Blast scheduled despite protests

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Officials said a foray by Greenpeace members onto the Nevada Test Site had little chance of interfering with a nuclear weapons test scheduled today, a test Sen. Edward Kennedy said could perpetuate the arms race.

Nine protesters entered the sprawling test range Thursday, according to the activist group.

Greenpeace spokeswoman Kate Karam said the six protesters who remained Monday were arrested in the Yucca Flats area and taken to jail in Beatty.

"There is virtually no likelihood they will interrupt any activities on the test site," said Energy Department spokesman Dave Miller.

"This has about as much substance as a hot air balloon," he said.

U.S. officials have refused to discuss the purpose of today's test, which coincides with a meeting between President Reagan and Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin.

The Soviet Union has maintained a unilateral test moratorium, and the U.S. decision to continue nuclear testing has become a major issue between the two nations.

The Reagan administration says the Soviets imposed the moratorium because they had completed their own tests; Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev has said the Soviets will resume testing if the United States does not join the ban.

In an interview on the "Today" show, Kennedy said that moving ahead with today's test could lead to further testing by the Soviets and a continuation of the arms race.

"So, we should say now: Let us halt, stop the testing," the Massachusetts Democrat said today.

"We are not doing that if we just go ahead in a unilateral way with testing," he said. "And that, I don't believe, is in our national security interest and, certainly, it will not help us try to halt the arms race. This is the most important opportunity to stop the arms race and we should not let it go by."

He said there were ways of checking reliability without testing weapons, and there have been improvements in the United States' ability to detect what the Soviets are doing.

U.S. officials have declined to discuss the purpose of today's test. Stan Norris, a research associate with the Natural Resources Defense Council, a private environmental group based in Washington, said last week it appeared likely it was a test known as Mighty Oak.

Talks' failure helps chances of Contra aid

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) — The breakdown in Central American peace talks probably dealt a crippling blow to hopes by congressional opponents to defeat President Reagan's plan to send $100 million in aid to the Contra rebels.

Negotiations among 13 Latin American foreign ministers collapsed Monday as Nicaragua's three neighboring countries accused the leftist Sandinista government of blocking all attempts to reach an accord.

But Nicaragua's foreign minister blamed the United States for pressuring Costa Rica, Honduras and El Salvador to back away from an earlier agreement containing a sharp renunciation of Reagan administration policies.

Nicaragua has previously accused the Reagan administration of trying to sabotage the Contadora peace process, begun in January 1983 by Colombia, Mexico, Panama and Venezuela to negotiate a regional non-aggression pact.

The meeting, which began Saturday and ran an extra day, brought together the foreign ministers of Argentina, Brazil, Peru and Uruguay, who support the Contadora effort, and the five Central American nations, Costa Rica, El Salvador, Guatemala, Honduras and Nicaragua.

Whoever was to blame for the stormy breakdown, one thing was clear: the latest round of talks had failed, and with them almost any lingering hope of congressional opponents for defeating Reagan's bid to help the Nicaraguan rebels, known as Contras.

The mostly Democratic House last month narrowly rejected the president's plan to give $100 million in military hardware and other aid to the Contras, but will reconsider the matter April 15. The Republican-dominated Senate approved the proposal on March 27.

Rep. Bill Richardson of New Mexico, one of three Democrats in Panama City to observe the negotiations, said the breakdown in the talks was a strong setback.

"Realistically, if these talks break down, the vote on Contra aid is lost" to supporters of the Reagan proposal, Richardson said.

Richardson spoke as he and colleagues Michael Barnes of Maryland and Jim Slattery of Kansas prepared to return to Washington. A few hours later, the talks broke off.

The congressmen had come to Panama at the request of House Speaker Thomas P. "Tip" O'Neill, who led the earlier, successful fight against Reagan's plan. They arrived Saturday night full of hope.

They left dejected Monday. "I'm much more pessimistic," Richardson said on departing. His colleagues nodded agreement.

All three insisted that the regional peace talks were still the best hope of avoiding a wider war in Central America.

Baseball really America's game for oldtime fans

EDITOR'S NOTE — On the opening day of the baseball season, fans in five cities reminisced about opening days past with Associated Press reporters.

By ROBERT BARR
Associated Press Writer

Opening day. A day to savor the promise of summer and the glories of pennant races past. A day that some fans haven't missed in decades.

"What a day! What a great day!" 75-year-old Edward Solomon exclaimed Monday as he leaned against his 25-year-old grandson who flew in from New York City for the opener at Tiger Stadium in Detroit.

"Baseball is my game, my sport," said Billie Burke, 70, who was attending her 36th opener in Chicago. "I can't wait until March comes and spring training starts."

"Opening day is like the beginning of a new year," said George Meyerson, 66, who was out at Dodger Stadium in Los Angeles with his brother Harry, 79.

Baseball began for real Monday with five games around the country and ceremonial pitches by President Reagan in Baltimore. The Cleveland Indians beat the Baltimore Orioles 6-4, the Cincinnati Reds beat the Philadelphia Phillies 7-4, Detroit edged the Boston Red Sox 6-5, the Milwaukee Brewers took the Chicago White Sox 5-3 and the Dodgers nipped the San Diego Padres 2-1.

Reagan, 75, had hazy sunshine and temperatures in the 70s for his two-pitch stint on Baltimore's fragrant, fresh-cut grass, and warm weather at all the parks set up the day that tens of thousands had anticipated so keenly.

"After Jan. 1 of every year, I can't wait," said Danny Wanner, 69, of Aberdeen, Md., who has occupied the same seat behind home plate at 33 Baltimore openers. As a boy in Pennsylvania, he cheered the Reading Keystones of the old International League, when the Orioles were a minor league outfit.

Wanner fondly remembered an O's pitcher who roomed at his parents' house when the team visited. "Andy Chambers, when they had a night game, I'd always go with him, and he'd take me in through the visitors' gate," he said.

Pearl Ackerman, a widow who turned 71 Friday, attended her 51st consecutive Reds opener Monday, starting with the 1935 game. She said she has attended an average of 60 Reds games per season for the last 40 years.

White Deer studies fire building needs

By CATHY SPAULDING

WHITE DEER — Faced with a sagging ceiling and crowded conditions, White Deer Fire Department volunteers are asking the city to help them remodel and enlarge the fire station or to move into a new one.

White Deer VFD fire chief Virgil James and other representatives met with the city council Monday night to find out which proposal would be the most feasible and economical. There are three options: to enlarge and remodel the current fire station on Omohundro street near U.S. 60, to move into another building or to build a new one.

At an earlier meeting, James reported that the garage has settled and that the ceiling is sagging and that the garage door couldn't be opened without breaking off some of the sheetrock.

Mayor R.W. Standerfer said Monday that while the city has been able to lower its tax rate three cents per $100 valuation last year and its gas rate 50 cents per thousand cubic feet, there are several other obligations the city must meet. He listed such obligations as paying for a dumpster service, owing Merchantile National Bank for 1963 sewer bonds and 1973 gas bonds and the local First Bank and Trust for its gas well. That totals $7,135 of obligations per month, or $85,623 obligations per year.

"Sometimes it is better to be cautious," he said. "Then we don't have to undo anything."

City officials discussed a building near Grimes Street that the fire department could move into for about $45,000. But the White Deer-Skellytown School District is also reportedly interested in the building.

"But now they cannot afford it with decreasing revenues," Standerfer said.

James said the fire department could build a new station and said there are available lots across the street from the First Baptist Church.

"You're talking about a good size building," Standerfer said. "It would have to be engineered and a certified architect would have to put a seal on it."

"He added that he doesn't feel a builder would touch such a project for less than $65,000.

Council member Dean Wyatt said that builders might go for a lower price, "with the economy the way it is."

Council member Raymond Blodgett suggested that the city go ahead and draw up specifications for a new building and seek bids, just to see how much one would cost.

"You wouldn't have to accept any of them," he said.

"If we go with a new building, what would we do with the old building," Standerfer wondered.

The council formed a committee to look into the various options for the fire department. They are expected to meet Tuesday after the city council opens bid on a city road resurfacing project.

In other business, city council members considered a proposal to prohibit soliciting after 6 p.m. Council members are responding to citizens who have complained about a group of college age kids from such states as Massachusetts, New York and Arizona who are coming by their

Auditorium board ponders purchases

By LARRY HOLLIS
Staff Writer

Members of the M. K. Brown Auditorium Advisory Board discussed proposed purchases for new stage curtains and a portable sound system during their regular meeting at 5 p.m. Monday.

Auditorium Manager Danny Parkerson said staff members had been studying cost estimates for the purchase of a cyclorama (cye) curtain and a scrim curtain for use in the stage area.

But the purchase will have to wait until the next budget year, he told board members.

Board member Kayla Richerson explained that the cye curtain would form a backdrop for the stage, hanging in front of the back wall. It could serve, for example, as a sky in the scenic background, or it could take on different colors from the lights or even be used with slides to project scenery on, she said.

A scrim curtain, made of white or natural muslin, would be a special effect material, she said. Hung near the front of the stage, scenes could be lighted from behind the curtain to suggest a dream sequence, for example, she noted.

Board member Mary Wilson said the scrim curtain would be very effective for use in ballet and other dance performances.

Parkerson said Texas Scenic representatives had been by to check the stage and give cost estimates. Richerson said she would be checking with users of both types of curtains to get recommendations.

Parkerson said proposals are under study for the purchase of a portable sound system to use in the auditorium and in the Heritage Room.

The current in-house system is designed more for speakers and similar programs but is not very good for use with many entertainment programs, he said. The auditorium or program presenters have been having to rent a sound system for such programs, he noted.

He said $5,000 has been budgeted this fiscal year for the purchase of the portable sound system, but initial estimates indicate it may cost more. If additional studies reveal a higher cost than budgeted, the sound system purchase also may be pushed over into the next budget year, he said.

In other matters, Parkerson said there has been no definite commitment for construction of the marquee sign at the auditorium. Under the contract terms, the contractor has 90 days in which to gain the advertising for the sign. If the advertising spaces are not sold in that period, then the contractor is released from having to build the sign, he ex-

"A lot of them are hitting houses at night," city secretary Paulette Craig said, adding that the company, Media Techniques of Long Beach, Calif., has obtained a city permit for 25 of its co-ed representatives to sell within the city.

Still, some of the sales representatives, who often use high pressure methods, have been reported to city marshal Tam Terry or Carson County Deputy Sheriff Warren Hart.

"We have enough of that soliciting done locally without somebody from far off Padre Island coming in," said council member Loyd Collis.

Standefer agreed, "I'm not going to buy from any door-to-door people unless I know them." But he reminded council members that Green River Ordinances, local laws prohibiting travelling salesmen, are illegal.

"But, where's the boundary," he said.

Wyatt suggested prohibiting solicitation after 6 or 7 p.m.

ming pool season ticket price of $28. Several season ticket holders had complained that the pool was shut down on Saturdays. The council justified the Saturday closing by noting that the fewest people use the pool on Saturdays and that the pool needs to close once a week for maintenance and cleaning.

Oil prices fall back after gain

NEW YORK (AP)—Oil futures price, fell back by more than a dollar in morning trading today, erasing a good part of Monday's hefty gains, which came as traders foresaw a cutback in world oil supplies caused by a strike in Norway.

On the New York Mercantile Exchange, contracts for May delivery of West Texas Intermediate, the benchmark U.S. crude, were selling at $13.00 a 42-gallon barrel. That was down from Monday's $14.33 close, but still higher than Friday's $12.74 settlement and last Tuesday's low of $9.75.

May contracts for refined products were also down. Unleaded gasoline was selling at 43.10 cents a gallon, down from Monday's 45-

"We ought to notify the people when they get their season tickets that the pool will be closed on Saturdays," Wyatt said.

Council members also voted to raise the fee for building permits from $5 to $10.

Analysts had suggested that Monday's rally would be temporary.

Caterers who service Norway's North Sea rigs went on strike Sunday, shutting down that country's entire offshore output.

Since the loss of that oil would significantly reduce the world surplus, estimated at somewhere between 1.5 and 3 million barrels a day, traders rushed into the London and New York markets.

President signs law making cigarette taxes permanent

WASHINGTON (AP)— President Reagan signed into law a measure that makes permanent the 16-cent-a-pack federal cigarette tax and sends billions of dollars of offshore oil revenue to the federal government and coastal states.

The legislation, a complex package designed to cut deficits by $18 billion over the next three years, was signed by Reagan Monday soon after he returned from watching part of the opening-day baseball game in Baltimore, the White House announced.

The bill was an outgrowth of the fiscal 1986 budget debate, designed to meet some of the deficit-cutting goals. However, the final version was expanded to include language making permanent a 21-year-old drinking age, a new tobacco program, and continued aid to workers who lose jobs to imports.

More than a quarter of the red ink saved by the bill, $1.7 billion a year, would come from the cigarette tax. The tax, doubled in 1982, rolled back to 8 cents on March 15 after Congress failed to extend it. The bill includes language to impose the full tax retroactively as well as extend it permanently.

The cigarette tax is joined in the law by a sweeping new tobacco price support program.

Tobacco price levels would drop more into line with those of foreign competition. Cigarette companies get discounts on government tobacco stocks that could total $1 billion over five years and get a major say in how much tobacco will be grown each year. Tobacco farmers will pay less for the price support program.

The formula for sharing offshore gas and oil receipts between the federal government and seven coastal states ends a dispute that dates back to the late 1970s. Nearly $6 billion has collected in an escrow fund pending resolution of the dispute.

The states would get 27 percent of the escrow money and future income from rents and interest on the leases. Freeing the escrow account will send Louisiana alone at least $600 million, with Texas, California, Alabama, Alaska, Mississippi, and Florida also benefiting.

Another section of the law forbids hospitals from turning away, or "dumping," patients who need emergency care on grounds they don't have cash or health insurance.

The provision would impose fines on hospitals that turn away a patient before stabilizing the patient's condition and finding another institution to take the patient. A hospital with a pattern of abuse could be suspended from the Medicare program.

The legislation also: —Reauthorizes the Small Business Administration but cuts its operations by about $2.5 billion over three years, mostly by reducing its loan subsidy programs.

—Extends for six years the Trade Adjustment Assistance program, which provides money to workers who lose jobs to foreign competition, at a cost the Congressional Budget Office estimates at $275 million over three years.

—Authorizes $2.15 billion in Farmers Home Administration rural housing loans for fiscal 1986, $100 million higher than the current limit.

—Reauthorizes Amtrak through fiscal 1988, but reduces the local rail service assistance program from $12 million this year to $8 million by fiscal 1988.

—Makes permanent the federal program encouraging states to adopt a 21-year-old drinking age by withholding 10 percent of federal highway money from states that refuse.

—Requires new fees for users of the government's energy regulators, including the Nuclear Regulatory Commission.

—Expands Medicaid coverage for pregnant women in two-parent families, and allows states to offer hospice benefits as an option under Medicaid.

Christensen encouraged board members to attend a meeting at 7 p.m. Tuesday, April 15, in the Heritage Room to undertake planning for a Fourth of July celebration.

"It will be an old-fashioned Fourth of July, a fun day," she said. All clubs, organizations and interested individuals are also urged to attend the meeting, she said.

Activities for the day will include a talent show, food booths, a flea market, games and rides, Christensen said. There also may be a "political platform" to allow political candidates to address the crowds, she said.

Beef raisers ask judge to stop USDA dairy cattle sales

SAN ANGELO, Texas (AP)—Beef cattle raisers say the U.S. Department of Agriculture has caused the sharpest drop in beef cattle prices in history, and they have asked a judge to stop the USDA from selling dairy cattle for slaughter.

In a copyright story in Tuesday's editions, the San Angelo Standard Times reported that representatives of three beef cattle associations asked U.S. District Judge Halbert O. Woodward to temporarily stop the USDA from selling dairy cattle and to consider a permanent injunction until a more gradual marketing program is established.

Presenting their request to Woodward for a temporary restraining order were representatives of the National Cattlemen's Association, the Texas and Southwestern Cattlemen's Association and the Texas Cattle Feeders Association.

U.S. House Agriculture Committee Chairman Kika de la Garza, D-Mission, asked the Secretary of Agriculture Monday to suspend the USDA's dairy cattle buy-out program until a more orderly marketing system is devised, the newspaper reported.

To reduce the country's milk surplus, last year's farm bill authorized the whole-herd buyout program for dairy animals over the next 18 months.

On March 27, the USDA announced it would pay dairymen $1.83 billion to sell 1.55 million dairy cattle for slaughter to reduce milk production.

During the first week of the sales, March 31-April 4, the USDA put more dairy cattle on the market than beef cattle raisers expected. Fed cattle prices dropping $4-$5 a hundredweight or about $35-$45 a head.

That was the sharpest price drop in history for fed cattle, said Texas and Southwestern Cattlemen's Association President John E. Birdwell. He said the industry lost $25 million in one week, and lost $2 billion in equity.

The buyout was scheduled over three periods—April-August 1986, September 1986-February 1987 and March-August 1987—but Birdwell said USDA figures indicate "that 82 percent could be marketed within the April-August period."

De la Garza told the Standard Times, "it was never the intent of the Congress that they (USDA) would go and buy the top number up front."

"We wanted to keep a balance," he said, "and as a matter of fact, we wrote (the legal language of the buyout) with the advice of the beef cattle industry."

Birdwell said, "We're not challenging the legislation. We are asking relief from the burdensome supplies of cattle coming to market during the first four months (of the buyout program)."

John Cargile, co-owner of Producers Livestock Auction in San Angelo, said the drop in cattle prices "is unreal. It's never been done before ... There was no guidance to anybody about how to do the marketing."

De la Garza said the USDA is within the letter, but not the intent, of the law. He said he sent a telegram to Agriculture Secretary Richard Lyng asking Lyng to suspend the program "until a more orderly marketing system is devised which will eliminate or at least minimize the harm being done to the cattle markets nationwide."

He said he intends to follow up his telegram with a visit to Lyng Tuesday if he deems it necessary. Birdwell said Woodward has set a hearing for April 22 in Lubbock to consider an injunction.

Last Wednesday, agriculture department officials said the thousands of dairy cows headed for slaughter are not expected to add much to the nation's beef supply.

Ewen M. Wilson, deputy assistant secretary for economics, estimated there would be 3 percent to 4 percent more beef during the second quarter of this year as a result of the slaughter program, and said about 30 percent of the cows would have been slaughtered anyway, given the normal culling rate of the dairy herd.

Gubernatorial candidate assails state's teachers' organizations

AUSTIN (AP)—Gubernatorial candidate Ron Slover says many educational associations are really unions that "could care less how high taxes will go in order to pay for the 'reforms' in education."

Slover, an Amarillo oil and gas broker running in the Democratic primary, said Monday, "The majority of liberal educators are not at all upset with Mark White's education reform program, but simply resent having to take the literacy test."

He called House Bill 72, the reform legislation, "a disaster." "With the type of activity that's taking place in Texas in 1986, it's just a matter of time until most independent school districts will find out they are nothing more than a branch of the state," Slover said in a statement.

In the Railroad Commission race, Democratic candidate John Sharp, whose campaign literature dubs him a "truck buster," said he has developed a get-tough program against truckers "who have turned the highways into a combat zone."

Sharp told a news conference he hopes the trucking industry will join him "to help take back our highways from the carriers who have put profit first and the public second."

Sharp suggested an 11-point safety program, including banning the use of radar detectors in commercial trucks.

Other proposals included posting telephone numbers on trucks to report safety violations and complaints; adoption of federal regulations for intrastate shippers of hazardous waste; 72 more Department of Public Safety troopers; and a prohibition against any schedule that would require a driver to exceed the speed limit.

Another of Sharp's proposals would call for the suspension of a carrier's permit if it knowingly failed to suspend a driver convicted of drunken driving.

The additional troopers would be funded by increased truck registration fees, according to Sharp's proposal.

Sharp said most of the proposals would require new legislation.

"It's an ambitious program that will carry the fight to the renegade truckers," he said.

Nathan Hecht, a Dallas district judge running as a Republican for the Texas Supreme Court, said a federal lawsuit by his GOP primary opponent Charles Ben Howell "is pure folly."

Hechtsaid the decision against Howell by the all-Democrat Supreme Court was "outrageous" in that it was based on a "hyper-technical reading of the Election Code."

Nevertheless, he said Howell's federal suit is a "waste of time for a federal judge and a cheap publicity stunt."

Committee subpoenas justices; chief objects

AUSTIN (AP)—Chief Justice John Hill says he wants to cooperate with a legislative committee's investigation, but he believes subpoenas of two high court justices violate constitutional principles.

"I want to assure you that we mean no disrespect to the committee in refusing to allow individual justices to respond to the legislative subpoenas, but we believe them to be improper under the separation of powers doctrine," Hill said Monday.

Despite his position against the subpoenas, Hill said he and other justices would be willing to meet openly in a Supreme Court conference room with the House Committee on Judicial Affairs, which voted 6-0 Monday to subpoena Associate Justices C.F. Ray and William Kilgarlin.

"Just the principle of a justice of the court being subpoenaed—I don't think that's appropriate. I don't think it's necessary," Hill said.

Committee Chairman Frank Tejeda, D-San Antonio, said the panel is looking into allegations about the proposed transfer of two multimillion-dollar cases involving San Antonio lawyer Pat Maloney Sr. from the 4th Court of Appeals to another appeals court.

The committee subpoenaed Ray to appear Friday to testify on the transfer of cases, communications between court members with attorneys having cases before the court, and the conduct of court-members or its employees involving pending cases.

Kilgarlin was subpoenaed to testify about transfers, communications and acceptance of gifts by the court or its employees from attorneys with cases pending before the court.

The subpoena also asked that Hill or another court officer provide records of phone calls between the court offices and Maloney.

Hill said the justices would answer questions about the transfers to "clear the air."

"I want to assure you on behalf of the Supreme Court of Texas of our desire to cooperate completely in every appropriate way with the investigation into these matters," Hill said in a letter to Tejeda.

He also said further allegations—if there are any—should be referred to the State Commission on Judicial Conduct, which was created by the Legislature to investigate charges of misconduct by Texas judges.

The chief justice declined to speculate on what might happen should the legislative committee go to court to require the justices to respond to the subpoenas.

Tejeda later told news reporters he believes the committee can proceed with its investigation. "I think it is clear that we can (subpoena the justices)," he said.

The committee also has subpoenaed Ann Dees—a former employee of the Office of Court Administration, Scott Ozmun, Jennifer Bruch and Henry J.L. Taub as witnesses.

Taub was identified in a San Antonio Light story Sunday as a Houston businessman. The newspaper said Ray drew Taub aside at an October 1984 fund-raiser to discuss an oil lease case pending before the court.

Taub was a party to the suit, the Light said, and judicial ethics prohibit a judge from discussing privately a pending case with individuals from either side.

The Light also said Ray solicited funds for his re-election campaign from both sides of the oil lease case and received a total of $9,000 from them.

Ray's attorney, Buck Wood of Austin, was out of town Monday, his wife said, and was unavailable for immediate comment.

Ozmun and Ms. Bruch were identified as briefing attorneys for Kilgarlin. The Dallas Times Herald earlier reported that Hill had lectured all of the court's briefing attorneys after learning that Ozmun and Ms. Bruch apparently had accepted a free weekend in Las Vegas from Maloney's son, Pat Jr., who had a case pending.

Parents, become involved

One of the main issues of last week's area school board and city races was the apparent lack of activities in the area small towns. Trustee candidates and council candidates alike sang the same refrain: There's nothing here for the kids to do.

They seemed to believe that by becoming part of the city or school powers that be, they can find a solution to this apparent plague on small town society.

Actually you can do more to solve this problem—if it is that bad of a problem—by staying off the city and school boards and by taking the initiative as concerned parents and citizens.

Ask yourselves, how much can the city and school do to provide meaningful activities for young people? The city of Pampa is sponsoring several recreational activities for the summer. But then, Pampa is large enough to set aside funds and hire people to sponsor such activities. The best that a city of 1,000 people or less can do is properly maintain its swimming pools and parks and maybe provide part-time jobs for the idle teens.

The city could sponsor a volunteer program in which the youth help keep the town clean by such minor but important jobs as picking up litter or clearing weeds from vacant lots.

The best thing that the schools can do, besides sponsor costly summer classes, is to keep its gym and other recreational facilities open to the public during the summer.

Nevertheless, it is neither the city's nor the school's responsibility to "give the kids something to do." That responsibility belongs to the kids themselves and to their parents.

Still there are ways you can help the local youth. Probably the best way is through the church youth group. Perhaps you can get your pastor or youth minister to sponsor a softball or volleyball game once a week. Or how about sponsoring trips to movies, week-end retreats, dances or even volunteer projects to help the community.

But even outside the church, you can help provide meaningful activity for the area youth. Your local service club or sorority can sponsor something. Even individual parents and citizens can get something started.

It appears that the motive behind all this concern about giving the kids something to do is to steer the kids away from such vices as going to Pampa to cruise or to the nearest beer bust. The concerns are valid ones. Teen-age drinking should be curbed to prevent alcoholism and traffic fatalities.

But you can have activities planned for every night this summer and the kids will still want to follow their natural rebellious instincts and go out afterward for a "good time." And it's not just the scuzz-buckets, either. It's the "good kids": the athletes, the cheerleaders, the honor students, the pleasant young people who are involved in school activities and have direction in their lives.

I am naive enough to believe that, with a few tragic exceptions, most of the kids out cruising Pampa streets or having their keg parties down by the creek turn out to be successful and responsible citizens. They'll end up just like their parents, who probably have forgotten their own sinful teen-age years.

All they need is someone to care for them and accept them despite their "illicit" behaviour.

I encourage local churches, sororities, civic groups and individuals to provide positive and meaningful activities for the youth in your communities. Make your town a "fun" place to be. I'll even offer to help out.

But don't be discouraged when you're in Pampa and you still see your small-town heroes on the main drag.

The kids are all right.

Chicano group's 14th annual conference set for this week

EL PASO, Texas (AP)—More than 1,000 people are expected to attend the 14th annual conference of the National Association of Chicano Studies set for this week, the University of Texas-El Paso said Monday.

"In this year of the Texas Sesquicentennial, El Paso and its university are especially significant," said Roberto Villareal, conference coordinator and UTEP Chicano Studies Research Program.

"El Paso is the largest city in the U.S. that is located directly on the Mexican border," he said. "It has the largest Mexican-American population by percentage of any major city in the U.S."

The April 10-12 conference involves some 65 panels represented by nearly 100 institutions such as universities, government agencies, research centers and social and cultural groups. Topics will include immigration, politics, business and the arts.

Advice To A Parent With Adult Children.

As our children become young adults, they face an enigma. On the one hand, they would rather not think about death—and that's as it should be at their age. On the other hand, they are reminded of their parents' mortality as they get older—and they become concerned: "How would I cope with a loss?" "What would I need to know?" "What arrangements would Mom or Dad want?"

These are some of the nagging thoughts they may have.

whether they say so or not. One of the most loving things parents can do for their children is to take care of their own final arrangements—in advance—writing down vital family information that will be needed, along with wishes and instructions, and providing the children with copies. Complete pre-arranged funeral plans are now available that can even be pre-paid, sparing your children that expense someday.

Our booklets on funeral pre-planning provide everything you need to take care of this caring, thoughtful step. Call now for your free copies—or mail this coupon.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Court condones deceit by police

The Supreme Court did so strange hair-splitting the other day on the Miranda rule.

The rule, which was adopted by the court in 1966, requires police to inform a suspect of his right to remain silent and to have an attorney present when he is questioned.

In the case just decided, the court held, six to three, that it is permissible for police use deception to keep a defense lawyer away if the suspect has not specifically asked for one.

The case involved a Rhode Island man, Michael Burbine, who was suspected of murder. Before police questioned him, Burbine's sister had hired a lawyer and the lawyer so informed the authorities. Police lied to the attorney about when Burbine would be interrogated, and went ahead with the questioning without the attorney being present. Burbine, who didn't know he had an attorney, waived his rights to legal counsel and signed a confession.

Although expressing "distaste for the deliberate misleading" of the lawyer, Justice Sandra Day O'Connor wrote for the majority that the court cannot "require the police to keep the suspect abreast of the status of his legal representation." She said the "constitutional right to request the presence of an attorney belongs solely to the defendant," not to his lawyer.

In a sharply worded dissent written by Justice John Paul Stevens, three members of the court said with the ruling "incommunicado questioning is embraced as a societal goal of the highest order that justifies police deception of the shabbiest kind."

It is often difficult to take issue with Supreme Court rulings in cases of this kind because the defendants usually are guilty and are seeking to get off on a technicality.

But it seems if a suspect has a constitutional right to be informed he may have a lawyer present while being questioned, he also has a constitutional right to be told a lawyer has been retained to represent him. Police deceit of the sort practiced in the Burbine case should not be condoned by the high court.

No will to cut spending

In his famous or, depending on one's philosophical point of view, infamous 1982 Atlantic Monthly interview, then Director of the Office of Management and Budget David Stockman declared that he had discovered a new truth: "there are no real conservatives in Congress." Stockman made that statement to the Atlantic's William Greider as a way of expressing his frustration with the Reagan administration's inability to get real and permanent spending cuts in its fiscal-year 1982 budget.

In his interview Stockman told Greider that, "We are interested in curtailing weak claims rather than weak clients... We have to show that we are willing to attack powerful clients with weak claims." He insisted that if the Reagan administration was going to meet its goal of a balanced budget by 1984, it would have to be willing to test every claim made against the budget and stand ready to reject those claims which were, in terms of the philosophy the Administration espoused, weak.

More than four years have passed since David Stockman bared his frustration. A lot of things have happened since then to suggest that what Stockman said in 1981 bears repeating today. We didn't get a balanced budget in 1984. Indeed federal expenditures have accelerated every year since Reagan's "surprise" budget victory over Congress in 1981. What went wrong? Surely the intention to cut spending was there? But was it? Perhaps the intention wasn't there after all. Perhaps it was nothing but political rhetoric. How can one tell? I suggest that one can tell by evaluating whether or not there has been any real effort to, as Stockman said in 1981, "stand ready to test every claim against the budget and reject those claims which are weak." The debate over the first round of across-the-board spending cuts required under Gramm-Rudman-Hollings provides the key as to whether or not genuine resolve to cut spending exists today.

Based on the early evidence, that resolve to "attack powerful clients with weak claims" still doesn't exist. On March 1, a relatively modest $11.7 billion — a little over 1 percent of the federal budget — had to be cut to comply with Gramm-Rudman-Hollings. The political moaning and groaning has been so great that one could be excused for coining a new "political truth" stating that "Every dollar of federal spending is absolutely vital to the economic and cultural health of the nation... to cut spending is to destroy the republic." Such nonsense must be exposed.

Take the case of agriculture. Ronald Reagan wants to cut spending for the Agricultural Extension Service. Federal money provides about a third of the service's funds, with the rest coming from the states and counties. The President wants to cut the federal contribution by 60 percent from the $328 million of the current fiscal year. Senator Phil Gramm of Gramm-Rudman-Hollings fame doesn't like that idea. Since he is from an agricultural state and makes his home where Texas A&M — a land-grant institution with a large program in agriculture — is located, it is not in his political interest to like such a cut. In his view is not a "weak claim" against the federal budget.

What does the Extension Service do? It provides $60 million for food and nutrition counseling programs for poor urban families, a farm insect-control program, and farm financial management project. It also offers psychological counseling for farm families. It supports 4-H youth programs. It provides lawn and garden care services, cooking classes, and quilting classes.

Suppose this program didn't exist. Where would urban families get their information on food and nutrition? I suggest they would get it from one of the inexpensive magazines one finds at the check-out counter of every grocery store in the country. Where would farmers learn about insect control and financial management? I suggest they would have absolutely no trouble getting all the information they could ever use from the free literature available for the asking at any farm-supply store which sells herbicides and pesticides. Why? Because it is now and always has been in the interest of companies which manufacture such products to make this information available to farmers. Indeed these companies spend millions of dollars every year researching these problems. What about psychological counseling, cooking and quilting? Try the churches — they were doing these things long before there was an agricultural extension service.

The Department of Housing and Urban Development claims that if they have to make cuts they will not be able to carry out maintenance on public housing. Detroit has already announced that it plans to eliminate 2,400 of its public housing units during the next five years to improve a vacancy rate of 30 percent even though there are 1,180 persons on their waiting list. Why are they doing this? Because of maintenance costs and instability as tenants move from under-maintained units. Surely further budget cuts will only make matters worse, the HUD argument goes. Housing, they insist, should be exempted from Gramm-Rudman-Hollings cuts. Housing is not a "weak claim" they would surely argue.

There is a simple and direct solution to the maintenance and tenant instability problem in public housing. Sell public housing to the current tenants. Sell it for whatever they will pay — $1 or $10,000, whatever they can pay. When it's their own they will maintain it, even if they have to paint and scrape and nail for themselves. And they will smash the neighbor who keeps dumping his trash at their door. Why will they do these things? Because it's in their own economic interest to do so. Who knows? If they keep their apartment neat they may be able to sell it for a fortune.

The government has no business teaching people to cook and quilt. It has no business being in the housing business. These are just two of the many "weak claims by powerful clients" Stockman warned about. It's way past time to fight these strong clients with weak claims. If Mr. Reagan doesn't do it then Gramm-Rudman-Hollings will be one more sick joke.

Mexican golf made easy

IXTAPA, MEXICO — As many of you may know, I have dedicated myself for some years to rewriting the rules of golf. What is wrong with golf and why people have such a hard time playing it is the rules are terribly unfair.

They might be fair for Jack Nicklaus, but not for the average golfer who can't be expected to play by the rules and still shoot a score that does not resemble the federal deficit.

My first work in the area of re-writing the rules of golf had to do mostly with American golf courses. I discarded such tacky rules as not moving the ball in the rough, taking a penalty for hitting the ball in water and not getting a second chance at making a missed putt.

Golfers from all around the country have written to tell me they have improved their scores miraculously by ignoring these stuffy, inconsiderate rules at my suggestion.

At any rate, what I am doing in this lovely resort on the Pacific coast is studying golf as it is played in Mexico. A lot of Americans visit Mexican resorts like the Club Med in Ixtapa where I set up headquarters for my study of golf south of the border. The things I do for my fellow man.

The first day on the local course, I shot a miserable score because I was not prepared to deal with the new challenges Mexican golf offers.

With each day that passed, however, I was able to bring my scores down by invoking brilliant new addendums to my already splendid and highly praised list of innovative golfing rules. Here are a few samples if you ever decide to play golf in Mexico:

— THE BURRO RULE: If a burro hee-haws during your backswing, you get an automatic par on the hole as retribution for your interruption. If your ball lands on what burros occasionally leave on Mexican golf courses, get your caddy to remove the ball and wash it thoroughly, give yourself a birdie and give your caddy an extra 500 pesos for his trouble.

— THE CROCODILE RULE: There are lots of crocodiles on Mexican golf courses. If you hit your ball into the water, make your caddy swim out and find it. If he is eaten by a crocodile, subtract 10 strokes from your score for having wasted 500 pesos.

— THE RALPH NADER UNSAFE AT ANY SPEED RULE: There are no brakes on Mexican golf carts. Hit two balls at the tee of any hole where you have to drive the cart down a steep embankment. If you are not maimed or killed in the cart, you may pick the best of your two tee shots.

— THE NIGHT OF THE IGUANA RULE: There are lots of iguanas — large, ugly lizards — on Mexican golf courses. If you see one, divide Elizabeth Taylor's weight by four and subtract the total from your score. If you don't know Elizabeth Taylor's weight, put three caddies and a golf cart on a scale and use that total.

— THE TEQUILLA RULE: Take the number of tequilas you had the night before, add the number of times you got into a fight as a result of drinking all that tequila and then go back to bed. Nobody could play golf in your condition.

— THE MONTEZUMA'S REVENGE RULE: If you have ignored everybody's advice and drank the water in Mexico anyway, hit your ball into the woods every chance you get. Believe me, you will need it.

— THE PEPTO BISMOL RULE: Better to be eaten by a crocodile in a water hazard than to be in Mexico without it.

Reagan to discuss summit with Soviet ambassador

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. officials say a meeting between President Reagan and Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin could lay the groundwork for a second summit between Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev.

Reagan was to meet Dobrynin today at White House, where the Soviet statesman was expected to bring word of Moscow's willingness to hold a meeting soon between Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze and Secretary of State George Shultz to discuss summit arrangements, the U.S. officials said.

Dobrynin and Shultz had a breakfast meeting Monday, and although details of their discussion were not disclosed, they were believed to have focused on the timing of a Shultz-Shevardnadze meeting, according to the officials, who spoke only on condition of anonymity.

Almost no progress toward a second summit has been reported since Reagan and Gorbachev agreed to one when they met last November in Geneva. The United States has been pressuring for a summit no later than July, while the Soviets have been holding out for a meeting that will produce a major agreement.

Recent statements by Gorbachev indicate, however, that the Kremlin is prepared for serious discussions about a second summit. Two congressmen who just returned from a 10-day trip to the Soviet Union said Monday they were optimistic a summit could be arranged this year.

Rep. William Broomfield, R-Mich., told reporters he "got the impression that they (the Soviets) are definitely going to" agree to a summit between Reagan and Gorbachev in 1986.

The other lawmaker, Rep. Dante Fascell, D-Fla., said following a meeting with Reagan that the president did not comment on the timing of a summit.

Bush will visit task force flagship in the Persian Gulf

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP) — Vice President George Bush, underscoring U.S. commitment to stability in the oil-rich Persian Gulf region, today visits a U.S. naval task force patrolling the strategic waterway where Iran and Iraq are waging a prolonged war.

Bush arrived Monday on the second stop of a four-country tour of the gulf and Arabian Peninsula.

At a news conference, he said the United States was committed to keeping the Straits of Hormuz, the narrow entrance to the Persian Gulf open to oil tankers.

Bush said the United States also is committed to the stability of the members of the Gulf Cooperation Council, which includes the conservative Arab states of Saudi Arabia, Bahrain, Oman, Qatar, Kuwait, and the United Arab Emirates.

"We do not want to see Iranian expansion (of the war) result in a change in the balance of power in this area," Bush said.

Persian Iran and Arab Iraq have been at war since September 1980, and gulf shipping, including large oil tankers, have been targets for both countries' air forces.

The gulf countries also fear the spread of the religious fundamentalism of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's Iran.

After separate meetings today with Sheik Isa bin Salman al-Khalifa, American businessmen and U.S. embassy employees, Bush was to visit the USS La Salle, the command destroyer of a task force in the Gulf since June 1983. The task force includes four frigates and the destroyer.

Bahrain, a cluster of islands, feels "very vulnerable, sort of sticking out like a sore thumb into the Gulf, and so we will be seeking to reassure them of our interests in the area," said a senior administration official who offered a preview of the trip. He spoke on condition he not be identified.

Bahrain allows the U.S. Navy access to its facilities, and the United States, in turn, is helping country improve its defenses. A $90 million tank sale was announced by the Pentagon last year.

Oil has been among the top items on Bush's trip, but after three days of talks in Saudi Arabia, he said Monday that "there wasn't any common solution found" to stabilize oil prices, which have plummeted 60 percent since last November.

In the Saudi view, "the stronger the price for international oil the better..." Bush said at a news conference in the gulf city of Dhahran.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is renewing its effort to cut Libya off from its European trading partners as President Reagan weighs military and other options following two terrorist attacks on Americans in Europe last week.

Six people — including five Americans — were killed in the attacks, which administration officials believe may be linked to the Libyans.

Reagan, who took advantage of beautiful spring weather to fly to Baltimore on Monday for the opening of the major league baseball season, refused to answer reporters' questions going to or from the White House. His only public comment on what action he planned against Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy was a "no comment" issued Sunday as he returned from a California vacation.

White House spokesman Edward Djerejian said that following the two recent terrorist incidents involving Americans, the United States is seeking "the possible closing of more Libyan Peoples' Bureaus known to be the source of terrorist planning and activity."

Although the European allies have declined in the past to go along with U.S. attempts to coordinate the economic and diplomatic isolation of Khadafy and his oil-rich Arab republic, Djerejian said the latest terrorist incidents, "both on European soil, have sensitized the Europeans to the danger, that the danger is really at their doorstep, not only at our doorstep."

The United States has detailed contingency plans for retaliation against Libya, including five potential military targets there, CBS News said Monday night. It said the Joint Chiefs of Staff met in special session Monday.

Ambassador Richard Burt, the U.S. envoy to West Germany, said there were "very clear indications that there was Libyan involvement" in a nightclub bombing last week that killed an American Army sergeant and a Turkish woman in West Berlin.

When asked if he favored military action against Khadafy in retaliation for the attack, Burt said, "I'm not going to close the president's options. ... He's studying this issue right now."

Burt, interviewed on NBC-TV's "Today" show, said Khadafy must recognize that he is fighting not only the United States on this issue, but like-minded nations around the world.

The Washington Post, in today's editions, said Burt was rebuked for his comments about the bombing. The newspaper, quoting unidentified officials, said John Poindexter, the president's national security adviser, admonished Burt because the administration does not want to assign blame publicly for the incident.

Asked Monday night about the report, White House spokesman Peter Rousell had no comment.

Bomb explodes at Weinberger's hotel

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Police said a bomb exploded today in the parking lot of a hotel where U.S. Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger was scheduled to attend a state dinner.

Three people were reported injured in the blast.

Weinberger is staying at another hotel and was not in the area at the time of the explosion.

Police at the government-owned Erawan Hotel said the explosive, which was planted in a garbage can, went off about 1 1/2 hours before the start of a dinner hosted by Prime Minister Prem Tinsulanonda for Weinberger.

Military officials said the dinner later was canceled.

Police said it was not known whether the explosion was related to Weinberger's visit.

They said one man was seriously wounded and that a man and a woman received lesser injuries in the explosion.

U.S. studying options against Libya after terrorist attacks

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is renewing its effort to cut Libya off from its European trading partners as President Reagan weighs military and other options following two terrorist attacks on Americans in Europe last week.

Six people — including five Americans — were killed in the attacks, which administration officials believe may be linked to the Libyans.

Reagan, who took advantage of beautiful spring weather to fly to Baltimore on Monday for the opening of the major league baseball season, refused to answer reporters' questions going to or from the White House. His only public comment on what action he planned against Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy was a "no comment" issued Sunday as he returned from a California vacation.

White House spokesman Edward Djerejian said that following the two recent terrorist incidents involving Americans, the United States is seeking "the possible closing of more Libyan Peoples' Bureaus known to be the source of terrorist planning and activity."

Anaya: new border crossing will ease traffic in El Paso-Juarez

SANTA TERESA, N.M. (AP) — A new border crossing that could be working in months near this community will produce jobs and ease heavy traffic in adjacent ports of entry, the governor of New Mexico said.

"This area of the state is the hottest growing area in southern New Mexico," said Gov. Toney Anaya.

Anaya and Saul Gonzalez Herrera, the governor of the Mexican state of Chihuahua, met privately and with state officials, including Robert Gold, New Mexico Secretary of Economic Development and Tourism.

The meeting was to discuss details of the crossing, which will handle livestock at first but is expected to develop into a port of entry, through which tourists and cargo can cross between the two countries.

Santa Teresa is a privately owned bedroom community on the outskirts of El Paso, Texas, and about a 30-minute drive from Las Cruces, N.M. The crossing will be miles from the residential development and the country club, where the officials met Monday afternoon.

Charles Crowder, owner of Santa Teresa who also met with the governors, sold 34 acres of New Mexico land to the Chihuahua Cattle Growers Association for $35 for the projected crossing. He said he will also donate labor and machinery to help build a road extension on the Mexico side leading to the crossing point.

"I think a lot of people would be happy to get the cattle through here," said New Mexico Secretary of Agriculture W.P. Stephens.

Gonzalez Herrera said he hoped to see construction start in three months because a border crossing here would be of great interests to Chihuahua.

"I would like to see it a reality before my office expires," said Anaya, whose term ends Dec. 31. "The major hurdle is to get federal approval for infrastructure. That's been pretty much the major hangup over the last 30 years."

Job opportunities provided by a new port of entry could be "limitless, hundreds of thousands of jobs," said Anaya, adding that U.S. approval to start building roads, wells and other facilities seems likely. Gonzalez Herrera said he would travel to Mexico City today to discuss details with federal officials there.

The new crossing would not negatively affect business in Columbus, N.M., which currently handles the largest number of livestock anywhere on the U.S.-Mexico border, or El Paso, Anaya said.

"It'll provide an additional benefit to El Paso in that it'll relieve congested traffic," said Anaya. "There's additional need for more crossings along the border."

Cattle growers and brokers on both sides of the border have supported the crossing, saying that transporting cattle into the United States at Ciudad Juarez is difficult because of the heavy traffic on the bridges over the Rio Grande connecting that city and El Paso.

"Today, those cattle are assembled in Juarez, loaded on trucks, then they have to negotiate a bridge," said Crowder. "It's been known to take 10-12 hours." With a crossing near Santa Teresa, "livestock processed will go to the same destinations but they'll simply walk across the border" because the Rio Grande

Murder defendant found incompetent

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — An Abilene man charged with murder in a Christmas Eve slaying has been found incompetent to stand trial.

Judge Bill Thomas on Monday ordered Ricardo Vinnie Hernandez, 22, committed to Rusk State Hospital for the Criminally Insane after a district court jury ruled Hernandez incompetent.

Psychiatrist Dr. John Carey Cooke III said in a deposition that Hernandez is incompetent to stand trial.

Memorial plans delayed for finalists models

AUSTIN (AP) — A House committee has agreed to put off final selection of Korean and Vietnam war memorials for the Capitol grounds until the three finalists make models of their designs.

The decision was made Monday amid protests from two competing Vietnam veterans' groups that the memorial designs selected were not appropriate.

"This whole memorial effort here stinks," said Buck Dopp, a Temple railroad worker who said he was public relations officer for the Texas Alliance For Vietnam Veterans.

"These plans show no emotion," said Harry Etmueller, Austin, of the Texas Association of Vietnam Veterans, who stressed that they had no connection with the Dopp's alliance.

"We want something that will make thousands want to come see it, like the (Vietnam Veterans) Wall in Washington."

The Texas State Veterans Memorial Committee voted unanimously to go ahead with its previous plans to select separate memorials for veterans of the Korean and Vietnam conflicts from three finalists.

The finalists were selected in a competition among 58 bidders.

The three designers were authorized to construct scale models, at a production cost of $5,000 each. The final design will be selected from those, officials said.

The finalists are Stuart Kraft, Dallas sculptor; Richard Harrel Rogers, a San Antonio sculptor; and Black, Atkinson & Vernooey Architects of Austin.

On a motion from Rep. Sam Johnson, R-Plano, the committee was authorized to make changes and alterations in the final design with the cooperation of the winning designer.

Rep. Frank Collazo Jr., committee chairman, said six members of the panel were veterans of the Korean military action and five had served in Vietnam.

The two memorials, one on each side of Congress Avenue north of the Capitol, will be a part of the Sesquicentennial Park that will be built at Congress and Martin Luther King Boulevard.

The park also will contain a Sesquicentennial statue of a group of cowboys herding Texas longhorns across a railroad track.

The committee voted not to accept recommendations from Gary Franks, Houston, a member of the memorial committee's fund-raising effort, that the contest for designs be reopened.

What happens in Capitol when Congress is away?

By STEVEN KOMAROW
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Capitol undergoes a remarkable transformation when Congress is away and the cherry blossoms are in bloom.

No longer is the building full of aides scurrying after lawmakers who are scurrying after each other in search of fleeting compromises.

With the legislative put away for the Easter holiday, the building shines as a museum of history. Hundreds and hundreds of tourists lose themselves beneath the soaring ceilings and between the statues and paintings of great Americans and moments of the nation.

Of course, some actually do get lost.

A tour group mistakenly wandered into the House Press Gallery, where a few reporters were resisting the temptation to nap on the Capitol lawn.

"Oh, Mr. President, can you hold on please, we've got some visitors," a reporter on the phone joked in a loud voice.

Then there was the teacher who knocked at the back door of the press room in search of the House visitors gallery, 15 children trailing him. He asked humbly if they could walk through the press area and promised they would behave.

"Now children, be very quiet. This is working press," he admonished the students as they tiptoed past several reporters eating lunch, playing Scrabble and cleaning out file drawers.

Of course, Washington can be a confusing town to get around, with the diagonal streets and strategically placed traffic rotaries.

It was painful to tell a woman who just completed the long climb up Capitol Hill that the National Air and Space Museum was in the opposite direction.

Once inside the Capitol, the visitors are without a prime source of information — the elevator operators, who depart when Congress is on recess. That also leaves the tourists (and others) to undertake a task the lawmakers shun — pushing the buttons themselves on the automatic elevators.

Tobacco price-support system changed, reaction unclear

WASHINGTON (AP)—Tucked away in the $18 billion deficit-cutting bill signed by President Reagan is the most sweeping package of changes in the nation's tobacco price-support system since the crop first came under government supports in the 1930s.

The bill, signed into law Monday, drastically changes the way prices are established, lowering them dramatically to bring them more into line with those of international competitors, and for the first time gives cigarette companies a major say in how much tobacco will be grown each year in the United States.

It also makes substantial cuts in the fees tobacco farmers pay to finance their price-support system, fees that had been climbing steeply and threatened to cripple the program.

But there still are many unanswered questions, including exactly how much the assessments on burley and flue-cured tobacco will be this year, how much growers' production quotas will shrink and how tobacco farmers will receive the new program.

"I think they're still waiting to see. They so far have reluctantly accepted it," said Verner Grise, an Agriculture Department economist who closely follows tobacco issues.

Grise said while farmers may see their tobacco incomes fall slightly as a result of lower quotas and price-support levels, those losses will be partly offset by lower assessments and the net effect will be a general stability in economic conditions over the next several years.

During that time, the industry's amassed surplus — including the more than 1.5 billion pounds of leaf absorbed by the price-support cooperatives — will be gradually whittled down through discount sales to cigarette companies, and supply will be brought closer into line with demand.

Opponents of the plan have complained loudly that selling off those surpluses to the companies at favorable rates will cost the government $1 billion in lost loan money over the next five years or so.

For this year, flue-cured price-support levels will be $1.44 per pound, down from a previous level of $1.70. Burley tobacco will be supported at $1.49, down from the $1.79 that had been in effect before a legislative reduction in the support rate last year.

Future price-support levels will be set using a complicated formula tied to both market prices and farmers' costs of production.

How the new program came into being still has some legislative strategists on Capitol Hill shaking their heads.

A year ago, few gave the grand scheme of Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., much of a chance. Tobacco has been under increasing fire from health professionals who seek to abolish all federal price supports, and leaf-state lawmakers are finding it harder and harder to win votes for their programs.

But using some unorthodox strategic ploys and even an uneasy truce with tobacco-state political rivals, Helms and colleagues from Kentucky were able to pull off the belated victory last week.

Tobacco is the nation's sixth largest cash crop, totaling $3.4 billion in sales in 1983. It is also the most regulated and highly taxed crop, bringing in an estimated $8.9 billion in revenues that year to federal, state and local governments.

It is grown in 21 states on about 200,000 farms, although production is heavily concentrated in North Carolina, Kentucky, Virginia, Tennessee and South Carolina. The United States is the world's leading exporter of the leaf.

Man walks on ice toward the Soviet Union

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP)—When last seen, John Weymouth was on his way to the Soviet Union, picking his way on foot across the frozen Bering Strait.

Authorities said Weymouth, a man known in western Alaska as "the wanderer," set out last Wednesday from the U.S. island of Little Diomed, apparently heading across the ice to the Soviet island of Big Diomed, 2 1/2 miles away.

The two islands in the Bering Strait between Siberia's Chukchi Peninsula and Alaska's Seward Peninsula are the points at which North America and Asia come closest to each other. The international date line runs between them.

"He was confronted by these villagers and asked where he was going. He said, 'None of your business,' and kept walking toward Big Diomed," said 1st Sgt. Tim Litera, an Alaska State Trooper in Nome.

"As of last night, this guy hasn't come back from the Russian side," Litera said Monday.

Troopers conducted a limited search for Weymouth, but did not cross the U.S.-Soviet boundary. "We can't do that," Litera said. "Once he crossed over that line, bye bye."

Weymouth, 33, of San Francisco, has been wandering in the wilderness for months, working odd jobs to earn just enough money to keep moving, said Police Chief Doug Katchatag in Unalakleet, a town on Norton Sound. Authorities said he flew to Little Diomed last week.

Big Diomed has no civilian inhabitants but the Soviet Union keeps a military base there. Americans normally are forbidden to travel to the island.

Litera said he contacted the FBI and immigration officials after Weymouth vanished. "They just expressed interest that if this guy does come back, they want to talk to him."

Katchatag said Weymouth spent a week in January at the Unalakleet police station. "If you sat down and talked to him, he was all right. But put him among a bunch of people, he was different. We had him under medical observation and had him work odd jobs to get his way paid home," he said.

Katchatag said Weymouth flew on to Nome from Unalakleet, where someone offered him a place to stay.

Insurer wheels out new policy for sober drivers

NEW YORK (AP) — An automobile insurance policy that rewards people by refunding a portion of their premiums if they refrain from driving while drunk began today in one state, Sentry Insurance announced.

Sentry's "Payback" policy, which became available in Wisconsin today, was seen as a novel one by industry representatives. The company said it will soon seek approval for it from state regulators in Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Missouri and Ohio, and hopes to eventually offer the plan in about 20 states.

Some companies already offer policies with reduced premiums to drivers who don't drink or haven't had any alcohol-related traffic problems in the past. But Sentry's is believed to be the first with a payback feature.

To qualify, drivers must have a clean driving record for the prior three years, meaning no tickets for moving violations and not being involved in an accident in which they were legally at fault.

It also requires policyholders to be at least 25 years old and promise to forfeit collision and uninsured motorist coverage if they get into an accident while legally drunk. Coverage for liability and medical claims would not be forfeited.

A person is considered intoxicated under Wisconsin law if their blood alcohol level is at least 0.1 percent.

If a policyholder has no claims against his or her policy for five years, Sentry would begin to return half of the premium payments. In the sixth year, for example, the policyholder would receive back 50 percent of the premiums paid in the first year of the policy.

Ambassador silent on plans after five years on the job

MEXICO CITY (AP) — U.S. Ambassador John Gavin is stepping down May 15 after five years in which he drew frequent but, as he once said, predictable criticism as head of the largest U.S. diplomatic mission in the world.

The former actor, whose 55th birthday is today, made the surprise announcement Monday and gave no hint of his future plans except that he would "return to the private sector ... to meet new challenges."

In his letter of resignation, Gavin said that although he had been asked to stay on until President Reagan completes his term, his resignation would take effect in mid-May.

Embassy officials said they had no information on what Gavin would do after leaving Mexico, and there was no information on who might replace him. One name that surfaced in the past as a possible successor was Harry Shlaudeman, one of Reagan's special envoys for Central America.

The Mexican government has said nothing officially about Gavin's announcement.

But Mexican Sen. Miguel Borge Martin, a member of the Mexican delegation to an organization of U.S. and Mexican legislators, was quoted by the government news agency Notimex as saying Gavin's departure "will propitiate the designation of a career diplomat that will broaden the bilateral relations."

In Washington, the Council on Hemispheric Affairs, a private non-profit group that seeks to expand interest in inter-American affairs, said in a statement that "Gavin's ambassadorship was characterized by flagrant interference in the domestic affairs of Mexico."

"He continued a long tradition in which unprepared political cronies of U.S. presidents have gone to Latin America and behaved more as proconsuls than diplomatic emissaries, in a manner that would never be tolerated in any European capital," the statement said.

Before his diplomatic appointment, Gavin was best known as an actor who appearing in Alfred Hitchcock's "Psycho" and other films. At the time of his appointment in March 1981, he had been slated to appear in a Broadway revival of the musical "Can-Can."

Gavin had been president of the Screen Actors Guild for two terms, and became acquainted with Reagan there.

He preferred to note his academic, private enterprise and public service qualifications for the ambassador's post, including studying Latin American economies at Stanford University.

His mother was born in the northwestern border state of Sonora, and Gavin speaks fluent Spanish.

Although heading about 1,200 U.S. and Mexican employees in the Embassy here and nine consulates, Gavin maintained a low profile early in his tenure.

In mid-1983, however, he became more outspoken and decided to tackle what he called "merchants of disinformation" who played on fears about U.S. influence here.

Last year, local commentators accused Gavin of interfering in a domestic matter when, a few days after the Sept. 19 earthquake that devastated parts of Mexico City, the ambassador told a press conference he believed up to 10,000 people may have been killed.

At the time, Mexican authorities' own estimates were closer to 1,000 to 2,000, although the official count has since risen to about 9,000.

Gavin appeared to take such criticisms in stride. He once told The Associated Press that Mexican criticism of his remarks as interventionist were "predictable" and "part of the job." He said that critics sometimes tried to deflect attention from serious issues by making him a scapegoat.

Gavin said his dealings with President Miguel de la Madrid and other Mexican officials "even when we have discussed difficult issues, have always been candid, amicable and mutually respectful. No less, of course, is to be expected of the representatives of two great and friendly nations."

Bentsen: trade cooperation would benefit Mexico-U.S.

McALLEN, Texas (AP) — Mexico is becoming less protectionist and is encouraging foreign investment as it tries to rebound from the falling price of oil that jeopardizes even more that nation's troubled economy, U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen said.

Bentsen, D-Texas, told the U.S. International Trade Commission on Monday that he had stressed the importance of twin plants during last week's visit with Mexican President Miguel de la Madrid, his cabinet and industrialists.

"There is a feeling on the part of Mexico that they cannot continue to remain isolated and insulated on trade and they cannot remain as protectionist as they have been in the past," Bentsen told a news conference later.

"They are encouraging more foreign investment and that I see as a great plus."

The twin-plant concept involves companies manufacturing products in U.S. border cities and then sending those products to their sister plants in a Mexican border city for assembly.

The majority of the finished products then are marketed to the United States, duty free, Bentsen said.

He said sending the products to Third World or European countries would help oil-dependent Mexico and the United States, which last year recorded a $148 billion trade deficit.

"We can attract capital here and it shouldn't be just trading with each other," Bentsen said.

"We produce products in this area that can be sold to other countries around the world. You've got a very competitive force here. The quality of the product is excellent."

Other businessmen told the commission the importance and the difficulties of trade along the border.

McAllen Mayor Othal Brand, chairman of the board of Griffin & Brand, said he would like to see more bridge personnel to speed up movement of produce-carrying trucks from Mexico into the United States.

"It takes too long to get back and forth across the river," said Brand, whose fruit and vegetable company has expanded operations into Central America.

Others told the commission that Mexican regulations prohibiting U.S. truckers and fruits and vegetables into that country has hurt business.

Bentsen said the Mexican economy weakened after peso devaluations in 1982, gained ground last year, but is losing because of the price of oil.

Bentsen said the depressed Mexican economy will decrease the U.S.-Mexico trade about $4.5 billion.

McAllen has the largest foreign trade zone, but unemployment in the area is very high and Bentsen stressed the importance of the twin plants.

"We have here a great resource. We have here a willing and able people wanting to work. All they need is the tools to do it," Bentsen said. "It doesn't make any sense for U.S. companies to go to ... Taiwan or to South Korea. The wage scale on the Mexican side is extremely competitive for that."

There also was talk about a free trade zone.

"Believe me when I tell you," said Mike Herrera III, publisher of the Laredo Morning Times, "that we would like to envision a job market on the border that includes services as brokerage

WASHINGTON (AP) — Setting aside federal money for minority- or female-owned businesses has been of little help to disadvantaged enterprises and has led to fraud and increased costs to government, a draft report by the staff of the U.S. Civil Rights Commission says.

The paper urges a year-long moratorium on the "set-aside" programs. Al Latham, staff director of the commission, said Monday night.

Latham said that the 96-page report says the programs — under which the government sets aside percentages of money or work for minority businesses — have usually helped wealthier black and Hispanic employers and have been marked by fraud and corruption.

ACT I sets dinner theatre performance

By CATHY SPAULDING
Staff Writer

A generation of change in society, politics, fashions and morals is reflected in the lives of two long-time lovers in ACT I's production of Bernard Slade's comedy Same Time, Next Year.

The play, which was turned into a movie starring Alan Alda and Ellen Burstyn, will be presented at a dinner theater Friday and Saturday at the Starlight Room of the Coronado Inn. Dinner will be served at 6:30 p.m. with showtime at 7:30 p.m.

This two person production introduces Pampa audiences to Amarillo actor Brent Biles, the assistant manager of the El Artiano gift shop. The Spearman native has performed in more than 40 plays in Amarillo, Connecticut and New York. His Connecticut connection was a dinner theater while his New York experience comes from a theater group.

"We performed at a nunnery," he said. "It was kind of a country fair type thing."

His co-star in this intimate romance, Pampa's Kelly Barker, makes her debut on an ACT I stage, but she was active in drama and musical groups in high school. An employee of Simmons & Simmons optical, she performed in such plays as The Miracle Worker and Hello Dolly in high school at San Bernardino, Calif. Guys and Dolls at Pampa High School and Our Town at West Texas State University.

She returned to Pampa in 1985, partly because she heard about ACT I.

"I went to see the ACT I production of Mary, Mary, and I knew I had to get involved," she said.

Kent Godfrey, an employee of Lights and Sights, is directing the production.

Same Time, Next Year looks at the lives of two people, Doris and George, who meet at a vacation cottage one day a year for an annual rendezvous. Both are happily married to other people and they share news about their families with each other. The play takes them through such joys and crises as pregnancy, loose teeth, impotence, parenthood, middle-age, economic ups and downs and death.

But the play is more than just a look at two people. It is a look at how society has changed.

The lovers meet in 1950, when the post World War II baby boom is still in full force and Americans were flocking to the suburbs. This suburban state of mind is still seen when the audience meets the lovers again in 1956 and 1960, when Doris is pregnant.

But by 1965, times have changed. America is in the midst of the Vietnam War, and Doris and George are both affected by the war in deep ways. The emerging role of women in the workplace is examined in 1970 and the post-Watergate disillusionment is shown in 1975.

Interspersed in these scenes are slides showing the major events which occurred during the past 25 years, and the variety of music that filled the airwaves.

In the course of the play, the actors age from their mid-20s to their late 50s.

Barker is challenged by such a role because, she said, "I have a high pitched voice. And I'll probably have the same voice when I'm 50. But I have to show the age in the show."

Biles agrees that aging will be a challenge, but he adds that the performance will be helped by make-up.

That challenge falls on make-up technician Pat Conklin of Hair for Tomorrow. Another challenge is finding such costumes as fringe vests, go-go boots, beads and peace symbols and knowing just how wide lapels and how long skirts were in 1955, 1960 and 1975. Peggy Hunter, manager of Sammons Communications, is in charge of costumes.

Godfrey and John Potts designed the set. Potts also designed the lighting.

Reservations may be made by calling 665-7213.

For season ticket holders, the cost for the dinner prior to the show is $9. Cost for the dinner and show for non-season ticket holders is $15; for the show only, the price is $6.

COMFORTING MOMENT - Doris, played by Kathy Barker, comforts George, portrayed by Brent Biles, during the 1955 scene from ACT I's production of Same Time Next Year. The dinner theatre will be presented Friday and Saturday. (Staff photo by Cathy Spaulding)

Dear Abby

Airline gives accomodation to heavyweight passenger

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1986 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: A reader recently recommended a solution for fat people who couldn't fit into a regular seat on a commercial airline: Buy two coach seats and remove the arm rest between them. For some heavyweights, that may not be enough.

I submit the following Associated Press release, March 6:

"FRANKFURT, West Germany—Japan Air Lines removed six seats from the first-class section of a Boeing 747 Wednesday to make room for an 875-pound man flying to Tokyo.

"Albert Pernitsch, 29, of Graz, Austria, claims to be the world's heaviest man. He told reporters at Frankfurt airport that he was traveling to Japan to exhibit himself at a Tokyo fair.

"Japan Air Lines removed six seats and reinforced the plane's floor to install a special seat for Pernitsch, airport spokeswoman Sigrun Weiss said.

"They also installed a toilet with a desk-sized seat concealed by a curtain and a specially designed safety belt for the extra-large passenger, she said.

"A Japan Air Lines spokesman in Frankfurt declined to say how much Pernitsch paid for his flight."

VERMONT READER

DEAR READER: At least no one had to ask, "Where's the beef?" It was in first class.

DEAR ABBY: I would like to respond to "William in Butler, Pa.," who describes himself as "34, fairly good-looking, unemployed and tired of being turned down by greedy women because I'm broke."

I am a 36-year-old single woman, and although I would dearly love to meet a nice man, I, too, would hesitate to date a man like William. I'm not after anyone's money, as I have a good job and can support myself. It's just that I expect an adult person to work.

William, if you are unemployed because you were recently laid off from your job, you have my sympathy. But perhaps your priority at this time should be finding another job, rather than trying to date.

Are you unemployed because you dropped out of high school, or never bothered to get any vocational or professional training? No sympathy. Get some.

Are you unemployed because you refuse to take any of the low-paying jobs that seem to be available right now? No sympathy. Check the want ads. Any job is better than no job.

Are you unemployed because you are physically disabled? I personally know paraplegics and quadriplegics who hold down good jobs that require mental and verbal skills. This goes for deaf and blind people, too, who develop their skills. No sympathy.

Maybe the women who refuse to date you are not greedy. They may assume that you lack motivation. Or perhaps they are afraid to try a relationship that they may have to finance. My advice—stop whining and get a job. Nobody likes a loafer.

DUTCH TREAT IN MASTIC, N.Y.

DEAR ABBY: I am writing in connection with the letter concerning the cousins who came to a wedding celebration and filled their plastic bags with food to take home. You said it wasn't proper.

Your answer was right on the button, but this problem was discussed 3,500 years ago, and the answer can be found in the Old Testament in Deuteronomy 23:24: "When thou comest into thy neighbor's vineyard, then thou mayest eat grapes, thy fill at thine own pleasure; but thou shalt not put any in thy vessel."

JENNIFER WHITE

Local Scout selected for cadette camp

Jennifer White of Pampa has been selected by Girl Scouts of America to attend "Cadettes on Horseback" in July in Wyoming.

The national event for girls ages 13-15 will be held at Girl Scout National Center West, a 14,000-acre site bordered by the Big Horn National Forest near Ten Sleep, Wyo.

A member of Troop 182, White also assists with Brownie Troop No. 215. A seventh grade student at Pampa Middle School, she is an acolyte at St. Matthew's Episcopal Church. Her hobbies include dancing and camping.

She is the daughter of Margaret and Jim White.

At Center West she will learn to ride and take care of a horse and learn to pack it for a primitive camping adventure. Other activities will include fishing, exploring the canyons, caves and mesas of the area, attending a rodeo and learning about western life.

Career Fair scheduled in Amarillo

AMARILLO - Amarillo College will co-sponsor a Student Career Fair on Wednesday and Thursday, April 16 and 17, at the Amarillo Sheraton in conjunction with West Texas State University, Texas State Technical Institute and Wayland Baptist University.

Designed particularly for soon-to-be-graduates, recent graduates or individuals in a job-change situation, the fair will feature exhibitions, booths manned by local and regional employers and seminar sessions conducted on topics such as job-seeking and occupational survival skills.

The Career Fair will provide actual professional exposure to an authentic job-seeking situation for participants. For this reason, there will be a preparatory workshop held Saturday, April 12, at the Amarillo Civic Center from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. to train individuals to successfully meet potential employers.

Workshop participants will learn and practice techniques for productive interviews, how to fill out a professional resume and other job-seeking skills.

Both the training workshop and the fair are open to the public free of charge.

Interested individuals are asked to go through the Saturday session to advance register for the Career Fair. For this participation, they will be entitled to have their professional resume printed in as many copies as they desire.

The evening of Wednesday, April 16, has been reserved as High School Improvement Night for the fair and will be devoted strictly to that age group, with a special keynote speaker geared toward the recent graduate.

The pilot effort at a conclusive career-search seminar will provide an opportunity both for job-seeking training for area residents in need of this type of assistance and also for exposure to a large number of potential local and regional employers.

Should it prove as valuable and well-received as anticipated, the Career Fair will be repeated on an annual basis, according to AC Counselor Mike Cleary, who is serving as Amarillo College liaison with members of the other co-sponsoring institutions.

AC Business Division Chairman Dr. Ben Findley also is actively participating in the community career service.

A sampling of local, regional and national businesses to be represented at the fair include Hertz Rental, Texas Instruments, Delta Airlines, General Motors, Apple and the Department of Corrections of the State Prisons System.

All local businesses currently hiring will be encouraged to participate, Cleary said.

Calling All Home Makers Brought To You By Aline Johnson

ARE YOU DECORATING ON A LIMITED BUDGET?

What can you do if your budget is limited, and yet you would still like to make your home more attractive and more comfortable?

Here's one way in which you can start on a program of beautifying your home without spending a great deal of money all at once.

You can begin your program by buying one thing at a time whenever you can, and thereby regularly and continually adding new dimensions to your home without a big strain on your budget.

You might want to start your decorating program with one bright chair to offset drabness of a living room.

Perhaps an attractive table lamp would make a great difference.

Maybe you could use a handsome, framed mirror to hang over your sofa, credenza or dresser.

You may have been thinking about replacing your old cocktail table with a pair of the new smaller tables.

Or, how about an elegant headboard to replace the ordinary looking bedstead you're now using? This important thing is to think about a regular program of making your home ever more attractive, and starting when you can. When you are ready to shop, we are here to help you.

Antique clock up to old ticks

By MELANIE DEVAULT
Allentown Morning Call

ALLENTOWN, Pa. (AP) — It began ticking in the year that Napoleon's armies were defeated at Waterloo — 1815.

"It worked through so much history of the world, the history of our country, the Civil War, World War I and II, the Depression, Vietnam," said Ethel Anthony of Catasauqua about a family heirloom, a 171-year-old French movement clock.

So when the clock stopped ticking about 10 years ago, Anthony said, "I thought of all this history it had been through. I couldn't see it being thrown out; it deserved a little more life."

She began taking the clock, admittedly in a poor state of health, to repair services and jewelers. She soon found that trying to get her treasured timepiece restored was a time-consuming endeavor.

"Nobody wanted to fix it. It was so old, they couldn't get parts. One antique clock repairman told me he couldn't get parts. And obviously no one would carry 171-year-old parts; they had to be made. I tried everybody in and near Allentown, Bethlehem and Easton," she said.

Finally in September 1981, Salomon Jewelers of Allentown agreed to work on the clock as employees had time.

Recently, the clock was returned to Anthony in perfect repair.

"Oh, it's good to hear it chime again," an excited Anthony said. The original bell, which she says chimes at the half-hour and on the hour, was still in good condition.

"I can't tell you what this means to me. One of the last things my Aunt Ethel Messnick ... heard before she died three years ago was that her clock would be fixed, and she smiled," Anthony said.

Her aunt's family brought the clock to New York from France and cherished it from generation to generation.

Gerhard Salomon said he and Faron Shade, an Allentown clockmaker, had good feelings about the clock now. tan.

AL Roundup

Gibson sparks Tigers

By the Associated Press

Kirk Gibson remembers happier times — say October 1984. He's thinking about a repeat of those glory days — in, say, October 1986.

Gibson got April 1986, and the American League baseball season, off to a rousing start for the Detroit Tigers on Monday. He went 4-for-4, including two prodigious homers, and drove in five runs. Gibson's two-run shot in the seventh inning lifted the Tigers past the Boston Red Sox 6-5.

"It was just too good to be true," said Gibson, who waved his glove at the cheering crowd when he returned to right field after the first homer, then tipped and doffed his cap after the second one.

"I put a lot of pressure on myself to justify all I went through over the winter," he added, referring to bitter contract negotiations with the Tigers. "The last day I can compare this with is the last game of the 1984 World Series. This doesn't happen very often."

In the fifth game of the '84 World Series Gibson also hit two homers and drove in five runs as Detroit beat the San Diego Padres 8-4 at Tiger Stadium to take the Series in five games.

In other AL openers Monday, it was Milwaukee 5, Chicago 3, and Cleveland 6, Baltimore 4.

Today's AL schedule had Kansas City at New York; Toronto at Texas; California at Seattle and Minnesota at Oakland.

Tigers 6, Red Sox 5

An opening day crowd of 51,437 roared its approval as Gibson slammed a pair of homers. That offset four home runs by the Red Sox, including one by Dwight Evans on the first pitch of the game from Tigers ace Jack Morris.

"I was prepared to swing at the first pitch," Evans said. "I plan to swing at the first pitch more often this year."

Morris didn't have his best stuff Monday, but he thought he'd at least be safe on the first pitch. "I couldn't believe," Morris said. "I had to smile he wouldn't at least take a pitch. It was a fast-ball over the plate. It was strike one, supposedly."

Thanks to Gibson, though, Morris wound up with a victory, despite his problems with the long ball.

Gibson's first homer came in the fourth when he smashed the first pitch from Bruce Hurst into the upper deck in center with Dave Collins on base to put Detroit ahead 4-2. He sped around the bases and gave Collins a lusty high-five at the plate.

"It was a very emotional moment," Gibson said.

Indians 6, Orioles 4

Rookie catcher Andy Allanson contributed three hits and drove in a run in his major-league debut and last-minute sub Mel Hall drove in two runs after starter Carmen Castillo aggravated a calf injury in practice.

Ernie Camacho, the Indians' top reliever in 1984 but out almost all of the '85 season with an elbow injury, earned a save.

"In the overall picture, Allanson was our catcher of the future," Manager Pat Corrales said, "but he became our catcher of the present by progressing a little faster than anticipated."

"This is something to be stored away for years to come," Allanson said. "My entire family was here."

Mike Flanagan was charged with five runs in two-plus innings. He walked three Indians and all three scored.

Brewers 5, White Sox 3

Home runs by Rob Deer and Ernest Riles off Tom Seaver — making his 16th Opening Day start — paced the Brewers and Ted Higuera, a 15-game winner as a rookie last season, picked up the victory.

Globe-News announces girls' all-state basketball teams

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — Four Levelland players and Loboettes coach Dean Weese head the list of Panhandle-area talent on the annual Amarillo Globe-News All-State Girls' Basketball teams.

Levelland's Kristi Schonerstedt, a 5-7 senior guard, and Kim Cavanaugh, a 5-10 junior forward, earned first-team honors on the Class 4A all-state team. They were joined on the first team by Canyon's 5-7 junior guard Amy Claborn, A&M Consolidated's 6-0 senior forward Nelda Roy and Dallas Adamson's Dedra Simpson, a 6-3 senior who was named the 4A player of the year.

Weese's team won the 4A state title, his second championship at Levelland and fifth in his high school career.

Dailene Terrell, a 5-10 junior center, and Terri Meyer, a 5-7 sharp-shooting junior guard, are the other Levelland players to land on the all-state team. Miss Terrell made the second team, Miss Meyer the third team.

Abernathy's Phoebe Dunn, who made the 2A first team last year, again earned first-team honors and was named the 2A player of the year after leading her team to the state title. Coach Pat Mouser, who took Abernathy to the title game in '85, was named the 2A coach of the year. He earned the 1A coaching honor at Whitharral with his '83 ballclub.

Sheila Cummings, Stratford's 6-0 center, earned her third consecutive berth on the 2A first team. Completing the first team are: Bovina's Marie Pesch, a 6-0 senior forward who will attend Texas next year; Morton's Reena Lynch, a 5-11 senior who signed to attend Texas Tech; and Reagan County's Leslie Gooch. Misses Pesch and Lynch were on last year's second team.

Bovina's Mindy Neal, a 6-1 junior forward, and Hale Center's Buffy Black, a 5-5 guard, made the second team. Mikki Webb, Abernathy's 5-6 junior guard, earned third team honors.

Snook's Connie Cole and Nazareth's Mona Heiman led the 1A all-state team.

Miss Cole, a 6-0 senior center, led Nazareth to the 1A title, dethroning Nazareth in the process. She earned the 1A player of the year honor by averaging 26.9 points and 12 rebounds per game, and shooting 57.5 percent from the field and 75.4 percent from the line. Leslie Yezak, who coached Miss Cole and the other Lady Bluejays, was named the 1A coach of the year in leading Snook to its first girls' state title.

Miss Heiman made the first-team for the second straight year and the all-state squad for the third year in a row. Teammate Kelly Schilling, a 5-10 forward, earned second-team honors after making the third team in 1985. Completing the first team are: Shonda Miller, a 5-7 senior forward from Aspermont; Elgin Katt, a 5-9 sophomore guard from Cross Plains; and Lisa Collins, a 5-3 sophomore guard from Lago Vista.

Cenee Gunter, Claude's 5-5 senior guard who was a second-team selection on the Globe-News Super Team, earned a second-team all-state berth. Wheeler's 5-11 junior forward Marlo Hartman made the third team.

Lisa McKittrick, a 6-2 senior center who led Ingleside to an upset win over then-defending Class 3A champion Vernon in the semifinals, heads the 3A first-team unit. Miss McKittrick, who is a 6-2 senior center from Ingleside, is the 3A player of the year.

Sour Lake Hardin-Jefferson coach Bruce Vaughn started two freshmen and three sophomores en route to the 3A state title. Vaughn, who was in his first year as head coach at H-J, is the 3A coach of the year.

Stephanie Edwards, a 5-8 sophomore forward who keyed Hardin-Jefferson's title drive, made the first team and is one of three H-J players on the all-state team: Ramona Jones, a 5-5 freshman who made second-team guard, and sister Antonette Jones, a 5-7 sophomore who made second-team forward.

Completing the first team are: Gilmer's 5-3 senior Dee Dee Palmer, who averaged a quadruple double (double figures in scoring, rebounding, assists and steals) and led her team to the final four; Vernon's 5-6 senior guard Stacie Scott, who is a repeater on the first team and whose team's hopes for back-to-back state titles were dashed by Ingleside; and Refugio's 5-10 senior forward Mary Ann Whitmire.

River Road's Michelle Moon, a 5-5 senior guard, is the Panhandle-area's lone representative on the 3A all-state team. She made the third-team unit.

Class 5A state champion Victoria, 1985 champion Dallas South Oak Cliff and Tyler Lee dominated 5A ball in '86. Seven players representing the three teams made the all-state squad. Victoria coach Jan Lahodny, who won her third state title, is the 5A coach of the year.

Point guard Alexis Ware, a 5-6 senior from Victoria, and Lisa Dark, a 5-10 forward from Tyler Lee, made the first team. They were joined by player of the year Aaron Farris, a 5-11 senior from Fort Worth Arlington Heights; Stacy Siebert, a 6-4 senior center from Harlingen; and Lyssa McBryde, a 5-7 senior guard from League City Clear Creek.

Victoria had two other players on the unit: Karen Gaskin, a 5-11 senior forward who made the second squad, and Tisha Boldt, a 5-11 senior center who made the third team. Two South Oak Cliff players made the second team: 4-10 junior point guard Chandra Dismuke and 5-6 junior forward Renee Island. Tyler Lee's Jana Crosby, a 5-6 senior guard, made the second team.

Laura Supak, a 5-8 senior guard who led Lubbock Monterey into the Region 1-5A tournament, was selected onto the third team. Misses Ware, Farris, Boldt and Supak were the lone underclassmen on last year's 5A all-state team.

Golfers still want course

The Pampa Public Golf Association met Tuesday night in the Gray County Courthouse and agreed to continue trying to find a way to build a public golf course in Pampa despite recent setbacks.

Association President Buddy Epperson has made unsuccessful efforts to gain financial aid for the proposed 18-hole course through state grants, the American Golf Corporation and matching funds. Epperson, however, has spent the past seven months meeting with City Manager Bob Hart and Gray County Judge Carl Kennedy on another alternative.

Epperson said 80 acres of city-owned property north of the city landfill is available for a course and the county could donate equipment and crews to help with the construction during idle hours. Epperson said charter members would donate their time to build the course.

A parcel of land in the Rolling Hills addition north of Pampa was the original site of a public course, but Epperson said the owner requested that the Association have $1.5 million in reserve before construction started on the course.

"We just don't have that kind of money," Epperson added.

Epperson said the Association currently has $95,000 dollars from charter memberships and contributors in a savings account. He also said the county has certificates of deposit that could be available if additional funds were needed.

"I want to point out to the taxpayers that there won't be a tax increase to do this and a golf course is going to bring a lot of business into Pampa," Epperson added.

Association members agreed on Epperson's request to meet the Gray County Commissioners at their regular session April 15 and get their feelings on the proposal. Epperson then would try and set up a meeting between the county commissioners and Association members for further discussion on the matter.

"Basically, we want to try to get some equipment help and get the land designated for the construction of a public golf course," Epperson said. "The land would belong to the city or county, however they would want the operation set up. The Association would then pay rent on the land or lease it."

The Association was formed in 1983 when several local golfers felt Pampa would support a public course without having a tax increase.

"The volunteer manhours we put in on this is going to be a big factor if we're going to be successful," Epperson said. "If we can get a lot of people to work on the course, then hopefully we can get some corporations or businesses to donate money."

Epperson said most of the local golfers are tired of going to Borger, Canadian and other places to play golf.

"I don't think our merchants realize that a golf course would bring a lot of people to town," Epperson said. "Not just to play golf, but to shop also."

Most of those present agreed to follow through with plans to construct the course until every avenue is exhausted.

"We've come far to back out now," said a charter member.

LA, Reds win openers

By BARRY WILNER
AP Sports Writer

Fernando Valenzuela and Steve Carlton make a habit of Opening Day starts. Valenzuela likely will continue that tradition. Carlton probably won't.

At least after Monday's performance, it would seem that way. The 25-year-old Valenzuela handcuffed San Diego, allowing 10 hits but striking out nine and going the route in a 2-1 Los Angeles Dodgers victory.

Carlton, meanwhile, struggled for four innings, surrendering nine hits and all of Cincinnati's runs as the Reds beat Philadelphia 7-4. Carlton, 41, tied Tom Seaver's National League record with his 14th Opening Day start. But, coming off a shoulder injury which sidelined him for most of 1985, Carlton's future is a question mark.

While the two left-handed pitchers had markedly different debuts Monday, the rest of the NL waited until tonight to begin. The schedule has the New York Mets at Pittsburgh, Montreal at Atlanta, Chicago at St. Louis, San Francisco at Houston and a rematch between the Padres and Dodgers.

Dodgers 2, Padres 1

Valenzuela had a superb spring and he continued his mastery in the opener before 49,444 fans. Making his fourth straight Opening Day start and fifth in six years, he was reached for a run in the ninth on singles by Kevin McReynolds, Steve Garvey and Garry Templeton.

"I felt good the whole game, in the ninth inning, too," Valenzuela said. "This was my best spring. My control was good in the spring and today, I threw my curveballs for strikes."

In 31 innings of pre-season work, Valenzuela allowed only two earned runs for an 0.58 earned run average.

Mike Marshall homered and scored both Los Angeles runs.

"I really wasn't concerned about not hitting any homers during the spring," Marshall said. "It's just different down there (in Florida). I work on a lot of things to get ready for the season."

Reds 7, Phillies 4

"The extra run gave Fernando a cushion. It's important to get him off to a fast start. He's capable of having a monster year."

Despite an erratic performance by starter Mario Soto, who still earned his fourth consecutive victory in an opener, Cincinnati had too much for Philadelphia and Carlton. Soto's fielding error aided the Phillies' three-run first.

Bean optimistic about chances

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Andy Bean is neither coy nor bashful about assessing his chances this week in the 50th Masters golf championship.

"As good as anybody that tees it up — maybe better than that," Bean said.

There's a reason for his bounding, unabashed confidence going into Thursday's start of the first of the season's recognized major championships.

"To win this golf tournament, you have to putt well. There's no two ways about it. You just have to putt well," said the big, red-haired man known to his fellow tourists as "Li'l Abner."

And right now, Bean is putting better. A lot better.

"I'm putting much better than I have in the last three, four, five years," Bean said before a practice round over the hilly fairways and undulating greens of Augusta National.

Earlier this season, he had consecutive tournament finishes of second and first — and wasn't putting well at the time.

"When you can do that, play that well with a bunch of three-putts, then you've got to be hitting a lot of good shots. Then, when you can put those good shots together with good putting, look out," Bean said.

His 1986 victory, at Doral, snapped a two-year non-winning streak for the 6-foot-4, 220-pound Bean and provided him with the 10th triumph of his 11-year career.

He followed up with a strong, come-from-behind bid that fell just short last week at Greensboro, N.C., a performance that pushed him into the No. 3 spot on the year's money-winning list with more than $216,000 and stamped him as a force to be considered this week.

"I did play well. And that gave me a very positive attitude coming into Augusta," said Bean, who reeled off a string of four consecutive birdies in his last-round bid to overtake Greater Greensboro Open winner Sandy Lyle.

He had a 12-foot putt to tie on the 18th hole. And he missed it.

Explosion rocks Lebanese city

JOUNIEH, Lebanon (AP) — A car bomb exploded today about 50 yards from offices of President Amin Gemayel's Phalange Party in this Christian port's main square, and police said at least 10 people were killed and 35 wounded.

Officials reported 10 charred bodies were dragged from the rubble of two high-rise buildings and 35 wounded people were taken to a hospital.

Police said they believe many people were buried in the debris of shops and supermarkets in the main square of the city, 13 miles north of Beirut in the Christian heartland.

Rescue teams clawed through the wreckage as cars and shops burned. Christian militiamen sealed off the devastated square, firing their U.S.-made M-16 rifles in the air to clear the way for ambulances.

Police said most of the casualties were employees of the Credit Libanais and Brazilian banks in the two buildings.

The Central High School and the Saint Famille school were damaged by the explosion, but there were no reports of injured students or teachers.

The square was packed with shoppers and employees leaving their offices for their lunch break when the bomb exploded at 1:05 p.m. (6:05 a.m. EST), police reported.

Jounieh police appealed for help from civil defense and Red Cross teams in Beirut to extinguish fires and rescue victims.

Christian east Beirut has been battered by a chain of bombings since pro-Israeli Christian militiamen cracked down on Syrian-backed rivals in a bloody power struggle Jan. 15.

But today's blast was the first in Jounieh, the Christians' main outlet to the Mediterranean.

At least 50 people have been killed and more than 300 wounded in the earlier bombings.

The last such explosion occurred in east Beirut's main residential neighborhood of Ashrafieh on March 26, killing 10 people and wounding 80.

Most of the attacks were outside offices of Gemayel's Phalange Party. The right-wing militia led the January crackdown against Elie Hobeika, a dissident Christian militia commander who had signed a Syrian-sponsored peace pact with Moslem chieftains. The Dec. 28 accord was aimed at ending Lebanon's 11-year-old civil war.

Texas briefs

AUSTIN (AP) — A 9-year-old Austin boy was in stable condition Monday after being shot while he and a second child were playing with a .357 Magnum revolver, police said.

The boy, identified by police as Daniel Moore, was in the intensive care unit at Brackenridge Hospital with a gunshot wound to the arm, said Susan Martinez, nursing supervisor.

Moore was shot in the upper right arm Sunday evening in an apartment at the complex where he lives. The 12-year-old was identified as the son of a Travis County deputy sheriff, said Police Sgt. Bill Alderfer. "He (the 12-year-old) was showing the boy a rifle ... that was partly disassembled and then he showed him his mother's gun, and he was pointing it in different directions and it went off," Alderfer said.

The policeman said the shooting appeared to be accidental.

David Moore, the boy's father, said his son was in surgery for four hours Sunday night.

ROBERT REDFORD ROD STEIGER

Names in News

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Actor Rod Steiger said he was afraid terrorists might harm him after a photographer took his picture in a street here, according to a published report.

Steiger, who is in Israel to do a film about the exploits of a crack Israeli security agency, told the photographer "don't publish the picture. The terrorists will get at me," the daily Hadashot reported Monday.

The Oscar-winning film star is playing in a Canadian-Israeli co-production called "Gideon's Sword," which recounts some of the recent exploits of Israel's counter-espionage organization, the Mossad, in the war against terrorism.

SUNDANCE, Utah (AP) — Actor Robert Redford says he opposes lengthening a four-lane highway through Provo Canyon even though it would improve access to his ski resort.

"For me the canyon is symbolic of many things, and it's something that I want to preserve," said Redford, who moved to Utah 22 years ago and owns Sundance Resort.

Last summer, state crews widened the entrance to the canyon and built a four-lane road reaching four miles into the canyon, the site of at least six fatal accidents during the past two months. Plans call for continuing the four lanes even further.

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Occidental Petroleum Corp. Chairman Armand Hammer has contributed $100,000 to the earthquake damaged General Hospital and promised to continue helping it rebuild. Hammer and representatives from the UCLA Medical Center toured the spacious hospital complex Monday with "Miami Vice" star Edward James Olmos, who represented a group of Floridians interested in helping earthquake victims. The hospital's eight-story gynecological wing and adjoining residence for physicians collapsed during the Sept. 19 earthquake, killing scores of doctors, staff members and patients.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Actress Ann Jillian, singer Teddy Pendergrass, Edward M. Kennedy Jr. and Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole have received awards for demonstrating the ability to overcome serious handicaps. The awards were presented Monday as part of a benefit for the National Rehabilitation Hospital.

Miss Jillian recently underwent a double mastectomy. Pendergrass was partially paralyzed in an automobile accident. Kennedy, the son of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., lost his right leg because of cancer, and Dole, R-Kan., has only partial use of his right arm, which was shattered by gunfire during World War II combat.

TOKYO (AP) — A spring visit to the United States by Crown Prince Akihito and Princess Michiko will be postponed several months so the princess can recover from surgery, reports said today.

The two-week visit planned for late May will be put off until autumn, the Asahi Shimbun nationwide daily quoted Imperial Household agency officials as saying. Kyodo news service also reported the delay.

The 51-year-old princess is recovering in the Imperial Hospital from a successful March 24 operation to remove a tumor in her uterus, an Imperial Household official who refused to be identified quoted her doctors as saying. Imperial Household officials refused to comment on the reports, saying a visit has not been officially announced.

Public Notices

CITATION BY PUBLICATION

TO: The Unknown Heirs of Marjorie Parker Lutten, Deceased, and those heirs suffering legal disability and to all persons interested in the Estate of Marjorie Parker Lutten, Deceased. You are hereby commanded to be and appear before the County Court of Gray County, Texas, at the courthouse thereof in the City of Pampa, Texas, at or before 10:00 a.m. on the first Monday after the expiration of ten (10) days from the date of publication of this citation, then and there to answer to the application of Bob R. Carmichael, Administrator, filed in the said County Court on the 3rd day of April, 1986, for the appointment of a final settlement, authority to pay attorney's fees and to determine who are the heirs and only heirs of the said Marjorie Parker Lutten, Deceased, and their respective shares and interests in such estate. The said Administrator alleges that the heirs of the said Marjorie Parker Lutten, Deceased, are unknown to the Applicant. Said suit is Cause No. 5716 on the docket of the County Court of Gray County, Texas, and the nature of said suit is to determine the heirs of the said Marjorie Parker Lutten, Deceased, to authorize payment of attorney's fees, and to approve and settle the account for final settlement and to authorize the distribution of the estate of the heirs of the said Marjorie Parker Lutten, if any, and if none, the Administrator will be ordered to pay said estate to the Treasurer of the State of Texas.

All said persons interested in said estate are hereby cited to appear before said Honorable Court at said above mentioned time and place by filing a written answer and petition for application should they desire to do so. Given under my hand and seal of said Court of office in Pampa, Gray County, Texas, this 3rd day of April, 1986.

Wanda Carter, Clerk of the County Court of Gray County, Texas A-69 April 8, 1986

1 Card of Thanks

GLADYS D. COMSTOCK We would like to express our sincere appreciation and gratitude to the people of McLean and The Pentecostal Holiness Church, Pampa and everyone for your loving compassion and help during the loss of our beloved wife and mother.

Reverend Walter L. Comstock and Family

GM regains crown as symbol of corporate America; Exxon No. 2

NEW YORK (AP) — The dropping oil market greased the skids as Exxon Corp. slipped from atop the Fortune 500 list of biggest U.S. industrial corporations, allowing General Motors Corp. back into the top spot after a six-year absence.

Fortune magazine said Monday that GM's revenue last year of $96.4 billion, an all-time high, easily lifted the automaker over New York-based Exxon, which had revenue of $86.7 billion and was bumped into second place.

The Time Inc. business publication, which first put out the list in 1955, compiles it on the basis of annual revenue. GM held the No. 1 spot for the first 20 years but Exxon dethroned it in 1975, when oil companies were profiting immensely from the energy crisis.

GM regained the title in 1978, held it in 1979, dropped to No. 2 in 1980, slid to No. 3 behind Exxon and Mobil Corp. in 1981 and 1982 and moved back to No. 2 in 1983 and remained there in 1984.

In an advance release of the list's annual publication in its April 28 issue, Fortune said the latest ranking reflected serious troubles in U.S. industry, which has been struggling because of fierce foreign competition.

The depressed oil market forced most big U.S. petroleum companies down in rank, with the exception of Mobil, which retained the No. 3 spot because of its acquisition of Superior Oil Co., and Chevron Corp., which moved from No. 11 to No. 7 because of its takeover of Gulf Oil Corp.

Texaco Inc. was bumped from No. 5 to No. 6 by International Business Machines Corp., Amoco Corp. fell from 10th to 11th and Shell Oil Co. fell from 13th to 14th. In addition, lower revenue from Du Pont Co.'s Conoco Inc. subsidiary pushed it from seventh to ninth.

Elsewhere among the top 10, Ford Motor Co. remained at No. 4, AT&T repeated at No. 8 and General Electric Co. fell to No. 10, down from No. 9.

In other business and economic news, the director of the Office of Management and Budget says the drop in the U.S. inflation rate during President Reagan's tenure in the White House has surpassed the expectations of even his most optimistic advisers.

"The recent progress has been greater than we had seen," OMB director James Miller said Monday in an address to the Chicago Mercantile Exchange and the Chicago Board of Trade.

Miller said the outlook for inflation may hinge on whether Congress accepts the spending cuts in the administration's proposed budget for fiscal 1987, which starts Oct. 1, 1986.

On Monday, oil prices climbed as a caterers strike idled Norway's North Sea rigs, shutting off the country's offshore output.

Contracts for May delivery of West Texas Intermediate, the benchmark U.S. crude, rose $1.59 to close at $14.33 a 42-gallon barrel on the New York Mercantile Exchange.

The financial markets weakened in response to the oil price rebound.

On Wall Street, the stock market posted its third straight loss.
