Rioting inmates seek talks with governor

By PETER MATTIACE Associated Press Writer

MOUNDSVILLE, W.Va. - Rioting inmates released two hostages but continued to hold 14 others today as they demanded a meeting with the governor, complaining they were treated like "trash and animals." One prisoner died during the standoff, authorities said

A heavily armed force of more than 100 police and correctional officers was standing by and was prepared to move into the prison immediately if any of the hostages were hurt, a state official said. However, authorities had received "continual reassurances from the inmates that no one would be hurt," said Assistant Corrections Commissioner William Whyte.

Sixteen hostages were seized initially in the uprising Wednesday night by about 125 to 200 of the 688 inmates at the maximum-security West Virginia State Penitentiary, authorities said. The rest of the inmates were "probably sitting back in their cells." said state police spokesman Sgt. Larry Henry

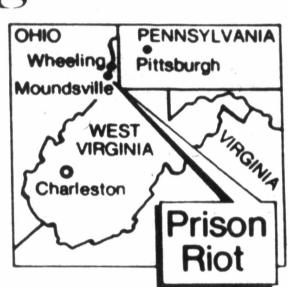

Officials initially thought just 14 people had been taken hostage, but added two more names today

One hostage, a guard with a history of heart trouble, was released about midnight and taken to a hospital, where he was listed in good condition, said penitentiary spokeswoman Jerrie Clutter.

The second hostage was released about 5:40 a.m. and taken to Reynolds Memorial Hospital by ambulance. He was being treated for "minor injuries," including a possible broken arm, said a state police dispatcher Corrections officials interviewed the two men and 'they said they were treated fairly,'' Henry said.

Ms. Clutter identified the dead inmate as Kent Slie, 38, who was serving a life term for murder. She said Slie died "at the hands of his brother inmates but that the cause of death was not known pending

The inmates rioted over conditions and restrictions on holiday "contact visits," authorities and a former prisoner said.

"We want to be treated like we are somebody, not just trash and animals," an inmate shouted at guards outside the fortress-like prison.

State troopers in riot gear encircled the overcrowded. 120-year-old prison and officials made plans to "take back the institution," said Marshall County Sheriff Donald Bordenkircher, a former warden of the penitentiary.

'The governor won't even consider negotiating until all the hostages are released and the inmates are back in their cells," said John Price, a spokesman for Gov. Arch Moore. He said Moore was monitoring the situation from out of town, but refused to say where.

"The inmates do not wish to be violent," one of the hostages, Cpl. Pat Glasscok, said in a phone call

Antarctic air crash

Eight American adventurers killed

PUNTA ARENAS, Chile (AP) - A chartered twin-engine plane crashed while trying to land at a fog-covered Antarctic air base, killing its two-man Chilean crew and eight American globetrotters headed for a New Year's Eve barbeque, authorities said.

Felipe Molina, a spokesman for the Aeropetrel charter company, said Wednesday in Punta Arenas that Chilean air force pilots found 10 bodies in the wreckage of their Cessna Titan 404 plane six miles from the Lt. Marsh Air Base on King George Island

There were no survivors in the Tuesday evening crash The Americans, all men, were on the 11th day of a Chilean trip arranged by Hanns Ebensten, a Florida-based tour organizer who specializes in far-flung wildlife and nature expeditions

'They were adventurous types who had seen most of the world and were looking forward tremendously to Antarctica," Ebensten said in a telephone interview from Key West.

Before they left. I got a telex from Chile telling them to bring formal attire because they were being invited to New Year's Eve dinner at the base." he said. "It was to be a different kind of experience.

The dinner is a traditional barbeque with steaks and Chilean wine, served in a huge metal warehouse for 20 air force families who live year-round at the base in the South Shetland Islands off the Antarctic Peninsula The base has a 40-room lodge used by the Chilean government to house tourists

A spokesman for the U.S. Embassy in Santiago, Wendel Belew, said a consulate officer flew to the air base early today to verify the Americans' identities and bring their bodies to the Chilean mainland. Eight coffins hastily ordered by the embassy from a Santiago funeral home were aboard the flight.

The tour group, made up of retired and working white-collar professionals from five U.S. states, spent Christmas in southern Chile's lakes region, then headed to Punta Arenas, Chile's southernmost city

Bad weather Monday forced a 24-hour postponement of their 766-mile flight to Antarctica.

Molina said the pilot approached the base's year-round air strip but failed to land because fog blocked his view. He told the base by radio that he would try again, but radio contact was broken off as the plane vanished from sight, the company spokesman said.

Searchers in helicopters located the wreckage on Nelson Island six miles away, he

The Chilean charter company, which has operated Antarctic tourist flights for six years, identified the pilot as its owner and manager, Ivan Martinez Diaz. His mechanic, also killed, was not immediately identified

The American victims' identities and occupations were compiled from records of the Aeropetrel airline and the Hotel Cabo de Hornos in Punta Arenas: Ben Callis, 33, of Key West. Fla., a lawyer and realtor: Irving Lambrecht, 63, of Los Angeles, retired; Wayne Riddle, 61, of Buchanan, Mich., an engineer; Tim Lang. 33, of Carmichael, Calif., a petroleum manager; James M. Jasper, 56, of Oxnard, Calif., a librarian; Ealther P. Michael, 72, of Columbus, Ohio, a retired Ohio State University economics professor; James C. Howell, 43. a biology professor at Antioch College in Yellow Spring, Ohio; and Paul R. Cox, 43, of Brooklyn, N.Y., a teacher.

Khadafy says retalition would cause all-out war

TRIPOLI, Libya (AP) - Libyan leader Col. Moammar Khadafy, who has been accused of harboring a terrorist group blamed for attacks on Rome and Vienna airports, said retaliation against Libva would lead to war in the Mediterranean and attacks on the United States and Israel

Libya has taken on the respof sibility of defending Palestinians in Libya, and "if an assault was launched against them in Libya, then we will chase Americans in the streets of America and the Israelis in the streets of occupied Palestine." JANA, the official Libyan news agency, quoted him as saying Wednesday.

"If an aggression on Libya occurs, then we shall consider that the beginning of the end. This will mean the never-ending war. Then goodbye to peace in the Mediterranean Sea. There will be no trade, no airliners and no U.S. or Israeli civilian cruisers or military ships," JANA quoted Khadafy as saying at a news conference in Tripoli

"Assault on Libya is war. Libya will not respond with a limited action. It will declare war in the Mediterranean, in the Middle East. Such war will not end," he was quoted as saying.

U.S. and Israeli officials have said they believe a Palestinian faction headed by PLO renegade Abu Nidal and reportedly based in Libva was responsible for last Friday's terrorist attacks near the airport check-in counters of El Al Israel Airlines.

Eighteen people, including five Americans and an Israeli, were killed and about 120 others were injured. Four of the seven terrorists

Sooners seem certain to be national champion

By The Associated Press

Penn State was ranked No. 1 among teams headed for bowl games, but even Penn State coach Joe Paterno said Oklahoma is the "best team in the country" after the Sooners seemed certain to take the national collegiate football title.

Third-ranked Oklahoma beat the Nittany Lions, 25-10, in the Orange Bowl on Wednesday, as UCLA downed No. 4 Iowa, 45-28, in the Rose Bowl and Tennessee crushed No. 2 Miami, 35-7, in the Sugar

No. 5 Michigan edged Nebraska, 27-23, in the Fiesta Bowl and Texas A&M beat Auburn, 36-16, in the Cotton Bowl. The Associated Press' final poll of the 1985 season, naming the national champ, will be announced tonight. "You have to beat a great football team to win the national championship, and we did tonight," said Oklahoma coach Barry

Who else could you vote for now?" asked Paterno. "I think they're the best team in the country, certainly they're the best team ve've played this year.'

Reagan, Gorbachev talk about peace

WASHINGTON (AP) -President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev sent New Year's greetings of peace to each other's nations, while making subtle plugs for their opposing positions on the U.S. Strategic Defense Initiative, also known as

'Star Wars.

In messages that were taped last week and televised in both countries Wednesday in an unprecedented exchange, both leaders referred to their summit talks in Geneva on arms control, but politely held fast to the positions they have taken on the U.S. plan for the "Star Wars" anti-missile defense system.

"It's my hope that one day, we will be able to eliminate (nuclear) weapons altogether and rely increasingly for our security on defense systems that threaten no one," Reagan said in his address.

Both the United States and the Soviet Union are doing research on the possibilities of applying new technologies to the cause of defense. If these technologies become a reality, it is my dream that, well, to one day free us all from the threat of nuclear destruction.

Gorbachev also spoke of the danger of escalating the arms race, saying, "It is a reality of today's world that it is senseless to seek greater security for oneself through new types of weapons.

Star Wars has been a sticking point in the U.S.-Soviet arms control talks. The Soviets insist on a ban on such plans and the United States says the program answers similar Soviet research.

"It is the forceful and compelling demand of life itself that we should follow the path of cutting back nuclear arsenals and keeping outer space peaceful," Gorbachev said.

The messages were televised simultaneously at 1 p.m. EST in the United States on all the major commercial television networks and at 9 p.m. Moscow time in the Soviet Union. Each talk lasted about five minutes and each leader spoke in his native language in telecasts that featured simultaneous translations

Reagan's speech was the first by an American president to the Soviet populace since a televised speech by President Richard M. Nixon during his 1972 visit to Moscow. Never before, however, had the leaders of the United States and the Soviet Union engaged in such a message exchange.

Each expressed hope that 1986 would be a year of peace. "Let's work together to make it a year of peace," Reagan said.

"There is no better goal for 1986 or for any year.

Gorbachev said, "Our duty to all humankind is to offer it as a safe prospect of peace, a prospect of entering the third millenium without fear

He said one of the main achievements of the summit "is that, as leaders and as human beings, we were able to take the first steps toward overcoming mistrust and to activate the factor of confidence.

Reagan said that despite the obvious disagreements at the summit, "we left Geneva with a better understanding of one another and of the goals we have."

Reagan used a few Russian words at the end of his speech, saying, "Let us look forward to a future of 'chistoye nyebo' (clear skies) for all mankind.

Complaints on civil rights mishandled, panel charges panel Wednesday criticized the Reagan administration's handling of civil rights complaints lodged against the nation's schools and

The report by the House Committee on Government Operations urged the Education Department's Office for Civil Rights (OCR) to adopt new guidelines on when it will refer a case to the Justice Department and when it will act on its own. It also said the federal civil rights agency should not let colleges get off the hook for past segregation violations just by making a good-faith attempt to remedy the problems

Instead, the report said, "the violations must be corrected. regardless of the good faith in which a given desegregation plan was implemented.

The Democratic-controlled committee report was based on an investigation and two days of hearings last July and September by its subcommittee on intergovernmental relations and Republican members issued a three-page statement taking issue with the majority report.

The majority report faulted OCR's handling of an investigation of Dillon County, S.C., School District No. 2. Separate investigations in 1977, 1979 and 1982 led the civil rights office to conclude the district was making class assignments in a racially discriminatory way.

OCR did not refer the Dillon case to Justice for enforcement until

McLean gets a new deputy

MCLEAN - The Gray County Sheriff's department has a new deputy patrolling the McLean

County Sheriff Rufe Jordan appointed Wayne Carter, of McLean, to replace former Deputy Jimmy Shelton, who died last year, County Commissioner Ted Simmons said Thursday Simmons, who represents the McLean area on the commission, said Carter's father was in law enforcement

"I think he'll make an excellent deputy." Simmons commented about Carter

The $482 million accord was signed Tuesday, the last day to beat a Dec. 31 deadline. It would give the workers, most of them women, salary increases of at least 2.5 percent through a complex distribution formula.

The settlement, which must be approved by the Legislature and a federal court, would end a legal battle that prompted debates in Congress and state legislatures nation wide

The issue is more than equal pay for equal worth. Rather, it is equal pay for different jobs of comparable value

The value is measured in terms of skill, effort, training, education, responsibility and working conditions.

Claiming that a state study proved that women were paid less than men holding jobs of comparable worth, nine state workers filed a multimillion-dollar lawsuit agaist the state in 1982. In 1983, U.S. District Judge Jack Tanner found the state guilty of systematic and purposeful wage discrimination against women, and ordered the state to pay adjusted salaries and back pay, which could have cost the state more than $500 million

Later in 1985, Tanner was overturned by the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals. The Washington Federation of State Employees, the state's largest union, accepted the settlement rather than challenge the appeals court's ruling to the U.S. Supreme Court.

The Dec. 31 deadline was set by the Legislature in the budget bill last year, which provided $41.4 million to begin implementing a comparable worth plan. The state is expected to spend $10 million a year through July 1, 1992.

in phone service

NEW YORK (AP) - In the two years since the breakup of "Ma Bell," the quality of telephone service has remained steady, in the opinion of a majority of Americans responding to a Media General-Associated Press poll. There is also optimism that telephone service will improve Nevertheless, the poll found little public support for the breakup of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co., which created seven regional telephone companies and threw open the door to long-distance competition. Only one-quarter of the 1,462 respondents in the nationwide telephone poll thought the breakup was a good idea.

Six in 10 respondents said they felt they were paying more for telephone service now than they did before the AT&T breakup in January 1984. Three percent said they thought prices declined, and 28 percent said they thought prices remained the same. The rest were

But most people did not think the breakup of AT&T resulted in a great change in service, the poll found. About two-thirds of the respondents said the quality of local and long-distance service was the same as before the breakup.

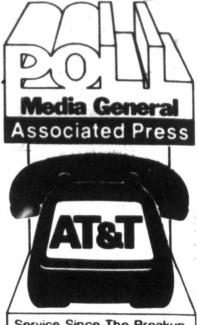

Among those who reported a change in quality, most said service had declined. Local service was cited for declining quality more frequently than was long-distance service.

When asked, "Do you think the quality of telephone service will improve, decline or stay the same in the next 10 years," 52 percent said it would improve, 18 percent said it would decline and 17 percent said it would stay the same. The rest were unsure. Three-quarters of the respondents said they still used AT&T for long-distance calls. The nearest competitors were MCI with 6 percent and GTE-Sprint with 5 percent

Seven in 10 AT&T customers reported no change in the quality of long-distance service since the breakup, while only half of MCI and GTE customers said quality was the same.

Respondents in the Media General-Associated Press poll included a random, scientific sampling of 1,462 adults across the country Nov. 8-14. As with all sample surveys, the results of Media General-AP telephone polls can vary from the opinions of all Americans because of chance variation in the sample.

Many musicians have met early deaths in air crashes

By LEE MITGANG Associated Press Writer

Rick Nelson, who died in a New Year's Eve plane crash near De Kalb, Texas, joined a list of musicians including big band leader Glenn Miller, country singer Patsy Cline, and rock greats Otis Redding and Buddy Holly - all of whom met early deaths in air

Nelson, 45, achieved rock 'n' roll stardom in the late 1950s and early '60s with hits like "I'm Walkin. and "Travelin' Man." He was featured, along with the rest of his family, on the long-running TV series, "The Adventures of Ozzie and Harriet." He often sang his hit songs on national TV, which undoubtedly boosted his rock

His career after the "Ozzie and Harriet" years never equaled his earlier fame, but he was in a number of movies and had several moderately successful song hits. Plane crashes have cut short the lives of at least eight other famous musicians.

Still shrouded in mystery is the death of big band leader Glenn Miller. On Dec. 15, 1944, Miller's plane was flying over the English Channel en route from Bedford, England to Paris where he was to give a show. The plane never arrived. Two members of the British Royal Air Force now say the musician's plane might have been hit by bombs jettisoned over the English Channel by RAF bombers.

Rank, 34, was in fair condition in St. Michael Hospital in Texarkana. and Ferguson, 40, was in critical condition in the University of Arkansas Medical Center burn unit at Little Rock. Both suffered second- and third-degree burns and smoke inhalation. Helicopter pilot Don Ruggles, who was flying in the area, said that seconds before the 5:15 p.m. crash Tuesday, one of the DC-3's pilots gasped for breath as he radioed a distress message from the smoke-filled cockpit.

Friends and relatives of the victims say the DC-3 had been plagued by engine trouble in past months, that it had more trouble before its last flight, and that one band member had talked of quitting because he didn't trust it.

Nelson, 45, who became known to millions of Americans as a youngster on "The Adventures of Ozzie and Harriet," was flying from Alabama to Dallas for a New Year's Eve concert.

Lynn Upton, wife of PJ's co-owner Pat Upton, a former member of Nelson's band, said Nelson had trouble with the DC-3 on his flight from Orlando, Fla., to Guntersville The trouble reappeared Tuesday.

Authorities don't know what led to deadly Dallas sniping

DALLAS (AP) - Police are trying today to figure out why a man launched a deadly sniping spree from his apartment window, killing an uninvolved passer-by and injuring two others before falling under police fire.

Krzysztof Sulak, 31, who recently emigrated from Poland and speaks virtually no English, was in serious condition early today at Parkland Memorial after a Wednesday morning gun battle, police Lt. Ron Waldrop said.

A Parkland spokesman who declined to identify herself said Sulak suffered wounds to his jaw, hand and shoulder in the attack.

Police say Sulak, armed with an automatic rifle, barricaded himself in his apartment for four hours while shooting from his

the legislation.

Sulak's wife told police through an interpreter that her husband was involved in Poland's Solidarity movement but had a history of mental illness that had led to problems with the labor movement and Polish police.

The wife — who said she fled the apartment about 1 a.m. Wednesday when her husband began loading his rifle - said the family had been in Dallas for several months and that her husband "had been acting irrationally the last few days, Waldrop said.

The couple's two children, ages 5 and 11, were with their father when the shooting began but were not injured, Waldrop said. The man had ordered the children to shield the windows in their Galleria Plaza apartment with furniture, he said. What led to the shooting was uncertain, he said. "All we know is that when we arrived, we found one man lying in front of the apartment dead from a gunshot wound to the head," he said. "Two other people who were wounded were taken to a hospital. treated and released before our

Movies you didn't see here

By

Yes, folks, it's time for those annual Top 10 listings again. And here's my second annual list of the Top 10 Movies You Didn't See in Pampa in the past year.

I get to begin with a Special Mention for a leftover from last year's list: Amadeus, winner of eight Academy Awards, including Best Actor, Best Director and Best Movie. But unless you've rented the video, you didn't see it here.

Now, on to the actual Top 10 list.

1. Kiss of the Spider Woman. No, it's not a horror flick or a comics inspired epic. Already winning several critic's and festival awards, it's a tale of two mismatched men in a South American jail who become friends. William Hurt is considered a top contender for the Best Actor award 2. Full of the action and excitement for which his The French Connection is noted, William Friedkin's To Live and Die in L.A. is supposed to contain the most exciting chase scene since . . . well, since detective Popeye's chase along the rail lines in New York.

3. Featuring Glenn Close and Jeff Bridges, The Jagged Edge is a taut murder mystery and courtroom thriller which has already made more than $30 million in limited releases across the nation.

4. Blending comedy with nervous tension, After Hours has shown up consisently on this year's 10 best movies list of critics. Directed by Martin Scorsese, the man who has brought us Taxi Driver, Raging Bull and The King of Comedy, it's a story of man coming into contact with the offbeat nightlife in New York City.

5. Blood Simple has received wide critical acclaim, drawing comparisons for its Hitchcockian blend of dark mystery, characters unwittingly caught up in bleak situations, plot twists and unexpected

6. Coming from the Disney studios, The Journey of Natty Gann has garnered rave reviews for being one of the best Disney movies in years. It depicts the journey of a young girl during the Depression to visit her father, meeting unexpected friends along the way

7. Showing Madonna has other skills than displaying her belly button, Desperately Seeking Susan features Rosanna Arquette in a comedy about her seeking a more exciting life than a humdrum suburban housewife existence. Madonna plays the Susan of the title.

8. The Gods Must Be Crazy is an offbeat comedy which has had extended runs in large - city movie houses. It concerns an aboriginal native who picks up a soft drink bottle he has seen fall from the sky and who goes on a journey to return the "gift" to the gods who

9. Filmed in Colorado, American Flyers concerns the characters who endure a grueling bicycle race along the mountain roads of that state. With all the bicyclists in this area, it surely would be of some interest to a number of residents here.

10. The Emerald Forest concerns a father's efforts to rescue his son, who had been kidnapped several years earlier by South American Indians and raised in the jungles. The film also uses the setting to contrast the technological encroachments of the white man into the almost paradisical life of the simple village society.

Again, there are several honorable mentions to be added to the list: The Re-Animator, a horror comedy based on a tale by horror master H. P. Lovecraft; The Quiet Earth, touted as being one of the best science fiction movies ever made; The Ninth Configuration, a mystery - horror tale from the author who gave us The Exercist; and Lost in America and Strangers in Paradise, explorations of the preppy, suburban male and conflicts

And, of course, any good foreign - language film. In all fairness, it must be pointed out that a few of these films also have yet to make it to Amarillo.

Just for the record, out of last year's Top 10 list, seven of the films still didn't make it to Pampa except on cable television or videocassettes (by which venue I was able to see them)

And so ends the second annual list. And here's hoping the following recent movies don't make the 1986 list: A Chorus Line, The Color Purple, White Nights and Brazil.

Hollis is a staff writer for The Pampa News who has still resisted journeying to Amarillo just to catch a movie.

Automatic budget cuts would help Texas, Gramm says AUSTIN (AP) - Sen. Phil assumption that automatic, Gramm has taken issue with a study indicating that his balanced-budget proposal would hit Texas the hardest and says his home state will instead benefit greatly from forced restraints on federal spending.

A Washington research group, Federal Funds Information for the States, says the recently approved Gramm-Rudman plan would cost Texas $304.8 million in fiscal 1987 the biggest percentage cut of the 10 most populous states.

Gramm-Rudman requires the president and Congress to reduce the federal budget deficit by approximately $36 billion each year, aiming for a balanced budget

"I don't take their study seriously," Gramm, R-Texas, said "I haven't seen the documentation and have no way of knowing whether that assertion is true or not.

"What is clearly true is that Texas will benefit greatly from the Gramm-Rudman bill, from the impact of the economic recovery that has put 1 million Texans to work in the last four years," he Texas would benefit disproportionately because it is in the Sun Belt, the Republican senator said.

When new factories are built, are they going to be built randomly in Buffalo, New York, or Cleveland, Ohio, or Detroit, Michigan?" Gramm asked. "Are people going to built houses in Pennsylvania at the same rate they do in Texas?

"No," he said. "New plants, new farms, new factories, new homes are going to be built disproportionately in Texas."

FFIS says in its study, however, that Texas could face a 6.3-percent cut in the amount of federal money it would receive in the fiscal year that begins in October 1986.

California, by contrast, would lose 5.7 percent and New York would lose 4.4 percent, said FFIS, a research group for the National Conference of State Legislatures and the National Governors' Association

Its analysis is based on the Search, seizure in public schools

The California Supreme Court has now joined the U.S. Supreme Court in contending that youngsters who have the misfortune to be enrolled in public schools have no Fourth Amendment rights.

The Fourth Amendment, of course, prohibits all searches and seizures except those conducted on the authority of a warrant that has been issued on the basis of probable cause. The Fourth Amendment is a portion of the U.S. Constitution, which proclaims itself to be "the supreme law of the land... anything in the Constitution or laws of any State to the contrary notwithstanding." Yet both the highest court in the land and, now, the highest court in California have decided that the Fourth Amendment is inoperative where students in the public schools are concerned.

Many parents doubtless want to applaud the courts' rulings. They feel they have a right as parents to search their children's rooms and personal effects. And as long as their children live at home or depend on their parents for support, no fault can be found with this belief. Moreover, as long as parents are held legally responsible for their children's behavior, those parents are surely within their rights in demanding the freedom to monitor and supervise that behavior.

So if the parents have the right to search the kids, and the schools are merely acting in loco parentis, doesn't that mean the schools have the right to search the kids? Yes. as long as the schools are merely the hired agents of parents, as private schools would be

But it the schools are arms of government whose revenues are seized involuntarily from the general public and whose students are compelled to enroll there (unless their parents are fortunate enought o have sufficient money left after taxes to be able to afford to send them to private schools), they should be subject to the same rules of procedure as any other agents of government — the rules of procedure spelled out in the U.S. Constitution.

To permit any other, looser standard to apply to the search and seizure activities of public school officials is a dangerous exception and sets a dangerous precedent. Do we want government agents on any level to be free to search and seize the personal effects of citizens without adhering to the limitations our Founding Fathers believed were necessary to keep government in its

Airplanes safer than autos

BY RICHARD B. McKENZIE

This year's rash of airline crashes, near misses. and blown jet engines has raised fears that airline deregulation has reduced air safety Policymakers are understandably concerned that deregulation may have led to more deaths from air travel despite continued surveillance of airline safety by the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA)

However, even if deregulation has led to reduced air safety, the death rate from travel has very likely declined. Let me explain.

Granted, there are three good reasons for fearing that deregulation has decreased air

First, the number of air carriers has risen dramatically, from thirty-five in 1978 (the year airline deregulation began) to ninety-six in 1983. The inexperience of the new airlines could be expected to increase the risk of more mistakes and, possibly, more accidents.

Second, the average size of airplanes, as measured by the number of seats available, has increased from 140 in 1978 to 155 in 1983, and the percentage of seats filled has obviously increased with the reductions in real airline fares

The result has been a 21 percent increase in passenger miles flown, from 188 billion in 1978 to 227 billion in 1983. The greater number of flights by more people (with fewer air traffic controllers) has increased the opportunity for mistakes and, again, the potential for more accidents.

Third, and somewhat tenuously, the deregulation of real air fares, per se, may be associated with a reduction in safety of long-established airlines, as well as inexperienced newcomers. When airlines are prevented from competing by lowering prices, as they were under the control of the now-defunct Civil Aeronautic Board, we should expect them to compete by the many non-price means available, including the attractiveness of in-flight meals, planes and attendants - and air safety records.

Deregulation of air fares MAY have given rise to a substitution of price competition for non-price competition, that is to say, in the substitution of a marginal increase in the probability of accidents for a marginal reduction in ticket prices. "May" is used advisedly because the impact of price deregulation on air safety critically depends on just how stringently the FAA has monitored air safety both before and after the advent of deregulation, and on the willingness of airlines and the public to trade safety for price

However, even if future statistical studies show that deregulation has encouraged more air accidents and deaths, it does not follow that deregulation has not been a success. While no one approves of innocent deaths in the air or anywhere else, safety is clearly not the only consumer objective. If it were, few would fly or drive a car.

In addition, it is important to stress that the deregulation of airlines has also caused an obvious substitution of air travel (the safest long-distance transportation mode) for automobile travel (the most unsafe long-distance transportation mode).

In all likelihood, the deregulation of air travel has reduced the overall death rate from travel. The death rate for passenger car travel averaged over 3-per-100-million passenger miles driven between 1980 and 1983, whereas during the same period the death rate for airline travel averaged only .03-per-100-million passenger miles flown.

Clearly, travel by air cannot take the place of all travel by car. However, the comparative death rate statistics for air and automobile travel mean that for every 100-million miles of travel undertaken by air instead of car - because of deregulation and lower air fares - more than 100 lives were saved! Looked at differently, they mean that air safety would have to decline by a factor of 100 or more for airline deregulation to have caused, on balance, more travel deaths.

The line of analysis developed here does not indicate that policy-makers should be complacent about the airlines' safety records this year. Of course not. But it does strongly suggest that they should not be lured into swallowing the facile conclusion that in the name of safety airlines ought to be re-regulated.

The best things ever said

Several years ago, I read a great book titled. "The 637 Best Things Anybody Ever Said." It was a book of wonderful quotations, and it was put together by a man named Robert Byrne.

I was sad when I finished the book because I figured if Mr. Byrne did another such work it would have to be titled, "The 637 Second Best Things Anybody Ever Said," and it would not be nearly as good as the first.

As usual, I was wrong. The other day I ran across another compilation of quotations by Mr. Byrne, titled "The Other 637 Best Things Ahybody Ever Said." The book is a Fawcett paperback and it costs only $2.95.

Mr. Byrne writes in the introduction of his second work that this new collection actually is the 637 best things anybody ever said. "In titling the first collection," he said, "I lied."

I'm not certain how many of the other 637 best things anybody ever said I can lift for this column and not be guilty of outright stealing, but even if I am guilty of such literary transgressions I still commend the book to you, and if you ever need a cheap gift that almost anybody can appreciate, Robert Byrne's book is the ticket

How did he beat the lie detector?

By William A. Rusher

The year just ended might, at first blush, seem to have been a disastrous one for the United States, as far as spies go. In fact, however, it was a bad year for the spies — because so many of them got caught. And as a bonus there were some important defections from the KGB, not even counting the one who changed his mind and went

Of the spies we discovered in 1985, in many ways the most interesting was Larry Wu-tai Chin, the former CIA analyst who appears to have served as an espionage agent for the Red Chinese for 30 or even 40 years. He may have become a communist as early as 1943, and was reportedly honored for his services at a dinner in Peking in 1982, the year after his official retirement from the CIA.

We are not told very precisely what Chin did for the CIA, but it is clear that he was in a position to see, and "borrow," many highly classified documents. He turned copies of these over to couriers near the Toronto airport, and was paid for them in the course of separate trips that he made from time to time to Hong Kong.

Eventually the payments Chin was receiving from the communists grew so large that it became necessary to explain to his American friends how a middle-ranking CIA employee was able to invest in real estate all around the Washington area while simultaneously putting his children through school. Chin boasted that he had invented a "system" for winning at Las Vegas and attributed his prosperity to Chin may not actually have had a system for beating the bank in Las Vegas, but he certainly seems to have had one for beating the polygraph in Langley. All CIA employees are rou-tinely required to undergo lie detector tests at regular intervals, and Chin was surely no exception. How, then, did he manage to fool the machine again and again, over a matter of decades? An honest answer to that question might well be the most useful information Larry Chin has to bargain with, if he's interested in getting his prison term shortened a bit. Secretary of State Shultz's well-known reservations about such tests simply increase the question's urgency.

Polygraphs, better known as "lie detector machines," aren't perfect, and are not ordinarily accepted as valid sources of evidence in a court of law. But they do measure the subtle physical indications of stress that are produced by (among other things) the effort of lying. They can, therefore, be extremely useful in spotting sensitive areas in the course of a long series of questions, and in a setting like Langley they have, to my personal knowledge, resulted in discoveries extremely useful to those concerned with American

There are all sorts of old wives' tales about how to beat the polygraph e.g., to disrupt reaction patterns by hiding a pebble between your toes and squeezing it (to produce pain and a blip on the machine) at irrelevant moments. But Chin must have confronted the monster dozens of times, and seems to have fooled it every time. Is he some sort of pathological liar, from whom lying elicits no more effort, let alone stress, than telling the truth?

Whatever the explanation, it seems likely to lead to revisions in the CIA's already strict procedures for granting and renewing security clearances. And if any part of Larry Chin's explanation can be made public in due course, without damage to national se-curity, I hope the CIA won't allow its natural penchant for secrecy to deter

it from releasing it. °1985, NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN

Spain, Portugal enter Common Market

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) -Spain and Portugal officially entered the Common Market on Wednesday, expanding the world's largest trading bloc for the third time since its founding in 1957.

There was no official ceremony, and the only visible change here was the unfurling of the Spanish and Portuguese flags with those of the 10 other member countries outside the main buildings in the Common Market district.

Spain and Portugal had agreed to membership terms, including the New Year's Day entry, last March after more than six years of negotiations with the 10 other Common Market counties.

Spain and Portugal are the first new member countries since Greece joined in 1981. The only other additions were Britain, Ireland and Denmark in 1973.

The founding Common Market members were France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg.

Spain's and Portugal's membership increases the population of Common Market countries from 270 million to 320

Soviets react positively to televised Reagan speech

MOSCOW (AP) - A televised new year's message from President Reagan kindled hope among some Soviets for better superpower relations in 1986, with one man interviewed saying it proved both countries know "there is no alternative to peace.'

Without advance notice, Reagan's taped greeting was broadcast at 9 p.m. on New Year's Day as a segment of the Soviet Union's evening news, the most watched prime-time television show. Pedestrians in central Moscow expressed surprise when told Reagan was addessing the Soviet people on television.

In his five-minute message, Reagan wished the Soviets a happy, healthy new year, and added: "Let's work together to make it a year of peace. There is no better goal for 1986 or for any other year. Let us look forward to a future of chistoye nyebo (clear skies) for all mankind.

Reagan's message was the first on Soviet television from an American president since Richard Nixon was granted access during a visit to Moscow in 1972. It was immediately followed by a tape of Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev's address to American television viewers.

There was no immediate comment on Reagan's message from official Soviet media. But an office worker who watched the speech at a family holiday gathering said: "I liked it." "I think this is a very good

A Soviet man said he thought both Reagan and Gorbachev seemed sincere about wanting to bring peace to the world. He said Reagan's speech "was full of good sentiments and showed that he shares the Soviet belief that there is no alternative to peace.

The president's remarks were translated into Russian by a Soviet interpreter, who closely followed an official English-language text released by the U.S. Embassy in Moscow.

It was uncertain how many people in the Soviet Union saw Reagan's address.

Couple living in a Manhattan park cave

NEW YORK (AP) — A homeless couple lived in a cave-like outpost in a park for six months, giving it up only when the man required medical care for a drug overdose, authorities said Wednesday.

The dwelling, carved into an isolated hillside at Fort Tryon Park in Upper Manhattan, was discovered Monday night when Lucille Gendron, 34, called police from a nearby subway station, said police Sgt. Robert Lucena. Ms. Gendron said that William

The park is best known for the Cloisters museum, a medieval monastery brought over from France which is visited by thousands each year.

When Ms. Gendron was asked why she and Christen had taken up residence there, "She said it was the best place to live, because they didn't want to live in the street. Lucena said.

ageant offers scholarships

Not only the Miss Top O' Texas crown is at stake at the 1986 scholarship pageant Saturday night. The 13 area contestants are also looking at more than $13,400 in scholarships plus the opportunity to represent Pampa in the Miss Texas Scholarship Pageant July

The 1986 Miss Top O' Texas scholarship pageant, a Miss America preliminary, is set for 7:30 p.m., Saturday, at M.K. Brown Auditorium. The 10 area contestants vying for the title include Gail Draper of Amarillo, Julie Murley of Borger, Angel Edwards of Tulia, Sarah Ross of Wichita Falls, Shawn Belton of Borger, Kyrrha Hodges of Borger, Shelly Cook of Spearman, Krisann Reese of Stratford, Christy Thomas of Canyon and Marca Ford of Borger. Rachel Dawson, Melissa Harris and Lisa Coon, all of Pampa, will also participate in the pageant.

Emcee for this year's event is Tamara Hext, Miss Texas 1984. An accomplished singer, Hext will also perform. Misty Neef, Miss Top O' Texas 1985, will relinquish her crown at the pageant Saturday. She is also scheduled to sing. Other featured entertainment for the performances by the Madeline Graves Dancers.

Tuition scholarships for the pageant have been donated by the following: $4,200 - Oklahoma City University; $3,800 - Wayland Baptist University; $2,800 - Frank Phillips College; $1,000 - South Plains College; $800 - Clarendon College; and $800 - Amarillo College. ChaLor's of Spearman has donated a $500 wardrobe for the winner who will also receive a $50 gift certificate from Michelle's Fashions and a watch from Zales.

Delta Air Lines donated round trip air fare for Miss Hext and Coronado Inn provided free lodging for the former Miss Texas. Carmichael-Whatley Funeral Directors donated limousine service for the pageant guests,

Sponsors of the stage party included Copan Drilling, Safeway, Coca-Cola Bottling Co., the Cheese Chalet, Scotty's Wine & Cheese and pampa Office Supply. Other merchandise and services were given by K-Mart, Alco, Pampa Travel Center and the Biarritz

Dear Abby

Greedy guests treat holiday buffet as barnyard banquet

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I have had it! For the last six years my husband and I have had a cocktail party on Christmas Day for our neighbors and close friends. We have an open bar and a beautiful buffet, which is quite ex-

Here's my problem: One couple (man and wife) arrive early and gorge themselves at the buffet table. They eat so much and so fast, little is left for the other guests. Honestly, Abby, between them they polish off over half of a special meat dish that most guests have complimented me on. After they have sated themselves, the husband concentrates on our liquor.

The other guests have noticed how piggish they are, and my hus-band said he has had these pigs at our parties for the last time. But how can we avoid having them? They are very close neighbors, and it would be awkward to exclude them.

If we don't invite them, they are brassy enough to come uninvited when they see all the neighbors going into our house. Any suggestions

ANGUISHED IN ARIZONA

DEAR ANGUISHED: Inviting people you do not want in order to "avoid awkwardness" is a cop-out. Do not invite them. And if they come anyway and proceed to attack your buffet, sidle up to them, and whisper with a wink and a smile, "Whoa! Save a little for someone else!" Or be prepared to spend a little more to feed the pigs.

DEAR ABBY: May I join the hordes of those who are undoubtedly writing about the gentleman who entered your column on the back of a mule to promote Mule Appreciation

While I do not share his devotion to mules, I see nothing wrong with his premise that a day set aside to honor said animal could cover both bases and do for bachelors.

I do, however, take exception to his stating that George Washington ented with a pair of jackasses by King Charles III in 1785. Charles of what country? It couldn't have been England; King George III was king at that time

It couldn't have been France; Louis XVI was King of France.

It couldn't have been Germany; Germany was not unified at the

It couldn't have been Russia; Catherine the Great was empress of

So where did your correspondent dredge up this Charles III?

NANCY TORRES. SAN FRANCISCO

DEAR NANCY: "Hordes" did not write. One lone editor in Northhampton, Mass., called to question the name, but the item had already gone to press. The writer undoubtedly meant Charles III of Spain.

DEAR ABBY: I have been going with a man for nearly a year. I am a widow and "J." has been divorced for 15 years. We love each other very much. I'm a young 76, and he is 65, but he said age doesn't matter when you love a person.

I was very lonely when I met J., as I had not dated since my husband's death-18 years ago. J. has been wonderful to me. He takes me out to dinner and brings me flowers, but there are a few things that bother me. He lives about 15 miles from me and won't give me his home phone number. I would like to have it in case of an emergency. I know the town he lives in, but he doesn't want to give me his home address. Not that I would go there, but I wonder why he's so secretive about these things.

He has my phone number and calls me often. He owns his own business not far from where I live and I have that phone number, but I rarely call him.

He has married children and other relatives whom I would love to meet, but he doesn't want them to know about me. He's met most of my family, and they think he's great. I am a much happier person since J. came into my life. I probably shouldn't let these things bother me, but they do. Please help me. BOTHERED

DEAR BOTHERED: A man who refuses to disclose his home telephone number and address to the woman he professes to love is hiding something. Add to that the fact that he doesn't want his family to know about you, and you have good reasonfor being bothered.

Something is fishy. If J. doesn't clear up the mystery soon, it might be wise to do some investigating on your own

Exhibit shows ancient Greek's pottery

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) - The Amasis Painter, an artist identified only by the name of the Greek potter whose cups and vases he decorated, is regaining fame more than 2,500 years after he lived - in the first one-man show by an

"The Amasis Painter and His World," the only collection known to feature an individual's work from the ancient world, was organized and displayed by the Toledo Museum of Art.

The collection includes a quartet of chariot horses staring out of a vase at the viewer, a lunging hound followed by horseback riders in a hunt, Greek wrestlers mid-contest and satyrs readying the drink and drugs that led humans to knowledge of the god Dionysos. "We have a whole window on everyday Greek life," says Kurt Luckner, curator of ancient art at the museum. Luckner envisioned the show three years ago. He was different from typical big-name attractions: the Rembrandts, El Grecos, Picassos.

"That's done all the time. But nobody has ever done such a thing for someone in the ancient world, Luckner said

He chose Greek pottery because it is the most common artwork to survive from the ancient world. and works of the Amasis Painter because his were more obtainable than two other celebrated Greek vase painters, Exekias and Lydos.

There are 132 Amasis vases known, of which 64 are in the show, which opened at the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York and will go on to the Los Angeles County Museum of Art Feb. 20 through April 6. The Louvre in Paris lent 13 vases; the Vatican lent all five of the Amasis Painter's works it has. Other vases and shards came from European and American museums and private collectors.

The Amasis Painter's works

span the period 560 to 515 B.C., and originated in an Athens potter's shop. Some archaeologists and art historians believe Amasis the potter and the Amasis Painter were the same person, but Luckner and others believe the earthenware pots made by Amasis were decorated by others.

Some of the works are inscribed 'Amasis made this,' and Luckner believes they would say "Amasis painted this" if they had been made by the same person

Pottery of the time was known as 'black-figure.'' Scenes were etched into the black clay with a bronze pin, often in minute detail. Use of color was limited to shades of clay: white, red, oxblood and the orange background of the pot. After firing, the colors became part of the pot.

The Amasis Painter's work became more and more detailed over the period, a fact Luckner considers a reverse of the norm

U.S. storing nearly quarter of world's grain supplies

By DON KENDALL AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - As 1986 begins, the world's pantry is well-stocked with a record inventory of grain, nearly a fourth of it stored in the United States where abundant crops have helped

The Agriculture Department's most recent analysis provides some mind-boggling figures about the world grain situation.

Keep in mind that the quantities are expressed in metric tons, the unit favored in international marketing. A metric ton is about 2,205 pounds and is equal to 36.7 bushels of wheat or soybeans, or 39.4 bushels of corn.

In other words, the record 1985 U.S. corn harvest of 8.72 billion bushels equaled about 221.4 million metric tons. The yield of 116.6 with the United States accounting bushels per acre translates into for about 78 million tons. Both the almost three tons per acre. All told, according to USDA, world grain production in 1985-86 is projected at more than 1.667 billion tons. Of that, U.S. farmers are credited with 341.4 million tons.

Total grain includes wheat; coarse grains such as corn and barley, and milled rice.

Including global stocks left over from previous harvests, the total world supply of grain in 1985-86 is estimated at nearly 1.9 billion tons, including 433.5 million tons held in the United States.

That is the quantity of grain the world's leading producers have to meet all needs in the current year, including domestic consumption and export demand.

World grain trade, according to the figures, is projected at slightly more than 222 million metric tons.

for about 78 million tons. Both the total and the U.S. portion is down sharply from 1984-85. The global consumption of grain in 1985-86 is expected to be more than 1.6 billion tons, a record level. The U.S. consumption of grain is projected at 202.4 million tons.

After deducting grain consumption from total supply, the report winds up showing that global stockpiles at the end of the 1985-86 season - roughly mid-year - will exceed 296 million tons. Last summer, the world 'surplus' or grain carryover was less than 232 million tons. And in mid-1984 it was 184 million tons.

The U.S. share of the global stockpile, according to the projections for mid-1986, will be around 153 million tons, compared with 91 million tons last summer and 71 million tons in mid-1984.

Two nuke plant partners opt for lump-sum payment

HOUSTON (AP) - The South Texas Nuclear Project's former builder has paid two of the project's partners a total of $324.3 million all at once rather than over the seven-year period outlined in a lawsuit settlement. Houston Lighting & Power Co. and Central Power & Light Co. of Corpus Christi were to have received $231 million and $189 million, respectively, over a seven-year period. But the two partners accepted lesser, one-time payments Tuesday.

HL&P agreed to a $177.5 million payment from Brown & Root Inc., the original designer and builder of the nuclear project, and Brown & Root's parent company, The Halliburton Co.

"Accepting $177.5 million now is better, because the company will be able to apply immediately the settlement dollars to on-going plant construction, reducing additional outside financing and related interest charges," said HL&P executive vice president Hollis R.

HL&P spokesman Graham Painter said, "The money will go back into the STNP, to relieve the ultimate cost of the plant."

Painter said Tuesday's payment will not reduce the $5.495 billion cost estimate for the nuclear project. The payment, he said, will be used to defray HL&P's costs of financing construction.

HL&P and CP&L, partners in the 2,500-megawatt nuclear plant under construction near Bay City, confirmed an electronic transfer of cash to their bank accounts on

This is an approach that Penn State can certainly appreciate. The Nittany Lions' quarterback, John Shaffer, had completed only 45.2 percent of his passes for just 1,367 yards in their 11-0 season. So the folks from State College are accustomed to shopping for their yards and points elsewhere.

And that, of course, explained Oklahoma Coach Barry Switzer's Orange Bowl game plan.

"We wanted them to have to pass," Switzer said diplomatically. After watching Shaffer attempt to do that, you didn't have to ask why

"Their style is to hammer away with their big power backs. Switzer continued. "We didn't want to let them do that.

So Oklahoma's awesome defense "the best we've ever had." Switzer said - stuffed Penn State's runs and forced Shaffer to throw the football. It exposed Penn State's most glaring weakness. In fact, it developed into a terrible case of overexposure.

The junior from Cincinnati passed 22 times and 13 of them were caught. Unfortunately, three of the catches were by Oklahoma defenders - interceptions that killed Penn State.

the 31/2 quarters he played Holieway's three completions included a 71-yard touchdown to Keith Jackson on a third-and-24 situation and produced 91 yards. In fact, a wrapup interception with four seconds left meant the Sooners had grabbed four of Penn State's attempts to just three of their own.

Quality, not quantity. Shaffer bravely took the blame for Penn State's 25-10 loss.

"They were bad throws and they killed us," he said. "It's just too bad the performance of one person can hurt an entire team like it did

He did not, however, manage this mess all by himself. Tailback D.J. Dozier gained just 40 yards in 12 carries. Fullback Steve Smith managed only 23 in nine attempts. Every time they came barreling out of the Penn State backfield, there was a Brian Bosworth or a Tony Casillas or a Dante Jones waiting, like guardian spiders, welcoming the ambitious flies into

So Shaffer threw, not so much because Penn State wanted him throwing but rather because Oklahoma's defense was persistently shutting down the run.

He did, however, bring impeccable credentials to the task. It just goes to show you the tricks numbers can play

Oklahoma stakes claim on national grid championship

MIAMI (AP) - Coach Barry Switzer found it hard to believe that all the pegs fell into the right holes New Year's Day and made his Oklahoma Sooners a virtual cinch to be voted college football's national champions.

The third-ranked Sooners did their part by beating No. 1 and previously undefeated Penn State 25-10 Wednesday night in the

But that victory alone might not have been enough for Oklahoma to win the national title had they not gotten some help. And the Sooners got everything they needed.

Second-ranked Miami lost 35-7 to No. 8 Tennessee in the Sugar Bowl, eliminating the Hurricanes from contention. And to clear the path of any potential obstacle, fourth-ranked Iowa was clobbered 45-28 in the Rose Bowl by UCLA.

Oklahoma, 11-1, seemed certain to be voted the best in college football when the final Associated Press poll of the season was announced today at 6:30 p.m. EST. The national title would be the sixth for Oklahoma and would be the third under Switzer, who became head coach in 1973.

Oklahoma, which lost to Miami in October, has also apparently. lived up to its potential. The Sooners were voted No. 1 in the preseason poll.

Since the poll was initiated in 1950, only six teams voted No. 1 in preseason have been on top at the end. Oklahoma had done it three times prior to this season.

Switzer said he could not see how anyone but his Sooners would be voted No. 1. "We beat Penn State and Miami lost. We did our part. We're the only survivor," he said. "You have to be good and get help from others to win a national championship. You've got to survive all that." Switzer gave the major credit for ending Penn State's dream of its second national title in four years to the Sooners' defense. Penn State Switzer said beating Coach Joe Paterno's Penn State team wasn't as easy as the score might indicate. "Penn State played the best against us, no doubt of it. They have a slaughterhouse defense and a strong running game," he said.

Switzer also praised Tim Lashar, who kicked an Orange Bowl-record four field goals. But Lashar wasn't impressed with his record.

"Records are going to be broke sometime, but national championships can never be taken away," he said.

Penn State, a one-touchdown underdog, appeared as if it was going to make fools of the oddsmakers when the game started. The first time the Nittany Lions got the ball, they drove 62 yards on 10 plays with fullback Tim Manoa scoring from the 1 for a 7-0

But then the Sooners' defense took over and stopped the Lions cold. And in the second period, Oklahoma scored 16 straight points to lead at halftime 16-10.

In the second half, Lashar kicked a 22-yard field goal to make it 19-10, and the Sooners put it away with a 61-yard touchdown run by fullback Lydell Carr with 1:42 to play.

Paterno, for the first time this season, expressed disappointment in the performance of quarterback

Pampa hosts Lubbock Estacado

Both Pampa boys' and girls' basketball teams resume District 1-4A play Friday night when Lubbock Estacado comes to town.

The girls' game tips off at 7 p.m. in McNeely Fieldhouse, followed by the boys' contest. The Harvesters are 1-0 in district play and 10-7 overall The Lady Harvesters are 0-1 and 6-6. Both teams will be trying to snap losing streaks. The Harvesters lost their last two games in the Fort Worth Tournament while the Lady Harvesters dropped their last three in a row.

The Pampa girls, however, are off to a good district start, winning two of three league games so far. Sophomore reserve Hope Henson is averaging 11 points a game to lead the Lady Harvesters in scoring. Top rebounder is Melissa Nichols,

Brown wins rookie honors Hurricane receiving records by

CINCINNATI (AP) - Wide receiver Eddie Brown fit so comfortably into the Cincinnati Bengals' offense this season that it was difficult to keep in mind he was only a rookie

Brown quickly won a starter's role with a spectacular preseason debut and played a major role in an offense that set a team scoring record, leading the Bengals in touchdown catches.

Coach Sam Wyche thought it fitting that Brown was named Wednesday as offensive rookie of the year by the Associated Press. He edged the Cleveland Browns Kevin Mack, a former United States Football League running back who rushed for 1,104 yards in his rookie NFL season.

"We could not have done everything we wanted to do with just any rookie. It had to be a special kind of rookie," Wyche said. "That's what Eddie is. He's extremely quick to learn, and he has a lot of field presence and poise for a rookie.'

The Bengals were looking for someone to balance wide receiver Cris Collinsworth when they made Brown their No. 1 draft choice last spring out of Miami. Brown had set rushing performance in Rose Bowl history — and scored four touchdowns as the Bruins won their fourth straight New Year's Day bowl game, three of which were Rose Bowls.

"We were awfully good today," said UCLA Coach Terry Donahue, whose team finished its season with a 9-2-1 record. "It was a great, great day for UCLA."

Indeed, it was. The Bruins rolled up 29 first downs and 488 yards in total offense against an Iowa defense that entered the game as the fifth-stingiest in the country.

Meanwhile, the Hawkeyes totaled 401 yards in total offense, but 108 of them came after UCLA had extended its advantage to 38-17 early in the fourth quarter.

Iowa, losing any chance for its first national championship, wound up 10-2.

"Well, you just witnessed a complete annihilation of the Iowa football team," Iowa Coach Hayden Fry said. "It just wasn't our day. UCLA was obviously the superior football team.

"If they played all season like they played today, they'd be national champions, there's no doubt in my mind. Michigan was ranked right behind us and we held them to nine first downs and 182 yards of total offense; Michigan, they couldn't hold a light to this bunch."

Ball, a 6-foot, 2150-pounder, scored on runs of 30, 40 and six yards in the first half to help UCLA take a 24-10 advantage at the intermission. His final TD was a 32-yard dash early in the fourth quarter.

Ball's four touchdowns tied a modern Rose Bowl record, figured since 1947, set by Sam-Cunningham of Southern Cal in 1973. Neil Snow of Michigan scored five in the 1902 Rose Bowl.

"I went out with the attitude that I wasn't going to let one guy stop me," said Ball, who grew up in Ypsilanti, Mich., two miles from the University of Michigan Stadium. "I wasn't going to save anything.

"I just got out there, they (the line) opened up the holes for me. The holes were very large," Ball added with a smile.

Michigan wins Fiesta Bowl

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) -Michigan's remarkable football turnaround this season was built on a strong defense, and that's exactly what carried the Wolverines to their finest hour in the Sunkist Fiesta Bowl

The triumph enabled the fifth-ranked Wolverines to finish the season with a 10-1-1 record. It was only the third bowl victory in 13 tries for Schembechler.

"At halftime, I wasn't so sure it was in the cards," Schembechler said. "You have to understand that was a shock to have anybody move on us like that."

The Lady Harvesters were unbeaten going into the state meet, winning all their regular-season meets, plus district and regional meets. Pampa's 1600-meter relay team of Lidy, Sandee Greenway Stokes, Beverly Paine and Linda Ammons finished third. The 880-relay team of Paine, Courtney Brown, Katrina Jackson and Jackie Oglesby came in fifth. In the field events, Andrea Hopkins was fourth in the discus and Kristi Hughes was fifth in the long jump. The Pampa girls' tracksters could be the headline story in 1986 since Miss Hughes

Reagan to critize Mexican foreign policy

WASHINGTON (AP) -President Reagan is prepared to register U.S. displeasure with Mexico's policies in Central America and its U.N. votes when he meets Friday with Mexican President Miguel de la Madrid, U.S. officials say.

Mexico has been a consistent supporter of Nicaragua's leftist government and has a voting record at the U.N. that ranks among the "lowest 5 per cent" in the General Assembly on issues important to the United States, one official said

Reagan will fly from Los Angeles to the Mexican border town of Mexicali for his third meeting with de la Madrid since the Mexican took office in 1982. The four-hour meeting will take place as Reagan returns to Washington from his California vacation.

While U.S. officials regard Mexico's foreign policy as an irritant, that issue is considered to be far less important than Mexico's economic health.

Mexico's $96 billion foreign debt and its ability to repay it are the dominant factors in the relationship, according to the officials, who spoke on the condition they not be identified.

The benefits Mexico has derived from lower U.S. interest rates have been offset to some extent by a drop in the world market price of oil, Mexico's principal export, the officials said.

According to official figures, for each $1 drop in the price of oil, Mexico loses $550 million annually in export income but for each 1 point decline in U.S. interest rates, Mexico saves $745 million on its foreign debt liability.

At Friday's meeting, U.S. officials believe de la Madrid will be seeking U.S. support for Mexico's plans to borrow huge sums in 1986 from foreign commercial banks and from international lending institutions.

Estimates on the outside help Mexico will need to maintain its debt repayment while keeping the economy going range from $4 billion to $9 billion.

Occidental will buy MidCon for $3 billion

LOS ANGELES (AP) -Occidental Petroleum Corp.'s $3 billion agreement to buy Illinois-based MidCon Corp. to save it from a hostile takeover would make Occidental the nation's 12th largest industrial company. The merger, announced New Year's Day, also would mean the bulk of Occidental's earnings would be be coming from U.S. instead of foreign operations for the first time in decades.

Los Angeles-based Occidental and MidCon, a natural gas pipeline concern based in Lombard, Ill., jointly announced Wednesday that they have signed a definitive merger agreement, apparently squashing a hostile takeover bid by WB Partners.

Sources close to the talks, who asked not to be identified, indicated MidCon invited Occidental to make its offer as a "white knight" to executive, Dr. Armand Hammer, declined to confirm this in a telephone interview, saying only: "Mutual contacts were made. We are very honored they selected

The partnership was studying

WB Partners, which owns about 2 million shares or 4.9 percent of MidCon, is a combination of the Midland, Texas, oil firm of Wagner & Brown and the New Orleans Freeport-McMoRan.

On Tuesday, after word leaked out about Occidental's planned bid, the partnership said it was considering boosting its offer for MidCon to $2.91 billion from from $2.7 billion.

Under the merger agreement, Occidental would pay $75 per share for half of MidCon's 41.5 million shares and would exchange just under 2.25 Occidental shares for each remaining MidCon share. The package was valued at just over $3

MidCon would become a wholly owned subsidiary of Occidental but would retain its name and its headquarters in Lombard, Ill. In addition, O.C. Davis would remain MidCon's chairman and chief

The merger was approved unanimously by the Occidental and MidCon boards late Tuesday night, the companies said. MidCon shareholders still must approve the

"We are confident that this agreement provides a fine opportunity for our shareholders," deal, which the companies said is expected to be completed in early

Davis said in the joint statement. To protect against a possible competing offer, MidCon granted Occidental an option to purchase 51 percent of the voting power in MidCon's major subsidiary, Natural Gas Pipeline Co. of America. MidCon also gave Occidental an option to purchase 7.2 million shares of new MidCon

Occidental said that after the merger it would be the nation's 12th largest industrial company with annual sales of $22 billion.

The deal is Occidental's biggest acquisition move since January, when its proposed $3 billion stock-swap merger with Dallas-based Diamond Shamrock Corp., a petroleum concern, fell apart hours after a tentative agreement was announced.

It had since been speculated that Occidental would try another takeover.

The possibility of such a move increased substantially in mid-1985 when Occidental sold half its Colombian oil holdings to Royal Dutch-Shell Group for $1 billion and one-fourth its Libyan oil operation to the Austrian state oil company for an undisclosed price.

'We consider MidCon to be the premiere company in the gas-transmission business, and we anticipate significant financial and operating benefits from the merger," Hammer said. "We expect MidCon will quickly contribute major new net earnings and cash flow to Occidental after the acquisition costs.

MidCon, which operates about 30,000 miles of interstate and intrastate pipelines, is one of the largest, most flexible and lowest-cost pipeline marketing systems in the nation, putting it in a good position to take advantage of industry deregulation that has squeezed prices, Occidental said.

MidCon, which owns 511 billion cubic feet of natural gas reserves. has unused capacity in its pipeline network.

A major Occidental subsidiary. Tulsa, Okla.-based Cities Service Co., owns about 2.5 trillion cubic feet of natural gas reserves in the United States.

Combination of the MidCon and Cities Services resources will make natural gas a considerably more significant factor in Occidental's operations.

In addition, the merger would shift the source of Occidental's revenues and earnings to make them primarily domestic. The company estimated about 75 percent would come from the United States after the merger

Dr. Robert Bayardo, Travis County medical examiner, said the cause of Moreno's death was drowning. Bayardo said Moreno drowned because he was unconscious, the result of a massive skull fracture caused by the shovel

Police said before the attack, Moreno argued with his assailant in the parking lot of an eastside

Officers said that Moreno had allegedly threatened his wife in the bar and a man had come to her aid. Homicide Sgt. Dusty Hesskew said when Moreno left the tavern, the two men exchanged words again and Moreno allegedly tried to run over the assailant with his pickup. Hesskew said the 19-year-old man dived out of the way and jumped into the back of the truck.

"He took the shovel and smashed out the back window," said

Suicide sets off blast that levels house

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) - A man who disconnected a gas pipe to commit suicide triggered an explosion that destroyed his home and damaged dozens of others Wednesday, killing him and injuring at least 10 people, authorities said.

The 3 p.m. blast blew out windows and ignited fires in houses on either side of the structure and shifted nearby houses on their a one-inch pipe in his basement, foundations, according to reports

Ironies and contradictions abound along long border

EDITOR'S NOTE - Border dwellers call it "amistad," a mutual friendship and cooperation among the people living in neighboring towns separated by the 1,950-mile boundary between the United States and Mexico. In Columbus, N.M., and in it's twin city of Palomas, Mexico, you can see amistad at work.

By JULES LOH AP Special Correspondent

COLUMBUS, N.M. (AP) -Pancho Villa led 1,000 illegal aliens across the border here one morning in 1916, shooting the villagers and torching their homes.

International relations have improved since then, of course. Illegal entry, however, has only gotten worse, if not nearly so dramatic. Nowadays, nobody hollers "Death to the gringos!" They just slip across quietly, in numbers that would make Pancho Ironies and contradictions abound in the strange world of the American-Mexican border. Still, it does seem odd that the site of a bloody raid - the last attack on the U.S. mainland by foreign forces should also offer one of the frontier's best examples of what border dwellers call "amistad." mutual friendship and cooperation.

"We couldn't get along without them and they couldn't get along without us," Charles Hudson was saying

"But it isn't a matter of necessity," he said," it's a matter of preference. Columbus and Palomas are like one town, separated by a fence. You hear that sentiment about twin American-Mexican cities repeated all along the 1,950-mile border. You find it in the rote of tourist pamphlets. But in Columbus, and in it's twin city of Palomas, Mexico, you can see amistad at work.

Columbus is a quiet village of 500 people off by itself in a country of sagebrush and distant serrated mountains and wintering birds.

Palomas, on the other side of the border, is a bustling city of 1,200 alive with children and song, quite in contrast with Columbus Columbus is the sort of town that has a chalkboard in front of city hall to announce its big events and

"Johnny Sepulveda is out of intensive care." "Yard sale at Burgess residence." "Happy birthday Ruth Carson."

But, yes, the two towns do get along

For example, Palomas has no fire engine, Columbus has. So when a fire breaks out in

Laotians parents of year's first baby

DALLAS (AP) - A Laotian man and his wife are the parents of Dallas' first baby of the new year. hospital spokesmen say.

Souriyong Khanthongdy said his daughter, Belinda, was born at Methodist Medical Center at 12:01 a.m. Wednesday. Khanthongdy is a U.S. citizen and has been living in Dallas for five years.

Palomas. Columbus's volunteers jump aboard their pumper, roar three miles down the road, siren screaming, and sail through the border crossing, Mexican authorities waving them on.

"The Palomas kids love it," Hudson said. "When the fire is out? they climb all over the truck. It's like a circus. "Well," he said, "of course we go. Our rescue unit answers calls there, too.

Charles Hudson is a member of the Columbus village board. He wears scuffed boots, faded jeans and a tooled leather belt that says 'Chuck.'' Like many residents who are not Hispanic, a minority, he came here to retire, got involved, and now spends more hours on village affairs than he did breeding horses in California

"It's the sort of place where you get involved naturally," he said. 'Columbus has a lot of potential. There's much more here than the memory of Pancho Villa. Yes, but not at first glance.

The town's one saloon is the Pancho Villa Cantina. It's only two-story building - no, there is one other, the schoolhouse - is the old railroad depot which has become the Pancho Villa Museum. The ruins of old Camp Furlong. whence Gen. Blackjack Pershing took out after the bandit, without success, is now the Pancho Villa State Park, a hideaway among desert flora for campers, picnickers and quail.

All named for the man who butchered 18 Columbus townspeople and soldiers, wounded a dozen more (and lost about 175 men himself), in his unprovoked raid of March 9, 1916.

When Hudson arrived in town six years ago he looked around, swallowed hard, and with some other veterans lost no time in establishing the Gen. John J. Pershing American Legion Post

Hudson also was one of the founders of the Palomas-Columbus "As far as I know." he said. "it is the only international Lions Club in the world. Our building is in Palomas. We have, currently, 27 members, 14 Americans and 13 Mexicans.

The current president of the Lions Club is Ed Clark. He is proud of that but more proud, at this time of year, of another role.

Clark is a retired carpenter. He came to Columbus from Arkansas eight years ago hoping the mile-high desert climate would ease his arthritis. It did. He says he wishes he had come years earlier.

He is a big man, 6-feet-1 and 225 pounds, with a big white beard, a big rich laugh, and eyes the color of wet turquoise. He favors a big blue hat and bib overalls. Once a year he puts on a red suit and becomes well, of course, Santa Claus.

"The boys at the firehouse have done it for 10 or 12 years." he said. "I've only been Santa Claus the past four. My wife, Frances, sses as Mrs. Claus. It's the highlight of our year."

Just before Christmas, jars for coins appear in the cantina, the museum, the bank. By Christmas they collect about $1,500.

With this they buy sweets and gifts and clothes and load them on the fire engine and take them into Palomas on Christmas Eve and distribute them to wide-eyed children.

"Parents push their children forward to touch me," Clark said. "I can't describe the feeling it gives me.

Next day, Christmas, they load pickup trucks with more gifts and drive 24 miles down dirt roads through the huge Johnson ranch to a point where a squat brown adobe village of about 200 Mexican families nestles against the international boundary. There, amid cheers, Ed and

Frances pass their treasures over the boundary fence. The cluster of adobe homes is known locally as Josefa. The name does not appear on any map. It is a colonia, a gathering of squatters.

Some years ago the Mexican government granted people land there if they would settle it, much like the homestead grants on the American frontier. But you don't see any farms around the colonia. How do they make their living? Virgil Speer smiled wanly.

"Four buses a day run from the Mexican interior to Palomas. Josefa," he said, his tone that of a patient schoolteacher, "is a staging area.

"It's a place where illegals going north gather to wait for somebody to guide them - to Albuquerque, Denver, Chicago, wherever. They pay a fee for that hospitality. They pay another fee to the guide, the coyote."

Speer is the Border Patrol agent in charge of 33 officers who patrol 54.5 miles of the international boundary, the southern edge of Luna County, New Mexico. Parts of this strip of the border are so rugged and inaccessible that the United States has not even bothered to put up a fence.

The fence at Josefa has a convenient gate, for local traffic back and forth. But it is easily watched by the Border Patrol. Serious immigrants cross elsewhere.

"I have to ride about 10 miles of fence at least once or twice a week," said Joe Johnson, whose father owns the ranch adjoining Josefa. "That's how often it's cut.

"Last year during one cold spell they took out 18 cedar posts for

"I'm not worried so much about them getting in as about the cattle getting out. They make holes big enough to drive a truck through, a stolen truck."

"Three years ago," said Luna County Sheriff Jack Coussons, "we broke up a ring of truck thieves and recovered most of the trucks down in Mexico. We couldn't have done it without the help of the Mexican police. We work very close." Amistad.

Like the precise number of men on Villa's raid, nobody can be certain about how many illegal aliens get through. The Border Patrol had caught about 9,000 in this sector at year's end. They figure they missed two or three for every one arrested. And, like Villa's men, most stay for a brief while then go back, and some do a little plundering.

Bad advice in sex guide

NEW YORK (AP) - Ruth Westheimer, champion of good sex, good contraception and good information, has a bad error in her sex guide for teen-agers that has prompted a recall of all 115,000

The error went unnoticed for three months after bookstores received 115,000 copies of "First Love: A Young People's Guide to Sexual Information," by Mrs. Westheimer and professor Nathan

On Dec. 12, librarian Ann Scarpellino of Ramsey, N.J., pointed out the mistake in Chapter 10, page 195, which discusses the rhythm method of birth control.

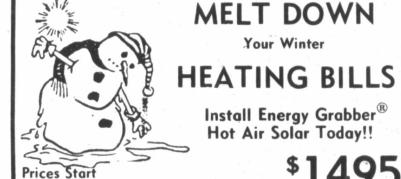

"The safe times are the week before and the week of ovulation,' the book reads

It should say "unsafe."

Mrs. Scarpellino, 51, who has three grown children, said "most women who've had children know that's wrong.

Recalling the book was the only right thing to do, Mrs. Westheimer

"I proofread it myself," she said. "I'm not going to put any blame on anybody else. What I think happened is that in my mind I read the word 'unsafe' and didn't catch that it said 'safe.' It's very clear that of course it's unsafe ol-Mart Sells for Less • Wal-Mart Sells

This dentist takes her drill on road

By JERRY HARKAVY Associated Press Writer

NORTH BERWICK, Maine (AP) - You can tell Dr. Ann Setkowicz's dental specialty from the license plate on her Jeep: HS-CALL.

In an era when it's tough to find a physician who still makes house calls, Setkowicz makes nothing else. As far as she knows, her dental practice is the only one of its kind.

"I remember reading about a dentist in Chicago who makes house calls, but he only spends part of his work week doing it," she said. "This requires special equipment, and most dentists wouldn't want to bother."

A general practitioner making house calls can usually fit necessities into a small satchel, but that's not the case in dentistry. Setkowicz travels with a 40-pound compressor, 35 pounds of portable X-ray equipment and cases containing the tools she needs to do fillings, cleaning, root canals, crowns and bridges, dentures or laboratory work.

"This is exactly the same equipment as in a dentist's office," says Setkowicz, indicating high-speed and low-speed drills and suction hoses. "There's nothing miniaturized."

"This is my desk," she says. holding up her attache case.

For Setkowicz, who used to have a conventional office practice in Boston, the switch to mobile dentistry was an outgrowth of her husband's retirement and their decision to move to Maine.

"I was burned out in my practice and he had to retire for health reasons," said the 41-year-old graduate of McGill University's dental school. After spending two years cruising the Caribbean on their 34-foot sloop, they converted their summer place in Ogunquit to a year-round home while she explored ways to get back into dentistry without the pressures of a full-time office.

House calls seemed the perfect solution. Now, when Setkowicz makes a call, either at a private house or a nursing home, she's accompanied by her husband, Albert Sakey, a prominent Boston criminal lawyer who's begun a second career as a dental

"It gives us a lot of time to spend together," says Setkowicz, who launched the practice in July. She and her husband are now on the road three or four days a week, serving patients from Portland to the New Hampshire border.
