one quick and easy at the Citizens Bank and Trust in Pampa.

So get your cash now. And, if you don't have a Pulse Card you'd better get one. Because all day on the road and all night in the wagon is not exactly what we mean by hot fun in the summertime.

Pulse Card good at any Pulse Card logo location.

County history book manuscript complete

More than 1,100 family stories are to be a part of the manuscript sent to Taylor Publishing Co. this week by the Gray County History Book Committee. An extensive history section about Gray County with feature stories on special events, landmarks, and people will be included in the book along with the family histories.

Those who did not submit a family story and picture may still be a part of the book if they wish to purchase a tribute, memorial or business page in the book. For further information on these special pages, call Bobbye Combs at 665-4728 or 665-1006.

Books may still be purchased until the final proofing in September. Gift certificates are also available.

The Gray County history book is a special project for the Texas Sesquicentennial in 1986. Volunteers have spent many hours in Lefors, McLean, Alanreed and Pampa interviewing and writing the copy. The book will be the combined efforts of many people who have worked hours and hours for several months in preparation of the manuscript.

Notice

Because of lack of space, The Pampa News was unable to run Dear Abby, Peeking at Pampa, and several of the news items submitted for Sunday. The columns and news stories will be run as quickly as possible, with those containing time elements to be run first. We regret any inconvenience to our readers.

Cut down slowly

Changing a diet and learning healthier eating habits is difficult. Usually it involves giving up familiar sweet, salt and "rich" flavors. Sugar, salt and fats contribute to weight and such other health problems as excess cholesterol and elevated blood pressure.

The best way to reduce your dependence on sugar, salt and fat-rich foods is to cut down on them gradually.

Anyone can change his eating habits. The more successful way is to do it in stages. This means lowering amounts of the mentioned ingredients each day until the essential level is reached; i.e., if you use 4 teaspoons of sugar in your coffee or tea, each day cut down this amount until you are using little or no sugar.

The best way to avoid the sweetness syndrome is to cut out sugar and not substitute sugar sweeteners

Gwinn M. Greenwood

Pvt. Gwinn M. Greenwood, formerly of Pampa, is now stationed with the 82nd Airborne Division of Fort Bragg, N.C. Pvt. Greenwood completed Advanced Infantry Training as an honor graduate on Feb. 14 in Fort Benning, Ga. He also received accelerated promotion to Private E-2 and a Mortar Gunnery award. On March 7, he received his Airborne Wings after completing three weeks in paratrooper school at Fort Benning. Pvt. Greenwood is the son of the Rev. and Mrs. Jack Greenwood of Bowie. His sister, Mrs. Toni Helton, is a Pampa resident.

Latricia Caye Anderson of

Wheeler was named to the President's Honor Roll at Southwestern Oklahoma State University of Weatherford, Okla. A grade of "A" in 15 semester hours of work taken during that time results in the student being named to the President's List. Anderson was among 95 students accomplishing this.

Angela West
Angela West, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William D. West of Pampa, is recipient of the $225 Willard M. Kirkpatrick Scholarship from the Texas Tech University College of Education. The scholarships are funded through endowments and the College of Education.

Stephen Bruce Glover
The spring 1985 Dean's Honor List at Wayland Baptist University in Plainview includes Stephen Bruce Glover of Pampa. Glover, a senior, posted a 4.0 grade point average for the recently completed term.

Michael J. Ford

WYLIE & CLEO DAVIS

Davises to be honored on 60th anniversary

Wylie J. and Cleo Davis of Pampa are to be honored June 23 with a 60th wedding anniversary reception in the Optimist Club, 601 E. Craven. The come-and-go event will be from 3 p.m. to 5 p.m. Hosting the reception are the couple's nine children.

Wylie Jackson Davis and Rush Cleo Barry married on June 18, 1925 in Mangum, Okla. They have lived in Pampa since 1954, having previously lived in Mobeetie and Levelland. In addition to their nine children, they have 23 grandchildren and 19 great grandchildren. Mr. Davis is a retired carpenter. Mrs. Davis is a homemaker.

Their children are Cleta Trimble, Wylene Lee, Joy Haynes, James Davis and Melvin Davis, all of Pampa; Nellie Williams of Sudan; Aaron Davis and Sharon Brown of Austin and Glenda Pecka of Tucson, Ariz.

For Horticulture

By JOE VANZANDT
County Extension Agent

Sick Plant Clinic and Pressure Canner Gauge Testing will be Wednesday from 2 p.m. to 6 p.m. in the Pampa Mall.

The Sick Plant Clinic will assist home gardeners by diagnosing sick plants, soil, or insect problems. Anyone with problems relating to diseases, insects, soil fertility, gardening and general landscape plants are invited to bring sick or troubled specimens to the informal clinic. There will be three Texas Agricultural Extension Service specialists on hand to assist and council homeowners with problems. The specialists will include Dr. Bob Berry, Plant Pathologist, Dr. Michael Hickey, Soil Chemist, and Dr. Carl Patrick, Entomologist.

In addition, persons planning to do home food preservation may bring their pressure canner lids with geared (dial) gauges to be tested by Donna Brauchi, County Extension Agent. The service requires only the canner lid and takes approximately ten minutes maximum. The Extension Service recommends that pressure canner gauges be tested each year for accuracy. Donna will also answer any questions relative to food preservation - canning, freezing, jelly making, pickling, or drying. Extension food preservation publications will also be available.

All of these services will be provided free of charge and on a come-and-go basis.

ORNAMENTAL INSECTS
Homeowners should begin to check ornamentals for small bagworms. Bagworms are easily controlled if insecticides are applied while worms are very small and feeding actively.

The first generation of elm leaf beetles should be controlled at this time. Additional generations will occur through the remainder of the summer that will also warrant control.

Spider mites are also infesting some of the evergreen shrubs and trees at this time.

In general, homeowners need to make frequent checks of their landscape plantings for the presence of various insect or disease problems that might be developing. Many times an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure.

PLANT OF THE MONTH - Lonicera sempervirens - Coral Honeysuckle, Trumpet Honeysuckle, Woodbine

The orange and coral whorls of two lipped flowers set this honeysuckle apart from its kin. Coral honeysuckle is native over much of Texas and can often be found winding its way up the trunk of a mesquite or other tree.

Foliage is evergreen and bluish-green in color. Although easily grown, L. sempervirens does not normally become an invasive pest.

Please see "Horticulture," page 23.

Homemakers News: food preservation

By DONNA BRAUCHI
County Extension Agent

Summer always brings to mind fresh fruit and vegetables. Many of you may decide to freeze, can, dry or make into jellied product some of the available produce. If this is your decision - here are some points to consider.

Good quality food is of utmost importance. Remember that the end product is no better than the food you use. Select fruit and vegetables that are in top condition. Produce that is not ripe should be set aside to ripen.

There are three common ways to preserve food at home - canning, freezing, and drying. Freezing is quick and easy, but you have to pay to keep the freezer running all year. Canning costs little but involves a lot of hot, heavy work. Drying is relatively inexpensive, but is very time-consuming and not suited to every kind of food.

Before selecting a preservation method, consider the amount of time and money you are willing to invest. Taste is another major factor to consider. Plan to preserve food in a form that you and your family will eat. In recent studies, canning is the most economical form of food preservation. Drying runs about two to four cents higher per pound than canning. Freezing is the most expensive method, usually requiring approximately 25 cents to freeze and preserve a pound of food for a year. Frozen food tastes the closest to fresh. It can be steamed or stirfried to retain a crisp texture. Canning lends itself to foods that you would normally cook thoroughly, like stewed tomatoes. Dehydrated foods have limited acceptability. Dried diced vegetables and dried fruits and leathers are the most appealing dried foods.

USDA recommended instructions for home canning, freezing, drying, jelly making, and pickling may be obtained from the Gray County Extension Office free of charge. Also available upon request is help with food problems. A "hands-on" workshop on canning and freezing will be offered Tuesday, July 30. Reservations will be required.

If home canning is in your plans, now is the time to check equipment. Pressure canners are necessary for processing all non-acid vegetables and other non-acid foods. Pressure canners are equipped with a dial or weighted gauge.

Dial gauges should be tested at least once a year. These gauges can be tested in the County Extension Office free of charge by appointment. Just bring in your canner lid and it will take 10 to 15

MOTION SICKNESS
If there is one thing that can put a crimp in traveling plans, it is motion sickness. If you suffer from motion sickness, you can now rest your mind and your stomach. An old and effective drug is now back in an easy-to-use form. Scopolamine is packaged inside a dime-sized disk that is placed just behind the ear. The self-adhering disk should be applied approximately four hours before beginning an activity that may cause motion sickness. The drug releases at a steady rate for approximately three days and remains in place even through showers and swims. Available by prescription only, the disk is intended for use by adults.

All prescription items, over the counter remedies, convalescent aids and a wide selection of greeting cards are available at B&B PHARMACY. Learn for yourself why your friends and neighbors already rely on us. We are located at Ballard and Browning, 665-5788. Special discounts available for senior citizens and free city wide delivery is provided. Open: Mon.-Fri. 9-6, Sat. 9-4.

The motion sickness disk can cause mouth dryness and drowsiness as side effects.

minutes or less. Also, canner gauges may be tested at the Pampa Mall on Wednesday, July 19, from 2:00 to 6:00 p.m.

Pressure canners are an expensive piece of equipment to purchase new. However, they do last a lifetime (or longer) and just need proper storage and maintenance and occasional replacement of gaskets, gauges, handles, or other parts. Many times pressure canners can be purchased at good prices at garage sales, flea markets, or auctions. Be sure to check these for excessive rust and cracks. Even very old canners can be very serviceable - so don't pass them up. Do be sure and have gauges tested on old or new canners.

If you plan to can fruits, fruit juice, tomatoes, tomato juice, rhubarb, pickled vegetables, and process jams and preserves - you need a water bath canner. Any large kettle with straight sides, a tight-fitting lid and a rack to keep the jars off the bottom of the kettle can be used for a water bath canner. It should be deep enough to hold the jars upright and permit the water to boil gently 1 to 2 inches over the top of them.

DO NOT USE the following canning methods: open kettle; oven canning; microwave canning; some acidification methods of low-acid vegetables; and canning powders, compounds, or antibiotics. Always use reliable canning instructions based on USDA recommendations. For answers to any of your food preservation questions, contact the County Extension Office.

Women of the Moose enroll members

The Women of the Moose, chapter no. 1163, held their regular enrollment meeting on June 11. Senior Regent Venita Fisher presiding with the Green Cap Ways & Means Committee, Diane Williams chairman, as hostesses.

The following new members were welcomed to the defending circle: Pam McNeeley sponsored by Diane Williams, Diana Franks sponsored by Edie Young, and Imogene Melton sponsored by Betty Alexander.

All members are asked to mark their calendars for the Moose Picnic on June 30 and the Women of the Moose International meeting in Atlanta, Ga., on July 21-27. The next business meeting is scheduled June 25.

MR. & MRS. FRANK BARNETT

Barnetts to celebrate 40 years of marriage

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Barnett are to be honored today on their 40th wedding anniversary in the parlor of the First Baptist Church of Pampa. Hosting the event are Mr. and Mrs. Allen Barker, Mr. and Mrs. Larry Linder and Mr. and Mrs. Clark Vencill. The couple were married on June 15, 1945.

Horticulture

Best uses seem to be on walls and trellises where support can be provided for the twining stems. Chain link fences can be made more private and attractive with the addition of this spring flowering vine. One of the restored early Texas homes at Winedale in central Texas has a large trellis of L. sempervirens several feet from the end of the front porch to provide protection from the west sun. We have seen the plant in numerous old Texas gardens where it was probably collected from the wild and brought into cultivation.

Culture is uncomplicated with the main requirement being partial or full sun. Few flowers are produced when grown in the shade. Moderately good garden soils will produce excellent results with this undemanding vine.

Propagation is usually by cuttings. Layering is easily done at most any season by injuring a stem and placing it beneath the soil with a rock or brick to keep it in place.

Availability is unpredictable.

Astro-Graph

by bernice bede oso!

June 17, 1985

Ways and means will present themselves in the year ahead to enable you to do more traveling for fun than you have been able to do in quite some time. You're not apt to go back to the same place twice. GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Anxieties and doubts regarding someone you hope to impress are unfounded. In fact, you will be a smashing success. Major changes are ahead for Gemini in the coming year. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail $130, Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Madame Fortune will look upon you favorably in your financial dealings today, provided you don't press your luck too far. Use your common sense.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Don't have preconceived negative opinions regarding your social activities today. What you think may be a bumner could turn out to be fun.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You're apt to be luckiest today in arrangements where you are not involved with people with whom you have strong emotional ties. Maintain your objectivity.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Early indicators may make it appear as if the odds are stacked against you today. However, these conditions will rapidly change for the better.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Tenacity has its merits, but today you will find that being a bit flexible at the proper time will work out better for you than trying to adhere to a rigid line.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) People you associate with today might not comply with the standards you establish for yourself. Don't lower yours just to appease them.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your material prospects look encouraging today. Something you've been working on that has been a financial drain will start showing a profit.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Try to play life as if it were a game today, regardless of the circumstances. You could be exceptionally lucky in matters where you don't let your self feel overwhelmed.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Have faith in your abilities today to make things ultimately come out to your satisfaction. Once you envision positive results, you'll take the right measures.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) A friend who has been lucky for you still has the same magic. Today he or she will help correct a negative development.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Profit is a possibility in an enterprise where you operate independently. However, the opposite might be true in joint involvements.

POSTAL EXAM WORKSHOP
CLERK-CARRIER (Starting Pay: $9.20/hr)

Special announcement for all candidates planning to sign up for the Clerk-Carrier Exam at the Pampa Post Office as well as many other Post Offices in the 790 Zip Code Area when it is announced. (Last given in 1983 — and since it won't be offered again for at least 3 years, don't miss out!)

4-HOUR WORKSHOP
Score 95-100% or Your Tuition is Refunded!

Now is the time to prepare. The pressure is on to score as high as possible to get the Job. Career Postal Workers will now earn a starting salary of $18,532 plus benefits — with an accelerated step increase plan; men and women, regardless of age, are eligible. The first step toward a postal service career is getting your name onto the "Register of Eligibles," which is accomplished by passing this Exam. To be one of the first hired, you need to get one of the higher scores! And to be hired at all during the next three years, you will need to score at least 95%.

This workshop is being offered now, prior to the formal announcement of the examination dates, to give you adequate time to prepare for the test. Many post offices begin testing within a week of the announcement which isn't enough time to prepare properly. By starting now, you'll be ready to attain high scores using our methods when the test is given.

Come to the workshop. If you don't feel, at the end of the course, that it will help you achieve a score of 95% or better, we will immediately refund your tuition in full!

WANT TO RELOCATE? We are the publishers of The Postal Alert, the bi-monthly newsletter giving you postal exam dates nationwide. Only The Achievement Center provides this service. Learn how you can relocate to any area of the country you please.

- You are invited to bring your tape recorder to record the workshop for personal use review.
- You may attend as many extra sessions of the workshop as you like (on a space available basis) without additional tuition charge.

WORKSHOP TUITION — $40 (includes guaranteed 4-hour Workshop, Workshop Workbook, ANNOUNCEMENT WITH SIGN-UP DATES MAILED TO YOUR HOME. Follow-up consultation privileges, Achievement Award to high-scorers and Practice Kit containing Six Additional Practice Exams with Answers, Memory Test Flash Cards, and "Simulated Exam" on cassette tape). Please bring two No. 2 pencils with you to the Workshop. BRING THIS AD WITH YOU to receive a FREE copy of our new booklet "12 Important Steps for Getting Hired into the U.S. Postal Service." Seating is limited, pre-registration by phone is advised. Otherwise, you may register by arriving thirty minutes early. Tuition is payable at the door by cash, check, money order, MasterCard, VISA or American Express.

Student clown aims at doctoral degree

By ELLEN ROSSINI
Richardson Daily News
RICHARDSON, Texas (AP) — "The fool doth think he is wise; but the wise man knows himself to be a fool."
So quotes (from Shakespeare's King Lear he thinks) Kimbo the Clown, alias University of Texas at Dallas student Langston James Goree VI.
The ironies abound: The 31-year-old Dallas entertainer graduated cum laude from the University of Texas at Dallas this spring, and he plans to juggle more books and classes than colored balls this summer, when he will begin a master's program in interdisciplinary studies at UTD.
Eventually the clown who has entertained at children's birthday parties and adult nightclubs in Dallas for 10 years hopes to get a doctorate and teach at a university.
After 12 years of on-and-off attendance, including a 21-hour sprint last semester, Goree earned his bachelor's degree in general studies, for which he combined classes in philosophy, psychology and Latin America.
"Some people need the structure of a university occasionally to return to an organized way of learning," said Goree, who spends six months a year traveling and entertaining in Central and South America. "There's something nicely structured about a university that shines up your habits."

And, he added, "we do live in a credentialed society."
Goree said students at UTD, where most work full-time and are around 30 years old, do not ask general studies majors, "How are you going to get a job with that?"
"Going to school to learn a trade is simply an unrealistic goal," he said. "You should go to school to learn to learn — something that's going to carry you through for the rest of your life."
Goree kept his clown identity in the closet while on campus, but some people picked up on his nickname, the Hawaiian name for "James," which he was dubbed upon birth in a Hawaiian hospital.
Goree grew up in California and after he did not get accepted into Stanford University, he turned to street comedy and eventually clowning and acting. He has had roles in the 1977 Ron Howard movie Cotton Candy and opposite LeVar Burton in the movie Acorn People with Cloris Leachman.
A descendant of a companion and compatriot of Sam Houston, he came to Texas, the home of his father, in 1974.
Goree, named Best Clown Act in 1981 by D magazine, said he likes Dallas audiences.

"California audiences say 'Oh, I've seen it all.' New York audiences say 'I dare ya. Just try to make me laugh.' Texas audiences say, 'Well, I ain't never seen anything like that in mah life.'"
Goree said he prefers children to adult audiences, because children still believe in the magic of clowns.
The former "dynamics director" for Confetti's, he has become disillusioned after being mistreated by drunks, he said.
"I don't drink, I don't smoke, I don't stay up late at night. Why should I entertain people who do?" he said. "Entertaining goes two ways: They watch you, you watch them."
Clowning has come in handy in his international travels, including a trip to Nicaragua in 1980.
Goree attended a demonstration in Managua, where his blond hair and blue eyes stood out in a crowd of thousands of Nicaraguans.
"The (Sandinistas) took me into custody and transported me over to a Sandanista guard house, where they kept me for several hours and interrogated me and accused me of being a spy for the CIA," he said.
"I was floored, and I'm thinking, 'How in the hell am I going to get out of this one?'"
Finally, the officials searched his bag, where they found balloons to make animals out of, juggling balls and his hand puppet, Wally the koala bear.

"They said, 'What is this?' 'It's my koala bear, Wally.' They said, 'Get out of here. You are a clown. CIA agents don't carry koala bears in their luggage.' So it got me out of that situation."
Goree hopes the clowning will help in a classroom situation as well.
"I think my entertainment skills would help me be a good teacher," he said. "If I could get people in the classroom excited about some of the things I've learned, I'd love to do that."

Motorists may find their perfect match

DALLAS (AP) — A new dating service has the answer for motorists who are struck with Cupid's arrow while on the road.
When a commuter spots an attractive stranger across a crowded freeway, he can now call on a new dating service, the Freeway Connection, for help in making a connection.
Subscribers put a 4-inch sticker bearing a four-digit code number and the Freeway Connection phone number on their rear windows. People attracted to the subscriber send a letter and picture to the service.
The service then forwards the mail to the subscriber, who decides whether or not to respond to the overture.
"If someone sends you a letter and you want to meet that person, you just call them. If not, throw the letter in the trash," said Shauri Darr, one of the service's founders.
Ms. Darr, 36, and Walt Madison, 45, said they started their new venture a few weeks ago after reading about a similar service in Southern California. They say it can be hard to meet people in Dallas.
"For people over 30, it's difficult to meet people in this city. If you don't hang out in bars, it's real difficult," Ms. Darr said.
Ms. Darr and Madison say their service is safer than singles bars and better than personal ads. Where ads are a sight unseen proposition, Freeway Connection provides a preview of the prospective date, she said.

"You get to see them, what kind of car they drive and how they dress," she said.
