MIAMI — The Republican candidate for Roberts County clerk plans to continue campaigning for the office although she illegally voted in the Republican primary after signing a petition for a Democratic candidate.

Miami resident Ione Jones, who is challenging Democratic incumbent Jackie Jackson for the clerk's office, said she did not know that it was against the law to sign a petition for a Democratic candidate to be placed on the ballot, then vote in her own Republican party primary. Such an action could be a Class C misdemeanor, punishable by a $200 fine, according to local officials

But a candidate in one party can sign a petition for another party's candidate and still be eligible to seek office, said to John Steiner, an attorney in the Texas Secretary of State's office

'By signing the petition, you are ineligible to vote in the other party's primary, but not

Steiner acknowledged that the law's policy is to separate the parties, "but that was not the way it was written. Jones said she knew she couldn't vote in the Democratic Primary, but she didn't understand that she couldn't vote in a GOP primary after signing a Democrat's petition.

Mildred Cunningham, the Roberts County Justice of the Peace, said she told me about the voting, but that was so long ago," she said

She said she was not aware about the alleged discrepancy until the GOP county chairman Fran Morrison called her. 'I'm just going to wait for the other shoe to fall." Jones said Morrison said Roberts County Democrat

Chairman Don Jenkins brought the voting discrepancy to her attention. Apparently two people who signed petitions for Roberts County Democrat candidates voted in the Republican Primary and two people who signed petitions for Republican candidates voted in

'Ione signed the petitions (one for Cunningham, one for Democratic sheriff contender Larry Gill) before she knew she was going to be a candidate," Morrison said.

She added that her candidates' petitions had enough signatures that the two ineligible signatures would not make any difference.

'We needed 25 signatures and our candidate's petition had 35," she said

'But I'm not going to do anything," she said. "It's up to Don Jenkins on whether he charges her with anything.

Jenkins said he hasn't decided what he's going to do. Jenkins has reportedly offered to withold charges if Jones steps out of the race. But he did not confirm that as one of his options

'We're trying to keep quiet about it,'' he said. "I'd rather not do anything yet.

'She would have still been within the law if she had not voted in the Republican primary." Jenkins said. "But if they knew they were doing wrong, they need to be punished.

Texas already is a party to two suits challenging the selection process. Mattox said the Panhandle site is unsuitable because it is a productive farm area and sits on the Ogallala Aquifer that supplies water for the region.

The attorney general called on Texans to contact Gramm "and tell him we expect him to get the thing stopped.

'He's supposed to have a direct line with the president," said Mattox, recalling that Gramm said in his 1984 campaign that he would be effective in opposing a Texas dump site.

'We've not seen any change in ernor "doesn't share Bill Clements' opinion that Texas can safely "accommodate" such wastes

Clements' campaign spokesman Reggie Bashur said the quote was out of context, and Clements is "absolutely against" the selection of a Texas site for the nuclear waste dump. Clements believes Nevada will be selected. Bashur said.

But the fact that Texas made the final three is evidence of White's ineffectiveness, according to Bashur.

'There were other states that effectively pleaded their case in Washington. Once again, Mark White has had no influence with the Reagan administration in Washington," Bashur said.

Judge rejects attorney's bid to bar publicity during pre-trial hearing

BY PAUL PINKHAM Staff Writer

A district judge has limited outof-court statements those connected with the capital murder case of a Pampa man can make to the media, but said he could not prevent coverage of the trial or photographs of those involved.

223rd District Judge Don Cain granted part of a motion by lawyers for John Weaver, 29, to limit publicity during a pre-trial hearing Thursday, but denied the portions of the motion that would have prohibited pictures of those connected with the case and coverage of pre-trial hearings.

"I'm not going to restrict the news media as to what goes on in this courtroom," Cain said.

Weaver, currently in the Gray ounty Jail, is charged with capital murder in connection with the Dec. 14 shotgun slaying of Jo Ann Williams, 40, in her home at 1056 Varnon Drive. He is accused of shooting Williams when she stepped between him and her daughter Bridgett, 19, with whom he allegedly was arguing.

The case is scheduled to come to trial July 21.

Defense attorney Harold Com-

er said he recognizes the media's right to "report the news" but said he is more concerned with his client's right to a fair trial. He said he fears the "hoopla" that always surrounds capital murder cases because of the media's "penchant for sensationalism" and "irresistible urge to put something striking in the news account.

Reading from a Dec. 15 Pampa News account of the shooting, the only front-page account to have appeared in the paper, Comer said: "This is the type of reporting that can only be designed to affect the right of the defendant to a fair trial.

Comer complained of statements made to reporters by the Pampa Police Department and of the newspaper's reporting that Weaver had been indicted earlier on aggravated assault charges stemming from an earlier incident where he allegedly chased Bridgett Williams down Varnon Drive with an ice pick screaming, 'Why can't I see my kid?'

"I think it's in the best interest of both the defendant and the state that certain rules be applied. The state and the defense and the news media need to exercise some restraint," Comer said. "Every possible avenue should be used to protect the rights of the defendant in a capital murder case

In contrast to Comer's warning about sensationalism, the public section of the courtroom was occupied by a lone reporter and a Gray County Sheriff's deputy. There were no cameras in the hallway

The defense motion would have prohibited any photographs of Weaver or anyone else connected with the case, photographing or broadcasting from the courtroom either in or out of session, reportage of pre-trial proceedings and examination by the media of exhibits before they are entered into evidence as well as statements other than facts made to the media by those connected with the case. Cain granted only the portions of the motion dealing with courtroom photography and broadcasting, examination of evidence and limited the prohibited statements to those made out of court.

"I have no intention of calling any law enforcement agency or any news media and telling what they can and cannot do," Assistant District Attorney David Hamilton said in arguing against parts of the motion

Cain also granted a motion by Hamilton to limit statements made by the defense in front of the jury concerning the reputation of state's witnesses, "particularly the deceased."

"If he's going to try to establish that (Weaver was) provoked into this attack then I've got to know before it gets in front of a jury,' Hamilton said

"Her character has everything to do with the conduct (alleged in the indictment)." defense attorney Mark Buzzard said. "Why someone commits an act, if they did, has to do with personalities and personalities consist of character and reputation.

Cain also granted several defense motions for discovery and a psychiatric examination of Weaver and took under advisement Hamilton's motion for a list of defense witnesses. He requested briefs from both parties on Hamilton's motion by June 23. Weaver was dressed in jail-house pants and a t-shirt and sat motionless next to his attorneys throughout most of the proceedings

Voting on golf course not limited to taxpayers

About 900 ballots polling Gray County voters on county involvement in a public golf course had been received by late Thursday, County Judge Carl Kennedy said this morning.

The non-binding ballots were mailed this week, not only to taxpayers, but to all families of residents on county voter registration lists. Voters and their families are asked to decide on county involvement in constructing a public golf course through the use of county equipment, personnel and possibly funds left over from the sale of Highland General Hospital.

Supporters of the course have said it would provide a boost to local businesses and keep money spent by golfers in other communities in Gray County while opponent have expressed concern over costs to the taxpayers

No cost is mentioned on the ballots because, Kennedy said, if the response is negative, "that's it," and the commissioners did not want to expend time and effort determining costs if the response proves to be negative.

The ballots have places for four voters to vote and sign their names but Kennedy stressed those needing more places can add them. The vote is not limited to registered voters. Ballots were addressed to entire families.

'We're wanting a response from the people that reside here," Kennedy said

Kennedy said he plans to recommend that three-person teams, including those both for and against the proposal, be involved in the counting.

A number of ballots sent to people that have moved have been returned to the county by the Post Office because they were sent by bulk mail and, under postal regulations, bulk mail is not forwarded.

Kennedy said voters who have not received a ballot can contact his office if they wish to vote. He added the county may try to locate those whose ballots were returned undeliverable.

'We would like very much for them to vote," he said.

Bullock says state may come up $2 billion short

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas House members, convening in a rare off-year meeting, today were told that the state government's budget shortfall could hit $2 billion by next year.

State Comptroller Bob Bullock told lawmakers his February estimate that state revenues will fall $1.34 billion short of the amount budgeted still stands -'but only as a minimum.'

"Don't be surprised if the budget shortfall for this biennium which ends Aug. 31, 1987, rises to $2 billion," Bullock said.

The shortfall was created largely by the worldwide plunge in oil prices and a corresponding drop in oil tax revenues. Bullock said he won't officially revise his $1.3 billion forecast until oil prices stabilize.

"There's less money for Texas," Bullock said. "The price of oil has not stabilized.' House Speaker Gib Lewis, D-

Fort Worth, said he wanted his 149 colleagues to hear first-hand where the state is in coping with the budget crisis.

"The main thing we want to do is get an overall analysis of where we are at this time, so we can start making preparations ahead of time for the next session,' Lewis said.

Lewis said the Legislature that meets in January may have to deal with the shortfall and other spending constraints.

"It would be unwise for us to go into January without any preparation as long as we're having budget problems," he said.

The speaker also said he hoped lawmakers would get an update on House Bill 72, the sweeping 1984 public school reform law which has generated considerable controversy since taking effect.

On the eve of the House meeting, Gov. Mark White said he sees no need to expand the state's sales tax base day in the case against two men charged with conspiring to de-

"I'm very optimistic that we will see the savings that we are achieving today expand into a position where we'll make certain we don't need any new taxes at all next (legislative) session,' White said.

Earlier this week, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby suggested that the sales . tax base could be broadened -by including under the 4½ percent levy some items now exempt. Hobby said exemptions should be retained for food and medicine.

But White said his executive order urging 13 percent spending cuts by the approximately 200 state agencies is working.

White noted a report from the Texas Education Agency, saying the agency will require $140 million less than had been anticipated. Officials say attendance figures for public schools have been running less than projected.

"I assure you we'll have assuming the current revenues ---adequate monies to meet our budgetary needs," White said.

South African government seeking broad new powers

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — The government says it needs broad new powers to fight what it calls a communistinspired revolution, but critics charge that the proposed security measures will do nothing to quell racial unrest.

Deputy Information Minister Louis Nel issued a statement Thursday in which he said the government believes security forces need new powers to enable the government to negotiate with black leaders.

One bill presented to Parliament would enable Law and Order Minister Louis Le Grange to exercise whatever powers he considered necessary in any district declared an "unrest area."

Another measure, a proposed amendment to the wide-ranging Internal Security Act, would enable senior police officers to de-Aain for 180 days anyone they consider has been or might be involved in disturbances. That compares with a 14-day limit now in place.

Under the existing act, the law and order minister has power to order detention of up to a year and can renew it.

"It is grossly unfair to compare South Africa's position with that of any other Western country,' Nel said. "No other Western nation at present experiences the revolutionary onslaught, planned by communist strategists ... making them (blacks) believe that revolution is the way to bring about peace and a just society."

The government says that the African National Congress, the main guerrilla organization fighting to end white rule, is communist-inspired Nel rejected widespread criticism that the security bills were an attempt to quell 20 months of antiapartheid unrest by force rather than by negotiation.

But Helen Suzman, a legislator from the opposition Progressive Federal Party, told The Associated Press: "Whatever Mr. Nel says, the fact is that increasing powers taken over and over again by this government have done nothing to curb violence and unrest.

No more cyanide found in Anacin-3; police fingerprint checks under way

AUSTIN (AP) — As more stores yank Anacin-3 off their shelves, police tried today to identify partial fingerprints on nine capsules found in the bottle with a cyanidelaced pill that killed an Austin collge student.

Kenneth Wayne Faries, 24, a University of Texas senior, died of cyanide poisoning that authorities linked to a bottle of Anacin-3 purchased at a Walgreen drug store.

Walgreen stores nationwide immediately pulled the capsules from their shelves, but state health officials said Thursday that tests on 2,697 capsules taken from 10 Austin Walgreen stores found no further trace of the poison.

Meanwhile, Rochester, N.Y.based Wegmans Food Markets Inc. removed Anacin-3 capsules from its supermarkets' shelves Thursday, spokeswoman Mary Ellen Burris said.

We're waiting for word from the manufacturer," she said. 'We're checking the codes and were those involved in the Texas incident.'

And Patrick Mongillo, regional supervisor for Fay's Drug Co. Inc., said that all 23 New Yorkarea Fay's drugstores have pulled products off their shelves.

He said it was possible that one store might have the matching lot number and expiration date of the Anacin-3 found in Austin, but that couldn't be confirmed.

Austin police Sgt. David Parkinson said partial fingerprints were found on nine of the 46 capsules from the bottle that killed Faries.

"We have not made positive comparison with any known print right now," Parkinson said Thurday, adding that he hoped the fingerprint checks would be completed by the end of today

But as far as the city-wide Anacin-3 checks, "all of those tests are completed and the results were uniformly negative - no tampering and no poison," said Bob Henna, director of the food

Department of Health.

Henna said a U.S. Food and Drug Administration lab in Dallas tested the capsules Wednesday night and Thursday. Capsules taken from other Austinarea stores will be tested over the next few days, he said.

FDA spokesman Bill Grigg said the agency still was awaiting an analysis of the 46 remaining capsules found in Faries' apartment. Originally in police custody, that bottle now has been transferred to FDA and is being taken to the agency's Cincinnati laboratories for analysis, Grigg said Until all investigations are completed, Health Commissioner Robert Bernstein warned Texans to exercise caution with Anacin-3 capsules.

"Of course, we hope this is an isolated incident, but until all tests of the victim's body are done and our investigation is 10-88, police said.

expiration dates to see if they and drug division of the Texas over, we must stress that each person must take the responsibility of double-checking the products they use," Bernstein said. Faries, a UT chemistry senior, died May 21. But lab tests from the autopsy weren't completed until Wednesday, when word of the Anacin-3 link was made public.

Police are treating Faries' death as a homicide, but suicide hasn't been ruled out, said police spokeswoman Kellye Norris.

'We're treating it as a homicide beause our medical examiner did rule it a homicide. But we haven't ruled anything out yet. We're not saying it's definitely a homicide," Ms. Norris said.

"Our investigators right now are going out and doing all the checks," she added.

College assessment proposed

AUSTIN (AP) - Texas' public on a minimum level of performcolleges and universities should be judged on their overall excellence - not on minimum standards, a study group of the Select Committee on Higher Education was told.

"The idea is to try so far as possible to challenge institutions to do their best at whatever they do best rather than concentrate ance," said Dr. Peter Ewell of the National Center for Higher Education Management Systems at Boulder, Colorado.

Ewell appeared Thursday at a work session of a subgroup of the Select Committee considering ways of assessing the quality of Texas' public colleges and universities.

Gifts For GRAE To Further Their Studies And Careers

Greediness of government Maybe it's easy to do, but recent events have left me completely bewildered (and that's not even counting the Austin gig) A few weeks ago, our friendly Gray County highway patrol was cruising around in the city and decided to give me a ticket for an expired inspection sticker. I put the foul green paper in my glove box and immediately forgot about it.

Not long afterward, the Carson County highway patrol nailed me for speeding and an expired inspection sticker, which I did not forget about

My appearance date for Carson County coincided with the dates I ould be out of town, so I figured I could take care of it when I got back. returned to town and found in my mail reminders from the Carson County JP that I'd missed the date and had another couple of weeks to pay the tickets. That seemed fair, and the two tickets, which cost a total of $66, are now paid.

But the night before I was to leave for Austin, a Gray County highway patrolman called my house to say I'd forgotten to pay the ticket and there was a warrant out for my arrest.

I promised to pay the next day and he said okay. I was leaving town early, so I gave $40 to Terry, our photographer, and asked him to go

The callers talk about "all manners of things," according to Mattox.

'Everything from preaching mini-sermons to saying very insulting things toward me and my family and my staff, uttering an assortment of veiled threats all the way from being political to being physical," he said of the calls.

Some of the callers identify themselves as supporters of Pastor W.N. Otwell of the Community Baptist Church in Forest Hill, near Fort Worth, Mattox said.

A state judge has ordered the church's boys home closed because it does not have a state license. Mattox's office filed the suit to close the home ould of 30 nd a pay the ticket for me. Sure, he said.

Well, after a disasterous Austin trip, I came home and was told by Terry, "Your inspection sticker ticket cost $118, counting the failure to appear charge. I covered for you but now I'm broke.

That's not the kind of news a man who's just lost a wallet holding over $300 needs to hear.

Whereas Carson County considered that bad memory or circumstances might've been the reason why I didn't show on the first day, Gray County jumped on the chance to stick it to me with a red hot welding rod

To begin with, the MVI sticker is a sorry law. It's just a state scam to guarantee large sources of income at the expense of every Texan who needs to transport himself from one place to another. To end with, Gray County's handling of the matter was cheap - greedheadedness at best, and I won't forget it.

The Million-Pound Hammer came down as expected Wednesday, and Deaf Smith County is one of the final three proposed sites for the most lumniscent nuclear waste dump we've had yet. If it's so safe, I propose that we locate the stinker beneath the nation's capitol.

Reagan goofed in his Memorial Day speech, singling out Vietnam veterans, and calling them "boys who fought a terrible and vicious war without enough support from home.

Only Reagan would be foolish enough to, 13 years after the fact, reindict the government for the deaths of Americans who should've never been near Vietnam.

Unlike the two World Wars, which we were clearly forced to fight lest I be wearing a swastika today, Vietnam was not a conflict that required our participation. Whether we joined the fight or not, the South Vietnamese would've ended up living in crude bamboo huts under the rule of a totalitarian government, as they do today.

Our government saddled us with pure propaganda regarding South Vietnam's global significance. It hasn't meant diddley to us, and it never did. A majority of Americans realized that then (and we all do now) but the U.S. government persisted and made it the major issue of a decade and a half.

All those names are on the Vietnam Memorial because our government ignored the wishes of its people - ignored the lack of "enough support from home" - but made the people pay the price

I feel a particular empathy for the Vietnam veterans. Both the dead and living were and are innocent victims who never stood a chance, and like the rest of America were lied to from the very beginning. As is government's nature.

The truly terrifying thing is, I'm certain it will happen again.

It's mind-bending enough to come up with column material each week, but now that the school year is over I'm completely at a loss. My regular beat is high school sports, but there won't be any until two-adays start August 13.

What am I going to write about between now and then?

The Boss says he'd like to see a "great feature" in each Sunday's paper, but story ideas haven't exactly been beating my front door down. But I do have an idea for getting ideas and that's you.

What people, places or things do you know of that you think would hake a good story for our paper? What would you like to read? I am asking (better make that pleading, August is a long way off) for your suggestions.

Write 'em down and drop 'em off here at the office, or mail them. I'd really prefer that you didn't call them in, just in case the unlikely happened and everybody in town had a story idea. Our phone system and my nervous system couldn't handle the load.

I'm waiting for your suggestions.

AUSTIN (AP) — Texans over 60 will elect their own "Silver Haired Legislature'' today to tell the next regular legislative session what the state's senior citizens want

The 116 delegates selected will meet in Austin in September for public hearings and a mock legislature

Polls will be open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. at locally-announced sites in 28 districts over the state. Organizers expect 200,000 older Texans will take part in the balloting

Four delegates will be named in most districts and five in the four large city areas of Dallas, Houston, Fort Worth and San Antonio.

"It's amazing the response," said Paula Johnson of the Texas Department of Aging, which is coordinating the elections. "There is so much interest, this may turn out to be an every two years event.

The resolution for the Silver Haired Legislature was approved by state senators and representatives in 1985, with the blessings of Gov. Mark White.

Texas was the 23rd state to call for a gathering of senior citizens to discuss mutual lproblems.

The delegates, to be elected from 28 districts across the state, will meet Sept. 29 through Oct. 1 in a mock legislative session in the Capitol.

The senior lawmakers first will hold public hearings on a variety of issues and then will consider action on a series of bills, Ms. Johnson said Thursday.

Delegates at the special session will select the five top bills they want to see introduced by regular state legislators when the 70th Legislature meets in January.

We could certainly change a lot of things in this state," said Harriet Griffin of Fort Worth, chairwoman of the steering committee setting up the senior legislature.

'If there are 200,000 votes Friday, that's 200,000 votes that are going to be cast again somewhere," Ms. Johnson said.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Opinion

Prime example of capitalist benefits

It should be worth at least a minor footnote to the Chernobyl nuclear disaster to remark that some of the most immediate help provided to victims in a socialist country came from someone who might be called in some circles a bloated plutocratic capitalist.

Admittedly, Dr. Armand Hammer of Occidental Petroleum doesn't fit the usual stereotype of a plutocratic capitalist. Indeed, commentators over the years have noted what seems to be an unusual affinity between Dr. Hammer and communists stretching back to the 1920s.

As an operational capitalist, Hammer commands his considerable resources himself. He doesn't have to get permission from several layers of bureaucracy or wait for an act of Congress before deploying his wealth. He is able to offer to help as an individual without raising ticklish diplomatic questions.

That is precisely what he did. He moved to gather medical supplies and to pay some of the expenses of sending U.S. medical experts to Chernobyl to undertake bone-marrow transplant for the Chernobyl vicitms. He was able to be so helpful precisely because he is a man of considerable means living in a society in which he has considerable freedom of action.

When men are permitted to acquire and retain great wealth, it is to be expected that different people will choose to deploy their wealth in different ways. Victims of the Chrenobyl disaster may have reason to be grateful that the United States has not confiscated all of Hammer's wealth and redistributed it. They might have to wait much longer for help from their own government or from the U.S. government.

Stephen Chapman Foreigners free to decide

Paternalism, like politics, should stop at the water's edge - if not before. The Food and Drug Administration, however, dictates not only to Americans but to people around the world what medicines they may buy from American manufacturers. Now the FDA's reach may be shortened, to the benefit of both those manufacturers and foreign consumers.

Since 1938, the FDA has banned the export of any drug not approved for sale in the United States. During that period, the agency also has compiled a record of delay and heavyhandedness, depriving many sick Americans of needed medicines.

This is due to bad incentives, not bad people. The agency gets much more blame for approving a dangerous drug than for taking a long time to approve a valuable one - even though the delay may be far more destructive to life and health. So it tends to err on the side of banning too much rather than too little.

But Americans, if they are dissatisfied with the FDA's performance, have the power to change it. Foreigners don't. No matter - they still suffer from its mistakes.

If the French government thinks its citizens ought to have access to a drug that the FDA has not yet approved, and which is made only in the U.S., the French people are out of luck. They have no option but to wait the seven to 13 years typically needed for the agency to approve a new drug.

This is not a rare occurrence. A 1980 study of 14 important new drugs by the General Accounting Office found that 13 of them were certified in at least one of five foreign countries before they were approved by the FDA.

Unfortunately for the agency, American pharmaceutical companies that can find a willing market abroad aren't helpless. They can get around the ban on exports by building manufacturing plants abroad. They get their sales, and the foreign customers get their medicines. Only one catch: some other country gets the jobs and export earnings produced by the sales, at the expense of the U.S. economy

Seeing the futility and cost of this policy, the Senate finally has voted to change it. A bill passed on May 14 grants some other nations the prerogative of judging what drugs they will buy from the U.S., free of FDA interference.

Under this proposal, drugs being studied by the FDA could be shipped to any of 15 industrial democracies, subject only to their permission. Unapproved drugs could be shipped to other nations if the Secretary of Health and Human Services concludes they have adequate protections against dangerous drugs - but only if the drug in question has been approved by one of those original 15 nations.

This is hardly a radical change. Drugs that have been formally banned by the FDA, as distinct from those the agency is still studying, would still be forbidden for export. The bill also requires the U.S. government to do more to keep other governments informed about products that are banned or strictly regulated here. The benefits go beyond the buyer and seller. The Senate Labor and Human Resources Committee estimated the new policy would boost exports by between $217 million and $1.76 billion, besides creating from 2,500 to 40,000 jobs in this country

Critics call the bill "immoral," because it supposedly exposes the world to an avalanche of unsafe American drugs. But those drugs must still be approved by the receiving governments, which are not necessarily less competent than our own to protect their citizens' health. Unlike the critics, who regard all new drugs as an unqualified hazard, those governments may think the medical benefits outweigh the possible risks.

Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, the Ohio Democrat, summed up the opposing case when he said this bill sends foreigners the message that 'these drugs aren't good enough for us, but they're good enough for you." Wrong. The message is this: Our regulatory agency thinks these aren't good enough for us, but you're free to decide for yourselves

Paul Harvey Finding future criminals

Our country was trying to do something about juvenile crime as long ago as 1918.

A study of the subject then developed more questions than answers.

In the 1960s Americans were sold the nation that rehabilitation was the proper response. The subsequent decade of rehabilitation efforts ended in disillusion. The crime rate increased.

Other "experts" were certain that hiring more police would cut down on street crime. It did not.

Then we were convinced by sociologists that job training, more schooling, less segregation that these things would throttle crime.

But crime continued to increase.

One thing we have learned.

I'm not sure it will help, but we are now able to describe in detail a boy headed for trouble before he gets there.

A new study to be released shortly by the National Academy of Science will confirm several previous studies in one respect: We can precisely profile the typical high-rate criminal in the making.

While he is still a boy living at home, we can recognize crime symptoms as surely as though he were manifesting the symptoms of some more obvious disease.

Here he is:

He comes from a troubled, discordant, lowincome family in which one or both parents are likely to have criminal records.

The boy has trouble in school, creates problems for his teachers, does not do well in his studies

On leaving school, usually by dropping out, he works at regular jobs only intermittently.

Most employers regard him as a poor risk He experiments with drugs - alcohol, marijuana, speed, heroin — and becomes a frequent user of whatever drug is most readily available.

By the time he is in his late teens he has had many contacts with police though he specializes in no particular kind of crime.

He steals cars and purses, burgles homes and robs stores, fights easily when provoked - and may attack viciously even when not provoked.

In his 20s he will spend a substantial amount of time in jail or prison. He runs a high risk of having his life cut short as the victim of a murder or from a fatal car accident.

The lawbreaker, while he lives, is usually messed up in other aspects of his life - school, marriage, jobs.

With present knowledge, any schoolteacher can now recognize the high-risk boy ...

But researchers are growing increasingly convinced that any change in the direction of his life might have to be before the age of 3. (c) 1986, Los Angeles Times Syndicate

Black market for dollars in Poland

By Don Graff

WARSAW (NEA) - The notices are fixtures in what pass for newspapers here: "BONY - will buy/sell." Telephone numbers follow

They refer to one of the few thriving areas of the Polish economy, the trade in goods coupons — in Polish, "bon towarowy." (One coupon is collo-quially called a "bon." Multiples are "bony," plurals in Polish being formed by adding a "y.") The coupons are issued by the government to Poles who receive funds from abroad. In theory, it's a simple and mutually beneficial arrangement. The dollars, pounds and francs received from friends and relatives are deposited in the state-run banking system, adding to the government's scarce hard currency holdings. In return, the original recipient gets the coupons that will buy otherwise unobtainable imported luxuries in the "Pewex" hard-currency state-run stores

Bony, in Poland's strictly con trolled economy, can be legally bought, sold and advertised. But there is more to the business than that.

What we're really talking here and everyone knows it - is the black market price of dollars, the denomination of the bony. The price at which a dealer offers to buy bony also tells you what you can get unofficially for the real (and much more in demand) thing - greenbacks.

It's useful to know. The official exchange rate is currently 160 zloty to the dollar. On the unofficial bony market, it is 600 to one.

The government tolerates the trade because of the hard currency it pulls into the economy. It also serves to stabilize exchange rates. Veto, a consumer publication, even comes out with weekly buy and sell spreads, similar to the currency exchange tables on financial pages in the Western press

But tolerated or not, it is still a black market and a sure sign of a crippled economy. Poland's is badly so. And the Soviet nuclear reactor disaster will make it worse, if Western customers continue to shun the country's radioactively dusted agricultural exports.

Superficially, things don't appear all that bad. Especially not in the capital. As East Bloc cities go, Warsaw is an attractive place. Almost entirely rebuilt since the war, it has something of the look in parts of a large German city, such as Munich or Berlin. Traffic is much sparser, to be sure, but still there is enough to give the city an atmosphere of bustle. The favored vehicle is a boxy Polish version of the Fiat. Skodas from Czechoslovakia are also in evidence, and occasionally even a BMW or Mercedes, which here spells really big bucks - or bony. There is a chronic housing shortage, with a customary wait of years for apartments. That might seem sur-prising, with numerous blocks of high-rises going up on the city's outskirts. One of the principal problems is that they take so long going up. The endless delay on any government construction project is a longstanding joke. Orbis, the state tourist organization, has been at work on a new hotel in Cracow for 13 years now.

Construction workers, you hear, are willing to put in time but not much energy on the job. Building materials are not delivered on time, or maybe not at all.

It's a very different proposition, however, when it comes to building churches, of which this socialist capital already has more than 400. Then workers work and materials appear, usually before construction even begins.

It raises questions as to who is really in charge around here - the priests who get their churches or the bureaucrats with their bony.

Whitney North Seymour Jr., once the top federal prosecutor for New York City, was named by the court Thursday and quickly pledged to "let the chips fall where they may" in the conflictof-interest probe.

The three-judge panel not only listed specific subjects for investigation, but said Seymour should look for "any related matters and other allegations or evidence' developed during the inquiry.

The panel, established under the 1978 Ethics In Government Act, said the probe should cover: -Deaver's lobbying for the Canadian government in its successful effort for a joint agreement with the United States to combat acid rain

-His lobbying to retain a tax break for businesses locating in Puerto Rico, also successful so far. The court said Deaver represented the Commonwealth government, but his office said his client was a corporation.

Federal law restricts, and in some cases bans, former federal officials from lobbying the government on issues with which they were "personally and substantially" involved.

Separate provisions of the law restrict a former government official's contact with his or her former agency, and with issues once under the official's domain. Those restrictions last one or two years, depending on the circumstances.

Each violation can lead to a maximum penalty of two years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

Seymour's broad m6ndate is a sharp contrast to that given by the court last April in its most recently ordered independent counsel investigation.

Then, the court ordered the probe of a single Justice Department official in an investigation of the withholding of environmental documents from Congress. A House Judiciary Committee report had asked that a dozen current and former Reagan administration officials be investigated for possible wrongdoing.

In both investigations, the court followed the advice of the Justice Department in setting the scope of the probe.

Deaver, a close friend of President and Nancy Reagan for more than two decades, quit as deputy White House chief of staff May 10, 1985, and established a lobbying firm to represent domestic and foreign clients.

In the face of news stories about his lobbying and a House Energy and Commerce subcommittee investigation of his activities, Deaver joined his critics in asking for the independent counsel sented by William Burleigh, vice president of Scripps Howard, after winning the competition Thursday in Washington.

PAMPA NEWS-Friday, May 30, 1986 5

intelligence security rechecks

WASHINGTON (AP) - CIADirector William Casey acknowledges that, despite rising concern over intelligence leaks, every U.S. intelligence agency he oversees is behind schedule in reinvestigating its employees for security risks.

Casey blamed a recent spate of intelligence leaks on "a breakdown in discipline in the govern-•ment, primarily." But he said to solve the problem officials need for news organizations to exercise restraint in publishing secrets leaked to them, while the government tries to get its own house in order.

Casey spoke with The Associd Press in a unique joint interw at CIA headquarters on Thursday. Appearing with him were Lt. Gen. William Odom, director of the National Security Agency, and CIA Deputy Director Robert M. Gates.

During the interview, the officials played down their recent threats of criminal prosecution crease disciplins with governmen itself, to control the flow of sensitive information within the government."

He was asked whether the U.S. Intelligence agencies he supervises as director of central intelligence, which includes virtually all of them, were years behind schedule in conducting routine new polygraph tests and background checks of their employees

"I think they're behind schedule, yeah. But it varies how far," Casey said.

Odom responded: "That's the kind of question I don't want to pursue.

Last year, the government admitted in federal court that Larry Wu-tai Chin, a Chinese communist spy inside CIA for three decades, had taken only one polygraph test after he was employed, although CIA tries to redo them every five years. Chin passed the test, even though he had amassed extensive personal holdings that could have been picked up by a reinvestigation. Nevertheless, Casey said, "We're adding resoures right along. It's a long process. You've got to train polygraphers." The Pentagon, which trains the largest number of government polygraph operators, has testified that it can only manage to each year. There are 4.3 million federal employees with access to classified information.

"It's not something we can do overnight," Gates said. "But efforts are under way."

Casey said he and Odom had taken extraordinary steps in the last several weeks to dissuade news organizations from publishing intelligence secrets because: "Every method we have of obtaining intelligence - our agents, our relationships with other intelligence services, our photographic, our electronic, our communications capabilities have been damaged. Everyone of them has been severely damaged by disclosures of sensitive information that lets our adversaries defeat those capabilities and to literally take them away from

"This is costing the taxpayers billions and billions of dollars and, more importantly, Amer-Pennington said that at times in the final minutes of the National Spelling Bee his mind would go blank, but when he heard the word he'd have to spell to win the competition he thought, "Oh, goody, goody. The word "odontalgia" was one he knew, and that was all the 14-year-old from Shiremanstown, Pa., needed to put him over the top and become champion of the 59th spelling bee.

The key to his success, he casually told reporters later, was a natural ability.

'It's just something I'm good at." the tall, brown-haired eighth-grader said.

modesty, and he signed autograph books for his fellow competitors, "Jon Pennington the champion."

Jon took the title after a seesaw duel with Kenneth A. Larson, a 13-year-old seventh-grader known as Andy from Tequesta, Fla., who was competing in the bee for the third time.

In that final round Jon misspelled his first two words but spelled the next six correctly

Under the rules for the final round, when one contestant misspells a word, the other contestant must spell that word correctly and another word to win. The competition goes forth

When Andy missed on "kaolinic," spelling it "chayolinic." Jon spelled it correctly and then went on to spell "odontalgia."

The word "kaolinic" is defined as resembling kaolin, a whiteclay substance used in ceramics. The dictionary defines "odontalgia" as a synonym for a toothache.

Jon, wearing a striped T-shirt, white pants and tinted glasses, broke into a broad grin when the audience stood and applauded his victory

ATLANTA (AP) — Georgia said that the Memphis pastor cur-Baptists have turned to television to help pick the next president of the Southern Baptist Convention. Concerned Southern Baptists will sponsor an hour-long sermon June 9 on Atlanta station WVEU to push the candidacy of the Rev. Winfred Moore, of Amarillo, Texas, who is running against the Rev. Adrian Rogers of Memphis, .Tenn. The election will mark the eighth year of a struggle within the denomination between fundamentalists, who advocate only the literal interpretation of the Bible, and moderates, who tolerate diverse interpretations.

Moore is known in the denomination as a moderate, Rogers as a fundamentalist.

Because local congregations provide a large chunk of the vote at the annual assembly, candidates and their supporters have been spending a great deal of time touring Georgia and rallying local congregations.

They are using television as a tool to help.

The Moore sermon is to be taped the day before the broadcast at the First Baptist Church of Chamblee, according to pastor David Sapp.

"There's not going to be a poli-tical agenda. It's just a worship ervice," Sapp said. The pastor d that his church, which does of regularly televise its services, would be picking up pro-duction costs and perhaps some of the broadcast cost.

Moore also will be seen on WXIA-TV on June 8. Wieuca ·Road Baptist Church will insert a five-minute taped interview with Moore into its televised Sunday morning service, a church official said.

6 Friday, May 30, 1986-PAMPA NEWS dies after bus driver refused detour to hospital

CHICAGO (AP) — A bus driver who refused to make a one-block detour to a hospital despite a passenger's pleas that her 9-year-old daughter had suffered a heart attack says he's "going through a lot of mental anguish" over the girl's death.

Nicole Hobson was pronounced dead at Children's Memorial Hospital early Thursday, after a passenger carried her the block to the emergency room.

"I feel real bad about the girl's death," said Ben Perry, 32, a Chicago Transit Authority Driver for less than four months. "I'm going through a lot of mental anguish. I didn't know where they were going until I was almost there."

Transit Authority investigators were interviewing Perry, said CTA spokesman Bill Baxa, who refused to comment about reports that the driver has been suspended without pay.

Nicole, who had a pacemaker and was stricken while riding to the hospital with her mother late Wednesday, was pronounced dead in the emergency room 45 minutes later, said hospital spokesman David Dalton.

"It appears she suffered cardiac arrest (on the bus), and the doctors really couldn't say what would have happened if she'd got here earlier,'' Dalton said Thursday.

Late Thursday, CTA Chairman Michael Cardilli issued a statement, saying: "Everyone at the CTA feels for the family.... Our hearts go out to them. It would be useless for us to Dalton said an autopsy was being performed, "but even that won't provide us with an absolute idea of how crucial timing was." Baxa said the CTA would issue a more detailed statement "when we feel we have a complete account" of what happened. But the man who carried the girl to the hospital said the CTA has not contacted him.

"He (the driver) wasn't concerned about the kid or the mother or anything," said Ted Garrettson, 28. "All he was worried about was completing his ... run.'

Garrettson said Nicole and her mother, Mae Hobson, sat across from the driver and that he first her daughter about six blocks from the hospital.

Mrs. Hobson called the hospital Wednesday night to report Nicole's heart rate was considerably lower than the rate the device was programmed to maintain, Dalton said.

Doctors told her to bring the child to the hospital but didn't indicate there was an emergency, he said, adding there had been a previous drop in Nicole's heart rate.

DENTON, Texas (AP) - A State law defines desecrating grand jury is expected to settle a the flag as intentionally or knowingly defacing or damaging a dispute over whether a restaurant's drapes made out of the flag in a manner seriously offenstate standard are a desecration of the Lone Star banner. Republic of Texas restaurant owner Hugh Reed says the curtains are part of his penchant for Texas lore, such as the live longhorn friends gave him for his 40th birthday.

But county Court-at-Law Judge Hollis Godfrey disagrees.

"They took flags of Texas and made them into curtains for eight windows. They are folded over and sewed, hanging on curtain rods," he said.

Desecration of a venerated object such as the flag is a Class A misdemeanor punishable by up to one year in jail and a $2,000 fine.

Reed's attorney, Bob Eames, said his client considers the restaurant and its decor a tribute to the state.

"He certainly never had any intention of dishonoring the state or the Texas flag. We're talking about a man whose friends gave him a real, live Longhorn steer for his 40th birthday in recognition of his devotion.

WASHINGTON (AP) - Only a handful of critics have zeroed in on the second half of President Reagan's latest arms control decision, but they may be concentrating on the historic part - the beginning of the end of SALT II. When the White House announced Tuesday that two submarines would be destroyed to clear the way for a new Trident it meant the administration was maintaining its commitment to the unratified treaty.

That drew the most comment and attention and produced the front-page headlines.

But dismantling the submarines was only the half of it. By his tone, and by the conditions he set set forth on the entire subject, Reagan has shifted U.S. policy. He will update American nuclear submarines, bombers and landbased missiles in light of "strategic needs" and will exceed treaty ceilings unless the Soviets make what Larry Speakes, the White House spokesman, called "radical" changes in its arms control position.

That could mean abandonment of SALT II by the end of the year, since two of the conditions Reagan imposed on the Soviets require a U-turn in Kremlin policy: reversing measures the president says violate a number of treaties and easing the Soviet military buildup.

Even if Moscow complied and took an acceptable stand at the Geneva negotiating table Reagan promised only to take that into consideration. He did not say that would keep SALT II alive.

Kenneth Adelman, director of the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, called this a new position

"He's saying we will do our planning on the basis of the threat rather than on the basis of the treaty," Adelman said in an interview

"The Soviets are violating it," Adelman said. "Why should the United States continue indefinitely abiding by a fatally flawed treaty the Senate never ratified, that would have expired at the end of 1984, that the Soviets have been violating a good number of years? How seriously does that advance arms control?

Signed at the 1979 Vienna summit meeting, SALT II is the last major arms control agreement concluded by the United States and the Soviet Union. While leaving lots of room for the two sides to update their arsenals, it imposed numerical and other restrictions on certain intercontinental weapons.

animals and plants.

The idea was to impose interim restraints and get back to the table to work out a more comprehensive procedure for curbing the nuclear competition. That has not happened. American and Soviet negotiators have met in Geneva, on and off, for seven years and at this point are almost completely stalemated.

So, as Spurgeon Keeny, president of the private Arms Control Association, noted, "SALT II is the only existing constraint on strategic arms.

The question is: For how long? One of the treaty's key provisions holds both sides to 1,200 long-range nuclear missiles with multiple warheads. Reagan's decision to scuttle the two old Poseidons keeps the provision intact.

The United States will remain within the 1,200 limit at least through 1986. No new Tridents are due to join the fleet this year.

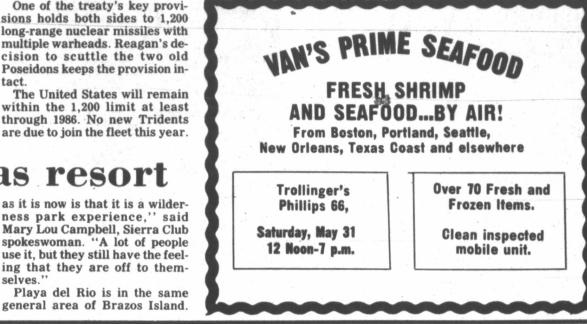

No older submarines or landbased missiles with multiple warheads have to be torn down to keep the commitment.

Reagan's announcement stressed cost-effectiveness as the main reason for scrapping the two old Poseidons whose reactors had about worn out. But the effect on the treaty is the same as if he had renewed last year's pledge to go "the extra mile" for arms control.

By the end of this year, Reagan is likely to break out of the treaty he condemned in his pursuit of the presidency in 1980 as "fatally flawed" and denounced again this week with the same words.

B-52 bombers equipped with air-launched cruise missiles will be joining the Air Force at a pace that will push the United States past the 1,320 limit on a cominbation of such bombers and missiles with multiple warheads.

Stressing the B-52 program, Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger said Wednesday, "We are no longer bound by that flawed agreement. It's very, very simple.

Sakharov's wife charges the Soviets with blackmail attempt

LONDON (AP) — Yelena Bonner today accused the Soviet Union of trying to blackmail the West into keeping silent over the condition of her husband, exiled Soviet dissident Andrei D. Sakharov

Mrs. Bonner, 62, who has been abroad nearly six months for medical treatment, met with Prime Minister Margaret Fhatcher for a half-hour and then spoke to reporters while arm-inarm with the British prime minister

She was asked her reaction to British news reports from Moscow quoting Viktor Louis, a Soviet journalist who often relays information from the Kremlin, as saying that Mrs. Bonner's remarks while in the West were jeopardizing Sakharov's chances of having his exile ended. The physicist, winner of the 1975 Nobel Peace Prize, was banished to internal exile in the closed city of Gorky, 250 miles east of Moscow, in January 1980 after he denounced the Soviet military intervention in Afghanistan

Mrs. Bonner was exiled at Gorky in 1984 after being convicted of anti-Soviet slander.

Louis was quoted as saying the Soviets wished to give more freedom to Sakharov, a physicist who won the 1975 Nobel Peace Prize, but that Mrs. Bonner was damaging Soviet interests.

'The statements seem to me to be simply blackmail," Mrs. Bonner said today. "It seems to me they wanted to scare Madam Prime Minister (Mrs. Thatcher) by this statement and other Western political leaders into not meeting me."

Mrs. Thatcher interjected that the statement also seemed aimed at stopping Western efforts on Sakharov's behalf. She said she had assured Mrs. Bonner that Britain "will keep faith with Dr. Sakharov.'

On Thursday, Louis told The Associated Press in Moscow that Sakharov's chances of returning to Moscow were unlikely "because of Mrs. Bonner's behavior," but did not indicate that Soviet authorities had wanted to allow him more freedom.

He also said that he had been giving his own opinion to British newspaper correspondents on Wednesday, but that they had been misconstrued as some kind of official statement.

High school senior drowns at party

LONGVIEW, Texas (AP) — An 18-year-old high school senior who was to graduate today apparently drowned at an end-ofthe-year swim and ski party at Lake Cherokee, officials say.

Stephen Allen, who was with about 40 other Tatum High School seniors, disappeared about 3 p.m. Thursday when he and a friend tried to swim to shore from about 250 yards out in the lake, Gregg County Sheriff's officials said.

A search for his body was cal-led off as darkness fell, but officials planned to resume searching today.

'It's a tragic situation," said Tatum High School Principal Clifford Harkless, who was at the senior party being held at the Reservation Club on the lake's north side.

"All the kids had just practiced their graduation exercises and were out of school the rest of the day and they came out here for a senior party about noon," Harkless said.

Sheriff's investigator Les Ferguson said Larry Centers swam to where Allen was having trouble and tried to pull him to shore. but was unable to keep Allen calm enough for both youths to stay afloat.

Edward Arlan Marks of Temple City, Calif., was scheduled to be arraigned before a U.S. magi rate in Los Angeles today on one count of tampering with consumer products, FBI spokesman Jim Neilson said Neilson said Marks was arrested in connection with 10 Contac, Dietac and Teldrin capsules containing rat poison that were found in Orlando, Fla., and Houston, Texas, on March 19 and 20. No consumers were injured.

The FBI is investigating a possible connection between Marks and other drug-tampering cases, officials said.

West Texas gays discuss fear of AIDS

ODESSA, Texas (AP) — The Odessa bar is crowded and smoky.

Music blares loudly. People are dancing and buying drinks for their partners.

It's a place where girls meet girls and boys meet boys. And patrons select their partners carefully here, Frank said. "Several customers I know have AIDS," said Frank, a 36year-old bartender at a north Odessa bar catering mostly to homosexuals.

"They come in and say, 'I'm afraid I have it.' You can't tell about others. It scares the hell out of me," he said. "Like any social disease, it's scary."

Acquired immune deficiency syndrome is usually contracted through anal sex, said Tommy Langham, disease intervention specialist for the Texas Department of Health in Odessa.

The possibility of AIDS being contracted through oral sex is considered low because stomach acids kill the virus that causes AIDS, Langham said. The disease also is contracted by sharing drug needles with a carrier of the virus.

Langham said the disease breaks down the immune system, allowing a person to fall victim to AIDS-related infections that later prove fatal.

About 90 percent of the 1,172 AIDS cases in Texas involve homosexual or bisexual men. Nationally, about 73 percent of the 20,016 total AIDS cases can be traced to homosexual activity. Although Frank said business at the homosexual bar hasn't declined because of the AIDS scare, some of his customers say the possibility of contracting the disease has made them more cautious about whom they choose for a sex partner.

Jerry, a 26-year-old bisexual tobacco and candy salesman from Odessa, said he checks to see whether a potential romantic partner of the same sex looks sickly.

"I'm very careful. It's not just, "Hi, let's go to bed." I'm more passive than aggressive. I usually let someone else make the first move, but it's my choice. I can always say no, especially if they look sick," Jerry said this week.

Tom Lewis, a 35-year-old Odessa hairdresser, said most homosexuals in the Odessa area aren't using condoms for protection and haven't given up sexual activity because of AIDS.

But he said many homosexuals aren't as open as he is about his sexual practices.

"I've accepted my lifestyle. I don't care who knows about it. If it offends someone, I'm sorry, but it's my choice," Lewis said. Lewis said he knows AIDS kills.

"I've had three very close friends die from it. Most of the cases come from other places, but they've come back here to die," he said.

"I don't think I'll ever get AIDS," he said. "I'm cautious. I know I'm gay, but I don't feel like the typical gay person."

Currently, no known AIDS victims live in the state health department's 17-county Region 12 area, which includes the Permian Basin. However, since 1985, at least six AIDS victims have died in this region, said Langham.

"There's definitely the virus in the region," Langham said. "About 20 percent of 160 of those tested in Region 12 have come up with the AIDS antibody."

Langham said it could take as many as six years or as few as six months for an active AIDS infection to develop, once the antibody to the virus has been indicated. The state health department spokesman said that about 20 percent of those with the AIDS antibody will develop the non-fatal AIDS-related complex, while a smaller number will develop the fatal illness.

"About one-third of that 20 percent go to a full-blown fatal AIDS case," he said.

High-risk groups for the disease include homosexuals, bisexuals, prostitutes, hemophiliacs and people who share needles. Those receiving blood transfusions before 1985, before AIDS tests were done on most blood supplies, also are considered at risk in catching the disease.

Gladys, a 26-year-old homosexual Odessa nurse, said she has more fear of catching the disease on the job than in her bedroom.

"As safe as the medical field is, we sometimes make mistakes. People get careless," Gladys said.

There are no known cases of women catching AIDS by having sex with other women, Langham said.

Alfonso, a 23-year-old Odessa restaurant worker, said he doesn't go around with "everybody."

"To me, you have to work up to AIDS. You have to abuse your body for a long time to get it. I don't think I'll ever get AIDS, but I know there's a chance I could," he said.

Possible 189th Alamo defender

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — After years of research, two members of the Daughters of the Republic of Texas say they believe they have proof more than 188 men died at the battle of the Alamo.

In researching their common family tree, Helen Pettit of Odessa and Joyce Avery Moore of Canyon Lake said they found evidence that Washington Curtis fought in the 1836 battle.

The DRT, official caretaker of the Alamo, for decades has insisted 188 men died in the bloody battle.

But Wednesday, Mrs. Pettit and Mrs. Moore called a news conference at the downtown shrine to announce they had presented their documentation to the Alamo Committee of the DRT.

The committee must approve their findings and then turn them over to the state board of the DRT before the official Alamo death "We had this assumption that Washington Curtis could not have evaporated from earth," Mrs. Pettit said.

Records showed evidence of him up until the battle of the Alamo.

Alfonso contended his relatives who go to the hospital to get blood could catch the disease as easily as he could. He says he stopped giving blood five years ago, when he became a practicing homosexual.

versity student from Houston, said he fears the disease because "it kills." "But I've never run around or been loose, so I've never been tested for AIDS," he said.

Junior's Midland partner, David, a 31-year-old auto parts salesman, said he hasn't been tested for AIDS either because he doesn't think he'll ever get it. "I hate AIDS like most people toll could be raised, said Alamo Curator Steve Beck.

"This (find) has a great deal of significance and is a manifestation of the Sesquicentennial year," he said, referring to Texas' 150th anniversary celebration.

Beck said Mrs. Pettit and Mrs. Moore's findings mark the first time anyone has produced evidence of a 189th man who died in the battle against the Mexican army.

"It's very possible there were other victims because there were no survivors," he said.

At the news conference, Beck read a statement from Edith Mae Johnson, chairman of the Alamo Committee.

"I have reviewed the evidence and it appears most convincing," Ms. Johnson said in the statement. "Having researched all the documents, I feel very confident about the authenticity."

Mrs. Pettit and Mrs. Moore said they are fourth cousins and Curtis was a distant uncle to them.

ave you ever wandered idly along a sandy ocean beach or the rocky shore of a lake and come upon the battered hull of an old boat? Perhaps the bottom has been smashed in or the sides leak so badly that probably the repairs would cost far more than the old boat is worth. So it is left to rot; abandoned to the merciless pounding of the wind whipped surf and the constant destruction of the surging water. Let us consider for a moment how many people of our acquaintance have, through their own choice, made their lives very much like this old boat. They have let the destructive waters of malice and greed eat away at their hearts and minds until their lives have become as worthless as this rotting hull. And yet, God in His Infinite Mercy will not let man be abandoned. There is no measure of His forgiveness if we but acknowledge that He is our Father and we are His children. There is no life that He considers worthless or beyond repair. Begin now to attend the church of your choice regularly ... for through the church you will know of everlasting life.

Church planning vacation school

Calvary Baptist Church, 900 E. 23rd, will be having its Vacation Bible School from 9 a.m. to noon on June 2 through 6.

The school will feature games, crafts, stories and refreshments, will all children ages 4 to 12 invited to attend.

Transportation for the youths may be arranged by calling the church at 665-0842 or John Denton at 665-5357.

Vacation Bible School Director Charlotte Esch said she has planned many new and interesting things for the children to do.

Teresa Stuart, Lance Matthews and Lani Putman will be working with the nursery for ages 2 and 3. Angie Philips, Maxine Hapeman and Tamara Roberts will be leading classes for the 4 and 5 year olds.

Directing the 6 and 7 year olds will be Linda Gauger, Johna Layton and Randi Matson. Donna Reynolds and Rhonda Maness will teach the 8 and 9 year olds. Eulis Denton, Sandy Howell and Pam Fowler will work with the 10 and 11 year olds Fowler also will play the piano as J. J. Winborne and Esch work to teach the children new songs. Denton will teach the mission stories and drive the church van.

"We hope that many children will spend the first week of summer vacation with us at Vacation Bible School," Esch said.

HIS TOUCH

Scripture: On my bed I remember you (God); I think of you through the watches of the night. Because you are my help, I sing in the shadow of your wings. I stay close to you; your right hand upholds me. (Psalm 63:6-8 NIV)

By Charlotte Barbaree

My uncle possesses selfhonesty and insight. With good humor, he tells, "Every night I wake up and go out and look at the stars. This is my time to devote to worrying. After an hour or two of worrying, I go back to bed."

My uncle is typical in my family. We seem to have been inbred with a worry gene. If we don't have anything to worry about, our imaginations hungrily seek a new worry toy on which to chew.

A few passages of scripture touch me so personally they resist definition. Psalm 63:6-8 is one of these passages. Many other verses speak to the subject of worry, but this passage does it with a graphic beauty that anoints me in the far reaches of my mind and soul.

Religion roundup

DALLAS (AP) - Although mainline, liberal Protestant denominations have talked the most about including ethnic minorities, it turns out that some conservative, evangelical bodies have done a better job of it.

This was brought out in statistics compiled by the National Christian Reporter, published in Dallas. It found that minority membership had grown most in the Southern Baptists Convention, up 70 percent since 1974, and Assemblies of God, up 48 percent.

American Baptist Churches, among mainline bodies, was found to have the largest minority membership, but it came about mainly by established black congregations affiliating with that denomination, rather than new growth.

In Atlanta, the Rev. William G. Tanner, president of the Southern Baptist Home Mission Board, said the figures shattered the stereotype image of Southern Baptists as a racist denomination, and showed its outstanding diversity.

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) - Describing a series of secret processes involved in a plan to reform the Vatican cabinet, the Curia, Peter Hebblethwaite, Londonbased Vatican affairs writer for the National Catholic Reporter, summarizes:

"So what we have now is a would-be secret commission, replacing another secret commission that was secretly criticized, meeting in secret to consider another secret document.'

NEW YORK (AP) — Catholic Relief Services recently week airlifted 100,000 tons of dry milk to Poland to meet needs for children after radioactive fallout from the Soviet nuclear accident affected Polish dairy products.

The air shipments were part of a three-month relief effort there by the U.S. church agency at the request of Polish bishops.

Kingsmill man enjoys evangelist service

By PAUL PINKHAM Staff Writer

KINGSMILL - Spreading the gospel was the furthest thing from Ray Chriestenson's mind when he left the service after World War II.

But that was before he showed up drunk at a revival in Neosho Falls, Kan.

"Like a lot of young fellows, I came out of World War II an alcoholic," Chriestenson explains. "God was the furthest thought from my mind."

Thirty-nine years later, Chriestenson, who recently moved to Gray County from Delta, Colo., is a full-time Assembly of God evangelist, traveling throughout the United States and Europe, including a successful swing through Poland in 1984.

This summer he will attend the second International Itinerant Evangelist Conference run by the Billy Graham organization in Amsterdam, Netherlands.

"I knew that night that God's plan for my life was to be a minister," Chriestenson says, adding that two months after the Neosho Falls revival, he was preaching revivals himself.

Combining his preaching talents with a degree in radio and speech therapy later earned at John Brown University in Siloam Springs, Ark. — "that supported my hobby of preaching" Chriestenson traveled throughout the Midwest, preaching and broadcasting before finding himself in North Pole, Alaska, where he helped build radio station KJNP: "King Jesus North Pole." He spent three years in Alaska.

Oddly enough, Chriestenson's trip behind the Iron Curtain to Poland with 49 other evangelists two years ago was on special invitation by the communist Polish government. He explained that the communists, in an attempt to weaken the political clout of the Catholic Church in Poland, have encouraged Pentecostal churches.

"As a result, there's a tremendous spiritual awakening in Poland right now that you would not believe," he said.

The Poles also have a certain degree of religious freedom, he said, although not as Americans know it. They cannot carry a Bible in public and limits are placed on the amount of time a preacher can speak.

Chriestenson said when the unprecedented preaching delegation arrived in Poland, complete with 4,100 Bibles permitted by the government, Polish leaders required 10 men to study the Bibles for at least eight hours before they could be distributed.

"So the communist government actually required 80 hours of Bible reading," he laughed. The evangelical movement has spread to the Soviet Union, too, Chriestenson said, particularly among teenagers. He said more than 20 percent of the Russian public, about 60 million people, professes to be Christian, despite the constant threat of persecution.

"They've experienced the hollow promises of the utopia and they are turning to Christ by the thousands," he said of Russian young people.

While in Poland, he said, two Russian KGB agents assigned to report on the evangelists' activities came forward when the call went out for those wishing to accept Christ. Everyone coming forward came into full view of Soviet video cameras, he said.

"Probably, if they're still alive, they're in Siberia somewhere, but more than likely they've been executed," Chriestenson said of the KGB agents. "In Russia, the highest form of treason is to profess faith in God."

Chriestenson said the faith of Christians behind the Iron Curtain is strong because of the tests they are put through.

'There are no hypocrites in Russia. There are no hypocrites in Poland," he said. "Because when they take a stand, they're putting their life on the line."

By contrast, he said, there is a 'tremendous spiritual problem' in the free societies of Scandinavia and Western Europe.

Chriestenson said he was invited to the Netherlands conference by the Graham organization after he was recommended by a Canadian pastor with whom he held several revivals. The conference will include 8,000 evangelists and will focus on sharing ideas, he said.

"This will not be an evangelistic thrust; it will be a thrust for evangelists," he said.

When he is not traveling — he travels about 50,000 miles a year Chriestenson said he enjoys preaching at local churches. He is scheduled to minister at Lamar Full Gospel Assembly Church, where he attends services, on July 6

DR. MARVIN GILBERT AND FAMILY

East Africa missionary to speak at church here

Dr. Marvin Gilbert, Assemblies of God missionary assigned to Kenya, will be the guest speaker at 10:50 a.m. Sunday at the Calvary Assembly of God, Crawford and Love Streets.

'Providing sound teaching in the areas of Bible and doctrine and in Biblically based marriage and family living are among the most crucial needs in East Africa," Dr. Gilbert states.

Rev. R. G. Tyler, pastor, said Gilbert and his wife, Rosie, will be teaching at the East Africa School of Theology (EAST) in Nairobi, Kenya, during their first four-year term of missionary service. The school draws students from all over East Africa.

Gilbert is an experienced marriage and family counselor and college teacher. For the past four years he has worked as professor in the Behavioral Sciences Department of Evangel College at Springfield, Mo. Prior to that, he served as staff counselor at a church in South Dakota and as a minister of youth in Illinois.

A graduate of Central Bible College at Springfield, Gilbert also received a master of science degree in psychology from Central Missouri State University at Warrensburg, Mo. He completed a doctor of education degree in counseling from Texas Tech University at Lubbock.

Mrs. Gilbert is an experienced college-level music teacher and choir director. She completed an associate arts degree in music from Northwest College at Kirkland, Wash.; a bachelor of music education degree in music from Evangel College, and a master of arts degree in music education from Texas Tech University.

PAMPA NEWS-Friday, May 30, 1986 11

The Gilberts have two children, Stephen and Lisa.

Rev. Tyler said Gilbert will share his concern for training pastors to reach an exploding African population at the special missions service Sunday.

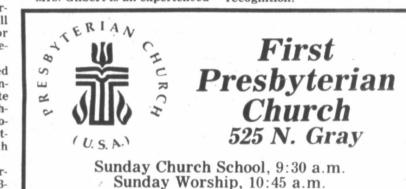

Tyler invited the public to attend the service.

Church rights at stake in tax status case into society. The extent of that

By GEORGE W. CORNELL AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - Oddly, no church is a party to a current lawsuit in which church-state specialists say fundamental church rights are at stake. Also, what provoked the case is seen as incidental to the main issue.

These are among the ironies of a suit now boiling to a head in U.S. District Court here.

The case by a Manhattan organization, Abortion Rights Mobilization, against the Internal Revenue Service, demands that it revoke tax exemption nationally of U.S. Roman Catholicism, charging its activities opposing abortion exceeded IRS restrictions

Thus, the abortion conflict triggered the suit, but legal specialists in church-state relationships say that conflict was only the catalyst to a case impinging far more broadly on religious rights.

The heart of the question was how direct and open religion can be in trying to infuse its values

Youth choir plans concert

The Youth Choir and Youth Handbell Choir of First United Methodist Church of Ardmore, Okla., will appear in concert at 7 p.m. Saturday at the First United Methodist Church of Pampa, 201 E. Foster.

The program is presented as a part of the choir's 11-day tour through the southwestern states, where they will be appearing in churches in Texas, New Mexico, Arizona and California.

The program will be in two parts. The first part will consist of Handbell Choir numbers and Concerning the style of the choir's music, Horton stated, "Contemporary Christian music is, today, providing youth with an alternative to the mindless, negative, exploitative music available from rock radio stations and record stores. Therefore, most of the music for our program is of a contemporary Christian mode and uses taped accompani-

Historians seek local information

Two Amarillo historians, R.L. and Pauline Robertson, are looking for photographs, information and anecdotes about Texas Panhandle history for a book they plan to write.

The Robertsons are looking for this information about the following:

Charles, Mary Ann and Corinne Goodnight; Quanah Parker and his descendants; transportation development in the Panhandle including railroads, autos, trucking, highways, airplanes, and airports; founding and de-velopment of individual towns and their founders; 1900-1912 land boom, "land locaters," and exursion trains; World War I as it affected the Panhandle; oil, gas, helium discovery and industries; Depression and dustbowl era, including government programs; and World War II as it affected the Panhandle (POW camps, army bases, defense jobs, shortages, enlistment, etc.)

Also wanted is information on farming, including the development of irrigation and new crops; industries, in all 26 Panhandle counties; ranching and cattle industry development, including feedlots; high-tech development in the Panhandle; founding and progress of churches, the arts, health facilities, education, sports, recreation facilities, museums, conservation agencies, etc.

Anyone with information about these subjects may mail it to the Robertsons by June 25. They say photos will be copied and returned promptly. Send the information to R.L. and Pauline Robertson, 124 Wayside Dr., Amarillo, 79106. Their telephone number is 355-1040.

SOUTH DAKOTA became a state in 1889. Most available records there do not begin until 1905, however. Many families moved into the area as early as 1857 to farm the rich soil and records are hard to find. Remember that this was part of the Louisiana Purchase in 1803 and was considered part of the Missouri Territory until 1820. The Dakotas was divided into North and South Dakota in 1887.

Write to the county first for any record and request additional information. Each county has a sexton to supervise the records of the cemeteries. This makes it easy to locate graves that have tombstones. Many people were buried without markings and their graves may be found by checking county histories, family records, and newspapers to learn the death date and location of burial

If you have heard that your ancestor was buried at a certain cemetery, do not assume the information incorrect because of lack of a tombstone. Search for other forms of proof.

Consult the Department of Indian Affairs if you have Indian ancestors. Type of records available vary from tribe-to-tribe as well as from agent-to-agent.

Girl smells trouble in friends taste for liquor By Abigail Van Buren

1986 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I am a 12-year-old and come back again. Most of my girl who has a friend my age who children have a guest room. I am drinks her mother's liquor when her mother isn't home. I will call this friend Betty. I like Betty, and tried to tell her to stop because I know that liquor isn't good for kids, but she doesn't listen to me.

I got worried about Betty, so I told ny mother, and asked her to tell Betty's mother. This was a couple of months ago, and so far Betty is still drinking her mother's liquor.

What should I do? I hate to be a snitch, but I know that Betty is drinking a few swallows a couple of times a day. BETTY'S FRIEND stay or hide your suitcases.

DEAR FRIEND: You are a very wise girl to realize that Betty's mother must be told. Urge your mother to tell her. And if she doesn't, you should confide in another adult - your school counselor or principal but do not let it go. It's not "snitching" — it's making Bet-ty's mother aware that her daughter has a serious problem. There are kids your age who are alcoholics, and they can be zipper, Mom would say "Einstein." helped.

DEAR ABBY: Will you please do us mothers a favor and ask your readers - especially married children - how long they feel their mothers should stay when they visit two or three times a year?

I have six married children - all living about 1.500 miles away and I enjoy seeing them and my grandchildren. I am not a demanding houseguest. I don't need my own room — I can sleep on a cot or sofa. I don't expect to be entertained 24 hours a day, and don't mind staying with my grandchildren while my children go out for a night on the town. I enjoy my morning newspa-per and coffee, game shows on TV, reading a good book, movies, cards, TV dinners or an inexpensive restaurant.

Recently, I heard through the grapevine that some - not all, but some - of my children think I overstay my welcome. Abby, I spend three to five weeks among six kids in three cities in the same state - so I don't stay a week at a time with ay one son or daughter. I ree or four days, then leave spena

There have been a lot of changes in the phone business the past couple of years. And, if you're anything like the average telephone customer, you probably wonder from time to time what's going on?

We've always considered keeping you up to date a critical element in your service. Even though we don't furnish all of it anymore, you're still our customers, and we appreciate your business.

That's why we began offering free Tele-Help booklets shortly after the breakup of the Bell System in 1984. These booklets answer commonly-asked questions about telephone services and equipment.

17 ways to help you

We recently introduced five new booklets explaining long distance-operator services, telephone etiquette, phone use for children, services for disabled people and services for older adults.

And, of course, our original 12 Tele-Help booklets can still be ordered. They talk about phone service, phone bills, home phone repair, telephone equipment, long distance service, saving money on phone service, easy access dialing, home security, establishing new service, home telephone wiring, local service options and handling annoving telephone calls.

Booklets are short, easy to read and understand — a handy quick reference. So, you can now choose from 17 different booklets! The booklets are also available in Spanish. And business customers will also enjoy reading our special guide entitled "The Tele-Help Guide for Small Business Customers." It provides information on topics such as repair, customer contacts and telephone security.

not just athletes...Isn't former Perryton athletic directorfootball coach ROBERT LANG-FORD about to change plans and accept a similar post at Bridgeport? I hope so. He is too talented. too much of a gentleman, too fine a citizen to not be working with young people... The Pampa city parks certainly look nice. Now can we have the teeter-totters back? or will the schools have to get out the scissors and snip "See saw, Marjorie Daw'' from the poetry books, or have teachers explain what a teeter-totter was and why it is more dangerous than being allowed to drink and drive...Add to the list of nice guys, Texas Ranger first baseman PETE O'BRIEN who took his Dad on a recent TR roadtrip through the eastern team parks.

Optimist roundup

A pair of close games were played Thursday in the Girls Senior Softball League.

Team Five slipped by Lewis Mears, 11-10, and C & C Hydrocarbons won an 8-7 squeaker over The Medicine Shoppe

Patsy Preston and Jessica Smilie led Team Five with three singles and one RBI each. Tanya Dearman added two singles.

Tara Hanby knocked in two runs with a single and double for Mears. Dawn Daree had two singles and Jodie Douglas, one.

Team Five had 14 hits compared to 11 for Meers.

Winning pitcher was Misty Clendennen, who struck out two and walked six. Gia Nix, the losing pitcher, struck out three and walked four

C & C's leading hitters were Misty Smith, single and RBI;

Jerry Stephens of Pampa won two events at the 77th annual Panhandle Championship held at the Amarillo Gun Club.

Stephens won the Class B division in Event No. 3 and the Class B division in Event No. 7.

B.D. Reeves, also of Pampa,

Mary Ramirez, three singles, and Tammy Childers, two singles

Dori Kidwell knocked in two runs with a single and double for The Medicine Shoppe. Tacy Stoddard had a single, double, and RBI while Jennifer Whitaker had a single and RBI.

C & C outhit The Medicine Shoppe, 10-9

Niciki Brown, the winning pitcher, struck three and walked three. Tacy Stoddard struck out six and walked four for The Medicine Shoppe.

Leading home run hitters in the league are Tacy Stoddard and Niciki Brown with one apiece.

In boys' action, First National Bank defeated Randy's Food, 12-6. in a makup game played Wednesday in the Babe Ruth Baseball League.

Stephens wins Panhandle rifle shoot won the Class A division in Event No. 1 and Dale Prouse, Pampa, won the Class A division in Event No. 3. Reeves downed 99 of 100 targets.

Diana Prouse of Pampa won the ladies' division.

"This is straight out of left field," Fryar told The Boston Herald in an interview published today. "I'm going to take a lie detector test to prove it.

"The whole truth is I don't know anything about this. That's the whole truth and nothing but the truth. I never, ever, never gambled on games.

Fryar said he planned to go to Dallas Monday to take a polygraph test arranged by his agent, Sherwood Blount.

"He's setting it up with one of the best polygraphers in Dallas. I'll make sure all the reporters are there to see the results so they can put the fact I'm innocent on the front page," Fryar said.

"I just want to put an end to this once and for all. Taking a lie detector test sems to be the best way of doing that. I shouldn't have to, but my reputation and my family's is at stake. If that's what it takes to clear my name, that's what I'll have to do.'

Joe Browne, an NFL spokesman, confirmed Thursday the league was investigating allegations that Fryar and other members of the team bet on football games last season "in the same fashion as we routinely review rumors of this type.'

New England Coach Raymond Berry declined to discuss the investigation, which was reported in The Boston Globe on Thursday, saying, "I don't think it's appropriate."

VRJC sets tryouts

There will be a Vernon Regional Junior College baseball tryout camp at the Canyon High School field this Saturday.

Admission is free and tryouts will start at 9 a.m. and end at 2 p.m. Players ranging from 16 years of age to a college freshmen are eligible for the tryout.

Players should bring.glove, spikes, cap and an insurance waiver. American Legion players should bring written permission from their coach.

For more information, contact Danny Watkins, head baseball coach at Vernon, at 817-552-6291.

The statement also emphasized that "there is and continues to be no hard evidence that Irving Fryar has gambled on a pro football game. The only fact is that the league is checking out this unsubstantiated rumor, as we asked them to do.

The statement also said, "It is tragic that a newspaper takes what is an unsubstiantiated rumor — and nothing more than that — and puts it out for public display - and in doing so, ruin a person's name.

Patriots General Manager Patrick Sullivan said, "As far as we're concerned, it's an unsubstantiated rumor, nothing more than that, and that's the way we'll continue to handle it.'

Fryar told the Herald he was disappointed that he had not heard from any teammates offering support.

'They probably think I'm a traitor ... a gambler now," he said.

Celtics crush Rockets BOSTON (AP) - The Boston in 1971-72 by the Lakers.

Celtics hit a rare cold spell so Larry Bird decided it wouldn't hurt for basketball's best player to try to end it. His hot hand pushed the Houston Rockets closer to the end of their season.

One day after winning his third consecutive NBA Most Valuable Player award, Bird exploded in he third quarter Thursday night and Houston never could put the pieces back together.

The Celtics crushed the Rockets 117-95. The team that knocked off the defending champion Los Angeles Lakers 4-1 to get to the NBA finals returns home for Game 3 Sunday with a 2-0 deficit in the best-of-7 championship round.

"If a team is playing well, they could play five games in Edmonton and it wouldn't make a difference." Boston forward Kevin McHale said.

The Celtics are playing very well.

They are 30-3 in their last 33 games and 13-1 in the playoffs. Ten of the 13 victory margins have reached double figures. If they sweep the title series and earn their 16th crown, their combined record for the regular season and playoffs will be 82-16, surpassing the NBA mark of 81-16 set third period that turned a 60-50 halftime lead into a 25-point advantage that grew to as much as 27 in the final quarter.

Boston cruised to its 40th consecutive home victory Thursday night on the strength of a 34-19

'We went out (in the second half) and missed three shots and we didn't get up and down the court very well, and they cut it down to eight," said Bird, who led all scorers with 31 points. "From then on, I said to myself, 'you might as well start shooting the ball and see what happens.'

Leading 64-56, Boston went on an 11-1 run, which Bird capped with a three-point field goal and a long jumper. He also had a steal and a line-drive assist to set up a Robert Parish layup in that stretch.

"I thought we stopped him up to the third quarter," Houston Coach Bill Fitch said. "Then he got into one of those 'playing in his own back yard' situations, where he is in his own world and it seems like he is out there on his own. When he gets going like that, he's awesome.'

"His hands were on every ball, stealing, rebounding, passing and shooting," said Celtics' center Bill Walton. "He could do any#### thing he wanted to tonight.' Bird wanted to win badly.

In 1982, Boston beat Phi-ladelphia by 40 points in Game 1, then lost the next game and the division finals. Last year, Boston whipped Los Angeles by 34 points in the opener, then lost the next game and the championship series. On Monday, Boston dominated Houston 112-100 in this year's opener.

"The win takes off a lot of pressure," said McHale, who scored 25 points. "It eliminates a lot of stuff from our minds."

Boston established a championship series record by hitting 23 of 24 free throws for a .958 percentage. The Lakers set the old mark of .943 when they made 33 of 35 shots at Philadelphia.

Thursday night's game was played in 90-degree temperatures in Boston Garden, which has no air conditioning.

"The running disappeared in the heat," Fitch said. "If we can't run, we can't make up the quick points.

Houston was led by Akeem Olajuwon with 21 points and Ralph Sampson with 18, but the Twin Towers combined for just seven second-half points. One starting guard, Robert Reid, had eight points and the other, Lewis Lloyd, just six.

"Lloyd is most effective when the Rockets are running," Boston guard Danny Ainge said. "We've taken that away. Every timeout we talked about the need to get back on defense.

Rangers claim first place

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) -After eight weeks, the Texas Rangers are in first place in the American League West and experiencing their best start since 1979

But they say they're not done yet.

"Everybody on the plane is in their proper seat, but the plane hasn't arrived yet," manager Bobby Valentine said. "Just because we are now getting national attention doesn't mean we have landed.

The Rangers just completed what Valentine had said would be a big test, playing 20 games in 19 days. They passed with an 11-9 record.

Now, for a team which last season spent only four days higher than last place, this is the next test in the 162-game trek: 15 of 18 games on the road. It begins tonight in Kansas City when the Rangers open a threegame series against the world champion Royals.

'We're going to continue to have tough stretches," Valentine said. "That's what the season is all about. Darrell Porter said it perfectly: As soon as you feel you've got this game beat, it sneaks up behind you and gets you in a headlock.

The Rangers opened the season with their only established starting pitcher — Charlie Hough — on the disabled list. They went 11-12. Within a four-day period in the last two weeks, their two RBIleaders — Don Slaught and Larry Parrish — went on the disabled list. The Rangers were 3-3 in the first six games after Parrish joined Slaught on the DL. They scored only 15 runs and hit .194. Texas, however, has won six of its last nine games.

"We looked around for a couple of days and wondered what we were going to do," Valentine said. "We met the challenge. Meeting the challenges is part of, being a good team.'

An inability to meet the challenge is part of the Rangers' past. Three summers ago, the Rangers were in first place in the AL West at the All-Star break with a 44-34 record. Then, they lost 15 of their next 20 games, which dropped them to 49-49. That was the last time they were at the break-even point until the start of this season.

"I'm not a historian," Valen-tine said. "I don't even know what the Rangers did in 1983. What happened in '83 means absolutely nothing today.

One reason for the Rangers' confidence is the their youth," especially among the pitchers. Valentine expects the young players to get better as the season progresses.

Valentine wants the Rangers to keep their attention on the record

UNITED NATIONS (AP) - Along with the usual host of diplomats, the U.N. special session on Africa attracted crusaders Bob Geldof, Ted Turner, Bishop Desmond Tutu and the Rev. Jesse Jackson, who each pushed his cause with undiplomatic frankness.

Geldof, the Irish rock star whose Live Aid and Sport Aid happenings have been credited with raising more than $50 million to aid African famine relief victims, on Thursday blasted the U.N. session as a farce.

His remarks drew a sharp rebuttal from Jackson. AA Geldof said the session has not gone far enough to and Bro meet Africa's long term development needs, and said its draft plan of action is "filled with holes and if and buts. "The U.N. is on trial at the moment," said Geldof, who assailed both East and West as "crippling factors" in Africa's attempts to recover from devastating drought and indebtedness. He advocated transforming all outstanding loans to struggling African countries into grants.

Jackson told a forum of non-governmental organizations involved in Africa that "the West must abandon the Tarzan approach to Africa, a cultural aberration born of chauvinism."

The Baptist minister, who sought the U.S. presidential nomination at the head of the "Rainbow Coalition" in 1984, used the Tarzan analogy again in rejecting Geldof's judgment.

"I do not know of his level of authority on the United Nations," Jackson said of the Irish star.

He said Geldof's statement was arrogant and presumptuous. "It discredits his efforts more than it discredits the United Nations special session. It does suggest that the African countries as a matter of principle must reject Tarzan in all of his forms," Jackson said. "We need the United Nations."

Turner was pushing his new organization. Better World Society, which will use television programming to push disarmament, population control and environmental protection.

Talking of nuclear arms, Turner told a luncheon group of diplomats and U.N. officials, "We've got to get rid of that stuff and get rid of it quick."

Bishop Tutu, the 1984 Nobel Peace Prize winner, told a news conference the United States and Britain are out of step with the rest of the world for resisting mandatory sanctions against South Africa to force an end to apartheid.

Sanctions will be applied if the people want them applied," Tutu said. "I am sure that in this matter the White House and Downing Street are out of step.

The United States and Britain last Friday vetoed a Security Council resolution calling for sanctions after South Africa's raids on Zambia, Botswana and Zimbabwe

The argument that sanctions would hurt South Africa's blacks is nonsense, Tutu said. "They speak as if blacks are living in clover. The people who oppose sanctions most vehemnetly, jumping around like scalded cats, are the whites and predictable blacks," he said.

Extraditions sought

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) - The government says it will ask Britain to extradite 26 people susbeeted of starting a riot at a soccer stadium a year ago in which 39 people died.

of assault and involuntary manslaughter in connection with the riot prior to the European Champions' Cup soccer final at Heysel Stadium. They could be imprisoned for up to 15 years if convicted.

Justice Minister Jean Gol said they face charges

Names in News

NEW YORK (AP) -Chrysler chairman Lee Iacocca, who led efforts to restore the Statue of Liberty, says he was red-faced when he realized he hadn't visited the monument since he was a child.

lacocca said despite numerous trips to New York City, he never even took either of his daughters to the statue, and that he only returned to the site in 1982, after President Reagan asked him to lead the restoration efforts

"The answer was simple and it was embarrassing," Iacocca wrote in Sunday's Parade magazine. "The Statue of Liberty didn't mean the same thing to me that it did to my father.'

lacocca said his father, an immigrant from Italy, took him to the statue when he was 5years old.

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) - Singer JIMMY Buffett and artist Robert Wyland have unveiled a life-size wall painting of a manatee and its baby to make people aware of the endangered marine mammal.

Buffett, chairman of Florida's Save the Manatee Committee, said Orlando International Airport was chosen for the 8-by-14-foot painting because more than 1 million passengers a month pass through the terminal.

"We're trying to make people aware of the plight of the manatee, which represents the quality of life in Florida," Buffett said.

PARIS (AP) — Chris Evert Llovd says Life magazine misquoted her when it reported she had said that she and Martina Navratilova laugh at the chances of other players replacing them at the top of women's tennis
