White House reportedly advised Contra fund raisers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House gave advice — at least initially — to individuals involved in private fund-raising for Nicaraguan rebels despite a public stance that it doesn't encourage or discourage those efforts, according to sources.

The government and private sources, who spoke on condition they not be identified, also said the White House did not discourage offers from several friendly governments to funnel aid to the Contra

But, according to these sources, the Reagan administration has adopted an arms-length relationship with the fund-raising efforts since last fall, when Congress passed a ban on U.S. aid that would have the effect of supporting, directly or indirectly, military or paramilitary operations in Nicaragua.

That language, the most recent of a series of Nicaraguan restrictions sponsored by Rep. Edward P. Boland, D-Mass., is a principal target of current administration proposals in Congress to resume CIA aid to the Contras.

One source, familiar with the administration handling of private Contra aid, said White House efforts to encourage and coordinate that support began in early 1984 as Congress turned increasingly hostile to the CIA's backing of the rebels

The source said that beginning last July, at least three countries approached the White House and volunteered to provide aid to the Contras. He said one was an Asian country, but he refused to identify any of them

They came to the U.S. to make sure we had no objection to it," the source said, adding that the White House welcomed the offers but provided no 'quid pro quo' to reward the nations for giving the help. He also said the White House estimated that outside support would total about $11 million this year, and thus agreed to scale back its 1985 request to Congress to $14 million.

The source said the National Security Council staff handled contacts with private groups, including the World Anti-Communist League, a conservative organization headed by retired Maj. Gen. John K. Singlaub.

Singlaub, who resigned from active duty in 1978 after publicly criticizing then-President Carter's plan to withdraw forces from South Korea, said the league's international network and other fund sources raise about $500,000 a month for the

In recent interviews with The Associated Press, Singlaub said that amount was enough for the rebels to continue "surviving" but prevented them from becoming a greater threat to the leftist Nicaraguan government

Singlaub said that a year ago, when he started his fund-raising effort, he would receive advice on the Contras' military needs and an occasional briefing from the NSC staff. The former general said his chief contact was Lt. Col. Oliver L. North, an NSC deputy director for political-military affairs.

But now, Singlaub said, North has been "pretty much immobilized by this idiotic amendment" prohibiting even indirect help for the Contras.

NCS spokeswoman Karna Small said North and other council officials would not comment on the question of a White House connection to the private

The CIA spent about $80 million training and organizing the estimated 15,000 rebels from 1981 until a year ago when Congress cut off the aid. Last week, the Republican-controlled Senate voted to let the CIA ship $38 million in non-lethal aid to the rebels and the House is slated to consider a similar

Von Bulow acquitted

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) -Claus von Bulow was found innocent today of twice trying to murder his heiress wife with insulin injections, more than three years after jurors in his first trial convicted him on the same

The verdict followed about 14 hours of deliberations over four days. The jurors had deliberated just one hour and five minutes today before informing the judge that they had reached a verdict.

Von Bulow's lover, Andrea Reynolds, burst into tears on hearing the verdict.

Chief defense attorney Thomas P. Puccio had said he expected a verdict today and that he was confident of acquittal, based on the jury's review of testimony.

The verdict was announced to a standing-room-only crowd in Providence Superior Court. The trial had been moved from Newport, where the von Bulows maintained a vacation home, to keep from clogging the court system there

A jury found von Bulow guilty on both attempted-murder counts after six days of deliberation in March 1982, but the convictions were overturned by the Rhode Island Supreme Court last year on state constitutional grounds.

Von Bulow, 58, a Danish-born aristocrat, had been charged with injecting Martha "Sunny" von Bulow with the sugar-regulating hormone during Christmas 1979 and 1980 visits to the family's Newport mansion. Mrs. von Bulow recovered from the first coma, but doctors say the second is irreversible.

The jurors in his retrial received the case on Friday. They worked through the weekend, and spent two hours in the courtroom Sunday as the court stenographer read passages from the trial transcript they requested the day before, focusing on the black bag the state says contained needles and insulin.

Drilling ordinance will top agenda at first night meet

An ordinance permitting the drilling of oil wells in the Tumbleweed Addition will be considered by the Pampa City Commission at its regular meeting Tuesday evening.

Tomorrow will mark the first evening session for the commission under an ordinance changing the time for the regular meetings. The commissioners will meet at 6 p.m. in the City Commission Room at City Hall.

Triple J Oil Co. has requested a Specific Use Permit for the drilling of three wells in the addition. located at Price Road and Kentucky

At public hearings before the Planning and Zoning Commission and the city commission, the drilling proposal has drawn protests from JR Development. Inc., surface land owners, and from nearby residents concerned with health and safety aspects of the drilling operations.

The zoning commission recommended the city deny the permit for health and safety reasons

City ordinances permit the drilling of wells within city limits in the Commercial District zoning area for the addition, City Manager Bob Hart has noted.

Hart said the city can place restrictions on the drilling to ensure health and safety matters for nearby residents in the area. He has been studying ordinances from other cities to see how they have handled drilling operations inside city limits

The city staff has submitted a proposed ordinance to grant the Specific Use Permit for the two proposed wells and for one the oil company drilled in 1981 after the land had already been annexed into the city. That well was drilled without a permit from the city.

The ordinance would establish standards the company must meet for the drilling to be allowed. Included in the proposal are such requirements as a distance of 150 feet from any residential or commercial structure, enclosure by a fence, attractive landscaping, steel slush pits and a watchman on duty at times when no workers are present at the sites.

Triple J has had lease rights on the property since the 1930s and has a number of wells drilled on property south of the annexed

In other matters, the commissioners will consider a resolution authorizing an agreement between the city and the State Highway Department for the installation of three improved traffic signal lights.

The improved lights will be installed at Hwy. 70 and Kentucky, U.S. Hwy. 60 and Cuyler, and U.S.

60 and Barnes The commission also will consider an agreement to sell surplus water from Lake Meredith to Lubbock and the nomination of three persons for the Gray County Appraisal District Appraisal Review Board

Commissioners also will consider returning funds held in trust by the city to the Pampa Softball Players Association for the construction of restroom and concession facilities at Hobart Street Park.

Under old business, the commission will consider two on final reading two zoning ordinances relating to the Wilcox Addition and the NBC Plaza Addition

The commission will consider on first reading an ordinance annexing a tract of land northeast of the Coronado Medical Complex Also to receive first reading is an ordinance relative to a zoning change from Agriculture to Retail District for the Morgan Addition, located in the tract to be annexed.

In other business. commissioners will consider adopting the Pampa Deferred Compensation Program for city employees and approving accounts

In his report session, Hart will discuss the Lake Meredith Salinity Control Project, a June 18 workshop, departmental reports and a Texas Municipal League

U.S. to match Soviet actions on SALT pact

WASHINGTON (AP) -President Reagan has informed Mikhail Gorbachev of his decision on compliance with the unratified Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty, White House spokesman Larry Speakes said today

Reagan is expected to announce later in the day that he will largely adhere to the nuclear arms control pact, but also take selective action to show America will match any Soviet violations of the accord.

Reagan, after weighing numerous options for keeping to or rejecting the accord over the weekend at his Camp David, Md., retreat, planned to inform congressional leaders of his decision at midday, Speakes said. Members of the National Security Council staff were to make phone calls detailing the decision, he said.

"Also, a letter from President Reagan went to (Communist Party) Chairman Gorbachev,' Speakes said, adding that it would be delivered in Moscow through diplomatic channels. He said copies also were sent to U.S. embassies in allied countries and would be delivered today.

Speakes refused to comment on details of the president's decision, saying only that Reagan had informed Gorbachev of it.

An administration official, who spoke on condition he not be identified, said the president was ready to approve a policy of "proportionate responses" in order to keep the pact technically alive, yet also show that the United States is able to react to reported Soviet violations of the treaty.

"It's to go in the direction of showing some kind of restraint, but also include a proper response (to the Soviets) on the part of the United States," the official

The "proportionate responses," he said, involve the dry-docking and postponing the dismantling of a Poseidon nuclear submarine, as well as speeding up the development of the Midgetman missile The six-year-old treaty places a ceiling of 1,200 missiles with multiple warheads on each side. The United States would exceed the limit later this year when a new Trident submarine, the Alaska goes on sea trials carrying 24

Dry-docking the Poseidon would keep the United States under the missile limit, but such a procedure is "costly and non-productive," the official said, so another task might be found for the submarine once its missiles were removed. Usual procedure in the past has called for dismantling such a submarine six months after being taken out of

Also, the testing of only one new land-based intercontinental missile is allowed under the pact. The United States has begun testing the controversial 10-warhead MX missile. Therefore, the single-warhead Midgetman would represent a second such weapon. but it is not expected to be ready for testing for about two years.

Neither action on the Poseidon or the Midgetmans is believed by administration officials to amount to a full-fledged violation of the 1979 treaty.

Between the hours of 6 p.m. on Friday, April 5, and 8 a.m. Saturday, April 6, a burglary occurred at Brown's Shoe Store, 216 N. Cuyler, in Pampa

An unknown person or person pried open the back door of the business with an unknown instrument and entered the building, taking 25 to 30 pairs of shoes and boots of various brand names, a large number of Green Stamps, a stereo system and speakers, a calculator and clock. Total loss in the burglary was approximately $3,500.

Crime Stoppers of Pampa will pay $1,000 for information leading to the arrest and indictment of the person or persons responsible for this crime.

Baptists brace for 'big shootout' in Dallas

DALLAS (AP) - Feuding Southern Baptists trooped into this city today for what some are calling the "big shootout" - a battle between rival camps over control of the country's biggest branch of Protestantism.

Their confrontation comes on the convention's opening day Tuesday, pitting insurgent fundamentalists against moderates in a fight for the denomination's presidency and its immense appointive powers

An unprecedented outpouring of congregational 'messengers' from across the nation — at least 30,000 - is expected for the affair. It was preceded by a round of preaching and prayer at today's pastor's conference.

The convention caps a year of political-style, often harsh campaigning in a conflict marked by suspicions, finger-pointing, spying and accusations of distortions and lying.

"We're in such a mess that only God can get us out of it." says the Rev. James Pleitz of Dallas.

Seeking to avoid what some have figuratively termed a "wholesale bloodbath," the heads of state Baptist conventions today were to put finishing touches on a proposed mediation plan. But it was considered too late, barring an upset of the scheduled agenda, to avoid the collision facing the 14.3 million-member denomination.

Fundamentalists, a strictly conservative element in the generally conservative denomination, charge a "liberal drift" from the Bible in national church agencies and institutions and want it purged.

Moderates, denying any such tendency, call the charge a smokescreen for a political power drive to crush the Baptist heritage of individual freedom in interpreting the Bible and to impose creedal

"If it isn't stopped this year, the takeover will be complete," says the Rev. Larry McSwain, a professor at Southern Baptist Theological Seminary in Louisville, Ky.

The Rev. W.A. Criswell, fundamentalist pastor of Dallas's First Baptist Church, told an overflow crowd of more than 5,000 Sunday that unnamed foes are questioning the Bible's "full scientific and historical accuracy.

"God who made the universe wrote the book," he Afterward, he treated droves of visitors to a Texas-style barbeque, a regular fixture of Texas political rallies.

In the key election, fundamentalists are boosting the incumbent and one-time Moral Majority leader. the Rev. Charles Stanley of Atlanta, who contends a liberal taint in seminaries is undermining faith of seminaries where they "come out believing what those professors believe and teach," he says. Stanley's own daughter and son attend a seminary outside the denomination.

It's questionable whether students should go to

The Rev. Winfred Moore, an Amarillo pastor and president of the Texas Baptist convention, is backed by moderates for the top office.

Although he says he's often kidded about being such an "arch conservative" about the Bible, he says he has never credited the fundamentalist accusations of biblical liberalism among Southern

'I don't agree with some of them, but it doesn't occur to me just because I don't agree with them, that they don't believe the Bible," he said. The denominational presidency has major authority over national institutions and programs, appointing a committee that picks those naming trustees to 20 agencies, including six seminaries.

Fourth of septuplet infants dies

ORANGE, Calif. (AP) - Her grieving mother holding her as she died, Bonnie Marie Frustaci lost her 19-day fight against a lung ailment that killed two of her brothers and left just three tiny survivors of America's first septuplets.

'She was a fighter. I loved her so much," Patricia Frustaci said after her infant daughter died at 12:25 p.m. Sunday at Childrens Hospital of Orange County. "Bonnie Marie lasted a week longer than they gave her," the father, Samuel Frustaci, said in a statement released by the hospital. "She fought long and hard. I can honestly say she was a real fighter, possessed of tremendous spirit. She joins her brothers and sisters in heaven.

'We're not going to have to go 'through this ever again,' Frustaci vowed as he and his wife left the hospital. "I can guarantee it."

Delivered 12 weeks prematurely by Caesarean section on May 21, survivors Patricia Ann, Stephen Earl and Richard Charles continue to improve daily, said hospital spokesman Doug Wood. All three were listed in critical but stable condition. None of the infants weighs more than 2 pounds.

The Frustacis had kept a 24-hour vigil by Bonnie Marie's bed since Thursday, when doctors said the deaths of both Bonnie and brother James Martin were imminent. James Martin died that day

Bonnie Marie succumbed to "cardio-pulmonary failure and arrest due to severe hyaline membrane disease," Wood said. The ailment is common in premature infants, whose undeveloped lungs tend to collapse with each breath.

The same disease claimed the lives of James Martin and David Anthony, nicknamed "Peanut," who died on May 24 — 64 hours after birth. One girl, Christina Elizabeth, was stillborn

Frustaci said doctors told him Sunday morning that Bonnie Marie's condition had improved slightly, "then, not more than three hours later, they said she was

"They took off the monitors at 11 a.m. Her heart still beat for more than an hour." said Mrs. Frustaci, who had taken a fertility drug to aid conception

"There are not that many babes that continue to have a heartbeat when they don't have a lung," her husband said. Wood said it was not uncommon to detach monitors from infants who are beyond salvage. The monitors are removed so the baby can be in the parents' arms for few moments before the child is pronounced dead.

On Saturday, pop superstar Michael Jackson called Childrens Hospital to wish the Frustacis well and talk to doctors and nurses in the newborn intensive care unit. "He thanked them for caring for the Frustaci septuplets and said his prayers were with them," Wood

DAILY RECORD Lebanese militia kidnaps, later frees, U.N. officer

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) - An Israeli-backed militia seized and then released a French colonel who was trying to negotiate the release of 21 Finnish U.N. soldiers held by the group, U.N. officials said.

Meanwhile, Shiite Moslem militiamen turned heavy fire on Palestinians holed up in two Beirut refugee camps, killing 16, and other Moslem factions battled in the northern Lebanon city of Tripoli, police said.

U.N. spokesman Timur Goksel announced Sunday morning that the South Lebanon Army militia had taken Lt. Col. Jean-Michel Blemdjian hostage. The French U.N. officer, deputy chief of U.N. operations, had been sent Friday to negotiate with the mostly Christian militia.

Hours later, Goksel said the Frenchman had been freed unharmed in the village of Qantara and flown to the headquarters of the U.N. Interim Force in Lebanon,

The South Lebanon Army militia commander, retired army Brig. Gen. Antoine Lahd, said Sunday in the Israeli border town of Metulla that he ordered the release of the French officer. He called the seizure of the Frenchman "a mistake.'

Denktash is re-elected president

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) -Turkish Cypriot leader Rauf Denktash has been elected president of the breakaway mini-state in northern Cyprus which he declared independent of the island's Greek-speaking majority 18 months ago.

The Election Board announced today that the 61-year-old Denktash received 55,352 votes. or 70.5 percent of those cast in Sunday's election, defeating five opponents.

His chief rival, Ozker Ozgur, leader of the leftist Republican Turkish Party, received 18 percent

"The responsibility for the Turkish Cypriot cause is on my shoulders," Denktash said today in a brief victory speech. "I invite the opposition as well to work with me in this mission my people have Political analysts in the Turkish

Summer recreation now underway

By BOB HART

Pampa City Manager The Summer Reading Program "Awesome Adventures" is now underway at the Lovett Memorial Library, located at Houston and Foster. The program is open to children preschool through eighth program, which starts at 10 a.m. Wednesday with the movie "Raiders of the Lost Ark," shown in the library's auditorium. Other activities will include a karate demonstration, police and fire programs, and a secret space

Registration is continuing for the treasury contest. All programs will be on Wednesdays at 10 a.m. The Summer Reading Pr will be conducted by Laureen Nock, our new assistant librarian. Laureen has just moved from Garfield Heights, Ohio. She has a master's in library science degree and has lived in a diversity of areas, including Wisconsin.

England, Alaska, Hawaii and Italy. Her interests include needlework, gardening and, of course, reading. She has enjoyed the travel and experience of living in foreign countries but looks forward to settling down with her husband Nick and raising their two sons, Eric and Ryan. Nick and sons are busy setting up the house and exploring Pampa.

The library is now operating on its summer schedule: Monday and Thursday, 8:30 a.m. to 7:30 p.m.; Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday, 8:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., and Saturday, 8:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.

Our Clean-Up Campaign is still in Ward 3. We are behind schedule at the present time partly due to the rains, but primarily due to the large number of truckloads required. We have hauled 106 truckloads from Ward 3 in the past week and a half and expect to need another 20 to 30 loads before we can move on to Ward 4. Tomornow marks a change with our city commission meetings. Again, the regular commission meetings are on the second and fourth Tuesdays of each month; therefore, our regular meeting will be tomorrow, Tuesday, June 11.

But the meeting will be held at 6 p.m., which is our first evening meetingsunder the new ordinance time change. The meetings will be held in the City Commission Room on the second - the main - floor in City Hall.

I certainly encourage you to attend the city commission meetings.

If you are interested in what items will be discussed. The Pampa News provides an outline of what will be at the regular meeting in either the Sunday or Monday issue of the paper before each commission meeting.

An agenda is posted on the windows of all four doors coming into City Hall, and they are available for viewing at anytime for several days prior to the meetings. A packet also is placed in the Lovett Memorial Library for your inspection. The packet in the library is identical to what the city commissioners receive.

Naturally, if you have any questions concerning the meeting or any item on the agenda, please do not hesitate to call me at City Hall, 665-8481.

Shirley G. Stegner, 26, was arrested in Dallas Sunday and is being held in the Henderson County Jail in lieu of a $1 million bond, said sheriff's investigator Rick Rose

Her mother, Betty Branson Beets, is also in the East Texas jail on two murder charges and a $1 million bond, Rose said.

Mrs. Beets, 48, was arrested Saturday after a body believed to be Jimmy Don Beets, a Dallas Fire Department captain missing after an apparent boating accident in August 1983, was found buried under a homemade wishing-well garden outside her mobile home.

After finding Beets' body at about 6 p.m. Saturday, sheriff's officials uncovered a second body believed to be that of Mrs. Beets' ex-husband, Wayne Barker, a construction worker who had been missing since November 1982.

The second body was found nearby buried beneath a storage shed that relatives say Beets built. Although the cause of death hasn't been determined. both men had been shot with a small-caliber pistol

Henderson County Sheriff Charlie Fields said the bodies were found in the Cherokee Shores subdivision west of Cedar Creek Lake. He said the bodies were sent to a Dallas forensic laboratory for identification and other tests.

Rose, who has been investigating the case since Beets was reported missing, said discovery of the bodies climaxed an intensive six-week inquiry begun after an informant provided information about

'We looked where we were told to look, and the bodies were right there," Rose said, adding that he doesn't expect to find any more corpses near the burned-out mobile home.

While Rose said he has not established a motive in the killings, Henderson County Chief Investigator Jim Brewer said he believes Beets' death involved insurance payoffs

Brewer said Mrs. Beets was the sole beneficiary of insurance policies, several which paid $20,000 and one or two that paid $30,000.

"I've always contended he's (Beets) missing, Brewer said, "He was not in the lake, not in a boating accident.'

The sheriff's department spent 13 days dragging and diving into Cedar Creek Lake after Beets' pleasure boat was found floating empty Aug. 6. Authorities later assumed he drowned.

Brewer said Beets apparently died before the supposed boating accident. He said the body was stored in a deep-freezer before it was buried.

A fire which occurred at the Beets' mobile home last week is still under investigation by the state fire marshal's office, officials said.

DPS looks at humble start on agency's 50th birthday

HOUSTON (AP) — When the who graduated in the second class Texas Department of Public Safety started chasing down crooks 50 years ago, one of the biggest dangers was the means of pursuit, a retired DPS major recalls. "We were all riding motorcycles back then, and that was enough danger right there in itself. The roads weren't very good," said retired Maj. Glen Rose of Houston, of the State Highway Patrol in 1931. Rose, who was head of the DPS Houston office from 1955 until his retirement in 1969, said the department, now celebrating its 50th anniversary, tried to reintroduce motorcyles a few years ago. But the idea was abandoned after a trial period. Although the DPS was created by the Texas Legislature on August 10, 1935, its roots can be traced to 1927 when increasing truck traffic became a problem for the state.

In 1929, the License and Weight Section used 50 officers to create the State Highway Patrol. The DPS was organized in 1935 to incorporate crime prevention (the Texas Rangers) and traffic control (the highway patrol).

IBM purchases trigger land boom

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) - A land boom has been triggered along Texas Highway 114 by plans by International Business Machines Corp. to build an office complex on 1,055 acres of land near the Tarrant-Denton County line. IBM has purchased the land in Westlake, Southlake and Trophy Club in northeast Tarrant County.

The 4 million square feet of office space in the complex would be more space than is now available Bedford. The cities now have 3.3 million square feet together, according to a survey by the Swearingen Co., a Fort Worth commercial real estate firm.

Area business executives predict that establishment of the IBM complex will attract other major corporations to the Highway 114 corridor in the same way that comapnies have congregated along Interstate 635 and Central Expressway in Dallas, the Fort

"That area (where IBM has made the purchases) might seem like it's out in the country, but it's not going to be out in the country much longer," said Mike Skaggs, executive vice president of the Hurst-Euless-Bedford Chamber of Commerce.

Land prices jumped wildly along Texas 114 three years ago when IBM began buying parcels of land. In 1982, land along Texas 114 sold

Eliminate needless words

The world is already swimming in words and we keep creating more all the time

And that's added to the verbiage Americans borrowed from other languages and cultures. Lifestyles generate the need for different terms. Before the 1960s, who would have thought up "miniskirt?"

Along the same line, society stole the name of an island, Bikini, and turned it into the name of a swimsuit. Changing times also led to the creation of the monokini, a further amalagamation.

Then there's brunch: we took a little breakfast and a little lunch and created a whole new meal - and a word. Our advancing technology is a source of new words and phrases.

The space age gave us scientific terms that quickly became household words

While our heads still were spinning from "astronautese," the computer generation arrived. Technicians put the "byte" on us, and suddenly everyone was "interfacing" about "glitches" in the

There's always room for a new vocabulary. Just pile on words we always can find a way to use, or misuse, them.

Anyone who has a closet, store room or garage knows the Law of Accumulation. Briefly stated, that law says any empty space eventually will overflow. There's a sub-law that states no one ever will be able to find the right item - or word - in all that clutter.

Maybe it's time for us to rid ourselves of a few words and phrases They don't have to be thrown on the junk heap, merely shelved Should we ever need to retrieve a discard, we can go hunting for it the equivalent of rummaging through a drawer for that hacksaw we haven't needed for years.

A flip to a dictionary page illustrates how many words can be put to pasture. Page 52B of "Webster's Ninth New Collegiate Dictionary," for example, provides an easy target.

At the top of the page is "goofy." Can't throw that one away: it applies in too many cases. Going on down the list, there's "goop," which probably could be retired in favor of gunk or goo.

Over in the second column sits "gorget," a piece of armor used to protect the throat. Here's a word we can discard until knighthood

Midway down the second column, back - to - back potential discards can be discovered. The first is "gormandize" which has been around since 1548, according to the definition. Anyone out there know what "gormandize" means?

For the record, anyone who eats in a gluttonous way is gormandizing. Next we find a relatively new word, "gorp." Although the derivation is unknown, gorp, a snack of high - energy foods such as raisins and nuts, apprarently came into being in 1968. We could gormandize on gorps. But who would want to?

Before the page is out, we find "gosport," a flexible one - way speaking tube for communication between separate cockpits of an airplane. It came from England during World War II.

Let's send it back to the British. One of my associates at the paper has a desk calendar which features a "word of the day." The word for today is "palinode." For the unenlightened the definition, according to the calendar, is "a poem that retracts something said in an earlir poem" or a 'recantation.' Try using it in a story ... something like: "The governor put his foot in his mouth again, and his staff is writing a palinode to salvage the situation."

Use of such words in a news story would probably flood the office with Letters to the Editor.

One disposable phrase comes handily to mind. Why keep "not to mention" in our repertoire? As in: There are lots of useless words, not to mention phrases. Why bring the subject up if we're not going to mention it? Too bad we can't eliminate words and what they stand for simultaneously. What would the future of "Internal Revenue

Educator gives up his losing battle

During the nearly four years he served as chairman of the National Council on Economic Research, George Roche became even more conviced that the federal bureaucracy is smothering the nation's schools. Indeed, he made several recommendations that his council be disbanded, along with its parent organization, the National Institute of Education (NIE). Weary of fighting a losing battle, he resigned recently as chairman and returned full time to the presidency of Hillsdale College.

This small college in south-central Michigan has gained a national reputation by resisting numerous attempts by the federal government to force it to complete the requisite forms pledging non-discrimination. Never mind that Hillsdale accepts students of all races and was the firt Michigan college to accept female students. The federal bureaucracy is unforgiving of those who fail to fill out its forms.

Such bureacratic mindlessness became the target of several scathing NCER reports during the last four years. Although the reports generally scored the failure of federal eeudation policies, they were particularly critical of programs conducted by the NIE, which is the research arm of the sprawling federal education bureaucracy charged with raising school standards.

The latest annual NCER report disclosed that the federal government has done precious little to elevate school standards during the last three decades. In fact, the study shows a steady decline in Scholastic Aptitude Test scores from 1952 to 1982, even though federal education funding during that same period totaled a staggering $178 billion.

Nevertheless, the taxpayers will spend more than $51 nillion this year on the NIE, which has wasted approximately $800 million on dubious projects since its

A case is point $76,661 that was awarded to the Educational Testing Service to study how selected Missouri school districts could better lobby for more money. Another researcher was given a $119,584 grant to study the legal tactics used by lawyers in student-rights

Taken together, the latest NCER report is a stinging reminder that most research projects funded by the NIE had nothing to do with documenting why students are not learning. Rather, the study shows that all too often educational research has become a self-perpetuating exercise where slick lobbyists scramble for larger federal handouts. All the more reason why the NIE and similar federal education feeding toughs should be eliminated

Advocates of a stronger federal role in education should take note. Bureaucracies, almost by definition, waste money and centralize power. What American education needs is not a monolithic system directed from Washington, but a decentralized system. And the best way to preserve the cultural diversity and pluralism of American life it to rely on voluntary, non-government schools to educate our children.

George Roche said as much during his tenure as chairman of the National Council on Education Research. Regrettably, his prudent recommendations were consigned to the trash can by the same bureaucrats who continue squandering hundreds of millions of dollars on crackpot schemes submitted by hucksters bearing

Deception on tax proposal

In was perfectly predictable but no less outrageous that on May 26, two days before President Reagan's speech, liberal Congressman David Obey, Democrat from very-high-tax Wisconsin, should abuse his position as chairman of the Joint Economic Committee (JEC) to deliberately "disinform" the public. He said a Congressional Research Service (CRS) study showed the loss of the state and local tax deduction would cost the average family who itemizes, $927 while failing to point out that the CRS study did NOT consider the SAVINGS these families would get from tax reform's lower rates.

When questioned about it, CRS researchers directly disowned Obey's release as "deceptive." A week later, Obey released a study by Arthur Andersen which confirmed that even with the loss of the deduction, taxpayers in EVERY state would pay LESS total tax, because of the lower federal

Even the liberal Brookings Institution argues for the elimination of that deduction as the most "progressive" feature in President Reagan's tax reform plan - a litmus test for liberals.

Think it over. Most state and local taxes are "flat rate" - that is, they apply a single rate to sales, to property, and to income - so they are inherently "regressive" to begin with.

Then, remember that only 35 percent of all taxpayers now itemize their deductions, which means only these taxpayers get their state and local taxes "reduced" by the federal tax

The average top federal marginal tax rate of this group last year was about 34 percent. Thus this upper-income group effectively paid state and local taxes at 7.6 percent, one-third LESS than the 11.5 percent rate paid by the average worker.

And, for all those $70-100,000-a-year "limousine liberals" (like Obey) who are now yelling, their effective state and local tax rates are now exactly HALF the rates paid by the average citizen.

Figure it out: A $25,000-a-year homeowner in a typical urban state pays about $1,000 in property taxes. $700 in sales taxes, and $1,000 in state income taxes - a total of $2,700 in state and local taxes. If he or she does not itemize (and more than 60 pecent of this income bracket do not), the effective state and local tax burden is 10.8 percent of gross income.

Even if he or she does itemize, they are paying federal taxes at about a 24 percent marginal rate so can only reduce that effective state and local tax burden to 8.2 percent

Now think about the $100,000-a-year homeowner. His $5,000 annual property tax bill gets cut $0 percent to $2,500. His $2,800 sales tax bill is cut to $1,400, and his $5,000 state income tax to $2,500: a NET tax bill of $6,400, or 6.4 percent. This is 42 percent less than his non-itemizing median-income counterpart, and 23 percent less than the median-income itemizer.

This is why, although the national average state and local tax burden is about 11.5 percent of personal income, for the top 35 percent that direct burden is only about 7.6 percent

This is the dirty little secret of state and local politicians: They know that the toughest, most vocal resistance to higher taxes always comes from the upper-income groups, who have always been mollified by the fact that they will pay only half or so of any state and local tax rate increase. And this is why the high-tax, high-spend governors are so afraid of losing this deduction and why ordinary taxpayers should welcome it. It is also why the Prop 13 and Prop 2 - 1/2 tax revolts in California and Massachusetts were led. not by the rich (most of whom either opposed them, or sat on their hands) but by the middle class, who bear the brunt of state and local taxes.

Remember, it only takes a ten-point reduction in the federal marginal rates to more than compensate for this deduction. Since all three tax reform proposals reduce marginal rates by at least ten points, at least 80 percent of taxpayers will NOT be hurt.

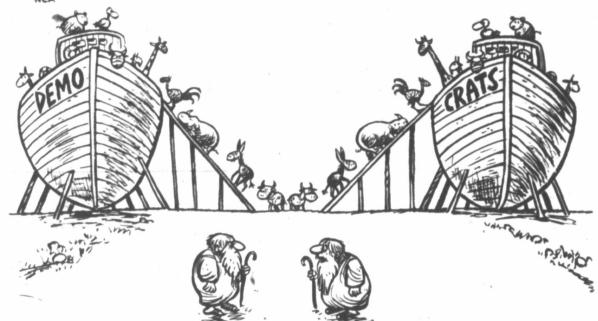

Again, figure it out: Think of the state and local taxes as an add-on to your top federal marginal rate. If you are in the 50 percent bracket, your state and local tax "add-on" will, on average, be about 6.5 percent (after deductions) for a total marginal rate of 56.5 percent.

Under the Treasury bill, your marginal rate drops to 35 percent, but your state and local tax burden jumps to about 12 percent, a combined rate of 47 percent - nine points LOWER.

If you are a $25,000 a year itemizer, your combined marginal rate will fall from 33 percent to 26, six points LOWER.

The plain truth is: the only people "hurt" by killing this deduction are the very rich, and big-spending politicians in states like New York. Michigan, and Wisconsin who have used this regressive loophole to insulate them from rich critics. And liberal Democrats like Obey who fight this "progressive" change are in big trouble - and

The loophole lobby will not go away

By William A. Rusher

Dan Rostenkowski, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, is being depicted in the press as one of the Good Guys who genuinely favor tax reform, and perhaps he does. But I couldn't repress a cynical snicker the other evening when, appearing on national television to give the Democrats' response to Mr. Reagan's address on the subject. Rostenkowski hailed tax reform as a longtime Democratic objective and suavely welcomed Mr. Reagan as a recruit to the

The Democrats, after all, have controlled the Ways and Means Committee (where all tax bills must originate) for 51 of the past 55 years. Presumably, if tax reform had been very high on their agenda, they could have brought something to the floor before now. The truth is that the only reason tax reform has even a ghost of a chance this year or next is because we at last have a president with the guts to demand it. From time to time I am moved to wonder aloud whether democratic government can work at all, and this is one of those times. The proposition that it can certainly isn't self-evident. It was never even tried until about 200 years ago, and has failed in these past two centuries far more often than it has succeeded. It is currently hanging on, often by its fingernails, in a score or so of lucky countries around the world. But the expansion of the franchise to everyone 18 or older, without so much as a literacy qualification, reduces to a perilously narrow margin that residual majority of the electorate that is capable of exercising self-denial, self-restraint or even a modicum of common sense. The rest are perfectly content to be led by politicians whose ignorance of rudimentary economics is very nearly the only thing that can be pleaded in their defense.

Tax reform is the perfect example of the problem. Successive Congresses have added provisions to the Tax Code year after year, until it resembles a sort of malignant Christmas tree. Nobody understands all of it, but every special interest worthy of the name has logrolled onto the statute books some provision of law designed to do it a favor. Since revenues must, nonetheless, be found, these various "loopholes" more or less cancel each other out in the long run; but meanwhile the politicians who engineered the favor get credit for it in the right quarters.

Since everybody knows what is going on, and practically everybody is on the take in one way or another, cynicism (that popular and inexpensive substitute for sophistication) fuels a widespread suspicion that somebody else is getting away with murder. It's the old declension: 'I have a grant. You got a subsidy. He found a loophole."

That is what has provided the atmosphere in which President Reagan has been able to move aggressively for genuine tax reform. But you may have noticed that just as soon as he came forward with concrete proposals, large sections of the public suddenly lost interest in going after those so-called loopholes and began demanding to know "What will this do to me?'

We had better understand that these opportunities don't grow on trees, and that President Reagan's tax-reform proposal is very probably the only serious effort that will be made to reform and simplify the tax laws in our lifetime. If it fails, we can all go back to politicking for our pet loopholes and complaining bitterly about the other fellow's.

So, once more into the breach, my friends! Tell your congressman and senators that there are at least as many voters out here for courage as there are for cowardice.

Repair before selling

By Bruce Williams

DEAR BRUCE - Several years ago, my husband and I bought a mobile home. We have lived in it, enjoyed it, and raised three children in it, but now we need more space.

Unfortunately, we have neglected to make repairs on it, and in its present condition we can only get about $3,500 for it. The average mobile home like ours is selling for about $12,000 in this area.

If we put $2,000 into repairs on our mobile home, we feel there would be a good chance of selling it for over $13,000. But we don't have $2,000. I suppose I could take a job to try to pay for the repairs, but with my skills, I'd probably have to work for the minimum wage.

Do you think it's worth making the repairs on the mobile home, or should we just sell it for the $3,500, take our money, and try to buy another home? — I.D., MISSOULA, MONT.

DEAR I.D. - Assuming that the numbers you gave me are accurate, your investment of $2,000 will give you a $5,000 to $7,000 profit. That's an enormous return on your money.

Take the time to have the mobile home repaired, and use the extra money from its sale to buy a better home or to reduce your mortgage payments. You mentioned that you'll have to work for the minimum wage.

Woman resents suggestion to keep hairy legs under wraps

DEAR ABBY: I am a 26-year-old woman who prefers not to shave her legs or underarms. My hair is naturally quite dark and plentifultoo plentiful to maintain every two days. I find shaving a nuisance and uncomfortable

My problem? Non-acceptance at public and private swim centers and exercise clubs. I was asked to (a) cover my legs with tights; (b) wear shorts with leg-warmers; (c) wear slacks; (d) resign from a swim class. So far, I have done none of the

Romance industry looks for new writers

EDITOR'S NOTE - "Romance is a phenomenon for women all over the world," says the man who introduced Canada's Harlequin Romances to America nearly 25 years ago. And it's turning into a new cottage industry for the 1980s.

By JANE E. ALLEN Associated Press Writer

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) Encouraged by publishers like Simon & Schuster which sponsors "how-to" seminars from coast to coast, nearly a million women in America are trying their hands at romance writing, the new cottage industry of the 1980s.

From Atlanta to Jackson to Seattle, Silhouette Books, which Simon & Schuster created in 1980, is crisscrossing the country this year to promote what it calls "contemporary brand-name romance" and to pick up new

In Jackson, where B. Dalton Booksellers reports sales of 144 romance books a week in its store in Northpark Mall, the number of books sold is leveling off, but the number of writers is increasing. According to Betty Ruth Hawkins, who promoted a Silhouette "How to Write a Romance Novel" workshop for the recently opened Northpark shopping center, about 40 of the 250 participants had submitted manuscripts to publishers, and 20 were in print.

"People who read romance novels believe they can write them," she said, despite a 90 percent rejection rate by some publishers. "Everybody in Mississippi thinks they can write, that they have a little Faulkner in them.

Silhouette Books publishes 28 new titles or about 7 million volumes a month. It sells anywhere from 250,000 to a million copies of each book - at $1.95 to $2.95 a copy. Its stocks in supermarkets, drugstores and variety stores don't include releases by its once-rival line, Harlequin Romances. Harlequin bought Silhouette, but both are now marketed through Simon & Schuster.

The books stay on display for a month, before being shipped back to warehouses. According to Bud Egbert, who introduced Canada's Harlequin Romances to America 25 years ago, and who heads mass market distribution for Simon & Schuster, women generally clear most new titles from the shelves within 10 days of release.

The romance book market, which comprises about 35 percent of the mass market paperback industry, is like the magazine market, he explains. "Readers know precisely when they go on

The production and marketing is done by formula.

"Boy meets girl, there's a conflict and they solve their problems. It's like producing Campbell's Soup," Egbert says.

The demographics indicate that the average romance reader is 321/2 years old with one or two children. Sixty percent of them work at least part time and most have a year of college education, Egbert says.

These readers plow through a romance novel in about two hours and may read 30 to 60 titles a month, industry officials say.

Joan Schulhafer, a promoter of romance writers and workshops. compares the romance industry with the culture surrounding science fiction. However, she sees an additional element. Love stories fill an emotional need.

"In real life, courtship doesn't last forever," she says.

The writers come from all backgrounds and ages.

Terri Herrington of Jackson has published two Silhouette titles. Mrs. Herrington says part of her preparation was immersing herself in romance novels."I read hundreds of them before I started."

Mrs. Herrington was lured into the field by friends, many of whom now write romance novels themselves.Of the 30 women she sees regularly at meetings of the Shreveport, La., chapter of Romance Writers of America, 10 are now published, the 27-year-old writer savs.

They've read and absorbed the Silhouette guidelines for contemporary romance, the ABCs of what editors want to see. The writers must tell their story through the heroine's eyes and create a woman who is strong but still vulnerable.

Sex is handled by Silhouette in a very strict way. Creating a sex scene is like painting by numbers. There are five levels of romance intensity, ranging from Silhouette Contemporary Romance to the hottest, the Silhouette Desire and Silhouette Intimate Moments lines. They offer predictability like movie ratings: readers know just how much sex to expect by the

Central America policy, budget talks are taking center stage

WASHINGTON (AP) -Congress continues its year-long struggle over the administration's Central America policy, as the House votes this week on a plan to provide so-called non-lethal aid to the CIA-trained Contras battling the Nicaraguan government.

The House rejected one such plan earlier. Many Democrats, however, want to be on record in favor of some type of aid, and approval of a revised proposal is given a good chance, with a vote expected Tuesday or Wednesday.

House GOP Leader Robert Michel will offer a $27 million plan to provide "nonlethal" aid. There will be several Democratic alternatives, including one to cut the amount to $14 million and direct much of the money to

By a 55-42 vote, the Senate approved a $38 million aid plan Friday, which calls for spending $14 million now and $24 million later to provide "non-lethal" assistance to the rebels.

Sen. Christopher Dodd, D-Conn, said Sunday on ABC television's "This Week With David Brinkley" that terms of the measure enable senators to tell pro-Contra constituents they voted for the money while telling opponents of deeper involvement they opposed military aid.

"It's a very nice policy for domestic political consumption here at home" said Dodd, an opponent of the measure. He said, however, that U.S. policy is failing. Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said on the same program the measure was "a very straightforward bipartisan resolution to assist the Contras.'

Lugar said he could not "imagine any set of circumstances" under which the United States would invade Nicaragua. But he drew a distinction between an invasion and "a surgical strike," which he would not rule out if the Sandinista government stockpiled sophisticated Soviet weapons.

Meanwhile, Social Security and President Reagan's defense buildup are expected to be the main points of dispute as House and Senate negotiators compromise talks Tuesday on a budget for the 1986 fiscal year.

More income tax questions By JOHN CUNNIFF It is based in the urge to have AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) - An informal poll of polls indicates the American people are for President Reagan's reformation of taxes, a conclusion that should surprise nobody, least of all the president.

'Americans lined up solidly behind Ronald Reagan's idea of a complete overhaul of U.S. taxes," says Business Week magazine. And Money magazine says its readers "overwhelmingly support

No surprise. It takes persistent detective work to find Americans who don't support tax reform. In fact, it has been said that Americans already have reformed the tax system by developing an underground, no-tax economy.

Otherwise the Reagan proposals are loaded with questions that arouse the interest but fail to satisfy it with answers.

Do Americans support Reagan's tax proposals because they tend to favor individuals over business? Is the old tendency of saying "let government take care of the bill" now being applied to business instead?

That tendency has been noted for years by consumer psychologists, and if that breed existed at the beginning of time they probably would have detected the tendency third parties pay1 Government is the biggest, but insurers are right up there, and so is business in general. Some who have studied the phenomenon contend that even credit cards can be third parties, since they can disquise the reality that things cost money.

It won't be easy to find the answer, because it may be deeply hidden in the psyche - conceivably hidden from individuals themselves. Still, it may not be the most unfathomable question about the tax program.

Why, for example, has a president, who in his first term did so much to encourage a more vital business climate, decided in his second term to tax business more

Won't the elimination of the investment tax credit, and less generous depreciation allowances. dampen capital spending - the type of spending the Reagan administration once said was needed to make America competitive?

Won't business taxes be passed on to individuals, if not immediately, then within a couple of years? If they are passed on, won't that make the consumer price index rise, and bring on the threat of renewed inflation?

Walker case spotlights non-stop U.S.-Soviet undersea war games

WASHINGTON (AP) -America's most sensitive naval secrets - how the United States finds Soviet submarines and what it does to avoid having its own subs tracked - appear to be secure despite the Walker family spy case, officials say.

Pentagon officials are concerned about serious damage to the nation's military secrets resulting from the range of information passed to the Soviets.

But the men arrested so far lacked the range of special security clearances needed to gain access to the super-secret "black" programs at the heart of the undersea game of cat-and-mouse played 365 days a /ear by the two superpowers, said the officials, who would speak only on condition they not be named.

Those programs involve some of the country's most closely held secrets about the specific techniques the Navy uses to find Soviet subs, and the abilities of U.S. subs to avoid being found. Pentagon spokesman Michael Burch said last week that Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger's fears have "gone up" because of what Weinberger "continues to learn" about the Walker case.

Still, Burch told reporters the Pentagon "not 3aware of any change" in the Soviet Union's ability to track U.S. missile submarines based on information furnished by the alleged spy ring. Navy officials have boasted privately for years that American missile-firing boats are virtually invulnerable because of superior U.S. techniques in keeping the ships quiet.

"The Soviet ability to get our subs is still in doubt," said one official. "The Walker case may give them some more pieces of the puzzle, but our boats are still safe."

Because of the difficulty of accurately tracking objects in the vast reaches of the oceans, the subs, which can move and stay submerged for months, are the most invulnerable part of America's three-pronged nuclear deterrent that includes land-based missiles and bombers.

The U.S. fleet is composed of 31 Poseidon-class subs, each with 16 long-range missiles that have 10 warheads apiece, along with the first five of a planned two dozen Trident-class boats. The Tridents are each armed with 24 missiles that carry up to eight warheads apiece.

Those subs succeeded the original U.S. missile-firing boats known as Polaris. John Walker Jr., the only man arrested thus far in the spy case with sub experience, served in the 1960s aboard two boats with Polaris-class missiles, and Navy officials say he thus had little access to current technology.

In addition to the missile sub fleet, the Navy has 96 attack submarines to hunt down Soviet subs, compared to the Soviet fleet of about 280 attack subs and 62 missile-firing boats.

The key to tracking the subs is sound, which travels great distances under water, say Navy officials.

While the Soviet subs are generally larger and can dive deeper, the American subs are

But Navy officials say the Soviets have made large strides in that area in recent years, using techniques such as better precision tooling of engines and coating the hulls with materials that both absorb sonar rays and muffle the sounds made by the boats passing through the water

The main U.S. anti-submarine warfare system is known as SOSUS, for Sound Surveillance

It is a 20-year-old string of hydrophones lying on the seabed off both U.S. coasts and in an undersea gap stretching from Greenland through Iceland to the United Kingdom. In a crisis, Soviet subs moving into the Atlantic from their Kola Peninsula bases would have to pass through that chokepoint.

The Navy also has sophisticated listening devices on the U.S. attack subs, which sometimes wait outside a Soviet base to pick up a patrol, along with strings of sonobuoys up to a mile long dropped by Navy patrol planes. The Navy is so confident in its last year, when the Soviets announced they were moving some missile-firing boats closer to U.S. coasts, Navy Secretary John Lehman said, "we would invite them to deploy all their Deltas" in the Atlantic.

ability to track the Soviet subs that

The Navy's success in developing new tracking projects are among the nation's most highly classified secrets, as are the Navy's estimates of what it knows about the Soviet capability of finding American subs.

Lakers emerge as team of 80s

BOSTON (AP) - The Los Angeles Lakers were quietly building a dynasty. Now, in the home of basketball's biggest dynasty, they have put a crowning piece on their structure of

The Lakers, fortified by infrequent failures, erased a stain from their reputation Sunday by beating the Boston Celtics 111-100 to claim their third National Basketball Association title of the Los Angeles' 4-2 victory in the series avenged a seven-game loss in last year's finals when Boston captured its 15th NBA title. That Celtics' triumph came on their own famed parquet floor before their own vocal fans at Boston Garden, where they had been 8-0 in final games of championship series.

On Sunday, the floor and fans again were Boston's. But the game belonged to the Lakers as they won their ninth championship.

"This victory is sweeter now because we've broken their stranglehold on us," Los Angeles Coach Pat Riley said after the Lakers' first victory in nine finals against the Celtics. "There comes a time when you have to plant your feet firmly and take a stand.

Just as the Celtics were the team of the 1960s by winning 10 of the 11

NBA titles from 1959 through 1969, the Lakers are the team of the 1980s after playing in their fifth title series in six years.

They were losers in that round the past two seasons. On Sunday, Boston's Larry Bird found out how losing can overshadow success.

"When you lose, you're a failure no matter what you've done all season," said Bird. "Right now, we are losers."

The setback 148-114 loss in the opening game, helped the Lakers.

"Personally, Game 1 was embarrassing," said Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, who had 12 points and three rebounds in that contest but ended up as the unanimous choice for the series' most valuable player. "I knew I could do better than that. I had to prove it."

He did it by scoring 121 points in the Lakers' four victories, including a team-high 29 in Sunday's clincher.

"When I came out early to practice today I thought, 'we have our chance,''' said Earvin ''Magic'' Johnson, who had 14 points, 14 assists and 10 rebounds for the Lakers. "It was a long year last year living with defeat. This year we didn't make mistakes. We made the plays to carry the game out."

In Game 5, Boston cut an 18-point Laker lead to four. In Game 6, the Lakers' 12-point third-quarter bulge was trimmed to 86-82 with 8:56 left in the game. Unlike last season, Los Angeles refused to

"We didn't want a seventh game." said James Worthy, who had 28 points for the Lakers. "They made a great comeback but we were able to hold them off."

The game was tied 19 times in the first half, which ended with the score 55-55. The 20th tie, at 57-57, was the last.

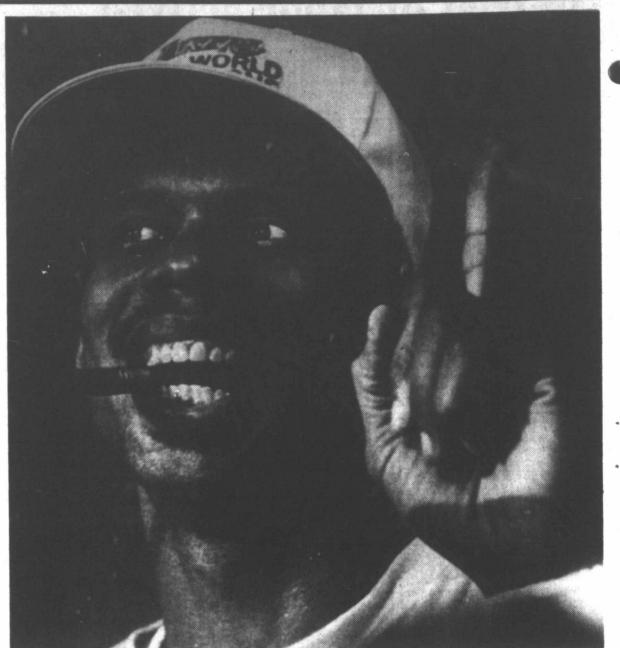

Bird, who had 28 points Sunday on 12-of-29 shooting, had a poor series by making just 41.4 percent of his shots. He refused to blame elbow, finger and ankle problems.

Boston also was hurt by guards Dennis Johnson and Danny Ainge, who made only six of their 31 shots Sunday, and its lack of depth. The Celtics used just seven players in the last two games.

"I didn't think today's game was ever really in jeopardy for them," said Dennis Johnson. "We made runs but they were never really in trouble. And Magic would take control of the game.

Boston sank 38.5 percent of its field-goal attempts, its poorest performance of this year's playoffs.

For now, "I'm just quietly savoring this moment," Riley said. "It's been a great year."

Miami stalls Horns' bid for national title

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) - Miami went to its stopper. relief ace Ric Raether, to hold off the hard-charging Texas Longhorns and force another championship game after Sunday night's 2-1 Hurricane win in the NCAA College World Series.

The side-arming right-hander had to do the same thing the night before in Miami's 6-5 thriller over Mississippi State to stay alive in the double-elimination tournament.

A Texas win Sunday would have given Miami its second loss of the tournament. Now, the two teams face off again tonight at 7:10 p.m. CDT to decide the national collegiate baseball champion.

"I am dead tired. I was tired when I came in," Raether said following his three-and-one-third innings of two-hit, shutout relief against Texas, now

'We went with Raether early but tonight was our championship game," said Miami catcher Chris Magno, who scored the tieing run after a lead-off triple in the sixth.

"We've had trouble scoring runs so I thought we could at least get a fly ball," Magno said. "When I saw the ball head for the fence I knew I had to go for Magno scored on Chris Hart's safety squeeze bunt. "Coach told me to watch for a bunt and when it got past the pitcher, I went," Magno said.

Texas Coach Cliff Gustafson said the squeeze "was not a surprise. We were ready for it. We could have had him (Magno) at the plate if (Billy) Bates had made a good throw.

Magno's hook slide just managed to get under

Texas catcher Robbie Byers. It was Bates' dropped foul pop fly that actually gave Magno a second chance on the triple.

Texas, which had been behind in every game of the series, took a 1-0 lead in the second inning when David Denny led off with a double down the left-field line. Denny moved to third on a ground out and scored on an infield error.

Don Rowland scored the winning run when he walked to lead off the bottom of the eighth.

"I was really surprised to get four straight balls," said Rowland, who then stole second and advanced to third on a catcher throwing error.

"We had a hit-and-run on," he said. "It wasn't a straight steal. I saw the ball go into center field so I went to third. We've got a lot of confidence right

Rowland scored the game-winning run two outs later when Rick Richardi's grounder to third was bobbled by Texas' Dodd Johnson. It was third-ranked Texas' fourth error of the game and second unearned run off losing pitcher Greg Swindell, 19-2.

Raether, who improved to 7-2, allowed a two-out pinch single by Bobby Behnsch in the ninth and walked Coby Kerlin to bring up Texas' Bates, who had two game-winning hits already in the CWS.

This time Raether struck out the Texas junior to end the game.

"I'm completely drained," said Miami Coach Ron Fraser, whose 63-16, sixth-ranked team now has a chance to add another national title to its 1982 championship. "These kids believe in themselves. They came back and reached their potential. We're a come-from-behind ball club."

Texas also will have a second chance at winning its second championship in three years in tonight championship game. The Longhorns won in 1983 and finished second to Cal State Fullerton last year.

Maltbie win worth more than money

HARRISON, N.Y. (AP) - For Roger Maltbie, the playoff victory over Ray Floyd and George Burns in the Manufacturers Hanover Westchester Clasic was worth $90,000. And it quite possibly carried, Maltbie said, a greater

"It restored some self esteem," said Maltbie, who won three times in his first two years on the PGA Tour and was considered one of the game's more promising young players before going into a nine-year tailspin. His last victory was in the 1976 Memorial tournament.

"When your game goes, your whole life gets messed up," he said Sunday

"I was a good player in high school, a good player in college, a good player on the mini-tours, and I played well my first two years out here. My game advanced with every step up the ladder I went.

"Then it was all gone," he said. After a couple of seasons in which he didn't make expenses, he started turning things around with a marriage, in 1980, and subsequent visits to teaching pro Peter Kostis

"All credit goes to them," the 33-year-old Maltbie said. "But the only thing that makes the work I've done and the time I've put in all over, that's what it's all about how many W's you have.

Two shots back with two holes to play, Maltbie had to put on a birdie-birdie finish to gain a tie with Burns and the veteran Floyd at 275, nine under par at the end of the regulation 72 holes over the Westchester Country Club course. Maltbie and Burns each had a 70 over the last round and Floyd, despite the handicap of a hooking driver, closed up with a 6-under-par 65.

In the playoff, all three players had routine two-putt pars on the first two holes. On the third, Burns and Floyd each came out of apparent disaster with great saves par, while Maltbie missed a chance to win it when his putt of about eight feet slid by the hole.

On the next hole, the fourth of the playoff, Floyd and Burns each put themselves in deep trouble off the tee on the par-3 hole - Floyd well to the left of the green and Burns in a buried lie in a bunker - and Maltbie hit a 4-iron to within about eight feet.

Burns, who had led or shared the lead through the first three rounds, and Floyd, who appeared a winner when he finished and then watched in disbelief as both Burns and Maltbie birdied the 72nd hole

Verplank nabs amateur crown

LAKEWAY, Texas (AP) -Scott Verplank of Dallas fired his third straight sub-par round Sunday to capture the Texas State Amateur Golf Championship for the second year in a row Verplank, an all-American at Oklahoma State and the defending U.S. Amateur champion, carded a one-under-par 71 Sunday for a 54-hole total of five-under-par 211 on the Hills of Lakeway course just outside Austin.

He shot 70 each of the first two rounds.

University of Texas senior Mike Board matched Verplank's 71 Sunday to take second place alone at two-under-par 214. First-day leader Mike Booker, 30, who played college golf at the University of Houston, took third place at 219 after his 76 Sunday.

UT senior Steen Tinning and Baylor junior Bobby Rucker shared fourth at 220, while two more Longhorn golfers, Bob Estes and Todd Franks, tied for sixth at 222.

Miller achieves dominance

Miller said she doesn't see herself as a dominant player on the Ladies Professional Golf Association Tour, but her record this year indicates otherwise

She won her third tournament of the season Sunday, shooting a fourth straight 4-under-par 68 to finish with a score of 272 and an eight-shot margin over Nancy Lopez in the $400,000 McDonald's Championship

"I just have been striving to be consistent. I'm just happy to pay my bills and play well," said Miller. "I see myself as just a steady player having a long career.

Consistency has been Miller's forte throughout a remarkable season. In addition to her three victories, she has eight other top 10

After trailing by two strokes following the opening round, Miller led by two shots at the midway point and by five after three rounds. Her advantage was reduced to three early in the final round Sunday, but she rallied with four birides on the front nine to open a nine-stroke lead at the turn.

The $60,000 winner's purse boosted Miller's season earnings to $277,125, only $33,274 off the season Sunday to finish at 280 after four

Hawkins wins 11th straight

By The Associated Press

Andy Hawkins, the San Diego Padres and luck make a powerful combination, one the National League has yet to solve in 1985.

Hawkins won his 11th game without a loss when the Padres broke a 1-1 tie in the eighth inning with four runs off Mario Soto and beat the Cincinnati Reds 5-1 on Sunday.

In other NL games Sunday, Chicago beat Pittsburgh 5-1, Atlanta defeated Los Angeles 10-3, Philadelphia trimmed Montreal 4-1, and Houston blanked San Francisco 5-0. St. Louis and New York split a doubleheader, New York taking the opener 6-1 and St. Louis the nightcap 8-2.

Graig Nettles gave the Padres their first run with his fifth homer of the year in the fifth.

A wild pitch by Soto, 8-4, brought Steve Garvey home with the tie-breaking run in the eighth.

Pete Rose, the opposing manager, had two hits off Hawkins to pull within 48 hits of Ty Cobb's all-time mark of 4,191.

Cubs 5, Pirates 1

Trailing 1-0, Chicago scored four runs in the sixth inning. Leon Durham doubled home a run, Jody Davis drew a walk with the bases loaded and Chris Speier singled home two runners. Keith Moreland singled home an insurance run in the seventh.

The Cubs swept the four-game series from Pittsburgh, going from 11/2 games back of the Mets to a 11/2-game lead in the NL East.

Joe Niekro becomes winningest Astro

HOUSTON (AP) - Pitching a shutout is one thing - and not a bad thing at that - but it's the complete game that counts, Houston Astros pitcher Joe Niekro

Niekro got it all Sunday night when his record-setting, two-hit shutout combined with a hot-hitting Astros squad to defeat the San Francisco Giants 5-0 in a National League game.

His teammates supplied the 10-hit offense that helped get the victory, Niekro's 138th, that made him the winningest career Astro pitcher. After his seventh attempt, he passed Larry Dierker to obtain the honor

But the 40 year-old knuckleballer, 3-6, was more happy about a complete game.

"The five-run lead was great and it was nice to get the shutout and complete game," Niekro said. His last complete outing was

WASHINGTON (AP) - The chairman of a House Banking panel thinks the government is on the wrong track in its efforts to find a way to curb what might be an influx of fake money printed on a new generation of sophisticated color copiers.

So to make certain the government doesn't change the face of currency without congressional approval, Rep. Frank Annunzio, D-Ill., is pushing legislation that would require the House and Senate to vote on any plan to redesign money.

Annunzio, chairman of the consumer affairs and coinage subcomittee, does not deny that there could be some problems with office workers or janitorial employees with access to precise color copiers running off authentic-looking bogus currency from the money in their wallets. But he disputes a governmental task force estimate that 20 percent of all people who can run a color copier will at some time make illegal copies of paper money. "It is ridiculous," says Annunzio."I have more faith in the American

Curt Prins, staff director for the subcommittee headed by Annunzio, said the task force has discussed ways to use magnetic threads that would foil attempts to duplicate greenbacks. "It would cost millions of dollars to call back all the U.S. currency in circulation around the world and to buy new printing equipment that is capable of instilling the magnetic threads in newly issued paper money," Prins said. Another plan by the task force is to conceal special "watermarks" that could only be seen by holding the currency up to light, and which are not reproduced by color duplicators, said Prins.

One killed in steam blast

LAUGHLIN, Nev. (AP) -Superheated steam blasting from a ruptured high-pressure pipeline spewed into the crowded control room of a a coal-fired power plant, killing one worker and burning 15 others, nine of them critically, authorities said.

The 30 - inch - diameter steel alloy pipe burst at 3:44 p.m. Sunday during the shift change at Southern California Edison's Mohave Generating Plant, while 20 people, about twice the normal number, were present.

"The area where the rupture occurred looks like a bomb exploded," plant manager Stan

The dead man was identified as Daniel Norman, 30, of Bullhead City, Ariz., said Edison spokesman David Barron.

Twelve of the injured were taken aboard five helicopters, an airplane, and an ambulance to Southern Nevada Memorial Hospital in Las Vegas, about 90 miles to the north, and one man was airlifted to Maricopa County Medical Center in Phoenix, Ariz.

Eight of the 12 victims at Southern Nevada were listed in critical condition early, said Tina Ravish, a nursing supervisor. The other four were in serious condition. The man taken to Phoenix was in very critical condition.

Two others were listed in fair condition at Bullhead City Community Hospital, officials reported late Sunday.

Airlift pilot Dennis J. Longman said some of the victims told him the control room fill with steam. "They covered their faces and tried to keep the steam from getting into their lungs," he said.

Most of the damage and all the injuries were in the control room, Edison spokesman Bob Hull said.

One out of four U.S. households victimized by crime last year

WASHINGTON (AP) - The proportion of U.S. households victimized by crime last year fell to the lowest level since 1975, but still one out of every four experienced a crime of violence or theft, the government reports.

Advancing longstanding theories about crime risks, a study by the Bureau of Justice Statistics found that people living in the suburbs or countryside were safer than those living in cities.

The report, released Sunday. concluded that black households were more vulnerable than white households, but also found that high-income households were more likely to be victimized than middle-income households.

"We estimate that 22.8 million households were affected by a burglary, motor vehicle theft or household larceny or were inhabited by someone who was raped, robbed, assaulted or who was the victim of a personal larceny,'' said Steven R. Schlesinger, the bureau's director.

But Schlesinger also said that there has been a gradual downward trend since this statistical measure was introduced in 1975, when 32 percent of American households were touched by crime," he said. Last year, the 22.8 million households said to have been "touched" by crime represented roughly 26 percent of the total.

Noting that the overall gauge of crime's pervasiveness was at its lowest ebb in nine years, Schlesinger said: "Many believe that recent declines in crime rates are due, in part, to greater public awareness and understanding of crime, and to citizen crime prevention programs.

The approximately 22.8 million households affected by crime in 1984 were about 800,000 fewer than those victimized in the preceding year and about 2 million fewer than in 1982, the report said.

A household is considered "touched" by crime if it experienced a burglary, auto theft or household larceny, or if a household member was raped, robbed, assaulted or a victim of personal larceny, the bureau said. The proportion of victimized households fell to 26 percent of total households in 1984, compared to 27.4 percent the year before.

"The 1983-1884 decrease was primarily the result of declines in burglaries and personal or household larcenies," the report

The report was based on the bureau's National Crime Survey of some 60,000 U.S. households, or roughly 128,000 people at least 12 years of age, who were asked what crimes they experienced since the last interview. The surveys are undertaken at six-month intervals by the Bureau of Justice Statistics.
