Etheredge due back

Former Bethany Trust financier Tom Etheredge, 32, and his wife Deborah are expected to be arraigned before 223rd District Judge Don Cain 11 a.m. Monday at the Gray County Courthouse on charges of misapplication of investors' funds.

Tom Etheredge, who faces numerous indictments of securities violations and misapplication of investors' funds in connection with his failed trust company, was due to arrive at the Amarillo Airport from Bellingham, Wash., at 9:30 p.m. Saturday and in Pampa at about 11 p.m. Gray County sheriff's deputy Jerry Holland left Friday to retrieve him.

Mrs. Etheredge, who was indicted in August on two counts of misapplication of investors funds, is free after posting $5,000 bond on each count.

Tom Etheredge, 32, waived extradition Monday in Watcom County (Wash.) Superior Court, where bond was set at more than $1.2 million. He faces that same amount in Texas.

Etheredge, who has eluded law enforcement agencies since Bethany Trust failed in April 1985, was arrested for being an illegal alien in Kelowna, British Columbia, on Feb. 4.

Etheredge was indicted on 12 counts in July and six counts in August of misapplication of funds and securities violations.

You don't need a scoreboard to tell what has just happened here. The dejected face of Canadian's Stephanie Byard and the celebrating by Friona players in the background were caused by a last-second shot that lifted Friona to a one-point victory over Canadian in the state playoffs Friday night. Three to five Pampa's prime accident time

BY PAUL PINKHAM
Staff Writer

If you're a Pampa motorist between the ages of 25 and 34 driving during the hours of 3 to 5 on a Wednesday afternoon in January, look out.

That's when and to whom most traffic accidents happen.

Or so says the Pampa Police Department's annual report for 1985.

The report contains statistics about traffic accidents and violations, crimes and other offenses as well as information on various police programs from McGruff the Crime Dog to tornado safety watches.

Police Chief J. J. Ryzman said he thinks this year's report is the best the department has ever compiled because it contains more information than in years past and is easier to read. He said the report is issued to give city officials and local citizens an overview of the department's activities for the year.

"It also gives us an idea of where we've been and where we're going," he said.

A limited amount of copies are available to the general public, Ryzman said, adding that a copy is available for public perusal at Lovett Memorial Library.

Although more traffic accidents occurred in January (84) than in any other month in 1985, the month with the most traffic injuries was March with 19, the report shows. November had the fewest accidents (54) while February had the fewest traffic injuries (4).

For 1985 overall, 766 traffic accidents were reported.

The city's only traffic fatality occurred April 4 at the corner of 24th and Mary Ellen, when 14-year-old Teresa Dawn Guthrie died from head injuries she suffered when the vehicle she was riding in traveling east on 24th collided with a vehicle traveling north on Mary Ellen.

More traffic accidents (67) occurred between the hours of 3 and 5 p.m., with the safest hour being between 3 and 4 a.m. Only one accident occurred in that time period in 1985.

The most common traffic violations found by the Pampa Police Department in 1985 were motorists driving without insurance (565), drivers licenses (344), motor vehicle inspection stickers (338) and registration (286). The department reported 134 motorists driving while intoxicated in 1985.

The state's new seat belt law also became part of the report for the first time with 39 violations reported in December, the first month of enforcement for the law.

The report shows crimes against persons up slightly in 1985 while crimes against property were down slightly from 1984. Crimes against persons include homicide, robbery, rape and assault, while crimes against property include burglary, larceny, motor vehicle theft and arson.

All are considered Class I offenses. In 1985, 1,391 Class I offenses were reported to the police department with 737 cleared.

In 1984, there were more Class I cases reported to the department (1,446) but fewer cleared (642).

The number of reported Class II offenses, which run the gamut from forgery to prostitution to animal complaints, jumped from 2,889 in 1984 to 2,927 in 1985. In 1984, the department cleared 1,975 Class II cases while in 1985, 2,034 were cleared.

Overall, the department made 1,228 adult arrests and detained 179 juveniles for the year. A total of 19,115 calls were responded to, according to the report.

Also during 1985, the department investigated reports in which $410,165 worth of property was alleged stolen. Of this, $214,017 was recovered.

The number of calls for service and total miles patrolled were down from 1984.

Four new department programs are outlined in the report: accreditation, assessment, career enrichment and the student safe driver program, which was resurrected this year after several year's absence.

Ryzman said the department currently is seeking to become one of the first departments in Texas accredited by a group of top U.S. law enforcement agencies. Only 12 departments across the country are so accredited, he said.

Boulter lambasts government waste

By LARRY HOLLIS
Staff Writer

Addressing a joint Friday luncheon meeting of the Downtown Kiwanis Club and Pampa Chamber of Commerce, U.S. Rep. Beau Boulter of Amarillo blamed the nation's huge deficits on wasteful spending, federal subsidies and unnecessary programs.

"We waste hundreds of millions of dollars," Boulter said, adding that "easy choices" could save hundreds of billions of dollars without harming needed programs.

There is "way too much waste in this nation," he claimed, citing numerous instances in which he felt federal funds were being mispent and misused.

Boulter called for tighter budgeting, a balanced budget and elimination of wasteful and unnecessary programs.

A freshman Republican congressman on the House Budget Committee, Boulter said the committee had decided to hold a number of field hearings to learn what the American people wanted.

"I don't think we found out what the American people wanted," he claimed. He said the Democrats on the committee conducted "a dog and pony show" in which the Democrats conducted the hearings and left the Republican members in Washington, D.C., to actually work on the budget.

Related story, Page six

The Democrats then controlled the hearings and allowed only witnesses they wanted to hear to testify, cutting off conservative leaders from commenting at the hearings, Boulter claimed.

"We do need to listen to the American people," he said, expressing his disappointment with the conduct of the field hearings.

Boulter attacked the "Washington politicians," saying there is no real coalition political processes in the nation's capital. Instead, matters are "pretty well run along party lines," he stated.

There are too many in Washington who won't "do anything to cut spending" or to make fundamental reforms that would aid the elimination of the growing federal deficit, now at a trillion dollars. The current budget deficit will be a record-breaking $208 billion, he noted.

"There are so many needed reforms we need to undertake in this nation," Boulter declared.

Boulter said there are a number of programs and subsidies the federal government should eliminate, citing Amtrak, Conrail, the National Endowment for the Arts, the Export and Import Bank loans, the Small Business Administration and urban development grants.

None of these really help the poor, he said; instead, too many are mainly fattening the wallets of special interest groups and businessmen who shouldn't be gaining from federal funds taken from taxpayers. Their elimination would free more funds to help those really in need, such as the elderly, the handicapped and special education citizens, he said.

Boulter also criticized the operation of current welfare programs which, he said, are robbing people of their dignity and the incentive to work.

"I think the best poverty program is a job," he stated.

He claimed President Reagan's tax cuts have produced incentives for capital investments and expansions in the private sector leading to new jobs. He said 10 million new jobs — "not government jobs, but real jobs"

Price jump crimps coffee breaks

By CATHY SPAULDING
Staff Writer

With tiny brown South American beans selling for four dollars a pound, Pampans are finding that paying more for coffee is not their cup of tea.

But area grocers, restaurant owners and coffee distributors feel that the jump in java prices is only temporary.

Brazil, the main supplier of coffee in the world, has been hit with a drought that may cut half of its production. Add this to the volcano that disrupted life in another major coffee supplier, Columbia.

Pampa coffee shoppers are paying about a dollar more per pound for their morning brew than they were only a few weeks ago. Prices at Pampa grocery stores range from $3.49 for a 16-ounce can of Edwards coffee, a Safeway house brand, $3.59 for a 16-ounce can of Luzianne fine blend with chicory, to $4.29 for 16-ounce cans of major coffee brands. Decaffeinated coffee is priced even higher.

Royce Bailey, owner of Bailey's grocery in Miami, just increased his coffee prices from $3.79 to $4.13 per pound.

"We had another increase a week before yesterday," he said. "Everything else is going down."

Chris Hamby, manager of the Randy's Grocery at 401 N. Ballard, said coffee prices are "holding now" at $4.29 per pound.

"They (the coffee wholesaler) keep sending us a letter saying that it's going to go up even more, but I don't see it yet and I hope I won't see it," she said.

Hamby said that not only is the canned coffee prices increasing, but also decaffeinated, instant and freeze dried coffees. She's not seen any effect on the spiced "International coffees," but she said they're not big sellers.

She observed that people are flocking to buy coffee before the price goes up.

"Before we had our first big jump, people came in and bought quite a bit," she said. "But they're not coming in and right out griping about the increase."

A clerk at Freeman Brothers' Grocery in White Deer said people are still buying coffee, despite the increase.

"On costs, we went up more than a dollar," said Steve Seeley, manager of Randy's at 300 E. Brown. "But it's about hit its peak. This might be the last markup for now. It's just that drought that's causing it."

Seeley added that this is not the first time coffee perked at over $4. About four years ago, coffee sold for between $4.85 and $5.

But grocers aren't the only ones hit by coffee price increases. Cafes and truck stops, famous for their "bottomless cups of coffee" are also feeling the pinch, although none surveyed have yet passed the increase on to the consumer.

The Coffee Shop in Canadian will still offer free refills to customers according to owner Donna Campillo.

"The increase hasn't had an effect on us yet, I suppose it will eventually," she said, adding that she hasn't gotten her new supplies yet this month. There's no word of any increase from her distributor. "Coffee did go up the first of the year, about a dollar a

Adobe Walls Council sets awards banquet Saturday

Awards for outstanding service to youth, including the prestigious Silver Beaver awards, will be presented to volunteer scouting leaders at the annual recognition banquet of the Adobe Walls Council, Boy Scouts of America, at 6:30 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 22.

The banquet, which also will honor Boy Scouts earning their Eagle badges in the past year, will be held at M. K. Brown Auditorium.

Featured speaker will be Bill Clements, past governor of Texas. Clements will address the group of scouters from pack, troop, post, district and council positions in the Adobe Walls Council.

Born and raised in Dallas, Clements was a Boy Scout at 12 and an Eagle Scout a year and a half later. He was also an all-state football player at Highland Park High School in Dallas.

A graduate of Southern Methodist University, Clements holds a degree in electrical engineering. He is a member of the National Council of the Boy Scouts of America and chairman of the board of governors at SMU, as well as being a prominent civic, community and state leader.

A Texan, his entire career has been the embodiment of hard work, sacrifice, dedication, discipline and honest ambition, noted Tary R. Clump, district executive for the council.

Beginning in his teens, Clements started at the bottom in South Texas oil fields, advancing from roughneck to tool pusher to driller. Ten years later he founded SEDCO.

He served four years as Deputy Secretary of Defense and was awarded the Department of Defense's Distinguished Public Service Award. He was governor of Texas from 1979 to 1983.

Dick Stowers, former council president, will serve as master of ceremonies for the activities, including the recognition of the 1985 Eagle Scouts and the presentation of the Silver Beaver awards, the highest award a council can award a volunteer.

The evening will begin with a reception in the auditorium's foyer at 6:30 p.m., followed by dinner in the Heritage Room at 7 p.m.

Clump said the banquet will feature great scouting fellowship, food and entertainment.

The general public also is invited, he said. Tickets are $10 each and may be obtained by contacting the Scout Service Center, 815 N. Sumner, in Pampa or by phoning 669-6845. Tickets also may be purchased from Boy Scouts.

Boulter provides numerous examples of federal waste

By LARRY HOLLIS
Staff Writer

There's too much waste in federal government spending, U.S. Rep. Beau Boulter declared while addressing a Friday joint luncheon meeting of the Downtown Kiwanis Club and the Pampa Chamber of Commerce.

During his talk, Boulter cited a number of specific instances of what he felt was wasted funds, drawing laughter and expressions of disbelief from the audience.

Following are the examples he provided.

- The Social Security Administration has been wasting funds and efforts by sending Social Security checks to dead people and then going out to get the funds back into the program.

- In 1984 the U.S. government paid $117 million to wool producers, even though the total value of the wool they produced amounted to only $62 million.

- Because of year-end personnel limits designed to control the number of federal employees, agencies "fire" some workers for one day at the end of the year, only to "rehire" them on the very next day, being the first day of the next year.

In this way, each agency "complies" with the personnel ceilings required of it by the federal government, "all while costing you, the American taxpayer, millions of unnecessary dollars."

- Federal specifications for a "rodent elimination device," better known to many of us as a "mousetrap," ran some 120,000 words in length, or about 200 single spaced pages. "I say it would be less costly to live with the mouse than to follow our government's ridiculous federal specifications," Boulter said.

- The National Science Foundation gave scientists $57,770 to catch mosquitoes "so that we could study — yes, you guessed it — their wing design."

- Some $38,000 was commissioned to find out why people become depressed. "For some reason, examples like those that I am mentioning were excluded, but the study did find that, 'Negative events may lead to depression.'"

- The Federal Aviation Administration spent $57,800 to study the body measurements of airline stewardesses. "And I did not even get to participate."

- The Army paid $6,000 for 17 pages of directions on how to buy a bottle of Worcestershire sauce.

sack," she said.

Charlene Lewis still sells coffee at 35 cents a cup at the Tower Truck Stop cafe at the Groom exit of Interstate 40.

"But if the price keeps on increasing, we will have to increase it a bit," she said, adding that she does not anticipate stopping such policies as free refills or allowing truckers to fill their thermoses for a low rate. A clerk for the Tower convenience store adjacent to the cafe said she does not anticipate stopping the policy of giving truckers a free cup of coffee with every fill-up.

John Gikas, owner of the Coney Island Cafe at 114 W. Foster, wonders what all the fuss is about.

"Coffee was a lot higher than this a few years ago," Gikas said.

He said he doesn't plan on raising coffee prices, and he hasn't since the last time coffee rose above $4.

"Want to know how to save money on coffee? Buy a finer grind of coffee and drip it through a filter," Gikas recommended. "The finer the grind, the more extraction you get."

While Coney Island coffee sells for 25 cents, coffee prices at other downtown eateries run from 37 cents to 50 cents.

Coffee distributors, who offer coffee services to businesses and offices, are also affected by the coffee increase.

Raymond Armstrong of Armstrong Coffee Service, 115 N. Hobart, said that his other services — soup, tea, hot cider — have not gone up as much as coffee.

A.D. Payne, owner of Panhandle Coffee Distributors of Amarillo reported an increase of $1.30 per pound since Nov. 11. The last increase was about 77 cents per pound on Jan. 19.

"We used to sell coffee for that much per pound," he said. "The customers are trying to buy as much as they can."

Housekeeping seal of approval for law enforcement," were established in 1979. To be accredited, departments must meet close to 900 separate guidelines.

Currently, the department is in the self-assessment stage, under the direction of Sgt. Steve Chance and Lt. J.D. Laramore. Later this year, assessors from surrounding states will spend three or four days within the department in order to assess how well it meets the guidelines. A public hearing also must be held.

Ryzman likened the accreditation to similar recognitions of hospitals or colleges. He said the guidelines should help justify budget requests, reduce the likelihood of marked hikes in liability insurance rates and improve relations with other components of the criminal justice system and the public.

Career enrichment involves taking officers out of the uniformed services division for three months and placing them for one month each in the juvenile, detective and crime prevention divisions.

"This prepares the officer better for his field and patrol," Ryzman said. It also helps reduce burnout among uniformed officers, he added.

The department took steps toward holding an assessment center for promotion purposes in 1985, replacing the old written test and oral interview procedure. The center was held in January, 1986, for promotion to the position of sergeant. Officers were placed in several high-stress situations and their reactions monitored by a group of assessors.

The teenage safe driver program rewards students who demonstrate safe driving habits. Drivers of the month receive free meals, movie passes and savings bonds.

Ryzman said he is pleased with the steady growth shown by his pet project, the Neighborhood Watch Program, as well as Crime Stoppers, which rewards those who report crimes while remaining anonymous.

The Neighborhood Watch Program was started in 1983, following a year in which burglaries, motor vehicle thefts and arsons hit their highest points in the past five years. The program has grown from about 45 neighborhoods in 1984 to 72 in 1985, Ryzman said. Several more neighborhoods have been added since the first of the year, he added.

"It's proven it's worth in the community numerous times," he said.

The report also contains information on Pampa police officers in terms of coursework completed, state certification, age distribution and training. Ryzman said all department employees are encouraged to earn 40 hours of training a year in a number of different areas.

Date of Tylenol poisoning uncertain

NEW YORK (AP) — The cyanide found in a Tylenol capsule that killed a woman could have been put there months ago, federal authorities said Saturday, as the painkiller's maker began a review of production, distribution and employee files.

"The work we did showed no time restrictions such as were previously reported," said Food and Drug Administration Commissioner Dr. Frank Young, referring to statements by Westchester County authorities that the poison would dissolve the capsule's gelatin casing in eight to 10 days.

Westchester District Attorney Carl A. Vergari said he was concerned such statements had created "the false and dangerous impression that people shouldn't worry about the bottles they bought before that time."

Vergari said FBI reports made to him indicated that tampering of two bottles found to contain cyanide-tainted capsules appeared to have been done during manufacture, but FBI spokesman Bill Baker would not comment on Vergari's statement.

The cyanide in the second bottle was discovered Thursday, and had come from a store just two blocks from where the first was purchased, in Bronxville, a suburb north of New York City.

Robert Kniffen, a spokesman for Johnson & Johnson, which makes the drug, said Saturday that the company was going over the production, storage and distribution process, but would not elaborate.

Johnson & Johnson also has begun reviewing personnel files of workers employed at the company's three production facilities in Round Rock, Texas, Fort Washington, Pa., and Las Piedras, Puerto Rico. He said a total of about 1,400 people were employed at the three plants.

Johnson & Johnson also has offered a $100,000 reward for information leading to an arrest in the case.

The FDA has tested more than 100,000 capsules, and Young said the testing would continue throughout the weekend.

Young said the Westchester cyanide was different from the cyanide found in Tylenol capsules that left seven people dead in Chicago in 1982, and also was different from cyanide that is stored for testing at MacNeil Consumer Products Co., the Johnson & Johnson subsidiary that produces Tylenol.

FBI investigators and Yonkers police will visit the Pennsylvania plant where the fatal Tylenol bottle was made, Vergari said.

The FDA inspected the Pennsylvania plant and found no indications that the tampering occurred there, said agency spokesman William Grigg.

Baker said FBI agents across the country were working on the case, checking on "so many investigative leads (to) make some headway and get a break on this. ... Right now, we have no suspects."

Diane Elstroth, 23, of Peekskill, died Feb. 8 at her boyfriend's Yonkers home after taking Extra-Strength Tylenol capsules contaminated with cyanide.

The lot number involved in Miss Elstroth's death was ADF916, and authorities initially said her death was an isolated incident.

That bottle and the second container, lot number AHA090, contained the same kind of potassium cyanide, investigators said.

The discovery of a second bottle prompted the FDA to issue a nationwide warning about the capsules. Fourteen states and the District of Columbia have banned the sale of the capsules or ordered the product off store shelves.

The first bottle was produced in May at a MacNeilLab Inc. plant in Fort Washington, Pa., while the second was manufactured in July in a plant in Puerto Rico. Both bottles were stored at different times at a plant in Montgomeryville, Pa., said James Burke, chairman of Johnson & Johnson. The FDA asked consumers who had bottles with the two lot numbers to contact the agency.

In Westchester County, meanwhile, a man who authorities said admitted writing an extortion letter claiming responsibility for Miss Elstroth's death and demanding $2 million is to appear in court Tuesday for a detention hearing on unrelated credit card fraud charges.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Annmarie Levis said she planned ask that Dewitt Gilmore, 21, of Mount Vernon be held without bail. Authorities have said he is not a suspect in the poisoning.

Launch decision process suspect

WASHINGTON (AP) — The presidential commission investigating the crash of the Space Shuttle Challenger has determined that the decision to launch the spacecraft "may have been flawed," commission Chairman William P. Rogers announced Saturday.

The commission has asked the National Aeronautics and Space Administration not to permit any of the people involved in the launch decision to participate on NASA's internal investigative teams looking into the Jan. 28 explosion that killed six astronauts and schoolteacher Christa McAuliffe, Rogers said.

"In recent days the commission has been investigating all aspects of the decision-making process leading up to the launch of the Challenger and has found that the process may have been flawed," Rogers said in a statement issued by commission spokesman Mark Weinberg.

Rogers said President Reagan was advised of the decision.

"Dr. William Graham, acting administrator of NASA, has been asked not to include on the internal investigating teams at NASA persons involved in that process. The commission will, of course, continue its investigation and will make a full report to the president," the statement said.

NASA spokesman Charles Redmond said Sunday he was not aware of the development and could not comment on it.

Reagan, in naming the 13-member commission on Feb. 3, asked for a report from the panel within 120 days.

Weinberg said it was Rogers' decision, in consultation with other panel members, to request that NASA exclude those involved in the launch decision from investigative teams.

A knowledgeable source, speaking on condition of anonymity, said that ban would apply to various people who were involved in the "checks along the road" that led to the final decision to go ahead with the launch from Cape Canaveral, Fla.

Jobless man sets himself on fire

WASHINGTON (AP) — A man who lit a match to his gasoline-soaked body outside the White House in apparent frustration over his joblessness was in critical condition Saturday with extensive burns over his body.

Orland Payne McCafferty, 58, of Lee's Summit, Mo., was spotted by a couple passing by the White House on Pennsylvania Avenue Friday night as he struck a match and became engulfed in flames, said John Clark, a city police detective.

The passers-by reported that McCafferty was holding a newspaper when he ignited himself. The man and woman rolled McCafferty in the snow to douse the flames, Clark said.

A three-page, handwritten note addressed to President Reagan was found in McCafferty's car, which was parked nearby, Clark said.

Marcos proclaimed winner in Philippines

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — The National Assembly proclaimed Ferdinand E. Marcos president of the Philippines for another six years Saturday in a wild climax to an election that the nation's Roman Catholic bishops, the opposition and U.S. observers said was tainted by fraud.

The proclamation came shortly before Saturday midnight, after opposition assemblymen walked out of the session hall amid booing and chants of "Marcos, Marcos!" from hundreds of supporters of the 68-year-old president.

Scores of followers of challenger Corazon Aquino chanted her name as they, too, left the gallery, but their shouts were drowned out by the louder and more numerous Marcos partisans.

"There will be many legends about this campaign," Marcos said in a live television broadcast from his palace early Sunday morning. He said his victory would "protect and save the democracy of our republic."

Marcos, who has ruled the 7,100-island nation for 20 years, called the special election following increasing demands from the United States to make reforms. He said the vote would prove to his critics in the United States and at home that he still had the support of most Filipinos.

Some legislators of the governing New Society Movement party, which controls the assembly, joined the gallery in heckling their departing rivals, and assembly Secretary-General Antonio de Guzman hurriedly read the proclamation resolution as the opposition filed out.

The resolution was certified later by a roll-call vote among assemblymen left in the hall.

Assembly Speaker Nicanor Yniguez immediately announced over the public address system that "His Excellency, the president and the first lady ... are inviting all of you to Malacanang Palace." Then Marcos' assemblywoman-daughter, Imee, raised a victory sign with her fingers to the gallery and shouted "Marcos, Marcos!" The gallery broke into chants of "Marcos again, Marcos again!" the president's campaign slogan.

The proclamation came two hours after Philip Habib, President Reagan's special envoy, arrived in Manila on a fact-finding mission on the election and its aftermath.

Even as the assembly was preparing to make the proclamation, Mrs. Aquino, 53, charged "The one vote he (Marcos) does not have is the vote of the people."

The final tabulation by the assembly gave Marcos 10,807,197 votes to 9,291,716 for Mrs. Aquino, a margin of 1,515,481 and a winning percentage of 53.8.

In separately counted votes, Marcos vice presidential candidate Arturo Tolentino defeated former Sen. Salvador Laurel, 10,134,130 to 9,173,105, a 52.5 percent margin.

It marked the first time in 13 years that a successor had been provided for Marcos.

Mrs. Aquino, who is to hold her own "People's Victory" rally Sunday, said in a statement, Marcos "is finished ... No tinsel and celebration of the president's make-believe win can hide his loss of moral and political authority."

Earlier, Marcos demanded that the country's Catholic bishops prove charges that the election was fraudulent and threatened to prosecute some clergymen who, he said, violated the law "because of their partisanship."

The bishops Friday denounced the "unparalleled fraudulence" of the election and urged Filipinos to wage a non-violent protest.

Meanwhile, a delegation of three U.S. senators said in a statement, "It is clear that there was massive fraud initiated by the Marcos government in an attempt to frustrate the democratic process."

Democrats Carl Levin of Michigan, David Pryor of Arkansas and David Boren of Oklahoma said the United States "must not ... condone this mockery of democracy by remaining silent. Millions of brave Filipinos deserve more from America."

Both sides in Philippines give Habib cool reception

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — U.S. troubleshooter Philip Habib arrived to a cool reception Saturday from both sides of a heavily contested presidential election, hours before President Ferdinand E. Marcos was declared winner.

Challenger Corazon Aquino also claimed victory in the Feb. 7 balloting, and her spokesman, Rene Saguisag, said she "may or may not" meet Habib. He said the lines have to be drawn as to whether Habib is involved in "fact-finding" or "interfering."

Habib, sent by President Reagan to observe the election aftermath, made no comment to reporters when he arrived.

Marcos supporters have protested about what they viewed as American interference in the election since an official U.S. observer team criticized the conduct of the election.

Marcos' opponents objected to statements by Reagan which indicated there may have been fraud on both sides in the race, and to suggestions by other U.S. officials that they not stage street demonstrations to protest the results.

The 190-member National Assembly, which is controlled by Marcos' New Society Movement party and which conducts the only official vote count, declared Marcos winner of another 6-year term two hours after Habib arrived.

The proclamation, opponents claimed, was designed to present Habib with a deed already done, decreasing his options for dealing with Marcos.

Marcos' labor minister and close adviser, Blas Ople, said, "I ask Mr. Habib to observe carefully the lines of decorum between friendly states in the performance of his mission."

Reagan had said it is the American aim to "nurture democracy" in the Philippines, but did not say what Habib would do other than observe.

A three-member U.S. observer group already in the country issued a statement in Manila saying the election was marked by massive fraud. The group included Democratic Sens. David Boren of Oklahoma, Carl Levin of Michigan and David Pryor of Arkansas.

Another group headed by Allen Weinstein of the Center for Democracy was also due over the weekend to continue the work of a 20-member official U.S. delegation that observed the elections.

U.S. officials provided no itinerary for Habib, a veteran diplomat who came out of retirement in 1981 at Reagan's request to try to keep Syria and Israel out of the Lebanese civil war.

Economy perfect for stock market

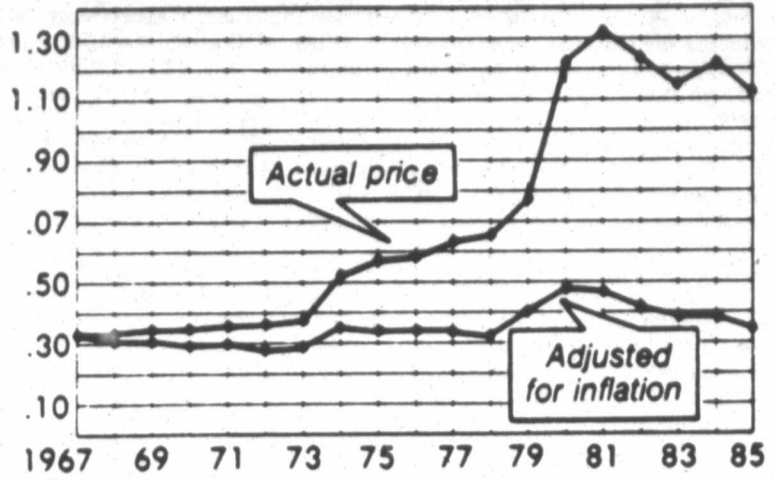

NEW YORK (AP) — If stock market investors could get their news made to order, they would be hard-pressed to improve on the conditions that now prevail. Stock prices have been climbing steadily to new highs. Inflation is dormant, interest rates and oil prices are falling, and the economy appears to be thriving without overindulging itself. From a financial point of view, to ask for anything more might seem downright greedy. "We may be in the best of all investment worlds—an economy improving just enough to allow corporate profits to move nicely higher, a weaker dollar enhancing earnings gains for multinationals, and lower interest rates in the face of a somewhat better economy," said Michael Weisberg, an analyst at Prudential-Bache Securities.

The mood is so positive that when an occasional cloud passes overhead, no one pays much notice. Case in point: When a federal court recently ruled that a key provision of the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings deficit reduction bill was unconstitutional, stocks recovered within a few hours from the jolt. That sort of resilience is considered the hallmark of a classic bull market—a period when the market seems bound and determined to rise no matter what events confront it. "The placid acceptance of Gramm-Rudman's unconstitutionality was indeed impressive," said John Connolly at Dean Witter Reynolds Inc. "It is difficult, however, to conclude that this ruling is anything but a negative for the bond market and perhaps the stock market as well."

Reagan's optimistic assertions doubted

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's assertion that his budget proposals would lead to a surplus by fiscal 1991 requires rosy economic assumptions that history shows are extremely unlikely, according to a report released Saturday by the Joint Economic Committee of Congress. "The record is not encouraging — it raises serious doubts about whether, under current and proposed policies, we will achieve a balanced budget by fiscal year 1991," according to the report by committee economist Paul Manchester.

The average peacetime economic expansion since 1946 has been 34 months, with the longest 58 months, from 1975 to 1980. The Vietnam War expansion from 1961 to 1969 lasted 106 months. Thus, the current economic recovery, already mature by post-war standards, will become the longest in U.S. history, according to the president's budget. Basing the federal budget on such an assumption is not a realistic approach, Manchester said. "It's kind of like basing your family budget on the fact that you will win the lottery," Manchester said in an interview. Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., vice-chairman of the committee, called the administration's economic assumptions a "feel-good scenario." The projections of surplus, including Reagan's prediction of a balanced budget within four years of taking office, evaporated, in part because of the 1981-1982 recession. Fiscal 1985 ended at $203 billion in the red — a $362 billion difference from the original estimate made by Carter.

Mexico cuts its crude prices again

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Mexico, fighting to hold onto its customers in the volatile world oil market, slashed crude prices by $4.68 a barrel. It was the second price cut in two weeks. Mario Ramon Beteta, director general of the government oil monopoly Petroleos Mexicanos, said in a television interview Friday night that the price reductions to an average of $15.07 a barrel have been "drastic but indispensable." Mexico, vying with Canada as the largest supplier of crude to the United States, depends heavily on oil sales to bring in enough money to pay its enormous foreign debt of $96.4 billion. The fresh price cut was bound to aggravate the nation's financial problems and force it to seek still more money from international bankers and financial organizations. The price reduction, announced Friday afternoon, was a surprise because Pemex had been setting prices at the end of the month, retroactive to the month's beginning. The new prices cover sales for the first half of February. In a statement, Pemex said the action was "part of efforts that Mexico is carrying out to stay competitive." Beteta, in a separate statement, announced that the oil giant will delay by an average of 30 days payments to its suppliers. The turmoil in the oil market, he said, has made it "necessary to adjust the budget of income and (payments) of the organization to keep them within the financial limits established by the federal government." As a result, he said bills coming due in February will be paid in March and so on. He said Pemex hoped to return to its normal payment schedule in the second half of the year. The nation's price cut intensified a struggle between the 13-member Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries and non-OPEC members, such as Mexico. The competition has halved the price of a 42-gallon barrel of oil in the past three months. Rich OPEC nations have sharply increased production to retain their market share, and the response by non-OPEC competitors has produced a glut in which those with the highest prices are losing customers. Pemex had trimmed prices $4 a barrel on Jan. 31, setting the average price at $19.75 a barrel.

REP. Solomon...during news conference

MIA sightings investigated

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — U.S. congressmen just back from Hanoi said Saturday that Vietnamese officials had acknowledged for the first time that missing Americans might still be living inside Vietnam, in remote areas not under full government control.

They said Deputy Foreign Minister Hoang Bich Son told them three Vietnamese teams were investigating reported sightings of Americans and invited the United States to take part.

The congressmen, who spent two days in the Vietnamese capital, said Vietnamese officials also promised to return the remains of 14 more Americans missing in action from the Vietnam War, and increased to 70 the number of MIA cases on which they promised reports.

"For the first time, the Vietnamese government is investigating a large number of live sightings," said Rep. Gerald Solomon, R-N.Y., who led the nine-member House of Representatives task force on missing Americans and prisoners of war in Southeast Asia.

"For years, Vietnam maintained that no live Americans were in Vietnam," he told a news conference. "They later changed that to say there were no live Americans under their control. But now they have moved to the position where they say that there could be live Americans that they are unaware of."

Solomon, who met for three hours with Hoang, said he stressed Vietnam is not holding any Americans against their will.

Rep. Benjamin Gilman, R-N.Y., said the Vietnamese indicated there could be Americans living in the mountains or other remote areas not under full government control.

Solomon said, "They have invited the U.S. government as well to participate in any of these investigations, and I think that is most significant."

A total of 2,441 Americans are listed as missing in action from the Indochina conflict, including 1,797 missing in Vietnam and the rest in Laos and Cambodia.

Since the United States withdrew its military forces from Indochina in 1973, there have been 806 reported "live sightings" of Americans in the region, most by refugees, according to U.S. government records. U.S. officials say they've discounted all but 95 reports.

"They mentioned that there is a possibility there may be some of our Americans there on their own will and they have taken the position that if the Americans wanted to stay, they would let them stay; if they wanted to go, they would let them go," Gilman said.

However, Rep. Robert Dornan, R-Calif., said he believed Vietnam may be holding Americans to make use of their technical knowledge.

Vietnam said early last month it had collected about 50 new reports of MIA cases and would turn them over soon. The congressmen said Hanoi officials now have promised to hand over information on 20 additional cases for a total of about 70.

Meanwhile, Dornan announced that the remains of eight U.S. servicemen recently returned by the Vietnamese have been identified by the U.S. Joint Casualty Resolution Center in Hawaii, the military organization entrusted with resolving MIA cases.

President says welfare system hurts family, promotes poverty

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — President Reagan on Saturday decried the federal welfare system as one that destroys families, promotes poverty and saps human potential, producing a "permanent scar" on the nation.

The president, in his radio address delivered from his mountaintop ranch before returning to Washington, renewed his call for an overhaul of the nation's welfare system made in his State of the Union address.

Reagan cited a "crisis of family breakdowns, especially among the welfare poor."

"Even the memory of families is in danger of becoming extinct," Reagan said.

Noting the doubling of illegitimate births since 1960, Reagan charged that the welfare system was at fault since young mothers could receive aid, medical care and food stamps if they did not marry or identify the father.

"Government programs have ruptured the bonds that held families together," Reagan charged. A system that provides money when the fathers do not acknowledge their children and gives mothers more money if they do not work must be changed, the president said.

"Obviously something is desperately wrong with our welfare system . . ." Reagan charged. "But the waste of money pales before the sinful waste of human potential."

"The family is the most basic support system there is," Reagan said. The nation has been built on families pulling together and lifting themselves out of poverty by their own labor, the president said.

"For the children of child mothers and absentee fathers, there is often only a deepening cycle of futility, hopelessness and despair," Reagan said. He said the crisis was growing, one that "threatens to become a permanent scar on the American promise of hope and opportunity for all."

Reagan noted that he has directed his administration to study the welfare system "with a keen eye to making reforms."

"The welfare tragedy has gone on too long. It's time to reshape our welfare system so that it can be judged by how many Americans it make independent of welfare," Reagan said, echoing the theme he espoused in his State of the Union address.

Gander crash blamed on weight

WASHINGTON (AP) — The crew of the Arrow Air DC-8 that crashed in Canada last December, killing 248 U.S. soldiers, underestimated the weight of the plane's cargo and passengers by at least 12,000 pounds, federal officials say.

The National Transportation Safety Board revealed the miscalculation Friday when it advised government agencies to make sure formulas used by airlines accurately reflect actual passenger and baggage weights.

The NTSB, working with the Canadian Aviation Safety Board, has not yet determined if excess weight contributed to the Dec. 12 crash at Gander, Newfoundland, board spokesman Ira Furman said.

The NTSB told the Department of Defense and the Federal Aviation Administration to ensure that airplane loads are calculated more specifically.

Two sisters open a store just for teachers

By RUBEN VILLEGAS
El Paso Times

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Sisters Cynthia Hureque and Mary Elizabeth Castillo displayed a twinge of nervousness, mixed with excitement.

At their Eraser Dust office, housed in a comfortable and partly hidden corner of the Mesa Norte Shopping Center, the sisters and their families were busy arranging furniture. Their children stocked the shelves, husbands lifted the heavy materials, and the sisters, well, they just organized and supervised.

It was May, and they were hoping for the best.

Now, more than a semester into the school year, the venture appears to be a success.

Eraser Dust was Mrs. Castillo's brainchild. She and her sister, Mrs. Hureque, said they hope they can fill a need that has been neglected in El Paso.

"We're talking of the need of having educational materials available locally to make the teacher's job easier," Mrs. Castillo said. "These materials haven't been available locally."

What Mrs. Castillo and Mrs. Hureque offer is a store stacked with teaching supplements on history or science topics, bilingual kits, special reading materials, visual aids and posters.

"If the teachers need something special, we can order it," Mrs. Hureque said. "We have catalogs the teachers can look at when they come in."

But the offerings don't stop there.

Mrs. Hureque and Mrs. Castillo are optimistic. Their hopes stem from more than just intuition, since both are teachers. And teaching is what they most enjoy.

"I'll have been teaching 17 years this year," said Mrs. Hureque, 38. "I've been at Tornillo High most recently, although I've been involved in all levels of teaching including special ed. I also taught my kids for two years at a Christian school."

Mrs. Castillo, 27, graduated from Austin High School 11 years after Mrs. Hureque, obtained her bachelor's degree in education with a certification in reading from the University of Texas at El Paso, and has taught second, third and seventh grade.

"Father encouraged us all to go into some area of education," Mrs. Castillo said, "so we have a family of teachers. Our oldest sister, Dee Murphy, taught in El Paso and our other sister, Irma Esconturias, taught in Midland and El Paso."

With the support of their husbands and a boost from the children, they opened their store in June, although it coincided with the close of the school year.

Mrs. Castillo and Mrs. Hureque said they want to improve the process of obtaining educational materials. Instead of waiting six to eight weeks for a mail order, a school purchase order could secure the merchandise in one afternoon.

"When teachers buy through the public schools they have to wait three months," Mrs. Castillo said. "We want to have it in stock rather than wait a long time for delivery."

The store stocks English-as-a-second-language kits, and "we have teaching supplements like units in Texas history," Mrs. Castillo said. "In textbooks there's enough to use over a one-week period."

To that list add the mathematics flash cards and the educational records on square dancing, rhythm exercises or adaptive behavior modification. And, of course, there are school supplies.

A June opening actually helped Mrs. Castillo and Mrs. Hureque prepare for the fall.

"It was probably the best time," Mrs. Castillo said, noting that the store's grand opening was in August.

Mrs. Hureque said Mrs. Castillo found the West Side location, and "after we talked about it, we decided to go ahead. We have everything set for this year. Actually, it's based on a 5-year projection with the Bank of Ysleta."

Despite the outside help, the business is strictly a family affair.

Seeing how video stores operate, the two sisters thought they had a chance to succeed in the rental business.

"We're hoping to offer a rental program for those who can't afford to buy certain materials," Mrs. Hureque said. "It will make it easier and accessible."

Also offered are monthly discounts on different items, she said.

To accommodate teachers, Eraser Dust stays open until 6 p.m. Mondays through Saturdays.

Mustangettes top Booker in bi-district

PERRYTON — The Wheeler Mustangettes looked shabby on defense and had only seven team rebounds at halftime of their bi-district playoff with Booker here Friday night. Coach Jan Newland told them to get with it or risk early elimination.

The Mustangettes responded with a smothering defensive performance in the third period and rolled to a 52-41 win in the Class 1A state girls basketball playoffs. They'll play Adrian, a 51-48 upset winner over Claude, in the area playoffs at 7 p.m. Tuesday in Borger.

Wheeler led 14-11 after a quarter and 28-22 at halftime, and though its offense was working well, "defensively, we didn't do anything in the first half, really," Newland said. "We were just standing there and we weren't rebounding."

Newland told her team that during the intermission. The Mustangettes listened and their third quarter reply was more than Booker could handle.

Stifling defense and more aggressive board work by the Mustangettes helped them score the first 14 points of the stanza, build a 42-22 lead, and turn a close game into a blowout.

"I'll tell you what, the third quarter our girls played so good," Newland said. "They played team ball."

Wheeler logged 22 rebounds in the second half, and 6-0 junior post Mario Hartman scored eight of her 19 points in the third quarter as the Mustangettes took their first step toward returning to the regional tournament next weekend in Levelland, where they were eliminated last season.

"We just have to play every game one at a time and concentrate," Newland said.

Against Booker, Hartman had 19 points, eight rebounds and two steals for the Mustangettes, now 26-3 and ranked seventh in the state. Sophomore guard DeeAnn Jolly was next with 16 points, seven rebounds, five assists and four steals.

"DeeAnn put on a good show. She just played a good game," said Newland, whose team had 14 steals in all.

Bridgett Wallace scored nine points and added seven caroms and two steals. Tammy Baker had eight points and three steals.

Booker got 15 points each from Shanda Ammons and Lisa Albright.

In a playoffs warmup game, Booker's boys beat Wheeler 51-47. Wheeler led 20-19 at halftime, but Booker took a 36-32 third quarter lead and held on for the win.

Randall Hugg led the Mustangs with 12 points, while Booker got 16 from Bill Miller and 13 from Shawn Ammons. Wheeler's Robert Andis had 11 points and 14 rebounds, and Dale Hazel had 11 points and five boards.

Bubba Smith scored 10 points, and Rusty Ellis logged five boards and two steals.

The Mustangs will face Darrouzett in a bi-district game to be held at 8:30 p.m. Thursday in Canadian. They'll play another practice game against Stratford prior to that.

Vega upsets Tigerettes in double overtime

OVERTIME — Groom post Robbie Kuehler (31) shoots over Vega's Jana Walker during the Tigerettes' 64-56 bi-district playoffs loss

Everything changes. Every-thing.

CANYON — Groom's fans, coach Frank Belcher and the Tigerettes are probably still in shock.

As the final 30 seconds expired in Groom's 64-56 double overtime loss to Vega at the WTSU Fieldhouse here Friday night, Belcher, the fans and the Tigerettes' bench watched in numb disbelief.

What happened to the 11-point lead Groom held in the second quarter? How could Vega post Jana Walker make nearly every shot she threw up in the second half? How could a Vega team the Tigerettes had already beaten twice in the regular season suddenly bump them from the Class 1A state girls basketball playoffs in the bi-district round?

The lead vanished, Walker didn't and the Lady Longhorns, not Groom, will play Kelton in the area playoffs Tuesday. The Tigerettes still must find that hard to fathom.

Vega relies heavily on its inside game, which is mainly Walker, but Groom allowed her only four points in the first half, and the Tigerettes led 24-18 at the intermission.

But Walker scored 24 points after that, six in the final overtime, and she is the answer to all of Groom's questions.

Vega tried to break the Tigerettes' 1-3-1 zone with the outside shot in the first half and couldn't do it. In the second half, the Lady 'Horns repeatedly passed the ball to Walker inside, and nearly every turnaround fade-away jumper she put up fell through the nets.

"I'm gonna give her (Walker) credit," a still-stunned Belcher said after the game. "They were the shots we wanted 'em to take and she hit 'em. They weren't easy shots, but she hit 'em when they had to have 'em. They did a good job shooting the ball."

Groom led 26-18 early in the third quarter when the 5-11 Walker began her phenomenal shooting exhibition. She scored 12 of Vega's 18 points in the period, and the Lady Longhorns tied the game at 36-36 going into the final quarter.

The game entered its first overtime when Groom prevented Vega from shooting to break a 48-48 tie in the last nine seconds of regulation.

Each team scored twice in the first OT, forcing a second extra period with the score at 52-52.

Walker hit from the right baseline to open that period, but the Tigerettes' Robbie Kuehler converted inside to tie it at 54-54. Unfortunately for Groom, they would be its only points until Kuehler scored at the buzzer with the outcome already decided.

Another Walker fadeaway put Vega up by two, and the Lady Longhorns went up 58-54 when Wendi Gipson hit both ends of a one-and-one with 1:12 to play. Then Groom made consecutive turnovers against Vega's full court zone press. The Lady 'Horns converted both (with a short Walker jumper and two Tonya Jackson free throws) to take a 62-54 lead with 32 seconds left and send the Groom entourage into shock.

Things went so right for the Tigerettes in the first half but somehow ended up so wrong.

Sophomore Groom post Erin Eschle turned in a dynamite first quarter, opening the game with a three-point play and scoring nine points in the period overall.

A Walker turnaround gave Vega a brief 6-5 lead, but it was the last time the Lady 'Horns would be ahead until early in the fourth quarter as a short Suni Barnett jumper began a 16-4 Groom run. Eschle followed Barnett with a fast break layup and four straight free throws, and the Tigerettes led 13-8 entering the second stanza.

Eschle, normally a 48 percent free throw shooter, hit two more from the charity line and Barnett converted again from short range as Groom built its lead to 17-8.

Vega got two from Stacey Jackson, but Kuehler hit inside and Barnett popped from the left corner to give Groom a 21-10 advantage, its biggest of the game.

"You just can't let teams get back in when you have them down like that," Belcher said later.

Vega started its path back when Stacey Jackson hit a follow, made a steal and passed to Joan Potter, who nailed one from the right corner.

Over the remainder of the period Groom got three points from Barnett, while Potter connected again from each corner to cut the Tigerettes' lead to 24-18 at halftime.

During the first 16 minutes, Vega tried to beat Groom's 1-3-1 zone defense with the outside shot and seldom was able to get the ball inside to Walker as she was smothered by the Tigerettes.

Groom, on the other hand, was very successful at beating the Lady 'Horns full court zone trap, and at working the ball inside on offense.

The teams reversed roles in the second half. The Tigerettes' shots began coming farther from the basket, and Vega's came almost solely from Walker inside.

A 15-footer by Melissa Fields put Groom up 32-24 two and a half minutes into the third quarter, but Walker scored Vega's next five points to make it 32-29. Fields connected from the top of the key and Kuehler hit inside as the Tigerettes clung to a 36-32 lead late in the period, but Gipson hit from 15 and Walker scored her 12th point of the quarter as the Lady 'Horns tied the game going into the fourth stanza.

Eschle and Fields scored four points each as Groom took a 44-40 lead with 4:07 remaining, but Vega tied it over the next two minutes on baskets by Gipson and Walker. The teams exchanged baskets, then the Tigerettes got a chance to go up by three with :52 left when Kuehler was fouled while making a short turnaround shot. She missed the free throw and the Lady Longhorns tied the game on yet another Walker fadeaway jumper.

Groom got the ball with 35 seconds left, but Fields missed from long range with 20 ticks to go. Vega rebounded and called time out to set up a last shot. Groom switched to a man-on-man defense and the Lady Longhorns never got off a shot.

The first overtime saw Groom get baskets from Eschle and Kuehler. Vega's came from Gipson and Walker. Again the Lady Longhorns had a chance to take the last shot, but they turned the ball over with :04 left and the teams went into the second overtime deadlocked at 52-52.

For Groom, things went downhill from there.

Walker led all scorers with 28 points, and Vega also got 12 each from Gipson and Stacey Jackson. Eschle led Groom with 21 points, while Kuehler added 16, Barnett 11 and Fields eight.

While the Tigerettes' disappointment was obvious afterward — they congratulated Vega and left the gym quickly and silently — Belcher said one game wouldn't ruin their season.

"I'm disappointed," he said, "but not with the kids. I'm proud of them. They played hard tonight and we're not going to look at the season as one game."

"I thought they played hard all year and showed a lot of character. We won more games than we ever have (18) and we came a long way in a lot of areas. Our young kids came in there and did a good job for us. They've got a lot to be proud of, and we're not going to let one game ruin that."

Utah Utes knock off UT-El Paso

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — It was Kelvin Upshaw's first start at home this season and he made the most of it, scoring a season-high 21 points including 19 in the second half, hitting three straight free throws in the last 35 seconds and pulling of a key steal in leading Utah to a 71-67 Western Athletic Conference victory over 15th-ranked Texas-El Paso.

erry Stroman finished with 18 points and Mitch Smith had 12 for the Utes, now 7-4 in conference play and 15-8 for the year.

Dave Feitl led Texas-El Paso with 25 and Juden Smith added 20 for the Miners, who are now 9-3 in WAC play and 21-4 for the year.

Texas-El Paso Coach Don Haskins said, "I think our turnovers hurt us a lot. This Utah team is as good as any we played all year. They came out and played the way they wanted to play and made us play their game and when they got a good lead it was tough for us to come back."

Utah led 63-47 with just 6:14 on the clock, but Feitl and Smith led the Miners on a 12-1 run and they were back in the game.

Friona eliminates Lady Wildcats on last shot

AMARILLO — It was a scene the Canadian Lady Wildcats had seen too many times before. For all but six seconds, the Lady 'Cats led Friona in their Class 3A girls bi-district basketball playoff in the Civic Center Coliseum here Friday night, but the Squaws won it 36-35 on the game's last shot and ended Canadian's season.

Friona scored the game's first two points, then Canadian led until the Squaws' Kelly Weid connected from 15-feet on the last shot of game.

It was the third time this season that the Lady Wildcats had lost by one at the buzzer, and because this was the playoffs, a defeat so much harder than the others to take.

"We've lost three or four like that this year and eventually its going to wear you out," said head coach Jackie Burns, whose team lost five times this season by a total of 11 points. "The kids played as hard as they could play."

"We just let the thing get away," he continued. "We played real well for most of the game then we had a minute and a half there where we just lost all our composure."

Canadian had built a 31-23 lead going into the fourth quarter, but the Lady Wildcats didn't score again until 1:32 was left on the clock.

The Lady 'Cats were using a patient offensive scheme designed to kill time on the clock while waiting for good shots, which they got but missed. Canadian went 0-6 in the first 6:28 of the period.

"We were trying to use up the time because we had a good lead," Burns said. "We got good shot selection but we missed 'em."

During that time, Friona came back to take a 33-32 lead. A Weid baseline jumper made it 31-25, then Kerry Cain connected to make it 31-27. A Shannon Atwell steal and layup brought the Squaws within two, then she hit from 19-feet to tie the game.

A free throw by Friona's Ronda Ratcliff put the Squaws up by one, but the Lady Wildcats'

Lucinda Dunnam connected to give Canadian a 33-32 lead, then hit again off an inbounds pass to put her team up 35-32.

Friona's Atwell hit from long range to bring the game to within one, but it still looked like Canadian might get out with the win. That was until Atwell stole a forced pass on a two-on-one Lady 'Cats fast break and the Squaws called time with 12 seconds to play.

Weid's winning shot came with six ticks left, but a timekeeping error left Canadian with only three seconds to try and get off a shot. The Lady 'Cats lost the inbounds pass and Friona got out with the win.

"We didn't put enough pressure on 'em on the winning shot and she made it," Burns said.

Burns protested the timekeeping error to no avail, but said, "It didn't have that much effect on the outcome. We should've been there anyway."

It was a sadly familiar ending for the Lady 'Cats, who'd stifled the Squaws through the first three quarters and out-rebounded them on both ends of the floor.

"In the first three quarters, with the exception of maybe twice, one shot was all they got," Burns said. "Our 'ol kids did a good job."

Leading Canadian in that time was Jeanna Patton, who scored 10 points and grabbed 12 rebounds.

"Jeanna Patton played a super ball game," Burns said.

Canadian took a 12-8 lead into the second quarter and built it to 25-17 at halftime. The Lady 'Cats kept the advantage through the third, but in the fourth quarter were forced again to watch the ending of a very bad movie.

Stephanie Byard had nine points for Canadian, which finished 21-5, while Dunnam added eight, Stephanie Harris four, Wendi Burns two and Tonya Vanhooser two.

Friona got 13 points from Atwell, eight each from Weid and Cain, five from Ratcliff and two from Mika Maddox.

NOT AGAIN — Canadian head coach Jackie Burns can't believe it and his Lady Wildcats react in shock after a last

Pistons cruise past Dallas, 119-110

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — Kent Benson feels the Detroit Pistons are winning games lately because they've come out playing run-and-gun instead of hide-and-seek.

The Pistons, known to let other NBA teams get ahead early, raced to a 14-point lead in the first period and cruised to a 119-110 victory over the Dallas Mavericks Friday night.

"When the team is playing this way, and getting off to a good start quickly, it's a whole lot easier to win than digging a hole for yourself — which is what we were doing in games earlier this season," said Benson, who scored 10 points in the first six minutes to help set the tone for the contest.

The Pistons, who won for the 12th time in 16 games, connected on 70 percent of their field goal attempts until the first minute of the fourth quarter, and ended the game shooting 59 percent from the floor.

"I guess it was one of those fortunate nights. We made everything we threw up," said Pistons Coach Chuck Daly.

Dallas Coach Dick Motta knew he could do nothing but wave a white flag.

"When you get a run like Detroit did tonight, you're in trouble," he said. "They hit shots that were incredible. We couldn't stop (Bill) Laimbeer, and Isiah (Thomas) didn't even have to go into his act."

Detroit stretched a 65-50 halftime lead to 109-80 with 11 minutes left in the contest. The final score looked close when the Mavericks went on a 21-4 spurt in the final 6:30.

"It's nice to play on a night like this," said Pistons reserve guard Vinnie Johnson, who led Detroit with 22 points. "Everyone was involved and shooting well tonight."

But Mavericks guard Mark Aguirre wasn't frustrated by the loss.

"We shot 50 percent and had eight turnovers in the first half and we're still down 15," said Aguirre, who led Dallas with a game-high 27 points.

"I just can't believe it," he said. "If a team is going to beat us, they have to do that, shoot 70 percent. I don't mind having to lose this way."

Detroit hosts the Philadelphia 76ers tonight, while the Mavericks, 27-23, travel to face the Chicago Bulls on Sunday.

At left, Canadian's Jeanna Patton goes up for two of her game high 10 points, and at right, the Lady 'Cats Wendi Burns goes for a steal. (Staff photos by Terry Ford)

McDowell signs

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Outfielder Oddibe McDowell has agreed to terms on a 1-year contract for the 1986 Texas Rangers season, team officials said Friday.

No further terms of the contract with the American League team were disclosed, officials said.

McDowell, 23, was Texas' rookie of the year in 1985, his first professional season. He started the year at Oklahoma City and batted .400 in 31 games before his promotion to the Rangers on May 18.

McDowell went on to lead all major-league rookies with 18 home runs and topped all AL first-year players with 25 stolen bases. He batted .239 and had 42 RBI in 111 games with Texas.

Photographer sees

Art in Industry

Deborah Hendrick, a local photographer, became intrigued by the play of light and shadows on the piping at the Cabot Kingsmill Gas Plant, seeing art in the everyday work world of industry, finding humor in the stocky, robot-like forms of the shut down panels and temp & flow charts at right, and a majestic beauty in the demethanizer tower, below, enveloped in the frosty fog. In order to share what she had discovered, Hendrick recorded her impressions on film one foggy-sleety night this winter. This is her photo-essay.

Weddings

...and engagements

MRS. HAROLD ALAN HINKLE
Susan Anne Giesler

MR. & MRS. JEFF FEILES
Melody Epperson

JULIE CREE

Geisler-Hinkle

Susan Anne Giesler became the bride of Harold Alan Hinkle, Feb. 1, in an evening ceremony at the First Baptist Church Chapel here. Officiating at the wedding was Keith Goode of Houston. The bride is the daughter of Gail Cole of Pampa and Randy W. Giesler of George West. Parents of the groom are Herbert and Jean Hinkle of Brazoria. Attending the bride as maid of honor was Mollie Hinkle of Brazoria, the groom's sister. Sarah Maul was flower girl. Kurt Hern of Sweeney was best man. Ring bearer was Dakota Tefertiller. Special wedding music was provided by Doris Anderson, who sang and accompanied vocalists Tracy Anderson and Angie Canada on the piano and organ. The couple were honored with a reception at the home of Don and Venora Cole, the bride's grandparents, following the wedding. The couple plan a honeymoon trip to Florida in March, and they will make their home in Brazoria. Both the bride and groom are students at Texas A&M University in College Station.

Epperson-Feiles

Melody Epperson and Jeff Feiles exchanged wedding vows Jan. 17. The bride is the daughter of Gary and Vickie Epperson of Pampa and parents of the groom are Emmett and Norma Lee Feiles of Fargo, Okla. The couple are to be honored with a reception celebrating their wedding, today, in the First Baptist Church parlor from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. The bride is a 1984 graduate of Pampa High School. She has attended Texas Tech University at Lubbock and Clarendon College - Pampa Center. Feiles graduated from Fargo, Okla., High School in 1984.

Cree-Harkins

Mr. and Mrs. Joe D. Cree of Pampa announce the engagement and forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Julie, to Jerry H. Harkins, son of Mr. and Mrs. A.L. Harkins of Dallas. The couple plan an April 26 wedding in St. Matthew's Episcopal Church here. The bride-elect holds a bachelor of arts degree in political science from Southern Methodist University in Dallas. She is now employed as a loan officer at Northland Mortgage. Harkins is a graduate of Texas Tech University at Lubbock with a bachelor of business administration degree. He is now senior loan officer at Guardian Mortgage. The couple announced their wedding plans at a cocktail party at the home of Miss Cree's parents here.

Continuing education classes scheduled

Registration for more than a dozen different continuing education classes at Clarendon College - Pampa Center is now open at the college, 900 N. Frost. The first of these, Beginning Bridge, begins at 7 p.m., Tuesday, at Room 11 at the college. The class meets from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m., Tuesdays, for an eight week period, ending on April 8. The class, taught by Dorothy McMurray, is limited to 20 students. On Feb. 27, Principles of Banking begins in room 9 at the college. Teaching the class is Debbie Stokes, an officer at the First National Bank. Principles of Banking meets Thursday evenings through June 5 from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m.

Two classes are scheduled to begin on March 4, Business Applications of Computer Accounting Software and Fundamentals of Petroleum. The computer class meets in Room 14 on Tuesday evenings through April 22. Paul Braswell is to be the instructor. The petroleum class meets twice weekly, on Tuesday and Thursday, from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. for 11 weeks until May 15. Eight specialized instructors will be teaching the class which meets in Room 9 on Tuesdays and Room 10 on Thursdays. The next scheduled classes are two Beginning Computer Workshops which meet either on Wednesdays or Thursdays from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. in the computer lab at Pampa Middle School, beginning March 5 and March 6, respectively. Doug Rapstine is to teach the classes. Registration is at the Pampa Center. Classes are limited to 16 students. A weekend course on Real Estate Brokerage is set for March 8 & 9, 15 & 16, 22 & 23. Class time is 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., including breaks for lunch and church on Saturdays and Sundays. Charles Buzzard is to teach the course. Two more classes will begin on March 11, Calligraphy (The Art of Fine Handwriting) and Law and Banking. Calligraphy classes are set on Tuesdays, 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. at Room 10 at the college. Instructor Cile Taylor will conduct the classes for eight weeks until April 29. Chuck Quarles of the First National Bank is to be instructor for the Law and Banking classes, set from 6:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. in Room 102 at the college. Class ends on June 5.

On March 13, Rick Fronheiser is to instruct a class on Basic Photography from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. in Room 102 of the college. Class meets Thursday evenings for six weeks, ending on April 17. Custom Draperies Design for the Home or Office is set for March 17. Class will meet in Room 104 at the college on Monday evenings from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. until April 21. Instructor is Sara Martinez. The class will be limited to 10 students. On March 31, Phase I of the Secretarial Business School will begin with classes on bookkeeping, typing and computational skills. The classes meet Monday through Thursday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. for a nine-week period ending May 29. Instructor in Jan Haynes. Class size is limited to 21 students. Entrepreneurship is the subject of a class beginning April 7 from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. in Room 102 at the college here. The class meets Monday evenings for eight weeks through May 26. Lead instructor is to be Bob Phillips along with seven specialized instructors. A series on financial planning is scheduled to begin April 14 from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m., Mondays in Room 10 at the college. Instructor will be Terry Moore. Registration for all of these classes is now open. For more information on registration fees and enrollment, call Clarendon College - Pampa Center at 665-8801 or go by the office at 900 N. Frost.

Dear Abby

Son's disappearing act is old performance to readers

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1986 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: What's so "bizarre and mysterious" about the situation described by "Forgotten Parents," who 10 years ago loaned their son $10,000 to save his business? He promised to repay it within three years on a monthly basis (no interest).

Four years ago he walked out of his parents' lives without a word of explanation. His business is thriving and he lives with his wife and children two miles away, but his parents—now in their 70s—haven't had a phone call, card, gift, visit—nothing. All communication ceased. The parents ask, "Where did he go wrong? We have never mentioned the $10,000 he owed."

The same thing happened to us. Only it was our son-in-law. The reason for the break in communication is clear to us. He doesn't want to pay back the money. He feels guilty, but not guilty enough to repay it, so he just "disappears."

Your answer was correct. Confront your son and force him to explain his behavior. YOUR STATEN ISLAND HELPER
DEAR HELPER: You would not believe the number of letters I received from readers saying, "The same thing happened to us." But most said, "Who needs a relative like that? Get a lawyer and sue him."
"Forgotten Parents" never did indicate whether they had an IOU or promissory note, but may I offer some valuable unsolicited advice to one and all? Never lend money without a promissory note acknowledging the loan and stating the terms of repayment. Relatives are no exception.

DEAR ABBY: Dawn, a frail little 6-year-old child, walked for the first time in her life on the Jerry Lewis 1985 Telethon—thanks to the skills of an orthopedic surgeon and the support of the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

Mrs. Ohio of 1985 appeared on the telethon at the same time, and met Dawn at the TV station. The shy and winsome child was delighted to meet the beautiful "queen" wearing a real crown. Dawn's face lit up as she gazed upon the crown. She could scarcely take her eyes from it. Not too long afterward, a package arrived at Dawn's home, and inside was a beautiful rhinestone crown! It had belonged to Cyndi Griswold, Mrs. Ohio of 1985!

CYNDI'S PROUD MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: You should be proud. What a perfect example of the combined joy of giving and receiving.

DEAR ABBY: Now I have really heard it all. "Parents of the Bride" write that their adopted daughter is planning to be married. She has found her natural family and wants to include them in the wedding party, so how should the wedding invitations read?
Can't you just see them: "Mr. and Mrs. William Smith request your presence at the marriage of their adopted daughter, Joan, in the presence of her natural parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Gotlost, to Peter Jordan, the natural son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Jordan."

Oh, come on, Abby. You say if there is any awkwardness insofar as you, or the natural parents are concerned, identifying labels should be omitted. How could there not be awkwardness?
If the bride who has suddenly found her birth parents wants to invite them to her wedding, that's lovely. But I think they should slip in the back door of the church, watch the wedding and slip out again. I'll bet you get plenty of mail on this.

IN SHOCK IN COLUMBUS

DEAR IN SHOCK: I did. The consensus: The adoptive parents must be incredibly generous and understanding (or crazy) to even consider including their daughter's newfound natural parents in the wedding party. Also, if they do, the natural parents should pay half the expenses.
I was also asked to quit using the terms "natural" parents and "real" parents, because the adoptive parents would then become "unnatural" and "unreal."

(Getting married? Send for Abby's new, updated, expanded booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send your name and address clearly printed with a check or money order for $2.50 and a long, stamped (39 cents) envelope to: Dear Abby, Wedding Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.)

Optimist Club seeks students for contest

Optimist Club of Pampa is seeking students to enter the club's oratorical contest set for March 31 here. Eligible students may not have been sixteen years of age before December 31, 1985, but there is no minimum age.

Contestants must present a four to five minute speech on "Optimism - A Way of Life." Boys and girls compete in separate contests. Local winners will compete in the zone contest and the two zone winners are to receive an expenses-paid trip to the district competition in Mount Pleasant to compete against winners from the other 16 zones of the North Texas District. Two district winners will each receive a $1,000 scholarship to the college of their choice.

District winners in the past have included Mark Lenick of Pampa and several students from Amarillo.

Pampa's contest chairman is Calvin Lacy, 669-2009. Students from area schools are also eligible to enter the Pampa contest, and should contact Lacy for a complete set of rules. Pampa High School students may pick up rules from Rochelle Lacy in Room 203. Entry forms need to be received by March 10. They may be mailed to Calvin Lacy, c-o Pampa Optimist Club, Box 802, Pampa, 79065.

Peeking at Pampa

Well! From the threshold of spring to mid-winter, all in the blink of an eye! Blink again and we'll peek around town to see what's been happening.

Belated birthday wishes to JoAnn Greer who recently celebrated what must have been birthday four-oh! When co-workers took her out to dinner, she requested that everyone dress in black. Another group wearing black attire to a surprise party for John Park's 50th birthday. His wife Rue rigged the party given at the home of their daughter Mindy and husband Mark Watkins. Cyndi Towry, another daughter, and Mike Towry were co-hosts. The fun began with the arrival of the honoree and guests — John in a limo, Ruby Adcock in a beautiful black dress topped with an out-of-date black hat and veil, and husband Bob wearing a black top hat from another era plus a cane. Mark and Mike provided entertainment (?) in addition to a scavenger hunt. Dorothy and Jim Jeffrey, Beverly and Bud Watson, LaVada and Carl Warner, Yvonne and J.D. Moler, Cathy and John Cahill completed the guest list.

Mark and Mike took off a few days later for a fishing trip to South Texas.

Brothers Rick and Randy Harris enjoyed an ice fishing trip to Monument Lake, Colo.

A bouquet of balloons tagged "It's a boy!" left on Betty Casey's desk told the world Betty had gone to Corpus Christi to play new grandmother again. Little Thomas Matthew Handren was born to Ann and Pat. Grandmother did well!

Overheard along the way...

Don Lehman, Shelby, Shannon and John were busy as could be selecting Laura's birthday present last Saturday morning. The gift was definitely a family project.

Priscilla Alexander was seen shopping for cruise clothes. She and Jack are excited over their summer plans for a Caribbean cruise. Heard that Don Tena won an 8-day trip to Hawaii for next September.

Best recovery wishes to Mae (Mrs. Jack) Plummer, who is recovering from not one, but two, broken hips suffered a few weeks apart. With Mae's cheerful outlook on life, she'll be up and about soon.

The same wishes to Wade Duncan, who is greatly improved after a recent health problem. And to Helen (Mrs. Charles) Dimmler as she recuperates at home after recent surgery.

A warm Pampa "Welcome Aboard!!" to Debbie and Steven Wilson and family who have moved here from Portales, N.M. Steven is the new physical therapy department head at Coronado Community Hospital. Family outings and tennis are favorite pastimes. Son Clifton, 9, enjoys playing the piano, as does his mom. Basketball and T-ball are a couple of Clifton's other interests. Shea at four months is the newest family member.

Things popped pretty fast around the Grant Cambern household last week. First Joanna Brook celebrated her seventh birthday. Next Grant became ill and was admitted to the hospital. Belated birthday wishes to Joanna and recovery wishes to Grant!

Little Laura Johnson has enjoyed sharing family news with her friends. According to Laura, there's a baby on the way at the Linda and Dr. Jay Johnson household.

Employees of CCH dug out their baby pictures for a Valentine Pretty Baby contest planned by the activities committee.

At least 100 friends and relatives attended Audry Huff's 75th birthday party hosted by her daughters at Hi-Land Christian Church last Saturday afternoon. Daughter-hostesses attending were Virginia, Melvina and Montie Kay of Pampa, Mary Ellen of Guymon, Anis Ann and Judy of Amarillo and Diane from the East coast. Norma and Molita were unable to attend because of the snow.

It was a beautiful party done in red and white with a centerpiece of red roses. Friends and family sent booklets of bouquets and pot plants. Grandchildren call her "Granny Bear."

And birthday wishes to Georgia Guess, a perky little lady who will be 91 years young next Saturday. If she doesn't have a ride, she strikes out on her own to walk to the Senior Citizens Center for an afternoon of games and fellowship. Last fall when she was a mere 90, she danced her first dance with her grandson at his wedding.

Little 4-year-old Casey Coleman worked like a little Trojan in helping plant trees in front of the court house. He's the son of Jamie Greene Lee and grandson of Kathleen and Jim Greene.

Belated birthday wishes to Eddie Dunigan who celebrated his 89th birthday on Feb. 3. Gene Robbins, Billy B. Davis, Vivian Keough, Billie Hupp and Christine Babb hosted a party in his office. About 57 people attended. The birthday cake was decorated with the design of an oil derrick. See you next week! KATIE

MR. & MRS. TONY R. SMITHERMAN

Smithermans celebrate their 25th anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Tony R. Smitherman of McLean are to be honored today with a reception celebrating their 25th anniversary at the First United Methodist Church in McLean. The event is to be from 2:30 p.m. to 4 p.m.

Hosting the reception are the couple's children, Beth Smitherman of Dallas and Bryan Smitherman of Lubbock.

Tony Smitherman and the former Monta Jean Kennedy were married on Feb. 11, 1961, in Hart. They have lived in McLean for the past 22 years where Mr. Smitherman farms and ranches and Mrs. Smitherman is owner-operator of Smitherman Tax Service.

Entries for natural fibers contest sought

Farm, ranch and agri-business women can display their fashion and sewing skills at the Natural Fibers Fashion Showcase to be held at the Southwest Farm and Ranch Exposition in Fort Worth on March 8.

The showcase is to demonstrate the types of finished products that can be made from cotton, wool and mohair — all Texas agricultural commodities.

Entrants will compete for first, second and third place awards in four divisions: custom sewn garments, knitted and crocheted garments, coordinated mother and child ensembles, and former grand award winners.

A fifth non-competitive division gives seamstresses an opportunity to show off Grandmother's oldie-but-goldie clothing treasure fashions from 1936 and earlier, in celebration of the Texas Sesquicentennial.

Each garment entered in the show must be made of a minimum blend of 50 percent cotton or 50 percent wool and-or mohair.

Contestants must be 18 years or older and actively involved in farming, ranching or agri-business; or be a member (or member's spouse) of Young Homemakers, Young Farmers, 4-H Leader Association, producer associations or auxiliaries and tractor pullers' clubs.

Sponsors of the event include the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Southwest Hardware and Implement Association and Progressive Farmer magazine.

Entries must be submitted by Feb. 21. Contest rules and entry blanks are available at the County Extension office.

First in series on two-earner families

By DONNA BRAUCHI
County Extension Agent

EARNING AND MANAGING TWO INCOMES - PART I

Today, we begin a two-part series on issues and concerns of two income families.

More than half of all husband-wife, two-earner families have incomes which average 30-40 percent higher than families with only one wage earner. Not only do two-earner families have more income, they also have more expenses. Many of these expenses allow both the husband and wife to pursue their careers. These include meals eaten away from home, child care, transportation, recreations, convenience appliances, work clothing, and often more expensive housing.

Studies indicate that time is limited in dual-earner families due to competing demands from job and family. Goods and services are usually purchased to lessen these time constraints. This also leaves less time for "shopping" - for the actual evaluation of competing products and for making purchases. Therefore, studies indicate that two-earner families are less economy-minded and often buy on impulse.

Characteristically, two-earner families spend one-third more on transportation than one-earner families. Two-earner families tend to be younger and to buy more expensive homes, cars, and appliances. In addition, they must buy goods and services which might have been produced at home if one of the spouses was not employed. Two-earner families are less likely to save as large a proportion of their income as non-earner families.

It is easy for young, two-earner families to feel that since they have two incomes they can buy anything they want. But with less time for shopping and financial planning, two-earner families may spend too freely and then find they don't have as much money as they expected. They also may not be prepared for the reduction in income they may face if one member of the couple must leave his or her job for some reason.

If any of the above descriptions seem to fit you and your family, then read on. The rest of this column plus next week's column will include some ideas for you to consider on managing your money.

Whether you started married life assuming that both husband and wife would work, or you are changing from a single to a two-earner family, you will have to make decisions about managing two incomes. First, there are the tasks of bill paying and record keeping.

Some two-earner families decide that each partner is responsible for certain bills or payments. Arguments may occur when one spouse runs short and has to "borrow" from the other. If the marriage is considered to be a partnership, that may cause problems. That is why most marriage counselors and financial experts suggest that couples pool most, though not all, of their money. Each spouse should retain an independent "allowance". With this system, a couple can maintain the feeling that income is shared, but each spouse can still make some purchases without being accountable to the other.

An even more important issue concerns a shift in the balance of power caused by a second wage earner. Should the spouse who makes the greater income have veto or tie-breaker power in money decisions? Will you live on one income and save the other for a special purpose such as a down payment on a house or a retirement fund?

The ways couples choose to divide their earnings is often reflected in the way their checking and savings accounts are set up. Joint accounts promote a feeling of sharing since both husband and wife have access to the money in the accounts. Having a joint account also means that the couple only has to balance one account each month.

Some families use two checking accounts. With separate accounts, each spouse has ready access to funds since the money is clearly in the name of one partner. However, managing the funds separately may complicate the record keeping. Two accounts must be reconciled each month rather than one.

The advantages and disadvantages of both joint and separate accounts must be weighed by each couple to determine which type is more appropriate to them. Next week the series will focus on insurance needs, credit, and income tax planning.

STEVE WILSON

CCH names head of physical therapy

Steve Wilson, P.T., of Physical Therapy Associates, has been named director of physical therapy at Coronado Community Hospital. He comes to Pampa from Portales, N.M., where he held the same position at Roosevelt General Hospital. Wilson has earned a bachelor of science degree in physical therapy, and a bachelor of arts degree in general studies, both from Wichita State University in Wichita, Kan.

He and his wife Debbie have two sons: Clifton, 9, and Shea, four months.

Secretary job market appears to be healthy

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The 1986 Newspaper Help Wanted Advertisements Survey, conducted annually by The Secretary magazine and sponsored by Professional Secretaries

International Research and Education Foundation, shows an 11.5 percent increase in the number of secretarial ads.

Nearly 40 percent of the ads indicated that word processors or computers would be used on the job, compared with 39 percent in 1985. Only 14.6 percent of the ads asked for shorthand or fast note taking this year.

This used car lot features rarities

By JOHN PLATERO
Associated Press Writer

HOBBS SOUND, Fla. (AP) — Charlie Coney differs from the contemporary used car salesman in that one must pay $1.25 just to look at the "cream puffs" he has for sale.

The difference between Coney's Autoland Inc. and other used car lots is that the 60-70 vehicles on display in his museum fall into the antique, classic or special interest categories. The selection may range from a vintage Rolls Royce to a Packard town car from the 1930s or a Crosley three-quarter racer.

Coney and his son, Charles Jr., have either painstakingly restored the vehicles to mint condition or they were well maintained by their previous owners. Most have surprisingly low mileage. And, he says, surprisingly low prices.

"My prices are realistic," says the 70-year-old Coney, who turned his hobby into a full-time business when he moved here in 1967 from Beach Haven, N.J. He owned a marina there.

Coney is particularly proud of a 1941 Pontiac station wagon with beautifully preserved wooden sides and 47,000 miles.

"This one is really rare in this condition," he says, adding that it has a $16,500 price tag. "You don't leave this one outside" because of the salt air along Florida's coastline.

Another eye-catcher is an immaculate, red-and-black 1931 Ford pickup. He'll let that one go for $12,000.

Coney has found over the years that a casual visitor sometimes becomes a buyer. However, most people think because a vehicle is old it automatically is an antique or classic car.

"It must be 35 years old to be considered an antique, but that doesn't mean it's a classic," he says.

The "classic" designation is given by the Classic Car Club of America to certain automobiles. Only about 70 makes of automobiles have earned it. Most classic cars were made between 1925 and World War II. "They were in the big categories, not small cars," he adds.

He mentions Duesenberg, Bugatti, Pierce Arrow and Cadillac as some of the makes in the classic category.

State agency wants to make life healthier

AUSTIN (AP) — The state health department is engaged in what could be one of its most ambitious undertakings ever: coordinating an all-out effort to make life measurably healthier by 1990.

The goals are specific, though changing, and health commissioner Robert Bernstein says many are attainable.

Texas' blueprint for good health is patterned after the National Health Objectives published by the federal government in 1980.

On a plane ride back from Atlanta, where he first saw the national plan, Bernstein decided Texas needed its own, tailored for the Texas population. It would become the first such state plan in the nation.

To start, a conference of nearly 300 health and safety professionals, educators and legislators was held in Houston in September 1983. "What we did was to list serious problems of public health and then literally set a goal to reduce such and so—all matters of public health, including accidents," Bernstein said.

A steering council of 30 members was created, and Bernstein told them, "While we no longer see the epidemics of the past which brought widespread suffering and death to so many, there are always new dragons to slay."

In 1983, the top four causes of death in Texas, accounting for seven out of 10 deaths, were heart disease, cancer, strokes and related diseases, and accidents.

The Texas plan targets not only those killers but, successful, would alter the lifestyles of millions of Texans.

"It's an effort to deal with the principal problem of public health, not health care delivery, but prevention essentially and health promotion, which is a building trend, just as it ought to be," Bernstein said in an interview. "Wellness" involves educating people as to what to avoid and what's good for them and how to moderate your life—dieting, no smoking, exercise and the whole gambit.

The list of specific health objectives is lengthy, but numerous "highest priority objectives" reflect the goals of the 1990 health plan.

— Reducing the daily intake of salt by adults to 2 to 5 grams to curb high blood pressure.

— Decreasing the percentage of "significantly overweight" women from 24 percent to 17 percent and men from 14 percent to 10 percent.

— Reducing "unintended births" among women 15 to 44 by 50 percent.

— Teaching reproductive health, including use of contraceptives, to all students in grades 4 through 12.

— Reducing infant mortality to no more than 9 deaths per 1,000 live births. The rate was 11 per 1,000 in 1983.

— Full immunization of 97 percent of all children attending day care facilities and schools, with 100 percent in compliance with state law.

— Full implementation of all laws concerning toxic substances.

— Reducing workplace accidental deaths and work-related illnesses and injuries by 10 percent.

— Reducing the motor vehicle fatality rate to 18 per 100,000 population. It was 28.1 per 100,000 in 1982.

— Establishing regional trauma, burn, and spinal cord injury centers.

— School-based dental health programs for at least 65 percent of the schoolchildren.

— Reducing the annual reported incidence of tuberculosis to 8 per 100,000 population. It was 12.8 per 100,000 in 1983.

— Reducing by 50 percent the number of 12- to 18-year-olds and pregnant women who smoke, and reducing the proportion of adults who smoke by 25 percent.

— Reducing alcohol- or drug-related fatal traffic accidents by 10 percent.

— Increased legislative support for Texans who cannot afford sufficient food, and nutrition education for grades kindergarten through 12.

— Increasing to 60 percent the proportion of Texans who are "vigorously exercising" at least 30 minutes, three times a week.

— Reducing child abuse and rape by at least 25 percent, and spouse abuse by 50 percent.

"About one-third of the objectives depend on health education for school-age children as one of the primary interventions," said Dr. Robert MacLean, deputy health commissioner for professional services.

Bernstein said, "Education has to be the cornerstone of public health." He said he had talked to State Education Commissioner W.N. Kirby about health promotion in elementary schools, because "the most lucrative targets are youngsters who are just developing their lifestyles. He (Kirby) certainly agrees with that, and we're trying to work together."

Since the publication of the proceedings of the 1983 Houston health conference, the health department has established several major statewide efforts, including:

— A public information campaign — "Mother Care is Baby Care" — to improve maternal and child health.

— A law to provide prenatal and maternity services for women.

— Creation by the Legislature of the Texas Cancer Council and Texas Cancer Fund.

— A law requiring the use of safety belts in the front seats of cars and most pickup trucks.

ENTERTAINMENT

BRAZIL - Mrs. Lowry (Katherine Helmond) and her son Sam (Jonathan Pryce) arrive at a restaurant for lunch in a scene from Terry Gilliam's "Brazil," a film that defies classification in its depiction of a nightmarish yet comedic future that may be all too real.

'Brazil' - more than a song, it's comedy, thrills and love

UNIVERSAL CITY, Calif. - As director and cowriter Terry Gilliam would be the first to agree, his new film "Brazil" defies precise classification.

It is not about Brazil, the country, except that it is inspired by the human condition. In that sense, it has as much to do with Brazil as anywhere else.

It does, however, owe something to the popular song of the 1930s - and revived in disco form in the 1970s - called "Brazil."

Gilliam recalls, "I had an image of somebody sitting on a beach, a beach blackened by coal dust, somebody just sitting there in the evening with a radio and that haunting song coming over the air waves - escapist, romantic sounds suggesting that somewhere out there, far from the conveyor belts and ugly steel towers, is a green and wonderful world."

"The story that developed from that image really has nothing to do with it except that everything sprang from it. That attitude is still in it. It is very much a part of it," he said.

What grew from that image is a story set in a bureaucratic state in which computers can get fudged up with horrific consequences, where every home has unreliable municipal services provided by the government for a subservient grateful public, a society in which the average man finds solace from the frustrations of existence in Walter Mitty - style sexually symbolic dreams.

Yet it is played for laughs, a comedic nightmare of a world.

With a cast that includes Jonathan Pryce, Robert De Niro, Michael Palin, Katherine Helmond, Ian Holm, Bob Hoskins and newcomer Kim Greist,

"Brazil" is a thriller, a quest, a fantasy, a black comedy, a love story.

It takes place at Christmas, somewhere in the 20th Century, where late - night shopping is available to all, terrorist bombs kill and maim only a few, and most people are content to put their faith in the Security Forces.

The story centers around Sam Lowry (Pryce), son of a late government minister and the beautiful, plastic - surgery freak, Ida Lowry (Helmond). Sam is a resolutely unambitious clerk at the Ministry of Information records department whose quiet life is shattered through a bureaucratic blunder by Information Retrieval.

It is a portrait of a future so close that we look at it as if in retrospect - and either laugh or cry for help.

Or both, if Gilliam is proven right when he predicts, "People will catch themselves laughing and suddenly realize, 'I shouldn't be laughing at that, that's horrendous.'"

There is in vogue in France a term that gives an indication of what Gilliam is doing. It is the term "retro-future," a way of looking at the future through the past, of revealing, so to speak, the other side of now.

But the director stresses that all of that is incidental, just a backdrop to what he sees as a "light - hearted nightmare . . . a very funny film about a young, unambitious man and the girl he falls for faced with situations entirely beyond their control."

Gilliam says of his latest directorial chore, "I didn't want to make a grim story. I am making entertainment. If you're going to say something, say it in an entertaining manner, so people will catch themselves laughing."

That was precisely the reaction evoked from the unit on location at a disused flour mill in London's Dockland.

The filmmakers had skillfully converted the 15 - story structure, a relic of the 1930s wharfside industrial architecture, to resemble a residential block, built perhaps in the hopeful 1960s, which overcrowding and neglect has subsequently reduced to an eyesore. The elevators no longer work; the whole rotting edifice has rejected the purpose for which it was built.

But Gilliam's perverse sense of fun gave the scene comic overtones, inviting rueful laughter.

On the walls of the squalid courtyard, graffiti - ridden posters offered flights (by Utopia Airways) to vacations in the sun. A Christmas tree's lights glowed pitifully behind dusty net curtains on the second floor. In the murky entrance an angry drunk tried vainly to get his money back from a vending machine long ago smashed by the wreckers.

Too close to the realities of urban jungles for belly laughs, perhaps, but funny all the same, especially when you notice the name the planners originally gave the block - Shagrila.

Other sequences and images develop Gilliam's view of the future - it's as if there has been a time slip, something has gone horribly wrong, the process of renewal has never been completed. Indeed, it seems to have gone into reverse. Funny, but also disquieting.

"If it shows anything profound, which I'm not sure it does, it is that people carry on," Gilliam said. "The architecture may be oppressive, but the people are not. The human spirit is not that easily extinguishable. So this could never be a solemn story of depersonalization and victimization.

"People hang on to their individuality no matter what they get on with life. Nobody is going around with a long face."

His own picture has survived some of that sense of frustration and survival. The studio at first refused to release it, then demanded extensive editing to provide a more uplifting, clearer ending.

Academy Awards Steven's direction ignored

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) - Now that the nominations have been announced, Hollywood is set for the usual hoopla, predictions and expressions of disappointment for the upcoming March 24 Academy Awards presentation.

Leading favorites, based on the number of nominations, are "The Color Purple," the drama of a rural black woman's struggle for independence, and "Out of Africa," a romantic adventure set in a British colony, each scoring 11 nominations apiece for the 58th Academy Awards.

"Prizzi's Honor," the bitter comedy of a husband-and-wife Mafia hit team, and "Witness," a police chase against a backdrop of Amish farm country, followed with eight nominations apiece.

Nominees for best actor of 1985 were Harrison Ford of "Witness," Jack Nicholson of "Prizzi's Honor," James Garner of "Murphy's Romance," William Hurt of "Kiss of the Spider Woman," and Jon Voight of "Runaway Train."

Whoopi Goldberg, the standup comic making her film debut, was nominated for best actress in "The Color Purple." Also nominated were previous Oscar winners Anne Bancroft for "Agnes of God," Jessica Lange for "Sweet Dreams" and Meryl Streep for "Out of Africa." Also nominated was Geraldine Page for "The Trip to Bountiful." Miss Page, 61, has been nominated eight times but has never won.

in the race were Amy Madigan for "Twice in a Lifetime" and Meg Tilly for "Agnes of God." All five are first-time nominees.

In race for best direction were two classic filmmakers: Huston, 79, for "Prizzi's Honor," and Akira Kurasawa for "Ran." The Academy voters also nominated Argentinian Hector Babenco for "Kiss of the Spider Woman," Australian Peter Weir for "Witness," and American Sydney Pollack for "Out of Africa."

The best direction category offered a surprise: Steven Spielberg, the all-time money-making director was not named for his most ambitious drama, "The Color Purple." Known for his blockbusters "E.T.: The Extraterrestrial," "Jaws," "Close Encounters of the Third Kind" and the Indiana Jones series, many had thought Spielberg had his best chance for his first really serious film. But he again will have to wait for another time.

Nominated for the best picture of 1985 were "Kiss of the Spider Woman," the story of a homosexual prisoner living out his fantasies by telling the plots of old B-movies; "The Color Purple," "Out of Africa," "Prizzi's Honor" and "Witness."

The nominees for best foreign language film were "The Official Story" from Argentina; "Angry Harvest" West Germany; "Colonel Redl," Hungary; "3 Men and a Cradle," France; and "When Father Was Away on Business," Yugoslavia.

Although Kurasawa was nominated as best director, "Ran" was ineligible in the foreign-language category because it was not nominated by Japan.

Despite its great critical reception and awards it has already gathered, the adaptation of "King Lear" was not nominated in Hollywood because of the academy's controversial nominating system for foreign films.

Foreign films are limited to one per nation, with a national committee selecting the film for academy consideration. Though Kurasawa is generally considered one of Japan's - and the world's - top directors, he is disliked by too many of his native filmmakers.

Pop star Lionel Richie captured a nomination for best song with his "Say You, Say Me," from "White Nights." Richie was also named for co-writing lyrics to "Miss Celie's Blues (Sister)" from "The Color Purple."

Other songs nominated: "Power of Love" from "Back to the Future," "Separate Lives" from "White Nights" and "Surprise, Surprise" from "A Chorus Line."

Other nominations included: Original screenplay - "Back to the Future," Robert Zemeckis and Bob Gale; "Brazil," Terry Gilliam, Tom Stoppard, Charles McKeown; "The Official Story," Luis Puenzo, Aida Bortnik; "The Purple Rose of Cairo," Woody Allen; "Witness," Earl W. Wallace and William Kelley (screenplay) and Kelley, Wallace and Pamela Wallace (story). Screenplay adaptation - "The Color Purple," Menno Meyjes; "Kiss of the Spider Woman," Leonard Schrader; "Out of Africa," Karl Luedtke; "Prizzi's Honor," Richard Condon, Janet Roach; and "The Trip to Bountiful," Horton Foote.

Book offers nuggets of wits

MERRY GENTLEMEN (AND ONE LADY). By J. Bryan III. Atheneum. 326 Pages. $17.95.

J. Bryan III is a very lucky man. Not only has he known some of the great wits of our time, but he also has the talent to write about them in a fine prose that introduces the "Merry Gentlemen (and One Lady)" to those not as lucky as Bryan.

Robert Benchley, Frank Sullivan, and John Steinbeck are among the 13 gentlemen recalled in these pages. The lone lady is Dorothy Parker. And she was really something.

Once, recalls Bryan, a woman stepped aside to let Parker precede her through a door while remarking: "Age before beauty." Retorted the irate Parker: "And pearls before swine." In another incident, she had met a man and been dumbfounded by his voice which she described as "so high, it was audible only to a dog's ear."

She was great alone, but even greater when she teamed up with Benchley. Bryan tells of how they both left their jobs at a magazine and set up in business for themselves. They called their writing firm "Utica Drop Forge & Tool Co." and on the huge mirror in their office they soaped "Today's Special: Yankee Pot Roast, 45 cents."

The first time Bryan met Benchley, Benchley had a hangover and commented of his breakfast: "All I had was one aspirin, lightly grilled." Another time Benchley went to Italy and cabed back from Venice: "Streets here full of water. Advise."

Bryan's book is full of nuggets such as these. It's a delight to read.

AGRICULTURE SCENE

Change in weather causes second thoughts

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Texas farmers getting land ready for spring crops were chased from their fields this week by the wintry weather, and livestock feeding once again became a top priority, said Dr. Zerle L. Carpenter, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

In his weekly report on the state's agriculture, Carpenter also noted that the cold weather caused a slowdown in the growth of small grain crops such as wheat and oats and winter pastures that had benefited from good rain week earlier.

While there was some concern about cold damage to fruit trees, the low temperatures actually may have had a positive effect on the state's fruit crop, Carpenter said. Additional cold weather was needed in many areas to meet the chilling requirements of fruit trees — a certain number of hours of temperatures below 45 degrees Fahrenheit to prepare them for the coming crop season. Where some open buds were lost due to freezing temperatures, this "thinning" of the fruit crop was generally considered beneficial.

The sudden shift in weather conditions also caused farmers in southern and coastal areas to have second thoughts about starting to plant corn and sorghum, Carpenter said. Soil temperatures dropped some with the cold weather, and farmers need to keep a close check on them prior to planting.

For good seed germination, the Extension Service recommends that farmers wait until the weekly soil temperature averages 50 degrees at the 4-inch depth before planting corn and 55 degrees before planting sorghum.

As of Feb. 11, daily soil temperature averages at the 4-inch depth in southern and coastal areas as recorded by the National Weather Service's Southwest Agricultural Weather Service Center at Texas A&M University were as follows: Weslaco 54 degrees Fahrenheit, Uvalde 61; Eagle Lake 48; Beaumont 52; Corpus Christi 52; College Station 50 and Austin 45.

Reports from district Extension directors showed these conditions:

PANHANDLE: Low temperatures and up to 15 inches of snow blanketed much of the region. The snow brought valuable moisture for wheat, but soil moisture remains short in some locations. Cattle feeding increased sharply with the cold weather.

SOUTH PLAINS: Much of the area received 7 to 12 inches of snow, and the moisture should boost the wheat crop. However, a good rain is still needed. Field work has been at a standstill due to the cold weather but livestock feeding has been in full swing.

ROLLING PLAINS: Good rains followed by heavy snow in some locations should help soil moisture conditions and boost the wheat crop. Up to 12 inches of snow fell over several counties. Livestock feeding increased with the cold weather; cows appear to be wintering well. Some early vegetables are being planted.

NORTH CENTRAL: This week's cold weather slowed the growth of wheat and oats following good rains a week earlier. Freezing rain and sleet fell over the area. Greenbugs and leaf rust are infesting some wheat. Livestock conditions are good, with feeding active due to the cold weather.

NORTHEAST: Small grains and winter pastures got a boost from recent rains, but this week's cold weather slowed growth. The frigid weather also triggered a sharp increase in livestock feeding and limited early-season gardening.

FAR WEST: Much of the region remains dry, with a general rain needed for small grains, pastures and ranges. Wheat remains under moisture stress and ranges continue to deteriorate. Livestock conditions are good, with feeding active. Goat shearing is getting under way.

WEST CENTRAL: Small grain crops improved some the past week due to recent scattered rains although the cold weather limited growth. The cold conditions also prompted an increase in supplemental feeding of livestock. Lambing continues active and the lamb crop looks good.

CENTRAL: Small grain growth was hampered by cold conditions this week; parts of the region received freezing rain and sleet. Greenbug damage continues to show up in some wheat. Livestock conditions remain good, with an increase in supplemental feeding due to the cold weather.

EAST: Winter pastures and small grains improved some the past week due to favorable moisture conditions; however, low temperatures restricted growth. Some farmers are topdressing small grains with nitrogen. Cattle feeding increased with the cold weather; hay supplies remain adequate.

UPPER COAST: Wet fields and cold weather kept farmers from preparing cropland for spring planting. Winter pastures and small grains are making good progress although the cold weather slowed growth. Early-season gardening activities are starting to increase.

SOUTH CENTRAL: Wheat is making excellent progress under favorable moisture conditions although this week's cold weather slowed growth some. Gardeners are planting early-season vegetables as conditions allow.

The livestock picture looks good, with increased feeding due to the cold spell.

SOUTHWEST: A hard freeze over the area this week caused some damage to winter vegetables. Rain is still needed for small grains pastures, ranges and spring cropland. Leaf rust is showing up in some wheat and could pose a major problem. Livestock remain in good condition, with feeding active. Calving season is under way.

COASTAL BEND: Wet fields are hampering some land preparation, but most farmers are ready to start planting corn and sorghum as soon as soil temperatures warm up a bit. Wheat and oats continue to look good, and pastures and ranges are improving.

SOUTH: Farmers will start planting corn and sorghum as soon as soil temperatures warm up a bit more. Early melon stands look good, and spring vegetable planting is about to start. Harvesting of sugarcane, cabbage, broccoli and other winter vegetables continues along with a few late oranges.

Statistic: farmers have larger debts, smaller assets

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — An agricultural indicator has edged higher and provided fresh evidence of a condition that should cause few surprises: farmers generally have bigger debts and smaller assets than they had a year ago.

Moreover, according to Agriculture Department economists, the indicator — called the debt-asset ratio — could increase again this year.

Preliminary figures worked out by the department's Economic Research Service put the debt-asset ratio at 23.65 percent as of Dec. 31, 1985. That meant that for every $100 in assets, American farmers owed an average of $23.65.

The Dec. 31 reading was up from 22.24 percent at the end of 1984, 20.37 in 1983, 20.08 in 1982, 18.19 in 1981, and 16.45 in 1980.

For this year, the agency said in a new outlook report that the ratio could decline slightly to 22.4 percent or rise to another record of 24.9 percent.

The ratio has been at record levels since it rose to more than 20 percent in 1982.

Economist Gary Lucier said Thursday that the agency's debt-asset records go back to 1939, when the average farmer owed $18.90 for every $100 of assets. The ratio rose to 19.1 percent in 1940 and then declined with rising land values during World War II.

The ratio declined to single-digit percentages in the late 1940s and didn't climb above 10 percent until 1953. In most years during the 1960s and 1970s, the ratio averaged between 14 percent and 17 percent.

The latest figures showed that total farm debt as of Dec. 31, 1985, was about $212.1 billion, down slightly from $212.6 billion at the end of 1984. The peak was $217.2 billion on Dec. 31, 1982. It dropped to about $216.3 billion at the end of 1983, reflecting the continued erosion of farmers' borrowing power and the crunch on incomes.

Real estate assets were shown at $638.2 billion as of Dec. 31, 1985, down from $693.7 billion at the end of 1984. Since Dec. 31, 1980, real estate assets have dropped more than $200 billion.

Another decline is expected this year, with farm real estate assets projected to be in the range of $600 billion to $620 billion on Dec. 31, 1986.

CATTLE LICE CONTROL TIME
Effective control of cattle lice can mean up to 20 percent improvement in average daily gain of wheat pasture stocker calves.

Lice annually cost cattlemen hundreds of millions of dollars in control efforts and production losses, said Dr. Carl Patrick, Extension entomologist in Amarillo. Tests he has conducted with stocker cattle show that effective control can mean a sizeable economic saving for the producer.

Comparing treated and untreated stocker calves on wheat pasture, the treated animals demonstrated a 20 percent improvement in average daily gain, Patrick said. Lice infestations in his test ranged from moderate to heavy.

Lice begin to reproduce rapidly with the onset of cold weather and reach peak populations in late winter and early spring, the entomologist noted. There are two types of lice - bloodsucking and biting - and both infest cattle. Sucking lice pierce the skin and suck blood while biting lice feed on particles of hair, scale, scab, and skin discharges.

Lice infestations irritate animals, causing itching, scratching and rubbing on fences or anything else available. This produces denuded areas, bruises and lacerations on the affected animal. Heavily infested animals will have an unthrifty appearance and will suffer weight reduction, decreased milk production, anemia, or even death.

Insecticide control of lice is not difficult to achieve, but there are some problems, the entomologist said. Most insecticides don't kill eggs; therefore, retreatment is generally required in two to three weeks to prevent another buildup.

However, if the initial treatment comes late enough in the season, there may not be enough time for lice to build to economic levels again before warm spring weather.

Spraying and dipping infested animals with proper insecticides is an effective means of controlling lice. However, control measures are usually required when winter conditions are most harsh - a time when cold stress is a good possibility and respiratory diseases prevalent. Some of this problem can be prevented by treating animals on a day when they can be dry before sundown.

Pour-on and spot-on grubicides labeled for lice are effective and considerably reduce the problem of cold stress associated with dips and sprays. However, the possibility of a host-parasite reaction is always a threat if the material is applied after the cut-off date for grub control.

Use of nonsystemic dust applied by hand or in dustbags would eliminate the possibility of host-parasite reaction. But because of a lack of penetration of heavy hair coats, dusts do not provide as effective lice control as dips or sprays.

Self-treatment devices, backrubbers and dustbags, properly placed and maintained in a preventative program offer effective lice control. These devices should be placed early in the fall prior to lice buildup in order that cattle will become accustomed to using them. They should be placed in areas that cattle frequently use or placed in such a manner that cattle are forced to use them.

The spot-on formulation of chlorpyrifos (Dursban) is a product that has been effective against lice. The product kills all stages of lice - eggs, nymphs and adults. One application is adequate for season-long control if the entire herd is treated and no untreated animals are later introduced into the herd.

Only a small amount of chlorpyrifos is required, thus eliminating cold stress from soaking animals with sprays and dips. The insecticide is not a grubicide, so it can be used anytime without fear of a host-parasite reaction.

Ivermectin, an injectable product, registered primarily for internal parasite control also provides effective control of sucking lice. It is not registered for biting lice which commonly infest cattle. One injection should provide season-long sucking lice control if no untreated cattle are later introduced into the herd.

Whichever lice control program is used, the cattleman should be certain to read label directions and pay particular attention to warnings, restrictions and pre-slaughter intervals.

MANAGEMENT QUESTION
Is grouping cows by production a practical management technique?

It certainly is. A cow with calf at side has about twice the nutrient requirements of a dry cow. So feeding the two cows together and doing it correctly is impossible. Sorting cows based on production level can save money. Demonstrations have shown that a producer can save about $8 per cow annually on feed costs by grouping or sorting cows and feeding them according to their needs. Sorting is especially practical with a short calving season.

USDA says

Farm exports still lagging

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farm exports are still in the doldrums and show little sign of improving in the near future, the government says.

In the first three months of the fiscal year that began last Oct. 1, U.S. agricultural exports were valued at $7.8 billion, down $2.1 billion or 22 percent from October, November and December of a year earlier, the Agriculture Department said last week.

The actual quantity of commodity shipments also continued down, totaling 33.8 million metric tons, down 18 percent from the 41 million tons exported in the first quarter of the 1984-85 fiscal year.

According to the department's Foreign Agricultural Service, the sharpest year-to-year declines during the quarter were for soybean oil, cotton, wheat, corn, grain sorghum and sunflower seed, all of which were down both in value and volume.

The declines were offset in part by increases in the export values of soybean meal, corn gluten feed, alcoholic beverages, dairy products and livestock and livestock products.

Imports of agricultural products, meanwhile, rose 5 percent from a year earlier during October-December to $4.9 billion.

The USDA has forecast the value of agricultural exports at an eight-year low of $29 billion over the entire fiscal year that will end next Sept. 30, down 7 percent from $31.2 billion last year. That would be down 29 percent or $14.8 billion from the record of $43.8 billion set in 1980-81.

Actual quantities of farm exports are forecast at 120.5 million tons, down from 125.7 million tons in 1984-85 and the record level of 162.3 million tons in 1980-81. A metric ton is about 2,205 pounds.

One of the problems for the immediate future is the abundance of grain in the world, which makes it more difficult to boost

U.S. exports of big-money items such as wheat, corn and soybeans.

In another monthly report issued Tuesday, the USDA said world production of wheat in 1985-86 is estimated at 503.4 million tons, down only 2 percent from the record wheat harvest of 514.8 million tons in 1984-85.

The U.S. share is about 66 million tons this year, down nearly 7 percent from 70.6 million tons in 1984-85.

World production of coarse grains, which include corn, was forecast at a record 843.8 million tons, up 4 percent from last year. The U.S. share is a record 274.3 million tons, a 15 percent increase from 1984-85.

Fajitas were popular with one family 50 years ago

By DAVID SEDENO
Associated Press Writer

PREMONT, Texas (AP) — Hector Recio can't understand why fajitas, the sizzling Tex-Mex cuisine making its way north, has become so popular in recent years.

He can remember the beef skirts used as scrap meat 50 years ago, when he was 8 years old.

"...I was raised on them. And who would have thought that fajitas would ever pick up like they did," he said.

Recio's father was a butcher northwest of this South Texas community and Recio had to get up early to help him slaughter steers.

"The first thing they did after slaughtering it was to get the liver and the fajitas and to put them right on the coals," he said.

The beef skirt has been popular in the Southwest and particularly among Mexican-American families in South Texas for generations. Within the last five years, however, the popularity has extended beyond the Red River.

Beef industry officials hope the fajita will change the minds of weight-conscious consumers who are straying away from red meat and to fish and poultry.

"We feel it is answering some of the consumer demands, in that it can be a lighter product in a small portion size. It can be an appetizer or an entree," said

Mary Adolf, director of food services and retail program for the National Livestock and Meat Board.

"It's something that's fun. You can do what you want with it," she said.

Fajitas — little belts in Spanish — hold in place the cattle's heart and lungs. There are only two fajitas on each calf or steer and they range in size from 12 to 18 inches in length depending on the animal.

Fajitas also were used for ground meat, but are now making their way to the Midwest and Manhattan.

"I think that Mexican-styled food is becoming more popular country-wide ... and it has gotten more popular as more traditional dishes, like fajitas, become better well known," said Bill McMillan, a former U.S. Department of Agriculture official.

"It's good food, good flavor, and different. They had been fairly well confined to the border states until more recent years and now have become more widely known and widely accepted," said McMillan, former USDA assistant secretary for marketing.

Because of their demand the most tender fajitas are becoming expensive — about $3 a pound in grocery stores and more for prepared dishes in restaurants across the country.

That price compares with about 10 cents a pound for fajitas in the 1930s, Recio said.

Ms. Adolf said that northern Mexican food restaurants have added fajitas to their menus and that chain hotels across the country also have included it in their restaurants.

Restaurants have different ways of preparing fajitas. Some marinate them, using special spices to tenderize and season the meat. Some even have substituted more tender cuts of meat.

Others prepare them with green peppers and onions. Some have added chicken fajitas to their menus.

Many restaurants are broiling them over mesquite coals.

Most serve the beef fajitas in strips, sizzling hot with flour tortillas and such toppings as guacamole, cheese, sour cream and "pico de gallo," a mixture of onions, green peppers and tomatoes.

"It's a real tasty piece of meat if you fix it right," Recio said. "You can ruin a fajita. Sometimes I do that."

Two years ago, Recio and his son, Homero, traveled through South Texas and northern Mexico in search of the origin of fajitas.

Homero Recio, a lecturer of animal science at Texas A&M University, obtained a fellowship to find out more about fajitas. His research led him back to his own family.

"I think it was daddy who was the first, according to mother who is still alive, to come up with the term — fajita," the elder Recio said.

He said when he was growing up barbecue pits or grills were unheard of and meat had to be placed directly on the mesquite coals. Fajitas had skin on them and that kept the juices inside.

"We put this right on top of the coals," Recio said, demonstrating with three strips of marinated meat. "I haven't done this in a long time. I don't know how they will turn out."

man sexuality conducted 40 years ago. She discusses the study recently in her office at Indiana University. (AP Laserphoto)

Kinsey Institute prepares to redo controversial study of sex life

By JOYCE A. VENEZIA
Associated Press Writer

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Forty years ago, thousands of people told all about their sex lives to Dr. Alfred C. Kinsey. Today, for the sake of science, many want to talk again.

Dr. June M. Reinisch, director of the Kinsey Institute for Research in Sex, Gender and Reproduction, says her researchers want to re-interview 2,000 of the 12,000 people who originally spoke to Kinsey, the institute's founder, and his staff.

"About 150," Reinisch noted, "have already contacted us and said, 'Oh, it was so fantastic. I want to tell you about what's happened to me since.'"

"We know so little about older people, and our population is demographically getting older every year," Reinisch said. "The baby boomers are into their 40s now."

Specifically, the institute hopes to learn about the effects of illness and aging on sexuality, Reinisch said.

The study will also reveal "a lot about memory when it comes to emotional issues," Reinisch said in a recent interview. "We've got a vast store of data that these people gave us many years ago. We can ask them what they think they told us."

It is of utmost importance to begin the study right away, she said, because many of the original interviewees are elderly. About 8,000 of them are believed to be alive.

The institute's former director, Paul Henry Gebhard, is writing a grant proposal for the $1 million project that should be completed by early spring, Reinisch said.

"There's a possibility that we could be beginning this time next year," she said.

Reinisch, 42, took over as the institute's first woman director in 1982. In her most noted research, she concluded that a child's "gender role," or the expression of masculinity or femininity, can be affected by hormones and drugs taken by the child's mother while pregnant.

The first Kinsey volume, "Sexual Behavior in the Human Male," startled many Americans but became a best-seller when it appeared in 1948. It revealed, among other things, that 90 percent of the 9,000 males questioned said they had masturbated and more than a third said they had had homosexual experiences.

The institute produces a thrice-weekly syndicated column, "The Kinsey Report," which appears in more than 100 newspapers. The column helps to correct a "gigantic lack of information" about topics such as menopause, impotence, orgasm, contraception and masturbation, Reinisch said.

She added, "We try to write it in such a way so that only those who are opposed to sex would be offended."

Corporate chaplains new dimension in employee benefits

By HELEN PARMLEY
The Dallas Morning News

DALLAS (AP) — When the young daughter of the sales manager of SYSCO Food Systems was diagnosed as having cancer in 1984, SYSCO president David E. Wicker III called Gil Strickland. Strickland, a chaplain under contract to the Dallas food distributor, rushed to the employee's home to meet with the family.

SYSCO is among corporations that traditionally have tended to the physical needs of employees — through health care and insurance programs — that now are retaining corporate chaplains to add a spiritual and emotional dimension to benefits.

It was only a matter of a few weeks between the diagnosis and the death of the sales manager's 6-year-old child. But in that time, SYSCO's chaplain spent endless hours with the family, in the hospital and at their home.

"It was a very traumatic experience," Wicker said. "I called and visited a couple of times, but (Strickland) spent time doing what I would not have been able to do. The family thought so much of him, they asked him to perform the funeral service."

Wicker's Dallas food distributorship employs the services of Marketplace Ministries Inc., an industrial chaplaincy corporation founded two years ago by Strickland, who is its president. It is a non-sectarian program, with seven full-time and two part-time chaplains — representing Catholic, Protestant and Jewish faiths.

Companies sign contracts for the service, for which they pay hourly or monthly fees.

"The chaplains are on call for employees," Wicker said. "It's a personal matter between them and Gil (Strickland). He gives me no names, and I do not ask for any. I just felt a need to give our employees something more than a job and a weekly salary. I know it is successful because of the letters I receive from the employees."

The Marketplace Ministries' chaplains, who are all trained in seminaries and have business experience, offer services ranging from counseling for drug problems and family crises to marriages, baptisms and funerals.

The companies that use Marketplace Ministries include a bank, a printing company and a sunglass distributor, Strickland said. The seven firms employ about 2,000 persons. When the employees' families are included, the chaplains have a congregation of more than 6,000.

There are an estimated 30,000 full-time chaplains in the nation, and probably nearly that many part time, said Edward Dietrich, the Milwaukee-based executive director of the national Association of Catholic Chaplains. The health field uses about half of all the chaplains, and Strickland estimates that business and industry use nearly 300 chaplains nationwide.

The concept of industrial chaplains, which is just beginning to increase, isn't new.

The oldest existing chaplaincy was started in 1931 by R.G. LeTourneau, an earth-moving equipment company in Longview in Gregg County. It is now known as Marathon-LeTourneau.

Gil Thornton celebrated his 10th year as the full-time chaplain at LeTourneau this month. He has married couples, baptized their children and counseled them in times of emotional stress.

In the 1970s, Thornton's work with LeTourneau led him to another special ministry: refugees from Vietnam. About 50 were hired by LeTourneau, he said, and the company asked Thornton to help them get settled.

"I was their pastor," he said. "I helped them with their housing needs, placing their children in schools and even taught them English. We started a mission church for them, and they have a pastor. But I still perform some of their marriages and funerals."

Geoff Hammond has been chaplain for the ERA-Clements-Prinzhorn Co. Realtors, for the past year. Besides counseling and making home and hospital calls, Hammond attends weekly sales meetings, as well as plans and forecasts sessions. There he presents brief motivational or inspirational talks.

"I consider him part of the management team," said Dick Clements.

"We pay Hammond a monthly fee, and his counseling sessions are confidential — between him and the employee," Clements said. "I don't know who he talks to or how often he sees them, and I don't want to know."

Hammond, a native of England, came to the United States three years ago. He is an ordained minister and is pastor of a small congregation in Lewisville.

"I am on call whenever one of the employees needs me," Hammond said. "At recent sales meetings, I have spoken on subjects ranging from the importance of keeping confidences and how to forgive, to dealing with conflicts and megatrends."

Hammond considers himself part of the company. Speaking of the employees, he said, "They are friends to me, and I am a friend to them. There is a real family atmosphere in the company."

"Forty percent of the people we work with don't attend religious services and don't have a minister," said Strickland. "If they are interested in finding a church home or synagogue, we put them in touch with one."

If they are not, they can dial a chaplain and expect a house call as part of their company's benefits. Chaplains have gone as far away as Omaha, Neb., to conduct a funeral.

A few weeks ago, Strickland recalled, he received a call in the middle of the night from an employee. The man's wife had been arrested for driving while intoxicated. Strickland met the man and accompanied him to the police station where they secured the wife's release. He then counseled the couple through the wife's alcohol rehabilitation program.

Another time, he worked for weeks with a man who had been fired and threatened to commit suicide.

"Eventually, the man got another job and his self-worth was restored," Strickland said. "Six months later, he sent me a Christmas card and thanked me for helping him through his crisis."

Strickland's non-profit corporation has been the fulfillment of his dream, combining his business and ministerial experience and taking it to the marketplace.

He holds a degree in business administration from Baylor University and a master of divinity degree in theology from Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary in Fort Worth. He was ordained in 1970.

Strickland has served as a lay minister, a special assistant in charge of media relations for evangelist Billy Graham, and also coordinated continuing education programs for chaplains who serve institutions owned and operated by the Baptist General Convention of Texas.

The governor's furniture is missing

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Mark White's top accountant says his staff has found 445 items previously listed as missing. The state auditor says that cuts the missing-in-action list to 346 items.

Still missing is "everything from chairs to desks to odds and ends," but nothing bought since White took office in 1983, said Mike Regan, head of the governor's accounting office.

"Included in the asset inventory listing were 791 items which had not been physically observed in recent years. The number of unobserved items has since been reduced to 346," audit manager Leslie Ashton said in the letter.
