Oil tax vote draws White's ire

AUSTIN (AP) — The U.S. House Ways and Means Committee's vote to raise oil industry taxes by $5 billion over four years is "difficult to understand," says Gov. Mark White, who has lobbied against such a move

White on Thursday said the House committee action will hurt the Texas oil industry and not help the federal budget.

"This tax increase is going to mean more loss of jobs and loss of income for workers in the industry, and that simply isn't the way to raise revenue," White said.

On Wednesday, the Ways and Means Committee voted 29-4 for a crackdown on tax breaks given oil and gas producers. Even at that, the reduction was not as large as committee chairman Dan Rostenkowski, D-III., had wanted.

White last week wrote Rostenkowski, urging him to carefully consider any tax law changes which would "unduly penalize" the oil and gas industry.

We in Texas are not going to sit idly by and watch the lifeblood of the Texas economy be leeched and our national defense be put in peril by a tax bill that seeks to eliminate deductions for intangible drilling and development costs and percentage depletion allowances, White said then Thursday, the governor said he found the Ways and Means Committee's vote "difficult to understand.

white said increasing taxes on oil producers not only will cost jobs but will endanger national defense by increasing the dependence on foreign oil at a time when much of the nation's military hardware runs on petroleum.

White, a Democrat, said that Congress should find other ways to

Reagan wins applause with summit report

WASHINGTON (AP) -President Reagan, making a homecoming report on the U.S.-Soviet summit, called for a new "steady as we go" era with Moscow and won applause from legislators who found "hope rather than accomplishment" in the blunt-spoken meetings in Geneva. 'We are not further along towards an arms control agreement. But we are further along in the personal chemistry in the relationship," said Sen. J. Bennett Johnston, D-La., after Reagan's nationally televised address Thursday night on his three days of summitry with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev.

Added Sen. George Mitchell, D-Maine, "It was a speech that reflected the summit itself. There was little substance, but much hope for improved relations in the Reagan, summing up the first superpower summit in six years, said he, like everyone, is "impatient for results." But, he added, "goodwill and good hopes do not always yield lasting results. Quick fixes don't fix big problems.'

For his part, Gorbachev left snowy Geneva with a message that mixed hope with a straightforward reminder that there are serious obstacles to the comprehensive arms control agreement that both men said they seek.

"I would be so bold as to say the world has become a more secure place" because of the three days of meetings, the Soviet leader told a news conference. But he issued a fresh condemnation of Reagan's so-called "Star Wars" plan for a space-based missile defense, saying that unless the president compromises, "all restraint will be blown to the wind" in the arms

The Gorbachev news conference and the Reagan speech were the final acts of a summit drama whose principal agreement aside from accords on cultural exchanges and diplomatic facilities - was a decision for future summits. The two men will meet again in Washington next year and Moscow in 1987.

They failed to come up with a new framework for arms control talks, but Reagan said, "We are both instructing our negotiators to hasten their vital work. The world is waiting for results.

That was certainly true in Congress, where most lawmakers praised Reagan's trip and expressed optimism about the future, even as a few critics complained there had been few concrete achievements

Senate Majority Leader Robert Dole, R-Kan., called the summit "a hopeful beginning to a process of dialogue and negotiations which we hope will become more comprehensive and bring more concrete progress in the future."

"In particular," he said, "the decision to hold future summits, including the one in Washington next summer, is a welcome development.

Thanksgiving has long been a time of family togetherness, but area churches will extend the "family" Sunday as they host community Thanksgiving services.

Community Thanksgiving services will be held Sunday in Miami, McLean, White Deer, Groom, Canadian and Wheeler MIAMI

Miami's annual Community Thanksgiving meal and service will be at 5:30 p.m. at the First United Methodist Church fellowship hall, with a worship service following at 7 p.m. in the church sanctuary.

Sponsored by the Miami Ministerial Alliance, the meal is free to the public. "We have four turkeys cooking up," said the Rev. Kevin Hollowell, pastor of Miami's First Christian Church. "Each church is given a responsibility. Our church is providing the vegetables, the Baptist Church is providing the desserts and the Methodists are cooking the turkeys.

The Rev. Jerry Klaverweiden, pastor of the Methodist Church, will present the message at the service. Music will be provided by a community choir and soloists or ensembles from the three participating churches.

Also featured will be a slide presentation of Dr. David Foote's missionary work in Africa. Dr. Foote, who will be unable to attend the service, is the husband of Miami native Laurel Maddox Foote. The Rev. Jerry Howe, pastor of the Baptist Church, said Foote sent the slides to the church

slightly Rate of inflation increases

WASHINGTON (AP) - Rising food and automobile costs sent consumer prices up 0.3 percent in October, the government said today, breaking a string of five consecutive 0.2 percent monthly increases

Even with the gain last month, retail prices have risen at an annual rate of just 3.3 percent so far in 1985 and analysts — anticipating the October spurt in the Labor Department's Consumer Price Index - cautioned against reading too much into today's report.

Donald Ratajczak of Georgia State University, head of an economic forecasting project that specializes in wholesale and retail price inflation, said, "The acceleration in inflationary pressures appears to be temporary and should become subdued again early in 1986.

But David Ernst of Evans Economics Inc., a private Washington forecasting firm, predicted that the pattern of increase for the next few months was likely to continue on the order of 0.3 percent. Food prices overall, including restaurant meals and alcoholic beverages, rose 0.4 percent in October compared to a 0.3 percent increase the previous month.

The transportation component, featuring higher prices for automobiles and auto financing, rose 0.2 percent after declining for five straight months.

The Labor Department said that increase came mostly because of higher automobile finance charges and insurance costs along with price hikes for 1986 models. Those increases more than offset fresh declines in gasoline

The annual rate increase of 3.3 percent for the first 10 months of 1985 is still the slowest pace since 1967, when consumer prices rose 3 percent. The October index was 3.2 percent above the same month a year ago.

Retail prices rose 4 percent in 1984, 3.8 percent in 1983 and 3.9 percent in 1982. The department provided these additional details on consumer price activity for October, all adjusted for normal seasonal variations: -A sharp 3 percent increase in alcoholic beverage prices, due to an average $2 per gallon hike in the federal excise tax for distilled spirits on Oct. 1, was mostly responsible for the sharper increase in overall food and beverage prices, which had risen just 0.3 percent in September.

The 0.2 percent increase in prices for food purchased in grocery stores was the same as in September and would have been more modest but for a 2.1 percent hike in beef and veal prices. Prices for restaurant meals rose an average of just 0.1 percent in October after a 0.5 percent gain in the preceding month.

-Automobile finance charges rose 1.9 percent after 10 straight months of declines. Insurance costs rose a matching 1.9 percent, mostly a reflection of higher prices for 1986

Gasoline prices, however, were down 0.8 percent fo the fourth straight month. Used car prices registered their seventh consecutive decline, down 0.6 percent.

-Housing costs rose 0.3 percent, including 0.4 percent for homeowners and 0.8 percent for renters. Those overall costs would have been higher except for continued declines in fuel and utility costs. Natural gas prices were down 1.9 percent. Electricity prices fell 1.4 percent.

Fuel oil prices, however, rose for the second straight month and were up 2.4 percent — but were 13.8 percent below their peak level of 1981 and were 1.8 percent cheaper than in October

Zoning changes recommended

By LARRY HOLLIS Staff Writer

The Planning and Zoning Commission approved recommendations for a zoning change to permit the drilling of two oil wells and for plats for a new apartment complex during its regular meeting Thursday.

The commission held a public hearing on the request regarding the two oil wells to be located east of Price Road and north of Harvester Street

Bruce - Chisum Oil Co. has requested a zoning change from Agriculture to Specific Use Permit in the southwest quarter of Section 116, Block 3, I&GN RRC survey.

Teresa Snow, representing Bruce - Chisum, said the oil wells would drilled and maintained in accord with city ordinances and regulations as amended earlier this year for the drilling of wells within city limits.

Forrest Cloyd, senior technician with the Engineering Department, said nine letters had been sent out to nearby property owners. He said four letters approving the drilling had been returned, with no letters received in opposition No one appeared at the hearing to speak against the drilling plans. After the hearing, the zoning board approved recommending approval of the zoning change request to the city commission. In the other action, the commission approved the preliminary and final plats of the GLC Subdivision submitted by SDC Construction Co. regarding the new $3 million Pampa Lakeside Apartment project.

Richard Morris, engineer with Merriman and Barber Engineering Consultants, Inc., said the project will be built in two phases, with approximately 50 apartments to be constructed in the first phase.

Cloyd said the project. located in a commercial area, meets the required zoning guidelines, and the staff has determined that it meets the subdivision regulations.

Commission member Jav Johnson raised some questions about problems of access for city vehicles into the complex area.

Cloyd said there shouldn't be any problems; the access routes have been prepared and agreements have been reached among the different property owners in the Cloyd added that he had been told by developers that the proposed lake for the complex will have circulating water which should not freeze over during winter months. He said the developers also would be taking efforts to keep down the number of mosquitoes at the lake site.

Board Chairman Nolan McKean said he felt the area was a good site for an apartment complex because of its proximity to the Pampa Mall and other shopping areas.

In another matter, the commission elected Ralph Milliron as chairman by acclamation to replace McKean in the position.

McKean, who has been chairman for nearly four years, submitted his resignation from the position, saying he felt the office should be "rotated and passed around."

Student committees ready to debate legislative issues

Model Legislature V will be gavelled into session at 8:45 a.m. Saturday at the Pampa High School library, with student committees ready to hear witnesses, write legislation and debate the issues.

State Rep. Foster Whaley of Pampa will be the Speaker of the House of Representatives, while State Sen. Bill Sarpalius of Canyon will preside over the Senate.

Shannon Churchman, president of the PHS student body, will serve as the Texas Governor for the day.

Officers have been named for the student committees which will meet in the morning session to write legislation to be debated in the afternoon sessions under the guidance of Whaley and Sarpalius. Dyran Crosier and Tim Pletcher will be chairman and vice chairman for the committee considering the repeal or amendment of the "no pass, no play" rule. Leading the committee considering the repeal or amendment of the mandatory seat belt law will be Beth Reddell and Steffanie Howell. Brad Wolcott and Marty Rhoades will head the committee which will consider outlawing nuclear waste dumps in

The committee trying to determine whether or not students with AIDS should be permitted to attend public schools will be chaired by Dusti Fritz, with Jay Snow as vice chairman.

The committee considering a bill to lower the drinking age will be headed by Chris Gustin and Paul Budd. Trent Sellers and Scott Vanderburg will be the chairman and vice chairman over the "white oil" committee.

Similar duties will be handled by Richie Beckham and Kenny Stewart in the committee to consider raising the speed limit to 70 miles per hour

Steve Cook will chair the committee to consider legalizing gambling, with Juan Soto as vice chairman. Michelle Phipps and Amanda Coleman's committee will deal with the issue of proposing a Constitutional Amendment allowing prayer in public schools.

Nanette Hildenbrand and Greg Northcutt are chairpersons for a committee which will consider raising college tuitions.

The powerful House Rules Committee will be chaired by Karin Trgovac, with the vice chairman being Jay Taparia. This committee determines the order of debate on the bills in the House for the afternoon session.

The Business Education Department will act as secretaries for the committees. Paula Murphy is the student chairman of the group. Ramona Hite is the head of the department.

The PHS Key Club, headed by

Matt Martindale and Tony Lyle as president and vice president, will be furnishing the sergeants - at arms and members for the committees.

They include Megan Ackfeld, who was also a member of the steering committee which planned the project; Sarah Martinez, Marci Horne, Shiela Brinsfield, William Simpson, Eric Hallerberg, Kristi Brock, DeLette Laney, Wendy Wilson, Jeannie McCloskey, Myra Jimenez and Jeff Jones.

Committee parliamentarians consist of members of the Future Farmers of America. Brian Gordzelik and Brandie Pairsh have served on the steering committee for the project.

They will be joined by Heather Brewer, Bobbie Pairsh, Pam Dull. David Parker, Roy Koontz, Shawn Thompson, Allen Dull, Alan Weinheimer, Jason Duvall, Willie Cross, Bill Allen and Tim Richey as parliamentarians. Randy Dunn is the faculty sponsor for the organization.

Registration for the event already has topped 150 students, with more expected to register at the door Saturday morning.

The project is jointly sponsored by the Kiwanis Club of Pampa, Optimist Club of Pampa, PHS Key Club. Social Studies Department, Gifted and Talented Class, Student Council, The Little Harvester, Business Education Department, Opti-Mrs. Club, Pampa Chamber of Commerce and Gray County Bar Association.

The Texas Board of Human Services voted unanimously Thursday to remove the state hold on Medicaid funds for needy hospital patients.

However, the board decided it needed to keep strict control of Medicaid funds for new and expanded nursing homes but with some exceptions to take of hardship cases.

The board also agreed to take another look at the nursing home situation when permanent rules are adopted in early 1986.

The board acted Thursday after Rep. Juan J. Hinojosa, D-McAllen, and several other legislators accused the department of issuing the moratorium last July because the 1985 Legislature had done away with the Texas Health Facilities Commission.

Formerly, any new or expanded hospitals and nursing homes had to prove the need for expansion before the commission. The DHS issued the moratorium order because it feared deregulation surge of hospital and nursing home construction.

The DHS staff recommended, and the board agreed Thursday. that the moratorium was not needed for hospital expansion because hospital costs account for only 6 percent of the Medicaid cost for the needy ill in Texas.

The board, on staff recommendations, then continued the moratorium for nursing homes.

But the panel also established a number of temporary exceptions that will cover facilities that change ownership, facilities being replaced, facilities where no more than 10 beds are added or new facilities of less than 60 beds.

'Implementation of a moratorium has successfully controlled Medicaid bed expansion in other states," said the staff report presented by Commissioner Marlin Johnston.

"The justification for the moratorium is based on concern about increases in Medicaid costs which can result for an over supply of Medicaid beds in Texas and the perceived need to attempt to fully utilize the existing Medicaid bed capacity before contracting for new beds into the program," the

Kickapoos look to building a new life

EAGLE PASS. Texas (AP) -The Texas Kickapoo Indians, having cleared the hurdle of gaining U.S. citizenship, now focus attention on moving out of their bamboo hut village and onto a new reservation, officials say.

We are hopeful that in the future we can get rid of all these shacks where they have been living - tear them all down," said former U.S. Rep. Abraham

'Chick' 'Kazen. Kazen, a Democrat from Laredo. sponsored legislation in Congress in 1983 that gave the Texas Kickapoos the opportunity to file for U.S. citizenship. Thursday, citizenship cards for 143 of the 536-member tribe were turned over to tribal council leader Raul Garza, who later distributed them to the Kickapoos.

'He cannot tell you how everyone feels. But he feels very, very happy," said Nakai Breen, a Cherokee and spokeswoman for the Kickapoos, interpreting for Garza.

Mrs. Breen said Garza told her U.S. citizenship "is going to better their life.'

The Indians now are eligible for government health care, food stamps and other welfare services.

The next step for the Texas Kickapoos, a branch of the Kickapoo tribe living on a reservation in central Oklahoma, is to build suitable housing on a 125-acre tract of land south of Eagle Pass. The land was purchased earlier this year with donations from various churches.

The Kickapoos for years have lived in primitive bamboo and cardboard huts underneath the international bridge at Eagle Pass.

Migrant farm laborers, they have drifted from Mexico to the northern United States annually. But they have made Eagle Pass their permanent home. James Wahpepah of the Oklahoma tribe said he hopes the Texas Kickapoos now can bring industry to Eagle Pass and "get away from farm laboring.

"I hope we will become self-sufficient," he said, adding the Kickapoos want to vote and serve in the military.

At the citizenship ceremonies at the Eagle Pass National Guard armory, Kazen said he hoped the tribe and its supporters could move a little faster to get proper homes for you. "Now you will be formally recognized as American citizens. Then you should be proud to do for yourself and get involved," Kazen urged.

"No one's handing it to you. We're just extending a helping hand. You've got to do it yourself,

About 75 Kickapoos, all wearing traditional western dress - jeans, shirts, skirts and blouses - turned out for the ceremonies.

Mrs. Breen said the Kickapoos, who speak their own Algonquin dialect, are clannish and shy and have kept alive many tribal traditions.

Is the risk really worth it?

Each year the American Medical Association mounts its soapbox and preaches how football is destroying the health of its players. Boxing's been taking the heat lately, perhaps because the AMA is hurting its own health by pounding its head against a defensive wall. or probably because boxing is a more vunerable target. Is football too dangerous? Is football of worth?

You pause and wonder when your television screen gives you an 'up close and personal'' view of Joe Theismann's leg being snapped in half so much like a pencil. I almost got sick, though I've seen much

I played organized football from third grade until I graduated from high school. Pulled muscles, cuts, bruises and sprains were routine, and two concussions were the worst injuries I suffered. It never occurred to me to quit because I might get hurt, and I would play today if I could.

Theoretically, the human body is not capable of absorbing the punishment it does, nor is it able to perform acts we are so accustomed to seeing on our television screens or in our hometown stadiums. The knee, for example, is a biological paradox that shouldn't be able to carry us through a stroll in the park but somehow helps propel the body 100 yards in less than 10 seconds.

In probably every football game I've seen someone has had to be helped from the field due to an injury, though on every ocassion prayers for health precede the contest. Most often it's not serious. Sometimes it is. Always, there is acceptance. When bodies, no matter how well-padded, crash into each other at full speed, some Football players know that, but ignore it, just like boxers never mention what happens to the brain when it's jarred against the rough surface of the inner skull. The thrill of accompishment transcends the danger involved in achieving it. They're willing to take the risk.

Our health is on the line during every moment of our existences. We can be hurt at any time and any place. I would venture to guess that more injuries occur on ice-covered porches each year than on football fields. Whether that is true doesn't matter, for I think we realize just how fragile we are.

Yet players don't run onto a football field thinking of ways to avoid being hurt. They come out looking for a way to use their bodies and minds to overcome barriers and achieve a goal.

In the big picture, who wins a football game matters very little. I'm sure. More important is the moment when the human, not the athlete, discovers his ability to overcome mental and physical barriers and attain a sought goal.

A leaping, fingertip catch means much more than a touchdown. It represents the immense capacity of the body and mind to stretch beyond its limits and those imposed to achieve that which it desires. It represents the rare moment when all is overcome.

When that moment is attained, its grandeur remains in the memory for as long as the mind and body live.

Football is dangerous. So is life. Football has better rules Football is of worth not because games are won and lost and claims of superiority are staked, but because it offers seldom-given chances to test limits of the body and mind. Is the risk worth it? Ask the linebacker who suffered a concussion while stopping his opponent cold on fourth-and-inches in the waiting minutes of a district champion ship game.

Ask the receiver knocked silly while catching a pass over the middle that set up the winning field goal. He will not say, "I got knocked silly." He will say, "I caught the pass. t two players to Ask the undermanned, winless team that injuries while knocking off the defending nation champions. They will say, "We beat the best." Ask Joe Theismann. "Hey, don't think you're going to get rid of me this quickly," he said. "I'll be back." Monday the bone of his right leg was sticking out of his sock.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Marxist leaders' double standard

Lost among all the hoopla last month at the United Nations 40th anniversary celebration was this sobering hought: representatives of the most impoverished nations seemed to be addicted to the most ostentatious and expensive — displays

Consider the case of Nicaraguan President Daniel Ortega, who used this session as he has others — to plead or aid for his less-than-thriving country and to enjoy the ruits of American free-market capitalism.

According to The New York Times, this fashionable Marxist bought himself six pairs of bulletproof lenses, hree pairs of Gucci frames for his wife "and three more Fioruccis for his daughter. The tab: $3.500.

This is not the first evidence unearthed that however nuch Marxists believe in sharing the wealth, they don't believe in sharing their wealth. It obviously hasn't taken Ortega long to assumes of trappings of the Somoza lynasty which he criticized for so long and eventually verthrew

While in town. Ortega hit all the right parties. He even vent on the Phil Donahue Show.

It's been said that you can fool all of the people some of he time and even some of the people all of the time, but golly, Danielito, do you really think you can fool all of the people all of the time

Ortega can't, of course. Many of his own people know e's a tyrant. If he keeps flaunting it as he did in New York, maybe the rest of the world will catch on as well.

55 mph law terrible idea

Rock star Sammy Hagar, who complains in his popular song that he "can't drive 55," is on to something. The 55-mile-an-hour national speed limit is a terrible idea. Not since the dark days of Prohibition has a government decree met with such widespread disobedience

People might be surprised to learn how we got stuck with 55. I know - I was there, as a special assistant in the US Department of Transportation. The limit was a product of the Emergency Conservation Act of 1974, a hastily written response to the "energy crisis." The Department, thrashing about for energy-saving ideas, hit upon a nationwide reduction in the speed limit

Quick studies were done to figure the energy-saving potential of speeds of 40, 50, 55, and 60 miles an hour. Not surprisingly, fuel savings increased as speeds decreased. After some dithering, Congress settled on 55, buying medium savings for medium political resistance. The wily Congress ensured compliance by threatening to withhold Highway Trust Fund monies for the interstate highway system from any recalcitrant

Today, with the energy crisis a dim memory, the case for 55 rests on an entirely different assertion - that 55 saves lives.

Even the most ardent safety advocate will agree that at some point a trade-off must be made between potential accident reduction and the smooth, efficient flow of transportation. If 55, pulled out of a hat in 1974, is the correct speed, it would be a miracle. Perhaps the optimal speed is 63.5 miles or 47 or even 75. We don't know. Such a calculation would be exceedingly difficult, as well as very expensive. But the lack of studies doesn't stop the pro-55 crowd from speaking that number in hushed, reverent tones.

Supporters of 55 were heartened by a recent much-heralded study by the National Academy of Sciences (NAS). Congress, reacting to the increasingly embarrassing level of nonadherence to 55 asked the NAS to study the benefits of the national speed limit.

Congress certainly got what it wanted from the study - media headlines picking up on its main recommendations all reported that these distinguished scholars had concluded that 55 should be retained. Yet the Academy's findings were not quite that simple.

In an excellent appendix to the NAS report, Charles Lave of the University of California at Irvine presented the results of a statistical analysis of the relationship between speed and the fatality rate. There is none. There is, however, a significant relationship between speed variance and the fatality rate. With this in mind, the Academy reported that it may be relatively unimportant if the average speed is higher or lower than 55, as long as all the traffic on a particular road moves along at about the same

The NAS also noted that the costs of 55 in lost time are much greater on rural interstate roads, which constitute the main intercity road system in the U.S. Why? Because these roads are generally built to the highest engineering standards and have relatively low traffic volumes, considering their capacity.

A sensible highway policy would take road quality and capacity differences like that into account. You don't have to be a civil engineer to know that there are some roads where 55 is a snail's pace and others where doing 55 is best left to Indy 500 drivers. Speed limits determined by local people familiar with roads, rather than the arbitrary whims of Washington bureaucrats, would best ensure the goal of safe, efficient transportation.

In addition, junking 55 could "unfreeze" highway technology that has languished since 1974. The essence of transportation - the search for greater speed at decreased costs in resources, safety, and investment - has been stifled for 11 years now. It's as if the government had decreed in the '50s that airplanes were going fast enough and no aircraft could surpass the speed of the DC-6. What a world of benefits would have been

The case against 55 is overwhelming, but help from our legislators in Washington does not appear to be forthcoming. There has been speculation that one of the western states that so strongly oppose the national speed limit may take matters into its own hands by repealing its state law, daring the federal government to cut off its highway funds. (And in fact, Arizonans are currently gathering signatures to force a statewide vote on 55.) Until then, millions of American motorists will continue to disregard this bothersome, arbitrary, and paternalistic law.

Alan E. Pisarski is a transportation consultant based in Washington, D.C. This article is adapted from the November issue of Reason magazine.

Case for ending farm price supports

By Robert Walters

MINNEAPOLIS (NEA) - During the 1930s, in the midst of the Great Depression, the federal government sought to aid the nation's desperate farmers by establishing what were supposed to be modest and temporary agricultural assistance programs.

They initially cost the country's taxpayers only one cent for every dollar of profit earned by the average farmer. Today, however, the federal treasury spends 43 cents to enable the typical farmer to make that same dollar.

Despite the soaring cost of the vast array of direct and indirect agricultural subsidies now in place, they have failed to achieve their principal goal to "save the family farm." Indeed, as federal farm programs have become more elaborate and expensive during the past half-century, the number of family farms has relentlessly declined - from 6.3 million in 1930 to 2.3 million today.

Earlier this year, the Minneapolis Star and Tribune, the largest daily newspaper serving the nation's North Central agricultural region, assigned a team of reporters to examine that paradox of escalating subsidies and farm failures.

After six months of study, including more than 100 interviews, the paper recently published its findings in an impressive and comprehensive series. Its principal conclusion:

Eliminating price supports — allowing the forces of the marketplace to set food prices - would not only save the taxpayers that enormous investment but would also slow the rise of food prices, thus saving America's food-buying public billions more dollars without endangering the food supply.

Acknowledging that "this is controversial stuff," the Star and Tribune presents a compelling case for serious evaluation of programs that have cost the nation's taxpayers $130 billion during the past 50 years and will require an additional $200 billion in government spending by the end of this century

During the past five years, federal agricultural subsidies totaling $52 billion have not prevented 100,000 farm failures. During the next five years, estimated outlays totaling $81 billion probably will not halt a trend that now produces an average of 66 farm abandonments every day.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture estimates that withdrawal of all price supports would lead to the elimination of one-fifth of all family farms by 1990 — but even if those programs remain intact, the same number of farms will disappear by 2000.

Total farm profits would plummet 40 percent or more in the years immediately following the abolition of support programs, according to USDA studies, but farmers who survive the trauma of that severe short-term economic dislocation would benefit from gradually rising profits in the ensuing Exports might increase by as much as 30 percent within two years, the USDA believes, because crop prices, which are now artificially inflated by support payments, would decline and become more competitive in the global marketplace.

The prices of agricultural implements, equipment and supplies, as well as of farm land, probably also would decline, enabling many young rural residents to begin farming careers that now are prohibitively expensive to start.

There would, however, be losers as well as winners. Bank failures in rural areas almost certainly would increase sharply and the economies of the approximately 200 counties in the Midwest most dependent upon agriculture would be temporarily devastated.

Many farm families would have to find new sources of financial support. but seven-eighths of them already earn more than half of their income from non-farm jobs

The elimination of federal subsidies is not a panacea but, as the Star and Tribune notes, continuation of the current extravagant programs "might delay some farm failures but it won't prevent them.

J.R. Ewing and millions of others help friends kick the habit

By LAWRENCE KILMAN Associated Press Writer

On a day set aside to kick the cigarette habit, smokers in Maryland sampled "cold turkey" ice cream, New Jersey students threw cigarettes into a coffin, and J.R. Ewing shed his villainy to help a woman have a smoke-free day.

It was the ninth annual "Great American Smokeout" Thursday, a day on which millions of smokers gobbled ice cream, licked lollipops and gritted their teeth to go at least 24 hours without a puff.

The American Cancer Society. which sponsored the event, said a preliminary survey showed that 19.7 million of the nation's estimated 55 million smokers tried to quit, up from 18.5 million in a preliminary survey last year.

Last year's estimate rose from 18.5 million to 20.4 million when a final survey was conducted five days after the event, and this year's figure is also likely to rise when the final poll is conducted

The Cancer Society's goal was to get one in five smokers to quit for the day, and the poll of 2,172 households indicated more thanone in three tried to quit. The number of those who succeeded won't be known until next week. To help the smokers, the Cancer Society encouraged non-smokers to "adopt" their friends for the day to provide moral support.

One of those who chose to 'adopt" a smoker was actor Larry Hagman, who plays J.R. Ewing in the prime-time soap opera, "Dallas." Hagman spent the day with Gretchen Orthen, a Santa Monica, Calif., nurse, whom he escorted around the "Dallas" set and took to lunch and a rally to keep her mind off smoking.

Texas University football coach Fred Akers was also "adopted" by his arch-rival, Baylor football coach Grant Teaff. Their teams will meet on the football field Saturday.

Teaff sent Akers a "survival kit" filled with green and gold items to help him stop smoking. Green and gold, of course, are the Baylor school colors, and the items included lollipops, a "growl towel" to chew on, and a shirt that says federal rescue of the faltering Farm Credit System if Congress agreed to reform the massive farm lending operation.

'The system does not now need the government's financial support in any fashion," Charles Sethness, an assistant treasury secretary, told the House Agriculture subcommittee on credit Thursday.

He and an Agriculture Department credit official reaffirmed the administration's opposition to an immediate bailout of the FCS, but endorsed provisions of a House bill to reorganize the lending system.

FCS reforms must be carried out before any federal assistance can be considered, they maintained.

Sethness said federal assistance to the FCS at this time "is the wrong approach, at the wrong time, leading to a possible wrong result.

Sethness and Frank Naylor, an undersecretary of agriculture, objected to the bill's provision for a backup line of federal credit for the FCS. Any amount of money could be provided at the discretion of the Treasury secretary to protect the financial stability of the farm lending system.

management decisions of the FCS. It also would establish a new Farm Credit Capital Corp. to act as a "warehouse" for bad loans and acquired properties. The new component within the FCS would provide a central pool of financing for quick aid to struggling system institutions.

Although Naylor recommended the committee approve the legislation without the financial aid provision, he made it clear that the administration's opposition to an immediate FCS bailout does not foreclose aid later if it is deemed necessary to avert a collapse of the lending system

The old mistrust in new bottles

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG AP Political Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) -President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev, couldn't report concrete progress in their post-summit assessments so instead they stressed mutual understanding. Even on that level it remains unclear how much trust exists between them.

"The world has become a more secure place." Gorbachev said in Geneva after the three-day summit.

"I gained a better perspective," Reagan told a joint session of Congress upon his return from Geneva. "I feel he did too."

Reagan also talked about "a new realism" and the need to "avoid illusions on our side" and to "dispel them on the Soviet side.

But illusions have played a big a role in U.S.-Soviet relations for the past 40 years and doing away with illusions may be just as difficult as breaking the deadlock over missile defenses

Both leaders offered pledges, heard from their predecessors, that they don't seek nuclear superiority.

Two charged in motel robbery-slaying

IRVING, Texas (AP) - Police are searching for a man and woman suspected of participating in a motel robbery that resulted in the execution-style slaying of a night clerk at a Holiday Inn near Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport. Investigative charges of capital murder were filed by police against Dorothy Jean Miller, 37, and Kennard Sonny Flowers Jr., 23, both of Irving, police said. They were held in lieu of $250,000 bond.

Two others were being held in connection with the case and a fifth was sought, authorities said.

Pete Phillips, regional manager of Brock Hotel Corp., operators of the inn, said Ms. Miller began working at the motel on Jan. 23 and left her job earlier this month.

Irving police Lt. Richard Bailey said the arrests were made in connection with the pre-dawn robbery last Saturday in which two clerks were bound and gagged, forced to lie down in a closet

want Delta jetliner crash lawsuits consolidated

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) wyers told a panel of judges that awsuits stemming from the crash a Delta Air Lines jetliner at Dallas-Fort Worth International rport should be consolidated for metrial action in one federal udicial district.

Lawyers for victims and survivors of the Aug. 2 crash and a Delta lawyer argued Thursday for consolidation of the cases before be U.S. Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation. The seven-judge panel considers notions involving cases in more han one district.

Most of the lawyers, including Delta attorney John Martin, avored consolidation in the Northern District of Texas, in which the crash occurred. Several others, representing victims and survivors from southern Florida, asked to have the cases consolidated there.

The panel took the requests under advisement.

The crash in a severe storm left 137 people dead. A total of 35 lawsuits have been filed in Texas, Florida, California, Utah and New York by survivors and families of victims, attorneys said. Most have been filed in Florida.

During a recent hearing of the National Transportation Safety Board, several witnesses found fault with the actions of air-traffic controllers, the pilots and the National Weather Service during the critical minutes before the Wind shear has been cited as a possible cause of the crash, but the board is not expected to make a ruling before next year. It would be most efficient and economical to hear pretrial matters in Dallas, where most witnesses to the crash and the storm are living, Martin said. "The bulk of the documentary evidence, the eyewitness evidence ... is in the Northern District of Texas," said Wendell Turley of Dallas, one of the plaintiffs' attorneys.

However, Chicago attorney Stephen Walker, who represents several victims' families, said the airline easily can afford to send its witnesses to Florida for depositions, but many of the survivors and relatives of victims cannot afford to go to Dallas.

Lee Kreindler, a New York ttorney representing the estates of several victims, said most of the cases will focus on problems on the ground, such as the availability of weather information at the airport. rather than defects in the aircraft. As a result, pretrial action should be in Dallas, he said.

Lawsuits involving most airline crashes have been based, for practical reasons, in the districts where the crashes occurred, Martin said.

The Texas district also has a shorter backlog of cases than the Florida district, Turley said.

Florida attorney John Krupnick said a large number of the plane's ngers were from southern Florida. He noted that three judges recently added to the Florida district are expected to lighten the backlog of cases there.

Kreindler said he expected to panel to issue its decision within about two weeks.

The Washington-based panel meets monthly. Every other month it meets in Washington and in between it rotates its meetings among different federal judicial

Economic optimism fades

AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) - TheCommerce Department has just announced that the economy was actually stronger in the third quarter than had been realized earlier, but you wouldn't guess it from the long face of small business Optimism continues to fade among so-called small businesses, a roughly defined category that includes companies ranging from small proprietorships to those with sales in the hundreds of millions of

Authority for the sober mood is the quarterly report of the National Federation of Independent Business, which surveys about 2,200 of its 500,000-plus membership under the scrutiny of Professor William Dunkelberg of

The optimism index dipped to ust 94.8 on a scale of 100, the latter figure being the level of confidence back in 1978. It wasn't simply the evel, but the extent of the decline oo, that drew the attention of

In all but one quarterly survey since the final one of 1982, for example, the index had been above 100, and it reached a survey high he survey was begun 10 years ago of 110.3 in the first quarter of

"Uncertainty and caution are indermining optimism," said Dunkelberg, who points out that he findings have an excellent ecord of foretelling economic events. The companies involved in he survey represent about half of he non-farm workforce and produce about 50 percent of the ross private product.

The results, said the professor, indicate a substantial slowing of economic acivity in the next six nonths. The percentage of companies expecting better business conditions during that time fell to Just 19 percent, compared with 30 percent a year ago and 58 percent arly in 1984. The percentage of companies expecting improvements in real sales fell five percentage points to 2 percent, while the percentage xpecting real sales declines ncreased in points to 28 percent of all companies.

All this suggests uncertainty, said Dunkelberg, and it "will undoubtedly be translated into lower spending and weaker hiring, reducing substantially the prospect that the economy will show much strength early next year.

Not all the news was glum The outlook for inflation remains good, with only 19 percent of companies planning price increases in the next three months. the lowest percentage recorded in the survey's history

But even this aspect of the economy has a shadow. "The good news about inflation may begin to fade," said the professor, who has been mentioned in published reports as being under consideration for the Federal Reserve Board. He offered several reasons for his verdict.

First, he said, competition from imports that had kept pressure on prices might begin to abate as the dollar declines in value.

"Inflation is not dead - only resting from the binge of the late 1970s," he stated in the report, adding that curtailing it will be difficult, "made tougher by our large deficits and our growing federal deficit.'

National conference will take a serious look at humor

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) - Coming from Hungary to Hawaii and from India to Italy, up to 1,000 scholars will gather in this area in 1986 and 1987 to deliberate - and joke about - humor

There's in-depth academic study of humor here, although that idea may sound pretty funny to the lay

The national humor conference will meet in Tempe for the fifth and last time around April Fool's Day next year, and the sixth international meeting will take place in the area for the first time a year later.

Nilsen will be the host for both conferences with his wife, Alleen Nilsen, assistant graduate college The two are founders of WHIM - World Humor and Irony Membership.

Previous international conferences were in Ireland and Subjects already on the 1987 agenda range from a talk entitled The Polish Joke," to "The Indispensability of Humor in China," as well as more abstract views of Jewish humor, South African jokes and a lack of humor among college administrators.

Unfortunately, not all those invited can attend, Nilsen said. For some governments, a humor conference is no laughing matter.

Scholars from many communist countries have been prohibited from attending, Nilson said. One professor from Yugoslavia enclosed a copy of a letter from his government which told him, "We have absolutely no confirmation you will return. That's too bad, says Nilsen. Some of the best humor research has come from Eastern Europe.

Humor, when the meaning is stretched beyond just a good joke, can be as influential as politics or science, Nilsen said.

"It's a good way to learn other people's ways of dealing with the language and other things," he Satire in books, newspaper columns and cartoons communicates the changing mores of society.

"Satire is a method of social criticism and influencing the political process, a way of balancing out society," he explained.

Humor has an undercurrent indicating social trends, he said. Jokes come into fashion quickly and then disappear; Nilson points out that jokes about drinking were dropped from Johnny Carson's monologue as the awareness of dangers of alcoholism and drunken driving increased.

Each nation has its own sense of humor that can be hilarious to the native but meaningless to the foreign visitor, Nilsen said. Jokes in the United States often have focused on the battle between the sexes, such as "women driver" jokes, or the mistrust between races and nations.

'Western and Eastern humor is different," Nilson said. "Western is sexist and racist. We're afraid the Italians are going to take our jobs or something, so they're put "In jokes in the Eastern bloc countries, your job is fairly secure but the humor is used on politicians, but it's underground humor; it's a way of coping.

Americans' sense of humor has changed lately, he said. "We don't tolerate racist, sexist, age-ist jokes so much anymore. It's not that we're becoming a lax society, it's that we're changing. "We have a different taboo system. We have more feeling you don't hear women driver jokes unless the person telling it is over 50 years old."

Something serious always belies a joke, he said. The humorous tale "is a non-confronting way of communicating that something is not socially acceptable. It's a way of controlling social behavior.

"A joke is a test of tension," Nilson said. "If you have joking between two groups, the best kind of joking is when there's moderate tension. If there's no tension - no humor.

Pampan elected to Baptist board

SAN ANTONIO - A Pampa resident was elected to a major position on one of the Texas Baptist Boards during the annual meeting of the 2.3 million member Baptist General Convention of Texas in San Antonio.

George W. Warren, minister of education and administration at Pampa's First Baptist Church, was elected to the Executive Board during the Nov. 5-7 convention.

Composed of pastors, church staff members and laypersons, the Executive Board conducts the business of the BGCT between annual sessions.

Institutions of the BGCT include eight universities, an academy, eight hospitals, four children's homes and four homes for the

This work is supported by the Convention's more than 4,900 churches and missions which will give about $60 million this year through the Cooperative Program for mission work at home and abroad.

Besides the institutions, the Convention helps support the work of about 7,200 missionaries in the United States and in more than 100 foreign nations.

Church to mark 53rd anniversary

The congregation of St. Mark's Christian Methodist Episcopal Church, 406 Elm, will observe the 53rd anniversary of the church with special services today and Sunday

Theme for the observance will be "Today, I will walk more closely with God," according to Pastor H. R. Johnson.

Services will be held at 7:30 p.m. today and at 3 p.m. Sunday.

Special guests tonight include Rev. James Mims of the New Zion Baptist Church of Borger, who will deliver the sermon; Rev. M. L. Williams of the Macedonia Baptist Church of Pampa, who will give the pulpit devotion; Rev. J. H. Blakemore of the Bethel Baptist Church of Borger, and Elder Hubert Kelly of the Holy Temple, Church of God in Christ, of Pampa. Rev. W. M. Scott will be master of ceremonies.

At the Sunday service, Rev. Ben will be the featured speaker, with Rev. V. C. Martin of New Hope Baptist Church as alternate.

Other guests will include Rev. James Warren of New Light Baptist Church, who will be the master of ceremonies; Rev. S. M. Berliner of Carter Chapter CME Church, and Elder E. T. Anderson of the Open Door Church of God in

Teens to attend Discipleship Day

Several teens from the Mary Ellen and Harvester Church of Christ will travel to Lubbock Christian College for Discipleship Day to be held Saturday on the campus.

The youth will leave this evening and return tomorrow afternoon. Special speakers at the campus will be Bobby Hise, Gary Evans and John Paul Blankenship, all of whom serve as youth ministers. The teens will tour the campus and learn about the opportunities and programs available at the college. Serving as sponsors for the trip are Keith and Joyce Feerer and Tom and Naomi Turner. On Wednesday evening, there will be a special devotional at the church at 7:30 p.m. Speakers will be men from the local congregation. Classes will not meet that evening.

Murray to speak

BORGER - William J. Murray, son of atheist Madalyn Murray O'Hair, will speak at 7 p.m. Saturday in Borger High School auditorium on a campaign to stop destruction of religious symbols in the nation's government - operated cemeteries

He began his campaign when he obtained a copy of an order issued by a federal judge to destroy a Houston park war memorial consisting of three crosses and a Star of David.

Having renounced his mother's atheism and Marxism, Murray is now a member of a Baptist church and a well - known evangelist. He has organized the Murray Faith Ministries in Dallas as a base for his work to keep Christianity in the United States.

Sandinistas taking on protestant churches

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) - New tensions are developing between the leftist Sandinista government and some Protestant churches here, after three years of calm.

Three Protestant ministers are in custody of state security agents for undisclosed reasons, and at least 11 others have been detained for two to three days and questioned in the past three weeks.

The tension started Sept. 29 when evangelicals here celebrated World Bible Day in a small stadium after obtaining the required permission from local poli7e.

Pro-Sandinista groups known as "turbas," or mobs, attempted to break up the meeting. There were several injuries in the fighting that followed.

The turbas are generally made up of zealous Sandinista youths who stage demonstrations against government critics. They have turned out principally against political opposition groups and Roman Catholic church rallies.

It not known why the turbas showed up at the Bible Day meeting Protestants make up about 10 percent of the population in predominantly Roman Catholic

In the first two years after the Sandinistas came to power in July 1979, several Protestant churches were assaulted by the turbas, who took over the buildings and charged that their pastors were trying to spread religious fanaticism.

Among the groups that were attacked in 1979 were the Jehovah's Witnesses, the Seventh-day Adventists and Pentecostalists. Some started to hold clandestine services so as not to attract attention The tension eased by 1982, and churches were returned to their religious leaders who again held services in them.

Criticism of evangelical or Protestant groups has increased in government news and broadcast media, joining the long-running complaints against the Roman Catholic hierarchy.

A Pentecostal pastor, who asked not to be identified for fear of reprisal, said in an interview that the Protestant churches in Nicaragua have split into pro-Sandinista and independent groups. He said the split is most noticeable among Baptist churches.

"The group of Baptist pastors that supports the Sandinistas directs the Committee for Aid for Development, and we belong to the National Council of Evangelical Pastors of Nicaragua," the pastor said in an interview. The first includes only Baptists, while Baptists and other groups form the second

"We think that certain sectors of the government would like the independent pastors to show political support for the government, but we believe that politics is not part of our earthly life," he said. The pastor said he had been detained for two days and kept naked in a small, dark and cold cell. He said he was questioned about political activities.

Boanerges Mendoza, a Baptist who leads the First Central American Church, remains in custody of state security agents. Eleven other council members were detained during the past three weeks and released, the Pentecostal pastor said.

Henry Lowd jokes about it. "People come from miles around to fall on our property," said the executive secretary for Randolph. Mass., a Boston suburb sued for $65,000 by a New Hampshire woman who fell at the town police

The threat of lawsuit is no laughing matter to municipalities, manufacturers, bars and others. The rise in litigation is a special burden to the nation's troubled insurance industry, which suffered a record $3.8 billion loss last year in part because of the constant drain of lawsuits.

People want to use the civil justice system to resolve the smallest dispute," said Richard Marrs, head of The Travelers Cos. claims department. "Neighbors who may have had a disagreement many years ago might have gotten together and worked it out. Today they want to get a lawyer.

Courts around the country have recorded an increase in the number and size of lawsuits:

 1,580 product liability suits were filed in federal district courts in 1974. Last year, the number was

The New Mexico Public Liability Fund reported that of $8 million in claims paid since 1976, $6.2 million was awarded in the

 In 1975, New York civil courts handled 12,842 liability cases. Last year the number reached 19,613. New York City paid $46.5 million in liability claims in 1980; this year the figure is $87.9 million.

Mark Peterson, a senior researcher with the Institute for Civil Justice, an affiliate of the Rand Corp., said civil cases in San Francisco and Chicago involving automobile accidents and "slips and falls" were giving way to more expensive product and government liability suits.

"These are high-stake suits that are increasing in frequency," said Peterson. "That is meaningful because of the risks insurance companies face.

Many point to court interpretations that have expanded the definition of liability.

The California Supreme Court, in 1975 and 1978 rulings, held that injured parties who shared the blame could still sue another responsible party that was only partially to blame.

San Diego County recently was ordered to pay $2.5 million to a man paralyzed when a friend's car missed a curve and rolled over. Although the two men were judged at fault for speeding, drinking and smoking marijuana, the county, judged 10 percent at fault for failing to install curve markers. had to pay all damages because the driver had no insurance.

Social issues seek their day in court. The national concern over drunken driving has brought rulings that liquor establishments are responsible for actions of patrons who become intoxicated and later are involved in accidents.

Plaintiffs now take alternative routes to sue state and local officials who are often protected against suits by state law.

'Anytime we get a slaying involving a policeman, no matter what the circumstances, I can guarantee we eventually will get a civil rights lawsuit filed," said Joe Seat, executive director of the Tennessee Municipal League.

Some states are trying to limit the size of court awards.

Montana limits punitive damages to 1 percent of the defendant's total assets or $25,000, whichever is greater. Michigan lawmakers are considering a $250,000 ceiling on non-economic awards

Insurance executives say the public must choose between such controls and ever higher insurance

"The public gets a vicarious satisfaction seeing these million-dollar awards," said Richard Earley, an assistant vice president with Aetna Live and Casualty Co. "But sooner or later we've got to at least recover our costs and we're going to do it as an industry or we're going to go

Polynesian art being preserved

By SUSAN MANUEL Star-Bulletin

HONOLULU (AP) -Cannonballs can really clutter up a coffee-growing field, so when a Kona farmer wanted to get rid of two in 1952, he sold them to W. Dudley Child Jr. for $30 apiece.

Art collector Charles Mack picked up a Hawaiian stick god on Cape Cod for $5. A few years later he parted with it, "doing someone a favor," at $45,000.

When Leo and Lillian Fortess landed in the Marquesas in 1940 on a schooner chartered by fellow University of Chicago students, they found natives desperate for tools and clothes. Isolated by the World War, the islanders offered the students every heirloom in their homes, thus launching the largest private collection of primitive art now in Hawaii. Collecting ancient Polynesian art takes wanderlust, luck or money, the nose and eyes of a detective, and extensive research.

"We're acquisitive," say Fortess. "We went at it with a vengeance.

It wasn't for money. Fortess calls his pieces his "children apart from our organic children." Clubs, paddles and masks, faces and figures line the wall of his home. Bowls and pig boards sit on floors and beds. Kahuna cups, poi pounders and small images line shelves. Books and catalogs fill rooms. Furniture is minimal.

Fortess feels the pieces would have been lost if he and his wife hadn't retrieved them

'It was almost like a mission," he says. 'Your average Hawaiian gave tourists a fine old calabash. It ends up in I-o-wee, first three months with fruit on a table, then down to the basement holding potatoes.

Collectors, says Mack, can be childish and egotistic, driving prices to unreasonable heights to claim a coveted object at an auction. They can be sentimental. Tahitian Imports owner Don Severson, whose antique books and paintings on Hawaii line his Kakaako office, had been looking for a particular kind of book, a private diary put together by some early visitor to Hawaii. A contact in England alerted him to a recent sale, and now he brings out the tiny volume as if introducing a precious friend

The book holds patches of tapa ls a child's life worth a phone call? You decide. Prevent child abuse Call 669-6806

Severson matched to pieces of dresses collected from Capt. James Cook's voyages, sewn to the bottom of each page by a suitor for his lover, around 1790. For this Severson paid $1,500.

There are the near-misses, the self-flagellation after underbidding or taking a catnap while a find walks by

"I was 20 minutes late for a major stick figure," says Mack, 1963 when the call came

Bishop Museum paid $5,000 to a pig hunter from Maui who found it when he fell into a cave. Ten years ago I could have gotten $1 million for that piece. Mack comes here every few months to visit his shop, Ancestral Arts, hidden on a side street in Waikiki. He is a former Harvard University mammalogist and curator of Peabody and zoology museums.

At his shop he has few ustomers and doesn't want the hordes from Kalakaua ogling the rare pre-Columbian, Polynesian and early Asian and African art. Here a connoisseur can plunk down $45,000 for a Solomon Island canoe prow or buy the smoke-cured head - moku (tattoos) and hair intact - of a Maori chieftain.

west - to the American Northwest, New England and London to find the early art of the Pacific.

'Most important objects were brought out of Hawaii by missionaries and seafarers in the mid to late 19th century, to places like Salem, Mass.," says Mack.

Once found in attics and basements, most objects now appear at auctions at Sotheby's and Christie's in London or in dealers' catalogs.

Mack bemoans a lack of interest here for ancient Hawaiian things. Still, a small community of collectors has existed here for years. Real estate broker Watters Martin and his family, descendants of Hawaiian royalty, look mainly for pieces from their cultural past "Unfortunately, we have to buy most of it back," says Martin. To some collectors the stories behind an object, its 'provenance," and the hands it has passed through can add to its value. Mack feels art should be judged on aesthetics alone. The highest price on a Hawaiian object, $514,000 for an 11-inch image, was paid in 1978. The ferocious little figure, god or sorcerer, may be the only complete example of its kind in existence. That and the fact it came with Cook make it valuable, says Mack.

The test pilot — an image comes to mind of a hell-for-leather wildman with flapping scarf, bulging eyes and a penchant for maniacal feats of derring-do. But for Bob Kromer, an engineering test pilot for Mooney Aircraft Corp. of Kerrville, that image is almost laughable. We're not the Chuck Yeager type. That's military stuff," Kromer said. "You wouldn't want a Boeing 727 developed by a military test pilot.

Kromer said his job is much more down to earth. There's no place for hot-dogging or aerial acrobatics in his line of work.

"We're not stunt pilots. We're looking for handling qualities how does the airplane feel? They have to be tuned to the average pilot ... We're looking at the safety (characteristics) for the average pilot.

For the more dangerous assignments - which Kromer refers to as "critical flight tests" he takes more precautions.

"We wear a chute for a first flight, simply because we don't know what's going to happen," Kromer said.

Test pilot has down-to-earth job

Other equipment for these critical tests includes an oxygen mask and tank, a glossy red crash helmet with pull-down visor and a radio headset.

But so far, Kromer said, he hasn't had any really frightening experiences while testing - "no engine failures, no fires. We look at potential problems before we fly.

A large porion of a test pilot's job is done on the ground. After every test flight, several hours are spent in data reduction, or assimilating informaion accumulated during flight. The computer is "one of the most important tools in testing," Kromer said

Kromer said a flight test precedes the design-team's final efforts. "Our job is one of testing and evaluating the final changes on the airplane. My job is to see if these ideas work Mooney's design and testing operation is very much a team effort, Kromer said "My job is kind of the most glamorous, but it's just one step in a team effort. There are also design engineers. propulsion engineers aerodynamicists and the experimental shop mechanic.

Most of Mooney's flight testing is done between Kerrville and Junction at altitudes between 1,000 and 28,000 feet. Kromer said

Kromer, an aerospace engineering graduate of Texas A&M University, worked for six years at Cessna in Wichita, Kan., and for two years at Fairchild Aircraft Co. in San Antonio before coming to Mooney in 1983.

In the end, Kromer said, the Federal Aviation Administration is the "final authority on whether an airplane is good or not good. The FAA has specific rules and requirements that we have to meet. Mooney goes beyond that + we view the FAA requirements as the minimum. We make it handle better, feel better than it has to."

By KATHRYN BAKER Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - A caution for Mexican-Americans: becoming more Anglo could be hazardous to your health.

That is one message that can be gleaned from preliminary findings of an ambitious Hispanic health survey presented by researchers in a series of talks Tuesday and Wednesday at the convention of the American Public Health Association.

Thousands Mexican-Americans living in the Southwest were interviewed and examined in 1982 and 1983 for information on such potential health risks as smoking. cholesterol levels, hypertension, overweight and contraception.

The preliminary findings showed, with some variance for age groups and sex, that Mexican-Americans who identified more with Mexican culture smoked less, weighed less, had lower cholesterol and less hypertension.

Public Health specialist Robinson Fulwood, who presented the paper on cholesterol levels, said preliminary findings showed that Mexican-Americans generally had lower cholesterol levels than whites, who had the highest, or

The level of cholesterol increased as the Mexican-Americans became more "acculturated," or adopted lifestyles more like their non-Hispanic neighbors.

The acculturation score was based on questions about language understood, used and preferred; ethnic identity; ethnic identity of parents; place of birth; and where one's parents were born.

"Mexican-Americans who were less acculturated, poor and less educated had lower mean serum cholesterol levels. Why this is true needs to be examined and will be the subject of future analyses,' said Fulwood.

Mexican-American women had higher cholesterol levels than Mexican-American men, which Fulwood theorized could be related to stress.

We can look at the lifestyle of Mexican-American women being enclosed in the home they tend to be quite depressed sometimes," he said.

Mexican-Americans also had generally lower hypertension rates than non-Hispanics, said the researchers. Hypertension was higher among

Mexican-American males than females, but the females had greater awareness of their condition, the study suggested. The acculturation factor did not

Mexican-American women smoked more as they became more Americanized, from 19 percent for the most Mexican-oriented to 28 percent for the most U.S. culture-oriented, "suggesting that as Mexican-American women adopt U.S. lifestyles, they're more likely to smoke cigarettes and become at higher risk of developing smoking related diseases," said Ms. McMillen.

There was "no such clear trend" for Mexican-American men, she said.

Smoking rates for both groups went down with higher education. One in three Mexican-Americans is overweight, compared to one in four for Anglos and blacks, according to the research. Mexican-American men who were bi-cultural or more U.S. culture-oriented were about 10 percent more likely to be overweight.

Decorating your home for the holiday season is something that can be difficult and time consuming or fairly easy and lots of fun. It depends a good deal on how much ladder - climbing, wall nailing, sticky greenery - grabbing, etc., you have to do.

And even if you go to a lot of trouble over it, the results can look too bare or way too overdone if vou're not careful.

My theory has always been, a country - style theme carried out in lots of fabric projects not only makes your house look warm, cheerful, inviting and seasonal, but is very little hassle to carry out. It also creates a nice counterpoint to the glitter and sparkle of lights and tinsel.

Take these joy pillows, for instance. They can be made in little time - only an afternoon or two at the most - and they're quite inexpensive. To use them you simply place them on your couch! Could decorating be easier? And judging from the compliments I've received, what could be more effective?

Each of the joy pillows consists of a patchwork front, a solid back and a large gathered or pleated ruffle around the edges. The patchwork front consists of a center panel with one of the letters "J," "O," or "Y" appliqued to it; and side, top and bottom borders. You can use 20-inch pillow forms for the insides, or just stuff the appliqued covers with fiberfill.

To make all three pillows, I used the following amounts of 44-inch-wide fabric: 11/4 yards of green calico; 4% yards of red cotton, ½ yard of cream-colored cotton, 1/2 yard of green cotton, and % yard of red calico.

For each pillow, cut one letter, one back piece 21 inches square. one front panel 13 inches square, one top and one lower border 5x21 inches, two side borders 5x13 inches, and five ruffle sections 9x44

To assemble one pillow, first applique one of the letters to the center of the front panel. There are several different applique methods you can use, the easiest being to cut a matching piece of fusible interfacing material and iron the

To assemble the ruffle, piece together the five ruffle sections end to end so that you have one very long strip. Fold it in half lengthwise, placing wrong sides together, and press. Press the raw blanket stitches around the edges.

Press the side borders outward,

If you want a gathered ruffle, baste clse to the aligned long raw edges and pull the threads to gather. I opted to fold it into pleats as I pinned it to the assembled pillow front. Pleat or gather, and baste the ruffle to the pillow front, aligning the raw edges with the outer pillow edge.

Stitch the pillow back to the front, with right sides together and the ruffle sandwiched between. If you are using a purchased pillow form for the inside, leave one complete edge open. If you are going to stuff the appliqued pillow cover, leave an opening just large enough for turning.

Clip the corners, turn the pillow cover right side out and press the seam allowances to the inside along the open edge or opening. Insert the pillow form or stuff with fiberfill, and blindstitch the using our complete, illustrated plans. They include a materials list, full-size patterns, step-by-step instructions and assembly

Blind boy's special legacy is precious gift of sight By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: This is for that people who say they have the same lady whose family wouldn't sign the papers for her to donate her organs after she died:

I had a brother and his name was Andy. He was 9 years old. He was blind and paralyzed. Andy died last August. His blindness was caused by brain damage, so he could donate his corneas. Some people told me they thought that was gross, and I told them, "It was not gross because now somebody can see. They can really see!" It doesn't hurt so much knowing that Andy died because his dying did somebody some good. A 9-yearold boy who was blind and paralyzed was able to make somebody see. I am 11 years old and already decided that I want to donate my organs after I die.

That lady in Texas who wanted her organs donated but couldn't get her family to sign for her should tell her family, "Just because you are against something doesn't give you the right to decide for everybody

JILL TURNER

DEAR JILL: Thank you for stating a principle that deserves to be carved in stone. You have centuries of wisdom stored in that 11-year-old head. Please write again and send me your address. I have a gift for you.

DEAR ABBY: A friend of mine and I work at the same location about 30 miles out of town. Since he doesn't own a car, and it wasn't really out of my way to pick him up and take him home, I was only too happy to have him ride along.

It's been a year now, and these thoughts have crossed my mind: I am spending $250 a month on car payments and $45 a month on gasoline. Meanwhile, my friend is saving a bundle.

I've spoken with a number of

However, we find it hard to put our feet down because we really aren't going out of our way to pick up these riders. Please print this.

NOT A TAXI

DEAR NOT: A person who "rides along" daily should not have to be prompted to give the driver a gift, or fill the gas tank occasionally. But since your passenger apparently needs a small needle, I'm printing your letter and hope it penetrates.

DEAR ABBY: I am an introvert. I cherish my privacy and try to protect it whenever possible. My sister-inlaw is coming to town for 10 days, and she's written to tell me-not ask me, but to tell me-she is going to sleep on my couch!

Abby, the couch is in the middle of the living room, and if she sleeps there she will disrupt my privacy. She's a late sleeper, and I have to get up at 6:30 a.m. to bathe, breakfast and dress for work in the morning.

This sister-in-law lives 2,000 miles away and I barely know her. I would not want my best friend sleeping in the middle of my living room for 10 days-or even overnight!

The cost of a motel is no problem. Her brother (my husband) thinks this is OK. Am I wrong to resent it? NO NAME, NO CITY

DEAR NO NAME: Of course you're not wrong to resent it. If you wrote to get my approval to be resentful, you have it. Get in touch with her as soon as possible and don't ask her-tell her that you're making motel reservations for her.

By GENA WALLS

Holidays give the opportunity for continuity in our lives. This Thanksgiving could be the day to begin a tradition of your own to be carried forward by your descendents. A tradition, according to Webster's New Collegiate Dictionary, is "the handing down of information. beliefs, and customs by word of mouth or by example from one generation to another without written instruction." We need to vary that definition by actually writing the event in our family history book.

Thank you to all the readers that sent me your Thanksgiving traditions and for your willingness to share! Some people are celebrating the holiday

-"having a Thanksgiving breakfast or brunch and each family member prepares a dish."

-"with the children selecting a special adult to share the dinner with the family. Last year my youngest wanted to invite her school teacher and since the teacher was single without family in the area, it was an excellent holiday for both families.

-"we have two guests each Thanksgiving, a friend and a relative to spend the day.'

Would you like to have Thanksgiving dinner with me? The menu is "hot dogs." This tradition happened accidentally when for several years our moves occurred during the holidays and we would stop while traveling at a fast food restaurant for a hot dog. It was a joke with my family and the teasing eventually made it impossible to have anything other than the American favorite - the hot dog

Another tradition, and one I hope you will consider as part of your own this year, is each Thanksgiving Day I call someone just to say how thankful I am that they are a part of my life. Some years this call has been to a family member, a long distance call to a friend, a new acquaintance, and last year to my next door neighbor.

Who will you call? When you decide, tell that person about the tradition and ask that the next year they help you pass it along by calling someone else.

HAPPY TURKEY! (Oops!) HAPPY HOT DOG!

Puppy love could be next craze

FRANKLIN, Ohio (AP) - The soft-sculpture Cabbage Patch dolls have some canine rivals in this year's toy displays, and the Pound Puppies are helping to scratch out a living for their designer, Franklin resident Mike Bowling.

Bowling, 36 and a native of Mogadore in notheastern Ohio, has been able to retire from his hourly iob at Ford Motor Co. and currently spends most of his time on promotional tours.

'For a guy who considered going to McDonald's and the movies a good evening out, this is something else," Bowling said in a recent interview. "The biggest change that all this success has brought is that I don't have time for me anymore. Bowling came up with the Pound Puppies design less than a year ago, during the same Christmas season in which most people were battling in store aisles for the funny-faced Cabbage Patch dolls.

The Tonka Corp., based in Spring Park, Minn., predicts it will sell 3 million pups by yea and variety stores in the Akron area "We are at a point now where we aren't taking any more orders,' said Cindy Graves, a Tonka product representative.

Bowling said he got the idea for the puppy doll after buying his wife a soft-sculpture doll

"I started wondering what else has the same appeal as kids, and I decided it was puppies," he said. He began production with the help of family, including daughters Michelle, 16, and Angela, 14, and

The first customers were co-workers. Local publicity was followed by a national television appearance. Then came the requests from toy companies for the rights to his puppies.

"My life has been a blur this last year," he said.

Study of monarch butterflies is satisfying

EDITOR'S NOTE - William S. Herman of the University of Minnesota knows his studies of the monarch butterfly won't earn him a Nobel Prize or lead to any major scientific breakthroughs. But for him it is intellectually satisfying. This is the first in a series of occasional stories about the men and women pursuing basic science. driven by the urge to know rather than the quest for a practical application.

By MALCOLM RITTER AP Science Writer

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) - Gently, ever so gently, each of the L-shaped probes reached into the opening at the back of the butterfly's neck. With slight movement, they drew apart the shiny muscles like stagehands drawing a curtain.

Beneath them, against the background of the unconscious animal's pulse, two white specks in the head were barely visible through a microscope. They were glands that produce a hormone. less than one millionth of an ounce at a time. But that's enough to transform a butterfly's life - and create years of work for William S.

After 15 years of researching the hormones of the monarch butterfly, Herman says collaborating in the discovery of evidence that the hormone from those glands regulates the monarch ovary was one of the peaks in his career. It ranks up there with his later demonstration of a diuretic hormone in monarchs.

This is the stuff of publications like the Journal of Insect Physiology, rather than the newspapers or television. But for Herman, 54, chairman of the genetics and cell biology department at the University of Minnesota, that's not the point.

"I'm not driven by the possiblity of major popular breakthroughs, he says. "I don't expect any Nobel Prizes out of it. I don't expect to cure cancer or get rid of mosquitoes.

"I would like to understand the monarch in great detail: what it does, and when it does, and why it does, and how. I find it intellectually satisfying to begin to learn some of the details for the life cycle of this animal.

Herman is pursuing basic science, which is driven by the urge to know, rather than applied science, which is aimed at producing a useful result. Basic science can appear to be useless. Sen. William Proxmire awarded his first Golden Fleece award for alleged waste of taxpaver money for an $84,000 study of why people fall in love.

But the web of scientific knowledge is so inter-connected that research can pay off in unexpected ways. For example, magnetic resonance imaging, a technique for producing detailed images of human anatomy without surgery or x-rays, came from basic research in physics. In the space program, research into a high-tech 'sniffer" to detect life on Mars helped produce a device that warns of industrial gas leaks.

Herman's butterfly research may someday contribute to pest

In any case, Herman clearly enjoys the role of monarch expert. He describes with relish the colorful flash of a flock of startled butterflies. He brakes abruptly on a residential street to point out a hedge where monarchs might gather. He gives live monarchs for Christmas presents.

"From any point of view," Herman said in his office as a monarch spread its wings over his fingers in brilliant, stained-glass splendor, "that's a magnificent

He chose them for much more mundane reasons when he sought to study hormones in butterflies and moths. Monarchs were large and therefore easy to work with, readily available, well described in research literature and known to migrate - an urge generally controlled by hormones.

Early on, a graduate student working with Herman found that a female monarch emerges from its cocoon-like chrysalis without

WARREN HASSE

APPROXIMATELY 198 HEAD coaches are left to nervously pace the sidelines this weekend in Texas schoolboy football. The rest are either checking in and inventorying equipment or working on a game plan to "Mark Out Mark' in next year's gubernatorial race.

Among those involved in the inventorying process is coach John Kendall, who has just completed his fourth term at the Harvester helm. The final result wasn't all that the players and coaching staff had hoped for, with defense, as last season, being a major problem early. Then, when the defense was adjusted and functioning, the motor went dead on the offense. This resulted in an overall 3-7 record and 2-4 district mark which provided a fifth place finish, ahead of Canyon and Dumas.

The 142 points PHS produced was the best scoring effort in Kendall's four years; but the 214 the defense allowed was the second worst. That offense, which provided five touchdowns in the fifth-game conference opening victory, could manufacture only a total of five more touchdowns in the final five games, one of which was won.

The season marked the tenth as a head coach for Kendall, and reduced the fine 44-22 record he brought with him from Liberal to 54-50-2. And the four year effort at PHS stands at 10-28-2, along with an 8-16-2 mark in district 1-4A play. A strong pre-district non-conference schedule has been a major factor in overall negative statistics, exemplified by the fact that only Monahans of the pre-conference foes failed to reach the playoffs, being edged out by San Angelo Lakeview.

Kendall's first Pampa squad, the 1982 team which initiated play at the 4A level, finished 1-7-2, scoring only 59 points while allowing 159. The 1983 group has been his best, going 5-5, tieing for third in district, scoring 126 points and allowing 128. Last year, injuries helped provide a dismal 1-9 mark, only 67 points while giving up 263.

Among the 16 coaches to have headed Pampa football fortunes in the "modern" era, Kendall's 10 wins makes him the eighth to win in double digits and one less than Otis Holliday. The 28 defeats is the most suffered by any PHS football coach, one more than Babe Curfman. Otis Mitchell leads the alltime victory list with 66. Following are Tom Tipps 54, John Welborn 27, Otis Coffey 23, Robert Lee 19, Buck Prejean 14, and Holliday. Winning percentagewise, Tipps was the best, having won 75 percent of his games. Following in order are Prejean, Mitchell, Danny Palmer, Coffey and Welborn, the only ones over the .500 mark. The 11 shutouts PHS has sustained in the last four years is only one less than the dozen whitewashes

D, 70 Curfman's teams sustained. Of all the coaches to have headed the Pampa program, only the currently active Kendall, and one-year mentor Palmer, now an assistant at UT-Arlington, are still in the business

This year also marked the 56th since 1930 when reasonably accurate record-keeping began. Twenty-five of those have been winning seasons, 26 losing, and five break-even efforts. During that period, Pampa has played 582 games, winning 278, losing 304, and playing 10 ties. Pampa's defense administered 87 shutouts and PHS sustained 102 in that time. And finally, to close out the statistical revue, over that 56 years Pampa has scored 9,462 points, an average of 16.3 per game, while giving up 9,933, an average of 17.1 per contest.

Now, best we pack all these records alongside the helmets, pads, shoes and uniforms and let them rest until next August.

PLAYOFF PATTER: The Wheeler Mustangs, who meet Vega at 7:30 tonight at Harvester Park, carry the best chance of bringing a state title back to the Panhandle. Congrats to the Pampa Chamber of Commerce, working with the PISD Athletic Department, in obtaining playoff games the past two weekends...It has been a record-setting season in schoolboy action, with team and individual marks established in almost every classification already. One to fall was the Big School single season scoring record. Houston Yates, ranked No. 1 in the state in 5A, struck for 452 points in 10 games, bettering the 1981 record of 439 by El Paso Bel Air. That school nipped a mark of 430 set by Amarillo HS in 1957...The playoffs provide opportunity for high school gridders to perform in the state's finest football houses, with games this weekend slated for such facilities as the Astrodome, Texas Stadium, Cotton Bowl, Baylor Stadium, Sun Bowl, Jones Stadium, and top high school and municipal facilities...It is a once-in-a-lifetime chance for most of the players, as well as their coaches. No other state in the nation can offer as much...The worst record to reach the playoffs was Hale Center's 3-6-1, followed closely by Van Horn at 4-5 and River Road with 4-4-2...Texas Stadium hosted three games last weekend, one this week. The Dome held six games last weekend, including four on Saturday. Four are scheduled there this weekend. Surprisingly, those two enclosed facilities offer better financial arrangements than some colleges...All defending state champions are still in action. However, 5A co-champion Beaumont French (which tied Odessa Permian 21-21 last year) didn't get out of district...Borger, Perryton, Sanford-Fritch and Phillips also represent the Panhandle area in 11-man play...Does anyone miss Canadian Football on TV? For that poor soul, Hamilton faces British Columbia Sunday for the Grey Cup.

Teams prepare for 'Bandage Bowl'

The Los Angeles Raiders are missing their starting safeties. The Denver Broncos are down to two running backs. But both teams guarantee to show up Sunday when they meet in the Bandage Bowl at the Los Angeles Coliseum with first place in the AFC West at stake.

"You have to be strong enough to overcome those obstacles and go on," said Coach Tom Flores. whose Raiders trail the Broncos by a game in one of the National Football League's toughest divisions. The two teams will meet again in Denver in two on injured reserve with a torn achilles tendon and both Vann McElroy and Mike Davis from the secondary. Davis was placed on injured reserve last week. McElroy tried to play for the first time in a month, aggravated a hamstring injury and is doubtful for Sunday.

Sean Jones replaces Alzado with Odis McKinney and Stacey Toran at the safeties

The Broncos, meanwhile, are without Sammy Winder, their top running back, who underwent arthroscopic knee surgery Tuesday, and Gene Lang, who has a sprained ankle. They tried to activate Rich Parros from injured reserve, but he was claimed on waivers by Seattle.

That leaves Gerald Willhite and rookie Steve Sewell to carry the ball against the Raiders.

The New York Jets and the New England Patriots go at it again Sunday with the American Football Conference East lead at stake - and Freeman McNeil's hurt again.

McNeil, who probably is the National Football League's best running back this season, missed the last meeting with bruised ribs and the Patriots won, 20-13 at Foxboro.Last week, he added a turned ankle to the still-sore ribs and is considered 50-50 for Sunday's game at Giants Stadium, in which e Jets are favored by

The Patriots have won six straight games since Steve Grogan took over at quarterback. They've allowed no more than 15 points in any of them.

The Jets scored 62 points against Tampa Bay last week, the last three quarters of with they played without McNeil. And when someone as important as McNeil is 50-50, it probably means he'll play.

Baylor bucking history

BAYLOR BUCKING By DENNE H. FREEMAN AP Sports Writer

The Baylor Bears will be bucking history on Saturday when they try to barge into the Cotton Bowl with a victory over the Texas Longhorns.

The 15th ranked Bears haven't beaten Texas in Austin since 1951 but they'll have to if they want to make their third Cotton Bowl visit.

The Bears have a high-scoring offense and are ninth in the country in scoring defense.

"This game is what we've worked for since the end of last season," said Baylor Coach Grant Teaff. "We made a commitment then. It went through the spring and summer and into two-a-days. I'm very pleased and excited to be in this position.

"We've worked hard to become a good team and we have. How good we really are we'll find out Saturday.

Baylor was a two-point pick by the oddsmakers over Texas for the 12:04 p.m. regionally (Raycom) televised game. In other SWC clashes, Texas Tech was a one-point underdog in Coach Jerry Moore's final game at the Astrodome in Houston against the Cougars; Arkansas was a one-point favorite over Southern Methodist in Fayetteville; and Texas A&M was a 21-point pick over Texas Christian in Fort Worth. Rice is idle this week.

The Razorbacks are expected to be Holiday Bowl bound while the Bluebonnet Bowl is interested in either Texas A&M or Baylor Texas Coach Fred Akers said the Bears are a very talented team.

"The Bears have as much talent as anybody," said Akers. "They have tremendous speed and quickness, and their quarterbacks are experienced, skilled operators. It will be a real challenge.

Akers said he is proud of his team which has only one SWC loss just like the Bears.

"Our team has come a very long way from the time it was picked in the bottom division of the conference race," said Akers.

Aggies, Cardinals fall in first round of NIT tourney

HOUSTON (AP) - The Duke Blue Devils, ranked No. 6 in The Associated Press preseason college basketball poll, admit they didn't roll out a finished product in Thursday night's first round game of the NIT Big Apple pereseason basketball tournament All they ask is time.

It looked like we had a few first game jitters," Duke Coach Mike Kryzyzewski said. "We haven't developed into a cohesive unit.'

Duke had just finished beating back the last charge by the Lamar Cardinals for a 66-62 victory that put the Blue Devils into Sunday's second round against Alabama-Birming.am, which also had a close call before defeating Texas A&M 71-68.

The winner of Sunday's game advances to the semifinals in New York's Madison Square Garden.

'We weren't as sharp as we have been," said David Henderson, whose 18 points led the Blue Devils. "We're going to be a different ball club than we showed tonight before

Duke had to battle for a 32-30 halftime lead against the Southland Conference Cardinals and fought to a 56-49 lead with 6:43 to play. But Lamar just wouldn't quit. Two free throws by James Gulley with 32 second to play, cut Duke's lead to 62-60. The Blue Devils wouldn't quit either and finally sealed the victory with four free throws in the final 17 seconds by Henderson and Johnny Dawkins sealed Lamar's Henderson scored 18 points to lead Duke and Dawkins scored 14. The Cardinals had balanced scoring with 14 points each from Anthony Todd, Karl McCauley and James Gulley.

"We've been involved in a lot of close games the past four years and we've got a senior team," Duke's Mark Alarie said. "We were able to get the key free throws at the end and didn't feel the pressure like a younger team would. That's why we won." The Cardinals never got into their offensive pattern, Coach Pat

'We could not run our offense like we wanted to at any time tonight," Foster said. "Their defense just did a super job."

Alabama-Birmingham blew a 16-point, 39-23 halftime lead against the Aggies and had to depend on Jerome Mincy, who scored eight of his 16 points in the final 4:41 of the game, and 24 points from guard Steve Mitchell.

"I tried to concentrate and make my shots," Mincy said. "Fortunately, I made some key baskets and the free throws. A&M is one of the most physical teams I've ever played. It was really rough.

Mincy had two three-point plays and a tie-breaking basket in his clutch run.

A&M guard Don Marbury, held scoreless in the first half, finished with 24 points and fueled the Aggies

Laker win streak halted

It wasn't in Doug Moe's playbook, but he was willing to take credit for it.

Wayne Cooper, with only one other field goal to his credit during the game, hit a 20-foot jump shot with four seconds left to give the Denver Nuggets a 121-120 victory over the Los Angeles Lakers Thursday night.

The loss ended a seven-game winning streak for the defending National Basketball Association champion Lakers (11-2). The Nuggets hadn't beaten the Lakers in Denver in 10 games since Jan. 19, 1982.

'It was a perfectly designed play for Coop," Moe said, unable to hide the irony in his face. "He was 1-for-7 and the last guy to throw the

In the other games scheduled, Portland defeated the Los Angeles Clippers 112-108 and Milwaukee clobbered Sacramento 131-97.

"We didn't gear up for Cooper's shot," Lakers Coach Pat Riley said. "He did what he had to do and he buried it.'

The Lakers had a final chance to win the game, but Kareem Abdul-Jabbar missed a jumper from the corner, and Earvin "Magic" Johnson's rebound shot also missed.

Alex English led Denver with 30 points and Calvin Natt had 23, Mike Evans 22 and Bill Hanzlik 21.

Abdul-Jabbar had 10 of his game-high 32 points in the fourth quarter and reserve forward Maurice Lucas contributed 10 key points in the last quarter.

Coach advertises for players

By HAL BOCK AP Sports Writer

The idea, Coach Steve Fickert said, came during a brainstorming session at which the athletic department at Upper Iowa University was deciding just where it might find enough bodies to field a football team this fall.

Fickert had been hired in March, just after the time most high school prospects thinking about Division III programs have made up their minds about colleges. So recruiting would not help. He was inheriting a program that had eight returning players from a 1-9 team. So the answer was not lettermen.

"Starting that late, I was faced with a numbers problem," Fickert To solve it, Upper Iowa University advertised.

"Wanted: College Football Players," the ad in the Chicago Sun-Times began. "Make your the opportunity to take a dreams come true. Play football program that's been down for for a university that is dedicated to excellence in education and has made a strong commitment to its athletic program.'

The ad offered first class uniforms, "equal in quality to those worn by the Dallas Cowboys and similiar in design and color to the University of North Carolina And it offered expert coaching.

Fickert's credentials include stops at the University of Texas, where he spent last year as an assistant, Western New Mexico, Wayne State, Maryville, Tenn., Albion, Wabash and Western Michigan. "I keep U-Haul in business," he cracked.

Why move from the high-powered Longhorn program, which lives in prestigious Division IA, to the more understated athletic life of Division III?

"The challenge," Fickert said.

Police arrest Packers

Understandably, blue-chip players have found it tough to locate Fayette, Iowa, home of Upper Iowa and its 700-student population. There are no scholarships at the Division III level and media exposure in the Iowa Intercollegiate Conference is, well, limited. So Fickert decided to shake some trees and see what would fall out. The responses, he said, came in all shapes and sizes.

"It's been done before," he said. "I know Columbia does it in their student newspaper. Lots of times, schools will advertise for punters. We didn't limit it, though. We got about 300 inquiries. About 75 came and visited. Sixty applied, 50enrolled and 25 stayed with the team the full season. We got four or. five starters out of it.

The season was about what you'dexpect when the coach arrives in-March and has to advertise for.

DE PERE, Wis. (AP) - De Pere's police chief says his officers arrested Green Bay defensive back Mossy Cade last week "the same way we would handle anyone else under the same circumstances."

In making their arrest of Cade, police stopped Cade's car, aimed a gun at him and forced him to kneel in the street while they frisked him, a witness and authorities said.

"We weren't taking any chances," Police Chief Armand Wecker said.

Cade, 23, is accused of second-degree sexual assault. A 42-year-old Houston woman said she was attacked while staying at Cade's De Pere home.

She said she was in the Green Bay area to watch the former University of Texas player and the Packers play the Chicago Bears in a National Football League game

The indictments for criminally negligent homicide, which are first-class misdemeanors nunishable by up to a year in jail and a $2,000 fine, concern two fatal accidents at separate wastewater treatment and sewer line projects being constructed by the City of Austin. The corporations can be fined up to $10,000.

The indictments mark the first time in Travis County that a corporation has been charged with homicide.

Personal recognizance bonds of $2,000 were set in each of the 13 cases. The defendants and their attorneys agreed to turn themselves into the sheriff's office for booking today.

County Attorney Ken Oden, whose office investigated and presented the cases to the grand iury, said he hopes the indictments will send a message to construction firms that his office will pursue "I think this will mean very little to honest and reasonable folks in that business, who agree working people need to have basic safety precautions taken for them. Those people will support this," Oden

One of the defense attorneys said that the charges are questionable and would be fought strenuously.

Two of the indictments charge Joseph Tantillo - 49, president of Sabine Consolidated Inc. - with criminally negligent homicide in the Sept. 10 cave-in that killed Juan Rodriguez, 32, of El Salvador, and Benjamin Eaton, 40, of Houston. Both indictments charge that Tantillo failed to install adequate shoring devices to protect the men. They died when the sides of a 30-foot trench collapsed on them as they installed sewer lines.

Tantillo said he would not comment on the charges.

Similar indictments were returned against Sabine Consolidated and D&E Leasing Inc., a holding company controlled by Tantillo's wife, charging both corporations with criminally negligent homicide.

Four indictments were returned against two D&E employees. Harold Wyble - 52, the superintendent for several construction jobs under way by Sabine - and William Hawkins, were both charged in the deaths of Rodriguez and Eaton.

The second accident, which occurred July 17 at the Govalle Wastewater Treatment Plant, killed Margarito Maldonado as he was excavating an 8-foot trench that was not supported with shoring devices.

Indictments were returned against the city contractor on the Govalle project, Peabody Southwest of Houston, and two employees - Jim Williamson and Milton Ray Havins.

Williamson, contacted late Thursday, said that he had no comment and that he has employed

Austin attorney to represent him. Jim Kaspar, vice president of Peabody Southwest, said he would not comment on the indictments.

Other defendants, including Peabody Southwest and Sabine Consolidated, are represented by attorney Frank Maloney.

Names in News

WASHINGTON (AP) - Yogi Berra is about to get 23 tons of spuds dropped on his front yard, and that's no small potatoes.

"Boy, I just asked for a bag!" the former New York Yankees manager and Hall of Fame catcher said by telephone Thursday from New Jersey, when he heard that potato farmers in North Dakota were about to grant his wish in a Berra made the mistake of telling growers last summer he was skeptical over their claims to be one of the largest potato-growing areas in the country.

"He said, 'You don't have enough potatoes here to fill my front yard," said Lloyd Schmidt, executive director of the Red River Valley Potato Growers Association, which represents 860 growers in North Dakota and Minnesota.

And that's all it took.

Twenty-three tons of potatoes in 50-pound boxes are being loaded onto a truck in East Grand Forks, Minn., bound for Berra's Montclair, N.J., home. They are due to arrive Tuesday, just in time for Thanksgiving Day feasts.

Berra's wife Carmen said she was "making long lists of people to give them to.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) -Entertainer Jerry Reed says his new movie, "What Comes Around," co-starring Bo Hopkins and Barry Corbin, is "an upper."

Reed's production company backed the film with Reed, 48, as star, executive producer and director.

'It's an upper,'' the singer-guitarist-songwriter said at the premiere Wednesday. "You watch. People will walk out of here smiling.

The movie is about the love of two brothers set against a background of the country music business

Reed's song hits include "When You're Hot. You're Hot." He also has appeared in movies like "Gator" and "Smokey and the Bandit."

WASHINGTON (AP) - Senate Majority Leader Robert Dole is used to hearing from constituents but probably not often from colleagues' daughters.

Dole got a personal plea Thursday from the 6-year-old daughter of Sen. Dan Quayle, R-Ind., to let her father out early.

Dole told his colleagues, who have been working late this week, that he wanted to get done in time to honor a special request, then read the letter he had received:

"Dear Senator Dole, I am having my second-grade play tonight. Please make sure there aren't any votes between 7 and 9 so my daddy can be with me. Please come with him if you can. Love, Corinne

Dole said, "I do not want to be in the doghouse with her.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Actor Frank Bonner, an Arkansas native whose Razorbacks coffee mug graced his role as salesman Herb Tarlek on "WKRP in Cincinnati," says it would be nice, but unlikely, if the mug turned up someday in the Old West or space.

The red-and-white mug emblazoned with the University of Arkansas emblem already has shown up on "Scarecrow and Mrs. King," where Bonner plays a neighbor to Kate Jackson's Amanda King. He carried it into her house.

"It's always in my bag ... just in case there's an episode where I have the opportunity to have a cup of coffee," the Little Rock native said in a recent telephone interview from Los Angeles. Bonner said he also had coffee from his favorite mug on the short-lived series "The Duck

He said viewers will continue to see the mug, and not just on "WKRP" reruns.

"The only place it probably wouldn't work would be some kind of spaceship. Something futuristic. Or a western. That would be fun to see that crop up accidentally in a western some time.

News in brief

WASHINGTON (AP) - Rep. Lynn Martin, in a speech on the House floor, suggested that men spent more of their time this week reading the sports pages of newspapers than studying the stories on the Geneva summit.

The Illinois Republican made the tongue-in-cheek remarks Thursday in response to comments attributed White House Chief of Staff Donald Regan earlier in the week. Regan was quoted in The Washington Post on Monday as saying that women don't understand human rights or superpower summitry.

'On Tuesday, I had lunch with a number of my male colleagues,' Mrs. Martin said, "and their conversation ... was about the dreadful accident that befell the quarterback of the Washington Redskins." She was referring to the broken leg Joe Theismann suffered in Monday night's Naitonal Football League game. "From this, I have determined that males read sports pages and know very little about what happens - or care - in Geneva," she added.

STORM DAMAGE - Parts of the roof of a motel lot Thursday near Panama City. Fla., motel cover the hoods of cars parked in the following the landfall of Hurricane Kate.

Hurricane's landfall in Florida Panhandle leaves destruction

PORT ST. JOE, Fla. (AP) -Kate, downgraded from a hurricane to a tropical storm today, left more than 100,000 people without electricity and Florida's Panhandle a maze of flooded streets, toppled trees and roofless buildings.

Ninety percent of Tallahassee. the state capital, was blacked out after Kate barreled ashore Thursday, forcing more than 100,000 people to evacuate and spinning at least eight tornadoes across the panhandle and southern Georgia.

The twisters and high wind ripped the roofs off buildings in the Panama City area and Meigs, Ga., toppled Apalachicola's water tower, tore down trees and knocked down power lines in Port St. Joe, Mexico Beach and Tallahassee.

Up to 30,000 homes and businesses were without power Thursday night, from Panama City west to Apalachicola River, Gulf Power Co said Eight Florida Power Co. substations were knocked out and 90 percent of Tallahassee, a city of about 89,500, was blacked out early today, said Joy McIlwain, a spokeswoman for the state Division of Emergency Management.

Two people drowned when their fishing boat capsized in Kate's high seas, one man was electrocuted when he stepped on a utility line and an 81-year-old woman died of a heart attack after being evacuated. The 11th named storm of the 1985 Atlantic hurricane season, Kate was blamed for up to 10 deaths and destruction to crops and property in Cuba.

Streets were impassable, flooded by heavy rainfall or blocked by fallen trees and coastal roads, which had taken a beating from previous hurricanes Elena and Juan, were crumbling into the Gulf of Mexico in several areas

Whitecaps were reported on flooded U.S. 98 in Apalachicola as the tide rose Thursday night.

Emergency officials warned evacuees to remain in shelters for the night

Kate's 20-mile-wide eye hit land between Panama City and Apalachicola with maximum sustained winds of 85 mph and gusts higher than 100 mph.

Early today, Kate's center was tornadoes in Meigs, officials said. near latitude 32.0 north, longitude 82.0 west, about 100 miles west of Savannah, Ga. The storm was moving east-northeast about 20 mph and was expected to emerge over the Georgia-South Carolina coast by midday. Its peak winds were near 55 mph with stronger gusts in squalls and forecasters said little change was expected in either its speed or strength. In Georgia, Kate was toppling trees and utility lines today, but authorities reported no injuries. Georgia Power Co. spokesman Rick Rountree estimates between 2,000 and 3,000 customers without power in south Georgia "and that's probably a conservative estimate.'

"It is a mess down here. All of our lights are out, all of our radios are out, everything," said Sheila Cason of the Grady County Sheriff's Department in Thomasville, Ga.

Two houses were damaged by

"As far as any substantial damage is concerned, I think we've already seen the worst," said forecaster Mark Zimmer. "The storm has been over land for ... hours now, and the winds are down to about 75 mph. Unless there are some heavy rains or tornadoes, I don't think you'll see any serious damage.

More than 100,000 people were evacuated from 10 Florida counties starting Wednesday, many at the order of Gov. Bob Graham. However, some people evacuated twice when Hurricane Elena approached in September before hitting Mississippi and again last month when Hurricane Juan lingered off the coast before veering in over Alabama, refused

"They're punchy from getting up and leaving," said Pal Rivers, acting director of Civil Defense.

1960s radical wins debate

AUSTIN (AP) — The majority of a University of Texas crowd of 800 who attended a Yippie vs. Yuppie debate between 1960s radical Abbie Hoffman and businessman Jerry Rubin sided with the Yippie.

The two former anti-war activists and co-founders of the Youth International Party met Wednesday in what was billed as "Yippie vs. Yuppie: The Idealism of the '60s vs. the Challenge of the Perrier at his podium and sporadic applause.

Rubin, 47, who once urged students to burn their schools, said he discovered in the 1970s that he wanted to become a businessman and make money at the New York Stock Exchange.

Hoffman, 49, who lived underground for several years to escape a drug charge, has remained a political and environmental activist.

believe time is money, you're on my side."

Hoffman said Rubin is 'a 'born-again capitalist" who, like other yuppies, is too busy making money to care about society's problems, such as unemployment, discrimination and environmental damage. He said people should engage in political activism "every single day of your life."

Hoffman said yuppies are just a myth created by the media to push overconsumption," and that most young people today are too
