Gray Demo officeholders to switch parties

BY PAUL PINKHAM
Staff Writer

Two Gray County commissioners are scheduled to announce Monday that they will switch from the Democratic to Republican party. The Pampa News has learned.

Precinct 2 Commissioner Ronnie Rice of rural Pampa and Precinct 4 Commissioner Ted Simmons of McLean are planning to make the announcement during a GOP meeting in Pampa at which U.S. Rep. Beau Boulter (R - Amarillo) is also expected to announce his intention to run for a second term.

Both Rice and Simmons are up for re-election this year, although neither had filed as of late Friday afternoon. Both are expected to file for re-election prior to the Feb. 4 deadline.

Simmons was first elected to the commissioners court as a Democrat in 1974 and took office in 1975. Rice was appointed to the commission April 4, 1977, after Commissioner Dan Hinton was named county judge to replace Don Cain, who moved up from county to district judge. Rice was subsequently re-elected in 1978 and 1982 as a Democrat.

Saturday, Rice had no comment on his decision to switch parties, preferring to wait until the formal announcement Monday. Simmons could not be reached for comment.

Gray County Democratic Chairman Susie Wilkinson said her party would not attempt to pressure Rice or Simmons to remain Democrats. She said candidates must act according to their own beliefs.

"Everyone has a right to run on whatever party they choose to," she said.

Wilkinson also said the Democrats will not attempt to just fill up the ticket for the May 3 primary, claiming the best candidates are not found that way. She added, however, that she has received numerous telephone calls about the upcoming elections and expects a number of candidates to run.

Although no candidates have yet filed in Simmons' precinct, races are already shaping up the Precinct 2 commissioner position held by Rice in both the primary and Nov. 4 general election.

On the Republican side, James W. Kenemer, 1121 E. Foster, has already filed to run for the seat and Richard L. Smith, Route 1, west of Pampa, has signalled his intention to run by designating a campaign treasurer in the county clerk's office.

For the Democrats, Douglas R. Melear Sr., 1009 E. Murphy, has filed with his party and Jim Greene, Route 1, Box 1, has designated a treasurer.

Monday's meeting is scheduled to begin at 3:30 p.m. in GOP county headquarters at 201 E. Kingsmill. Boulter is scheduled to make his announcement at 3:45.

Gray County Republican Chairman Susan Tripplehorn said other announcements, including those involving party switching and a list of the party's slate of candidates for the primary, will follow Boulter's remarks.

Numerous candidates for other positions have either filed for election announced they plan to run or indicated so by designating campaign treasurers.

In addition to Melear, Democratic filings as of Friday include District Clerk Mary Clark, County Clerk Wanda Carter, District Judge Cain, Precinct Four Justice of the Peace R.C. Parker and Jeanine Augustine, seeking the Precinct Two Justice of the Peace slot currently held by Republican David Potter, who has not yet indicated whether he will seek re-election.

Clark, Carter, Cain and Parker are all incumbents.

Designating treasurers for the Democrats during the past week are Wayne Roberts, 700 E. Craven, seeking Potter's Justice of the Peace position, and V. Lynn Bezer, of Pampa, running for county surveyor. Ronald Gallagher, of Pampa, also announced he will be running for the Precinct One Justice of the Peace job, now held by Margie Prestidge, of Lefors, and Deputy County Treasurer Lodema Mitchell announced she will be running for the county treasurer's position being vacated by Jean Scott, who is retiring at the end of the year.

Prestidge also has not yet indicated whether she plans to seek re-election.

For the Republicans, Kenemer and Carol Peet have filed. Peet, 2230 Duncan, is running for county clerk.

In addition, treasurer designations have been made by Smith, County Judge Kennedy, seeking a third term, Scott B. Hahn, 1917 Grape, running for county treasurer, and Sammie Morris, 2124 N. Zimmers, running for Precinct One Justice of the Peace.

Field hearing

Proposed new rules subject to change

By LARRY HOLLIS
Staff Writer

Staff members of the Texas Railroad Commission have called a prehearing conference for 9 a.m. Feb. 18 in Austin to consider matters regarding proposed consolidation of Panhandle oil and gas fields into a common reservoir designation.

But despite issuance of a document containing proposed rules changes for the Panhandle Field, RRC information specialist E. Ray Grasshoff stressed that any of the proposed rules are subject to change and modification after the hearing.

The oil and gas docket notice of hearing dated Jan. 9 regards "conservation and prevention of waste of crude petroleum and natural gas in the State of Texas" specifically in the Panhandle fields.

The date and place of the hearing will be determined later.

Grasshoff explained the 10-page document is "just a starting point... an initial proposal." He said the commission will consider the testimony and evidence gathered during the hearing before making any final decision.

The document also notes that the proposed rules are subject to change: "Pursuant to hearings in this docket, the Commission will enter such rules, regulations, and orders as in its judgment the evidence presented may justify and such rules and orders may differ from those specifically proposed or mentioned in this notice."

The notice explains that a staff review of the information obtained as the result of a July 8, 1985, commission memorandum to all operators in the Panhandle fields "indicates a substantial number of oil and gas wells are downhole commingling hydrocarbon production from the top of the Panhandle Lime to the bottom of the Granite Wash formation including the Brown Dolomite, White Dolomite, Arkosic Dolomite, Moore County Lime, and Arkosic Lime Formations.

"While these formations originally may have been separate and distinct accumulations of oil and gas, the information indicates

Gas-oil ratio change not imminent

By LARRY HOLLIS
Staff Writer

A proposed gas to oil ratio production limit in the Panhandle fields has apparently aroused warnings from a volunteer spokesman for mineral and royalty owners.

But a Texas Railroad Commission spokesman said any such fears and warnings are groundless, claiming they result from misinterpretations. He said the proposed limitation concerns a production ratio, not a well classification ratio.

The controversy concerns a proposed rule to be considered by the commission in a hearing on the possibility of consolidating

Panhandle oil and gas fields into one field and designating it a common reservoir. (See related story.)

In the hearing notice dated Jan. 9, proposed rule 5a states, "A 20 acre oil well will be allowed to withdraw as a maximum 60 barrels of oil per day. Said 20 acre oil well will also be allowed to withdraw a maximum 120 Mcf (120,000 cubic feet) per day."

Comparing the maximum barrels of oil permitted with the maximum allowed gas production results in a 2,000 to 1 ratio of gas to oil.

It is this ratio which, if used for well classification purposes, volunteer spokesman Ron Slover has claimed would close thousands of oil wells in the Texas Panhandle.

But RRC information specialist E. Ray Grasshoff, after conferring with other RRC staff members last week, has said the ratio matter has been greatly exaggerated.

"There's a lot of misinformation going around," Grasshoff stated in a telephone interview from Austin.

Slover has been touting the 2,000 to 1 ratio as potentially devastating to oil production in the Panhandle since a proposed recommendation was issued a year ago by a federal administrative judge in the hearings before the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC).

FERC ruled that a number of independents' oil wells in Carson and Gray counties had been

Bleak economic forecast for area disputed

A gloomy economic future painted for the Pampa area in news reports stemming from a press conference held recently by Sen. Bill Sarpalus in Borger has been disputed by local businessmen and economic statisticians from the past year.

Most businessmen contacted in a survey by The Pampa News expressed optimism for the future. And statistics compiled by the Pampa Chamber of Commerce indicated that 1985 was a pretty solid year for the local economy.

The forecasts of economic disaster came after Sen. Sarpalus held a news conference in Borger to maintain that a Texas House Study Group report had underestimated the adverse economic impact of the white oil controversy.

During the news conference, Sarpalus said 50 percent of the businesses in Borger are facing bankruptcy and it will be only a matter of time before businesses in Pampa and Dumas follow suit.

In apparent response to his statements, the Amarillo newspapers published a story based on a survey of Pampa and Borger businesses. The story said businessmen in the two towns indicated their business was down from 20 to 60 percent from 1984 and "in Borger and Pampa, boarded up shops and offices abound."

But a different picture was painted by statistics compiled by the local chamber of commerce and by answers from a number of Pampa businessmen.

The chamber pointed out that taxable retail sales in Pampa during 1985 were over $8 million more than in 1984 and that bank deposits here increased by over $18 million during 1985. The chamber also said downtown Pampa has no vacant buildings at this time, although it did not define what it considered downtown, and said there are only two vacant buildings from the 1100 block of North Hobart to the 300 block of Perryton Parkway.

Even in Borger, where Sarpalus said half the businesses were in danger of bankruptcy, taxable retail sales were up more than 11 percent over 1984, according to statistics from the state comptroller's office.

"The business and economic climate for 1985 in Pampa has been surprisingly average or above average, considering white oil decisions and Congress unable to pass a tax bill," said Chamber of Commerce President Bill Duncan.

He said white oil decisions have made some difference in purchasing power and cash flow, but added, "A lot of our business and industries have worked hard to overcome and adjust for a profitable 1985. This is the true spirit and attitude that has always prevailed in Pampa," he said.

Pampa businessmen contacted by The Pampa News conceded that economic conditions here are not comparable to the boom year of 1982. But they indicated business had been solid and expressed optimism about the future.

Some were even more upbeat than that.

"Things must be pretty bad, our sales were up by only 23 percent over 1984," said Richard Barbour, manager of Pampa's Wal-Mart store. He said the store's Christmas sales were up over 12 percent and he expected that final figures would show the store with a 25 percent increase for the year.

"We're doing better than last year," said Bob Chambers, manager of Alco Discount Store in the Coronado Center.

He pointed out that Alco is expanding its facility by 58 percent in an upcoming move to the old Montgomery Ward building.

"That means our company is optimistic about the future and I am optimistic about the future," he said.

"I feel like Pampa is still one of the strongest towns of its size north of Lubbock," said Bill Hite of the downtown Heard & Jones Drug store. "I was real pleased with our Christmas business," he said.

Some businessmen were reluctant to sound too optimistic for fear of offending customers who have been hurt by the white oil controversy. And some admitted that business is probably off for many firms dealing in merchandise that requires large expenditures.

"We know we're not going to 1982, but I think we have a more positive situation now than we did a year ago because of the uncertainty that existed over the white oil thing," one said.

"I think if we as retailers adjust to the situation properly, the economy will only get stronger," Wal-Mart's Barbour said.

10 Americans among dead in Guatemala plane crash

GUATEMALA CITY (AP) - A jetliner carrying tourists to famed Mayan ruins in northern Guatemala crashed Saturday in a remote jungle area, killing all 87 people aboard including 10 Americans, the airline Aerovias said.
Col. Adolfo Corzo, director of Civil Aeronautics, had initially said there were 88 dead and 11 of the victims were from the United States.

The twin-engine Caravelle jetliner, operated by the private Aerovias company, went down as it approached the airport at Santa Elena, 300 miles north of the capital of Guatemala City.

Gerry Waters, a spokesman at the U.S. Embassy, said airline officials reported the control tower's last contact with the plane was at 7:58 a.m. and the pilot had not indicated there were any problems.

The airline released a tentative list of the passengers' nationalities. It said that in addition to the Americans, 53 were from Guatemala, two from Britain, two from Costa Rica, one from France, six from Colombia, four from Venezuela, one from Greece and two from the Netherlands.

One of the Venezuelan victims was former Foreign Minister Aristides Calvani, Corzo said.

There were six crew members, all Guatemalans, and Corzo identified the pilots as Mario Acevedo and Carlos Mazariegos. He said there were no survivors.

The airline said it was withholding the identities of the dead until their relatives had been notified. An official of the U.S. Embassy was sent to the site.

Corzo said the accident, the worst in Guatemala's aviation history, occurred eight miles northwest of Santa Elena in the northern department of Peten. Military patrols based at the airport arrived at the site soon after the crash.

Aerovias had rented the French-build aircraft from the Ecuadorian airline Saeta for flights to Santa Elena because of a greater-than-normal demand to travel to the area, authorities said.

Assault reported
Pampa Police are investigating an attempted sexual assault, alleged to have occurred at Johnson Trailer Court late Thursday night.

Captain Roy Denman said at about 11:30 p.m. Thursday a woman arrived home to find an intruder wearing a ski mask inside the house. Denman said a struggle ensued, with the perpetrator leaving the resident.

Police records indicate the woman is charging burglary with intent to commit sexual assault. No arrests have been made yet.

Thousands die in South Yemen

Fierce fighting Saturday between warring Marxist factions in South Yemen forced Soviet, British and French ships to abandon their efforts to rescue foreigners and retreat from the port of Aden, the capital, diplomats reported.

An Israeli short-wave radio monitor in Tel Aviv said President Ali Nasser Mohammed flew from Aden to Marxist-ruled Ethiopia on Saturday in his personal airplane.

Persian Gulf shipping executives had said earlier that Mohammed was seriously wounded in an assassination attempt Monday when the revolt began.

Diplomats said fighting intensified Saturday between military units loyal to the president and radicals opposed to Mohammed's reported plans to liberalize the economy and improve relations with pro-Western Arab countries.

The Bahrain-based Gulf News Agency said as many as 9,000 people had been killed or wounded in Aden alone and there also was fighting in the north of this small country on the southeastern coast of the Red Sea. It attributed its report to official sources in San'a, the capital of North Yemen. South Yemen has a population of about two million.

Israeli radio monitor Mickey Gurdus told The Associated Press that Mohammed's plane was allowed to land at the airport at Addis Ababa.

There were six crew members, all Guatemalans, and Corzo identified the pilots as Mario Acevedo and Carlos Mazariegos. He said there were no survivors.

The airline said it was withholding the identities of the dead until their relatives had been notified. An official of the U.S. Embassy was sent to the site.

Corzo said the accident, the worst in Guatemala's aviation history, occurred eight miles northwest of Santa Elena in the northern department of Peten. Military patrols based at the airport arrived at the site soon after the crash.

Aerovias had rented the French-build aircraft from the Ecuadorian airline Saeta for flights to Santa Elena because of a greater-than-normal demand to travel to the area, authorities said.

One of the Venezuelan victims was former Foreign Minister Aristides Calvani, Corzo said.

Thousands die in South Yemen

Fierce fighting Saturday between warring Marxist factions in South Yemen forced Soviet, British and French ships to abandon their efforts to rescue foreigners and retreat from the port of Aden, the capital, diplomats reported.

An Israeli short-wave radio monitor in Tel Aviv said President Ali Nasser Mohammed flew from Aden to Marxist-ruled Ethiopia on Saturday in his personal airplane.

Persian Gulf shipping executives had said earlier that Mohammed was seriously wounded in an assassination attempt Monday when the revolt began.

Diplomats said fighting intensified Saturday between military units loyal to the president and radicals opposed to Mohammed's reported plans to liberalize the economy and improve relations with pro-Western Arab countries.

The Bahrain-based Gulf News Agency said as many as 9,000 people had been killed or wounded in Aden alone and there also was fighting in the north of this small country on the southeastern coast of the Red Sea. It attributed its report to official sources in San'a, the capital of North Yemen. South Yemen has a population of about two million.

Israeli radio monitor Mickey Gurdus told The Associated Press that Mohammed's plane was allowed to land at the airport at Addis Ababa.

King holiday

Few area residents seem aware of contributions

By CATHY SPAULDING
Staff Writer

Marlynn Simpson is six years old.

Playfully twisting on a swing at Prairie Village Parks, she talked about what she knew about Martin Luther King, the slain civil rights leader whose birthday is now a federal holiday.

"We drew his picture in school," she said. "The teacher drew a picture and we colored it."

She thought some more: "I know he got killed."

The 57th birthday of the Atlanta preacher, who was assassinated in 1968, will be commemorated Monday with a federal holiday.

But the Rev. H.R. Johnson, pastor of St. Mark's Methodist Church, wonders if people in the Top of Texas are truly aware of the impact and contribution of the civil rights leader.

Federal offices will be closed and there will be no mail delivery or window service at the post office.

That will just about be the extent of the celebration in the Pampa area. Because the birthday falls at the end of the semester, some area schools will be out Monday for a teacher in-service day. But area city and county offices will remain open. State employees will be given the option of taking off on Martin Luther King Day or the day after Christmas or Thanksgiving.

"It's kind of an optional holiday," said one employee with the Pampa Department of Human Resources office.

Johnson held a commemorative service at his church last week.

"We had a wonderful turnout, much more than we had expected," Johnson said of the black people who attended the service. "No whites showed up."

"We put an ad in the paper saying the public was invited," he said. "We would have been overjoyed to have had some whites there."

"I have always observed this time of year," he said. "In some cities where I pastored, there would be a mixed get-together of whites, blacks and Hispanics at the service."

"Here, I find no one, even of the blacks, were aware of his work," he said. "They accept the benefits he fought for, but they have not taken the time to remember the man who fought and died for what they have."

The work and the dream of the man who led civil rights marches throughout the south and Washington D.C. in the early 1960s is evident in the Pampa area, Johnson believes.

"The black people now have the right to go into places — cafe's and restaurants — and have a meal, just as other people," he said.

"I see black people working in stores and whatnot," he added. "We have people working in the schools."

But the economic and employment side of King's dream has not been completely fulfilled in Pampa, Johnson said.

"I haven't seen any black people working in the banks or the Post Office," he said. "I haven't talked with anyone who ever applied. I know in Lubbock, I see black people working in banks as cashiers, in the note department. In Tyler, a black is one of the postmasters."

"There are so many young people getting out of high school and they leave here to go to college and they are not impressed to come back to Pampa," he said. "Maybe some of our people who are qualified for jobs are seeking work elsewhere. I would like to see more people employed."

Johnson said he would like to see blacks serve on the school board, city commission and more city boards and community organizations.

Marilynn's older friend, Pampa Middle School seventh grader Mike Williams, knows another area where King had impact.

"I know if it weren't for him, all the black kids wouldn't be in school with the white kids."

Carver School, a "colored" elementary school in Pampa, closed its doors in 1968, the same year King was assassinated. In the early 1960s, all 12 grades went to Carver. The high school was integrated in 1963 and the junior high school was integrated in 1965.

J.C. Randall was principal of the Carver School before it was integrated. He was vice principal of Pampa High School before his retirement in 1978. The old Carver school building now houses school administration offices.

Unlike the unrest in the southeast during the civil rights period, Randall remembers a smooth and cordial integration at Pampa.

"A majority of the white students at the high school welcomed the Carver students," Randall said. "It looks like to me they went out of their way, leaned over backward to make them comfortable."

"A few were indifferent," he admitted. "There were a few black and white kids who were hostile, but there were no major incidents at all."

"As time went on, students did get together," he said.

"A majority of the Carver students did very well as far as classwork was concerned," Randall added. "And some of them did get involved with Pampa High School extracurricular activities. But others didn't. The only extracurricular activity at Carver was basketball."

If there was any uneasy feeling, it was with parents.

"They knew the move would be awkward," Randall remembered. "It created problems for parents because they had to provide their children with better clothes and transportation to the schools."

Randall doesn't attend many school functions now. "It's was kind of hard for me to adjust being away from school activities."

"But I don't hear of any problems on the part of the kids," he said.

Randall acknowledges the impact of King's work.

"If it hadn't have been for some of his efforts, it wouldn't have happened as soon as it did," he said. "He pushed for equal rights without too much conflict."

eastern Panhandle, but King's desegregation efforts are evident even there, according to Wheeler County Judge Wendell Morgan.

Morgan remembers when Shamrock Schools were segregated.

"I used to go to Shamrock to take the census at the school," he said. "It had 60 students and drew from Wheeler County and Collingsworth County — mainly farm laborers and ranch hands."

"It was a pretty good size school," he said. "Of course, the black population is not as large now."

Shamrock Schools were integrated in the late 1950s. Rev. Johnson said he is a little disappointed that area government offices are not observing the Martin Luther King holiday.

"The foundation of his work was what our Founding Fathers established: to form a more perfect union and to establish justice," he said. "And that's for all races, to all creeds, not just a minority."

Johnson laments that King's dream "is not fulfilled in some areas."

"People need to hire more blacks," he said. "Black unemployment is higher than whites."

"But it is apparent that his dream can live on," he said. "You can kill the dreamer, but you can't kill the dream."

One answer covered all

I had a lifelong dream fulfilled Monday...and I blew it. Ever since I was a teenager, I've always read with interest the Gallup Poll results. You know the ones:

"One - third of all American men with beards believe Nixon should run for president again."

Or, "Seventy - three percent of all women who carry blue handbags think George Steinbrenner is simply divine, darling."

But there was always one plaguing question: "Why don't they ever ask people like me?" I always wondered.

"They probably disqualify anyone under five foot five."

But I ask you, did you ever know anyone who was called by the Gallup Poll (or any of the top pollsters, CBS, New York Times, Harris, for that matter)?

Well, now you do. The other night it finally happened. I was sitting at home, enjoying the closing moments of 2010 on HBO on my half a day off. (Full day's off are a rarity these days, you know.)

Suddenly the phone rang. "Darn," I said to myself (although it may have been something stronger; I can't remember).

I picked up the phone and on the other end a pleasant voice announced, "This is Susie Pollster, calling from the Gallup Poll in Princeton, New Jersey. Is there anyone under 17 at home?"

"No, I'm the only one here," I replied, hoping this was gonna be more than a kiddie - poll and I'd finally have my chance to stand up and be counted.

"Well, can I ask you a few questions?" she asked. "Sure," I replied, anxious that I was finally getting the chance to say how I really felt about Khadafy, Reagan, Gorbachev and all the others.

"I want to ask you about your favorite entertainers in connection with the People's Choice Awards to be aired on CBS in March" and my heart sunk as I realized I still wasn't considered wise enough by the Gallup people to be a political pundit.

"OK," I mumbled. "Let's start with TV. Who's your favorite television actress for 1985?"

Now yours truly doesn't watch too many of the new shows and from the one's I do watch, I couldn't remember any of the personalities. "Gracie Allen," I replied, able to think of no one else.

"Didn't she pass away about 30 years ago?" Susie asked me. "Try again."

Then I remembered Mary Tyler Moore has a new show, so I offered her name.

"Fine," Susie replied. "How about your favorite kids show?" "Good Lord, I don't know. I don't watch any."

"That's OK. I'll leave that one blank," she said. "Now let's turn to music."

"This should be a little better," I thought to myself. "Who's your favorite rock video star?"

"Bruce Springsteen."

"Who's your favorite male pop star?" "Bruce Springsteen."

"Who's your favorite female pop star?" "Bruce Springsteen."

"Sir, he's not a female," she said. "Sorry," I said, "I got caught in a rut. How about Chrissy Hinds from the Pretenders?"

"Prissy Heinz? Never heard of her," she said. "No, no, Chris as in Kringle and Hinds as in behind," I responded. Well, the questions continued. Best TV performance by a man over 300 pounds?

The Refrigerator. Scariest acting job? Ronald Reagan, playing the president. Best reason for Howard Cosell to return to TV? Joe Namath's commentary on Monday Night Football.

Then she asked her final two questions: Who is your favorite all-around entertainer of the year for 1985? and, Who is your favorite entertainer of all time, living or dead?

My answer was obviously, "Bruce Springsteen."

(When he's not responding to Gallup Polls or listening to Bruce Springsteen, Pinkham is a staff writer of the Pampa News.)

Victims' families awarded $15 million

WACO, Texas (AP) — The families of seven men killed in a 1982 plane crash received around $15 million in a December settlement, according to court documents that became public record this week.

Of the $14,961,358 paid to the families by three groups of corporations, $4.8 million went to attorneys involved in the case, the Waco Tribune-Herald reported.

Killed in the May 5, 1982 crash of a Beech King Air B-90 about 50 miles south of San Antonio were Don Panter of Austin; Mike Wood of San Antonio; and Dr. Brian Aynesworth Jr., Charles B. Richards Jr., Dan McDonald, Dick Hambleton and the pilot, Lewis Weaver, all of Waco.

The families of the seven men originally had sought $40 million to $50 million in damages from Beech Aircraft Corp., Texas Aero Inc., Mitchell Industries and Riteway Radio Inc. The suit was later expanded to include other parties.

In December 1984, a Waco jury spent 28 hours over six days deliberating the suit before reporting to State District Judge Derwood Johnson that it was hopelessly deadlocked on the case, which lasted two months and was the longest in McLennan County history. Johnson declared a mistrial.

Last Dec. 12, attorneys representing the family members and corporations met in Johnson's Waco court and signed numerous documents to complete a settlement in the case.

Johnson issued a gag order restricting the attorneys from commenting on the settlement, and the actual court records were sealed until this week.

In the settlement, three groups of corporations agreed to make payments to the families of the deceased men.

A group including Beech, Mitchell, Texas Aero and Riteway, agreed to pay the Richards $1,952,915, the Aynesworths $1,932,002, the Hambletons $1,476,960, the McDonalds $1,118,190.97; and the Panter $579,931.

A group including Pratt & Whitney Canada Inc., United Technologies Corp., TRW Inc., Hartzell Propeller Division and Hartzell Propeller Inc., agreed to pay the Richards $942,137, the Aynesworths $935,652, the Hambletons $701,740, the Woods $522,940, the McDonalds $531,280; and Panter, $277,600.

Woodward Governor Co., agreed to pay the Richards $945,780, the Aynesworths $935,652, the Hambletons $701,740, the McDonalds $531,280, the Woods $522,940, the Panter $280,856, and Mrs. Mary Weaver, $81,752.

In all, the Richards family received $3.8 million, the Aynesworths $3.8 million, the Hambletons $2.8 million, the McDonalds $2.1 million, the Panter $1 million, and Weaver's widow $81,752.

Welcomed demise of bad program

Congress has nearly killed the Synthetic Fuels Corporation. Language terminating the SFC has been included in the final appropriations bill for fiscal year 1986. The bill has passed the Senate, which has traditionally favored federal synfuel subsidies, and now awaits approval in the House, which voted last summer to get rid of it, only to be stymied by the Senate.

As long last, we may be rid of this costly and useless corporate welfare program.

The SFC was created in 1980 in an attempt to assure America's energy independence, so that another oil crisis would not catch us unawares. Since then, it has spent more than a billion dollars of the taxpayers' money, most of it taken from low and middle-income Americans, subsidizing the research and development projects of fabulously profitably corporations like Mobil and Union Oil.

Why do such companies as these need federal handouts? Because otherwise they would never have undertaken the particular research and development projects funded by the SFC. Why? Because of simple economic realities. Nobody but a government bureaucrat would even dream of investing in an energy project that uses more energy than it produces. Nobody but government bureaucrats would dream of putting millions of dollars into developing a product that couldn't be sold profitably at a price anywhere near as low as the prices of conventional fuels.

In fact, synthetic fuel is so uneconomical that some large energy companies, Exxon and Standard Oil among them, have refused to become involved even with government footing most of the bill.

What's more, as organizations like the Sierra Club have insisted from the beginning, existing technology for extracting synfuels from substances like shale is likely to do much more damage to the environment than conventional mining and drilling operations. If the SFC had become the large-scale organization partisans had hoped it would, Uncle Sam would have become a much bigger polluter than any private company.

The Synthetic Fuels Corporation has given us nothing for our billion dollar investment in its operations — no fuel, no important new scientific knowledge, no improvements of any kind. It's high time we got rid of it.

Game government plays

In economics a game is a competitive event amongst two or more people. There are basically three types of games.

First, there's the ZERO-SUM game where one person's gain is necessarily another's loss. Poker is a good example.

The second is the POSITIVE-SUM game where all parties win. For instance: if you ask me to mow your lawn for $20, and I agree, we both win; you have your lawn mowed and I have $20.

Finally, there's the NEGATIVE-SUM game where there is a net social loss.

Ignore for a moment the immorality of theft and consider it just a game. Suppose you have $100 and I steal $1. We might be tempted to say nothing has happened to the social totals. There's still $100; the only difference is you now have $99 and I have $1. Therefore, this redistribution of income is just like poker: a zero-sum game.

But wait a minute; people aren't stupid. If you think I might steal your money, you're going to try to prevent it. You'll either install more locks in your house, or buy a safe, or even a gun. To keep the numbers small, let's say you'll spend seventy cents to prevent a dollar from being stolen. Of course, I, as the thief, must spend fifty cents for burglary tools to bypass your preventive measures. Whether I'm successful or not, the social cost of your keeping or my getting a dollar (what you and I spent) is $1.20. These are known as the transfer costs of income redistribution (theft).

It's easy to apply this analysis to government income redistribution. For simplicity let's use the same numbers. Suppose I need a bailout, foodstamp, or farm subsidy of a dollar. You are faced with the threat of Congress, through the IRS, taking your dollar. In order for me to get this dollar, I lobby Congress giving them fifty cents worth of gum drops. Maybe you spend seventy cents on a slick accountant to find ways to save you a dollar's worth of taxes. Again, whatever the outcome, $1.20 has been spent for me to get, or you to keep, a dollar.

One purpose of laws against theft or other forms of dishonesty is to prevent the negative-sum game. Societies where honesty is widespread are richer than those where dishonesty is rife. Discouraging theft is justifiable not only on moral grounds but as a means of preventing the wasteful use of resources.

Similarly, a constitutional contract that protects private property and prevents government-mandated (legalized) income redistribution (theft) is justifiable not only on moral grounds but also to prevent the wasteful misuse of resources. American history is for the most part one where government was small and income redistribution limited.

In fact, the largest percentage of the budget was spent on national defense, which constitutes preventing international theft. Today it's just the opposite. More than two-thirds of the federal budget is income redistribution, i.e., the taking of one person's property and giving it to another to whom it does not belong. This is achieved through programs ranging from student and foreign aid to farm handouts and business bailouts. It's beginning to make more economic sense for Americans to join the hordes marching off to Washington seeking legalized theft than to spend money hiring slick accountants.

The best game is the one that made us rich in the first place — the positive-sum game. Thus federal spending and tax cuts are not only moral they also reduce resource waste. But since Congress cares more about their gum drops than the welfare of America, we the people must act.

I think the moral decay warrants reconvening the Constitutional Convention.

"Hi, I'm Gary Hart, I'm either running for president or moving to Ireland to write books."

Today in history

Today is Sunday, Jan. 19, the 19th day of 1986. There are 346 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On Jan. 19, 1807, Robert E. Lee, the commander-in-chief of the Confederate armies, was born in Stratford, Va.

On this date:

One year ago: Lebanese Prime Minister Rashid Karami announced after a meeting in Beirut with U.S. Ambassador Reginald Bartholomew that Lebanon's government would try to obtain the release of five Americans kidnapped in Beirut, apparently by a shadowy group calling itself Islamic Jihad. One later escaped, one was freed and the other three remain among the missing Americans, who now number six.

Today's birthdays: Actress Jean Stapleton is 63. Actor Fritz Weaver is 60. PBS newsman Robert MacNeil is 55.

And heere's Ronnie

In just a few short years, President Reagan will be out of a job. Somebody else will be president, and Mr. Reagan will need to start a new career.

He's already been a radio sportscaster, an actor and a politician, and he is known as The Great Communicator. I think his next logical step is into television.

Wouldn't President Reagan make the perfect television talk show host?

He's comfortable in front of the camera, and think of the guests he could have on his show after all the contacts he will have made during eight years in the Oval Office.

First, he would need a sidekick. George Bush, who also will be out of a job in 1988, would be the perfect Ed McMahon to Reagan's Johnny Carson.

Next, Reagan would need a theme song. That would be "Hail to the Chief," of course.

And, now, heere's Ronnie!

"Thank you very much, ladies and gentlemen, thank you. Well, George, you're looking dapper this evening."

"Thank you, Mr. President."

"George, how many times do I have to tell you don't have to call me Mr. President anymore?"

"What should I call you, sir?"

"How about Your Highness? After all, I was the most powerful man in the free world for eight big ones, George."

"And you did a swell job, too, Your Highness."

"Why, thank you, George. By the way, did your wife ever make up with Geraldine? What's-her-name?"

"Ferraro, sir."

"Yeah, the one your wife called a, well, it rhymed with 'rich'."

"They're best friends now, Your Highness. They're even in the same aerobics class."

"It's nice to see our nation's women getting involved in such an intricate subject as aviation. It's like I told Donald Regan, I said, 'Donald, women do too know about important issues. Like I asked Nancy recently what she thought of the PTL Club, and she said long as she didn't have to kiss Yassar Arafat, she thought it was just fine.'"

"Ha! Ha! Didn't have to kiss Yassar Arafat. That's a funny one, sir."

"Thank you, George. You know, that George is a real smart fellow, himself. He nearly froze to death at a drive-in theater the other night. He went to see 'Closed for the Season.'"

"Well, what was in the papers today? Did you read where Teddy Kennedy said my administration did absolutely nothing for the poor people of this country?"

"Well, there you go again, Teddy. Hey, I was poor once myself."

"HOW POOR WERE YOU?"

"I was so poor the guys down at the post office used to let me come by in the morning on the way to school and lick stamps so I'd have something for breakfast...."

"Ha! Ha! That's poor, Your Highness."

"You're right about that, George. Listen, we've got a great show for you tonight. Mickey Gorbachev, my old friend from Geneva, will be here to talk about his latest book, 'I Spy, You Spy, He, She, It Spies.' We'll also have Gen. Muammar Khadafy, who will bring one of his terrorist groups to mow down a few innocent members of the audience, and George Schultz, my old secretary of state, will be here to tell us why he really wouldn't take that lie detector test."

"We'll be right back after this word from President Iacocca's favorite automaker, Chrysler."

Even if 'media' biased, press isn't

Political conservatives have had a great time bashing the media during the past year after a survey indicated there are a lot more journalists who consider themselves liberal than conservative, and that a majority of them favored Walter Mondale over Ronald Reagan in the last presidential contest.

Reed Irvine, who runs an organization called Accuracy in Media, has used the survey to support his contention that the media is biased to the left. Just the other day, television evangelist Jimmy Swaggart followed other conservative preachers in denouncing the media, calling it anti-Christian because it allegedly supports such things as homosexuality and opposes things like a strong national defense.

I have never really considered the newspaper profession as part of "the media." I am like the old newspaperman who thinks of radio, television and magazines as "the media" and newspapers as "the press." The conservative media critics, though, probably lump us all together, so I assume they're also talking about newspaper folks when they accuse the media of all sorts of dastardly activities.

I don't really know much about people involved in broadcast journalism, but I don't doubt that a survey of the newspaper profession would show more political liberals than conservatives. This is because reporters outnumber other job classifications in the business; many reporters are relatively young and, I think, younger people are more likely to describe themselves as political liberals.

I say this because back in my younger days when I believed that political conservatism was the key to preserving individual liberty in this country I was usually on one side and the rest of the reporters in the newsroom on the other in many late-night get-togethers that we liked to call philosophical discussions, but which often developed into something more like shouting matches. We had, for example, some epic "discussions" during the Barry Goldwater-Lyndon Johnson presidential race, but that is another story.

I don't think the younger reporters are as liberal now as they were 25 years ago. But I don't think it would matter in the newspaper profession if they were. It would not result in the stories they write being consistently biased.

While all of us are biased in one direction or another, one of the first things young reporters have to learn is to eliminate bias from their stories. If they don't learn to eliminate it, they don't stay in the business very long unless they are working for one of the few publications that openly admits it presents its news from a certain perspective.

In addition, I think a higher percentage of editors, who have final approval of newspaper stories, would regard themselves as conservatives. And I know that a majority of the people who own newspapers are political conservatives and would not tolerate a continued liberal bias in their publications.

I am speaking, of course, only of the newspaper business. I cannot vouch for broadcast journalists because I do not know what motivates them to do the things they do.

I will not tell you that "the media" is not biased. But I will tell you that "the press" tries very hard to be objective.

Journey through Texas

Texas life not easy in 1840

An educated Englishman, William Bollaert, tours the rough and tumble Republic of Texas in 1840. This is not as unusual as it may sound. Many are being drawn to Texas because it is bursting with generous land deals and ample crop yields in return for a relatively small investment. During his travels, Bollaert notes that, "Great bargains in land may be had by many all over the Republic. A large land owner offered to give a friend of mine two or three-hundred acres of good land and build him a house if he would remain in the neighborhood."

After securing land, a settler and his family build a cabin out of logs, chinking the cracks with mud, moss and twigs. Some leave the floor bare while others split logs and lay them down for a crude wood floor. A door must be fashioned by hand, complete with a latch to help protect families from the Indians. The settlers purchase some special items such as a plow, seed, oxen or other tools to begin planting the crops, but everything needed for daily living must be created.

Since Texas summers are long, hot and in some areas, humid, life in a windowless cabin can be miserable. If someone wants light or a breeze they simply kick

EDITOR'S NOTE - "Journey Through Texas" is a Sesquicentennial Project of the University of Houston-University Park Office of Media Relations that will be published each Sunday in The Pampa News. out a log for instant refreshment.

Hot weather brings long seasons of heavy rainfall for some areas. This has "encouraged insect life associated with malaria, yellow fever and typhoid," says Samuel Maverick, a San Antonio resident.

The settlers' diet proves to be a rather limited one. Their meals consist of cornbread or biscuits, fresh game or bacon and perhaps some wild berries or greens picked from the fields. As with equipment some unusual food supplies must be bought, but this can be expensive due to hazardous transportation conditions. Therefore, families recycle most of their leftovers. Soap can be fashioned from old fat, and bits of wax can form a candle. The frontiersmen try to be as self-sufficient as possible by mixing common sense with a little ingenuity. Most settlers are generous and willing to share their homes and food with neighbors or weary travelers.

"The spirit of helpfulness and friendly fellowship have always prevailed," notes Frances Cooke, another settler. "We are all strangers thrown together, willing to lend or borrow as the case may be. Anything one has (is) at the disposal of others..."

But not everyone is satisfied with life in the Republic. Some families have a more difficult time making the transition than others. After enduring a long, dangerous and trying journey through Indian territory, many just aren't prepared for the lonely and somewhat spartan existence in Texas. Several choose to leave; some who stay probably wish they hadn't.

Bollaert has made friends with a family from France, but they have come down with 'chills and fever', probably malaria, and are talking of returning to their homeland. "It is a distressing picture to see one who is brought up on all sorts of luxuries in Paris... who is full of intelligence..." Bollaert notes. (He) is utterly helpless here."

Another Texas traveler is the Reverend A.B. Lawrence of New Orleans. He spends one quiet afternoon in 1840 visiting an "eccentric" who has only his dog and chickens for company. Not only loneliness plagues the settlers, Indians do too. The reclusive man tells Lawrence a story:

"It was my lot that were attacked at night by a party of Indians...all (settlers) were put to death. Two months later a young man, discovered the remains of his fiancée in a thicket, knowing her by the mark of her name upon her corset, which yet remained distinct."

Texas has a festival for nearly everything

EDITOR'S NOTE: "One of the great uniquenesses of Texas is that it is possible to spend every weekend of the year with a different kind of indignation."—Dick Hitt, a Dallas columnist.

By MIKE COCHRAN
Associated Press Writer

DALLAS (AP) — They're mad, these Texans. Mad, mad, mad!

Where else would you find a Rattlesnake Roundup, a Possum Fair, a Lamb Blast, a Mule Day, a Crappiethon, a Rocky Mountain Oyster Fry, a Shrimporree, a Hushpuppy Olympics, a Spam-o-Rama or a One Arm Dove Hunt?

How about something called the Prairie Dog Chili Cookoff & World Championship Pickled Quail Egg Eating Contest?

Who but Texans would assemble for onion, oatmeal, corn, peanut, sausage, kolache, strawberry, rice, blackeyed pea, mosquito, boil weevil and fireant festivals or gather for chili, barbecue, stew, menudo, goat and gumbo cookoffs?

WHERE ELSE would you find a Sugarfest, a Wurstfest, a Mai Fest, a Germanfest, a West Fest and a Turkeyfest?

Would even a Californian or a New Yorker drive 500 miles to a Big Bend ghost town to pour cold beer and hot chili down his red neck?

You got it, Bubba. And we're not talking sesquicentennial, that tongue-twisting, mind-boggling, year-long 150th birthday party which in all likelihood will turn even Texans against cows, cowboys, oil, Tex-Mex, margaritas, longnecks and the Alamo.

What we're saying here is, this is no isolated, one-shot deal. Texans gobble pickled quail eggs, toss cow chips, race horned toads and armadillos and round up rattlesnakes year after year.

From Dalhart to Donna and El Paso to Orange, Texans raft, rope, ride, sing, fling, dance, fiddle, lie, shoot, fish, hunt, drink and eat in the name of fun, history, art, tradition, legend, myth or whatever strikes the local fancy.

Worse yet, there's now written proof!

In a book titled "Annually in Texas," Dallas writers Bill Sanderson and Rick Roseman list 159 of the state's "best" annual events, ranging from the Boar's Head and Yule Log Festival in Fort Worth (January) to the Cowboy Christmas Ball in Anson (December).

The fun-loving, free spirited and widely traveled authors pack 318 pages with facts, figures and photographs of the various celebrations and provide maps and restaurant-motel guides to boot.

There are so many festivals in Texas, perhaps no accounting — including this story or Sanderson and Roseman's book — would be complete or up to the minute.

Give some credit for trying, however.

"This book is for everybody, from yahoos to yuppies," they insist. "It's for the rich, smart and handsome, and the poor, dumb and ugly, covering Texas like a handcrafted patchwork quilt."

They generously exclude no one as potential purchasers of "Annually in Texas."

Well, who wouldn't want to know that 572 hunters collected 12,797 pounds of diamondback rattlers in Sweetwater last March? And that 37,000 folks paraded through Nolan Coliseum to observe the handling, milking, skinning, weighing and eating of that reptilian tangle?

COME MEET Miss Snakecharmer in early March and do bring your boots, long pants, a snake hook, some long tongs and two six-packs of courage.

The origin of the Great Texas Mosquito Festival at Clute in July is a story unto itself, but Roseman and Sanderson tell us also that visitors can hook up at the Key Largo campground for $10 or stay at the Southern Executive Inn for $36 double, including pool and satellite TV.

Nearby Vanda Lee's offers a noon buffet "made from scratch" and down the road we can get a lobster or chicken fried steak at the Windswept Restaurant and Club. Average price: $8.95.

Cookoffs, rodeos, art shows and foodfests dominate the celebratory potpourri, but Miami's got the National Cow-Calling Contest in June, Wichita Falls stages the Hotter 'n Hell Bicycle Race in August and Cuero conducts its Turkeyfest in October.

DO NOT CONFUSE the Cuero event and its "Great Gobbler Gallop" with the November Turkey Shoot at Mason or Bob Wills Day at Turkey, Texas.

Luling has the Watermelon Thump, San Marcos the Texas Water Safari, Albany the Fort Griffin Fandangle, Freer the Muy Grande Deer Contest and Crockett the World Championship Fiddling Contest.

There's the Frontier Days at Laredo and the Frontier Days at Bandera, both in May, and the Frontier Jubilee at Cisco in April.

Georgetown resurrects its Chisholm Trails Days each June and Lockhart holds its Chisholm Trail Roundup each May.

Houston, Fort Worth and San Antonio host Grand Slam stock shows and rodeos each winter, but don't dare knock September's West Texas Fair and Rodeo at Abilene or the Fourth of July Texas Cowboy Reunion at Stamford and the West of the Pecos Rodeo at Pecos.

Amarillo's got an "ole timers" rodeo in September, but it calls 40-year-olds old-timers. Fighting words, those.

Celebrations are contagious. In 1981, El Paso celebrated its 400th birthday and had so much fun the El Paso Festival emerged as an annual event.

There's a Crazy Water Festival at Mineral Wells in May, a Spring Fling at Denton in April, a Dickens on the Strand at Galveston in December and an East Texas Fireant and Marketfest Festival at Marshall in October.

The Crappiethon unfolds at Toledo Bend Reservoir in April, while Muleshoe's Mule Day does its thing in August.

San Angelo's Lamblast is a sheepish affair, an April tribute to the wool and mohair industry, while Olney's One Arm Dove Hunt is a September outing limited to men who have lost either an arm or a hand.

According to the authors, two one-armed men once were eating with dove hunting friends in an Olney cafe when one asked the other: "What kind of gun do you use?"

"A pump," he replied. "And you...?"

"A bolt action."

That got everybody laughing and led to what may be the state's most unusual event. On the first Saturday in April, a band of beauties known as the "Pirate Queens" takes over Corpus Christi City Hall to launch Buccaneer Days, which salute the city's "pilfering and plundering high-seas past."

The seaside revelry runs 11 nights.

On a less hedonistic level, some 20,000 people turn out on a Friday night in December for McAllen's Candlelight Posada, a premier Christmas event symbolizing Mary and Joseph's search for an inn.

Back to hedonism, Odessa's Boomtown Days Festival in May pays homage to its crude past — heh heh — offering the "hot-wired West Texas reveler" oil-related hijinks, ranging for a streak dance to an "oil field Olympics."

A summertime classic is a presentation of the music drama "Texas" at Palo Duro Canyon, and another biggie is the Confederate Air Force Air Show at Harlingen in October.

Sadly, the Possum Fair and Chili Cookoff at Graham in June is more chili than possum. The idea was to raise possums, but the game warden nixed the scheme.

"Not that it's against the law to raise possums per se," explained Annually in Texas. "They're in heat in June, and you can't mess with them for any reason."

Texas celebrates its independence from Mexico each year in early March at Washington-on-the-Brazos State Park in Washington, and this being the 150th anniversary, the 1986 blowout should be a real biggie.

Texans may or may not have invented chili, but the late Wick Fowler of Austin and Frank X. Tolbert of Dallas helped perfect it. Better still, their annual chili madness in Terlingua triggered all sorts of chili cookoffs and chili wars, conflicts, minor uprisings and fistfights.

"Annually in Texas" lists a slew of chili cookoffs among its "best" events, including the inaugural "Great Wall of Texas Society Groundbreaking and First Annual Chili Cookoff" on the Red River north of Gainesville.

The September saga is being organized by a group of Texas patriots intent on building a brick wall 40 feet high and 40 feet wide around the Republic of Texas.

Incidentally, The Republic of Texas Chilympiad at San Marcos is no small deal since the winner is assured a slot in the World Championship Chili Cookoff at Terlingua.

District clerk announces candidacy for re-election

Mary Clark, District Clerk of Gray County, has announced her candidacy for re-election subject to the Democratic primary to be held in May.

Clark was elected District Clerk in 1982. Prior to that she served four and one half years in the district court office as chief deputy to Helen Sprinkle.

Clark is a native Texan and long-time resident of Pampa, where she attended school. She is a member of the Texas County and District Clerk's Association and the Tri-County Democratic Club.

"I appreciate the opportunity I have had to serve the people of Gray County," Clark said. "If elected, I pledge to continue giving dedicated full-time service to carry out the duties of the District Clerk's office. I appreciate your support in the past and asking for your continued support."

MARY CLARK

Wanda Carter will seek re-election as county clerk

Gray County Clerk Wanda Carter has announced her intention of seeking re-election subject to the Democratic primary to be held May 3.

Carter is a veteran in the clerk's office, having served as deputy to Charlie Thut for 17 years. She was first elected to the office in 1970.

Carter is a Lefors native and attended Lefors schools. She is a member of the Texas County and District Clerk's Association, having served as area leader and on many committees, including the legislative committee. She has been a member of the Board of Directors of Panhandle Community Services since 1981, currently serving as secretary-treasurer, and is a member of the Task Force for Project Self-Sufficiency.

"The work load has more than doubled since I first took office," she said. "We are now recording legal documents by Microfilm on the copy flow system with computer indexing in an effort to increase efficiency."

WANDA CARTER

"I pledge continued courteous, efficient and experienced administration of the office for the benefit of all the people," she said. "I sincerely appreciate your support in the past and ask for your continued support in the future."

Indicted financier surrenders

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — Authorities said a Dallas financier who was the object of a manhunt since his indictment last week on charges he conspired to defraud a Hereford savings and loan institution of millions of dollars has surrendered.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Clint Averitte said W.W. "Doc" Taylor turned himself in at 4 p.m. Friday at the U.S. probation office inside the federal courthouse. Taylor said he was out of the country at the time of his indictment.

A grand jury indicted Taylor, 59, and James Gentry, 42, of Quinlan, the former president of Hi-Plains Savings and Loan Association, on Jan. 8. Federal officials accused them of complicity in a complicated scheme involving wire money transfers.

The two were accused in the six-count indictment of defrauding the thrift of $3.7 million in a three-month period from December 1982 to February 1983.

U.S. Magistrate Robert Sanders arraigned Taylor at 6 p.m. Friday, setting bond at $25,000 and ordering him bound over to federal officials when Taylor said he didn't have the money to post the bond.

Averitte had asked for seizure of Taylor's passport.

Plaza renamed for Vietnam victim

AUSTIN (AP) — A courthouse plaza was renamed Saturday for Ronny Woodmansee, the first Travis County resident killed in the Vietnam War and a man described by his family as a "real Austin, Texas person."

Woodmansee was 30 years old when his helicopter was shot down in 1963 on a rescue mission in the Mekong Delta.

County officials recently voted to rename the plaza between the courthouse and an annex building the Ronny L. Woodmansee Plaza. It will be a part of the county's celebration of the Texas Sesquicentennial.

"Nobody ever said thank you to those young men," Travis County Judge Mike Renfro said. "This is a way to say thank you."

The renaming was proposed by representatives of several Austin veterans groups.

"It's quite an honor," said Woodmansee's widow, Ira Jean Woodmansee. "Ronny was an American who was doing his job and proud to be doing it."

His brother, Jim Woodmansee, said, "Ronny would have wanted people to know that there were a hell of a lot of other people who also never made it back home. He would have said: 'Read the roll of the others who also died.'"

Ronny Woodmansee volunteered for service in Vietnam and was among the first Americans sent to Southeast Asia. He arrived in 1962, when Americans were considered only "advisers" and did not carry arms.

Woodmansee, a first lieutenant, was an Army helicopter pilot who was assigned to rescue men who shot down, said Mrs. Woodmansee. On Dec. 12, 1963, his helicopter was hit by an anti-tank missile. He was killed, but several of the men with him survived.

"There was never any question why he went overseas," Mrs. Woodmansee said. "He was there to stop communism. There wasn't any of the disillusionment that came later."

Woodmansee was born in South Texas, but grew up in Austin. He graduated from Austin High School and attended the University of Texas. He served in the Texas National Guard before going to Vietnam, his widow said.

His decorations included the Purple Heart, the Distinguished Flying Cross and the Vietnam Service Medal.

Wayne Roberts candidate for JP post, Precinct 2

Pampa resident Wayne Roberts has filed for a position on the Democratic ticket for Gray County Justice of the Peace, Precinct 2.

Roberts is employed in Pampa by an oil-related company. He and his wife, Glenda, who is employed by a local home health agency, have three children, Judy Maness, a married daughter; Tony, a junior at Pampa High; and Leslie, a student at Baker Elementary.

In accounting for the office, Roberts said, "I am eager and willing to serve the residents of Gray County in a meaningful way. I will be unwaveringly loyal to all the citizens. I will be available 24 hours a day to help with business-related and individual problems. The concerns of the people of Gray County will receive my immediate and undivided attention."

"I believe it is important that each of us do what we can to make our community strong and I believe I am well-equipped to fulfill the responsibilities of the office of Justice of the Peace as set forth in the

WAYNE ROBERTS

Texas Election Code.

"I look forward to the campaign. I plan to meet as many of the people of Gray County as I can between now and Election Day to listen to their ideas and concerns."

Carol Peet announces county clerk candidacy

"I'm excited with the prospect of working for the people of this county," Carol Peet said as she announced her intention to run for the office of Gray County Clerk on the Republican ticket.

Peet, currently employed at Pampa High School, managing the audio-visual department, has experience as a teacher and secretary. She is involved in several civic activities and was president of Pampa Talented and Gifted Association (Pampa TAG), and both the Pampa chapter and Panhandle Area Women's Aglow Fellowship.

A graduate of Pampa High School, Peet continued her education, receiving an A.A. degree from St. John's College in Winfield, Kan., and a bachelor of arts degree from Concordia Teachers College in Seward, Neb. She has also done post-graduate work at Concordia Teachers College and Cortland State Teachers College in Cortland, N.Y.

Peet is married to Richard Peet and a mother of three sons: Tracy, 9, Tarin, 11, and Tory, 14. Her husband teaches government at both Pampa High School and

CAROL PEET

Clarendon College, Pampa Center. The Peet family attends Lamar Full Gospel Assembly Church, where Peet and her husband teach a young couples' Sunday school class. In 1984 the family was chosen Family of the Year by the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints.

"The strongest asset I can offer the people of Gray County is my ability to analyze and organize for the most productive solution to any problem we face," Peet said. "I love the people of Gray County and I ask them to hire me as their county clerk."

Son of policeman charged in shooting

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A juvenile charge of attempted murder has been filed against a police officer's son who shot a handcuffed playmate during a game of "cops and robbers," authorities said.

The wounded child, identified by police as Jason Mowdy of Watauga, was shot in the right cheek with a .22-caliber pistol, police said. He was listed in good condition at Cooks Children's Hospital, officials said.

The 13-year-old son of a Fort Worth patrol officer who lives in Watauga was being held in a juvenile detention facility, officials said.

The shooting occurred Thursday afternoon in the home of the older boy while his parents were grocery shopping, said Watauga Department of Public Safety Director Malcolm Jackson.

White House reports Reagan polyps benign

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three small polyps removed from President Reagan's colon during a post-cancer surgery checkup were found to be benign along with a sample of skin taken from a bump on his face, the White House said Saturday.

The president, resting over the weekend at his Camp David, Md., retreat, was given the results of the tests by his personal physician, Dr. T. Burton Smith, according to White House spokesman Albert Brashear.

On Saturday, Reagan kept to his normal schedule and delivered his weekly radio address from the presidential retreat.

The president, his wife Nancy, and their dog Rex flew to the Catoctin Mountain retreat Friday evening after the president's six-hour visit to the Bethesda Naval Hospital.

The 74-year-old president underwent the first examination of his colon since his successful cancer surgery in July. Blood tests, X-rays, and a CAT scan were also done.

The White House issued a terse, two-sentence statement Saturday on the results of the president's medical tests.

"Final laboratory evaluation on the three intestinal polyps and facial tissue removed from the president yesterday has been completed and all are benign. The President was informed of the results by his physician at Camp David this morning," the statement said.

Brashear, asked for more detail, refused to comment. Asked for Reagan's reaction to the apparent clean bill of health, the spokesman said, "He's fine. We expected nothing less."

Reagan was expected to remain secluded at Camp David until Monday, a federal holiday honoring Martin Luther King, Jr.

Most molestation charges dropped

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Angry parents blasted prosecutors for dismissing child molestation charges against five of seven defendants in the McMartin Pre-School case and said the formerly accused were still at risk — from the public.

"They'd be better off with the trial, otherwise I don't think they are going to live," Robert Currie, parent of a child who attended the preschool, said after prosecutors dropped the charges Friday, citing insufficient evidence.

"I wouldn't want to be one of those defendants walking the street," said Arvin Collins, another parent, who added he would "never get involved in any vigilante-type activity."

District Attorney Ira Reiner said molestation charges would stand against Raymond Buckley, 27, and his mother, Peggy McMartin Buckley, 59, of the defunct preschool in suburban Manhattan Beach.

"The parents and the children have gone through an awful experience," Reiner told a news conference Friday. "At the same time, we have a moral obligation not to file criminal charges unless there is evidence."

Children testified about rape, sodomy, satanic rituals and mutilation of animals. Animal bones were dug up in a lot next to the school, but were never conclusively linked to the case.

The bizarre case triggered nationwide scrutiny of sex crimes against children and resulted in many nursery school closures and charges against teachers, aides and other adults involved with child care.

"The message that is being sent to child molesters is that if the kids are 2 or 3 or 4 or 5 years old, they are fair game," McMartin parent Tim Wheeler said. "I'd like Ira Reiner to go to the 305 victims and explain why he let those five go."

During the course of the 18-month preliminary hearing, which cost the county $14 million, two-thirds of the counts were dropped because many parents were unwilling to have their children testify.

The parents said they would ask the state attorney general's office to take over the case and prosecute all seven, who originally were charged with more than 300 counts of rape, sodomy and other abuse involving 41 children.

One of the five former defendants said Reiner's decision ended nearly two years of agony, and said the charges resulted from media hysteria and overeager investigators.

"The nature of the case is so horrendous and horrible when children are involved, and that's what incites adults regarding this case," said Mary Ann Jackson, a former defendant and teacher at the defunct school. "There's an injustice here somewhere, (and) sometimes that needs to be brought into the open."

Raymond Buckley is now charged with one count of conspiracy, 67 of lewd and lascivious acts on a child under 14 years old, and 12 of lewd and lascivious acts by force on a child under age 14.

His mother is charged with one count of conspiracy and 20 of lewd and lascivious acts against a child under 14 years old, two of those by force, said Schuyler Sprowles, a spokesman for Reiner.

Charges were dropped against the school's founder, Virginia McMartin, 78; her granddaughter, Peggy Ann Buckley, 29; and three former teachers, Mrs. Jackson, 57, Betty Rador, 65, and Babette Spitzer, 36.

Boy reunited with mother

LOS ANGELES (AP) — An 8-year-old Polish boy who was separated from his mother when he was an infant was reunited with her at Los Angeles International Airport before television crews recording their meeting.

Jakub Potemkin wept as he hugged his mother for the first time Friday. Aleksandra Potemkin had not seen her son since he was 3½ months old, when she left Poland for the United States, said family spokesman Ralph Andrews.

"He's like a boy from another planet. This country is beyond his imagination," Andrews said.

When Jakub was an infant, his father got a job in the United States and his parents moved here. But the boy was left behind in Poland because the government feared defections and would not let the entire family leave, Andrews said.

Jakub's father died shortly after arriving, and his mother began a long struggle for political asylum. She recently won asylum, and Jakub was granted a visa, Andrews said.

The family will try to win asylum too for Jakub.

Goetz case may not be resolved yet

NEW YORK (AP) — Thirteen months have passed since Bernhard Goetz fired an unlicensed pistol and wounded four young men he claims menaced him on a subway train, but the case against Goetz is far from being resolved.

The so-called subway vigilante won an important decision Thursday when a judge threw out attempted murder and assault charges against him.

In the first flush of victory after state Supreme Court Justice Stephen Crane's ruling, Barry Slotnick, Goetz's lawyer, said the worst was over. Goetz, who said he had armed himself without a permit for protection after an earlier mugging, said, "It means that the system will abandon the concept of prosecuting victims."

But Manhattan District Attorney Robert Morgenthau immediately said he would appeal the dismissal.

And a day after the ruling, Slotnick predicted, "I have a very strong feeling that the district attorney is going to abandon proper caution and proceed with another grand jury."

The case already has been before two grand juries. The first panel indicted Goetz only on weapons charges and sparked widespread public criticism — Goetz is white and the wounded youths are black.

But many in New York and around the nation applauded the 38-year-old electronics technician as standing up to criminals.

The district attorney was urged by black leaders to pursue the case. The Rev. Herbert Daughtry, president of the African Peoples' Christian Organization, said Crane's decision "sends a signal that if you are white you can do almost anything to blacks and the law enforcement apparatus is going to stand behind you."

Crane let stand lesser charges against Goetz — reckless endangerment and illegal weapon possession, which are punishable by prison terms of up to four and five years, respectively. A hearing on those counts was scheduled for Tuesday. The dismissed charges carry 25-year maximum sentences.

Slotnick said Morgenthau was pushing on because of a desire to get Goetz, a belief shared by a lawyer on the other side.

Attorney William Kunstler, who represents Darrell Cabey, one of the wounded youths, said Morgenthau has been playing to public opinion throughout the case.

"When Goetz was a big hero, (Morgenthau's) initial objective was to get rid of it as soon as possible, get him indicted only for the gun charges," said Kunstler. "But when things changed and people thought Goetz might be a little psychotic and dangerous, he resubmitted it."

Public sentiment began to swing away from Goetz with the revelation that he had shot Cabey a second time.

Kunstler said he thinks the case should go to trial to educate the public "to think twice about shooting too quickly."

"It was pretty scary when they made a hero out of a vigilante," he said.

Goetz shot Cabey, Barry Allen, Troy Canty and James Ramseur on Dec. 22, 1984. He fled, but surrendered to police in Concord, N.H., on Dec. 31.

The wounded youths refused to testify before the first grand jury without immunity. On Jan. 25, the panel charged Goetz only with weapons law violations.

The case was presented to a second grand jury in March, this time with Ramseur and Canty testifying that Goetz fired when they did no more than ask him for $5. Attempted murder, assault and reckless endangerment charges were returned.

Crane held Thursday that the prosecutor failed to properly instruct the second grand jury about when the law permits someone to use a gun in self-defense.

Crew departs space shuttle

Colombia ends hard-luck flight with perfect landing

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — The space shuttle Columbia ended its hard-luck mission Saturday with a faultless pre-dawn touchdown in the California desert, two days late and a continent away from its intended landing site.

After a record seven launch postponements and three wave-offs from the Kennedy Space Center in Florida, where it was supposed to have landed Thursday, the shuttle landed at 8:59 a.m. EST on a floodlit concrete runway in the Mojave Desert.

Florida had been the target again Saturday, but a threat of rain for a third straight day forced shuttle commander Robert Gibson to keep the ship in orbit for an extra swing around the Earth for the California landing.

"Columbia performed magnificently," said Jesse Moore, who administers the shuttle program for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Moore said the refurbished Columbia, which was out of service for two years for overhaul, suffered no ill effects from the six-day voyage, and the seven-member crew appeared to be in good condition.

Despite the failure of a device that was to enhance photographs of Halley's comet and of some of the mission's experiments, Moore said the mission achieved 90 percent of its objectives.

The crew included Rep. Bill Nelson, D-Fla., flying as a congressional observer.

The next shuttle scheduled to go into orbit is Challenger, on Jan. 25, carrying Christa McAuliffe of Concord, N.H., the teacher selected to go into space.

As for Columbia, the delay caused by the launch and landing postponements will force NASA workers to scramble to get it prepared for a March 6 flight. That mission is to carry a telescope for observations of Halley's comet.

NASA officials hoped to cut turnaround time by landing in Florida, doing away with the need to ferry the shuttle 3,000 miles across the country atop a modified Boeing 747.

Touchdown was originally set for Friday, then was moved up to Thursday, partly because of the need to ready Columbia for the March mission.

But rainy weather blocked Florida landings on Thursday and Friday and again Saturday.

Columbia could have landed at Edwards on Thursday or Friday, but NASA kept the shuttle in space in hopes that the weather would clear at the Florida spaceport.

A landing in the rain could damage Columbia's heat-resistant tiles.

IT'S PANHANDLE SPORTS HALL OF FAME DAY

The open date Sunday prior to Super Bowl has for years been the date utilized to honor sports figures and personalities associated with the Golden Spread area for their accomplishments and services to athletics for a lifetime or the past year. Three men - an administrator, M.T. Johnson; an athlete, Price Brookfield; and a coach, Bill Ellington - will be inducted, bringing the membership to 70 since the first person was chosen in 1959. That honor, quite appropriately, went to Joe Fortenberry, West Texas State basketball player, who went on to captain the first United States Olympic basketball team in 1936 and continue his excellent career as a member of the Phillips 66ers AAU championship teams.

Also to be honored will be coaches and athletes from various sports, from which group will be selected a coach and an athlete of the year; various individuals for special achievements; a recipient recognized for overcoming physical handicap to excel in athletics; and an individual who made a "big play" in a contest.

Since the very first function, held as a banquet affair on the night of Jan. 25, 1959, it has been sponsored by the Y's Men's Club of the Amarillo Young Men's Christian Association. For $1.75 that night you could get a fine meal, meet all the area coaches and athletes, including high school and college, as they gathered to enjoy each other's fellowship and honor outstanding individuals.

Chairman of the event, as he still is today, was John Heetland, a transplanted Yankee, who is in the advertising business in Amarillo, and also serves as a football official. His devotion to sports has not gone unrecognized, as he was overwhelmingly surprised two years ago by being announced as the 64th inductee into the Hall.

Although he couldn't admit it, I suspect the idea for the annual event came from the fertile brain of septogenarian Putt Powell. He is always looking for some method to further honor individuals for their accomplishments. And I suspect that he and Heetland got together, broached the idea to the Y's Men's Club, then only seven years old, and it became an instant success.

The 'Hall of Fame' is somewhat of a misnomer. The closest it has been to a true Hall, was when pictures of the various inducted honorees were hanging in the hallway at the west end of the Amarillo Civic Center. Finding a true home for the Hall was not easy. A large photo of each inductee is the ever-lasting recognition in an ever-growing Hall. At first, the pictures were hung at the YMCA, eventually moving to the newly-constructed Civic Center. Suggestions were made to turn an old two-story stone building on the campus of WTSU, built by former athletes (Weldon "Birdog" Trice among them) into a permanent home. That having failed, the Board of the Panhandle-Plains Museum was approached to use the photo collection as the cornerstone for a permanent exhibit that would presumably attract more visitors to the museum. The thought was it could be enhanced at appropriate times, such as Olympic Game periods, with the Olympic medals, uniforms, game equipment, etc. of participating Panhandle athletes, past and present. It took 30 seconds of no discussion for the Board to reject that plan.

Then the wonderful folks at progressive Amarillo College came to the rescue, and offered not only the space for the 'Hall of Fame', but also provided facilities for the annual induction ceremony and a reception which follows. The Hall of Fame can now be found on the second floor Mezzanine Area of the Business Occupations Building, the Hall of Fame Room, in the heart of the AC campus.

The meeting gets underway today at 2 p.m. at Ordway Hall on the AC campus, a facility abutting on South Washington street, easily accessible. And while today's ceremony will not bring about induction of someone from the immediate Pampa-Borger-White Deer area, as it has for the past decade, it will be another exciting day for sports fans. The program itself will take about an hour. It is the visiting afterward which is the rewarding time for everyone.

Borger's Gerald Myers, now Texas Tech coach, will receive a special achievement recognition. Panhandle's Tod Mayfield will be recognized as football player of the year. Bob Giese, who served the past year as Tri-State Seniors Golf Association president and then went out and won the tournament, too, will be honored as golfer of the year. And who knows what else lurks in the heart and mind of Powell, who still plays the dominant role in selection of honorees.

Pampa has certainly received its share of recognition. Eight Pampans have been inducted in the Hall of Fame; twice a Harvester has been selected as athlete of the year, although surprisingly, never has a coach been so honored; four times Pampans have been recipients of achievement honors; and one has received the Dee Henry award for overcoming physical handicap.

Putt didn't ask, but we know that in his behalf, and for the Y's Men, we may extend this invitation to you now to enjoy this afternoon by attending the 28th Annual Panhandle Sports Hall of Fame Presentation of Awards. There's no other athletic event all year at which you can enjoy the positive side of sports competition...and it's all FREE.

If our plane gets in on time, we'll see you there.

Pampa cagers stay in playoff race with wins over Dunbar

The jury is still out on at least one of the two District 1-4A playoff spots as both the Pampa boys and girls presented a solid case for staying in the race by blasting Lubbock Dunbar in a basketball twinbill Friday night at McNeely Fieldhouse.

The Harvesters used a strong fourth quarter to turn back the Panthers, 71-56, while the Lady Harvesters held the Pantherettes to only a field goal in the third quarter enroute to a 56-42 triumph.

The Harvesters raised their district record to 2-3 with the win and at the same time snapped a six-game losing streak. The Harvesters moved out of a tie for last place and into fourth place all alone. The Panthers are 3-3.

Borger is 5-0 in district play and appears well on the way to wrapping up its second consecutive district title.

In the girls' standings, the Lady Harvesters are all alone in second place at 5-2. Ahead of them are Levelland and Canyon, tied for first at 6-1.

In the boys' game, it looked like Pampa and Dunbar would battle right down to the final gun after the score was tied at 45-all after three quarters. But Lonnie Mills, Donovan Lewis and Petie Davis combined for 20 of Pampa's 26 fourth-quarter points to turn the game into a rout. Dunbar went scoreless for the first 3 1/4 minutes of the fourth quarter as Pampa ran off an 8-0 lead.

Dunbar outshot Pampa from the floor (50 percent to 46.6 percent), but the Panthers could hit only four of 16 foul shots while the Harvesters connected on 15 of 23 tries. Pampa overwhelmed Dunbar on the boards, 44-23, giving the Harvesters more scoring opportunities.

Pampa led 19-13 after the first quarter and 35-32 at halftime, but the lead had exchanged hands eleven times in the first half. No more than two points separated the two teams in the tight third quarter. Brian Jones hit a follow shot and a free throw to complete a three-point play and give the Panthers a 45-43 lead in the closing minute. Pampa came right back to knot the score when Lewis followed a teammate's missed shot.

Mills, who tied Dunbar's Jim

Ruthe for game-scoring honors with 18 points, set the tone for the fourth quarter when he completed a three-point play after being fouled on a driving layup. Pampa started off with a 48-45 lead and settled the matter in the next five minutes as Mills scored again after a missed shot and Lewis canned a short-range jumper.

Davis followed Mills in the scoring column with 17 points while Lewis was right behind with 16. Paul Simpson had five points, Vibert Ryan and Terry Jeffrey had four points apiece, Mike Lynn, three, Matt Martindale and Mario Scott, two each.

Jones added 17 for the Panthers, now 7-12 overall.

Pampa, 11-11 overall, visits Canyon Tuesday night.

The Lady Harvesters led by as many as 21 points over turnover-plagued Dunbar in the girls' game.

Dunbar did lead at one time, 9-4, but ran out of gas late in the fourth quarter as Pampa scored the next 12 points. A 16-2 run in the second quarter put Pampa well out in front as Lady Harvesters' head coach Albert Nichols started sending in his reserves.

Jackie Reed paced Pampa with 18 points while Hope Henson chipped in 12.

Only a driving layup by Mish Manahan with 12 seconds left kept Dunbar from getting stunked in the third quarter.

Melissa Nichols, Sandee Stokes and Camilia Brown added six points apiece to Pampa's attack. Rogena Fly had five points, Landee Cummings, two, and Melanie Morgan, one.

Mish Manahan had 15 points to lead Dunbar while Tracie Henderson followed with 10.

The Lady Harvesters also visit Canyon Tuesday night for more district action.

Canadian girls lose at buzzer

BY DAN MURRAY
Sports Writer

CANADIAN — All the tension, all the excitement, all the drama everyone figured would be when the Lady Wildcats from Canadian and River Road tangled here Saturday night.

Only the wrong ending for Canadian. Canadian's players and fans thought they had this one won when Stephanie Byard's bank shot went in with six seconds to play in the game and gave the Lady 'Cats a 36-35 lead.

Sometimes, though, even on the road, shots at the buzzer go in. Michelle Carter's did, slapping the cords and Canadian and giving River Road an important 37-36 District 1-3A win.

These two teams figured to be the playoffs picks in 1-3A, and Saturday night River Road gave itself a big advantage in the playoffs race. The road win moved the Lady Wildcats to 4-0 in the loop while Canadian fell to 2-1. The two still must play at River Road. Canadian is 16-2 overall. River Road is 14-3.

It was near unbelievable that Canadian had any chance at all to win the game after the way the Lady 'Cats shot the ball in the first half.

The Lady 'Cats shot 15 percent from the field and 18 percent from the free throw line in the first 16 minutes of the game, and River Road led 21-10 at the half.

Not that Canadian didn't play well in every other aspect of the game in the first two quarters, it just couldn't buy a basket at a bushel sale.

River Road scored the game's first six points, four of them by Shawn Sauls. It took Canadian two and a half minutes to score, and things didn't get any better. A Michelle Moon free throw gave the visitors an 11-3 lead, and it was 11-5 at the end of the quarter following Lucinda Dunnam's 18-footer.

Almost half of the second quarter had expired before Canadian scored again, and by then River Road led 19-5. Tonya Vanhooser's layup broke the ice, but Canadian scored only three more points and trailed 21-10 at the half. Sauls and Moon scored all but two of River Road's points in the quarter.

Both teams used full court presses throughout most of the game, and Canadian's paid off for it in the third quarter. The Lady 'Cats forced turnover after turnover with the press and knotted the game at 27-27 with a 17-6 run that lasted most of the third period.

Dunnam and Vanhooser started it with six points off of three straight River Road turnovers, and Byard's turnaround jumper made the score 23-18. A pair of Stephanie Stromberg free throws lulled the rally, but Dunnam connected twice from long range and Byard rammed in a pair inside and Canadian went ahead 27-26 with 1:55 to go in the stanza.

The lead switched hands throughout the last period, and no team led by more than one in the last five minutes of the game. The problem for Canadian was, River Road got the ball last.

Byard led Canadian with 14 points and Dunnam added nine. River Road got 12 from Seals and nine from Moon.

Friday night, the Canadian boys dropped a 52-49 decision to Boys Ranch. Canadian led by one at the half, 29-28, but the Roughriders outscored the 'Cats 16-8 in the third quarter and held on for the win.

Ross Pointer and Luke Thrasher combined for 25 points to lead Canadian while Boys Ranch got 15 from Chuck Saker and 12 from Jerome Booth.

Aggies clip Tech in SWC showdown

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Senior center Jimmy Gilbert's three-point play with five seconds left lifted Texas A&M to a 58-57 come-from-behind victory over Texas Tech Saturday in a battle of Southwest Conference unbeaten.

Gilbert, who hit a total of 19 points, scored on a layup and was fouled by Tech's Ray Irvin six seconds after Dewayne Chism missed a slam dunk that would have wrapped up the game for the Raiders.

The victory kept the Aggies, 11-6 overall, atop the SWC standings at 5-0. The 5-0 start is A&M's best since a 9-0 charge in 1970, the last year the Aggies won a conference title.

Tech, which entered the game tied for first place, fell to 9-7 overall and 4-1. The Raiders trailed by six points at halftime, 30-24, but used a three-quarter court trap to badger the Aggies in the early minutes of the second half.

Chism scored all eight of his points during a span of 1:13 to help the Raiders race to their biggest lead of the game, 45-38, with 11:18 remaining.

The Aggies stayed close, however, behind the shooting of Don Marbury, who led all scorers with 24 points, including 10 during the final 9 1/2 minutes. Marbury's five-foot jumper with 26 seconds left pulled A&M to within 57-55.

Irvin missed the front end of a one-and-one that would have extended Tech's lead with 22 seconds remaining, and the Aggies came down with the rebound. But Tech stole the ball and Chism was wide open under the bucket.

His attempted jam bounced high off the rim and was rebounded by A&M's Al Pulliam with 10 seconds remaining. The Aggies quickly moved the ball upcourt and fed inside to Gilbert to set up the winning play.

Tony Benford led Tech with 15 points, and Sean Gay followed with 12.

"This was probably the greatest comeback I've ever seen and I've been coaching for quite a while," an exuberant A&M Coach Shelby Metcalf said. "It was a tremendous basketball game."

He said his team has been working out every day since Dec. 29 and added, "I think I'll probably give them a day off."

Tech Coach Gerald Myers called the loss "heartbreaking," especially "after it looked like we had it wrapped up."

"We've won two or three miraculous games in the last few seconds, and today we lost one that way," he said.

Altus teams swim by Pampa in duel

Altus, Okla. led all the way to hand Pampa a 42-37 loss in a high school girls' swim duel Saturday at the Pampa Youth Center.

The Lady Harvesters lost the first two events and never could quite catch the visitors, who won an earlier duel by four points.

"I thought we would be able to beat them this time, but we could never get ahead of them," said Pampa Coach Norma Young.

Betsy Chambers and Richelle Hill won two events each for the Pampa girls.

In the boys' division, outmanned Pampa lost by a 36-14 score.

"Our boys did excellent timewise, but there's no depth with only two on the entire team," Coach Young said.

Patt Richards won two events for the Pampa boys. Brad Pope won one event.

The Pampa teams compete in the Midland Invitational Thursday.

"I look for Richelle Hill, Betsy Chambers and our 400 free relay team to do outstanding," Coach Young said. "They should finish in the top six."

Tigerettes' press topples McLean; Eschle's 27 carries Groom boys

By DAN MURRAY
Sports Writer

GROOM — Robbie Kuehler and Darron Eschle turned in season-best offensive performances as Groom won a pair of District 2-1A cat fights over McLean here Friday night.

Kuehler scored 20 points and Suni Barnett added 14 as Groom's Tigerettes clawed McLean's Lady Tigers 54-38 in a showdown between teams with just one district loss. Groom is now 3-1 in the loop and on vacation until Friday night, when loop leader Claude comes to town for a crucial battle. McLean is 1-2 and travels to Claude Tuesday night.

In the boys game, Eschle scored 27 points as Groom held off McLean 49-40 to stay alive in the district race. The Tigers are 2-2 after losing their first two district games, and a Groom win over Claude next week would make scrambled eggs out of the playoffs race.

"It's good to get this one out of the way," Groom girls coach Frank Belcher said after his Tigerettes used a full-court zone press to reverse the momentum of a game McLean controlled early. "We get Tuesday night off to get ready for the big one with Claude here Friday night. You'd better get here early for that one."

The Tigerettes, now 14-4 overall, fell behind the Lady Tigers early but used a full-court zone press and a pair of second quarter scoring bursts to take a 28-18 halftime lead.

McLean took an 8-6 lead early, and entered the second quarter ahead 12-6 following a short jumper by Shandee Rice and a 15-footer by Jem Ann Rice. A steal and layup by Daria McAnear made it 14-8, then Groom went to its press and immediately changed the flow of the game.

McLean began turning the ball over, and a driving layup by Groom's Melissa Fields tied it at 14-14 with 4:20 remaining before intermission. A follow-up by Kuehler and a pair of free throws by Erin Eschle made it 18-14 and completed a 10-0 Groom run.

The score was 22-18 following a pair of charity tosses by McLean's Melanie Billingsley with 39 seconds to play, but Groom finished the quarter with a stunning 6-0 burst to open up a 10-point halftime lead.

Eschle converted inside; Suni Barnett hit a pair of free throws with five seconds remaining, the Fields made a steal and layup just before the buzzer to put the Tigerettes ahead 28-18.

McLean never got closer than 10 in the second half as Groom's 1-3-1 zone defense kept the Lady Tigers' normally high-scoring Billingsley away from the ball and allowed the visitors only five baskets from the field.

McLean did get 23 chances from the free throw line in the second half, but the Lady Tigers converted only 10 and were three of seven on the front end of one-and-one situations.

Barnett hit from the corner then Fields converted a layup off of a Kuehler steal as Groom went ahead 36-21 halfway through the third quarter. A layup at the buzzer by McLean's Misty Magee made it 40-27 entering the final stanza.

Kuehler scored Groom's first six points of the fourth quarter and the Tigerettes led 48-30 following a 16-footer by Barnett. Perhaps fittingly, it was Kuehler who scored the game's final points to make the final 54-38.

In addition to leading the Tigerettes in scoring with 20, Kuehler grabbed 10 rebounds and controlled the lane with five blocked shots. Barnett had 14 points and eight boards and Fields contributed 10 points, six steals and five assists. Magee and Kristie Thompson had 10 points each for McLean.

McLean's boys gave Groom all it could handle before running out of steam at the end. Eschle scored 27 points for the Tigers, but few of them came easily. Groom was forced to deal with McLean's 6-3 Martin Gately, who scored 16 points and logged eight blocked shots from the middle of the Tigers' zone defense.

A Gately tip-in gave McLean a 4-0 lead midway through a sluggish first quarter, and the visiting Tigers owned an 8-6 lead at the period's end.

But Groom scored the game's next nine points, and, strangely, none of them came from Eschle. Daniel Lambert converted inside; Brent Thornton and Jack Britten hit follow shots; and Britten finished the run with a free throw and an eight-footer from the right baseline. The host Tigers took a 15-8 lead.

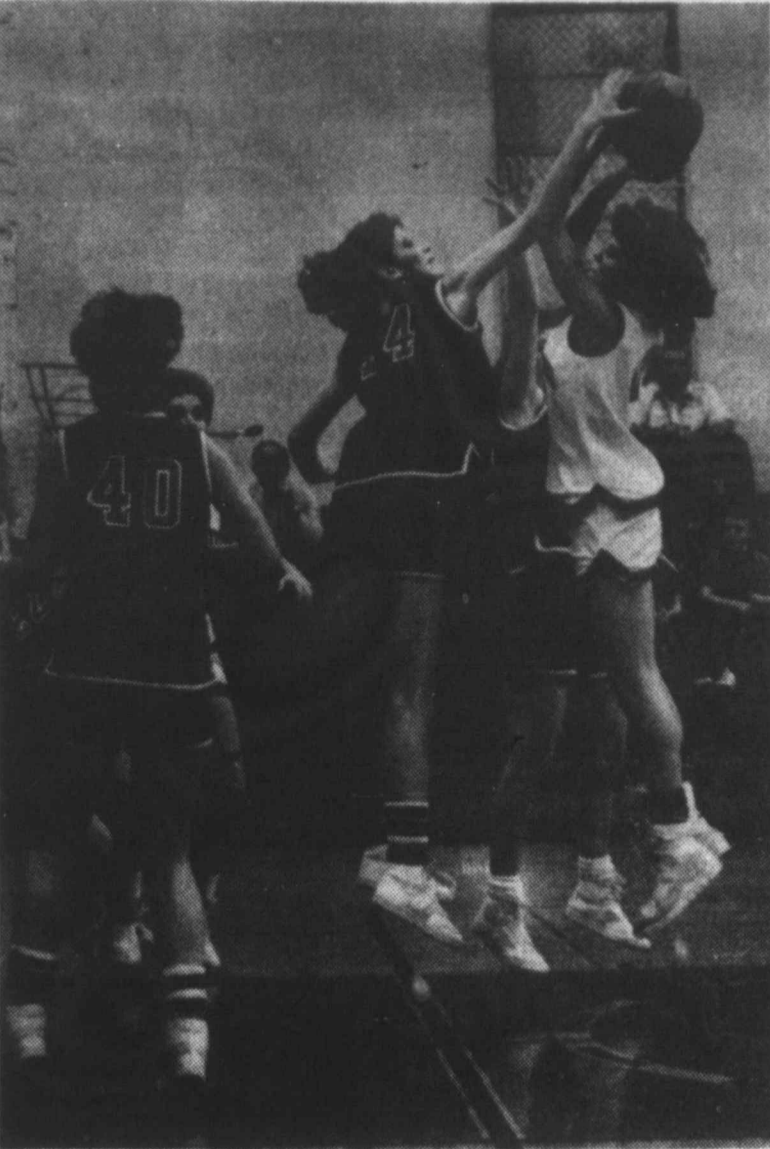

Groom led 18-10 following a three-point play by Eschle at the 5:02 mark, but two free throws each from Gately and Chet Bohlar, a 10-foot Gately jumper and a Mark McCarty follow-up tied the game at 18-18.

Eschle popped a pair of free throws with seven seconds left to give Groom a 20-18 lead at intermission.

After a McCarty baseline jumper gave McLean a 24-22 third quarter advantage, Eschle scored Groom's next eight points as the host Tigers took a 30-27 lead. It was 32-29 entering the final eight minutes.

A Gately free throw tied the game at 36-36 with 4:23 to play, but after Groom called time out it outscored McLean 13-4 over the remainder of the game. Eschle scored eight of the Tigers' 13 points and Ken Rutherford scored the other five. Gately fouled out with McLean trailing 43-38 and Groom scored the contest's final six points.

Rutherford trailed Eschle in the scoring with nine points, while McCarty was second for McLean with 14.

Wheeler girls blast Allison; Mustangs finally win, 63-48

WHEELER — Texas' ninth-ranked Wheeler Mustangettes rolled to a 62-18 win over Allison here Friday night, while the Wheeler boys had troubles before a fourth quarter rally carried them to a 63-48 District 4-1A win.

A more accurate summary of the girls game would be DeAnn Jolly 23, Allison 18 as Wheeler's Jolly pumped in 17 points in the first quarter as the Mustangettes racked up a bewildering 21-0 lead.

Jolly's teammate Marlo Hartman, who had 14 points on the night, solidified the defense with nine rebounds, two steals and one blocked shot. Angela Presley contributed 12 points.

It wasn't until the second quarter that Allison even got on the scoreboard, and the Lady Lopes trailed 35-8 at the half. Stacie Hall scored nine points for Allison while Laura Copelin scored seven.

"This next week is going to be important because we play Samnorwood, which is strong, Tuesday and Kelton, second in our district, Friday," Mustangettes coach Jan Newland said of her 18-2 team, which is unbeaten in district play. "The girls are getting over confident at times, but I don't want them to be. They have to come down to earth and play ball."

Wheeler's boys had to play ball against the Antelopes in order to turn a 44 point third-quarter tie into a 63-48 victory. Wheeler got hot on offense and limited Allison to just four fourth quarter points.

"We didn't expect them to come on this strong," coach Mike Newland said. "They were strong right off the bat."

Newland said that the Antelopes led at first before the Mustangs squeaked to a 15-14 lead first quarter and pulled to a 36-28 lead at the half. But the Antelopes were able to tie the score third quarter.

"We started with a zone defense, that didn't work, and we went to a man to man," Newland said. "I think the Antelopes got tired at the end."

Bubba Smith led Mustang scoring with 24 points while Randall Hugg contributed 15 and Cody Wiggins 15. Allison was led by the trio of Destry Coulter, Randy Hall and Eddie Bates, who each scored 12.

Mobeetie splits pair with Miami

MOBEETIE — Mobeetie's Lady Hornets got the victory they needed here Friday night as they edged Miami 38-36 in District 4-1A action. In the boys game, John Locke's 24 points paced the Warriors to a 60-47 win.

After tying Miami in the first quarter of the girls game, Mobeetie pulled in front with a six point performance by top scorer Tina Densberger and four by Sheila Moffett, to take a 21-17 lead at the half.

The third quarter belonged to Miami's Gerri Anderson, who banged in eight points to give the Warriorettes a 29-25 advantage going into the fourth quarter. But that period belonged to the Lady Hornets, who outscored Miami 13-7 to take the win.

"We needed that one," said Mobeetie coach Debbie Finsterwald, attributing the Lady Hornets' success to a strong defensive game.

"We played real solid defense," she said. "Amie Morris played her best defensive game all year."

Mobeetie's defense held Robin Daugherty, normally Miami's top scorer, to just four points.

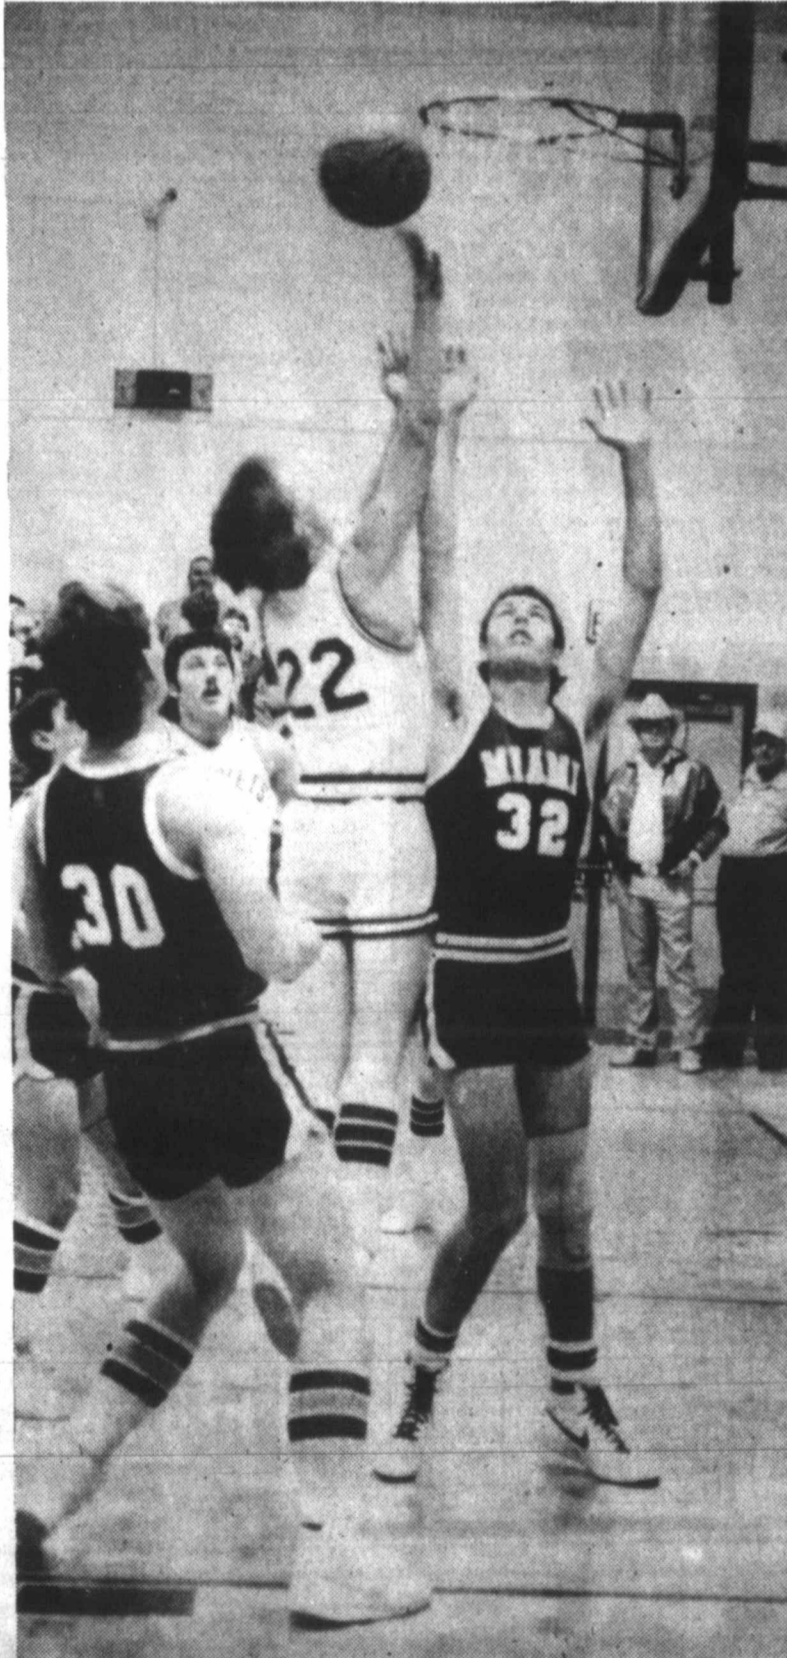

Densberger paced the Lady Hornets with 17 points, followed by Diane Moffett with eight and Sheila Moffett and Morris each with six. Anderson headed Miami's scoring with 15 points, followed by Karie Bailey with six.

A 22-point fourth-quarter performance by the Hornets was unable to make up for a strong Warrior defense as Miami hatched Mobeetie 60-47.

"We put on three different kinds of presses," said Miami coach Brent Fountain. "That made all the difference."

Seven successful fourth-quarter free-throws by Miami's Jeff Bass didn't hurt, either.

Locke's 24 points and Bass's 11 points kept Miami in front throughout the game. Brent Byrum and David Scott each contributed nine points for Miami.

Horford may attend Baylor

HOUSTON (AP) — Tito Horford, the controversial 7-foot-1 basketball player who is trying to find a college to accept him, said Friday he would decide among Baylor, Louisville or Miami of Florida.

Horford, a native of the Dominican Republic, was barred by the NCAA from attending the University of Houston because of recruiting violations. He enrolled early this school year at Louisiana State, but then abruptly quit the school in November. He played his high school ball in Houston.

Earlier this week, he said he would like to go to Kentucky or UCLA. Both universities, however, rejected his overtures.

Louisville Coach Denny Crum said Friday night he would not allow Horford to join his basketball team.

"Never. No way. We don't need those kind of problems," Crum said. Crum added that he had never talked to Horford.

"I know I haven't done anything wrong," Horford said Friday. "The NCAA has told me I can go anywhere except Houston and the SEC (Southeastern Conference). I don't want to go to Europe. I want to play for a college in America."

The Houston Chronicle, quoting an unidentified source, reported Friday that the NCAA has told up to 10 schools that if Horford would enroll at their campus, the school would be investigated by the NCAA.

Torrid shooting spurs Mustangs past Lefors

LEFORS — Torrid fourth quarter shooting allowed Claude to escape from here Friday night with a 56-47 District 2-1A win over the upset-minded Pirates. The Lady Pirates fell to the league-leading Mustangettes, 67-20.

In the boys game, Lefors sprinted to a 14-8 first quarter lead and owned a 10-point advantage at one point in the second period. But Claude narrowed the gap to 24-21 at halftime and the game was tied 33-33 entering the final stanza.

Jerry Johnson scored nine points and Lance Wood added six as the Mustangs began a fourth quarter scoring barrage that proved to be more than the Pirates could handle. Claude outscored Lefors 23-14 in the period and that was the difference.

The Pirates, now 0-3 in district and 4-14 overall, got an 18-point performance from Shane Bridwell and 15 from Kent Kerbo. Kirk Kerbo added eight. Johnson and Wood each scored 16 from Claude, which got 12 from Jeff Wheelchel and 10 from Mark Hall.

The Lady Pirates "couldn't get anything going in the first half," against the 16-3 Mustangettes, coach Mike Kumor said.

Claude rambled to a 21-4 first quarter lead and took a 43-7 advantage into the half. Lefors limited the Mustangettes to 24 points in the second 16 minutes.

"We had some success in the second half," Kumor said. "Our girls hustle until the bitter end. They don't give up until the buzzer sounds. They're still diving for loose balls and wanting to play even when the score's lopsided."

Cenee Gunter led Claude with 16 points, while Lisa Lewis added 12 and Tina Bergan contributed 10. Debbie Stubbs was Lefors' top scorer with eight points and Sandra Story added five. Lefors hosts Phillips in district play Tuesday night, with the varsity games beginning at 6:30 p.m.

White Deer rips Clarendon

WHITE DEER — White Deer's Bucks and Does hammered Clarendon for a pair of decisive District 2-2A wins here Friday night.

James Ingle and Jeff Cox combined for 30 points as the Bucks coasted to a 71-44 victory over the Bronchos. In the girls game, the Does got 12 points each from Tami Canaday and Monica Vigil enroute to a 56-33 win.

The Does, who rolled to a 29-13 halftime lead and were ahead 43-21 going into the final quarter, are 3-1 in district play now and very much in the hunt for a playoffs berth.

The Bucks captured their first district win in resounding fashion after leading by just nine at the half. White Deer outscored Clarendon 41-23 in the final 16 minutes.

White Deer travels to Wellington Tuesday as it completes the first half of District 2-2A play.

OLD DRUG, NEW USE
Adenosine monophosphate (AMP) is a drug that has been used for years in treating multiple sclerosis and Hodgkin's Disease. A recent study has shown a potentially new use for the drug. It can be used as a treatment for shingles (herpes zoster). Shingles is caused by the varicella (chicken pox) virus. The disease gets its name from an old word for "belt" or "girdle." It starts with a painful rash that follows a belt or girdle-like pattern. The virus traces nerve cell pathways, usually on one side of the body. Eventually, the skin dries out sheds. However, pain gets worse and may last months. In tests, 88 percent of AMP-treated patients were pain-free after four weeks. The U.S. F.D.A. is waiting to approve the new use of AMP.

Witherspoon wins fight, but Ali steals spotlight

By ED SCHUYLER JR.
AP Sports Writer
ATLANTA (AP) — Tim Witherspoon got back a piece of the heavyweight title, but he had to share the spotlight with Muhammad Ali and two fighters who didn't fight.

All, the retired three-time heavyweight champion, who celebrated his 44th birthday Friday, got by far the biggest ovation from the crowd at the Omni on the night Witherspoon scored a majority decision over Tony Tubbs and took Tubbs' World Boxing Association title.

Two other fighters, who got a lot of attention, especially from the media, were Michael Spinks, the International Boxing Federation heavyweight champion, and Larry Holmes, who was upset by Spinks last Sept. 21.

Several hours before Witherspoon, a former World Boxing Council champion, beat Tubbs, promoters Butch Lewis and Don King announced that Spinks and Holmes would meet in a rematch sometime, somewhere in April. It will be part of a seven-fight series of heavyweight championship bouts to be televised by HBO.

The purpose of the series is to crown an undisputed heavyweight champion in 1987.

Spinks, Holmes and Pinklon Thomas, the WBC champion, attended a news conference at a downtown hotel, then watched Witherspoon beat Tubbs.

Seth Abraham, a senior vice president for HBO said a reported figure of $26 million for the package was too high, but that the price tag was in the $20 million neighborhood.

The first fight of the series will be a title defense by Thomas against Trevor Berbick March 22 at a site to be named. Then comes the Holmes-Spinks rematch.

The next three fights will be defenses by Witherspoon, the winner of the Thomas-Berbick fight and the winner of the Spinks-Holmes rematch.

Then in 1987, the WBA and WBC champions will meet, with the winner fighting the IBF champion for the undisputed title.

Witherspoon, who weighed 227, gained his edge by staying on top of the 244-pound Tubbs and scoring with punches to the body. He also sent Tubbs reeling to the ropes with a left hook to the jaw in the eighth round.

"Now I want it all," said Witherspoon, after winning the fight by three points on the card of one judge and by one point on the card of another. A third judge scored it a draw.

"Tim won and I'm happy for him," Tubbs said. "It's back to the drawing board and then back to the title."

Berbick prepped for his second title shot — he was outpointed by Holmes for the WBC title in 1981 — by stopping Mike Perkins in the final round of a scheduled 10-round mismatch.

McGrath wins all-state grid honors

David McGrath, a 6-4, 235-pound senior guard, has been named to the third-team offense on the Texas Sportswriters Association 1985 Class 4A All-State Football Team.

Harvester Head Coach John Kendall considers McGrath a major college prospect. Kendall said McGrath possesses a lot of quickness despite his size.

McGrath called all the blocking schemes for the Pampa offense. He was earlier named to the

All-District 1-4A team, along with running back Gary Jernigan, defensive end Michael Parker and linebacker David Carter.

McGrath was also a starter at defensive tackle and was in on 10 tackles and had two fumble recoveries in Pampa's 21-6 loss to state playoff bound Lubbock Estacado. He was named the Class 4A Player of the Week by the Amarillo Daily News after that performance.

McGrath led the team with seven solo tackles in Pampa's 23-20 homecoming win over Perryton.

McGrath was the Harvesters' most consistent performer throughout the season and was graded either number one or two offensively in every game, Kendall said.

Pampa finished with a 3-7 record and fourth place in the district standings at 2-4.

Hearing slated

they are now in communication because of completion practices throughout these formations. "So that the oil and gas hydrocarbon production from these various Panhandle formations can be effectively developed and produced to prevent waste, promote conservation, and protect correlative rights, this hearing is called and the Commission will consider consolidating all the Panhandle Fields into one, the proposed 'Texas Panhandle Field,' and prorating this consolidated new field as an associated reservoir." The commission is asking operators to present data and opinions as to whether any or all of the formations are a common reservoir and whether any rule changes are needed. If the fields are consolidated, the

RRC also will consider determining special field rules for regulating exploration, production and development. The document notes that since many of the various fields have been operated as separately designated fields, "there is considerable overlapping assignment of acreage between oil wells and gas wells" in the Panhandle fields with many oil and gas wells operating on the same sections of land. "If the Panhandle Fields are consolidated into one field, no overlapping assignment of acreage will be allowed, in accordance with Commission Rules," the document states. The sharing of acreage has become a problem in many Panhandle areas because of the separation of oil and gas rights on many leases. If the overlapping is prohibited, there could be many conflicts arising over whether an oil operator or a gas operator has rights or precedence of production on specific acreage. The commission is urging operators "to develop procedures by which the elimination of overlapping assignment of acreage can be efficiently accomplished. It is recognized that a liberal use of noncontiguous units may be necessary to accomplish this goal and the Commission will consider any reasonable proposal," the document states. The notice also observes that there have been many complaints from various interest owners in the fields concerning the handling of gas well liquids - including liquefied hydrocarbons, "white oil" or others, whether obtained at the lease site or processed off the site in a refinery or other plant. "A staff review of Gas Well Lease Separation Tests, which has been conducted because of these complaints, indicates that very little or no natural gas liquids are recovered on leases when tests are conducted using conventional separation equipment," the document states. But the commission "will consider special proposals for the most accurate and efficient methods of handling and reporting of natural gas liquids produced from gas wells." The notice specifies more than 60 rules and regulations by docket and order number that could be rescinded and then proposes more than a dozen rules that could be adopted in the proposed Texas Panhandle Field. Among the proposed rules for consideration are designation of the formations that would be associated into a common reservoir, well spacing, assignment of acreage and allowables, gas to oil ratio for production purposes, gas - oil contacts within the formations, handling and reporting of natural gas liquids, elimination of some reporting forms, and well testing procedures. In matters relating to conflicts which have resulted in lawsuits and state and federal agency hearings and orders, the commission will consider a proposal "which would authorize operators to complete their oil wells or gas wells anywhere in the interval prescribed (in a proposed rule designating the common reservoir) which is productive of oil or gas." But the document emphasizes, "If a well is classified as an oil well it would be operated and fluid produced will be reported in compliance with the oil and casinghead gas limit" adopted by the RRC, an apparent reference to white oil matters and diversion of gas from different formations established in lease contracts. Gas wells also would be subject to the same commission rules. Another proposed rule which has already attracted some controversy is a 2,000 to 1 ratio for production of gas from an oil well and a lower limit on the amount of gas for the daily allowable. (See related story.) But the proposal rules and regulations are just that - proposals. "The Commission invites operators to submit alternative proposals," the document states. "Parties attending this hearing may propose other rules and - or alternative field rules and should submit evidence to support any proposed rule as it relates to waste prevention, oil and gas conservation, and the protection of correlative rights." Persons wishing to participate in the hearing are directed to file with Docket Service, Oil and Gas Division of the RRC, by Feb. 4. The preconference hearing will align and designate parties, identify legal and factual issues, determine the number of witnesses, discuss admissions of evidence, set the date and place of the hearing, and consider any other matters as necessary. The meeting will be held in the William B. Travis Bldg. at 1701 N. Congress Ave. in Austin.

Ratio

wrongfully producing gas that belonged to Dorchester Gas Producing Co. and then illegally selling the gas at higher prices than permitted under federal interstate pricing regulations for natural gas. Slover has cited a reference to the ratio in the judge's recommendation, later upheld by the FERC commissioners, as setting a dangerous precedent which could change the designation of thousands of oil wells to gas wells. Such an action would end operations by most independent oil operators in the Panhandle, he has stated.

The ratio reference, found on Page 32 of the judge's recommended decision dated Jan. 16, 1985, states, "Enforcement Staff presented in its rebuttal case a new theory that any well producing above a gas - oil ratio of 2,000 to 1 would indicate perforations in the free gas zone above the gas - oil contact in violation of (Texas) Railroad Commission rules." That's the only reference to the ratio in the decision.

And the reference is cited in the Argument section in which the judge is summarizing the evidence and testimony - in this particular instance, that of arguments presented by Cabot Corp. But Slover has seized upon the brief reference to claim FERC could use it as a precedent to close down numerous oil wells.

He contends an imposition of a 2,000 to 1 ratio would prohibit the designation of "oil well" classification to any well producing more than 2,000 cubic feet of gas per barrel of oil. Under current state rules, a well is classified as an oil well if it produces no more than 100,000 cubic feet (Mcf) of gas per barrel of oil.

Slover has predicted there will be an all-out effort to change current field rules in the upcoming Panhandle fields hearing to comply with the "precedent" of the FERC order.

But Grasshoff disputes Slover's interpretation and claims. He said the 100,000 to 1 ratio by which a well is classified as an oil well is statutory, a state law passed by the Legislature. He explained it would take legislative action to change the well classification ratio, not just rule changes by the Railroad Commission.

Current Panhandle field rules permit an oil well to produce up to 500,000 Mcf of casinghead gas daily. Theoretically, an oil well in a Panhandle field could produce only five barrels of oil daily and yet draw up to 500,000 Mcf of gas.

But in a majority of other fields in the state, production is based on a 2,000 to 1 ratio to avoid decreased pressure in the fields and early depletion of the gas reserves, Grasshoff explained.

The proposed rule would only bring the Panhandle fields into compliance with production ratios in most other Texas oil and gas fields, Grasshoff claimed.

And the production ratio is only "one thing they (the RRC staff) would be looking at," he said.

The rest of the proposed rule states, "Any oil well assigned 20 acres and capable of producing in excess of 120 Mcf per day will have its oil allowable restricted so that its casinghead gas production will not exceed 120 Mcf per day.

"In the alternative, an oil allowable or casinghead gas limit will be adopted as the evidence shows is necessary to prevent waste and protect correlative rights."

The proposed rule thus is seen by the RRC staff as a conservation and production matter, not as an attempt to impose an unrealistic ratio in order to shut down thousands of independents' wells.

THE WILL OF GOD

"Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father who is in heaven." (Matthew 7:21.) Here, with absolute clarity Jesus sets forth who will enter heaven. Only those who do the will of God will enter heaven. All we have to do is determine what the will of God is and do it and we will enter heaven. In the same passage Jesus shows that He, the Son of God, will be the one who sits in judgement (Matthew 7:22-23.) Jesus claimed all authority for Himself, declaring that it has been given to Him, and that the father had given all judgment unto the Son (Matthew 28:18; John 5:22-23.)

The will of Jesus Christ, then, becomes the will of God. While He was upon this earth Jesus forgave the sins of different ones on different occasions. There was the man sick of the palsy (Matthew 9:1-8.) There was also the woman taken in adultery (John 8:1-11.) While He was upon this earth Jesus could simply say that a person's sins were forgiven and they were forgiven. Now, however, after His death we must go by the terms of His will.

"For where a testament is, there must of necessity be the death of him that made it. For a testament is of force where there hath been death: for it doth never avail while he that made it liveth." (Hebrews 9:16-17.) Also, "By which will we have been sanctified through the offering of the body of Jesus Christ once and for all" (Hebrews 10:10.) Since the will of God demanded the sacrifice of His Son and the Will of Christ demanded His death, then both have been realized in the death of Jesus Christ upon the cross.

Today we look at the conditions whereby we can realize heaven and we find that Jesus commanded faith in Him as the Son of God (John 8:24.) We find also that He commanded repentance (Luke 13:3.) He requires that men confess Him before men (Matthew 10:32.) And, He told His disciples that those who were baptized would be saved (Mark 16:16.) After having done these things, those who remain faithful unto death have the assurance of eternal life (Revelation 2:10.)

winner were (from second left) second place, Mary Kopp and Bear; third place, Kathy Price and Ginger; and fourth place Holly Coble and Scooter.

Aren't pets wonderful?

Tails wagged, owners nagged, voices howled and entries growled as 18 of Pampa's most prized pooches promenaded before their peers at the Most Wonderful Pet Contest.

Sponsored by Pampa Animal Shelter, the all-day pet show was held Jan. 11 at the Clyde Carruth Pavillion. Approximately $1,000 was raised at the pet show for a new Pampa animal shelter.

"It'll do," Pampa Animal Control officer Sandy Burns said, pointing out that while audience turn-out was small, those who participated had a doggone good time.

Top Dog at the contest was Princess Leigha, a cheerful Huskie that jumped, bounded and pranced her way into a chance to go to the National Most Wonderful Pet Contest this April in Chicago. Her owner, Valarie L. Hill of 941 S. Faulkner, showed as much exuberance as her entry when she heard the news of her victory. Burns said that she will send pictures and a video-tape of the winners to the national Pets Are Wonderful offices.

"There are 10 finalists, but only 30 shows throughout the country, so our chances of making it are pretty good," Burns said.

Bear's performance won him the second place prize and the big gray and black German Shepherd owned by Mary Kopp took top honors in the obedience contest.

Third place winner Ginger, owned by Kathy Price, ran, jumped and played dead for the judges. Holly Coble's dog Scooter howled his way into fourth place.

While these four dogs walked away with prizes, other dogs walked away with people's hearts.

Ted played dead when it was "shot" by its owner City Manager Bob Hart, who pointed his finger at the dog. Diana Bliss's dog, Shadow, played tricks for the judges while Nancy Harvill's Bear brought along its own cheering section. And Brenda Phillips' Toby ACCIDENTS DO HAPPEN — M.K. Brown Auditorium manager and Pets Are Wonderful contest emcee Danny Parkerson shows characteristic aplomb as he covers up a doggie boo-boo at the recent pet contest.

THE NOSE KNOWS — While Gray County Sheriff Rufe Jordan watches from his position as one of the pet contest judges, earnest beagle Lady Samantha leads owner Tommy Carver on an extensive hunt for a prize.

WHERE DID SHE GO? Toby, a standard size poodle owned by Brenda Phillips, searches for her owner so she can give her the ball she retrieved from under the judges' table.

GUARD DOG — Animal Control Officer Jackie Denham restrains a trained attack Doberman Pinscher "attacking" a subject during a demonstration of attack dogs.

Getting blackbelt in parenting

By ERMA BOMBECK

You can't get your black belt in parenting until you are the veteran of a party held in your home by your teen-age children.

This is the ultimate test of restraint and endurance.

Many parents have tried it, but it is some time before they can speak of it or put it in perspective. To begin with, there is no such thing as a "small" party, by invitation only. Kids' parties went public 15 years ago. That means when your child whispers in the ear of someone in the restroom to be at your house Friday at 8, their voice is picked up by a party network and broadcast to every country in the free world.

At 8 p.m. Friday, they will come by cars and buses. A few will fly in and converge upon your house like a thousand camels with sponge tongues and hands that work like scissors going up and down the table of food.

One mother who thought a group of "quiet, reserved, not-too-popular" kids would consider bobbing for apples and eating a few cupcakes as a treat was overwhelmed by 17 uninvited guests who turned her living room into a house of horrors. She is still afraid to answer her phone and face the wrath of other mothers who charge, "What kind of parties do you give?"

Another couple returned from a weekend out of town to discover their living room furniture had been rearranged, there were cigarette burns in the carpet dead center under the dining room table, a living room stack table lost a leg every time they lifted it, and a prickly pear cactus was in the middle of the back yard. (They live in Connecticut.)

Something that resembled chicken grease had been spilled on the deck, there was a case of empty beer bottles in their daughter's bedroom, and a month's supply of meat had vanished from the freezer.

It wasn't until a few weeks after the party that a woman who runs a community service office phoned and said they owed her a phone call made from their house to a Coast Guard cutter off the coast of Kodiak, Alaska, that had been charged to her number.

Their children pleaded innocence.

It takes all the understanding and forgiveness a parent can muster to deal with these social disasters. They tell themselves it is all a part of the growing-up process. They tell themselves it is a learning experience that their children will benefit by. They tell themselves they can change their name, move to a new neighborhood, go on the "Newlywed Game" and start all over again.

Some parents even have a sense of humor about it. Like the woman whose daughter's girlfriend called her boyfriend on the Coast Guard cutter in Kodiak, Alaska. "I can laugh at it now," she said, smiling. "Does that mean you'll leave them in charge again while you go out of town?"

"Don't press!" she snapped.

"The optimist proclaims that we live in the best of all possible worlds; the pessimist fears this is true."

Select exercise wear with care

By DONNA BRAUCHI
County Extension Agent

The garments you choose for exercising and sports activities should be designed to make fitness efficient, comfortable, and safe. Important considerations for selection of clothing and shoes for sports and other exercise include fit, construction, materials, and styles. Today, let's look at four aspects of exercise and sports clothing: safety features, dressing for winter outdoor exercise, leotard fabric, and shoes.

REFLECTIVE CLOTHING
If you walk, jog, or ride a bicycle at night, reflective clothing should be a part of your action-wear wardrobe. Prices of reflective clothing vary according to the value of the garment and the amount of reflective detailing applied. Strips of reflective tape can add between five and 10 percent to the purchase price.

while all - reflective fabrics may increase costs by 20-25 percent.

Accessories such as wristbands, vests, or headbands provide a less expensive way to go reflective. You can remove the accessories and wear the clothes in daytime for leisure wear. Some sporting goods stores incorporate reflective patches into their company's logos for customers who don't like stripes. The logos usually come in fluorescent yellow, orange, and white. You can also buy reflective tape in the notions department of many fabric shops and add it yourself to running or biking apparel.

DRESSING FOR WINTER EXERCISE

To guard against the cold when you walk, jog, or ride a bicycle outdoors this winter, wear just enough clothing to keep warm. Don't make the mistake of piling on too many clothes, because it will just make you perspire excessively.

Wear several light layers rather than a bulky coat or heavy pants. Layers let you add or subtract warmth. For added leg warmth, wear thermal underwear or flannel pajama bottoms under sweatpants. On the top wear a T-shirt, sweatshirt or wool sweater, topped with a closely woven nylon windbreaker. Since 40 percent or more of your body heat escapes through your head, don't forget to wear a hood or hat.

LEOTARD FABRIC

Leotards are the thing to wear, whether you are taking an aerobics class or just like to exercise in the privacy of your own home. As you shop for a leotard, the fabric should be an important consideration. Most leotards come in one of three fabrics: 100 percent nylon, nylon spandex (brand name "Lycra"), and stretch cotton spandex. Which one you choose will depend on your figure, fitness needs, and budget.

Nylon leotards are the least expensive and dry quickly both on your body and after laundering. Shiny nylon spandex comes in two weights. Both shape the body, but the heavier version offers definite figure control. Cotton spandex is comfortable for sensitive skins that may perspire heavily or be irritated by synthetics. They do, however, retain moisture and take longer to dry.

THE RIGHT SHOE

Aerobic exercise and jogging are now two of the most popular physical activities. These activities don't require an elaborate wardrobe, but they do require appropriate shoes.

The Aerobic shoe is designed specifically for indoors and for fancy footwork. It combines the shock absorbency of a regular running shoe with the all-around support and padding of a tennis shoe.

Running shoes are just that - for running only. They are built for forward movement with an elevated heel to absorb the hardest part of the shock and front end curves to protect the toes. The only lateral support provided in a running shoe is the side sole base. Rubber soles, usually waffled or ridged, provide solid footing and good traction on dirt and hills.

Fit is as important as design in athletic shoes. Try on both shoes and fit the larger foot. The shoes should be one finger width (1/2-3/4 inch) longer than the longest toe when you stand. Allow 1/4-1/2 inch between the toes and the top of the shoe. Also, make sure the ball of your foot is in the widest part of the shoe. To make sure you've got a good fit, take a test run, jump or swivel as you try on the shoes in the store.

"Discretion is seeing as much as you ought, not as much as you can."
de Montaigne

Dear Abby

Many writers claim bouquet for composing flower poem

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1986 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: The residents of a seniors' retirement complex in Lubbock, Texas, share your philosophy that flowers should be given to the living.

This wonderful poem is framed and hanging in the entrance of our game room:

"I would rather have a little rose from the garden of a friend,

"Than flowers strewn around my casket when my days on earth must end.

"I would rather have a living smile from one I know is true,

"Than tears shed 'round my casket when this world I bid adieu.

"Bring me all the flowers today whether pink or white or red,

"I would rather have one blossom now than a truckload when I'm dead." (Author Unknown)

Abby, do you know who wrote it?
LUCILLE

DEAR LUCILLE: I've read that lovely poem a couple of times, hoping to locate the author. I couldn't. A sample of the responses:

DEAR ABBY: I read that poem in the Macon Telegraph News, and recognized it immediately. I was written by a prominent Macon, Ga., dentist, R. Holmes Mason, now deceased 34 years. Dr. Mason was dedicated to his family, church and profession.
E.H., MACON, GA.

DEAR ABBY: The author of the poem you published was my brother, Herman B. Stokes, now deceased. The name of the poem is "A Rose." It was set to music about 10 years ago. I was deeply touched when I read it.
THELMA STOKES,
LOS ANGELES

DEAR ABBY: I read in the Tulsa Tribune the poem whose real title is "A Flower for the Living." It was written many years ago by my mother, Lela Snider, who lives in Okmulgee, Okla. She sent it to her sister, Mrs. Myrtle Acock, who lives in Ramona, Calif. Aunt Myrtle had copies made and sent it to her friends. Since then it has been published several times, always with "Author Unknown." My mother is 76, has had many strokes and is confined to a wheelchair.

AUTHOR'S PROUD DAUGHTER

DEAR ABBY: My husband noticed the poem in your column in The State paper of Columbia, S.C. The version you printed is slightly different from the original, titled, "Kindness Through Life." It was written by Austin K. Snyder, a professor at the U.S. Naval Academy. This poem appeared in Shipmate, a publication of the U.S. Naval Academy Alumni Association in September 1977.

VIRGINIA McMILLAN, MYRTLE BEACH, S.C.

DEAR ABBY: You can quit hunting for the author of that poem printed in the Sioux City Journal. The correct title is "I'd Rather," written by William Nick Gikas, a 32nd-degree Mason who lived in Everett, Wash. Dad, who is now 91, is a Mason and Shriner. He subscribed to the lodge publications, and Mother was always cutting out poems and putting them in her scrapbook. That poem has been in Mother's scrapbook for years.

MRS. A. SCHMIDT

DEAR ABBY: The poem you published was written by my mother, Mrs. Nelia Thompson, in 1961. She called it "Life's Roses." It was never copyrighted, but she sent copies to several of her friends, and the next thing we knew it was printed in a magazine with "Author Unknown" under it. My mother died in 1966, and it always hurt me that she never got credit for it.
MRS. DORIS BRANSBY

Send your name and address clearly printed with a check or money order for $2.50 and a long, stamped (39 cents) self-addressed envelope to: Dear Abby, Wedding Booklet, P.O. ## Wonderful pets

the Hobo was just about the biggest poodle ever to strut its curly white coat in Pampa.

One dog was commanded to fetch a ball and bring it to her owner. But the dog knew where to really bring the ball — to the feet of Gray County Sheriff Rufe Jordan, who was one of the judges.

Other dogs, such as Stephanie Singleton's pretty Precious, Sherri Singleton's sweet Sugar and Tommy Carver's ear-mopping basset Lady Samantha, were simply content to just walk around in front of the judges.

Burns hoped to see some cats entered in the Most Wonderful Pet Contest. But somehow, with all those big bowsers hanging around, none dared show up.

But the contest was more than just a pooch parade. Animal Control Officer Jackie Denham showed the audience Freedom, a hawk that was raised in captivity. Denham told the contest-goers that the bird was so-named because the bird has never known freedom. Denham and Curtis Dalton presented a demonstration on attack dogs.

The Most Wonderful Pet Contest is one of several ways Burns hopes to raise funds for the shelter. She'd like to have a dog "walk-a-thon" later this spring.

As for a possible contest next year, Burns said "we're gonna do it again and we're gonna do it better."
"I just hope we can get some cats."

Sorority assists with radiothon

Pampa's Kappa Alpha chapter of Epsilon Sigma Alpha sorority will join with other District X chapters and KIXZ Radio of Amarillo in sponsoring a radiothon, Jan. 24-25, in memory of Ashley Wolf to benefit St. Jude Children's Research Hospital.

The love and inspiration of three-year-old Ashley Wolf, daughter of Robert and Janice Wolf of Amarillo, lives on in the hearts and minds of those who knew her, ESA officials say.

Ashley had been a patient at St. Jude until her death, Jan. 12. She had been diagnosed as having "high risk" acute lymphocytic leukemia when she was 15 months old.

The radiothon is to be aired Friday from 6 p.m. until 9 p.m. and again on Saturday, from 9 a.m. until 9 p.m., at Sunset Market Town in Amarillo, says publicity chairman Kay Turrentine.

"Come Celebrate the Child" radiothon theme is to be highlighted by an auction on Saturday between 10 a.m. and 3 p.m. Various articles of merchandise donated by area merchants is to be auctioned off. Pampa's sorority chapter helped gather the articles for the auction. The local members will also be manning telephones and recording pledges during the radiothon.

St. Jude Hospital is a center for clinical research and care of children with catastrophic diseases, such as acute lymphocytic leukemia, Hodgkins Disease and other forms of cancer, infantile malnutrition, muscle disorders, sickle cell anemia and other maladies.

There is no financial test for admission to the hospital, even if insurance is not available. Treatment at St. Jude Hospital does not incur a financial burden on the family.

St. Jude was founded by actor Danny Thomas who continues to support the hospital through various fund raising activities and public appearances. The hospital is located at Memphis, Tenn.

Non-sectarian, the hospital is interracial and cares for all patients who are admitted by physician referral. Donated funds are also used to provide housing, transportation and meals for the parents of patients.

The hospital has been a project of Epsilon Sigma Alpha International since 1972. Currently ESA members world-wide are working on a $10 million goal to benefit the institution. District X, comprised of five chapters from Pampa, Amarillo and Lubbock, has set a goal of $25,000 from the radiothon.

St. Jude Hospital has patients from 39 states and 29 foreign countries. Presently 127 patients are from Texas, 22 of these from the Panhandle area.

Donations and pledges may be mailed to St. Jude's Radiothon, P.O. Box 2385, Amarillo, 79105. For more information, contact Jane Jacobs, 665-3878, after 5 p.m.

Peeking at Pampa: year's momentum picks up

January's calendar picks up momentum with a variety of activities as it heads for February. In recent months, two employees of Coronado Community Hospital have received an ACT recognition award that is given to any hospital employee who saves a human life. First Betty Welch saved a hospital volunteer's life. During the Christmas rush, Cheryl Fields, certified in CPR and an employee of the intensive care unit, was window shopping downtown when she happened on a frantic grandmother and a choking baby. Cheryl administered first aid to the baby and pop! Out came a foreign object from the baby's mouth. Recovery for the grandmother and baby was immediate. In addition to the ACT award, Cheryl was treated to a dinner for two at a local restaurant.

GOOD WISHES!!, Good luck!! We'll miss you!! were given to Dawn Hasebroock at a farewell party at CCH recently. Dawn has been dietary director for about four years and chairman of the local Diabetes Association. Her husband Ron was manager of the local Montgomery Ward store at the time of its closing. Natives of Wisconsin, they will feel right at home in the Denver area.

A warm Pampa "Welcome!!" to Joan Quillian, recently named director of dietary at CCH to succeed Dawn. Joan and her daughter Charline came to Pampa from O'Neill, Neb., where Joan held the same position at St. Anthony's hospital. Hobbies are Charline first, followed by crocheting and reading. Charline, a student at St. Vincent de Paul Catholic School, is interested in gymnastics, her cat and hamster and in plans to become a veterinarian. Both are members of St. Vincent's.

TWO MORE QUICK hospital notes... Johnnie Murrell won a recent blood drive drawing. Just in time for Christmas spending, Joyce Robertson of housekeeping received $50 for being named December employee of the month. Congratulations!

All in one day at Bill's suggestion, Nelda Stockstill hopped a plane for Denver, picked up their grandson and brought him back to Pampa for a visit. Binion, who is the former Nancy Stockstill's son, is a real live miniature cowboy with big snappy black eyes and a man-style haircut. He stays all dressed up in cowboy boots, shirt, jeans and a big "Championship" belt buckle. Through air travels with his parents in rodeo work, Binion, at 18-months, is as much at home in the air as on the ground.

A WARM PAMPA "Welcome!!" to Robert Wilson, newly named president of Citizens Bank & Trust Company. Until school is out, he will be commuting from Borger where he is a Rotarian and a tireless civic worker. His wife Patricia teaches in a Borger elementary school. Both are active Methodists. David and his daughter Kelly, a student at Texas Tech, complete the family circle.

A few changes in personnel occurred at St. Matthews Episcopal Church school. Jan (Mrs. Richard) Morris was named headmistress to succeed Beth (Mrs. Steve) Loos. Beth and little Andrew moved to Topeka, Kan., to join Steve, who was transferred a month or two ago. "Best Wishes!!" and "We'll miss you!!" to the Loos family. Anita (Mrs. Duane) Harp was named kindergarten teacher.

TANYA MORRIS, vivacious and pretty black-haired Gray County home extension agent, moved to Lubbock this week to work on her master's degree. Lots of good wishes, Tanya, from all of us!

Ken McDonald, director of music, and Tracy Cary, organist, at First United Methodist Church here spent last week in Fort Lauderdale, Fla. No, not on vacation!

McDonald and Cary joined hundreds of church musicians from all parts of the United States for a prestigious church choral and organ workshop.

Who said no-reason family dinners are out of vogue? Pauline and Grant Cambern hosted a just-for-fun family dinner last Friday night. Adults attending were Lois and Cameron Marsh, Merle and Kenneth Cambern, Joyce and Cliff Scott, Sharon and David Martindale, Cindy and Rick Harris, Judy and Ken Cambern, Kim and Doug Auwen plus family children.

CONGRATULATIONS TO Sandy Burns, director of Pampa Animal Control, for staging a successful Most Wonderful Pet contest last Saturday. About 200 interested spectators enjoyed the antics of the 25 entrants. Nancy (Mrs. Bill) Harvill and her dog named Bear came close to stealing the show. Bear hardly moved a muscle while Nancy went through HIS routine of singing and dancing as flashlights flickered and Bear's cheering section urged him to perform. Nancy earned her designation as best trained owner. The cheering section included Kirt Harvill, Ryan Erwin, Joe Welborn, Matt Harnly, Trae Walls and Mitch Spence.

Another part of the variety show was flute accompaniment by Sonia Nicholas and Holly Coble while Scooter did his act. Rex Chaney served as dog holder. Matt Parsons of KGRO radio and Danny Parkerson, manager of M.K. Brown Auditorium, co-emceed the show. Put this on next year's not-to-be-missed list.

DANNY PARKERSON, J.D. Ray of the Pampa Fire

Department, Larry Simpson, sanitation; and Ken Neal, police department, attended a disaster training school at the University of Texas in Arlington.

George Scott spent a few days of last week in Dallas. Audrey (Mrs. Cleo) Meeker is super-elated and with good reason: her parents, Wilma and Wilbur Mollett, will once again become Pampanians in March. That's when they will be moving back after retirement in Liberal, Kan.

No matter what you stand in on wearing a seat belt, do read on. Ed Sackett, son of Janice and Floyd, owes his life to his conscientious wearing of his seat belt. Ed was driving down a busy Dallas freeway when a car two lanes over crowded the car in the lane next to Ed, which in turn slammed into Ed's car and sent it up a concrete embankment and around a pole with Ed in it. Because of his seat belt, Ed lived to tell about it and escaped with some bruising. Made up your mind to don the seat belt each and every time you get in a car?

See you next week! KATIE

KRISTY HUTCHISON, 16, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Hutchison of Pampa, has been selected to be a finalist in the 1986 Miss West Texas National Teen-Ager Pageant in Odessa, April 25-27. The Miss West Texas National Teen-Ager Pageant is the official regional pageant to the 15th annual Miss Texas National Teen-Ager Pageant to be held at Texas Christian University in Fort Worth on June 6-8. Anyone interested in learning about any of these subjects are invited to attend this program. GREAT TIME TO HAVE YOUR SOIL TESTED

If your garden performed below expectations last year, or maybe things just didn't grow quite right, a few dollars invested in a soil test may be just the solution. A properly prepared and fertilized garden soil is the real key to successful gardening in most areas of Texas. You can't look at the soil, taste it, smell it, or feel it and tell whether it is properly fertilized or not. You have no way of knowing whether your soil is low in nitrogen, high in phosphate or maybe just right. One sure way to overcome the mystery and avoid the confusion when it comes time to purchase fertilizers is to have your garden soil tested.

Why is it important to know how much phosphorus or nitrogen is in the soil or what the pH of the soil is? The answer is simple. Vegetables don't do well in improperly fertilized soil, whether it be too fertile or, not fertile enough.

The soil test report will tell you the level of nitrogen, phosphorus, potassium, calcium and magnesium that is available to your garden plants. It will also indicate the pH (acidity or alkalinity) of your garden soil. For the most part, this is all you need to know to properly fertilize your garden soil to help insure a bountiful harvest.

What's the secret of taking a soil sample? There is really no secret and it is really very simple. With a spade or a sharp-shooter, make a hole about a foot deep in the garden soil. Throw out the first spade full of soil. Then from the back of the hole, cut a 1/2 to 1 inch slice of the soil. Be sure the slice is at least 6 to 7 inches in depth and fairly even in width and thickness. Place this slice of garden soil in a bucket or tub. Repeat this procedure four, five or even six times in different spots in the garden, depending primarily on the size of the garden. Thoroughly mix the composite of soil from your garden. After mixing, take out about a pint of the soil and mail it to the Soils Testing Laboratory. Texas A & M University provides a soil testing service and soil test kits with instructions can be obtained at the Gray County Extension Office. The cost for a soil test is $6.00.

If a soil sample is taken in late winter or very early spring, you should expect to get your soil test results back within two to three weeks. If you wait too late and join the multitude of gardeners who will have their soil tested this spring, then it may be considerably longer to get your results back.

An adequate soil test properly done and properly interpreted will go a long way toward insuring a bountiful harvest from this year's garden.

Museum sponsors lecture series

PANHANDLE — The Carson County Square House Museum is to present a series of free art lectures through January and February ranging from the work of French sculptor Rodin to the works of 20th century American artists.

The lectures are to begin at 7:30 p.m., Jan. 22 in Freedom Hall on the museum's grounds with a discussion of the French sculptor, Auguste Rodin. Five full-color prints of works by Rodin are to be available for study at the program.

Next will be Survey of American Painting, Feb. 5, at 7:30 p.m., in Freedom Hall, showing the development of American painting from colonial times to the early 20th century through examples of paintings by major American artists. Emphasizing the work of Gilbert Stuart, Benjamin West, Winslow Homer and Mary Cassatt, among others, this survey also includes paintings by America's "primitive" artists.

On Feb. 12, at 7:30 p.m., The Eye of Thomas Jefferson: Art and Reason explores aspects of Enlightenment attitudes and interests as a background to Jefferson's artistic contributions. Early scientific inquiry and the revived interest in classicism will be discussed.

American Light: the Luminist Movement, 1850-1875 begins on Feb. 19 at 7:30 p.m. in Freedom Hall. Landscapes created by American artists in the second half of the 19th century were notable both for their poetic and often dramatic light and color and as reflections of American attitudes in a crucial period in the nation's history.

NEW YORK (AP) — Contrary to popular belief, the nuclear family consisting of a married couple and their children has always been the dominant household type in the United States, according to the Cosmopolitan Report on the Changing Life Course of American Women.

The final lecture begins at 7:30 p.m., Feb. 26, with Morris Louis: Major Themes and Variations with paintings by the American artist Morris Louis presented in order to relate modern American paintings to the European movements of impressionism, cubism, abstract expressionism and other stylistic trends. Louis' life as a painter and the times in which he lived are also discussed.

Realtors win two state honors

Two members of the Pampa Board of Realtors attended the Texas Association of Realtors Mid-Winter Meeting, Jan. 10-14 in Austin. Those attending from Pampa were Claudine Balch, president of the local association, and Shirley Wooldridge, secretary. Balch and Wooldridge were among 800 real estate professionals from around the state who gathered to hear current information about the real estate industry in Texas and across the nation. Conrad Bering Jr. of Houston was installed as TAR's 1986 president. Bill Stinson of Lubbock and George Tucker of San Antonio were installed as first vice president-elect and secretary-treasurer, respectively. In addition, John Walton of Lubbock was installed as a TAR regional vice president for this area. Pampa Board of Realtors received a plaque at the membership breakfast Jan. 13 for reaching 105 percent of their membership quota. The Quota Achievement Award will be accepted by Norma Holder, chairman of the local membership committee. Also, Mike Keagy of Pampa received a TAR Certificate of Appreciation for her work as chairman of the TAR Builder-Realtor Committee on the state level. Other meeting highlights included addresses by Garry Mauro, Texas land commissioner; Robert C. Wolff, 1986 president of the Fort Collins, Colo., Board of Realtors; and Nestor Weigand, first vice president of the National Association of Realtors.

4-H Corner

Time to think of method demonstration

By JEFF GOODWIN
County Extension Agent

DATES
Jan. 20 — 7 p.m., Horse Project meeting, Courthouse Annex.
Jan. 21 — 7 p.m., P.L.C. 4-H Club meeting, Courthouse Annex.
Jan. 21 — 7 p.m., E.T. 4-H Club meeting, Mary Ellen and Harvester Church of Christ.
Jan. 23 — 7 p.m., Swine Project meeting, Courthouse Annex.

METHOD DEMONSTRATION TIME
It's time to start thinking about Method Demonstrations. Gray County 4-H Roundup has been set for April 26, so that gives you only three months to decide what to do and make up your demonstration. Besides demonstrations, there are other contests that 4-H'ers can participate in county, district and state Roundup, such as: entomology contest and identification; horse judging; livestock judging; meat judging and identification; range and pasture grass identification; soil judging, public speaking and Share the Fun.

If anyone is interested in participating in any of these contests or a Method Demonstration, please call the County Extension office at 669-7429 and we will help you.

DOG PROJECT MEETING
The next meeting of the Dog Project will be at 7 p.m. Monday, Jan. 27, at the Courthouse Annex. You do not need to bring your dog, as we will be watching a video tape on dog obedience.

SWINE PROJECT MEETING
I would encourage all Gray County 4-H Barrow Feeders to attend a swine project meeting to be held at 7 p.m. Thursday, Jan. 23, at the Courthouse Annex.

SURVIVAL TIPS FOR 4-H PARENTS
Your child will not gain the full benefit of the 4-H program without parent involvement. 4-H is built on the philosophy of "Families Working Together." As your child joins 4-H, you, as parents, assume the responsibility of helping your child, their club and the community with all 4-H activities. 4-H is not a babysitting service, but an active educational organization. Please attend club and project meetings with your child if possible. This will help you stay informed about activities and events concerning 4-H in our county. You are important.

Read the monthly 4-H newsletter carefully — this way you will not miss any opportunities. The 4-H newsletter now has a monthly calendar which needs to be put on your icebox door.

It is your responsibility to read 4-H mail and keep up with the 4-H activities going on. You can not be personally contacted on each event.

With each project, 4-H'ers are required to do a project record form. To receive a 4-H year pin, you must turn in at least one project record form a year. At the end of each 4-H year, we encourage 4-H'ers to turn in a record book. This contains more information than a project record form.

In order to do a really good record book, you need to begin writing down everything you do in 4-H on a calendar or in a spiral notebook and take pictures during club and project meetings, community service projects and leadership experiences.

4-H is the youth phase of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. Extension agents serve as advisors and train leaders to work with 4-H'ers. The Extension Service is an extension of Texas A&M University because A&M is the land grant university for Texas.

Please try to see that your child attends their club meeting as well as their project meetings. This will allow them to have a well-rounded 4-H experience.

Shoe box floats to be part of local celebration

A parade of shoe box floats is to be a special feature in the Gray County Sesquicentennial celebration at M.K. Brown Auditorium, April 21, San Jacinto Day.

Open to all age groups, the competition will have two divisions, individual and group or organizational. The "best of show" will go to the State Fair competition in Dallas and an actual float will be created from the winner of the State Fair competition.

All float designs require the Texas Sesquicentennial theme and are what the designer believes best represents the Sesquicentennial idea. If the design is not self-explanatory, drawings and or patterns as well as written explanations must accompany the float.

The float is not to exceed 18 inches in length and 10 inches in width and may be made from an actual shoe box or other material.

All entries in the Gray County Shoe Box Float Competition will receive a ribbon, and trophies will be awarded to the best float in the individual and the group divisions.

Sweepstakes winner in the Gray County competition will receive four tickets to the State Fair of Texas and one round-trip airplane ticket to Dallas.

Pre-registration is due by April 1, 1986. Entries will be accepted April 20 from 5 p.m. to 8 p.m. and again on April 21 from 8 a.m. to 9 a.m. at the M.K. Brown Heritage Room in Pampa. These entries will be on display during the Gray County Sesquicentennial celebration all day April 21.

Judging criteria for the float will include 25 points for Texas Sesquicentennial theme, 15 points for design adaptability to a life-size float, five points for creativity, and five points for effective use of color and materials. Total possible points are 50.

Pre-registration forms should be mailed to Gray County Extension office, Shoe Box Float Competition, Star Route 2, Box 33, Pampa, 79065 by April 1. Include name of individual, address, and phone number and mark if individual or group-organizational entry.

Michigan city turns into icy wonderland

PLYMOUTH, Mich. (AP) — An American Indian in full headdress stands solemnly on the street corner. Nearby, a huge bear roars from atop a rock, and the music fairly pours from a crystalline harp.

Those frozen figures and hundreds more, carved in lifelike detail from 440-pound blocks of ice, line Plymouth's streets and fill a downtown park.

Among them are more than 200 sculptures by Japanese chefs, recognized as the world's best ice carvers.

The Plymouth Ice Spectacular, which runs through Sunday, is the brainchild of Scott Lorenz, 29-year-old general manager of the Mayflower Hotel. He got the idea from a CBS-TV "60 Minutes" feature on ice carving in Sapporo, Japan. "I thought, 'Heck, we've got the weather here in Michigan, and we have the background for special events, so let's do it.'"

The 4-year-old ice show has turned January, traditionally sluggish for shopping and tourism, into a booming month, Lorenz said. About 350,000 people attended last year's festival in this city of 10,000 people, located 20 miles west of downtown Detroit.

New this year are the star carvers from Japan.

As the festival opened last week, crowds surrounded a lifelike Eskimo hunter, spear poised as salmon leaped about his feet in a stream. Carvers put finishing touches on a fierce-looking samurai warrior.

Students from Oakland Community College's culinary arts school used a small plastic model and elaborate blueprints to hew a life-size Model-A Ford — parked illegally, of course, in front of an ice fire hydrant.

A frantic schoolteacher chased youngsters who pointed and ran in all directions, shouting with glee at a sparkling castle, Mickey Mouse, Donald Duck and two battling dragons, all brought to life in ice.

Kevin Enright, a chef-instructor at Oakland, said ice-carving is done mostly by chefs, who normally start out creating icy table centerpieces. The Plymouth show lets his students carve on a large scale and earn course credit at the same time.

Using tools ranging from chain saws to fine-bladed chisels and shavers, Jim Nadeau, 32, of Chicago, turned an ice block into a grinning rocking horse.

Nadeau, a former motel food production manager, learned to carve 12 years ago from a German chef and now owns a five-employee carving business in Chicago.

"I can do an eight-minute swan, a nine-minute eagle and a six-minute cornucopia," Nadeau said while the horse took shape. "It took me about an hour to do this."

But Nadeau and others acknowledge the Japanese are the best.

"Well, when you live in north Japan in the winter, there's nothing else to do," said Kuniyasu Ota, a Sapporo chef, in halting English. His troupe had just finished work on a sparkling 8-foot pagoda.

Gena on Genealogy

By GENA WALLS

Boundaries of counties and states are very important when researching your family. An example is the family that did not move from 1800 to 1884, that generation after generation lived on the same farm but that has been found in both Georgia and North Carolina and in four different counties.

The Dollarhide Systems Company, P.O. Box 5282, Bellingham, Wash., 98227, is in the process of printing map packets for each of the 50 states from 1790 to 1920 which compare the old boundaries of each county with the modern boundary. Each packet averages nine maps, printed on one side, 8 1/2 x 11 inches with a cover sheet. Prices begin at $4.75 for one to three packets and decreases in price to 10 or more packets for $4 including shipping and handling.

The state packets now available include California, Colorado, Illinois, Indiana, Maryland, Delaware & D.C. (one packet), Michigan, Mississippi, North Carolina, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, Virginia, West Virginia, Wisconsin, Washington, Maine, Iowa, Louisiana and Minnesota.

Maps are sold only by pack, no single year orders. Write the company if you would like more information. Printing is in progress for other states.

These maps are interesting to use in plotting the movements of a family from one county to the next or realizing that the county line changes and the family is stationary.

I have taped a map to the cover of each of my family work folders for a reference so that it will be easily available while I am doing research. You might want to use these maps another way. Please share your ideas with me and other readers.

Do you have a special system that you have developed that makes your genealogical work easier and may eliminate some of the paper? Send them to me, Gena Walls, 8825 S.W. Maverick Terrace No. 1009, Beaverton, Ore., 97005.

Playboy centerfold brings Texas spotlight

By CHRISTOPHER BOGAN
Dallas Times Herald

DALLAS (AP) — This is a high-gloss, airbrushed, fold-out fairy tale. It has a happy ending and a sad ending, depending on your viewpoint of young women appearing without clothes in national magazines.

It's the story of Julie

McCullough, a pretty young woman with kid-sister good looks who grew up in the small community of Allen, 26 miles north of Dallas.

Like many attractive girls from small towns across Texas, she aspired to be a model. But throughout most of her teens she worked primarily as a supermarket checkout clerk.

Miss McCullough has escaped obscurity by baring all in Playboy magazine. She first appeared last February on the cover of the glossy men's magazine, which featured a special pictorial story on the "Girls of Texas." This month she appears again — but this time as Miss February, one of 12 women featured each year as a Playboy centerfold.

The exposure has launched Miss McCullough's career and earned her a dollop of local notoriety. Her schedule is now booked with lucrative fashion shoots, promotions and travel. But the memories of the ruckus raised in her hometown one year ago are still fresh for Miss McCullough, who has since moved from Allen to Plano.

For a small-but-vocal group in the conservative Christian community in Allen and the surrounding area, her initial appearance in Playboy was startling. The thought of one of their own children appearing in such a magazine was mortifying, real Sodom and Gomorrah.

Miss McCullough recalls that after the "Girls of Texas" pictorial appeared, she received a storm of mail. Much of it from men propositioning her. One man, who was smitten by her picture, wrote from prison. And for two jittery days, someone followed her around Collin County. Whoever it was never stopped to talk to her. The person just wrote threatening obscenities on the frosted windshield of her car.

Then there was the shower of letters from conservative Christians, who wrote to say they were praying for her, or to let her know if she didn't change her ways she was surely headed for hellfire.

"I got lots of Bible scriptures in the mail," Miss McCullough recalls. "One said on the back, 'Ye shall repent your sins.'"

"...maybe 30 out of 100 letters — was that kind of Christian thing," Miss McCullough says.

The number of letters she received from scolding Christians is not something Miss McCullough dwells on. The numbers that have counted for her are the measurements inscribed on her Playmate data sheet.

Rightly or wrongly, those numbers and a photogenic face have allowed Miss McCullough to begin modeling.

The media had a field day with this story about Miss McCullough. They love the high-gloss finish of her tale, the controversy that tinted the edges of the picture. The story made its way across the nation. If this latest pictorial is going to nettle some in Allen, the reaction hasn't started yet.

Indeed, the town may not have actually been as up in arms as it seemed back then. Looking back, the mayor of Allen now points out more excited that Allen, a community of about 14,000 people, which has forever been in the shadow of Dallas, was suddenly getting its own dateline in the national media.

"In a small town, a mayor hears about what concerns people," says Allen Mayor Don Rodenbaugh. "I sure get it if there is some trash blowing down the road or if a neighbor is making too much noise. I'm sure if anybody really felt (Miss McCullough's Playboy appearance) was scandalous for Allen, I'd have heard about it."

He didn't, though. The 20 or so calls he received about the story all came from members of the media.

"I talked to some people in the school system and I asked, 'Did you ever have any problems with this student?'" Rodenbaugh recalls. "They said, 'No, she was a model student.' Then they laughed and said, 'We don't mean model in the Playboy sense.'"

The Rev. Fred Winslow, pastor of the First Methodist Church of Allen, recalls that to his surprise, one elderly townswoman spoke out to him in Miss McCullough's defense, saying that on the things that counted, she was a fine girl.

"This particular magazine is not something I climb into the pulpit and rail against," explains Winslow. "The broader issues of prongraphy are something worthy of discussion, but I have no plans to preach on (Miss McCullough's centerfold)."

As far as Miss McCullough is concerned, she was more angered than ashamed of the mail on this issue.

"I don't do any drugs. I don't drink," Miss February says, her voice growing as cold and stern as a winter wind. "If I was to influence any teens in the area, I hope it would be in a good way."

Without the high-gloss finish of her photos and without the staged, sultry poses common to all Playmate pictorials, Miss McCullough doesn't much look like a centerfold. Back home in the Dallas area recently to promote the magazine for Playboy, she sits demurely in a hotel suite. She's 20 years old. No nail polish, light makeup, her blond hair slightly waved. As she walks quickly on a pair of spiked heels, she wobbles a little, evidently unaccustomed to the added height.

Her Playmate appearances have brought her a certain prestige, sundry modeling assignments, $15,000 for her February centerfold and a two-year Playboy contract that will guarantee her lots of work.

Still, she says, she has a hard time thinking of herself as a femme fatale.

"If I was to walk into a room, I don't think anybody would break their necks to look at me," she says.

With this sudden burst of success in the last year, her career has become a little schizophrenic. One day she's a fashion model shooting sweet teen fashions. The next day she's Miss February, jetting about on promotions: Italy, Mexico, New York, Chicago, California.

"I do mostly junior work," she giggles, teenishly. "I can look anywhere from 14 to 20 — pigtails and ponytails."

It was the frequent work-related travel — outward signs that she was successful — that finally convinced her mother and stepfather that Playboy was helping her more than hindering her.

Despite the glamour of the publication for 15 million readers, it wasn't easy for a daughter to airbrush out her parents' concern.

Mexican entertainer forming her own record company

By RAMIRO BURR
San Antonio Light

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A veteran Mexican entertainer who makes her home in San Antonio says she is launching her own record label because she wants to nurture the city's emerging artistic talent.

"I have found that there are a lot of talented musicians locally," Marita Teresa Barcelata said in a recent interview at her spacious northside home. "And I understand how difficult it can be to break into this business when you're unknown."

"I have enjoyed my many years in movies and music. I have toured all over the world, and now I am in a position to be able to help other musicians."

A native of Mexico City, Mrs. Barcelata starred in more than a dozen Mexican movies during the 1940s and 1950s. She has toured the world several times headlining traditional variedades, or Mexican vaudeville shows.

Semi-retired, Mrs. Barcelata has lived in San Antonio for two years, but her love of the entertainment industry has kept her involved in the business.

Her hair is mostly white, and she has a few wrinkles around the eyes, but she still retains the attractive face and eyes that captivated moviegoers in the 1940s and 1950s.

In her 35-year career she appeared in 14 Mexican movies and performed in 28 countries around the world. She also recorded 12 albums, performing alongside such Mexican stars as Agustin Lara, the internationally known singer and composer, and actor Pedro Almodariz Jr.

In the late 1930s when her movie career was starting to take off, she married Lorenzo Barcelata, at that time a renowned singer and songwriter who composed the enormously popular romantic ballad "Maria Elena."

Since then, the song has been translated into 11 languages and has sold millions of copies.

She said royalties from "Maria Elena" still pour in from around the world and provide the financial base for the new label.

Her husband died in 1943 but the legacy of his songwriting has enabled his widow to realize her dream of helping those around her.

She later remarried but her second husband died last year.

Standing in her den surrounded by hundreds of newspaper and magazine articles and stills from her movies and variedades, Mrs. Barcelata talked about why she wanted to launch Marita Barcelata Records.

"I am living comfortably and the royalties are more than enough," she said, pensively fingering a framed entertainment award, one of many mementos from her career.

"I do not expect to make money in this venture. I am widowed, and I have no children. I simply expect to help the artists who need help because that's all I want in life now. And because music and dance has always been my love."

Mrs. Barcelata is currently negotiating with several local groups to produce their records.

Among those who have signed on are Jose Munguia y Sus Fabulosos, Rosita Fernandez, El Trio de Los Pepes and Xenia, a singer from Mexico.

"La Veladora" — which is "The Candle" in English — a ballad recorded by Munguia, was recently produced and will soon be distributed. Mrs. Barcelata is currently negotiating for a record distributor for the southwestern United States. An album by Munguia is expected to be produced within a month. "I feel like this is a good opportunity for me," said Munguia, a 12-year veteran who has recorded 25 singles with small, local labels with marginal success. "Working with Barcelata I think I'll have a better chance at commercial success."

Mrs. Barcelata said the type of music her artists will record is tropical or salsa music, with emphasis on boleros and Puerto Rican merengue. She said Fernandez is also scheduled to record several songs and one will be a rendition of "Maria Elena."

Mrs. Barcelata's label is one of only six record companies in San Antonio.

According to Luis Silva, vice president of Cara Records, also based in San Antonio, starting a new record label can be tough.

He said that a strong promotional and marketing program is a must.

"It takes a lot of time, a lot of money and a lot of work. And the distribution network has to be in place, too. Sometimes it seems cutting the record is the easy part."

But Mrs. Barcelata is still determined.

Farmer's crop is reptiles

PALMDALE, Fla. (AP) — Cecil Clemons is a central Florida farmer who doesn't plant anything, harvests only when he has a customer, and spends most of the time talking to tourists who visit his place on U.S. 27.

Although the 16 acres and home he has here are in a rather lonely spot, Clemons has no fear of burglars or trespassers.

He owns "Gatorama," a name that explains all.

"You don't make a house pet out of them," Clemons says with a laugh at the entrance where $2.50 will provide a visit with about 2,000 reptiles — 1,500 alligators and 500 crocodiles. The latter makes Gatorama the largest crocodile farm in the United States, claims Clemons, born in Kissimmee 60-some years ago.

Clemons has been around gators "since I was big enough to tote a gun." He's never been seriously hurt by the reptiles. He as due respect for an alligator, he explains, and "I'm a little more particular with crocodiles."

In the 1940s and 1950s, Clemons had an alligator sideshow on the New Jersey coast and in 1957 moved here to build his reptile farm.

He purchased his initial stock in Wilmington, N.C., and, in 1961, spent four months in Jamaica trapping the lizard-like creatures which became the basis of his breeding stock.

Clemons sells and ships gators and crocodiles around the world to others who ostensibly need breeding stock. Because of his long attachment to the reptiles, he will not sell to anyone admitting they plan to use them for their meat or hides.

What surprises visitors is the size of most of his alligators and crocodiles, seen lounging around the two-acre lake he carved into what was once thick woods. Hundreds of them appear to be at least 12 feet in length.

Clemons' niece, Ruth Lee, and her eldest son, Dan, have helped run Gatorama for years.

"No one can say for certain how big they get or how old they live," says Mrs. Lee. "We had one here that was over 100 years old and some of these weigh up to 1,400 pounds."

Crocodiles, she adds, grow longer than alligators and sometimes reach 18 feet in length.

While there's no posted price list at Gatorama, Clemons offers baby alligators measuring 8 to 10 inches in length for $150 apiece. The next category includes those up to four feet. They go for $400 to $500. Above that, the price runs up to $2,000 each.

In a special tank along a nature walk Clemons built through his property live a pair of gavials he says were smuggled from Southeast Asia to the United States by an airline pilot when the reptiles were small. Clemons says having a male and female gaviel is extremely rare in this country. They are not for sale.

Duo pianists to appear here Taylor-Young finds more joy

By PAUL PINKHAM
Staff Writer

This is the stuff great romance stories are made of. When Steven Gordon and Nadya Cataldo were each 15, they showed up as contestants in a piano competition sponsored by the San Fernando Valley Symphony Orchestra in California. By coincidence, each was to perform Rubinstein's Concerto in D Minor. "She was the prettiest piano player I'd ever seen," Steven recalls. Steven, son of big band trumpeter Claude Gordon, took first place that year and, as a result, Nadya refused to date him until the following year when she herself walked off with first prize. Today, married and performing what Steven calls a true labor of love, they form both halves of a piano duo and will appear at M.K. Brown Auditorium as part of the Community Concerts series at 8 p.m. Tuesday. Steven and Nadya were married in 1971 with Steven still in a neck brace from an automobile accident that nearly ended his career. When he finally was able to play again after three years, the couple soon realized each of their careers was headed in an opposite direction. Steven said from their hotel room in Scottsbluff, Neb., on Tuesday. "We decided this was ridiculous because we weren't seeing that much of each other," he said, adding that touring as a solo pianist can become quite lonely. So, they dusted off some duet piano music they practiced as teenagers and hit the road. Travelling at least 30 weeks a year, Steven said they perform both with symphony orchestras and on the community concerts circuit of smaller communities. He noted hopping from large city to large city is rather difficult with two 900-pound Bosendorfer pianos in tow. Valued at about $140,000 each the two mammoth grands are carted from town to town in a rig designed by Steven. He describes it as looking like a horse trailer, only far more sophisticated. The trailer is temperature and humidity controlled, with a special suspension system to cushion the ride for the pianos. Also aboard are a motorized ramp, automatic pulleys, skids, assorted winches and other equipment for loading and unloading, as well as napping and dressing space and a storage area for Nadya's concert gowns. The trailer is pulled by a diesel Blazer, driven by either Steven or his wife, which is also specially designed for the musical couple. The truck is equipped with an elaborate stereo system, a computer, on which Steven logs information about each concert, a citizens band radio, a sophisticated alarm system and, most important, a Fender Rhodes electric piano. "It's our marriage saver," Steven joked, concerning the Rhodes. He explained that when one of the two pianists says "I've had it" after spending 24 hours a day with the other, the piano is there to practice on. Although they work as a team, and have for several years, each of the Gordons is an accomplished solo performer as well, winning awards and competitions since their teenage days. But for Steven, one of the most memorable moments came during opening ceremonies of the 1984 Summer Olympics in Los Angeles when he coordinated an 84-piano performance of George Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue." He said he agreed to coach the young pianists only if he were permitted to play with them. Originally, the idea was to record each piano separately but because of acoustical problems, Gordon overdubbed the music on 16 channels before the performance and the pianists played along with the tape. The program for their current tour, which Steven said is now about one third complete, runs the gamut from Mozart's "The Magic Flute" to Gershwin's "Rhapsody." With the exception of Maurice Ravel's "Rhapsodie Espagnole," which is written for four hands on one piano, the entire concert will use both Bosendorfers, Steven said. "Interestingly enough," he said, "most of them are original two piano versions by the composers."

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) Now that she is no longer seeking fame or fortune, Leigh Taylor-Young is finding more joy in acting. Leigh Taylor-Young is the tall and gloriously beautiful actress who had a fine career going when she chucked it all. After becoming a star on TV in "Peyton Place" in the 1960s, she appeared in such films as "I Love You Alice B. Toklas," "The Adventurers" and "Soylent Green." For some four years, though, she was totally away from show business. "I'd gotten caught up in it," she says. "It had mastered me, rather than

And she came back to Hollywood and to acting a few years ago with a new perspective on life. It is, she says, "dramatically different" from her old perspective. "Now I am not seeking fame or fortune," she says. "Now I am more service-oriented, trying to see what I can give. So there is more freedom in my work, and more joy." Since her return, she's done several TV things for Aaron Spelling, a few movies, off-Broadway theater and now, back here again, she's in two current releases — "Secret Admirer" and "Jagged Edge."

"They lump them all together as Yuppies," he says, "but that group is actually very diversified. And when it comes to TV, that group really has very little to watch, except for '60 Minutes' and 'Saturday Night Live.'" Abrams says radio, in general, is thriving. A station that sold for half a million 10 years ago now brings around $16 million. Radio is popular, he believes, because it fits in with the public's current artistic taste. "The public today," he says, "has a very short attention span. The remote-control button is so big because the public wants to change everything quickly and easily. Cable News Network is so big because in 10 minutes it gives you the whole picture. The 'scamable' press — People, USA Today — is so big because the public wants brief articles, not in-depth articles." As to punk rock and its future, Abrams scoffs at it. "It was an example," he says, "of English artists and English recording companies misinterpreting American taste. Punk never caught on here. The average American record buyer hated it. They didn't want irrelevant political statements in their music."

And it's great to have her back. The music that people love when they are between 16 and 20 is the music they love throughout their entire life. That is the theory that guides Lee Abrams, who is probably the leading radio consultant in the world. Abrams is the man radio stations — and record companies, video companies and music publications — hire to advise them when they have problems. "If you were between 16 and 20 in the late '60s," Abrams says, "you liked The Carpenters and that sort of music. And today, there are plenty of radio stations catering to your taste. But if you liked the Beatles during those critical years, the rock stations of today are too abrasive for your taste." Which is why, these days, Abrams is advising rock stations to broaden their musical appeal. "Rock stations tend to forget how wide the rock audience is," he says. "Today, it goes from 9 year olds to people in their 40s. And yet most of them tend to be either teen-oriented or to play nothing but the Barry Manilow

Bradbury's latest is worth the wait

DEATH IS A LONELY BUSINESS. By Ray Bradbury. Knopf. 280 Pages. $15.95. Ray Bradbury hasn't published a novel in a long time, more than 20 years, so the arrival of "Death Is a Lonely Business" is a major event for his devoted fans — and they are legion. All of the verbal magic which illuminated his previous writings is in the new book as is the sense of wonder which makes Bradbury so different, and so much better, than other workers in the science fiction and fantasy fields. Technically, "Death" is supposed to be a murder mystery, and it is on one level. But on a higher level, it is a vivid, highly individual vision of a time, late 1949, and a place, Venice, Calif., and the people who live and love in that time and place. Narrated by an anonymous young man who aspires to be a writer of science fiction and fantasy and who the reader safely may assume is Bradbury, the story opens with the discovery of the drowned body of an old man. This death is followed by a series of others, all of them nondescript people, "all the gravel on the path, chaff in the wind, empty shells on the shore, dice with no spots, cards with no pips. No past, no present." The police think the deaths are accidents. The young writer thinks they are murders and manages to convince a police detective with the unlikely name of Elmo Crumley that he is right. The pair then take off after the murderer but in a lingering, leisurely manner that allows Bradbury to impressionistically re-create the city he remembers so fondly and the marvelous grotesques who inhabited it. ## Mild weather helps harvesting, field work COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — The past week of mild, sunny weather enabled Texas farmers to move ahead with field work, says Dr. Zerle L. Carpenter, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Farmers in western areas and in the plains were finishing cotton harvesting operations while elsewhere land preparations were under way for the upcoming crop season, said Carpenter in his weekly report on the state's agriculture.

With a few more days of open weather, all of the 1985 cotton crop should be in. However, ginning should continue for some time, particularly in the South and Rolling Plains where a lot of cotton has been field-stored in modules, Carpenter noted.

Harvesting operations continued active in the Rio Grande Valley and included sugarcane, broccoli, cabbage, carrots and other winter vegetables.

In the Winter Garden of Southwest Texas, spinach, broccoli, lettuce, carrots and cabbage were moving to market, Carpenter said.

Harvesting of the 1985 pecan crop is winding down rapidly with the open weather. About 5 to 10 percent of the crop remains to be harvested, mostly in western areas. This year's crop was above average and prices to growers were good, noted Carpenter.

Farmers over much of the state are getting land in shape for spring crops, with field work particularly active in South Texas where planting will start next month. However, wet fields are slowing operations in some coastal counties.

Growth of small grains — wheat and oats — has been limited by recent cold, dry conditions, and this has brought a decline in grazing for livestock, said Carpenter. Consequently, producers have had to increase feeding operations. Some stocker cattle operators have started shipping animals to market due to the decline in forage, and this has caused stocker prices to drop.

Reports from district Extension directors show these conditions.

PANHANDLE: Farmers are about to complete cotton harvesting; the 1985 crop generally was good. Most wheat is dormant but needs surface moisture for regrowth. Supplemental feeding of livestock is active due to limited grazing conditions. Land preparation activities are under way.

SOUTH PLAINS: The cotton harvest is complete but ginning of moduled cotton will continue for some time. Farmers are busy getting land in shape for spring planting. Most wheat is making little growth due to recent cold, dry conditions. Ranchers are busy with livestock feeding.

ROLLING PLAINS: Although the cotton harvest is complete, a lot of cotton remains stored in modules for ginning. Cattle have limited grazing on small grains due to recent cold, dry conditions, so stockmen are increasing supplemental feeding. Some are shipping stockers to market and this has pushed prices down as much as $5 per hundredweight.

NORTH CENTRAL: The peanut harvest is finally complete following extensive rain delays; yields and quality generally were poor. Farmers are getting cropland ready for spring planting. Livestock have suffered some weight loss but are in average condition for this time of the year; supplemental feeding is active.

NORTHEAST: Small grains are doing well despite some slowdown due to recent cold weather. Some producers are topdressing small grains with nitrogen to boost growth. Cattle are in good condition, with feeding active. Land is being prepared for early spring vegetables.

FAR WEST: Farmers are about to complete cotton harvesting while harvesting of chile and pecans remains active. Increased demand for alfalfa hay has boosted prices; a lot of the hay remains in storage. Cattle feeding continues.

WEST CENTRAL: A few scattered fields remain to be harvested in northern counties. Wheat growth is at a standstill due to recent cold, dry conditions. Grazing has deteriorated, bringing an increase in supplemental feeding. About 5 percent of a good pecan crop remains to be harvested. Prices to growers are good.

CENTRAL: Wheat is making little growth due to recent cold, dry weather. Greenbugs and spider mites also are infesting some fields. Some oats have suffered cold damage. Supplemental feeding of livestock is active due to limited grazing conditions.

EAST: Growth on small grains and winter pastures has been limited due to the recent cold weather. Also, surface moisture is getting short in some locations. Livestock feeding is active as grazing conditions decline. Some land is being prepared for early spring vegetables.

UPPER COAST: Wet fields are keeping the wraps on land preparations for spring planting. Small grains generally are making good growth and are providing some grazing for livestock. Livestock feeding continues active. This year's pecan crop boasted good yields and good prices.

SOUTH CENTRAL: Farmers are resuming preparations for spring planting as fields dry. Small grains generally are making good growth and are providing grazing for livestock. Feeding of range cattle continues.

SOUTHWEST: Vegetable harvesting operations remain active, with broccoli, spinach, carrots, lettuce and cabbage moving to market. Farmers are preparing cropland for spring planting. Livestock feeding is heavy but cattle are in good condition.

COASTAL BEND: Rains last week hampered field work, but the moisture will give a boost to small grains, pastures and ranges. A lot of wheat and oats have been grazed out by livestock. Livestock feeding is in full swing due to reduced grazing conditions.

SOUTH: Farmers are continuing to make preparations for the upcoming planting season, including the application of preplant irrigations on cotton land. Sugarcane harvesting remains active along with harvesting of broccoli, cabbage, carrots and other winter vegetables. Onions are making good progress. Livestock are in good shape, with above average grazing.

Trio involved in plant propagation

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — When the University of Minnesota bred a new hybrid blueberry to be hardy in temperatures as cold as Minnesota's, three women associated with the school's horticulture department saw a market niche opening.

The result is Minn Vitro Inc., a plant propagation and tissue culture business owned by Kathryn Louis, Elizabeth Zimmermann and Mary Hoiser. Now two years old, the company has sold about 40,000 of the new Northblue and Northsky blueberry plants and has orders for 15,000 more next year.

Minn Vitro's recent move from Ms. Hoiser's home to rented quarters in St. Paul more than doubled its production capacity, to 20,000 plants a month. It now has space to hold 50,000 tiny plants, ready for shipping.

Before the university came up with its berries, only wild blueberries had been able to withstand the state's winters.

"The goal of the berry project was to have as many acres planted in blueberries in the state as there are in strawberries now — about 20,000," said Ms. Louis, who, like Ms. Zimmermann, is working toward a doctorate in horticultural science. "They want farmers, especially from the depressed northern part of the state, to start pick-your-own operations."

"You need to plant between 1,200 and 2,000 blueberries per acre. We could see this would mean a big demand for this blueberry, and someone would have to supply it."

The conventional method of plant propagation — chopping up a plant and growing a cutting from each branch — would mean long delays in meeting the demand for the new berry, especially since there were few stock plants from which to take the cuttings. And blueberries don't root well, making conventional propagation even trickier.

The situation looked to the three women like a perfect opportunity for tissue culture, a much faster method that replicated plants from tiny shoot tip cuttings, sterilized and grown in a nutrient medium in test tubes.

Ms. Louis and Ms. Zimmermann had been working with tissue culture for several years at the university in a laboratory managed by Ms. Hoiser, whose undergraduate degree is in horticulture.

Changes in the tissue culture field have been dramatic in recent years. As a result, "we are each a world authority on at least one species of tissue culture," noted Ms. Zimmermann. All three had been doing research and presenting papers and publishing their results.

"We realized after talking to one another that we all secretly wanted to start making money doing it," said Ms. Hoiser. "We talked about it and talked about it and talked about it, and finally we just said, 'Let's do it.'"

Minn Vitro is one of about a dozen companies licensed by the university to propagate the plants for sale under a royalty arrangement, said Jim Luby, assistant professor in the horticulture department.

TRACTORCADE — A convoy of tractors and farm trucks makes its way east on Interstate 84 near Boise, Idaho, last week during a three-day "tractorcade" to call attention to economic problems in Idaho agriculture. The tractorcade began Tuesday with a rally in front of the Idaho Capitol, where about a thousand pounds of potatoes were dumped. (AP Laserphoto)

COMMERCIAL HORTICULTURE SEMINAR

Various economic horticultural crops will be discussed Friday, January 24 in Pampa at the Clyde Carruth Livestock Pavilion. The program features seven Extension specialists and an area forester with the Texas Forest Service.

The day-long program begins with registration, coffee and donuts at 8 a.m. Discussions start at 8:30 with a review of Economic Analysis of Selected Horticultural Crops by Steve Amosson, Extension economist-management, Amarillo. From 9 to 10, Vegetable Production Possibilities will be reviewed by Roland Roberts, Extension vegetable specialist, Lubbock.

Fruit Production Possibilities will be discussed by George Ray McEachern, Extension horticulturist, College Station. His presentation will cover peaches, apples, grapes and pecans. The last morning session from 11 to 11:30 will cover Horticultural Crop Disease Prevention and Control by Robert Berry, Extension pathologist, Lubbock.

Following a noon lunch break, the program resumes at 1 p.m. when Robert Fewin, area forester, Texas Forest Service, Lubbock, will discuss Christmas Tree Production Possibilities. At 1:45, Fertility Needs of Horticultural Crops will be reviewed by Michael Hickey, Extension soil chemist, Lubbock.

Irrigation Practices for Horticultural Crops will be discussed at 2:30 p.m. by Leon New, Extension irrigation specialist, Amarillo. The final session, from 3:15 to 3:45, will cover Horticultural Insect Control by Carl Patrick, Extension entomologist, Amarillo.

Individuals interested in learning about any type of horticultural crop or economic enterprise are invited to attend all or any part of this seminar program. This program is sponsored by the Gray County Extension office in cooperation with local Extension Program Building Committees — Horticulture and Agriculture. These committees wanted to give area residents the opportunity to learn how various horticultural crops-enterprises could fit into our local farm economy. Many of these horticultural possibilities may be better suited for the sandy land located below the High Plains area.

The sessions will be fairly informal and there will be ample time for individual questions and assistance during the day. There will be concurrent sessions on Landscape Horticultural subjects.

The other sessions will be in another meeting room and involving the same speakers on landscape related subjects. Copies of the entire day-long program are available in the Gray County Extension Office.

SEMINAR FOR LAND BUYING
A special seminar on "Buying More Farmland" will be held January 28, 1986, at the Holiday Inn North, San Antonio, 9:30-4.

The seminar is designed to explore the "best" way of buying more land for Texas farms and ranches, says Dr. Wayne Hayenga, economist and attorney with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System. Even if there is not a "best way", maybe we can keep people from making mistakes that were common in the past.

Discussions will center on economies of scale, projecting cash flows, financing alternatives and tax planning.

Farm purchase agreements include many clauses, notes Hayenga, and many of these will be discussed at the seminar. Benefits and restrictions to both sellers and buyers will be addressed.

One major consideration is projecting income from both the existing operation and the additional land. Dr. Ken Stokes, Extension economist from Dallas will discuss this topic.

Financing alternatives will be covered. Price and interest trade-offs will be calculated with a look at the tax situation of both the buyer and seller.

Ways to take title to the new farm to save both income and estate taxes will be the highlight of the afternoon program.

This is the first time Extension is hosting this program. As many Texas farmers and ranchers are thinking about selling land because of the current financial situation, others will want to buy the land. We hope to help buyers buy the land "right."

A registration fee of $75 will be charged, which includes the cost of meals and materials. For registration information call the Gray County Extension office at 669-7429.

Farm production falls in China during 1985

WASHINGTON (AP) — China's farmers, like their American counterparts, are seeing some changes in national policy that are affecting production and prices.

A report in the Agriculture Department's latest Farmland magazine says that Chinese farm production dropped in 1985 for the first time since 1980. Production had jumped 49 percent the previous six years.

Part of the reason for last year's decline was blamed on weather, particularly flooding in the northeast part of China, according to USDA economist Fred Suris.

"But there was also a significant reduction in the government incentives that had stimulated grain and cotton production in the first place," he said.

The incentives were actually guarantees, including a promise by the government to buy whatever crops Chinese farmers had to sell, at set prices. Between 1978 and 1983, the average prices for grains and cotton rose by 50 percent.

Baby who spent life in hospital can't go home

By MAUD S. BEELMAN
Associated Press Writer

DANVILLE, Pa. (AP) — Tiny 16-month-old Megan Demchak, whose life began 12 weeks prematurely and has been a struggle ever since, is a classic medical "Catch-22," her doctors say.

The 11-pound-5-ounce, 24½-inch baby has spent her entire life in the hospital, trying to recuperate from the severe lung problems associated with her premature birth. Finally, she is well enough to go home.

However, because doctors were able to wean Megan from the breathing machine that kept her alive for a year, neither federal nor state money will cover the cost of her at-home care.

Megan is one of thousands of so-called "high-tech" children — no one is sure of the exact number though one national organization estimates there are about 10,000. Their lives are literally dependent on medicine's machines, but because public funds don't generally cover their at-home care, they remain hospitalized at a higher cost. Only about 10 states have programs in place to deal with the issue, officials say.

Several bills introduced in Congress are trying to address the problem, including one that calls for flexible use of public money to allow for home care when it can be proved equal to or cheaper than the hospital. But none of that helps Megan.

For Megan, the red tape means more of the only life she's known.

For Megan's mother, 21-year-old Maryellen Demchak, it means about 18 more months of sleeping in waiting-room lounge chairs and shuttling the 53 miles between her home and the Geisinger Medical Center. The trip that brings her together with Megan separates her from her 3-year-old son, David.

Miss Demchak, a single mother, supports her family on $493 a month in welfare and food stamps. She can't afford home care, and Megan's doctor says releasing a child with a tracheostomy and no at-home nursing help is a risk.

"It's becoming a very, very recurring theme, not just here but all across America. ... we have the ability to take care of these kids at home at a more cost-effective way of doing it," said Dr. Stephen Wolf, Megan's physician.

Megan's hospital bill so far is about $550,000 and growing daily.

The bill is expected to be a minimum of $225,000 a year from now on, the hospital said.

By contrast, Megan's home care would cost between $36,000 to $49,000 a year, depending on the duration and intensity of care, said Sandy Wright, the hospital social worker assigned to Megan's case.

Home care would include the liquid oxygen that feeds through the hole in Megan's throat helping her to breathe, a heart monitor and other equipment and a fulltime nurse. Wolf anticipates Megan will need this care about 18 more months.

But Pennsylvania's Medicaid program doesn't cover the cost of a heart monitor and nursing, the bulk of home-care costs. Although the state Department of Public Welfare has agreed to compromise on the $3,000 monitor, it turned down the private-duty nursing request and an appeal is pending, said Denise Niedzielski, the Legal Services attorney handling Miss Demchak's request for exceptional medical expenditures.

TOO WELL TO GO HOME — Tiny 16-month-old Megan Demchak has spent her entire life in the hospital, trying to recover from the severe lung problems of a 12-week premature birth. Now that doctors are finally ready to release her, she can't go home. The little girl doesn't qualify for federal or state funding for at-home care and her mother, Maryellen, can't afford the necessary nurses and equipment on her welfare income. (AP Laserphoto)

Threat of suits forces border maternity hospital to close

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Newark Maternity Hospital, a one-story structure where thousands of babies have been born since 1921, will close in August unless a new owner can be found, officials said.

Concern over the possibility of costly lawsuits prompted the United Methodist Church's decision to close Newark, where many Mexican mothers over the years have come in hopes their offspring will have U.S. citizenship.

"This hospital at one time delivered more babies than all the other hospitals put together," administrator Gretchen Srigley Seitsinger said Thursday.

Seitsinger estimated that 60 percent of the approximately 1,500 babies born annually at Newark have Mexican mothers.

Asked if American citizenship for the babies born in the El Paso was the reason the mothers chose Newark, she said, "I think good care and citizenship. I don't think anyone doubts that the medical care in Mexico is very substandard to what we have here."

Seitsinger acknowledged that the hospital had been criticized by church members for being in "the business of making citizens."

"But when you're doing mission work, like I am, it doesn't start in the middle of the river," she said.

City-County Health District director Laurance Nickey has been working with missionary zeal himself to find a way to keep Newark open. He fears that without Newark, mothers will turn to alternatives that offer inferior care.

A brain-damaged baby that becomes a ward of the state costs $1.25 million over a 50-year period.

Mother of joined twins says ordeal made her appreciate her family more

By MARIBETH JONES
Beaumont Enterprise

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — Ashleigh Petry is a typical 1-year-old girl — curious, determined, ticklish — a portrait in yellow organdy.

Some people think she is spoiled, says her mother, Wanda, because she fights being left alone in her playpen or her bed.

But the experienced mother of six knows spoiled when she sees it, and Ashleigh isn't, she says. The baby just knows from her earliest prenatal memory, she never was alone. In that sense, she is anything but typical.

"I think she remembers that," Mrs. Petry said. "They were together for nine months, face to face."

Ashleigh and her sister, Alma, were born Nov. 26, 1984, joined at the abdomen. Surgeons at Galveston's University of Texas Medical Branch separated the twins, who shared a larger-than-normal liver, in an 18-hour operation. Both babies, healthy and hefty at birth, did well for a while.

But Alma, whose incision proved more severe than her sister's, never managed to breathe well on her own. When she turned 8 months old, doctors operated to tighten her incision, and more breathing problems resulted. Surgeons operated again to lessen the strain, but it proved too much for Alma's heart. She died shortly after surgery.

The birth made headlines from Texas to Saudi Arabia, said Mrs. Petry, 34. She says she turned down interviews with Time magazine and The Ladies' Home Journal, in addition to some sensational tabloids. For three days after the birth, Mrs. Petry and her husband, Joseph, asked to remain anonymous.

"I didn't want all the hoopla," she said. "I wanted Ashleigh and Alma to grow up normally."

Eventually the couple ended their anonymity, but the stress affected Mrs. Petry, who began to suffer from ulcers and high blood pressure. She says now she "tried too hard to hold it all in."

She didn't want to get too close to the babies; a loss then would be devastating. But she could not ignore the guilt that consumed her between twice-monthly visits.

She worried about not going to Galveston when Alma was having surgery (She had four separate operations.)

AIDS increasing, but not as fast

ATLANTA (AP) — AIDS, while still on the increase, appears to be slowing down, federal health officials say.

The national Centers for Disease Control said that 16,458 cases of acquired immune deficiency syndrome have been reported in the United States since 1981. Of those, 8,406 were reported last year, 84 percent more than the year before.

But that increase was slower than the 115 percent jump from 1983 to 1984, which was less than the 184 percent jump from 1982 to 1983.

"Further increases are expected for 1986," the CDC said in its weekly report. "However, the percentage increase in 1986 is likely to be smaller than that noted in 1985."

The pace at which the AIDS case count is increasing has been slowing since 1982. At that time, the number of reported cases was doubling every five months, compared with 11 months presently.

Sixty-five percent of all U.S. AIDS cases have occurred among homosexual or bisexual men, with an additional 8 percent occurring in gay or bisexual men who used injectable drugs. Seventeen percent occurred in other injectable drug users, 2 percent in recipients of blood transfusions or blood products, 1 percent in hemophiliacs and 1 percent in sexual partners of people with AIDS or at high risk of having it.

AIDS cases have been reported in people who became ill as much as seven years after being infected.
