

Home businesses may have to go

By LARRY HOLLIS

Beauty shops and barbershops in the homes are fine, but other home occupations may face problems with the city if Planning and Zoning Commission recommendations are adopted and enforced.

Discussing changing the city ordinance regarding home occupations standards Thursday afternoon, the commission members expressed general agreement that the beauty and barber shops could be operated in homes as long as they meet state requirements.

But they indicated other home occupations, such as auto, radio and television repair, carpentry, electrician work, plumbing repair and similar businesses should be prohibited from operating out of residents' homes.

The consideration of changing the home occupations section of the city's Zoning Ordinance No. 690 arose from a request by Steve Vaughn, director of the Neighborhood Integrity Department.

Vaughn had refused permission in March for Mrs. Eblan Hernandez to operate a beauty shop out of her home at 1318 E. Kingsmill. But Hernandez had appealed Vaughn's decision to the Board of Adjustments, and the board had granted her the permission to attach a structure to her home for the operating of the beauty shop.

Referring to problems of interpretations of the city ordinance, the board recommended that Vaughn re-examine the ordinance to provide more specific standards and guidelines regarding home occupations requirements.

Speaking to the Zoning Commission members Thursday, Vaughn said, "The way it's written now, the only ones being hindered are those who are very law abiding" and who are willing to take the city staff's word about violations.

Others can ignore or twist the language or hire a lawyer who can interpret the ordinance liberally and persuade jurors in support of their clients, Vaughn claimed.

Vaughn agreed there were some problems in the standards established by the current ordinance. He asked the commission to recommend changes, either in tightening up the guidelines to limit and prohibit home occupations in residential areas or in lessening the standards to permit more of them.

"I'm not trying to say people shouldn't have the right to run businesses out of their homes," he said. But the city needs to decide what standards or limitations should be imposed, if any.

"I'll enforce whatever the city decides," Vaughn stated.

He said he could not support and defend all aspects of the ordinance as currently written in many areas, especially when lawyers can convince jurors of other interpretations different from his.

"The ordinance needs to be revised to say what's okay and what's not," he recommended.

The current ordinance states, "A home occupation is an occupation carried on in the home by a member of the occupant's family

Two hostages may be freed

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Shiite Moslem militia leaders today were considering releasing two of the 40 American hostages from the hijacked TWA jetliner and letting them fly out of Lebanon for medical treatment, informed sources reported.

An airport official, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the Shiite Amal militia was "examining the condition" of Jimmy Dell Palmer, 48, of Little Rock, Ark. to decide if he should be freed.

An Amal official, who also refused to be identified, said Palmer was recently taken to an unidentified clinic in Beirut to be treated either for a heart condition or lung illness.

The militia official said Claude Whitmoyer, in his late 30s, of Severn, Md., might also be released for health reasons. But the militiaman said he did not know the nature of Whitmoyer's illness.

Palmer and Whitmoyer are among the 40 hostages who have been held since the Trans World Airlines Boeing 727 was hijacked a week ago on an Athens-to-Rome flight.

The three-man crew is aboard with the hijack TWA plane and are guarded round-the-clock by Shiite Moslems. Thirty-seven other hostages were being held in scattered positions in Beirut.

The hijackers killed one person, U.S. Navy Petty officer Robert Dean Stethem of Waldorf, Md., who was buried Thursday at Arlington National Cemetery. The rest of the passengers and crew were released.

Nabih Berri, the head of the Amal militia who has taken responsibility for the hostages, told CBS television network Thursday one of the hostages was ailing, but did not name him.

"If the man is not so well, I will send him to the United States," Berri CBS interviewer Dan Rather.

Bearded Moslem militants passed out leaflets today calling for a mass demonstration to support the hijackers, who are demanding that Arab prisoners be released from an Israeli prison in exchange for 40 American hostages.

They said the demonstration was set for 3:30 p.m. (8:30 a.m. EDT) on the airport highway.

Air controllers said gunmen aboard the hijacked plane, about 70 yards from the terminal building, threatened to shoot at any reporters they spotted in the control tower.

When journalists moved from the tower to watch the plane from the tarmac, rifle shots were fired from the plane over their heads, forcing the reporters to run for cover in the main terminal building.

It was the fourth time in three days the hijackers have fired at journalists, photographers and television crews staking out the airport. No one has been hit in the gunfire.

Five of the American captives were paraded before reporters at a news conference at the Beirut airport Thursday. The appearance was arranged by Berri.

One of the hostages told reporters Thursday he could account for the well-being of the Americans held by Shiite militiamen at scattered locations, but urged a negotiated solution to end there "dire" situation.

The Shiites are seeking to exchange the Americans for 766 prisoners being held by Israel on accusations they planned or took part in attacks against the Israeli army in southern Lebanon. Israel has said it planned to release the prisoners in conjunction with its withdrawal from Lebanon, when southern Lebanon calmed down.

'Star Wars' laser test successful

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — A bluish-green laser beam flashing through the darkness from a wind-whipped mountain peak in Hawaii successfully tracked orbiting Discovery today in the first space shuttle test of President Reagan's "Star Wars" plan to build a shield against nuclear missiles.

The low-power four-watt laser was triggered by the Air Force as the shuttle and its seven-person crew streaked 220 miles overhead at 17,400 mph, slightly faster than a missile warhead.

"We have the target in sight," astronaut John Fabian reported as he sighted the streaking laser. "It's bluish-green... It pulsed for awhile and locked on steady for short periods."

"Sounds like we got some definite tracking," Mission Control responded.

The laser target was a many-angled mirror the size of a dinner plate mounted in a shuttle window. The reflector was to bounce the beam back to the ground station atop Mount Haleakala, a 9,954-foot peak on Maui.

The decision to fire the laser was made at the last minute. Just half an hour earlier, winds up to 80 mph buffeted the mountain and Air Force officials said the laser equipment probably would not operate under those conditions. They gave the go-ahead when the wind speed dropped.

The Air Force will analyze the data to determine just how well the test went.

The blue argon laser, which started out as a 5 mm pinpoint of light, was expected to expand to a circle 30 feet in diameter in the brief second it took to reach the shuttle.

The initial attempt failed Wednesday because Mission Control goofed by sending Discovery's computer instructions in feet instead of nautical miles.

The astronauts on Thursday made it 4-for-4 on satellite launches — a record for a shuttle crew — by dispatching a science payload named Spartan to scan for sources of X-rays and hot gas in a large cluster of galaxies in the constellation Perseus and in the center of our Milky Way.

One Spartan goal is to examine a suspected black hole 180 trillion miles from Earth in the center of the Milky Way.

Scientists believe black holes are created when a massive star or galaxy exhausts its nuclear fuel and suddenly collapses. These mysterious celestial objects suck in nearby stars, gas and dust with a gravitational pull so strong that not even light escapes — thus the name black hole. The galactic material swirling into the hole forms a huge disc that heats up and radiates energy, much of it in the form of X-rays.

On Saturday, the astronauts will rendezvous with Spartan and retrieve it with the shuttle's 50-foot robot arm. The satellite stores its data for analysis back on Earth.

New trustee nepotism questions are apparently resolved

By LARRY HOLLIS
Staff Writer

David Robertson, elected trustee of the Pampa Independent School District on May 4, was sworn in this week, with questions concerning nepotism problems arising from his election apparently resolved.

Robertson had been unable to attend the two board meetings in May because prior business engagements had kept him out of town on those nights.

In his absence, board members had raised questions concerning his status on the board because of various relatives Robertson had that were employed in the district.

The main issue concerned his sister-in-law Jeanne Miller, a teacher at Travis Elementary School. There was some question because Miller had not completed two years of employment in the district at the time of Robertson's election.

Under a former nepotism law, a two-year continuous employment was required in a school district for the employee to remain with the district if a relative was elected to the school board.

If the two-year period had not been met, then either the board member or the relative would have had to resign.

But a recently enacted law, passed by the Legislature on May 24 and effective that date, shortened the employment period to only one year. Miller had been employed in the district for one year on May 23, 1984, according to letter to the district from the Texas Education Agency.

The agency advised the district that Miller, whose contract had already been renewed in March, could continue employment in the district after the 1985-1986 school year, based on the recently enacted law.

Other information indicates Miller still could have continued employment even under the two-year period requirement.

Robertson said he had consulted with two lawyers in Austin and with the local District Attorney's office before he ran for election to check on the nepotism policies.

"The old law states that a relative must be employed two years before a relative can hold an office or the relative employed must resign after the current contract expires," he said.

"In March, Jeanne was offered her third teaching contract, and by the time that I vote on her contract, it will be her fourth," Robertson said.

"The election was on May 4, and the teachers' contracts expired on May 24. This was only a 20-day difference that delayed my taking office. This is considered a penalty statute and means that the rule would not apply to my situation."

Robertson and the TEA letter both referred to a Texas Attorney General's opinion concerning whether the exception period runs from the election date or from the date one qualifies for office by taking the necessary oath.

According to the TEA letter, the Attorney General "has ruled that the word 'election' found in the Texas nepotism statute should be construed to mean the time of taking office rather than a prior election date."

Supt. James Trusty said the TEA letter provided opinions from the agency's legal staff. Citing the recent law change and the Attorney General's opinion, Trusty said the letter "cleared it without any questions."

Clarifying some questions that had arisen from his seeking the office, Robertson said, "I would not have run for the school board if my relatives employed by the school were not excellent personnel and very well qualified for their positions."

He added, "It would have been remiss to run for the office if I had not checked and double-checked on the procedures for a school board member with relatives employed by the system."

"Even if the first two criteria didn't solve the situation (and they certainly did), the new law does," Robertson said.

Other relatives of Robertson's employed in the district include his wife, Debbie, a teacher at Wilson Elementary School, and his mother-in-law, a bus driver for the district.

His sister, Tammy Shimon, had been employed as a science teacher at Pampa High School, but she had submitted her resignation prior to the elections.

All had been employed for more than two years before Robertson's election.

Reagan pushes tax reform plan at Lions Club meeting

DALLAS (AP) — President Reagan, campaigning for his "fair share" tax plan, said today the current tax system amounts to "the federal government's version of Rubik's Cube."

"It's a game that most of us never figure out and few of us win," he said in a speech prepared for the annual convention of Lions International.

Reagan's plan would replace the present 14 brackets with three rates of 15, 25 and 35 per cent. It would also double the personal exemption and eliminate or reduce a number of deductions.

"I like to think of my proposal as a fair-share tax because it will mean greater fairness and new opportunity for every income group in every region of America," the president said.

The president made no reference to the hostage crisis in his prepared remarks.

Noting the international composition of the Lions organization, Reagan said, "I hope those of you who are here from other countries will carry this message back to your people: We have no desire to live as an island of plenty. We will be satisfied with nothing less than a worldwide recovery."

In addition to his tax pitch, Reagan lauded the U.S. record of "helping the unfortunate in other countries," especially in drought-stricken Africa, and said the record of the Soviet Union in this regard is "a disgrace."

"It seems, with all their sloganeering, about the only things communist countries produce in quantity are misery, weapons and aggression," he said.

"The record of humanitarian assistance provided by the Soviet-bloc governments, even to their own allies, is a disgrace, and the world, especially the developing world, should know about it," the president added.

On Thursday, Reagan mostly declined to answer as reporters tried to question him about the hostage situation as he posed for pictures in the Oval Office before meeting with Alexandre Hay, president of the International Committee of the Red Cross.

When a reporter asked him if he hoped the hostages would be coming out soon, he looked somber and crossed his fingers in the traditional sign of hoping for good luck.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said Reagan still planned to go by helicopter to the presidential retreat at Camp David, Md., immediately after Air Force One touched down at Andrews Air Force Base on its return flight from Dallas.

Reagan and his wife, Nancy, also went to Camp David last weekend, as they usually do. But the president cut short his stay by a few hours after the hijacked Trans World Airlines plane was flown back to Beirut from Algeria.

He said he wanted to be in touch with other government officials face-to-face instead of dealing by telephone. But, after four frustrating days, Speakes reported Thursday it still "remains to be seen" whether the administration's diplomatic efforts have borne any fruit.

The president said he watched on television as a newsman on a telephone hookup relayed an account of a news conference in Beirut at which five hostages appeared, escorted by Shiite Moslem Amal militiamen. One of the hostages read a statement appealing to the president to take no direct military action to free them.

without the employment of additional persons, without the use of a sign to advertise the occupation, without offering any commodity for sale on the premises, without the use of equipment other than that customarily found in a household, and which does not create obnoxious noise or other obnoxious conditions to abutting residential property such as emission of odor, increased traffic or generation of light or smoke, and where the use is carried on in the main structure only. A home occupation shall specifically exclude the operation of a repair garage, plumbing shop or similar activity in a residential area."

Vaughn presented a copy of a Midland city ordinance on home occupations. Commission chairman Nolan McKean said the Midland ordinance was more specific in what home occupations are prohibited and what standards are specified.

The Midland ordinance states, "Customary home occupations shall not include barber shops, beauty shops, carpenters' shops, electricians' shops, plumbers' shops, tanners' shops, radio or TV shops, auto repairing, auto painting, furniture repairing, or sign painting, or other similar uses."

Commission member Ken Shearer said he was not so opposed to beauty shops, but he would object to plumbing, auto work and similar activities in a residential area. Commission member Ralph Milliron said home beauty shops are usually less expensive to the customers since less operating costs are involved.

Shearer said if beauty shops were permitted, barber shops also should be allowed. Commission member Leo Braswell concurred, as long as no serious parking problems developed. But that should not be much of a problem since such places usually only handle one or two customers at a time, Braswell said.

Commission members were in general agreement that the home occupations should only be operated by home residents without any outside employment of others.

But while in general agreement on beauty and barber shops, they indicated other occupations should be prohibited.

"I don't want to stop free enterprise as long as it's within reasonable bounds," Milliron said.

The commission recommended Vaughn revise the ordinance for consideration by the city commission.

In other matters, the commission approved recommending annexation of a 17-acre triangular tract of land east of the Coronado Medical Complex. The tract will be incorporated into development of the Sanders Park North Addition, located east of Duncan and north of 29th.

The commission also approved holding a public hearing on July 18 regarding zoning changes for the tract as requested by Gail Sanders, rezoning from Agriculture District to Commercial, Single Family 1, Single Family 2 and Multi-Family Districts for various sections of the development.

The commission also approved a preliminary plat for the addition.

Families 'elated' at seeing, hearing hostages

By The Associated Press

Allyn Conwell of Houston, speaking at a televised Beirut news conference on behalf of the 41 hostages of Shiite terrorists, said what bothered him and others the most was the "living hell" they knew their worried relatives were going through.

His sister-in-law and mother breathed sighs of relief — as did the families of two other Texas hostages — when they heard Conwell, 39, proclaim that he and the other hostages "are in good health, in good spirits."

Vicente Garza Jr., 53, of Laredo was one of four other hostages who sat beside Conwell at the news conference.

"I'd like to send a message to my family that I'm well, and my son-in-law who is also here with us in a group is also well. I just want to tell them to pray for me and continue to have faith that probably all this will be over," said Garza, a Laredo businessman.

The son-in-law to whom he referred — Robert Trautmann Jr., 37, also of Laredo — was not among the five at the news conference, but an ABC correspondent succeeded in getting a tape-recorded response from him.

"I'd like to say hello to my wife and kids, Ashley and Katherine. I just want to tell everyone that I'm fine. We've been treated OK. We want to get out though, and hope to be home very shortly," Trautmann said.

A network spokesman said ABC correspondent Julie Flint in Beirut handed a tape recorder to representatives of Amal, the Shiite Moslem group responsible for the hijacking, and they returned later with recorded messages from Trautmann and four others.

Reading from a statement at the news conference, Conwell said, "We're obviously distressed. We're all under a tremendous amount of strain and tension and concern."

Conwell said he and the other hostages agreed "that the greatest terror of all ... was the helplessness of knowing that our families were living through a living hell of terror, in fear of losing us, in fear of losing our love, in fear of us dying."

Dianna Conwell, his sister-in-law, said in Houston after the telecast, "We're very excited. We're all very excited that Allyn is OK. I thought he sounded a lot calmer than I would have."

His mother, Lois Conwell, told CBS News, "My first thought was that he looked much better than I expected. I was looking for someone bedraggled. His clothes looked very nice, and he looked like he'd been well fed."

In Laredo, Garza's brother-in-law, Javier Santos, said:

"We're elated. We saw him. We heard him. He sounds good. He looked great, a little unshaven, but he looked great."

Most of the passengers, including five of Garza's relatives, were released in Beirut and Algiers, Algeria, over the weekend.

Thirty-seven of the remaining 41 hostages have been split up into groups and hidden in West Beirut.

Trautmann's brother Steve said the family is relieved to finally hear from him.

"You know his wife and family have not seen him since Friday, and everybody is really relieved that they are doing OK," Steve Trautmann said. "They said they saw him at the same news conference. He was there also, but he was in the very back. We are still looking trying to get a glimpse of him."

Garza and Trautmann and their families were passengers aboard the TWA 727 that was hijacked over Athens, Greece, last Friday.

Among the passengers released over the weekend were Garza's wife, Irma Garza, 48, his daughter, Irma, 31, and Mrs. Trautmann's three daughters: Adriana Garza, 13, Ashley Trautmann, 4, and Katherine Trautmann, 3.

The five arrived in Laredo early this week and urged President Reagan to negotiate for the safe return of the passengers.

The Shiite Moslems are seeking the release of 700 of their comrades jailed in Israeli prisons. The Reagan administration has said, however, that the United States does not negotiate with terrorists and does not encourage other countries to do so.

Santos had said he was disappointed with the President's statement but after seeing his brother-in-law he said the family believes negotiations are continuing.

"It's a good sign," he said.

Move started to 'draft' Clements

DALLAS (AP) — A project led by five Republican activists to "draft" former Texas Gov. Bill Clements to return to the governor's mansion also is a move to wield Texas influence in the 1988 presidential elections, they say.

"We're focusing on Texas problems but we're also focusing on the 1988 presidential elections," attorney Bill Elliott said Thursday. "We think it's vital that Texas have a Republican governor if we're going to have any influence in the '88 elections," said Elliott, who headed Clements' victorious 1978 campaign.

Elliott is heading a five-member group that is organizing a "Draft Clements Committee."

The group met privately with Clements last Thursday to tell the Dallas millionaire oilman of their plans to spend an estimated $50,000 gathering support and soliciting vote pledges, Elliott said.

"I didn't know a thing in the world about it," Clements said. "When Bill Elliott called me, I didn't know what he was calling about."

In late April, Clements said he was serious about a bid to reclaim the governor's post, but indicated he would run only if none of the other potential GOP candidates had built necessary support by fall.

Several Republicans have indicated they may run for governor. They include Rep. Tom Loeffler of Hunt and former Rep. Kent Hance of Lubbock, a former Democrat who recently became a Republican at the urging of Sen.

Phil Gramm. Clements has withheld his endorsement of either.

Two weeks ago, Clements told reporters who asked him in Austin about a possible race for governor that he was "not thinking about it at all."

But Clements said Thursday the statement was taken out of context. What he meant, he said, was that the governor's race is not "one of the things on my mind right now."

"I said what I have said consistently. I'll start thinking about it maybe next September and next September make my decision."

Elliott said Clements indicated Thursday that the support the group can muster will be a substantial factor in his decision.

"I don't have any intention of going out and soliciting support," Clements said. "I haven't encouraged (the group), but I can't keep them from doing it."

Clements said he is helping other possible Republican gubernatorial candidates however he can.

Recent statewide surveys have shown that many Texans still have a negative view of Clements and that he would have a harder time beating incumbent Democratic Gov. Mark White than would other GOP aspirants, the Dallas Times Herald reported.

White upset Clements in 1982. But Elliott said results of independent polls printed in several Texas newspapers indicated that White had a higher negative rating than Clements.

Teacher case said precedent setting

AUSTIN (AP) — A teacher's group says a Texas Supreme Court ruling that the Lingleville Independent School District violated the law when it dismissed teacher Jeanette Seifert in 1982 is "precedent setting."

The Texas State Teachers Association said Thursday it paid Ms. Seifert's legal fees in the case, which was the first of its kind to be argued in the Supreme Court since the Term Contract Non-Renewal Act became law in 1981.

The Supreme Court ruled Wednesday that the district, which is southwest of Fort Worth, had failed to give the teacher a legally valid reason for not renewing her contract.

Mrs. Seifert was employed by the district from 1975 through 1981-82 under a series of one-year contracts, but the district gave her written notice in 1982 that the superintendent had recommended she not be rehired because of a "community feeling of incompetence."

Following a hearing, the school board voted not to renew the teacher's contract.

Ms. Seifert appealed to the state education commissioner, who reversed the district's decision. The State Board of Education upheld the commissioner, and the district appealed to a Travis County district court.

The district court also upheld the commissioner's decision, but the 3rd Court of Civil Appeals in Austin reversed the district court. The appeals court said the case should go back to the commissioner for further proceedings.

The Supreme Court reversed the appeals court and upheld the district court ruling in the teacher's favor.

Chief Justice John Hill said in the Supreme Court opinion that the school district had adopted a published policy that set out 18 reasons for not renewing teacher's contracts, and "community feeling of incompetence" was not among those reasons.

Hargett ahead in campaign spending

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican Edd Hargett had spent twice as much as his nearest Democratic challenger for Congress, according to campaign finance reports on file with the Clerk of the House so far.

Hargett, an engineer from Linden and a former quarterback at Texas A&M, reported spending $387,675 as of June 9, the end of the reporting period, compared with $191,795 reported spent by Democratic State Rep. Sam Russell.

The bulk of Russell's campaign chest — $145,000 — was loans, his report said.

Hargett said he had $78,740 in his coffers by the end of the reporting period. Russell's campaign was $8,768 in the hole, according to his report.

Former prosecutor Jim Chapman's latest report was not available, but campaign manager Bill Brannon said he had spent and collected over $100,000.

Warren G. Harding, the former Texas state treasurer, filed late for the seat and had not filed any documents with the House Clerk or the Federal Election Commission as of Thursday afternoon.

Candidates are not required to file campaign finance reports unless they raise or spend more than $5,000.

Eight candidates have filed for the seat, vacated when incumbent Democrat Sam B. Hall Jr. was appointed federal judge. The election to fill the seat is June 29.

Hargett reported receiving $58,157 from special-interest political action committees, mostly related to energy and banking businesses.

Former sanctuary director sentenced

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — A former director of a shelter for Central Americans who told a federal judge she would continue to violate immigration laws has been sentenced to two years in prison.

Lorry Thomas, 41, told U.S. District Judge Ricardo Hinojosa that her religious convictions would prompt her to continue helping Central Americans fleeing their war-torn region.

The judge said he would give her 120 days to reconsider her statement about continuing to break the law.

Cause of world violence

Bombs explode, bodies burn, babies cry. Sometimes it seems that the world has gone mad.

In just one week:

Half a hundred Americans were taken hostage by Shiite Moslems because Israel is holding 700 Shiite Moslems captive. One American was killed. The Israelis say they would make a deal and free their prisoners if the United States would ask them to publicly. The United States won't. That would be a sign of weakness.

So the families of about 40 other hostages have lived in terror for more than a week.

In El Salvador, members of a guerrilla gang that wants to replace a gang supported by the United States drive up to a sidewalk cafe and open fire. Six Americans and nine other persons die.

In Tripoli, Lebanon, a car bomb explodes outside a four-story building, killing 31 persons and wounding 50. Elsewhere in Lebanon, Christian and Moslems slaughter each other with reckless abandon each day, each week and each month.

In Nicaragua, battles rage constantly between the government in power and those who want to be in power. Thousands have died. The United States has finally decided to give those who want to be in power millions of dollars to overthrow those already in power.

In the United States, a supposedly civilized U.S. Senator introduces legislation calling for persons convicted of spying on the United States to be executed on television. He did not say if he thought persons spying for the United States should be executed before the television cameras of, for example, the Soviet Union.

In Frankfurt, Germany, terrorists explode a bomb in a crowded airport. Three people, including two children, are killed and many other injured.

Why?

Because some people don't want to be governed by those who govern them. Mostly though, because those who are being governed want to become the people who govern.

It is a struggle for the authority to rule.

Most death, destruction and violence in the world springs from a thirst for the power of government.

And despite this, most of us still cling to the absurd notion that it is the institution of government that keeps order in society.

Two setbacks for the zealots

BY BUTLER SHAFFER

The problem with political institutions is not that they often make irrational or indecent or disruptive decisions, but rather that they make decisions at all. It is the power of the state to enforce legally binding choices upon people, and not the quality of those choices, that is of interest to those who value peace and freedom in human society.

Thus it is that sensible people are able to gather limited relief from the decisions of two political agencies recently. The first was the decision by the U.S. Supreme Court striking down an Alabama law providing for a moment of silence for prayer by public school students. The second was the refusal of the Los Angeles County Supervisor to get swept up in the feverish zeal of feminists to legislate the reading habits of southern Californians. Their proposed legislation would have allowed any woman who was offended by any "pornographic" portrayal of women in a book or magazine to sue the seller of such publication for damages.

The fundamentalist Christian groups and the feminists who have been relentlessly plumping for state endorsement of their points of view recognize, all too well, the power of political institutions to universalize and standardize human behavior by coercive fiat.

In spite of their irreconcilable differences, these groups have found one basis for agreement: the power of the state is there, for whoever can grab it, to cram the preferences of some people down the throats of others.

That the school systems and the media have helped to promote a general point of view that regards "social responsibility" as an active involvement in getting government to force others into compliance with one's viewpoint, has contributed to such practices. A view of "social responsibility" that seeks to foster a social environment in which men and women of diverse beliefs, interest, tastes, hopes, lifestyles, and behavior can pursue what is meaningful to themselves without interfering with the like freedom of others, never enters the minds of zealots of any persuasion.

Zealots, after all, are united on this one point at least: men and women of differing points of view exist either to be reformed or, failing in that, conquered by zealots armed with the power of the State.

If one reads the first amendment to the Constitution, one comes away with an understanding of the importance of state neutrality in the communication among free minds. The first amendment stands for no more than this: men and women ought to be free to think and communicate with one another on anything, without the State being employed by the zealots of any point of view to force adherence to their beliefs.

But zealots want none of that. Zealots want devotees of their belief systems to be free to proselytize, free to gather together to reconfirm their shared beliefs, free to write and publish new tracts or position papers or anything else that may be useful in promoting their particular causes. Zealots never have, however, valued the right of others to freely express their competing views because, after all, when you are a zealot you come to the realization that there are no other legitimate viewpoints.

To a fundamentalist Christian, anything outside the perimeters of "that old time religion" is considered an affront to God; to feminists, any viewpoint incompatible with their own is regarded as an attempt to subjugate women; to devotees of capitalism, anything that questions their desired system is part of an international communist conspiracy. The list could go on and on.

Make no mistake about it: behind all of the lip-service given by fundamentalists to our traditional values of freedom of religion; behind all the sanctimonious whining about Christian children being arrested for praying in schools (a non sequitur that has absolutely nothing to do with the real issue in these school prayer cases), rests the firmly-held conviction that the power of the state should be used - if they can only grab hold of it - to force Old Testament interpretation of Christianity down the throats of non-believers. And make no mistake about the intentions of the feminists, either: they are just as insistent upon using the power of the State to force their political and social agendas upon a public with preferences of their own.

If the schools can be used to condition the minds of children to believe in the necessity of voting and saluting the flag and marching off to war on command, both fundamentalists and feminists believe, schools can also be used to teach that pleasure - whether it be the pleasure of bodily sensation or reading a dirty book - is either sinful or sexist; that the aborting of a fetus is either an offense against God or an act of self-liberation; but that, in any event, a mind that is free to think, to question, to doubt and to deny, is an affront to all ideological and religious values. On this last point the zealots of our world are in complete agreement.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Reductions needed more than reform

While the media and other opinion leaders began engaging in the hype that culminated in the unveiling of Reagan's tax plan, the House of Representatives quietly passed a budget that undercuts the most significant accomplishments of the Reagan-backed, Senate-approved budget.

At the heart of the Senate's rather remarkable budget bill is the belief that if excessive federal spending is to be permanently held down, ineffective and unaffordable agencies must be eliminated.

Simply cutting programs and agencies by 10 percent or so doesn't do much to the deficit in the long run because it gives future Congresses the opportunity to restore and raise these budgets another day.

Thus, the Senate budget calls for eliminating a dozen federal programs, including "corporate-welfare" programs like the Urban Development Action Grants, Export-Import Bank loans, the Economic Development Administration and federal revenue sharing.

Except for the $4.5 billion revenue-sharing program, the House budget would preserve these and other programs, including the U.S. Travel and Tourism program, which even the Carter administration wanted to abolish.

Furthermore, while the Senate budget calls for a one-year freeze on entitlements, including Social Security and federal pay and pensions, the House would continue automatic cost-of-living raises in the midst of the worst deficits in U.S. history.

The House budget—by calling for, appropriately, a freeze on Pentagon spending—does manage to reduce the deficit, in the short run, by about the same amount the Senate budget would. But the prospect of long-term reductions in the cost and scope of the federal government—the real dream of the Reagan Revolution—would be severely reduced if the House budget prevails in House-Senate conference negotiations.

In those negotiations, Reagan will need all the political capital he can muster to salvage the key spending eliminations proposed by the Senate.

There is a danger, though, that he may spend all his capital on a "tax-reform" plan that, while mildly commendable, essentially shifts the burden of who pays what. Even more important than the manner in which we are taken to the cleaners by the IRS is how much is taken, which, in turn, depends on how much government spends.

Tax plan our best hope

It's time, Americans, to put your mouth where your money is.

You want a simplified tax system. You now have a President proposing a simplified tax system.

Yet from all directions, special interest lobbyists have converged on Capitol Hill demanding specific exemptions.

Enough exemptions, of course, and we will be no better off than now.

You have more clout than anybody if you will use it.

Your Republican President and your Democratic cheerleader, Danny Rostenkowski, are urging you to communicate with your congressman or congresswoman.

Your postcard does matter.

For four years a single mosquito, multiplied, blocked the Panama Canal.

It was a single snowflake which stopped Napoleon.

"Snowflake," Uncle Sam needs you

And here is what he needs you to do: Fall in line behind the simpler, fairer tax code which, at least, reduces the present 14 tax brackets to three. Maybe the first-step package is imperfect, will not delight everybody, but it is a first step - anyway from a system so complex that nobody understands it and so full of holes that there are junkies, artful dodgers and jillionaires paying no taxes at all.

TaxPAYERS have most to lose if they nit-pick at the new package while NON-taxpayers shout it down.

With a Republican President proposing something everybody wants - a simpler, fairer tax system - you'd think Republicans would converge in unanimous support.

They haven't.

This will sound like a digression, but I learned machine politics under Chicago's Dick Daley.

However he favored political friends, the fact that Dick Daley lived modestly and died less than wealthy attests to his first allegiance: "A city that works."

Like FDR, his personal idol, he made Democrats out of Republicans.

Today's national Republican leadership could use a little machine-oil.

Such is the Reagan magnetism that whole states are switching parties - Texas, Florida, South Carolina.

In the Senate, Bob Dole is a strong leader. If he could persuade partisan colleagues to stop their free-wheeling competing in favor of cooperating - to resist compromising away this present best hope for embracing the interests of all Americans of both parties, they could identify themselves or a generation with a system of taxation which we can all understand and afford to support.

New evidence about the flight of 007

By Robert Walters

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Like Alice's Adventures in Wonderland, the saga of the Korean Air Lines plane shot down in the late summer of 1983 by military aircraft from the Soviet Union is becoming "curiouser and curiously."

"Provocative new disclosures indicate that this country's political, military and diplomatic officials may have manipulated, suppressed and distorted important information about the ill-fated journey of KAL flight 007 on Aug. 31, 1983.

Journalists, academicians and aviation specialists have produced a substantial body of evidence suggesting that the plane did not accidentally stray from its assigned course when it intruded upon Soviet territory.

Instead, several independent researchers believe, the Boeing 747 purposely deviated from the normal flight path to stimulate the Soviet Union's air defense system, thus providing valuable military intelligence for this country.

"With the passage of time, this argument, unlike all others, looms stronger than before," concludes Alexander Dallin, a Stanford University professor and author of a new book entitled "Black Box: KAL 007 and the Superpowers."

Adds John Keppel, a former Foreign Service officer: "We already have a virtually overpowering inferential and circumstantial case. Collectively, it also forms a logical case which I am convinced is of a definitive nature."

Assistant Secretary of State Richard R. Burt, who was the principal government spokesman in the days following the destruction of the plane, insists that he did not learn that it had been downed until almost eight hours after it was shot from sky by Soviet jet fighters.

But Der Spiegel, a respected West German news magazine, has reported that less than three hours after the incident Burt participated in a conference call in which senior government officials devised a plan to withhold news of the disaster until they could orchestrate a propaganda campaign portraying it as a Soviet atrocity.

Among those reportedly participating in the telephone call were Secretary of State George Shultz, CIA Director William Casey and two of President Reagan's most senior advisers — Edwin Meese and William Clark.

The National Transportation Safety

Board was authorized by international treaty to conduct an official investigation of the crash but that probe was summarily aborted for unspecified reasons by the State Department.

During pretrial proceedings in a civil suit filed in U.S. District Court here by relatives of passengers who died aboard the plane, the Air Force was asked to produce a copy of the videotape showing the extent to which the plane was tracked by radar after it took off from Anchorage, Alaska, en route to Seoul, South Korea.

The Air Force, however, claimed that it had "no idea" the tape, recorded at Elmendorf Air Force Base in Anchorage, would be of subsequent interest to anybody and therefore "routinely" destroyed it.

The tape is known to have included the output of the military radar station at King Salmon, Alaska, showing that the plane began to veer dangerously off course almost immediately after taking off from Anchorage.

In addition, it probably contained the output of the military radar posts at Cape Newenham and Cape Romanzof, Alaska — both of which would have monitored further deviation from the assigned flight path.

Finally, there is a likelihood that the tape included the output of two highly classified military radar facilities — designated "Cobra Dane" and "Cobra Talon" — on Shemya Island, at the westernmost edge of the Aleutian Islands.

The elaborate radar network provided this country with the capability to monitor the wayward flight for more than 2,000 miles — but no attempt was ever made to inform the doomed plane that it was headed directly for the Soviet Union.

Man sentenced to 35 years for part in girl's kidnapping

CLEBURNE, Texas (AP) — A 22-year-old Mesquite man has been sentenced to 35 years in prison for his part in the January kidnapping of a 13-year-old Alvarado girl.

Daniel Walter Necker Jr. was convicted of aggravated kidnapping Thursday in the Jan. 11-13 abduction of Amy McNeil, a seventh grader.

Necker's uncle, James Wesley Foote, 34, of Arlington and Michael Lynn Mills, 28, of Dallas were sentenced in March to life in prison in the case and two others await trial.

The jury took 45 minutes to reach its guilty verdict, then deliberated two hours before deciding on the sentence.

Parents of the kidnapping victim thought the sentence was too light, while the defendant's parents thought it too severe.

"What it boils down to is some people think kidnapping is not as serious a crime as other crimes," said Don McNeil, Amy's father. "My view is that it is one of the most heinous crimes there is."

Daniel Necker Sr., the defendant's father, said, "I don't think it was right. I don't think he got a fair trial. I think everything would have been different if the trial had been in Dallas or someplace else."

The father also said he was disappointed that a professor's testimony on the effects of drugs on someone was not admitted into evidence. The defendant had claimed he was so high on amphetamines that he wasn't aware the girl had been kidnapped

Mexico preparing for 'killer bee' invasion

CUERNAVACA, Mexico (AP) — They have mean genes. They're ill-tempered. And millions of them are coming soon to Mexico.

The so-called African "killer bees" are expected to arrive at Mexico's southern border as early as next year, a prospect that has government officials and beekeepers alarmed.

The African bees, a far more aggressive breed than the European bees used for honey cultivation in Mexico and the rest of the Western Hemisphere, pose a serious threat to Mexico's $50-million-a-year honey industry, officials say.

"There's definitely going to be a big drop in honey production," said Peter Rabbow, managing director of the Miel Carlota apiculture plant on the outskirts of this resort town 50 miles southwest of Mexico City.

Mexico is among the world's three largest honey exporters, along with China and the Soviet Union. But only Mexico faces a threat to their honey industries from African bees.

Since 26 African queen bees escaped from a research laboratory in Sao Paulo, Brazil, in 1957, and began mating with local bees descended from European stock, they have devastated honey industries on their northward journey through South and Central America.

During their advance north from Brazil, African bees have been blamed for the deaths of more than 150 people and countless animals.

Rabbow noted that honey production in Venezuela virtually collapsed after the arrival of the bees. Output fell from 6,380 tons in 1975 to 970 tons in 1981; Venezuela went from exporting honey to importing it.

Miel Carlota is Mexico's largest commercial honey operation. But it produces only 500 to 900 tons of the more than 60,000 tons harvested nationwide each year.

The country has 2.5 million commercial hives and some 47,000 beekeepers, 90 percent of them small farmers who don't have the resources to combat the bees, Rabbow said.

"Many will simply find it's not worth their time to stay in beekeeping," he said.

The disruption in the honey business comes as the smaller but fierce African bees take over domestic hives, killing the queen bees so their own queens can mate with the gentle European drones.

Though they produce more honey, they consume most of it, unlike European bees, Rabbow said. Their fierceness also make it dangerous for beekeepers to handle them and requires hives to be relocated away from inhabited areas.

Attempts to breed the aggressiveness out of the bees have not produced the hoped-for results, he said.

After one cross between a European queen and African drones, the new generation is less irritable. But succeeding generations re-acquire their mean-tempered ways.

The only effective way to fight the bees, said Rabbow, is to continually kill the African queens and insert artificially inseminated European queens into the hives.

The government has distributed pamphlets to beekeepers instructing them on how to deal with the African bees. It is also considering producing a large number of European queen bees for distribution to small beekeepers, but Rabbow said such a program will take several years to provide the necessary numbers. It's still in the talking stage.

A third proposal under study is to place "traps" along the border between Mexico and Guatemala to slow their entry into the country, but Rabbow said such an undertaking would be "horrendously expensive."

Here at Miel Carlota, the company's beekeepers are preparing as best they can for the sting of the "killer bee" invasion. Because it already produces queen bees to substitute aging queens in its hives, Miel Carlota will be able to adjust to the impact of the African bees more readily than small farmers.

As Rabbow showed a visitor around, two workers opened a hive less than 10 feet away and the air filled with bees.

"If these were African bees, we would be covered with them," he said.

Our Tax Deferred Annuities* now pay 10 1/4 %

Everybody knows that there are many investment opportunities around today that pay a handsome rate of interest. The trouble is, in many cases that interest is currently taxable. You can lose up to over half of it to the tax man. So your retirement savings may grow very slowly.

Now, there's a better answer. It's our tax deferred single premium annuities. Not only is the rate competitive, but the interest is free from current federal income tax. That means your savings can grow up to twice as fast as a mutual fund, time deposit, or other taxable plan.

Taxes on the income must be paid later, of course. But usually not until retirement, when your income tax bracket will probably be lower. And after your savings kitty has grown.

Our annuities are also ideal for IRA and Keogh plans—because they also protect against disability and provide a retirement income you cannot outlive. Most other plans don't.

And whether it's IRA, Keogh, or other retirement fund, you get our expert knowledge of annuities and our unbeatable service.

These annuities are available through most New York Life Agents. Go ahead, ask. They'll help you to a richer retirement.

"I'm Thirsty"

Such a familiar cry to any parent, and who could resist such an appeal. Many times the cry of "I'm thirsty" is a genuine one, but there are times when it is a scheme to linger a little longer, the result of a strong desire to remain awake and play with the dolls and toys that loving parents have provided.

While meeting the physical, play, and comfort needs, don't forget the need for "Living Waters." Take the family to church, where all may hear of, and be drawn closer to our loving Father.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Attorney practices religion

BY LAURA A. SALSINI
Associated Press Writer
MILWAUKEE (AP) — John Asher has turned down numerous cases since he opened his Christian Law Center early this year because they weren't in accord with his religious beliefs.

"I don't feel a responsibility to take someone's case if I feel it violates the Christian precepts that I live by," he says.

But Asher, 32, is no religious zealot and doesn't look like one. Dressed in a three-piece pinstriped suit and with tufts of black hair grazing his shirt collar, he says:

"This is not meant to be a snobbish organization." Emphasizing that he does not turn away clients just because they are not Christian, he says. "I would never even ask anyone if they are Christian."

But he does turn away cases if they conflict with his beliefs — some divorce cases, for example, or child custody disputes.

"I don't want to be a party to anything that I might have to answer to God for," he says. "You shouldn't do anything as a lawyer that would violate any of your beliefs."

However, he says he doesn't use his desk as a pulpit.

"I tell them that it's strictly my beliefs and I'm not passing any judgment on them," he says.

The sign on his door says he intends to practice law "in the spirit of the Lawgiver." To him, it's a matter of translating his faith into workaday life.

In 1972, Asher dropped out of college and joined a rock and roll band in Denver, writing songs and playing rhythm guitar.

And he started reading the Bible. Asher became a practicing Christian about that time, dropping out of his rock and roll band because he didn't feel it was compatible with his new beliefs.

In 1974, Asher moved to the La Crosse area, where he had relatives, and became a piano tuner. Between jobs, he traveled around the country as an evangelical missionary for a non-denominational Christian group.

Six years later, he gave that up to go back to school. He graduated from the University of Wisconsin Law School last December and opened his Christian law office two months later.

He admits that lawyers have an obligation to represent clients, but says he has to live with his personal convictions 24 hours a day, not just on the job. He said any client he turns away would have little trouble finding another lawyer to represent him.

Religion Roundup

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Vatican's silencing of a noted Brazilian liberation theologian, the Rev. Leonardo Boff, has drawn troubled reactions from some American scholars and sharp criticism by a West German.

It "goes against the modern or American grain," says the Rev. Walter Burghardt of the Catholic University of America.

When the Vatican has silenced scholars before, "almost always history has vindicated" them, says the head of Notre Dame's theology department, the Rev. Richard McBrien.

In Philadelphia, Temple University issued a statement by the Rev. Hans Kung of Germany's University of Tubingen, saying the action is further evidence of "new waves of a modernized inquisition."

"The pope preaches human rights around the world and rejects them in the church," Kung said.

Boff, whom the Vatican ordered to refrain from writing or public speaking for an indefinite period of "respectful silence," was quoted in news reports from Brazil as saying:

"I reaffirm that the Gospel message gives a preferential option to the poor and the oppressed... I accept the period of silence, but the punishment inflicted on me does not cancel the need to study and elaborate the theology of liberation."

NEW YORK (AP) — Protestant and Roman Catholic agencies are increasing their aid programs in famine-stricken areas of Africa, with much of the effort concentrated in Ethiopia.

Catholic Relief Services doubled its allocation from $15 million to $30 million for 27 months of new and continuing projects. Lawrence A. Pezullo, CRS executive director, says: "We are witnessing the worst famine that Africa has experienced in a century."

Church World Service, relief arm of the National Council of Churches, has appealed for $16.5 million to extend a food-crisis program that was set last year at a $6.4 million but which actually raised more than $12 million.

Kindness, compassion: needed virtues

Admit it. When things aren't going particularly well for you, you don't care to hear about someone who's "making it."

Honest people admit that hearing about other people's success is not only boring, it brings out all kinds of nasty feelings within them.

Judith Viorst, in her book of poems, "How Did I Get to Be 40 ... & Other Atrocities," tells about this love-dovey couple in her circle: "She always called him lover and he always called her baby and she always praised his brilliance and he always praised her wit."

No wife was more adoring and no husband more devoted. Were other couples happy for them? No. "The rest of us regarded them with envy and despair."

But the story has a happy ending: "They just announced they're filing for divorce tomorrow and the news filled the rest of us with absolute delight."

Religious people are not immune to such feelings. In his newly published book, "Before You Call I Will Answer," the Rev. David A. Redding has a poem that reflects sentiments that Judy Viorst and her friends could relate to: "Lord, I can handle losers like a good Samaritan ... and those who've had it hard and need my help. But when someone comes along who is better off than I am, I fall apart."

He compares himself with some embarrassment to the mob that shouted "Crucify him!" on Good Friday: "That's exactly where I am. Thirsty for the blood of anybody who's better than I am."

It isn't only in poetry that you meet such emotions. And you don't have to be poor and down at the heels to have these feelings. Here is a true story told in the Notre Dame Magazine. A woman walked into the office of a successful businessman she knew and found him flipping through the class notes of his college alumni magazine.

"Checking their progress against your own?" she joked.

"Yeah," he replied. He wasn't joking. "I've done well. I've made money. But if they do better than I do, it bothers me."

Success to us means not only "making it." It means making it better than our friends. So where does this leave qualities like kindness and compassion in the scheme of things cherished and desired?

I have come to think that kindness and compassion are two of the most important virtues — and two of the least evident in our society. They are in short supply because of our emphasis on affluence, materiality and success.

I heard a young divinity student criticize the Yuppie generation the other day in one of his practice sermons at the seminary. "You can't hug people," he said, "if you are climbing the ladder of success. Your arms are busy reaching for the next rung."

It is this unavailability of caring persons in our lives that has made professional counseling the big business it is today. We are better at pointing out the mistakes of others than we are at showing compassion.

Paul Schere used to tell his ministerial students at Union Theological Seminary, "Be as hard as you want on the wrong they do, but be gentle with people always. Everyone has a battle to fight."

To remember that is to have compassion.

We also tend to be uncaring or indifferent to those we feel have brought on their own troubles. It is the person with kindness and compassion who realizes that "they need love most who deserve it least."

I can think of no finer epitaph for a person than this: "He was kind and he was fair." A good exercise for all would be to write down what we would like to have said about us on our tombstones.

TO ALL INTERESTED PERSONS AND PARTIES:

You are hereby notified of the opportunity for written public comment concerning the Special Permit Application No. S-9722 by Kerr-McGee Corporation to construct a replacement 403 HP internal combustion engine driven refrigerant compressor. REV. WILLARD TEAGUE AND FAMILY

Ivory Coast missionary to talk at church here

Rev. Willard Teague, Assemblies of God missionary to the Ivory Coast, will be guest speaker at the 11 a.m. worship service Sunday at the Calvary Assembly of God Church, 1030 Love Ave.

Rev. Teague has noted that a great challenge to the church in Africa is the training of leadership — pastors, elders, deacons and teachers, local pastor Rev. R. G. Tyler said.

The need for more workers is a constant problem of a church born in revival and facing explosive growth, Teague has stated.

A former minister in Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico, Teague has ministered in the Ivory Coast nation and other West Africa areas since 1972. He and his wife, Jerlene, began their work in Ivory Coast after spending a year in Lausanne, Switzerland, to study the French language.

In Africa they have been involved in evangelistic ministry, the establishing of new churches and founding of the Bible Institute for training national leadership. The Teagues went to Ivory Coast in the pioneer days of the Assemblies of God there and assisted in setting up the organizational structure.

"The government is very favorable toward the church, and we find complete freedom to minister," Teague has stated. The church has experienced rapid growth, with more than 30,000 adult members and adherents and more than 260 churches.

Teague was chairman of the board of governors for the West Africa Advanced School of Theology in Lome, Togo, from 1976 to 1982, and has served as president of the Accrediting Council for the Bible Schools and Institutes of West and Central Africa. He was also the superintendent of the Western and Central District of the Assemblies of God in Ivory Coast from 1976 to 1980.

On returning to Africa, the Teagues' primary work will be the directing of the West Africa Advanced School of Theology in Togo, where he will be serving as president. His work will include the establishing of a network of extension centers across the entire region and providing mobile teaching assignments in those centers across 12 or more nations. The Teagues also will conduct evangelistic meetings.

Teague has a bachelor of science degree from Southwestern Assemblies of God College at Waxahachie, Texas, and a master of arts degree in Biblical studies from the Assemblies of God Theological Seminary in Springfield, Mo.

He also has studied at the Brite Divinity School of Texas Christian University at Fort Worth, the Phillips University Graduate School in Enid, Okla., and the Moody Bible Institute at Chicago. At present he is completing the final courses for the master of divinity degree from Assemblies of God Theological Seminary. He is a graduate of Leman College in French studies at Lausanne, Switzerland.

Rev. Tyler invited the public to attend the spl missions service.

NOTES AND STUFF: Harvester basketball coach Garland Nichols had to curtail his visit to Mexico to participate in a coaching clinic. Flareup of a recurring health problem occurred even before he could make his presentation, necessitating an uncomfortable trip home, hospitalization, surgery, loss of 15 pounds. He is now up and around and on the mend. Two former Pampa HS female athletes assume new coaching positions next fall. Kris Douglass moves from Spring Hi near Houston to become head tennis coach at Abilene HS, and Kelly Richardson, just graduated from Texas Tech, joins the staff at Canyon HS. A teammate of Kelly's, Carolyn Thompson is the new head girls' basketball coach at 1-4A Estacado, replacing Langston Williams who suffered through a 3-20 season. Top O Texas area Red Raider Club members should have lots of questions for Tom Chambers, newly appointed vice president in charge of fund raising for West Texas. He is a former basketball student manager for Gerald Myers, so you know he is quality people. If UTEP athletic director Bill Cords gets the athletic directorship at Oregon State, and he's in the final four, isn't it very probable Kirby Sunderman will return to the Border City as AD? Sunderman, a Canyon native who officiated boys and girls basketball throughout the area for years, took the associate AD's job at Appalachian State a month ago, moving from UTEP. His boss at Boone, N.C. is Jim Garner, who now becomes a leading candidate for the newly-opened Texas Tech post, where he once served as an assistant. You can't tell the players even with scoreboards, and even roadmaps don't help. Incidentally, Sunderman's father Gene, was head boxing coach at Corpus Christi U. three decades ago, and one of his best fighters was Pampa's Bobby Wilhelm. Have you noticed all the bluejays and red-headed woodpeckers around? Long hitting golfers get a kick out of needing the short knockers by telling them they can't hit the ball far enough to lose it. Pampa barber W.A. Gipson describes his tee shots by saying "I can't hit it out of my shadow at high noon." In other words, he's to golf what a whisper is to opera. Dorothy Rosenbach was still chuckling as she called to say that yes, she and her husband saw Gifford and Meredith in "The Odd Couple" at Santa Fe. Meredith was, naturally enough, the sloppy one. Former Pampa News sports editor Joe Lee Smith is a co-editor with Houston sportswriter Bill MacMurray of the valuable and recently published history of Texas High School Football. Joe Lee served as sports information director at Lamar University for many years after leaving Pampa. Can't the state highway department do something to properly identify the fact that there is more than one lane for southbound through traffic at the intersection of Price Road and the Borger highway? It is a very busy intersection, carrying heavy traffic to Celanese and Cabot, and although very poorly designed originally, could be aided with proper signage. Septogenarian Amarillo sportswriter Putt Powell has graciously submitted the most interesting feature for the forthcoming special edition history of Harvester sports due in your June 30 edition of the Pampa News. One of the great high school area football games next fall will be the Canadian Wildcat-Perryton Ranger matchup. The Cats, with former White Deer Buck head coach Paul Wilson at the helm, are already preparing mentally and physically.

This week's NBA draft brought about a rebirth for number one draftee Patrick Ewing, born the first time on Aug. 5, 1962, the date Marilyn Monroe died. Everytime I see an athlete wear No. 19 I recall that number belonged to former Pampa Oiler manager Herschel Martin, who held down centerfield for the New York Yankees for three seasons that Joe DiMaggio was in military service. There was never a finer athlete-gentleman than Martin. Fireballer Dave Righetti has that number now for the Yanks. And when the networks last week acknowledged that historic feat of back-to-back no-hitters by Johnny Vander Meer in June of 1938 I am reminded that the legendary Cincinnati southpaw was signed to his first professional contract by former Oiler business manager Jimmie Hamilton. It may be too late for either of the two groups thinking about a Continental Basketball Association team in Amarillo. Kansas City officials have drafted an agreement to lease Kemper Arena to an expansion CBA team to replace the fleeing Kings. Attendance at high school athletic events by both students and parents should pick up since a just-released survey by the National Association of Secondary School Principals indicates that athletic games were the most popular place for teens to meet out of a list of 58 activities suggested. Thanks to former Harvester Jimmy Wilson for the material he sent concerning a reunion of the 1948 Sul Ross Lobo football team, one containing several PHS gridders. Pampa coaches Tom Tipps and Aubra Noncaster headed those talents toward their alma mater. Included on that squad which played in the Tangerine Bowl to include the season, was a big Texan named Dan Blocker, later to be better known as Hoss. It has been Reverend Jimmy Wilson for many years now, currently serving at Odessa's Medical Center Hospital. To further stress the idiocy of a threatened strike by the Major League Players Association around the All-Star Game, ninety-five cents out of every dollar that comes from the game goes to the players' pension plan. If you're an avid enough NY Yankee fan you can spend 50 cents and dial 1-900-410-YANK and hear live game play-by-play, team info and features. The most colorful newcomer to the major league scene, Dennis "Oil Can" Boyd of the Red Sox, has a Doberman named Doby that slurps a quart of beer daily. As the players claim, the owners are treating them like dogs.

Sills leads Atlanta Classic

Sills first-round leader

ATLANTA (AP) — Tony Sills and Fuzzy Zoeller turned the first round of the $500,000 Georgia-Pacific Atlanta Golf Classic into a tribute to modern medicine.

Sills, who has undergone surgery five times in the last 11 years, shot a 7-under-par 65 Thursday to take the opening round lead and Zoeller, who had back surgery nine months ago, was in second place just one shot behind.

"I'm in real good health right now, but I had a lot of serious medical problems in the past," said Sills, who had his colon removed nine years ago and has undergone surgery three times since then.

"You realize there are other things in life than hitting a golf ball, more important things than just missing a two-foot putt," Sills said.

"Golf has given me so much,"

he added. "I've never won on the tour. It's very important to me, but it's just so early in the tournament to be thinking about winning now, and I'm going to try not to."

Sills fought through qualifying attempts six times before he finally earned his tour card. He's been in position to win only once since joining the tour in 1983, and that came earlier this year at New Orleans where he led after three rounds, but finished in a tie for fourth place.

Sills wrested the opening lead during the afternoon after Zoeller completed play in the morning.

Conditions at the 7,000-yard Atlanta Country Club course were ideal throughout the day, and 66 players in the 156-man field broke par and 21 others matched par.

Zoeller had a round free of bogeys, scoring four of his six birdies from inside five feet.

NCAA may pass drug-testing policy

By AUSTIN WILSON
AP Sports Writer

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — College athletes could be tested for drugs and steroids before every bowl game and championship tournament, beginning with the 1986-87 school year, if the NCAA approves the recommendation of one of its committees.

Under the proposal, an athlete testing positive for steroids or a performance-enhancing drug such as amphetamines or cocaine would immediately become ineligible for the bowl game or championship event, said John L. Toner, athletic director at the University of Connecticut and chairman of the NCAA's Special Committee for National Drug Testing Policy.

The athlete could regain eligibility after 90 days, but a second positive test after that three-month period would result in ineligibility for a full year, Toner said Thursday.

The committee recommendation was announced during the NCAA's special convention on integrity, winding up three days of meetings today.

A drug testing policy was proposed last year, but failed to pass.

This time, Toner said, "I think we're going to come up with a plan that the membership will like."

The policy proposed on Thursday would go before the full NCAA for a vote at its spring meeting, if it moves along as Toner said he hopes it will.

"We feel we have a serious problem with anabolic steroids, as well as with performance-enhancing drugs and the recreational or street drugs that may or may not enhance performance," said Toner.

Although the use of steroids is legal, Toner said his committee believes it is worth the extra cost of testing to detect them. They're dangerous for the user, who hopes to get bigger and stronger by using them, he said.

He estimated the testing program would cost the NCAA as much as $600,000 the first year.

"We feel that the use of a performance-enhancing chemical is an unfair advantage and that, therefore, there should be sanctions in the form of ineligibility," he said.

For the 1987 men's and women's basketball tournaments, therefore, the committee recommended testing the winners of some early-round games.

Track and field athletes would be subject to spot checks, "and we would be careful to also test non-winners, because it has been pointed out to us that the use of drugs may be more pervasive among non-winners."

Marijuana use detected by the tests would probably be treated differently than positives for cocaine or steroids, according to Toner. He said repeated use of marijuana would probably result in ineligibility.

Miller leads Mayflower Classic

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Beth Solomon and Laurie Rinker are in unusual territory, contending for the lead going into today's second round of the $250,000 Mayflower Classic.

Solomon, 33rd on the 1985 Ladies Professional Golf Association money list, and Rinker, 55th, trailed money leader Alice Miller by a single stroke after the opening round.

Miller, zeroing in on JoAnne Carner's single-season earnings record, had five birdies and 13 pars for a 67 over the 6,203-yard Country Club of Indianapolis course.

"What I was trying to do today was think more about shots, instead of where I want the club on my back swing, which is ridiculous," said Rinker, who has missed the cut six times this year and earned only $23,781. "I was just trying to have fun out there and relax today," she said. "It seemed to work a little better."

Rinker, 22, had birdies on two of her first four holes.

"I think playing well today is going to give me a little more confidence. I've been lacking that quite a bit lately," she said.

Solomon, who has one victory since joining the tour in 1975, sank birdie putts of 14, 35 and 10 feet. She made seven birdies, including four on the final seven holes.

"It was fun," said Solomon. "I hit it pretty good today." Solomon, who has earned $34,469, overcame a shaky start that included three consecutive bogeys early in the round.

Miller, who had nearly $375,000 in official earnings and three tour triumphs at the start of the year, would claim the LPGA money record by claiming the $37,500 top prize here. She has collected $280,750 in 17 starts this year. Carner set the mark of $310,399 in 1982.

Allison Finney, another golfer not usually among the leaders, was tied with Donna White at 69, two strokes behind.

Mariners crush Rangers, 11-3

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — When it rains it pours, and when baseball players hit it's contagious, says Al Cowens.

And Cowens should know. Playing for the first time since fouling a ball off his foot eight games ago, he contributed two hits, including a home run, and four runs batted in to a 20-hit Seattle Mariners' attack Thursday night that Cowens said reached epidemic proportions.

"When there are a lot of guys hitting, it's contagious," Cowens said after the Mariners' 11-3 victory over the Texas Rangers. "It's good to have a lot of guys hitting. You'll win more ball games that way."

The 20 hits tied a club record set on Aug. 30, 1981 against the Cleveland Indians as eight Seattle players had a multiple-hit game.

Phil Bradley, Ivan Calderon, Jim Presley and Donnie Scott each had three hits and Cowens, Jack Perconte, Alvin Davis and Spike Owen had two hits.

"That is how you get 20 hits in a game," Bradley said. "When everybody's getting two or three hits."

"It wasn't all that badly played a game," said Rangers Manager Bobby Valentine. "We made a few mistakes here and there but the six-run (third) inning hurt us."

Matt Young, 6-8, pitched five innings, giving up three runs and five hits. Young walked one and struck out four. Karl Best pitched the final three innings for his fourth save.

Loser Burt Hooton, 3-2, gave up seven runs on 11 hits in 4 and 1-3 innings.

"Burt is a good pitcher," Owen said. "He didn't throw real well tonight but we were hitting great."

The Mariners sent 10 batters to the plate in the third inning. Owen and Perconte singled and scored on Bradley's two-run double. One out later, Hooton intentionally walked Gorman Thomas before Cowens hit his sixth homer of the year. Presley capped the uprising with his 15th homer.

The Rangers cut the lead to 6-3 in the fourth. Alan Bannister doubled and scored on Don Slaught's double. Two outs later, Toby Harrah hit his fifth homer.

The Mariners added a run in the fifth when Owen hit a run-scoring single, one in the eighth on Cowens' RBI single and three more in the ninth on Perconte's RBI single and Davis' two-run double.

J.T. Richardson advances to tourney finals

An RBI single by Brandon Knutson with two outs in the bottom of the seventh inning gave J.T. Richardson a 6-5 win over Pampa Hardware Thursday night in the Babe Ruth 13-15 Tournament at Optimist Park.

Richardson's come-from-behind victory puts them in the Saturday night finals against an opponent to be determined Friday night. Richardson is unbeaten in tournament play while handing Hardware its first loss.

Troy Owens' solo homer over the centerfield fence had given Pampa Hardware a 5-4 lead in the sixth inning.

After Richardson hurler Grant Gamblin had set the side down in order in the top of the seventh, he opened the bottom of the seventh with an infield single. Ray Hilton's grounder forced Gamblin out at second, but Derrick Ryan, the next batter, hit a groundball to third that was thrown wildly to first, scoring Hilton with the tying run. After Sammy Franklin struck out, Knutson blooped a single down the leftfield line to score Ryan with the winning run.

Gamblin was the winning pitcher while Owens took the loss. Both struck out eight batters and they were also the leading hitters for their respective teams. Gamblin had three hits and Owens four.

Jason Garren and Franklin had two hits each for Richardson. Shawn Harris and Mark Aderholt had hit each.

Chad McDougall and Kerry Brown had two hits for Pampa Hardware, while Kyle Clark and Brian Dunn had one hit each.

Pampa Hardware won the regular-season championship for the seventh consecutive season, but have failed to defeat J.T. Richardson in three tries this season.

In the other game played last night, Grant Supply defeated the Lions Club, 14-6, with Robert Perez going all seven innings on the mound for the victory.

Chris Steward led Grant's hitting attack with two triples and a double. David Doak and Chris Roden each had a double and triple. James Ward and Perez had a double.

Grant meets Pampa Hardware at 7 p.m. tonight.

Pampa will be the site of both the 13-year-old and 13-15 District Tournaments next month. The 13 tournament is scheduled for July 2-6 at Optimist Park and the 13-15 tournament will be held the following week.

OVER SWING — Derrick Ryan of J.T. Richardson loses his balance after fouling off a fastball in Babe Ruth Tournament action Thursday night. Ryan's groundball in the bottom of the seventh inning tied the score against Pampa Hardware and Richardson went on to win the game, 6-5, to advance to the finals Saturday night. (Staff Photo)

Mets may be back on course now

By JIM DONAGHY
AP Sports Writer

In a season dominated by anomalies the New York Mets swept a series that may, just may, put them back on course.

After a fast start that saw the Mets catapult to the top of the National League East, New York saw its bullpen crumble, its batting average sink and its earned run average inflate. The misery for the Mets culminated in three straight road losses to Montreal last weekend, dropping the New Yorkers to fourth place.

Then it was back home to Shea Stadium to play the Cubs in a four-game series. The same Cubs that won 12 of 18 games against the Mets last season. The Mets had something to prove not only to the Cubs, but more importantly to themselves.

On Thursday, George Foster hit his 12th career grand-slam homer in the third inning and rookie John Christensen followed with a bases-empty homer to give the Mets a 5-3 victory and a series sweep. The loss was the ninth straight for Chicago, their longest losing streak since dropping 13 straight games in June 1982.

The win moved the second-place Mets and Cardinals to within a half game of first-place Montreal.

In other NL games, San Diego edged San Francisco 6-5; Pittsburgh nipped Montreal 2-1; Houston blanked Atlanta 2-0 and St. Louis zipped Philadelphia 5-0. Los Angeles and Cincinnati were not scheduled.

Cardinals 5, Phillies 0
Danny Cox scattered nine hits and pitched his second consecutive shutout, and Willie McGee singled home Vince Coleman in the first inning and scored on Andy Van Slyke's double for all the runs Cox would need.

Cox, 9-2, has not yielded a run in 23 straight innings. It was his third shutout of the season.

Padres 6, Giants 5
Terry Kennedy hit a two-run double off reliever Mark Davis to lift LaMarr Hoyt to his seventh victory in his last seven starts.

With the Giants leading 5-3, Mike Krukow walked pinch-hitter Al Bumbry to open the eighth. Krukow was relieved by Davis, who issued a walk to pinch-hitter Jerry Royster. After fouling off a bunt, Tony Gwynn singled to center to score Bumbry and move Royster to third. Kennedy scored both runners with his double.

Rich Gossage pitched the ninth for his 16th save.

Astros 2, Braves 0
Phil Garner hit a two-run homer in the eighth inning to break a pitching duel between Houston's Bob Knepper and Atlanta's Rick Mahler.

Alan Ashby led off the eighth with a walk off Mahler, 10-6. Garner then hit a drive over the center-field fence for his fourth home run of the season.

Knepper, 7-3, got the first two outs in the ninth, but then Bruce Benedict singled and pinch-hitter Paul Runge walked. Dave Smith then came on to retire pinch-hitter Claudell Washington on a grounder for his 12th save.

Pirates 2, Expos 1
Rick Rhoden pitched a three-hitter over seven innings and drove in the winning run with a fifth-inning double as the last-place Pirates defeated the first-place Expos for the third time in four games.

Rhoden, 5-7, snapped a personal three-game losing streak. Al Holland allowed two hits over the final two innings to record his fifth save.

Dean's finishes unbeaten season

Dean's Pharmacy finished as the only undefeated little league baseball team this season in the Pampa Optimist program.

Dean's finished with a 13-0 record and wrapped up the American Little League regular-season with a 7-1 win Thursday over One Bull Ranch.

Quincy Williams was the winning pitcher and also hit a triple. Paul Brown also added a three-bagger.

Losing pitcher was Delvin Cross. Dean's coaches are Jim Brashears, Steve Yurich and Gary Morris.

Dean's will be one of the favorites to win the City Little League Tournament, which starts Saturday. Eight games are scheduled.

The double-elimination tournament ends June 29.

Kristi Hughes signs letter with WTSU

Pampa High athlete Kristi Hughes has signed to attend West State University on a track scholarship.

Miss Hughes was the lone senior on the Lady Harvesters' powerful track squad and one of most versatile.

Miss Hughes, hampered by a leg injury, advanced to the state meet in the long jump and finished in fifth place. Participating in as many as five events for the Lady Harvesters throughout the season, Miss Hughes was the team leader in points scored. She was voted the most outstanding performer on the track team her senior year while setting school records in the long jump, high jump and 100 hurdles.

Going into her senior year, Kristi had advanced to the regional meet three consecutive years, twice in the high jump and once in the long jump.

Kristi first made her mark in gymnastics when she won a state championship while in junior high school. As a freshman in track, she set a new high jump record in the district meet.

Kristi is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hughes.

Agriculture panel approves new farm loan approach

WASHINGTON (AP) — Veering off on an untried path, a House Agriculture subcommittee has approved innovative farm policy changes designed to protect farmer income while bolstering U.S. leadership in export sales.

The measure's sponsor, Rep. Arlan Stangeland, R-Minn., called his idea "the one ray of hope" for financially ailing farmers that could guarantee them adequate income until market prices recover to profitable levels.

Stangeland's plan, approved Thursday by the wheat and feed grains subcommittee, is based on a new "marketing loan," a crop loan that would not be required to be repaid in full if market prices for a grain do not rise at least as high as the loan rate.

That would remove the tendency of the current loan program to act as a floor for world grain prices, which are easily undercut by U.S. competitors, he contended. U.S. exports have been dropping sharply, partly due to high price-support loans.

Thursday's action is subject to change next week when the panel plans to wrap up work on its part of new, long-term farm legislation and send it to the full House Agriculture Committee.

World mostly silent on hijacking, Soviets criticize U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Only a few nations have joined the United States in publicly condemning the hijacking of TWA Flight 847. The Soviet Union is not among them — except in a radio commentary directed toward Japan.

In fact, earlier this week the Soviet press and radio charged the United States was using the crisis as an excuse for a naval buildup off Lebanon. "One cannot help asking why Washington is again brandishing its stick off Lebanon's coast," said Tass, the Soviet news agency.

This stance irritates the Reagan administration. "We're going to make that clear to them within the next few days," said a State Department official who insisted on anonymity. "They are implicitly goading on similar groups elsewhere."

Limited in its options, the United States is relying on diplomacy and whatever international support it can muster in an effort to pry the TWA passengers and crew members from Shiite radicals in Lebanon.

President Reagan, at his news conference Tuesday night, appealed to other nations for support. So far, the hijacking has been condemned by Jordan, Tunisia, Egypt and Iraq. King Hussein of Jordan called the hijackers the "scum of the earth" and urged "collective action by all civilized nations to stop such dastardly acts of terrorism."

A number of West European allies, such as West Germany, Britain and France, have made private appeals to Nabih Berri, the Lebanese justice minister who has taken charge of dealing with the hijackers.

Some are expected to speak out shortly. Others are making statements through the media, a State Department official said. "We're getting a fair groundswell of support," he said.

The Reagan administration has surveyed the Soviet media and found only one criticism of the hijacking — a broadcast to Japan. Although the Soviets have stated their opposition to terrorism in the past, the broadcast was not beamed to the Middle East or elsewhere, officials said.

Soviet accounts did not mention that the hijackers killed a TWA passenger, 23-year-old Navy Seebee Charles Stethem. The Soviets have reported the hijackers demanded the release of Arabs

Now is the time to prepare. The pressure is on to score as high as possible to get the job. Career Postal Workers will now earn a starting salary of $18,532 plus benefits — with an accelerated step increase plan; men and women, regardless of age, are eligible. The first step toward a postal service career is getting your name onto the "Register of Eligibles," which is accomplished by passing this Exam. To be one of the first hired, you need to get one of the higher scores! And to be hired at all during the next three years, you will need to score at least 95%.

This workshop is being offered now, prior to the formal announcement of the examination dates, to give you adequate time to prepare for the test. Many post offices begin testing within a week of the announcement which isn't enough time to prepare properly. By starting now, you'll be ready to attain high scores using our methods when the test is given.

Come to the workshop. If you don't feel, at the end of the course, that it will help you achieve a score of 95% or better, don't pay for the workshop! Furthermore, if your score is less than 85% on the official exam after using our techniques, we will immediately refund your tuition in full!

WANT TO RELOCATE? We are the publishers of The Postal Alert, the bi-monthly newsletter giving you postal exam dates nationwide. Only The Achievement Center provides this service. Learn how you can relocate to any area of the country you like.

Dear Abby

Campaign coffers filled by oldsters misguided giving

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1985 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: My sister is 91 years old and no longer sufficiently mentally competent to handle her financial affairs. She had some money in her checking and savings account, but during the last presidential campaign she wrote checks for close to $4,000 for various candidates. She received glowing letters thanking her for her last contribution and asking for more money. Abby, she thought these candidates were writing personal letters to her, so she sent them whatever they asked for. She was handing out checks left and right. Last January she became very ill, both mentally and physically. She had to give up her apartment and come and live with me and my husband. We are elderly ourselves and not in very good health. (We were recently appointed her legal guardians, but she has very little money left to "guard.")

I have all her canceled checks and the names and addresses of all candidates she gave money to. I wrote them, explaining the situation and demanding that they return her money. Not one of them has returned a dime!

Not only that, but she is being solicited by other politicians. I have written to them and asked them to take her off their lists, but they haven't. Instead the list is growing! Do you have any suggestions on how we can get some of that money back?

FRUSTRATED
IN PALM SPRINGS

DEAR FRUSTRATED: Your letters are probably being fed into a computer and answered by a processing machine. Save your postage. You stand about as much chance for a refund as a snowball in Palm Springs. Sorry.

DEAR ABBY: A while back you wrote that "bedroom eyes are in the eye of the beholder." I'm afraid that's not true.

Scientific American magazine even had a cover article in the early '70s documenting research that people with larger pupils are more "alluring." After all, only certain women (or men) are constantly told they have "bedroom eyes," while the rest of us can go a lifetime without ever hearing that comment.

As close as I can figure it, bedroom eyes have droopy lids, large pupils, bright whites, are generally blue and accompanied by darkness under the eyes.

EYE ADMIRER

DEAR EYE ADMIRER: Sorry, I don't buy the "scientific" research you cite. Most people see what they want to see and interpret it in their own way.

Actually, it's the expression in the eye—real or imagined—that makes for "bedroom eyes."

Summation: Nobody ever made a pass at a statue.

DEAR ABBY: I have a question I hope you can answer. My dad was married three times.

With wife No. 1, he had a son.

With wife No. 2, he had two daughters.

With wife No. 3, he had me.

What relation are his son and daughters to me—stepbrother and stepsisters? Or half-brother and half-sisters?

Would wife No. 2 and wife No. 3 be his son's stepmothers? Would wives No. 1 and No. 2 be any relation to me?

ALL SCREWED UP IN OHIO

DEAR ALL SCREWED UP: The son and two daughters of your father are your half-brother and half-sisters. Wives No. 1 and No. 2 would be no relation to you. But wife No. 2 would be the former stepmother of your half-brother, and your real mother would be his stepmother.

DEAR ABBY: A while back you wrote that "bedroom eyes are in the eye of the beholder." I'm afraid that's not true.

Scientific American magazine even had a cover article in the early '70s documenting research that people with larger pupils are more "alluring." After all, only certain

Monterrey, border cities feel pinch of tourist scare

MONTERREY, Mexico (AP) — A tourist scare keeping Americans away from northern Mexico has people perplexed and hurt in this region where the words "Mi casa es su casa" — "My house is your house" — are offered from the heart.

Mexicans say reports of violence against travelers are exaggerated. What Americans do not know, they say, is hurting Mexico.

Last October, American diplomatic sources said the U.S. Embassy in Mexico City was considering issuing an advisory warning tourists of possible dangers in Mexico. Although the embassy shelved the plan after Mexican officials promised more police security in troubled areas, the damage to Mexico's image already had been done.

After three travelers were murdered on Mexican highways during September 1984, the American Automobile Association began warning members to use caution when driving in this country.

Meanwhile, trouble in the central Mexican city of Guadalajara, where six Americans were reported missing and U.S. drug agent Enrique Camarena Salazar was kidnapped and slain in February, apparently fueled Americans' fears.

Mexico's tourism secretary, Antonio Enriquez Savignac, reports that the number of visitors arriving by road to Mexico fell off by 17 percent in the first three months of this year, although travel by air remained steady.

He said foreign income generated through tourism — $2 billion in 1984 — was up by 11 percent so far this year.

But those promising figures do not encourage northerners. Tourist guides and shopowners in Monterrey say the number of Americans they serve is off by as much as 70 percent.

"In the last three to four months, tourism has decreased considerably," said Porfirio Sosa, owner of a Mexican popular art shop in Monterrey's tourist zone.

"Fortunately this store doesn't function by tourism alone or I would have closed down," Sosa said.

Based on stories Americans have read or heard in the United States, Sosa said, "I don't blame the tourists for not coming."

The Tijuana Chamber of Commerce reported that tourism in that northwestern border city is down about 20 percent compared with last year.

COMPARING PHOTOS — Federal Police Chief Tomeu Tuma, center wearing eyeglasses, is surrounded by reporters Thursday as he explains the "24 points of similarity" in photos found in Brazil believed to be Nazi war criminal Josef Mengele and pictures contained in Mengele's 1938 application to join the Nazi SS. (AP Laserphoto)

Identification of purported Mengele skeleton imminent

SAO PAULO, Brazil (AP) — Police say a series of forensic tests and handwriting and photo analyses are pointing to the conclusion that a body unearthed 15 days ago belonged to the notorious Nazi doctor Josef Mengele.

"I believe that in 24-40 hours we will have a definite conclusion," said Romeu Tuma, the chief of federal police in Sao Paulo, on Thursday. "Everything points to a positive identification."

Tuma, chief of federal police in Sao Paulo, said Thursday that experts compared known photos of Mengele and those of the alleged Mengele and found similarities in the eyes, ears, nose and forehead.

He also said that photographs of the assembled skull were being superimposed on pictures of the man believed to be Mengele, Wolfgang Gerhard. That name is one of several aliases, including Pedro and Peter, that police believe Mengele used while in Brazil.

Meanwhile, bits of cloth found with the skeleton were identified by Austrian immigrant Liselotte Bossert, who along with her husband, Wolfram, claims to have sheltered Mengele in Brazil.

A Brazilian forensic team has been aided by American and West German experts in the effort to determine if remains dug up June 6 from a weed-covered grave in a Sao Paulo suburb are those of the Nazi fugitive.

Mengele has been hunted for decades by West German and Israeli authorities, who charge he ordered the deaths of more than 400,000 people at the Auschwitz extermination camp in Poland.

American is slain in Honduras

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras (AP) — An American citizen was shot and killed by a Honduran army patrol near the Salvadoran border, a U.S. Embassy spokesman said Thursday.

A Honduran military spokesman said the American was shot Wednesday when he tried to flee from a border patrol that had asked him for identification.

The U.S. Embassy spokesman, Art Skop, said the name of the slain man was being withheld pending notification of relatives. By Thursday evening, Skop said, the State Department had been unable to locate the man's next of kin.

The body of the man, who appeared to be in his 30s, was brought to a morgue in Tegucigalpa on Thursday, Skop said.

He said the American, who was not a government employee, was fired on by members of the Honduran armed forces' 12th battalion near the town of Cayagua. Skop said the site of the shooting was not close to where the Salvadoran military currently is fighting leftist guerrillas, but he declined to provide any details about the circumstances of the slaying.

A U.S. Embassy source who asked not to be identified for protocol reasons said a six-man Honduran patrol reported it had spotted the American and another person, ordered them to halt and fired when the pair began running.

He said the identity of the second person, who escaped, was not known.

Another U.S. Embassy source said the victim was hit four times by M-16 bullets.

Official: high tech is not the only answer

By MICHAEL HOLMES
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) — The much-ballyhooed "high-technology" revolution won't be marching into every Texas town, so many cities ought not pin all their new job hopes on it, says the man who has led the state's economic development efforts.

"It's so talked about and there's so much hype, what I see is a lot of little bitty towns around the state sort of gnashing their teeth and wringing their hands and wondering, 'How are we going to get some of high tech — whatever that is?'"

"The fact is, they're not," says Harden Wiedemann, the 32-year-old, Harvard-educated director of the Texas Economic Development Commission who wrapped up those duties last week and is leaving state government.

Many cities lack essential elements the computer-driven high tech industry looks for, Wiedemann said.

"The major things high-tech companies look for are quality of life — sort of like you've got in Austin, rolling hills and lakes and recreational opportunities; a major research university such as the University of Texas, and the ability to be around other high-tech companies," he said.

"Well, a lot of little towns aren't even going to be able to compete."

There is a high-tech answer for some of these cities, Wiedemann said, although it requires a different approach.

"We've got to bridge that gap from thinking, 'I've got to get some high tech,' to thinking about applying high tech to the industries that exist in these towns — boosting their productivity and therefore their worldwide competitiveness."

Competitiveness is a word Wiedemann uses a lot.

He says Texas needs to work hard to remain competitive with other states in the business of attracting new businesses, and he believes the state had better start competing in international arenas.

Although he is becoming executive vice president of a family-owned group of insurance companies in Dallas, Wiedemann says he will remain actively involved in economic development for Texas.

One of the things he is pushing is a statewide business task force to bolster the commission's $2.3 million budget with private funds, some of which will be used in a special national advertising campaign — an area where he says Texas isn't competitive right now.

"Texans, because we have a big ego, still think we're the greatest, we're No. 1."

"It has not dawned on our corporate leadership around the state that we are definitely being overtaken in certain areas in economic development. Unless we get our act together very soon, we're going to continue slipping," he said.

Wiedemann said the $5 million to $15 million ad campaign he envisions would tout Texas and its business climate to audiences nationwide — through advertisements in publications such as the Wall Street Journal, weekly business magazines and major national newspapers.

He also hopes the campaign can direct special tape cassettes at chief executive officers. On the tapes, the top men of successful Texas companies will explain why the state is a good place to do business.

"The state has not spent any significant amount of money on advertising in a long time, maybe ever," he said.

Wiedemann also said there is a less-public aspect to the economic development effort, but one just as important to the future as luring the big-name, big-time companies. That's working with small businesses.

"What we're talking about is helping entrepreneurs to get the capital together to start business, or working with the business owner who has a five-person firm to make it a 10- and a 15- and a 20- and a 25-person firm," he said.

"Most of those kinds of issues boil down to one thing, and that's money. Can they get money at a reasonable interest rate?"

"We've got four or five new programs to help them. It's a lot quieter than attracting the MCCs, the Advanced Micro Devices, that kind of stuff."

Also high on the list of Texas needs, Wiedemann says, are state trade offices in Japan and West Germany, something he hopes can be achieved by next year.

"A lot of states are just beating the stuffing out of us overseas. Of the 10 major industrialized states, we're the only one that's not in the international market in a big way," he said.

And Texas already has a major advantage overseas that many states are spending tons of money to acquire — an image.

"A lot of states really have to scrap and scrape and spend big bucks to establish their image in the foreign nationals' mind. Well, you say Texas to anybody and they've immediately got a picture ... Iowa and Idaho are having to spend millions of dollars to get where we already are."

Typographical error kills watchdog agency

By KEN HERMAN

Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN (AP) — The state agency set up to check allegations of prosecutor misconduct has been killed by a typographical error.

Director Andy Shuval of the Texas Prosecutor Council is convinced his agency was the victim of a legislative hit; a quick, calculated, killing blow.

He calls it the "Friday Night Ambush."

The bill needed to keep the council alive came to the House floor on the final night it could have been considered. Missing in the measure was a needed reference to 1985, the year the agency would die if not renewed.

A point of order was raised and sustained, barring a House vote on the measure.

Here's Shuval's version of how the agency's death was plotted:

The Legislative Council, which drafts and checks bills, discovered the error. The council notified Speaker Gib Lewis' office, where someone told the council not to correct the error.

When the Senate-approved bill came to the House floor, just before the deadline, Rep. Jim Parker, D-Comanche, pointed out the error and had the bill killed.

"The only person that didn't like it was Jim Parker," said Shuval.

Moments after he shot down the $600,000-a-year agency, Parker said, "Obviously, this was an agency that really did nothing unique."

Of the kill he said, "I had some help from the people in the Legislative Council."

Some, including Rep. Terral Smith, R-Austin, point to Lewis' aide Neal T. "Buddy" Jones as the probable hit man.

"It's my understanding that the Legislative Council saw the error, somehow notified Buddy Jones or somebody in the speaker's office and was told to leave the point of order in the bill," Smith said.

"Buddy Jones has not liked them for years. I do know this, Jim Parker did not find that point of order on his own."

Jones, a former legislator and prosecutor, said it was "not true" that he helped orchestrate the kill.

"I didn't have personal feelings about it either way, good, bad or indifferent. Frankly, I didn't know a whole lot about it," Jones said of the prosecutor's council. "I certainly didn't have any role in killing it."

Shuval's agency was one of six that fell under sunset review by the 1985 Legislature. It was created in 1977 and coordinated continuing education courses for prosecutors. There has been talk that the State Bar or attorney general's office could take over some of the council's functions.

The council also went after prosecutors who erred, gaining the most attention for its work against former Hidalgo County District Attorney Oscar McInnis in 1978.

McInnis had been named in federal indictments alleging he plotted to have the ex-husband of a young female friend taken to Mexico and killed.

The council pushed the case to have McInnis thrown out of office.

In 1984, the council filed 119 complaints against prosecutors. One private and two public reprimands were issued. One removal suit was filed, sparking the resignation of a Central Texas district attorney.

Despite the investigations of district attorneys, most prosecutors like the council, according to Smith, who pushed 500 lawyers coming out of law school. It is important they have continuing legal education," said

Smith. At the start of the session, Smith was for killing the agency. But at the end, he was persuaded it was probably a good thing to keep around.

"We can do without it in Texas, but we didn't have to kill it to make the budget," he said.

Shuval himself might have been part of the problem, Smith added. The former Deaf Smith County district attorney, now earning $54,500 a year, has been director since the start.

"There are just a lot of people who did not like him," said Smith. "They felt he was trying to build an empire, that it was an inefficient agency, that he was overpaid for what he did."

"There's some validity to those arguments," Smith said.

Shuval said his agency, which will die Aug. 31, "We have increased the quality of law enforcement generally."

The Texans most likely to notice the agency's death are the ones with pending complaints against prosecutors.

"There are 10 or 15 complainants that we have to tell the Legislature didn't see it to recreate this agency," he said.
