Frank Phillips plan causes local concern

By LARRY HOLLIS
Staff Writer

Pampa city, school, chamber and Clarendon College officials are expressing concern with a proposal being considered by Frank Phillips College in Borger to move into Pampa and take over college extension classes here.

The concern has developed over the past couple of months after FPC President Andy Hicks indicated he would request that Pampa be incorporated in the Frank Phillips service area, displacing the current services offered locally by the Pampa Center of Clarendon College.

According to an article in the Dec. 8 issue of The Borger News-Herald, Hicks told the FPC Board of Regents on Dec. 6 that there's a law requiring that a college closest to a city should perform the extension classes in that city.

Hicks reportedly told the regents, "We would welcome the chance to perform the classes in that town (Pampa) and feel we could do an excellent job at it."

Hicks said the services also could be developed in Dumas and Panhandle, which currently have extension classes from other area community colleges, the Borger newspaper reported.

In support of his proposal, Hicks referred to a law supposedly upheld last April by the Texas Colleges and Universities System Coordinating Board (CCB).

"We did not make the decision, but it is the law, and if that is the way it is supposed to be, then we should do it that way," the newspaper quoted Hicks as claiming.

But two CCB officials in Austin have disputed Hicks' claims about the law.

Commissioner of Higher Education Dr. Kenneth Ashworth, in a telephone interview Tuesday afternoon, said there is no such law. Instead, there is only a policy or set of guidelines that the CCB adopted in response to legislative action in 1975.

Prior to that time colleges and universities "were free to go off campus or out of their district, wherever they wanted," to offer extension services, Ashworth explained.

But the Legislature became concerned about the situation and in 1975 required the CCB to grant prior approval to colleges and universities for their off-campus programs. The CCB then set up rules and guidelines regarding extension services, Ashworth said.

But there's no law, only a set of guidelines for the CCB to consider in cases of conflicts between colleges wanting to offer extension classes in the same city, he said.

There have been cases where the rule has not been followed in strict accordance with the guidelines, Ashworth said. And there have been cases where neither of two colleges have been granted the right to offer extension classes in a city, he added.

"You have to apply it (the rule) in different circumstances,"

Ashworth stated.

The commissioner said he was aware of the developing conflict between the Phillips and Clarendon colleges over extension services in Pampa.

"I'm hoping it can be resolved among the local institutions," he said, noting a regional council of colleges would have to consider the proposal and make a recommendation. If the issue is not resolved locally, then the CCB would have to make a ruling, he said.

If the matter comes before the state board, "I'm going to have to look at the circumstances and the facts to see what is the best decision to make," Ashworth said.

"I don't relish the idea of having to solve this problem," he stated, reiterating that he much preferred a local resolution to the problem.

Dr. David Kelly, CCB assistant commissioner, said he also was not aware of any law referred to by Hicks.

He said the board had detailed rules and regulations regarding extension classes. "The idea in the books is to give preference to the closest institutions to communities having extension classes," Kelly said.

The concept is "generally applied" where conflicts have arisen, he said, but there is no definite requirement that it be enforced in all cases.

Kelly noted that the April ruling — not a law — referred to by Hicks

Zoning change allows wells

By LARRY HOLLIS
Staff Writer

Pampa city commissioners Tuesday evening passed on first reading an ordinance granting a zoning change to permit the drilling of two oil wells in the western section of the city.

Bruce-Chisum Oil Co. had requested a zoning change from Agriculture to Specific Use Permit for the two wells on a tract of land north of Harvester Avenue and east of Price Road.

City Manager Bob Hart said the ordinance was "the same" as the one granted to Triple J Oil Co. last summer, specifying standards, landscaping, safety precautions and other items to be followed for the drilling operations.

Hart said other operators have already approached the city about drilling operations within the city limits.

In other matters, the commission authorized a warrant from Certificate of Obligation bonds to pay $2,325.79 to Wagner and Klein, Inc., regarding architectural services relating to the proposed renovation of City Hall.

The commission also met in executive session to discuss real estate matters and pending litigation but took no action after it reconvened in public session.

In other business, the commissioners approved accounts payable.

In the citizen's request session of the meeting, Gary Cummings said he and several other property owners in the Kentucky Acres area are in favor of the land being annexed to the city.

Hart said the process for beginning annexation of the area was under study by the city staff and matters regarding the annexation of Kentucky Acres probably would be presented to the commission at its next regular meeting on Jan. 28.

In his report session, Hart discussed the recent increased rates established by Sammons Communications, Inc.

Hart said city ordinances granting the cable television company a franchise had required hearings before any rate increases were established. But a recent federal act has initiated deregulation of cable TV companies, he explained, allowing the companies to increase rates by 5 percent this year.

The act is aiming at complete deregulation of the cable companies in later years, Hart said.

But Hart said the city had not been informed of the increase in rates Sammons had made effective Jan. 1. He said he had talked to the local and company headquarters about the city not being informed of the increase.

He said Sammons still had a number of years left on its current franchise, but noted "we can grant another franchise" to another cable company that might want to come into the city.

He said a state workshop has been scheduled regarding the new federal cable communications act and planned to send a city representative to attend it.

In other matters, Hart reported the city had received a letter from the Environmental Protection Agency saying the waste water treatment is now meeting satisfactory conditions.

Hart reported the Community Awareness and Emergency Response (CAER) program "is starting to accelerate." The program is designed to improve integration of the city's disaster preparedness programs with those of other organizations and local industries.

The city also is making progress on a TEXCEL grant application. The program is being developed by the Texas Economic Development Committee, the Texas Municipal League and other organizations.

The program is designed to help cities, chambers of commerce, industrial foundations and related associations in a training program for economic improvement of cities, Hart explained. Twenty-five cities will be selected for the 18-month program, he said.

Director of Community Services Nathan Hopson said progress is being made to rid local drinking water from Lake Meredith sources of a taste and odor problem that had led to complaints by some residents.

REP. BOULTER...during Pampa visit

Boulter's office to offer farmers financial advice

By PAUL PINKHAM
Staff Writer

A farm-lending expert will be on the staff of U.S. Rep. Beau Boulter for 30 days beginning Jan. 27 to advise area farmers on financial problems, the congressman announced during a visit to Pampa on Tuesday.

The Amarillo Republican said the extra aide will work out of his Amarillo office and work with Panhandle area farmers after Farmers Home Administration notices are mailed Jan. 23. He said the name of the man selected will be released in a few days.

Boulter said the purpose of the aide will be to help farmers understand the FmHA notice, help with paperwork and prepare them to meet with FmHA officials. He said he thinks the relationship between farmer and lender will be better as a result.

The congressman blamed much of the recent "fear and panic" in the farm community on politicians who have helped to spread it, among them Texas Agriculture Secretary Jim Hightower.

"Relatively few people face outright foreclosure," he said.

"The notice is an intent to take action, which I'll admit is a scary notice."

Boulter said farmers receiving notices will have 30 days to contact the FmHA. The could be eligible for five-year loan deferrals or debt restructuring, as well as several other options.

Boulter also discussed several other issues, including tax reform, the Graham-Rudman bill and Libyan leader Col. Moammar Khadafy. He said he thinks the United States eventually will have to take retaliatory military action against Libya and added he does not fear what the Soviets might do in response.

Boulter said he had mixed feelings on Reagan's appeal to House Republicans to support recent tax reform legislation.

He said he was uncomfortable in opposing Reagan on something the president felt that strongly about. But he also said he was resentful in being asked to vote for what he thought was bad legislation and something Reagan had said he would veto anyway. Boulter said he has little confidence in the Senate modifying the bill.

White Deer approves discipline plan

By CATHY SPAULDING
Staff Writer

WHITE DEER — A tardy is a tardy, whether caused by a slow-poke student or a flat tire, White Deer-Skellytown school trustees decided Monday.

At their regular board meeting Monday, trustees adopted a policy allowing a high school student to be tardy only four times a year, regardless of the excuse.

The policy is "not that drastic" a change from the previous policy, said White Deer High School Principal Andy Andrews. In fact, he said, some people may think it more lenient than the current policy.

Andrews told trustees that under the current policy, when a student is late for class, he goes to the principal's office to get a tardy slip and returns to class. This means the class is interrupted twice, Andrews said.

The new policy will cut out the trip to the principal's office.

Trustee Bill Daves asked about students who are slowed by a physical handicap.

"One girl is on crutches all the time and she has never been tardy," he said.

Another discipline policy approved Monday was the state mandated Discipline Management Plan. The plan, drafted by the Texas Association of School Board's legal counsel, is "very similar to our current policy in such areas as dress codes, offenses, hearing procedures," Supt. Tom Harkey said.

A committee made up of White Deer High School Students, teachers, parents, administrators and school trustees conducted a public hearing on the plan Thursday.

"We took the management plan step by step from student offenses through administration," Harkey said.

Board members did not review the management plan at the meeting. They did, however, discuss their authority to expel students.

Harkey told the board that they have the authority to delegate expulsion responsibilities to the superintendent. "But that is the most serious offense, I want (the responsibility) shared," Harkey said.

Andrews said that a student posing a "clear and present danger" to students or teachers can be removed from class and placed under suspension.

Trustees also agreed to, as Harkey put it, "establish once and for all" that the annual junior prom be held in the high school cafeteria, as it always has been. The prom is sponsored by the parents of the 11th graders, not by the school. However, school rules such as those prohibiting the possession or use of alcohol or drugs, will be enforced.

Board members agreed to have Andrews accompany first-year ag teacher Conda Maze to the Houston Stock Show in February.

Board members also agreed to send two English teachers to a workshop in Fort Worth, provided Andrews can find an less expensive airline than Delta.

Andrews was allowed to go to a "scheduling workshop" this semester.

Phones out for an hour Tuesday

Pampa residents were out of telephone service for more than an hour Tuesday because of a mechanical failure that occurred after everyone had left for the day.

Southwestern Bell spokesman Gary Stevens of Amarillo confirmed that service to the 669 and 665 exchanges was out for about an hour and 15 minutes between 7 and 8:30 p.m. Tuesday. He attributed the cutoff to a freak mechanical failure in Pampa's central office.

"There was not anyone there that late at night," he said. "When you're dealing with mechanical equipment, from time to time those things will happen."

No retreat on no-pass rule, White vows

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Mark White has promised a major political action committee that his support of no-pass, no-play will hold up to election year pressures.

"I'm not going to retreat on that. I believe we're right and I'm going to stick," White said, drawing applause from the Texas Association of Realtors audience.

In the Tuesday speech, White referred to "people" who question provisions of the no-pass, no-play rule, which bars failing students from extracurricular activities for six weeks.

The three major GOP gubernatorial contenders — former Gov. Bill Clements, U.S. Rep. Tom Loeffler and former congressman Kent Hance — have suggested possible shortening of the suspension.

White said that would be a mistake.

"I think it's incredible to hear people stand up and say, 'Oh, retreat,'" he said. "The fact of the matter is we send our children to school to learn."

"When you have 85 percent pass all the courses, and somewhere along the line when you start falling back to four weeks, three weeks, two weeks, one week, you're going to see 80 percent pass, then only 75 percent pass."

"Then you're back to where you started, which is mediocre. I don't think Texans want that," White said.

Texans must remember that their state is in economic battle with the entire world, he added.

involved "a specific case in an East Texas area between two institutions."
In that case, two cities having colleges both lie north of another city. The northernmost college was planning extension classes in the southernmost city, with the college instructors having to drive through the other college city.
"The ruling favored the nearest institution in that case," Kelly said.
But in the local case here, Pampa lies between two college cities.
Kelly said decisions are made by the state board in April. Prior to that meeting, institutions meet together in regional councils to make plans and send recommendations to the board.
Hicks had approached various local officials late last year about the Borger college coming into Pampa. But the proposal has met with opposition here.

Resolutions in support of the Pampa Center of Clarendon College and in opposition to Hicks' plans have been passed in past weeks by the Pampa City Commission, the Pampa Independent School District Board of Trustees, the Executive Committee and the Education Committee of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce, the Pampa Industrial Foundation, and the Advisory Committee of the PCCC.
Copies of the resolutions and letters from various community leaders have been sent to the FPC regents, other area college officials and the CCB.
The resolutions and letters note that Frank Phillips College opposed efforts to create a junior college district for Gray County in 1967 although no objection was made by the Clarendon College and Amarillo College districts.

The Gray County college district was denied.
Afterwards Pampa leaders approached FPC about offering extension services in the city, but the college turned down the opportunity. Consequently, at the request of local residents Clarendon College offered a range of post-secondary and adult education courses in Pampa, with the Pampa Center officially established in November, 1978, in an abandoned elementary school building.
Clarendon College currently operates both day and evening classes and works closely with local groups, businesses and industries to develop needed course offerings.
The college has operated the center strictly on tuition, fees and donations without incorporating the city into its college tax district.
Many local officials have expressed concern Phillips would seek to incorporate Pampa and the county into its tax district.
Chamber President Bill Duncan in a letter has noted the various organizations and governing bodies passing the resolutions "believe that such a change would have a very negative impact on our community."
The letter also notes, "The citizens, businesses and industry of Pampa are very pleased" with the center, "a tremendous asset for Pampa."
Local officials and leaders have been engaged in discussions and meetings with the FPC regents regarding Hicks' proposal, with another meeting planned next week for further consideration of the matter.
Despite rumors circulating about Pampa, the FPC regents have taken no official action yet on Hicks' request.

API dinner to feature talk on strategic oil reserves

The local chapter of the American Petroleum Institute will have a dinner Thursday night as part of its drive for new members.
Guest speaker will be Lou Ann Ainsworth, project manager with the Department of Energy.
A social hour will begin at 6:30 p.m. in the Starlight Room of Coronado Inn, followed by the dinner at 7:15 p.m.
Ainsworth will speak on "The Strategic Oil Reserve," a program underway to store crude oil to minimize the impact of any potential future interruption in the supplies of crude oil to the United States.
The oil reserve program is part of the nation's effort to achieve energy independence. The current goal is a 750 million barrels of crude oil. Currently the reserve is storing nearly 500 million barrels in underground salt domes in south Louisiana and southeast Texas.
Ainsworth will discuss project funding, the impact on local communities and how the reserve fits into efforts to achieve energy independence.

Joe Curtis, first vice chairman for the local API, said persons interested in becoming members may show up and be signed up at the door.
Further information also may be obtained by calling Curtis at 665-0366 or Bob Blakeney at 665-1653, both in Pampa, or Gerry Reno at 273-2831 in Borger.
Curtis said membership in API is open to anyone having dealings with or working in the oil and gas industries.
The non-profit organization meets on the third Thursday of every month with discussion of the oil and gas business and exchange of ideas which could impact on oil and gas production in the area.
The chapter also conducts fundraising projects which provide five to 10 scholarships ranging from $500 to $1,500 for members' students who are attending college.

Ainsworth is currently serving as budget director for the DOE's Strategic Petroleum Reserve (SPR) Project Management Office in New Orleans, La. She has been employed in the SPR office since January, 1979. Prior to joining the SPR, she was employed by the Department of Defense, working with the U.S. Navy for 12 years.
A graduate of Tulane University at New Orleans, Ainsworth has a bachelor of science degree in business administration with a major in accounting.
In 1976 she received the Federal Women's Program "Woman of the Year" regional award. She was nominated again for the award in 1980 as the SPR technical representative. In 1978 she received a Presidential Recognition Award for a beneficial cost saving suggestion for the Navy.

Miami seniors get an early trip

MIAMI - The 1986 Senior class will get an early senior trip this year while next year's seniors get a head start on fund raising, Miami trustees decided Monday.
Trustees approved the itinerary for the seniors' trip to Florida during spring break, Feb. 22-29. The seniors originally chose Hawaii as their vacation spot, but decided they did not have enough money to go to the islands. The class has a balance of $8,500.
In the past, senior trips were taken immediately after graduation. But the school board changed the policy early this school year and moved the senior trip before graduation. Trips outside United States were prohibited.

The only time before graduation that the class could take a week-long trip without missing five days of school is during spring break.
"I don't like it personally," senior class president Tracie Morris said of the spring break scheduling. "We would have had a lot more time to raise money."
Morris explained that the class's main source of funds is the concession stand it runs at sporting events and stock shows. Other sources come from the annual Halloween Carnival, the Senior Volleyball Tournament and a Bingo Game.

Miami Superintendent Allan Dinsmore said that after the seniors take their trip in February, the concession business will be turned over to the 1987 senior class. This means the juniors will operate concessions at track meets and the Roberts County Stock Show in March, at the Miami - Roberts County Project Center.
He said that the seniors "have more than enough money to take the trip" to Disney World, Epcot Center, Daytona Beach and other central Florida attractions. He added that since the senior trip and the fund raising is not an extra-curricular activity, a student with a failing grade may be able to take the trip.
In other business, the Miami trustees approved the district's Discipline Management Plan, which is based on a plan drafted by the Texas Association of School Boards. A hearing on the school's plan was held in the superintendent's office before the meeting, but nobody showed up.

District Judge Cain seeking re-election

District Judge Don Cain has announced that he will be a candidate for re-election to the office of judge of the 223rd Judicial District Court of Gray County, subject to the action of the May 3 Democratic primary.
Cain has served as district judge since 1977. He previously served as Gray County attorney and as Gray County judge.
He has also served as president of the Adobe Walls Boy Scout Council, the Pampa Rotary Club, the Gray County Bar Association and the Texas Panhandle County Judges and Commissioners Association, as well as on the board of directors of the Texas District and County Attorneys Association, the Pampa United Fund, the Pampa Chamber of Commerce and the Top O' Texas Rodeo Association.
He received his business administration degree and his law degree from the University of Texas at Austin. He served in the U.S. Navy during World War II and the Korean War.
Currently, Cain is a member of the Judicial Section, State Bar of Texas; the Judicial Administration Division, American Bar Association; Veterans of Foreign

Officials say

Gramm-Rudman could mean hiring freezes and layoffs

WASHINGTON (AP) — The first round of spending cuts under the Gramm-Rudman budget-balancing law may force hiring freezes throughout the federal government, require layoffs in some agencies and result in thousands of individual program cuts, U.S. officials say.

That will be the net effect of an $11.7 billion reduction in government spending, according to senior agency officials who spoke Tuesday on condition they not be identified by name.

The mechanism for the cuts was expected to be set into motion today with an announcement from the White House Office of Management and Budget and the Congressional Budget Office that the U.S. deficit in fiscal 1986 will reach $220 billion, up from the record $212 billion in 1985.

That's more than enough to trigger the first round of spending cuts under the budget-balancing law.

Automatic spending cuts under the law, scheduled to take effect March 1, will amount to 4.3 percent for all domestic programs and 4.9 percent for the military, administration officials said previously.

And while the cuts will not approach those that will come later, in the year when the Gramm-Rudman act takes full effect, they still will produce dramatic government-wide slashes in services and programs.

Federal agency heads, notified late Tuesday by the OMB of the magnitude of cuts on a department-by-department basis, were struggling to determine exactly how the cuts could be carried out.

Hiring freezes were expected to be instituted throughout the government, with layoffs likely at a number of agencies, according to several government officials who spoke only on the condition of anonymity.

Labor Department spokesman David Demerest said, "We don't have a lot of flexibility from one program to another."

He said there would be some "picking and choosing" within specific programs, but that generally the percentage cuts were fixed and across-the-board.

An analysis by the House Education and Labor Committee said the March 1 cuts would result in a $170 million cut in funds this year for the federal compensatory education program; a $224.8 million cut in student aid; and a $43.6 million cut in the federal vocational and adult education program.

Funds for the National Endowment for the Arts will be cut by $7.7 million and by $6.4 million for the National Endowment for the Humanities, according to the congressional document.

The committee report also said the cutbacks would mean a $159.2 million reduction in the Labor Department's training and employment services budget, a $15 million cut in a federal jobs program for senior citizens, a $96 million cut in low-income energy assistance and a $62.7 million cut in the federal program for the handicapped.

Funds for the Department of Housing and Urban Development will be cut $673 million under the Gramm-Rudman formula, according to sources.

A Food and Drug Administration spokesman, Dick Thompson, said the cuts meant an $18.2 million slash in the agency's budget. FDA sources said it could work out to the equivalent of just under 200 jobs lost out of an agency workforce of about 6,900.

Interior Department spokesman Alan Levitt said the budget cuts won't close any national parks but could mean reduced hours at some parks and furloughs or layoffs of personnel.

Air force planes bombed airport, harbor

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP) — Diplomats and Persian Gulf sources said today that South Yemen air force planes bombed the capital's airport and harbor, and that forces loyal to the president made small gains in the third day of fighting for control of the impoverished Soviet ally.

Officials in the North African country of Algeria said an Algerian diplomat was killed in the fighting. They did not identify him, or give the circumstances of his death.

Japanese sources had said earlier the diplomat was killed by a stray bullet.

Sources said it was not clear if the raiding pilots were rebels, apparently members of a headline pro-Soviet faction, or supporters of President Ali Nasser Mohammed.

Mohammed, who was reported Tuesday to have been seriously wounded in the fighting, also is a Marxist but recently had been reported interested in improving ties with pro-Western Arab neighbors Saudi Arabia and Oman.

Regular communications to the impoverished country on the southern Arabian peninsula remained cut off today.

However, Arab and Western European diplomatic sources in neighboring North Yemen, reached by telephone from Bahrain, said they learned early today that forces loyal to Mohammed had regained control of scattered locations in the capital, Aden.

Other diplomatic sources said wireless messages from South Yemen indicated gunboats in Aden's harbor were bombarding unidentified soldiers on land.

Earlier, a gulf shipping executive said ships anchored in Aden had sent wireless messages reporting that "army and militia rebels have been advancing behind tanks and armored personnel carriers toward the presidential palace and radio station."

It was not clear if Soviet troops were involved in the fighting. A Japanese trade company executive said Tuesday, "What is certain is that the Soviets are there on the streets, blocking a few roads."

The International Institute for Strategic Studies in London says the Soviet Union stations 1,000 troops in South Yemen.

In Washington, State Department spokesman Charles E. Redman noted Tuesday that the United States has no diplomatic representation in South Yemen and said there were "few, if any, Americans" there.

Second U.S. carrier force heading for Mediterranean

WASHINGTON (AP) — A second American aircraft carrier was moving into the Mediterranean Sea today, two days after Libyan jets intercepted a Navy surveillance plane in international airspace and briefly shadowed it.

Although the Libyan fighters — two Soviet-made MiG-25s — made no threatening moves toward the Navy plane, two U.S. F-16 jet fighters were scrambled from the carrier Coral Sea to intercede if necessary.

Monday's incident, disclosed by administration sources Tuesday, was described as the first direct contact between U.S. and Libyan forces in the wake of increased U.S.-Libyan tensions over the Dec. 27 terrorist attack on Rome and Vienna airports.

The United States has accused Libya of supporting the terrorist group that conducted those attacks.

As a result of those tensions and increased activity by Soviet naval ships, the aircraft carrier Saratoga and an accompanying group of smaller warships was ordered away from a routine deployment in the Indian Ocean last week and into the Mediterranean to join the carrier Coral Sea.

The Coral Sea, from which the E-3A electronic surveillance plane had been dispatched, was reported in the Ionian Sea, southeast of Italy and due north of Libya.

The Saratoga and three accompanying ships were part of a convoy that entered the Suez Canal at 3:30 a.m. EST today after arriving at the southern end of the canal late Tuesday night, according to officials of the Suez Canal Authority. The trip through the 101-mile canal was expected to take 12 to 14 hours.

The officials identified the vessels accompanying the carrier as the guided missile cruiser Biddle, the guided missile destroyer Scott and the ammunition ship Mount Baker.

Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger, although providing no details, confirmed the incident involving the Libyan fighters Tuesday evening. He said he found nothing remarkable about the affair because Libyan planes had patrolled in the general area before.

"Libyan planes have been up in that area. This is a little farther north than they've been before, but I don't think there's anything unusual about it," Weinberger said.

The administration sources sought to downplay the incident, noting that the Libyan MiGs had turned back toward home before the F-16s arrived on the scene.

One source noted, however, that the MiGs had appeared unexpectedly and moved unusually close to the surveillance plane — "within 200 feet."

In other developments, Pentagon officials stepped up their war of words against Libya and the Soviet Union, with spokesman Robert B. Sims branding the introduction of SA-5 surface-to-air missiles in Libya "a significant and dangerous escalation in the Soviet-Libyan arms relationship."

The Soviets have 26 ships in the Mediterranean, Sims said, including six warships and a variety of intelligence-gathering vessels.

Airline officials say bolts pass tests

DALLAS (AP) — Southwest Airlines officials say they found no evidence of damage during an examination of 80 bolts similar to the one that sheared off an engine during a commercial flight earlier this month.

Tests on 12 rear-engine bolts on six aircraft in the company's 46-plane fleet of Boeing 737-200s should be completed today, Charlotte Goddard, Southwest manager of public relations, said.

She said the tests were ordered Jan. 8 by Jack Bidal, vice president for maintenance, after a bolt sheared off during takeoff of a Jan. 3 flight from Dallas Love Field to Austin, leaving the rear of the engine hanging at a sharp angle from the wing.

Officials said no one was injured and the pilot successfully landed the jet at Love Field about one hour later.

Southwest performed its tests for most aircraft during normal maintenance but some planes were pulled from service specifically for the bolt testing, said Ms. Goddard.

Panhandle Pen Women

Dear Abby

Woman turns down invitation to stay home with her pride

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1986 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I'm a divorced woman who knows what it feels like to be overlooked, forgotten or just plain excluded on special holidays, so I round up all the "strays" I know and invite them over for a Christmas Eve meal. It's not a formal sit-down dinner; it's a casual, serve-yourself buffet sort of party, and all seem to enjoy themselves.

Well, how is this for a slap in the face? About 10 a.m., I phoned someone I thought would appreciate the invitation and said, "Hi, if you're not doing anything special tonight, come on over for dinner about 6 p.m."

This friend said, "Thank you, but I have plans." (I could tell the way she said it that she didn't have any plans, but I wasn't going to beg her.) I learned later that she sat home alone, but had too much pride to admit it. My question: Don't you think a person who has no plans is foolish to turn down an invitation for this reason? Also, is there something wrong with the way I worded my invitation?

ALSO HURT

DEAR HURT: Not everyone is comfortable admitting that he or she has nowhere to go. Since it's become a tradition to "round up strays" at holiday time (and I hope you don't use that expression publicly), why not invite them a week or so ahead of time? Their pride would be salvaged, and a good time could be had by all.

DEAR ABBY: As a Christmas gift, a co-worker gave me a membership to an organization she is very much devoted to.

I have never attended a meeting, or expressed any interest in joining the organization. In fact, I would prefer not to have my name listed as a member.

Can I be made a member of an organization without my permission? I don't want to insult this woman, nor do I want to sour our relationship because we have to work together, so please tell me how

I can cancel my membership without offending her.

UNWILLING MEMBER

DEAR MEMBER: Thank her for the gift, then tell her that since you have no intentions of becoming active in the organization, you must decline the membership. I can't guarantee that you won't offend her, but it beats being a member of an organization you would not care to join.

DEAR ABBY: I was married last October in a very elaborate wedding. I am just finishing up my thank-you notes to all the wonderful people who shared in our day and gave us such lovely gifts.

My problem is that well over 200 people attended our wedding, and three of them gave us no gift. Two of them are co-workers who brought their husbands.

Do I send these people thank-you notes for coming to my wedding? How do I know their gifts were not lost? It really is an awkward situation. I certainly didn't invite people to get a gift, but what do you do when you don't get one?

PERPLEXED BRIDE

DEAR PERPLEXED: You need not write to thank the guests for attending your wedding. If you did not receive a gift, it's safe to assume that none was sent.

Wait a while. If perchance some gifts were lost, in due time the senders will probably drop a subtle hint to let you know they are still waiting for your thank-you note. Then you may let them know that their gift was not received.

(Getting married? Send for Abby's new, updated, expanded booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send your name and address clearly printed with a check or money order for $2.50 and a long, stamped (39 cents) self-addressed envelope to: Dear Abby, Wedding Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.)

Noted researcher, author to speak to club

James L. Haley of Austin, noted researcher, is to be featured speaker Saturday afternoon at the bi-monthly Panhandle Pen Women meeting at the Quality Inn Central, 601 Amarillo Blvd. West. Workshops start at 10 a.m., and all attending are asked to bring work to be critiqued. For lunch reservations, call Winona Cobb, 352-5992 in Amarillo.

Haley is to focus his remarks on research, how to do it, and what to do with it. His newest book "Texas: An Album of History," contains many rare photographs — some never published — plus maps and text. Photographs include some taken on a buffalo hunt in 1874, coverage of the Indian conflicts, including the Warren Wagon Train Massacre, the Pig War of 1841, the rise of the Texas Rangers, and the impact of the Civil War on Texas.

The book not only concerns manjor historical incidents in Texas, but also features many of the colorful characters.

New officers leading PPW into 1986 include Lavern Hays, president; Doris Meridith of Dumas, 1st vice president, programs; Betty Brown Phillips of Canyon, 2nd vice president, contests; Winona Cobb, 3rd vice president, hospitality; DeWanna Pace, 4th vice president, workshops; Marianne McNeil, 5th vice president, publicity; Mary Neal Henry of Happy, recording secretary; Faye Allen, corresponding secretary; Frances Clegg-Ferris of Wayside, treasurer. Doris Crandall is membership chairman, Lillian Terrill is historian and Juanita Roberts handles the PPW tape library. Sharon drain is to coordinate the "Frontiers in Writing" workshop, Aug. 16, at Amarillo College.

Winners of the PPW-sponsored novel contest have been announced as Jodi Koumalats, 1st place, "Weston Bred;" Ann Brown of Canyon, 2nd Place, "Michael;" Patricia Walker Longino, 3rd place, "A Book In Time." Deborah Lawrence of Pampa was awarded Honorable Mention with "Blame It On Your Heart."

Other contests sponsored by PPW during the year are the article contest, deadline April 1; poetry, June 1; short story, Aug. 1; and book-length, Oct. 1.

The PPW executive board met Jan. 4 in Canyon. A number of ways to cut costs were discussed, as well as bulletins, programs and an additional contest. These are to be presented to the group during the business meeting. Interested writers from all over the Panhandle are encouraged to attend. Memberships are available to non-published writers as well.

Commission finds cost of labor racketeering 'staggering'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The manipulation of a few corrupt unions has enabled organized crime to become so entrenched in the marketplace that millions of Americans "unknowingly pay a surcharge" to mobsters for a wide variety of goods and services, a presidential commission says.

Winding up the first comprehensive federal probe of labor and management racketeering since the McClellan hearings of the 1950s, the President's Commission on Organized Crime concluded Tuesday that crime families and syndicates are "increasingly using labor unions as a tool to obtain monopoly power" in key sectors of the economy.

The 18-member commission, appointed by President Reagan in 1983, charged that federal enforcement efforts are fragmented and inadequate to stem the tide, and it faulted the administration for political ties to one union, the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, on grounds that the relationship simply does not look good.

Just two days earlier, Reagan, in an article for The New York Times Magazine, wrote that "for the first time in our history, we finally have the mob on the run" and boasted that organized crime convictions had quadrupled since he took office in 1981.

But Commission Chairman Irving R. Kaufman, who privately presented the panel's report to Reagan at the White House, said "There has never been a coherent federal strategy to attack organized crime's corruption of our business institutions and labor organizations."

In a summary released to reporters, the commission criticized prosecutors who merely "count bodies" — convictions — as a measure of success, and said, "Instead, a new strategy must be developed to bankrupt individual mobsters and to discourage union officers, employers, and public officials from accommodating organized crime."

Executive Director James D. Harmon told reporters the commission was distressed that of 1,399 racketeering prosecutions, the Justice Department had directed 57 percent of those cases against labor officials with no organized crime connections. The emphasis, he said, should be on the mob.

The commission, whose members include Sen. Strom Thurmond, D-S.C., and Rep. Peter W. Rodino, D-N.J., chairman of the Senate and House judiciary committees, respectively, said that through domination of certain labor unions in major cities, organized crime controls and regulates a number of markets in the construction, wholesale and retail meat processing, trucking, garbage carting and waterfront industries.

It cited four unions "with histories of control or influence by organized crime": The International Brotherhood of Teamsters; the International Longshoremen's Association, the Hotel Employees and Restaurant Employees International Union, and the Laborers International Union of North America.

"One of the key obstacles to more vigorous oversight of labor-management racketeering by the Department of Labor is the department's undeniable susceptibility to political pressure from the leadership of the constituency it is supposed to oversee," the panel said.

Officials at the 2-million-member Teamsters' headquarters in Washington did not return a reporter's calls Tuesday. The other three unions, unlike the Teamsters, belong to the AFL-CIO. "We have not seen the report and will have no comment until we do," said Rex Hardesty, a spokesman for the labor federation. Officials of the individual unions did not return calls.

Last year, AFL-CIO President Lane Kirkland blamed government for allowing corruption within the labor movement, saying, "I don't have the tools or methods ... any way of proving guilt or innocence. Crooks hurt us ... we're entitled to protection from them from our law enforcement authorities."

Through theft, extortion, bribery, price-fixing and restraint of trade, organized crime "distorts the cost of doing business," and thus increases prices to consumers and results in lower wages.

President compares King to Lincoln

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, comparing Martin Luther King Jr. to Abraham Lincoln and urging Americans to "recommit ourselves to living his dream," is observing the civil rights leader's birthday with a visit to a grade school named for him.

The White House said Reagan would address students today at Martin Luther King Elementary School in a predominantly black neighborhood of Washington.

In a statement issued Tuesday, the president said King "forged a dream out of the values of his religion and the ideals of our nation's founders."

"He cherished the dream of a world where human dignity was respected, human rights were protected, and all stood equal before the law," Reagan said.

"Like Lincoln, he sought the full realization of the principles set forth in our Declaration of Independence.

Groom sweeps Lefors

Groom's Brent Thornton (24) eyes the loose ball during the Tigers' 42-39 win over Lefors.

GROOM — What Lefors' girls couldn't get started the Pirates couldn't finish as Groom grabbed a pair of District 2-1A wins here Tuesday night.

The Tigerettes dominated the Lady Pirates from the outset enroute to a 66-16 victory. Lefors was without the services of 5-11 center Becky Davis, who suffered a knee injury against McLean last week, and never found any consistency on offense.

The Pirates finally did in the fourth quarter against the Tigers, but Groom held on to win, 42-39. After trailing the whole game and by nine going into the fourth quarter, Lefors narrowed the Tigers' lead to 40-39 but failed to score in the last 1:30 of the game.

Turnovers and poor free throw shooting by Groom, plus timely rebounding, enabled the Pirates to erase the Tigers' 40-31 lead in a little more than a minute.

Groom missed from the free throw line and Richard Hernandez' layup made it a 40-33 game. Groom failed again from the charity stripe and Shane Bridwell's 10-footer made it a five-point game. The Tigers misfired and two Cap Pittman free throws made it 40-37. Then Pittman connected on a drive into the middle and Groom committed a turnover then called time out with Lefors in possession of the ball and trailing by one with 1:23 to play.

But in those last 83 seconds, the Pirates had three one-and-one opportunities to tie it from the line and missed on all occasions. The Tigers iced their first District 2-1A win on a pair of Mike Rose free throws with a second remaining on the clock.

Groom took an 18-6 lead late in the second quarter with a 9-0 run. Darron Eschle converted twice inside; Ken Ruthardt hit a free throw; Brent Thornton nailed a turnaround short jumper and Jack Britten connected inside during the Tigers' burst.

Kirk Kerbo ended it with a three-point play and the Pirates trailed 20-12 at halftime.

An 11-4 spurt to open the third quarter gave Groom a 31-16 lead following Thornton's fast break layup, but Kent Kerbo scored the next six points, including a 22-footer at the buzzer to make it 31-22 going into the final stanza.

Ruthardt paced Groom with 11 points and Eschle added 10. Rose and Thornton combined for 15. Kent Kerbo scored 12 points to lead Lefors and Kirk Kerbo chipped in nine. Bridwell scored six for the Pirates.

Groom's girls haven't lost at home in two years and made it clear early Tuesday night that Lefors wasn't going to get an upset.

Robbie Kuehler and Suni Barnett each scored seven points in the first quarter as Groom jumped to a 17-6 lead. Erin Eschle scored the Tigerettes' other three points while Melissa Stubbs, Sandra Story and Melissa Forsyth scored for Lefors.

The Tigerettes outscored Lefors 17-2 in the second quarter to take complete control of the game. Barnett had eight points in the stanza, including an 18-foot net-popper for the last points of the half following a steal and layup by Melissa Fields. Two Stubbs free throws accounted for the Lady Pirates' points and Groom led 34-8 at halftime.

Fields scored 10 points in the final stanza and freshman Karen Bohr added six for Groom as it coasted to a 66-16 win to go to 2-1 in 2-1A play. The Tigerettes trail Claude by one game.

Barnett led Groom with 18 points and Fields added 14. Eschle scored eight and Kuehler and Lindy Kotara each added seven. Stubbs led Lefors with six and Forsyth added five.

Quanah wins pair from White Deer

QUANAH — Quanah held off White Deer in the fourth quarter here Tuesday night to log a 53-49 District 2-2A victory. Quanah's girls beat the Does, 47-34.

Behind a total of 26 points from Mike Bradley and Kane Barrow, White Deer trailed the Indians 37-36 going into the fourth quarter. Terry Bearden led Quanah with 12 points and Teddy Jackson chipped in nine.

The Does got 13 points from Tami Canaday and seven from Ruth Hinds but had their shooting problems against Quanah's girls. White Deer trailed by 10 at halftime and never could manage a substantial rally. Kari Walden scored 19 for Quanah and Stephanie Powell added 11.
