Superpowers to scrap missiles

Reagan, Gorbachev plan summit

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and Soviet Union have reached an "agreement in principle" to ban medium- and shorter-range nuclear missiles and have agreed that President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev will hold a summit before the end of the year, Reagan announced today.

The treaty — Reagan's first arms accord with the Soviet Union — would be the first to ever ban an entire class of nuclear weapons.

Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze called the agreement "a common success for all mankind, for all civilization."

The president said Secretary of State George Shultz and Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze, who settled major differences in a 9½-hour negotiating session Thursday, will meet in Moscow next month to work out the rest of the details and set the date and agenda for a summit in the United States, presumably in Washington.

In a nationally televised announcement at the White House, Reagan said that the three days of U.S.-Soviet talks in Washington showed the two sides "have serious differences in many areas, (but) the tone of the talks was frank and constructive and notable progress was made."

"I'm pleased to note that an agreement in principle was reached to conclude an INF treaty" and to work out details for a summit with Soviet General Secretary Gorbachev "later this fall."

Shevardnadze, at a news conference at the Soviet Embassy minutes after Reagan's nationally televised announcement, noted that he and Shultz had met hours beyond their original plan and said,

"The road to an agreement ... turned out to be more difficult than anyone had thought."

The ban would eliminate missiles with a range of 315 miles to 3,125 miles.

The treaty requires the dismantling of 332 U.S. missiles in West Germany, Britain, Italy and Belgium that are aimed at the Soviet Union. In return, the Soviets would destroy 462 missiles targeted on Western Europe and another 221 pointed at China and Japan.

Shultz said the two sides disagreed on the timetable for withdrawal of the missiles, but "the difference is essentially technical."

Death probe awaits tests at FBI lab

By PAUL PINKHAM
Senior Staff Writer

A police investigation into the 2-week-old shooting death of a Pampa man in his Doyle Street mobile home is "on hold" — awaiting lab test results from the FBI.

The wait is symbolic of the frustration that has plagued police since the body of Edward Allan Patterson, 533 N. Doyle St., was found inside the trailer the afternoon of Sept. 2.

Even the dead man's stepson, whom police once referred to as their only suspect in the slaying, is no longer being called a suspect, at least not officially.

Patterson's body was found by his employer, Earl Tarbet of Enron Corp., after the man failed to report for work Sept. 2. The 37-year-old oilfield measurement technician had been shot numerous times in the head. He had been dead since early that morning, an autopsy indicated.

Tarbet also noticed that his employee's company truck was missing from the driveway of the trailer home, which Patterson shared with his stepson.

The stepson, N. Mike Patterson, 16, was found driving the company truck in Monahans, about 350 miles from the Patterson home. Police in Monahans took the teen-ager into custody after recognizing the Enron truck, which had been the subject of an all-points bulletin issued by the Texas Department of Public Safety.

The youth was brought back to Pampa for questioning, but refused to answer any questions on the advice of his attorney, Jim Bobo of Odessa. Police released him to his mother, a kindergarten teacher in Midland.

All that detectives were able to get from the youth were blood

School bosses attend meet

SAN ANTONIO — They're a little late to see the pope, who was here last Sunday, but area school officials are heading to San Antonio this weekend to attend their annual convention.

Trustees and administrators from Pampa, White Deer, Miami, Lefors and other area schools are leaving today and Saturday to attend the annual Texas Association of School Boards and Texas Association of School Administrators convention in San Antonio.

Three Pampa school officials will be doing double duty at the meeting as they present or serve on group sessions there.

Pampa Superintendent Dr. Harry Griffith will present a group session "Planning for Success." His session will feature proper evaluation of programs as an important step toward improving involvement and communication among staff, students, trustees and the community.

Pampa Trustee Jim Duggan will be chairman over a "mock career ladder hearing." Lonnie Richardson will chair a panel on career development.

School board President Joe VanZandt was to sit over a program on how to find scarce teachers, but the session is on Monday and school officials were scheduled to leave San Antonio Sunday.

"We'll have to work up a trade," VanZandt said. "These are pretty big sessions," Griffith said, adding that the training provided at the sessions is required by the state.

Pampa Trustee Dr. Keith Teague will be the voting delegate representing Pampa. Trustees John Curry and Coleen Hamilton will also attend the convention.

Griffith said the Pampa delegation will stay at the downtown Hyatt, a hotel which was picked by a

Fire marshal deputizes robot

By LARRY HOLLIS

Children will have a new friend visiting them in school this fall to tell them to be careful with matches and fires.

The city of Pampa Fire Marshal's Office has a "new employee" to help with its fire prevention and safety programs.

Standing 5 feet 2 inches tall and weighing 145 pounds, the new employee is a robot.

Fire Marshal Tom Adams said the robot, which arrived in Pampa Tuesday night, was scheduled to make its first public appearance at the Pampa Mall today.

"I think it will make an impact on the kids," Adams said, adding that the children probably will remember messages more when the robot speaks to them.

That's right. The robot talks. And moves. And provides special sound effects, including fire engine sirens. And the face area has flashing red lights.

Adams said the Aries III model robot has no name yet. Until it has a name, it will often be referred to as "Aries."

But even without a name, it will begin appearing in public to tell children — and any adults who see and hear it — about fire prevention tips.

After the robot's arrival Tuesday evening,

Adams and firefighter Calvin Farmer worked on it and introduced it to other city employees at a department heads' meeting Wednesday morning. Then it was introduced to the news media.

Adams and Farmer recently attended a training meeting for using the robot in Atlanta, Ga., where the robot was designed by Creative Systems and sold through dealers 21st Century Robotics. There they learned how to use the robot and to repair it, if needed.

"He's going to be a lot of fun," Farmer said, adding that the robot will be used frequently. The robot has been scheduled to attend a city employees' picnic and the Pampa Fire Department's chili cook-off on Oct. 10.

In addition, it will visit Pampa schools during Fire Prevention Week, Oct. 4-10.

"It's an expensive toy, but it will be beneficial" in the city's fire prevention programs, Farmer said.

The robot is the first of its type in Texas, and even in the Tri-State area, Farmer said.

The robot can move in any direction — forward and backward, even spinning around. Its head turns and nods on its neck. Its right arm can move to shake someone's hand or to hand out pamphlets.

Powered by a 12-volt dry cell battery, the robot also can play music from a prerecorded

Soviets 'ambush,' shoot U.S. soldier in East Germany

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Soviet patrol had created "sort of an ambush situation" before a member of an American military liaison team in East Germany was shot by a Soviet soldier, and the Pentagon is demanding an explanation, a U.S. official says.

The U.S. soldier, whose rank and identity were not immediately released, was slightly wounded in Thursday's incident, the Pentagon said.

A similar statement read by U.S. Army Major Dennis Pinkham at European Command Headquarters in West Germany said the two-man U.S. liaison team, in a four-wheel-drive vehicle, "encountered a group of Soviet soldiers and were fired at by at least one of these soldiers."

"The tour vehicle was hit seven times, shattering window glass. One member of the team was wounded by a bullet fragment," Pinkham said.

"We need to find out much more about this," said a Pentagon official who insisted on anonymity. "Our men were not in a restricted area. There was no excuse for the use of deadly force."

"They were traveling. They were intercepted. It was like an ambush. They wanted to continue on after the shooting, but they were detained."

Pampa construction increased in August

By LARRY HOLLIS
News Editor

The value of construction issued city permits in August rose by more than $125,000 over the same month last year, but totals for the fiscal and calendar years are still down by more than $2 million from 1986 reports.

According to the monthly report from the Department of Building Inspection, the city issued 22 permits in August, with valuation of construction listed at $318,965.

A year ago the city had issued 21 permits for buildings with a valuation listed at $193,400, reported department head David McKinney.

For the fiscal year — from Oct. 1 through Sept. 30 — the city has issued 185 permits, with valuations standing at $5,804,627. A year ago, the 1985-1986 fiscal year total was 201 permits and valuations of $7,995,616, about $2.19 million above the current period totals.

In the calendar year to date, department personnel have issued 130 permits for valuations of $3,829,512. The total is down approximately $2.05 million from the 1986 calendar year. The calendar year begins Jan. 1.

McKinney reported that the Deal closes for sale of Coronado Hospital

Employees of Coronado Hospital of Pampa will soon be able to purchase stock as part owners of the hospital following today's closing of the sale of 104 hospitals to HealthTrust Inc.

R. Clayton McWhorter, chairman and chief executive officer of HealthTrust, today announced the closing of an innovative financial transaction that has allowed the company to purchase the 104 hospitals formerly owned by Hospital Corporation of America (HCA).

The transaction, announced in Nashville, Tenn., makes HealthTrust Inc. the first major hospital company to be owned, in large part, by its employees.

HealthTrust will purchase the acute care general hospitals from HCA for $2.1 billion through the formation of an employee stock ownership plan (ESOP) whereby almost 23,000 employees will become part owners of the company.

"We feel that this move really gives our hospital a second chance," said Coronado Hospital and hair samples, which have been sent to the Federal Bureau of Investigation lab in Washington.

Police now await the results of those tests.

"Everything is still depending on the lab results," Police Chief Robert Eberz said Thursday. "Everything's on hold."

Lt. Roy Denman said the wait may take some time. He noted that evidence sent to the FBI in early August in a separate case still hasn't been returned to the department.

Denman is heading the homicide investigation.

Although Chief Eberz initially called the teen-ager a definite suspect, he said Thursday that, without hard physical evidence linking Patterson to the shooting of his stepfather, he can no longer "officially" call the youth a suspect.

"We don't want to say that the youth is a suspect until we get the evidence back," Eberz said. "We don't have any suspects."

If the evidence links Patterson to the homicide, Eberz said, a juvenile warrant will be issued.

The chief said detectives still want to question the youth about his "rapid departure from Pampa."

Authorities haven't formally charged the youth with unauthorized use of a motor vehicle, in connection with the disappearance of his stepfather's company truck, Juvenile Probation Officer Ed Barker said Thursday.

Barker said that allegation, too, is awaiting the FBI lab test results. He said the youth has a plausible reason for being in the truck, but declined to give any details.

If there is no physical evidence linking the youth to the homicide, he probably won't be charged with taking the truck either, Barker said.

Eberz said Thursday that, "the last I heard," Enron had decided not to pursue the unauthorized use charge.

Don Hawkings of Spearman, district manager for Enron Pipeline, had no comment Thursday on the case.

"At this point in time, I'm not going to make any statements until I get with the Pampa police," Hawkings said.

Barker said whether Enron wants to pursue the case makes no difference if juvenile authorities decide to charge Patterson.

cassette, with an 8-track tape player providing special sound effects. It can run for about 6 hours of solid use before the battery has to be recharged.

For its service in the fire marshal's office, the robot wears a blue fireman's shirt — with a 59-inch chest, Farmer notes — with red suspenders, a badge and a belt — 58 inches. A red fireman's hat sits atop the head unit.

But sometimes the costumes can be changed to fit the occasion, Farmer said. For example, it may wear a coat and a tie for more formal occasions. Or it may even put on a wig once in awhile.

"I think it will be good public relations," Farmer said, adding that he thinks the robot "is one of the neatest media items we have."

Adams and Farmer both said some of the smaller children may be scared of the robot at first. But as it gets out in the public more, children — and others — will become more familiar with it.

Farmer said he's already noticed that some adults react to it without thinking much about it at first. He said he was taking it down a hallway at City Hall when the robot "spoke" to some passing adults. The adults spoke back to it before they began to realize they were talking back to a robot, he said.

Though various firefighters may be providing the words for the robot, it will have a consistent voice, thanks to some special electronics tricks, Farmer said.

"Those kids are pretty sharp. They'll know if it has a different voice," he said.

The nameless robot will graduate with the current class of rookie firefighters, Adams said, adding that the machine needs a name to place on its firefighting certificate.

commercial building, $2,500; and three miscellaneous, no valuation listed.

The city collected $939 in fees last month for the issuance of the building permits, more than double the $433 collected in fees in August 1986.

Building permit fees for the first 11 months of the current fiscal year total $9,993, down more than $2,700 from the $12,704 collected at this point in the previous fiscal year period.

For the first eight months of the calendar year, the city has collected $7,034 in building permit fees.

Administrator Norman Knox.

"Because of low profit margin, we had felt increasing pressure from HCA and thought the hospital might be sold to a smaller company."

In order to finance the acquisition, HealthTrust will borrow approximately $1.7 billion from a syndicate of banks and financial institutions. HCA will receive $1.64 billion in cash and $460 million of preferred stock. HCA also will receive warrants for up to 34 percent of the fully-diluted HealthTrust stock.

"When Congress studied the employee stock ownership plan and passed legislation encouraging ESOPs, it was trying to foster programs like ours in which the wealth of a company could be more equitably dispersed," McWhorter said in a prepared statement.

"This was a strategic move and the right one for HCA, HealthTrust and its employees," he added. "We are now the second largest company as it relates to the number of hospitals, the fourth in numbers of beds and the fifth in terms of net revenues. We start out big from day one."

HealthTrust's annual revenues are expected to be approximately $1.5 billion, with its hospitals having total assets of $2 billion.

Knox said the move is positive for the Pampa hospital.

"The hospitals in some of our neighboring towns have not had good experiences with some of those (smaller) companies," he explained. "We feel that the formation of HealthTrust is very positive because the new company has HCA's philosophy of patient care, and because so many of the top people from HCA have come to the new company."

As HealthTrust pays off the loan over the next 10 years, the stock will be released and distributed to a special account for each employee, McWhorter said of the ESOP.

"The ESOP plan, with the possible 20 percent of salary contributed to the employees' retirement, is a great incentive to do an outstanding job managing the facility," Knox said. "With HealthTrust, we will be able to continue to attract and retain qualified physicians for our staff."

Knox said HCA had made a tremendous financial investment in Pampa when they bought the old county Highland General Hospital and then spent $13 million to build Coronado Hospital.

"And, in addition, each year the company has added close to $1 million in new equipment to be sure that Pampa had the best technology available," he said. "That gives us the enviable position of going in to the new company with an excellent facility and state-of-the-art equipment. We have as high a level of technology as many of the hospitals in Amarillo."

Many new services become taxable Oct. 1

AUSTIN (AP) — More than 64,000 businesses are expected to be added to the Texas tax rolls Oct. 1, when the state sales tax goes up three-quarters of a cent and is imposed for the first time on many services and items.

Bill Allaway, executive vice president of the business-oriented Texas Association of Taxpayers, said Thursday the increase "is going to affect all of us."

Businesses pay about half the sales tax, so their share of the tax increase to 6 cents on the dollar will be about $1.5 billion, Allaway said. More than 420,000 merchants and businesses already collect sales taxes.

The sales tax increase and expansion of the tax base were major parts of the $5.7 billion tax increase enacted by the 1987 Legislature.

The hike is to make up for the continuing economic effects of the oil and natural gas price slump and allows state services to continue at about the current level in the two-year budget cycle that began Sept. 1, officials said.

"The unfortunate reality of the world is that every tax bill hurts, and state government costs money," Allaway said.

The cigarette tax also will go from 20.5 cents to 26 cents a pack on Oct. 1.

Among the broad categories of services that will be subject to the sales tax beginning Oct. 1 are real property services such as landscaping and garbage collection, and security services, including private investigators.

Debt services, including repossessions, and information furnished by credit bureaus will be under the sales tax that also applies to information services, including financial research, and insurance services such as damage appraisals.

A plan to tax insurance premiums failed to win final legislative approval when insurers mobilized a massive campaign against it.

Items that will be subject to the sales tax include custom computer programs, labor on installations to tangible property, telephone services and membership and dues to private clubs.

There is no increase in the 1 percent local option tax collected in some areas of Texas.

"Businesses need to reprogram cash registers and alert workers and staff of the new rate taking effect Oct. 1," Comptroller Bob Bullock said.

Alma Faulkner of the Texas Association of Business, which fought a proposed large increase in and prepayment of the corporate franchise tax, said, "I don't know that the sales tax is going to hurt us."

"But (taxes) have to be placed in a way that does not hurt one person or one group more than another."

The franchise tax is scheduled to go from $5.25 to $6.70 per $1,000 of taxable capital and surplus on Jan. 1. A proposed higher increase and tax prepayment failed in the Legislature.

The sales tax also will be extended to data processing services, payroll and business accounting, time-sharing and computer management on Jan. 1. Taxes also will be due starting Jan. 1 on repair and remodeling services, except on new construction and owner-occupied residences.

The state's motor vehicle sales and hotel-motel room taxes were increased Sept. 1, when a fee also was instituted for businesses to obtain a sales tax permit.

Legislators also canceled a planned Sept. 1 rollback in the state's motor fuels tax.

DPS: Rate, volume of crimes are up

AUSTIN (AP) — Although the statewide rate of violent crimes declined during the first half of this year, the overall Texas crime rate and the volume of major crimes were up compared with the same period of 1986, the Department of Public Safety says.

Statistics furnished by law enforcement agencies also indicated that the statewide rate of property crimes increased.

"The crime rate for the first six months of this year rose 4.4 percent to 3,761.1 crimes per hundred thousand population," Col. Leo Gossett, DPS director, said Thursday.

"The overall crime volume was up 6.3 percent, totaling 627,433. These degrees of increase are more moderate compared to the higher numbers seen in the first half of 1986," Gossett said.

According to the reports submitted by 804 law enforcement agencies to the DPS' crime reporting program, murders were down 10.5 percent, from 1,072 between January and June of 1986 to 959 in the same period this year.

Rape was down 13.8 percent, robbery down 2.7 percent and aggravated assault down 5.2 percent.

Burglaries were up 6.4 percent and thefts up 7.7 percent, while motor vehicle thefts showed the largest increase of all categories, up 9.2 percent from 55,544 in the first half of 1986 to 60,671 this year.

Drug arrests also were up during the six-month period, showing a 10.2 percent increase to 32,567. Drunken driving arrests showed a 3.3 percent decline, to a total of 60,371, the DPS reported.

Of the total major crimes reported, 20 percent were cleared by arrests during the first half of the year.

The value of property stolen during the commission of the crimes was estimated at approximately $724 million. Stolen property recovered by police totaled about $306 million during the six-month period, the DPS said.

600 pounds of marijuana carried on crashed plane

LUBBOCK (AP) — A twin-engine airplane that crashed landed in Lubbock was carrying 600 pounds of marijuana and two men, including a former employee of state Sen. Tati Santiesteban.

Robert T. Jenkins, 54, of El Paso, was in critical condition at Lubbock General Hospital. Jenkins maintains an office in Santiesteban's law firm.

The other man, identified as James Bentley, 42, was in serious condition and is believed to be from Abilene.

Federal agents tracked the Cessna 340A from the U.S.-Mexican border across two states until it crash-landed in a cotton field near the Lubbock airport Thursday.

"We followed it to Clovis, N.M., where it landed," U.S. Customs Service spokesman Charles Conroy said. "They probably became aware they were being tracked there and immediately took off."

The pilot made a pass at Lubbock International Airport and went around in a second attempt at landing, but he came up short of the runway and had to make a crash landing, he said.

While the airplane was still in Mexico, custom officials identified it as a target and intercepted it with airborne radar after it entered the United States near El Paso, Conroy said.

The men allegedly pushed a number of bales of marijuana out of the aircraft as it flew between Clovis and Lubbock, Conroy said.

Curry County Sheriff's Department recovered a 13-pound bale of marijuana near a road in Clovis.

Hutchinson County pitches prison plastics plan

AUSTIN (AP) — A proposal for an inmate plastics-manufacturing operation that would be run with the cooperation of Phillips Petroleum Co. could help net Hutchinson County a regional prison, area officials say.

"Nobody else has come up with that very innovative idea," said Andy Hicks, president of Frank Phillips College in Borger. "We think that's a real plus."

Hicks and other representatives of the Hutchinson County Prison Task Force pitched their proposal for the 2,250-inmate regional prison to Director Jim Lynaugh of the Texas Department of Corrections at a Thursday meeting that included Sen.

Bill Sarpalius, D-Canyon. Phillips Petroleum runs the nation's largest inland petrochemical complex in the Panhandle area.

Phillips spokesman D.V. Tadiello said in a letter to Lynaugh as part of a proposal packet that "the idea of a plastics process within the confines of a regional penal institution certainly is feasible and merits further evaluation."

Because the state buys large quantities of items such as plastic trash bags, trash cans, trays and cups, the plastics operation would be "a big asset to the state as a means of saving the state some money, as well as providing some training (to inmates)," Sarpalius said.

He said he was unable to immediately obtain a figure on how much the state spends on plastics, but he said, "I can tell you it's in the millions of dollars."

In a meeting with Education Commissioner W.N. Kirby, the senator said he asked Kirby about utensils and food containers purchased by school districts.

"(Kirby) indicated that he felt very strongly that if the prison system made those available, a lot of schools would purchase them," Sarpalius said.

Prison officials have considered starting a plastics operation since the institution switched from metal to plastic utensils two years ago, Lynaugh said.

"Obviously, when you start buying plastic for 38,000 people, I don't care how cheap (each utensil) is, it costs a lot of money," he said. Plastic trays cost $8 each, Lynaugh added, compared to $24 for each stainless steel tray.

Proposals for the regional prison are due Monday. Lynaugh said he would like the prison board to select a site at its Oct. 15 meeting.

Officials of Hutchinson County — which along with Dalhart and Amarillo in Sarpalius' district is competing for the regional prison — are offering incentives if the state puts the prison on a 520-acre site between Borger and Stinnett.

Frank Phillips College has the state's only interactive televised courses, which inmates and prison employees could use, Hicks said.

The Two family is finally here

It was just another peaceful evening at the Patterson household this past Wednesday.

But suddenly, there came a knock at the door. "Knock, knock, knock," the knocker knocked. My wife Karen got up to answer the door. Who she found standing outside the door was who she had feared. Who I had feared.

It was not bill collectors, nor the police. That would've been too easy.

Standing just outside our front screen door was that group of misfits we knew would be coming at anytime.

There at the door stood the Terrible Twos. "Hi! We're the Terrible Twos," they said, "and we've come to invade the body of your daughter Jennifer."

Karen fainted with shock. I hurried to the kitchen for a pain reliever that I'm hoping will not wear off for another couple of years.

The Terrible Twos sauntered inside our house and wandered over to Jennifer, who incidentally will not physically turn 2 years old until January. Jennifer, finishing up her dinner, was not surprised to see the Twos.

She scarfed down her last bite of liquid plums and suddenly, the Twos disappeared.

About that time, Jennifer began screaming.

The Twos had accomplished what they were there for.

They had taken over our little girl.

In an instant — as if a light switch had been turned on suddenly — Jennifer turned from a 20-month-old little darling to a 2-year-old little tyrant.

Soon after their arrival, bedtime came. We knew neither Jennifer nor the Twos would want to settle in for a long night's sleep.

We put our little girl to bed, and that was when the Twos really made their presence known.

Wednesday night was Opening Ceremony time for the Terrible Twos.

Jennifer, obviously encouraged by the now invisible gremlins, began kicking like a bucking bronco. She screamed like a victim from a Hitchcock movie.

The scream that came out of our little tyrant sounded sort of like a haunting north wind whistling through a crack in a window.

Jennifer screamed and carried on so severely that even her Teddy Bear got out of bed to go sleep in the next room.

Off Beat

By Jimmy Patterson

Jennifer screamed this and screamed that. Before Wednesday night, we were unable to translate what those screams actually meant.

But that night, even though she was wailing like any "normal" 2-year-old, she was obviously trying to tell us, "Get me outta this $#?&# bed."

In his now famous book, Dr. Benjamin Spock explains these little tantrums as "mild bedtime difficulties."

Apparently, the good doctor never had any children.

In Spock's book, he says, "It's often hard to get along with a child between 2 and 3 years old. Parents have to be understanding."

Tell me something I don't already know, Spock. It is quite difficult, though, when neighbors come knocking at the door wondering if everything's all right.

Our little Jennifer will make it necessary for us to put double insulation in our walls, doors and even windows so the neighbors won't "get the wrong idea."

So let it be written here first, for all our neighbors to read — we are not punishing our daughter. She is merely waging an all out assault on her poor parent's ears simply because she is going through this change.

When Jennifer got up Thursday morning, she was her normal, peaceful self.

But Karen and I knew. We knew the Terrible Twos were still asleep inside her.

But they'll be back. As the line in the movie Poltergeist goes, "THEY'RE HERE!"

And I'm afraid they're here to stay for a long, long while.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Schools indoctrinate kids with humanism

It's becoming more clear every year that the public schools no longer exist to educate, but to indoctrinate, the nation's children. Two recent court cases confirm the trend.

In the so-called "Scopes II" case, on Aug. 24 a federal appeals court ruled that seven families' First Amendment rights had not been violated by public school textbooks. The Grenville, Tenn., families contended that the books damaged their children's fundamentalist Christian religion. Liberals scoffed that the parents objected to such children's classics as The Wizard of Oz.

Yet the real objection centered around textbooks that either omitted any mention of religion, or painted it in a bad light. And besides, who has any right to tell these parents what should or should not be taught to their children? If they think something violates their Christian faith, then the First Amendment obviously protects them. But liberals with their frigid intolerance, don't think so.

In the second case, on Aug. 26 a separate federal appeals court overturned a ruling, by Alabama Judge Brevard Hand, that had banned textbooks inculcating the religion of secular humanism. Liberals again scoffed. "Secular humanism is no religion," said Arthur J. Kropp, executive director of People for the American Way, after the federal court decision.

Yet John Dewey, one of the founders of secular humanism, called it a religion. The movement has issued two Humanist Manifestoes. And the term "religion" refers not only to belief in God, but to any strongly-held belief or philosophy; it stems from the Latin verb religare, "to bind together." The two Humanist Manifestoes obviously "bind together" those who endorse them.

These court decisions, combined with many others, form a pattern: The de facto imposition of a secular established religion in American public schools. "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion," begins the First Amendment. But what Congress has refrained from doing, federal courts are imposing by judicial fiat.

What should be done? The best solution would be to privatize the entire public school system. Americans, who buy cars from more than 40 different car companies and food from hundreds of grocery stores, should demand equal diversity of choice for something far more important; the education of their children.

As things now stand, parents are put in an extreme bind. Their taxes keep going up, making private school tuition less affordable. By all rights parents who object to secular humanism being rammed into their kids' brains should be able to get a refund for their federal, state, and local education tax dollars. They should not be forced to support schools teaching an established religion. But liberals won't let that happen; they want the money for their school indoctrination programs.

Concerned parents can either send their kids to real schools that charge tuition, or teach the kids at home.

Don't lay your bets on Al Haig

James J. Kilpatrick

WASHINGTON—Several years ago, walking through a Las Vegas casino, I paused to kibitz a poker game. Four of the players might have been carved out of wax for Madame Tussaud: They were immobile, impassive, inscrutable. The fifth fellow was having a lively time. He was grinning, chuckling, wiggling in his chair. Only his eyes were unsmiling. In front of him was the biggest stack of chips.

I thought of that poker player the other day in talking with Alexander Meigs Haig Jr., candidate for the Republican presidential nomination. He laughs easily, he chuckles in private enjoyment of unheeded jokes, he is "call me Al" informal. When the conversation gets to questions of foreign policy, war and peace, he goes on smiling—but there's nothing funny in the gummy eyes. Here is a tough hombre. Ribbon clerks had better not play games with this guy.

Haig is a political enigma. Little Orphan Annie has a better chance of winning the nomination. George Bush and Bob Dole are far in front of him in the polls. Jack Kemp has a better campaign organization. Pete du Pont, the former governor of Delaware, has won more attention from the press. Even so, friends have contributed nearly $2 million to finance Haig's campaign, and the gentleman isn't ready to follow Paul Laxalt in folding his hand.

By way of biography: Haig will be 63 in December. Born in Philadelphia, he studied at Notre Dame, then won admission to the U.S. Military Academy at West Point. After his graduation he steadily advanced as an officer, commanded an infantry brigade in Vietnam, and served from 1974 to 1979 as supreme allied commander in Europe. He retired from the military as a four-star general, went into the business world as president of a major defense contractor, and in 1981 became Ronald Reagan's first secretary of state.

It was in this capacity that he ran into the trouble that dogs him to this day. He still is widely remembered as the tense figure who asserted on television, immediately after the attempted assassination of Ronald Reagan, that "I am in control" at the White House. The incident ought to be put in perspective, and the whole statement should be recalled.

Memories fade. We forget the panicky fears that afternoon: Was Reagan the victim of a communist plot? Would the Soviets seize an opportunity to launch a nuclear first strike? Were others marked for assassination also? For a time the people did not know whether Reagan was alive or dead. Vice President George Bush was in the Midwest. The capital city was in turmoil.

At this point Secretary Haig called a hurried press conference. This is what he said:

"Constitutionally, gentlemen, you have the president, the vice president and the secretary of state, in that order, and should the president decide he wants to transfer the helm, he will do so. As of now, I am in control here in the White House, pending return of the vice president, and in close touch with him. If something came up, I would check with him, of course."

Taken in context, that seems not so horrifying. Haig had the order of succession wrong; the Constitution says no such thing. If he had said he was "in charge" instead of "in control," a different impression might have been left. In any event, Haig went on to serve a Reagan's faithful "vicar" in foreign affairs before returning to the private sector.

Now he's running for president. He welcomes visitors to a moderately posh office in the Madison Building, and he looks moderately posh himself: A heavy gold wristwatch, a gold ID bracelet, his gold Academy ring. He is in shirt-sleeves; the shirt bears a modest monogram. You could slice a filet mignon with the crease in his pants.

I ask him the same opening question I have been asking other candidates: What books have you read in the past six months? He had not expected a flank attack. The eyes narrow. The grin flashes. He isn't reading books these days; he's writing one! This will be a "thin, readable, paperback book," setting forth his vision of the future. He admits to some editing help, but "I've really done it all—and it's been an agony."

On the routine questions, Haig has all the right Republican answers. He opposes abortion, abhors the excessive deficits, mistrusts communist promises, wants excellence in education, seeks gradually to diminish farm price supports. The old soldier has plenty of experience for this high-stakes game. If he plays his cards perfectly, he might yet win the pot—but I wouldn't bet the ranch on his prospects.

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Friday, Sept. 18, the 261st day of 1987. There are 104 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:
Sixty years ago, on Sept. 18, 1927, the Columbia Phonograph Broadcasting System (later CBS) made its debut with a basic network of 16 radio stations.

On this date:
In 1759, the French formally surrendered Quebec to the British.

In 1769, the Boston Gazette reported on the first piano built in the U.S., a spinet with a three- to four-octave range.

In 1793, President George Washington laid the cornerstone of the Capitol building in Washington.

In 1810, Chile declared its independence from Spain.

In 1850, Congress passed the Fugitive Slave Act, which allowed slaveowners to reclaim slaves who had escaped into other states.

In 1947, the United States Air Force was established as a separate branch of the military.

In 1971, United Nations Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld died in a plane crash in northern Rhodesia.

In 1975, newspaper heiress Patricia Hearst was captured by the FBI in San Francisco, 19 months after she was kidnapped by the Symbionese Liberation Army.

Indians invent American ways

Russell Ferris said something awhile back that really deserves to be resaid a few times.

About what makes the United States so distinctly different. He thinks it's because of the American Indians.

Mr. Ferris said we'd be a carbon copy of European culture—because most of our people came from there. Except that so much of what our nation is—is Indian.

Chewing gum and rubber balls, popcorn and corn flakes, flapjacks and maple syrup—and the American disrespect for dictators.

Scholars are just beginning to learn that most of our farm produce—four-sevenths of all our farm produce—came from plants tamed by Indians generations before Columbus. Corn, tobacco and white potatoes. Sweet potatoes, beans and peanuts. Tomatoes, pumpkin, chocolate, cotton and rubber. We got them all from Indians.

Irish potatoes and India rubber and Egyptian cotton are just respectable old-world names for American Indian products.

Paul Harvey

The Indians knew about hybrid corn; only when we relearned what they already knew did we increase our yield by 40 percent.

And our government...
Having several states within a state copies the tribal independence of the Indians.

That chiefs are servants of the people, not masters.

That the leaders must respect the dreams of men.

In medicine...
Where do you think we got quinine, cocaine, cascara, ipecac, witch hazel, oil of wintergreen, petroleum jelly and arnica.

For 400 years physicians and botanists have been examining and analyzing the flora of America, and they have yet to discover a single medicinal herb that was not known and used by the Indians.

Now we moderns think we have discovered the benefits of cleanliness and exercise and athletic prowess and physical fitness.

Fact is, Queen Isabella never understood why the American "savages," as she called them, took baths so often.

And finally, child care and the power of prayer... the Indians had so much to teach us that we have not learned yet.

Lower white birth rate threatens balance

By Ben Wattenberg

My new book "The Birth Dearth" has engendered a controversy. Some examples: A Time magazine article carries the headline "Is it racist to urge the West to have more babies?" A review in the Los Angeles Times maintains that my views may echo earlier American views about "race suicide" and a "Yellow Peril." I have been accused of "cultural chauvinism."

Personally, I think it's a bum rap; it's racial McCarthyism. But it also obscures an important problem that should not be clouded by a smoke-screen of race innuendo.

At issue is this: In America, and in the entire Western democratic world, birth rates are at the lowest point in history; over time they will yield declining populations. But birth rates elsewhere show: a) steady moderate growth in the communist world, and b) soaring population growth in the Third World. My sense is that as the peoples of America and the other industrialized democratic nations become an ever-smaller share of the world, democratic values may be hard to preserve or extend. (I also think that our very low fertility rates will cause personal misery and economic turbulence.)

The charges against my view fall into two categories: global and American. Globally, I am accused of saying that white people in the modern, free nations are somehow better than non-whites in the Third World—and therefore whites should start reproducing more. The accusation about America is that I'm saying that white Americans are somehow more important, and better, than Hispanics or non-whites, and therefore whites in America should start reproducing more.

I think my critics are so hung up on race that they can't read straight. In "The Birth Dearth," I write about values and fertility—but my critics read race and ethnicity.

Globally, I make a not-uncommon claim: that the modern Western values—democratic, capitalist, scientifically oriented—have been beneficial. These values have not only helped us, but set progress in motion in the lesser developed countries and even in the Soviet bloc. These values have a better chance of flourishing and spreading if the Western nations flourish and grow.

What's wrong with that? Does that mean I think our values are "better" than Soviet or Third World values? Yes, I guess that makes me a cultural chauvinist. But I think most of my critics believe the same things, but are afraid to say it. They favor democracy and technology for the Third World. Most of them by now believe that market-oriented economies yield prosperity.

But they say I'm pushing white superiority. I'm not. I'm talking about Western values. I include Japan among the Western nations. I have not noticed that the non-white Japanese are deficient in running a democratic, industrial, scientific country. I didn't invent the world. As it happens, most of the nations in the Western modern bloc are mostly white. So what? That should not dissuade us from promoting Western values.

What about America? Poor people here have more children than middle- or upper-income people. That's unfortunate, because people who aren't poor are better able to provide for children. So if one is for higher fertility, it's wise to stress that you're for it among the middle- and upper-income groups, not for poor teenage mother.

As it happens, American whites are less likely to be poor than blacks or Hispanics (although Asian-Americans are most affluent). I didn't invent America. But I favor of an increase in all middle-class fertility—white, black, Hispanic, and Asian. I favor a racially and ethnically diverse America. Because I think America and the West has a down-side population problem, I favor more legal immigration. I favor that knowing full well that over time it will reduce the proportion of Americans who are of "white European stock." Ironically, many of my critics who claim to hear racial overtones in my book are in favor of reduced immigration! Whose policy leans toward a racist view?

Summing up: The problem is not white, it's West.

Lebanese snatched overseas in new anti-terrorist tactic

WASHINGTON (AP) — American agents working overseas lured a suspected Lebanese Shiite hijacker into a boat, arrested him and brought him back to the United States in what U.S. officials described as a new phase in the battle against terrorism.

"It's our intention to find terrorists and go after them wherever they are," a senior Justice Department official said Thursday in announcing the arrest of Fawaz Younis of Beirut. He is accused of masterminding the 1985 hijacking of a Jordanian jetliner with four Americans aboard.

In an investigation code-named Operation Goldenrod, Younis was spotted several weeks ago by U.S. intelligence agencies, placed under surveillance and finally, at an unspecified port on the Mediterranean Sea, lured aboard a small boat piloted by FBI agents. "Let's say we rented it (the boat) for awhile," one senior Justice Department official told reporters.

After the boat motored into international waters, Younis was arrested and transferred to the U.S. aircraft carrier Saratoga in the Mediterranean near the island of Corsica.

He was flown to Andrews Air Force Base outside Washington on Thursday. Responding to a question at the briefing, the official said "you bet" when asked whether U.S. authorities are actively trying to track other terrorists suspected of harming Americans overseas with the intention of arresting them and bringing them back to the United States.

When asked whether Younis might become part of a swap involving U.S. hostages being held in Lebanon, the official, speaking on condition of anonymity, emphasized that the U.S. government's intention is to put Younis on trial in U.S. courts.

"Any terrorist attack on American nationals or American property will be investigated and prosecuted whenever there is a basis to do so under U.S. law, provided that they are not effectively prosecuted and punished elsewhere," Attorney General Edwin Meese III told the press briefing.

But unlike many other terrorist incidents, the one in which Younis is charged wasn't directed at the United States or Israel.

Amid extremely tight security, Younis appeared before a U.S. magistrate in Washington on charges of hostage-taking, conspiracy and destruction of an aircraft, which could result in a term of life imprisonment if he is convicted.

Younis pleaded innocent to the June 11, 1985, hijacking of the jetliner at Beirut, on which two U.S. citizens and two U.S. resident foreigners were traveling. Younis was ordered held without bail and was taken to an undisclosed location.

Younis is a "full-time employee of the Amal militia and works for Nabih Berri," another senior Justice Department official told the press briefing.

Berri is Lebanon's justice minister and also is leader of the Amal militia, a group of Shiite Moslems allied with Syria.

The Amal militia is considered to be more moderate than the Iranian-backed Hezbollah, an organization which is believed to hold some of the U.S. hostages being held in Lebanon.

The party goes on for 200-year-old Constitution

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Constitution, fresh from its red, white and blue 200th birthday party across America, enters its third century today with a ceremony commemorating its first public reading and a look to the future.

"What we want to do now is focus on the ratification process," said former Chief Justice Warren Burger, who joined President Reagan in ceremonies Thursday near Independence Hall, where the Constitution was signed Sept. 17, 1787.

Philadelphia's $6 million bash was the centerpiece of hundreds across the nation as "We, the people..." rang bells, paraded, saluted the flag, became citizens, and launched fireworks in tribute to the Constitution.

The commemoration in the birthplace of the Constitution began with a graveside ceremony and a parade, included a speech from President Reagan and hit a high note with a bell-ringing ceremony heard 'round the world.

Fireworks from seven barges painted the sky with rockets' red glare during a half-hour show over the Delaware River, and 1,600 guests at a star-studded black-tie affair paid tribute with songs, skits and speeches.

"In the Soviet Union under glasnost you have freedom of speech," said Soviet emigre comedian Yakov Smirnoff. "Here, you have freedom after you speak, also."

The Constitution became law when New Hampshire ratified it nine months after 39 of its framers signed it. The Bill of Rights, the first 10 amendments to the Constitution, was ratified Dec. 15, 1791.

"Four years from now, the 200th anniversary of the Bill of Rights will be an even bigger celebration," said Democratic presidential candidate Jesse Jackson. "It has given this Constitution soul and vitality."

Jackson, while noting the Constitution excluded women and blacks, called it "the envy of governments around the world because it has endured."

Today is the 200th anniversary of the first public reading of the Constitution, which was drafted in secret. The Pennsylvania Legislature, which heard that reading, planned to meet in ceremonial session today in Philadelphia.

At a town meeting tonight, Jackson, former U.S. Attorney General Ramsey Clark and feminists Gloria Steinem and Eleanor Smeal were scheduled to address the state of civil rights today.

Elsewhere, every baby born Thursday in North Dakota was given a copy of the Constitution, courtesy of the state Bar Association.

Is Bork flip-flopping for confirmation?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Robert H. Bork says he's ready to accept legal doctrines he once denounced, but the concession led to accusations that he's flip-flopping to win confirmation to the Supreme Court.

"I don't want a confirmation conversion," Sen. Patrick J. Leahy, D-Vt., told Bork on Thursday, his roughest of three days before the Senate Judiciary Committee.

Bork, who returns today for a third round of questions from each senator, endured sharp attacks not only from Leahy, an expected opponent, and Sen. Edward Kennedy, an announced opponent, but from Sen. Arlen Specter, who has said he is undecided.

Specter, R-Pa., accused Bork of a willingness to abandon his sacred legal principle of "original intent" — the theory that judges must follow the intent of the Constitution's framers.

To make matters worse for Bork, undecided Democrats Howell Heflin of Alabama and Dennis DeConcini of Arizona said during breaks in the hearing that they're also concerned by Bork's apparent changes in position, on issues such as equal protection for women and freedom of speech.

For his part, Bork shot back at Leahy that "I have a lot of positions in the past where I have not converted."

When Kennedy, D-Mass., accused him of advocating unlimited presidential power,

Bork countered: "That is a most unfair characterization of my views."

The hearing turned poignant when it touched on the death of Bork's first wife, Claire, in 1980.

That happened after Leahy first criticized Bork for never providing free legal advice to the poor, and then pointed out that he earned about $600,000 in consulting fees from 1979 to 1981 while a Yale professor.

"Those are the only years I ever made any money in consulting," Bork said. "There was a reason I (needed) the money but I don't want to go into it here."

Bork supporter Gordon Humphrey, R-N.H., refusing to let the matter rest there, asked, "But were those years in which you engaged in outside employment years which coincided with heavy medical bills in your family?"

Bork, his voice breaking, replied in one word: "Yeah."

In Specter's exchange with the nominee, the lawmaker said, "What troubles me is the very significant pronounced shifts" by Bork in areas such as free speech and sex discrimination.

Bork, for instance, said he now accepts as reality — but still disagrees with — a Supreme Court ruling that permits protesters to advocate lawbreaking, provided they don't actually cause or carry out criminal acts.

Bork told Specter he has "not shifted" his position.

And Specter said Bork is suddenly expressing the view that the 14th Amendment's guarantee of equal protection applies in sex discrimination cases, when he held for years that it only could be used to combat discrimination against blacks.

Specter said that while he personally wanted the language interpreted broadly, he had problems squaring Bork's now-expansive view "with your very forceful statement that you are going to carry out original intent."

Bork replied, "Anybody that tries to follow original intent must also have a respect for precedence because some things it's too late to change. Now, the application of the equal protection clause to all kinds of people other than racial groups is so settled and so many expectations have gone up around that ... that's an interpretation that should not be overturned."

Specter: "Are you saying then that you will apply equal protection to women just as the court currently does?"

Bork: "Yes."

"But Judge Bork," Specter said at one point, "if you accept that, you're totally away from original intent."

The wait is beginning on Biden campaign

By EVANS WITT
AP Political Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A storm is swirling once again around a presidential candidate. And, once again, the wait is on to see whether the campaign, in this case that of Sen. Joseph Biden, can survive questions about his character.

The political furor this time involves plagiarism at law school 23 years in the past and Biden's failures in speeches to give credit to politicians whose words he used.

Biden says it won't stop his campaign. "I'm in this race to stay," the Delaware Democrat declared Thursday. "I'm in this race to win. And here I come."

But in the 1988 campaign, the rules are different since Gary Hart was forced from the race in May amid a firestorm of criticism over his relationship with a Miami model.

"Anything can be fatal," said Rep. Patricia Schroeder, the Colorado Democrat who is thinking of getting into the 1988 race herself. "Anything is relevant."

What is relevant this week for Biden was revealed Thursday at his extraordinary news conference: he admitted he had committed plagiarism, inadvertently, he says, in his first year in law school. And he said he occasionally failed to attribute rhetoric in his speeches to the other politicians from whom he borrowed.

"Little did I know I would be standing before the whole world acknowledging the fact I did not know how to write a legal memorandum and the mistake is costing me as much as it is costing you," Biden said.

The allegations about Biden's rhetoric are particularly harmful, for they strike at the heart of his campaign. Biden's soaring sync with my mind," he said.

Not only did Biden have to confirm his plagiarism, he also released his law school records. They showed him failing three courses in law school and finishing near the bottom of his class at Syracuse University.

Politically, Biden must find a way to restart his campaign, reassure contributors and convince potential primary voters that he is worthy of their vote.

But time is short for the Delaware Democrat, who is one of the least-known in his party's field.

And time is something Biden just doesn't have right now; he is chairing the Senate Judiciary Committee hearings on Robert H. Bork's nomination to the Supreme Court. Later, he'll lead the floor battle against President Reagan's choice.

The Bork hearings could help Biden, of course, if his performance is so sparkling as to demonstrate his leadership abilities and brush aside the doubts generated by the plagiarism charges.

Perhaps the best advice for Biden came from Republican Sen. Alan Simpson of Wyoming: "Hang on tight."

Simpson is right. Biden faces a tough ride ahead.

An AP News Analysis

speeches were a major reason he was considered a contender for the Democratic nomination, for he can electrify a crowd as few of his opponents can.

Now, some may be listening to his rhetoric more to detect the echoes of politicians past than to heed his clarion calls for the future.

And just as Hart did in the final days of his campaign in May, Biden faced some embarrassing questions and revelations on Thursday.

Given that he made several mistakes in speeches, can he be relied upon to speak accurately as president?

Ford-UAW pact goes to union's bargaining council

DETROIT (AP) — An official of the United Auto Workers union says the tentative contract with Ford Motor Co., which goes to a union council today, breaks a lot of new ground on job security.

"We have a good agreement," says Stephen Yokich, the UAW vice president who announced the settlement Thursday.

Concerning job security, Harley Shaiken, a labor relations expert at the University of California at San Diego, agrees with Yokich.

"The agreement goes farther in the direction of job security than any recent major agreement," he said. "Its most innovative aspect is in fact providing some measure of predictability in job security for the work force that's currently employed."

However, he added, "What it does not do is guarantee a fixed number of jobs."

"Ford retains essentially the ability to downsize its work force over the life of the contract."

The UAW's 200-worker Ford bargaining council, made up of local union presidents, bargaining chairmen and elected delegates, must approve the three-year contract before Ford's 104,000 autoworkers vote on it.

Yokich announced the settlement in the absence of UAW President Owen Bieber, who was released from the hospital Thursday after treatment for a stomach ailment.

Under the agreement, UAW leaders will push local unions to accept plant-level contracts that reduce the number of job classifications and loosen work rules, which Ford says would increase efficiency and improve quality.

Ford could still lay off workers if competition, such as from Japanese imports, hurt its sales. And it would only have to fill half of the jobs left vacant by workers who resigned, retired or died.

Retirement benefits for new retirees increase from $1,205 a month to $1,500 a month. "Ford has an older work force to start with. By improving retirement benefits, even more workers are likely to retire," Shaiken said.

The contract could complicate talks resuming as early as next week at General Motors Corp., where workers got no profit-sharing checks for 1986 and the company plans to close more than a dozen operations by 1990, analysts said.

GM's contract, like Ford's, expired Sept. 14 and was extended when the UAW chose Ford on Aug. 31 as the company it would strike or settle with first.

Pope John Paul II views Golden Gate Bridge.

Pope embraces AIDS child, encounters strongest protest

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — As gay protesters blew whistles, banged drums and screamed slogans outside a church, Pope John Paul II reached into a pew and cradled a 4-year-old AIDS victim.

"God loves you all, without distinction, without limit. ... He loves those of you who are sick, those of you who are suffering from AIDS and from AIDS-Related Complex," he said to 64 AIDS patients who met him at the 196-year-old Mission Dolores — just a mile from the Castro District, the center of homosexual life in a city known for its gay community.

Inside, amid the applause of 1,000 people, the pope could not hear the cries of 2,000 gay and feminist demonstrators a block away — shouts of "pope go home" and "shame, shame, shame."

It was the largest and noisiest opposition the pontiff had encountered in his U.S. visit.

Today, the pope moves on to Detroit after a meeting with laity and a Mass at Candlestick Park. On Saturday he will go to Canada for a short visit, and head toward Rome on Sunday.

At Mission Dolores, the pope shook hands with the crowd, not neglecting the nine pews of AIDS victims and their friends, lovers and families. Among them was the Rev. Robert Arpin, a Roman Catholic priest who has publicly stated that he had acquired immune deficiency syndrome, and is a homosexual.

When the pope saw 4-year-old Brendan O'Rourke, he took the frail child from his father's arms and kissed and hugged him. The boy, who was infected with AIDS through a blood transfusion as a premature infant, reached for the pope's ears.

"It was one of the greatest things that could happen," said Brendan's father, John O'Rourke.

Demonstrators carried signs saying, "Gay, proud and still going to heaven" and "Curb your dogma."

"We are a moral people! We will do everything we can to make this world a better place. We are letting our love and voices be heard," said Leonard Matlovich, an AIDS patient who was discharged from the Air Force in 1975 because of his homosexuality. "I am not intrinsically evil."

Later, hundreds of Jews demonstrated quietly outside St. Mary's Cathedral, protesting the audience which the pope granted in June to Austrian President Kurt Waldheim.

Inside, at a meeting with 3,000 nuns and brothers, the pope listened as Sister Helen Garvey, president-elect of the Leadership Conference of Women Religious, called for a larger role for women in the church.

She did not call explicitly for the ordination of women as priests, and the pope did not respond to her plea. On Wednesday, however, he had told U.S. bishops: "Women are not called to the priesthood."

At a news conference after the meeting, Sister Garvey said she did not want to cause polarization by pushing for ordination of women.

John Paul encountered smaller protests Thursday afternoon at the Carmel Mission south of San Francisco — this one staged by American Indians.

Franciscan missionary Junipero Serra, a candidate for sainthood, is buried at the mission, and John Paul prayed at his tomb.

Iraq says warplanes attack Iranian oil targets in gulf

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP) — Iraq said its warplanes today blasted Iran's Kharg island oil loading terminal and two other oil installations along Iran's western coast on the third straight day of attacks in Persian Gulf war.

The official Iraqi News Agency said two formations of warplanes struck the oil fields of Ardashir and Bahrakan simultaneously, setting them on fire. The report, monitored in Cyprus, said the warplanes staged another raid two hours later "demolishing what had survived on Kharg island in previous attacks."

There was no official confirmation of the attacks from Iran.

On Thursday, Iran said it bombarded Iraqi cities, and Iraq claimed it repulsed an Iranian attack in an 18-hour battle, as fighting took place mostly along the nation's border areas.

Iran also began amphibious military maneuvers Thursday off its southern coast in the Gulf of Oman to counter a growing international presence in the waters outside the Persian Gulf, Iranian news media reported.

Witnesses said, meanwhile, that the 46,723-ton Gas Prince docked in Kuwait at the northern end of the Persian Gulf under cover of darkness.

The tanker is one of 11 Kuwaiti vessels flying the Stars and Stripes and being escorted through the gulf by U.S. warships as protection against attacks by Iran, which accuses Kuwait of supporting Iraq.

In New York, sources at the United Nations told The Associated Press on Thursday that Iran had told Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar it would consider a cease-fire if an aggressor in the war was identified shortly after.

It was the first time in the 7-year-old war that Iran indicated it would be willing to stop the hostilities before Iraq is named the aggressor.

The fact that Iran did not explicitly require that Iraq be blamed pointed to a new moderate attitude, said the diplomatic and administrative sources.

Iran claims Iraq began the war by invading Iran in September 1980. Iraq says the conflict started weeks earlier when Iranian artillery shelled border towns. Iraqi President Saddam Hussein has sought a negotiated settlement for years, but Iran has said a cease-fire resolution must call Iraq the aggressor.

Internment recalled as House approves cash compensation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Norman Mineta tried to keep his voice steady as he read aloud a letter his father had written to friends in 1942, shortly after the family was herded onto a train bound for a World War II internment camp.

"I looked at Santa Clara Street from the train over the subway. I thought this might be the last look at my loved home city. My heart almost broke and suddenly hot tears just came pouring out, and the whole family cried out, and could not stop until we were out of our loved county," Mineta told his House colleagues Thursday.

Mineta, D-Calif., wiped his eyes as he finished reading. He had been 10 years old and wearing his Cub Scout uniform when the train left the station in San Jose. He was 12 when his family was allowed to return home.

And he was 55 when at last the House, on the 200th anniversary of the Constitution, approved apologies and compensation for Japanese-Americans deprived of their civil liberties during the wartime internment program.

In what supporters repeatedly termed an act of penance or atonement, the House passed the Civil Liberties Act of 1987 by a margin of 243-141. Senate passage of a similar bill is expected next week.

The measure includes a national apology to the 120,000 citizens and residents of Japanese ancestry who were relocated, confined, held in custody or otherwise deprived of liberty or property under the internment program.

It also authorizes $50 million for a public education fund on the program and, in a section that generated considerable controversy, $1.2 billion for $20,000 restitution payments to some 60,000 internees who are still alive.

And it directs federal agencies to review criminal convictions related to violations of the internment law as well as applications for restitution of positions, status or other losses attributable to discriminatory federal actions.

The Office of Management and Budget has said it will recommend a presidential veto for budgetary reasons. But Rep. Robert Matsui, D-Calif., said he hoped the House and Senate votes would soften White House opposition to the measure.

Soviets conduct nuclear test

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union conducted an underground nuclear test today at the Semipalatinsk test site in Soviet Central Asia, Tass said.

Tass said the blast had a yield of up to 20 kilotons and was "carried out with a view to upgrading military technology."

It was the 16th underground nuclear blast since the Soviet Union abandoned unilateral moratorium Feb. 28.

The test came while Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze was in Washington negotiating a treaty to ban the superpowers' intermediate-range nuclear missiles.

As part of the negotiations in Washington, U.S. and Soviet spokesmen announced Thursday that the two sides would begin "full-scale" negotiations by Dec. 1 to end all nuclear weapons tests.

Both sides said effective verification would be a key to any agreement to ban nuclear testing.

Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev began the moratorium on Aug. 6, 1985, the 40th anniversary of the American atomic bombing of Hiroshima, Japan.

Despite Gorbachev's appeals, the United States refused to join the moratorium. It said further tests were needed to check the effectiveness of nuclear weapons and to develop the "Star Wars" system of a space-based shield against nuclear attack.

Pennzoil says Texaco soliciting briefs from attorneys general

HOUSTON (AP) — Attorneys general from states across the nation should beware of a Texaco Inc. tactic of seeking support for its appeal of a multibillion-dollar judgment involving Pennzoil Co., a Pennzoil attorney says.

"Texaco's secret tactic of trying to personally visit state attorneys general is designed to disguise as a 'spontaneous expression' what is actually an orchestrated campaign complete with a 'model' brief furnished to the attorneys general," a letter sent this week to state attorneys general from Pennzoil attorney John L. Jeffers says.

"Texaco has continually used scare tactics, sheer size and political power to mislead the public and manipulate public opinion to divert attention from its continual losses in the courts," the letter said.

Texaco officials said Thursday that the Securities and Exchange Commission and the states of New York and Delaware have filed amicus briefs with the Texas Supreme Court, "stating unequivocally that their respective laws were misapplied by the lower courts in Texas."

"We have also spoken with officials, including attorneys general of a number of states, concerning the status of the litigation and the legal issue involved," the Texaco statement said.

"We have been gratified with the level of understanding and support we have received. No state official has ever expressed to us a belief that the Pennzoil judgment is defensible," it added.

A state jury in 1985 found Texaco wrongfully interfered with a planned merger between Houston-based Pennzoil and Getty Oil Co. Texaco is appealing the $10.53 billion judgment owed Pennzoil.

The judgment has been upheld by the 1st Texas Court of Civil Appeals, and Texaco now is asking the Texas Supreme Court to consider the case.

White Plains, N. Y.-based Texaco filed for Chapter 11 of the U.S. Bankruptcy Code in April to void a state requirement that it post a potentially ruinous $12 billion security bond to appeal the judgment.

Texaco officials also said that states who have indicated their intent to appear as friends of the court have done so at the request of Attorney General Robert Stephan of Kansas, who has circulated a proposed joint brief to his fellow attorneys general.

Agents seize ton of pot, 5 planes at airstrip

HARGILL (AP) — A Mexican pilot is jailed in lieu of $500,000 bond after a raid on a South Texas airstrip where federal agents seized more than a ton of marijuana and five airplanes.

The drug was found in a cement-lined cellar at the airstrip, along with ammunition for military-style AR-15 and M-16 rifles, officials said Thursday.

Federal agents obtained a search warrant for the Filigonia Airport near the farming town of Hargill in the Lower Rio Grande Valley after Border Patrol agents spotted "airplanes touching and going in and out of there," said Oran Neck, agent in charge of the U.S. Customs office in Brownsville.

"The airport, we believe, was used to bring in shipments from Mexico," said James Castillo, resident agent in charge of the Drug Enforcement Administration's Brownsville office.

A pilot, Jose Domingo Hernandez Orona, 26, of Tepic, Nayarit, Mexico, was charged with importing and possessing with intent to distribute marijuana. He appeared before a federal magistrate in Brownsville Thursday, where bond was set at $500,000.

Assisted by the Willacy County Sheriff's Department, agents found 2,611 pounds of marijuana in an underground room inside the hangar, Neck said.

"They had a cellar," he said. "It was a concrete basement, well lit, fluorescent lighting, scales and packaging material."

Castillo said Drug Enforcement Administration agents are attempting to seize the entire airport under a federal law that allows the government to seize property.

Senators' exchange opens door to $160 million Army depot

WASHINGTON (AP) — A few words on the Senate floor cleared the way for a $160 million modernization of the Red River Army Depot in Texas that had been bogged down in red tape for three years.

The upgrading project was stalled in 1985 when Congress deferred the initial $10 million authorization to study the possibility of third-party financing, Rep. Jim Chapman, D-Sulphur Springs, said Thursday.

Last spring, both houses of Congress agreed to speed up the timetable and approved a 1988 appropriation of $6.5 million to begin preparing the site for construction because it "is so critical to readiness and national security."

In doing so, the House dropped the provision requiring the Army to study private-sector financing, but the Senate did not. And the Army would not continue without the Senate's dropping the provision, said Chapman, whose district includes the depot.

"My question for the chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee is whether that body, in approving accelerated funding for site preparation work, also assumed that further study of third-party contracting was not required and intended that the Army proceed," Bentsen said.

Liver transplant patient, 5, dies

AUSTIN (AP) — A young boy, who received a donated liver after a lawsuit settlement waived a hospital's $100,000 recipient fee, died in a Dallas hospital while awaiting a second transplant.

Timmy Hewer, 5, died from "multi-system organ failure" at 3:20 a.m. Thursday, said Lori Waggoner, Children's Medical Center Hospital spokeswoman.

Timmy went to surgery at about 8:30 p.m. Wednesday. A second liver had been located, but Waggoner said she was unsure where it was when the young boy died. A transplant operation can take up to 20 hours.

Over the weekend, the youth developed problems with the liver he received Sept. 6.

A lawsuit was filed in Timmy's behalf in August when the boy's parents were unable to pay Children's Medical Center $100,000 deposit for placement on a liver recipient list.

To the pope, Clint's just another politician

CARMEL, Calif. (AP) — T-shirts to the contrary, Pope John Paul II didn't make Clint Eastwood's day.

When they shook hands at the Monterey airport, Eastwood admitted later to reporters, the pontiff knew he was being introduced to the mayor of Carmel but didn't recognize Dirty Harry of celluloid fame — not even "the man with no name" from the spaghetti Westerns.

Besides greeting the pope at the airport, Eastwood attended the pontiff's prayer service at the grave of Father Junipero Serra at Mission San Carlos Borromeo.

Dr. Don Turner

1st Baptist has new minister of evangelism

Former missionary Dr. Don Turner is the new minister of Adults and Evangelism at First Baptist Church, 203 N. West. Dr. Turner and his wife Donna served for 18 years as missionaries to Brazil. They moved to Pampa from Richmond, Va., where he was serving as a research associate for the Foreign Mission Board. Dr. Turner will be in charge of enlisting and training adult Sunday School workers and in developing adult ministries with a primary emphasis on evangelism.

He is a graduate of Caron-Newman College in Tennessee; New Orleans Baptist Seminary and received his doctorate from Louisville Baptist Seminary in Kentucky.

Dr. Darrel Rains, pastor, invited the public to attend services at First Baptist Church this Sunday. In both the 11 a.m. morning worship service and the 7 p.m. evening service, he will be preaching from the Book of Joshua.

At the 11 a.m. service, the choir will sing a spiritual entitled "Somebody's Praying" with Ron Hendrick as soloist. Also featured in the Sunday morning service will be a solo by Mrs. Paul Simmons.

Both services will be broadcast on Channel 9 television.

His Touch

By Charlotte Barbaree

Scripture: Like newborn babies, crave pure spiritual milk, so that by it you may grow up in your salvation, now that you have tasted that the Lord is good. (1 Peter 2:2-3 NIV)

I am allergic to practically all fruit. Since I rarely get to enjoy fresh fruit, I especially crave the juicy deliciousness. My husband has a habit of bringing a snack to bed with him each night. He is constantly on a diet, so the snack is usually fruit.

Oranges are a year-round favorite; he gets an icy cold orange from the refrigerator, brings it to bed and proceeds to pull chunks of peel onto a paper towel. With every torn piece of rind, the aroma of the orange becomes stronger, activating my salivary glands as it wafts in my direction.

He then tears the meat of the orange into sections spraying cold, tempting juice into my face and across the book I happen to be reading.

But it's his eating that really gets to me; all that scrunchy squooshiness is provocation for justifiable homicide!

Like next to my dear husband of 25 years, tasting the sweet juiciness of the fruit with my mind, and praying for grace to remember I'll quit hating him as soon as the orange is gone. On the rare occasions I succumb to the craving and attack an orange, it tastes as delicious as I expect and leaves me wanting more.

Growing Christians crave more of Jesus' goodness. Our hunger for meatier spiritual insight urges us to gradually peel away our thick, tough rind of worldliness and scriptural ignorance. As we discard the pieces of obstruction, the fragrance of Christ's presence in us surges forth.

As He calls our meager abilities into service, He ripens, augments and multiplies them; the resulting blessings excite our curiosity concerning what more Christ has for us to savor.

The maturation process for Christians progresses to ever greater succulence. Every growth experience is saturated with divine approval and hope eternal which entices us with the abiding assurance more awaits us—much, much, more!

Fall Bible Conference scheduled

The Bible Church of Pampa, 300 W. Browning, will host its sixth annual Fall Bible Conference this Saturday and Sunday.

The conference sessions will be at 7 p.m. Saturday and at 10 a.m., 11 a.m. and 5 p.m. Sunday.

Theme of this year's conference is "Missions: What in the World Is Going On?"

"We are very privileged this year to have Dr. Walter Baker, associate professor of world missions at Dallas Theological Seminary, bring us four messages from God's Word on missions," said Rev. Roger A. Hubbard, pastor.

"We try each year in our Fall Bible Conference to bring in an expert in a particular area of Biblical theology," Rev. Hubbard said. "I think we have accomplished that in all our conferences. This year we thought it was time to focus on missions."

Dr. Baker, a world traveler to various mission fields, will relate what the Bible says to what is happening in the world today.

"Those who have heard Dr. Baker speak testify that he is a very dynamic public speaker and a blessing to everyone who hears him," Hubbard said. "Dr. Baker has an amazing ability to show how world missions is affecting every one of us, and how we can affect world missions."

Dr. Walter Baker

Pennsylvania in 1973-1974 and earned his doctorate of divinity from Lancaster Bible College in 1986. He is currently in doctor of theology studies at Dallas Theological Seminary.

He was a missionary in the Un-evangelized Fields Mission in Haiti-West Indies from 1957 to 1967. He served as dean of students at L'Ecole Evangelique de la Bible from 1965 to 1966, acting director in 1966-1967 and director of the Summer Missionary Internship Program since 1968 for the mission.

Baker also was director of missions from 1967 to 1974 and faculty member and chairman of the Division of Professional Studies at Lancaster Bible College in 1973-1974. He has been on the Dallas Theological Seminary since 1974.

Listed in Outstanding Educators of America, he is a member of the Evangelical Theological Society and the Evangelical Association of Professors of Missions. He has been a member of the CAM International board since 1982.

Baker has traveled in the West Indies, Latin America, Africa, Southeast Asia and throughout the continental United States.

He and his wife Dottie have four children: Judith (Mrs. Philip Sell), Jeffrey, Jonathan and Janine.

Hubbard said that the evening meetings are arranged "so that our Christian friends in Pampa can come without interfering with their own church services."

He said the public is cordially invited to attend any or all of the meetings. Nursery facilities are available.

Dr. Baker received his bachelor's degree from The King's College in 1953 and his master of theology from Dallas Theological Seminary in 1957. He had graduate studies at the University of

Constitution Sunday

As part of the observances in Constitution Week, churches are being encouraged to celebrate Constitution Sunday this weekend.

Kathleen Anderson, chairman of the local Constitution Bicentennial Committee, said the day is part of the activities being held nationwide to commemorate the signing of the Constitution of the United States of America.

"Celebrate Constitution Sunday in the church of your choice by observing this day of thanksgiving for a country founded by God-loving, God-fearing, God-worshipping people who knew there was a spark of Divine in each one of us, thereby writing a governing document that insured our freedom," Anderson encouraged Pampa area residents.

She quoted the words of Benjamin Franklin when requesting that the signers take time out from a heated debate for prayer: "If a sparrow cannot fall to the ground without His notice, is it probable that an empire can rise without His aid?"

The Daughters of the American Revolution, in noting reasons for observance of the special week, have asked Americans to study the American Constitution, understand its meaning and realize why the United States is the best nation in the world.

Those attending and participating in church services this weekend are encouraged to remember the Constitution in prayers, in remarks from the pulpit and in lessons in the church classrooms.

Rev. Art Hill

Zion Lutheran to install new pastor Sunday

Sunday will mark a special day in the life of Zion Lutheran Church, 1200 Duncan. In an afternoon worship service, the congregation will celebrate the installation of its new pastor, Rev. Art Hill.

The installation service will be held at 3:30 p.m. Rev. Paul Uhles of Trinity Lutheran Church in Borger will conduct the service, with Rev. Gary Stolle of St. John Lutheran Church in Dumas preaching.

Rev. Hill, the new pastor, is a native of Odessa, where he was on the dean's list at Odessa College. In 1976 he received his bachelor of art degree in marketing from North Texas State University at Denton.

Upon graduation, he was employed by Calgon Consumer Products until 1978, when he was accepted at Concordia Seminary in St. Louis, Mo.

As part of his seminary education, Hill served a summer internship at Trinity Lutheran Church in Keene, N.H., and another full-year internship at Trinity Lutheran Church at Burr Ridge, Ill. He was ordained Aug. 29, 1982.

For the past five years Hill has served at Grace Lutheran Church in Crockett.

Zion Lutheran's regular Sunday morning schedule includes Bible classes for all ages at 9:30 a.m. and worship at 10:45 a.m.

Religion Roundup

DALLAS (AP)—An editorial in the nation's largest Methodist weekly criticizes Southern Baptists for a policy requiring employees to profess that the Bible is true in all areas—historically, scientifically and theologically.

The editorial by the Rev. Spurgeon Dunn III, editor of the United Methodist Reporter, calls the policy "disturbing" and "regrettable."

"Pragmatically, adopting a policy that attempts to dictate the beliefs of others is more likely to polarize and increase disunity among Southern Baptists than to produce the sought-after conformity," he writes. "Theologically, Protestant Christians long have emphasized that one's conscience should be regarded as inviolable."

VALLEY FORGE, Pa. (AP)—The Rev. Robert C. Campbell, for 15 years chief executive officer of the American Baptist Churches, retired Sept. 1 to become president of the Eastern Baptist Theological Seminary in Philadelphia.

Two projects in which you've invested considerable effort will start producing desirable results in the year ahead. Reap the harvest to which you're entitled before engaging in new ventures. VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Rewards for your efforts may come in small portions today, but don't let this disturb you. Whatever you gain is more than you had previously. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker set instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You may have a chance today to put into practice something that you learned from a friend. It should work equally as well for you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) In career or financial matters today, don't be hesitant to bargain hard for better terms. The timing is ripe for you to assert yourself.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) If you honor your promises and commitments in every detail today, you'll gain even greater respect from associates than that which you already have.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Although you would probably do it better if the roles were reversed, one who will do you a favor today will do it as well as he or she can.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You might have to make a rather difficult decision today. If you are convinced it's for the good of all concerned, execute it without looking back.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Get an early start today, and focus your efforts on worthy assignments. Much can be accomplished now if you have the determination to do so.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) A matter that has serious overtones has a good chance of being resolved today. However, you might have to take a few risks to pull it off.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Don't give up prematurely today or become discouraged if it seems like everything is going against you. The end result should please you.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Analyze in depth a proposal offered to you today. There's a possibility that it will contain benefits for you that it doesn't provide for others.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) A channel presently providing personal gain can be expanded on at this time. Use your ingenuity to figure out a way to reap larger rewards.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You'll fit in and have good rapport with everyone today, whether they're young or old. You have a wonderful knack for making all feel important.

Who was Henry Lee?

Who was General Henry Lee? Yes, his son was General Robert E. Lee of Civil War fame, but the LEE family was a military one long before the Civil War.

Henry Lee fought with General Nathaniel Greene, the Commander-in-Chief of the Southern Department during the American Revolution, and was awarded one of the eight gold medals struck by Congress for his heroism.

Gen. Lee was called "Lighthorse Harry" for his daring command of a cavalry unit during the Revolution.

During the eulogy for George Washington, Lighthorse Harry proclaimed Washington to be "first in war, first in peace, and first in the heart of his countrymen."

While in Baltimore in July 1812, Lee and a friend were attacked by a mob while distributing pamphlets opposing another war with England. Gen. Lee was beaten so brutally that he sailed to the Caribbean in an attempt to regain his health. During the return trip, he became ill and left the ship at Cumberland Island, Ga., to stay with the family of his friend and former commander, Nathaniel Greene.

Learning that LOUISA GREENE SHAW was the mistress of Dungeness, he sent the message, "Tell her I am come purposely to die in the house and in the arms of the daughter of my old friend and compatriot."

When Gen. Lee's death was announced in March 1818, many naval officers assigned in the area came to participate in the funeral. Infantry and Marines formed a military escort, and members of the Army and Navy acted as pallbearers. It was a sad day on Cumberland Island as another of the nation's heroes was laid to rest.

ROBERT E. LEE shipped a headstone and footstone to mark the grave in 1832 or 1833, and he is known to have made two trips to the gravesite, in 1862 and again with his daughter, Agnes, in 1870.

Patriotic societies of Georgia protested the removal of Gen. Henry Lee's body by the state of Virginia, but in the spring of 1913, government officials arrived to oversee the exhumation. The remains were placed in the family mausoleum beneath Lee Chapel on the campus of Washington and Lee University. The crypt beside Gen. Robert E. Lee states, "Gen. Henry Lee 'Lighthorse Harry' 1756-1818 Buried at Cumberland Island Removed to Lexington, Va. 1913."

Wall hanging helps keep room neat

By BETH COTTEN

If you have children, you know the "clean up your room" routine.

The parent pleads, orders, coaxes or bribes the child to straighten things up. The child says something like, "Okay, sure," and then immediately forgets about it.

Hours or days later, the scene is repeated. The child is amazed to learn that the parent meant NOW, not when the child is THROUGH using all this stuff — say, perhaps, at age 18, when she or he leaves home for the real world.

At one time, I thought that starting off at an early age would solve the problem. So, when my youngest son was only 3, I taught him to clean his room.

The first time he did it on his own, I was the proudest parent in the universe. I took pictures to show off.

Then I opened the closet to find that he had conveniently stuffed all his small toys into the pockets of his coats and pants!

Live and learn. I immediately went to the workshop and sewed up a large wall hanging covered with pockets. I even made some simple stuffed animals to go in them.

The colorful, washable wall hanging makes a great decoration as well as a place for kids to put their small toys. It's very simple to make.

Our plans for the critters wall hanging include a materials list, step-by-step instructions, plus full-size patterns for the five animal toys: cat, bear, elephant, pig and bird.

We are also offering plans for our big seed applique collection, eight easy and attractive pictures for kids to make on rainy days. All you need are dried seeds, beans and spices, cardboard and glue!

To order plans for the critters wall hanging, specify Project No. 1836; or for the seed applique, specify No. 1228. Send $4.95 for either plan, or save a dollar and receive both for only $8.90.

Mail to: Makin' Things, Dept. 79065, P.O. Box 1000, Bixby, Okla. 74008-1000. Add $2.95 for a catalog, featuring $16 worth of coupons.

To make the critters wall hanging, you'll need 1 1/4 yards of 36-inch-wide canvas or similar fabric, 7 yards of wide bias binding, fabric scraps for the animals, four metal rings, buttons, rickrack, yarn and fiberfill.

Cut a 28 x 36-inch piece of canvas for the backing. Cut three pocket pieces: 6 x 28 inches, 9 x 28 inches and 10 x 28 inches. Encase the top long edge of each pocket with bias binding.

Press under the lower edge of each pocket and pin all three to the backing, forming horizontal rows. Topstitch along both ends and the lower edge of each pocket, to secure to the backing. Topstitch each pocket from top to bottom, to divide them into separate compartments.

Encase all edges of the wall hanging in bias binding. Stitch the metal rings to the back, near the top, for hangers. Insert a fabric tie through each ring and tack the ends together.

Big wall hanging provides a place for kids to keep small toys and stuffed animals.

Cut from felt the letters, "MY CRITTERS." Stitch or glue the letters to the top of the wall hanging.

I made the little stuffed animals from calico and felt, but use whatever fabric scraps you have on hand. Cut two matching pieces for each animal. Stitch them right sides together, leaving an opening for turning.

Clip the curves and turn right side out. Stuff with fiberfill. Use buttons, rickrack, yarn and/or fabric markers to create the details and features.

Organ donations give recipients second chance at life

DEAR ABBY: Last month I lost a member of my family. He was involved in an accident and pronounced brain dead several days later. I had never given much thought to organ donations until that day. I was very much surprised that considering the amount of time the doctors and staff had spent with our family, they never once mentioned organ donations. I was the one who approached them and made the offer.

The next week, I received a letter from the hospital informing me that both kidneys were successfully transplanted — one into a 4-year-old girl.

Ironically, last week the newspaper featured a special story about how badly organs were needed. I had no idea that some people had been on a waiting list for years!

My point: I almost decided not to approach the doctors because I assumed that if they thought my loved one could be a possible donor, they would approach me. I was wrong.

In our loss, there is such a comfort knowing that others have benefited, and may have a second chance at life. If you print this, please, no name and no city.

ANONYMOUS

DEAR ANONYMOUS: Your letter could not have come at a more appropriate time. Just 10 years ago, the following appeared in my column for the first time:

"At a certain moment a doctor will determine that my brain has ceased to function and that, for all intents and purposes, my life has stopped.

"When that happens, do not attempt to instill artificial life into my body by the use of a machine. And don't call this my 'deathbed.' Call it my 'bed of life,' and let my body be taken from it to help others lead fuller lives.

"Give my sight to a man who has never seen a sunrise, a baby's face or love in the eyes of a woman.

"Give my heart to a person whose own heart has caused nothing but endless days of pain.

"Give my blood to the teenager who has been pulled from the wreckage of his car, so that he might live to see his grandchildren play.

"Give my kidneys to one who depends on a machine to exist from week to week.

"Take my bones, every muscle, every fiber and nerve in my body and find a way to make a crippled child walk.

"Explore every corner of my brain. Take my cells, if necessary, and let them grow so that someday a speechless boy will shout at the crack of a bat and a deaf girl will hear the sound of rain against her windows.

"Burn what is left of me and scatter the ashes to the winds to help the flowers grow.

"If you must bury something, let it be my faults, my weaknesses, and all prejudice against my fellowman.

"Give my soul to God.

"If by chance you wish to remember me, do it with a kind deed or word to someone who needs you. If you do all I have asked, I will live forever."

No Giant-killers around Reuschel throws two-hitter at Astros

By ERIC PREWITT
AP Sports Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Rick Reuschel treated the Houston Astros like he's treated every National League team this season — very roughly.

In his two-hit, 4-0 shutout victory Thursday, the San Francisco Giants' right-hander also gave equal treatment to each hitter, as usual.

"He doesn't even go over the other team's hitters before a game. He just pitches them all the same, keeps the ball low and once in a while throws a cross-seam fastball," said Manager Roger Craig, whose team has virtually locked up the Western Division title with a winning streak Reuschel extended to six games.

"They leave the other team's lineup card in my locker before every game, but I throw it away," Reuschel said. "That way, I don't make any mistakes — physical ones, maybe, but no mental ones."

Reuschel, 13-7, was at his best in his third two-hitter of the season, striking out five and walking one in an 88-pitch effort. Bill Doran and Gerald Young had singles in the first and sixth innings, respectively, and no Houston runner got past first base.

"I've never caught anyone who gets so many first-pitch outs and strikes. It amazes me. He's 0-1 on every hitter. You never see an aggressive swing against him," said catcher Bob Brenly, who also drove in the Giants' first two runs Thursday with a sixth-inning double off Danny Darwin, 8-10.

"Reuschel has pitched like this through all his career," Astros Manager Hal Lanier said of the 38-year-old pitcher who was with the last-place Pittsburgh Pirates before the Giants acquired him in an Aug. 21 trade.

Reuschel lowered his earned run average to 2.64, best in the league. He also leads the league in shutouts, with four, and complete games, with 12.

"He's going to win the Cy Young. He deserves it," Craig proclaimed.

Craig said that late in Thursday's game he told Reuschel he had a good shot at the award and that the pitcher replied, "I don't care about that."

After the game, Reuschel said, "It's not something I'm thinking about, but every pitcher would like to win it."

Craig said, "He pitched great for a last-place club, had three shutouts for them, and he's pitched even better for us, a better club."

Craig also announced that Reuschel will start the opening game of the National League Championship Series, something only a monumental collapse would keep the Giants from reaching.

"If you wanted to pick anyone to establish momentum on the mound for us, it would have to be him," said left-hander Dave Dravecky, Craig's projected starter in the second post-season game.

"At this point, we're sure getting all the breaks and things are going right, but in the playoffs we'll be 0-0 and we'll have to start all over," Reuschel said.

Rick Reuschel shuts down Astros.

Harris picks Herd

Hereford is ranked a 29-point favorite over Pampa in the Harris football poll as the District 1-4A season gets under way tonight.

Hereford is 1-1 for the season and ranked No. 18 in the state by Harris.

Canyon, which is the top-ranked District 1-4A team (No. 5), is a 23-point favorite over Lubbock Dunbar.

In other 1-4A action, Lubbock Estacado is favored over Frenship by 15 while the Dumas-Levelland clash is rated a tossup. Borger is idle this week.

Estacado is ranked No. 21 in the state, followed by Borger (48), Dumas (78), Levelland (79), Frenship (80), Lubbock Dunbar (83) and Pampa (132).

Jasper is ranked as the top Class 4A team in Texas, according to Harris.

The Pampa-Hereford clash will be played at 7:30 p.m. in Hereford. The Harvesters opened the season with a 28-0 loss to Amarillo High last week. The Sandies are ranked No. 52 in Class 5A by Harris.

Threshers' Quincy Williams (22) picks up yardage while teammate Guy Savage looks for a Dumas defender to block.

Threshers hold off Dumas 8-0

Both teams had numerous scoring opportunities spoiled by clutch defensive plays and turnovers, but Pampa mounted enough of an offense in the second quarter to take care of Dumas 8-0 in a freshmen football game Thursday night at Harvester Stadium.

Actually, it was Pampa's defense which put the first points on the scoreboard when Guy Savage tackled a Dumas ballcarrier in the opponent's end zone for a 2-point safety. Just a few plays later, Pampa lineman Aaron Lopez fell on a Dumas fumble to set up the Shockers' only scoring drive. Tailback Quincy Williams went to the air on option passes to Brad Hoover for 24 yards and Will Hacker for 17 before taking the ball into the end zone himself on a 4-yard scamper with 4:51 left in the half.

From there on, however, the game boiled down to a defensive struggle as both teams could only come close to cracking the end zone. In fact, the final buzzer sounded with Dumas inside Pampa's 10-yard line.

Hoover, who was all over the field on both offense and defense, was one of several Thresher standouts. Hoover caught three passes for 65 yards at offensive end and added an interception and five solo tackles while playing defense. Besides his fumble recovery, Lopez knocked down a pass that could have went for a touchdown while Cade Phillips also covered a Dumas fumble. Jeff Richter was another defensive standout with five solo tackles to his credit.

The Threshers are now 2-0 for the season and will host Valley View at 7 p.m. next Thursday night.

Blue Jays slip in AL East standings

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—The Toronto Blue Jays struck out arguing about strike three and it cost them a share of first place in the American League East.

A strange play, sparked by a reversed call, led to New York's tying run in the eighth inning Thursday night and the ejection of Toronto Manager Jimmy Williams. Dan Pasqua's RBI single with two outs in the ninth gave the Yankees a 6-5 victory.

The Blue Jays, who had won three straight, slipped one-half game behind idle Detroit in the American League East. The bitter defeat came after midnight following an 85-minute rain delay in the sixth inning.

In the only other AL games, it was Chicago 9, Seattle 8 and Kansas City 7, California 6.

"How often do you see an umpire get sent down to the minors or get released?" Williams fumed after his fifth ejection of the season. "Not very often. And we have to live with these guys for the next three days."

What triggered Williams' ire came with one out in the eighth with Toronto ahead 5-4. Pinch-hitter Phil Lombardi struck out on a low pitch from David Wells, and catcher Ernie Whitt and Lombardi both looked toward first-base umpire and crew chief Joe Brinkman.

Brinkman emphatically gestured that Whitt caught the ball cleanly, and Whitt then began tossing the ball around the infield while Lombardi, still unsure of his status, slowly trotted toward first.

Yankee Manager Lou Piniella bolted onto the field to argue the call and Brinkman asked for help from third-base umpire Tim Welke, who said the ball had hit the ground and therefore allowed Lombardi to stay at first base.

That brought Williams in a rage from the Toronto dugout. Williams went at it with Welke and Brinkman, threw his hat toward the mound and was tossed.

Whitt, charged with a passed ball, said "there's no question in my mind. I caught the ball."

Brinkman said he still wasn't certain, even after viewing replays.

"It's a tough call. You hate to see something like that happen."

Williams and the Blue Jays especially hated to see what followed.

Tom Henke, the sixth Toronto pitcher, fell to 0-6. Dave Righetti, 8-4, went one inning for the victory.

The Yankees won for just the third time in nine games, and moved into a third-place tie with Milwaukee, 7½ games behind Detroit.

White Sox 9, Mariners 8

Carlton Fisk homered to lead off the 10th inning and give Chicago its victory. Fisk's 20th homer of the season and his 15th game-winning RBI came after the Mariners had tied the score with four runs in the top of the ninth, capped by pinch-hitter Jim Presley's 23rd home run, a three-run shot into the upper deck.

Chicago's Bobby Thigpen, 5-4, got the victory although he gave up Presley's homer. Reliever Bill Wilkinson, 3-4, took the loss.

The victory was the fifth in a row for the White Sox, their longest winning streak since May 1986.

Royals 7, Angels 6

Danny Tartabull's two-out, bases-loaded single in the bottom of the ninth inning propelled Kansas City. Tartabull's hit off reliever Greg Minton, 4-3, came after Willie Wilson and Bill Pecota singled and George Brett was intentionally walked.

John Davis, 4-2, got the victory with three innings of scoreless relief.

Harvesters' losing streak could soon be a thing of the past

WHEN THEIR SEASON ENDED with a 21-6 loss at Lubbock Estacado, members of the 1985 Harvester football team surely didn't realize that just-concluded 3-7 campaign would get them a spot in the school's record book. But it certainly appears that, kicking and squalling, they will be pulled into that single line: most consecutive losses.

Going with them will be the 1986 team (0-10) and the current 1987 squad, winless after one start and facing highly-ranked Hereford on the Faces' feedlot tonight. A defeat would match the coyote-ugly mark of 15 straight losses begun by the 1959 team, sustained by the 1960 group, and finally ended in the sixth game of the 1961 schedule. A Pampa win tonight would be as surprising as the Cubs winning a pennant, the school board lowering taxes, or Ted Kennedy admitting his past is more sordid than Judge Bork's judicial record he challenges.

It may not come tonight, but the string-ending win doesn't appear to be too far off, judging from the performance against a most-talented Amarillo Sandie ballclub last Friday night. It was a solid, sustained effort by a young PHS team, playing together for the first time against an experienced, much-larger and faster team, commanded by a veteran coaching staff. Which takes us to a basic reason why that record-setting streak should end soon.

For the first time in several years there was sidelines decorum by the coaching staff. Instead of two, three and sometimes four adult coaches emerging 10 yards onto the playing field to scream at uniformed teenagers, it was pleasing to see one person in charge on the sideline and constructive remarks limited to calm, rational discussions when the defensive or offensive team turned to the sideline as a unit. Such action will build respect, leading to discipline without threat, and ultimately to overall team improvement and fan approval. Put simply, a positive approach to coaching rather than negative. The series with Hereford began in 1968, ran uninterrupted through 1983, then was resumed last year when the Hostile Herd dropped from 5A to 4A, and became an instant statewide power at the lower level of competition. Pampa trails in the series, 7-11, with HHS head coach Don Cumpston, in his second tenure at the western Panhandle school, holding a 4-2 advantage. Several of the games are memorable, but none more so than the two during the 1971 season, the games that went from crew-cut to no-cut, from discipline to undiscipline in the eyes of some Hereford players. One of the star starters for Hereford that year told me that in the season opener, played at Hereford and won by Pampa 20-7, the Harvesters came out sporting crew-cuts, looking clean and sharp and disciplined, an aura of self-confidence and pride. Both teams won their district crowns and met again at Kimbrough Stadium in bi-district. "We knew we had you beat when you walked onto the field that day," said that tough linebacker, explaining that the hair was now flowing out from under the helmet and down the uniforms, evidencing a lack of discipline and pride. Final score:

Hereford 28, PHS 20, the Harvesters last post-season game.

That's why I say the most impressive thing in the season opener was the self-control of the coaching staff. I have never seen a successful high school football team without it.

CHAFF: It is doubtful a more exciting, more under-control running back than AHS' Lehmer Dunn will be faced this season...The 28-0 score marked the 26th shutout in the oldest series on Pampa's schedule, and the 23rd time it was Pampa that was whitewashed...With 5,480 seats at Harvester Field, the estimate of 5,000 in some media reports was slightly exaggerated, although it was a very good crowd...Sitting on the Sandie side was Dr. Kenneth Johnston, outstanding sports injury surgeon, who was still looking for the tooth he had knocked out on that same field while wearing a Black and Gold uniform many seasons ago. "Unfortunately," the Borger native said, "we've been very busy already with football-related surgeries." And he went on to explain that the supposed arthroscopic treatment of knee injuries, which he began performing in the 1970s, doesn't really restore an athlete to full and complete physical health much sooner than the long-standing normal surgical procedure...In that vein, there have already been four football-related deaths nationwide this young season (one in Texas) following a ten-year high of 17 last year...USA Today ranks defending 5-A state champion Plano (2-0) the 18th best high school team in the country this week, highest rated Texas team. Conroe McCullough ranks 24th. Pittsburgh North Hills is No. 1...National Officials Day is October 19, National Coaches Day October 23 (PHS at Levelland) ...Pampa's future-opponents record is 12-6 entering this weekend's play...The trainer's position is being handled by two assistant coaches while the search for a licensed, fulltime trainer continues.

Short strike predicted

By BARRY WILNER
AP Sports Writer

If there is a players' strike next week it won't last too long — certainly not as long as the 57-day walkout in 1982 — many NFL players say.

An Associated Press survey of players from all 28 teams indicated that the majority of players expect to go on strike Tuesday. But they don't think the strike will take too big a chunk out of the season.

"I think the owners will test us to see how strong we are," Mike Reichenbach, a linebacker with the Philadelphia Eagles, said. "Two weeks or so... but the players are willing to stay out as long as it takes."

"I don't think it will be long," Pittsburgh Steelers safety Lupe

Sanchez said. "Both sides are smarter than that. They know the consequences and they know how bad it would be for the game."

In the AP survey, five players from each of the 28 teams were asked if they believe there will be a strike; if they believe the strike deadline will be extended; how long they think the strike will last; what would be a solution to the free agency impasse and who they think the fans would favor.

None of those queried are currently player representatives. The responses clearly showed that the players don't look for a long layoff.

"I have a feeling it would be short," Tim Irwin, a tackle with the Minnesota Vikings, said. "I believe we may have made believers of some of the owners last time with our show of solidarity."
