Pro-Libyans threaten suicide strikes in U.S.

TRIPOLI, Libya (AP) - The government-run media claimed today that Saudi Arabia's generally pro-Western King Fahd promised to use all the "material and financial resources" of his oil-rich country to help Libya repel feared U.S. and Israeli attacks.

In a related development, a pro-Libyan group calling itself the Arab Revolutionary Committees in Lebanon threatened in a statement published in Beirut to conduct 'suicide operations in the heart of Washington" and in Israel if the United States or Israel attacks

Last week Libyan leader Col. Moammar Khadafy threatened to send suicide squads that "will operate on the streets of America' in the event of a U.S. attack

Threats and counterthreats have flown since the United States accused Libya of aiding the terrorists who launched coordinated grenade and submachine-gun attacks Dec. 27 on passengers in the Rome and Vienna airports

Among those killed in the assaults directed at the check-in counters of Israel's El Al airline were five Americans and four terrorists. More than 120 people were wounded.

Efforts to reach Saudi officials to verify the Libyan reports were not immediately successful, and the were issuing no such reports. Saudi Arabia is one of the United States' closest allies in the Arab world.

Libvan television monitored in London, said King Fahd telephoned Khadafy on Monday and "stressed that the Saudi position in the same

Reagan may announce sanctions

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Reagan, holding his first nationally broadcast news conference since September, is ready to announce new economic sanctions against Libya for its alleged support of terrorists who attacked the Rome and Vienna airports last month, administration officials say.

The officials declined to spell out the additional steps Reagan plans against the regime of Moammar Khadafy. However, one official said Monday that Reagan also was "keeping the military option open." The news conference will be broadcast live tonight by the major radio and television networks beginning at 7 p.m. CST. Returning to the Oval Office on Monday following a weeklong California vacation, Reagan held a strategy session with his top foreign policy advisers, but his spokesman refused to disclose what

The spokesman, Larry Speakes, said "reasonable people could assume" that Libya was the topic of conversation. Speakes would not as Libya's and that Saudi Arabia stands very strongly by the side of Libya in confronting the imperialist and Zionist threats and places all its material and moral resources on the side of the Libyan

The government news agency JANA, similarly said King Fahd "put all its material and financial resources to face the American and Zionist threats

The New York Times today quoted an administration official as saying up to 15 Palestinian and terrorist training camps have been set up in Libya. The administration probably will detail publicly in the next few days what it knows about Libyan involvement with terrorism, the newspaper said. Khadafy has denied the existence of terrorist camps in On Monday, JANA claimed

Israeli jet fighters were aboard a U.S. aircraft carrier in the Mediterranean Sea for a planned strike at Libya

The U.S. carrier Coral Sea led a seven-ship task force out of Naples, Italy, on Friday, but U.S. Navy sources in Washington flatly denied that any Israeli jet fighters were aboard. They said Israel's most modern warplanes, including J.S. made F-15s, are not equipped for carrier operations

In Tel Aviv, an Israeli military source who spoke on condition of anonymity said, "We don't know anything about it and we do not comment on reports like these from foreign sources.

Postal Service boss replaced after a year

WASHINGTON (AP) - The U.S. Postal Service has fired Postmaster General Paul N. Carlin in the wake of accusations he was too slow to increase automation of the service and streamline its executive staff and has replaced him with Albert Casev, a retired airline executive

Carlin's resignation, which was requested by the postal board, and Casey's appointment were announced Monday by Postal Service spokesman Ralph Stewart after the board made the change at a closed meeting

Carlin becomes an adviser to the board that ousted

Casey, former chairman and president of American Airlines, takes over immediately and becomes a member of the postal board. As postmaster general, he will be the 66th successor to Benjamin Franklin Carlin, who served only a few days more than a year, was called "a superb and innovative administrator" when his appointment was announced in November 1984 by John R. McKean, the board chairman who was responsible for telling Carlin he was out.

The search for a successor began three months ago, McKean said at a news conference today Casey, appearing with McKean, said he had been brought in to help the Postal Service "strengthen its ability to compete" with other carriers of packages and advertising

Carlin hired thousands and cut the number of overtime hours worked by the higher-paid employees, saving $1.75 in the cost of an average hour of postal work. That savings plus revenue from a postal rate increase brought a huge postal budget deficit under control

For the fiscal year that ended in September, half a year after the changes, the Postal Service recorded a $251.5 million loss. A half-billion dollar loss had been projected.

When he reported that loss, Carlin said he anticipated "a positive result in 1986," but in announcing record Christmas mail volume on Monday, Carlin was more cautious. He said "stringent management actions" will be needed during the spring and summer if the Postal Service expects to break even for the year As of Dec. 20, the Postal Service had a $479 million operating surplus for the fiscal year.

Van H. Seagraves, publisher of Business Mailers Review, a trade publication, said in a December issue that Carlin had been criticized privately by board members for failing to master issues such as mechanization of mail sorting and for an inability to make tough decisions

Seagraves said Carlin came under fire from the board for resisting efforts to reduce the size of postal headquarters staff and the number of employees at regional and district offices.

Carlin frequently said such changes would be 'disruptive.

Casey, 65 and a Boston native, is a business administration graduate of Harvard University. Following college he joined Southern Pacific Co.. then became vice president and treasurer of REA Express in 1961. Two years later, he joined Times Mirror Corp. of Los Angeles as vice president of finance, becoming president in 1966.

Casey, who lives in Dallas, became chairman and president of American Airlines in 1974. He relinquished the presidency in 1980 but remained chairman until last year. He is still on the board of AMR Corp, the airline's parent, and holds seats on the boards of Times Mirror, Colgate-Palmolive, LTV Corp., Sears, Roebuck and Co. and AMI

International Since postal reorganization in 1970, the postmaster general is no longer appointed by the president and does not require Senate confirmation

Civil Liberties Union takes McIlhany case to high court

AUSTIN - The Texas Civil Liberties Union has taken its case against 31st District Judge Grainger McIlhany to the highest court in the land.

TCLU Director James Harrington said an appeal of a court of appeals dismissal of TCLU's $400,000 lawsuit against McIlhany has been filed with the U.S. Supreme Court. Harrington said he has know way of knowing when the Supreme Court will decide whether to hear the case.

A clerk at the Supreme Court office in Washington said McIlhany's response to the petition was due today

The TCLU suit was filed in 1984 on behalf of Doris Adams, a 52 year - old part - time waitress from Miami who was jailed by McIlhany for writing the judge a letter complaining of the law's treatment of her sons. After already receiving two letters from Mrs. Adams, McIlhany, 66, of Wheeler, wrote back saying he regreted the woman's children "have not seen fit to reform to society.

Adams responded by scribbling on the back of McIlhan's note "The law stinks and stinks bad. The only way you can win with the law anymore is if you can buy your way out, and it's done every day You know I can't pay so you stick my boys good.'

In October, 1983, McIlhany ordered Mrs. Adams to appear in the Roberts County courtroom, claiming her letters accused him of taking bribes. He said the contempt hearing was a "civil matter" and thereby did not advise Adams of her rights prior to questioning the woman and sentencing her to 28 days in jail. She was not represented by an attorney and denied that she was accusing the judge of wrongdoing.

The TCLU first filed its case in U.S. District Court in Amarillo where Judge Mary Lou Robinson dismissed it. She said McIlhany violated the woman's civil rights by denying her right to an attorney. reasonable time to respond to the charge and the right to a hearing before an unbiased judge, but added a district judge can be held liable only when his or her actions are taken in a "clear absence of jurisdiction.

Robinson ruled the concept of "judicial immunity," leaving judges free to interpret the law without fear of liability, is more important than an individual's

In June, the U.S. Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans upheld Robinson's decision and TCLU attorneys decided to take the case to the high court. Another attorney working on the case, Paul Knisely of Austin, said the case has the potential to become a landmark decision "in the area of judicial immunity.

Despite long odds. Knisely said he and the TCLU are hopeful about getting a hearing

McIlhany's position is up for election in the May primaries. The judge, a Democrat, has not yet announced whether he will run for re - election. He could not be reached for comment at press

Principals turn to political action

AUSTIN (AP) - The president of the Texas Association of Secondary School Principals says the state's top political leaders have failed to respond to recommendations by the education profession for improving reform legislation known as House Bill 72.

Fred Richardson Jr., Houston, said top elected officials, and all future candidates for office, would be held accountable for making appropriate changes in reforms enacted in 1984.

The association, with more than 3,500 members, includes principals and assistant principals of middle schools and high Richardson said in a letter released Monday that the association had voted Dec. 9 to establish its first political action committee as a result of sentiment that "we are at the bottom of a darkened barrel, with politicians throwing stones and taking pot shots at us.'

He said some members of the association's board of directors felt "it is time to come out fighting in a deliberate and resourceful

Richardson said he anticipated the PAC's primary concern would be student discipline as it relates to House Bill 72. "We all know we must find solutions to the problems we face in this critical area," he

Other areas of concern, he said, include the evaluation of teachers; career ladders; the no-pass, no-play proposal that restricts extracurricular activities; and "the negative effects that House Bill 72 has on low-ability students.

1,000 fans, friends attend final rites for Rick Nelson

Rick Nelson's children urged mourners not to weep for the actor who grew up on "The Adventures of Ozzie and Harriet," and a family minister assured them he was safe

"At the end of the day, Dad would kneel between us and put one hand on Ricky's chest and the other on mine and we'd sing the Lord's Prayer," he said.

Approximately 700 fans and friends heard the service over loudspeakers outside the church on the grounds at Forest Lawn Hollywood Hills, where Ozzie Nelson was interred a decade ago.

Snake-bit Colombia's flight postponed for fifth time

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) - The launch of hardluck space shuttle Columbia on its first flight in more than two years was postponed for a fifth time today because of bad weather here and at other emergency landing sites.

NASA said another launch would not be attempted before Thursday because of the need to inspect engine compartment insulation which has been subjected to fueling for two straight days. Officials said a new date would be announced later in the day.

A launch attempt on Monday was scrubbed after the countdown had advanced to within 31 seconds, the last-minute technical glitch thwarted a launch effort. Two other postponements, Dec. 18 and Jan. 4. were the result of the need for more time to ready Columbia and to give the seven-member crew additional training time.

The disappointed astronauts, including a Florida congressman and the first Hispanic-American astronaut, were to return to crew quarters to await another day. It was the third time they had waited hours in the cockpit for a launch that did not occur.

The countdown for the first of a record 15 shuttle missions planned in 1986 was halted at the 9-minute mark because of clouds both in the launch area and at emergency landing sites at Dakar, Senegal, and Moron, Spain.

TEXAS/REGIONAL

Hightower to farmers: fight FmHA

AUSTIN (AP) - Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower, criticizing the Farmers Home Administration and the Reagan administration, says there's just one thing that will change current federal farm policy.

'The only thing that's going to make a difference in Washington is if there is a prairie fire built out here in the countryside that fights against the isolated bureaucratic decisions that are being made up there," he said.

Hightower on Monday blasted FmHA lending policy, contending the agency threatens to drive thousands of Texas farmers off the land this year.

'The Farmers Home Administration has declared war on its own borrowers, coldly attempting to rush thousands of good agricultural producers out of business in the next few weeks. What FmHA is doing, Jesse James got shot for," Hightower said.

"This is a fight we're committed to until we prevail. It's a life-and-death struggle for thousands of farm families and hundreds of rural communities which need our

But FmHA state director J. Lynn Futch said the agency is doing all it can to help farmers.

'Despite what other people are saying, we haven't suddenly turned into the bad guys,' Futch said in a phone interview FmHA headquarters at Temple.

"Our mission has been to help farmers to own land, to help them operate, and our mission has been all the time to make loans to farmers who couldn't get credit elsewhere. We're still trying to keep as many of those people in business as we can," he added.

Hightower said the Texas Department of Agriculture will contact some 7.000 delinquent FmHA borrowers in Texas and offer advice on preventing foreclosure.

'We will be explaining their legal rights and options, and we will help them find assistance to fight the foreclosure attempts and to deal with other problems that this economic assault causes," he said.

One weapon is a new Farm Crisis Hotline funded in part by a $25,000 grant from country singer Willie Nelson's Farm Aid project.

The toll-free telephone service will help Texas farmers and ranchers obtain legal and financial advice, mental health assistance and other information to cope with the farm crisis,

But he used a news conference announcing that program to blast the FmHA, a federal agency with loans to some 16,000 Texas farmers and ranchers.

The FmHA is sending delinquent borrowers a form entitled "Notice of Intent to Take Adverse Action," giving recipients 30 days to acknowledge and select one of several options for resolving their problem.

Hightower charged that most options would cost recipients their farms. He said the TDA will advise farmers to request every possible FmHA action - rescheduling, consolidation, reamortization, deferral and more - to service their loan.

The FmHA action "is the greatest bureaucratic heist in American farming This attempt to shuck 7,000 producers off their land is just the opening shot off the war which Texas farmers and ranchers are going to have fight in 1986," Hightower Responding, the FmHA's Futch said the delinquency notices don't mean all recipients are facing foreclosure. Under a court order from a North Dakota case, the FmHA was required to notify all delinquent borrowers regardless of whether they owe "only $100 or

"It certainly isn't a notice of foreclosure. What it really does is just notifies these people 'Look, your account is delinquent and we've got all these alternatives to work with you,'

"This is an administration that paid $4.5 billion out of the taxpayers' pocket to the Continental Illinois Bank to bail out its bad management. But allow a few farmers who are going broke through no fault of their own ... to get in a debt situation and this administration

"This seems like a bad dream. It was such a ridiculous charge, but I had to make myself take it seriously," Estes said Monday after State District Judge Don Lane dismissed the charges at the request of District Attorney Jorge

Estes, 60, was charged with raping a 38-year-old Mexican woman last July after she came from Mexico to Abilene to be his housekeeper. But the charges were dropped after a recent medical examination upheld Estes' claim that he obtained a vasectomy more

Part of the prosecution's evidence was spermatozoa that a doctor found in the woman the day after the woman alleged to have been raped by Estes.

'Somebody definitely had sex with this woman, but it definitely wasn't Billie Sol Estes," defense attorney Bob Lindsey said.

Solis said the woman had contended she left Abilene the day she was raped and went to Odessa, where a "rape exam" was conducted the following day at a hospital. During it, the woman said her last voluntary intercourse had been 10 days before, Solis said.

Medical personnel who examined the Mexican woman told him the spermatozoa could have been there a maximum of 72 hours.

Judge rules against owner who claims was tricked out of house

DALLAS (AP) - A judge has ruled against a homeowner in the first case involving more than 40 people who claim they were tricked out of the titles to their homes.

Lawvers and others connected with the case say the ruling by U.S. Bankruptcy Judge Robert McGuire could be a sign of how the rest of the cases will turn out.

The homeowners claim the titles to their homes were taken fraudulently by J&J Planning Services, whose two owners have been sentenced to prison.

In the case handed down by McGuire on Dec. 24, Robert Garner said he believed he was signing papers that listed his house as collateral for a $10,000 loan.

Instead, he signed a title conveying the home to John Gorman, one of the owners of J&J

More than 40 residents contend that Gorman and his partner, James Files, acquired their homes without their knowledge and sold them to investors, according to the

Like Garner, all the homeowners said they thought they were securing loans, not selling their Gorman and Files pleaded guilty in U.S. District Court in August to a charge of conspiring to submit false income tax returns to secure more than $2 million in loans from local banks. Each received the maximum five-year prison term.

In the bankruptcy case involving Garner, the judge ruled Garner's house belonged to First Texas Savings Association, which wound up holding the note on the house after it was initially turned over to Gorman.

How to stop sun's glare?

West Texas is known for its glorious sunsets, the ones which splash

the sky with a kaleidescope of pinks, indigos and violets at twilight

You'd think that if man could go to the moon and back several times, prolong life with an artificial heart and create toys that can transform from a race car to a robot, surely he (she or it) could come up with a device that can shield Pampa residents from that blinding rush-hour sun

Fresh out of ideas myself, I'm turning to you, our loyal Tuesday Off-Beat readers for suggestions. Starting today, I am sponsoring The Pampa News "What're We Gonna Do About dat Awful Sun" contest. Send your ideas to me, care of The Pampa News, Box 2198 and the best ideas will be published in this column sometime in March (or whenever I feel like it). Deadline for entries is, let's see, how about at sundown Feb. 19.

We cannot offer any prize money for the best entry. However, I'm sure the thrill of seeing one's idea immortalized in print would make up for any monetary compensation. (Yeah, and I got some beachfront property in South Dakota for sale, too)

Entries will be judged on creativity, engineering design, how the samhill the thing will be financed and, most important, how well it cuts out the glare from the afternoon sun.

One important rule: the project cannot be done at taxpayers' expense. That means no low interest bonds, no tax levys, no federal grants, no government nothing.

That one rule aside, here are some ideas that might just start that old cerebral cortex a-humming

Place Pampa under a giant polarized dome that would cut out some of the sun's more blinding rays. Schedule a siesta from 4 to 6 p.m. so that nobody will be out driving during the sun's blinding time. Petition God to send in some clouds, and perhaps a gentle rain, each afternoon at rush hour. See how easy it is.

Entries will be accepted from any sincere individual or group. I say sincere because any entry that even remotely looks like a sales gimmick will be dismissed as a tawdry attempt to get free advertising and immediately thrown in the trash. Special consideration will be given to sincere science projects, as long as I don't have to go out and take the kids' pictures. Time is running out, and the sun just keeps on shining. Remember the address:

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Political 'victories' costly for taxpayer

The scuttlebutt is that the fix was in on farm legislation. Part of the price President Reagan paid for House Republican support for what some call tax reform was supposedly a promise not to veto the incredibly expensive farm bill Congress quickly passed.

Thus the president's "victory" on tax reform, like most reputed victories for politicians, came at the expense of taxpayers.

It is difficult to view the latest action as a victory for tax reform, though many seem willing to accept that interpretation. The president strong-armed and alienated GOP leaders to round up votes for Democrat-written legislation he previously said he doesn't like and that he would veto if it came to hi i in this this form. But having the House pass something keeps the process alive. Once again form has triumphed over substance

The farm bill that appears to be the price for his hollow triumph is a disaster. Its emphasis is on reducing production, not through the natural ebb and flow of the marketplace, but through government manipulation of subsidies and special favors, all paid for by taxpayers.

The emotional justification trotted out for government farm programs is always connected with a desire to save the embattled family farm. Yet even supporters of the two bills just passed acknowledge that they will accelerate the trend toward production of more of the nation's food by fewer and fewer farmers. The likely result, most experts agree, will be a decrease by 10 percent in the number of American farms.

It may be that a reduction in the number of farms makes economic sense. It is more than a little ironic. bowever, to see a program whose support comes from an emotional desire to preserve farms accomplish the opposite result, at a cost to taxpayers of about $169 billion over the next five years.

The commodity price and income-support sections of the bill alone are likely to cost $52 billion over the next three years. That's $18 billion more than the administration requested and $2 billion above the level the administration said would surely bring a veto. But nobody seriously expected a veto and there was no big surprise when Reagan signed the bill.

After all, what's a few billion taken from taxpayers hikes if the result is that Washington pundits will call it a victory and agree solemnly that the old Gipper hasn't lost his touch?

They'll work if they have to Economist Walter Williams of Virginia's George Mason University has been a serious student of America's welfare system for many years. Born and raised in Philadelphia's black ghetto, Dr. Williams knows what it means to be poor and he knows from personal experience what it takes to escape poverty.

Based on his many years of scholarly research as well as his own personal experience, Williams argues that there is only one absolutely sure incentive that will prompt one to do what has to be done to escape welfare dependency and break the grip of poverty. That one thing is the certain prospect of impending starvation.

The sort of individual Williams has in mind when he makes this argument is the person who, while physically capable of working, has molded his life in concert with the welfare safety net and has chosen to not earn a wage - any wage however small or large. If such an individual were denied welfare, Dr. Williams is convinced, that person would immediately do what human beings have been doing since the dawn of time - go to work and

Williams' argument offends some people. But offensive or not, there is a powerful element of truth in what he says. There are now, as there always have been, some people who will refuse to earn their own keep if they can survive without having to work. The persistence of the "lazy brother-in-law" joke across the generations is stark testimony to this aspect of the human

Now that President Reagan has signed Gramm-Rudman with its call for radical reductions in federal spending, it is more important than ever to recognize that one reason welfare spending has exploded over the past twenty years is that these programs have not made a critical distinction between those who can work, but won't, and those people who would work, but can't. If the goal of progressively lower federal deficits without tax increases is to be met, welfare programs - of all shapes and sizes and for all income classes (including so-called "middle-income welfare") - will have to be radically changed

One way this needed change can be brought about is to begin with the assumption that people who are physically able to work will have to earn their own keep. If they cannot find work where they are, they will have to go where work can be found. If that means moving from one location to another, they will simply have to move. Why? Because that's the way this world - the only world we have or will ever have - works.

Some months ago. I reported on the case of an individual of my acquaintance who had succeeded in turning welfare dependence into an art form. He had quit his job and taken $35,000 in lump-sum retirement benefits. In less than a year, every dime of the money was gone and he was on welfare. Since it's possible in Michigan to receive AFDC (Aid to Families with Dependent Children) when unemployed, he took AFDC, food stamps, rent assistance, utilities assistance and Medicaid In addition he had income from the part-time earnings of his two high-school aged daughters. In a word, he wasn't doing badly

His church friends gave him cash from time-to-time. More importantly, his church brethren scouted jobs for him and paid for his gas to go for job interviews. When, after a while, it became apparent that he had no intention of accepting any of the job offers he received, his church brethren stopped giving money and rebuked him to his face. He turned his back and went on his way.

Exactly two weeks ago he was presented with two job opportunities by the local branch of the Department of Social Services. One job was as a janitor at the local county hospital. The other was with the county road department. Both were part of a modest move toward "workfare" adopted by certain county divisions of the state welfare This man was perfectly capable of performing either of these jobs. There was nothing wrong with him physically. In fact he spent most of his time playing tennis. He said that he wouldn't take the hospital job because he didn't like being around sick people and he wouldn't take the road job because he didn't like having to clear ditches.

The welfare department immediately dropped him from the rolls. Gone were AFDC, utilities allowance, and everything else but food stamps.

Within three days he was at work with a local manufacturing company earning a decent wage. He had been told about this opportunity before but had refused to consider it. Now, as the old saying goes, "the circumstances having changed, changes the circumstances." Now it was work or, as it were, starve. He decided to work. He also decided that his church brethren weren't so mean after all, and he came back to church.

It's time to start making fundamental distinctions in this country as to what government should do, and what it should not do. Walter Williams' axiom about work and welfare is a good starting point. On the basis of one example, I know

"IT'S GOT NOTHIN TO DO WITH JUDGMENT DAY, MAC...WE'RE TALKIN' ABOUT GRAMM-RUDMAN!"

Today in history

Today is Tuesday, Jan. 7, the seventh day of 1986. There are 358 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On Jan. 7, 1789, the first presidential election in the United States was held. Americans voted for electors who, a month later, chose George Washington to be the nation's first president.

On this date: Ten years ago: Italy's Cabinet, led by Prime Minister Aldo Moro, resigned after the Socialist party withdrew its parliamentary backing.

Five years ago: Deputy Secretary of State Warren Christopher left for another trip to Algiers to consult with Algerian officials on resolving the Iranian hostage crisis.

One year ago: Secretary of State George P. Shultz and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko met for more than six hours in Geneva in an effort to revive superpower arms talks.

Today's birthdays: Cartoonist Charles Addams is 74. Actor Vincent Gardenia is 64.

Keeping resolutions easy

Where most people foul up when they make their New Year's resolutions is they resolve to do too many things that are extremely difficult.

They wind up breaking these resolves two weeks into the new year because things like abstinence and moderation are nothing but big pains.

I have solved the problem of New Year's resolutions. What I do is make out an easy list. Most of the time, I keep every resolution, which makes me very proud of myself.

Abstinence and moderation simply aren't in my repertoire when it comes to doing something I enjoy, and I realize that I recently made out my list of things I resolve to do or not do in 1986. Make out the same kind of list I do, and you will find yourself beginning this new year with total confidence that you aren't going to backslide into old habits.

My New Year's Resolutions for 1986 I'm not going to eat any mud. This has been on my list ever since I was 4, the year when I stopped the habit of eating mud. My mother would put me outside to play and the first thing I would do would be to look for some nice, gooey mud to eat. Soon, however, I discovered that eating mud left a terrible taste in my mouth and some of it occasionally fell down into my diapers, so I got out of mud-eating permanently

I'm not going to see any more movies that have to do with the life of the composer, Mozart. Somebody talked me into seeing "Amadeus," a movie about the life of Mozart, in 1985, and it was the most boring movie I've seen since I saw Warren Beatty and Diane Keaton in "Reds."

I'm not going to eat liver.

I'm not going to take up weightlifting. If I decide to pick up something heavy, I'll read a novel by

Ditto skydiving

I'm not going back to Russia. I went to Russia in 1985 and although the trip was quite interesting and educational, I got tired of the food and the fact Russia cannot offer me what I consider to be two of life's most basic needs: ice and toilet paper.

I am not going to listen to any music made by musicians who play and sing loudly while 14-year-olds in the audience have fits - not to mention zits.

I am going to continue not feeding my dog, Catfish, from the table, because he might turn out to be like my friend's dog, another black Lab named Deuce. Deuce is a nice dog, but when you try to eat in the same room with him, he barks and drools on your leg until you share your meal with

In 1986, I plan not to stop eating ice cream again. I love ice cream, especially Haagen-Daz vanilla. I could eat a gallon of it at one sitting. I have eaten a gallon of it at one sitting, and if I had a dog like Deuce, I would eat my ice cream in the closet so he wouldn't get any of it. I am going to continue to watch "The David Letterman Show." David Letterman is weird and so is the guy who leads his band, the one who looks like Mr. Potato Head. Among other things I'm going to continue not doing in 1986 is robbing a liquor store, eating Brussels sprouts, visiting Teheran, joining the Rotary Club, going to aerobics classes, and buying

I'm going to have a great year in 1986. I hope you do, too.

More anti-war efforts certain in '86

By Robert Walters

LOS ANGELES (NEA) - Offering predictions for the new year is a dicey business, but here's one that's virtually certain to come true: The most ambitious and elaborate anti-war demonstration in the nation's history will unfold in 1986. It will be a peace march spanning more than two-thirds of the entire year, stretching across the entire continent, consuming a budget of at least $15 million and, if the organizers' dreams are realized, "touching the lives of 65 million people. On March 1, some 5,000 men and women will gather at the Los Angeles Coliseum to begin the 3,235-mile coast-to-coast march. Their tents, supplies and equipment will be carried by a convoy of 75 trucks while the marchers will walk an average of almost 15 miles daily. On Nov. 15, their journey will end in Washington, D.C.

That odyssey will carry the participants into the Mojave Desert, through the snow- and ice-covered Rockies, across the Continental Divide at the 11,990-foot-high Loveland Pass, into the corn and wheat fields of the Midwest and through the industrialized cities bordering the Great Lakes before they reach the East Coast.

Although the march itself will last 255 days, the participants — including retired people, college students, members of the clergy, farmers and shop-keepers — will leave their homes, schools, jobs and families for almost the entire year. All are due here in Los Angeles in mid-February to receive briefings and undergo training. The march was conceived by David Mixner, a veteran political organizer whose earlier successes include a 1969 anti-war protest that attracted an estimated 500,000 people to the Mall in Washington and was pivotal in turning popular sentiment against military involvement in Southeast Asia.

In the summer of 1984, Mixner says, his 7-year-old niece "told me that she didn't worry about what she was going to be when she grew up because she'd probably die first in a nuclear war."

That, he says, was his inspiration for organizing People Reaching Out for Peace or PRO Peace, which began operations here last February with a staff of only five. Today, 85 paid employees and 150 volunteers are working on the countless logistical and organizational tasks that must be accomplished if the march is to be successful. Dozens of celebrities - ranging from Barbra Streisand to Madonna and from Paul Newman to Sally Field - have agreed to provide contributions, endorsements or other forms of A staff of volunteer attorneys is

PORT ARTHUR, Texas (AP) -A traffic ticket issued more than 25 years ago arrived in the mail last week at the Port Arthur Police Department.

The ticket was issued on a type of form that was discontinued at least 10 years ago, deputy court clerk Dianne Allen said.

The overnight parking ticket was issued 3 p.m. on Oct. 27, 1959. The ticket looks like it was sent from someplace where the ZIP code started "777

The car owner's name and a description of the vehicle are not mentioned on the "City of Port Arthur Traffic Summons.

A spokesman at the Division of Motor Vehicles in Austin said that vehicle ownership records only go back as far as 1974 or 1975.

"This envelope contains your summons and is for your convenience in paying," the envelope reads. "You do not have to come to the traffic bureau if you pay the required penalty within 14 days. Insert payment with summons and then seal."

However, no payment was found in the envelope, Allen said.

Defense attorneys want murder charge dropped

LIVINGSTON, Texas (AP) - A murder indictment alleging a former junior high school principal shot a football coach should be dropped because investigators lost "crucial evidence" in the case, a defense attorney said.

Houston attorney Dick DeGuerin on Monday asked State District Judge John Martin to drop a murder indictment against Hurley Fontenot.

Fontenot, 48, former principal of Hull-Daisetta Woodson Junior High School in Liberty County, is accused of fatally shooting coach Billy Mac Fleming, 38.

Fleming, who worked at the school for two years coaching and teaching math and science, was last seen alive at the school April 12. Ten days later, his badly decomposed body was found by a berrypicker in a densely forested area southwest of Livingston in Polk County, about 50 miles away. Investigators say Fleming was Fontenot's rival for the affections of Laura Nugent, 36, a teacher's aide and school secretary both men had dated.

Martin said he would decide today on DeGuerin's request to drop the indictment against Fontenot.

Jury selection was expected to start today in the case. About 300 local residents were called as potential jurors.

DeGuerin contends Liberty County investigators lost or threw body. The attorney also said Texas Department of Public Safety crime lab experts lost or failed to make slides to test blood stains reportedly found on the bottom of Fontenot's pickup truck.

The missing clothing and blood stain samples were "crucial evidence," DeGuerin said, and could have proved Fontenot did not kill Fleming. Assistant District Attorney David Walker argued that prosecutors gave DeGuerin a copy of the lab report on the blood samples. Walker said investigators have slides of hair and fiber samples used from the tests but that no slides were made of the blood tests.

Investigators lost Fleming's clothing, Walker said, but prosecutors did not intend to use the clothing as evidence.

Hanoi has 50 more reports of MIA's pieces of human bone.

HANOI, Vietnam (AP) - The government announced today it had collected about 50 new reports on U.S. servicemen killed in the Indochina war, and told visiting U.S. officials that it hoped to resolve the issue of about 1,800 American MIAs before the end of U.S. Assistant Secretary of Defense Richard Armitage said after two days of talks with Vietnamese officials that the new reports would be turned over to the United States in late February at a future meeting of U.S. and Vietnamese officials.

The two sides also discussed future excavations of air crash sites in Vietnam and agreed that at present there was no need to set up a U.S. MIA liaison office in Hanoi, Armitage said.

Last month, U.S. and Vietnamese teams for the first time excavated a crash site together. They found wreckage of a U.S. B-52 bomber and found some

"With the cooperation of the United States, the issue can be resolved in two years and maybe earlier than two years," said Vietnam's deputy foreign minister, Hoang Bich Son.

Son said the 50 reports were 'very new' and needed verification, and did not specify how many of those might be among the 2,400 people that Washington officially lists as missing in Indochina - 1,797 in Vietnam and the rest in Laos and Cambodia

The American delegation, headed by Armitage and including U.S. Assistant Secretary of State Paul Wolfowitz, arrived in Hanoi on Monday and spent 41/2 hours in closed-door discussions with the Vietnamese, including a 50-minute session today with Foreign Minister Nguyen Co Thach.

"I am pleased and they (the Americans) are very pleased too," Thach said after the meeting.

US, allies disagree over Libyan sanctions

By R. GREGORY NOKES AP Diplomatic Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) -Although it won't be allowed to blow up into a trans-Atlantic crisis, there is sharp disagreement between the United States and its allies over what to do to about Libya's support for international Indeed, some of the allies. notably Britain, aren't convinced that Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy is as deeply involved with terrorists as the United States and Israel claim he is.

And some of the allies who have extensive experience of their own in combating terrorism are telling the Reagan administration they won't go along with the major economic sanctions it wants in the wake of last month's airport massacres in Vienna and Rome.

The rebuff has caused the administration to focus on other measures that can be taken against Khadafy, none of which will be as pleasing to Washington. They include increased airport security and curbs on travel by Libyans and potential terrorists.

Some new U.S. economic sanctions were expected to be announced as early as tonight, when President Reagan holds a nationally broadcast news conference at 8 p.m. EST.

At Kerr-McGee plant

Cleanup, investigation continues

WEBBERS FALLS, Okla. (AP) - Most of nearly 15 tons of radioactive particles released during a deadly accident was confined to a uranium processing plant, but an adjacent road needed "old-fashioned scrubbing," officials said.

Radiation hazards, however, at the Kerr-McGee Corp. plant are secondary to the dangers of toxic gas residues, said Richard Bangart, chief of a Nuclear Regulatory Commission emergency team.

The leak Saturday killed one employee, sent more than 100 people to hospitals for treatment, and spread white vapor containing hydrofluoric acid up to 18 miles from the plant in rural eastern Oklahom a

Most of the slightly radioactive from the poisonous gas before the acid escaped the plant, Bangart said Monday. Because the particles are heavy and sticky, they were not drifting, and the level of radioactive contamination outside the complex was very low, Bangart said it would take at least a week to finish interviews with employees, and the Sequoyah Fuels Corp. plant would remain closed "until such time that the team concurs we have a clear understanding that this won't happen again.'

Clyde Wisner, an NRC spokesman, said some topsoil on plant property is being scooped up for disposal, while asphalt surfaces, including Oklahoma 10 adjacent to the plant, are getting a "good old-fashioned scrubbing" by clothing and breathing apparatus. The leak occurred after workers accidentally overfilled a cylinder with uranium hexafluoride, produced by the plant for use in the manufacture of fuel for nuclear plants, officials said.

The cylinder ruptured as it was being heated by employees attempting to reduce the amount of material in it from 29,500 pounds to its rated capacity of 27,500 pounds, Bangart said.

The cylinder was overfilled because it was "not positioned squarely on the scale so they weren't getting a true reading,' Bangart said.

Neither Bangart, Wisner nor Kerr-McGee official Donna McFarland said they knew whether heating the cylinder was

IRS is promising better service the year

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Internal Revenue Service, so plagued with problems last year that an estimated 100 million telephone calls went unanswered, is promising improvement this vear: more lines, more workers and less crankiness.

By mid-March, the IRS will be able to tell you by phone whether your return has been received. If you call with a question about a deduction, the agency promises a better effort to give you the right answer. And while there are no guarantees, IRS officials are predicting no repeat of last year's massive backlog in processing

"I think 1986 will be a substantially different processing year - substantially better, much more like a normal processing year," Fred Perdue, director of returns processing, told reporters

He said the IRS has expanded computer capacity and stepped up worker training in the 10 regional service centers, where an estimated 103.8 million individual returns are expected to be processed this year. It was a new computer system in those centers that created most of the processing backlog last year and delayed refunds for millions of taxpayers

As always, the IRS advice to taxpayers is: File early and use the pre-addressed label that accompanied your tax forms.

Opposition party gathers after Juarez mayor ends hunger strike

JUAREZ, Mexico (AP) — Opposition party leaders from several northern Mexico states met in this border city to plan strategies against electoral reforms which they claim are discriminatory and encourage vote fraud

"We met to voice our ideas on how to make democratic elections happen in Mexico," said Pablo Emilio Madero, national chairman of the National Action Party.

The meeting Monday came a day after Juarez Mayor Francisco Barrio Terrazas ended a three-week hunger strike. PAN officials announced Sunday night they had gathered 100,900 signatures protesting the Chihuahua state election law changes, exceeding their goal by 900.

The signatures, asking that the reforms be repealed, were filed in federal district court in Juarez Monday. A decision on whether the petitions will be considered is expected within two days, said Juarez party chairman Alberto Torres.

Chihuahua Gov. Saul Gonzalez Herrera named a panel of three PAN representatives and three members of the government's Institutional Revolutionary Party to discuss the reforms. The panel is scheduled to have its second meeting today in Chihuahua City, said PAN regional chairman Guillermo Prieto.

The mayor was hospitalized Sunday night and did not attend the meeting. Barrio has an artificial heart valve and was experiencing "a few problems" toward the end of his fast, said his physician, Dr. Victor Matos Molina.

The 35-year-old mayor will be among those considered for PAN's gubernatorial candidacy for the state of Chihuahua, said Madero Such a victory would give Mexico its only non-PRI governor in a state where PAN already holds the mayorships of the largest cities. Protests against the electoral

"The party will go in this struggle as far as popular support will take us," Pietro said. "I don't agree with the idea of violence, but

Las Vegas university gains on academic respectability

By ROBERT MACY
Associated Press Writer

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — The long-standing joke at the University of Nevada-Las Vegas has been that the desert campus would someday enjoy academic stature worthy of its nationally-ranked basketball team.

The idea is no joke to UNLV President Robert Maxson, a soft-spoken southerner whose evangelistic zeal for higher education has fueled an academic fervor once unknown at a university built on basketball.

Slowly but surely, mainly because of Maxson's efforts, the 28-year-old, 12,000-student university is shaking the Rodney Dangerfield syndrome and beginning to get some respect.

Maxson was lured to the Nevada school from the University of Houston in mid-1984 following more than a year of turbulence between UNLV faculty, Regents and athletic boosters.

To woo Maxson away from his job as senior vice president for academic affairs at the 45,000-student Texas school, UNLV offered him a salary and benefit package worth $150,000. That's about $10,000 above long-time basketball coach Jerry Tarkanian's pay and more than twice the $65,000 salary of Nevada

Gov. Richard Bryan.

The popular president has vigorously courted casino owners and civic leaders to raise more than $11 million in private gifts while squeezing a 28 percent hike in funding and an 11 per cent faculty pay boost from tight-fisted legislators.

'When I came to UNLV I found a better academic university than most people thought," Maxson recalled recently in a drawl borne of childhood days on a cotton farm in southern Arkansas. "Frankly, reputations are sort of enduring. I think in the very early formulative stages of the university, when it was in its adolesence, I think UNLV did not enjoy a good academic reputation. One of the real challenges that faced us was to communicate that the university was better than the reputation it enjoyed.

Maxson had his work cut out for him when he moved to the campus a mile from the Las Vegas Strip.

In the months preceding his arrival, a troubled football program was nearly scrapped, then given a last-minute reprieve. Athletic boosters, buoyed by one of the most successful basketball programs in the country, had to be leashed after it became apparent they had escaped the control of the university.

"I think there was a perception that many of the decisions that affected the university were being made outside the university." Maxson said. "I felt that we needed to establish the fact that the decisions that ought to be made by the university were being made by the administration. The taxpayers of this community did not want any interest group to have a disproportionate influence on where their tax dollars were going."

Maxson made it clear very quickly that he was president of the athletic department as well as the English department.

Having established who was in control, Maxson set his sights on Nevada's top students, who regularly fled the state in droves at graduation time.

Margaret Elardi, a casino owner in the tiny gaming community of Laughlin, Nev., bankrolled his plan to recruit the best and brightest of Nevada's young people.

Her $1 million gift funded the Nevada Scholars Program, which offers $10,000 scholarships to the valedictorians at the state's 53 high schools

Last year UNLV landed 18 of the 53 valedictorians — triple the number of any previous year. Maxson likened it to snaring a prime candidate in the basketball recruiting wars.

clock as a symbol of the home.

"I made them as art objects," he related. Castle worked on the series along with nine woodworkers in his upstate New York workshop six days a week for 18 months.

Except for the piece titled "Ghost," all are working models which keep accurate time and chime. The "clock" called "Ghost" is a trompe l'oeil sculpture that looks like a traditional grandfather clock but has a "cloth" covering. So realistic is the white-painted wood "cloth" and rope tie that most people who come into the gallery try to lift a corner to see what's underneath, said Milliken.

DAR chapter meets here

Col. Samuel P. White of the National Guard presented a program on national defense. In comparing Russian and U.S. armed forces, Col. White said the U.S. is behind in military strength. Russia has 1.5 million men under arms compared to the U.S. with 450,000 men. Col. White explained the benefits of the ROTC program for college students and said the local unit of the National Guard needs the moral support of the community. Mrs. Art Gross was elected delegate to the National Society DAR Continental Congress to be held in Washington, D.C., in April. Delegates to the DAR state conference in Austin this March are to be Mrs. Jeff Anderson, Mrs. Tom Cantrell and Mrs. John Skelly. Alternates are Mrs. L.A.

The clock Castle calls "Bird" represents in three dimensions his idea of time flying. The clock is made of Australian lacewood. cypress crotch veneer and ebony. At its base, gold-plated brass eagles symbolize the strength and weight of America. At the top, carved ebonized cherry birds perch, ready to fly away at a moment's notice. Three sets of chimes sound every quarter-hour to remind the viewer that time is fleeting.

Traditional clocks become art objects

Castle says his goal since graduating with a master of fine arts degree in sculpture from the University of Kansas has been to be the best. He chose to make furniture rather than sculpture when he observed that "practically speaking, most sculptors were not making a living. I felt in the '60s that I would have the whole field of art furniture to myself."

This bit of market research has been accurate, since Castle, who is 53, achieved almost immediate recognition for his free-form sculptural pieces carved out of layers of laminated wood blocks. Recently, the Art Institute of Chicago acquired a set of living room pieces from Lee Nordness, the dealer for whom they were originally made in the '60s.

"I was fortunate to start out designing something that didn't require being a cabinetmaker,' said Castle, who knew nothing of traditional furniture construction by choice.

The next phase of his development was making traditional-looking pieces that had trompe l'oeil objects carved on them. Two of the best known are an umbrella stand and a table with a hat and book

"I thought it would be great if I could do trompe l'oeil and sometimes fool people; that turned out to be very easy," he recalled.

A critical point in his development came when he was invited to be co-curator of an exhibition, "The Fine Art of the Furniture Maker," with Penelope Hunter-Stiebel, then a curator at the Metropolitan Museum of Art. The exhibition at the University of Rochester in 1981 consisted of pieces of antique furniture chosen by the artist and the curator from the Met's great storehouse.

This experience fanned a growing interest in fine cabinetmaking. It also crystalized Castle's desire to develop a new type of wood-working school where traditional cabinetmaking skills would be taught to students who would use them to create contemporary pieces rather than replicas of the old

The result of the experience was formation of Castle's woodworking school just outside Rochester. He terms it "the smallest accredited school chartered by the New York State Board of Regents." The two-year program generally enrolls about 30 students. Castle also serves as an artist-in-residence at the School for American Craftsmen at the University of Rochester. In addition, he keeps his own cabinetmaking shop going.

Bears work on kick coverage

LAKE FOREST, Ill. (AP) - The Chicago Bears will work on covering kickoffs this week to avoid being devastated by the Los Angeles Rams on Sunday in the National Conference football championship, the last leg leading to a berth in the Super Bowl.

"Our kickoff coverage is poor," Chicago Coach Mike Ditka said. 'We don't cover kickoffs well and that could be devastating.

Leaky roof causes delay

AP Basketball Writer

The visiting team built a big lead, sweated out a long rain delay and then coasted to victory after the water was cleared off the playing surface.

No, baseball fans, it's still three months until April. This is the National Basketball Association. The Phoenix Suns led Seattle

35-24 early in the second quarter Sunday night when referee Mike Mathis halted the game because rain was leaking into Seattle Coliseum from the roof. After NBA Commissioner David Stern ruled Monday that the game must be resumed at the point of interruption instead of replayed from the start, the Suns went on to defeat the SuperSonics 114-97.

Elsewhere in the NBA, Philadelphia defeated San Antonio 108-102 and Sacramento stopped Washington 106-87. The Suns reacted differently when asked how it felt to play in the first NBA game ever suspended after it started. "I don't want to have to do another game like that," said Phoenix forward Larry Nance, who was 12-for-15 from the field and scored 27 points in the two-day game. "Anytime you're on a roll like we were, you hate to have the game stop.

"It was difficult to get our heads in the game in the second quarter,' added Suns guard Jay Humphries, who added 23 points and 12 assists.
"But I liked the long break. It really helped us.'

Seattle outscored 25-14 after the game resumed to tie the game at 49, but the Suns, who snapped a three-game losing streak, rebuilt the margin to 55-50 at halftime. James Edwards scored 17 of his Golden Blate

25 points in the second half and Nance added 13 after halftime as the Suns pulled away in the final two periods. The SuperSonics trailed 84-70 after three quarters and could get no closer than 10 points in the final 12 minutes.

76ers 108, Spurs 102 Philadelphia won for the ninth time in 10 games as Maurice Cheeks had 23 points and 13 assists and Moses Malone 20 points and 13 rebounds against San Antonio.

The 76ers led 55-42 at halftime and still had an 11-point advantage before an 8-0 streak by the Spurs cut the deficit to 101-98 with 2:15 left. But seven free throws kept the 76ers in front down the stretch.

Mike Mitchell led San Antonio with 27 points, while Alvin Robertson added 22. Kings 106, Bullets 87

Sacramento won its third game in a row for the first time this season and posted its biggest victory margin as Mike Woodson scored 21 points and Eddie Johnson 20 against Washington.

Michigan, 14-0, received 13 first-place votes and 1,193 points while Duke, 12-0, got the other four first-place votes and 1,136 points to place third.

North Carolina remained unbeaten by measuring Florida State 109-64 and North Carolina State 90-79. Michigan opened Big Ten play with two impressive road victories, 74-69 at Indiana and 78-68 at Ohio State.

Duke, meanwhile, defeated Northwestern 78-55 and Maryland 81-75.

Syracuse, 13-0, was fourth with 1,077 points and Georgia Tech, 10-1, advanced a spot to round out the top five with 948 points.

Orangemen roll over Villanova, 80-57

By DICK BRINSTER AP Sports Writer

Orangemen of Syracuse weren't green with envy when they went to the sidelines last season to watch three of their Big East brethren battle it out for the NCAA basketball championship.

What they were was a year away from making a serious bid of their own for a berth in the Final Four. At least that's the impression one gets from listening to Villanova Coach Rollie Massimino, whose Wildcats wound up as national champions.

"When we went after them, their experience showed," Massimino said Monday night after unbeaten and fourth-ranked Syracuse whipped Villanova 80-57 for its 11th straight victory.

year experienced-if-not-spectacular Villanova beat Big East rival Georgetown for the crown. The Hoyas, the 1984 NCAA champions, had eliminated St. John's. This season, they're all looking up at Syracuse, which finally took its show on the road after 10 straight home games.

In other games involving ranked teams, it was No. 6 Memphis State 89, South Carolina 81; ninth-ranked Kansas 60, Detroit 51; Auburn 60, No. 11 Kentucky 56; 14th-ranked Alabama-Birmingham 57. South Florida 48, and No. 17 Louisville 86, Eastern Kentucky 55.

Massimino was impressed with the play of Syracuse center Rony Seikaly, one of four returning starters for the Orangemen.

"Rony Seikaly is certainly a dominating type of player," Massimino said after watching the 6-foot-10 sophomore score 20 points and pull down 14 rebounds. "He got the ball inside a lot more than we anticipated."

Senior forward Rafael Addison scored 25 points for Syracuse.

Top 10 Those who visit Memphis for the purpose of playing basketball must learn to live with defeat. The Tigers are so tough, particularly against Metro Conference opponents, that to stay in a game at the Mid-South Coliseum - where Memphis State has won 29 straight games — is to some a moral victory.

"We proved ourselves, that we can play people on the road," South Carolina Coach Bill Foster said. "That's a big step for us."

Vincent Askew scored a career-high 23 points and William Bedford added 19 to pace undefeated Memphis State, 13-0. South Carolina, 8-5, got 21 points from Linwood Moye, 18 from Keith James and 17 from Michael Foster. When a ranked 13-2 team struggles with a 6-8 opponent, the favorite isn't always playing "Detroit was the factor in the way we played," Kansas Coach Larry Brown said. "They had a great game plan. They spread us out and used the 45-second clock

Second 10 Unranked Auburn - which upset the field in the Southeastern Confernce tournament last season - may be overlooked by some, but not by Kentucky Coach Eddie Sutton.

"Auburn played more tonight like they were playing at the end of the season last year," Sutton said. "I don't think they would have lost five games (this year) if they had played like they did tonight.

Chuck Person scored 24 points and Gerald White hit four free throws in the final minute for the host Tigers, 7-5.

Kenny Walker, last year's SEC Player of the Year, led Kentucky. 10-2, with 22 points.

Billy Thompson scored 19 points and Milt Wagner 17, including 10 in the second half as 17th-ranked Louisville upped its record to 8-3. Lewis Spence tossed in a game-high 21 points for 3-7 Eastern Kentucky. Antonio Parris, averaging 20.9 points, scored only eight, all in the first half.

Archie Johnson scored 13 points. Steve Mitchell 12 and Jerome Mincy 11 for No. 14 Alabama-Birmingham, 14-2. South Florida, 7-5, shot ju

Fired Longhorn coach blasts Fred Akers

PORT ARTHUR, Texas (AP) -Former University of Texas assistant football coach Ronnie Thompson said four years of frustration — of having to bite his tongue, of seeing players misused, of seeing suggestions ignored poured out after head coach Fred Akers fired him and three others week

Shattered that his loyalty meant nothing and that Akers would use him and the other dismissed coaches as a sacrificial offering for his own shortcomings, he said, the former head coach of Port Arthur Jefferson High School fought back.

Thompson's verbal broadside after the sackings last Friday probably ranks as the upset of the year in college football, bigger than Texas-El Paso beating Brigham Young.

Fired coaches who speak out in anger after being fired generally have their comments dismissed as sour grpaes. Then they find for the Warhawks No. 1. They were Dustin Dunlap, Chris Epps, Chadd Giles and Greg Moore. Kevin Savage scored once. Good defensive plays were made by John Lehman and Bryan Williamson. Epps and Williamson alternated at Warhawks No. 2 fell to McDonalds' Muffins, 14-8.

On Sunday, Warhawks No. 1 whipped The Sting, 9-0. Moore and Adam Felix turned in standout defensive performances and Williamson carded a shutout at goalie. Winborne, Giles and Epps scored two goals each while Lehman, Dunlap and Savage each scored once.

Warhawks No. 2 rallied Sunday for a 6-4 win over Texas Carpet. The games were played at the Tri-State Fairgrounds Arena.

Thompson, who coached the running backs at Texas, said he understands all that. Nonetheless, he has no qualms about saying that Akers lied to him, that Akers made his assistants the scapegoats for a disappointing season, and that Akers limited the input of his assistants

"Fred can only fire me once. And how's he going to recommend me to anybody now that he's done Thompson said. "Besides. since this has happened, I've learned Fred is bitterly disliked by an awful lot of people. So maybe it won't hurt me. Anyway, I have no regrets."

It is possible in this particular case Thompson's taken the right approach. Fred Akers is neither well liked nor respected by a great many football people across the state. The list starts with Darrell Royal, who realized Akers' limitations long ago.

Ever since former UT football coach Darrell Royal took away Akers' offensive responsibilities and replaced him with a high school coach named Emory Bellard back in 1968, Akers has been obsessed with proving Royal made a mistake, Thompson said. "One of the things that really killed us this year," Thompson said, "was our inability to score touchdowns from inside the 20. We usually settled for field goals. Fred called approximately 82 percent of the plays inside the 20. I know because I kept the charts.'

Ron Toman, as Texas' offensive coordinator, was little more than a

'Ron and I got to call a lot of plays on third-and-8, but on first and second down it was a real circus. We'd be working off the game plan charts and call what had been discussed for down and distance. Fred was always deviating from it," Thompson said.

"What we'd wind up with on game day was a grab bag offense that didn't have any rhyme or season. Sometimes I wondered why we even prepared a game plan. We wouldn't stick with anything in a game long enough for it to be successful."

Before he was officially a member of the Texas coaching staff, Thompson said, he sat with Toman in the press box during the Longhorns' 1982 Cotton Bowl game against Alabama

With Texas trailing late in the game, he heard Toman recommend a quarterback draw. Three plays later Longhorn signal istoric Indians first settlers of Texas

By The Associated Press

Thousands of years ago, Ice Age conditions pushed prehistoric Indians south, some of them as far as the fir and pine forests of what would become Texas, in search of game. Their prey was quite different from animals we happen upon today. Mammoths, large straight-horned bison, horses, camels and ground sloths ranged the area.

Ancient spear-throwers' tools have been found at archaeological 'sites' throughout the state. According to archaeologist Thomas R. Hester, the earliest Native Americans left behind chipped flint points and knives and the remains of Ice Age animals they had killed and butchered. Skeletal remains and artifacts are identified by very distinctive remnants - various forms of projectile points. Pointmaking continued until around 6500 B.C., an era of nearly 3,000 years - the Paleo-Indian period of Texas prehistory. The earliest Texas culture for which we have evidence was part of the Clovis Complex. It is named for the distinctive Clovis fluted spear tip, used to hunt mammoths. Archaeologists found an important site of this period near the town of Miami in the Texas Panhandle.

Around 8800-8500 B.C., the Ice Age hunters shifted their focus to large bison and tipped their spears with smaller flute points, labelled Folsom. One major kill site of this period is Bonfire Shelter in Val Verde County. Folsom hunters forced herds of bison over the edge of a steep canyon wall, and butchered them in a sheltered area Between 7000 and 8000 B.C., the Ice Age gradually ended. The Paleo-Indians began adapting to an

DALLAS (AP) — An estimated 9,000 motorists statewide - and more than 2,000 in Dallas alone were cited in December for violation of Texas' new mandatory seat belt law, authorities say.

Although statewide figures have yet to be tabulated, Department of Public Safety spokesman David Wells said DPS troopers issued an estimated 4,000 citations for seat belt violations in December.

"We know there were about 800 issued the first week of December, and that the number of violations really picked up during the holidays," Wells said "Most people are doing what they're supposed to, but as you can see, there are quite a few who've been caught without their belts.

Citations appeared to be higher in Dallas than many other cities, however, probably because Dallas police were more aggressive in enforcing the law.

Wells said DPS troopers normally issued their citations only after stopping motorists for other traffic violations, such as speeding.

HERE ARE SOME MIRROR IDEAS

There's one thing that can do so much in so many rooms—and that's a mirror. Let's start with the foyer or entrance hall. A decorative mirror can add warmth, beauty and depth to that area beside serving a most useful purpose. In the living room, one or two small decorative mirrors might be used with a group of pictures on a wall for a nice effect. A large mirror might be used to reflect an outdoor view or reflect the colors of the room. Place a mirror where it reflects something you'd like to have reflected. In this sense, a mirror is a picture in itself - a picture of your room.

In your bedroom, is the mirror over your dresser skimpy? Why not get a larger mirror that will give you both better use and decor Today mirrors, both framed and unframed, are available in every size, shape and style to be used effectively in hundreds of different ways. As they say when a stage magician does a trick, "It's all done with mirrors." Remember, mirrors can add magic to your home. Let us help you find the right one for you along with any of your furnishing environment that was becoming more like ours, with plants and animals familiar to modern Texans. A critical site of this period is located near Austin. Home of the "Leanderthal Lady, the Wilson Leonard site yielded the most intact human skeleton ever found from this era. Another important site in Southwest Texas provided evidence of ancient diets. including snake as a staple food.

By 6500 B.C., the old Paleo-Indian traditions began to wave and regional cultures developed among the native Americans. This newer pattern is called Archaic, and Hester says it is easily distinguished from the Paleo-Indian by new kinds of projectile points, grinding tools for the processing of plant foods, and an emphasis on hunting whitetail deer and other animals in essentially modern-day environments.

The hunters and gatherers used wild plant food and game animals in predictable and efficient ways. Although there is a popular belief that their way of life was 'backward and savage," Hester asserts that it was instead, a quite flexible and adaptable mode of living. An intimate knowledge of habitats of particular animals and plants and a scheduled system of exploiting the animals and harvesting seasonal plants, nuts and berries sustained these peoples. They exerted less effort and had much less stress than primitive farmers, leading one anthropologist to describe hunters and gatherers as the original 'leisure'' society.

In central Texas, the ancient hunters and gatherers emphasized the hunting of whitetail deer, and occasionally bison, as well as smaller game. Harvesting of acorns was a major activity, especially as oaks became more common after 3500 B.C. The local Indian populations collected. processed and stored great quantities of the acorns, from which they made meal, breads and cakes and mush. In southern Texas, hunters and gatherers occupied two zones with quite different resources. Along the coastal strip, shellfish could be gathered and there were rich fish resources in the bays. By 2000 B.C., these coastal people had become particularly adept at collecting oysters, conches and other marine shells, often leaving great piles known as "shell middens." And given the absence of flint in this area, they often made their tools

In the interior of south Texas, there was less mesquite brush than today and the landscape was better watered, with streams and springs. Although the hunting of deer, rabbits and sometimes bison was important, plant foods were likely a greater part of the diet than meat. Collecting or foraging, usually done by women and children, focused on river mussels and land snails rich in protein.

Throughout much of Texas, hunting and gathering was the dominant way of life for more than 11,000 years — from Ice Age to the time of contact with the Spanish.
