Area school races attract many candidates

By CATHY SPAULDING Staff Writer

School board races have popped up in all area school districts except the one position open at Alanreed ISD as the filing period for school trustee offices closed at midnight Wednesday.

The one candidate seeking the one open position on the fivemember Alanreed board is incumbent Kevin Calhoun.

Eleven candidates have filed for positions on the newlyincreased Canadian School Board. Last year, Canadian ISD voters agreed to increase the school board from five members to seven, starting this year. As a result, four positions are open instead of two.

These two new openings have attracted a slew of candidates in addition to the two incumbents, John Ramp and Lee Young, who are seeking another three year

Other candidates for the Canadian offices are Richard (Butch) Northcott, Frank Carver, David Cook, John Wheeler, Tom Moore, Smiley Johnson, Robert Brown, Diane Praeger and Charles

Ten candidates are seeking three seats on the Groom school board, and school secretary Joyce Hutsell said that such a large turn-out is normal there.

Two incumbent trustees, board president Roman Friemel and Adela Kotara are seeking threeyear terms, while the third incumbent, Janice Koetting, is stepping down. Also seeking positions on the Groom board are Gary Britten, Hop Britten, Lynn Britten, Dennis Babcock, Bill England, Glynda Eschle, Joe Homer and Phyllis Jackson.

The Mobeetie race involves a brother and sister-in-law, Gary May and Sallie May, but Mobeetie ISD superintendent Bob Mickey does not believe the two related candidates would pose any problems with nepotism laws because it is an elective office. Also seeking one of the two openings on the Mobeetie board are incumbent Archie Summers, Jr. and Kimberly Hathaway Johnston. Incumbent trustee Gene White is stepping down.

In the White Deer-Skellytown school district, the two incumbent trustees from Skellytown. Bill Daves and Gary Gortmaker, are stepping down. Raymond Hanover is seeking Daves' position while Bruce Baine wants Gortmaker's. Incumbent Cinda Lafferty, the board president, is facing a challenge from Bill

All three incumbents on the Lefors School Board, Arnold Storey, Walter L. Jackson and Leon Goldsmith, are seeking new terms. The three are facing challenges from four new candidates: Dick Sierman, Russell Bockman, Jean Huckins and Mick Shedeck.

the three incumbents, Garland Moore, Mac Honeycutt and Mike Bright wish to return for another three year term. They are facing a challenge by Champ Davis.

Three positions are open in McLean. Incumbents John Holland and Darryel Herndon are seeking another term, while the third, Thacker Haynes, resigned from the board in August when the board hired a relative of his. Havnes' term would have expired at this election. Also vying for the three spots are Linda Meador, Billie Thomas and Jim

In Miami, First Baptist Church pastor, the Rev. Jerry Howe, is challenging incumbents Vernon Cook and Jimmy Bowers. There are two positions open on the Miami school board.

In Grandview - Hopkins ISD, two three-year positions are open and incumbents Paul Eakin and Troy Ritter want back in. They are challenged by Kevin Ollinger.

Wheeler schools are having spring break this week and nobody was available for comment on school board filings there.

Miami's Breeding wins in Houston stock show

HOUSTON - A Hereford heifer showed by Miami High School sophomore Chad Breeding won the grand championship at the Breeding Beef Scramble Show Sunday at the Houston Livestock Show and

Rodeo. Breeding was one of 200 4-H Club and Future Farmers of America members who returned to the Houston show last week to compete in the scramble show. The exhibitors were winners in last year's Houston calf scramble or livestock judging contest in which each received $600 to buy a beef heifer:

Judge Dr. Randall Grooms of Overton said Breeding's champion heifer, Vanity, represented her breed exceptionally well. He said she was the most complete heifer in the show and would probably be the most productive Breeding, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Breeding, not only exhibited the champion Scramble heifer, but also the reserve champion Hereford steer. A member of FFA, he said he knew his heifer had a good chance of winning the

Reagan rebuffed on Nicaragua aid

WASHINGTON (AP) -- Congress dealt President Reagan a pair of first-round defeats in the fight over whether to provide $100 million in aid to the U.S.-backed guerrillas who are battling the effist government of Nicaragua

Two Democratic-controlled House panels generally followed party lines Wednesday as they voted against Reagan's request for aid, which includes $70 million that could be used for military help and $30 million in non-lethal

The votes came after Reagan, leading a lobbying blitz, said the money is needed for the Contra guerrillas "so we will never have to send our own American boys' to fight the Sandinista government he says is a menace to democracy in Latin America

The House Intelligence Committee turned down the package on a 9-7 vote, with nine of the panel's 10 Democrats opposing Reagan, Only Rep. Dan Daniel of Virginia joined Republicans to support the move.

That was followed minutes later by an 8-5 vote against the package in the House Foreign Affairs subcommittee on the Western Hemisphere. All eight Democrats voted against it, while all five Republicans supported Reagan

Despite the defeats, the measure eventually will reach the floor of the full House, which is controlled by Democrats, and later will face a series of votes in the Republican-run Senate.

Reagan, speaking at the White House to members of a Jewish organization, said that "if the members of Congress hide their heads in the sand and pretend the Nicaraguan threat will go away, they are courting disaster and history will hold them accountable. Nothing less than the security of the United States is at

But House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., disagreed. saving at his daily news conference that U.S. help isn't what the outnumbered Contra fighters need. He predicted that Americans eventually will be drawn into the conflict.

"I can see what's happening," O'Neill said. "Eventually some American will be wounded and you'll find us in the fray. ... I think it's a wrong American policy. You ought to be able to go the diplomatic route. I haven't met a world leader who agrees with American policy.

Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger, speaking to the House Armed Services Committee, defended the request and echoed Reagan's statement that U.S. weapons and other help are needed so U.S. troops won't be sent. He denied that there are plans to send Americans to fight.

Texans defend the Alamo again

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) -Dressed in animal skins and coonskin caps befitting the likes of Davy Crockett, more than 150 men fired musket volleys and lit candles early today in a dawn ceremony commemorating the fall of the Alamo 150 years ago.

This is just a special place for anybody that loves freedom and what it costs," said Jeff Bearden, who played Alamo hero Crockett in the re-enactment ceremony.

'We have something to live up to here," he said.

About 1,000 people filled the plaza in front of the Alamo, an historic Catholic mission, to "Reember the Alamo'' and honor 188 defenders who died there arch 6, 1836.

The ceremonies are a highlight of Texas' Sesquicentennial, celebrating the 150th anniversary of Texas' independence from Mexico.

The Alamo battle, pitched against a 4,000-man Mexican army led by Gen. Antonio Lopez de Santa Anna, set the stage for a final Texas victory over Mexico 47 days later at San Jacinto.

Texas became a republic after that victory and then a state in

Jobless rate rises slightly

The number of persons holding jobs in Pampa and Gray County increased during January, but so did the number of job seekers. The result was a jump of half a percentage point in the local unemployment rate, according to statistics provided by Pampa's Texas Employment Commission office.

The unemployment rate in Pampa climbed from 5.2 percent in December to 5.7 percent in January, while the country's rate eased up from 5.3 to 5.8 percent. The number of persons holding jobs in Pampa increased from 10,170 to 10,301 in January, but the labor force increased from 10.724 to 10.923. That left 622 city residents unemployed, compared to 554 the previous month. In Gray County, the number of jobholders jumped from 12.501 to 12,662. But the total labor force increased from 13,199 to 13,445 The county had 783 persons without jobs in January, compared to 698 in December. Charles Vance, director of the local TEC office, said lavoffs after the Christmas season and continued layoffs in oil fieldrelated businesses contributed to the slightly higher unemployment figures The local office had listings for a variety of fast-food jobs, a convenience store clerk and telephone solicitors this morning,

In the four other counties serves by the local office, the unemployment rate went up in two and down in two. Hemphill County's rate improved from 4.7 to 3.8 percent, while Lipscomb's dropped from 3.9 to 3.4 percent. Roberts County's rate went up from 2.3 to 3.3, while Wheeler's jumped from 3.8 to 5.4 percent.

Soviet space probe sending live photos of Halley's comet

MOSCOW (AP) — A Soviet space probe beaming live pictures to a Moscow space center swept past Halley's comet today, giving scientists from around the world what appeared to be the first view ever of the comet's icy core.

The images from the spacecraft Vega 1 arrived at the Soviet Institute for Space Research nine minutes after the probe made its closest approach, passing about 5,555 miles from Halley's nucleus of ice and dust at 10:20 a.m. (2:20 a.m. EST.)

It was the first of five probes scheduled to fly by the comet in the next nine days.

Scientists hope all five probes will provide clues about the origin of the solar system, since comets are believed to be pristine remnants of the solar nebula, the swirling cloud of dust and gas out of which the planets and the sun are believed to have been formed.

Color-enhanced television monitors showed an image of a fiery red-brown center surrounded by yellowish gases on a blue background. Halley's nucleus is believed to be a dirty snowball of dust and ice about four miles in diameter.

The images also were transmitted by the space institute to ABC News program "Nightline."

Cornell University astronomer Carl Sagan, who was among 12 Americans joining scientists from around the world at the Soviet institute, told "Nightline" this morning that the Vega 1 had successfully penetrated the comet's huge coma, or cloud of dust and gas, and apparently took the first pictures ever made of a comet's nucleus.

Karoly Szego, assistant director of the Vega mission, agreed, saying, "My idea is that really what we saw was the nucleus.'

Roald A. Sagdeyev, head of the Moscow space institute, explained in a live Soviet television broadcast that the space probe was being bombarded by "a huge number of dust particles. Each one is registered in the window of (special recording) devices so we can get an immediate chemical portrait," Sagdeyev said.

The pictures "gave us the opportunity to look at (the comet) as if through a magnifying glass and see a lot more details," he

However, it will take time for scientists to analyze Vega's pictures to get a better idea of the size and composition of the nucleus. Sagdeyev said there were about 15 special devices aboard the space probe to study the comet cloud, its gases, plasma and Halley's, which is named after the English astronomer Edmund Halley, swings around the sun every 76 years and last was seen in 1910. Today, it was about 105 mil. lion miles from Earth and 74 mil lion miles from the sun, traveling at about 104,000 mph.

The comet is now visible from latitudes south of the northern tier of states in the United States just before dawn, low above the east-southeast horizon.

The four other probes that will study the comet during the coming days are Japan's Suisel, which will approach within 93,960 miles on Saturday; the Soviet Vega 2 probe, which will fly about 4,986 miles from the comet 18 hours later; Japan's Sakigake spacecraft, which is to study the comet from a distance of 4.3 million miles Monday (Tuesday in Tokyo); and the European Space Agency's Giotto probe

Parents testify in abuse trial of YMCA teachers

EL PASO. Texas (AP) - A former YMCA day-care teacher told one of her charges his mother approved of games in which the child was molested sexually, the boy's mother testified tearfully

The mother was the first witness in the trial of Michelle "Mickey" Noble, who taught preschoolers at the East Valley YMCA, where sexual abuse allegedly occurred in early 1985. Ms. Noble is charged with 22 counts of sexual abuse involving eight children ranging in age from 2 to 4.

If convicted, she could receive

"He said to me, 'Miss Mickey said she called you and you said it was OK to do these things," the 31-year-old mother recalled Wednesday. "He said, 'Mommy, I wasn't a bad boy, was I?' and I said no, because he had to do all those things.

The trial of Gay Stickler Dove, another former day-care teacher at the YMCA, has not been scheduled. Ms. Dove is charged with 10 counts of sexual molestation of pre-schoolers.

According to the mother, her son was told terrible things would a maximum sentence of life in happen if he ever talked to any-

Governor's staff is counting spending cuts

AUSTIN (AP) - One of the largest state government agencies says it can only make about half Gov. Mark White's recommended 13 percent cut in spending.

White urged all state agencies and universities to trim spending by that amount to help cover the projected $1.3 billion budget shortfall brought on by falling oil prices. Under the Texas Constitution,

White lacks the actual power to require such cuts. Wednesday, Department of Human Services Commissioner Marlin W. Johnson submitted a spending reduction plan he said will save $125.9 million over the next 18 months — only about half

The department's total two-year state appropriation was $1.88 billion.

A full 13 percent cut would trim $245 million, Johnson said, adding, "We cannot reach that level of reduction without carving away critical, lifesustaining services to people, primarily fragile elderly and vulnerable children.

Compounding problems is that some cuts in state spending would also bring reductions in matching funds supplied by the federal government, officials

Although a hiring freeze is being imposed for non-essential vacant jobs, Johnson said no layoffs are being considered.

"For the sake of perspective, it can be noted that even if the entire staff of the department were to be abolished tomorrow, the 'savings' over the remainder of this biennium - including salaries, travel, rent, utilities and other staff-related costs would not meet our $245 million objective," firm elderly people and needy children," Johnson William Hamilton, White's budget director, said Cutting further would "raise the spectre of denying life-sustaining services for destitute and in-he expected to have a preliminary total today on spending cuts proposed by the approximately 200 state agencies. While not all have reached the 13 percent level, he said, many "are doing a pretty good job.

Even agencies under court-ordered reforms the Texas Department of Corrections and the Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation — should "achieve some savings that had not been anticipated," Hamilton said

White on Tuesday announced a plan to cut his own office budget by 13 percent, trimming about $5.3 million.

The Texas A&M University regents on Wednes day trimmed $37 million off their biennium budget in accordance with Gov. Mark White's plea to reduce spending because of the state's revenue shortfalls created by surging oil and gas prices.

The plan, approved Wednesday, calls for a say ings of $12.4 million from a modified freeze on new hires and promotions unrelated to academic and research endeavors and $11.8 million in savings in utilities appropriations, including savings from renegotiation of energy contracts and additional conservation measures

Other savings include deferral of purchases of supplies and equipment, a freeze on the use of general revenue funds for out-of-state travel and a 20-percent reduction for in-state travel expenses.

FLUVANNA, Texas (AP) — The pride of this West Texas town's volunteer fire department fleet is a hand-me-down 1968 Ford that leaks so badly it runs out of water within three minutes during a house fire.

White's target.

The truck, which saw better days with the U.S. Forest Service in East Texas, is backed up by a rusty '49 Ford, a once-retired pumper with a cracked windshield, heat-disfigured red top and barely enough water to douse grass fires.

The Fluvanna department is among more than 500 in Texas that rely at least partially on volunteers

Last year in Texas, volunteers outnumbered paid firefighters 2to-1, according to Charles Page, director of the Texas Firemen's Training School at Texas A&M University.

In Texas' 877 fire departments, 15,439 firefighters were paid compared to 37.046 volunteers who protect at least 500,000 Texans in small towns and in larger cities such as Pasadena and Rosen-

Not all volunteer fire departments are as impoverished as Fluvanna's.

Pasadena, a Houston suburb with 120,000 residents, is one of the largest cities in the United States served by an all-volunteer department and the largest in Texas.

The department has a volunteer force of 150 beeper-equipped firefighters and boasts a fleet of more than 20 vehicles distributed among seven fire stations. It even has a formal recruiting program and its own fire academy, where rookies receive 90 hours of training before they fight fires.

the state," said Pasadena Chief Bill Long.

On the other hand, Fluvanna, a town of about 200 located 70 miles southeast of Lubbock in Scurry County, is unincorporated. Its fire department includes a farmer-rancher, a preachermechanic, the gin manager, an oil-field worker and his teen-age

Because its equipment is antique and its firefighters are uncertified, the State Board of Insurance makes the typical Fluvanna resident pay almost as much for fire insurance as someone who lives in a community with no fire department. For every dollar an unprotected resident paid in 1985, the Fluvanna resident paid 98 cents. Pasadena's key rate is 29.

State offices remain closed after fire

AUSTIN (AP) - The attorney general's offices in the Texas Supreme Court building, damaged by a fire that could have been caused by a microwave oven, might remain closed until next week, says a state official.

The blaze broke out on the fourth floor of the building early Wednesday. There were no injuries, and heavy damage was limited to the fourth floor.

Pat McNicholas, the Austin Fire Department's chief investigator, said a microwave oven and its extension cord were being studied as possible "accidental sources" of the fire. Earlier Wednesday, Assistant Fire Chief Brady Pool said the fire looked "suspicious," but McNicholas of the State Purchasing and said there was nothing to indicate arson.

The building, adjacent to the Capitol, houses the attorney general's offices, the Texas Supreme Court, the Court of Criminal Appeals and the 3rd Court of Appeals. The appeals courts routinely hear arguments and issue orders on Wednesdays.

The Supreme Court moved to its old quarters in the Capitol, where it had met until the court building opened in 1957. The justices wore street clothes because they could not get their judicial robes from the damaged

Lias Steen, executive director undetermined and under inves-

Generals Services Commission, said the court portion of the building would be re-opened today, as long as air sample tests did not show harmful fumes released from asbestos in the building.

The seven-story portion that houses the attorney general's office will be opened Friday at the earliest, and possibly not until Monday, he said.

The fourth floor will remain closed "indefinitely," according to Steen.

State Fire Marshal Ernest Emerson refused to speculate on a cause of the fire, saying only, "We are of the opinion that it's The building was empty when the fire broke out shortly after 6 a.m. Wednesday. Some 80 firefighters fought the blaze before bringing it under control at 6:57 a.m., said Fire Capt. Mike Van Blaricom.

Also Wednesday, Fort Worth Fire Department officials were investigating a small fire at the attorney general's office in downtown Fort Worth.

The office caught fire after a flammable liquid leaked under the front door, fire investigator Chip Owens said. The building's sprinkler system extinguished the fire before firefighters arrived about 6:03 a.m., he said.

"Main Street? What 'main street' are you talking about? Hobart?" That question was offered — facetiously — to Lyn Moulton, Main Street Project manager, at a recent city commission meeting.

Of course, the main street involved in the project is Cuyler, and more specifically refers to the downtown business area as a center for a program of economic revitalization. But the project is more than that. It also involves improving the appearance of the city, providing more activities for residents, making the center of the city a focus for the community and developing other wide-ranging goals and aims. And, though aimed mainly at the downtown sector, the programs and activities are also designed to benefit the entire community by attracting more area customers to the city and by developing a grea-But I'm not going into all the details on the project. Articles have already been written, and more will come as the program progresses. Instead. I want to write about one of the more important matters involvement and cooperation. Yeah, we've all heard those words thrown at us before, perhaps so many times that we cease to really hear them or to care about them. Despite that, they're still important, significant words which should be heeded if we really expect to accomplish further things in this city. In this generation of "taking care of number one" and "I" too many that will be needed to make the program successful: community of us may have become cynical or indifferent, or have developed the attitude of "let someone else worry about it." They're the same perspectives and attitudes that we accuse others of having when they ignore one of our pet projects. That's fine for hermits and recluses, I guess, not worrying about

But this is a community, and by choosing to live within a city we indicate, in varying degrees, that we want association with others. If not, we could move to one of the many nearby ravines or burrow

So for those of us here in Pampa, perhaps we could become more concerned with the whole of which we are the parts.

And whether it's helping with the Main Street Project, or volunteering to assist various charitable and service organizations, or really aiding the city to become Clean Pampa, or serving the youth and the elderly, or finding any other such programs and opportunities, the work goes much better and much farther if there is cooperation and involvement.

That's not to say we need to join every club and work on every project, spending all our extra time outside of work and family in community projects. We all have our own special interests, and we generally know how best to use our talents and abilities

But even if we're not directly involved in a specific project or campaign or organization, at least surely we can provide our support and encouragement, either vocally or monetarily

And if we're not involved in anything for the betterment of the community, instead preferring to spend every night in front of the TV or at a bar or wherever, then perhaps we ought to look around and see where we could serve. Who knows? We might make some new friends, exercise our abilities or even achieve something of which we can be proud. There's a multitude of opportunities in the city. All we need to do is get up, step outside our houses and look around.

White renews commitment to agricultural research

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) - Gov. Mark White renewed his commitment to agricultural research at Texas A&M University and said during a visit to the campus state budget cutting measures would not affect research or faculty. The state is not going to "eat its seed corn" with cuts in research, the governor said Wednesday. He indicated he had a secret plan to find additional funds for research at the state's universities, but he refused to unveil the plan. White was briefed by A&M officials, including representatives of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station and the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. about innovations in biotechnology, crop and animal production and use of wildlife and timber lands.

At a luncheon following the briefing, White told about 450 people that biotechnology may be the key to the state's need to diversify its economy in cattle raising, Eller said. Gov. White said he didn't mind A&M broadcasting the fruits of their research to Texas farmers and ranchers, primarily through added: "Don't give it to Iowa far-

Chancellor Arthur Hansen told White that A&M has an aggressive program to protect its "intellectual property." One goal of that program, Hansen said, is for the state to receive a higher return on its investment through royalties on patented research.

Getting the facts about immigration

The president's Council of Economic Advisors recently pulled the rug out from under the people determined to counter this country's illegal alien "problem," despite any cost to human freedom.

These persons believe an economic and human cataclysm looms. One far exceeding previous natural disasters and state emergencies.

But look at what the economic advisers found after studying the issue: immigrants, both legal and illegal, provide a "net fiscal benefit" to the nation, "using relatively fewer services and paying relatively more For that, we stand on the brink of social upheaval?

Some people may have a point in complaining about state and federal governments requiring local governments to provide certain services whether the local government wants to or not. That policy should be addressed directly, however, rather than making illegal aliens a scapegoat for ill-considered welfare

Perhaps as important is a perception that immigrants are costly because they add more people to an already too-crowded environment, overburdening public services such as the police departments. That cost, however, is almost impossible to quantify

It is not the business of the federal government to impose sanctions against businesses that employ illegal aliens, although many people recommend that action. The economic advisers' report shoots down that method of controlling illegal immigration as well.

'Restrictions on immigration, like restrictions on trade, are costly," the report says. Although it doesn't list a source, the report estimates it would cost employers $1.6 billion to $2.6 billion a year to screen for illegal aliens. It calls the figures conservative, but even if they aren't, any cost to employers isn't justifi-

The draft report by the economic advisers deals in facts and careful analysis; most opponents of open immigration deal in emotion. The council did a commendable job of analyzing the facts, and showed courage and integrity in making the report public in today's political climate.

At least this once, the Council of Economic Advisters fulfilled what should be its function: to furnish the president with dispassionate economic analysis of the impact of policy proposals. Its final report should be recommended reading for public officials before they jump to legislative conclusions.

'Junior' and the liability crisis

BY RICHARD LESHER

America is awaking to the fact that the liability crisis is for real. But how many have considered how much the crisis could affect us all from cradle to grave?

Or even before the cradle, for that matter.

Early February saw a strike by obstetricians in Boston fed up with rising malpractice insurance rates. And once Junior is born, a number of vaccines, including diptheria-pertussistetanus, may be unavailable because litigationshy manufacturers have stopped making them.

The baby may have been unplanned. G.D. Searle recently was forced to stop selling a safe and medically approved intrauterine birthcontrol device. Searle had never lost a lawsuit, but just defending them was eating up nearly a tenth of the company's income. Junior's cradle itself is bound to be more expensive since lawsuits have abounded over injuries to babies in their beds. He might not be able to get a car seat either.

And who's going to take care of Junior if Mom works? Many day-care centers can't get insur-

As Junior grows up, life may not be as much fun for him. All those neat toys he sees during the cartoons may be off the market after being attacked by consumer safety activists. Skip the carnival. Who can afford the $5 per ticket to cover the insurance for the pony rides?

And forget about peanut butter sandwiches and the Twinkies. They've been battered by suits over allegedly misleading labeling and turning youngsters into "junk-food junkies."

Watching the Super Bowl on TV - or participating in sports himself - is out of the question. Ten of 13 football helmet manufacturers already have been driven out of business by lawsuits over injuries. Mom and Dad had to send the dog to the pound since they couldn't afford the increase in the homeowner's insurance in case he bit somebody.

Depressed by the loss of these privileges - and his dog - Junior goes to discuss his problems with his minister. Sorry, the minister won't do any more spiritual counseling because he's been burned by malpractice suits.

Despite these setbacks, Junior manages to struggle through school, after he signed a release promising not to sue if he didn't learn how to read. But there aren't many new jobs. Those companies that haven't been forced out of business are laying off employees to cover higher. insurance premiums.

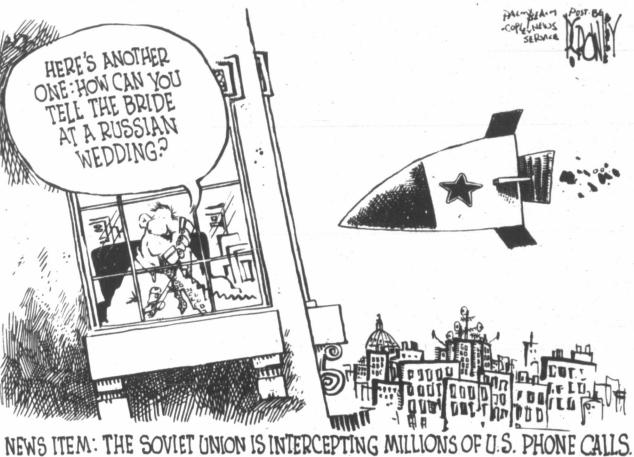

Junior finally finds a job at the clerk of the court's office. They have plenty of work handling their share of the two million lawsuits filed every year.

At a ripe old age, Junior suffers a stroke and is rushed to the hospital. His bill for the 18 hours before he dies is $20,000, largely because the doctors order a battery of extra tests to avoid a malpractice suit. But that's OK. The insurance will pick it up.

(P.S. This modern fable may seem to pass into the realm of fantasy, but the fantastic thing is that every turn of events portrayed is based on a real case or occurrence.)

My mother complains when I go for a long period of time without calling her. She says when I call it makes her sleep better. But I get busy and forget.

That is not uncommon, I suppose, when our parents no longer play the integral roles in our lives they once did.

I was at Point Clear, Ala., recently, speaking to a group of South Central Bell executives. At dinner, some of us were swapping stories about the Bear, Alabama's late, great football coach, Bear Bryant A gentleman who handles the advertising line. He said, 'Call yo' mama,' and then he added, 'I wish I could call mine.

We never would have asked him to do something like that, but it worked out perfectly." One of the Bell executives carried the story

'Soon after the commercial began running," he said, "my secretary came in and said there was a customer on the line that just had to talk to

"I was pretty busy, but I figured if she were being that persistent, I should talk to her.

'When I got her on the phone, she asked, 'Are you the one responsible for the Bear Bryant commercial on television?

"I sort of wanted to ask her how she liked it before I took responsibility for it. But I said, 'Is there any problem?

"She replied, Gracious, no. But I just wanted to tell you a story:

" 'My husband and I were sitting watching television the other night, and we saw that commercial for the first time. We were very moved when Coach Bryant said, "I wish I could call

" 'I got right up and called my own mother, and we chatted for a few minutes. I forget to call her sometimes, and she gets worried about me. "' 'My husband's mother was still alive, too. I asked him why didn't he call his mother, and he went straight to the phone and called her.

" 'They must have talked for 45 minutes. I'd never known him to stay on the line with anybody 45 minutes, much less his mother. They talked about old times, and he told her how much he loved her.

"I said to the woman," the executive continued, "that her story was really heartwarming and I appreciated her passing it on.

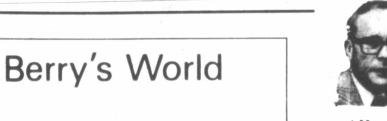

'She said. 'You haven't heard all the story yet. Less than an hour after my husband hung up from talking to his mother, she died. He never would have had that conversation with his mother if it hadn't been for Coach Bryant's commercial.' '

The other guests at the table sat quietly when the man finished the story. Then, a woman spoke out and said, "God, that makes me want to get right up and call my mother.'

It made me feel the same way. It was late when the dinner was over, so I had to wait until the next day to do anything about it. We had a nice talk

Victims of their own success

A Maryland reader has sent along a column by George McGovern in which the former senator notes that various conservative organizations have fallen upon evil times, financially speaking, and rejoices at the thought that his own 1980 defeat may have deprived his tormentors of a profitable target. My correspondent urges me to "set the record straight" by providing "a factual report.

Alas, dear reader, it is all too true McGovern has, for once, stumbled into accuracy - much as a drunken driver will, from time to time, weave into the lane he is supposed to drive in.

"War," Randolph Bourne argued, "is the health of the state." However true that may be, the corollary is certainly true that conflict is the mother's milk of political activism. As publisher of National Review for the past 28 years, I have seen its circulation rise and fall in direct relation to the mood of the conservative movement that provides most of its readership. It rose steadily in the late 1950s and early '60s as conservatives became aware of each other and developed their issues and spokesmen. It peaked with Barry Goldwater's nomination for president in 1964, then slumped as the Nixon administration came along and knocked the wind out of the movement. Conservatives - can you blame them? - just didn't want to read about Spiro Agnew's troubles and the Watergate mess. The 1980s have, of course, revived conservative spirits enormously, but now there is a new problem: With a conservative president in the White House and the liberals in disorderly retreat, the conservative tendency is to brood gloomily over those problems (and there are always plenty of them) that remain unsolved, or even unaddressed. National Review's circulation is relatively high these days, but the old spirit of embattled yet optimistic camaraderie is missing. Much has gone well, but not everything. We disagree among ourselves over the question of Reagan's successor. We are, in a real sense, the victims of our own

Certain conservative organizations - notably those heavily dependent on fund-raising by direct-mail solicitation - are in much deeper trouble for basically the same reason, and it is these that McGovern was chortling over. Direct-mail wizards like Richard Viguerie devoted the 1970s to building huge mailing lists of conservatives by concentrating on specialized causes (anti-abortion, anti-gun control, etc.) and transient issues (e.g. the Panama Canal treaties). They then used these lists to zero in on the Senate's noisiest liberals, and quite a few of them, including McGovern, were carried, feet first, out of the chamber for good in 1980.

Now, in Ronald Reagan's second term, not even Viguerie's loud and persistent criticisms of Reagan, George Bush and many aspects of their administration can flog the old lists into the usual prodigies of moneyraising. Viguerie has put his headquar-ters office building up for sale, sold his magazine, The Conservative Digest, and cut his staff from 200 to 70. In addition, he is being sued for several million dollars by various suppliers and circuit, too, report that the old water holes are drying up. College audiences would do anything to avoid hearing a talk on the successes of Reaganomics or the manifest superiority of SDI to MAD. And while business audiences may agree with us on both issues, they would much rather listen to some expert tell them how to make still more McGovern shouldn't try to take too much credit, though. It wasn't his defeat, but Teddy Kennedy's slow slide into political impotence during the first half of the 1980s, that really tranquilized conservatives. What good is a fire horse without a fire?

The two bills - which promised to be just the first shots in a pitched election-year battle over agriculture - won passage on voice votes late Wednesday

The farm money bill now goes to a House-Senate negotiating committee to work out differences between the two chambers' versions. The farm law modifications go to the House, where similar legislation ran into partisan bickering last week.

Included in the package of farm law changes was a nonbinding statement urging the Reagan administration to make advance crop loans to farmers in time for spring planting season. The amendment was adopted on Such loans would cost farmers only about 8 percent interest, rather than the 13 or 14 percent they otherwise would have to pay, said Sen. Tom Harkin, D-Iowa, the amendment's sponsor.

But it was unlikely the administration would heed the congressional call. Reagan vetoed a similar effort a year ago, and Agriculture Secretary-designate Richard Lyng on Tuesday said the idea was "a violation of my common sense."

The action came only a few hours after the Commodity Credit Corporation, the arm of the Agriculture Department that makes crop loans and subsidy payments, ran out of money to operate its programs.

The agency was expecting a surge in demand for money beginning today, as farmers began signing up for price- and incomesupport programs for their 1986 crops. Under the law, they are eligible for immediate subsidy checks when they sign up, as advances against payments that normally would come after harvest. Money also is needed for a range of other routine programs, including purchases of surplus dairy products to support milk prices at levels set by law.

The House last week passed an emergency $5 billion money bill for the CCC that would keep the agency running at least through the summer. But when the measure reached the Senate, it became snarled in a politically charged debate over the proposed changes in farm policy.

As finally passed by the Senate, the money bill was stripped of House language that conservationists said would have endangered a new and ambitious program designed to take millions of acres of highly erodible land out of cultivation in the next five years. It was unclear whether the House would accept the Senate revision.

The package has become the vehicle for a controversial change in how the budget cuts required by the Gramm-Rudman balanced-budget law will be achieved in the dairy pricesupport program. The large milk cooperatives, which control the industry, want to achieve the savings through an increased fee on all dairy farmers rather than a price-support cut.

Family deluged with offers of help

HOLLANDALE, Wis. (AP) -Ken and Sue Massey say they have been deluged by offers of help since they lost the family farm to foreclosure and they may use donations from caring strangers to establish a trust fund for their children's education.

We felt that the ones who lost the most from the foreclosure were our five children because we had hoped the land would pay for their college educations, Mrs. Massey said Wednesday evening. "We haven't decided about the trust fund, but we're seriously thinking about it." She said the family had been overwhelmed with offers of help, including calls from people offering to buy the 310-acre egg farm from its new owner and give it back to the Masseys.

The family has remained on the farm, which was sold in an auction Tuesday to Raphael Peterson, a feed grain dealer, for

The Masseys drew national attention last September when a letter Mrs. Massey wrote to the popular band Alabama about her family's plight was read by the band's lead singer during the nationally telecast FarmAid benefit concert. She said one of the band members called her Tuesday to express sorrow and concern about the loss of the farm.

Mrs. Massey said she and her husband had not yet spoken with Peterson about his plans for the property, which had been in the Massey family for more than 80 years

Peterson, who had said the Masseys owed him about $65,000, could not be reached Wednesday for comment. Telephone calls to his home went unanswered.

Massey, 34, and his wife, who is 29, have five children ranging in age from 18 months to 10 years.

Mrs. Massey said the family began receiving calls Tuesday afternoon — only hours after the farm was sold — from concerned people across the nation.

She said a caller from Denver offered to buy back the farm from its new owner and give it to the Masseys

Five of the 15 fastest-growing counties over the last five years are in Texas, according to a study by a division of Dun & Bradstreet

The study of counties with populations of over 100,000 by Donnelly Marketing Information Services showed that Fort Bend County, south of Houston, was the second-fastest growing county in the nation, up 50 percent to

The fifth-fastest-growing county was Montgomery County, north of Houston, up 32.3 percent to 169,939; sixth was Collin County, north of Dallas, up 31 percent to 189,480; 11th was Ector County (Odessa), up 29.4 percent to 149,318; and 14th was Hidalgo County, in the Edinburg-McAllen area, up 26 percent to 355,582, the

The study credited the oil boom the late 1970s and relatively deressed economic conditions in Mexico for heavy migration into

'We're still experiencing growth, but the growth has stabilized," said Harvey Muegge, executive vice president of the Rosenberg-Richmond Area Chamber of Commerce in Fort

Bend County. Muegge said housing development in the county has drawn Houston residents in recent years, but the decline in Houston's oil- and gas-based economy has caused Fort Bend County development to slow. Gwinnet County, Georgia, in suburban Atlanta, was the nation's fastest growing county and Michigan had five of the counties with the greatest population loss, according to the study, which indicated that Texas, Georgia and Florida had seven of the 10 fastest-growing counties from 1980

Gwinnett County grew 50.4 percent, to 251,025 from 166,903. Gwinnett was followed in the top five by Fort Bend County; Anchorage County, Alaska, up 40 percent to 243,836; Marion County. Fla., up 35 percent to 165,367; and Montgomery County.

The other 10 fastest growing counties were Collin; Seminole County, Fla., near metropolitan Orlando, up 31 percent to 234,772; Arapahoe County, Colorado, by Denver, up 30.4 percent to 384,887; St. Tammany Parish, La., New Orleans, up 30 percent to 143,961; Lee County, Fla., up 30 percent to 266,058; Ector County; Brevard County, Fla., up 27 percent to 345,633; Horry County, S.C., up 26 percent to 127,586; Hidalgo County; and Palm Beach County, Fla., up 25.4 percent to

The study indicated the U.S. population increased by 5.7 percent, or 12.8 million, to 239,355,858 from 1980 to 1985

The population estimates 'further underscore the dramatic population gains" in Sun Belt states in the last five years, said Joseph W. Duncan, chief statistician and economist for Dun & Bradstreet.

Duncan said Sun Belt growth has slowed recently and the Midwest and Northeast have begun to grow because of increased economic activity The counties with the most rapid population declines were led by Wayne County, Michigan, in the Detroit area, which fell 8 percent to 2.15 million from 2.34

Other Michigan counties in the top 15 were Berrien County, down 5.9 percent to 161,227; Jackson County, down 5 percent to 143,978; Saginaw County, down 4.7 percent to 217,277; and Genesee County, down 4.3 percent to 430,972;

Also among the top 15 shrinking counties were St. Louis City, Mo., down 6.5 percent to 423,632; St. Louis County, Minn., down 5.1 percent to 210,894; Delaware County, Ind., down 4.8 percent to 122,414; Madison County, Ind.,

Keagan says next Soviet summit must be in U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, trying to hold the Kremlin to a promised summit date this year, warns he will not go to Moscow for superpower talks until Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev first comes to Washington.

Reagan said Wednesday the United States is "still sticking to the early summer" for the date of the summit because anything later would be too close to the congressional elections in November.

'We've explained this to them - that this would be kind of complicated and heavy duty for us to try and combine the two things. Reagan said in an interview. The Associated Press was not present at the interview, but several sources who attended provided milar accounts of the presient's remarks.

Asked if chances for a summit were imperiled by the failure to set a date, Reagan replied, "If it does slip through our fingers, I've got news for them: there won't be an '87 summit in Moscow."

eagan expected to seek new shuttle, unmanned rockets

WASHINGTON (AP) - Reagan administration officials are preparing a multi-billion-dollar request for Congress to replace the lost Challenger and to build unmanned rockets to help launch satellites held Earth-bound by the grounded shuttle fleet, congressional and administration $4 billion. sources say.

These sources, who spoke Wednesday only on condition of anonymity, said the overall price tag for the space shuttle, related equipment and at least 10 new Titan rockets could be as much as It was not clear whether the proposal would seek the full amount immediately or spread the request over several years; one administration official said whether to include some smaller proposals was still being de-

The sources said an interagency task force is expected to present the proposal to President Reagan within the next several days, and decisions on the package are still subject to change.

The administration is under pressure from some members of Congress to move quickly on the proposal, which would represent a comprehensive response to the Jan. 28 accident that destroyed the Challenger and killed its seven-member crew.

Despite continuing support for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration from members of the House and Senate who oversee its program and budget, congressional officials also predicted that any multibillion dollar request from the administration would encounter opposition in the current, economy-minded Congress.

A request for $4 billion in the current fiscal year, for example, would come in the wake of $11.7 billion in cuts that the Gramm-Rudman budget-balancing law forced in domestic and military programs. Those cuts took effect March 1.

Work on an urgent supplemental budget request is proceeding as administration officials also search for a full-time NASA administrator.

Congressional officials said they believed an announcement could be made before the end of the week, and former Administrator James C. Fletcher remains the leading candidate. But administration officials say they are puzzled by recent statements by Fletcher that he is not interested in the post. Fletcher also has criticized acting administrator William Graham and the presidential commission investigating the shuttle acci-

The supplemental spending request is expected to call for construction of a new orbiter at a cost of roughly $2.2 billion to replace Challenger.

Replacement of a communications satellite that the Challenger was carrying, as well as a special mechanical arm, spacesuits and other equipment on board, will add an estimated $600 million to the price tag, sources said.

In addition, the administration will be forced to seek financing to maintain a ground communication system that the lost communications satellite was designed to replace, one source said.

The remaining three shuttles have been barred from flying until the cause of the Challenger accident is found and remedied, and most officials believe that will take between one and two

Study links Vietnam service with suicide

BOSTON (AP) - A study suggesting that Vietnam-era veterans are more likely to commit suicide than those who didn't serve means authorities should weigh all the costs involved in military conscription, the author

"The casualties of forced military service may not be limited to those that are counted on the battlefield," researchers wrote in a study published today in the New England Journal of Medicine.

It concludes that Vietnam-era veterans were 86 percent more likely than non-veterans to die of suicide in the years after the war, and were 53 percent more likely to die in traffic accidents.

The study "indicates that before sending young men to war, especially one in which they may have experiences similar to those of Vietnam veterans, those who make the decision should weigh all the costs," the researchers

The researchers said their work shows a cause-and-effect relationship between military service in Vietnam and the elevated suicide risk.

"I think it demonstrates the experience of being drafted during the Vietnam era had profound, long-term psychological effects on people," said Dr. Norman Hearst of the University of California, San Francisco.

Several reports have noted a variety of problems — including marital difficulties, legal problems and depression — among Vietnam-era veterans.

But some experts argue that those who went to Vietnam were poorer and less educated than young men who avoided the war, and they would have had more problems later in life, regardless of their military service.

In an editorial accompanying the study, Dr. Lawrence C. Kolb of Glenmont, N.Y., called the analysis "ingenious" and said it "demonstrates the long-term excessive mortality of men who served in the military during the Vietnam War."

He said many veterans suffer from a condition called posttraumatic stress disorder, and that physicians should work harder to spot the symptoms.

The new study was based on a review of death records of men in Pennsylvania and California who were born between 1950 and 1952. In the three-year period from 1970 through 1972, the military lottery randomly assigned these men on the basis of their birth dates into two groups - those with low lottery numbers who were eligible for the draft and those with high numbers who were exempt.

The researchers noted that the two groups were identical except for their draft status. So any differences between them in later years must be caused by the draft, they said.

Mortgage refinancings soar as interest rates decline

NEW YORK (AP) - As interest financing. rates for some home mortgages fall to single-digit levels for the first time in 71/2 years, homeowners are flocking to cut their payments by refinancing mortgages at the lower rates.

Some lenders report a tripling of inquiries and requests for refinancing, as well as a surge in home buying, all sparked by the sharp fall in interest rates on traditional fixed-rate mortgages.

"We've had craziness here like everyone else," said Charlie Ferraro, an assistant vice president for mortgage marketing at Bank of New England in Boston, which is offering 30-year and 15-year fixed rate mortgages at below 10 percent

Although individual cases vary because of differing fees charged by lenders for loans, the savings from refinancing can be substan-

For example, someone holding a 30-year, fixed rate mortgage for $80,000 at 13 percent would pay $884.96 a month. Refinancing the entire amount at 10 percent would cut payments to $702.06, a savings of $182.90 a month.

Assuming closing costs for the refinancing totaled 4 percent, or $3,200, the homeowner could recoup the expense of refinancing in about a year and a half.

The initial rate on adjustablerate mortgages, which usually are offered at two or more percentage points below fixed-rate loans, has a aged less than 10 percent since June, according to the weekly national survey of 1,500 lenders by HSH Associates, a financial publishing firm in Riverdale, N.J.

But interest on fixed-rate mortgages had not come back down to single digits until the last several months, when some mortgage bankers and lending companies in scattered areas began offering rates below 10 percent.

It has been the widespread move below 10 percent that has sparked recent interest in re-

"There's a big difference between 10% and 9%," said Ronald F. Poe, president of the Mortgage

"There's bigger than a quarterpoint difference psychologically. I think 10 was really the magic The Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corp. said that in the week ended Feb. 28 the national avermortgage on a new home was 10.51 percent. However, a spot check of mortgage companies, banks and thrift institutions in various parts of the country found fixed rate mortgages below 10 percent widely available. "The trigger for considering a refinancing is normally that the current mortgage rate should fall 2 percent below your existing rate," said Poe. "That just qualifies darn near everyone who has taken out a mortgage in the 1980s to consider refinancing.

Lenders say mortgage holders also have to take into consideration how long it will take for lower monthly payyments to recoup the fees involved in taking out a new

"It's not going to make a heck of a lot of difference if they're at 11 and we're down to 10.5," said George Lopez, a loan representative at Heartland Mortgage of Whittier, Calif., which this week was offering sub-10 percent mortgages. "Many times I go in and tell them it's not worth it to refinance."

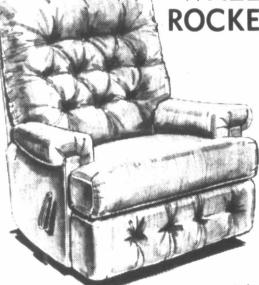

The drop in mortgage rates stems from a torrid rally in the bond markets, where investor optimism that the tailspin in oil prices will keep inflation subdued in 1986 has pushed the yields on long-term government bonds to eight-year lows.

The sharp fall in open-market interest rates lowers the interest that financial institutions pay on deposits and money they borrow.

Gorbachev announces appointments to party Politburo, Secretariat

MOSCOW (AP) — Mikhail S. Gorbachev added another full member to the ruling Politburo today and named Anatoly Dobrynin, the Soviet Union's longserving ambassador to Washington, to the party organization that runs day-to-day Soviet affairs.

Gorbachev, the Communist Party general secretary, also eliminated a pair of candidate members of the Politburo who had been appointed by former President Leonid I. Brezhnev -81-year-old Boris N. Ponomarev and 85-year-old Vasily Kuznetsov

Two other hold-overs from the Brezhnev era kept their positions as full members of the Politburo. The Ukrainian party boss, Vladimir V. Shcherbitsky, 68, and the party chief in Kazakhstan, Dinmukhamed A. Kunaev, 74 had been thought in some danger of losing their seats on the policymaking body, but were retained.

Elevated directly to full Politburo membership was Lev. N. Zaikov, who was made a member of the party Central Committee's Secretariat in July, and is believed to have overseen heavy industry, including defense-related roduction. His promotion expanded the number of full, voting members of the Politburo to 12.

Two new candidate, non-voting members of the supreme party body were also named in the new leadership list, read by Gorbachev and broadcast live on Soviet television. They are Yuri F. Solovyev, head of the Communist Party in Leningrad, and Nikolai Slyunkov, head of the party in Byelorussia.

There was no word what responsibilities Dobrynin would assume on the Secretariat, which handles day-to-day Soviet affairs. However, his long experience in the United States can now be tapped by Gorbachev in Moscow to help formulate policy toward Washington.

The 66-year-old diplomat, ambassador to Washington since 1961, first served as a counselor. then as a minister-counselor at the Soviet Embassy in Washington from 1952-55, and has been assistant minister of foreign affairs, a U.N. undersecretarygeneral and the head of the American department of the Soviet Foreign Ministry

Solarz meets with Mrs. Aquino, to help recover Marcos wealth

MANILA, Philippines (AP) -U.S. Rep. Stephen Solarz met today with President Corazon Aguino and pledged support for her government's efforts to recover billions of dollars allegedly plundered by Ferdinand E.

Answering questions from journalists after his hour-long meeting with Mrs. Aquino, the New York Democrat said he told her: "I intend to do anything I can to facilitate the recovery of these assets."

Solarz, chairman of the House of Representatives subcommittee on Asian affairs, arrived in the Philippines late Tuesday to sound out Mrs. Aquino and other officials on the amount and type of assistance her government needs from the United States.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Aquino's executive secretary, Joker Arroyo, told a news briefing that resistance to Mrs. Aquino from key national officials appointed by Marcos during his 20-year rule was crumbling, with nearly all members of the Supreme Court and the entire Commission on Elections handing in their resignations.

Solarz said he handed Mrs. Aquino a letter from House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, D-Mass., inviting her to visit the United States and address a joint session of Congress later this

In addition to Mrs. Aquino, Solarz said he met today with former Sen. Jovito Salonga, who heads an official commission assigned to find ways to recover any of Marcos' ill-gotten wealth. Salonga has estimated that the total assets of Marcos, his family and associates is between $5 billion and $10 billion. Marcos received an annual salary of about $4,700, and says that his other assets came from a lucrative law practice before he became president.

State Department officials in Washington said Wednesday they will give Mrs. Aquino's government a list of most of the cash, jewels and documents taken from Manila in 300 crates by Marcos when he fled the country on Feb. 26.

At his briefing, Arroyo said Wednesday's release of two former leaders and two members of the communist insurgency demonstrated a "healthy working relation" between Mrs. Aquino's government and the Philippine Jose Maria Sison, 47, who was set free Wednesday after more than eight years in prison, met later with reporters and said for the first time that he founded the Communist Party in 1968, and led it until he was captured.

He had refused to confirm that throughout his detention.

He said Mrs. Aquino's decision to free political prisoners held by the government of Ferdinand E. Marcos would go "a long way in creating an atmosphere of national reconciliation." But Sison said the gesture probably would not bring immediate surrender of the insurgents, whose strength the military now estimates at about 12,500

ABWA plans 1986 Enrollment Event

Pampa charter chapter of the American Business Women's Association (ABWA) are making plans for their 1986 Enrollment Event om 2 p.m. to 4 p.m., Sunday, in the Energas Flame Room, 220 N. Ballard, announced Alice Parker, chapter president.

Theme for this year's event is to be "Shop ABWA" with the focus on personal and professional growth opportunities for women employed in all aspects and on all levels of business.

club, but it has features of both types of organizations. ABWA is an association devoted to advancing women in business through educational seminars, development of individual skills and leadership, increasing knowledge of latest business techniques and improving business relationships.

At spring conferences and national conventions, ABWA members share the excitement and challenges of working women. This year, the spring conference is to be in Lubbock, April 4-6, and the national convention is set for Oct. 22-26 in Kansas City, Mo.

ABWA headquarters are lo-cated in Kansas City, Mo. The organization was founded in 1949. More than 112,000 chapters are located in the United States and Puerto Rico. In 1985, ABWA chapters awared $2.75 million in scholarships to recipients pursuing further knowledge in colleges, universities, vocational and technical schools. Nationally $430,000 was awarded in educational grants and loans.

Enrollment Event committee members include Bessie Franklin, chairman; Ellen Malone, Charlotte Cooper, and Babe Mastin. To illustrate the theme, they are planning a floral arrangement with ABWA benefits and advantages written on the flower petals and buds, traces of greenery and the chapter's flower, white carnations, arranged in a shopping sack.

All women who are employed are eligible for membership in ABWA. For further information about Pampa charter chapter of ABWA and this special enrollment event, interested business women may call Babe Mastin, membership chairman, after 7 p.m. at 665-2665 or 669-7514.

They take a piggyback ride on "big brother's" shoulders, help bake bread, measure the rain, climb on "grandmother's" lap, examine a spider. Life at The Kids' Place is as old-fashioned as pinafores and tin soldiers.

This day-care center at Whitman College was created from scratch by a few parents in search of "normal" lives for their children. In spite of an age in which mom's career likely allows little time for bread baking, and grandmother probably lives in another state, the 49 preschool patrons of The Kids' Place get lots of love and attention. And they enjoy a variety of imaginative activities.

Resources of the college, as well as nearby facilities of this small, southeastern Washington community, provide opportunities not available to most daycare centers.

Big brothers — really fraternity men from across the street come every day to help build great cities of colored blocks, show which piece of the puzzle fits, or serve as an airplane to ride on. Residents of a senior citizens' home a few blocks away, standing in for grandparents, are ready with soft laps, hugs and stories during regular visits from

In the college planetarium, the children take imaginary journeys to the stars. They explore a wild world of small animals and birds in the Whitman Museum of Natural History, and bake clay sculptures in the kiln of a community art center.

A drama professor donates time each week to help nourish creative skills and build confidence through dance. Student volunteers help out, and in return take advantage of a real-life laboratory to explore such topics as early language development or aggression among children.

Although open to any child in the community, The Kids' Place was founded by staff and faculty members at Whitman who wanted their children close by during the work day.

'We were looking for smallness, a sense of family, togetherness," said Kathy Ketchum, who gave months of her time to the project. "So many people don't understand the guilt you suffer as a parent. DEAR ABBY: Please lay off your aware that such a profession (medione-woman crusade to make waiters cal record administrator/health inand waitresses filthy rich. Now you come out with the ridiculous statement that if you don't leave at least 8 percent of the bill, you are cheating the waitperson! You haven't convinced me that they are living on the verge of starvation. I've heard of a Philadelphia waitress who racked up $80 in tips in one night, and a waiter in the Washington, D.C., area who averages $45 to $50 an hour in tips!

Anyone who pays $14 for fish and fries for two and leaves a $2 or $3 tip yet needs to have his head examined. This hoax you're perpetrating about the "poor" waitress has just

DEAR FED UP: You are misinformed and sadly mistaken. I've never known a "filthy rich" waiter or waitress, but I've known a few who were lucky to break even.

With your attitude, please do them all a favor and restrict your dining out to fast-food places where you serve yourself. Or have a pizza delivered to your door. On second thought, forget the pizza; you may have to tip the driver.

Special Olympics team wins trophy at state tournament

While most basketball fans have been reading about and watching the state high school tournaments for the past two weeks, a tournament of another kind went almost unnoticed. It was the Texas Special Olympics Basketball Tournament held in Waco and two of the teams representing Pampa wre the Baker Bouncers and the Pampa Bulls.

"Special Olympics teams are ranked depending on age and skill levels." said Phil Hill, who coached the Bouncers. "Both of our teams found themselves in tougher brackets than where they should have been placed, but both played like true champions.

The Bouncers have a junior level team, but were placed in the senior division. After placing third in the area tournament in Amarillo, Hall said the Bouncers were shooting for no worse than a third-place finish at the state meet.

The Bouncers lost their first game, 26-4, to the Midland Angels, but came back to edge Denton, 20-15, to earn a team trophy and individual medals.

In four games, area and state combined, the Bouncers were paced by Melanie Holtman, 20 points; Liberty Bloxom, 19; Hector Estrada, 12, and Randy Swires, 6. Rounding out the starters was defensive star Raul

Hall said he would like to thank Sandra Owen, Donna Stump, Staci Hall, David Swires, Harvester player Terry Jeffery and everyone who helped prepare the Bouncers for the tournament.

Bradley win streak halted

By the Associated Press

When the nation' longest winning streak in the nation came to an end, Bradley Coach Dick Versace found reason to be proud.

'I am proud to be associated with a team that has tasted defeat only twice this season," he said.

The ninth-ranked Braves lost 74-58 to Tulsa on Wednesday night in the championship game of the Missouri Valley Conference tournament, giving the MVC's automatic NCAA berth to the Hurricane. Forwards Brian Rahilly and David Moss had 22 points apiece for the Hurricane.

With the best record in the nation at 31-2 and, until Wednesday night, the country's longest Division I winning streak of 22 games, Bradley also was expected to be picked for the 64-team tournament field.

In the only other game involving ranked teams, No. 16 Indiana defeated 17th-rated Michigan State 97-79.

Bradley's loss, its first since Dec. 28 against Clemson, came at Tulsa, and Versace said the crowd of 6,300, primarily Hurricane fans, played a role.

'We had three games in three days, and we needed the adrenalin boost from the crowd," Versace said, "and of course we didn't have that today."

Bradley trailed by 10 or more points most of the second half until pulling within 50-42 with 13:25 left. At that point, Tulsa outscored Bradley 14-3 to take a 64-45 lead with 4:15 to play.

Tulsa Coach J.D. Barnett

Indiana took a half-game lead over idle Michigan and eliminated Michigan State from the Big Ten race. Steve Alford had 31 points and freshman Ricky Calloway added 19 for the Hoosiers, 13-4 in the Big Ten and 21-6 overall.

Scott Skiles scored 33 points and became Michigan State's alltime leading scorer, needing 21 points going into the game to break the old mark of 2,014 by Greg Kelser. The Spartans dropped to 11-6 in the conference.

"The game was kind of the way I thought it would be," Indiana Coach Bob Knight said. "It was an offensive game more than anything else. I knew they would score, so I just told our kids they would have to score also and not get knocked out of the box."

In some other conference tournaments:

Big East

Coaches ousted

SAN MARCOS, Texas (AP) — The Southwest Texas State University men's basketball coach has been fired and the women's basketball coach has resigned, according to Bobcat Athletic Director Bill Miller.

Miller told women's coach Dennis McNelis on Wednesday that his contract, which expires Aug. 31, wouldn't be renewed and asked for his resignation. McNelis submitted it.

Men's coach Celester Collier, who was given the same option on Tuesday, had refused to resign.

Miller said he took the action largely because of poor conference records compiled by the coaches. The men are 1-9 in the Gulf Star Conference, 6-21 overall. The women finished the season 2-8 and 10-18.

"I feel we should be able to beat any conference team on any given night. We've got this new facility (Strahan Coliseum), and we haven't produced — no crowds and no wins." Miller said. Collier said he wasn't given a fair chance. "I was shocked," said Collier, a former Southwest Texas player and San Marcos High coach who was promoted from assistant two years ago.

"He only gave us one recruiting class. Rome wasn't built in a day. I'll never know whether we could have turned it around or not,' Collier said.

Collier compiled a 12-41 record in two seasons at Southwest Texas. He was 54-16 in two years at San Marcos High.

McNelis, a former Florida State assistant who in his first year coached the Southwest Texas women to a share of the Lone Star Conference championship, was 36-54 in three years at Southwest Texas.

A search committee will seek replacements with collegiate head coaching experience, Miller said. He said he hopes to fill both jobs by April 1.

"He's a little better hitter and has more knowledge about the American League pitchers and hitters," Brewers General Manager Harry Dalton said in assessing Cerone.

He added that the trade opened up the designated hitter position on the Brewer roster, especially for Cecil Cooper, the first baseman coming back from elbow surgery.

"I thought we definitely could have fielded the ball better and hit the ball better but I enjoyed watching the Puerto Rican connection (Jose Guzman and Correa), Bobby Witt, Rich Surhoff, Don Welchel and Mickey Mahler."

Correa worked two perfect innings, striking out two. Surhoff and Henry eached had twoinning, one-hit stints. Mahler went two without allowing a baserunner.

The only pitcher who really struggled was Lachowicz, who worked an inning for each team and gave up two hits and walked

Darrell Porter's double off Dave Rozema was the only extrabase hit.

Other highlights included rookie rightfielder Pete Incaviglia throwing Pete O'Brien out at third when he tagged up and tried to advance on a fly to right and solid defensive plays by shortstops Curtis Wilkerson and Scott

Larry Parrish's left knee, tender after he twisted it Tuesday, kept him from playing third base but he was the designated hitter for Howe's club and had an interesting jaunt around the bases on two over-throws.

As the price of crude oil in world markets has plummeted from the $32per-barrel range in late November to as low as $12, the posted price for Kern River crude in recent days has hovered iust above $11 per barrel.

"When you've got production costs of $12 a barrel and you're getting $11, that's an uneconomic situation,' Robert B. Livesay, manager of operations for Texaco USA's Los Angeles operations division, said Wednesday.

The 1,500 wells are Texaco's smallest producers, representing about one-third of the firm's wells in the Kern River field and about 10,000 barrels of crude per day, the company said.
