U.S. to flex muscles near Libya

WASHINGTON (AP)—Two U.S. aircraft carriers steamed southward today toward Libya with their jet fighters prepared to demonstrate American resolve to operate in the area.

The Navy confirmed Thursday it had notified civilian air-traffic control officials in the Libyan capital of Tripoli that "carrier flight operations" would be conducted periodically off the coast in "international air space" through Jan. 31.

White House officials denied the United States was trying to provoke a military confrontation with Libya and its leader, Col.

Muammar Khadafy, whom President Reagan has accused of supporting Palestinian terrorist groups.

Pentagon sources agreed the moves in no way presaged plans for a retaliatory strike against Libya for last month's terrorist attacks in Rome and Vienna.

But another source within the Pentagon, when asked about the U.S. plans, said: "You could look at it as thumbing our nose at Khadafy and telling him that we consider this international airspace and if he wants to make something of it, come on out and try."

The exercise, added another source, is intended to demonstrate the United States will not be intimidated by an increased Soviet naval presence in the region, nor by Khadafy's decision to place his own military forces on alert and to pledge continuing support for Palestinian terrorists.

"It's asserting the right to passage in international airspace, with plenty of notice to everyone in advance of our peaceful intent," said one source, who, like the others, spoke only on condition of anonymity.

The source noted the Navy had conducted similar flights off the Libyan coast in January 1985. Those flights prompted Khadafy to charge the United States was preparing to invade.

Another source said the flight operations had been approved earlier in the week by the National Security Council "as a warning that we're not forgetting these terrorist attacks. We know what Khadafy has done and we want him to know we're prepared to respond."

As the carriers Saratoga and Coral Sea moved southward through the central Mediterranean on Thursday, a key — and unanswered — question was how far south their fighters would fly during the next week.

The Libyan coast line is indented in the middle by the U-shaped Gulf of Sidra, a body of water more than 100 miles in length that Libya claims as its own. The United States refuses to recognize that claim, asserting Libyan territorial waters extend only 12 miles offshore.

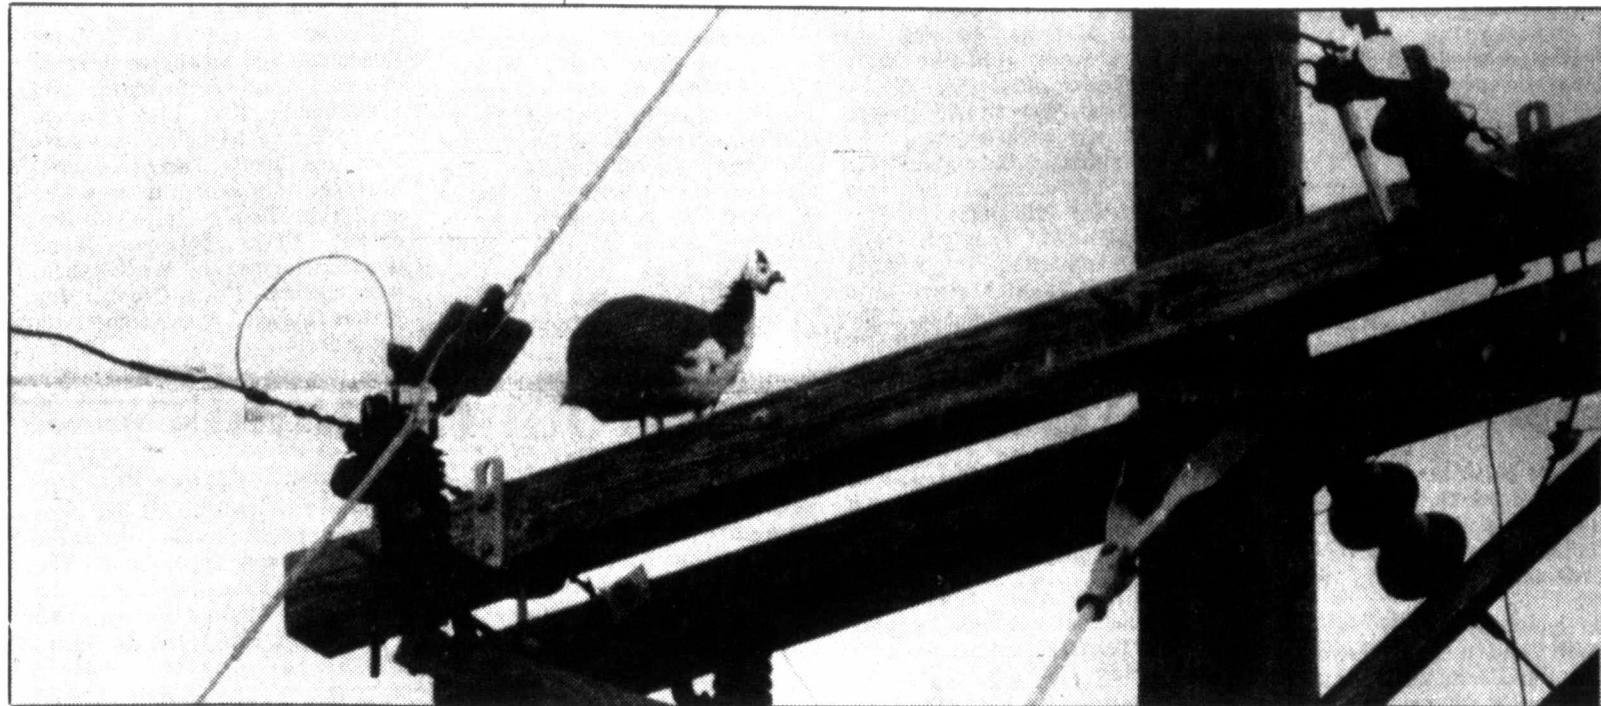

The last time U.S. and Libyan forces engaged in combat was over the Gulf of Sidra in August 1981 when two Libyan fighters attacked two Navy F-14s. The attackers were shot down by the American planes.

The fighters aboard the Saratoga and Coral Sea could operate close to the Libyan coast without ever flying over the disputed waters of the gulf, however, and it remained unclear just what was planned.

Publicly, the Pentagon said no aircraft sorties were planned over the Gulf of Sidra. But another source refused to rule out such flights, suggesting it might depend on the Libyan response.

In the meantime, it became clear Thursday evening that U.S. forces in the Mediterranean were at an unusual high state of readiness. One administration official said the United States had informed the Soviet Union through diplomatic channels the situation was touchy and urged caution.

WANDERING FOWL—You don't usually see a bird like this flitting around in downtown Pampa. But this fowl was flitting from pole to pole along West Atchison in the early morning hours this week. It is a guinea, a West African fowl that some people raise domestically. How it got downtown and where it went from here are not known. (Staff photo by Terry Ford)

Lake restoration plan hits setbacks

A proposal for rehabilitation of the former lake at Recreation Park has received some setbacks because of the unavailability of federal funding.

Parks and Recreation Department Director Reed Kirkpatrick told members of the Parks and Recreation Advisory Board at their meeting Thursday that he had called several government agencies, but apparently no federal funds are currently available for lake restoration projects.

The board in December had recommended that the city pursue restoration of the lake to create a new recreation area at the site east of the city.

Kirkpatrick said there might be some state funds for parks development, "but that wouldn't help the lake development there."

He also said a suggestion that a frisbee golf course be located at the lake site has encountered some difficulties since no companies are presently manufacturing the materials for such a course.

Kirkpatrick discussed some of the engineering problems involved in restoring the lake and the breeched dam. These would include dredging the bottom of the lake site, checking the soil for pollutants, removing trees from the dam site and repairing the dam.

"We're apparently up against a lot" in efforts to restore the lake at this time, he said.

But Kirkpatrick said he was still investigating other avenues of funding and other alternatives.

In other matters, the board recommended names for two park sites and tabled action on another park.

The board recommended that a presently unnamed and undeveloped park site along Red Deer Creek in the east section of the city be named Evergreen Park since it's generally a continuation of a nearby developed park area.

A small, developed park at 16th and Evergreen was recommended to be named 16th Street Park.

The board tabled action on naming a triangular tract at Perryton Parkway and Coffee. The board has considered developing the small park site as a memorial park, with the possibility of locating a statue or sculpture at the site.

Kirkpatrick said the department currently is working on plans for three other park sites: North Crest Park, Aspen Park and the area around Water Pump Station No. 1.

He said plans are being completed for the North Crest Park, approved last year for development. Playground equipment will be installed on the east side of the park, including a wooden climber, spring animals and a merry-go-round, at a total cost of $5,500. Kirkpatrick said the Pampa Rotary Club will be paying for a majority of the cost of the playground equipment as a club project.

Other improvements at the site will include installation of a water sprinkler system, park benches and trees.

Kirkpatrick said the city had received a check from the Pampa Fine Arts Association for nearly $3,300 for 25 benches at Aspen Park. He said 15 to 20 benches will be located in front of the current park shelter, which will serve as an amphitheater-type structure for the performing arts. Other benches will be placed near the wading pool and in other areas of the park.

At the water pump site at Hobart and Ward, the department will be overseeing the dismantling of three water storage tanks. Restoration plans are being developed for the old pumphouse, deemed a historical structure, Kirkpatrick said. A water fountain, which had been located at the site but discontinued in use, will be

TRICIA NELL BRADSTREET

Local woman is re-indicted on sexual assault charges

At about the same time a Pampa mother of four was being arrested on city traffic warrants Thursday, a 31st district grand jury was re-indicting her on a sexual assault charge.

Tricia Nell Bradstreet, 30, 1117 E. Francis, was indicted on a charge of aggravated sexual assault of a child for allegedly allowing her nine-year-old daughter to be molested for money by John B. Zuerker, 75, 344 N. Wynne.

Bradstreet is already scheduled to be sentenced Monday on a related compelling prostitution charge after being found guilty by 31st District Judge Grainger McIlhany on Christmas Eve.

McIlhany threw out an earlier aggravated sexual assault charge on a legal technicality. He cited a faulty indictment because the indictment did not make clear the youngster was not related to Zuerker.

However he found her guilty of the compelling prostitution charge and ordered a probation department study before sentencing. His decision came after two days of testimony, concluding on Christmas Eve.

On Thursday's indictment, McIlhany set bond at $5,000.

Bradstreet is currently in the City Jail after being arrested Thursday on an unrelated set of Pampa city warrants, alleging no insurance, no drivers license and failure to appear in municipal court.

The grand jury indicted three other women after being impounded Thursday. Ronda Jean Cumpston, 17, was indicted on a charge of aggravated perjury, after admitting that she lied under oath when she charged her grandfather, Clyde L. Davis, with molesting her. McIlhany set bond at $1,500.

Also indicted Thursday were LeVonne Marie Gryder on a charge of delivery of marijuana ($10,000 bond) and Carolyn S. Luna, driving while intoxicated - third offense ($1,000 bond).

Salvage yard owner says guilty verdict 'sneak attack'

A lawyer for Crossroads Auto Salvage, 120 S. Hobart, called a legal maneuver that left his client both surprised and $100,000 poorer a "sneak attack."

"I'm not real sure that that's the way you do things in the United States," Amarillo attorney Phil Jordan said, responding to a guilty verdict returned against the auto salvage business on two counts of unlawful use of a criminal instrument after an agent of the company failed to show up for arraignment. "We have procedures for notifying defendants of their trial date."

223rd District Judge Don Cain found Crossroads Auto Salvage guilty and fined the company $100,000 Tuesday after a company representative failed to show up for an arraignment within the amount of time specified, Assistant District Attorney David Hamilton said.

The company is owned by Woody Mitchell, 1105 Christine, who was arrested Christmas Eve in connection with a suspected auto theft ring stretching from the Panhandle to the Dallas - Fort Worth area.

But Jordan said he received a letter from District Clerk Mary Clark in mid-January informing him that the case had been docketed for trial the week of Feb. 10. He said he has been out of town for several days, only to return and find the trial already had been held.

Jordan said he has not yet decided how to respond to the judgment. He said he may appeal the decision or ask Cain not to follow through with the action.

Official quizzed on teacher tests

BY PAUL PINKHAM
Staff Writer

A state board of education member predicted Thursday that 99 percent of all teachers in West Texas will pass upcoming TECAT competency tests for teachers.

Dr. Paul C. Dunn, state board member from Levelland, told about 50 members of the Pampa Classroom Teachers Association that he thinks West Texas teachers are of a better caliber than those in the valley or near the coast. He said the experts estimate about 12.5 percent will fail the test statewide, but he predicted a much lower percentage of failures in West Texas.

The local teachers organization listed the Texas Examination for Current Administrators and Teachers, scheduled for March 10, as one of its major concerns with the sweeping education reform act, Texas House Bill 72.

Ray Thornton, principal at Woodrow Wilson

Elementary, drew applause from the group when he pointed out that his teaching certificate says permanent, but now the state can take that certificate away with a test. Thornton also said an "enormous amount" of state funds are being spent on "something negative."

Dunn, a dentist and former Levelland Independent School Board member whose state district extends south to Odessa and east to Childress, said the state board realizes there will never be a test that can measure how well a teacher motivates, loves or teaches a student.

"The board is also aware there's some very poor teachers out there that can knock the top off of any test you give them and there are some very fine teachers that just freeze up on tests," he said.

But, he added, the board has been told by the Legislature that it "shall" devise a test measuring basic literacy. Most people who have already taken the test describe it as not that difficult, he said. The test will be given three more times in the next year for teachers that fail, he added.

Dunn said he has heard from a number of teachers that the fun has gone out of teaching in recent years. He said he thinks once the TECAT test is over, "we'll settle down and have fun."

Another teacher asked what guarantee teachers have they will not be tested again under a future governor.

Dunn replied there is no guarantee and that is one of the problems of being subject to political changes. He urged the teachers to become more coordinated as a political action committee, in order to make their voice heard in Austin.

Another concern voiced by the teachers was that trying to teach all the subjects required in House Bill 72 was giving students "a little bit of everything but not much of anything."

State to honor Groom schools

AUSTIN — It's not always that state education officials can find nice things to say about local school districts.

But Groom High School will receive such an accolade Tuesday as the Texas Education Agency commends the school for its success at University Interscholastic League academic contests.

Groom is one of 175 districts which will be recognized by State Board of Education Chairman Jon Brumley during the opening session of the Mid-Winter Administrators Advisory Conference on Education. The TEA is recognizing school districts where students have won regional, state or national academic honors in the 1985 school year. This is the first year the TEA has made such commendations.

"I think it shows we have our priorities in the right place," said Groom superintendent Rex Peoples. "Academics are first and everything else falls back in line."

"I'll be sitting in a special section and stand up when our school district is called," he said, adding that the school will be commended for its success at the UIL State Academic and Literary Contest in April.

At the state contest, Groom's Karen Britten, now news editor of the Tigers Tale student newspaper, took first place in newswriting; Carmel York took fourth place in editorial writing and Jami Duke was a finalist in poetry. Jeannette Homer and Becky England also qualified for state in journalism competitions. Groom High School swept District and Regional competitions that year.
TEA spokesperson Betty Defoe said that not only will state UIL achievers be recognized, but also winners of such competitions as the National Merit Scholarship, the Texas Mock Trial Association, the Academic Decathlon and Pentathlon, NASA and the Texas Historical Contest. Only achievement in academics, not music or sports, will be noted.

Although the TEA plans to recognize National Merit Scholars, Canadian High School, which had the Panhandle's only Merit Scholar, Charles Hernandez, and had a poetry winner in State UIL competition, has not received any notice on whether or not it will be honored as well.

"These are the schools that need to be complimented on their good work," Defoe said. "There are a lot of good schools out there. We just don't hear from them very much."

Lake project

rehabilitated and put back into use, he said.

The wooden structure around the well-water pump facility will be replaced with an aluminum structure to make it "more secure and pleasing in appearance," Kirkpatrick said. Lights also will be installed.

The park will be intended as a "passive area," he explained. "We don't want to encourage children playing there" because of the high traffic area. But two benches probably will be placed in the park and landscaping work will be done to make it aesthetically pleasing, he said.

The parks crews have been taking advantage of the unseasonably warm weather recently to do some work at Hobart Street Park. Kirkpatrick said. The crews have been doing some repainting, working on extending areas of the ballfield and repairing the backstop and sprinkler system. Tree trimming and work on the hike and bike trails have been curtailed to allow the work at Hobart, but those projects will begin again soon, he said. The trails will be cleaned, with soil sterilant sprayed to keep the grass from encroaching on the trails, Kirkpatrick explained. The trails will be resurfaced next year, under current budget plans, he said.

He said the department also hopes to begin renovation work soon at Marcus Sanders Pool.

Recreation Coordinator Jackie Harper reported a stained glass recreation class will be rescheduled for the latter part of February. A ceramics class will begin on Feb. 20.

In other matters, the board discussed the upcoming summer recreation program and concession facilities at Hobart Street Park.

Teacher

One teacher said the requirements do not allow her to teach enough reading to elementary students and force her to "go too much by the clock."

Dunn said he could understand the problem because he volunteered to teach a first grade class in Canadian. Calling it a learning experience, he said at 10 a.m. he began to teach a 9:30 spelling lesson.

"There's 15 words those children will never learn because we never got to them," he said.
Dunn said state Sen. Carl Parker (D - Port Arthur) has challenged all state legislators to teach a class.

Other concerns addressed at the 90-minute meeting included the no pass, no play law, tutorials, the career ladder and added paperwork for teachers.
Dunn said no pass, no play, if nothing else, has brought awareness to students that "academics are a little more important than they used to be." He said he thinks state leaders will take a long, hard look at the rule after the current school year to see what changes need to be made.

State Rep. Foster Whaley, also in attendance, said earlier he thinks some "fine tuning" is needed in the rule.
Thornton said he thinks the rule is discriminatory against students who choose to participate in extracurricular activities. Another teacher said he thinks it is unfair because the standards are tougher for no pass, no play than they are for passing to the next grade.
"Whose to say music is less important than, say, history in our society?" another teacher asked.

Legislature to decide who pays for prison

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Department of Corrections has been told to go ahead with plans to build a new prison unit but to let the 1987 Legislature decide who pays for it.

The compromise to previously announced TDC plans was announced Thursday at a meeting of the Legislative Budget Board, with Gov. Mark White, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and Speaker Gib Lewis giving their approval.

However, both White and Hobby said they would keep looking for other ways of financing the multimillion-dollar prison expansion without a lease-purchase agreement, as the prison board first proposed.

"We have been told that it (lease-purchase of new prison unit) is constitutional, but we have doubts that this was what the authors envisioned when they drafted the 'pay-as-you-go' provision of the Texas constitution," Hobby said after a half-hour meeting of the Budget Board.

"Gov. White, Speaker Lewis and I will continue to work with the prison board in hopes of finding other ways to deal with this dilemma," Hobby said.

The alternative presented the LBB called for the TDC to sign a "turnkey" contract with a private firm to build a new maximum security prison unit on prison land, plus 10 new low security dormitories, to relieve overcrowding. There would be no payment for construction until June 15, 1987, after it was built.

"This will allow the 1987 Legislature (which meets in January) to decide whether to pay for the building or to agree to a lease-purchase plan for the next two years," said Alfred Hughes, chairman of the TDC board.

Last week, Hughes said the TDC board had decided to build the new prison units on a lease-purchase plan, signing a two-year lease on the estimated $118 million project with an option to buy.

The 1985 Legislature provided $125 million for the new construction, provided the prison system could sell some of its land. The property, near Houston, has been offered for sale twice without any takes. State officials still have hopes the land will provide enough money for the new unit after economic conditions improve in the Houston area.

Hughes said Thursday the cost had been pared to about $95.5 million, plus the cost of a private firm financing the construction. He predicted the builder getting the contract would be able to borrow the construction money at less than prime bank interest rates.

Hughes stressed that construction of the new maximum security unit in East Texas must begin soon in order to meet federal court orders against overcrowding.

Former drug agent tries to discredit principal's defense

LIVINGSTON, Texas (AP) — Prosecutors have tried to discredit a defense attorney's theory that a junior high school football coach was murdered by underworld assassins and not the school principal charged in the death.

Hurley Fontenot, 48, former principal at Hull-Daisetta Woodson Junior High School, is on trial for the April 12 shooting of Billy Mac Fleming, 36, who coached and taught math and science at the school.

Both had dated and wanted to marry Laura Nugent, the 36-year-old school secretary, prosecutors contend.

Fleming's body was found 10 days later off an old logging road near this tiny East Texas community. He had been shot twice in the back of the head with a .22-caliber gun.

Defense attorney Dick DeGuerin suggested that Fleming's death might be drug related. DeGuerin noted the coach was found without shoes and socks, "a curious similarity in such dope-related executions."

Liberty County sheriff's investigator Jimmy Belt had testified he had heard of such a practice but had no first-hand knowledge.

However, Belt said investigators had found a white powder believed to be cocaine in Fleming's apartment. Belt also acknowledged he had heard that Fleming might have been involved with a man identified as a drug dealer.

But Montgomery County Attorney Jim Dozier told the 10-woman, two-man jury on Thursday that he had never heard that leaving a victim without shoes and socks is a style or trademark of a drug-related killing.

Dozier, a former U.S. Customs Service officer who worked as an undercover narcotics agent, testified as an expert witness for the prosecution.

DeGuerin tried to keep Dozier from testifying, noting he was not on the prosecution's list of potential witnesses and was a former co-worker of prosecutor Peter Speers.

Dozier said he just happened to be in the Polk County courthouse and Speers asked him about the shoes-and-socks controversy.

White says he will debate

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Mark White says he should be no question about his willingness to debate fellow Democratic gubernatorial candidates this year.

"We'll be pleased to debate them," White told his weekly news conference Thursday, saying the only problem is when to schedule the confrontation.

Earlier this week, White campaign chairman John Fainter wrote the League of Women voters to decline their offer for a debate before the May 3 primary.

"Gov. White's state schedule is particularly heavy throughout the primary period, and we do not feel a debate during these months would be a productive commitment of the governor's time," Fainter's letter said.

But White, who last year promised to debate any Democratic or Republican candidates, said Thursday that the letter was sent because the league's acceptance deadline was too early for his campaign to decide on a date.

"We just couldn't set it up on their schedule. We'll be glad to set it up on a convenient schedule," he said. "I'm going to be willing to debate candidates who have serious issues in this campaign to discuss."

White's comments followed a news conference by Democratic challenger Andrew Briscoe, who said the governor owes it to voters "to clarify the differences" between himself and other candidates.

"Texans aren't as proud of Mark White's record as he is. And I welcome the opportunity to debate him," Briscoe said.

In other political developments: — State Treasurer Ann Richards, saying her office has earned an extra $117 million for the state, announced she will seek a second term.

"That's $117 million that didn't come from our taxpayers. The money is largely from additional interest earned from investing state funds at market rates," she said.

Ms. Richards, a Democrat first elected in 1982, also said her policies have saved $1.13 billion in state expenses through more efficient Treasury practices, competitive bidding on a computer and increased efficiency in state agencies the Treasury has helped with cash management.

— U.S. Rep. Jake Pickle, who has represented central Texas in Congress since 1963, said he will seek another term.

Pickle, a Democrat who entered politics in 1942 as a secretary to Lyndon B. Johnson, has faced only two serious challenges since going to Congress. He defeated Larry Bales in the 1974 Democratic primary, getting 67.2 percent of the vote, and he defeated Republican John Biggar in 1980 with 59.1 percent.

— Dallas Court of Appeals Judge Charles Ben Howell declared himself a Republican candidate for the Texas Supreme Court.

Bentsen: oil price drop could hurt conservation, revive OPEC HOUSTON (AP) — U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen says he fears the sharp decline in oil prices may cause Americans to forget about energy conservation and allow the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries to regain control of the oil market.

"My deepest concern is that as they further go down, the people will go back to being wasteful like before 1973," Bentsen said Thursday at a news conference. "No question, the oil glut is temporary. The question is: How long?"

"What you want is some stability in prices," he said.

Bentsen is proposing a floating fee on imported crude oil that would keep the price in the United States in the $22-$24 per barrel range.

If the actual price of oil dropped below that level, revenue gained by the fee could offset dollars lost because of recently approved balanced-budget legislation, he said. Each $1-per-barrel fee annually would contribute $1 billion to the U.S. Treasury.

"If you had a $5 tax, you'd have $5 billion of revenue," he said.

The oil price futures market has shown signs of settling at levels near $20 a barrel, following a week-long trading frenzy that left prices for crude at their lowest levels in six years.

Prices have been driven downward since November as producing nations, determined to hang on to their share of the market, have pumped more oil than the world has needed.

In late November, a barrel of West Texas Intermediate — the benchmark U.S. crude — cost $31.70 on the New York Mercantile Exchange. The spot price Wednesday was $20.90, down 34 percent from November and off 17 percent in barely more than a week.

Already, he said, the government has moved to relax automobile mileage standards.

Bentsen insisted his sentiments were not provincial, since he represents an oil-producing state like Texas.

"Concern is growing around the country," he said. "The financial institutions in the Northeast — they too are concerned."

The Texas Democrat said he has taken his import fee proposal to Treasury Secretary James Baker and White House Chief of Staff Donald Regan.

"They didn't say 'Hell, no!' so that's encouraging," Bentsen said.

The senator said the White House would be forced to look for new money sources because of the budget-balancing law.

"You're going to see such a crunch in the '87 budget," he predicted. "We have a problem of correcting some $60 billion. That's going to be exceedingly difficult."

"We're going to have a difficult and arduous session."

Aluminum Goddess will stand on dome

AUSTIN (AP) — The duplicate Goddess of Liberty statue that will be returned to the Capitol dome this year will be cast from Texas-made aluminum.

The Alcoa Foundation announced Thursday a grant of $118,000 to help defray expenses of casting a new statue.

In addition, the Texas PTA on Thursday presented the state with a check for $37,206 to help cover the costs of restoring the original, weather-damaged Goddess statue that was removed from the dome in November.

The original 1½-ton zinc Goddess, which when atop the dome made the Texas Capitol several feet taller than the nation's Capitol in Washington, was removed because experts said it had become a safety hazard.

State architect Roy Graham said the duplicate statue will be an exact replica of the old Goddess, which will be repaired and put on permanent display in a protected area.

The PTA money was raised in a variety of projects after Gov. Mark White last summer called on schoolchildren to bring a quarter to school for the statue.

"This is one of Texas PTA's statewide Sesquicentennial projects," said Mary Tippin of El Paso, Texas PTA president. "By the middle of January, we had received some 424 separate donations representing thousands of Texas schoolchildren."

John Drake, Texas area manager for the Aluminum Company of America, said the Alcoa Foundation became interested in the statue when Alcoa officials in Texas recommended a grant to cover the cost of metal, casting, fabrication and sculptor's services.

Metal for the new statue will be produced and cast into small ingots at Alcoa's Rockdale, Texas, Works, the company's largest smelter.

Slain man's family had just received damage settlement

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Investigators say they believe the shooting death of an 18-year-old man, found buried in a shallow grave, may be linked to a multi-million dollar damage settlement the victim's family has received.

Bejar County sheriff's deputies staked out the gravesite for more than two days before abandoning their vigil early Wednesday.

They returned about 12 hours later and found the body of John Cruz buried in the hole. Officers said he had been shot in the head at close range.

Sheriff's Sgt. Dalton Baker said authorities are convinced Cruz was killed at the gravesite. He said officers also believe the grave was prepared for Cruz.

"We all feel pretty comfortable that he did know who this person was," Baker said.

The investigator said officers think at least two people were involved in the killing.

Cruz apparently was kidnapped early Wednesday after he left his job at a convenience store, officers said.

His family received two calls demanding ransoms of $26,000 and $30,000, said Lt. Albert Ortiz.

They were told to wait for a third call to arrange a money drop. The call never came. Sheriff's officers said they did not learn of the kidnapping until after they found the body.

Attorney Pat Maloney Jr. said Cruz and his family had begun receiving payments on a $2.4 million damage settlement from a lawsuit.

The suit was filed against a tire manufacturing company after an allegedly defective tire blew on the Cruz family van in Zacatecas, Mexico in 1983.

The van flipped over, killing Cruz's sister Dora and his father Ruben, Maloney said.

Cruz's mother sustained brain damage, the lawyer said.

Family members, Maloney said, have no idea who may have killed John Cruz.

"The terms of the settlement were confidential. I don't know that anybody would have known them. The family was not telling people," Maloney said.

The lawyer said he had talked with Mrs. Cruz last week.

"Everything had finally gotten back on keel," Maloney said. "She said everything was perfect."

Deputies began staking out the gravesite Sunday after it was discovered by children playing in the remote area in South Bejar County.

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Just one route to postal reform

The decision by the board of governors of the U.S. Postal Service to oust Postmaster General Paul Carlin and replace him with former American Airlines chairman Albert Casey is no cause for cheering.

Not that Carlin was a brilliant success. Far from it. He repeatedly resisted the board's efforts to reduce the size of the Postal Service's headquarters staff and the size of its staff at five regional offices. He seems to have preferred pushing resources into the postal service's "Zip-plus 4" program rather than other, possibly more effective, programs. And observers claim he had a hard time making decisions.

Under Carlin the Postal Service has remained true to its traditions. It has remained top-heavy with bureaucracy. It seems to be even less efficient than it used to be. And it has remained fabulously expensive: it lost more than $250 million in the fiscal year that ended this past September. The service is running an operating surplus so far this fiscal year, but this is not the same thing as a profit the way a private business would have to calculate one. And it is due largely, though not solely, to the new first-class postal rate of 22 cents per ounce that took effect early in 1985.

Getting rid of Carlin and moving somebody else into his job, however, will accomplish nothing in the way of fundamental reform. The Postal Service's problems with bureaucracy and inefficiency do not stem from any one individual's management style. They stem from the system's monopoly status.

As long as the private-express statutes guarantee the U.S. Postal Service a monopoly on the delivery of first-class mail, the Service will have no consistently effective incentive to keep costs down. Whatever its cost are, they can be passed along to the customers in the form of higher postage rates, and the customer will have no choice but to pay them. Any further costs can be charged to the taxpayers, who also have no choice but to pay.

As for quality of service, if the Postal Service's customers aren't pleased, let them take their business elsewhere. What? You say there's nowhere else for them to go? Then they'll just have to be pleased with whatever they get.

Dissatisfaction with this state of affairs has at long last reached high places. White House budget director James C. Miller II has gone on record in favor of turning all mail delivery over to private enterprise. That sort of reform would go much farther toward solving our problems with the mail than shuffling bureaucrats from office to office.

Bears master video age

If I've heard it once, I've heard it a thousand times. The Chicago Bears are "throwbacks to the old Monsters of the Midway," blares Newsweek. "A throwback to the storied past," exults Sports Illustrated.

The team is supposed to embody the city. TV sportscasters can never get through one of those future segments on the Bears without dredging up Carl Sandburg's threadbare lines about their hometown: "stormy, husky, brawling, city of the big shoulders." The Tribune saw their victory over Los Angeles in the conference title game as "pure Chicago: a motley bunch of alley fighters mugging some glittering superstars from Tinseltown."

Give me a break, folks. If these guys are throwbacks, I'm Cyndi Lauper. Would Bulldog Turner have been featured in Rolling Stone magazine? Would Bronko Nagurski have endorsed hair mousse? Would Dick Butkus have done the Super Bowl Shuffle?

The Bears have as much in common with those guys in the leather helmets and high-top cleats as the space shuttle has with the Hindenburg. Try to imagine what Papa Bear Halas would have made of a player like Willie Gault, who appears in the hit video uttering lines like, "I'm as sweet as a chocolate swirl."

So who are the Tinseltown superstars? Quick: Name one guy who plays defense for the Rams.

Stumped? OK, give me a wide receiver. No? Fine - try to come up with a running back whose name isn't Dickerson. See what I mean? If you want glitter, try Soldier Field.

Chicagoans may not want to hear it, but the Bears don't fit the old-fashioned, working-class stereotype. Truth is, they're the prototype of the team of the future, famous as much for their McDonald's commercials, 300-pound ballcarriers and avant-garde hair styles as for their winning record.

The Dallas Cowboys dreamed of being America's Team, but when it comes to using the mass media to capture the nation's heart, they were Richard Nixon with a five o'clock shadow. The Bears are Ronald Reagan, masters of the video age. Lots of teams go to the Super Bowl. How many make the Billboard charts?

Sure, the Bears still break an occasional quarterback into eighths, and they've got some guys who would fit in at a Hell's Angels convention. But what are the rest of these teams playing - Scrabble? In the NFL, burly tackles and ferocious linebackers are a dime a dozen. The Oakland Raiders used to win all the time with a team recruited from the Ten Most Wanted List, but they didn't spend all their free time on David Letterman's show.

They, however, weren't marketing geniuses. Who but the Bears could get people to buy a poster featuring their offensive line? They've coined more catchy nicknames than the Mafia - the Junkyard Dogs, Sweetness, Mongo, the Black and Blues Brothers and, of course, the Refrigerator. Until William Perry came along, it was customary for players to become starters before, not after, achieving stardom.

The Bears are the first team to become a full-fledged media phenomenon, on the order of Princess Diana or Halley's Comet. They represent the culmination of the NFL's climb from meager blue-collar origins to riches and glamour. They're entertainers as well as athletes.

Not that they should apologize for it. In an age when journalists get more attention for TV impersonations of squabbling second-graders than for diligent reporting and writing, no one should begrudge some large young men their turn in the spotlight. And if we have to be inundated on some topic, better the Bears than rock star weddings and sexually-transmitted diseases.

Legend has it that Bronko Nagurski once capped a drunken celebration by falling out of a second-story window. Seeing a crowd gather, a policeman ran up and asked, "What's going on?" Replied Nagurski, "Don't know. I just got here myself." Today, Bears don't have to fall out of windows to draw crowds, and they don't have to wonder what's going on.

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Friday, Jan. 24, the 24th day of 1986. There are 341 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On Jan. 24, 1848, James W. Marshall discovered a gold nugget at Sutter's Mill in northern California, a discovery that led to the gold rush of '49.

On this date:

Ten years ago: George Wallace of Alabama defeated Jimmy Carter of Georgia in the Mississippi caucuses, the first contest in the Old South pitting the two former southern governors against each other in the race for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Five years ago: Millions of Polish workers boycotted their jobs in support of a demand by the Solidarity trade union for a five-day workweek.

One year ago: The space shuttle Discovery was launched from Cape Canaveral, Fla., in the first secret military flight of NASA's shuttle program.

Problem with X-rays

One of the major factors escalating the cost of medical care is the doctor's fear that if he omits certain tests he may be sued.

Thus the doctor is likely to order any and all tests - including more than enough X-ray examinations, which may be harmful. Paul Harvey News sounded the earliest of the early warnings about the hazards of X-ray.

Those efforts were specifically successful in getting potentially dangerous X-ray machines removed from children's shoe stores and at last somewhat successful in alerting patients to their responsibility to "say no" to "routine" dental and medical X-rays.

How does one define "routine"? Swallow an open safety-pin, yes; swallow a dime, no.

But as the medical profession became more careful to limit overexposure, each year our understanding of the hazard improved, and the "tolerable limit" of radiation exposure was reduced.

Recently the Wall Street Journal discovered two other factors compounding the risk: faulty X-ray machines and untrained X-ray technicians.

Officials in various states discover that 15 to 50 percent of the machines inspected do not meet patient safety standards.

Most large hospitals check their machines annually, but inspectors say that machines in doctors' offices are likely to be checked only when something goes wrong.

Also, though newer equipment reduces the patient dose to a fraction of what the old machines require, a lot of doctors are still using the outdated equipment they bought 20 years ago.

Thus the amount of radiation to which you are exposed in one chest X-ray may vary more than a hundred-fold.

Further, the FDA confirms that 20 percent of our nation's X-ray operators have no formal training.

You have to be licensed to be a beauty operator in every state. You can operate X-ray equipment with no license in 33 states. In many states, the dentist's receptionist can do it.

Interesting: It is a front-page headline when a nuclear power plant springs a leak - yet Americans voluntarily expose themselves annually to 400 million dental X-rays and 260 million medical X-rays, many or most of which are not necessary and/or not done properly.

Are we still fighting the Redcoats?

There's one question in the furor over "Amerika" that, so far as I've noticed, hasn't been addressed.

"Amerika," as you've likely heard, is the projected ABC-TV miniseries which the Soviets objected to and ABC is having second thoughts about airing. As a result, ABC is also under fire in this country for caving in to pressure and, in effect, allowing the Soviets to censor American airwaves.

So it has been going, but back to my question - or questions. Why such a program in the first place? What is the appeal to the network, and presumably to audiences, of such a downbeat plot having to do with a subjugated United States following a bloodless Soviet takeover?

Correct me if I'm wrong, but aren't we standing tall now? Haven't we freed ourselves from the defeatism of the '70s? Is today's America one to be taken over without a shot in self-defense?

I wouldn't be making so much of this if the "Amerika" incident were isolated. But it's not. It follows two movies with similar concepts - 1984's "Red Dawn" and last year's "Invasion U.S.A." What we appear to have is a trend, one which the television and movie people wouldn't be following if they did not think there were audiences and therefore money in it.

As I said, none of this is being addressed in the "Amerika" debate, so I queried an acquaintance knowledgeable in these matters. He's in the business of writing some of the material that eventually appears on screens and tubes.

To start with, he agrees that the premise of "Amerika" and the movies that preceded it is downbeat, in apparent contradiction to the current national mood. But for a reason.

The picture of a defeated America draws upon the recent past, the post-Vietnam and Tehran-hostage era when many Americans were not feeling so confident about their country. It serves structurally to tell audiences that there is reason to be afraid. Once that situation is set up and captures the audience's attention, the scriptwriter can proceed to save the day.

Which is what happens. These stories, one way or another, have upbeat endings. They use fear to entertain, and that is how it's done. But there's more to the formula and how it is used to manipulate audience fantasies.

"All this takeover kind of stuff," my friend says, "puts us in a position of being right back where we were 200 years ago when we were fighting the Redcoats."

Never mind that the United States is a superpower today; Americans still like to think of themselves as plucky underdogs fighting back against great odds. We're very comfortable with that self-image, says my friend, and scriptwriters accordingly play to it.

The Russians are especially useful in this respect. They provide the clear-cut villain we are always looking for, making it easy to tell the good guys from the bad.

But there's more to it than that, according to my friend. We are also more comfortable with a threat we know than with the one we don't. Americans have seen Russians as "the enemy" since the end of World War II. But while we have been conditioned to fear the Russians, we are also to an extent reassured by them because we know they are opponents to whom we can at least talk.

Unlike the newer enemy we are coming to know and fear - the terrorist. There can be nothing reassuring about an opponent prepared to kill women, children and himself along with them. In comparison, the Russians look good.

A really frightening plot premise, according to my friend, would have a suicidal terrorist in possession of a nuclear warhead and in a position to actually blow up the world. But don't look for it to be aired or screened soon.

"People would really freak out," says my writer friend. "It's too real."

Sharp slide in oil prices threaten Mexico's debt plans

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Mexico could be forced to halt interest payments on its $96.4 billion foreign debt or seek emergency aid from the United States and international bankers if oil prices tumble to $20 a barrel and stay there, some private analysts say.

The fall in oil prices in recent days has raised new concerns about the ability of Mexico, the second largest debtor in the developing world after Brazil, to maintain payments on its debts and shore up its sagging economy.

"It puts Mexico back in its financial position, the recovery of the economy and its standing with creditors," said Javier Murcio, economist at the private forecasting firm of Data Resources Inc. in Lexington, Mass.

Robert Pastor, Fulbright professor at the Colegio de Mexico in Mexico City, said, "The further decline of oil prices could really set back everything the country has been trying to do for the last couple of years."

"It would be a disaster," he said, "if prices continued to fall, particularly if they fell below $20 a barrel."

Ignacio Trigueros, director of economic research at the Mexican Autonomous Institute of Technology, said, "It's a very unfortunate situation because of the foreign exchange that the country loses."

Mexico depends heavily on oil sales to bring in revenues to make interest and principal payments on the debt and to buy imports of raw materials, spare parts and other needed goods.

The drop in oil prices affects the Latin American debtor nations differently. Like Mexico, oil-producers Venezuela and Ecuador will see the expected earnings needed to help pay their debts shrink. Their debts, however, are considerably smaller at $35 billion and $7 billion respectively.

Such oil importers as Brazil, which has a $100-billion debt, will benefit from the decline.

Mexico earned about $15 billion from oil in 1985, and a one-dollar drop in oil prices translates into a loss to Mexico of $1.5 million daily, or about $550 million a year. Mexico is scheduled to pay $2.6 billion to creditors this quarter, according to local press reports.

In recent days prices in the world petroleum market have slipped, in some cases below $20 a barrel for the first time since 1979.

Mexico is the world's fourth largest producer of crude and the single biggest supplier to the United States. It is not a member of the oil cartel, the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

The government oil monopoly, Petroleos Mexicanos, or Pemex, does not sell on the spot market, supplying its crude only under contract. Its export prices differ by geographical area. The cost to the United States is $26.25 a barrel for light Isthmus crude and $22.00 for the heavy Maya brand, which makes up about 60 percent of its sales.

Its export target is 1.5 million barrels a day.

The government anticipated weakness in the market when drafting financial plans for 1986. Analysts say it assumed a $3 decline in oil prices to the low 20s in its budget and its request for an additional $4.8 billion from international bankers and financial organizations.

But the new decline in oil prices raises the possibility that Mexico will have to ask for more.

Murcio said that if oil prices averaged $20 for the year, Mexico would need an additional $2 billion to $2.5 billion from creditors in 1986.

In Washington, a U.S. Treasury official said Mexico may need up to $6.5 billion this year if the oil price goes down further, but added that at the present level of about $20 a barrel Mexico's situation is "containable."

David C. Mulford, assistant secretary of the Treasury for international affairs, provided the estimate during testimony to a subcommittee of the Joint Economic Committee. He had said earlier that nations like Nigeria and Peru will get fewer new loans unless they keep up payments on their old ones.

Jonathan Heath, senior economist at Wharton Econometrics' Mexico forecasting project in Philadelphia, said that if prices plummeted below $20, Mexico would be forced "to consider not paying interest payments for the year or even calling a default on amortization payments."

"It's too much of an amount to adjust for unless the United States and the international financial community come up with an extraordinary package to rescue Mexico," Heath said.

Murcio agreed that a sharp and sustained fall in prices might require a "more emergency-type of approach from the international agencies and countries."

Mexico had been considered a model debtor nation, reducing its inflation rate, paring government spending and strengthening economic growth. But last year, the economy slipped back into the doldrums as inflation soared, the government budget expanded and sales of exports were weak.

Pentagon says Army weapon tests inadequate

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army intentionally avoided doing any serious damage to the Bradley fighting vehicle in the latest round of tests of the controversial weapon, according to a Pentagon report.

Instead, the service conducted the tests in such a way that damage to the 25-ton vehicle would be minimized, said the report prepared by Air Force Col. James G. Burton.

Burton's report was released Thursday by Sen. David Pryor, D-Ark., a chief congressional supporter of requiring realistic tests before weapons are purchased.

The report does not state why the Army would avoid damaging the vehicle during the tests. But Pryor and other critics have contended that by not damaging the weapons, they were made to appear to be more reliable, a charge the Army has rejected.

"The Bradley case history is a classic example of buy now, test later — if ever — and then obfuscate the results," said Pryor, who noted that the Pentagon had previously refused to release Burton's analysis.

Burton prepared his report while he was a weapons test analyst in the office of the undersecretary of defense for research and engineering.

Rather than releasing his critical report, the Army instead sent Congress a far more favorable analysis of the tests, Pryor noted. He said he was making the Burton report public "to correct this deficiency."

The Bradley is designed to carry soldiers into battle and is armed with missiles and machine guns. The Army wants to buy 6,832 of the vehicles at an average cost of $1.5 million each.

The weapon has come under criticism before, but the Army has argued that the critics are being unfair and that any problems can be fixed.

The latest tests were ordered last year by Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger in an effort to resolve questions about the Bradley. That series of tests, involving the live firing of 10 rounds of ammunition at a Bradley, was the subject of Burton's analysis.

"For these 10 live fire shots, the impact points and attack directions were not random nor representative of the locations of combat impacts," Burton said.

"For example," he noted, "each of the 10 live fire shots was aimed so as to avoid intentionally striking the explosive elements of internally stowed ammunition — even though there are likely to be a fair number of direct hits on ammunition in real combat."

Pryor said the "Burton report" makes clear that serious questions remain about the Bradley vehicle, questions which should have been under discussion years ago.

Reagan-Gorbachev joint session suggested

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Democratic Leader Robert Byrd wants Mikhail Gorbachev to become the first Soviet leader ever invited to address a joint session of Congress.

The White House, however, wants to know more details about Gorbachev's next session with President Reagan before going along with the idea.

"It has been a long-standing practice to recognize foreign leaders in this respect, and I feel it would enhance the development of meaningful communication between the United States and the Soviet Union after years of sterile rhetoric," Byrd said in a Senate speech Thursday.

Byrd wants Gorbachev and Reagan to address Congress at the conclusion of their second summit meeting, which has been tentatively planned for later this year. The two leaders met in Geneva in November and agreed to meet again in the United States this year and in the Soviet Union next year.

Under Byrd's proposal, the invitation to Gorbachev would have a hook in it. The Soviets would have to agree to carry Reagan's speech on prime time television.

Byrd, of West Virginia, said he thought Reagan would easily outscore his Soviet counterpart from a public relations point of view.

Byrd said he tried the idea out on Reagan and the president was receptive, suggesting only that the United States bring its own interpreter to Capitol Hill.

But White House spokesman

Larry Speakes, when asked about the proposal, said it was the first he had heard about it.

"I guess we would have to wait until we get the summit schedule before we schedule any appearances," Speakes said. "I think we would just have to review it in the whole context of his visit, how long he's going to be here, what he's going to do, how long the talks are going to be."

Other White House aides also said the idea was news to them.

Byrd said House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill's only reservation about his plan was that the meeting should not come too late in the year, when it might influence the congressional elections.

Speakes said no decision has been made on the timing of the summit. U.S. officials had floated the idea of a June meeting, but the Soviets have indicated they would prefer September.

Byrd said he hoped the invitation to Gorbachev would "help draw back the heavy curtain which has snuffed out real communication for so many years" between the Soviet Union and the United States.

In a letter to Reagan, Byrd wrote: "The development of a more positive relationship with the Soviet Union will, of course, take time, but it is clear that the dialogue which you began with Mr. Gorbachev in Geneva has led to a better over-all atmosphere in which to try to resolve our outstanding differences with the Soviet Union."

Byrd sent a similar letter to O'Neill.

Seven construction workers robbed

DALLAS (AP) — A masked gunman robbed seven construction workers of about $700 in cash and credit cards as the men were working to install water pipes in southwest Dallas, police say.

"I just looked around there was this dude pointing a pistol at me," said Ronnie Kirby, one of seven Dallas Water Utilities workers who were robbed about noon Thursday.

"At first I thought it was a joke," Kirby said. "One guy trying to hold up seven others, that something you only see in the movies."

"But then he started cussing and waving his gun, and I knew it wasn't no movie," Kirby added. "It was the real thing."

Police said the gunman, who wore panty hose over his head, forced the men to give him their wallets.

"It was the damndest thing I'd ever seen," said one worker who asked not to be identified. "There were seven of us and only one of him, but there really wasn't a thing we could do about it."

Utility spokesman Rick Hodges said the man had been seen walking across the construction site several hours before he approached the workers.

"I've never seen anything like this happening to city employees, and I've been here 13½ years," said Hodges. "I guess he (the robber) thought they looked like easy targets because they were all together."

Two of the workers chased the man as he fled from the site, but they lost him. Several police officers and officers in a police helicopter also searched for him.

ROCK SINGERS INDUCTED BY HALL — Rock 'n Roll singers Chuck Berry, left, and Jerry Lee Lewis embrace Thursday evening at a reception at New York's Waldorf-Astoria. Cleveland wants the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame

CLEVELAND (AP) — All kidding aside, what's the first thing you think of when someone says "Cleveland?"

A fire breaking out on the Cuyahoga River? Municipal default a few years back? Put-downs on the David Letterman show? Not the Cleveland Indians, surely.

If you said rock 'n' roll, you've got the same beat as thousands of people in this city that's often mentioned only in punchlines.

For years Cleveland has called itself the home of rock 'n' roll, and the city tried to prove it this week by generating 110,315 phone calls supporting its bid to become the site for the national Rock and Roll Hall of Fame.

If Memphis, the haunt of Elvis Presley and other rockers, seems a more likely site, consider that in the call-in poll published by the newspaper USA Today, Clevelanders outdistanced Memphians by a margin of better than 15-to-1. Other cities were even farther behind.

And when a petition supporting the city's bid for the hall of fame circulated recently, it picked up 650,000 signatures in a metropolitan area of about a million and a half.

"I'm so tickled pink, being from Cleveland, to see the city take so much interest in this," said Norm N. Nite, a disc jockey on New York's oldies station, WCBS-FM, in a telephone interview. "It kind of makes you puff your chest out."

Nite, who is on the board of directors of the group that will soon choose a site for the hall of fame and museum, is not the only music business figure citing Cleveland as the place to beat for the shrine.

"I think Cleveland has the edge," said Jann S. Wenner, editor and publisher of Rolling Stone magazine. "I think this poll is really impressive. I think the city really wants this."

But why? Rock music reference books don't exactly bulge with references to the city by Lake Erie.

While acknowledging the city's enthusiasm and calling Cleveland "pretty much a shoo-in at this point" to attract the hall of fame, Memphis disc jockey Steve Conley wondered if a station here could play an hour of "Cleveland rock 'n' roll" — as he had just played an hour of Memphis-based rock.

Stuart Mintz, president of a chain of music stores in Cleveland, conceded that Eric Carmen might be the city's best-known rocker. He mentioned some others: the Raspberries, the Outsiders.

Haven't heard of them? That's not the point. The point is, "The term rock 'n' roll was the vehicle to allow it to expand to what it is today," according to Mintz.

His father, Leo Mintz, helped coin the term, passing it on to the late disc jockey Alan Freed of local station WJW. "At Mintz's suggestion, Freed introduced a euphemism for rhythm and blues by calling his show 'Moondog's Rock 'n Roll Party,' which started in June 1951," reports the rock history book "The Sound of the City."

Freed recalled in an interview later that he had been amazed to see white adolescents dancing excitedly in Mintz's store to the saxophones and pianos of R&B, the book notes.

Freed went on to fame as a radio personality at stations in New York and was among the first 15 people inducted Thursday night into the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame — at a ceremony not in Cleveland but in Manhattan's Waldorf-Astoria Hotel.

Cleveland was the site of one of the earliest rock concerts, back in 1952, and remains a test market that can make or break rock songs, local broadcasters observe.

Papers say Senate candidate indicted

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A congressman running for the Senate and her top aide have been indicted by a grand jury probing allegations that a supporter offered money to the campaign fund of another candidate if he would drop his primary bid, according to reports published Friday.

The Los Angeles Times and the Los Angeles Herald Examiner cited law enforcement sources they did not identify as saying that the grand jury had indicted Rep. Bobbi Fiedler, 48, and Paul Clarke, her administrative assistant and political adviser.

The Herald Examiner reported that Ms. Fiedler and Clarke were accused in the indictment of offering money to the campaign fund of state Sen. Ed Davis, the former Los Angeles police chief. The newspaper reported that the Fiedler supporter offered the Davis fund $100,000.

Rock 'n roll awards given: A lot of shakin' goin' on

NEW YORK (AP) — A whole lot of shakin' was going on in the usually more sedate art deco ballroom of the Waldorf-Astoria as the world of rock music inducted its pioneers into the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame.

"Dy-no-mite," responded Chuck Berry, 59, who slid across the stage on his knees to the tune of his "Roll Over Beethoven" before the Rolling Stones' Keith Richards presented him with one of 15 such awards Thursday night.

Berry, Elvis Presley, Jerry Lee Lewis, James Brown, Fats Domino, Ray Charles, Sam Cooke and Buddy Holly were among those honored as a crowd of 1,000 clapped and howled delightedly with the sounds of rock punctuating the black-tie dinner.

"I've lifted every lick he ever played. He's the gentleman that started it all, as far as I'm concerned," Richards said of Berry.

The balconies were festooned with giant photos of the music idols and the stage was decorated with old-style Wurlitzer jukeboxes lighted in turtli-fruity colors. A giant video screen was suspended above the stage to show film clips of the stars' great musical moments.

Domino, whose 23 gold singles included the 1960 million-seller, "Walkin' to New Orleans," got his award from singer Billy Joel.

"We Are The World" producer Quincy Jones presented another to Charles, and trumpeter Herb Albert posthumously honored Cooke, who sang "You Send Me," "Cupid" and "Twist the Night Away."

Julian and Sean Lennon, sons of the late Beatle John Lennon, presented a posthumous award for Presley, which was accepted on behalf of his daughter, Lisa Marie Presley.

Little Richard, who was recuperating from a car accident, sent his thanks via videotape. The presenter of his award, singer Roberta Flack, noted that all of the recipients were men, saying, "Maybe next year will be the year of the women." The Everly Brothers also were among those honored.

Three of rock's "forefathers," Mississippi delta blues singer Robert Johnson, country and western singer Jimmie Rodgers and blues pianist Jimmy Yancey were also inducted.

Two non-performers who played key roles in the birth of rock 'n' roll joined the list: Sun Records founder Sam Phillips and the late broadcaster Alan Freed. Producer and talent scout John Hammond received a special lifetime achievement award.

The Hall of Fame, conceived by Atlantic Records Chairman Ahmet Ertegun, has yet to find a permanent home. Cities under consideration include Chicago, Cleveland, Memphis, New Orleans, Philadelphia, New York and San Francisco.

Plans call for an annual ceremony with the Hall of Fame foundation's board nominating artists and winning the choices to 10 each year.

To be inducted, a performer must have been actively involved in music for at least 25 years.

New Mexico oil company sues Exxon

HOUSTON (AP) — A New Mexico oil company has sued Exxon USA for $110 million, alleging it attempted to exclude competition and monopolize production at a field in southwestern Wyoming.

In the lawsuit, Yates Petroleum Corp. claims Exxon has tried to monopolize the production and sale of methane, carbon dioxide, helium, sulphur and other products separated from the raw gas produced at the Madison Formation. The suit, filed Wednesday in federal court, said Exxon developed the project as part of a scheme to eliminate Yates and other minority working interest owners from competing with Exxon.

Yates is seeking $60 million in actual damages, $50 million in exemplary damages and asking that it be restored to the percentage of ownership to which it is entitled.

Congress to keep eye on EPA plans for asbestos

WASHINGTON (AP) — Members of Congress, mindful of White House resistance to earlier efforts to outlaw asbestos, say they will watch closely as the Environmental Protection Agency walks the bureaucratic path toward a complete ban on products containing the deadly substance.

Reps. John Dingell, D-Mich., and James Florio, D-N.J., say vigilance is needed to ensure that the proposed ban on cancer-causing asbestos, announced Thursday by EPA, becomes a life-saving reality.

The two representatives said the real pitfall lies at the end of the process of public hearings, reviews, comment periods and re-reviews that EPA Administrator Lee M. Thomas estimates could consume a year before a final asbestos regulation is issued.

Also concerned, but for a different reason, is the asbestos industry, which doesn't dispute the carcinogenic nature of the substance but calls the proposed ban "unwarranted."

"This is the beginning of the rulemaking process, and we're going to dog it every step of the way," said Ken Nyquist, a spokesman for the Asbestos Information Association.

Nyquist said the industry favors the European approach: controlled use of asbestos.

"Under controlled use, it does not present significant risk to the public and workers," he said.

Thomas, whose agency first talked about banning asbestos in 1979, disagrees.

"No level of exposure is without risk," says Thomas, whose agency moved in the 1970s against sprayed-on asbestos and asbestos pipe-wrapping and is operating a program, heavily criticized in Congress, to remove crumbling asbestos materials from the nation's public schools.

As outlined by Thomas at a news conference, the proposed regulation is a two-phased attack on asbestos, which EPA estimates annually causes from 3,300 to 12,000 new cancer cases, nearly all of them fatal within five years.

The proposal would "immediately" ban asbestos in five product categories — four of them building materials — that Thomas says account for one-third to one-half of the 300,000 metric tons of asbestos used each year in the United States.

Second, the use of asbestos for all other products — things such as automotive brake and clutch linings — would be subject to a phaseout over 10 years.

Consumer group says bill on holding checks weakened

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans living from paycheck to paycheck could get at their money faster to pay for mortgages, food and other expenses under a new House-passed bill that limits the time banks can hold checks before allowing customers to use the cash.

But one consumer organization expressed disappointment with a key amendment that would give banks a loophole if tellers suspect a check would fail to clear because of fraud, bankruptcy or similar circumstances.

By a vote of 282-11, the House on Thursday passed and sent to the Senate the Expedited Funds Availability Act. It sets a maximum number of days a financial institution can hold a deposited check, cash or funds transferred by wire without freeing up the money for the customer.

However, Senate Banking Chairman Jake Garn, R-Utah, wants to include the check hold bill in an omnibus banking package, a move that could delay final passage until much later in the year.

House Banking Committee Chairman Fernand J. St Germain, D-R.I., chief proponent of the check hold bill, said in floor debate Thursday that banks play "the float" game with customers' money to earn billions of dollars through interest and fees on checks inadvertently bounced by depositors.

For the first three years of the bill, local checks would be available for withdrawal in just one to three business days. Most out-of-state checks could be withdrawn on the seventh business day after deposit.

Thrifty and credit unions would be given one extra business day to comply with the timetable.

But before passing the bill, the House adopted an amendment favored by the banks and opposed by consumer groups.

It would permit bankers to hold a check for as long as they wish if they suspect the check might not clear because of fraud or impending bankruptcy by either the drawer or drawee. In that case, bankers would be given two days to notify the depositor if they refused to clear the check for payment.

Mike Caudell-Feagan, a staff attorney with the U.S. Public Interest Research Group, expressed disappointment.

"Low income consumers — those without much economic clout — could be subjected to the same check holds as they are now — two weeks or more," he said. "All that banks have to do is phone those customers and tell them there will be a long hold on their deposited checks."

St Germain also opposed the amendment.

In other business and economic news:

—Americans' personal spending rose more last month than their income, but analysts and the Reagan administration say the gains in both categories signal a strong first quarter for the U.S. economy.

The Commerce Department said Thursday that new-car financing deals and a brisk Christmas shopping season helped propel personal spending up 2 percent in December, the largest monthly gain since a 2.5 percent increase in May 1975, but below the 1.4 percent gain in personal income.

"Consumers are alive, well, kicking and spending," said Allen Sinai, chief economist for Shearson Lehman Brothers in New York.

Presidential spokesman Larry Speakes said the administration expects "the rise in personal income and spending to signal a strong first quarter for the nation's economy."

—The decline in oil prices, which have dropped below $20 a barrel for the first time this decade, intensified after Saudi Arabia's oil minister predicted they could reach $15 a barrel and cause chaos in producing nations.

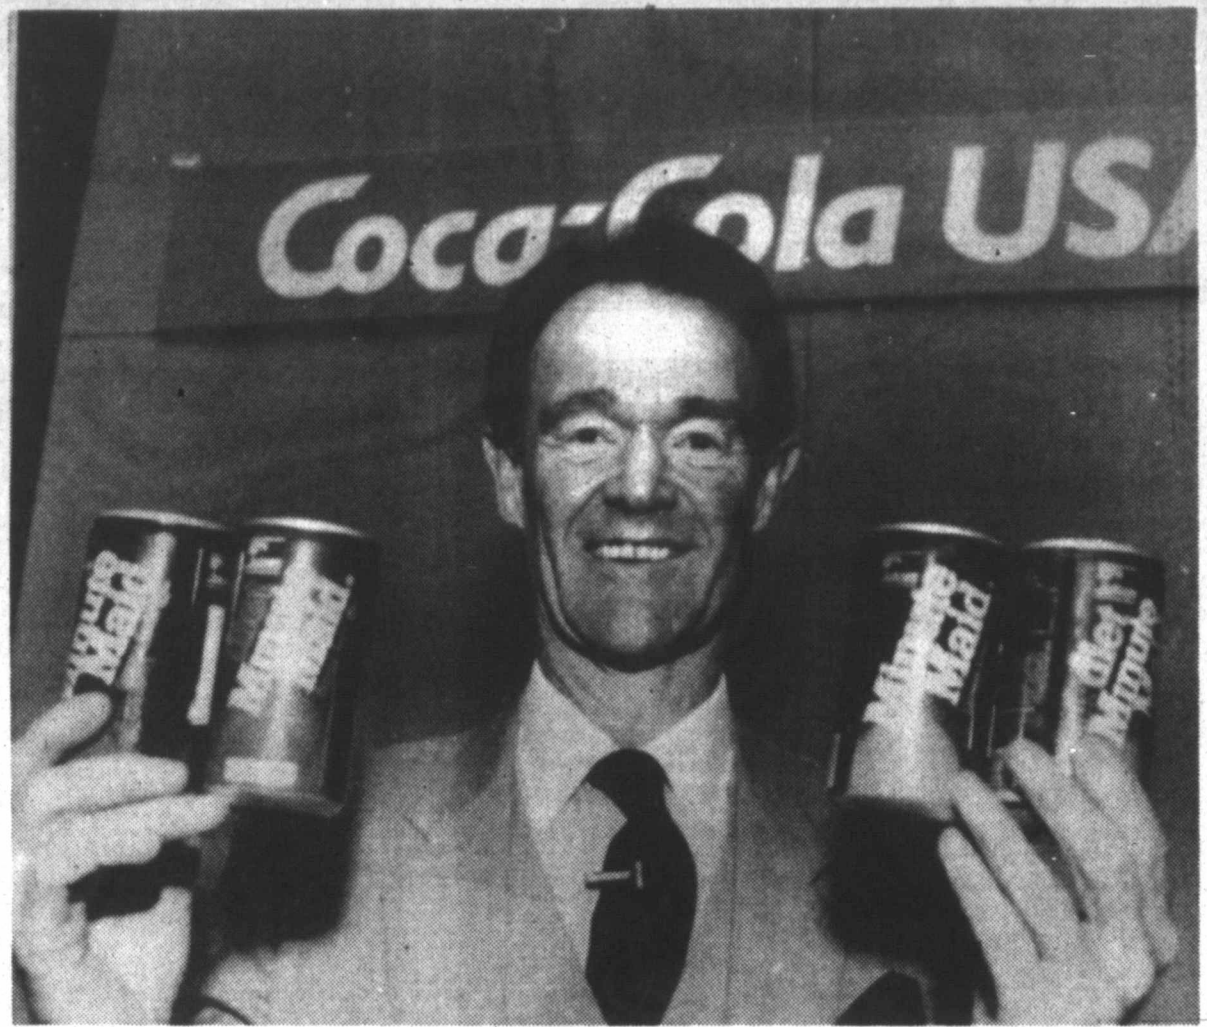

Conrail sale clears first Senate hurdle

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Reagan administration plan to sell the government's Conrail freight line, fresh from clearing its first Senate hurdle, is targeted for attack next week by supporters of a rival group of New York investors.

With President Reagan calling for action, the Senate voted 90-7 Thursday to choke off debate on whether to take up legislation to sell the 15-state railroad to the Norfolk Southern Corp. for $1.2 billion.

The plan's leading critics, Sens. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, and Arlen Specter, R-Pa., after blasting it on the floor for two straight days, held their fire, saying they would renew the attack Tuesday.

Specter told the Senate that before a final vote, which could come next Thursday, there would

Slicing up juicy citrus soda market

NEW YORK (AP) — Coca-Cola's introduction of a new line of juice-added soft drinks is an effort to capitalize on the trend recognized by industry analysts who say consumers want something nutritious from their sodas and like to feel virtuous sipping them.

The nation's biggest soft drink maker is following the lead of No. 2 Pepsi-Cola with its entry into the juice-added category, announced Thursday.

PepsiCo Inc. has been selling the juice-added lemon-lime drink Slice for about a year and introduced Mandarin Orange Slice, an orange-flavored drink, this week. Both contain 10 percent fruit juice and feature the slogan, "We Got the Juice!"

Coca-Cola Co. is taking the concept a step further, introducing orange and lemon-lime soft drinks that contain not only added fruit juice but extra vitamins, such as Vitamin C, that are naturally found in juice.

The 10 percent juice sodas will go on sale next month under Coca-Cola's Minute Maid brand in both regular and diet versions.

Coca-Cola isn't emphasizing the extra vitamins in its advertisements, although it will be noted on the can.

"Minute Maid Soda is simply an additional source of these vitamins and will not be marketed as a dietary substitute for other nutritional beverages," said Brian G. Dyson, president of Coca-Cola USA.

Minute Maid Soda is being tested in Washington, D.C., and will be available in four or five undisclosed markets within 30 days and in 75 percent of the country this summer, Dyson said.

Advertising will use the theme "Minute Maid — the Amazing Soda" and will be targeted toward teens, young adults and homemakers.

Dyson also announced that Coca-Cola would be stepping up its marketing support for regular and diet Sprite, which compete with regular and diet Seven-Up and contain no added fruit juices or vitamins.

Attorney is to represent Tech faculty

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Faculty Association said Thursday it has hired attorneys to represent the faculty at Texas Tech University in their tenure dispute with the Tech administration and regents.

"The Legal Association's immediate goal is to try to bring the university administration into discussions about the policy, but failing that the association has every intention of seeking redress in the courts," Kenneth Margerison, association president, told a news conference.

Margerison said the association also would furnish financial aid to the Texas Tech Faculty Legal Action Association.

Margerison said the dispute results from a Tech tenure policy that was put into effect in September 1984 without submission to or approval of the Tech faculty. The 1980 policy replaced a tenure policy that had previously been agreed to by both the faculty and administration and had been in effect since 1967.

Join Us In Worship IN THE CHURCH OF YOUR CHOICE

WINTER'S MAJESTY

All delight in the beauty of snow . . . how it clears the air, cleans and gives the earth a pure white blanket. David in his worship of God said . . .

"Purge me with hyssop, and I shall be clean; wash me, and I shall be WHITER THAN SNOW."

Attend church, worship God and know the joy of a free spirit, whiter than snow.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

GEORGE W. WARREN

Warren accepting New Mexico post

George W. Warren, minister of education at First Baptist Church in Pampa, has resigned to become head of the Education Division of the Baptist Convention of New Mexico.

Warren has served the church here since 1972.

He will work in Albuquerque with Claude Cone, former First Baptist Church pastor who has been executive director of the BCNM since March, 1985.

During the 13 years Warren has served with the local church, Sunday School membership has increased from 1,455 to 3,538. During that same period, Sunday School average attendance has increased from 699 to 1,433.

A former sales representative for Reelfoot Packing Co., in Memphis, Tenn., Warren has served several churches as minister of education, including Ardmore Baptist Church, Memphis, Tenn.; Twelfth Street Baptist Church, Paducah, Ky., and the Pampa church.

Active in both the Baptist General Convention of Texas and the Palo Duro Association, he has served on the state convention Executive Board and was moderator of the Palo Duro Association for two years.

He also has been active in local organizations, including serving as president of the Pampa Rotary Club.

Warren and his wife Nell have three married children. Gary, 37, is director of the Learning and Resource Center at Fort Hays State University in Hays, Kan. Ronald, 35, is a diagnostician with the Plainview Independent School District. Janice, 29, is an employee of Pampa's Security Federal Savings and Loan Association.

Warren will assume his new duties with the BCNM on Feb. 10.

Church to show 'Prodigal Planet'

"Prodigal Planet," a film offering a futuristic look at a nuclear charred world, will be shown in the main auditorium of the Bible Baptist Church, Starkweather at Kingsmill, at 7:30 p.m. today.

The Mark IV production movie follows the lives of a few survivors left in the radioactive wilderness after the wholesale exchange of nuclear attack.

The film is the fourth in a series of prophecy films on the end times, including "Thief in the Night," "A Distant Thunder" and "Image of the Beast."

"The Prodigal Planet" builds on the quality and power of the earlier films. It is notable not only for the excellent performances and the compelling dramatic sweep of the story line but also for its Biblical accuracy and penetrating insights into scriptural truth, according to Pastor Richard L. McIntosh.

The story follows the desperate journey of David Michaels, a condemned fugitive from the worldwide dictatorship of the anti-Christ. He and others who refuse to wear the mark of the anti-Christ must run for their lives, McIntosh said.

At the same time, underground believers are seeking a key computer component that will allow them to broadcast information and support to their resistance members around the world.

It becomes David's lot to try and deliver the component to an unknown destination in the deserts of the Western United States. His search for clues unravels like an Agatha Christie thriller, the pastor said.

With outstanding technical production and cinematography, "The Prodigal Planet" allows a glimpse of the devastation in the "days after."

Although the film is based on Biblical prophecy of destruction and tribulation as found in the books of Revelation, Daniel and Ezekiel, it offers a positive message of hope and reassurance amid our current climate of pessimism and despair about the future.

McIntosh invited the public to attend the special local showing.

REV. PAT EVERITT

Church planning studies on Israel

Rev. Pat Everitt of The Friends of Israel Gospel Ministries will be preaching a four-day Prophecy Conference at the Grace Baptist Church, 824 S. Barnes, Sunday through Wednesday.

The conference will begin Sunday at the 10 a.m. Sunday School hour with a lesson on "Jewish Missions." The Monday through Wednesday services will begin daily at 7:30 p.m., Pastor Billy D. Pierce said.

Some of the topics will include "The Jew: A People of Destiny," "Israel in Prophecy," "The Jew in Tribulation," "The Russian Invasion of Israel," "Who Is the Real Antichrist?," "Armageddon: World War III" and "Israel in the Millennium."

The Friends of Israel was begun in 1938 as Germany was preparing for war. Adolph Hitler was in control, determined to destroy the Jews, with a terrible blood bath in the making.

Rev. Everitt explained that millions of helpless people were caught in the maelstrom — frightened, bewildered — not knowing where to turn, with none seemingly to pity. Their pathetic cry for help apparently fell on deaf ears, he said.

But in Philadelphia, Pa., a group of evangelical Christian leaders organized to bring help to perplexed Jewry.

Through the years, under the leadership of Dr. Victor Buksbazen and then Rev. Marvin J. Rosenthal, The Friends of Israel Gospel Ministry, Inc., has become a strong evangelical force for God, Everitt claims.

Everitt entered the ministry at the age of 16, when he preached his first sermon. The pastor of the church in which Everitt was converted had a great love for the Jewish people, influencing Everitt's concern for them.

Everitt graduated from the Bible Baptist Seminary at Fort Worth. He has been preaching for nearly 30 years, pastoring and working as an associate in large and small churches.

He is field evangelist in the Southwest for The Friends of Israel.

Pastor Pierce invited interested persons to attend each service next week.

Bible study scheduled

Members of the St. Mark Christian Methodist Episcopal Church, 406 Elm, is sponsoring a prayer breakfast and Bible study Saturday.

The free breakfast will be from 8 to 9:45 a.m., followed by Bible study for all ages.

Pastor Herbert R. Johnson said the public is invited.

"You are welcome to come and dine with us, pray with us and study God's word with us," he said.

Religious groups intensify fight against South African apartheid

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

The ghetto existence imposed on blacks in South Africa has come under a sharpening fusillade of religious condemnation and resistance both in that country and elsewhere, including the United States.

That swelling movement, shown both in words and deeds, was ranked as the prime religious development of 1985 in a poll of the Religion Newswriters Association, and was gaining in magnitude as the year turned.

"The moment of truth — the 'kairos' — is now, both for South Africa and the world community," declared a pre-Christmas emergency meeting on the issue of church leaders from many lands in Harare, Zimbabwe.

Denouncing the "oppressive structures of apartheid" as "against God's will" and "morally indefensible," the December gathering summoned by the World Council of Churches said:

"The transfer of power to the majority of the people, based on universal suffrage, is the only solution to the present crisis."

U.S. participants were seeking to organize a broad church assembly on the matter in Washington in mid-January, including Roman Catholics and Southern Baptists as well as denominations in the National Council of Churches.

Redoubled, coordinated church efforts on the issue were pledged, including lobbying with Congress, requesting a meeting with the Church sponsors concert by pianist

Brian Hanson, gospel pianist, will be in concert at 7 p.m. Tuesday, Jan. 28, at the First Church of the Nazarene, located at Buckler and West Streets.

Rev. A. W. Myers, pastor, said Hanson is "one of the most exciting gospel pianists to come along in years."

Hanson has traveled coast to coast in gospel concerts for more than a decade. His numerous recordings and television and radio appearances have made him a favorite for all ages, Rev. Myers said.

The pastor said a love offering will be taken at the concert. He invited people to attend with a friend for the evening of music.

Religion Roundup

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — A Lutheran leader says says the National Council of Churches is somewhat "like fertilizer" spread among the denominations.

The Rev. Robert J. Marshall, former president of the Lutheran Church in America, told its executives in a review of membership in the cooperative council of Protestant and Eastern Orthodox denominations that it gets "the criticism and serves as a shock absorber" on difficult issues.

Member denominations then have a chance to adjust their own positions and build understanding, he said, adding that the council is expected to "provide more venturesome leadership" than any one church would attempt.

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — The Southern Baptist overseas missionary force reached a record 3,587, with the appointment of 40 new missionaries.

administration, pressing for U.S. economic sanctions and planning a day of prayer and fasting.

Beyond just words, religious forces were mobilizing against the racial separation system with an urgency that some say resembles the religious drive in the civil rights movement of the 1960's.

There were, however, individual religious voices of disagreement, such as that of the Rev. Jerry Falwell, Moral Majority leader, who defends South Africa's course. But the major denominations worked to alter it.

Both Protestant and Roman Catholic church organizations, through stockholder pressures, have been behind decisions of several top U.S. banks to stop making loans to South Africa's government.

Religious groups also have been "prime movers in persuading numerous city and state pension plans to divest holdings in companies with South African operations," says United Church spokesman William Winslow.

In the past year, about 2,000 mostly church people, including many bishops and top officials, have been arrested in demonstrations outside the South African Embassy in Washington and at consulates in other cities.

It became almost a formal routine, with people planning to be arrested wearing red or blue armbands for easy identification by police and breaking the law against demonstrating within 500 feet of foreign establishments.

"A Might? AWW Is Our God," they sometimes sang when handcuffed and taken to police stations for booking on misdemeanor charges. Those arrested would be released on small bonds, the charges later generally dropped.

Missionary to speak here

Rev. Warner L. Miles, an Assemblies of God missionary to South Korea, will be guest speaker for a missions service at 6:30 p.m. Sunday at First Assembly of God Church, 500 S. Cuyler.

"Only God knows the good that America has done around the world, especially in spreading Christianity through missionary and secular organizations," Rev. Miles states.

During their past terms of overseas service, Miles and his wife Elva were active in evangelism and church establishment, according to local pastor John Farina.

Miles served as president of Young Seung High School and College in Jeonju, Korea; approximately 5,000 students attend the schools. He also pastored the church associated with the school and ministered to an average of 6,000 people weekly. During his years there he baptized thousands of people.

The Miles couple also pastored the Great Downtown Evangelistic Center in Seoul, Korea, and helped to open more than 200 new churches through the nation. Mrs. Miles pioneered and directed the Korean Assemblies of God Child Evangelism Department.

Miles will be relating some of his missionary experiences to South Korea in the special missions.

Pastor Farina invited the public to attend the special service.

Be selective in the year ahead regarding who you pick as a partner. Defeat will be the product of a poor choice; victory will be the prize for a wise one.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Difficulties may arise in an important relationship today. When dealing with others on a one-to-one basis, treat all as you would like to be treated yourself. Major changes are ahead for Aquarians in the coming year. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail $1 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, Box 1846, Cincinnati, OH 45201. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You're not likely to work too well under pressure today. If you take on more than you can handle or let things go until the last minute, frustrations will result.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Today you might be out of step with others. Don't take an unyielding position on something everyone else opposes just to flex your muscles.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) If the outside world doesn't treat you as you think it should today, don't come home and take it out on innocent members of your household.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) An uncontrolled temper could be your downfall today. Mind what you say, instead of responding with angry words you'll later regret.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Make every effort to keep current on your financial obligations now. Don't fall behind, especially if you are indebted to a friend.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) It's best today not to discuss issues with your mate where you have opposing views. Both of you have low kindling points and a serious argument could result.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Someone who has done you a big favor might want you to reciprocate today. Don't make it obvious that you're annoyed about this.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) It's important today to be around those with whom you feel at ease. Group activities that include people you don't like won't be any fun.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You'll be enthusiastic and raring to go today, but unfortunately, associates whose support you need might drag their feet and halt your progress.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Try not to point the finger of blame at others today for your mistakes. Friends will not tolerate any shifts of guilt.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Be careful with whom you associate today because you might be held accountable for things they do wrong. Don't be a fall guy.

How to decide whether to itemize deductions

By ROBERT METZ
(Sixth of 14 articles)

NEA — Does it make sense to itemize deductions? If you don't have a mortgage you'll probably save by using your zero-bracket amount instead. But play it safe. Make a rough calculation of your deductible items, starting with interest payments.

The zero-bracket sums are $3,540 for married couples filing jointly and for qualified widow(er)s; $2,390 for singles and unmarried heads of household; $1,770 for marrieds filing separately.

If you think your deductions will total more than your zero-bracket amount, read on for an outline of deductions. When in doubt, figure your tax each way to discover which method will result in a lower tax bill.

If you are married and filing separately and your spouse itemizes, you must itemize deductions and file income tax Form 1040. If you do not fall into that category, and if you are sure you don't have enough deductions to warrant itemizing, you will have a relatively simple chore. Just figure your tax using the zero-bracket sum for your filing category.

Tax Tip: Even if you cannot itemize deductions, you can still deduct up to 50 percent of your charitable contributions. This so-called charitable deduction for non-itemizers is simply deducted from your adjusted gross income.

Here, in general terms, is a run-down of major deductions:

—Medical and dental expenses: To receive a medical and dental deduction, your expenses must total more than five percent of your adjusted gross income. You may include prescription drugs in the calculation, but not non-prescription drugs.

—Taxes: In general, you may claim state and local income taxes; real estate taxes; general sales taxes (don't forget sales taxes on large purchases such as an automobile); and personal property taxes.

The Internal Revenue Service allows you a choice in figuring your deduction for state sales tax. You may keep an accurate record of all the sales taxes you paid during the year. Or you may take a deduction based on IRS tax tables. The actual tax method requires more record-keeping than most taxpayers are willing to do.

—Interest payments and finance charges: You are entitled to take a variety of interest payments as deductions. The one that usually amounts the most for middle-income taxpayers is the deduction for the interest on a mortgage.

Tax Tip: If you live in a cooperative apartment, you may deduct a portion of the interest and the taxes paid by the co-op. Your co-op should provide a statement showing your share of these payments.

Contributions: These are deductible if the organization appears on an approved list maintained by the IRS. Most often, your gifts will be churches or synagogues; educational institutions; agencies such as the United Appeal, the Red Cross or the Salvation Army; non-profit hospitals and medical research groups; and volunteer fire houses and civil defense.

You may deduct fair market value of used clothing, furniture and appliances donated to a charity. Mostly, this value will be far below original purchase price. Fair market value is the price property would change hands at between a willing buyer and a willing seller.

—Casualty and theft losses: If you had a fire in your home, your car was in an accident, or some valuable property was stolen from you, there's a good chance that you have a casualty deduction, though the stakes have been raised.

You may deduct losses for sums in excess of 10 percent of adjusted gross income. So, obviously, only major losses are deductible. And each casualty or theft loss must be reduced by $100. You can't group several auto accidents or other casualties together and then subtract a single $100 offset.

Tax Tip: When in doubt in instances in which you suffer serious loss, consult experienced tax counsel. Even in cases in which the required suddenness of loss appears to be absent, you may win.

Dear Abby

Can well-adjusted kids come from artificial conception?

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1985 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Now I've seen everything. "Still Shaking," the retired parents of a 35-year-old "lovely, unmarried, highly respected, professional woman," were called by their daughter to inform them that she is pregnant and thrilled. It seems that she has always wanted a child, and since her biological clock was running out and she had no man in her life, she had herself artificially inseminated!

The parents were stunned and asked you what they should tell people. Your advice, "Tell them the truth," was correct. But what does the unmarried daughter tell her child when confronted with the question: "Who is my father?"

Couples and/or singles who are having children by artificial insemination, surrogate parenting and the like give little consideration to the psychological effect of these procedures on the offspring so produced.

"Yes, dear, you were conceived when I was impregnated with a turkey baster with the sperm of some unknown guy whom I never met."

Reassuring, isn't it?
JOSEPH H. DAVIS, M.D.,
PEDIATRICIAN,
MENLO PARK, CALIF.

DEAR DR. DAVIS: Reassuring or not, children conceived by sperm bank fathers, surrogate mothers and any way other than the conventional method should be told the truth about how they came into the world. Embarrassing and complicated as it may seem to adults concerned only with morals, ethics and what-will-the-neighbors-think, the simple truth told with patience, love and caring will be sufficient for the moment, and eventually understood and accepted.

DEAR ABBY: I, too, am shaking after reading that letter about the single woman having artificial insemination because she wanted a baby and didn't have a man in her life.

You seemed to think it was perfectly all right. Why didn't you speak out against that stupid, selfish woman's bringing a child into a one-parent home? That woman has no more right to have a baby than an unmarried 14-year-old!

Every child deserves a mother and a father. Thanks to all these hot-pants teen-agers, we already have enough one-parent families without your approving artificial insemination for unmarried women whose biological clocks are running out.

If a single woman wants something to love and thinks motherhood would be fun, tell her to get a pet!

DISGUSTED IN HORNELL, N.Y.

DEAR DISGUSTED: Two-parent homes are, of course, ideal when both parents are ideal parents, but many well-adjusted children have been reared in one-parent homes. So, who am I to say that an unmarried woman (or an unmarried man, for that matter) has no right to be a parent? And by the way, who are you to make that judgment?

DEAR ABBY: I've been thinking about the letter signed "Still Shaking"—the parents of a 35-year-old unmarried, professional woman who wanted a baby, so she had herself artificially inseminated.

If I were the parents, I wouldn't buy that story unless I saw the doctor's records or had some kind of proof that artificial insemination actually took place.

SKEPTICAL IN MURPHYSBORO, ILL.

Make a frilly Valentine gift

This delightful heart-shaped piece of embroidery can be made up as a pillow, a wall hanging or a handmade top to a similarly shaped box of candy.

It's a perfect beginner's project, if you want to teach little hands to cross-stitch, a very simple embroidery stitch.

To make the valentine, first use black embroidery floss to cross-stitch the words and the sheep legs and faces in the center of a 10x12-inch piece of 14-count red aida cloth. Cut out the heart shape.

If you have never done cross-stitch before, don't be intimidated. Each cross-stitch is just two straight stitches, one crossed over the other, to form an "X." It is usually done on an even-weave fabric, using a blunt-tipped tapestry needle.

The needle is inserted into the obvious holes between the threads of the fabric, not through the threads themselves. Just try to keep the tension even, and cross each stitch in the same direction.

Follow the graph, counting the number of stitches in each section and the number of spaces between stitches. Unless a space in indicated graph, the legs of adjacent stitches should share the same holes.

The sheeps' bodies are made of yarn curls. Stitch one end of a skein of crewel yarn to the aida cloth. Wrap the yarn about 15 times around a pencil, and then insert your threaded needle between the yarn loops and pencil.

Push the needle all the way through, compress the curl and pull it off the pencil. Tack the curl to the aida cloth.

Cut the ears from black felt and glue in place. I made a tiny pink bow for the ewe sheep.

For a detailed copy of the plans, specify Project NO. 1346-4 and send $4.95 to Kid's Stuff, Dept. 79065, P.O. Box 1000, Bixby, Okla., 74068.

Gena on Genealogy: what's in a name

By GENA WALLS

Nicknames vary with time. What was a common "pet" name in the mid-1800s seems strange today, thus causing a lot of difficulty and confusion when searching records.

Often a man has been incorrectly given two wives because of the interchangeable name of POLLY for MARY as well as for MARGARET. Another difficulty lies with the nickname NELLIE for the Christian name HELEN. Be careful when checking records and do not assume that the person is a different individual solely because the name is different.

Many times proper names are shown in one census and the next time a "nickname" will be given. In some cases, the nickname has been used for so many years that the proper name has actually been forgotten or never known if information is given for a grandparent.

Other names that might be causing problems include ANSEL, BERRY and PLEASANT — all are masculine names. PLEAS is used as a nickname and is often found in the southern states especially prior to 1875. BERRY might be a clue to the maiden name of the mother as it often was a short form of Littleberry or Whiteberry or any of the surnames with the last syllables of Berry. If you are searching for BERRY as a surname, you might check for other names in the area that include BERRY as part of the name. Sometimes names were shortened in this manner.

EASTER, ESTHER and the Hebrew equivalent of HADASSAH are frequently interchanged. HADASSAH might also be HATTIE.

JACOB or JACOBUS might have been translated into JAMES, the Greek form of Jacob. These translations occurred in county records when the person could not write and the clerk wrote the document. This also explains the various spellings in many of the records.

Another problem occurs in records with spellings of JOHN, JOSEPH, JAMES OR EVNICE, etc. These are holdovers of the Roman alphabet when I and J were written identically, as well as U and V.

If you have a particular name that is causing a problem and would like some assistance, send the name or names and a self-addressed, stamped envelope to me and I will try to help or at least suggest another source: Gena Walls, 8825 S.W. Maverick Terrace No. 1009, Beaverton, Ore., 97005.

NOTED, WHILE TRYING TO recover from Pre-Super Bowl Overdose: If you can remember when New England Coach RAYMOND BERRY spoke at the First Christian Church in Pampa you don't have to worry about the draft. And to show his personality for perfection, the little told story while Berry served as an assistant coach with the Cowboys in the late 1960s. He kept running perfect patterns, but much to his surprise kept catching the ball a step out of bounds. He asked the field custodian to remeasure the field. After much argument and insistence by Berry that the field was too narrow, the man did. Surprise, surprise! He discovered the field was two feet too narrow...Much has been made of the TV network's "silent minute" prior to kickoff. Against Levelland tonight

Pampa teams battle for playoff spot

When Pampa met Levelland in a District 1-4A opener for both teams back on Dec. 20, the Harvesters got off to a promising start with a 47-42 victory. Those fortunes swiftly changed when Pampa dropped its next three league outings. Within the last five days, however, the pendulum has swung back in favor of the Harvesters, who whipped Lubbock Dunbar last Friday night and then drubbed Canyon, 75-48, Tuesday night to pull even at 3-3 in the district standings.

Now, the Harvesters are in a position to move into a second-place tie with a win over Levelland tonight in McNeely Fieldhouse. That's quite a comeback after being in a three-way deadlock for last place just a week ago.

"We really need a victory Friday night and we need the fans to come out and help us get it," said Pampa Head Coach Garland Nichols. "If we can win, we'll right back in it strong."

Levelland helped make it possible for Pampa to get back into the thick of things with a 66-50 win over Lubbock Estacado Tuesday night. Estacado earlier pulled off a 55-50 win over the Harvesters in McNeely Fieldhouse.

Levelland has a 4-2 record and took over sole possession of second place with the victory.

Borger is sitting comfortably on top of the standings with a perfect 6-0 record. The Bulldogs demolished Dumas, 76-46, Tuesday night.

Pampa's one-sided win over Canyon left Nichols with an optimistic feeling.

"I really felt good about the game," Nichols said. "The players were ready to go out and win before the game started."

Ten players, led by Donovan Lewis and Terry Jeffery with 12 points each, figured in Pampa's scoring attack.

"Donovan got to playing like he's capable of playing and Terry came in and played a good game."

Vibert Ryan came off the bench to score 11 points and pull down five rebounds.

"We got a good effort from Vibert," Nichols said.

Ryan, a 6-3 1/2 senior, has been the top scorer off the bench for the Harvesters. He's averaging around six points and six rebounds per game.

Pampa's top two scorers, Petie Davis (6-3 senior) and Donovan Lewis (6-2 senior), have both scored over 300 points this season. Davis has 312 points and Lewis, 301. Nichols said he was also pleased with the performance of Matt Martindale, who scored seven of his eight points in the first quarter.

Nichols was also happy about the return of quick guard Mario Scott, who has been out since November because of grades.

"It's good to have Mario get some playing time," Nichols said. "It didn't take him long to get back in the groove."

Scott, a 5-9 senior, scored five points and dished out several assists.

Levelland, 10-12 overall, is led by the inside-outside scoring punch of 5-10 guard Mark Blakemore and 6-5 pivot Thyssen Stuart, who had 13 points in the earlier loss to the Harvesters. The Lobos' Michael Sheppard, a 6-2 junior, was the district's sophomore of the year last season.

Levelland and Pampa battled right down to the wire in the first game. The score was tied after three quarters after the Lobos had led at halftime by one, 23-22.

Tonight's twinbill with Levelland tips off at 7 p.m. with the girls' game.

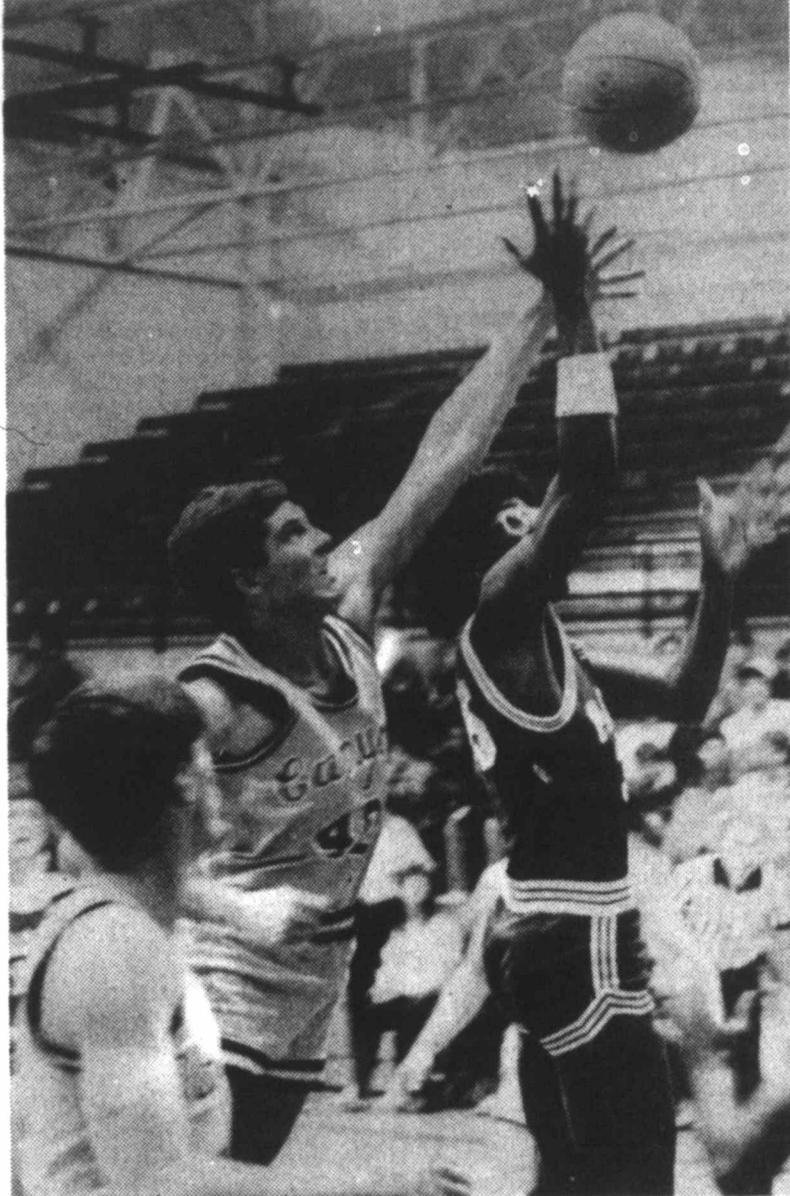

The Lady Harvesters will try and avenge a 66-26 loss to the Lady Lobos in their first meeting.

Levelland is ranked No. 2 in the state with 22-2 record. The Lady Lobos have split games with fifth-ranked Canyon this season to share the lead in District 1-4A.

Levelland is similar to Canyon, combining a slowdown offense with a pressing defense. But Levelland is taller.

Kim Cavanaugh, a 5-11 junior, scored 18 points, and Dailene Terrell, also a 5-10 junior, added 16 in the first game against Pampa.

Jackie Reed, a 5-10 junior, is averaging 9.9 ppg to lead the Lady Harvesters in scoring. Reed has been Pampa's top scorer in five of the last six games. Hope Henson, a 5-8 sophomore, follows at 9.8 ppg.

Vibert Ryan had 11 points and 5 rebounds against Canyon.

A & M players arrested

DALLAS (AP) — Two Texas A&M University basketball players have been arrested on misdemeanor charges of possession of marijuana, the Dallas Times Herald reported today.

The charges were filed on Jan. 16 after police at Calvert in Central Texas stopped an automobile occupied by guards Don Marbury and Todd Holloway for a traffic violation, the newspaper reported.

Marbury, a senior is the leading scorer in the Southwest Conference with a 22.7 average for the Aggies, who lead the SWC with a 5-1 record. Holloway, a junior, is averaging 10.4 points per game and is the team's leading playmaker.

Justice of the Peace John C. Woods said he released the two after they posted personal recognizance bonds. He had set bond at $1,000 each.

Woods said the marijuana amounted to less than two ounces each, making the offense a Class B misdemeanor, punishable by a fine of not more than $1,000 and/or a jail term of not more than 180 days.

Texas A&M coach Shelby Metcalf first told the newspaper Thursday that he knew nothing about the incident.

Metcalf later told the Times Herald he met with Marbury and Holloway after practice and then met with A&M Campus Police Chief Elmer Schneider.

"Whatever they told me will have to be confidential," Metcalf told the newspaper. "I have to look into it. I have a lot of questions. I just can't say anymore about it right now."

The coach said he has not disciplined the players and both are still active members of the team. The two have played in two games since their arrest.

Calvert Police Chief Bill Fegette told the Robertson County sheriff's office he stopped a car occupied by the two Jan. 16 for going 72 mph in a 55 mph zone. He said he called for assistance after the car backed into his vehicle.

Calvert is located in Robertson County, which adjoins Brazos County, where Texas A&M is located.

History favors Bears

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Everything, even history, seems to favor the Chicago Bears in their upcoming battle against the New England Patriots.

This will mark the fifth time in Super Bowl history that the participating teams have played each other during the regular season. And only once has the team that lost during the regular season been able to record a victory in the Super Bowl.

Two years ago, the Los Angeles Raiders lost to Washington during the regular season but came back to defeat the Redskins 38-9 in the Super Bowl.

In three other games, the team that won during the regular season also won in the Super Bowl.

In 1982, San Francisco defeated Cincinnati twice during the regular season and then won the Super Bowl against the Bengals 26-21.

In 1981, Oakland defeated Philadelphia twice in the regular season and again 27-10 in the Super Bowl. And in 1977, Oakland defeated Minnesota in the regular season and again in the Super Bowl.

In the second game of the 1985 season, the Bears smashed the Patriots 20-7. So convincing was the victory that the Patriots were able to spend only 21 seconds in Chicago territory.

The Bears took a 10-0 lead at the half on a 32-yard touchdown pass from Jim McMahon to Dennis McKinnon and a 21-yard field goal by Kevin Butler. Matt Suhey scored on a short run in the third period and Butler added a 28-yard field goal.

"What happened in September will have no bearing on what happens Sunday," Bears Coach Mike Ditka said. "I think it will be a different football game. I think they are a much-improved football team."

"We had the upper hand by playing that game at home. We caught them unaware and they probably didn't think we'd be that good defensively that early in the season."

Walter Payton, Chicago's star running back, said: "I'm curious to play this game. In the first game, I was injured and went out of the game."

Payton had only 11 rushes for 19 yards in that first meeting while Craig James of the Patriots managed only five yards in seven carries but helped avert a shutout by catching a short pass from Tony Eason in the fourth quarter and completing a 90-yard touchdown play.

"It was so long ago and we have changed so much," James said. "I don't put any credibility in that game. We have not played a revenge game this year, and this is not a revenge game at all."

In the first game, guard John Hannah of the Patriots did not play because of injuries and tackle Steve Moore was making only his second professional start.

"We've improved; we've got all our offensive linemen healthy," fullback Mose Tatupu said. "We never really had an offense then. This time around we are ready."

The Bears limited the Patriots to only 27 net yards rushing and 179 passing, with 90 coming on Eason's pass to James.

That touchdown and one play from the 49-yard-line in the second quarter were the only times the Patriots were in Bears' territory.

"That game will have no effect on this game," Bears tackle Keith Van Horne said. "This is entirely another game."

Linebacker Otis Wilson echoed that sentiment. "That game is over," he said. "They're playing better and we're playing better."

Chicago guard Stefan Humphries didn't play in the first game and probably will not play in the Super Bowl "unless there's an injury or someone does not play up to his potential."

"An athlete has to have that feeling of thinking he can win," Humphries said.

Green leads Phoenix Open

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — There was a time, "back in the 70s, when I was a much younger player, I could work the ball both ways," pretty much make the golf ball do what he wanted it to do, Hubert Green said.

"Then, for five or six years, I lost it. I couldn't do it," said Green, now 39, who scored his 19th career victory last season in the PGA national championship. But it's coming back.

"I'm close to doing it the way I want to," Green said Thursday after he had scattered nine birdies across his card in an 8-under-par 63 that provided him with the first-round lead in the $500,000 Phoenix Open.

"It was a fun round of golf" and was much closer to the standards he sets for himself, Green said.

"It's better to the extent that I'm more relaxed standing up there. It's better to the extent I'm not hitting those oh-my-gosh-not-over-there shots now.

"It's still not there," Green said. Then he smiled. "But I can hear the footsteps. Sometime this year, it's going to show up."

But Green was not alone in the scoring heroics on the friendly little Phoenix Country Club course that yielded subpar scores to more than half the 144-man field.

Jack Nicklaus and Tom Watson were not among them, however. Each struggled to a 72 in his opening round of the season, and each faces the need for improvement today in order to qualify for the final two rounds Saturday and Sunday.

"A marvelous day. It seemed like I couldn't do anything wrong," said Calvin Peete, the defending title-holder and a runaway winner a couple of weeks ago in the Tournament of Champions.

He was among the quartet that was tied at 64, a single stroke off the pace. Also at that figure were former PGA champ Hal Sutton, Larry Mize and Australian Greg Norman.

"The weather was gorgeous (warm and sunny with a slight breeze) and the golf course was set up extremely well. It enabled you to play right down the flagsticks and I was just able to take advantage of it," Norman said.

So did Jack Renner, Barry Jaeckel and Jeff Sluman, who got in with 65s. British Open champion Sandy Lyle of Scotland led a big group at 66.

Hoosiers win in overtime

By DICK BRINSTER
AP Sports Writer

His Indiana Hoosiers had just beaten bitter Big Ten rival Purdue by a point in overtime, and all Coach Bob Knight would tell was a fish story.

"What an unbelievable (warm) day we got for January. I sat on this lake fishing and I thought how insignificant basketball really is," said Knight, who refused to answer any questions following Indiana's 71-70 victory Thursday night over the 15th-ranked Boilermakers.

"I hate to leave you, but I think I'm going to go plan my fishing trip tomorrow," said Knight, who frequently crosses swords with the media.

And that had to stand as the Indiana story, because all the players — including the hero of the night, Steve Alford — left without saying anything, either.

Alford's presence was felt at both ends of the court, however. He scored 13 of his foul-plagued team's last 17 points, made the only field goal of overtime and stole the ball to deny Purdue a final chance to win.

Alford wound up with 27 points as the 12-4 Hoosiers improved to 4-2 in the Big Ten. The visiting Boilermakers, led by Melvin McCants and Todd Mitchell with 14 points apiece, fell to 5-2 and 16-4.

Elsewhere, it was No. 7 Kansas 81, Missouri 77; No. 10 Nevada-Las Vegas 88, New Mexico State 79; No. 11 Kentucky 74, Georgia 69; No. 17 Bradley 67, Illinois State 63 in overtime; No. 18, Alabama-Birmingham 81, North Carolina-Charlotte 63, and No. 19 Texas-El Paso 65, Colorado State 57. Top Ten

— No. 7 Kansas 81, Missouri 77

There was no relaxation among the Kansas Jayhawks, particularly after they blew most of a 13-point lead in the closing minutes of the game at Missouri.

"I was thrilled, thrilled to death to win," said Kansas Coach Larry Brown, who has lofty ambitions. "We desperately needed to win if we're going to fight for the top spot."

Forward Ron Kellogg led the Jayhawks with 27 points, the last two coming on free throws that clinched the game for Kansas, now 18-2 overall and 4-0 in the Big Eight Conference.

Despite the Tigers' late rush, Missouri Coach Norm Stewart was not satisfied.

"I think we were a little afraid out there," said Stewart, whose Tigers fell to 16-6 and 3-2 in the Big Eight.

Forward Derrick Chievow led Missouri with a game-high 31 points and Jeff Strong added 20.

No. 10 UNLV 88, New Mexico St. 79

New Mexico State was playing — and winning — before the largest crowd in its history, but most of 13,709 were disappointed by Nevada-Las Vegas sharpshooters Anthony Jones and Freddie Banks.

Jones scored 28 points for the Runnin' Rebels, now 18-2 and 7-0 in the Pacific Coast Athletic Association. Banks added 21, including five three-pointers. Three were in succession as UNLV erased a 66-59 deficit.

"He's got the green light to go one-on-one," UNLV Coach Jerry Tarkanian said of Banks. "He can create a lot of things."

The Aggies, who had won seven straight games, got 25 points from Gilbert Wilburn and 21 from Kenny Travis. New Mexico State is 5-1 in the PCAA and 11-4 overall.

Second Ten

No. 11 Kentucky 74, Georgia 69
It was easy for Kentucky, which led 8-0 and was in front all the way. But Coach Eddie Sutton was not satisfied. He had the Wildcats practicing shortly after the last of the crowd had filed out of Rupp Arena.

No. 18 UAB 81, UNCC 63

It's a 40-minute game, and that was 20 minutes too long for North Carolina-Charlotte. Alabama-Birmingham, 18-4 overall and 6-1 in the Sunbelt Conference, recovered from a 30-29 deficit late in the first half and ran away to lead by as many as 22 points.

Steve Mitchell scored 19 points and James Ponder added 14 for the Blazers. Mike Milling had 17 points for the visiting 49ers, who dropped to 5-11 and 0-6 in the league. They haven't beaten UAB in six years.

No. 19 Texas-El Paso 65, Colorado State 57

Texas-El Paso didn't figure to have to much trouble with 7-11 Colorado State, but the Miners — who trailed by two points early in the second half — had to press.

LONDON (AP) — Broadway director Michael Bennett has quit the stage musical "Chess" 10 days before the show was due to begin rehearsals.

But co-producer Robert Fox said the show, written by Tim Rice and composed by Benny Andersson and Bjorn Ulvaeus from the Swedish rock group ABBA, will start rehearsals on schedule Feb. 3 with a new director who has yet to be announced.

Its opening date remains May 14 at London's Prince Edward Theater, where Rice's previous hit "Evita" concludes its eight-year run February 8.

Bennett's stage credits include "A Chorus Line," the longest-running musical in Broadway history, "Dreamgirls," and "Ballroom." He has won seven Tony Awards and a special Gold Tony for "A Chorus Line."

MIDLAND, Texas (AP) — A Midland County jury sentenced a 24-year-old man to 40 years in prison for attacking his former girlfriend and her relative with a machete.

The five-man, seven-woman jury on Wednesday found Lenn Charles Lee of Midland guilty of burglary with intent to commit aggravated assault and handed down the sentence on Thursday.

He was accused of attacking his former girlfriend, Brenda Alexander, and Kenneth Alexander, a relative who came to her rescue. The incident occurred in the home of Betty Harris, Ms. Alexander's aunt, in the early morning hours of Sept. 25, 1984.

Ms. Alexander testified they had fought the night before.

"We fought. He knocked me down, kicked me and took my purse, my keys and my car. He said, 'Come back and kill you,'" she told the jury.

A doctor testified Ms. Alexander's left hand was permanently disabled by the machete and that Kenneth Alexander received a collarbone injury.

Spanish explorers first visitors of Texas

By The Associated Press

In 1528, the ill-fated Spanish expedition to "La Florida," consisting of five homemade boats, was shipwrecked on the coast of Texas. This landing on the "Isle of Malhado," most likely Galveston Island, marked the first recorded European intrusion into the present state of Texas.

Of about 300 Spaniards who survived, historian William Griggs recounts, only four men eventually lived through sickness and encounters with hostile coastal Indians. These four, Alvar Nunez Cabeza de Vaca, Andres Dorantes de Carranca, Alonso del Castillo Maldonado, and Estevancio, a black slave of Dorantes, lived among the Texas Indians for nearly eight years, acting as healers and medicine men.

Traveling from tribe to tribe, the four eventually made their way through Texas back to Spanish settlements on the east coast of New Spain, or what is now Mexico.

It was Cabeza de Vaca who perpetuated rumors of seven cities of gold on the frontier. Antonio de Mendoza, viceroy of New Spain, purchased Estevancio from Dorantes and sent him as a guide for Friar Marcos de Niza, who was to make a preliminary search for the seven cities. Estevancio was killed by Pueblo Indians, but Friar Marcos returned to Mexico more convinced than ever that the legendary riches did indeed exist.

To locate and claim the wealth that he was sure could be found, Mendoza appointed Francisco Vasquez de Coronado, Governor of New Galacia, to lead an expedition into the unknown country of the North. The small army of 1,000 men began the journey at the small Mexican town of Compostela in February 1540. Traveling north with 1,500 horses and mules, the largest European expedition ever to penetrate the region conquered pueblo after pueblo, devastating the Indians with more powerful military tactics.

Historian David Weber notes that Coronado called upon the Pueblo Indians to "acknowledge the Catholic Church as the ruler and superior of the whole world, and the high priest called the Pope, and in his name the king and queen of Spain." He promised kind treatment to those who acquiesced and war and slavery to those who resisted. Coronado lived up to his promise with the hundreds of pueblos who resisted.

Some historians believe the Pueblos conspired with the Plains Indian whom the Spanish called "The Turk" to lead the expedition east out of Pueblo country in search of a land called Quivira. "El Turco" convinced the Spanish that they would find great wealth there. After a Mass of Thanksgiving in Palo Duro Canyon, they continued the search for gold, moving into present-day Kansas. They did find Quivira. But it was only a modest Wichita Indian village and did not hold treasures of gold.

Disheartened, the expedition turned south and headed back to Mexico, torturing and executing "The Turk" for his trickery along the way. Coronado reported to the King of Spain, "I have done all that I could possibly do to serve your Majesty and to discover a country where God our Lord might be served and the royal patrimony of Your Majesty increased."

Deep in the "New World," the desire to conquer, to gain wealth and power, took root. Indeed, according to historian Roberto Miro

Salmon, this search for "the fabulous" spawned a rich folkloric and historic tradition among Spanish Mexicans. And for more than three hundred years, Spanish, French and American adventurers traversed the unmapped lands of Texas searching for elusive wealth and power. Eventually, these quests fueled the western development of the North American frontier and the permanent settlements that resulted.

Border economic development study begins

AUSTIN (AP) — A task force seeking solutions to the Texas-Mexican border economic woes has decided to begin its study with a series of public hearings from El Paso to the Rio Grande Valley.

The first session for public comment will be in El Paso in about two weeks.

At least three other hearings will be held two weeks apart, tentatively in Del Rio or Eagle Pass, Laredo and some city in the Valley.

At the initial meeting, the Task Force on Border Economic Development was advised by Gov. Mark White and Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby to consider "cooperation" the key to their problems.

"If a solution can be found, I think you can find it," Speaker Gib Lewis said.

The 23-member group was appointed by the three top officials.

"We hope you will not expect instant solutions to a problem that has been there for at least three decades at least and also a problem that has been studied over and over without much result," said Ruben

Garcia, Laredo business executive and panel chairman.

Garcia also said he hoped the task force's work would be used by the state "to better the quality of life for the people of the border and not wind up as another term paper that will be added to the libraries of our state."

White stressed that the task force had "a unique opportunity for the border region to assess itself, document its strengths, set its priorities and mobilize resources necessary to implement its common goals."
