Band seniors' banner says it all

Both Pampa, Snyder bands marching

AUSTIN-Both the Pride of Pampa High School Band and Snyder, the band that had been scheduled to replace Pampa in state marching competition, were allowed to perform in the contest today.

Pampa Band Booster Club President Club Danny Courtney said University Interscholastic League officials decided this morning to let both bands march in the competition, but if Pampa is selected as the all-state band in its class it would not be announced until after a court hearing Thursday.

Pampa was disqualified by the UIL from state competition after local school officials discovered one band member who had failed a subject participated in regional marching competition when Pampa qualified for the state contest. The state's new no pass, no play rule prohibits any student who has failed a grade from participating in extracurricular activities.

Snyder was chosen the alternate for state competition.

The Pampa Band Booster Club went to court Friday and obtained temporary restraining orders against the local school district and the UIL, clearing the way for the band to participate in the contest. Judges will be asked to make the restraining orders permanent in subsequent Although Pampa won't be told immediately should it become the Class 4-A all-state band, it will know if it places in the top five. The top five bands chosen after this afternoon's marching competition will compete again tonight.

Because both the Pampa and Snyder bands are at the state contest, Pampa's scheduled time to march was changed from 2:30 p.m. to 3:30 p.m. today, with Snyder scheduled to fill the 2:30 slot.

Planes hit suburb after midair crash

By DANIEL J. WAKIN Associated Press Writer

CLIFFSIDE PARK, N.J. - The pilots of a corporate jet and a small plane that collided over this New York suburb knew of the danger minutes before the crash, which incinerated five residential buildings and killed at least five people, authorities said.

Authorities earlier feared the fuel-fed inferno had trapped 10 families living in the buildings, but by 5:30 a.m., all but one man had been accounted for, said state police Capt. Joseph Craparotta.

The flames were extinguished at about 11 p.m. Sunday.

The buildings set ablaze housed about 90 people, authorities said. Minutes before the two planes smashed into each other Sunday evening the two pilots radioed that they were aware of the danger. The corporate jet, a Falcon 50. belonging to Nabisco Brands Inc., with at least two aboard, slammed into two two-story apartment buildings, leveling them and igniting aroaring fire that engulfed three other structures.

Two victims were found in the wreckage of the other plane, a Piper Cherokee, which struck the front porch of a two-story apartment building in nearby Fairview A mangled body was found beneath the wreckage.

The spokesman said no determination was made of the cause of the crash, but that it appeared the air traffic controller acted properly Nelson said controllers can do little more than issue warnings when they see planes too near each other.

"I can't shoot him down. I can't send up an F-16 to intercept him.' said Nelson. "It's a cooperative

Forty-two years ago, Melvin Neill of Skellytown embarked on the greatest vacation of his life, an all - expense paid tour of Europe courtesy of the United States

Neill was notified of his adventure in early summer of 1942 by the traditional letter from the President beginning "Greetings: Of course there was a catch to the offer - Neill had to sign up "for the duration of the war plus six months," and he didn't have much choice of where he would go.

Thus Neill, a native of Hamlin whose horizon had so far expanded only to hitchhiking in Texas and New Mexico became a world traveler during the most widespread, frightening hostility of all time - World War II

"I wouldn't take anything for having gone," Neill says, looking back in retrospect after two-score years. "I wouldn't want to do it again and I certainly wouldn't want anyone else to have to.

'But I think (the war) was necessary and if it come to it, I'd do it again," he says. "I wouldn't

Neill was a member of the Army Signal Corps, 179th Signal Repair Company. He and the other members of his company, trained in radio repair and laying telephone lines, saw more than the average man's share of the war. They traveled from one site of action to another in a 10-ton bus body outfitted as a radio repair workshop, pulling a portable power plant behind them

"Wherever we were needed, we went to them," Neill recalls. When we finished there, we'd move to a different place.

Almost a year of Neill's military service was spent attending radio repair schools in the United States. It wasn't until November 1943, that he shipped out for England. The next 18 months were spent in a pup tent on a hill near Liverpool overlooking an empty English military barracks, he remembers. 'For 18 months, 18 hours a day, we repaired everything that got tore up in North Africa," he says

'It was better in France, then we could dig back under the hedge rows. 'Course you had to be real quiet. A whole bunch of cows got killed that first night. You didn't move after dark. Wherever dark caught you, that's where you Neill was as ready to go to war as

Law makes theft of cable TV service easier to prove

BY PAUL PINKHAM

New technology begets new laws. And new laws beget new classes of criminals, who find ways to get around the new laws Take the cable TV industry. The burgeoning business has brought additional television networks into thousands of American homes, has given rise to superstations beaming signals from New York, Chicago or Atlanta to virtually anywhere in America and has added numerous commercial 24 - hour channels featuring everything from movies to Australian rules football to the weather.

But it has also given birth to a new class of criminal — the cable TV bandit — who has figured out ways to take advantage of the service without paying for it.

There are a lot of people around who have electronics abilities so they can do that," said Peggy Hunter, system manager for Sammons Communication Inc. in Pampa, which provides cable service in Pampa, McLean, White Deer and Panhandle. In the past, Hunter said, theft of cable service has been difficult to prove. Cable companies were required by law to prove how long an accused cable bandit had the service illegally hooked up in order to make a case in court That was next to impossible to do, she explained, because the cable company almost had to watch the individual link into the system illegally, leave it on and then call police about the illegal hook - up. As an example of the difficulty in enforcing previous cable theft · laws, Hunter described a situation where an individual moved into a rented house with utilities paid and, when an illegal hook - up was discovered, claimed he assumed the cable TV bill was paid also Hunter said the company's attorney said the infraction would have been difficult to prove in court. But Hunter and other cable system managers hope a new Texas law that was signed into law by Gov. Mark White on May 24 and went into effect Sept. 1 will make the task of prosecuting cable bandits

'It's like 99 percent better than the other law was," she said House Bill 485, sponsored by Rep. Tom Uher of Bay City and Sen. John Montford of Lubbock, creates four misdemeanors for which a violator can be fined up to $2,000 and be placed in jail for up to a year. The bill prohibits maintaining an unauthorized cable connection, using an unauthorized device to intercept cable service, tampering with cable company equipment and selling, making or distributing a device intended to violate cable laws

Cable bandits can be fined up to $1,000 and placed in jail six months for violating the statute. If they do it for money, the sentence can be

Those who sell, manufacture or distribute devices intended to violate the law face a year in jail and a $2,000 fine. Hunter said the biggest difference between the new law and the old one is three "presumptions" made in the new law. She said the presumptions should make cable theft cases easier to prosecute. The law presumes that the occupier of a property used any unauthorized devices or cable connections on the property, and made any modifications found on company equipment. The law essentially shifts the burden of proof to cable users to show they did not use any unauthorized equipment found on the property Hunter said a major problem with cable theft laws in general is that many people do not realize using unauthorized cable service is a

"I think a lot of people don't realize that they're stealing," she said. "Some people think it's a lark. They tell their friends and neighbors about it then don't realize that they call in here.

One example, she said, is people who hook up stereos, radios or extra televisions to their existing cable service without notifying the cable company, which charges just under $3 a month for the additional hook - ups.

Hunter, who lobbied on behalf of the new law before the Texas Legislature last session, called the problem of cable theft in Pampa widespread. She said an independent audit conducted last year found about 1,000 illegal hook - ups, people "not paying for anything." Sammons has about 7,400 customers in Pampa, she said.

That (audit) doesn't count all the people who are paying for basic cable and who have bought illegal converters," she said

Hunter said Sammons intends to use the new law to prosecute habitual offenders, not those who may have just moved into a

City budget now available

Pampa City Manager

We have received our 1985-1986 annual operating budget. Copies are now available at the Lovett Memorial Library for both review and check - out. Copies of the budget also are available for review at City Hall

If you have any questions after reviewing the budget, please do not hesitate to contact me. I will be glad to answer any questions you

As part of our effort to improve the quality of the service delivery among our departments, we have a regular program utilizing a suggestion box system with an employee review committee.

Although this program is only 21/2 months old, we are receiving excellent suggestions. We have a busy schedule ahead of us in implementing these ideas which will improve the quality of service delivery and - or reduce the cost of operations.

Of particular note is the suggestion submitted by Cecilio Gonzales of our Sanitation Department.

Cecilio suggested that house numbers be painted on the back fence, facing the alley. Having the residence with an illegal hook - up. She said she realizes the company occasionally makes a mistake, like disconnecting the wrong house, leaving an unpaid - for hook - up in place

We want to get the people that are habitually doing this, breaking our equipment and hooking up illegally," she explained

Illegal hook - ups and devices include having an unauthorized cable converter or cable line or tampering with the company's box in an effort to receive additional subscription service such as Home Box Office or The Movie Channel. Satellite dishes are excluded from the new law even though Hunter said she believes they are "technically illegal."

Pampa Police Chief J.J. Ryzman said his department has not encountered any problems enforcing the new law although he added it is difficult for the police to discover an illegal hook - up unless someone informs the department. He said all the violations discovered by his department since Sept. 1 have been reported to

Officer Mark King said those who report cable theft would be eligible for rewards from Pampa Crime Stoppers, just as in reporting any other crime

Nevertheless, Assistant District Attorney David Hamilton said he foresees problems in prosecuting the new law. Because cable theft is generally a crime that occurs inside the home, he said he feels authorities will have a difficult time establishing enough probable cause to get enough evidence to enter the home of a suspected cable

Hamilton also said juries may be unwilling to convict a cable bandit because the crime may seem too close to home. And, he said he fears the law's presumptions may be challengeable before a

Woman believes husband killed

HOUSTON (AP) - A northwest Harris County woman says she believes organized crime figures from Miami, Fla., killed her husband because he did not repay a $250,000 debt.

"He knew they were going to kill them. He told me they were going to kill him," said Sandy Baker, whose husband, Edward Gerald Baker, has been missing since Thursday.

house number on the back fence would enable us to improve our response times

As an example, if a burglary were to occur in your home, the Police Department's initial response may be through the alley. With house numbers on the back fence, we will be able to more quickly correlate the back of the house to the proper address.

Additionally, it would help our Sanitation Department's response time, enabling them to properly locate homes when we are responding to bulk pickup requests and checking dumpsters.

The back - fence numbers also would aid our meter readers as we correlated meters to the proper homes and our Water Department in responding to sewer line stoppages or water leaks.

It would be a great benefit if you would take a moment and paint your house number on your back fence. It does not have to be neat. just simply readable for our personnel. Motorcycle riders are encouraged to ride in the Recreation Park location and not in other parks. We have had complaints recently about motorcycles being driven in the parks, just recently at the park site of Evergreen and 16th Ave.

We will be posting "NO MOTOR VEHICLES BEYOND THIS POINT" signs at the parks at Evergreen and 16th and other areas if it is warranted.

And finally, I want to make a brief comment on the article in The Pampa News concerning recent judicial decisions concerning the open meetings law and its application to advisory boards.

It is the policy of the City of Pampa that all advisory boards are to comply both to the letter and to the spirit of the open meetings law. Therefore, all decisions of the advisory boards will be made in public sessions.

If you have any questions concerning the advisory boards, such as meeting dates, locations or membership, please do not hesitate to call me at 665-8481.

DAILY RECORD Ordinances, resolutions top agenda for city's meeting

Pampa city commissioners will be considering a number of ordinances and resolutions regarding zoning, traffic and auditorium matters at their regular meeting at 6 p.m. Tuesday. A public hearing will be held relative to a request for a zoning change from Single Family 2 to Office District for Lot 10. Block 63. Fraser Annex No. 3, a triangular lot located at Perryton Parkway, Charles and 26th Ave.

A recommendation to approve the zoning change was passed by the Planning and Zoning Commission, with residents in the area split over the request.

In new business, commissioners will consider on first reading two zoning ordinances, both relating to a tract of land owned by Mary Ellen and Harvester Church of Christ east of present city limits.

The first would approve annexation of the 1.5 acre tract, while the second would approve a zoning change from Agriculture to Specific Use Permit for the tract.

The commission will consider four traffic related ordinances. One would authorize the installation of a yield sign at Hamilton St. and 22nd Ave., and another would permit installation of a crosswalk at Beech St. and 19th

A third ordinance would establish a 20 mile an hour school zone in the vicinity of Beech and 19th for students heading to and from Austin Elementary School.

The fourth ordinance would designate handicapped parking zones in the 900 block of West Foster near the Pampa Center of Clarendon College.

Commissioners also will consider on first reading an ordinance setting the rate structure for rental of facilities at M. K. Brown Auditorium.

The commission additionally will consider the award of a bid for operation of concession services at the auditorium.

In other matters, the commissioners will consider appointments to the Plumbing and Mechanical Board of Adjustments and Appeals and a resolution for submission of the official ballot for election of directors for the Gray County Appraisal District Board.

Neill remembers spending one night on the top of a 6x6 truck. "I Holland, Neill says, he remembers when the Germans broke through Belgium and cut his group off from the rest of the Allies. "I spent Christmas Eve. Christmas Day and the next day in a fox hole on the bank of the river between Belgium and Holland," he says. Although other men waited near him in their own foxholes, they never exchanged a word. It could have meant death for them all. "I dug a hole eight foot deep and never got to the ground - it was solid ice.' Fortunately, the Army infantry stopped the advance of the Germans before they got to Neill and his company. They had already dynamited their equipment, and were ready to take their own lives if they had to, he remembers. "It was an upreal time," Neill

"All of us depended on the ones. around us a lot more than we thought. Young as I was, I think I would have given my life to save whoever I was with whether I had been with them a day or a year."

Although Neill had resented having to spend those months in England in pup tents, he saw the minutes - and the past was already gone. The majority of us were alike or I guess so, because we all acted the same. 'My main thought was that I didn't want to get wounded. I didn't mind getting killed. I had already told my buddies that if I got wounded and if it looked bad, to go ahead and kill me." Fortunately, Neill made it through the war without a scratch. His company only lost five or six men, he adds, and four of those died in one shelling attack.

"I'm not saying I'm pessimistic, I guess I'm realistic," Gramm said at a Sunday afternoon news conference in downtown Dallas.

A House and Senate conference committee will meet beginning Tuesday in sessions aimed at ironing out differences between the two versions of balanced budget

Gramm said he has drafted three or four options and has prepared compromise language in hopes lawmakers can agree on something

'My goal is to settle this thing by Thursday so we don't have to find out what the next option is," Gramm said.

If an agreement is not reached by midnight Thursday, the federal government could shut down, defaulting on its financial obligations and sending at least 500,000 "nonessential" workers

The shutdown can be averted if Congress passes a stop-gap appropriations bill to fund government agencies past the expiration of the current temporary spending bill.

Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker has promised to start selling off gold reserves to provide funding for the federal government if a compromise is not reached, an idea rejected by President Reagan.

Gramm, a former Democrat, said he met Thursday and Friday with "key people on the Democratic side" and drafted a series of proposed amendments that he believes "represent compromises

"This thing's got to be negotiated out," Gramm said. "I'm not ready at this point to put all my cards on the table, but what I've been trying to do is to work out language so if there is some break in this deadlock ... we'll have some proposals to put on the table. The committee will dicker over balanced budget legislation sponsored by Gramm, Sen. Warren Rudman, R-N.H., and Sen. Ernest Hollings, D-S.C., and the House version of the bill.

The bill has been approved twice in the Senate

"If they really are concerned about getting a greater degree of flexibility in a recession," Gramm said, "there are several ways of doing that. I've tried to draft each of three or four ways of doing that so that we've got language if we actually begin to negotiate.

Gramm's proposal is a five-year plan requiring Congress to balance the budget within a maximum allowable deficit. The budget would be binding, and spending more than appropriated would not be allowed. His proposal takes power away from the president and puts it in the hands of Congress, Gramm said.

The House bill requires a balanced budget but "exempts social programs for urban liberal democrats, exempts farmers for rural democrats and exempts defense contractors' for congressman with defense contractors in their district, he

As a result, the House proposal would exempt 71 percent of the budget from any consideration for funding cuts, he added.

Jetliner makes emergency landing

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) -Passengers aboard an American Airlines jetliner forced to return to the Metropolitan Nashville Airport shortly after takeoff spent a tense six minutes between the time the pilot noticed a fire warning light go on and the landing.

"We made a steep right-hand bank and that's when he (the pilot) told us we'd be coming back," said Joyce Moran of Wichita Falls, Texas. "That six minutes was an

He and the other passengers were asked to remove their shoes, leave their personal belongings behind and plunge down the emergency chutes.

The unloading took only 30 to 35 seconds and was a "textbook evacuation," said Tony DeSocio, regional sales manager for American Airlines, during a briefing just hours after the emergency landing.

About 45 minutes after the evacuation, the passengers, who had milled around the terminal in their socks waiting to be rerouted, were allowed to return to the plane to retrieve their shoes and other

I am in Austin today, but - sadly - I will not be able to watch that great Pride of Pampa band perform in the state marching contest. As the high school band struts its stuff in front of the judges, I will be across town attending the annual meeting of the Associated Press for newspaper people who handle AP news copy and operate the receiving equipment.

(I am writing this column Sunday shortly before leaving for the airport to board a plane for Austin.)

I wish I was able to take time away from the meeting to see the band perform. But it is essential that I attend the AP meeting. Knowing Charles Johnson and the attitude of the band members, I know they will present a great show and will be a credit to Pampa High School and the community. While in Austin I will be finding out what the Associated Press is up to. AP is a cooperative owned by the newspapers utilizing its services. Radio stations are associate members of the cooperative. It was at one of these meetings that I received the information concerning the installation of the satellite receiving station at this paper on which the AP copy is now received. Hopefully, at this year's meeting I will be learning the status of efforts to transmit the AP pictures from a satellite. At last report most of the problems had been solved. We still receive AP Laserphotos over a telephone line. Enough said!

I am also scheduled to learn more about the gathering of news about the state government. That is the reason the meeting is in Austin this year, instead of in Dallas which is the AP's Texas headquarters.

During the one-day meeting there will also be opportunites to discuss problems with AP personnel and swapping of suggestions and ideas. At earlier meetings these discussions have resolved numerous problems and also have resulted in the AP obtaining interesting stories from areas not previously covered.

There will also be opportunities to hear reports on how other papers throughout Texas are operating and using AP stories. Some of our ideas may be useful at another paper and I might pick up a few ideas to help improve this publication.

One of the main sessions at the Austin meeting is to be a discussion of the use of color, both in full-color pictures and in graphics. This is to be presented by a representative of the Orange County Register at Santa Ana, Calif., the flagship newspaper of the Freedom Group of which The Pampa News is a affiliated.

The Register utilizes plenty of color photographs along with other color throughout its pages. This, along with plenty of excellent photos, helped The Register win this year's Putilizer Prize for photojournalism for its coverage of last year's Olympics. Hopefully I will learn more about the use of color photographs and be ready for the installation of the needed equipment for publishing of full-color in this newspaper in the future.

During my 30 years in the newspaper business, I have spent much time as a photographer and photo editor, but it has all been connected with black and white photography. While I have read numerous articles and books on color photography in journalism. I have not had the opportunity to use color photographs in a

It will be a pleasure to me when I can see the use of full-color in this paper on a regular basis.

I mentioned above that I have been a journalist for 30 years. It was 30 years ago last week that I first walked into the newsroom of The Pampa News as a beginning reporter and photographer.

On that November day in 1955 I began learning my trade — and I am still learning. That is the reason journalists attend meetings and seminars as often as is possible.

While I have not spent all of those 30 years in Pampa, I have been associated with Freedom newspapers during the entire period. This is my third stop in Pampa. I have been here nearly five years this time on what was to be a 30-day loan from The Odessa American. Before the loan was up the publisher, Louise Fletcher, convinced me to stay around for awhile and I'm still here.

Parker is city editor of The Pampa News.

UT system drops all Bible classes

the end of the current semester, Bible classes will no longer be offered by institutions within the University of Texas system, state officials say

Kenneth Ashworth, a Texas college and university coordinating board commissioner, said a memorandum will be sent to universities asking them to disassociate themselves from religious organizations and strike Bible classes from their spring curriculum A Sept. 11 state attorney general's opinion concerning Bible chairs prompted the action, Ashworth said last week. Bible chairs are teaching positions funded by religious organizations. The attorney general's opinion said religious organizations can fund Bible chairs at state universities, but should not exercise control over teaching

Patricia Ohlendors, a UT legal counsel, said the university decided the current Bible chair system needs changing to comply with the attorney general's opinion.

Ashworth said a question about separation of church and state is raised because the university advertises Bible study courses and offers grade credit without full control of teacher selection.

Ervin Crain, a senior minister at University Christian Church, which sponsors a Bible chair at UT-Austin, said the move took him by surprise. Crain said he doesn't believe the courses violate the constitution. 'If it were really violating someone's constitutional rights, I am surprised it took 80 years to surface," Crain told The Daily Texan, the University of Texas' student publication.

Religious organizations pay for and nominate teachers for all eight Bible chairs offered at UT Austin.

The college of liberal arts at UT reviews Bible chair nominations, but the organization sponsors fund the chairs and select instructors.

The courses normally are held off-campus in facilities provided by the sponsoring organization.

Crain said the university will not allow current Bible courses to continue in the spring semester.

One way to limit interest charges

Do you think you're paying too much interest on your credit car bills. Congressmen Mario Biaggi and Charles Schummer, both New York Democrats, think you are.

But if you agree with them, why do you still use your

You know the ones - the Mastercard bill that spills over from month to month. The Visa bill that never gets paid off completely. Most banks are charging between 17.8 and 20 percent interest on those unpaid balances.

That's a lot of interest. In fact, if you borrowed the same amount from the bank as an unsecured personal loan and paid cash for your purchases, chances are you'd be paying considerably less in interest — about 14

Still. Amercians continue to ring up unpaid balances on their charge cards. Last year some 141 million holders of either Mastercard or Visa spent a total of $6 billion in finance charges along, according to a report by the Consumer Federation of America, a Washington-based consumer advocacy group. The consumer group has joined Biaggi and Schummer in their efforts to impose a national rate ceiling on charge-card interest rates. They say the high rates reflect a lack of competition in the credit-card industry and since Congress isn't capable of imposing competition

(the AT&T mess excepted) it should impose rate limits. Bunk If Americans think they are paying too much in credit-card interest, all they have to do is stop using their cards. Or, at the very least, pay off their outstanding balances each month. No balance, no finance charge Plain and simple. simple for the politicians. It would be easier to laon ice to an Eskimo than convince Americans to stop financing their purchases. And that's why the politicians talk of limiting the interest rates — they can tell the folks back home that Congress helped them save a little money. (And, by the way, re-elect me the next time around, won't you, so I can do more good deeds while ignoring the deficit. Are the high rates justified? So far, people are willing to pay them. Nobody is holding a gun to their heads. We don't need interest-rate ceilings. We do need fiscal responsibility - and that starts with individuals, not Congress. Lord knows, the politicians have enough trouble with their own oustanding balances

New ethics in journalism

WASHINGTON - Among its other effects, the Pentagon Papers-Watergate era gave us a brand new principle of journalistic ethics: It's all right to publish anything that you can steal

An especially troublesome example of this practice popped up the other day in the Washington Post - a lengthy story concerning official plans to launch a "covert action" campaign against Libyan dictator Muammar Qaddafi. The Post devoted some 45 column-inches to exposing this endeavor, including direct quotations from a "top secret" report from the

The harm that publication of such material can do to our security interests - and the propaganda bonus it provides our enemies - are obvious on the face of it. That our government (and others) ought to take action against Qaddafi and his global terror network can hardly be doubted. Yet the Post had no compunction about blowing this operation in the name of journalistic enterprise.

This performance by the Post confirms in retrospect the wisdom of the official decision, two years ago, not to invite the media along to the invasion of Grenada. There were numerous protests at the time that journalists could be counted on to keep security secrets, a la World War II. The Qaddafi episode - along with some other recent happenings - shows other wise media. All too obviously, somebody in the government not only blabbed to the Post, but also provided access to secret documents. The story is replete with references to "sources." 'administration sources,' 'informed government sources" and the like, along with quotation from official reports and correspondence.

The problem here, however, goes beyond the

Such materials obviously had to come from someone with access to privileged data, either in the executive branch or the intelligence committees of Congress, or possibly both. "Government by leak," unfortunately, has become a way of life in the executive, while the large number of congressional staff who have access to intelligence data has been a matter of continuing concern.

In terms of media and official conduct alike, we are currently paying the price for the anti-intelligence frenzy of the middle-1970s. In that period, in a supposed effort to remedy abuses, we eviscerated the CIA, hamstrung the FBI, destroyed most of our other security safeguards, and enshrined the notion that anything and everything done by our security-intelligence agencies was fair game for exposure.

As readers of this column are perhaps aware, I am no knee-jerk apologist for the CIA. When in my view the agency (or a faction within it) has erred. this column has said so. But it should be apparent to anyone with a modicum of knowledge about the world we live in that we urgently need such an

This is particularly so when we reflect that our adversaries include not only the likes of Qaddafi, but the Soviet KGB and various of its East-bloc henchmen. These practitioners of terror, espionage, and disinformation must be laughing up their sleeves when elements in our government and media torpedo an operation like the plan against Qaddafi.

Given our laws, it is unlikely anyone can or will do anything to the POST for publishing these damaging revelations. Nor is this the proper way to approach the matter. Far more to the point is the need to go to the source. The Reagan administration has been plagued by leaks on matters of this type and many others. Those leaks nced plugging. The intelligence committees of Congress are pledged to secrecy on such matters. They should take steps to insure that pledge is honored.

As for the media, it is time for people in this business to take stock of what we're doing. There is indeed a public "right to know" about the activities of government, and in many cases we should be doing a better job of protecting that right than is presently the case. But blowing authentic national security operations is another matter. In this context, the "print anything you can steal" ethic is just plain wrong, and journalists should say so.

"AGE-IST!!"

Small country's rep gets big attention By Don Graff

UNITED NATIONS (NEA) - David Lange is, as he likes to describe himself, a large prime minister of a small

He gets no arguments on either point. At some 260 pounds, Lange (the correct pronunciation, about which there is some uncertainty even around here, is LAHNG-ee) is not the physical sort to be lost in even the very large crowds that have been hanging out at the United Nations lately.

New Zealand, on the other hand, with a population of a bit more than 3 million, is one of the smaller members of the world community.

But its ebullient prime minister turned out to be something of a star at the U.N.'s 40th-anniversary celebration. He was one of speakers in the General Assembly on the big day, Oct. 24 the date the U.N. charter went into effect in 1945, which was otherwise reserved for representatives of great powers and superpowers. And an earlier press conference drew possibly the most attention of any during the session.

Lange owes much of this attention to his differences with the United States, over port calls by nucleararmed warships, and France, over its continued nuclear testing in the South Pacific. The ongoing tiffs have given New Zealand sudden and unaccustomed international prominence.

The prime minister is himself among the first to acknowledge the source of his celebrity. But, as he sees it, to focus on the publicity is to miss the point of New Zealand's run-in with two of its closest allies.

"We would also have a higher profile," he has commented, "if we had a calf with eight legs."

The real point is not being different but in keeping faith with a principle that the nuclear threat must be addressed wherever there is the opportunity and must be contained. This was the theme of Lange's somewhat muted assembly address, in which he made no specific reference to the issues in dispute with the United States and France, and in his consider-outspoken more conference.

On that occasion, he took both countries to task again by name, but added that he does not doubt that, in both cases, the differences will eventually be resolved. History - in the case of the United States, 150 years of mutual involvement - and long-term common interests mean more than a temporary disruption

This is not the first issue on which Lange has been at odds with the United States. As a young attorney in Auckland during the '60s, he was a sharply outspoken critic of U.S. involvement in Vietnam, which a majority of New Zealanders largely supported at the time. At one point, he was denied a visa to visit the United States because of his outspokenness.

At 42, Lange is only slightly older, as he pointed out in his assembly speech, than the United Nations itself. He is of a generation that, throughout the world, is just rising to positions of ment in 1977, he quickly distinguished himself as an orator and, in 1983, led the Labor Party to a landslide election victory in which the no-nukes issue was key.

This is the point the United States must understand, he now says. His government's position on the unacceptability of nuclear weapons under any circumstances on New Zealand territory has the endorsement of the New Zealand electorate

It is a long way from being a boy wonder in New Zealand politics to sharing the U.N. podium with the likes of Ronald Reagan. Lange, however, sees nothing unusual with it, however. Rather, it's what the United Nations is all about "The great powers don't need it, the small do," he says. "They depend on the rule of law.

And then he adds: "A small country has a distinctive voice which ought to be heard and not patronized."

Report shows teachers gain economically

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation is making "slow, but steady progress" recruiting more and better teachers as salary increases are outstripping inflation, the Carnegic Foundation reported Sunday.

Ernest L. Boyer, the president of the foundation, said its new review of school statistics from each state provides "grounds for cautious hope.

But he added, "the challenge confronting teaching in this country is far greater than its achievements. He urged immediate action to tighten professional standards, boost teachers' pay further and recruit stand-out students for the profession.

Boyer released an update of a report called, "The Condition of Teaching: A State by State Analysis," first issued in August 1983.

Its author, C. Emily Feistritzer, director of the National Center for Education Information, said the topics "dramatically demonstrates that all the brouhaha over teaching is paying off in slow, but steady, progress.

Teachers lost 12 percent of their purchasing power in the previous 10 years, but their salaries rose 6.2 percent in 1984-84 and 6.9 percent last year, when inflation was only 3 to 4 percent each year, the report

Citing National Education Association figures, the report said the average classroom teacher made $23,546 in 1984-85. The median household income for teachers was about $30,000 in 1983, or roughly "the same as that for all college graduates," it said.

Four percent of teachers - 85,000 - had a household income of $15,000 or less, compared with 16 percent of the working public, it said. At the opposite end of the income scale, 13 percent of teachers - 275,000 - were in households with incomes of $50,000 or more, compared with 20 percent of the working public.

"Teacher salaries are higher than those of state and local government employees, and both are outstripping the inflation rate," it said. "Yet a smaller and smaller portion of ever-increasing school spending goes for teachers' salaries.

Last year, 36.6 percent of public school budgets went for teachers' pay, compared to almost 42 percent in 1972-73.

'The SAT scores of prospective teachers are edging up faster than the national averages," it said "The gap between the SAT scores of high school students who say they are going to major in education ... and the national average SAT score narrowed from 80 points in 1982 to 70 points in 1985.

"More people seem to be going into teaching than was predicted," the report said. "The number of teacher graduates in 1983 was smaller than the estimated number of additional teachers needed in

The National Center for Education Statistics, a federal agency, has projected the nation needs 1.65 million additional public and private school teachers between now and 1993, or two-thirds of today's teacher workforce of 2.4 million.

The Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching is based in Princeton, N.J. Ms. Feistritzer's center is headquartered here.

Many Americans would try outlawed cancer treatments

NEW YORK (AP) - About half of all Americans would try medical treatments rejected by established medicine if they were seriously ill, according to a Media General-Associated Press poll.

And half of the 1,412 adults interviewed by telephone also said that cancer clinics should be allowed to operate in the United States, even if the treatments they offer are opposed by the medical community.

A large percentage of the respondents — 41 percent — said they feared one disease more than any other. For the vast majority, that disease was cancer.

Acquired immune deficiency syndrome, or AIDS, was the second most commonly feared disease.

When it comes to serious diseases, 52 percent of the respondents said they would seek "a medical treatment that promised a cure" even when the treatment was rejected by the established medical community.

Respondents in the Media General-AP poll also were asked if they believed faith healing, diet therapies, vitamins and Laetrile were effective in treating cancer and other diseases.

With diet therapies, patients are told to eat specific foods prepared to exacting specifications. Megavitamin therapy is based on the belief that high doses of specific vitamins strengthen the body's ability to destroy cancer.

Faith healing involves the use of prayer, laying on of hands and other practices that seek divine intervention to cure cancer. Laetrile is a drug believed by some to be effective against cancer but it has never been shown to be effective in scientific tests.

Thirty-two percent of the respondents said faith healing worked, while 54 percent disagreed. Twenty-three percent said diet therapies alone were effective in treating cancer, while 58 percent disagreed

50 million expected to see AIDS movie

By FRED ROTHENBERG AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - Rock Hudson's bout with AIDS made the public more aware of the illness and sympathetic to its victims. Now, with the made-for-TV movie "An Early Frost," AIDS-support groups feel millions of Americans will have their best chance yet to be educated about the deadly disease and its impact.

"An Early Frost" is the story of how one family is torn apart when their son, a 29-year-old homosexual lawyer, contracts acquired immune deficiency syndromè. NBC, which will broadcast the two-hour film tonight, predicts a national audience of 50 million Mark Senak, director of legal services for the Gay Men's Health Crisis in New York, said the interest in Hudson raised both consciousness and fear. The movie "takes us a step further," he said. "It takes our hands and says, 'Calm down.

"Rock Hudson was the first mass humanization of AIDS to the American public," said Glenn Kennedy, associate director of AIDS Project LA. "Until then, it was a name without a face, numbers without a body. That was step one: opening eyes. Step two is putting something in front of those eyes that instructs in a palatable

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG

WASHINGTON (AP) - Of all Vitaly Yurchenko's complaints - the alleged kidnapping, the drugs, the torture, being forced to have dinner with Bill Casey - none was more surprising than that the CIA couldn't seem to find anyone with whom he could speak Russian.

It was right at the top of his list of the terrible things that he said were done to him, the first thing he mentioned at his extraordinary news conference at the Soviet Embassy "I'd like to tell you during these three horrible months for you I didn't have any chance to speak Russian," he said. "I was explained that they say there is a shortage of Russian-speaking translators. People involved in the effort to untangle the strange affair of the Soviet intelligence official. and whether he was or wasn't a genuine defector, deny that complaint.

Certainly few people in official Washington believed Yurchenko's tale of being kidnapped, drugged and held against his will. But there was widespread questioning about how the CIA handled the case, with some critics accusing the agency of insensitivity. The agency's effort to refute Yurchenko's An AP news analysis complaint that he had no one with whom he could speak Russian might be characterized as a semantic denial, just as Yurchenko's complaint was something of an exaggeration. Of course, the CIA has people who speak Russian, speak it every bit as well as Yurchenko speaks English.

In this case, that wasn't good enough and it points up a disturbing aspect of the affair. The CIA came across as being far better with satellites than with people. It can photograph Mikhail Gorbachev's backyard barbecue from a satellite hundreds of miles in space and tell whether he served hot dogs or hamburgers and whether with mustard or ketchup.

But when agents have the guy they believed was No. 5 in the KGB, did they understand he needed more than someone who can translate

Was this a case, if you believe Yurchenko's complaint, where the CIA failed to understand the Soviet needed a friend, someone who spoke hopes and fears? He needed someone who spoke what retired CIA official Donald Jameson calls "good, easy Russian.

"The number of really good Russian speakers at the agency is fewer than it was,' said Jameson, who was involved in handling Soviet defectors during his career.

"It may well have been the case," added Jameson "that there weren't enough people to conduct his debriefing in good; easy Russian and that, of course, poses a psychological problem that could have been avoided. Earlier defectors have spoken of the psychological problem. E. Alexandra Costa, who defected in 1977, went to the FBI and volunteered to talk to Yurchenko as one defector to another. She said the FBI thought it was a good idea but the CIA never responded to her suggestion.

"The kind of bond and rapport that should have been made between Yurchenko and somebody wasn't made," said Jameson. 'Maybe the root problem in the whole case is the people who were handling him saw it as a question of paper shuffling rather than dealing with human beings.

Global commercials may be on the way

NEW YORK (AP) - Can you make a compelling television commercial that will prove effective in selling the same product all over the world?

The advertising community is debating that issue vigorously, and the answers may play an important role in deciding which companies survive in the global marketplace.

At one extreme are those who contend advertisers can create a single commercial campaign that strikes a common chord in consumers in Bangkok, Paris, Lagos, Caracas and Chicago. The commercial need only be translated into the appropriate language, they say.

On the other extreme are those who say cultural, religious and idiomatic differences make it impossible to use the same commercial in different countries. Coffee may be fine for breakfast in the United States, they say, but a British citizen would not think of starting his day with it.

The answer seems to lie somewhere in the middle, judging from the spirited exchanges among some 30 speakers invited to New York last week for a conference sponsored by Adweek magazine. Keith Reinhard, chairman and firm Needham Harper Worldwide, argued a global approach may be appropriate for some brands and said creative advertisers are smart enough to come up with commercials that recognize traits which people everywhere share.

But Tony Brignull, vice chairman of the firm Colett, Dickenson, Pearce & Partners, said global advertising is "wrong in principle" and "strikes the lowest common denominator in practice.

He said the attempt to create a commercial with appeal to people everywhere will lead inevitably to either slogans or gimmicks and uncreative advertising that is 'equally meaningless to every race, color and creed.

Director Rick Levine, who has made commercials for clients ranging from Dr Pepper and Stroh's beer to CBS and Sony, said the global approach "is impossible" because of differing tastes and cultures.

He said he finds it especially ironic that it is being discussed as some agencies try to specialize in marketing to segments of the U.S. population, such as Hispanics and

JOINT PROBLEM AND MUSCLE PAIN

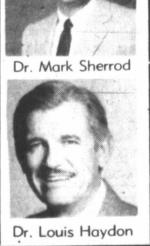

If you've developed symptoms that make you think you have arthritis, it would be wise to have an examination to see if the muscles in the affected area are out of balance.

Muscles help keep a joint stable and assist it through its normal range of motion. But if the muscles on one side of the joint are weak, this puts a strain on the joint. It may also cause arthritic-like symptoms.

The doctor of chiropractic will test the muscles to determine their balance and strength. He will also evaluate nerve patterns and may take an x-ray to study the joint structure involved. Perhaps some laboratory procedures will also be needed.

If the problem is in the muscles around the joint, treatment can be given to strengthen and return them to proper balance. Once this is achieved, the arthritic-like pain and discomfort may be greatly relieved or

SANTA FE, N.M. - America's last full-scale war ended 10 years ago, but many of its 8 million veterans still are fighting the battles with sleepless nights, substance abuse and crime.

Veterans who are now trying to heal the emotional and social wounds of the Vietnam War say many veterans are still having problems coping with Vietnam because they never got the respect they deserved.

"There were wars before, but we were the heroes," said Vietnam veteran and Congressional Medal of Honor recipient Richard Rocco, director of the New Mexico Veterans' Service Commission. "People hate losers."

"They came back and were rejected," said Eli Lopez, a Vietnam veteran and director-counselor at the Santa Fe Veterans' Service Center. They were labeled "baby killers, war mongers and drug addicts," he said, which left them with "distrust, bitterness and anger."

As losers, veterans' drug and alcohol problems became amplified and many ended up in prison. Lopez said veterans comprise up to one-third of New Mexico's male prison population.

Many more still suffer from milder effects of post traumatic stress disorder, an anxiety syndrome that in more successful wars was known as shell shock or war neurosis.

"We're still seeing guys here going through sleepless nights,' said Lopez, 37, who served in Vietnam during the relatively high-morale Tet offensive of 1968.

The problem was based largely in the character of the Vietnam War - a guerrilla war without front lines or identifiable enemies and a military rotation system that made the 10-year conflict seem endless. Although they were fighting in good faith, say veterans, the war was being lost by politicians at home.

As a result, many veterans returned home full of stress and anxiety, which often was displayed in anti-social behavior. Classification as psychotic and placement in mental institutions aggravated the problem.

'It scares the hell out of you' to be institutionalized with truly mentally ill people, said Rocco, 46. "It's not a mental disease, it's an anxiety reaction.

first Marines in Vietnam in 1964, it took nearly 20 years of aimless drifting "to discover a way to reprogram myself." He has enrolled in the business school at the College of Santa Fe through a program designed for disabled veterans and is the college's veteran recruiter.

At 41 years old, he said, "I thought I was behind, and found out I'm ahead" compared to many veterans.

Armstrong said disabled veterans can double or triple their income and have tuition and fees paid upon entering college. But he said the benefits to the veterans are more than financial and the benefits to the country may be just as great.

'We can educate you and you can have an opportunity in life just like anybody else," he said.

"These are people with a proven track record of sacrifice for America," Armstrong said. "With a small bit of investment for them there are going to be more and more and more people making the sacrifice and making an effort for America in the future.

World War II veteran Richard Sortomme agreed Vietnam veterans were not given their due respect because their war was unpopular, although "it was not

"The people who gave the most are the people who had to do the fighting," Sortomme said. "The best therapy they could have is the acceptance of society."

Sortomme, 74, was an intelligence officer in the U.S. Navy, developing battlefield scenarios and relief maps for planned U.S. invasions of Pacific islands. He said he was planning what would have been the war's largest assault on a southern Japanese island when the atomic bombs were dropped on Hiroshima and Nagasaki, ending the war.

Sortomme is a well-known Santa Fe artist who developed his skills in Taos in the 1930s. After the war, he spent years in veterans hospitals in California using art to help wounded and paralyzed veterans recover.

Art as therapy, both for physical and psychological disorders, won acceptance after World War II. And it is being revived as a tool to help Vietnam vets.

'Art is the one discipline that is universal in scope," Sortomme said, noting the special quality of paintings, drawings and sculpture by veterans. He said a recent veterans' art show in the governor's gallery in the Capitol broke attendance records.

Orange juice new product

"Their paintings were of the most extraordinary quality," he said. "It was like walking through electricity...it was dynamite."

Creating art helps people who are disabled prove they can do something worthwhile, he said. Many of his students in the post-war years became self-sufficient with their art in spite of partial or near-total paralysis.

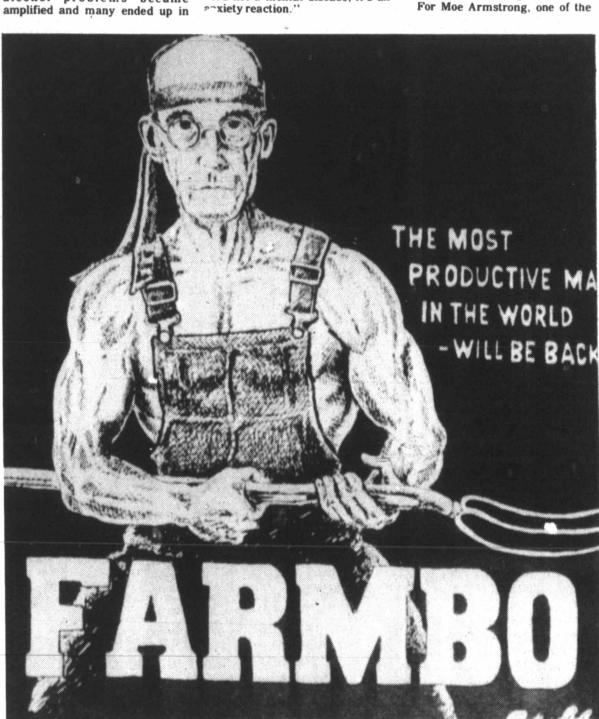

Rocco said a veterans' art gallery will be the centerpiece of the new New Mexico Veterans' Center for retirees at Truth or Consequences

The center, which opens this weekend, plans a major art show to coincide with the dedication and with Veterans Day on Monday.

"We're going to give them a market and exposure and a place where their creativity will be acknowledged," he said.

Sortomme said art is a good way to transform negative forces, such as pain, frustration and disappointment, into a positive

"Now, it's time too make up and to accept them and to love them." says Sortomme, "and to buy their

for American dairy farms

WASHINGTON (AP) - More and more dairy plants are turning out orange juice in addition to milk, butter and cheese, and Agriculture Department experts say the trend will continue.

It has to do with frozen concentrated orange juice, called FCOJ in the trade, and chilled orange juice or COJ. And it has much to do with a decline in U.S. orange production and a rise in imports from Brazil.

For consumers, the supermarket supply of FCOJ is usually found in the section for frozen foods, packed in small, medium and large containers. You take one home, mix the contents with water and serve. The COJ often is packed in plastic or paper containers, ready to drink.

Overall, largely because of greater use of juices, the average consumption of oranges and orange products rose from 69.5 pounds per person in 1970 to 103.5 Farm scene pounds in 1983, when converted to a weight equivalent of fresh oranges. The increased results from several factors: improved distribution, more national brands, better marketing techniques, higher disposable income, increased advertising and promotions, and changes in consumer tastes and preferences," the report said.

'Since the introduction of FCOJ in the mid-1940s, per capita consumption has generally increased," peaking at 71.9 pounds in 1983 before dropping to 62 pounds last year when prices jumped because of freeze damage in December 1983, the report said.

COJ was introduced in the mid-1950s and has gradually increased in consumer popularity, reaching a peak in 1978 of 10.2

pounds of fresh orange equivalent. "Actual COJ consumption is larger than the estimates because in recent years some FCOJ imported from Brazil and from Florida has moved to states outside of Florida for reconstitution by dairy plants," the report said. "However, there are no data available on how much imported and Florida FCOJ is reconstituted in the United States."

The analysis was written by Ben W. Huang and Ellen T. Fitzpatrick, who are economists in the department's Economic Research Service. It was included in a new fruit outlook report by the agency.

Orange' production, because of the climatic nature of the fruit, is concentrated in Florida. California, Texas and Arizona. Florida has outstripped California for the last 40 years, and the combined output of Arizona and Texas accounts for less than 5 percent of the total U.S. crop

Illinois man corn-growing champ

Saybrook, Ill., decided to expand his operations, the Agriculture Department might have to revise its annual corn estimates and look even harder for export markets. Warsaw is the world champion corn grower, says Growmark Inc., a Bloomington, Ill., firm whose commercial corn seed, FS 854, helped set a yield of 370 bushels per acre from a 1.17-acre plot of non-irrigated land.

The U.S. average corn yield, by comparison, is 115.1 bushels per acre, and the Illinois state average is 131 bushels per acres, according to USDA's most recent crop

In recounting Warsaw's feat, the shattered 10-year-old record of 338 bushels per acre, and exceeded the irrigated corn record of 352 bushels

The report said Warsaw used 484 pounds of nitrogen in four applications, 115 pounds of phosphate, 150 pounds of potash and "a heavy application of animal manure." The corn was planted last April 25 and harvested on Oct. 17. The chemicals Buctril, Lasso and Furdan were used for pest and weed control. Rainfall totaled 24 inches during the season, two inches more than normal.

According to a company spokesman, total production from

Total out-of-pocket expenses were at the rate of $284 89 per acre, including $238.89 for fertilizer, chemicals and seed

According to USDA's preliminary report on farm prices. the average price of corn received by Illinois farmers in mid-October was $2.10 per bushel.

Thus, Warsaw's champion corn was worth a gross of $777 per acre, well above his cash expenses of $284.89 per acre.

But both sides agree on one thing: the $20 billion Corps of Engineers authorization package pending in the House is the biggest water projects bill Congress has seen in 15 years.

Rep. Robert Roe, D-N.J., as chairman of the Public Works water resources subcommittee, put together a measure that would authorize the projects. But members must deal with Whitten's committee to get the separate legislation needed to provide the

Kell to head Clean Pampa award committee

By LARRY HOLLIS Staff Writer

Clean Pampa, Inc., has selected Barb Kell to head its Governor's Awards Committee in preparation for making an application for a $50,000 grant in the Governor's Community Achievement Awards

Sponsored by Keep Texas Beautiful, Inc., the Governor's Award has competition for $700,000 in funds for Texas cities. The funds are provided by the State Highways and Public Commission for highway landscape projects for winning cities.

Jo Potter, Clean Pampa coordinator, noted the Governor's Award has been given out for several years, but this is the first time it is being done in association with Keep Texas Beautiful, Inc.

Clean Pampa will be entering in the category for cities with a population of 10,001 to 25,000. Potter said, with a $50,000 award

In all, eight cities will be selected in differing population categories. Grants will range from $20,000 for cities under 2,500 population to $285,000 for those over 300,000.

Potter said Kell was selected to guide the collection of data, information, photographs, newspaper clippings, copies of Clean Pampa publications (including a litter ordinance digest and a newsletter) and other materials needed to make the Deadline for submission of the application is April 30, 1986. The awards will be presented in June at the 19th annual Keep Texas Beautiful, Inc., meeting in Austin.

Kell said she will be collecting information on what the organization has done in a 12 month period from May 1 this year through April 30, including development of plans for future months. She then will organize the materials for presentation in the application.

Potter said Kell "will be doing a miniature of my job.

Kell said she will be using others in Clean Pampa to help gather the information, including the board of trustees, the board of directors and committee chairmen.

The award money will be strictly for a highway landscape project for entrances to the city, Kell noted. An architect will be selected to meet with local officials to devise a project adapted to local needs. The specific locations of the landscape projects will be determined by consultation between the state highway department and city officials. The projects will be designed, funded, contracted and maintained by the department.

The application must include information in five areas: clean up programs, public awareness efforts, education and school programs, law enforcement and quality of life.

Kell said the Governor's Award is more than just an awards program. The award is conceived as a positive tool for action, accomplishment and recognition for cities making efforts at litter reduction and other community appearance and beautification challenges, she explained.

She said the award also is an action program aimed at reducing litter in Texas at the local level, particularly along highway rights of - way. Last year Texans, through state taxes, spent $20 million for litter pickup along state highways,

The program also seeks to involve greater citizen participation in bringing about argeted community enhancements, such as cleaner parks, streets, highways, neighborhoods, downtowns, alleys, schools and businesses.

The award also aims at developing positive results and greater local pride, she said.

Through materials requested in the application form, the program also provides an opportunity for local communities to work at reducing spending at state and local levels in the clean - up of cities, highways and roads, and other public areas, Kell stated.

The application also offers an opportunity for Clean Pampa and the city to provide a positive atmosphere for stricter enforcement of local litter and solid waste ordinances, education of citizens and community leaders on the high unseen costs of litter and the concept of community appearance as an economic tool. Kell explained:

The award program also is an opportunity to bring people together and unify the community. she noted. It offers a chance to show pride in the state and community for the coming 1986 Sesquicentennial Year. The awards offer communities a chance to earn deserved recognition and rewards for outstanding local action and achievement

In addition to the grant, winning cities also will receive a plaque signed by Gov. Mark White which can be displayed in the city.

Kell said preparation of the application will involve gathering and organizing a lot of information and data about clean - up and related programs undertaken in The organization has to describe clean - up programs undertaken within the 12 - month period, including community support involved from civic and community clubs, business and industry, schools and local government. In public awareness, Kell will have to discuss the various efforts at educating and informing the public about the goals, efforts and aims of the Clean Pampa, including related efforts by the city and other sponsoring organizations.

In the education section, she will have to provide information on efforts conducted with students and teachers in the schools.

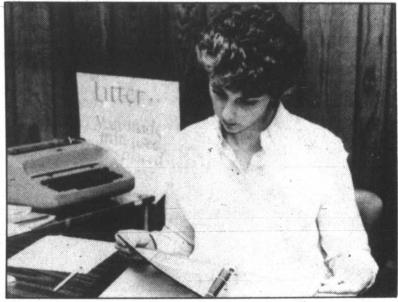

Under law enforcement, the application requires information on litter control ordinances. including any revision, efforts at enforcement and dissemination of ordinance information to the public. The application also asks for information on any local recycling efforts.

The quality of life section requests data on beautification of public areas, revitalization of the downtown and older neighborhood areas, historic preservation, economic development, promotion of tourism and property

Kell said the application preparation will involve a lot of work, but it would be worth it if the city could receive the grant. It also would recognize the efforts of citizens and organizations in the city which have been working to improve the city's appearance, she

Dear Abby

Husband's reading problem is not just his tired eyes

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: After four years of marriage, I found out that my husband can neither read nor write; he can only sign his name. He admitted this after he lost his job and I had to help him fill out some job applica-

During our courting days, his inability to read or write never came up. I was a widow with two children. He was divorced. He makes a very good appearance, but has always had trouble holding down a job. Now I know why. He is very good at fooling people. He would ask me to read everything from menus to instructions to him-saying his eyes were "tired."

His mother and members of his family have known all along that he was illiterate, but they kept it from me. He has many good qualities, but I am angry because I didn't get a husband, I got a child in a man's body! Am I wrong to be mad at his family for covering up for him?
FOUND OUT TOO LATE

DEAR FOUND OUT: Don't place all the blame on your husband's family; he should have told you himself.

Millions of American adults are functionally illiterate—unable to read a help-wanted ad or directions on a bottle of aspirin, and cannot address an envelop Somehow they manage to bluff their way through, as your hus-

However, if he really wants to learn, there are adult basic education classes available through your local public schools. And many public libraries provide one-on-one tutoring for adults. Its toll-free number is 1-800-228-8813. The people there can also tell you how to become a volunteer tutor. "The only degree you need is the degree of caring.'

DEAR ABBY: After only three months of marriage, my wife left me for another man. She refuses to get counseling to save our marriage. It looks hopeless, so I may as well accept her decision.

My question is, What should be done about our wedding presents? Should we divide them between us according to who gave them to usall the gifts that came from her friends and relatives should go to her, and those that come from my friends and family should be mine? Or should we return them all to the senders? What about the gifts that have been used? Thank-you cards have already been sent out for all of them. If you print this, you may use my name. I have nothing to hide. Otherwise, sign me ..

STILL IN LOVE IN MISSOURI

DEAR STILL: The unused wedding gifts should be returned. Gifts that have been used should be divided—those from her family and friends are hers. Those from your friends and family belong to you. I'm sorry you're hurting. I wish you happiness again-and soon.

HAMILTON, Ohio (AP) — Artist Jack Willard, at 72, isn't sure he'll be willing to finish the murals he began painting in the Hamilton City Council Chambers 44 years

He painted the first 16-foot-high mural in 1941 but the city ran out of money and never got around to commissioning two other panels.

Willard, whose work is displayed in many states, says if the city wants to finish it now, his role will be research and supervision.

"I'm too old to do the up and down stuff on a ladder," said Willard after the City Council recently ordered a cost estimate. "I was only 27 when I painted the first mural, and I was scared,'

It was the first mural for the graduate of the Ohio Mechanics Institute, which is now part of the depicts the preparation of defenses for Fort Hamilton, the military forerunner of what is now Willard said he had taken three months to research the project and six months to paint the 10-by 16-foot canvas with oils in his house. My ceiling at home was 10 feet high, and I had to fold the canvas over at the top and bottom," said Willard, who received $500 for the work. "The first time I actually saw all of it at once was when it was on the wall.

The canvas was glued to the wall of the chamber in Hamilton City

The other two murals were to show the coming of the canal and the railroad to Hamilton. Willard is already thinking about the mules, horses and equipment that will be

DEATH IS NEVER EASY

The death of a loved one can be shattering. Death breaks ties we've known for a lifetime. Death plays no favorites, spares no age.

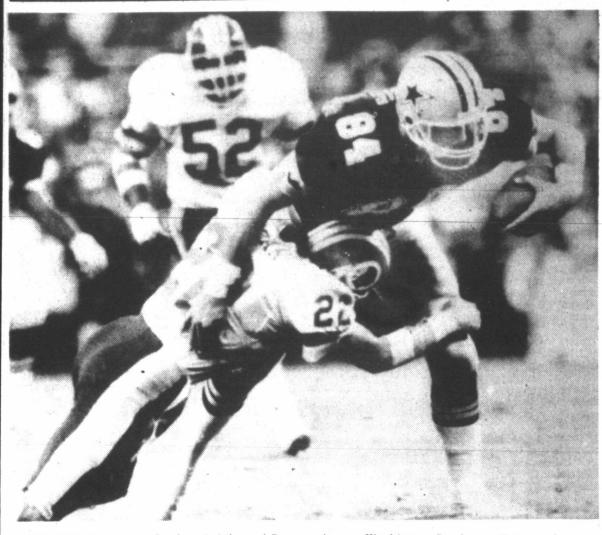

To the person left behind, the burden of facing life alone can be unbearable. The physical seperation leaves a void that nurtures loneliness, sometimes even hopelessness. Life is never quite the same.

Death is a natural part of life, but that does not make it easier to accept. Jesus knew death. He wept over the death of Lazarus. He prayed in Gethsemane that death might pass Him by.

Jesus knows and understands: "Do not let your hearts be troubled. Trust in God; trust also in me." Death will never be easy; but we do have someone we can go to for help. "Cast your cares on the Lord, for He cares for you."

Florida's loss opens door for Paterno's Nittany Lions

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON AP Football Writer

You wouldn't expect a former Ivy Leaguer to say something like, "It ain't over until it's over.

So with his Penn State team likely to become No 1 in this week's Associated Press college football poll, Joe Paterno (Brown '50) put it this way:

"Nobody's anything until the season's over That's exactly how I feel about it."

Florida's season still has two games to go, but the No. 1-ranked Gators' dream of winning the national championship while on probation was rudely smashed by No. 17 Georgia, which used touchdown runs of 76 and 32 yards by freshman Keith Henderson to build a 17-3 halftime lead en route to a 24-3 triumph. Oklahoma, Auburn and Iowa all preceded the Gators at the top of the poll this

Meanwhile, Penn State, No. 2 last week, remained undefeated and untied (9-0) by overcoming Cincinnati 31-10.

The Nittany Lions trailed 10-7 until John Shaffer. who threw a three-yard pass to Bob Williams for Penn State's first touchdown, plunged across from a yard out with just three seconds left in the first half. It was all downhill after that as Massimo Manca kicked a 17-yard field goal and D.J. Dozier and Matt Knizner contributed short touchdown

"If we're No. 1 or wherever, there are still two (regular-season) games for us to play," Shaffer said. "It's important where you stand at the end of

-Quarterback McCathorn Clayton ran three yards for one touchdown and passed 12 yards to Tom Banderas for another as No. 3 Nebraska battered Iowa State 49-0.

-Jim Karsatos completed 16 of 20 passes for 275 yards and three first-half touchdowns as fourth-ranked Ohio State built a 35-0 lead and whipped Northwestern 35-17. Quarterback Bart Weiss ran for two touchdowns and fired a 64-yard pass to Ken Carpenter for another, leading No. 5 Air Force to a 45-7 rout of Army.

-Chuck Long threw four first-half scoring passes, two in a 35-point first quarter, as sixth-ranked Iowa mauled Illinois 59-0.

-Jamelle Holieway, Oklahoma's freshman quarterback, set a school total offense record of 324 yards in leading the seventh-ranked Sooners over -Eighth-ranked Miami took the lead for the first time on Greg Cox's 20-yard field goal with 8:13 left and Melvin Bratton added his second touchdown as the Hurricanes beat Maryland 29-22.

-Jim Harbaugh passed for three touchdowns and Michigan's defense recorded its third shutout of the season as the No. 9 Wolverines buried Purdue

-Thurman Thomas rushed for 213 yards and four TDs in leading No. 10 Oklahoma State past Kansas State 35-3

In the Second Ten, No. 12 Arkansas defeated No. 11 Baylor 20-14 to scramble the Southwest Conference race, No. 13 Auburn trimmed East Carolina 35-10, No. 14 UCLA shaded Arizona 24-19 to remain atop the Pacific-10 standings, No. 15 LSU and No. 20 Alabama tied 14-14 and slipped into a three-way tie with Georgia in the Souheastern Conference, No. 16 Florida State butchered South Carolina 56-14 as Victor Floyd rushed for 212 yards and two touchdowns, No. 18 Brigham Young blanked Utah State 44-0 and No. 19 Tennessee, which can represent the SEC in the Sugar Bowl by winning its remaining three games, knocked off

Jeffcoat nails Theismann; Dallas sweeps Redskins with 13-7 win, keeps East lead

By IRA ROSENFELD AP Sports Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Washington Redskins' owner Jack Kent Cooke passed up a luncheon date with Britain's Prince Charles and Princess Diana to watch his team play football.

It was the Dallas Cowboys, however, that did all the feasting on Sunday as they defeated Cooke's Redskins 13-7 to retain a share of first place in the National Football Conference's East.

The Cowboys, coming off a disappointing 21-10 setback in St. Louis last Monday, bounced back to drop the Redskins and hand the defending division champions their fifth loss in 10 games. The victory was the seventh in 10 games for the Cowboys, who remained tied with the New York Giants for the division lead.

'This game was awfully important to us because we played so poorly last week against St. Louis,' said Dallas Coach Tom Landry, in the wake of his 250th National Football League coaching victory. 'Our guys gathered together after a week of turmoil and came back to play very well.'

None played better on defense than Jim Jeffcoat. The Cowboys first-round draft pick in 1983, Jeffcoat enjoyed his best game as a pro, sacking Redskin quarterback Joe Theismann five times.

Jeffcoat suprised Redskin tackle Dan McQuaid who had the uneviable task of filling in for All-Pro Joe Jacoby on the Redskin offensive line and was forced to handle Jeffcoat one-on-one.

"He was just bull-rushing me. I expected him to go inside or outside," said McQuaid, who at 6-foot-7 and 278 pounds is two inches taller and 15 pounds heavier than Jeffcoat. "He just went straight up and drove me straight back. After opening a 6-0 lead on two Rafael Septien field goals, the Cowboys put the game out of reach late in the third quarter as quarterback Danny White hooked up on a 48-yard touchdown pass to

We were just hoping to get in the right situation.

Danny had time to see me running down the field and that was that," said Dorsett, who had no trouble beating linebacker Monte Coleman to the

For Dorsett, the score marked his 76th TD as a Cowboy tying him with Bob Hayes as the team's all-time leader.

For White, who completed 16 of 29 passes for 245 yards, the victory, before 55,750 screaming Redskin fans, was especially satisfying.

"It's more of a thrill than anything other than the Super Bowl when you win here," said the Dallas signalcaller.

Dallas, which beat the Redskins 44-14 in the season opener, swept the season series with Washington, the first divisional foe to knock off the Redskins twice in one season since the Cowboys did "The fact that we were able to beat them twice offsets a game like Detroit (a 26-21 loss) and those games that you lose that you should win," said Landry.

Redskins quarterback Joe Theismann, who was intercepted eight times in the two Cowboy games. including three on Sunday, doesn't need anyone to tell him how well the Cowboys are playing.

"They are playing as well as I've ever seen them in 12 years of lining up against the Cowboys," said Theismann, who completed 14 of 31 for 195 yards.

After spotting the Cowboys their 13-point lead, the Redskins rallied briefly in the fourth quarter behind Theismann's 11-yard scoring pass to Gary

But the Cowboy defense, which held the Redskins to just 267 yards total offense, shut the door on the Washington attack for the remaining 13 minutes.

The loss, Washington's fourth against divisional opponents, all but ended their hopes for a fourth consecutive division title.

'We know we have to win them all, that's the bottom line. We're not going to get into the playoffs with 9-and-6," concluded Redskin cornerback

30 teams carry perfect marks into state high school playoffs

ASSOCIATED PRESS - The Texas high school football season moves into the state playoff phase this week with more than 30 teams having won every game and others boasting records blemished only by a tie.

All the teams in The Associated Press Top 10 of each class are playoff bound, except for Hempstead, fifth-ranked in Class 3A, whose season ended with a 16-13 loss to Bellville.

Most of the ranked teams will be favored again next weekend, since the champions of each district take on the runners-up of adjacent

In districts split into zones, the zone champions will play the second-place team of the district's other zone

Some schools in Class 4A and 1A don't end their regular season until this week, however.

Houston Yates, the top-ranked club in Class 5A, defeated Houston Wheatley 68-0 on Saturday to pace six unbeaten, untied ranked teams in the big school class.

Second-ranked Aldine kept pace

Saturday with a 13-10 victory over Aldine MacArthur, and fifth-ranked San Antonio Clark joined them at 10-0 by beating San Antonio Marshall 21-7.

However, if Clark is to keep its state championship hopes alive, it will have to win this week against eighth-ranked Converse Judson, which beat San Antonio Lee 56-6 to improve to 9-1 for the year. Eight Class 4A ranked teams have avoided losing, along with seven 3A ranked clubs, six 2A ranked teams, and seven 1A clubs. In other games last weekend involving top-ranked teams, Navasota defeated Brookshire Royal 27-0 in Class 3A, Electra rolled by Jacksboro 49-6 in 2A, and defending 1A champion Munday won its 26th straight game, slamming Bryson 78-0. Tomball, the top-ranked 4A team, took the week off.

Odessa Permian, third-ranked in 5A, finished the regular season at 9-0-1 by thumping cross-city rival Odessa High 37-7. The Panthers captured their sixth straight district title and beat Odessa for the 21st year in a row.

West Orange-Stark, fourth-ranked in 5A, raised its record to 10-0 with a 24-0 shutout over Vidor. Willowridge, the No. 6-ranked club, is 10-0 after a 33-0 triumph over Sugar Land The No. 2, 3, 4 and 5 teams in 4A all won and improved their records to 10-0. Denison beat Gainesville 28-6, Corsicana blanked West Mesquite 28-0, Bay City defeated Wharton 40-7, and Huntsville knocked off Crosby 52-2. Eighth-ranked Lubbock Estacado went to 8-0-1 by beating Pampa on Saturday 21-6.

Daingerfield, ranked second in 3A behind Navasota, improved to 10-0 by beating Pittsburg 21-15. No. 3 Kermit and No. 4 Van Vleck are 9-0 for the season after Kermit's 50-13 victory over Fabens and Van Vleck's 16-0 win over Boling.

In 2A, five other teams kept pressure on Electra by keeping perfect records intact. No. 2 Hamlin beat Rotan 63-0, No. 3 Groveton beat Lovelady 62-0, No. 4 Pilot Point beat Southlake Carroll 29-0, No. 5 Universal City Randolph beat Jourdanton 42-7, and No. 6 Quitman beat Hawkins 28-0.

Degrate: Agents 'taking care of' college stars

DALLAS (AP) - Despite the risk of losing their eligibility, well over half of all the nation's top collegiate athletes - while they're still playing - "are being taken care of" by agents, a 1984 all-America defensive lineman with the University of Texas says.

'That's why you see so many seniors smiling.'' Tony Degrate, the 1984 winner of the Lombardi Award, told The Dallas Morning News.

"A lot of kids are less fortunate, so when they're offered all this illegal stuff, it's their golden opportunity. Of course, they're going to jump on it. Degrate added, "I'd say right now from 70 to 80 percent of the players are being taken care of. The News, in a Sunday story, quoted agent Leigh Steinberg as estimating that 40 percent of seniors who will be taken in the first rounds of the National Football League and National Basketball Association drafts next year have already been signed by agents and are receiving money.

National Collegiate Athletic Association rules prohibit an agent to sign a college player before the player's eligibility expires

The NCAA estimates the number of persons who represent college athletes to be close to 2,000. Nearly 1,000 are approved by the NFL Players Association to negotiate contracts

But NFLPA officials said only 100 of those represent 75 percent of the league's players.

Officials said, most commonly, agents break NCAA rules by signing and paying players before their eligibility expires. Agent Mike Trope said that he breaks that regulation.

I recruit early. Everybody recruits early. If you want to succeed in this business, you have to," the News quoted Trope as saying. The NCAA says it's an issue of morality. My concept of orality is not to hurt anybody, and not to break the laws and statutes of the United States. ... The NCAA has

Neither rain nor wind nor the Detroit Lions could stay the Chicago Bears from their winning

By BOB GREENE

AP Sports Writer

But the Tampa Bay Buccaneers tasted victory for the first time and the Philadelphia Eagles were just too Quick for the Atlanta Falcons.

That's the way it went on Sunday, Week 10 of the National Football League season.

'The weather helped us more than it did Detroit," Bears Coach Mike Ditka said of the blustery, rainy conditions in Chicago where the Bears stopped the Lions 24-3 for their 10th straight triumph. "It's very hard to throw the football deep under those conditions."

In Tampa, the Buccaneers blanked the St. Louis Cardinals

"It was good to finally win one, said Coach Leeman Bennett, who has seen the 1-9 Bucs lose six times by 10 points or less.

Philadelphia lost a 17-0 lead, then watched as Atlanta kicker Mike Luckhurst missed a 42-yard field goal attempt with five seconds left in regulation that would have won the game for the Falcons. And when Atlanta was forced to punt in overtime, they pinned the Eagles on their 1-yard line.

But Ron Jaworski hooked up with Mike Quick for a 99-yard touchdown, the longest scoring pass in the NFL this season, to give the Eagles a 23-17 victory.

In other games, it was Cincinnati 27, Cleveland 10; Green Bay 27, Minnesota 17; Buffalo 20, Houston 0; New England 34, Indianapolis 15; the New York Giants 24, the Los Angeles Rams 19; Pittsburgh 36, Kansas City 28; Seattle 27, New Orleans 3; San Diego 40, the Los Angeles Raiders 34 in overtime; Miami 21, the New York Jets 17; and Dallas 13, Washington 7.

Tonight, the San Francisco 49ers. last season's Super Bowl champions, travel to Denver.

Bears 24, Lions 3 Bears backup quarterback Steve Fuller, who started for the injured Jim McMahon, agreed with Ditka.

"The weather conditions were devastating," he said.
Walter Payton rushed 26 times for 107 yards - his fifth consecutive 100-yard game and the 69th of his career. Matt Suhey came up with a 102-yard rushing performance. The last time the Bears had two backs going over 100 yards each was the same tandem

Buccaneers 16, Cardinals 0 "This football team had battled every Sunday and really deserved to win some other games that we ended up losing for whatever reason," said Bennett, who won his first game as Bucs head coach. "But I'm very proud of those guys that fought all year."

James Wilder ran for 120 yards and Steve DeBerg completed 11 of 27 passes for 196 yards as Tampa Bay won for only the ninth time in its last 42 games.

Eagles 23, Falcons 17 Philadelphia wasn't looking for much when Jaworski threw to

"We just wanted to get the ball out and get some breathing room," said Quick, who beat cornerback Bobby Butler and safety Scott Case on the longest pass completion this season.

The Falcons had rallied for 17 points in the final period to tie the game with 2:32 remaining. Bengals 27, Browns 10

Second-year quarterback Boomer Esiason completed 23 of 33 passes for 262 yards and a touchdown, using his pro experience to outshine Cleveland rookie Bernie Kosar in Cincinnati's victory.

The Bengals' third straight victory kept them in first place in the AFC Central with a 5-5 mark Cleveland has lost four in a row to fall to 4-6

Kosar completed 16 of 32 passes for 229 yards and two interceptions.

Packers 27, Vikings 17 Quarterback Lynn Dickey came on in relief to lead Green Bay to victory, completing nine of 11 passes for 135 yards, including a 1-yard touchdown pass to Eddie Lee Ivery to give the Packers the lead for good.

Bills 20, Oilers 0 Quarterback Bruce Mathison, making the first regular-season start of his three-year NFL career, completed 11 of 22 passes for 121 yards and ran for 57 yards. including a touchdown, to lead Buffalo, 2-8, to victory.

The game was played in a steady rain that caused Houston's offense to be completely ineffective.

Patriots 34, Colts 15

Irving Fryar scored on a 77-yard punt return and a 5-yard pass reception in a two-minute stretch in the third quarter to spark New England, 7-3, over Indianapolis,

The Patriots scored 17 points after three third-quarter fumble recoveries, while a second-quarter interception by Fred Marion set up one of Steve Grogan's two touchdown passes.

Giants 24, Rams 19 Two second-half touchdowns by Joe Morris boosted the Giants from a 13-point deficit to victory over the Rams. It was the Giants' fourth straight win.

The Rams' lone touchdown came on a 1-yard run by Eric Dickerson, 😪 who gained 101 yards on 24 carries.

Steelers 36, Chiefs 28 A 71-yard punt return by Louis Lipps scored the go-ahead touchdown and Gary Anderson kicked a team record five field goals as Pittsburgh downed

Kansas City. Anderson's five field goals broke his own record for the Steelers, 5-5. It was the sixth loss in a row for

Kansas City, 3-7. Seahawks 27, Saints 3

Seattle quarterback Dave Krieg led a 17-point fourth-quarter explosion and the defense throttled New Orleans in the second half. Krieg threw for 282 yards and a touchdown.

After the game, it was learned New Orleans Coach Bum Phillips kicked nose tackle Tony Elliott off the team midway through the game.

According to linebacker Rickey Jackson, Phillips pulled Elliott out of the game and chastised him. When Elliott said he was tired of being chop-blocked — a block delivered at or below the knees -Phillips reportedly told him he would never play again for New Orleans

Chargers 40, Raiders 34 Lionel James raced 17 yards for a touchdown 3:44 into overtime to lift San Diego over the Los Angeles Raiders San Diego quarterback Dan

Fouts threw for 436 yards and four touchdowns - the sixth time in his career he has thrown for 400 yards. an NFL record. Dolphins 21, Jets 17

Wide receiver Mark Duper, returning from a seven-game layoff, caught eight passes for 217 yards and two touchdowns, one a 50-yarder with 41 seconds left, to boost Miami past the New York Jets.

17 soccer fans jailed

LONDON (AP) - About 500 soccer fans clashed with police after a match Saturday and four officers were injured in the melee, Scotland Yard said.

One policeman was reported hospitalized with severe facial injuries, and 17 people were arrested.

The violence came the day after a London court imposed a life prison sentence on a soccer fan convicted of riot and assault after a game.

Nation salutes its soldiers with Veterans Day events

By LINDA WEINSTEIN Associated Press Writer

The nation saluted its soldiers on Veterans Day with parades for those who fought and lived and wreath-layings for those who fought and died, while Vietnam veterans remembered the war with events in snowy Colorado and Spokane, Wash.

Parades were planned today in Los Angeles, Boston and New York, where a gay "eterans group was excluded from the march sponsored by the American Legion. 'We wouldn't have minded them marching as individuals: we have gays in our organization. But we didn't want them coming in with signs about AIDS," said John Morahan, a spokesman for the New York County American Legion

John Paine, president of the Gay Veterans' Association, denounced the legion's decision and two court rulings upholding its action.

In West Hollywood, Calif., a largely gay community, former Russian Army soldiers from World War II joined with gay Vietnam veterans Sunday at a local park following a parade through the recently incorporated city.

'America is for everyone," California Secretary of State March Fong Eu told the crowd, a place where people are not judged by "their heritage or lifestyle ... or the person with whom they sleep." In Tarzana, Calif., restaurateur

Tuan Vinh, a former South Vietnamese Army officer, offered free beer to about 30 American veterans who came to sing songs, swap tales and see slides of Vietnam. "We always remember the time we were in the service,' Vinh said. "It is ingrained in our daily thinking and nightly dreaming. We may suffer with it. but we are proud of it.

One Texas town planned to observe the day with a real bang. repeating a 67-year-old tradition that began as a way to spread the word of the Nov. 11, 1918, armistice that ended World War I.

Shultz says U.S. couldn't prevent ship's departure

WASHINGTON (AP) Secretary of State George P. Shultz said the government had "no legal basis" to prevent the departure of a Soviet freighter carrying a Ukrainian sailor who had jumped into the Mississippi River near New Orleans.

Despite a congressional subpoena issued Thursday for the sailor to appear before the Senate Agriculture Committee, the Marshal Koniev was allowed to sail for home Saturday with 25 year-old seaman Miroslav Medvid aboard.

Shultz said the administration's handling of the Medvid incident was careful and proper, although he admitted the seaman was initially "mistakenly returned" to the ship by American authorities.

Medvid later left the ship for an interview with U.S. officials, and Appearing on the CBS-TV program "Face the Nation," Shultz said it was "a consensus of all the people working on this" that the sailor not be interviewed again to give him another opportunity to seek political asylum.

Shultz left open the possibility that Medvid may have been threatened by Soviet authorities after being returned to the ship after his initial jump, saying: After he was subjected to whatever he was subjected to aboard that ship, he changed his

In St. Louis, a flag-raising was planned to mark the founding of the American Legion in that city. A memorial plaque was being unveiled at the site where 1,100 World War I veterans gathered in May 1919 to put together the organization's preamble.

Memorials to the nation's fallen were dedicated in Spokane, Wash.; Graham County, Kan., and Nashville, Tenn. Sunday's ceremony at Vietnam Veterans Park, which includes a 50-foot wall listing the 1.289 Tennesseeans who were killed or listed as missing in the war, drew more than 1,000 people to the state Capitol grounds.

"Every single American owes a huge debt to every single veteran for fighting and dying and living to give us the greatest and the freest country in the world," Gov. Lamar Alexander said.

In Spokane, the Inland Northwest Vietnam Veterans Memorial - a bronze statue of a seated soldier holding a letter and gazing into the distance - was dedicated at a park along the Spokane River. "No man we are met this day to honor shall ever be lost in memory or myth," said Steve Mason, national poet laureate for the Vietnam Veterans of America. Should a lawyer expose his client for telling a lie?

By JAMES H. RUBIN Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The lawyer's client intends to take the witness stand and lie. Should the lawyer blow the whistle and tell the judge?

The Supreme Court is wrestling with that issue, but a recent argument session conducted by the justices in an Iowa case suggests the dilemma may be left unresolved.

Michael Franck, who heads an American Bar Association committee on lawyer ethics, says he would not be suprised by a narrow ruling that "doesn't provide guidance to the bench and bar around the nation."

The court is not expected to decide policy questions when the case before it does not demand an answer, he says.

In the Iowa case, murder suspect Emmanuel Charles Whiteside — to reinforce his self-defense claim — was prepared to testify that he saw a metallic object in his victim's hand.

That was a different story than Whiteside had been telling his lawyer, Gary L. Robinson.

According to Robinson, Whiteside had been saying he only suspected his victim was armed and never saw any weapon.

"If I don't say I saw a gun, I'm dead," Robinson quoted Whiteside as telling him just before the trial began.

Believing his client was about to lie on the witness stand, Robinson threatened to expose the perjury to the judge.

Ultimately, Whiteside testified he did not see a weapon. He was convicted and sentenced to 40 years in prison.

The conviction was overturned by a federal appeals court that said Whiteside's constitutional right to effective legal representation was violated by Robinson's threat

In reviewing the case, Supreme Court justices sharply challenged Whiteside's current lawyer, who urged the court to uphold the appeals court ruling.

Justice Thurgood Marshall said any lawyer who tolerates perjury should be disbarred. "I don't know of anything worse for a lawyer to do than produce perjury." said Marshall

But the court's decision in the case, expected by July, may be considerably less clear than

Girl's body found

BAYTOWN, Texas (AP) — The physical characteristics of a body found partially buried in wooded area match a description of an 11-year-old girl who disappeared on Halloween, police say.

The Harris County medical examiner's office in Houston completed an autopsy Sunday, but would not confirm whether the body was that of Mary Loraine Stiles.

The body was found Saturday afternoon near a mosquito-infested pond about 150 yards from the complex where the girl lived, said Baytown police Lt. James Hall.

"This is no longer a case of a missing child," he said. "It's a murder."

Hall declined to discuss possible suspects or leads in the case.

The blonde-haired, blue-eyed girl was last seen about 5:30 p.m. Oct. 31 by her older brother as she was playing outside the family's apartment. She had planned to go trick-or-treating dressed as a baby in pajamas.

in pajamas.

The area where the body was found was searched by police the day after the girl was reported missing, said Assistant Police Chief Bob Merchant.

621 N. Hobart 665-345 Open Menday-Wednesday Friday Marshall's comment.

Other justices pointed out that it may not be necessary to establish any sweeping code of conduct for lawyers to decide that Whiteside's rights were not violated.

The reason is that Whiteside presumably testified truthfully, so a direct conflict between him and his lawyer did not develop.

"I expect they are going to find Mr. Whiteside suffered no harm," Franck says. "When there is no harm there's no foul, and the court won't reach the issue" of what the proper conduct is for a lawyer in such a case.

The ABA has been urging states to adopt a code of conduct that contains a controversial approach to the confidential relationship between client and lawyer.

After heated debate at its 1983 convention, the ABA adopted the general position that a lawyer's first duty is to protect his client's secrets — even if that means covering up fraud or other white collar crimes.

But the ABA voted to allow two significant exceptions to its "silence is golden" rule.

The code says lawyers may reveal a client's confidence during a trial if the client perjured himself, and also may inform authorities if the lawyer believes a client is about to commit murder or inflict bodily harm.

Prince Charles pauses prior to offering toast at embassy

Royal couple planning visit to J.C. Penney

By LEE BYRD Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — As the future king of England tells it, Princess Diana of Wales needn't pick out anything for him on their visit to J.C. Penney today, since Americans already are turning out by the thousands just "to see my new clothes."

With wry humor, Prince Charles says he's finally put his finger on why he's getting more attention in the United States now that he's brought a wife along. It's his new shirts and ties, he claims.

The glamorous Diana, 24, was another photogenic hit Sunday, especially when she showed up at a British Embassy gala wearing a cream-colored gown with lace bodice and taffeta skirt — and a glittering diamond and pearl tiara once worn by Queen Mary.

The royal couple planned a busy day today, starting with their promotional visit to a J.C. Penney store in suburban Springfield, Va., on behalf of the chain's $50 million line of British merchandise.

More than 12,000 people turned out Sunday when they attended religious services at the National Cathedral, and thousands more waved and chanted "Diana, Diana," when they visited the "Treasure Houses of Britain" exhibit at the National Gallery of Art.

Sunday night, Charles told Vice President and Mrs. George Bush and a score of other Reagan administration officials, "When we were in the National Gallery, a gentleman of the press asked me, I thought rather tactlessly really, why there was a bigger crowd outside the cathedral than when I was last there, on my own.

"The answer, of course, is that they all turned out to see my new clothes."

Bush told the royal couple that the success of their visit is "proof once again that the relationship between our two countries is on firm footing."

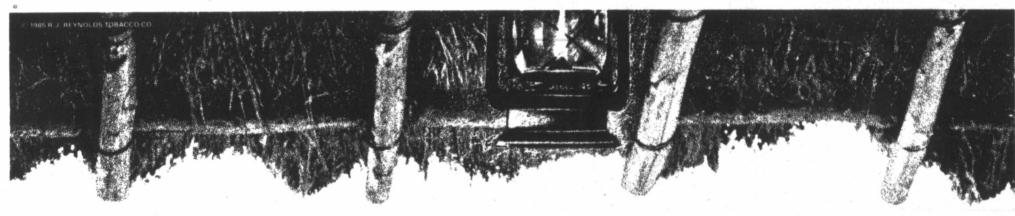

"If Paul Revere were to ride again today," Bush said, "he would be yelling 'The British are coming, the British are coming, the would be driving a Toyota through J.C. Penney's parking lot."

Charles hinted Sunday that he and Diana might head for the wide spaces of the American West on a future visit.

"There are lots of places I'd like to get to," he told reporters in his first news conference in years. "I'd love to go to Wyoming—the Queen has told me about it." Queen Elizabeth II visited Wyoming in 1984

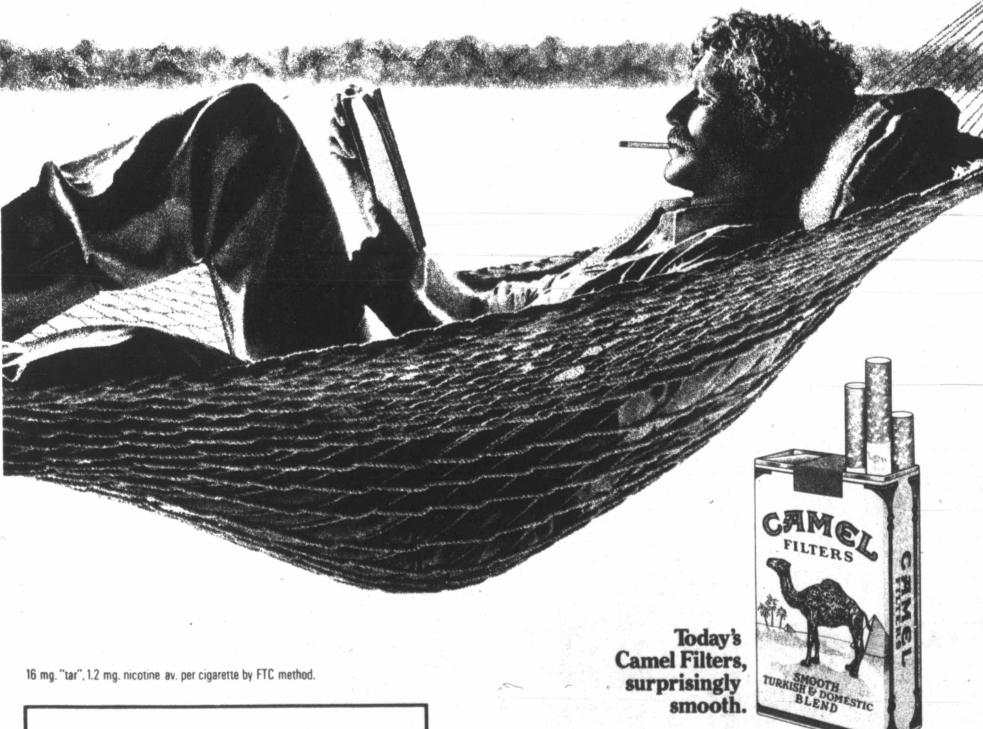

Wyoming in 1984.
Asked if Diana, 24, enjoyed her spin around the White House dance floor Saturday night with teen idol John Travolta, Charles replied that he was "not a glove puppet" of his wife.

puppet" of his wife.
As Diana smiled demurely, the prince added: "In any event, she did enjoy dancing with John Travolta."
