The ways of driving to stay alive

By CATHY SPAULDING
Staff Writer

Driver's education does not end when a person passes driver's license examination, Jack Peoples says.

Approximately 40 people who attend his defensive driving class each month are reminded of that through startling statistics, repeated facts and a common-courtesy approach to driving. The National Safety Council's defensive driving program is sponsored locally by the Pampa Chamber of Commerce.

One such class took place Monday at the Energas Flame Room. The eight-hour class is normally spread over two nights, but this week, Peoples had another commitment Tuesday, so he had to cram the two-night class in a rapid-fire five-hour session.

The "students," who come from as far away as Wichita Falls and Midland, approach the eight-hour class from different viewpoints. Most, 80 percent Peoples claims, attend the class to keep from paying a city or county traffic ticket and to get a minor offense expunged from the driving record. Others want a discount on insurance premiums. Still others come on the recommendation of their employers.

Peoples hopes the students leave the class with an awareness that getting behind the wheel is not a task to be taken for granted.

"You are taking this course to learn how to drive to stay alive," Peoples tells the students, which range from teen-aged beginning drivers to bikers to retirees to prominent businesswomen.

Defensive driving, he says, "saves lives, money and time in spite of the conditions around you and the actions of others."

Five components of defensive driving are knowledge of traffic laws and hazards; alertness of conditions; foresight, the ability to anticipate immediate and long-range developments; judgement and skill in handling the vehicle in basic and emergency conditions.

Peoples brings up auto accident statistics, which he admits "scare me to death."

"One in two people living today will be in an alcohol related auto accident."

"There are 150 million drivers in the United States and 122 million drink at least casually."

"What is the most dangerous time of the week for drivers," he

Band parents get response from board

BY PAUL PINKHAM
Staff Writer

After meeting for more than three hours behind closed doors, Pampa Independent School Board members issued yet another formal statement concerning the Pride of Pampa band ineligibility issue.

Board members responded to questions posed in mid-December by Band Booster Club President Danny Courtney and warned against "unfettered boosterism." They met in executive session for more than three hours to talk to personnel involved in the issue.

The band was prohibited from marching at state competition in Austin in November after the University Interscholastic League was notified by school officials that an ineligible student had marched at regional competition in Vernon. The student was allegedly ineligible under the state's no pass, no play law.

The band eventually traveled to Austin and performed after restraining orders were obtained in Pampa and Austin.

Courtney's questions centered around whether High School Principal Oran Chappell acted in the best interest of all involved, whether there was a written grade-checking policy, when grades were curved in the biology class the student is said to have failed and why band parents were allegedly given different information than the board concerning the incident.

In a statement passed 6-1, the board said no written policy was in place concerning grade checking at the time of the incident, but that Band Director Charles Johnson has in his job description "written requirements...requiring him to follow closely all rules and regulations provided by the UIL" and to "check scholastic grades of students for UIL eligibility."

Board member Wallace Birkes voted against the statement and later said his objection concerned "wording."

With regard to the charge of different information being given the board and band parents, the statement says: "It is the opinion of the board of trustees that school personnel have honestly and accurately represented all circumstances as they understand them."

Chappell devised a new grade-checking system with faculty input during the second six-week period and it became procedure following the second six-week period, the statement reads.

The board also defended Chappell's actions on the band issue to be in the best interest of all concerned.

"His actions were the only honest course of conduct possible," it said.

Oil prices continue plunging

NEW YORK (AP) — Sellers continue outnumbering buyers on world oil markets, with most crude prices hovering at levels not seen since 1979.

On Tuesday, West Texas Intermediate, the major domestic grade of oil, dropped 67 cents per barrel to $20.60 for February delivery, while Brent North Sea crude fell to $19.70 a barrel in the cash market, down from Monday's $20.75 price.

Gasoline and heating oil prices, however, were up slightly on the New York Mercantile Exchange, which reported its highest-ever trading volume.

The February futures contract for Brent North Sea also bucked the trend, opening higher at $21 a barrel, falling to $19.50, then recovering to close at $20.20, up a nickel a barrel from Monday's close.

Still, overall crude prices stood down 37 percent since November and 20 percent lower than they were last Wednesday.

"I think we've got utter chaos in the oil business and there is no confidence in anybody stepping in to restore stability," said Rosario Ilacqua, an analyst at the New York brokerage house of L.F. Rothschild, Unterberg, Towbin.

RELATED STORIES, Page six

"The facts are, if the producing countries cannot get together to hold the price at $27, what is to hold it at $20 or $15?" said Ilacqua. While suggesting that more erosion is likely, however, he also joined other analysts in suggesting that price pressures would force an eventual turnaround.

Since the 1970s, fears of shortages, the high cost of oil and concern over the double-digit inflation spawned by the price explosion led to conservation and fuel switching that undermined the demand for oil.

This helped produce the petroleum glut that now is causing prices to collapse.

The fallout also hit the stock market. Six of the most active issues on the New York Stock Exchange on Tuesday were oil companies and all fell in value. The Dow Jones industrial average fell 14.68; three of its 30 stocks are oil companies.

"It is a complex phenomenon which will affect countries differently," presidential spokesman Larry Speakes said, reading from a prepared statement in Washington. "The effect of a drop in oil prices on the U.S. economy and particularly on U.S. consumers is favorable."

"In net terms, since we import more oil than we produce, it is also favorable on the world economy overall as a catalyst for continued growth. Of course, the fall in oil prices is obviously a problem for all oil-exporting countries and can aggravate the debt problem of oil-exporting debtor countries."

Three major oil companies, Atlantic Richfield Co., Mobil Corp. and Citgo Petroleum Corp., announced cuts in the prices they pay for oil. Citgo dropped its posted price for all grades of domestic crude by $1, and said it would pay $24.50 a barrel for West Texas Intermediate.

Mobil and Atlantic Richfield said they would pay $27 a barrel for West Texas Intermediate — amounting to 75 cents less by Mobil and $1 less by Atlantic Richfield. Mobil said it was cutting prices it would pay for other grades by 50 cents to $1.

Economy's growth sluggish

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. economy grew a sluggish 2.3 percent last year, even slower than previously thought, the government reported today.

This marked the slowest pace for the economy since a 2.1 percent decline in growth during the recession year of 1982.

The Commerce Department's lower estimate stemmed from a sharp downward revision for economic activity in the final three months of the year.

The gross national product, the broadest measure of economic health, grew at an annual rate of just 2.4 percent in the fourth quarter, down sharply from an initial estimate of 3.2 percent made in December.

The revision shaved growth for the year to 2.3 percent instead of the 2.4 percent rate estimated last month.

The economy grew 3.4 percent in 1983 and 6.6 percent in 1984.

The big revision in growth for the fourth quarter stemmed from a sharply higher estimate of the country's trade deficit and a big jump in inflation.

As measured by a GNP-tied inflation measure, prices were rising at an annual rate of 4.5 percent in the final three months of the year, the highest rate since the first quarter of 1984.

The big jump in the GNP fixed-weight price index came from widespread increases in a variety of prices, including the first increase in the price of imported goods since the second quarter of 1984.

Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige, briefing reporters on the GNP report, said that more than half of the big jump in inflation in the fourth quarter came from a big rise in food costs and a pay increase for the military. He said both factors were temporary and did not signal that inflation, which has been dormant in recent years, was beginning to pick up.

He also dismissed the rise in import prices, which had been falling for five straight quarters. He said he did not share the concerns of many economists that higher costs for foreign products would drive inflation up in 1986.

Baldrige said that "prospects seem good" to achieve the administration's forecast of 4 percent growth in the GNP for 1986.

The various changes left the GNP, after adjusting for inflation at $3.57 trillion for 1985, compared to $3.49 trillion for 1984. For the fourth quarter, the GNP level was put at $3.61 trillion.

The Reagan administration has been working actively with other countries to drive the value of the dollar down in an effort to rectify the country's huge trade deficits.

asks the students who briefly ponder an answer. "2 a.m. Sunday, because that's when people are out after parties and they're on the road."

"Nothing is so important to make a person drive drunk," he repeats throughout the class period.

He discloses other statistics: 57,000 servicemen died in the 12 years Americans fought in Vietnam while 44,000 to 55,000 are killed each year on American highways.

Standing alone in front of the class, Peoples backs his words with charts, magnetized bulletin boards with movable model "automobiles" and a chalkboard. The students are given copies of the Texas Driver's Manual and the National Safety Council's Defensive Driving Course guide, which Peoples' follows in his lectures.

Peoples tells the students that they can have "perfect trips" if they are able to avoid collisions, traffic violations, vehicle abuse, schedule delays and discourtesy.

"How often should you check in your rear view mirror," he asks the class.

No response. "Every five seconds," he answers, admitting that it means a lot of peeks in the mirror during a trip to Amarillo.

But that's all part of staying alert. Part of this alertness, Peoples says, is to be aware of six conditions that influence driving: light, weather, traffic, vehicle condition, road condition and the driver himself.

"Driving to stay alive means driving to prevent collisions," Peoples repeats. "66 to 80 percent of all collisions are driver failure."

The most common fatal accident is between two vehicles, he says, listing six types of two-vehicle collisions: from the rear, from the front, oncoming, at an intersection, passing and while being passed.

As he speaks, Peoples tosses the students terms that they may have forgotten from high school driver's education class:

The two second rule - allow two seconds passing time between you and the vehicle in front of you.

Stopping distance - how far a vehicle travels during the time it takes a driver to respond to a hazard, apply the brakes and bring the vehicle to a stop.

Eye sweeping - scanning the road and intersection ahead to know what to expect.

Blind spots - the areas behind a driver that aren't seen in rear or sideview mirrors. Turn and look.

Peoples repeats his exhortation to use seat belts.

"Not one person killed in Texas during the Christmas holiday was wearing seat belts," he says. "90 percent of all fatalities happen in the front seat."

Peoples talks about the "mystery crash," the one vehicle collision of undetermined cause. Victims of one vehicle fatalities do not live to tell what happened and survivors may not admit to driver error, he says. Such accidents are caused by excessive speed, distractions, fatigue, boredom and chemical abuse.

Preplanning can prevent such accidents, he says, adding that preplanning includes allowing ample time for trips and getting plenty of rest before long trips.

While on the trip, avoid "Highway Hypnosis," he tells the class. He says it can be done by taking breaks, listening to the citizens band or the radio, preferably a talk show.

Peoples tells the class to be aware of the effects drugs have on driving. Not just the illegal substances like marijuana and cocaine, but such common drugs as antihistamines, which may make people drowsy, or stimulants.

The most deadly substance, Peoples says, is alcohol.

"No trip was so important to require a person to drive drunk," he repeats.

The end of the course concludes with no test, no extensive review; just an exhortation to drive to stay alive.

Peoples has taught the Pampa chamber's Defensive Driving Course for three years.

Area residents wanting or needing to take the class may contact Floyd Sackett at the Pampa Chamber of Commerce office.

Longtime McLean area resident Sitter dies

McLEAN - Evan Lester Sitter, 87, son of Panhandle area pioneers and a McLean area resident for more than 70 years, died Tuesday.

Memorial services will be at 11 a.m. Thursday in the First United Methodist Church at McLean. Officiating will be Rev. William H. Foster Jr., a Presbyterian minister from Sherman, and Billy Wilson, pastor.

Mr. Sitter will be buried in the Hillcrest Cemetery prior to the service in a private burial service for family members only.

Arrangements are under the direction of Lamb Funeral Home of McLean.

Mr. Sitter was born in Union County, Ill., and moved to McLean with his parents in 1910. He married Leona Watkins in 1918 at Sayre, Okla. Mr. Sitter owned the Bar LO Ranch about 15 miles south of McLean.

His father, George W. Sitter, visited the Texas Panhandle in 1898 and returned in 1899, when he purchased four sections of land from two RO Ranch cowboys who had staked a claim.

In a 1965 interview, Mr. Sitter said, "I was born up north in 1898, and they always said that my dad took one look at me and skedaddled to Texas, where he bought this land."

After he became a rancher, Mr. Sitter annually invited neighboring cowboys and ranchers to the ranch to help him work his cattle. The roundup was a social event, which included everyone in the area. More than 100 cowboys and sightseers would gather at his ranch for the work and a chuckwagon-style feed.

Since 1953, Mr. Sitter had procured the services of Flip Breedlove, a banker from Clarendon, to exhibit his barbecuing skills. Area ranchers' wives had brought the food to the ranch house until Mr. Sitter engaged Breedlove for the annual feed.

"We've been doing this for as long as I can remember, but the gathering has grown so large in the past 12 years, we decided to have Flip come in and do the cooking," Mr. Sitter said in the 1965 interview in The Amarillo Globe-News.

He held the roundup yearly until a few years ago when he retired and sold the ranch.

An ardent collector of Indian pottery, Mr. Sitter also was interested in photography and traveling.

He was a member of the Presbyterian Church, where he served as elder, treasurer and teacher. He was active in civic projects and took an active interest in the young people of the community, helping with youth projects.

He was a charter member of the McLean Lions Club and had served on the McLean school board for several years and also on the McLean City Council. Mr. Sitter also served on the hospital and library boards and was a charter member of the Hillcrest Cemetery Association.

He served in the U.S. Army during World War I.

Survivors include his wife; a son, Spencer Sitter, Santa Fe, N.M.; two daughters, Frances Dennis, Richardson, and Dorothy Foster, Sherman; nine grandchildren and 19 great-grandchildren.

Band issue

"Honesty in compliance with UIL rules is in the best interest of all band students, teachers and the particular student involved."

In response to another of Courtney's questions, the board said the biology instructor dropped each student's four lowest grades "after observing that the overall grades for the class in question were generally low."

The board also listed five "salient facts" its investigation turned up, among them:

- the student was passing biology at the end of the three-week period (explaining why his parents never received a failing notice);

- the student failed biology for the six-week period with a grade of 68;

- the student failed to complete the requirements for make-up work that would have given him the opportunity to raise the failing score to passing;

- the student received a report card reflecting a failing grade in biology and the report card was signed by a parent of the student then returned;

- the student was ineligible to march at Vernon.

The board said it regrets that lawsuits were predicated against school officials "on these particular facts."

"(The board) wishes to remind all those who support extracurricular and cocurricular activities that unfettered boosterism is not conducive to the maintenance of high academic standards," the statement reads.

"All information which has been developed in connection with these events can and has been used to improve the procedures for reporting and checking grades," the statement continues.

"However, the final responsibility for the accuracy and honesty of the reporting and checking of grades remains that of the individual students and the directors of extracurricular and cocurricular activities."

Following the meeting, Courtney said he is "disappointed" in the board's response to his questions because, he said, "there is no doubt we were given two different sets of information."

Several of the parents held an impromptu conversation with board members Darville Orr and David Robertson following the meeting, airing several complaints about Chappell. One woman said she saw the principal laugh when the band failed to earn a Division I rating in Austin.

The parents asked the two board members why the board believed Chappell's version of the incident, that the board members replied that the board has no choice but to believe its faculty members. Orr said they would be "treading on thin legal ice" if they talked to parents about what was discussed in executive session.

Tough talk marks struggle with Gramm-Rudman bill

WASHINGTON (AP) - Year No. 1 of Gramm-Rudman budget balancing is under way, and so far, a lot of the key players in the contest are trying to get by with the rhetoric of former years.

President Reagan met Tuesday with congressional Republicans who said later that he was adamantly against raising taxes or accepting anything less than a 3 percent increase in defense spending.

In budget battles of past years, the differences between the White House and Congress were never fully resolved and the deficit kept growing like Jack's beanstalk. But this time there is a budget-balancing law bearing the names of Sens. Phil Gramm, R-Tex., and Warren Rudman, R-N.H., that says it must come down.

So, the latest round starts with brave talk.

The Republican chairman of the Senate Budget committee brushed off the hard line from the president and said, "I look for a compromise early on."

Also backing compromise was Senate Majority Leader Robert Dole, R-Kan., who predicted that about a month from now Republicans, Democrats and the White House will try to "hammer out a budget that we could all agree on."

Parks board meets

The Parks and Recreation Advisory Board will meet at 4:30 p.m. Thursday in the City Commission Room at City Hall.

Agenda items include discussion of naming three parks sites in the city and consideration of a rehabilitation project for the city lake in Recreation Park.

University of Texas obtains 'unique' library

AUSTIN (AP) — Getting the Pforzheimer Library of more than 1,000 of the earliest English-language books is a rare coup that could never be duplicated, University of Texas officials say.

"This was truly a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity," Jess Hay, chairman of the UT regents, said Tuesday.

The collection includes a copy of the first book printed in English, along with rare works of poetry, prose, drama and essays by Chaucer, Shakespeare, Bacon, Donne, Locke and others.

University officials described the 1,100 books and 250 manuscript groups — which span the years 1475 to 1700 — as being so rare it would be impossible to assemble them today.

"The Pforzheimer Library is the last major collection of works representing the foundation of English culture remaining in private hands. A similar collection could not be gathered today since these books and documents ... are simply not available," Cunningham said.

Instrumental in the acquisition was Dallas billionaire H. Ross Perot, who paid $15 million for the books. The university will raise funds to repay Perot.

Perot said he received an unsolicited phone call offering him the library, adding that earlier contact between the University of Texas and the Pforzheimer family helped clinch the deal. In 1978, UT purchased an original Gutenberg Bible from the New York City-based Pforzheimer Foundation.

"They were very, very sensitive about who the books went to. Just money wouldn't get these books," Perot said.

"My role is that of an intermediary. We wanted to get these books at the university," Perot said. "We want the greatest university in the world here in our state. We are in the process of building it."

Decherd Turner, director of UT's Harry Ransom Humanities Research Center where the books will be housed, said the library is unique.

"On these items the contours of our minds have been formed," Turner said.

Collected by Carl H. Pforzheimer Sr. over a period of some 50 years, the library includes:

- "Recuyell of the histories of Troye," printed in 1475 by the first English printer, William Caxton.
- The four folios of Shakespeare from 1623, 1632, 1663 and 1685.
- The Cloverdale Bible, 1535, the first complete Bible in English.
- Chaucer's "Works," 1532.
- Francis Bacon's "Essays," 1597, the first edition of the renowned English essayist.
- "Poems, by J.D.," the first collected edition of John Donne's poetry, 1633.
- John Locke's "An Essay Concerning Humane Understanding," 1690.
- "The Generall Historie of Virginia," by Captain John Smith, 1624, the first sizable work in English about North America.

Turner noted that the collection includes 15 Shakespeare quartos, the earliest forms in which the playwright's works appeared in print, saying, "Exceedingly rare, each literally is worth its weight in gold — and then some."

Perot said he bought the books for UT so scholars could have access to them and so inexpensive facsimiles could be produced for widespread study.

"These books were under lock and key. These books from this point forward will be available to scholars," Perot said.

"One of my dreams — and a dream the university tells me is realistic — is that we can duplicate these books and have inexpensive paperback versions of these books available to every little liberal arts college in the country," Perot said.

Cunningham said the Pforzheimer Library will add luster to UT's reputation.

"The presence of the collection will attract scholars in the humanities from around the world and will serve as a catalyst for attracting pre-eminent faculty members in the liberal arts," Cunningham said.

"Because distinguished faculty members attract the best and brightest students, the ultimate value of this collection is incalculable," he said.

Off beat

By
Dee Dee Laramore

A man to admire, emulate

My back decided Monday that I wasn't going to go anywhere or do anything, so I spent the day on the couch flipping through the television channels. I don't mean to offend anyone, but if you ask me, daytime television is pretty boring stuff. And don't get me started on what I think of soap operas!

However, since Monday was the first national observance of Martin Luther King Jr.'s birthday, several programs centered on that theme.

I was 13 years old when this dynamic preacher was shot on a hotel balcony in Memphis, Tenn. I knew there was a lot going on between the blacks and the whites, but I hadn't really paid much attention to what was happening. This thing called racism had nothing to do with me, as far as I could see.

Self-righteousness would best describe my attitude towards other races at that time. I'm ashamed to admit. The only black people I had ever talked to were the children of migrant workers who spent a couple of months attending McLean schools. I felt since I talked to them and wasn't mean to them, I must not be prejudiced. Heck, I didn't really know what prejudiced meant.

When I moved to Minden, La., a few months after King's assassination, I quickly learned just what racism and prejudice were.

My first shock came when I went to the doctor's office. One door said white waiting room. Around the side of the building was a "colored" waiting room, and the "coloreds" had to come in by the back door. Even the examining rooms were segregated by color.

It didn't stop there... At the cinema, black people had to once again enter by a back door and climb a set of stairs to the balcony. They were even served from a different side of the refreshment stand.

Minden had a black school system and a white school system, each governed by its own board of directors. A black sheriff governed "nigger town," as it was commonly called, and a white sheriff kept the law on the other side.

And those secret organizations of the South apparently were quite active in Minden. I was to find out, first hand. We all heard the tales of black men found hanging in the bayous or dead on the side of some obscure logging road. It would happen every so often. No one ever asked questions, no murder investigation ever followed. Everyone knew what had happened — someone had stepped out of line. Someone had tried to act too "uppity," something that was not tolerated.

Nobody bucked the system. Everyone, black and white alike, seemed to be content with the way things were. If anyone didn't like it, they certainly didn't say so. I don't think I'm stretching it when I assume that they were afraid for their lives.

Then in 1969, the schools were integrated by federal government intervention. The whole town was thrown into a turmoil. Many white students were taken out of the public schools by their parents, and a private school system was established.

The black students were divided from their friends and thrown into the middle of a school where they were definitely not made to feel wanted. Fights broke out between the blacks and whites often. Resentment and hatred flared white hot.

I remember marching in a parade and the black kids standing on the side of the street spitting on us. A group of black boys decided it was great fun to band together and surround a white girl in the halls, getting a quick "feel," then walking away, laughing, before the girl had time to even realize what had happened to her. I was one of those girls... You can imagine how angry, how humiliated I felt.

Some of us victims went to the principal's office to report what had happened. All he did was tell us he couldn't do anything about it!

We were all raging mad, and so frustrated. We talked about it often among ourselves. Then suddenly, the harassment stopped.

I don't know for certain just what happened, but I was told that the father of the boy I was dating at the time was head of the Ku Klux Klan in Minden. When he heard about it, a meeting was supposedly held on the other side of town and the word was given that there would be some bodies found hanging in the bayous if any more of such things happened.

Monday's remembrances of Martin Luther King Jr.'s birthday and the work he has done brought all those memories back to me. I spent some time analyzing how things have changed and what my feelings are since those turbulent days in Louisiana.

Perhaps those experiences with the blacks, rather than alienating me from them, actually makes me more aware of what they've been through. It's an understatement to say they had plenty of reason to feel such hatred and resentment.

It makes me feel good to know that the next time I go to Minden, there will be no "colored" waiting rooms or "colored" entrances. I know that a visit to Minden High School will show that the kids are going to be a lot more worried about grades, dating and having fun than about whether they're black or white.

Lots of prejudices remain, within the whites and within the blacks, but during the past 20 or so years many, many changes have been made for the better — and a large part of that is due to King's dream and his peaceful way of trying to bring it about.

I share his dream. I truly want to see the day come when we can all hold hands and proclaim, "Free at last, free at last. Thank God A'mighty, we're free at last!"

Martin Luther King Jr. is a worthy man for us to admire and try to emulate.

Illegal aliens are problems for Texas, Florida

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas and Florida legislators have been told the federal government and their own states may not really want a new tough immigration law.

"No one has ever convinced me that we don't have exactly the kind of law we want to have as a nation," said Sidney Weintraub, former State Department executive and a widely known expert on immigration problems.

"I think it is a legitimate assumption we want to keep that door half open," Weintraub said Tuesday in briefing a group of Texas and Florida legislators.

However, Weintraub said if a few federal acts are passed it should have both employer penalties and positive identification for all aliens admitted.

Meanwhile, San Antonio Mayor Henry Cisneros said he opposes the employer sanctions and other provisions in the Simpson-Rodino bill under debate in Washington.

"It creates more problems for our business, legal and enforcement professions than it solves," Cisneros said in a statement released at a Capitol news conference.

The news conference was called to announce the formation of a Texas coalition against the Simpson-Rodino bill. The coalition includes the Texas Civil Liberties Union, Texas Catholic Conference, United Farm Workers, Mexican-American Democrats and other groups.

Weintraub, now a professor at the Lyndon B. Johnson School of Public Affairs, appeared before a seminar of Florida and Texas legislators considering mutual problems.

"I'm not convinced as a researcher we really want to stop them (illegal aliens). We want to stop them but then admit 300,000 or 400,000 in to pick fruit in Florida or Texas or to keep the sugar cane fields going in Florida.

Weintraub said his research indicates "the federal government is coming out ahead. They're still getting more in taxes than they are laying out because of these people."

Texas and Florida legislators agreed that part of the costs of taking care of illegal aliens should be borne by federal government instead of putting the entire burden on the border states.

"I think all our states should bear the burden, not just us," said Florida Rep. Ron Silver, D-Miami.

"We are aware now that any time there is an event in the Caribbean, we will have an influx of aliens," said Florida Rep. Jon Mills, D-Gainesville. "It has cost us a phenomenal amount of money."

Weintraub said his research led him to believe that any federal bill on immigration controls should have:

- Employer penalties for hiring illegal aliens.
- An identification system that would inform employers of the true identity. "You can buy fake birth certificates and driver licenses anywhere now. They are not effective," he said.

- A "generous" amnesty program to legalize aliens living in this country. "You would penalize a legal child the rest of her life if you did not recognize her illegal father," he said.

The anti-Simpson-Rodino coalition said employer sanctions would do more harm than good.

"They will create a new unnecessary employment discrimination against Mexican-Americans," Cisneros said.

PLANE CRASH PRESS CONFERENCE — Gerrie Cook, a Federal Aviation Administration spokesperson, addresses the media at a press conference Tuesday at the FAA's Fort Worth Air Route Traffic Control Center. The meeting dealt with air traffic control tapes between controllers and Rick Nelson's DC-3. The plane crashed New Year's Eve near DeKalb, Texas. Other FAA officials pictured are Byron Zirkle, Jim Howden and Ozzie Davis. (AP Laserphoto)

FAA says

Nelson plane near private airfield when it crashed

EULESS, Texas (AP) — Federal officials decline to "Monday morning quarterback" about the significance of a rural airstrip just 10 miles from singer Rick Nelson's airplane before it crashed in a fiery heap on New Year's Eve.

James Howden, manager of the Air Route Control Center, located in this Fort Worth suburb, said Tuesday there was a ranch airstrip of undetermined condition about 10 miles closer than the two nearest airports, each 20 miles away.

But he said the airfield wasn't offered as a landing option.

He praised the air controllers, saying, "I think our controllers did everything they could do."

"We can sit here and Monday morning quarterback," he said, but added that the conversation with the cockpit of Nelson's DC-3 lasted only 3½ minutes.

Howden said he didn't know if air traffic controllers considered the ranch airstrip or if they had too little time to spot it on a map because "...it all happened so fast."

On Tuesday, FAA officials released the tape of the conversation between the control tower and the cockpit of Nelson's plane, which caught fire and crashed on New Year's Eve near DeKalb in northeast Texas.

The tape sheds no light on the exact cause of the crash and only mentions "smoke in the cockpit."

Federal investigators say it will be months before the probable cause of the crash is revealed. Much speculation on the cause of the fire aboard the plane centered at first on two gasoline heaters.

Last week, the Washington Post attributed to an unidentified federal investigator that one possibility being considered was that the fire was ignited by "free-basing" cocaine, which requires mixing the drug with flammable ether or ammonia.

The newspaper also said a source told it that preliminary reports showed a trace of cocaine in Nelson's body.

Justice of the Peace Alfred Welch of Bowie County, where the crash occurred, said Tuesday night that he had heard talk of such reports but he knew of nothing official.

"My report — unless something changes drastically — is that they died of smoke inhalation and thermal burns," Welch said. "And it was accidental in the sense that there was no sign that they were injured by any external force or anybody hurt them intentionally. Then my autopsy report stops there," Welch said.

Nelson's friends and manager denied that the singer was a cocaine user.

Killed in the Dec. 31 crash with the 45-year-old performer were his fiancée, Helen Blair, 27, and band members Bobby Neal, 38; Patrick Woodward, 35; Rick Intveld, 22; Andy Chapin, 20, and Clark Russell, 35, the sound man.

Pilot Brad Rank and co-pilot Keith Ferguson survived the crash.

The tape, which FAA officials said was unedited, records the voice of either Rank or Ferguson requesting help. FAA officials said they do not know which one was communicating on the radio at the time.

The tape recording indicates that the first sign of trouble aboard Nelson's plane is a statement from one of the crew members at 5:08 p.m. (CST): "I think I'd like to turn around, uh, head for Texarkana here. I've got a little problem."

Gang seminar conducted

AUSTIN (AP) — A federal expert on motorcycle gangs is meeting with about 200 Texas law enforcement officials who want help in dealing with the gangs.

Les Smith, an inspector with the U.S. Marshal in Washington, said Texas officials are finding that the gangs are moving into legitimate businesses in an effort to launder drug and prostitution money.

U.S. Attorney Helen Eversberg of San Antonio, who organized the two-day meeting, said those businesses also provide income for the gangs when "the heat is on" their illegal activities.

"We're not so concerned with those business, it's how they got the money to get into those businesses," Smith said at a Tuesday news conference.

The legal businesses include hotels, supermarkets, airplane services and fishing board, he said.

Ms. Eversberg said expanding into legal business has not changed the character of motorcycle gangs, such as the Corpus Christi-based Bandidos.

"They're still pretty rough people," she said.

Motorcycle gangs are Texas' "form or organized crime," she added.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Protectionists shot down

In its effort to push through an onerous law aimed at shutting out foreign competition, the American textile industry and its labor allies have composed pictures that bear no resemblance to reality. In considering the proposal, Congress and the public have been barraged with misleading information.

A good illustration of the genre is a letter from Richard Spilhaus, the president of the Boston-based Northern Textile Association (NTA), criticizing a column of mine which disparaged the bill. Denying the domestic industry is so well protected, how did foreign nations manage to get 50 percent of the American clothing market?

Spilhaus also denies that consumers choose to buy imports. "If American consumers had their way, they would purchase American, not foreign, clothing. Retailers enjoy selling foreign apparel because it affords them a higher markup and greater profits." According to a study by the Marketing Research Corp. of America, "a typical piece of imported apparel retails for 97 percent of the price of a domestically produced good."

What if this bill doesn't pass? Nearly 2 million jobs lost, a $24 billion rise in the federal deficit and a $40 billion decline in gross national product - figures attributed to "econometric analysis conducted by the highly respected Data Resources Inc." Says Spilhaus, opponents of the bill "must now tell us where the million textile and apparel workers...will find gainful employment when their present manufacturing jobs go overseas."

Those studies sounded awfully impressive, so I called their purported authors. Christopher Caton, director of long-term studies for Data Resources, was blunt: "That's not a DRI study. It was done by Burlington Industries (a textile manufacturer). We did some econometric work analyzing what would happen under various assumptions they made. It is not accurate to say that those are the results we believe would occur from failure to enact the bill."

A second call was also illuminating. Bill Sorsby, director of business development for what is now called MRCA Information Services, said his firm's survey found little difference in the prices of foreign and American made clothing. But he admits it didn't allow for differences in quality. An imported shirt might cost the same as a domestic one, but the fabric and stitching might be much better.

Other investigations reach opposite conclusions. One study by the International Business and Economics Research Corp. (commissioned by a retailers' group) found that the textile bill would cost consumers more than $3 billion a year in higher prices - or $66,000 for every apparel job saved.

On the other questions, the NTA is no more reliable. The rise in imports doesn't prove the industry isn't protected. It only shows that, despite tariffs averaging 22 percent - four times the average for manufactured goods - foreigners often have outdone U.S. firms.

This isn't because retailers get excessive profits on imported clothes. Competition prevents that. If Store A is inflating its profit margin, Store B can take away its customers by charging less, and Store C can take away B's by charging still less. Though they'd like to, retailers don't decide their margins. The forces of supply and demand do.

Retailers sell foreign-made clothing because Americans want it - regardless of what they tell pollsters. Why? Because it carries a lower price - or higher quality for the same price.

Where will those textile workers go if their jobs disappear? No one knows, but that doesn't justify expensive measures to save them. Despite this industry's woes, the U.S. economy has added 17 million jobs in the last decade. No one knew where stagecoach drivers would go once the railroads appeared, but that was no reason to ban trains.

The key to those workers' fortunes lies in sound economic policies aimed at promoting competition, efficiency and growth, which assure employment and prosperity not just for them but for generations of workers to come. The textile protection bill is exactly the opposite of what is needed.

Disney changes: Is it progress?

Walt Disney Productions is ready to ring in a new era, with the first R-rated movie from the people who brought you Dumbo, Mickey and those 101 Dalmations.

The movie is seen as progress by many in the industry, broadening the target audience for Disney films. It's probably smart marketing. A hint of sex, a little violence and more than a few naughty words. Reality. That's what sells these days, so the theory goes.

These days, Disney is definitely after what sells. More than a year ago it served notice that it wanted its name known not just for sentimental, old-fashioned movies, but as a major studio, the equivalent of Paramount or Universal.

Disney's reputation wasn't built on the kind of movie that made millions for these studios. And the recent turnaround for the filmed entertainment segment of the Disney empire has come more from home-video sales and rentals of the old-fashioned films rather than from new productions.

Nevertheless, progress marches on. "Down and out in Beverly Hills," starring Nick Nolte as a transient who moves into a wealthy household and the oh-so campy Bette Midler, is due out at the end of January. Not quite the move for Dean Jones, who used to be the wild and crazy guy in the Disney stables. Fred McMurray? Not fitting at all.

In February, the "Disney Sunday Movie" will come to television with movies for children and their parents. The movies will remind few of "Walt Disney's Wonderful World of Color." The man who heads Disney's movie and TV division says they will be contemporary and non-saccharine.

Just like all the rest of the TV movies.

To be sure, the changes at Disney are expected to generate profits that will allow some of the traditional work to continued unabated. Disney will be releasing a new animated feature film every 18 months instead of every four years.

Nevertheless, in a world in which products, positions and mega-corporations all blend together, it's somewhat disheartening to watch Disney fall into the same casserole. Very few people go to a Paramount movie just because it is made by Paramount. But the Disney name was once a consistent drawing card.

It's their company, of course, and it's not the only one that's changing. But we hope they can keep some of what has made the Disney name so special.

Today in history

Today is Wednesday, Jan. 22, the 22nd day of 1986. There are 343 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On Jan. 22, 1973, in a ruling that continues to generate controversy, the U.S. Supreme Court legalized abortions nationwide.

On this date: Ten years ago: A Syrian-sponsored political and military agreement was announced in Beirut to bring an end to Lebanon's 19-month-old civil war, but fighting continued in many parts of the country.

Five years ago: The Reagan Administration said it intended to carry out commitments to Iran made by the Carter Administration to obtain the release of 52 Americans held hostage in Teheran for 444 days.

One year ago: President Ronald Reagan told anti-abortion demonstrators in Washington "I feel a great sense of solidarity with all of you." Reagan was the first president to address the annual march protesting the Supreme Court's 1973 decision legalizing abortion.

The dying can't wait

It must be near-ultimate anguish for anybody with a terminal illness to hear or read of a "possible new cure" which is just beyond his reach.

"Yes, there is an exciting new remedy which has proved successful in 11 of 25 patients but - sorry - the drug is still 'experimental,' is not available."

What's wrong with allowing patients who have no other hope access to such new remedies before they are "clinically proved"?

It happened again just recently when the National Cancer Institute announced that cancer patients who had not responded to radiation, had not responded to chemotherapy, had responded to a new procedure involving interleukin-2.

Thousands of calls poured into my office, every newspaper office and to the NCI asking, "Please, where is this treatment available? I'll go any place, pay anything!"

Such callers could be told only that general availability of IL-2 is at least five years away.

The Wall Street Journal recently noted that frequently the news prescribed for incurable patients nothing better than "patience."

The dying are advised that they'll "just have to wait."

Should we of the media not mention at all these promising medical breakthroughs until they are proved, approved and available?

That would not be fair, either.

That replaces false hope with false hopelessness - and it takes the pressure off the researchers and bureaucracy to expedite their procedures.

Partly in response to that avalanche of phone calls, the National Cancer Institute did expand and accelerate IL-2 research.

But who gets treated now?

Clearly, the Wall Street Journal says, "you would have to get yourself into a research protocol and, at best, only a handful can accomplish that."

So Americans continue to bootleg drugs or travel abroad for access to promising therapies which our own FDA is not yet prepared to pronounce "safe."

Anybody dying is not seeking something "safe" but is seeking anything which offers any hope.

A corporation called Biotherapeutics in Franklin, Tenn., has sought and got permission to treat patients with IL-2 at their expense: $19,400.

It is a "for-profit" corporation. It is controversial. It can take but a few patients at a time. But this response tells us that there should be a streamlined way for physician-supervised administration of new therapies. The dying can't wait.

Twisting the truth on South Africa

The problems of formulating a sound U.S. policy toward South Africa are difficult enough without having to be filtered through the miasma of outright misinformation currently being served up in this country by South Africa's critics. Those critics dominate our media, and they are growing astonishingly bold about twisting the truth.

For example, readers of Alan Cowell's lopsided dispatches from South Africa to The New York Times had every right to be puzzled by his report on the death of a "black township activist" named "Ampie Mayisa on Jan. 12. In the 13th paragraph of his account, Cowell finally got around to an extremely interesting admission:

"Like other fatalities in the nation's violence, the killing of Mayisa seemed to reflect the bitter war that is fought between blacks divided by their attitude to the white authorities."

How much have you read or heard, during this past year, about "the bitter war that is fought between blacks divided by their attitude toward the white authorities"? Next to nothing, I dare say - while Bishop Tutu, whose political following in South Africa is minuscule, received lavish attention from our media as he cavorted around the United States purporting to speak for practically all South African blacks.

Or take William Gray, the black congressman from Philadelphia, who has just returned from leading a group of half-a-dozen members of Congress on a "fact-finding" tour of South Africa. Interviewed on NBC's "Today" show on Jan. 13, Gray was asked what support he had found, among South African blacks, for U.S. economic sanctions against their country. "Complete unanimity," was his reply. He then volunteered just three names, as in support of sanctions: the aforesaid Bishop Tutu; Rev. Allan Boesak, a Cape coloured clergyman whose following is at least bigger than Tutu's, and who has become steadily more extreme in his positions in recent months; and Dr. Motlana, a rather incendiary Soweto physician.

There was, Gray then went on to concede, "one group" of blacks that does oppose sanctions: "those in the homelands and in the black townships who hold office under the white government." The implication was that this is a handful of contemptible Uncle Toms, all too happy to lick the hand that feeds them.

On the contrary, Gray's smear is a gross libel against the true leaders of South Africa's blacks. Gatsha Buthelezi, the political leader and spokesman of South Africa's largest single tribe - its 6 million Zulus - inevitably has certain governmental responsibilities; but his office no more makes him a stooge of President Botha than Gray's makes him a stooge of Ronald Reagan. And the same is true of the mayors of the black townships - elected, in every case, by their black constituencies in municipal elections. And the fact is that Buthelezi and the overwhelming majority of elected black officials, and indeed the vast majority of South Africa's black spokesmen of all varieties, oppose sanctions.

So much for "complete unanimity." Very shortly President Botha is scheduled to present to Parliament, at the opening of its annual session in Cape Town, some dramatic new proposals to bring South Africa's blacks much more directly into the nation's political life, and to give them a far more substantial voice in their own and the nation's affairs. The proposals are a major step forward toward full political rights for blacks; but they stop short of achieving that goal in one enormous leap, and it is therefore as predictable as sunrise that they will be dismissed in our media (to the extent that they are mentioned at all) as cosmetic piffle. It is hard for men of good will to make progress when their adversaries are grimly determined that no progress shall be made.

Candidates announce in Gray County races

CARL KENNEDY
County Judge

"During my term of office, the county has operated in the black, we have been able to reduce the tax rate and have kept taxes down. This has been accomplished by sound financial management, while at the same time, we have been able to upgrade and maintain the county equipment and keep our employees salaries on a competitive level," Carl Kennedy said as he announced he will seek re-election for a third term as Gray County judge on the Republican ticket.

A graduate of Pampa High School, Kennedy graduated from Texas Tech University with a degree in business administration. He served as an officer in the U.S. Air Force and was procurement officer with the Air Materiel Command at Wright - Patterson Air Force Base.

He also worked for Hughes Aircraft Co. as a contract administrator. Kennedy is a licensed real estate broker and is engaged in farming and ranching.

Elected to the office of Gray County judge, Kennedy was sworn into office on Jan. 1, 1979. As county judge, he presides over the county criminal, civil, probate and juvenile courts and also serves as chairman of the commissioners' court. In addition to judicial duties, he is responsible for numerous administrative duties in Gray County government.

Kennedy and his wife Patricia have five children. The Kennedys are active members of Bible Church of Pampa.

"I want to express my sincere appreciation to the people of Gray County, the county commissioners, all elected officials and employees for their splendid cooperation," Kennedy said. "It is because of this cooperation and the resulting accomplishments that I am encouraged to seek re-election."

"With your continuing support, both now and at election time, I will appreciate the opportunity to serve another four years as the county judge for all of the people of Gray County," he added.

TED SIMMONS
Commissioner, Pct. 4

Re-election

"I am proud of the accomplishments I have been a part of during my term of service to the citizens of Gray County," Ted Simmons said as he declared his intention to seek re-election to the county commissioners court, Precinct Four, as a Republican.

Listing his accomplishments during his first three terms, Simmons said: "We have been able to get the county out of the red, eliminated our bonded indebtedness and changed the hospital from a tax drain to a tax paying entity."

Simmons is involved in farming and ranching in the McLean area. He graduated from McLean High School and has served in the U.S. Air Force.

In addition to farming, Simmons has been active in business, owning and operating a drive-in, car dealership and cable television system in McLean. He was also in the cable TV business in Tulia.

Simmons was elected to the commissioners court from Precinct Four in 1975 and continues to serve in that position. He also has served on the board of directors of the Panhandle Regional Planning Commission, Coronado Community Hospital and the West Texas County Judges and Commissioners Association.

Simmons was on the legislative committee of the West Texas County Judges and Commissioners Association and, during 1983 - 84, served as its president. The association covers all of the Texas Panhandle and West Texas from Tarrant County (Fort Worth) to El Paso County. Simmons also was president of McLean Lions Club in 1983.

Simmons and his wife, Sue, have lived in Gray County for most of the past 45 years and have two sons and a daughter. They are members of First Baptist Church in McLean.

When asked why he recently switched to the Republican Party after being elected as a Democrat for three terms, Simmons replied: "I didn't leave the Democratic Party; it left me. The national Democratic Party has just become too liberal for me. Times have changed and now the Republican Party is the one that is conservative."

SAMMIE MORRIS

Justice of Peace, Pct. 1

Promising to "work in a spirit of cooperation with other county officials to better serve the citizens of our county" Sammie Morris announced she will be seeking the office of Justice of the Peace, Precinct One, on the Republican ticket.

Morris currently is a deputy in the Gray County Tax Office, where she has been employed for 15 years. She was a candidate for the Gray County Clerk's office in 1982 and received 45 percent of the vote.

A 41-year resident of Gray County, Morris lived in Lefors and McLean before moving to Pampa in 1956. She is a graduate of McLean High School and attended West Texas State University.

Married 23 years, Morris resides at 2124 N. Zimmers with her husband Bob and son Eddie. Bob works for the Department of Highways and Public Transportation.

She is a member of First Christian Church in Pampa and has been involved with the Boy Scouts, serving as a den mother, summer day camp director and camp director for Camp M.K. Brown.

Morris pledged "to diligently search for ways to provide the best possible service to the citizens."

"I enjoy working with the people of Gray County and will do everything in my power to be an efficient Justice of the Peace for them," she said.

Commissioner, Pct. 2

"I would like to see all our unpaved county roads caliche, widened to at least 24 feet where possible and maintained for proper drainage," Richard Lee "Dick" Smith said as he announced his intention to run for Gray County commissioner, Precinct Two, on the Republican ticket.

Smith is an operator for Celanese Chemical Co. in Pampa and has worked for Celanese for 22 years. He is a graduate of Garden City (Kan.) High School and attended Garden City Junior College.

Smith is a member of A.F. & A.M. Lodge No. 966 and the National Rifle Association and currently is participating in the Leadership Pampa Program. He is also the owner-operator of Mariah Park Public Fishing near Pampa.

Smith and his wife Helen have two children: a son, Scott Smith of Desota, and a daughter, Chris Gatlin of Pampa. They are the grandparents of Rae Lynn Gatlin. The Smiths are members of First Christian Church in Pampa.

"If I am elected, I won't forget who I'm working for and I believe all taxpayers should be treated the same," Smith said.

LYNN BEZNER
County surveyor

"I feel my 24 years of surveying experience, 17 of those in the Texas Panhandle, qualify me to ask the voters of Gray County to elect me as their surveyor," Lynn Bezner said in announcing that he intends to run for the position of Gray County surveyor in the Republican primary.

Bezner is president and owner of Bezner - Webb & Associates in Pampa. He graduated from Palo Duro High School in Amarillo, has attended Amarillo College and attended a land surveying class at Texas A&M University. He has held various positions relating to surveying, including party chief, office manager, training director and area manager.

Bezner said his highest career achievement was to become registered as a licensed surveyor in four states: Texas, New Mexico, Oklahoma and Louisiana. He currently is a member of the Texas Surveyors Association and was vice-president of the Permian Basin Chapter.

Bezner has worked with state association officers and with members of the Texas Legislature to prepare a new land surveyors registration act, which was passed by the 66th state Legislature. He also has attended and assisted at hearings of the governor's advisory board on mapping before the Texas Railroad Commission. He is a member of the American Congress of Surveying and Mapping and of the National Association of Professional Surveyors.

Bezner is active in business and civic project and has been on the board of directors of the Pampa Talented and Gifted Association. He was also the president and secretary of Pampa Crime Stoppers and is an active member of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce. Currently, he is involved in the Leadership Pampa program, sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce.

Bezner and his wife Freda live at 1606 N. Dwight and have one son, Tracy. The Bezners are members of St. Vincent De Paul Catholic Church.

JAMES W. KENNER
Commissioner, Pct. 2

"I am offering the residents of Gray County a full-time county commissioner," James W. Kennemer said as he announced his intention to run for the Precinct Two county commissioner's seat on the Republican ticket.

Kennemer, a resident of Gray County for more than 40 years, is retired from Phillips Petroleum Co. During his 36 years with Phillips, Kennemer worked as a general mechanic, maintenance foreman and supervisor and scheduling employee. This experience included all types of maintenance, planning, oiling and paving plant roads, training new personnel, supervision and accounting for repair and equipment costs.

Raised on a farm, Kennemer now lives at 1121 E. Foster in Pampa with his wife, Dorothy. The Kennemers have a daughter, Sandra Louise Harvey, married to David Harvey, and two grandchildren, James and Amy.

"In light of my past experience, I feel qualified to assume the duties and responsibilities of a Gray County commissioner and I'm asking the good people of Gray County for the job," he said.

Quadruplegic wants feeding tube out

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A quadruplegic cerebral palsy victim who asked a court to let her starve herself 2 1/2 years ago now wants a county hospital to remove a feeding tube from her stomach, but officials contend her action is just another attempt to commit suicide.

In a Superior Court lawsuit filed Tuesday, Elizabeth Bouvia, 28, said the tube is causing her pain.

Superior Court Judge Warren Deering heard arguments from the American Civil Liberties Union on Ms. Bouvia's request and said he would rule today on whether to grant a temporary restraining order blocking the force-feeding.

RONNIE RICE
Commissioner, Pct. 2

"The financial condition of Gray County, out of debt and operating in the black, is something I can point to with pride," Ronnie Rice said as he announced his intention to seek re-election for a third term on the Gray County Commission, Precinct 2, this time as a Republican.

Rice was appointed to the commission in April, 1977, after Commissioner Dan Hinton was named to replace Don Cain, who moved up to district judge. Rice subsequently was re-elected in 1978 and 1982 as a Democrat.

Rice was involved in the feed and fertilizer business in Pampa. He was born in Pampa and graduated from Lefors High School in 1956.

He received a bachelor of arts degree in industrial management from Texas Tech University and is a member of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce, the Texas Tech Ex-Letterman Association and the West Texas County Judges and Commissioners Association.

Rice and his wife Joy have four children: Tracy, Ron, Darin and Rustin. Joy is a first grade teacher at Stephen F. Austin Elementary School in Pampa. The Rices are members of First Baptist Church in Pampa.

When Rice was asked why he was switching to the Republican Party, he replied: "The philosophic difference between what I believe and what the national Democrats believe was just too great. I'm a conservative and I feel the Republican Party today best represents my beliefs."

SCOTT B. HAHN
County treasurer

Scott B. Hahn has announced his intention seek the Republican nomination for Gray County Treasurer.

He has been manager for Firestone Tire and Rubber Co. for 20 years, serving the last nine years at the Pampa Firestone store. He was born in Pampa and graduated from Pampa High School. He received a B.A. degree in business from Texas Tech University. He served six years in the U.S. Army, assigned as a Spanish Linguist in California and Maryland.

Hahn is involved with the Boy Scouts and is troop committee chairman for Troop 414. He is also on the executive board of the Adobe Walls Council. He has been active in Rotary Clubs and Lions Clubs and is on the board of directors of Genesis House.

He and his wife, Jana, live at 1917 Grape and have two sons, Scott, 14, and Sean, 11, who attend Pampa Middle School; and a daughter, Suzanne, 9, a student at Austin Elementary School. The Hahn's are active in the First Presbyterian Church where he and Jana are elders and Sunday School teachers. Hahn also sings in the Chancel Choir.

"I can offer 20 years of business management experience and a degree in business to the job," Hahn said. "With my experience in finances and responsibilities for expenses, profits, management of resources and personnel, I feel I can offer the people of Gray County an efficient County Treasurer if they will hire me."

Stamp will commemorate the Texas Sesquicentennial

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Chief Postal Inspector Charles R. Clauson and author James Michener will speak at the March 2 dedication of a 22-cent postage stamp commemorating the 150th anniversary of Texas' independence from Mexico, the Postal Service announced.

The stamp pictures a spur on a Texas flag backdrop, with the words, "San Jacinto 1836" and "Republic of Texas" beneath it. The colors are red, white and black.

The stamp, to be made available to the public March 3, was designed by Don Adair of Richardson. The spur is modeled after one believed to have belonged to Mexican General Santa Anna and given to Sam Houston, the first president of the Republic of Texas.

The Postal Service announced the new stamp Tuesday in Washington. The U.S. Post Office also commemorated the 1936 centennial of Texas with a three-cent stamp that featured portraits of Sam Houston and Stephen F. Austin flanking the Alamo.

Clauson and Michener, whose novel "Texas" was published last year, will speak at the dedication ceremony at San Antonio's downtown station at 2:30 p.m. on March 2.

Experts say

Slide in oil prices could threaten exploration

HOUSTON (AP) — Oil industry experts are keeping a wary eye on the plummeting prices of oil futures, saying the declines do not affect companies immediately, but could dampen already depressed exploration and drilling.

Most companies expected prices to fall in the first half of this year, analysts and company officials say.

"Fundamentally, there's been weakness since the early 1980s," said Richard Adkerson, Houston-based director of oil and gas services for Arthur Anderson & Co. "This is just a continuation."

A decision in December by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries to keep what it considered its fair share of the world oil market ensured the continuing price slide, Adkerson said.

"We knew there would be pressure on prices," he said.

On Tuesday, oil futures prices continued falling, driven downward by an overabundance of supply, weak demand and, some analysts said, the market's own momentum.

A barrel of West Texas Intermediate crude, the benchmark U.S. grade, dropped to at least $20.60 for delivery in February, down 67 cents from Monday's close. A week ago, the price was $25.15 per barrel.

On the spot market, U.S. oil, which brought $32 a barrel in November, closed Tuesday at $20.10, down from Monday's $21.70 close.

Officials at major oil companies in Houston, however, insisted they did not pay that much attention to the futures market.

"I don't think we get involved in futures trading," said spokesman Joe Tucker of Exxon Co. USA.

Officials at Shell Oil Co. had a similar response, saying they did not consider themselves "a significant player" in the futures market.

But at a major independent producer, a spokesman who requested anonymity cautioned that the market decline was "a bad omen for us. It's an omen that prices are softening."

At National Supply Co. of Houston, the world's largest manufacturer and supplier of machinery and equipment to the oil patch, a spokesman said that while the decline was expected, "I guess everybody was shocked at the degree of fall in the past week."

"We watch them, but we'd rather watch the posted price of West Texas Intermediate and the posted price on a monthly and yearly basis," said George Mitchell, whose Mitchell Energy and Development Corp. is among the nation's largest independents.

"But this drop could be very harmful in the activity of exploration. Just the perception of it does create pessimism among the independents," Mitchell said.

More pessimism is one thing the sagging industry does not need, officials said. This week's Hughes Tool Co. count of oil and gas rigs in the United States dropped to its lowest level in nearly 10 years.

The Hughes count, the industry yardstick for drilling activity, listed 1,773 rigs operating, down from 1,880 the previous week and 2,370 from a year ago. At the peak of the boom, in late 1981, the rig count topped the 4,500 mark.

Mitchell speculated Tuesday the futures price slide could be a carefully thought out plan by OPEC.

"It could be that OPEC will drive the price down to $18 as a deliberate maneuver to force the North Sea people and Mexico and others to really say: 'We must be more sensible in how we produce our wells,'" he said.

Dale Steffes, an independent, Houston oil analyst, said the fluctuations are the market's way of finding the proper price.

"If the oil price stays in the $25 range, the Middle East oil will be zero exports," Steffes said. "That's how much oversupply and underdemand there is in the rest of the world."

Steffes noted that OPEC's intent, in the 1970s, was to raise the price.

"They doubled the price. They got it up to $34. But they missed on supply and demand," he said. "The question is, where is the equilibrium point? The world is searching and groping — I guess you would call it the invisible hand — to find this new equilibrium price."

Oil price drop could affect Texas banks

DALLAS (AP) — The Texas banking system could face further problems if contract prices between oil producers and refiners follow the recent sharp decline of price quotes on the spot market, an energy banking specialist says.

"As the crude prices drop — and if they drop very severely, very quickly — probably the banks that have deep problems now will have very deep problems in the future," said Gene Fiedorek, manager of the energy group for RepublicBank Corp. and an executive vice president of RepublicBank-Dallas.

He added, however, that banks that are relatively free of problem energy loans "will have the least problems, although our problems will grow to some extent."

On Tuesday, First City Bancorporation of Texas reported a 53.2 percent drop in its 1985 fourth quarter net income from the same period during the previous year.

Senior First City Chairman J.A. Elkins Jr. said sour energy loans contributed to the decreased earnings.

Frank Anderson, a banking analyst in Dallas with Weber, Hall, Sale & Associates, Inc., agreed that financial institutions would have to begin setting aside more money to cover loan losses. But he didn't think falling oil prices would lead to the failure of a major bank-holding company.

Those companies would feel the most pressure, Anderson said, if oil prices "were to blow down and stay there."

Texas banks won't immediately be affected by the drop in spot crude oil prices because most of the banks' customers in the energy sector use the "posted" or contract price, Fiedorek said.

Those quotes generally follow the trends in the spot market — where surplus oil is sold on demand — but don't drop as far or as fast, he said.

"People are talking about spot headed for $15 or $20, but that doesn't mean the posted prices will drop that far."

Spot prices tend to be "an emotional number," Fiedorek said, adding that speculators can account for some of the wide fluctuations in the quotes.

The spot price closed Tuesday at $20.10, down from $32 in November. But Fiedorek noted Permian Corp.'s posted price late Tuesday was still at $26.75 — more than $6 per barrel higher — though he expected the posted price would also fall somewhat.

While concerned by the drop in prices, the RepublicBank official said a significant drop in oil prices had been expected early this year. The "realistic conservatism" in RepublicBank's projections also looks for the slide to continue through 1987, he said.

Fiedorek also believes most banks are trying to shed as many of their non-performing energy loans as possible. RepublicBank reviews most of its energy loans every six months, he said.

"Any new loan that we make and any existing loan that we've reviewed in this past two months ... we will restructure to give us a comfort margin of collateral to the loan," Fiedorek added. "Banks are taking a much closer look than they would have," Anderson said. "You've got a lot of pressure on auditors to look at these loans more strongly."

In his analysis of the holding companies' fourth quarter earnings reports, Anderson said it appeared "a lot of the banks are trying to take a very conservative attitude, based on $20 to $22 oil."

"I don't think reserves are set up for much below that," he added. "A lot of these loans were made with the expectation of $40 to $50 oil."

Separately, RepublicBank Corp. reported Tuesday that its net income for 1985 was $140.2 million, a slight gain from the $137.3 million earned in 1984. Fourth quarter earnings, however, were down nine percent to $33.5 million, according to a statement from the bank holding company, the state's largest.

Other Texas banks also reported losses including Texas American Bancshares Inc. which reported a 39 percent decline in its net income for 1985 from the previous year.

Man dreams of living, smoking farm machinery museum

By RICK SMITH
Sherman Democrat

CELINA, Texas (AP) — Gordon Couvillion hopes the Texoma Farm and Heritage Museum will breathe fire, belch smoke and literally move the earth.

"I have been to museums where they have acres and acres of farm machinery sitting in rows. It doesn't do a thing for me. You see it once, you're finished. You never go back," said Couvillion, 67, a retired engineer who lives with his wife, Bea, on a farm near here.

"But wouldn't you like to see this steam engine running?" Couvillion asked, swinging up to the open cab of a locomotive-sized Avery steam tractor.

"And imagine a whole field full of antique tractors, all running. Smoke hanging in the air. Engines pumping away. Tractors turning wheat threshers, baling machines.

"Imagine if you could go out every weekend and see something different going on, see the wheat being cut and put in shocks like it used to be; then go to the threshing machine and see straw coming out here and wheat coming out over there; and then see that wheat actually ground into flour and taken over and baked in a wood-burning oven like the one your grandmother used.

"Now, that would be a museum." Couvillion and McKinney contractor Louis Wallace are acting as "sparkplugs" to create interest in the Texoma Farm and Heritage Museum.

The museum, they say, will contain dozens of pieces of antique farm machinery ranging from a mule-operated cotton gin to huge, earth-shaking tractors.

Though some of the equipment has already been donated to the non-profit group, the museum has not yet found a permanent home.

Some of the museum pieces will be fired up from the Frontier Festival at Loy Lake Park in Denison April 18-20.

Couvillion says he will have a steam-powered saw mill, a shingle mill, a planing mill, and a mule-powered sorghum press operating at the festival. He says the museum has also planned exhibits of syrup making, log splitting, cabin building, blacksmithing and other farm chores from the past.

Such demonstrations, he says, are not just nostalgic entertainment.

He plans to involve youth organizations such as the 4-H and Future Farmers of America in museum activities.

He says the farming museum will show youth what can be done with simple, inexpensive equipment by giving kids a chance to see the machinery.

"We'll show that farming can be brought back down to a practical level, that they don't have to have big tractors," said Couvillion.

"I'm not saying go back to horse-drawn equipment. That's not practical.

"And it's not necessary to buy an antique tractor. There are only so many around. But why buy a 200-horsepower tractor that will haul 20 14-inch plows when you can buy a 100-horsepower tractor and haul half as many plows or a 25-horsepower tractor that will haul four or five plows? It may take you longer to plow, but you're not in debt."

There's another reason for involving young people in the museum, Couvillion said.

"It is important not to lose your heritage, your background. Don't lose this thread between how we started and what we have now.

"One thing we wrote into the (museum's) bylaws is that no school kid will ever have to pay to get it. That's who it's for."

Couvillion says people interested in the museum range from doctors and lawyers to mechanics and farmers.

He hopes the museum will eventually include a farming village complete with a blacksmith shop and print shop.

The museum, he says, may be open four to five days a week with different farm-related activities taking place each day.

Funding for the museum will come from memberships, gifts and grants, he said.

Couvillion showed off a dozen pre-1920 tractors stored on a farm near Luella. The equipment, he said, will either be loaned or donated to the museum. All the pieces will be on display at the Loy Lake Frontier Festival, he said.

The iron monsters crouched, quiet and cold, under a pole barn's tin roof: an Advanced Rumely, a B.F. Avery, a Case, a Fordson, an Aultman-Taylor.

Pre-war bodies blanketed in black paint and new decals, the lined-up tractors looked like a parade with no place to go.

"All my life I've collected stuff like this," Couvillion said.

"It got to a point where I said, 'Hey, we need to do something with this so your grandkids, your great-grandkids can see (this equipment) operated."

"If we don't it's going to the scrapyard."

Mattox wants rate request dismissed

AUSTIN (AP) — Attorney General Jim Mattox on Monday asked the Texas Public Utility Commission to dismiss a $200 million rate increase request by Gulf State Utilities Co.

Mattox also asked the commission to rule that the attorney general's office does not have to respond to certain questions put forth by the company.

He said the company had submitted a long list of irrelevant and unnecessary questions.

"The company's greed has pushed it to seek new lows in pursuing an unwarranted rate increase," Mattox said in a statement.

Knowledge you have acquired through your working experiences will be used profitably in the year ahead. Now that you know the ropes, advancement is in the offing.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Keep mum today about things that the boss has told you in confidence. If you gossip to co-workers, you will lose the trust of your employer. Major changes are ahead for Aquarians in the coming year. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail $1 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, Box 1846, Cincinnati, OH 45201. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Taking a chance on something that's carefully thought through could work out today, but the string will snap if you press beyond a calculated risk.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You will create problems for yourself and others today if you expect more from a collective endeavor than what you're entitled to.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) A commitment you made in haste might have to be revised today. Make your adjustments tactfully so you don't ruffle anyone's feelings.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) In your commercial transactions today, you must be careful so that the price isn't increased after the deal is set. Be sure the terms are locked down in advance.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) A sensitive pal will require kid-glove treatment today. Don't exclude him from an activity with another close friend.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You will have strong compassionate feelings today. These are noble, but don't build someone's hopes by promising something you can't deliver.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You are likely to treat events rather indifferently today unless you are pressed by challenge. When you feel forced to produce, you will.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) In the early part of the day, self-doubts could be a factor that hinders your progress. Fortunately, most of these will be erased once you swing into action.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You might learn of a good idea today through a person of whom you're not overly fond. Don't discount its merits just because you dislike the source.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Don't take anything for granted today if you have to deal with a salesperson of whom you are suspicious. Make him put promises on paper.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) It looks as though you're going to be in for a pleasant surprise today. Someone you thought didn't like you actually cares quite a bit.

Make football party 'super' for Sunday

On Sunday, a uniquely American phenomenon will occur - the much-anticipated Super Bowl XX, to be played in New Orleans and broadcast nationally on television and radio.

Last year, nearly 110 million Americans watched the Super Bowl on television. But if you're not a football fan, or if you are new to the Super Bowl, you may feel you need a "survival kit" to get through another football game. Here's a collection of "super" tips on entertaining, in cooperation with several experts on the subject.

Entertaining "armchair quarterbacks" is the specialty of Caroline Kriz, Chicago-based cooking teacher, food authority and author of "Cooking for Men Only." Along with her fiancé, former Chicago Bears star fullback Ronnie Bull, Kriz enjoys having friends over to watch the game on television. But, she says, there's a special strategy for successful party-giving when the main event is football.

First, segment your party activities exactly the way the game unfolds: pregame, during game, half time and post game.

Before the game starts, to prepare for your guests to arrive, Kriz suggests:

—Make check lists of things to do in advance, things to do on the day of the game. Divide them into specifics for shopping, household chores and food preparation.

—Plan a menu of items that can be made in advance.

—A cheese board is a good choice for an appetizer buffet. Serve a variety of cheeses to provide flavor contrasts, such as a sharp natural cheddar, a mild longhorn colby and a nutty aged natural Swiss.

Cut the cheeses into different shapes and sizes for attractive presentation and serve them with a wide range of accompaniments — grapes, orange slices, and crackers and interesting breads such as miniature bagels or pumpernickel rolls.

—Use your slow cooker (or borrow one) for serving hot beverages and appetizers. You won't have to worry about warm-up or scorching.

Ronnie Bull has some special tips for cooks during the game so they won't miss any of the action.

—Place a second television set in the kitchen so the cooks can enjoy the game, too. It provides another, more relaxed area for watching the game and frees up the den for the most avid fans. If you don't have a second set, perhaps a friend can bring a portable.

—Listen closely for the two-minute warning before half time. That's the signal to cooks that they have about 10 minutes to prepare food to be served during half time.

If you're planning to serve more substantial foods, says Kriz, you can use the half time break as the perfect opportunity for an informal buffet.

—Use this break — 30 minutes for the Super Bowl, 15 minutes longer than usual — to serve your heartiest and most abundant fare, but keep it simple to serve and eat since the time is short. Encourage your guests to lend a hand — this provides a little exercise and could break up some heated half time discussions.

—Consider a separate salad and sandwich bar where guests can customize their eating. Provide a wide variety of sandwich meats, cheeses and spreads, including mustards, mayonnaise or salad dressing, for delicious sandwich complements. Don't forget the pickles, tomatoes, lettuce and onions. Serve cole slaw, marinated vegetable salad, potato salad or macaroni salad as accompaniments.

After the game, clean-up will be easy if you:

—Use disposable tableware and place garbage bags at several locations to keep the area tidy.

—Be sure to have plenty of napkins and coasters on hand to minimize spills.

Just in time for Super Bowl XX, here's a variety of easy-to-fix snacks for party eating. Stadium Spinach Dip, featuring chopped spinach, green onions and parsley is great with potato chips or vegetables. It may be prepared in the morning, covered and refrigerated. Serve with a variety of fresh raw vegetables that have been prepared in advance, and refrigerated in water-filled containers to keep them crisp.

STADIUM SPINACH DIP

- 1 c. salad dressing
- 1 c. sour cream
- 1 (10 oz.) pkg. chopped spinach, thawed, well-drained
- ½ c. chopped green onions
- ½ c. chopped parsley
- 1 t. salt
- ½ t. pepper

Combine ingredients; mix well. Chill. Serve with vegetable dippers. Makes 3 cups.

Carry out the football theme by serving a Goal Post Hero, appetizer-sized sandwiches made from one long or two short skewers. Traditional sandwich meats and American cheese food slices are given special zip with horseradish spread, onions and tomatoes. If you're planning to prepare the sandwich the morning of the party, substitute red pepper slices, which stay crisp longer, for tomatoes.

GOAL POST HERO

- 1-3rd c. salad dressing
- 1 t. prepared horseradish
- 16 French bread slices
- Lettuce
- 8 American cheese food singles, cut in half diagonally
- 4 tomato slices, cut in half
- 8 onion slices
- 8 salami slices, cut in half

Combine salad dressing with horseradish. Spread bread with salad dressing mixture. For each sandwich, cover one bread slice with process cheese food, lettuce, tomato, onion and salami; top with process cheese food and second bread slice. "Stack" the sandwiches on a large skewer to serve. Makes 8 sandwiches.

During half time, bring out Football Fan's Appetizer, a Mexican-inspired, spicy dip designed to pique the interest of the most dejected football buff. The dip can be prepared the day before up to the point of inserting chips, covered and refrigerated. If it's been in the refrigerator, add five minutes to the baking time.

FOOTBALL FAN'S APPETIZER

- 1 lb. ground beef
- ½ c. salad dressing
- ½ c. taco sauce
- 1 c. shredded cheddar cheese
- ¼ c. chopped onion
- Corn chips

Brown meat; drain. Add combined salad dressing and taco sauce; mix well. Stir in ¼ cup cheese and onions. Spoon mixture into 9-inch pie plate. Bake at 350 degrees, 15 minutes. Serve with additional corn chips or crackers.

EASY-TO-FIX SNACKS — These easy-to-fix snacks are perfect when entertaining friends on Super Sunday. A giant-sized "Goal Post Hero" is made with a long loaf of French bread, traditional sandwich meats, cheese food slices and condiments, all threaded on a skewer.

Stadium Spinach Dip is a perfect accompaniment for a tray of fresh raw vegetables, and for guests with a taste for something spicy, serve Football Fan's Appetizer, a Mexican-inspired dip for corn chips.

Stew scores on Super Bowl Sunday

Super Bowl Sunday is a day for football, food and fun with friends. Gridiron party fare takes many forms, but restless armchair quarterbacks tend to favor casual foods that are easy to eat in front of the television.

Experienced hosts who would rather share the excitement on the screen than spend the first half in the kitchen will plan for foods that can be prepared in advance, stowed in the refrigerator and reheated as half time approaches. A hearty stew is sure to score with the fans and the cook, as well, and if it boasts lively Tex-Mex flavors it will rate as many cheers as the winning touchdown.

Superbowl Chili-Chicken Stew combines bite-size pieces of boned and skinned chicken breast with pinto beans, vegetables and seasonings for a light yet satisfying stew-like variation of Texas' favorite food, chili. A colorful array of do-it-yourself toppings adds to the relaxed, informal atmosphere of the occasion.

- SUPER BOWL CHILI-CHICKEN STEW
- 3 whole chicken breasts, split, boned and skinned
 - 1 c. chopped onion
 - 1 medium green pepper, chopped
 - 2 cloves garlic, minced
 - 2 T. vegetable oil
 - 2 cans (14½ oz. each) stewed tomatoes
 - 1 can (15½ oz.) pinto beans, drained
 - 2-3rd to ¼ cup picante sauce, as desired
 - 1 t. chili powder
 - 1 t. ground cumin
 - ½ t. salt

- Optional Toppings:
- Shredded cheddar cheese
 - Green onion slices
 - Diced avocado
 - Sour cream

Cut chicken into one-inch pieces. Cook chicken, onion, green pepper and garlic in oil in Dutch oven until chicken loses its pink color. Add remaining ingredients; simmer 20 minutes. Ladle into bowls; top with cheese, onion, avocado, sour cream and additional picante sauce, if desired. Makes six to eight servings, about nine cups of stew.

HELP-YOURSELF MEAL — A casual, help-yourself meal wins the hands-down endorsement of television football fans. Super Bowl Chili-Chicken Stew is just the ticket. The no-fuss, satisfying stew combines all the ingredients Tex-Mex food fans favor in an easy-to-serve, one-dish meal.

Tex-Mex Half Time Stew is a colorful "combinacion" of stew meat and vegetables in a spicy broth that takes its south-of-the-border flavor cue from a blend of beef broth, picante sauce and cumin. A hearty meal in itself, it needs only a crusty loaf of bread or a basket of warmed tortillas to complete the fiesta.

- TEX-MEX HALF TIME STEW
- 2 lb. boneless beef stew meat, cut into 1-inch pieces
 - 2 T. vegetable oil
 - 1 (10½ oz.) can condensed beef

- broth
- 1 c. hot water
- 1 c. picante sauce
- 1 med. onion, cut into ½-inch wedges
- ¼ c. chopped parsley
- 1 t. salt
- 1 t. ground cumin
- 2 cloves garlic, minced
- 1 (16 oz.) can tomatoes
- 3 med. carrots, cut into 1-inch pieces
- 2 ears fresh or thawed frozen corn, cut into 1-inch pieces
- 2 medium zucchini (about 1 lb.) cut into 1-inch pieces
- ¼ c. cold water
- 2 T. flour

FOR TENDER JUICY HOME FAJITAS INDOOR

1. Cut about 2 pounds of skirt steak, tenderized round steak, or boneless breast of chicken into ¼-inch wide strips—2 inches long.
2. Place fajita marinade and strips into bowl, let stand for 5 minutes.
3. Take strips from bowl and place in pre-heated skillet on highest setting • cook to taste.

OUTDOOR

1. Place whole tenderized skirt steak, tenderized round steak, or boneless breast of chicken on the grill.
2. Baste frequently and liberally during cooking process until done.
3. Remove from grill to slice.

SERVED WITH WARMED FLOUR TORTILLAS AND YOUR FAVORITE TOPPINGS

In large Dutch oven, brown meat, half at a time, in hot oil. Return all meat to Dutch oven. Add broth, hot water, picante sauce, onion, parsley, salt, cumin and garlic. Bring to a boil; reduce heat. Cover and simmer one hour or until meat is tender. Drain and coarsely chop tomatoes, reserving juice; add tomatoes and juice to Dutch oven with carrots, corn and zucchini. Cover and simmer 25 minutes or until vegetables are tender. Gradually add cold water to flour, mixing until smooth. Gradually stir into stew. Heat to boiling, stirring constantly. Boil and stir one minute or until thickened. Makes eight servings, about 10 cups stew.

IRS rules help reduce high cost of moving

By Robert Metz
(Fifth of 14 articles)

Americans are mobile people who frequently put all their goods in a truck and move to a new home. The bad news is the cost, rarely fully covered by an employer. The good news is tax adjustments.

Moving expenses are one category of a powerful tax reducer, adjustments to income. Adjustments to income are subtracted from gross income to determine one's adjusted gross income. (Adjusted gross is the income figure on which you actually pay tax.)

Tax Tip: Even if you don't itemize deductions, you can claim adjustments.

Tax Tip: If you itemize, use adjustments carefully. Adjustments reduce the adjusted gross income figure on which medical, casualty and charitable deductions are based.

If you moved in 1985 because you were transferred by your employer, found a new job in another community, or are self-employed and moved for business-related reasons, you may have a moving expense adjustment.

There are two important qualifiers: distance and time.

The distance between your new job and your old residence must be at least 35 miles greater than the distance from your old job to your old residence. So, if your old job was 10 miles from your home and you moved to a new job, the new employment must be at least 45 miles away from your old home.

Obviously, there is no problem if you moved coast to coast, but if you moved within the city, you might not qualify.

The time requirement varies according to your employment status. If you are an employee, you must be employed full-time for at least 39 weeks during the 12 months immediately after the move.

If you are self-employed, the time periods are doubled. That means that you must have been employed for at least 78 weeks in the two years immediately following the move, with at least 39 of those weeks occurring within the first 12 months.

Tax Tip: If you are an employee, you may deduct your moving expenses if the time test has not been met by the date your 1985 return is due but you expect it by the end of 1986. A self-employed person must meet the test by the end of 1987. But if you fail to meet the time test by the deadline, you must then report the moving expenses as income.

Tax Tip: The time test can be waived if: You lost your job, and it was not due to willful misconduct; you moved a second time in a transfer that was for your employer's benefit; or if you became disabled or died.

Tax Trap: The test is not waived, however, if you retired before the end of 39 weeks and your retirement had been anticipated.

There are two types of moving expenses: direct and indirect. Direct expenses are deductible without limit, but no more than $3,000 of indirect moving expenses are deductible. Of this amount, no more than $1,500 in expenses for house-hunting and temporary living quarters may be deducted.

Direct expenses include:
— The cost of moving household goods for you and your family. In addition to the hauling charge you may include charges for packing and crating, in-transit insurance and storage.

— Travel expenses for you and your family from the old location to the new one. This includes meals, lodging and transportation. If you traveled by plane, train or bus, the actual fare can be claimed. If you traveled in your car, you can total all out-of-pocket expenses for gasoline, oil, repairs, parking and tolls, or claim 9 cents a mile for each mile driven. If you claim the mileage allowance, you may also claim the cost for parking and tolls.

Indirect expenses include:

— The cost of pre-move house-hunting trips made after you obtain your new job. Such costs include transportation, meals and lodging for you and your family. You do not have to all travel together, or even travel at the same time, but only one trip for each person qualifies. You may deduct the cost of house-hunting even if you didn't find a new residence.

— The cost of temporary quarters. This is solely for meals and lodging for any period of 30 consecutive days after obtaining work.

— The costs incurred in selling the former home and buying a new one. If you rent, you may claim the costs of settling your old lease and obtaining a new one. Typical home-sale costs include the realtor's commission, closing costs, attorney's fees, points charged on a mortgage if they are not deductible as interest, and your share of the escrow fees. Losses on the sale of homes are not deductible.

Tax Tip: The home-owning taxpayer has an option in determining how the selling expenses on his home can be charged. The selling expenses can be used to reduce the gain, if any, on the sale of the first residence. The purchase expenses can be added to the purchase price to increase the cost basis of the new home. While the same dollars cannot be used twice, the taxpayer can apportion the figures and use them to his greatest advantage.

For example, because of the $3,000 limit, you may not be able to claim all of the selling expenses on the sale of the home as a moving expense. You may include such expenses up to the maximum allowed as a moving expense and use any remainder to reduce the gain on the home sale.

Tax Trap: The goal of this adjustment is to free you from paying tax on money you had to spend on a move that is business-related move. If your employer reimbursed you, offset the reimbursed sum.

Dear Abby

Man is burned trying to fan friendly fire

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: To get to the point, I blew it, but I have only myself to blame.

I'm a 40-year-old man. In the three years since I've been divorced, I've dated many women, but none of them caused sparks to fly—until I met "Kathy" at a singles club. She's 35, great looking, a wonderful personality, intelligent and has two children. I have one.

It was love at first sight—for me, anyway. The next weekend we went shopping at a mall. Just being with Kathy thrilled me. We laughed and joked, and I felt like a teen-ager again. I know she liked me, too. She was very open and wasn't afraid to show affection. She spontaneously took my hand, and hugged me a couple of times. I wanted to be close to her, so on the way home we stopped (in broad daylight) and I kissed her just once and she didn't fight me. Then I made the mistake of my life. I said, "Your place or mine? Or should we stop at a motel?"

She said, "I don't want to be rushed into anything. Please take me home." Then her attitude changed completely. She turned very cold. I apologized and asked her to forgive me, but she stayed cold. I'm sure she thought I acted that way with every woman I met, which isn't true.

I called her the next day, apologized again for the way I acted and asked if I could see her again. She said, "No, I don't think so."

Now what do I do? I have never felt this way about a woman in my life. Should I call her again? I don't want to make a pest of myself, but I can't get her off my mind.

BLEW IT

DEAR BLEW IT: Wait a few days, then write a note to be delivered with flowers. Apologize again, assuring her that if she gives you another chance, your relationship will progress at the rate of her choosing. Then call her. If she's still cold, you'll know you really blew it, and call it a good learning experience.

DEAR ABBY: My boyfriend is really a neat guy and we don't have any problems, but there is one thing that bothers me. He likes to drive out to the cemetery to make out. I'm not superstitious or anything like that, but it is kind of spooky parked up there with all the tombstones.

I love him a lot and don't want to say anything to spoil our relationship, but how can I tell him I wish he could find another place to park?
FREDDY'S GIRL

DEAR GIRL: Tell Freddy you don't mean to put him down, but you don't dig the surroundings, so how about finding a place that's not so down to earth.

DEAR ABBY: This is for that Chicago woman who said she tipped her hairdresser and manicurist all during the year, and "come Christmas," instead of their giving her presents, she's on the giving end again.

Well, I have been a hairdresser for 26 years and have always given my customers a gift in appreciation of their patronage.

At Christmastime I am inundated with recycled candy, stale nuts, cheap cologne and wine I wouldn't give a wino on skid row.

During the year we hairdressers have to endure foul language, dirty jokes, bad breath, body odor, late arrivals and last-minute cancellations. We console people in their grief and listen to gripes about their husbands, children, grandchildren and neighbors, not to mention being exposed to colds, coughs and the flu. ("I got out of a sick bed to come here.")

In return we give sympathy, encouragement, understanding, advice and a shoulder to cry on. These women wouldn't get as much from a psychiatrist, and we're cheaper. In addition, we use our talent to the best of our abilities with what we have to work with—which in some cases is almost total baldness.

Abby, please tell that Chicago woman if she needs a present at Christmas to come here, and I will let her walk a mile in my shoes.

Families needed for exchange program

Students interested in the American Field Service (AFS) study abroad program or families in Pampa interested in hosting an exchange student for the school year 1986-1987 should contact Howrd Graham, Pampa High School faculty representative, or Mrs. Ed Brainard, AFS chapter president, before Feb. 1.

AFS has sent more than 33 students to Pampa High School since its organization by the Kiwanis Club in Pampa in 1950. The local chapter is one of more than 3,400 across the U.S. which coordinates exchange programs for students from more than 60 countries.

AFS, oldest of student exchange programs, was first established in 1914 as a volunteer ambulance corps that served in both World War I and World War II. After the war, the drivers felt there was a need to strengthen the bond among nations to promote peace, and the scholarship program was begun.

Today as many U.S. students go abroad as come to this nation. Americans going abroad may enroll under the short term program of three months or stay the entire school year.

Host families provide the room and board during a student's stay. The local AFS chapter pays a $1,000 fee, which is raised from contributions by local organizations and individuals. Those wishing to make a contribution may contact Jeff Anderson, AFS treasurer.

The foreign student or his sponsoring organization pays a fee, a minimum of $3,000. The local organization also provides a trip to the Texas AFS gathering at the San Antonio Fiesta week celebration, and the Pampa High School student council pays some of the school fees. In addition, AFS sponsors a two-week tour of the U.S. and Washington, D.C., following the student's 10-month stay.

IT IS A PERFECT EXAMPLE OF A Catch 22 situation.

At first blush, the legislation passed by the NCAA member schools during their annual convention last week, legislation which presumably strengthens entrance requirements at Division I schools, will provide a talent gold mine for Division II institutions. That, in all possibility, is a truthful analysis. Since Division II does not have similar academic demands, those extremely athletically able individuals, male and female, the vast majority of them black, who cannot meet the Division I standards, will simply gravitate to Division II schools, such as West Texas State, Eastern New Mexico, Abilene Christian, etc., etc. There they will be welcomed, the theory is, by drooling coaches, eyes bulging as they see talent they have seldom before found accessible.

Such a move should help reduce the high cost of recruiting, as they probe every area in search of just such an athlete. With more available, and less competition for them, recruiting becomes easier, quicker, and cheaper. Meanwhile, under able coaching, teams benefiting from that talent pool, theoretically become stronger.

That's one side of the coin. But on the other side rests Catch 22.

As the Division II member becomes stronger, opportunities to place Division I members on sports schedules diminishes. There has always been a hesitancy for a so-called big school playing a small school for fear the little brother might just upset the big one. And think of how disastrous this would be!

First, the coach would be ridiculed by everyone...the fans, the administration, his conference association, his family. Both his coaching ability and his scheduling intelligence would be questioned. Why did you embarrass us by ever scheduling a team that had any possibility of upsetting you? Do you realize what this does to our national image? What our alumni will think as they get chided by the alumni of other schools? And what about recruiting! Now all the good kids in the area will want to go to the other school and become part of a winner. Support for their program will grow, our attendance will decline, revenues will fall off, we'll have to raise more outside dollars from alumni who are after your scalp, coach, for not beating Podunk U! Our enrollment will fall, we'll have to consider faculty reduction, close dormitories, maybe even shut our doors completely. We'll all be out of a job. Good Lord! Why did you ever schedule that little Division II school???

Those are just a part of the problems raised in the minds of coaches as they seek future opponents and begin to assess the consequences of each game. There are many more, and they are important and worrisome enough to keep even Division I schools from playing other Division I schools, much less stepping down a level. Prime example in this area is the cessation of football competition between Texas Tech and West Texas State in the early 1960s when many of those factors came into play. The very first year the two didn't compete that date was filled by placing New Mexico State on the Lubbock school's football schedule rather than the neighbor and state sister school.

The problem for the Division II schools becomes even more aggravated because, denied scheduling access to virtually all Division I institutions (and the subsequent lucrative financial gain) the institution is locked into playing only Division II schools. The same thoughts that forbid Division I members from entering into contests affect the II member from playing Division III schools, a problem exacerbated by the fact those institutions do not even grant athletic scholarships! And my goodness, we can't take a chance on losing to one of them.

So, you get out your map, plot the location of Division II members and sadly discover that the closest ones are all in your own conference. This means you've got to hunt for an available date on the schedules of schools several states removed, greatly increasing your travel costs, school absences, diminishing fan rivalries, costing attendance. There are a few NIAA schools in that area, but that makes your schedule look very suspect, and certainly doesn't induce the sale of season tickets, or for that matter, enthrall fans for pre-game tail-gate parties.

Yes, the new entrance legislation will produce a wonderful Catch 22 situation. It will further segregate the collegiate has : from the have-nots, and do little to repair the image of an athlete also being a student that could have been accomplished under the old legislation if an institution had enough pride, dedication and courage to do so.

Some day, some how, a leader will arise to head a movement to clean up the entire segregative mess. Maybe they'll declare a national holiday in his name, huh?

Parks leads Pioneer win

PLAINVIEW — Michael Parks scored 16 points and Dean Jackson added 14 to lead the Pioneers to a 74-61 win over Dallas Baptist Monday night.

The win broke a three-game losing streak for 14-5 Wayland, which remained in the NAIA top 20 at No. 18.

Dallas Baptist lost its second straight to fall to 12-9.

The Pioneers were never seriously threatened by Dallas Baptist took a 7-4 lead with 16:30 left in the first half. WBU then ran off 12 straight points, including eight from Parks for a 16-7 lead with 8:07 left.

The biggest bulge of the game came with 4:52 left when Lucky Sagay's jumper gave WBU a 62-39 lead. A 16-6 spurt by the Indians in the waning moments of the game closed the gap.

Hughes wins high jump at WT track invitational

Kristi Hughes of Pampa is turning in impressive performances as a freshman member of the West Texas State University women's track and field team.

Miss Hughes won the high jump and placed third in the long jump and the 60 HH at the WTSU Invitational last weekend. Miss Hughes won the high jump with the fewest misses. She and Wayland Baptist's Rose Jackson had tied at 5-4. Her 17-3/4 leap in the long jump was good enough for third place. She had a time of 8.83 in the 60 HH.

The WT women finished third in the 14-team meet with 32 points. Wayland Baptist won the meet with 52 points and Texas was second with 33.

Miss Hughes was the only senior on last year's Pampa High girls' state qualifying team.

The Buffaloes won the men's championship in the meet, held at the WT Activities Center.

Harvesters demolish Canyon, 75-48

CANYON — The Pampa Harvesters rolled to a resounding 75-48 win over the Canyon Eagles Tuesday night to avenge a lopsided loss by the Lady Harvesters in the girls' game.

The Harvesters evened their District 1-4A record at 3-3 and lifted their overall record to 12-11. Canyon fell to 1-5 and 6-13.

Canyon girls, ranked fifth in Class 4A, held Pampa to only a field goal the first quarter in rolling to a 47-23 win.

The Harvesters hit a sizzling 63.2 percent (31 of 49) from the floor and jumped out to a 13-1 start in the first quarter. Pampa's only hint of trouble came early in the game when top scorer Petie Davis went to the bench with two fouls, but reserve Vibert Ryan came in and hit his first two shots from the floor to dispel any worry.

Pampa led at halftime, 38-16, and built a 30-point lead midway in the third quarter.

Ryan finished with 11 points while Donovan Lewis led Pampa's balanced scoring attack with 12 points. Davis had 10 points, followed by Matt Martindale with seven, Lonnie Mills, six; Mario Scott, five; Mike Lynn, Terry Jeffery and Paul Simpson, four apiece.

Kurt Gonzales led Canyon with 13 points, all coming in the first half. Jeff Ray chipped in 10. Todd Welty, who had 35 points against Levelland last week, was handicapped by a bandaged left hand and never scored a point.

Pampa exploited Canyon's man defense with a pick and roll offense, resulting in numerous easy baskets inside. Meanwhile the Eagles were ice-cold on offense, hitting only 34.5 percent (19 of 55) of their field-goal attempts.

"We ran a box offense along with our regular offense and they never did catch on to what we were doing," said Pampa Coach Garland Nichols. "Our defense didn't play too bad either."

Pampa's win, coupled with Levelland's victory over

Lubbock Estacado last night, sets up an important meeting with the Lobos Friday night in McNeely Fieldhouse.

"We'll be playing for a second-place tie Friday night," Nichols said. "If we win, we'll be right back in it strong."

In the girls' game, Canyon patiently worked its offensive magic on Pampa while fullcourt pressure from the Lady Eagle guards forced the Lady Harvesters into 27 turnovers.

Canyon led at the end of the first quarter, 13-1, and widened the gap to 25-7 at halftime.

"We played pretty good defense the second half, but we can't take anything away from the Canyon girls," said Pampa Coach Albert Nichols. "They're ranked fifth in the state and that's the way they played."

Fullcourt pressure by Pampa in the third quarter allowed Canyon only six points, but the Lady Harvesters could muster only a half-dozen markers themselves.

Canyon upped its district record to 7-1 while Pampa dropped to 5-3. Amy Claborn led the Lady Eagles with 10 points while Crissy Carthel and Laryssa Bliss had eight and seven points respectively. Canyon's main offensive strategy was to work the ball into post players Carthel and Bliss for buckets underneath and most of the time it worked.

Pampa's Jackie Reed led all scorers with 14 points and the 5-10 junior also pulled down 13 rebounds to give the Lady Harvesters a 26-15 rebounding advantage. But the smooth Canyon offense committed only 10 turnovers, five in the third quarter when Pampa's defense was at its best.

Melissa Nichols had three points and seven rebounds for the Lady Harvesters. Camilla Brown, Dana Wood and Hope Henson had two points apiece.

Both Pampa teams host Levelland Friday night with the girls' game starting at 7 p.m.

JEFFERY JUMPER — Pampa's Terry Jeffery puts up a baseline jumper over Canyon's Randy Begert in District 1-4A action Tuesday night. Jeffery scored 12 points as the Harvesters rolled to a 75-48 win over the Eagles. Pampa lost the girls' game, 47-23, to fifth-ranked Canyon. Cougars' Lewis to retire at end of season

HOUSTON (AP) — It took Guy Lewis 33 years to get enough of what he never intended to be — a basketball coach.

But after five NCAA Final Four appearances, participating in the "game of the century" against UCLA and becoming the No. 11 all-time winningest Division I coach, Lewis called it quits at the University of Houston Tuesday, effective at the end of the season.

"When I got out of the service (in 1945) I thought I was a hot pilot," Lewis said. "I never intended to be a coach. I thought I was going to be a pilot the rest of my life. It didn't work out that way."

Lewis' tenure at Houston did work out though.

After playing three years for the Cougars in the 1940s, Lewis returned as an assistant in 1953 and became head coach in 1956.

In the past 30 years, he's had only three losing seasons, the first

No pass rule ends year for Waelder

WAEOLDER, Texas (AP) — The basketball team's plans for small Waelder High School for the 1985-86 season have ended abruptly because all five players on the squad became ineligible this week under Texas' no-pass, no-play rule.

Under the rule, any student with a failing grade in any class at the end of a six-week grading period is barred from extra-curricular activities for the following six weeks.

Coach Lester King's Wildcats had compiled a 6-8 record for the season with just five players. Two other candidates dropped from the squad before the season began.

"We don't have a basketball team any more. All five of our boys failed one course each, and that means the season is over for us," King told the Austin American-Statesman.

Waelder is in Class 1A, the smallest of Texas' five enrollment classifications. Only 11 boys are enrolled in high school, school officials said.

King said he assumes Waelder will forfeit all the games on its district schedule. He said the Gonzales County school will try to resume basketball competition next season with four holdovers from this year's varsity and three players coming up from junior high school.

Despite the demise of the boy's basketball team, King will stay busy. He also coaches the girls team, which is 1-9 for the season. All six girls on the squad made their grades and should finish the season, he said.

three, and has a string of 26 consecutive non-losing seasons still intact.

Lewis will go into tonight's Southwest Conference game against Texas A&M with 586 victories, second among active coaches. Lewis teams have had 14 20-victory seasons and 29 of his players have been drafted by the pros.

His teams were ranked No. 1 in The Associated Press final polls in 1968 and 1983.

But enough was enough.

"I went in to see Tom (Ford, athletic director) last week and told him 33 years at Houston was enough," Lewis said.

"I never thought of this as a job. To me, it was a crusade to build it into a great basketball program and a great school. It is known all over the nation as a great school. Unfortunately, the people of Houston don't know it."

Ironically, Lewis' retirement announcement came one hour after former Houston recruit Tito Horford announced he would enroll at the University of Miami.

Horford, a 7-footer from Houston Marion, signed with the Cougars but was ruled ineligible by the NCAA because assistant Coach Donnie Schverak violated recruiting rules.

Canadian girls win

PERRYTON — Still stung by their heartbreaking loss to River Road, the Canadian Lady Wildcats took it out on unfortunate Perryton here Tuesday night.

Canadian rolled to a 20-4 first quarter lead and never struggled as it pummeled the Rangerettes 64-36 to move to 17-2 and 3-1 in District 1-3A.

Canadian's boys saw their playoffs chances dim as they failed to generate much offense enroute to a 58-33 loss to the Rangers.

The Lady 'Cats led Perryton by 20 at the half as the offensive woes so prominent Saturday didn't even suit up against the Rangerettes.

Stephanie Byard scored 15 points to pace the Lady Wildcats and Lucinda Dunnam added 14. Perryton got 18 from Danette Baper and 10 from Staci Jones.

Canadian's boys led the Rangers 12-11 after the first quarter, but the Wildcats scored just 11 points in the next 16 minutes. By the time that scoring slump had ended, Perryton held an insurmountable 43-23 lead.

Shawn Wright and Ross Pointer scored eight points each for Canadian while Perryton got 16 from Sean Hargrove and 16 from Tucker Barnes.

McLean stopped

CLAUDE — McLean's Lady Tigers saw their playoffs hopes falter in a four-point third quarter against Claude here Tuesday night as they were beaten by the Mustangettes 53-33. Claude's boys beat the Tigers 57-22.

The Mustangettes led McLean, now 1-3 in District 2-1A, 25-18 at halftime, but the Lady Tigers scored just four points in the third quarter and trailed 41-22 at the quarter's end.

Melanie Billingsley scored 17 points for McLean, which got six from Jem Ann Rice. Claude got 18 from Cenee Gunter and 16 from Lisa Lewis.

The Claude boys shut down McLean's inside threat, 6-3 Martin Gately and 6-0 Mark McCarty, enroute to a 26-12 halftime advantage. Like the Lady Tigers, the Tigers scored only four points in the third quarter.

Lady 'Hawks beat Lefors; Lemley lifts Phillips boys

LEFORS — By the score's indication it wouldn't appear the Phillips Lady Blackhawks were much tested in their 63-19 win over the Lefors Lady Pirates here Tuesday night. The bumps and bruises the Lady 'Hawks probably were rubbing this morning indicate otherwise.

Lefors' boys had better offensive success than the Lady Pirates, but Phillips had Vic Lemley. Lemley scored 29 points, most of them from long range, as the Blackhawks beat the Pirates 81-53 in District 2-1A play.

The girls game between Lefors and Phillips was long and physical and players tumbled to the hard wood floor throughout the four quarters.

Phillips grabbed a 9-0 lead going into the second quarter, but a steal and layup by Melissa Stubbs got Lefors on the board.

Lefors made it 12-5 on a Stubbs layup following a steal by Becky Davis after Phillips' Shalynna Blankenship crashed hard at the other end of the floor.

A 13-footer by Davis made it 17-7, and the Lady Pirates trailed 21-9 at the half as Phillips' Melinda Ralls answered another Davis jumper with one of her own at the buzzer.

For half of the third quarter it looked like the Lady Pirates might get back in the game.

Davis connected from outside to make it 23-11, and a Melissa Forsyth bomb made the score 25-13. It was 28-17 after Lefors got mid-range jumpers from Debbie Stubbs and Davis, but the Lady Pirates didn't score during the last four minutes of the third quarter and trailed 39-17 by the period's end.

Those shooting woes continued throughout the fourth quarter and Lefors' only points came from the free throw line.

Phillips went to the line plenty itself in the second half as Lefors maintained a punishingly physical style of play. The Lady 'Hawks were 22 of 27 from the line in the game's final 16 minutes.

Davis scored eight for Lefors and Melissa Stubbs got four. Phillips got 16 from Marti Buttermore and 10 each from Melinda Ralls and Joella Woods.

As if it weren't enough that Lefors' boys had to contend with Phillips' superior inside height, the Blackhawks' Lemley bombed the nets from parking lot range to lead his team to the win.

Lemley scored 12 first quarter points as Phillips grabbed a 21-13 lead. Richard Hernandez and John Ledbetter scored four points each for Lefors in the quarter. After Lefors took a 2-0 lead, the 'Hawks outscored the Pirates 12-1.

Lemley scored Phillips' first six points of the second quarter and the 'Hawks stretched their lead to 39-24 by halftime. Two technical fouls were called against Lefors at the end of the quarter.

After Lemley made it 25-13, Lefors got a free throw from Kirk Kerbo and a follow shot from Hernandez to make the score 25-16. But Dave Harville scored six of Phillips' next 10 points and the 'Hawks grabbed a 35-20 lead.

Lefors narrowed it to 36-24 on jumpers by Kent and Kirk Kerbo, but the technical fouls and a Tracy Jones layup gave Phillips a 39-24 halftime advantage the Pirates couldn't erase.

Lefors got 14 from Shane Bridwell and 10 from Ledbetter. Lemley scored 29 for Phillips and Bryan Heatley added 16.

Mustangettes roll, 65-40

Wheeler holds off surprising Samnorwood

SAMNORWOOD — Wheeler's teams kept their perfect District 4-1A records intact with a pair of wins over Samnorwood here Tuesday night.

Marlo Hartman and DeAnn Jolly combined for 46 points to pace the state's ninth-ranked Mustangettes to a 65-40 victory over the Eaglettes.

In the boys game, Wheeler outscored the Eagles 16-9 in the third quarter and held on for a 63-51 victory.

The Wheeler girls, now 20-2 and 7-0 in District 4-1A, cruised to an 18-10 first quarter lead and outscored Samnorwood 39-13 over the next two quarters.

Hartman had 25 points, 10 rebounds and six blocks for Wheeler and Jolly scored 21 points with six steals and three assists. Samnorwood got 11 from Stephanie Brandvik and 10 from Pammie Henard.

"Defensively we played well," Mustangettes' coach Jan Newland said. "We played a lot better than we have been."

A week ago, Wheeler's boys beat Samnorwood by 50 points in Wheeler, and coach Mike Newland knew it wouldn't be a cakewalk for the Mustangs this time around.

"I knew it wasn't going to be a 50-point ball game but I didn't know it would be this close."

Newland said. "We were lucky to get home with the win."

"You try and tell kids to get ready to play but when you beat somebody by 50 points the week before it's hard to make them believe you."

With two minutes left in the fourth quarter the Eagles narrowed Wheeler's lead to four, but the Mustangs converted on three straight Samnorwood turnovers to get breathing room where there had been none.

The Mustangs led the Eagles 33-27 at halftime and outscored them 16-9 in the third quarter. But Wheeler turnovers (27 on the night) let Samnorwood back in the game.

"We turned the ball over way too much and we're going to work on that," Newland said. "We got a little bit flustered in that little place. Things started going their way and we had to calm down."

Wheeler, 7-0 in the loop and 9-3 overall, got 20 points and five steals from Randall Hugg and 13 points and nine rebounds from Bubba Smith. Rusty Ellisor also had nine rebounds and Dale Hazel had eight. Samnorwood got 24 from Ty Bonner and 10 from Craig Brown.

Wheeler hosts District 4-1A rival Friday night.

White Deer drops pair to Wellington

WELLINGTON — Wellington captured a pair of narrow District 2-2A win over White Deer here Tuesday night.

Wellington held off a Does rally to win the girls game 52-51 and the Rockets did the same to the Bucks for a 59-54 victory.

The Wellington girls led White Deer 29-25 at halftime and by five going into the fourth quarter, but the Does rally came up a point short.

Leslie Lemons led White Deer with 20 points and Monica Vigil added nine. Margo Duncan paced Wellington with 27 points and Ginger Daniel contributed 10.

The Rockets blasted to a 17-7 first quarter lead against the Bucks, and White Deer spent the remainder of the game trying in vain to erase that margin.

Jeff Cox scored 18 for the Bucks and Mike Bradley added 14. Johnny Nash and Kendall Harris combined for 37 points for the Rockets.

Warriorettes win; Warriors beaten

MIAMI — Miami's girls got back on the winning track here Tuesday night with a 53-27 pounding of Allison while the Warriors lost to the Antelopes, 66-50.

The Warriorettes rolled to a 16-4 first quarter lead and increased their advantage to 36-8 by halftime. It was 44-18 after three quarters.

Robin Daugherty and Gerri Anderson combined for 22 points to lead Miami while Allison got 10 from Stacy Hall and eight from Laura Copelin.

The Warriors trailed 36-26 at halftime and were never able to mount a serious rally against the Antelopes.

John Locke scored 20 for Miami and Brett Byrum added 10. Allison got 22 from Randy Hall and 17 from Destry Coulter.

Doctor testifies woman's life expectancy short

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — An elderly woman had only a few weeks to live when she entered a Texas City nursing home in October 1978, her doctor testified in a murder trial.

Dr. John Konikowski, who treated Elnora Breed while she was at an Autumn Hills nursing home, said Tuesday that the woman was already dying and that he issued orders designed to keep her comfortable.

"I really didn't expect her to live more than a few weeks," Konikowski said.

Mrs. Breed died 47 days after she was admitted to the nursing home.

The state has charged Autumn Hills Convalescent Centers Inc. and four of its current and former employees with murder in her Nov. 20, 1978, death.

Prosecution witnesses have said Mrs. Breed died of starvation and severe infection, both caused by poor nursing care. The defense claims she died of a recurrence of colon cancer, a disease for which she underwent surgery three times prior to her death.

Konikowski defended his decision to order a 600-calorie daily liquid diet for Mrs. Breed, saying the elderly woman had had congestive heart failure and that her body could not tolerate more fluids.

Prosecution witnesses, however, said nurses at Autumn Hills should have questioned Konikowski about the order.

"This diet has been labeled as a starvation diet and a death sentence for Mrs. Breed," defense lawyer Tom Sartwell said.

"Her death sentence was her underlying disease of cancer," Konikowski said.

"If a nurse had called you and questioned the order, would you have changed it?" Sartwell asked.

"No, I would not have," the doctor replied.

Konikowski said if he had boosted her caloric intake, "she would have gone into congestive heart failure and died sooner. I know of nothing else I could have done."

Konikowski, when questioned on the dietary order by a nursing consultant six days before Mrs. Breed's death, increased her caloric intake to 1,500 calories.

The doctor also dismissed as "not that serious" testimony that nursing personnel found maggots in a bedsores on Mrs. Breed and on another patient's foot.

"Maggots are not that serious," Konikowski said, adding that they can easily be cleaned off a wound.

The doctor testified even though nursing records do not indicate he visited Mrs. Breed at the nursing home, he saw her several times while she was there.

Galveston County district attorney Mike Guarino pointed out that Konikowski also did not bill Mrs. Breed for any visits.

"I occasionally do not write progress notes and I occasionally do not bill," Konikowski said.

Hormel plant opens as Guardsmen watch

AUSTIN, Minn. (AP) — National Guard troops cordoned off one entrance for workers to use and Hormel's flagship plant reopened today in relative calm following a one-day interruption forced when guardsmen formed a human barricade to avert violence.

In ads today on local radio stations, the company told workers which entrance to use to get into the Geo. A. Hormel & Co. plant. About 25 National Guardsmen blocked off each side of the street leading to the entrance and allowed only returning workers and three union pickets in.

Austin patrolman Bradley Bednar reported some "incidents" involving protesting strikers on nearby Interstate 90 this morning, but would not give details. No arrests were made, he said.

About 100 guardsmen were at the plant, with more on the interstate and on city roads leading to the plant.

"They're lined up I don't know how far back; you can't get close," said retired Hormel employee Walt Chilson, 70, said in explaining the quiet at the plant today. "They've got the National Guard out on the interstate."

Some 300 extra troops had been called in today in addition to the 500 on duty Tuesday.

The plant was closed Tuesday as guardsmen, wearing riot gear and armed with billy clubs, blocked off the plant.

"I'm not going to have people enter when there's a good chance of people being injured," said police Chief Donald Hoffman, who ordered the plant closed after discussions with Guard commanders and sheriff's officers.

His decision was cheered by strikers, who earlier lined the street and taunted guardsmen.

Three found guilty in Gandhi murder

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — A judge found a Sikh bodyguard guilty today of assassinating Prime Minister Indira Gandhi on a garden path at her compound in October 1984, and two defendants guilty of conspiracy to commit murder. He sentenced all three men to death.

"The present case is one of the rarest of the rare. He said prosecutors had proved beyond a reasonable doubt that Satwant Singh, a bodyguard of Mrs. Gandhi, had murdered her in her compound on Oct. 31, 1984, and that Kehar Singh and Balbir Singh were involved with him in a conspiracy. All three are members of the Sikh religious minority.

Congressional delegation looking to its hearings on live MIA sighting reports

WASHINGTON (AP) — A U.S. congressional delegation has returned from a whirlwind tour of Vietnam and Laos to plunge into preparations for hearings next week on the possibility that captured Americans still may be alive in Indochina.

The first official Senate delegation to visit Hanoi since the war ended more than a decade ago arrived at Andrews Air Force Base Tuesday night following a nine-day visit to Hawaii, the Philippines, Thailand and the Laotian capital of Vientiane.

Sen. Frank Murkowski, R-Alaska, chairman of the Senate Veterans Affairs Committee, said he will hold hearings Jan. 28 and Jan. 30 on the 2,441 Americans still missing in action in Indochina.

However, the committee's primary focus will be on the nearly 100 live sightings the government has been unable to dismiss as falsehoods or fabrications.

Sen. Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., who also serves on the veterans affairs committee, and Reps. Bob McEwen, R-Ohio, and Michael Bilirakis, R-Fla., accompanied Murkowski to Indochina and will participate in the hearings.

Murkowski said he hoped representatives of the Joint Casualty Resolution Center and the Central Identification Laboratory in Honolulu will testify about the remains of American servicemen already turned over by the Vietnamese and on possible future exchanges.

During a visit to the center and the lab, its director, Lt. Col. Joe Harvey, told the lawmakers he believes Vietnam withholds information on remains for political purposes.

Harvey stopped short of charging the Vietnamese with stockpiling remains and artifacts of dead American servicemen in warehouses in Vietnam, but all members of the delegation said they believe that is happening.

"The issue of warehousing is so sensitive it could be counterproductive (to negotiations for future remains) but I can't help but find it ironic that the remains always appear at politically advantageous moments for the Vietnamese," said McEwen.

DeConcini said he has little doubt that remains previously turned over to the Americans were held by the Vietnamese before being released.

But he said the main issue was for the Vietnamese to continue releasing them so families could learn what happened to the men who never came back from the war.

All four lawmakers said they based their belief that remains were in warehouses mostly on classified information.

Bilirakis said he examined seven military identification cards shown to the senators and congressmen during their tour of the Hawaiian lab last week.

American involvement in the Vietnam war ended with the withdrawal of U.S. troops from Southeast Asia in 1973.

Reagan, Congress still at odds

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress has begun a new legislative year the way the last one ended — deadlocked with President Reagan over how best to stem the deluge of federal red ink.

The president, holding his second White House meeting in as many days today with congressional Republicans, is insisting that for now the goals of a strict budget-balancing law enacted late last year can be met with spending cuts alone. Reagan also insists he can maintain his military buildup.

On Capitol Hill, most Democrats and some Republicans say tax increases will be necessary.

"There's no way that you can fix the deficit with taxes," said Sen. Pete V. Domenici, R-N.M., chairman of the Senate Budget Committee. "Conversely, there's no way you can fix the deficit with just budget cuts. So you need some of both."

But the president again told Republican congressional leaders Tuesday that tax increases are out of the question.

"The president made it clear ... at the leadership meeting he doesn't see any need for that," said Senate Majority Leader Robert Dole, R-Kan.

Dole, meanwhile, said he suggested to the president that "we'd like to have a sort of a partnership ... between Congress and the White House" to settle the budget problems.

In the past, "sometimes it's been a sort of a silent partnership," Dole said, wryly noting last year's budget squabbles between the White House and Senate Republicans.

Reagan invited all GOP senators to the White House for breakfast today as part of an administration effort to clear away hard feelings that may be lingering from last year and to smooth the way for the austere budget plan Reagan will send to Congress early next month.

That work will continue with a trip Reagan is planning to Capitol Hill on Jan. 31 to meet with House Republicans.

Although Reagan is trying to soothe bruised feelings, he is showing no signs of a willingness to give ground on the new budget he is about to send to Congress. The new law aimed at achieving a balanced budget by 1991 sets a deficit ceiling of $144 billion for the fiscal year
