Pinkerton executed as appeals fail

HEADED FOR AUSTIN—The Lady Harvester track team loaded up early today and headed for the state track meet in Austin where they are one of the favorites to win the Class

4-A championship. They will compete Friday. For the complete story, see Page 10. (Staff photo by Terry Ford)

Convicted killer's death ends years of litigation

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Jay Kelly Pinkerton, convicted of a brutal slaying committed when he was 17, was put to death by injection early today after desperate last-minute appeals failed to win him a fourth stay.

"I want you to know that I'm at peace with myself and with my God," he said before the lethal drugs were injected into his arms. "I bear witness to Allah. I ask your forgiveness ... and I return unto you."

Pinkerton's father, Gene, witnessed the execution with little emotion, holding tightly to an aluminum rail in the death chamber just a few feet from his son. He was wiping tears from his eyes as he emerged from the prison.

"Say goodbye to Mom," Pinkerton said to his father. "Keep your spirits up for me."

"Bye, Jay," his father said. He replied, "I love you, Dad."

He was declared dead at 12:25 a.m.

The second appeal Wednesday contested trial procedures and evidence.

No state or federal courts, however, agreed.

Pinkerton spent most of the day preparing the brief carried to court by his mother, Margie.

"I figured that," he said after the first appeal was rejected. He had no comment after the second denial was issued.

Pinkerton's closest brush with death, last August, came after the Supreme Court decided to consider whether it was unconstitutional to exclude people opposed to the death penalty from capital murder juries. The high court last month upheld state statutes allowing those exclusions.

Randy Sherrod, the Randall County district attorney who prosecuted Pinkerton, said the appeals were merely attempts to gain time for the condemned man.

Sherrod said there never was any question that Pinkerton broke into Ms. Lawrence's home and killed her.

"He's violent," Sherrod said. "He's the kind that would be a constant threat to anyone. If the death penalty is meant for anyone, it's meant for him."

Mrs. Lawrence was raped, stabbed as many as 50 times, had her throat slashed and body mutilated during a burglary of her home.

The publicity surrounding Pinkerton's execution dates, "keeps your emotions right in the foreground all the time," Mrs. Lawrence's mother, Virginia Royer has said.

She and her husband adopted their three grandchildren, who were in a nearby room when their mother was slain.

"It's hard to lose a daughter, but for children it's hard to lose a mother," she said.

Less than a dozen spectators stood in a thunderstorm outside the prison while the execution was taking place. Among them was June Morgan, of New Waverly, an aunt of Mrs. Lawrence.

"I can't believe I'm here hoping somebody dies," she said. "But he's not a people. He's an animal."

Five months after Mrs. Lawrence's death, Mrs. Welch, working at an Amarillo furniture store, became the victim of a similar attack.

Testimony indicated a bloody palm print found on Mrs. Lawrence's thigh was Pinkerton's.

Test moratorium renewed

Gorbachev attempts to blunt criticism

MOSCOW (AP) — Mikhail S. Gorbachev told the nation nine people had died in the Chernobyl atomic accident, and called on Washington to join the Kremlin in banning nuclear tests to avert the "far more horrible" threat of atomic war.

In an apparent attempt to still foreign criticism over Moscow's handling of the April 26 nuclear power plant accident, Gorbachev also used his Wednesday television speech to propose better international cooperation to warn of future atomic power mishaps.

The Communist Party leader mixed concern for his fellow Soviets with outrage at foreign reaction to the disaster.

He also thanked foreign specialists who had helped the Soviets, and mentioned Drs. Robert P. Gale and Paul Terasaki, who along with a third American and an Israeli doctor have operated on victims.

In his 25-minute address, he revealed for the first time that nine people were now dead and 299 still hospitalized because of the accident in the northern Ukraine.

Gorbachev did not explain the increase in the number of people reported hospitalized since a Soviet official told a May 6 news conference that 204 were admitted for care.

Gorbachev said radiation at the Chernobyl plant, 80 miles north of Kiev, as well as in the immediate vicinity, was still at dangerous levels, but stressed that courage and concern on the part of many had averted a catastrophe.

An explosion in the plant's No. 4 reactor, Gorbachev said, was triggered by a sudden power surge and a buildup of explosive hydrogen. But, he told the Soviet people, "The worst is now behind us."

Declaring that Chernobyl had sounded the alarm about the dangers of nuclear technology, Gorbachev said the accident had prompted the Kremlin leadership to renew its unilateral moratorium on nuclear testing until Aug. 6.

Last month, Gorbachev had said that because of continued U.S. nuclear testing, he would abandon the ban which had been in effect since last Aug. 6, the 40th anniversary of the atomic bombing of Hiroshima, Japan by the United States.

The moratorium, originally due to expire last Dec. 31, had twice been extended by the Soviets.

On March 29, Gorbachev had invited President Reagan to meet him as soon as possible in Europe for talks on a joint test ban. He renewed this offer on Wednesday, adding the suggestion that the meeting be held in Hiroshima.

Extension of the moratorium and renewal of the invitation to Reagan appeared designed to regain some of the momentum the Soviets were felt to have lost on the disarmament issue after the Chernobyl accident.

The spread of a huge radioactive cloud over much of Europe caused widespread worry and concern, and some West European governments denounced the Kremlin for initially being too tight-lipped about the disaster.

In his speech, Gorbachev excoriated the governments, politicians and media of NATO countries, especially the United States, for what he called a "highly immoral campaign" of exaggeration for political purposes.

"We faced a veritable mountain of lies — dishonest and malicious lies," Gorbachev said. He cited reports that mentioned "thousands of casualties" following the accident, or a "desolate Kiev."

The Reagan administration rejected Gorbachev's charge that the West had tried to make political capital out of the disaster, and said following his speech that it sees little merit in his proposal for a summit

Miami decides to try for state grant

BY CATHY SPAULDING
Staff Writer

MIAMI — City officials are going to see if the Texas Department of Community Affairs can help fund such city projects as sewer improvement and paving.

City council members agreed Tuesday to seek a community assistance grant from the Texas Department of Community Affairs. Similar grants, processed through the Panhandle Regional Planning Commission, have gone to such area projects as new water tanks in Groom, upgrading water distribution in McLean and building a new water well in Mobeetie.

But the grants are not guaranteed. They are awarded on a point system in which points are earned by the percentage of minorities in the town, the number of low income residents there and the need for such projects. Pampa engineer Gene Barber said about $1 million has been allocated to the PRPC for the area grants. The projects average about $200,000 each.

Council members agreed that the city's top priority is to repair the sewer system.

In the past, the city has passed on seeking state aid because the town council members felt the residents were too "well off" and that the town is virtually void of any minority residents.

But the declining oil economy may have changed the income status in the year since the city last considered a grant. Barber said it helps a community's chances if more than 50 percent of the people to be served by a funded project fall below the low income levels for the area.

Barber said that for Miami, a one-person family making less than $16,300 a year is considered low income; two people, $18,650; three people, $20,950; four people, $23,300; five people, $24,750.

At a public hearing Tuesday on the grant, which attracted no members of the public, officials agreed to make a survey of city residents to see how many of them fall under these figures. They offered to pay $4 per hour for two people to conduct the survey. Another public hearing on the grant is set for 7:30 p.m. Tuesday.

In other business at the city's regular meeting, city officials hired Rick Tennant as a part time city worker. The city will place Tennant on a six-month probation period. He is to work four hours a day, five days a week at $7.50 per hour. Overtime is subject to approval by the city. He is to furnish his own vehicle and tools. Among his responsibilities are to pick up dead animals, run the tractor at the dump ground, maintain the city sewer system, mow weeds during the summer and operate a sanding machine during the winter. Tennant began work Wednesday.

Larry Bryant, the city employee for six years, quit in April, after spending months trying to iron out a work contract and job description with city officials. Since Bryant's departure, the city council members had to maintain the sewer and the dump ground.

In other business, council members set a 1,000 pound limit and a $5 fee to dump septic tank waste in the city sewer system.

They approved a request for a street light at the T-intersection of Harrah and Summit Streets.

They tabled discussion and action on complaints of three-wheel motorcycles roaring through the neighborhoods.

They agreed to clear weeds from and to clear up city property to help keep skunks and other "varmints" away."

Woman, 81, one of family members accused of assault

By PAUL PINKHAM
Staff Writer

Talk about an old-fashioned family feud...

An apparent disagreement over a chicken coop has prompted three generations of a Pampa family to file varying degrees of assault charges against one another.

Among the accused is an 81-year-old woman who uses a walker to get around.

According to police reports, it all started at about 5 p.m. Saturday at the home of 81-year-old Minnie Tice, 817 Malone, when an argument broke out between her son, Woodrow, 59, Box 1642, and Randall Tice, 20, who is the woman's grandson and Woodrow Tice's nephew. Randall Tice also resides at the Malone Avenue address.

Complaints alleging simple assault by Randall and elderly woman were filed in Pampa Municipal Court by Woodrow's wife Zella, 53. The next day, Randall Tice filed a counter-complaint alleging assault with a deadly weapon against his uncle.

The complaint by Zella Tice alleges that Randall Tice hit her husband repeatedly about the head with an object she believed to be a folded knife and sheath. She later charged that he attempted to choke her husband, records show.

Hope for missing climbers fades

TIMBERLINE LODGE, Ore. (AP) - Rescuers and dog teams today resumed the hunt for six teen-agers and two adults missing on Mount Hood since a blizzard ambushed their school expedition Monday, but hopes faded that they would be found alive.

Two six-man ground teams with two dogs left Timberline Lodge at 4 a.m. to search the 9,300-foot level of the mountain. The teams planned to use metal detectors in their efforts.

Low wind and only a few high clouds over the mountain provided good conditions for the search today, officials said. Unsafe footing on Wednesday forced a postponement in the hunt.

Master Sgt. Rich Harder, chief of rescue efforts for the Air Force, said today he had not lost hope.

"Over the years we've had ... people hike out two or three days later and we're just hoping that they are down in the tree lines maybe and we might run into them," he told "Good Morning America."

"If not, they're up around 10,500 feet still in a cave somewhere."

Three frozen members of the party, two girls and a boy, were airlifted Wednesday from the slopes of the 11,235-foot mountain, and a medical team of 40 at Portland's Emanuel Hospital worked all day in "a last-ditch effort" to revive them, said spokeswoman Lori Callister.

The heartbeat of Eric Sandvik, 15, was restored for a few hours, but he died, said hospital spokeswoman Paula Anderson. The girls, identified as Erin O'Leary, and Alison Litzenger, both 15, died earlier.

Helicopters rescued three searchers who fell into a crevasse Wednesday afternoon, said Sgt. Mark Ross of the Air Force's 304th Aerospace Rescue and Recovery Squadron. He said they were uninjured.

Choir's variety show tonight

The Pampa High School Choir Department will present its annual variety show at 7:30 tonight at the high school auditorium.

Tickets will be available at the door. Admission price is $2.

Top band awards given at Miami

MIAMI - High school senior Lanece Lisenby has received the school's John Phillip Sousa Award for her participation in the high school band.

Lisenby, who plays the drums, received her award during the annual Miami band banquet Thursday.

The John Baker Award was given to Kristine Barnes because "she would never quit," according to band director Jeff Witcher.

Nora Marucio received the Distinguished Service Award. Johnna Hinton received the Distinguished Marching Award. Ashlee Flowers was named Outstanding Seventh Grader. Autumn Walls was named Band Sweetheart.

Sectional awards were given to Mindee Flowers for brass, Angie Allison for woodwinds and Alane Dinsmore for percussion.

Soviets offer treaty

GENEVA (AP) - The Soviet Union today proposed a draft treaty on limiting medium-range nuclear weapons at the U.S.-Soviet arms control talks, a source close to the talks said.

The draft appeared to basically consist of proposals made during the previous round of talks, said the source, who spoke on condition of anonymity. The United States had said the previous Soviet proposals contained unacceptable elements.

Laramore officer of day

This is the second tour of duty on the Pampa police force for Lt. James D. Laramore, today's officer of the day.

Laramore worked as a Pampa patrolman from 1971 through 1974 before going to Amarillo, where he was a patrolman, member of the SWAT team and a breath test operator, until 1980.

He returned to Pampa in 1980 and has since been promoted to corporal in the criminal investigation division, sergeant and lieutenant to criminal investigation division supervisor.

Laramore's education includes trade school for computer programming; an associate degree in criminal justice from Amarillo College; police specialized schools in auto theft detection, arson investigation, fire cause and detection, criminal investigations, interrogation by technique, financial investigation of drug-related money, counter-sniper detection and SWAT training for operation of teams. He is affiliated with Pampa Masonic Lodge No. 966, the Scottish Rite and Shrine in Lubbock and the National Rifle Association.

Laramore and his wife Jo Carol have one son, Jason, age 9, a pupil at Horace Mann School and a soccer player.
 He first became involved in

Lt. J.D. Laramore

police work when he joined the military police in 1966 while in the Army. Asked what he enjoys most about it he replied the challenge of proving certain facts beyond a shadow of a doubt.

Zella Tice told authorities her husband is disabled and "cannot become excited or physically abused."

Police records show that Woodrow Tice was taken to Coronado Community Hospital for treatment, but hospital officials said they have no record of his arriving there Saturday or Sunday.

During the scuffle, Minnie Tice allegedly began slapping or punching Zella, court authorities said they were told.

Both Randall and Minnie Tice were arrested Monday on municipal court warrants alleging simple assault. Police Chief J.J. Ryzman said his department was acting only on the warrants and released the elder Mrs. Tice on her own recognizance when her age and condition, described by police as feeble, were realized.

The next day, Randall Tice filed the counter-complaint against his uncle. He said he did not touch Woodrow Tice, whom he claims threw an ax at him, according to police records. Woodrow Tice has not been arrested or charged.

Randall Tice told police the two men were arguing about a chicken coop.

Municipal Judge Pat Lee said Randall and Minnie Tice have each requested a trial before the judge in municipal court. Each posted a cash bond, she said.

The trial has tentatively been set for June 12.
 Because the allegations against Woodrow Tice are more serious, they apparently will be heard at either the county court or district court level if they come to trial at all. Pampa Police Lt. J.D. Laramore said the accusations against Woodrow Tice are still under investigation.

Tornadoes injure at least four; damage houses, school

By The Associated Press

A school and a dozen houses were destroyed, at least four people were injured and 66 miles of high tension power line towers toppled like dominoes as a rash of storms and tornadoes rumbled over the Plains Wednesday, authorities said.

It was the second consecutive night of severe storms in Texas. At least eight tornadoes occurred in the Abilene-Sweetwater area of West Texas on Tuesday night.

Four residents of Windthorst, about 30 miles south of Wichita Falls, were taken to Archer County Hospital in Archer City, hospital administrator Dan Powell said.

He said one man was in stable condition with head cuts. Nursing supervisor Carol Crowley said the man suffered the injuries when a tornado hit his mobile home "and it literally exploded."

Three other men were cut by flying debris, Powell said.

Midway School, a kindergarten through 12th grade school about 15 miles west of Henrietta, was destroyed, said Joe Clements, safety education officer for the Department of Public Safety in Wichita Falls.

"One wall is left standing," he said, adding that the school was unoccupied at the time.

High-tension, 345,000-volt power lines along a 65-mile route between Wichita Falls and Graham were downed by high winds, said George Hedrick, public communications manager for Texas Electric Service Co.

When the lines fell, he said, the metal towers supporting the lines fell.

"There was a domino effect where some of the frames fell down and pulled others down," he said.

Hedrick said he did not know exactly how many towers fell, but he said there is an average of nine or 10 towers a mile. Several highways in Jack and Clay counties were blocked for a while by the downed lines. Hedrick said some of the towers will be repaired and some will be replaced.

He said no service was interrupted because the lines did not service homes and businesses. Instead, he said, the lines ran from a generator in Graham to substations in Wichita Falls.

The DPS' Clements said at least a dozen trailer homes and houses near Windthorst were destroyed and an oil rig was toppled.

About 50 head of cattle died along the tornado's half-mile-wide, 17-mile-long path, he said.

A total of five twisters were spotted in Dallam, Randall and Armstrong counties in the Panhandle Wednesday afternoon, but all retreated into the clouds after touching down.

Additional twisters struck near Dalhart and Claude while hail from tennis ball to pea size battered other parts of the Panhandle.

The intense activity was blamed on a combination of factors creating favorable conditions.

"There's a weak boundary, kind of a weak cold front, located almost along the Red River, extending from near Wichita Falls dipping down into the western Texas region by Lubbock," said meteorologist Bryan Harmon at the National Weather Service in Fort Worth.

"This, coupled with an upper level disturbance and moisture, has created very unstable conditions," he said.

School of hard knocks?

When I more or less willingly entered basic training in the Army at Fort Bliss, it was during the days when recruits were still shorn of their locks. And since my draft period was during the days of the rebellious late '60s, my locks were long.

It was embarrassing to see all that hair falling on the floor around the barber's chair.

The embarrassment was not due to the haircut itself. I was no Samson who felt his manhood departed with his hair.

And besides, I had had short hair before, having grown up during the days of crew-cuts and flat-tops, styles I had adopted many a summer in my younger days. But one summer day before my freshman year, I gazed long at myself in the mirror and decided my head really looked much better with longer hair covering it.

Yet in the spring of 1969, nearly seven years since I had last bared my skull, I was faced, through no choice of my own, with having to reveal my past errors and misjudgements to my fellow troopers.

You see, shorn of its covering, my head proffers a wealth of bumps and scars that would confuse any sincere phenologist.

Some result from incidents that are embarrassing to relate.

There was the time I was four or five, and I decided a small wagon — the kind you pull your little sister in — would make a nice swing. The wheel frame had been bent and the wheels removed, leaving two holes in the bed.

Using my precocious little mind, I slipped a rope through the holes and tied the ends to the top of the fence gateposts. Then I waved my sister Shirley over, and we began to swing in the contraption.

Well, I learned wagon beds don't make good swings. I quickly fell out backwards and hit my head on the edge of the concrete sidewalk where the sloping ground had been washed away by rains.

Thus came the first scar on my head.

Other scars came from unlikely happenings.

For instance, there was the time in junior high when Shirley and I were visiting our cousins. I was watching TV when my aunt Dorothy told me to call Shirley and John in to eat.

There was an empty lot across the street at the time, and my sister and cousin were playing in an abandoned one-axled wagon. This was not a child's toy, however; it had probably been used to haul hay.

With the gate end of the wagon down on the ground, I approached from the front. When I called their names, Shirley and John came walking up to the wagon's front to see what I wanted. Naturally the wagon, acting like a seesaw, shifted its position, and the wagon tongue headed toward the ground — until my head stopped its descent.

Another time, I was at home and Mother sent me out to bring Shirley in for supper. So I walked out the front door and headed toward the alley, where I knew she and a neighbor kid were playing.

Unbeknownst to me at the time, however, Neal had picked that moment to show what a strong arm he had by tossing a twirler's baton as high up into the air as he could. Unfortunately, one of the rubber ends was missing.

It happened as though a scene had been timed for some Laurel and Hardy act. I casually strolled into the backyard as the baton twisted its way through the air on its parabolic course, its destination — you guessed it — the top of my head. And, naturally, it was the bare metal end that connected with my skull.

Other head scars resulted from misjudgements on my part.

For example, there was the time my sister — who was present at too many of my accidents, it seems — and I were working on some project that has since escaped my memory. Whatever the task, we were standing next to each other.

For some reason, I turned by back to Shirley. A mistake. She had a hatchet in her hand, and when she brought it up to begin the chopping stroke, my head was in the way. Fortunately, it was the blunt end that struck me. (There's an incident in which the sharp cutting end left its mark on my left foot, but that's another story.)

Then there was the time I was teasing my younger cousin Karla. I was only kidding, but apparently she didn't see any humor and became angry. Enough to pick up a rock and throw it at me. Laughing at her, I jumped out of the way. However, I misjudged her throw, and instead of avoiding her usual inaccurate aim, I jumped right into the rock's path, the blow leaving a small scar above my forehead.

I was older and wiser by then, and more aware of life's ironies, so I only laughed the harder when I felt the pain.

Over the years, my mother had often told me I needed some sense pounded into my head. However, I didn't really think the "school of hard knocks" was to be taken literally. I guess I misjudged that, too.

Officials: teacher test was not biased

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas education officials insist the recent teacher competency exam wasn't racially biased, although a higher percentage of minorities failed than whites.

"We tested to see whether people could read and write or whether they could not. Each and every child deserves to be taught by someone who can read and write," said Education Commissioner William Kirby.

"We think that we have absolute certainty that bias is not a factor in this," he said.

Kirby's comments Wednesday came after the state's largest teacher group, the 97,000-member Texas State Teachers Association, announced it will challenge the exam in a lawsuit being filed in federal court at Tyler.

Under the school reform law of 1984, teachers must pass the Texas Examination of Current Administrators and Teachers to keep their jobs. The lawsuit will ask that test results be voided.

Of the 202,084 teachers who took the test March 10, 96.7 percent passed. The 6,579 who failed get a second chance June 28.

But Charles Beard, TSTA president, said the results indicate the exam discriminated against minorities. Only 1.1 percent of white teachers failed, while 18.4 percent of blacks and 6 percent of Hispanics failed.

Richards says Democrats face battle in White bid

TEXARKANA, Texas (AP) — State Treasurer Ann Richards says it will take a concerted effort by Democrats to re-elect Gov. Mark White, and tough economic times may be ripe for parimutuel betting or a lottery in Texas.

"I think that it's going to take, as it did in '82, a strong organizational effort on the part of Democrats" to elect White, Ms. Richards said on Wednesday. "I think the competition of two parties is good."

Ms. Richards, a Democrat and the first female state officeholder since Gov. "Ma" Ferguson, was in Texarkana to present an award to Bowie County Judge Ed Miller.

She said the Legislature, which meets in January, will not approve an income tax on corporations or individuals. The state has faced budget shortfalls because of sagging energy revenues.

"If you see any kind of increase, it's going to be a sales tax," she said.

Ms. Richards said a sales tax on professional services might appeal to lawmakers "because the service industry is No. 12 in the State of Texas now."

"I think it's possible you might see parimutuel betting pass, or a lottery," she said.

Ms. Richards said it is too soon to track the success of White's austerity plan, in which the governor ordered state agencies to cut their budgets by 13 percent.

"You're really not going to be able to see the effect of it for months," she said. "People are now paying expenses they incur-

"This test illegally discriminates against black and Hispanic educators, and we are formally filing that charge tomorrow," Beard told a news conference.

Beard and TSTA general counsel Karen Johnson said the lawsuit being filed today will argue that the test violates the U.S. Constitution's guarantee of equal protection under the law; U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice's 1971 order desegregating Texas schools; the Civil Rights Act and federal laws prohibiting discrimination in enforcing contracts.

A complaint also is being filed with the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission office in Dallas, Beard said.

With black and Hispanic failure rates running so much higher than whites, Beard said, "TECAT has obviously had a disparate impact on different classes of people, leading us to believe ... it is inherently biased."

Some teachers have said the age and academic background of those who failed may have affected the results. Older blacks who were forced to attend segregated public schools and colleges may have gotten a poorer education than did white teachers, they say.

Beard also argued that while his organization doesn't want inept teachers in classrooms, a single pencil-and-paper test can't determine competence.

Such decisions should be made based on an expanded evaluation of all necessary skills, he said.

"The idea that TSTA wants teachers in the classroom who can't read and write is nonsense. We've said all along that a strong evaluation process is the way to change behavior in the classroom," Beard said.

Kirby said state officials took every possible step to guard against racial bias.

An advisory committee was consulted as questions were prepared, he said, and the committee included a higher percentage of blacks and Hispanics than does the Texas population.

Also, a UCLA educator who reviews such exams for the federal Equal Employment Opportunity Commission studied all questions for signs of bias, Kirby said.

"Every single precaution was taken. If there were any questions raised about any of the items, the items were thrown out," Kirby said.

"We believe the development process for the TECAT has done as much as any process in history to ensure that no bias existed. Extraordinary efforts were taken," Kirby said.

The teachers' lawsuit also was criticized as short-sighted by the Mexican American Democrats.

"We consider their litigation to be frivolous," said MAD chairman Reuben Bonilla of Corpus Christi.

"It constitutes a disservice to Hispanic educators and especially to the Hispanic children of Texas. Falling back on the old crutch of discrimination is an antiquated strategy that has no place on the political horizon of 1986," Bonilla said.

Reality attracts an audience

BY BUTLER SHAFFER

many television newscasters were so eagerly beating the drum for Mr. Reagan's recent attacks on Libya, how can any branch of television be assured of its non-complicity in official hype?

I think the critics of the Al Capone vault show have totally missed the point as to why it enjoyed such popularity. The program was done live. People were given the opportunity of seeing something take place as it was happening, not — as is usually the case on television — two weeks later, following careful editing of film. If the Lexington Hotel was going to fall down, or if millions of dollars or dead bodies were going to tumble out of the rubble, viewers across the country were going to see it right before their eyes. (I was amazed at the innocence of those who actually thought that a man as clever and greedy as Capone would have walked up his money — where it would be hard to reach — or his murder victims — a good piece of evidence for a murder charge.)

I recall, as a youth, when almost all television was done live. I recall a "Garry Moore Show" in the early 1950's when a man came out of the audience and shot a member of the staff live, on the air. I recall, as well, a program on which Steve Allen led his audience out of the studios on a wild goose chase through the streets of New York, with Allen returning to the studios for a game of cards with members of his orchestra. Nor will I likely forget the umpteen laughing jags, foiled-up commercials, stage sets collapsing, murder victims getting up to walk off stage in full view of the camera, etc., that helped to make early television a genuine adventure to watch.

But all of that spontaneity and uncertainty was lost when television went to film and videotape. Blunders and other embarrassing incidents could be edited out; retakes could be done; entire programs could be substituted, if need be. Because institutions dislike uncertainty, the television industry had to become sanitized, cleansed of anything that was not predictable and on-schedule.

There is no mystery as to why this program was popular. It had nothing to do with Al Capone himself, nor was it simply the product of television promotion. Had this program been videotaped — as all the others are — and played back weeks later, it would have enjoyed the same audience reaction as most of the other dull programs on TV. The excitement lay, rather, in the live nature of the programming.

I suspect that this fact is known to at least some of the top people in network television. Perhaps this is the source of their finger-wagging and laughter at the "we didn't find anything" conclusion to the program. Perhaps they saw in just such an undertaking a threat to their comfortable, carefully-edited ways of doing things. Perhaps viewers do want programs that are live and real, where real people — not laughing machines — respond to what is really not so funny in situation comedies.

I, for one, regard this program as a tremendous success: not in what it found, but in what it brought back to television — a sense of reality. I am glad the program was as financially successful as it was, for that means we may now look forward to more live programming, and may someday be able to pull the plug on the editing and laughing machines.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Honeymoon's over for Soviet leader

Given the closed nature of Soviet society, the world may never precisely know the Chernobyl nuclear disaster's eventual death toll and damage to health and the environment, but one casualty is quite clear.

That casualty is Mikhail Gorbachev's carefully constructed reputation as a new kind of Kremlin leader, one given to openness, candor and the acknowledgement of mistakes in the Soviet system as to correct them.

When radioactive clouds rose from the stricken power plant, Gorbachev's Russia reacted to crisis like talin's and Brezhnev's: first lie, then admit no more can be known abroad, then hunker down and finally lame "bourgeois enemies" for all problems.

It is evident Moscow would not have said a word about Chernobyl if Sweden had not detected increased radiation and demanded an explanation. Even then, the Russians denied for a day that anything was amiss, depriving their neighbors and their own people of time to take precautions, and later released only useless data.

The lie - coverup - counterattack formula used for Chernobyl mirrored Moscow's behavior in September of 1983 when it shot down a South Korean airliner with 269 people aboard. At first it denied the crime. Six days later, it admitted destroying the lumbering civilian aircraft with a mendacious claim that it was on a espionage mission.

Now Gorbachev who has been enjoying a honeymoon with Western Europe's media and public, has offered a loss of credibility in the future, his grandiose disarmament and test-ban schemes are likely to get the scrutiny they deserve, instead of semi-automatic approval.

Take, for instance, this comment by the leftist French newspaper Liberation, which normally is understanding of Soviet transgressions: "Communists make electricity like they make war — without worrying too much about victims and by eliminating observers."

The honeymoon clearly is over, and Gorbachev, only 14 months into what was forecast as a long reign, has unexpected troubles.

Soft drink for the daring

My friend, Rigsby, the entrepreneur, called with what he said was a can't-miss idea.

I'm not saying Rigsby often comes up with half-baked ideas that are supposed to make him a fortune and never do, but he's the same guy who tried to start a fast-food franchise that featured burger-on-a-rope.

"What is it this time?" I asked him. "I'm getting into the soft drink game," he answered.

"What do you know about soft drinks?" I asked again.

"Plenty," he said. "I have an uncle who used to be in soft drinks."

"For real?"

"Sure. He invented a soft drink called '5-Up.'"

"What happened, then?"

"It flopped, too."

"What did your uncle do after that?"

"He gave up!"

I cautioned Rigsby that the Coke and Pepsi people just about have the soft drink market cornered.

"You haven't heard my idea," Rigsby said.

"Shoot."

"You know how the soft drink people are into drinks that don't have this or that?" Rigsby asked.

"I mean there's caffeine-free drinks and sugar-free drinks and drinks that don't have saccharin because saccharin kills laboratory mice?"

"Go on," I said.

"Well, my soft drink is going to have it all. We're going to have caffeine and sugar and saccharin and NutraSweet and sodium and MSG, and all that good stuff people miss."

"It won't work," I said. "People are to conscious today regarding what they put inside their bodies."

"Not everybody," said Rigsby.

"What do you mean?"

"There's Mikey in the TV commercials," he went on. "He'll eat anything."

"But who else?"

"People who don't mind taking a risk, that's who," said Rigsby. "There must be people out there who are fed up with all the don't-drink-this's and don't-drink-that's who don't mind taking a risk now and then to get what they want."

"I want people who will walk on the wild side, spit in the devil's eye and say, 'Don't give me no plastic saddle, I want to feel the leather when I ride.'"

I asked Rigsby if he had a name for his new product.

"My uncle named it," said Rigsby. "It's a name he tried years ago that also flopped."

"So what is it?" I asked.

"Dr. Salt," said Rigsby. "You like it?"

I didn't commit myself, but who knows? Maybe Rigsby really has something this time.

A belt of all those things we like that we aren't supposed to enjoy anymore might do us all a world of good.

Middle age is becoming marketable

By Don Graff

You say you're over 50 and in the job market?

You say that from where you stand, the prospects of finding anything appear minimal to nil?

Boy! Does Clifford J. Benfield have good news for you. From where he stands, the employment outlook for those in middle age has rarely been rosier.

Benfield is president of Hay Career Consultants, a counseling firm that works directly with companies. A large part of the work involves assisting managers and executives who are leaving those companies — usually involuntarily — to find new positions. Almost all succeed within a period of months, he says, with most going on to better jobs than they left.

Benfield, a psychologist by training, points to a number of reasons for the attractiveness of middle age in today's job market. But first, the term needs to be defined.

"You have to be careful," he says, "because sometimes they're talking 40 now. Sometimes they're talking 50."

He's talking the latter. And with that understood, he cites demographics as the primary reason middle age is currently "in" in the market place.

The birthrate remained relatively low from the Great Depression through World War II. Fewer births means that fewer professionals of that age cohort are around today to fill responsible positions, especially compared to the numbers of the "baby boom" generation that followed.

"There is more room for senior people now," says Benfield, "because there are less of them to go around. That's one thing."

Another is that by this time they've got heavy experience, which is an eminently marketable commodity, and offer the added advantage of posing no threat to younger talent coming up within an organization. They aren't a block to advancement because they aren't going to be around that long. And they can be the ideal interim solution to a staffing problem.

"I need three years' worth of this," says Benfield, describing a hypothetical situation faced by a company head. "I need you to fill a spot until my young tigers can grow up. I've got a lot of tigers growing up and it's wonderful to be able to fill the spots so that I don't have to commit myself until I see what I've got."

In addition to experience, older hires also offer stability. They are less likely to become professionally restless, moving on after a few years in a job. And they can be less of a burden than younger employees on company benefit programs, especially pension systems.

Another factor is the changing structure of the economy. Small businesses represent the fastest growing segment. Some mature job-changers are able to seize the opportunity and start their own enterprises. Others with professional qualifications hang out their shingles as consultants.

The prospects remain good right on up the age scale, says Benfield, even for those over 60. The only sure losers are those who have convinced themselves that they can't find work.

Democratic spending plan expected to win in House

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House, finishing work on its fiscal 1987 budget, appeared poised to join the Senate in calling for a tax increase and a sharp cut in President Reagan's proposed military buildup.

Despite administration lobbying, lawmakers of both parties said the $994 billion spending plan drafted by the Democratic-controlled House Budget Committee would win, and a Republican alternative somewhat closer to what Reagan requested would lose.

"This is going to be a Democratic vote, and they are going to take the responsibility for it," said Rep. Delbert L. Latta of Ohio, senior Republican on the budget panel, who opposed the measure. "They've got them (the votes) pretty well lined up."

The budget committee adopted the Senate's decision to add $7.3 billion in taxes to the $6 billion Reagan submitted in February. But while the Republican-controlled Senate proposed $301 billion for the military in the budget it passed May 2, the House panel's plan would authorize $285 billion.

House Republicans propose no more taxes than Reagan. But they too would pare back Reagan's $320 billion defense request, to $293 billion.

The spending plans all reflect the difficulty of reaching the $144 billion deficit target in the Gramm-Rudman balanced budget law.

"We're writing this budget in a straightjacket," said Rep. Marvin Leath, D-Texas, a conservative who said he reluctantly supported the House's military budget. The deficit target could not be met otherwise because Congress refuses to touch entitlement programs and the nation is saddled with payments on a debt exceeding $2 trillion, he said.

Reagan's budget director, James C. Miller III, said he was lobbying House members to support the Republican alternative, but, "My latest count is we're behind."

The House Democratic plan would leave a deficit of $137 billion, $7 billion below the Republican plan, which would just meet the $144 billion target. The president's budget missed the target by $16 billion, according to the Congressional Budget Office.

The budget is a joint resolution of Congress that does not require the president's approval. However, it serves as a guide to spending and tax bills that must get the president's signature to become law.

Space station assembly will require 14 shuttle flights

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Fourteen space shuttle flights will be required for a new, scaled-down manned space station that NASA plans to construct in orbit in the 1990s with the help of its closest allies.

The first assembly flight is planned for late 1992 or 1993 and the station, the size of a football field, should be completed by 1996, said NASA's project director, John Hodge.

The revised plan, unveiled at a news conference Wednesday, initially will have five major pressurized modules instead of the seven originally planned, and it is designed so a permanent crew does not have to be aboard from the beginning, which had been the earlier plan.

Hodge said budget constraints dictated the new design and pushed back the date for permanently manning the station from 1992 until 1994. The structure still will be built for $8 billion, he said, the amount President Reagan set in 1984 when he committed the United States to develop a permanent station.

The United States will build modules for living and for logistics and microgravity research; the European Space Agency, a consortium of 10 nations, will supply a life sciences module; Japan will provide an advanced technology module, and Canada will develop a mobile satellite servicing and repair center.

The modules will be clustered inside giant metal trusses to which are attached solar panels, power stations, antennae, shuttle docking ports and experiment and equipment bays. The service center will move about the complex on rails.

There also are plans for four free-flying platforms, two provided by the United States and two by the Europeans.

Contractors will be selected to build the station, which will accommodate up to eight people, in about a year, Hodge said.

Fourteen shuttle flights will be needed to build the station, Hodge said. The first U.S. module could be in place with the sixth flight, in 1993. Crews then periodically will work there until the ninth flight, when all three U.S. modules will be in place and the station can be occupied permanently, he said.

He said the Japanese and European modules and the Canadian service center would be added by 1996, and that eight to 10 shuttle flights would be required each year to change crews and to resupply and maintain the station.

The station "will be the cornerstone of our endeavors for the foreseeable future," said James C. Fletcher, NASA's new administrator, who also was at the news conference, held in Washington.

But he cautioned that the National Aeronautics and Space Administration must first correct the problems with the space shuttle and Delta rocket, both of which are grounded after failing their most recent flights.

Southeastern states must correct problems of rotting rural areas

ATLANTA (AP) — Southern states must tend to their rotting rural roots or face disruption in their booming economies, a blue-ribbon panel reported today in urging immediate action to improve education, small business and roads.

"Would you locate a multimillion-dollar plant on a two-lane highway so that when one bridge is out, or a hog truck is ahead of your truck, your whole plant is left waiting for materials?" the panel's report quoted an industry recruiter as saying.

The seven-member panel's report said the rapid growth of big cities in the South has been offset by decline in rural areas, where illiteracy is widespread and only half of the population 25 or older has high school diplomas.

New jobs are being added nearly twice as fast in metropolitan areas as in rural areas, the report said, and in Georgia, 75 percent of all new jobs since 1981 have been in the Atlanta area.

In contrast, more than 111,000 textile and apparel jobs have disappeared in the Southeast since 1981, most from rural areas, and agriculture is facing a severe crisis, it said.

The report was prepared by MDC Inc., a nonprofit research organization in Chapel Hill, N.C., and sponsored by the Ford Foundation and the R.J. Reynolds Foundation. Former Mississippi Gov. William Winter chaired the panel.

In North Carolina, the report said, land values and agricultural assets have declined by at least $2 billion since 1983. In addition, demand is falling off for tobacco, a major Southern cash crop.

Per capita income in the rural South is less than three-fourths the nationwide average of $10,670, the report said.

"The consequences of the current situation transcend economic considerations," it said. "The trends also threaten abstract, eternal values that have cemented the South's identity and made it worth preserving."

"Even those of us a generation or two removed from the farm trace our love of the environment, our concern for thrift, our feelings for fellowmen, our awe of nature, and our sense of place to the routines of rural community life and our connections to the land. States in the South must tend to our roots, or in the end, risk our values."

FAA says

Airline inspections are better, critics disagree

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Aviation Administration says it's ferreting out unsafe airline practices aggressively and better than ever, but some critics say the agency is playing for headlines while others see its airline inspection program as too weak.

A congressional study released Wednesday concluded that the FAA inspection system is in such a state that the agency "cannot say with assurance" that airlines are obeying safety regulations — a contention quickly disputed by senior FAA officials.

"The FAA headquarters doesn't know what inspections are being done, who's doing them, which airlines are being inspected, what kind of inspections are going on and what are the violations," Herbert McLure of the General Accounting Office told a House aviation subcommittee.

The GAO, Congress' investigative arm, has been examining the FAA inspection program for more than a year.

The report listed a variety of problems with the way the FAA monitors the airlines, including poor inspector training, poor record keeping and little success in analyzing what their inspectors find. The GAO said it may take years for the agency to straighten out the situation.

The FAA, which in the past has been subject to sharp criticism from the GAO, disputed much of the congressional investigators' findings, although acknowledging there are still problems that need to be corrected.

"We can say with assurance that airlines are meeting the federal air regulations," said Stephen Hayes, the agency's chief spokesman. He conceded that a year ago the FAA had little central control and coordination in its inspection program, but he insisted that has changed.

"Today we know exactly where our inspectors are. We know their work and how it fits into the overall national program," Hayes continued.

FAA officials also disputed a GAO contention that the agency is not prepared to absorb about 500 new inspectors and clerical support personnel over the next 18 months because of training and managerial problems. "We're beefing up the inspection force to handle the increased work load," said Hayes.

Ironically, in the same week that the FAA inspection program came under attack for being too weak and disorganized, it also was pummeled by angry Eastern Airlines executives who characterized it as being too heavy-handed and unfair.

Eastern has been hit with a record $9.5 million fine for safety infractions which Eastern Chairman Frank Borman claims have been highly exaggerated by FAA inspectors.

Other airline executives also have in recent months complained privately about the FAA for leveling high fines and then going public with them — sometimes before a final settlement is reached.

Eastern has offered to pay $3.5 million as a compromise settlement, but argues many of the 78,000 separate violations found by FAA inspectors are "technical" and not substantive in nature. Borman complained that the FAA inspection team included people who were unfamiliar with Eastern's procedures.

Longhorn getting acupuncture treatment

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Texas USA, a longhorn bull serving as the state's Sesquicentennial mascot, is on his way to Nebraska to receive acupuncture therapy for a broken back.

The decision to move the bull from Texas A&M University to a private clinic was made late Tuesday by owner Kathie O'Brien and Larry Smith, who was caring for the animal, said Dr. David L. Morris, a Texas A&M veterinary professor.

Ms. O'Brien, a Nebraska resident, loaned the bull for the 150th birthday celebration.

Texas USA was found Saturday with a broken back on Smith's ranch near Jacksboro, about 60 miles northwest of Fort Worth. Both of the animal's hind legs were paralyzed by the injury.

AT&T PUBLIC NOTICE REGARDING REACH OUT™ Texas OPTIONAL CALLING PLAN

AT&T Communications of the Southwest, Inc. (AT&T) is seeking approval from the Public Utility Commission of Texas to continue the REACH OUT Texas long distance plan. REACH OUT Texas is an optional calling plan which offers customers the opportunity to save on long distance calls placed within the state of Texas.

The Public Utility Commission has required that AT&T show why the REACH OUT Texas plan should not expire by August 1, 1986. To meet this requirement, on March 7, 1986, AT&T filed an application with the Public Utility Commission, and asked that the August 1, 1986 termination date be removed. This request and the related proceeding have been designated as Docket No. 6761 by the Public Utility Commission, with hearings scheduled to begin June 18, 1986.

Currently more than 39,000 Texans subscribe to REACH OUT Texas service. REACH OUT Texas customers pay a one-time $6 charge to establish the service, and a monthly charge of $14 which entitles them to one hour of AT&T's intrastate/interstate "Direct Dialed" (1+) calling during the weekend and night rate periods. Customers also receive an additional 15 percent discount on the same type of AT&T long distance calls placed during the evening rate period. In addition, an hourly rate of $12, or $.20 per minute applies for weekend and night rate calls beyond the initial hour of calling provided under the REACH OUT Texas basic rate.

AT&T estimates current annual revenues generated by the REACH OUT Texas service to be over $14 million.

Persons who wish to intervene or otherwise participate in these proceedings should notify the Commission as soon as possible. A request to intervene, participate or for further information should be mailed to the Public Utility Commission of Texas, 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard, Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757. Further information also may be obtained by calling the Public Utility Commission Consumer Affairs Division at (512) 458-0223 or (512) 458-0227 or (512) 458-0221 teletypewriter for the deaf.

PROTEST — Students of Korea University in Seoul Thursday burned a military reserve uniform and other materials during a demonstration against the South Korean government and "American Imperialism." Signs held by protesters also blamed the United States for a role in the bloody uprising six years ago in the southern city of Kwangju, a role denied repeatedly by U.S. officials. (AP Laserphoto)

Caller threatens action against all U.S. and French hostages

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A telephone caller claiming to speak for the Islamic Jihad terror group today threatened to make American and French hostages held in Lebanon pay for purported Western pressure put on Syria for their release.

The anonymous caller also said the number of the American and French hostages held by the shadowy Islamic Jihad, or Islamic Holy War, has "decreased a lot because a number of them have been liquidated."

"If they (Western countries) fail to stop maneuvering against Syria and Islamic Jihad, the remaining hostages with us will be the first to pay the price," the Arabic-speaking caller told a Western news agency office in Moslem west Beirut.

An editor of the agency, who spoke on condition that neither he nor his wire service be identified, said the caller did not give names and the exact number of the hostages who might have been killed.

There was no immediate way to authenticate the call.

The caller said reports have been increasing about Syrian efforts to release the American and French hostages and "we are aware of the pressures brought to bear on (Syrian) President Hafez Assad."

He said the United States, France and two Arab countries he did not name were involved in these pressures and warned, "We shall make the Earth shake under their feet."

The caller may have been referring to Saudi Arabia and Kuwait, which have been mentioned lately as being involved in renewed efforts to release American and French citizens kidnapped in Lebanon over the past two years.

CBS News has reported that Assad was engaged in intensified efforts to free the hostages in order to stem the increasing isolation of his government because of its possible links to political violence abroad.

Some Western countries have said recently they suspect Syria of being involved in international terrorism.

Islamic Jihad is believed made up of Shiite Moslem extremists loyal to Iran's revolutionary patriarch Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini.

The group said last October 4 that it killed kidnapped U.S. Embassy political officer William Buckley, 57, in retaliation for alleged U.S. complicity in Israel's air attack on the Palestine Liberation Organization headquarters in Tunis October 1. Buckley was kidnapped March 16, 1984.

It also claimed it killed French research analyst Michel Seurat, 37, last March 5 after France deported two pro-Iranian Iraqi activists to Baghdad. He was kidnapped May 22, 1985.

Neither Buckley's nor Seurat's body was found, and there is no conclusive proof that either is dead.

The other Americans missing in Lebanon are the Rev. Martin Lawrence Jenco, 51, a Roman Catholic priest kidnapped Jan. 8, 1985; Terry A. Anderson, 38, chief Middle East correspondent for The Associated Press, kidnapped March 16, 1985; David Jacobsen, 54, administrator of the American University Hospital, kidnapped May 28, 1985; and Thomas Sutherland, 55, acting dean of agriculture at the American University of Beirut, abducted June 9, 1985.

Shultz: U.S. urging restraint between Syria and Israel

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State George P. Shultz, calling a new Middle East military buildup "a highly tense situation," says the United States has cautioned Israel and Syria against going to war.

"There are growing tensions, there is a big Syrian buildup, they have been moving their fortifications forward in Lebanon," Shultz told the Overseas Writers Club on Wednesday.

It was the first public confirmation by a U.S. official of the accuracy of Israeli assertions that the Syrians are improving their war-fighting capability in Lebanon. And it was the highest-level expression of U.S. concern about the situation since it began developing several weeks ago.

"We don't believe a war between Israel and Syria would serve either party's interests, and we have cautioned against it," Shultz said. "It is a highly tense situation; there's no doubt about it."

For the previous week, U.S. officials had refrained from direct comment about Syria, despite reports from London and Israel that the Damascus government was involved in an attempt to bomb an El Al jet in London in April and the bombing of a West Berlin discotheque in which an American was killed.

Shultz said Wednesday "there are investigations going on about various terrorist incidents in which Syria may or may not have been involved."

He repeated the Reagan administration vow that when state-sponsored terrorism is identified, "We will do something about it. It is not the right thing for us to say what we will do tactically."

Asked about reports published in Beirut that Syria might be trying to help release American hostages in Lebanon, Shultz said, "Syria has played a constructive role in the past in some instances, so if they could be helpful, that would be most welcome."

American announces anti-terrorism measures

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Beginning today, American Airlines will charge passengers $5 extra for intensified security measures on U.S.-Europe flights, which have suffered a sharp drop in bookings because of fears about terrorism.

The announcement by the country's No. 2 carrier came one day after Pan American World Airways, one of the leading U.S. airlines to Europe, announced formation of what it called an elite security force to foil terrorists. Pan Am said last month that it planned a security surcharge.

American said Wednesday its strengthened security measures include requiring passport information when making trans-Atlantic reservations, X-ray screening or hand-inspection of all checked bags, use of a questionnaire about checked bags at all U.S. cities, and detailed inspections of all aircraft prior to departure.

From its Dallas-Fort Worth headquarters, American serves London, Paris and Frankfurt, West Germany. It also offers service between Chicago and Paris, Manchester, Frankfurt, Dusseldorf and Munich.

All U.S. trans-Atlantic airlines have suffered lower business to Europe in the past few months, especially following a terrorist explosion aboard a Trans World Airlines jet in April and the subsequent U.S. attack on Libya.

Lucas says he agrees with report

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Convicted killer Henry Lee Lucas says he gave bogus confessions to law enforcement officers in an attempt to show that authorities are willing to convict innocent people.

And Lucas said he had 600 murderers are walking the streets of America because "that's how many I confessed to." He now insists he really killed only one person — his mother in Tecumseh, Mich., in 1960.

On Wednesday, Lucas repeated his contentions that he confessed to the slayings around the country to show the ineptness of law enforcement officers.

"They want to clear cases that have been on the books and then they get recognition for clearing them," Lucas said in an interview outside the Texas death row. "I wasn't trying to make fun of them. I was just trying to prove a point. Every place I'd been, they were willing to convict an innocent person."

Detectives would show him pictures of crime scenes and then take him to the places of the crime, Lucas said.

"They'd give you the whole case," he said. "You take that, put it together and give it back to them."

"I went along with it. It was wrong."

He continued to confess, Lucas said, because "I started out to commit legal suicide. I was tired and fed up with the system."

Lucas, 49, said he agreed with a report from the Texas attorney general that law enforcement officers accepted dozens of bogus confessions from him in order to clear unsolved murder cases.

"I was tired of being pushed," Lucas said. "I'm willing to go along with anything."

"I enjoyed it for a while. I don't enjoy it now. I didn't think about how I could hurt the families involved and the law enforcement officers."

Last week, Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox released a report of a year-long investigation of Lucas in which he accused the one-eyed drifter of perpetrating "a hoax on the criminal justice system."

Death toll probably far higher than official figure

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The government still puts the death toll in last September's devastating earthquake at 4,516, the number of bodies found, but responsible people and agencies say it probably is several times that.

Renato Sales Gasque, Mexico City's district attorney, says the official count includes 4,007 identified bodies and 509 that have not been identified. It is based on deaths registered by investigation agents at sites where bodies were removed from the rubble.

Of an unofficial government estimate of 9,500 included in a U.S. Embassy report on the disaster, he said there could have been 100 or 200 more than the official number, "but in no way a figure like that of 9,000 that is being used, definitely."

The figure widely seen here since shortly after the quake was 7,000 to 8,000 dead and missing. A report issued in October by the U.N. Economic Commission for Latin America listed 6,000 dead and 2,000 missing, based on official estimates, but said that appeared conservative.

Higher estimates range from 12,000 to 35,000, and a figure of 50,000 or more has been circulating in the business community.

More than 95 percent of the deaths in the Sept. 19 quake and another the following day occurred in Mexico City's metropolitan area of 18 million people.

Those making the higher estimates agree that the actual death toll probably never will be known.

A government source said:

"Within the government itself, on a personal level, there are people who disagree with the official figure. It's an estimate, Mexican style."

Holding down the figure, even though a higher one might generate more aid and sympathy, "is a problem of pride misunderstood," said Jorge de Regil, a lawyer and official of the Confederation of Industrial Associations.

He said the government believes it is "important to maintain a position of strength and courage in a moment of misfortune ... to minimize the problem, say 'I'm fine. I'm very macho. Nothing happened to me.'"

Rafael Portilla Ruiz, an executive of an industrial security consulting firm, said he was sure the loss was much greater than officially acknowledged, but called keeping the figure low a "healthy position" to avoid scaring away tourist and foreign investors.

"It is best not to count the fingers that no longer work," he said. "Doing so could hurt the image of the country."

Fred Cuny, a reconstruction consultant to the U.N. Children's Fund from the Dallas-based company INTERTECT, said one reason for the low total may be that many people were killed in buildings owned or financed by the government.

Cuny, who has worked in 50 disasters, estimated the death toll at 12,000 to 15,000. "If you look at the number of large structures destroyed or heavily damaged, you get to over 8,000 pretty quickly," he said.

Figures from hospitals that collapsed appear to be accurate, he said, but questioned those from schools and from garment-district sweatshops whose owners might not want to admit how many people they employed.

The Mexican Red Cross and Civic Solidarity Center do not dispute the government figure publicly, but a source linked to both said their private estimates are 22,000 to 25,000.

The Western diplomat said he assembled an estimate of 32,000 to 35,000, from reports by German, Swiss, Italian, French and U.S. rescue teams. He said the Mexican military at one point estimated 7,500 to 20,000 dead and conceded that the official government figure was low.

The 50,000 figure began circulating after it was mentioned about two weeks after the earthquake in a meeting of industrialists and the Red Cross to discuss supplies that were needed, said De Regil, who attended the meeting.

Sales Gasque, the city attorney general, said: "We believe that some residents of the urban zones of the Federal District left the city because of the earthquakes and that made people think there were more deaths."

He said authorities do not deny the estimates. "We simply say that officially all we know is this," the government figure.

Number of teens declines while more Americans are middle-aged

WASHINGTON (AP) — It may not be time for MTV to add Lawrence Welk to its stars, but marketers will want to study new Census figures showing the number of teen-agers is declining sharply, while the middle-aged and elderly make up a vastly bigger share of Americans.

MTV, the channel offering non-stop rock music, has found its audience among young people, a segment of society that has dominated all sorts of marketing for years, but is now dwindling in strength.

Yet to be seen is how that giant post-World War II Baby Boom generation will change its tastes in music, food, clothing and other products as it surges into middle age.

But however these people react, they are a bulge in the puzzle of American society that is currently boosting the 35-to-44 age group into first place in national growth.

That age group jumped 23.9 percent to nearly 32 million people between 1980 and 1985. Their growth of 6.1 million people accounted for half of all the nation's population increase over that period.

The younger brothers and sisters of that group followed close behind, accounting for a 13.3 percent increase in Americans aged 25 to 34 between 1980 and 1985.

But the second-fastest growing group, by percentage, was the "old old," those 85 and over, who increased 21 percent to 2.7 million over the five years.

While the number of young adults and middle-aged Americans was growing rapidly, the age groups they left behind were falling — the sharpest decline being an 8.5 percent drop among those aged 14 to 17, down nearly 1.4 million, according to the Census Bureau report released Wednesday.

The report reflects the movement through life of the Baby Boom generation, and the relatively tiny Baby Bust group that followed when young people decided to postpone marriage and family for education and careers.

At the same time, improved medical care has helped millions of older Americans extend their lifespans, resulting in the rapid growth in the elderly generation.

In the year ahead, you will have a larger number of opportunities than you've had in the past. Handle what develops wisely so you can achieve a dramatic rise in status.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You're going to be let in on some good news shortly. It will be more for the benefit of the family as a whole than for any one individual. Major changes are ahead for Taurus in the coming year. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail $1 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, Box 1846, Cincinnati, OH 45201. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Be careful today not to negatively judge situations in advance. This could cause you to view something as a user that in reality has possibilities.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Today if you get involved in a special activity with friends, don't feel it's up to you to pay the lion's share of the expenses. Split cost equally.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Others will appreciate you more today if you melt into the group instead of trying to run the whole show. Give it a try; see for yourself.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Guard against tendencies today to overrule your better judgment and do things your common sense tells you not to.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) People who are not directly involved must be kept out of your financial or commercial affairs today. Kibitzers will gum things up.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You're an extremely capable and self-sufficient person, so if anything important needs doing today, do it alone. Don't cart along any dead weight.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Seize the initiative today at work. Do things without having an authority remind you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) This is not a good day to risk your hard-earned funds on unfamiliar ventures. Before jumping in, do more investigating.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Your domestic relationship will run rather smoothly today if neither you nor your mate rehash an old unresolved issue. Keep the hatchet buried.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Everyone has shortcomings, including yourself. Focus on the good qualities in others, and they'll focus on the good qualities in you.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) General conditions are favorable for you today, but, in material matters, you might not use your best judgment.

Museum's Family Day honors Sesquicentennial

CANYON — On Sunday, from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m., the Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum is to celebrate International Museum Day and the Texas Sesquicentennial with its third annual Museum Family Day. An old-fashioned celebration of the pioneer spirit is planned in honor of Texas' 150th birthday, announced Suzanne Hewitt-Knorpp, staff coordinator.

A family-oriented afternoon of dancers, role players, antique equipment displays, wagon rides, and crafts demonstrations offer entertainment for all ages, she said. Education volunteers and community volunteers are organizing and participating in the events, to take place on the grounds of the museum.

"A new activity this year is our Cowboy Area, where you can see craftsmakers and entertainers. There will be saddlemakers and bootmakers exhibiting their skills, and pioneer ladies will be giving butter-making demonstrations," said Hewitt-Knorpp.

A special attraction in the Cowboy Area will be performances by the "Texas Shootists" at 2:30 p.m., 3:30 p.m., and 4:30 p.m. These costumed roleplayers, wearing authentic costumes and carrying authentic weapons, "shoot it out" with each other, she said.

Other outdoor activities include displays of antique automobiles, a baby animal zoo, wagon rides, activities in and around T-Anchor Ranch House, and a puppet theater featuring "Tumbleweed the Horse & Friends."

On another part of the grounds, artist Sue Blackburn will be signing Museum Day posters designed especially as unique mementoes of the event.

Refreshments include lemonade, and the traditional 5 cent popcorn and peanuts from the museum's antique popcorn wagon.

Music and dancers are also on the slate, Hewitt-Knorpp added. On stage at 2 p.m. will be the Canyon Show Choir. Then The Otwells take the stage at 2:30 p.m. until 3:30 p.m. Roger and David Otwell of Tulia have been seen by millions while appearing on "Nashville Now" and "The Lawrence Welk Show." Their repertoire includes country and western, contemporary Christian music, and old standards.

Then at 3:30 p.m., the High Plains Pipers will play, followed by the Kwahadi Indian Dancers at 4 p.m. and the Top O' Texas Cloggers at 4:30 p.m. All entertainment will take place in front of the W.T. Education Building on the north side of the museum complex.

"We want to invite everyone in the Panhandle to come out and spend the afternoon with us and with all of their friends. It's free admission, and that's our way of saying 'thank you' to all of the people and the communities who use and appreciate the museum all year long," Hewitt-Knorpp said.

Girl Scout camp open house set

Girls wanting to attend summer camp at Quivira Girl Scout Council's Camp Cibola may bring their families and tour the camp, Saturday, from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. Directions to the camp, located north of Clarendon, may be obtained from the Council office, second floor, City Hall.

A drawing for a one-week campership is to be held at the open house. Registrations for one-week or two-week camps will also be taken at the event. Non-Girl Scouts may attend the camps.

Organizing closet can end nothing-to-wear blues

DALLAS (AP) — Many women begin their day by gazing into an unorganized closet and lamenting, "I have nothing to wear," but with a little planning that needn't happen, says Rosemary Gwin, former fashion model and owner of a Dallas-based image consulting firm.

"Chances are these women have a fantastic selection of fashionable wardrobe items," she says. "However, they are lost among a collection of clothing that should have been discarded long ago."

"Do not think of the closet as a storage area," advises Mrs. Gwin, whose business, Timeless Elegance, was founded to help women organize their wardrobes and develop their own personal style.

Mrs. Gwin recommends reviewing the closet every two months as a way of staying in touch with yourself, as well as becoming organized to dress quickly and efficiently, allowing more time for other things.

Organizing the closet is a four-step process, she says. It begins with separating blouses, jackets, skirts, pants, dresses, sweaters and vests into groups, with hangers all facing the same direction. Within each group, cluster items by color.

Step two is designed to weed out items that no longer support or enhance your lifestyle and involves removing any worn out or dated clothing, as well as anything that has not been worn in two seasons.

Next, separate the remaining clothes into three groups: clothing that is loved and worn, garments you feel ambivalent toward, and those items which need recycling.

In determining into which pile a garment fits, Mrs. Gwin suggests, ask the questions: How do I feel about this? Do I love and wear it? Am I ambivalent about it? and Do I recycle it?

After making the decision, items you are ambivalent about should be placed in the back of the closet and clothes that are loved and worn should be placed at the front.

The same process should be repeated to organize accessories, including bags, belts, shoes, hats and scarves.

Finally, clothing to be recycled should be taken to a used clothing store or thrift shop, shared with friends or given to charity.

Before taking garments for recycling, be sure items are clean, pressed and on hangers. In most cases, the store will price the garments and may ask the giver to provide an original purchase price. The individual usually receives a percentage of the garment's asking price.

Normally, used clothing stores work on a three-month contract basis, Mrs. Gwin notes. If clothes do not sell during that period, they are returned to the owner or donated to charity.

Mrs. Gwin, who has had training in cosmetology, modeling, color analysis and image consulting, founded her business in response to women who attended her "Beautiful You Workshop" and sought her services on an individual basis.

Dear Abby

Fight over wedding plans puts in-laws on the outs

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1986 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Our son is getting married in September. When "Evelyn," the bride's mother, called to tell me of the wedding plans, I was floored! They are having the reception at the most expensive hall in Boston. Abby, these are young kids who have nothing.

I was informed that our share would be $4,500. I told Evelyn we didn't have that kind of money, that $1,000 was our limit. She hung up on me.

I called a few days later and asked how many guests we could invite to the reception. "For $1,000," she said, "one couple." I was furious and went right to her house to talk to her. She said I was living in the dark ages if I thought the parents of the bride still paid for the whole wedding with no help from the groom's side. She repeated, our share was $4,500. I said, "People who put on showy weddings they can't afford are four-flushers." Then the father of the bride threw me out of the house!

Now there's bad feeling on both sides. Should we make a loan?

MAD IN MASSACHUSETTS

DEAR MAD: No. The parents of the bride should have had a meeting with you before they planned a wedding that was beyond their means. Having committed for it, they have no right to "bill" you. They may have to make a loan, which will be their problem, not yours.

will be certified as having a high school education, and you will qualify for college as a high school graduate. You may also apply for jobs that require a high school diploma.

This test is known in some parts of the country as the High School Equivalency test.

Good luck, and thanks for asking because this information is valuable to many other readers.

DEAR ABBY: My 16-year-old son wrote a letter to his grandparents who live in California. It wasn't a routine "thank-you" letter, but a spontaneous, friendly "keep-in-touch" letter.

Yesterday he received a response from my mother. When he showed it to me, I was furious! She had corrected three misspelled words, explaining in a footnote that she did it out of "loving concern."

My son just shrugged his shoulders, but I am angry. What do you think?

FURIOUS IN DULUTH

DEAR FURIOUS: Your mother rates an "A" for good intentions, but an "F" for tact and diplomacy. Tell her that out of "loving concern" for her grandson's feelings, in the future she should resist the temptation to correct his letters.

CONFIDENTIAL TO P.C.L. IN WATERBURY, CONN.: Having a baby is easy. It's being a parent that's difficult.

(Every teen-ager should know the truth about sex, drugs and how to be happy. For Abby's booklet, send your name and address clearly printed with a check or money order for $2.50 and a long, stamped (39 cents) self-addressed envelope to: Dear Abby, Teen Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.)

Pampa, area athletes bound for state track meet

By DAN MURRAY
Sports Writer

By van-load, by car-load, and in Pampa by bus-load, the area's best track and field athletes left this morning for Austin. It was a scene repeated across the state, for Friday and Saturday the cream of Texas' high school athletes will come together at the University of Texas' Memorial Stadium for the UIL State Track Meet.

Pampa's Lady Harvesters head south with legitimate hopes of winning the Class 4A team title, while 10 area athletes carry their individual goals into the Hill Country, where only the best are gathering.

The biggest entourage will come from Pampa, where the Lady Harvesters have enough qualifiers for a legitimate shot at the state championship. Sandee Stokes, Tanya Lidy, Andrea Hopkins, Schivonne Parker, Courtney Brown, Laquita Brown and Yolanda Brown all earned berths, some in more than one event, and it is with them that Pampa's hopes ride.

Stokes will start Pampa off when she competes in the long jump at 9 a.m. Friday, and Hopkins will follow in the discus at 3 p.m. That will do it for Pampa until Friday night, when action moves to the track and the Lady Harvesters' strength.

Courtney Brown is a qualifier in the 100-meter dash and Lidy qualified in the 200, where she won a silver medal at the state meet last year.

Pampa's strengths are in the relays, and with all three qualified in the meet it's there that the Lady Harvesters' state championship hopes rest. Unlike individual events, teams are awarded double points in the relays, and strong showings there are essential to Pampa's chances. The Lady Harvesters could conceivably pick up 60 points by winning the three relays, and totals like that are close to what it takes to win the team championship.

The 400-meter relay team of Stokes, Lidy, Yolanda and Courtney Brown has what according to USA Today is the best high school girls time in the nation this year at 47.7, and won the event at district and regional.

The 800-meter relay squad — Stokes, Parker, and Laquita and Courtney Brown — also won district and regional, and has an area-best time of .

Fort Stockton beat Pampa's 1600-meter relay at regional, but it pushed the second-place Lady Harvesters to their season-best in the event. Stokes, Parker, Laquita Brown and either Courtney Brown or Lidy will have to have lifetime bests for Pampa to win the event, but they have a shot.

Pampa's girls will run their first race at 7:30 p.m. Friday, and their last race is scheduled for 10 p.m.

Four area athletes will compete in Class 1A field events Friday, with six others (including two from Canadian in Class 3A) scheduled to run Saturday afternoon.

Miami's Lanece Lisenby, who was the star of the Class 1A Region I meet with three gold-medal performances, competes in the long jump at 9 a.m. Friday and is one of the meet favorites with a season-best of 18-7.

Lisenby will be back in the pits at 3 p.m. Friday for the triple jump, and with a best of 3-, she is again one of the favorites.

At 11 a.m. Friday Wheeler's Dicky Salyer competes in the Class 1A boys long jump. Salyer, one of three Mustangs making the trip, leaped 21-10 1/4 to win the regional meet two weeks ago in Levelland.

At 1 p.m. Friday, Robbie Kuehler will become the first of four Groom athletes to compete when she throws in the Class 1A girls discus. Kuehler threw 106-10 and finished second behind Sudan's Joann Wooley to qualify.

Wheeler's Richard Smith, who threw the discus over 165 feet at a regional qualifiers meet to set a school record, threw 147-10 at regional to qualify in the Class 1A boys discus throw, which starts at 5 p.m. Friday.

Class 1A and Class 3A track events will be held beginning at 12:30 p.m. Saturday, and six area athletes will be involved.

Groom's Darron Eschle, who was joined in qualifying by his sister Erin, will be in the Class 1A 800-meter run at 12:50 p.m. Saturday. Eschle ran a gutsy 2:02.91 at regionals, finishing a close second coming from behind to beat Dawson's Rudy Rodriguez for the state berth.

Canadian's Kimberly McEntire finished second in the state cross-country meet this fall, and she'll be going for another state medal in the Class 3A girls 800-meter run. McEntire, only a freshman, ran a 2:18.0 at the regional meet to qualify.

Wendi Burns is the defending state Class 1A girls 100-meter hurdles champion, but her father coach Jackie Burns' move from Claude to Canadian finds Burns in the Class 3A division this year, but back at the state meet. Burns won the regional meet with a time of 14.29, and will be one of the favorites when the gun goes off at 1:10 p.m. Saturday.

Miami's Lisenby will be back in action when the gun sounds on the Class 1A girls 400-meter dash at 2:10 p.m. The smooth-striding Lisenby easily won the regional meet with a time of 59.01, and with luck on Friday she could go into the race looking for her third gold medal.

At 2:30 p.m. Wheeler's Danny Benefield will run in the Class 1A boys 300-meter intermediate hurdles, an event in which Benefield holds his school record. Benefield's regional time of 40.52 was good for second place, but Benefield has gone under 40 this season.

Groom's second state-qualifying Eschle, junior Erin, runs in the Class 1A girls 200-meter dash at 2:45 p.m. Eschle ran a personal-best 26.71 to finish second at regionals, only a hundredth of a second faster than Sanderson's Shanna Black, whom Eschle edged at the tape and knocked from the state meet.

Groom's Jowannah Ruthardt will be the final area runner to compete as she goes in the Class 1A girls 1600-meter run at 3:05 p.m. Ruthardt had never run the 1600 before this spring, but since her first meet she's lowered her time more than 15 seconds. It took a come-from-behind effort in the last 80 meters at regional for Ruthardt to make it to Austin, as she ran a lifetime best 5:47.67 and passed Nazareth's Debbie Schmucker for second place.

Rockets looking over their shoulders

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Houston wrested the home-court advantage from the Los Angeles Lakers, but the Rockets are looking over their shoulders as they move to the comfort of the Summit for Game 3 of Western Conference championship series.

"This should give us some inspiration," said Houston's Ralph Sampson. "But the Lakers are the champions. They will come out ready. They've been here before. These are only my second playoffs. They can take the home-court advantage right back."

The Rockets relied on tenacious defense, including 12 blocked shots, to defeat the defending NBA champion Lakers 112-102 Tuesday night at the Forum and even the series at 1-1.

"One time I thought they dropped someone out of the ceiling to block my shot. It was a rough night," Laker center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar said after the loss. Abdul-Jabbar, 39, made only nine of his 26 field goal attempts Tuesday night. Several of his shots were blocked.

The split at the Forum was just what Houston wanted.

"This game gives us a lot of confidence going back to Houston because we can't lose there," said Olajuwon, who had 22 points, 13 rebounds and six blocked shots. "We'll do whatever it takes to win. It's going to be tough, but I know we can do it."

The Lakers, who are trying to become the first NBA team to repeat as champions in 17 years, won the opener of the best-of-seven series 119-107 last Saturday.

The action shifts to the Summit in Houston for the third game Friday night and the fourth game Sunday. The Rockets are 41-5 at home this season, including a perfect 5-0 during the playoffs.

"They definitely have the advantage now," Lakers forward Kurt Rambis said. "We have to get at least one win down there (at Houston). Our work is definitely cut out for us."

Sampson had 24 points, 16 rebounds and five blocked shots and Rodney McCray, the team's other frontcourt starter, had 16 points, six rebounds and 11 assists.

In addition, guard Lewis Lloyd, who scored only four points in the first game of the series, had 24 points.

BEST ALL-AROUND ATHLETES — Mike Lopez (left) and Gary Jernigan were named the best all-around male athletes at Pampa High School this year. They were honored during the recent PHS Athletic Awards Banquet.

Optimist roundup

Keyes defeated Dunlap, 18-14, and Dean's blanked Dyers BBQ, 19-0, in Bambino Babe Ruth League action Tuesday at Optimist Park.

Chester Jackson was the winning pitcher for Keyes while Jeff Cloud picked up the save. They combined to pitch a five-hitter.

Leading hitters for Keyes were Monty Waters, two doubles; Jesse Hernandez, double and triple; and Chester Jackson, single and double.

Troy Black led Dunlap with a single, double and triple. Tim Proctor had two doubles and Buddy Plunk, a single.

Dyers managed only one hit off Dean's pitcher Larry Reed in the other Babe Ruth game. Reed struck out eight and walked two.

John Donnelly was Dean's leading hitter with two doubles and a single. Joseph Yurich and Todd Mason each had a double while Brandon Brashers added a single.

Dyers pitcher Brandon Wells had his team's only hit, a double.

In girls' little league softball action Monday, Team One defeated Williams Appliance, 6-4, and Team Five downed Moose Lodge, 15-7.

Joley Briggs was the winning pitcher for Team One. She struck out six walked eleven and allowed seven hits. Jenny Everson allowed only six hits in a losing effort while striking out eight and walking fourteen.

Team One's leading hitters were Leigh All Lindsey, three singles and one RBI; Carly Downs, two singles and one RBI; and Jennifer Humphrey, one single and one RBI. Leading hitters for Williams Appliance were Carrie Dewey, two singles, one double and one RBI; Julie Forman, single and double, and Shonda Carroll, two singles.

Tabitha King had three doubles, a single and three RBI to lead Team Five to victory over Moose Lodge. Maria Childers had two singles, a double, and one RBI, while Amanda Miller had two singles, a double, and one RBI.

Leading hitters for Moose Lodge were Tammye Martindale, two singles and one RBI; Heidi Phetteplace, single and RBI, and Mish Thomas, a single.

In girls' action Tuesday, Pulse Bros. downed Team Five, 14-11, and Randy's Food walloped Williams Appliance, 30-2.

Pulse was led at the plate by Angie Brewer with two singles, a double, and three RBI. Diana Pulse had three singles and an RBI and Shonda Harper had three singles.

Winning pitcher was Shonda Harper, who struck out three, walked six, and allowed 13 hits.

Leading hitters for Team Five were Amanda Miller, single, triple, and two RBI; Tabitha King, two doubles and one RBI; Maria Childers, two singles and one RBI.

Kacy Bowers allowed just five hits in Randy's lopsided win over Williams Appliance. She struck one one and walked six.

T. Cambern had five singles and three RBI to lead Randy's hitting attack. Alana Ryan had four singles and two RBI. Brovice Hanby had two singles and one RBI.

Jenny Everson led Williams with two singles. Shonda Carroll and Shawn Hunter had a single and RBI each.

Andretti continues uphill struggle

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Mario Andretti continues to fight an uphill battle this month in his quest for a long-sought second Indianapolis 500 victory.

The 1969 Indy winner, now 46, suffered a gash on his left foot, bruised knees and another dose of Indy frustration when he crashed early in Wednesday's practice session at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

Andretti quickly scrambled from the Lola, which had the nose turned off and a destroyed right-front suspension, but his hopes for a good starting spot in the May 25 race may have been dashed by the incident.

Andretti qualified Saturday in the middle of the second row with a four-lap, 10-mile average of 212.300 mph. He was working on his race-day setup and had just done a lap above 205 mph when the accident occurred.

If the car cannot be repaired, Andretti apparently would replace it with his backup. That would mean he'd have to start from the back of the 33-car field.

The final two-hour practice session will be next Thursday.

Andretti must pass a mandatory examination today at the track by Dr. Henry Bock, the Speedway medical director, before being allowed to drive again. He is not expected to return to practice until Saturday.

In 1982, Andretti won the pole position for the Michigan 500 but then crashed in the final practice session of the week. The first car was destroyed and Andretti had to start his backup 33rd. He came on to finish second.

Andretti's crash on Wednesday marked the fifth time a car had hit the wall in the 12 days since the Speedway opened for practice.

Jim Crawford of Scotland, who had a minor accident after getting his ride a week ago, was by far the fastest driver on the track Wednesday with a lap of 214.592 mph.

A.J. Foyt, who qualified last weekend, had one of his backups up to 209.497.

Peete eyes Colonial win

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP)—With the PGA money winning lead within his grasp, a confident Calvin Peete opened his bid today for a third 1986 title in the $600,000 Colonial National Invitation golf tournament.

"I don't play for second anymore," he said as a select field of 102 lined up for the 72-hole tournament across the rose-ringed, par 70 Colonial Country Club course and its 7,108 yards of Trinity River treachery.

Despite a brief and bleak history at Colonial, Peete, only one of three double winners this year, sounded anything but awed by the tradition of a course nicknamed "Hogan's Alley" after five-time winner Ben Hogan.

"Of course I feel I can win," he said in response to a question. "I feel I can win any tournament I play in."

The first prize check of $108,000 would propel him ahead of leader Andy Bean and runner-up Greg Norman, both of whom are taking the week off.

"I left the tour on a good note despite the playoff loss," Peete said. "I played as well as I could and felt pretty good."

Peete and Strange agreed Wednesday that the key to scoring well here is escaping the first five holes with heart, mind, body, soul and scorecard intact.

"If you get by them in good shape and can keep it in play, you've got a chance to make some birdies and score well," said Peete, labeling Colonial a "shotmaker's course."

Wellington sets softball tournament

The Wellington Men's Benefit Softball Tournament will be held June 13-15 in Wellington. The tournament is sponsored by the Wellington Booster Club.

Entry fee is $85. Entry fee is June 10. The first 16 teams will be accepted.

"You can't scrape it around and expect to score... Colonial is a course you have to be careful with, but it's one you don't have to shoot the lights out to win."

Actually, Corey Pavin shot the lights out a year ago under perfect playing conditions, posting a record 266, 14-under par. But 12 times in its 40 year history par or above has been good enough to win.

Fuzzy Zoeller, the 1981 Colonial champ, ruled as the pre-tournament favorite, nudging Tom Kite.

Wellington sets softball tournament

Team and individual trophies will be presented in the top three places. A most valuable player award will also be presented.

Interested persons may call Robert Howell at 447-2911 or Ken Teeks at 447-2982.

Dawson sparks Expos past Braves

A few years and a few knee operations ago, Andre Dawson was considered one of the best all-around players in major-league baseball. There are still games, though, where Dawson shows what made him so good.

On Wednesday night, Dawson blended the five basic skills for an everyday player — hitting for average, hitting for power, running, throwing and fielding — in leading the Montreal Expos over the Atlanta Braves 3-2.

Dawson homered and stole home in giving Montreal the lead, and threw out two runners from right field and made a shoestring catch to keep the Expos ahead.

"It was certainly Dawson's night," Atlanta Manager Chuck Tanner said. "He put on quite a show out there."

In other National League games, Houston beat New York 6-2, Philadelphia rallied past Cincinnati 8-6, San Diego bopped Pittsburgh 10-4, San Francisco trounced Chicago 11-3 and Los Angeles downed St. Louis 8-3.

Dawson, 31, in his usual manner, steered away from his performance and instead directed attention to the Expos' 10th victory in the last 11 games.

"It takes an effort from everybody to win this game. I'm just one-ninth of the team out there," Dawson said. "I'm just trying to do my part to contribute."

Astros 6, Mets 2
Bob Knepper tossed a five-hitter and became the first seven-game winner in the major leagues as Houston beat New York at the Astrodome.
Knepper, 7-1, struck out five and walked one in his third complete game of the season. Knepper avenged his only loss of the season, which came May 6 in New York.

Kevin Bass rapped three hits, including two doubles, and drove in two runs in helping pin the loss on Bob Ojeda, 5-1.

Phillies 8, Reds 6

Mike Schmidt, out of the starting lineup because of a cracked rib, hit a pinch-single with the bases loaded in the eighth inning, triggering a four-run rally that led host Philadelphia past Cincinnati.

The Phillies trailed 6-4 in the eighth before loading the bases on a single by Steve Jeltz and a pair of walks by John Franco, 0-1.

Ted Power relieved Franco, and Schmidt hit a drive off the center-field fence. The runners held up waiting to see if Eddie Milner would catch the ball, but second baseman Ron Oester's wild throw on the relay cleared the bases and allowed Schmidt to reach third. Juan Samuel hit a sacrifice fly that drove in Schmidt.

Dodgers 8, Cardinals 3

Fernando Valenzuela pitched five-hit ball for eight-plus innings and delivered a pair of singles as Los Angeles pounded out 17 hits in beating error-plagued St. Louis.

Rangers pounded by Tigers, 8-2

DETROIT (AP)—Detroit slugger Darrell Evans and Manager Sparky Anderson continue to have their little disagreements.

Even after Detroit's 8-2 victory Wednesday night over the Texas Rangers, about the only thing they could agree on was that it was a whole lot better than losing — something the once-proud Tigers have done with surprising regularity this season.

Evans, who hit one of three Detroit home runs in the triumph, said the Tigers are an emotional ballclub.

"Something like this could turn us on very fast," Evans said. "We were talking about this just yesterday. This team needs two or three really good ballgames and we can maybe accomplish things."

"We can put losses out of our minds. We're good at that. We got home at 4:30 a.m. from Kansas City but when we got here, we were happy today."

Anderson also clashed with Evans during spring training when he decided the 1985 home run king would become a platoon player this year, but Evans won that battle and plays almost every day.

This time, Anderson doesn't see the Tigers as an emotional team at all.

The difference is that both Evans and Anderson smile when the Tigers win.

"If anything, I'd say this club is low key," Anderson said. "You don't see much yelling and screaming — except when Kirk Gibson's around."

Gibson is out for at least three more weeks with a badly sprained ankle.

Texas Manager Bobby Valentine, who has watched his resurgent young ballclub drop two straight and fall from first place in the American League West, said his players were just plain tired.

Valentine also gave a lot of credit to Detroit right-hander Walt Terrell, who tossed a five-hitter enroute to his third complete game of the season.

"Walt Terrell is a great competitor," Valentine said. "He threw good enough to win."

Texas slugger Larry Parrish said Terrell mixed his pitches well and kept the ball on the outside of the plate, never giving the Rangers good pitches to hit.

"We didn't swing the bat very well," Parrish said. "We've hit a dead period the last couple of nights."

Terrell, 4-1, got home run help from Chet Lemon, Lance Parrish and Evans.

"I think I had been trying to overthrow the baseball," Terrell said. "I talked it over with (pitching coach) Billy Muffett. He told me I should take a shorter stride."

Terrell was knocked out after only two innings last Friday in Minnesota, having yielded five runs on six hits. The next day he volunteered for relief duty — his first after 40 games as a starter for Detroit. In his relief appearance, Terrell gave up only one hit in two innings.

"I used those two innings to practice the shorter stride," Terrell explained. "Muffy asked me afterward if I wanted to throw on the side. I said 'no' I just wanted to keep in my mind what I did those two innings of relief."

Terrell walked one and struck out two. Detroit shortstop Alan Trammell, second baseman Lou Whitaker and first baseman Dave Bergman all made spectacular defensive plays to help keep Terrell out of danger.

He lost his shutout in the ninth when Geno Petralli singled, moved to second on a groundout and scored as second baseman Tom Brookens booted Curtis Wilkerson's grounder with one out. George Wright then doubled in another run.
