One jail escapee captured

BY PAUL PINKHAM
Staff Writer

Police have arrested one of three men who escaped from the city jail Sunday night.

Kevin Ray Kirkham, 17, 1936 N. Christy, was arrested at Coronado West Trailer Park on Price Road Wednesday morning. Sgt. Steve Chance, who assisted in the arrest, said Kirkham has a sister living at the trailer park and Police Chief J.J. Ryzman said the fugitive apparently sought refuge there.

Kirkham and two other men, all in jail on misdemeanor charges, broke out of the city jail Sunday night by first weakening a plexiglass light covering with heat generated by plastic spoons, then kicking the covering out.

Ryzman said he "strongly suspects" the other two escapees, Gerry Lynn Douglas Jr., 17, 418 N. Yeager, and Henry Watkins Skinner, 23, 118 S. Wells, are in New Mexico.

Ryzman said he has no plans to attempt to extradite Douglas and Skinner because they face only misdemeanor escape charges. Douglas had been in jail on charges of theft and traffic offenses and Skinner was in on a charge of driving while intoxicated at the time of the escape.

The chief said a pickup truck reported to the Gray County Sheriff's office as missing from south of Pampa, and believed by authorities to have been used by the escapees, was recovered near Hobbs, N.M. A spokesman in the district clerk's office said no charges have been filed in connection with the missing truck.

$2,000 on the escape charge, a class A misdemeanor. Bond on the public intoxication charge, to which Kirkham had pleaded not guilty, was set at $110.

Ryzman said Kirkham had pleaded guilty to the disorderly conduct charge, was fined $210 and was serving time in jail for that offense at the time of his escape.

The chief said bars have been put up over the light coverings in the jail to prevent future escapes. Kirkham's brother William employed a similar method in an escape attempt several months ago, police have said.

The thick plexiglass is not supposed to break or give way to heat, Ryzman said.

"We don't know if we got a defective piece of equipment or if we proved the manufacturers wrong," he said.

Youngest pirate tabbed as killer

By The Associated Press

Israel's military intelligence chief and an Italian prosecutor both say they know who killed an American passenger on a hijacked Italian cruise ship. Neither identified the killer, but the Israeli said it was the youngest of four Palestinian pirates.

Prosecutors in Genoa also said Wednesday that all seven Palestinians detained in connection with the hijacking of the cruise ship Achille Lauro had been charged with murder and kidnapping in connection with the death of 69-year-old Leon Klinghoffer.

The seven include the four hijackers, two unidentified fugitives and a Palestinian arrested in Genoa before the cruise began Oct. 3.

Klinghoffer's badly decomposed body was identified in Damascus, Syria, on Wednesday and flown to Rome for an autopsy. Officials said the body had two bullet wounds.

Maj. Gen. Ehud Barak, chief of Israeli military intelligence, said Klinghoffer "was chosen by the Jewish sound of his name and dragged against his will to the edge of the ship's deck. The youngest of the terrorists shot him in the head once or twice."

He said Israel's information about the death was "determined conclusively by the evidence taken from the people on the ship." He did not identify by name the hijacker who allegedly shot the partially paralyzed Klinghoffer.

Barak said a Portuguese cleaning worker and the ship's hairdresser were forced at gunpoint to push Klinghoffer's body over the side of the Achille Lauro, and then to "clean the blood stains off the ship."

Prosecutor Dolcino Favi told a news conference in Genoa early today after the Achille Lauro returned to its home port. "We have reconstructed the killing of the American in all the details."

He said prosecutors were certain who shot Klinghoffer, why he was killed, and who threw the body overboard. However, he declined to provide details.

Authorities have said the hijackers were traveling on false documents, and have not identified them. But criminal complaint filed against them in the United States identify them as Hallel Abdalla Al-Asan, Maged Yussef Al-Malaki, Hammad Al-Abdulla, and Abdel Atif Ibrahim Fatayer.

Italian news agencies have said that a hijacker they identified as Hallel Abdullah Alhasan is 19 years old, and that the three other hijackers range in age from 20 to 23.

Judicial sources have said the four deny killing Klinghoffer.

Barak also played a tape recording on Israel television of a conversation in Arabic that he said was conducted Oct. 9 between PLO official Mohammed Abbas and the four hijackers, the same day they surrendered.

The United States accuses Abbas of masterminding the hijacking and Barak said the ship-to-shore conversation proved Abbas knew of the pirate's plans in advance.

In the transcript of the conversations released by the Israeli army on Wednesday, Abbas is quoted as telling a hijacker called Maged:

"Listen to me well. First of all, the passengers should be treated very well. In addition, you must apologize to them and the ship's crew and to the captain, and tell them our objective was not to take control of the ship. Tell them what your main objective is. ... Can you hear me well?"

Hijacking topples Italian government

ROME (AP) — Prime Minister Bettino Craxi handed in the resignation of his 26-month-old government to President Francesco Cossiga today, presidential aides announced.

Craxi acted after expressing bitterness in a speech to Parliament toward the United States for its criticism of Italy's release of a PLO official.

The president then asked Craxi to stay on as caretaker premier, the aides said.

Craxi submitted his resignation a day after the Republican Party withdrew from the five-party coalition to protest his handling of the Achille Lauro hijacking.

In an interview broadcast in Rome on Tuesday, Abbas denied he masterminded the hijacking, saying: "I was only responsible for the mediation and freeing the ship."

PLO chief Yasser Arafat appointed Abbas to negotiate the hijackers' surrender and the release of the ship and the more than 500 people aboard, and he was at Egypt's Port Said ship-to-shore radio station when the conversation took place. The four hijackers surrendered to PLO officials and were taken into Egyptian custody on the same day that the conversation in the transcript allegedly took place.

Abbas heads the Palestine Liberation Front, the PLO faction to which the hijackers claimed they belonged.

Flying high

High speed chase ends in Pampa crash

BY PAUL PINKHAM
Staff Writer

A recently discharged serviceman apparently was flying high in more ways than one Wednesday night during a high speed chase that began in Panhandle and ended abruptly at a concrete embankment in Pampa.

Glenn Edward Tipps, Springfield, Ill., is being held in Panhandle on numerous charges relating to drugs and two hit and run accidents. Panhandle Police Lt. Bobby Carter said he is being charged with two counts of aggravated assault with a motor vehicle, one count of possession of a controlled substance and one charge of failing to stop and render aid, all felonies.

Tipps, recently discharged from the U.S. Navy, also faces misdemeanor charges of driving under the influence of drugs, speeding at more than 100 mph and driving on the wrong side of a divided highway with an accident involved, Carter said.

Tipps' odyssey up U.S. Highway 60 began in Panhandle where his car, registered to him in California, collided with a vehicle occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Richard Fiddler, Panhandle, Carter said. The Fiddlers were treated for minor injuries and their car was considered a total loss.

Carter said the department was taking statements from the Fiddlers this morning. He added police planned to seek an affidavit from another unidentified woman, whose car also allegedly was struck by Tipps' speeding vehicle.

After the Panhandle accidents, Tipps proceeded eastbound up Highway 60 at speeds that Carter estimated exceeded 120 mph at times. He said the speedometer in his patrol car tops out at 85 mph and, therefore, he could only estimate Tipps' speed.

The Panhandle Police Department, Carson County Sheriff's office and Department of Public Safety officers from Gray County all were involved in the pursuit, Carter said. He added that damage was done to a DPS vehicle, but DPS Sgt. Jim Powell was not available for comment at press time.

Highway Patrolman Danny Pierce, the investigating officer for the DPS, said no damage was done to his vehicle.

Once in Pampa, Tipps failed to make the turn at the intersection of Dwight and Wilks (Highway 60), according to Lt. Jess Wallace, who investigated the accident for the Pampa Police Department. Wallace said Tipps' vehicle rolled down Wilks, struck a concrete embankment at the corner of Wells and came to rest in the middle of the highway.

Wallace said Tipps was taken to Coronado Community Hospital, where he was checked for injuries. Miraculously, Wallace said, he observed no blood on the driver.

Justice of the Peace David Potter denied bond at the hospital and Tipps was transported back to Panhandle to face charges there, Carter said.

BUT WILL IT FLY? - Bill Duncan, left, incoming Pampa Chamber of Commerce president, looks at the University of Oklahoma flag that alumni Bill Arrington, center, and David Fatheree claim will soon be flying across Cuyler Street. The Chamber is auctioning off the right for proud college alumni to fly their alma mater flag for a week across the downtown street. The OU boosters and others will be bidding for the boastful project Saturday night during the live auction segment of the Chamber's Country Fair at M. K. Brown Auditorium. (Staff photo by Terry Ford)

Retail sales dip slightly, but remain ahead of last year

By LARRY HOLLIS
Staff Writer

Pampa's retail sales showed a slight dip in August from July, but yearly sales are still running ahead of last year, based on sales tax payment figures released this week by State Comptroller Bob Bullock.

Most other cities in the reporting area also had decreased sales figures for the last month of summer vacation, Bullock reported.

Bullock sent checks this month totaling $56.6 million in local sales tax collections to the 1,010 cities that levy the one percent city tax. October checks represent taxes collected on sales made in August and reported to the Comptroller by Sept. 20.

Pampa received a check this month for $98,040.86, representing sales of approximately $9.8 million. That's down about $2 million from taxable sales and services reported in July, when the city earned a check for $118,904.27 mailed by the state in September after reports were turned in.

Total payments for the year to date are $1,314,535.22, representing sales of more than $131 million, an increase of 2.51 percent above the $1,282,385.63 in payments reported at this time last year. But the percentage has fallen slightly, since Bullock listed Pampa with a 4.56 percent rise last month.

However, the figures can't be compared with complete accuracy yet since new goods and services were added to the taxable list a year ago. It will be two more months before comparable totals can be more correctly judged.

Elsewhere in Gray County, Lefors still showed a decrease from last year, but some improvement is indicated. Bullock sent the city an October check for $742.87; the city had received no check the previous October.

The latest check pushes Lefors' yearly total payments to $4,114.70, a drop of 9.84 percent behind the $4,563.79 recorded at this time last year. But the city was listed with a 28.12 percent decline in

Sales taxes

McLean had a check this month for $1,408.60, more than $350 under the $1,761.32 payment received last October. Its yearly totals are $16,163.24, running 12.60 percent below the $18,492.85 registered at this time in 1984. That represents a slight drop from July sales; last month the city was recording an 11.82 percent decrease.

In Carson County, Groom had an October check for $1,452.17, falling $170 under the $1,622.78 payment received in October, 1984. Yearly totals to date are $17,614.37, just barely above last year's comparable totals of $17,473.56 with an 0.81 percent increase indicated. But that's a drop from last month when Groom was listed with a 1.96 percent hike.

The state sent Skellytown a check this month for $1,093.19, more than $1,000 below the October, 1984, check for $2,151.49. The city's yearly payments to date are $15,728.16, dipping 27.19 percent from the $21,601.11 recorded in the same 1984 period. In September Bullock listed the city with a 24.75 percent decline.

White Deer also continued to show a decline in sales from last year, but some improvement was made in August from July sales. The city had an October check for $1,335.29, down from the $1,420.27 received last October. Yearly payments now total $16,306.25, down 22.35 percent from the $20,999.76 registered at this time last year. In September Skellytown was recording a 23.54 percent drop, indicating a slight rise in sales from July.

In Hemphill County, Canadian had a check this month for $9,308.15, more than $3,000 below the $12,328.76 payment received last October. Its yearly payments to date are $122,487.67, falling 16.25 percent under last year's comparable period payments of $146,260.75. Last month Bullock listed Canadian with a 15.49 percent drop.

Bullock sent Miami an October check for $1,161.71, falling $1,050 under last October's payment of $2,211.07. Total yearly payments to date for the Roberts County city are $16,545.15, dropping 26.07 percent from the $22,379.19 recorded in the same 1984 period. Last month Miami was reporting a 23.72 percent decline.

In Wheeler County, Mobeetie received no check from the state this month, compared to a payment of $533.14 listed for last October. Yearly payments to date total $3,210.40, down nearly half - 49.57 percent - from the $6,366.10 received in the same 1984 period. Last month the city listed a 44.96 percent decline.

Sales totals for Mobeetie have dropped drastically in the past two years. At this time in 1983 the city had total yearly payments of $11,581.15, more than triple the payments recorded to date this year.

Wheeler had an October check for $4,165.96, running $555 above the $3,610.42 October, 1984, check. That raised its yearly total payments to $40,817.66. The overall totals are still behind last year, dropping 7.28 percent under the $44,023.75 recorded in the same 1984 period. But last month Wheeler was listed with a 9.31 percent decline.

In Hutchinson County, Borger is still keeping ahead of last year's sales. Bullock reported the city had total payments to date this year of $1,014,815.94, indicating sales of more than $101 million. That represents an 11.13 percent jump over the $913,157.77 reported at this time last year.

Wildlife program scheduled

MIAMI - Wildlife preservation and ranching can go hand-in-hand, members of the Roberts County Extension Service and Soil Conservation Service hope to show Friday at T. Boone Pickens, Jr.'s 2-B Ranch north of Pampa.

The ranch is located north of Miami in U.S. 70.

According to Roberts County Extension Agent Herman Boone, the program will focus on the requirements of various types of wildlife and ways to improve and maintain their habitat while still providing for efficient ranch operation. It is sponsored by the county extension Service, the county Soil and Water Conservation District, The Soil Conservation Service and the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

Boone anticipates about 200 ranchers to attend.

"We've had inquiries from as far as Oklahoma City," he said. Registration at the ranch begins at 8 a.m. with a luncheon scheduled for noon. Ranch manager Bob Morris will conduct a tour of the ranch.

The program will feature discussions on pond management, brush control and improving habitat for such animals as doves, pheasants, quail, wild turkey, white-tailed deer and the Bobwhite Quail.

"Our main concern is the care and management of the wildlife," he added.

SAFE DRIVER - Pampa High School student Penny Morgan (center) was named safe driver for the month of September in a program sponsored by the Pampa Police Department. Here she is awarded a plaque from Pampa McDonald's manager Gary Shaw, right, and a savings bond by Pampa Officer Mark King. The $50 savings bond was donated by Glenn Courtney of State Farm Insurance.

Economy picks up steam during the summer months

WASHINGTON (AP) - The economy, after six months of disappointing growth, picked up steam during the summer, but the pace still remained below the rebound predicted by the Reagan administration, the government reported today.

The Commerce Department said the gross national product, the broadest measure of economic health, grew at a 3.3 percent annual rate from July through September.

This represented a three-fold increase over the anemic 1.1 percent growth rate turned in during the first six months of the year.

It also represented an upward revision from an initial "flash" estimate made last month, which put third quarter growth at 2.8 percent.

However, the administration was predicting growth in the second half of the year would post a five-fold increase. On the basis of this optimism, the administration forecast growth for the entire year of 3 percent.

But most private economists are predicting growth will average only around 2 percent this year, a sluggish rate that would qualify as a "growth recession," a period when economic activity picks up so slowly that unemployment rises.

While the economy strengthened in the July-September quarter, many private economists are worried that growth will slacken again in the final three months.

They base their concern on the belief that little has been done to solve the country's biggest problem, a flood of foreign imports robbing American manufacturers of sales.

The weakness in manufacturing has dampened overall growth as both income and employment have shown little improvement this year.

Adding to the pessimism, the government also announced today that new housing construction fell 9.3 percent in September, the biggest drop since May.

The Commerce Department said that new housing was built at an annual rate of 1.58 million units in September.

No-pass sidelines players

AUSTIN (AP) — Used for the first time during football season, the no-pass, no-play rule has sidelined about 15 percent of high school varsity football players, with losses running heavier in junior varsity and freshman ranks, coaches say.

Some junior varsity schedules face cancellation and schools reported losing marching band members, prompting one official to say Wednesday, "There's not going to be much to rally around at those places."

The no-pass, no-play rule — a critical element of public school reforms enacted by the Legislature last year — prohibits students from participating in extracurricular activities if failing any course.

Grades for the first six-week period came out this week, and the rule takes effect Friday. Those who failed can't play again for at least six weeks.

"It doesn't look very good," said Eddie Joseph of the Texas High School Coaches Association.

"Statewide, somewhere in the neighborhood of 15 percent of varsity athletes are going to become ineligible after this Thursday. For the subvarsity, the percentage is close to 35-to-50 percent in places," Joseph said.

He said the association has no reports yet of schools being forced to quit football, although some of the smallest teams will be cut to just 14 players.

"A lot of junior varsity schedules are going to have cancellations. And I've heard of some bands that are not going to be able to participate," he said.

Joseph said officials anticipated the higher failure rate among younger players.

Besides the traditionally tough time they have adjusting to high school, he said, younger players who didn't make the varsity may not have received special tutoring and weekly grade monitoring coaches provided for the top squads.

"The thing that bothers us is that if you lose these younger kids right now, you've got a great chance to lose them for good. They may just drop out if they can't have the opportunity to play," he said.

Across the state, coaches assessed the results of the no-pass, no-play enforcement.

At Beaumont, West Brook High School lost four varsity players and 78 in the lower classes. "More than 25 percent of our band members failed," added Coach Leo Nolan. "It's been a rough day over here."

The Austin Independent School District indicated about 15 percent of varsity players, 25 percent of the junior varsity and up to 35 percent of freshmen failed.

Austin High Coach Gary Tuberville said 11 of 42 varsity players are ineligible, including five starters. That 26 percent casualty rate was the district's highest. The school also will lose 23 of 37 freshmen players, he said.

Dallas Thomas Jefferson High School, which upset Dallas Carter on Saturday, lost nine varsity players including its starting quarterback. The team had playoff hopes, but it now must make the third playoff round before the nine could become eligible again.

"They're crushed to have something like this happen after we were so up after beating Carter. They were damn near crying," said Jefferson Coach Allen Stumbo.

Seagoville High had to cancel its junior varsity season after losing 12 of 19 players. Dallas Hillcrest did the same after losing all but four from a squad of 30.

Greenville High lost nine varsity players, and Coach Gary Callaway said he may be forced to cancel the JV program so he can promote those players to the varsity.

However, Callaway indicated the no-pass, no-play rule has forced players to study harder. "The fact that we lost just nine of 41 kids is quite an accomplishment ... Our grades are way up," he said.

One San Antonio player made two As, one B and one C, but failed algebra, South San West Coach Bill Farrar said.

"He took it pretty hard. You look at something like this and it's just totally unfair. He's a good student and a good football player. He's the type of kid who really wants to make something of himself. Then something like this comes up," Farrar said.

At El Paso Parkland, Coach Ronnie Hernandez lost five of 30 players. "We don't know how we're going to fill those positions," he said.

Eisenhower High in Aldine lost 13 from the varsity and 70 subvarsity players, while San Marcos lost six of 43 varsity players.

Some schools did very well, however.

Odessa Permian, defending state Class 5A co-champion, kept all its varsity players. Odessa High lost just one. Austin McCallum lost three of 33 varsity players, and Austin Anderson dropped one of 42.

"We're pleased about it. But we lost 22 of 45 freshmen, and it's likely that we may have to consider cancelling some games. I don't know for sure," said Anderson Coach Jim Acker.

No varsity losses were reported at Conroe McCullough, Spring Woods, Houston Reagan, Houston Jones and LaPorte.

Houston Yates, top-ranked in the Associated Press Class 5A poll, also escaped varsity losses.

"All our varsity players came through but we were wiped out at the freshman level. We still don't know the exact total, but right now it's 20 of 45 players on the freshman team," said Yates Coach Luther Booker.

Susan Zinn, assistant director of the University Interscholastic League that governs high school sports, said the UIL has been getting 150 calls a day from parents.

STANDING BY — A tugboat stands by the southeast of Galveston Wednesday. Two jackup oil rig which capsized in fifty feet of water in the Gulf of Mexico about 12 miles southeast of Galveston Wednesday. Two crewmen were killed in the mishap and nine others were injured and rescued.

Two dead, nine hospitalized as barge overturns in Gulf

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — Officials of an offshore construction company said an investigation was necessary to determine if a barge accident in which two workers were killed and nine injured was the result of mechanical or human error.

A barge known as the DMC-1 rolled over in about 45 feet of water in the Gulf of Mexico Wednesday some 12 miles southeast of Galveston as it neared a worksite about two miles away in the Gulf, officials of Houston-based Drynorth USA Inc. said.

Divers found the two bodies in the water-filled galley of the barge. The exact cause of the deaths was unknown. The company hoped to begin its investigation today.

Names of the victims were not immediately released because family members could not be reached, Drynorth spokeswoman Pat Plant said.

Of the survivors, two were held overnight for treatment at the University of Texas Medical Branch in Galveston.

Both Albert Taylor, 41, of Arnaville, La., and Michael Champs, 32, of Houston, were listed in satisfactory condition. Six were released following treatment for various lacerations, minor fractures or strains. One man was treated for burns.

None of the survivors would speak with reporters.

"All I want to do is go home," hospital spokeswoman Linda Macdonald quoted one crewman as saying.

Crew member Kenneth Poston, 52, of Angleton, left the emergency room with a large bandage around his left arm.

"He's fine," his wife, Angie, said as she hustled her husband into their car.

One of the men walked into the emergency room carrying an oar. Another clutched a life ring.

"They said they wanted to keep their souvenirs," said Dr. Joseph Stohert, director of the emergency room.

Ms. Plant said the cause of the accident "is still really undetermined at this point." She described any efforts to right the barge as "a major thing."

Because the overturned vessel posed no hazard to shipping, the Coast Guard planned to leave any salvage efforts to Drynorth, Coast Guard spokesman Mark Kennedy said.

David Brandon, port captain for Drynorth, described the self-propelled vessel as 80 feet long, 60 feet wide and with three 118-foot legs. It could accommodate up to 15 workers.

"We don't know what happened," he said.

The vessel was one of two such construction barges owned by the company, Brandon said.

Drynorth officials would not say how long their investigation was likely to take and refused to speculate whether the accident was the result of human or mechanical error.

"I can't go into any details," Brandon said. "All we know now is that everybody's been accounted for."

Besides Poston, hospital officials identified the other survivors as Douglas Klegg, 32, of Bay City; Mark Watson, 31, of Port Lavaca; George Sherman, 38, of Houston; Edward Anderson, 23, of Picayune, Miss.; Robie Bernard, 28, of Lafayette, La.; and Douglas Morrill, 22, of New Orleans.

Off beat

By Larry Hollis

A musical chairs variation

It was a very welcomed, bright afternoon, one of those almost luscious, mild and warm fall days interred between the first really cool spell and the chilling days yet to come.

Ahhh, the things I could have done: bicycling, making a last trip to the lake, or maybe just reading a book in the park!

Instead, I found myself sitting on the steps of City Hall, having arranged to accompany a police officer on a round for a feature I was working up. Of course, it was my day off — but, then, it seems so much of my work is done on my "days off."

Anyway, I had arrived at shift change, and I was told it would be "a couple of minutes" since police vehicles had to be picked up and assigned to the various patrol units.

No problem. It gave me time to just relax and look at the wonderful clear, blue skies above the less than entrancing ancient facade of the courthouse across the street.

The couple of minutes stretched out and extended further while I continued to wait. I could perhaps have been entertained by the ticking of my watch echoing more and more loudly as time dragged, but that's rather hard to do with a digital watch.

Instead, I watched the shift-change activities occurring outside City Hall. And that soon became so diverting that after awhile I didn't mind the passing of time.

All the officers walked out of the police station, carrying hats and gun cases and clubs and clipboards and other materials as they headed out to the cars.

My chosen officer drove up in a car, told me it would only be a short while and left with another officer to get another car.

I expected the others to be heading out on the streets quickly in their various directions. But first they had to unload their assorted equipment in the separate cars and check the sirens and flashing lights and whatever else they check.

Then, one at a time, the officers started up cars, drove them a brief distance, circled around the block, brought them back to the station or stopped them in the middle of the street, or just parked them across the street.

At first I thought I was watching a local variation of musical chairs, since one officer would start a car, only to park it suddenly, shut it off, and then get into another car. Soon several of them were doing it.

Intrigued, I casually listened in on the conversations as I watched the constant motion.

"What's the matter with that car? ... The &?!$ fan belt is slipping. ... That's another car I'm sending to the shop! ... Is something wrong with that one? ... The window won't roll down; it's slipped the track again. ... The air conditioner isn't working in this one. ... Do you hear that funny noise under the hood? I'm not going to drive that &?!$ car if it's going to conk out on me! ... Isn't there any car running today?" and so on, with hoods opened and shut, doors slammed, cars parked and moved around and ... well, it was becoming an entertaining show for me.

Finally my officer drove up in a car, parked it in front of the station, got out, called others over and opened up the hood. They gathered around to look at the car.

I couldn't overhear all that was said, but I caught a few remarks: "You put water in here? ... Well, that's where the guy at the service station said to put it." And they all worked at something under the hood.

This had gone on for more than half an hour by this time, and I was enjoying it, though I really could sympathize with their predicament. I know what it's like to go out every morning not knowing whether the car will start or whether it had died again during the night.

But through it all they had maintained a good sense of humor. Well, a relatively good sense of humor. Certainly better than I would have done. I've had more than enough frustrating experiences with these &?!$ computer terminals at the office on some days, and it isn't always a laughing matter.

Then another officer drove up in front of the station, left his car running in front of where I was sitting and got out to see what the others were doing. In a short time he came back to his car to get something out to help work on the other cars.

He looked at me and pointed to his car, still idling smoothly. "That's a take-home vehicle, and it's still running!"

I just smiled.

U.S. Attorney: will probe case that led to conviction of Odessa politicians

ODESSA, Texas (AP) — The U.S. Attorney's Office will request a U.S. Department of Justice investigation into government handling of an arson-conspiracy case that led to the convictions of two Odessa politicians.

Helen Eversberg, U.S. attorney for the Western District of Texas, said Wednesday the investigation "will clear up any matters that may be in question" regarding the Sept. 21 convictions of Ector County Commissioner Willie Hammond Jr. and former Odessa City Councilman Keith Weddel.

In his sentencing of Hammond and Weddel Monday, Midland U.S.

District Judge Lucius Bunton said "this case has always had political overtones."

The judge charged that the government "cut corners" in order to secure convictions.

The case "has disrupted Odessa city government, the police department and the Odessa Fire Department," Bunton said. The federal government spent about $1 million to secure the convictions, he said.

Hammond, 44, Wednesday blamed his conviction on a political conspiracy, but he refused to name the alleged conspirators he claims are "almighty powerful as far as getting the (U.S.) Justice Department to do their dirty work."

Bunton sentenced Hammond to four concurrent five-year probated prison terms stemming from the commissioner's Sept. 21 El Paso conviction of two arson conspiracy and perjury.

The judge stipulated that Hammond serve a six-month prison term for one of the two perjury convictions and assessed the commissioner a $10,000 fine.

Weddel, 54, also was sentenced Monday to two concurrent five-year probated prison terms and fined $20,000. Weddel was tried jointly with Hammond and convicted of arson conspiracy.

The county commissioner called the pending probe "great" and "needed."

"It probably should have been done sometime back," Weddel said.

Although Weddel charged after sentencing that "the government used falsified financial records and trick photography," Bunton denied defense motions for new trials for the two men.

Eversberg, in San Antonio on Wednesday, denied "any personal knowledge ... that there was any impropriety in the case."

"But let me say that I take very seriously the comments the judge has made on the record in this case," she told the Odessa American.

Both Weddel and Hammond said they will appeal their cases.

Guards, deputies accused of improprieties

HOUSTON (AP) — An investigation indicates "a certain amount of validity" to allegations that a former Harris County jail inmate exposed to the AIDS virus had sexual relations with several guards and deputies, Sheriff Johnny Klevenhagen says.

One deputy who refused to cooperate in the investigation resigned Wednesday, Klevenhagen said. At least two other deputies are under investigation, Klevenhagen said, but the inquiry is far from complete.

"The more they (deputies) keep talking, the bigger it's getting," the sheriff said.

He refused to identify the deputies or the former inmate, all male, involved in the investigation.

Jail officials said blood tests indicate the former inmate has been exposed to a virus that causes AIDS, which destroys the body's immune system, leaving it helpless against disease and infection. People exposed to the AIDS virus do not always develop the deadly syndrome.

Klevenhagen said he learned of the allegations last week after an unidentified person at the jail claimed a former inmate had "improprieties" with several jail guards and deputies, Klevenhagen said. The sheriff ordered an internal investigation.

"I will not tolerate actions such as this by the staff of this department," he said.

The former inmate signed a sworn statement and took a polygraph test and "now we're checking the allegations that he gave about our staff members," Klevenhagen said.

"Internal affairs has determined there is a certain amount of validity to it," he said.

An official close to the investigation told the Houston Post that the former inmate, who was brought back from the state prison to Harris County on a bench warrant, claims he performed oral sex on deputies in exchange for "friendliness."

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Oregonians send message on taxes

Opponents of President Reagan's tax reform proposals continue to claim the nation isn't as interested in tax reform as it is in reducing the federal deficit—even if that means increasing taxes. On the local level, however, holding the line on taxes continues to be very much a part of the nation's fabric.

Last month, Oregon voters were asked to approve—for the 7th time since 1933—the creation of a statewide sales tax as part of what the state's leading politicians were calling "tax reform."

The result? And overwhelming defeat. The tax was beaten by a ratio of 4-1—even through it had the support of the governor, two former governors, the two leading aspirants for governor in 1986, all elected statewide officeholders, the legislative leadership, most mayors, city and county commissioners, school board members and 16 of the state's newspapers.

What did we learn, besides the fact that Oregonians have a healthy distrust of their top politicians? That the vast majority of people can unmask a tax increase disguised as tax reform—and, if given the option, won't stand for it.

Congress isn't likely to put Reagan's—or any—tax reform proposal up for a national referendum, but those congressmen who think a tax increase is in order might be well-advised to consider carefully what happened in Oregon.

Granted, the Oregon proposal, while billed as tax reform, had little to do with reform.

Was it just a reactionary vote against a sales tax? Certainly not. Oregonians seemed just as dead set against the property tax. On the same day, voters statewide defeated 35 to 45 school-levy propositions—even through, according to Oregon Superintendent of Public Instruction Verne Duncan, September elections usually result in 80-percent approval of school levies.

That's pretty dramatic evidence that anti-tax sentiment, which got such dramatic play with California's Proposition 13 in 1978, is still alive and kicking in the United States.

It seems that Oregon voters sent a pretty clear message to their politicians, not to come back with another tax increase in disguise, but with honest reform in the way the state's government and school system are financed. That's the kind of message President Reagan has been trying to get across to Congress.

Is anybody listening?

Government and charity

How do free men cope with disaster when it strikes? We've had some recent disasters and we've had a good opportunity to observe. Actually, the reason I'm asking the question comes in response to a question asked on one of the TV networks, to wit: "Do private citizens have any business trying to deal with problems of this kind?" The query wasn't put forth in precisely those words but the idea has been conveyed.

I think the network was raising some doubts about the advisability of certain country and western music stars, normally operating out of Nashville, who decided that they'd like to raise money to help the farmers of America. I see nothing wrong with this. No one got hurt and some people may get an assist.

Personally, I'd like to see a different question asked. How about: "Does government have any business trying to deal with problems of this kind?"

I'm thinking specifically of the stories that American heavy equipment and American experts were on hand in Mexico City shortly after the twin El Grandes. According to reports, very little of this proffered help was used although it was finally allowed to enter Mexico many hours after the second quake. Apparently the pride of the Mexican government had to be protected, and the pride of the American government would not permit Americans to do what they wanted to do unless the non-imperiled were happy about it first. Politicians protect each other. Let none of them ever lose face! But who protects the injured citizens? Apparently other private citizens.

Who let the government into this arena anyhow? I think all questions of charity belong to people not to politicians. Indeed, government has been playing this game so long now that supposedly reasonable people are asking why private persons should have anything to do with charitable activities any longer? Indeed!

According to the history books, when the great earthquake and fire hit San Francisco before this century was a decade old, government made no attempt to pay for any of the damage. After all, the money in the hands of government was earmarked for things the taxpayers wanted, and that trust was sacred!

One might suppose that there was some difficulty in finding the necessary funds. According to the accounts I have read, in three days enough money had been gathered for San Francisco relief to re-build the city and pay for all the damage. And not one dime from taxpayers.

What has happened to us?

It appears we have forgotten what it means to be free. Or possibly we have been taxed and regulated to the place where we no longer care. If the government is going to pay all our expenses and assume responsibility for us, then we are slaves to the government, dutifully turning over our earnings and letting the IRS decide how much or how little we get to keep privately since "big daddy" owns whatever we produce.

I'm thinking of the numerous other disasters we have had to face and how the government is raising taxes and betting all of us with each and every problem. Do you suppose that in the end collectivism is going to come up wanting?

In the final analysis, if there's a real problem we call the Red Cross, a private organization. If there's real hunger we call for the Salvation Army and the Good Will Agencies, and the various soup kitchens provided by innumerable churches and religious orders.

Who said the government ought to be in the charity business? This would be an excellent place for them to begin the process of getting off our backs.

Today in History

By The Associated Press

Today is Thursday, October 17th, the 290th day of 1985. There are 75 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On October 17, 1777, British forces under General John Burgoyne surrendered to American troops in Saratoga, New York, in what was a turning point of the Revolutionary War.

On this date: Ten years ago: New York City escaped default by hours when the teachers' union agreed to furnish $150 million for its pension system for the city's immediate borrowing needs.

Five years ago: In a speech to the U.N. Security Council, Iranian Prime Minister Mohammed Ali Rajai accused the United States of aiding Iraq in its war with Iran.

One year ago: New York Congressman Thomas J. Downey, D-N.Y., called for a congressional probe following an Associated Press report that the CIA had provided a manual to Nicaraguan rebels that spoke of the "selective use of violence."

Lewis Grizzard

It's not the easy way out

Lewis Grizzard is recovering nicely from heart surgery, and he's threatening to resume writing his column soon. Until he does, he's asked us to share with you excerpts from his popular book, "Don't Sit Under the Grits Tree With Anyone Else But Me."

We aren't, well, close, but we've had a few high times together, enough to keep us reminiscing for a couple of hours at least before we have to start telling the same stories over again.

So I was shocked when I heard the news. This man, a young man, put a .38 caliber pistol to his head. And pulled the trigger.

Say you are just trying to get somebody's attention or sympathy. You take a few pills and wind up getting your stomach pumped out in the hospital.

I'm no shrink, but I know that if you put a pistol to your head and pull the trigger, you are serious about leaving us.

It's like the man's attorney said later: "Imagine his surprise when he woke up and found out he wasn't in the Promised Land after all. He was right back here with the rest of us."

Yeah, he lived. Barely. They were already talking about where to send the remains.

I went to see him in the hospital the other night. I'm not going to mention his name. He's had enough publicity in his life already, and there are two children who carry his name.

"You look awful," I said to him. "Can you believe this?" he laughed. His spirits were surprisingly high. "The last thing in the world I try to do, and I lose it up."

He spared no details. I already knew about his divorce. Then he ran afoul of the law. Nothing big-time, but enough to bring the heat close enough to feel it.

Then there was the lady. Stop me if you've heard this one before.

"I thought she was really special," he said. "They've got that way of fooling us sometimes," I said.

"I just fell apart," he said. "All I could think of was I wanted out. I wanted my ticket punched."

"So what did you do, uh, wrong?" I asked. He held a finger of his right hand to his head and explained to me what the doctors had explained to him.

"They said I held the gun at an angle, so the bullet went through my right eye and out above my left eye. They said most people who shoot themselves in the head hold the gun straight, and it blows their brains out."

Above his left eye was the hole where the bullet left his head. He has lost his right eye. I made some crack about women thinking eye patches are sexy. He is lucky he isn't blind.

I had to ask. I had to ask what it felt like to nearly die. You've read all those stories of what people saw and felt before they miraculously escaped death's clutches.

"I don't remember anything," he said. "There was a thud in my head after I pulled the trigger, and then, two days later, I woke up and I didn't know if I was in heaven or hell. I just knew I had an awful headache and there were tubes all over me."

There was something else I had to ask. I wanted to know if he was happy he had missed the obit page after all his efforts to make it there.

"I tried to get out, and I didn't make it," he answered.

He is no manner of a poet, and I had never seen sensitivity in him before. But he had something he wanted me to read. On a yellow sheet he had scribbled out the following words:

"I am an incurable romantic. I believe in hopes, dreams, and decency. I believe in love, tenderness, kindness, and family. I believe in mankind."

"But I must never let my happiness depend on another person's thoughts, whims, or demands. Nor can I forget the value of honesty, the harshness of times of reality, and warmth of life itself, or the need for love."

Nice thoughts. I got up to leave.

"If you write something in the paper about this," said the man, "will you do me one favor?"

"Sure. What?"

"Tell anybody who's thinking of doing what I did not to do it. It's not the easy way out after all."

Liberals support Gorbachev proposals

By William A. Rusher

I swear, if I were one of President Reagan's liberal opponents, I would try a great deal harder than they are doing to put a little daylight between Mikhail Gorbachev's position on arms negotiations and my own.

Yet here they are, from Walter Mondale and former U.S. arms negotiators Gerard Smith (SALT I) and Paul Warnke (SALT II) to Robert Kleiman of The New York Times' editorial board and Flora Lewis of its Op Ed page, all lined up behind Gorbachev's rumored proposal like a bunch of iron filings in the presence of a powerful magnet.

Mr. Reagan's space defense initiative is without question the most innovative and challenging idea for breaking out of the "mutual assured destruction" stalemate that anyone has proposed in 25 years. From the liberals' standpoint, it was sheer rotten luck that Reagan came up with it before they did. But he did, thereby leaving them to argue — to their great discomfort — for the very strategy of deterrence through "mutual assured destruction" that they and their brethren on the further left have been inveighing against for decades.

The Soviet bosses oppose S.D.I. for better reasons. They have spent huge sums on nuclear missiles, and their country's very status as a superpower depends in large part on the continued significance of the threat those missiles pose. (Certainly the number of cars or phones or toilets per capita in the Soviet Union wouldn't establish it.) They have also forehandedly conducted a very extensive program of research into possible satellite defenses against nuclear missiles. But the news that President Reagan wants the United States to do likewise dismays them.

because the development and deployment of such a defense would be a further heavy strain on their already overburdened economy — and because the competition would take place in a field (space technology) where the United States is well ahead and likely to remain ahead. In addition, of course, the men in the Kremlin feel none of the domestic pressures against nuclear warfare that rain down incessantly on all Western political leaders.

Small wonder, then, that the Soviet propaganda machine launched a heavy barrage against Mr. Reagan's S.D.I. proposal as soon as he made it, in March 1983. And now, as the Nov. 19 Geneva summit approaches, communist boss Gorbachev has begun tossing out hints that, in return for barring all work on S.D.I. except research (the cessation of which would be unverifiable anyway), he might consent to "radical" reductions in the number of nuclear missiles retained by the superpowers.

Our hot-eyed liberals didn't even wait for his actual proposals. Mondale promptly called on Mr. Reagan to use S.D.I. simply as a "bargaining chip" at Geneva. Smith and Warnke endorsed the trade-off hinted at by Gorbachev as containing "the makings of an agreement of historic proportions."

It was Ms. Lewis, however, who phrased the proposed capitulation most cleverly. Observing, correctly, that it is futile to speculate whether Gorbachev is really ready to make serious reductions in nuclear arms in return for a ban on S.D.I., she then suggested that "there is an easy, straightforward test. It is to take him up on his hints." In other words, give him exactly what he is asking for, to see if he'll take it.

Heckler defends decision

WASHINGTON (AP) — Health and Human Services Secretary Margaret M. Heckler, defending her decision to prohibit a task force on black health problems from recommending new spending, says decades of government programs already had been proven ineffective.

Mrs. Heckler on Wednesday released the task force report, which concluded that at least 60,000 minority Americans die prematurely each year.

She said about 80 percent of the early deaths among blacks and other minorities result from cancer, heart disease and stroke, alcohol and drug abuse, diabetes, infant mortality, accidents or murder. Many of those deaths — perhaps most of them — could be prevented by knowledge and change in personal habits, she said.

Mrs. Heckler praised the task force's recommendations for increased effort aimed at educating blacks and other minorities, but said better use of existing funds can help close the health gap between whites and minorities.

Under questioning, she said the task force was told when it was formed last year that its final report could not include recommendations for major new spending programs.

At a news conference and in a broadcast interview later Wednesday, Mrs. Heckler said decades of government spending have failed to close the health gap between blacks and whites, and there is no reason to think simply spending more will do a better job.

"Since the gap has always existed and the government has always funded programs for minorities as well as for the general population, money alone was not the answer to the problem," she said on the PBS-TV show, "The MacNeil-Lehrer Newshour."

She said the decision barring new spending resulted from political realities — the chance of starting a new program.

Peres, Reagan confer on Mideast

WASHINGTON (AP) — Israeli Prime Minister Shimon Peres is exploring with President Reagan and other U.S. officials prospects for opening peace talks on the Middle East, where violence is on the rise.

The Israeli leader, describing himself as "a friend who comes to visit friends," said he would survey opportunities for peace talks in his meetings here with Reagan, Secretary of State George P. Shultz, Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger and members of Congress.

But U.S. officials acknowledged hopes had been dimmed by the seizure of the Italian cruise ship Achille Lauro by Palestinian gunmen last week, apparently in a plot for an attack in the Israeli city of Ashdod.

Peres said on the top of his agenda for the three-day visit starting today was finding "ways and means to remove the threat of terrorism from innocent people and from the momentum" to the bargaining table. "I pray wholeheartedly that we shall find the opening needed to secure a better future for all of us," Peres said on his arrival Wednesday.

He immediately ruled out a Soviet role in negotiations so long as Moscow did not restore diplomatic ties with Israel. The plan sponsored by King Hussein of Jordan and Yasser Arafat, chairman of the Palestine Liberation Organization, calls for an international conference including the Soviet Union.

"As long as the Soviets do not have relations with Israel," Peres said, "I don't see any reason to have them participate in any possible role in making peace in the Middle East."

Peres arrived here from Vienna on the crest of a rise in already good U.S.-Israeli relations.

"There are no states like ours, so similar in spirit despite differences in size and history," the Israeli leader said. "There are no states like ours which are such staunch partners in ... our desire for world peace and our concern for the rights and well-being of the individual."

Venue change proposed for Ruiz robbery retrial

AUSTIN (AP) — The David Ruiz robbery case should be retried some place other than Austin, according to the judge who ordered a mistrial on Tuesday.

State District Judge C.C. "Kit" Cooke on Wednesday called for arguments on Oct. 28 concerning his proposal the trial be moved to another county.

"I just think there would be less problems if we try it somewhere else," Cooke told state and defense attorneys.

Cooke, who ordered a mistrial after hearing two weeks of evidence and testimony, said he was concerned about security problems and about the extensive news coverage given Ruiz's court appearances.

"I am giving attorneys notice that I am considering a change of venue and will hear their arguments on Oct. 28," Cooke said. "If I decide not to move the trial, we will begin the retrial that afternoon."

Cooke said he had talked with judges in other counties but had made no decision which county might be chosen.

The judge said he might consider a defense motion to continue the trial until Nov. 18, if the trial is moved.

"We do not want the trial moved out of Austin," Bob Looney, chief counsel for Ruiz, told reporters afterwards. "We think he has a right to be tried where he lives."

"We think this defendant can get a fair trial in any place in Texas, and that includes Austin," said Terry Keel, an assistant Travis County district attorney.

Ruiz, the main plaintiff in the federal court lawsuit that brought on court-ordered reforms in the Texas prison system, was arrested September 1984 and charged with four counts of aggravated robbery and one of rape. He was being tried only on the robbery counts.

After a bailiff testified he believed one of the jurors had been drinking, Looney asked for the mistrial saying he did not want a juror on the case "who has been drinking because a juror is not only supposed to be able to listen but be capable of understanding."

Looney told reporters Wednesday there is no law against a juror drinking during a lunch recess "but if he is inebriated, that is another thing."

"This just moves the trial back about two weeks," said Brian Bishop, an assistant district attorney. "Apparently the judge felt that the defendant could not get a fair trial."

Looney had made numerous other efforts to get a mistrial, including protests about the amount of security inside and outside the courtroom.

Spectators and attorneys had to walk through a metal detection device to get in the courtroom. Three armed uniformed officers escorted Ruiz back and forth from the jail, with one of them sitting close to him in the courtroom.

Looney testified Wednesday that Ruiz had no money to pay his attorneys or pay for a transcript of the proceedings before the mistrial, estimated to cost about $5,000.

One man injured on oil rig fire

SOMERSET, Texas (AP) — A 59-year-old man was treated and released for burns he suffered Wednesday in an oil rig fire here, officials said.

The victim, Arthur Buch, suffered burns on his face and arms, said a spokeswoman at Methodist Hospital in San Antonio.

Somerset and Lytle volunteer fire departments extinguished the blaze shortly after it broke out, said Bexar County Fire Marshal Carl Mixon.

Buch was working for Alamo Well Services Inc. when a pocket of gas ignited at an oil well, Mixon said.

SINGING HELP — Lee Kweller, 13, works at his computer with the help of Dr. John Eulenborg, left, in his Pittsburgh, Pa., apartment Wednesday. Kweller suffers from cerebral palsy and cannot speak, but with the help of a voice synthesizer attached to the computer, he can sing and talk in English and Hebrew. (AP Laserphoto)

Young boy to talk through computer at his bar mitzvah

PITTSBURGH (AP) — When Lee Kweller declares "today I am a man" at his bar mitzvah next month, the cerebral palsy victim will use a computer's voice to recite in English and Hebrew for the Jewish rite of passage.

"Other boys with cerebral palsy had two choices," said the system's designer, John Eulenborg. "Either they don't have a bar mitzvah, or they do it in some way that is not traditional."

The device is the first portable computer programmed to speak Hebrew and chant in the traditional Jewish manner. Eulenborg, head of Michigan State University's Artificial Language Laboratory, said Wednesday.

"This will allow him to sing and carry out the tradition of chanting which he feels is important and which the Jewish tradition says is important."

Kweller, who usually communicates in sign language, chose what sounds like a 13-year-old voice from several Eulenborg programmed. The computer is told what to say through a typewriter-like keyboard.

He will recite a Bible reading from Prophets called the haftarah; five blessings; a psalm; a hymn and a speech he wrote for the ceremony.

"I have always been in search of a voice for Lee," said his mother, Beverly Morrow of Pittsburgh. She said other devices he used sounded artificial and other children had trouble understanding him in school.

Although all the speeches for the bar mitzvah will be stored in the computer, Kweller will be able to control pauses, loudness and speaking rate.

Government gives jobless workers training priority

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Two thousand family breadwinners left homeless and jobless by September's earthquakes will begin training today for new jobs, while others will be put to work rebuilding Mexico City, an emergency employment commission announced.

An additional 3,000 workers will be notified this week of vacancies in civil service jobs around the country, under a 6-point employment program published Wednesday in the government newspaper El Nacional.

Meanwhile, the head of the 4-million-member Confederation of Mexican Workers said the rank and file would donate two days' salary a year for as long as necessary to repair damage in the capital.

Union chief Fidel Velazquez also called on the federal government, with which his organization is closely affiliated, to reduce the legal work week to 40 hours from the current 48 hours over six days. The shorter work week would spread employment more Mexicans, he said.

An unknown number of jobs was lost when powerful earthquakes struck the city Sept. 19 and 20, toppling homes, hotels, office buildings and factories. The government said 4,600 people died but has not revised that figure since Sept. 26, and other sources put the toll at over 8,000.

The government's new Employment Coordinating Committee told President Miguel de la Madrid it would determine by mid-November the number of jobs that disappeared in the quakes.

The committee's program gives preference to heads of households in matching workers with jobs or training them for new employment.

Local authorities will be instructed to hire homeless people wherever possible in building housing, schools and public buildings, the committee said. Approximately 1,500 buildings were destroyed in the quakes, according to government estimates.

U.S. military abroad coached in how to conceal their ID from terrorists

WASHINGTON (AP) — From covering their service tattoos to varying their off-duty gathering places, members of the armed forces are being advised on ways to reduce their chances of falling victim to terrorism abroad.

What officers describe as a renewed emphasis on personal and base security comes after a summer in which four Marine embassy guards were gunned down at a sidewalk cafe in El Salvador, Navy diver Robert Stethem was singled out for killing by the hijackers of TWA jetliner in Beirut and two people died in a car-bombing at the Rhein-Main Air Base in West Germany.

The security tips are described as generally of the common-sense variety.

Elaine Henrion, an Army spokeswoman, said soldiers about to be posted abroad in terrorism-prone areas "are counseled a little bit" about making themselves less conspicuous in their appearance and behavior.

Army Lt. Col. Arnold Williams, a public affairs specialist on terrorism for the Defense Department, said this involves such cautions as avoiding wearing "cowboy hats with feathers in the band and belt buckles the size of pie plates" while off-duty and not congregating "in a particular place habitually."

Capt. Jim O'Brien said Air Force personnel are given a "local threat briefing" upon arriving at an overseas base. The service members then are expected to instruct their dependents on these precautions, he said.

Days after the attack at the Salvadoran cafe, Col. Walt Boomer, commander of the Marine Security Guard Battalion, urged embassy guards to forgo the close-shaven "high and tight" haircut many favor and grow their hair out to the permitted three-inch length.

Senate approves $28.1 billion farm, food bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate has endorsed a $28.1 billion farm and food bill for the coming year and now goes to work to iron out its differences with a less expensive House version.

Approved Wednesday on a 81-14 vote, the bill provides money for the 1986 fiscal year for farm subsidies, agricultural research and extension, conservation programs, food stamps and other nutrition programs, rural development funds and various Agriculture Department functions.

It also contains money to run the Food and Drug Administration and the Commodity Futures Trading Commission.

The Senate spending figure, while it appears to be far below the $36.4 billion approved earlier by the House, leaves out an estimated $9.4 billion that will be needed to maintain the Commodity Credit Corporation, the government entity which pays farm subsidies.

Instead of specifying an amount for the CCC, the Senate bill gives open-ended spending authority in an effort to prevent a recurrence of last July's funding crisis. At that time, the CCC ran out of money and had to suspend operations temporarily because supplemental funds could not be approved in time.

Anticipated bumper grain crops this year are likely to cause heavy loan forfeitures to the corporation, and that, coupled with other factors, makes it difficult to set a specific spending figure, the Appropriations Committee said in justifying the unusual "indefinite" spending.

Actual fiscal 1986 spending, if the CCC estimate were included, would be $37.4 billion.

"I am convinced that the bill represents fiscal restraint on the one hand, and will provide needed assistance for distressed farmers and for food assistance on the other," said Sen. Thad Cochran, R-Miss., chairman of the Appropriations agriculture subcommittee.

The spending levels "will permit (farmers) to work their way out of their current economic difficulty," Cochran said.

Overall spending in the bill is $185 million below last year's figure, Cochran said, adding that it contained a particularly painful 40 percent cut in rural housing money for the Farmers Home Administration.

The Senate rejected two attempts to cut the bill's spending levels. One, by Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., would have cut 4 percent from the measure across the board, a reduction of about $1.1 billion. That attempt lost on a 65-29 vote.

Another, by Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., would have eliminated $1.8 billion in spending for farm and rural credit and food stamps. Helms claimed the bill was over budget by that amount, but he lost, 68-27.

As it worked on the bill, the Senate adopted an amendment requiring the FDA to complete by June 1, 1986, a study on the safety of sulfites as food additives.

Sen. Albert Gore, D-Tenn., who proposed the amendment, said the chemicals have been linked to 21 deaths in people who are hypersensitive to it, and another 1 million Americans are at risk.

Among major items in the spending measure were $12.7 billion for food stamps, $4.1 billion for child nutrition programs, $1.5 billion for the Women, Infants and Children feeding program, $1.2 billion for agricultural research and extension, $314 million for animal and plant health and inspection services, $4.7 billion for farm lending through FmHA, $612 million for FmHA water and sewer and industrial development loans, $621 million for the Soil Conservation Service and $1.3 billion for the Food for Peace program.

Also included were $421 million for the FDA and $30 million for the CFTC, which regulates commodity futures trading.

Income gap widens between college, high school grads

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new Census Bureau study finds a sharp rise in recent years in the gap in incomes between those who earned a college sheepskin and those who have only a high school diploma.

The earnings differential had narrowed in the late 1960s and the 1970s, leading some to warn of a "glut" of college graduates and to question the value of that investment.

But the new report released Wednesday found that the "return" on college education is growing again.

"Contrary to most current opinion, the market for college graduates may be reviving," Census analysts Dave M. O'Neill and Peter Sepielli said in a report titled, "Education in the United States: 1940-1983."

One possible explanation, the analysts said, is that the flood of baby boomers — the out-sized generation born from 1946 to 1964 — depressed entry-level earnings in the job market for years, but now that "the baby-boom flood (has) started to recede," college graduates are commanding higher pay.

In 1958, the median income of the young college graduate was $5,970, compared with $4,688 for those who just went to high school. The college graduates were earning 1.27 times more.

That ratio fell as low as 1.21 in 1979, but since then it has climbed to 1.39.

TRAINLAND U.S.A. — An auto waits for a passenger train to pass in the mountain region of Washington state. You can see the caboose of another train already around the mountain. What looks real is a section of Leland "Red" Atwood's Trainland U.S.A., an electric train museum with more than 2,600 square feet of realistic dioramas depicting many of the regions of the United States with 25 trains continuously running over rivers, around mountains and through trainyards. (AP Laserphoto)

Model railroad attracts 15,000 annually to Atwood's basement

COLFAX, Iowa (AP) — More than 15,000 people visit Leland "Red" Atwood's basement each year, lured by the lonesome sound of train whistles in the night and the unmistakable odor of hot diesel oil.

Atwood, a farmer and seed salesman, said he got the idea of building "one gigantic train set" in 1976, but his basement was not big enough. So he built a bigger basement, and a new house, and opened Trainland U.S.A. in 1981.

Now, 15,000 to 20,000 people annually from every state and all over the world pay to see the 25 trains in Atwood's basement travel from sea to shining sea — in the space of about 2,600 square feet.

"I knew they'd come. There was never any doubt in my mind," said Atwood, a big, jolly man who enjoys dressing in T-shirts and a conductor's cap.

In the larger of two layouts, electric trains that look like diesels roll from New York to California, passing landmarks or characteristic scenes in each state, some activated by lighted buttons outside the glass-enclosed exhibits.

In the New York area, sights include the Statue of Liberty, a newsstand and a burning house. On a city street, a dog runs around a fire hydrant.

Trains chug through orange groves in Florida, and in Mississippi there is a working 8-by-8-inch drive-in movie screen. The trip to the West Coast ends with television studios and sun-bathers of California.

In the second display, old-fashioned steam engines come alive and travel through America's heartland, from a 1940s Iowa farm to a bread truck at a Wyoming cafe.

The sounds of trains blare through eight stereo speakers, and the unmistakable smell of burning diesel oil, used to lubricate the trains' moving parts, permeates the air.

All along the routes, scenes from growing up in America are played out.

"I love it. It was the best place I've ever been," 7-year-old Heather Owens, of Lawson, Mo., declared on a recent visit. "You could push buttons and see all the different trains moving."

In Arizona a boy is sneaking into a circus tent, in Kansas women are hanging out clothes to dry, in San Francisco a church wedding is taking place, and in Oregon a girl is having car trouble.

Nighttime falls when "engineer" Lloyd Milbourn pulls a switch, dimming overhead lights and bringing to life headlights, house lights, street lights, cabin lights in trains — 600 lights in all.

The exhibit contains 35,000 hand-cut railroad ties, 4,000 feet of tracks and five miles of wiring, as well as 120 automatic switches, 200 buildings and thousands of trees, vehicles and people.

Asian elephant at home on Northeast Texas farm

By DANA DURHAM
Salphar Springs News-Telegram

YANTIS, Texas (AP) — Cows are not an unusual sight in Northeast Texas — that is, unless you are driving on Farm to Market Road 2946 near Yantis where you'll see a 4,000-pound, solid-gray cow quietly grazing.

Her name is Dolly, and she's an Asian elephant from Sri Lanka.

Dolly is owned by Steve Gandy, a Dallasite who moved to the Yantis area about seven months ago.

Gandy and Dolly live on 40 acres of pasture, complete with a house for Gandy and several ponds for Dolly. Their home is located north of Hogansville in both Wood and Rains counties.

"She's in elephant heaven here. The place is ideal," Gandy said.

Gandy purchased the elephant from the Ford Brothers Circus in Conroe last April, shortly after he moved to the area.

"My partner, Doug Cook, called me up and asked if I would be interested in buying an elephant," he said.

"Any trained or broken Asian elephant will usually sell for about $50,000, and a baby would probably run $30,000," Gandy said.

Dolly is enclosed in a pasture surrounded by a barbed wire fence.

"She's never even gone near any of the barbed wire. She could push a tree over if she wanted to, but she stays in her own area and doesn't wander off," Gandy said.

Dolly is "only" 23 years old, he said. Elephants can live from 70 to 80 years in captivity.

But Dolly is especially valuable to Gandy in that she is one of an endangered species, he said. Asian elephants are no longer allowed admittance into the United States, he said.

"No one in the U.S. has a baby Asian elephant."

Elephants do not reach breeding age until about 25. Gandy has arranged to breed Dolly with one of the male Asian elephants at the Fort Worth Zoo in a few years.

However, he plans to keep Dolly at home during her two-year gestation period, "working, but being real careful," he added.

At about 8 feet in height, Dolly is "very small for an elephant. A good-sized Asian elephant will weigh about 8,000 pounds and will stand 9 to 10 feet tall," Gandy said.

Elephants will usually have one last period of growth at about Dolly's age, Gandy says, and he expects Dolly to grow more soon.

At her present size she eats five pounds of mule feed and 150 pounds of hay each day.

"She loves watermelons, cantaloup and all kinds of fruits, too. And she'll kill for peanuts," he said, telling the story of how Dolly once found bags of peanuts in the garage and "spilled them all over the place."

Dolly already knew many tricks from her circus life. But by using peanuts as rewards, Gandy taught Dolly a few tricks of his own, including playing the harmonica.

"Once they learn the tricks, they never forget them. They learn very quickly, and they have an incredible memory," he said.

Dolly and Gandy usually work on the weekends and rest during the week at home. Dolly does mostly promotional work by appearing at various events, making television commercials and posing for print advertisements in both action and still shootings.

"Dolly will wear any kind of costume. She has worn several different outfits in the past," he said.

Gandy is notified of jobs for Dolly through her agent, Shere Hickock of Animal Trackers in Dallas.

"The animal agency handles the business end. I don't do much in that area," Gandy said.

The agency asks $350 an hour for Dolly's services with a two-hour minimum, or $1,000 a day.

"Of course, these rates are negotiable. It's so expensive to transport her that we have to charge a pretty good amount," he said.

Gandy said he loads Dolly in the back of a bob-tail truck, or a six-ton van, when they have to travel. Dolly does not mind traveling; she just has to be walked periodically if she is riding more than eight hours, Gandy said.

Gandy admits that some of the neighbors and area residents were "skeptical" about Dolly. But the reception has overall been favorable, he said.

"A lot of people stop to look at her, and I'll sometimes go out and introduce her to them."

Gandy said some passers-by take pictures of Dolly. He said he has even seen people drive into the ditches because they were apparently watching Dolly instead of the road.

Gandy's family loves Dolly.

"They come out all the time. All the nieces and nephews come over and ride her; they like to feed her fruit and stuff. She is very gentle, and she loves kids," he said.

But Gandy said that some people are afraid of elephants, even though elephants usually mean no harm to people.

Mr. Gatti's is proud to introduce

Temporaries make it a career

NEW YORK (AP) — Whether it's to tide them over until the next acting assignment, give them something to do in retirement or provide the freedom to take time off to spend with their children, workers who have held full-time jobs are switching to a life as permanent temporary employees, industry officials report.

"Many people who either want to, or have to, be a part of the work force are opting for career temporary positions," said Diane Ford, national field manager for Dunhill Personnel System, a major network of recruiting specialists. "They have the option of working as much as 40 hours per week or less if they so desire."

"The number of such people, both men and women, has skyrocketed, and with businesses gearing up for the Christmas season, full-time temps will be needed more than ever," she added.

Carolyn Hudson, Albuquerque, N.M., has been a permanent temp for one year, following a nine-year stint as a full-time secretary. She has no plans to return to full-time work, saying the full-time temp concept fits her lifestyle.

"I quit my full-time job to spend more time with my son," said Ms. Hudson. "Now I can work three days a week and have time for my bowling league and volunteer work at my son's school library."

Christina Keefe, Boston, is an actress who has found being a permanent temp gives her the flexibility to come and go between auditions and shows.

"I have done everything as a temp, from legal work to real estate development," said Ms. Keefe, who took last summer off to study acting in London. "There is security in temping. You don't have to go back the next day if you don't like the job. You don't have to take any abuse."

Martha Monday, Knoxville, Tenn., retired after 30 years with General Electric. She turned to temporary work to relieve boredom.

"The temp job I have now, as an executive secretary, I have had for the last five months," said Ms. Monday. "But, when I want to take off, I take off."

Vicki Tollinger, Boise, Idaho, had no training when, four years ago, she decided to go to work. She started out as a receptionist and has gone on to do everything from legal work to word processing.

"Employers appreciate temps more than full-time workers," said Ms. Tollinger. "They are in a bind, and you are there to help them out. Another wonderful thing about temping is that you see so many companies. If the day comes when I want a full-time job, I will have a good idea where I want to work."

Uniforce Temporary Services' recent national survey of temporary employment trends indicated that word processing skills are of major importance in terms of career opportunities and chance for higher pay.

Word processing and data entry temporaries made up the largest specialty group of those surveyed, exceeding secretaries and typists. And 85 percent of them cited on-the-job experience as more valuable and effective than classroom training.

More than a third of the respondents said they learned basic word processing skills working as temps, in contrast to 28 percent who learned the skills at a word processing school and 25 percent who learned basic word processing as a permanent employee.

"It is obvious that increased office automation is creating a huge demand for experienced word processors," said John Fanning, president of Uniforce. "We foresee the percentage of word processing temps doubling every year during this decade."

Of those responding to the study, nearly 10 percent are over 50, and Fanning said he expected this figure to increase by 50 percent annually as more people take early retirement.

"The rising number of older temporaries also reflects the changing demographics of the workforce, with the 18-24 age group expected to decrease by 14 percent during this decade," he said. "Increased numbers of early retirees will join the temp workforce and make important contributions to productivity through their years of experience and demonstrated adherence to the work ethic."

Dear Abby

Dad's hearing is dissonant chord in family's harmony

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1985 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: My problem is my dad, who is 65. He's not ashamed to wear bifocals, but he refuses to admit he can't hear.

Yesterday, the telephone rang and it was only 10 feet away, and he didn't even hear it! Worse yet, he drives a car and can't hear the siren of an ambulance or fire engine until it's practically on top of him.

When my brothers and I try to talk to him about this, he gets belligerent and insists there is nothing wrong with his hearing and we should mind our own business! Our mother has given up. She just repeats everything two and three times and yells at him.

If older people aren't ashamed to wear glasses, why are they ashamed to wear a hearing aid?
A LOVING DAUGHTER

DEAR DAUGHTER: That's a good question, especially since some of the newer-model hearing aids are practically invisible.

Nagging will only make your father more defensive and irritable, but don't give up trying to help him. Ask his physician to insist on a hearing test as part of his next physical. My mail tells me that a surprising number of people who suffer a hearing loss turn a deaf ear to those who try to help them. Vanity? Insanity!

DEAR ABBY: I have been in love with this man for five years. I'm 40 and he's 42. Three years ago he moved in with me. I've always been a good Christian, and it bothers me to know that I am living in sin. He's divorced. His wife left him for another man, which really tore him up. I was a 35-year-old virgin when we met. I never knew what love was until he came along.

He is a good and faithful man, but he refuses to marry me until he is sure he loves me. Abby, I am not dumb. I realize he may not be sure for another five years and I should send him packing, but I keep hoping he will marry me. He has a good job and no responsibilities, so I can't understand why he won't marry me now.

It was his idea for me to write to you about this problem. What do you say?

HAD ENOUGH IN INDIANA

DEAR HAD ENOUGH: I say you've had more than enough. Give him three months to make up his mind, and if he still isn't sure, send him packing and get on with your life.

DEAR ABBY: About readers who hate your puns and those who love them: So far the score is 10,000,001 to 4 in your favor.

I don't believe a pun is the lowest form of humor. It could be verse.

Hats top fall's fashion elegance

By FLORENCE DE SANTIS

To emphasize the return to elegance, Paris couturier Karl Lagerfeld this season created a little bumper hat of red satin with a chair-back shape at the rear and a little pleated skirt. It looked like a boudoir chair but it was also a sensational cocktail hat that said the head must be well-furnished this fall.

Says American designer Frank Olive, "The hat is the most personal statement of your wardrobe. Every designer with any hint of the 'raj' look in the collections wanted me to make elegant turbans for the clothes. They weren't complete without the right head - accent."

The turban is certainly one of the big fall headwear looks. Olive does them in the crossover wrapped Hindu style, using ever material from leather to gold lame. The leather ones are often in two colors, such as his black and white version with matching gauntlet gloves.

In fact, Frank Olive is supplying more than headgear this season. To put together the total look, he is showing fur scarves and a selection of gloves. For his dashing velour cloche trimmed with a side-placed swirl of rhinestones, he does a rhinestone-trimmed glove and a silver fox fling to snuggle around the face.

The elegant look this fall, whether of Indian or 18th century inspiration, involves a lot of jewelry, and hat styles tend to be brimless or turned up, off the face. Richard Serbin takes the Venetian doge's cap with its forward peak, makes it in paisley brocade and adds a blue rhinestone pin at the front and a golden tassel at the peak. The hat sits well on the head, allowing the addition of elaborately jeweled chandelier earrings.

Hat height is attained with variations on the pillbox theme, and the pillbox now is a high, boxy version, worn straight across the brows. Richard Serbin wraps it in green and navy striped silk and jewels it with a golden heraldic crest pin with pearl drops.

The high boxy look also comes as the shako. One, again made by Frank Olive, is plain felt, high and slanted on one side. It's designed to be worn with coats in dramatic patterns such as Adele Simpson's fuchsia and navy plaid. David's shako in tiger print rabbit fur is a good ornamental but unimposed day hat that can go dressy with the addition of your own pin.

The shako easily suggests the Oriental fez, which can be worn untrimmed, with the original tassel or in newly jeweled versions. Whitthall & Schon pleat an asymmetric band of black silk across their red fez, with a jeweled shield placed dead-center front.

TURBANS COME from fall's Indian-inspired elegance. Frank Olive uses black and white leather for his criss-cross Hindu style and adds matching gauntlet gloves.

Wool fabric is now worn all year 'round

NEW YORK (AP) — Wool, used by prehistoric man to keep warm, is being used by modern man to keep cool also. And the oldest fabric in human history is creating today's latest fashions, adds Mike Goldsmith of the Wool Bureau Inc.

The bureau is the U.S. branch of the International Wool Secretariat, which is involved in fashion forecasting and influencing styling trends. It develops and tests new wool products and processes to help make the fabric popular in warm as well as cool weather.

"Early woolen fabrics were heavy, warm and rough in texture," said Goldsmith. "Although Arabs did swathe themselves in wool caftans to protect themselves from the sun, most people wore wool to keep warm. This is no longer the case."

Wool apparel has made great strides since 4000 B.C., when Babylonians first wove wool garments for trade or when Romans in 45 A.D. wore wool togas, Goldsmith points out.

Refinements in technology have created a wide variety of wool fabrics that have revolutionized both men and women's wear, he said, citing the new worsted fabrics as lightweight, soft material that can be worn 10 months a year.

Current production methods have refined wool so that not only do the newest wool fabrics offer versatility in styling, but they are durable and soil resistant and comfortable when it is hot outside and air conditioned inside, Goldsmith says.

"The development of electronic knitting in the 20th century has made possible more design and styling flexibility in wool fabrics," Goldsmith notes. "Warmth is only one of wool's many qualities."

Wool, transformed numerous times since the Stone Age, is adjusting to modern technology so well that soon needles no longer will be used to produce knitwear, Goldsmith predicts.

"Laser knitting is still experimental, but it is definitely on the horizon," he said.

Venerable Netherlands tree nearing 400th year of life

LEIDEN, Netherlands (AP) — The yellow flowers cascading from the laburnum tree in Leiden University's Botanical Garden would have amazed Carolus Clusius. He planted it here 384 years ago.

The tree has blossomed without fail every spring since 1601, when Clusius, the garden's first director, planted the fledgling laburnum sprout along one of the garden's outer walls.

The venerable tree, which comes from the same legume family as a bean, is now about 33 feet high and is healthier than ever before, Clusius' present-day successor, Gerrit van Vliet, told The Associated Press.

"It's amazing how the old lady survived such a long time without major problems," he said of the tree commonly known to Dutchmen as "golden rain" and to science as Laburnum anagyroides Mediterraneum.

Its long and happy life is meticulously chronicled in the garden's yearly records, first compiled by Clusius. In 1594, he supervised the botanical garden's first plantings in a 102-by-132-foot plot, and wrote about his floral charges until his death in 1609.

The widely traveled Clusius is credited with compiling the first floral guides to Spain and Austria in the 16th century. His other claim to fame was introducing a Turkish flower here that was to become a Dutch national symbol: the tulip.

Although air pollution — the bane of botanical gardens — is relatively low in this medieval Dutch city due to the nearness of the North Sea, Van Vliet said other natural disasters constantly threaten the garden, one of Europe's oldest.

Consider the laburnum's neighbor, a tall, reddish beech tree dating back to 1820.

Its trunk and branches are now covered with burlap bandages soaked in a pesticide that Van Vliet hopes will destroy a persistent fungus threatening its life.

Over the 391 years of its existence, a large number of the garden's trees and flowers have fallen victim to other natural catastrophes ranging from the whitefly to windstorms, according to Van Vliet.

Not so the laburnum, which stands protected against the elements by the high wall, now part of an adjoining university building.

Clusius' garden was intended solely to supply the potions and medicaments of the Dutch medical profession.

Modern-day pharmaceuticals have put the botanical garden out of the medical profession, but it now supplies virtually all plant material used by the university's biology department.

Happy Birthday!

We love you, Ken, Kim & Matt

ANTI-AMERICAN CARTOONS — Cartoons denouncing the U.S. forcing down of an Egyptian airliner to capture four Palestinian ship hijackers appeared in the Egyptian press this week. The cartoon at upper right, for example, depicts a museum guide in the

Some of the commentary, however, has been conciliatory and suggested that Egypt may now be able to squeeze concessions from Washington.

Moussa Sabry, former editor of the state-owned al-Akhbar newspaper, wrote in a front-page column that Egypt may "forget and forgive" the action against the airliner if Reagan moves quickly on an Arab-Israeli peace plan.

America loses friends in Egypt

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — "No to America," screamed the red banner headline in an opposition newspaper. "No to Piracy, No to Hegemony, No to U.S. State Terrorism."

The headline in the Socialist Labor Party newspaper al-Shaab stood above a cartoon showing President Reagan, dressed as a pirate, standing on a flight of jet fighters lassing a dove of peace.

The U.S. interception of an Egyptian plane with four Palestinian hijackers on board, hailed in America as a victory over terrorism, has evoked bitterness and hostility in a country Washington values as an ally.

In the four days since U.S. F-14 jets forced the Egyptian plane to land in Sicily, militant students, mostly leftists and Moslem zealots, have burned U.S. and Israeli flags at Cairo University.

The downtown office of the Lawyers Syndicate, Egypt's bar association, is draped in banners denouncing the United States and Israel. The Journalist Syndicate, which represents the country's editors and reporters, has urged that U.S.-Egyptian military maneuvers be canceled and that the nation take other measures toward "self-reliance."

Egypt's state-controlled newspapers have featured the strongest anti-American cartoons and commentaries since the two nations restored diplomatic relations in 1974.

The headline in Tuesday's al-Ahram, the semi-official daily, demands a public apology from the United States for the aircraft's takeover last Thursday night. President Hosni Mubarak has made the same demand.

A cartoon in the daily al-Akhbar, Egypt's largest circulation newspaper, shows a tour guide pointing to three statues of uniformed men in the "Pentagon Museum."

The guide explains: "The first is Gen. Eisenhower, who defeated Nazism. The second is Gen. MacArthur, who brought Japan to its knees. And this is Field Marshal Reagan, who captured an Egyptian passenger plane."

In al-Ahram, a cartoonist depicted a proud Mubarak, head held high, stalking away in a huff as Reagan pursues him shouting: "I'm sorry, I'm sorry." To the side, a figure with a head of the world sings "It's too late. It's too late."

There are no public opinion surveys in Egypt, so it is impossible to measure the depth of anger, but the bitter mood is apparent.

"Our relations with the United States are now marked by coolness and strain," wrote al-Akhbar columnist Mustafa Amin, who spent nine years in prison under the late President Gamal Abdel Nasser as an "American spy."

Poor inventory management allowed abuses

DALLAS (AP) — Braniff Inc. officials say they have fired a low-level employee as the result of an investigation into the suspected theft and unauthorized sale of Braniff Inc. equipment and aircraft parts.

Poor inventory management was blamed for the problem, company officials say.

"The question was raised several weeks ago as to improprieties of some inventories," Braniff chairman Jay Pritzker said Monday. "We called in the auditors to look into the situation for us."

One piece of equipment with a market value of about $5,000 had a listed sales price of $50, Pritzker said.

Pritzker said the investigation has taken longer than he expected. "When it is completed, we will know how widespread it was," he said.

Royals rip Blue Jays to claim American League pennant

TORONTO (AP) — George Brett likes the role of underdog. He and his Kansas City teammates wear it like a comfortable old sweater — they can push up their sleeves and do a lot of work in it.

The Royals, claiming they were the underdog from the very beginning, climaxed a stirring comeback Wednesday night when they defeated the Toronto Blue Jays for the third successive time, 6-2, in the seventh and deciding game of the American League playoffs.

The Royals open the World Series in their own park Saturday night against the St. Louis Cardinals and, again, they're picked to lose.

"We had nothing to lose," Brett said, noting that Kansas City was down 3-1 after four games against the Blue Jays. "We were loose. When we won that third game we came back relaxed (Sunday), and even though we lost, I said the pressure was on Toronto. I don't know why I said it, but I think I was right, the pressure was on them."

As a result, the Royals — who won the AL West with a 91-71 record — never felt any pressure to win.

"No one expected us to win, just like during the year," Brett said.

It marked only the fifth time in major-league history that a team has bounced back to win after losing three of the first four games in a best-of-seven series. The other instances have all been in World Series play since the playoffs were a best-of-five affair until this year.

"Toronto didn't choke," Brett said, tempering remarks he made over the weekend. "They didn't give anything away. We won."

The fact is, however, that the Blue Jays, who won the AL East with a 99-62 record, had been struggling for two weeks. They lost five of their last six regular-season games — winning only the division-clincher against the New York Yankees — and lost four of the last five playoff games.

"It's over with," Toronto third baseman Rance Mulliniks said.

"We can't change anything. This is a young ballclub and I'm sure someday soon there will be a World Series here.

"They won it. They executed and their pitching was great the last four games. We didn't give anything away. They earned it."

The loss was a bitter pill for flag-waving Toronto fans, for whom the playoffs were a morality play. Canadian media had made the Blue Jays' efforts to bring the World Series north of the border for the first time a struggle between good and evil as well as between "us and them."

Despite such loyalty, however, only 32,084 showed up at Exhibition Stadium for the final game, and none of the four games in Toronto came even close to a sellout.

Royals right fielder Pat Sheridan and catcher Jim Sundberg were the surprise hitting heroes in the final game. Sheridan belted his second homer of the series and Sundberg tripled off the top of the right-field fence to drive in three runs.

"It seems unknown guys always come through in playoff games, but that's baseball," Kansas City Manager Dick Howser said. "I can't explain why."

Almost unnoticed in the offensive fireworks was the splendid 5-1-3 innings of relief by Royals left-hander Charlie Leibrandt, who got credit for the victory.

The Royals took a 1-0 lead in the second. Sheridan reached on a one-out bunt single past Toronto starter and loser Dave Stieb, went to second on Steve Balboni's groundout and scored on a looping single to right by Sundberg.

With two outs in the fourth, Sheridan belted the first pitch from Stieb over the right-field wall, giving the Royals a 2-0 lead.

Leibrandt, the loser in both Game 1 and Game 4, took over for Kansas City to start the Toronto fourth because starter Bret Saberhagen had a bruise on the palm of his right hand at the base of the thumb.

The Blue Jays broke through for a run in the fifth. Damaso Garcia stroked a leadoff single, went to second on Lloyd Moseby's grounder and scored on Willie Upshaw's double into the right-field corner.

Kansas City broke it open with four runs in the sixth. With one out, Brett walked on four pitches and Hal McRae was hit by a pitch. Sheridan hit a checked-swing grounder into the hole, but shortstop Tony Fernandez made a splendid backhand stop and flipped to Iorg, forcing Brett at third. Balboni then walked on a full-count pitch to load the bases for Sundberg, who followed with his triple off the top of the fence in right, scoring McRae, Sheridan and Balboni for a 5-1 Royals lead.

Jim Acker took over for Stieb and gave up a single to short center by White that drove in Sundberg.

The Blue Jays final run came in the ninth when Jesse Barfield singled, went to third on a single by Fernandez and scored on a grounder by Garcia.

A ROYAL CELEBRATION — Kansas City Wednesday night for the American League pitcher Bret Saberhagen leaps on top of his pennant. The Royals meet St. Louis Saturday in the opening game of the World Series.

Harvesters pass; Canyon test next

The Pampa Harvesters have overcome one obstacle since the no-pass, no-play rule became effective this week. Now the Harvesters can turn their fulltime attention to the other obstacle...the Canyon Eagles.

"We didn't lose anybody off the varsity because of grades," said Pampa head coach John Kendall. "The kids buckled down when they had to."

The new rule, which became effective last spring, requires athletes to pass all classes to be eligible for extra-curricular activities. Football did not fall under HB 72's academic standards until this week. The rule becomes effective after each six-week grading period.

Although none of the varsity players will be lost to grades, the Harvesters will lose starting cornerback Lance Ripple to a knee injury for the second straight week. Courtney Nickleberry will take his spot again.

Kendall puts Friday night's game at Kimbrough Stadium in the 'must-win' category.

"It's a very big game, especially after a loss," Kendall said. "We can't count on losing any more from here on out."

The Harvesters had six turnovers in a 21-7 loss to Levelland last week to even their District 1-4A mark at 1-1.

"Some of our mistakes were weather-related, but I can't take anything away from Levelland," Kendall said. "They caused some of our fumbles with their hard hitting."

The score was tied 7-all at halftime, but Levelland controlled the ball for much of the second half.

"Our defense was out there too long," Kendall said. "They got tired."

Pampa coughed up the ball twice in the fourth quarter, enabling the Lobos to gain possession for almost nine minutes.

"I feel like our defense is playing better every game, but we just couldn't get any offense generated against Levelland," Kendall said.

That loss kept Pampa from beginning district play with a 2-0 mark for the first time since 1979.

Canyon is 2-3 overall, losing its district opener to powerful Lubbock Estacado, 21-7.

"Canyon is much like they have been in the past, big and powerful," Kendall said. "They're a little quicker than they were last year."

Kendall said the Eagles have a good running game and their quarterbacking duo of King Hodson and Kurt Gonzales can both throw and run the ball well.

Canyon head coach Houston Powell fears Pampa's ground attack, led by fullback Gary Jernigan and tailback Mark Williams.

Jernigan, a 155-pound senior, had his fourth 100-yard rushing game (116 yards) against Levelland. Jernigan, who had 99 yards against Dumas, has also rushed for eight touchdowns. Williams is averaging 43 yards rushing per game.

"They have some exceptional backs," Powell said. "To beat Pampa we're going to have make sure of our tackles."

Pampa is far from out of the playoff picture. A victory over Canyon could put the Harvesters in a tie for second place since Borger and Estacado (both 2-0 in loop play) clash Friday night. Levelland, at 1-0, is the only other unbeaten team in the district, but the Lobos should have a tough time getting past defending district champion Lubbock Dunbar (0-2 with losses to Estacado and Borger).

Tomorrow night's game kicks off at 8 p.m. at Canyon's Kimbrough Stadium.

Clark's homer carries Cards to title

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals have been springing surprises all year long. Suddenly, they're one surprise away from winning it all.

"We've still got another team to beat," Cardinals Manager Whitey Herzog said Wednesday after Jack Clark's three-run homer in the top of the ninth gave St. Louis a 7-5 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers and the National League pennant.

St. Louis, picked by most observers to finish no better than fourth in the NL East coming out of spring training, faces the American League champion Kansas City Royals in the World Series beginning Saturday night in Kansas City.

The Cardinals bounced back from losses in the first two games of the NL playoffs to stun the Dodgers with a four-game sweep in the best-of-seven series.

"It's a heck of a compliment to our team to have won this series," a smiling Herzog said after the dramatic sixth-game victory over the Dodgers.

The Cardinals have a reputation for lightning on the basepaths, but they won the series against the Dodgers with thunder.

In Monday's fifth game in St. Louis, switch-hitting Ozzie Smith hit his first left-handed homer ever in the majors — with one out in the bottom of the ninth — to give the Cardinals a 3-2 victory and a 3-2 lead in the series.

Wednesday at Dodger Stadium, it was Jack Clark's first home run in nearly a month that decided the contest after Mike Marshall's solo homer gave Los Angeles a 5-4 lead in the bottom of the eighth.

Dodgers reliever Tom Niedenfuer, their bullpen ace during the regular season, was the victim of both game-winning homers.

Smith, who went 10-for-23 in the playoffs and was selected the most valuable player, and Clark were quick to shrug off individual credit.

"This is not for me, it's for the whole ballclub," Smith said upon accepting the MVP award.

"I'm not the hero," said Clark, who realized immediately when he hit a Niedenfuer fastball that it was a homer and looked over at the Cardinals' dugout before running around the bases.

"I'm not the guy; it's a bunch of guys."

"When I looked over at the dugout, I was thinking this is for the team and the Cardinal fans," he said. "It was good timing for my biggest, farthest and best home run ever."

The way the sixth game was decided provided great ammunition for second-guessers. With St. Louis runners at second and third and two away, Dodger Manager Tommy Lasorda decided to pitch to Clark rather than walk him and have Niedenfuer face Andy Van Slyke.

In the seventh, Lasorda had instructed Niedenfuer to intentionally walk Tommy Herr with runners on second and third and pitch to Clark. That time, Niedenfuer struck out Clark, and then Van Slyke to end an inning in which the Cardinals got three runs to tie the contest 4-4.

Even Van Slyke said he expected Clark to get an intentional walk in the ninth. It was the first time since mid-April that the Dodgers had lost after leading entering the ninth. Lasorda said he decided to pitch to Clark because Niedenfuer had struck him out in the seventh.

"If he had hit a long fly ball for the final out, nobody would be talking about it," said a crestfallen Lasorda. "After he hit the home run, everybody in the world knows who should have walked him."

"If you second-guess anybody, second-guess me. I'm the guy who made the decision."

"I made a slight adjustment in my stance, moved about a half-step back from the plate and squared away more," Clark said of his ninth-inning plate appearance. "I was just trying to get a base hit and tie the score."

Although Clark's homer decided the game, Smith again played a key offensive role in the victory. He tripled home the tying run in the seventh, just after Niedenfuer had replaced Los Angeles starter Orel Hershiser.

The Dodgers took a 4-1 lead in the fifth inning, getting one run against St. Louis starter Joaquin Andujar on Pedro Guerrero's sacrifice fly and another on Bill Madlock's third homer of the playoffs.

The Cardinals knotted the game with the seventh-inning outburst. Willie McGee's single drove in two runs before Smith's triple made it 4-4.

Marshall then led off the Dodgers' eighth with his homer off St. Louis reliever Todd Worrell.

Los Angeles took an early 2-0 lead with single runs in the first and second innings. The Cardinals cut the lead in half in the third.

Niedenfuer got the loss, his second in a row in the series. Worrell, who worked the seventh and eighth innings, notched the win in his first playoff decision. Ken Dayley, who set the Dodgers down in order in the ninth, picked up his second save.

Said Lasorda: "I feel bad for the team, not for me. They're the ones who played their hearts out. To see them lose like this is really heart-breaking..."

The Cardinals will enter the World Series in fine shape. John Tudor, the ace of their pitching staff, will be available for three starts, if necessary, since he didn't have to go in a seventh game against Los Angeles. And Herzog said that he fully expects Vince Coleman, who stole a major-league rookie record 110 bases this season, to be back in the lineup for Saturday night's opener.

Coleman was injured in a freak pre-game accident Sunday in St. Louis when the tarp machinery rolled onto his left leg.

Iowa, Michigan meet for number one spot

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON

AP Sports Writer

Iowa and Michigan may be 1-2 in The Associated Press rankings, but they are both No. 1 in the respective categories of scoring and surrendering points.

When the Hawkeyes and Wolverines meet at Iowa City Saturday, it will pit the nation's highest-scoring team (Iowa, 44.2 points per game) against the stingiest (Michigan, which has yielded only one touchdown and an average of 4.2 points per game).

It's the old saga of the irresistible force against the immovable object.

However, said Michigan Coach Bo Schembechler, "Maybe the game will be decided by our offense against their defense."

C'mon, Bo. Say you're kidding. "When it's all said and done, experience has told me that the best defense, if it's got a decent offense, is going to wind up in Pasadena," he said.

Ah, Bo's got Rose Bowl fever. And for this 19th meeting of 1-2 teams since The AP poll began in 1936, Michigan is a 2½-point favorite. The pick is Iowa 24-14.

Last week's score was 36 right and 13 wrong for a percentage of .735; for the year, 214-85-7—716.

STATE QUALIFIER — Shana Greene, 11-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Steve Greene of Pampa and a member of the M.G. Flyers Gymnastic Team, qualified last week for the semifinals in Class Three competition. Flyers head coach is Madeline Graves and she is assisted by Delpha Cates and Kathy Rice. The semifinals will be held next month in Dallas.

Wheeler vs. Groom

Tigers need ball control to slow volatile Mustangs

By DAN MURRAY
Sports Writer

WHEELER — Guaranteed, Friday's 7:30 p.m. battle between Groom and Wheeler here will be the last meeting of undefeated District 1-1A teams. The Tigers and the Mustangs are the only two left.

Groom enters the contest 3-0 in the loop (3-2 overall) while Wheeler comes in sporting a 4-0 (6-0) record that has earned it a No. 3 ranking in the Harris poll. Groom is rated 41st by the Harris system, which has established Wheeler as a 28-point favorite.

Polls, of course, don't decide football games. The Mustangs and Tigers will take care of that.

"We're fortunate to be in the position we're in," Groom head coach Jimmy Duncan said. "You ought to look forward to playing a team like Wheeler and our kids are."

Wheeler mentor Preston Smith said, "We're nervous...Groom plays us very well. We hope we'll have our players ready."

For Groom to win, the Tigers have to shut down Wheeler's explosive offense, which has scored 243 points this season. Groom is tough defensively, having allowed 56 points all season and just nine in district play. But the Tigers haven't played a team like Wheeler, which features the double threat of Dicky Salyer and Toby Collins, who have run over and around everyone the Mustangs have faced.

Salyer and Wheeler guard Richard Smith both turned ankles in Tuesday's workout but Smith feels they should be ready by Friday. In the Wheeler lineup for the first time this season is 225-pounder Danny DuBose, who Smith said will become "a dominant lineman in this district" once he returns to playing condition.

Smith knows Groom and its 5-3 defense will be keying on the Mustangs' ground game.

"I think they realize if they want to beat us they've got to take away some of the things we do running the football," he said. "They're playing pretty good defense."

Duncan said, "They're so explosive. They can get the big play on you. We've got to try and keep them from doing that."

"I think they'll play their game, which is running the ball about 70 percent of the time."

Smith knows Groom will be keeping a close watch on Collins and Salyer, so he has quarterback Randall Hugg prepared to air the football to keep things honest.

"Our passing game's getting better," Smith said. "We feel like we can throw the football and we're prepared to throw the football."

Hugg will be testing a Groom secondary (Ken Rutherford, Darron Eschle and Brent Thompson) that last week successfully shut down a Claude offense geared on the passing game.

Missing from the Tigers' secondary is Brent Thornton, who suffered a concussion a week ago and will sit out Friday's game. Duncan said Eschle played well in his place against Claude.

Duncan realizes his team has to find a way to stop Wheeler's offense, but both coaches say a bigger key is how well the Tigers move the ball on a Mustangs' defense that's allowed only nine points all season.

"The key for us is to try and keep the ball out of their hands as much as we can," Duncan said. "We got to be able to run the ball some and control it, but we have to be balanced."

Smith said, "We're going to have to play great on defense to keep them from keeping the ball all the time."

Groom will count on a good night from Jack Britten, a 200-pounder who gained 1,087 yards as a sophomore.

"Britten's going to be hard for anybody to tackle," Smith said.

Mistakes could become important. Duncan said last week his team needs to eliminate its own errors and try to force Wheeler into turning over the football.

Smith hopes for the opposite. "What we need to do," he said, "is take care of the football and not turn it over on our end of the field. We want to punt and make them have to drive the ball on us, not give it to them on our end."

History is not on the side of the Tigers, who haven't beaten Wheeler since 1976. The Mustangs are playing at home, where they've only lost one game to a Class A team in 10 years.

"It'll be tough," Duncan said.

Five Dolphins garner firsts in swim meet

The Pampa Dolphins Swim Club competed in their first Short Course meet of the season this past weekend at the Amarillo Aquatic Club. The meet was a "B and C" meet in which no team points are scored.

Five of the 14 Dolphins competing in the meet were first-place winners.

Jamie Danner Hill took first in the 50-yard freestyle, 50-yard butterfly, 50-yard backstroke and 100-yard individual medley in the girls' 9-10 B Division. She was second in the 50-yard breaststroke and improved her best times in four events.

Rhea Hill competed in the girls' 11-12 B division and won the 50-yard freestyle, 50-yard butterfly, 50-yard backstroke and 100-yard individual medley. She finished second in the 50-yard breaststroke and improved her best times in all five events.

Pamela Morrow, competing in the senior girls' B division, won the 100-yard butterfly, 100-yard breaststroke, 200-yard individual medley, and placed second in the 50-yard freestyle and 100-yard backstroke. She also improved all her times and achieved A times in the 50-yard freestyle and 100-yard breaststroke.

Richelle Hill won the 100-yard butterfly and also achieved an A time in the event. Classified as a A swimmer, Miss Hill was not eligible to enter any other events in a B and C meet.

Renita Hill competed in the senior girls' B and C divisions. She won the 100-yard backstroke and placed third in the 50-yard freestyle and 100-yard breaststroke. She placed second in the 100-yard freestyle and the 200-yard individual medley in the C division.

The Senior girls 200-medley and 200-free relay teams both came in first. Team members were Rhea Hill; Pam Morrow, Richelle Hill and Renita Hill. The girls 10 and under 200-medley team of Amy Schmidt, Katie Hamilton, Jamie Danner Hill and Dorothy Schmidt also placed first.

Other Dolphins — Rene Hill, Kathryn Hamilton, Amelia Schmidt and Dorothy Schmidt — did not win, but improved their times. Four Dolphins — Kamron Harris, Julie Forman, Jennifer Keeton and Talitha Pope — competed in their first meet.

Two weeks from now the Dolphins return to the Amarillo Aquatic Club to compete in an ABC meet. A week later, the Dolphins travel to Lubbock to participate in an Open meet hosted by the Lubbock YWCA.

Youngsters interested in joining the Dolphins can come to the Pampa Youth Center between 4:30 p.m. and 6:30 p.m. weekdays to obtain information.

Other Pampa placings are as follows:

Girls 8 & Under — Candy Hill, third, 25-yard backstroke; Kamron Harris, fourth, 25-yard freestyle; fourth, 25-yard butterfly; fourth, 25-yard backstroke; fourth, 25-yard breaststroke; fourth, 100-yard individual medley; Rene Hill, second, 25-yard freestyle; second, 25-yard butterfly; second, 25-yard backstroke; second, 25-yard breaststroke, and second, 100-yard individual medley.

Girls 9-10 C Division — Jennifer Keeton, sixth, 50-yard freestyle; seventh, 50-yard backstroke; eighth, 50-yard breaststroke; disqualified, 100-yard individual medley; Julie Forman, seventh, 50-yard freestyle; seventh, 50-yard backstroke; eighth, 50-yard breaststroke, and disqualified, 100-yard individual medley; Talitha Pope, fifth, 50-yard freestyle; fifth, 50-yard butterfly; third, 50-yard backstroke; ninth, 50-yard breaststroke, and fourth, 100-yard individual medley; Amelia Schmidt, eighth, 50-yard freestyle; fifth, 50-yard backstroke; sixth, 50-yard breaststroke, and disqualified, 50-yard butterfly; Dorothy Schmidt, third, 50-yard freestyle; fourth, 50-yard butterfly; 100-yard individual medley, and disqualified, 50-yard backstroke; Kathryn Hamilton, second, 50-yard freestyle; second, 50-yard backstroke; second, 100-yard individual medley; third, 50-yard butterfly, and third, 50-yard breaststroke.

Hough undergoes knee surgery

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Texas Rangers pitcher Charlie Hough underwent arthroscopic surgery on his left knee Wednesday and is scheduled to begin a rehabilitation program in two weeks, team officials said.

Officials said they expect Hough, 37, to be fully recovered by the time the Rangers begin spring training in February.

Torn cartilage was repaired in the knee during Wednesday's surgery in Los Angeles. Hough will begin a program of therapy and rehabilitation in about two weeks.

Hough did not pitch after Sept. 18 because of his knee problem. Prior to that, he had made 103 consecutive starts without missing a turn in the rotation.

Curry to fight

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Donald Curry will fight Milton McCrory for the undisputed welterweight championship at the Las Vegas Hilton Dec. 6, according to fight promoter Bob Arum.

Arum, of Top Rank, Inc., and Shakir Ahmad, assistant director of casino marketing for the Las Vegas Hilton, were made formal announcement of the fight at a news conference here today, the Fort Worth Star-Telegram reported.

The fighters will be seeking the crown held by Sugar Ray Leonard, who retired as champion in November, 1982.

Curry, of Fort Worth, holds the World Boxing Association and International Boxing Federation's crowns as 147-pound champ and McCrory, of Detroit, holds the World Boxing Council title.

"The fighters will be fighting for various percentages, but each will be guaranteed $750,000," Arum said Wednesday night. Each fighter had been seeking $1 million for the fight, but Arum said he was unable to get a live gate guarantee.

White Deer's Ron McIntosh

Bucks await Rockets' test

By DAN MURRAY
Sports Writer

WHITE DEER — This one's going to have a big impact on the District 2-2A race.

White Deer and Wellington collide at 7:30 p.m. Friday on the Rockets' turf in a game featuring two of the district's better teams. It was thought that the two would be 1-0 in the loop when this game came up, but Wellington fell through on its half of the deal.

Quannah beat the Rockets 28-19 in last week's league opener, and if they lose Friday they'll be virtually out of the race. If the Bucks lose, the teams will be deadlocked and Wellington will have the advantage. White Deer would just as soon ground the Rockets now, with Quannah and Memphis waiting in line on the Bucks' schedule.

Coach Windy Williams continues to preach the importance of every game to his Bucks, knowing that one slip could lead to a slide.

"They're all big ones now," Williams said.

So Wellington is this week's game of the year and a formidable opponent for White Deer.

The Rockets are 3-3 overall and have scored 118 points while allowing 81. Both Wellington and White Deer have lost close games to Panhandle, the Bucks having fallen 10-7 while the Rockets lost 7-6.

Williams wonders whether Wellington will be angry and fueled for fire after losing to Quannah.

"I think that's got to have an effect, but I don't know which way," he said, noting that the Rockets can either come back with an inspired performance or "fold their tent."

For White Deer, "It's given us the perspective that they can be beaten," Williams said. Of course, the Bucks are taking nothing for granted, and rightfully so, since the Harris poll has established the Rockets as a one-point favorite.

They know they'll have to control Wellington's Johnny Nash, a 5-11, 175-pound senior running back who made all-district last season.

"Their strengths are their running backs and their speed, but Nash is enough," Williams said. "He's about as productive as there is."

Wellington operates from several varieties of the T-formation and likes to try and spring Nash off-tackle and on outside sweeps.

"They're pretty outside conscious," Williams said, adding that quarterback Kelley Goforth is also a valid running threat.

Thus a key point of confrontation for the game has been established, for White Deer's defense, a physically punishing unit that's allowed but 46 points all season, is geared around stopping opponents' outside game.

"If we control the outside we control the football game," Williams said.

Wellington's not known as a prolific passing team and should be pressed to make a dent in the Bucks' stingy secondary.

"We're just going to play our defensive football game and play good technique defense like we have all year," Williams said.

On offense, the Bucks hope to get another big game from Ron McIntosh, who carried for 150 yards and three touchdowns last week in White Deer's 31-6 blistering of Shamrock. The Bucks gained 336 yards rushing in that contest.

Wellington runs a 5-3 stack defense that Williams hopes quarterback Jeff Cox can exploit with passes to the outside and mid-range zones.

"They respond very quickly to the run so we hope we can throw the football," he said.

Texas briefs

AUSTIN (AP) — Susan Rieff, a legislative aide to Arkansas Gov. Dale Bumpers, has been hired as director of resource protection for the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

Ms. Rieff has worked for the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency and U.S. Department of Interior in Washington, and joined Bumpers' staff in 1981.

She has an undergraduate degree from Texas Christian University, a masters in public affairs from the University of Texas and is a doctoral candidate in natural resources policy at Duke.

AUSTIN (AP) — Pamela Bratton, a personnel consultant in Austin, has been elected secretary-treasurer of the American Business Women's Association.

The 112,000-member organization was founded in 1949, and Ms. Bratton is the first Austin resident to serve as an ABWA national officer.

DALLAS (AP) — A 2-year-old boy was in critical but stable condition after undergoing a liver transplant, officials said.

Chase McNabb of Arlington, Texas, was in surgery from 11 p.m. Tuesday to about 8 a.m. Wednesday at Children's Medical Center, said nursing supervisor Ruthelle Wilson.

The liver was donated by a 3-year-old Shreveport, La., boy, but Ms. Wilson said she did not know the circumstances of the child's death.

Since birth, McNabb has battled against intrahepatic cholestasis, a defect where there are no bile ducts in the liver.

Patty and Darrell McNabb, Chase's parents, had been on standby for several months to take Chase to the hospital as soon as a donor was found. The two were at a support group meeting for liver patients Tuesday night at the Children's Medical Center when Mrs. McNabb's pager went off.

"We made a quick trip to Arlington to pick Chase up," said Mrs. McNabb. "He was so excited. He sang all the way over to the hospital."

Ms. Wilson said the boy was in the hospital's intensive care unit Wednesday night, but she did not know how long he would remain hospitalized.

DALLAS (AP) — Police were continuing their search Wednesday night for two men wanted in connection with the rape and robbery of two teen-age girls, who were attacked after leaving the State Fair of Texas.

The two girls, ages 13 and 14, were with a man when they were approached by two other men at a parking lot outside the fair grounds Tuesday night about 11 p.m., Dallas police investigator Carolyn Bowling said. The girls and the man are from Arlington.

One of the men was armed with a sawed-off shotgun. Ms. Bowling said the two men forced the three inside a van belonging to one of the girl's fathers after taking about $30 from them, she said.

The van was driven to an unknown location in Dallas where the two girls were sexually assaulted, Ms. Bowling said. The two attackers then fled the van, telling the three to wait 15 minutes before trying to leave.

The victims drove to Parkland Memorial Hospital about 5 a.m., where the police were called, she said.

MOUNT PLEASANT, Texas (AP) — Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby pledged Wednesday that adoption of the first two amendments on the Nov. 5 ballot would not mean the "transfer of one bucket of water from one basin or watershed to another."

Speaking to an audience of mostly faculty and media at the states' newest community college, Northeast Texas Community College, located six miles southeast of here, Hobby hailed the new water plan as "good for all areas of the state."

Hobby called the three previous plans over the last 18 years "bad plans" which the voters "wisely defeated."

He asserted that Amendments 1 and 2 differ from earlier proposals since they back locally issued bonds and include provisions for water conservation and quality.

Hobby stressed the local and regional aspects of the plan. "There is no map in Austin with somebody saying that we will have a lake here or a sewage treatment plant there," he said.

Local entities such as cities, counties and water districts must first propose a project, have the bonds approved by the voters in that district and then the state can use its money to guarantee the bonds or purchase a share of the lake.

BOMBED CAR — Police probe through the wreckage of a car that was bombed in downtown Salt Lake City Wednesday afternoon. The explosion left one man critically injured.

Victim of third bombing is the chief suspect in all three, police report

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A Mormon researcher critically injured when a bomb accidentally went off in his car was responsible for two fatal explosions linked to the "Salamander Letter," a disputed account of the church's origins, authorities say.

Police said Mark W. Hofmann would be charged today with Tuesday's bomb deaths of a Mormon bishop and the wife of another church history buff.

In 1984, Hofmann reportedly sold the bishop, Steven F. Christensen, 31, a document called the "Salamander Letter," which challenges official accounts of the church's founding.

Hofmann was blown from his parked car downtown Wednesday afternoon and was in critical condition today in LDS Hospital, where he was undergoing surgery.

"We're looking at a revenge motive right now," Jerry Miller, agent in charge of the federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, said late Wednesday, although he declined to elaborate.

"I think the community is safe at this time," Miller said. "I think we have the people responsible off the street."

"Tomorrow morning we will present information to the U.S. Attorney charging Mark Hofmann with violation of federal firearm laws and explosives laws," Miller said.

Searches of Hofmann's bombed-out car and suburban home found evidence linking him to Tuesday's bombings, police said.

Hofmann is a former Mormon missionary and dealer in historical documents.

Police held out the possibility that others may have been involved in the bombings which killed Christensen and Kathy Sheets, 50, the wife of J. Gary Sheets, a former business associate of Christensen's who helped fund a $20,000 study to determine the authenticity of the "Salamander Letter."

"We are not saying the investigation is concluded, but we feel we know who the players are now, and we're pursuing those," Police Chief Bud Willoughby said. "And if we develop that, I would anticipate other charges would be filed involving other than Mr. Hofmann."

Union reports progress in Chrysler strike; firm mum

HIGHLAND PARK, Mich. (AP) — Chrysler Corp. and the United Auto Workers say they're making progress toward an end to U.S. and Canadian strikes that already have cost the company more than $15 million and the U.S. economy $65 million.

The first crippling day of walkouts Wednesday by 70,000 workers in this country and 10,000 in Canada failed to produce a settlement, and both unions said bargaining would resume today. U.S. Chrysler officials had no comment.

"There are a number of major issues that are not totally resolved but that we've come much closer to reaching a final resolve on," UAW President Owen Bieber said Wednesday during a break in the talks.

company headquarters late Wednesday night and refused to say what issues were causing the hangups.

Wages were the major issue in the Canadian strike. U.S. workers wanted curbs on Chrysler's subcontracting of work to other companies, job security guarantees and wage and benefit parity with workers at General Motors Corp. and Ford Motor Co.

The strikes have virtually stopped Chrysler's manufacturing operations.

Negotiators in Toronto said they would return today to resume negotiations covering 10,000 striking Canadian workers.

William Fisher, chief bargainer for the subsidiary Chrysler Canada Ltd., said, "We're pushing for a settlement. It has to be settled some time and the sooner the better."

Robert White, leader of the newly formed United Auto Workers of Canada, said he wants to get a settlement to bring to membership meetings scheduled for Sunday. "Everybody knows this weekend is critical," White said. "If we don't have a settlement Sunday, you're talking about taking a considerable amount of (production) time out of the system."

The UAW has scheduled a meeting Saturday of its 300-member Chrysler Council in Huntsville, Ala., where Bieber said he would like to present a tentative contract for review.

"Am I planning to go to Huntsville this Saturday? Well, nobody's canceled my reservation yet, as far as I know," Bieber said Wednesday evening.

The strike has halted Chrysler's production of more than 5,000 cars and trucks a day. That is costing the U.S. economy "somewhere between $63 million and $65 million per workday," said Michael Bryan, economist with the Federal Reserve Bank in Cleveland.

Man whose crime inspired MADD still menace: judge

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — A man whose drunken driving in 1980 killed a teen-age girl and inspired formation of Mothers Against Drunk Driving still presents a danger to the community, said a judge who sentenced him to four years in a new drunken driving case.

Superior Court Judge William Lally imposed the maximum three years for drunken driving and one for having prior convictions Tuesday on Clarence Busch, 52, convicted in the injury last month of a 19-year-old woman.

In 1980, he was convicted of vehicular manslaughter in the death of Cari Lightner, 13, and sentenced to two years in prison. He served 16 months. Cari's mother, Candy Lightner, founded Mothers Against Drunk Driving, as a result.
