Pampa native buys failed Borger bank

From Staff and Wire Reports
BORGER—The First National Bank of Borger is reopening under the direction of a company owned by a Pampa native after the institution was declared insolvent and its doors padlocked Thursday.

A midafternoon order to close the bank was signed by deputy Comptroller of the Currency Robert J. Hermann and was posted at 2:30 p.m., prompting an extra edition of the Borger newspaper for the first time in 23 years. The Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. was declared receiver.

Later Thursday, the FDIC announced the bank would reopen today under the name of First National Bank of Borger, a newly chartered national bank subsidiary of First Borger Bancshares Inc. of Lubbock. The company is owned by Pampa native and Dallas financier Gerald J. Ford, the son of Coyle Ford of Pampa.

Ford owns 25 banks in Texas, including institutions in Lubbock, Plainview and Dumas. He could not be reached for comment at either his Dallas or Lubbock office this morning.

The bank failure is the 58th nationwide this year and the ninth in Texas, federal officials said. Of the 58 failures, 26 have been among banks with at least 25 percent of their assets in agricultural loans.

It is also the fifth bank to close in the Panhandle since 1982 and the second this year, following the First State Bank of Memphis, which shut down March 27. Other closures include banks in McLean, Darrouzzett and Amarillo.

The new bank will assume about $68.1 million in 9,000 deposit accounts, has agreed to pay the FDIC a purchase premium of $200,000 and will purchase certain loans and other assets for $48.3 million, the FDIC said.

The FDIC will advance $22.5 million to the assuming bank and will retain assets of the failed bank with a book value of $30.9 million, officials of the agency said.

The First National Bank, chartered in 1948, had approximately $80 million in assets and $7 million in primary capital as of May 30, Herrmann said.

At the time of the reorganization, bank vice president Tom Dragoo told the Borger News-Herald that the bank was having difficulty with agriculture loans and also with some oil and gas loans.

The local economy is heavily dependent on agriculture and oil and gas.

The bank was one of four lending institutions in Borger, a city of 16,000.

Pampa bankers reacted to the Borger bank's situation with a mixture of surprise and sorrow.

Citizens Bank and Trust President Robert Wilson, who moved here earlier this year from Borger where he was president of Panhandle Bank and Trust, said he there had been rumors the bank was in trouble but no concrete evidence.

"I hate it like everyone else that any bank has some difficulties," he said. "But thank goodness it's been purchased and its doors are open for business today."

Wilson said he thinks most of the bank's problems were brought on by slow economic conditions in the agriculture and oil and gas industries, problems that were beyond the bank's control. He said banking officials had stated earlier that sluggish economic conditions were a problem.

First National Bank of Pampa President Floyd Watson called the situation "just one of those sad things" but added that Ford is highly qualified to run the bank. He said he was surprised and did not know all the circumstances surrounding the bank's closing and re-opening.

National Bank of Commerce President Steve McCullough said he was not surprised because of rumors that had been circulating about the bank's problems. He blamed the situation on long-term economic problems in the Borger area.

"We were not surprised at the closing but we're extremely delighted for Borger and the Panhandle to see it re-opened by a group that has an excellent reputation in the banking industry," he said.

NEW AMBULANCE—Lefors Volunteer Ambulance chief Eddie Joe Roberts shows off the interior of the service's new ambulance, a "mini module" van which features a stretcher, equipment storage cases and a cushion. Roberts says the vehicle cost $36,272, but the service will need about $200,000 to equip it. The service also wants to add to the fire station to accommodate the new unit. A garage sale to help finance the improvements will be held at the fire station June 28 and 29. (Staff Photo by Cathy Spaulding)

Comptroller predicts hard times until 1988

By GARTH JONES
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN — Hard times for many Texans will not begin to improve until 1988, says Comptroller Bob Bullock.

Bullock's latest economic forecast Thursday said the state's economy will continue to decline during the rest of this year and 1987.

Whether it starts up again in 1988 depends largely on stabilization of oil prices, Bullock said.

"If oil and gas prices and drilling continue to decline after 1988, the Texas economy would remain sluggish until the end of the decade," Bullock said.

Bullock said his overall forecast is that Texas will underperform the national economy through 1987 as it has done since 1984.

"In 1988, Texas will catch up to the U.S. economic growth and begin to outperform the national economy as oil prices stabilize and drilling activity picks up,"

Bullock predicted.

Bullock's forecast said Texas will lose 55,000 nonfarm jobs this year — fewer than in 1983 when falling oil prices cost the state 72,000 jobs.

He said the decline in jobs would be confined to 1986, but there would be little improvement in 1987.

Through 1988, Texas goods-producing industries — mining, manufacturing and construction lumped together — will lose 43,000 jobs.

In 1986, the energy industry will lose 46,700 jobs.

"Unlike job losses in 1983, highly paid, white-collar professionals will account for a big portion of these losses," the comptroller said.

Manufacturing will lose 33,300 jobs in 1986, the forecast said, then continue to grow at a rate of two to three percent in 1987 and 1988.

"Overbuilding and a slowdown in population and income growth will continue to depress residential and non-residential construction in Texas," the comptroller said.

Construction employment is expected to decline by 4,200 jobs in 1986 and by 8,100 in 1987. A moderate 6 percent rebound is expected in 1988.

"Since the end of the recession in 1983, about 87 percent of the new jobs in Texas have been created by government and service-providing businesses," Bullock said. "The recession of 1986 will accelerate that shift."

Bullock estimated the people moving out of Texas will exceed by 6,500 the number moving into the state in 1986. He said this exodus will continue through 1988 as they go to other states to look for jobs.

The comptroller predicted Texas unemployment will increase from 7.5 percent in the first quarter of 1986 to 8.4 percent in the first quarter of 1987. He predicted a decline to 6.8 percent in 1988.

More cyanide-tainted capsules found

SEATTLE (AP) — As many as six deaths are being reinvestigated because of the deaths of two people from cyanide poisoning and the discovery of three bottles of tainted Extra-Strength Excedrin capsules, authorities said.

One of the two who died, Bruce Nickell, 52, was initially thought to have died on June 5 of natural causes, but toxicology tests revealed the cause as cyanide poisoning. Dr. Corinne Fligner of the King County medical examiner's office said Thursday.

Because of that, she said, medical examiners would reopen the cases of the other deaths to see if there was any connection.

He and the other victim, Elizabeth Sue Snow, 40, who died last week, lived about five miles from each other in suburban Auburn and could have shopped at the same store, said police spokesman Jim Detrick of the Auburn Police Department.

Cyanide-tainted capsules of Excedrin were found in bottles recovered from their homes.

Tests on Thursday revealed cyanide-tainted capsules in a bottle sent to investigators earlier by a food store in Kent, a few miles away, said Kent police Lt. Dave Everett.

In announcing that Nickell died of cyanide poisoning, Ms. Fligner said, "We assume that he took Extra-Strength Excedrin that had cyanide in it," she said. "But I can't say that because I wasn't there and I didn't see what he swallowed. We assume the two things are related."

The Food and Drug Administration on Wednesday warned against the use of the Extra-

Strength Excedrin capsules, and manufacturer Bristol-Myers followed that with a nationwide recall of the medication.

Of the 56 capsules left inside the 60-capsule bottle in Ms. Snow's home, three contained significant amounts of cyanide, while one cyanide-laced capsule was found in the bottle from the Nickell home, FDA officials said.

The bottles are being examined for fingerprints and evidence of tampering in an FBI laboratory, said FBI special agent Don Tokunaga.

Kennedy, Cranston lead fight

Democrats urge Senate to swallow sanctions pill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Leading Senate Democrats are urging the Republican-dominated chamber to follow the lead of the House and quickly pass legislation requiring the total withdrawal of U.S. business interests from South Africa.

And they said the House-passed measure, far from being the poison pill claimed by House Republicans, will place the Senate under enormous pressure to adopt its own tough sanctions legislation.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and two other senators introduced legislation identical to the total divestment, total trade embargo bill that was sponsored in the Democratic-led House by Rep. Ronald Dellums, D-Calif.

Fourteen senators urged Senate Foreign Relations Committee Chairman Richard Lugar, R-Ind., to hold immediate hearings on sanctions legislation before Congress leaves for its two-week Independence Day recess.

But Lugar said he would hold to his original schedule with three days of hearings beginning July 22, and said Secretary of State George Shultz had asked to be the leadoff witness to restate the Reagan administration's strong objections to any sanctions legislation.

Kennedy said he and Sens. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., and Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., would place the House-passed bill directly on the Senate calendar "to ensure that Senate committee consideration does not become a pretext to bury the legislation."

"Before Congress adjourns this year, I intend to see that the Senate votes on the bill enacted by the House," Kennedy said.

Cranston said the unrecorded vote for the Dellums bill was "a shot against apartheid heard around the world."

"The cynical among us have already concluded that the Senate will do nothing," Cranston said. "But I am hopeful. I refuse to accept the harsh judgment that this distinguished body will not act on one of the great moral issues of our time."

House opponents of the sanctions legislation say they permitted the Dellums bill to pass without opposition because they believed it was so tough it would cause the Senate to kill all similar measures.

They said that a milder and more measured sanctions bill would otherwise have been passed and the Senate would have been under strong pressure in an election year to approve it.

Rep. Mark Siljander, R-Mich., said that by voting out a substitute bill calling for total divestment, "sanctions are dead."

"I do not expect the Senate to come up with a bill dealing with South Africa," Siljander said.

Sen. Gary Hart, D-Colo., referring to the House-passed legislation, agreed that "it would be very difficult to get a bill that strong through the Senate."

"But senators will have to respond not to what the House did but to what the South African government is doing," Hart said. "That is what they are going to have to account for."

And several senators said the House action will make it more difficult than before for the Senate to do nothing.

"It puts pressure on us to move," said Sen. Joseph Biden, D-Del. "The whole world's going this way soon. And the sooner we get there the better."

The House bill would require total U.S. divestment from South Africa within 180 days of enactment and impose a trade embargo against that country except for key minerals needed by the U.S. defense industry.

The Reagan administration strongly opposes attempts to impose sanctions on South Africa by law, claiming such a step would cause the United States to lose all influence with the South African government.

Plunge in consumer prices came to an end last month

WASHINGTON (AP) — The longest, sharpest consumer price plunge in almost four decades ended last month as rebounding gasoline prices pushed consumers' costs up 0.2 percent, the government said today.

Despite the May gain, the first in four months, most analysts still expect prices for all of 1986 to rise no more than 2 percent, virtually half of last year's 3.8 percent gain.

Indeed, even with last month's increase, prices so far this year have declined at an annual rate of 1.4 percent.

By far, most of the increase in May was accounted for by a 2.5 percent hike in gasoline prices, which had fallen 5.9 percent in February, 12 percent in March and 11.3 percent in April.

Food prices also rose, by only 0.4 percent after gains on 0.1 percent in March and 0.3 percent in April.

Grocery store prices themselves rose 0.4 percent, while restaurant meal costs gained 0.5 percent.

The largest food price gain was posted for fruit and vegetables, which saw a 1.9 percent increase. But that was down from a 3.6 percent hike in April.

Energy prices other than gasoline showed continued declines, with heating oil and coal prices falling 4.4 percent. Natural gas and electricity prices fell 0.6 percent.

The overall May increase in the Labor Department calculation amounted to an annual rate of 2.2 percent.

As of May, the Consumer Price Index stood at 326.3, meaning that a market basket of goods that cost $10 in the base year of 1967 cost $32.63 in May — or 50 cents above what the same basket would have cost in May 1985.

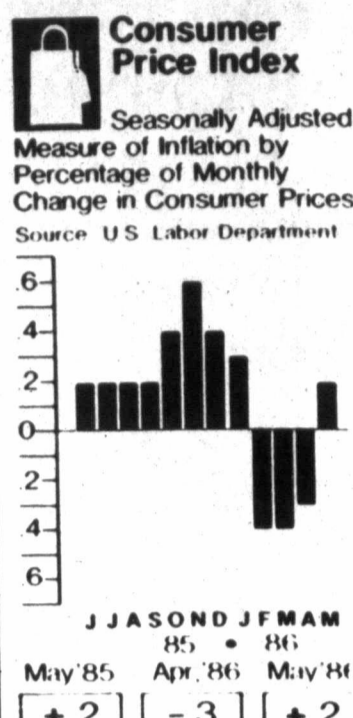

The index itself is not adjusted by the government to remove the affect of seasonal factors, whereas other key figures in the report — including the monthly percentage change in all categories — do reflect such adjustments.

Both private and government analysts said price declines appear to have run their course.

The turnaround had been evident in last week's wholesale price report, which said that costs one stop short of the retail level had risen 0.6 percent in May, the first hike in that computation this year.

Many analysts suggest the rate of inflation at the consumer level will return to the range of 3.5 percent to 4.0 percent, where it was before the oil price dip.

Under existing law, Social Security cost-of-living increases are suspended if the CPI drops below 3 percent — as measured by the change from September of one year to September of the next.

If this happens, Congress seems likely to vote to waive the 3 percent threshold. And President Reagan's budget director, James C. Miller III, said recently the administration won't fight such an effort.

High Soviet official detained

WASHINGTON (AP) — The FBI said today it had detained the Soviet Union's highest-ranking military officer at its Washington embassy, accusing him of picking up classified documents left by an Air Force officer working with the FBI.

Col. Vladimir M. Izmaylov, 43, the Soviet air attache, was arrested Thursday night in nearby Fort Washington, Md., the FBI said.

He was later released to Soviet officials after they "verified Izmaylov's diplomatic immunity status," the FBI said in a news release.

The State Department is considering possible further steps, the release said.

It quoted FBI Director William Webster as saying the U.S. government will not tolerate those who would steal American secrets "and while those individuals may hold diplomatic immunity, that will not stop the FBI from investigating and pursuing all legal avenues available when the situation warrants such action."

A State Department official, speaking only on condition he not be identified, said the normal procedure when a diplomat is caught "red-handed" is to order his expulsion. However, no decision has been made in the current case, he said.

In addition to his position as air attache, the Soviet colonel "is also a known Soviet military intelligence officer," the FBI said.

Its announcement said that for several months Izmaylov had been meeting with the Air Force officer, who has access to classified information, trying to "arrange for him to function as a clandestine agent of the Soviet Union and to obtain via that officer classified United States defense documents."

However, the U.S. officer, who was not identified, was working with both the U.S. Air Force office of special investigations and the FBI, the release said.

As part of the investigation, on Wednesday the U.S. officer "deposited the classified documents at the prescribed location per the instruction of Izmaylov," who had promised him $20,000, the FBI said.

After Izmaylov was detained at the site, he was taken to the FBI's Washington field office, the agency said. The FBI notified State Department officials, who in turn called the Soviet Embassy.

Izmaylov was first assigned to the Soviet military office, an adjunct of the Soviet Embassy in Washington, as assistant air attache from late 1976 through 1980. His current tour of duty began in October 1984.

White approves funds for judicial probe

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Gov. Mark White has approved a criminal justice grant of $78,000 for an investigation into alleged misconduct on the Texas Supreme Court, his press secretary has confirmed.

Ann Arnold said Thursday White approved the grant, but she said his busy schedule prevented him from commenting on his decision.

The grant money was requested by the Texas Commission on Judicial Conduct.

"During the past three months, reports alleging misconduct within the Texas Supreme Court and the courts of appeals have caused an immediate increase in the commission's workload," the commission's grant application

Panel okays plat

In a very brief meeting Thursday afternoon, members of the Planning and Zoning Commission recommended approval of the preliminary and final plat for an area in the southwest section of the city.

The plat, which now goes to the Pampa City Commission for its approval, is for the Meador Sub-division Unit I.

The area is located between Ripley and Market streets north of the railroad tracks and west of Sumner over to Nelson.

Zoning board chairman Ralph Milliron indicated the commission may be considering a request later to change the zoning for the area to Commercial District.

An agenda item concerning the preliminary and final plat of Revised Kentucky Acres Unit III had been retracted, Milliron said, requiring no action by the board.

said. "The grant will enable the commission to initiate several major investigations which involve a number of judges and carry on its work without the development of a serious backlog," the application said.

Other documents in the grant application indicate the money will be used for court reporters, travel expenses and attorneys, Ms. Arnold said.

Patient dies after radiation exposure, officials report

TYLER, Texas (AP)—An East Texas Cancer Center patient died three weeks after excessive radiation exposure from a cancer treatment machine that malfunctioned, officials disclosed.

Another patient was also overexposed during radiation therapy the previous month and use of the Therac 25 linear equipment has been discontinued, said Dick Higginbotham, East Texas Cancer Center administrator.

A patient was injured at the Kennestone Regional Oncology Center in Marietta, Ga., a Georgia attorney says.

In Marietta, an identical Therac 25 at the Kennestone center unleashed a huge radiation dose to the chest of Katie Yarborough, 61, who was undergoing treatment for breast cancer, according to attorney Bill Bird of Atlanta.

Bird said the woman immediately felt pain and irritation below the collarbone in a spot that over several weeks developed into a deep, discolored hole "between the size of a quarter and a half-dollar."

Like the others, Yarborough suffered nerve damage — the radiation injury destroyed a vital nerve center and robbed her of the use of her left arm, Bird said.

"It was certainly not like anything any of us have ever seen," said Dr. Kenneth Haile, director of radiation oncology of the Kennestone radiation facility. "We had never seen an overtreatment of that magnitude."

The incident was not reported because no problem with the machine could be detected, said Haile.

"By duplicating the malfunction, the East Texas Cancer Center determined that the cause of the malfunction was in the computer software. It involves an unusual occurrence that can only be replicated by a certain timing and sequence of entries," Higginbotham said Thursday.

The 33-year-old patient who died "was suffering from several life-threatening diseases," according to a news release from the East Texas Hospital Foundation, parent organization of the cancer center.

"The man's reaction led us to believe that he had been electrically shocked (in March), so we began investigating the machine to determine how it could have delivered an electrical shock," Higginbotham said.

The second incident occurred in April when a 66-year-old man was treated in the ear area and had a similar experience with the radiation therapy. The patient was later treated at a Dallas hospital, the release said.

Field work for an investigation of the incidents by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration has been completed and forwarded to Washington, D.C., Theodore Rotto of the Dallas FDA said.

Rotto said findings of the investigation are confidential.

The Texas Bureau of Radiation Control is also investigating the incidents, the release said.

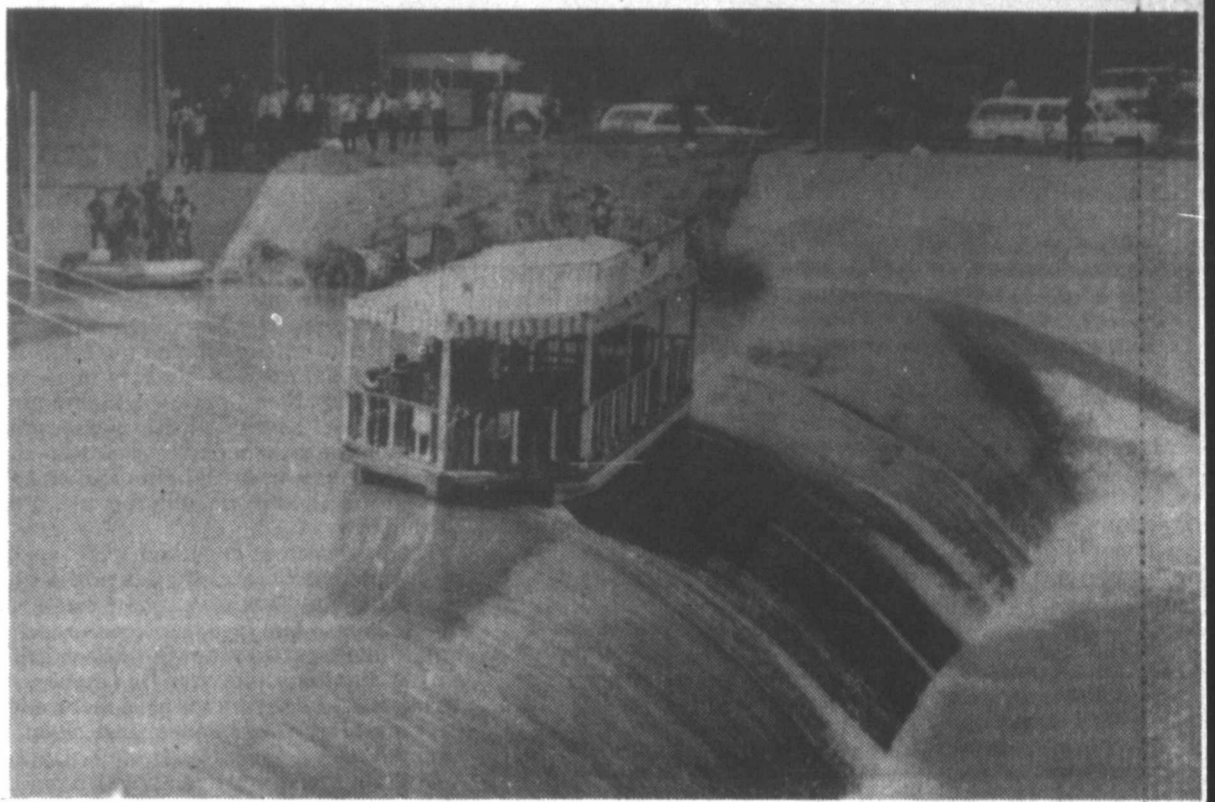

ETHF President Elmer Ellis said the decision to announce the incidents came after a report by Atomic Energy of Canada LTD, the Canadian-government owned manufacturer of the equipment, to the FDA was made public in the past week.

The two patients involved knew about the overexposure, and it was discussed with them, Ellis said.

Other patients treated on the Therac 25 were not notified of the incidents, Ellis said.

When the machine malfunctions, it indicates that there has been an error and immediately shuts itself off, said Ellis. That only happened in the two incidents, so the cancer center is confident that the excessive radiation was confined to the two cases.

In 1984 it was reported that the equipment cost $902,400. About 460 people have been treated with the equipment.

PADDLEBOAT RESCUE — A paddleboat hangs precariously over a Trinity River dam in Fort Worth Thursday after its engine failed and was swept by the currents to the dam while carrying a sightseeing group of 14 children and four adults. No one was injured in the mishap. (AP Laserphoto)

18 on church field trip rescued on edge of Trinity River dam

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP)—For 18 church members, a field trip proved more adventurous than planned when they had to be pulled to safety from a party boat that teetered precariously on the edge of a dam on the rain-swollen Trinity River.

"Gee, this is fun," Palmer Trillson, 5, one of the first to be rescued, told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram Thursday. "It was exciting," he said as a firefighter carried him to a waiting bus.

Fire department rescue workers pulled the 14 children and four adults from a paddle boat that was dangerously close to plunging off the dam, about a 15-foot drop, officials said.

"They're all safe," said Fire Department spokesman T.R. Ryan. "Not a one of them are hurt."

The field trip began after 10 a.m. when the group boarded the "Luv Boat" to ride about one mile down the river.

The children were rescued by noon as a crowd of about 100 had gathered alongside the river to watch.

The incident occurred about two miles west of downtown Fort Worth near the intersection of University Avenue and Interstate 30.

The boat, an excursion craft operated by Forest Park concessionaire River Ridge Family Fun Center, had turned sideways against the current and was swept toward the dam after its engine malfunctioned, officials said.

Firefighter R.T. Forrester swam to the boat to attach four ropes to keep it from going over the dam. Officials called the situation extremely dangerous.

The river is about eight feet deep below the dam, and the river is high and flowing rapidly because of recent rains.

Ryan said officials had not determined how they would retrieve the boat.

"There was a lot of danger of the boat going over," Ryan said.

Execution set despite a late alibi from 'mystery witness'

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP)—The "Spiderman" will not escape execution by injection because of the sudden appearance of alibi testimony from a mystery witness, a state district judge has ruled.

District Judge Mike Machado set July 21 as the execution date for George "Spiderman" Cordova although the condemned man's lawyer said he had a witness who came forward seven years later with testimony that would give Cordova an alibi.

Cordova was sentenced to death in connection with the Aug. 4, 1979 beating-killing of Joey Hernandez, 19, in Espada Park.

"The man stated that Cordova was not at the scene of the crime and named five people who were present," defense lawyer Don Killingsworth told Machado during a hearing Wednesday.

Killingsworth said the witness came forward nearly seven years later because "I think his conscience made him."

Machado took no action on the reported affidavit from the witness.

"It is a question of fact, and the jury already answered that question," the judge said.

Cordova was nicknamed "Spiderman" by San Antonio lawmen when he slithered through a six-inch gap at the Bexar County Jail here, reached the street using a rope made of sheets and escaped in 1980 while awaiting trial in the Hernandez slaying.

He was captured in Florida soon after the escape, but he was charged there with the rape of a teacher and was sentenced to 30 years in prison.

Authorities said he was involved in a prison riot in October, 1981 in Florida. He was returned to Texas in 1982 for the Hernandez trial and was convicted and sentenced to death.

During the trial here, bailiffs discovered that he had obtained a key to his handcuffs in what authorities believed was to be another escape attempt.

The man lost two previous appeals after being convicted in 1982 in the slaying of Hernandez. His conviction was upheld in September, 1985 by the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals and his execution was set for Jan. 8, 1986.

U.S. Supreme Court Justice Byron White issued a stay of execution five days before he was to be executed. The full Supreme Court, however, refused in May to hear arguments that Cordova was wrongly sentenced to death.

Defense ends in kidnapping slavery trial

KERRVILLE, Texas (AP)—Defense attorney Richard "Racehorse" Haynes has rested his case in the trial of a Kerr County rancher accused of being part of a conspiracy that allegedly led to the kidnapping and torture death of a drifter.

Haynes will make closing remarks on behalf of his client, Walter Wesley Ellebracht, 53, after the attorneys for two other defendants rest their cases.

Also on trial are the rancher's son, Walter Wesley Ellebracht Jr., 31, and ranch worker Carlton Robert Caldwell, 19, of Taos, N.M.

The three men — charged with violating the state's conspiracy law — have been accused of forcing Anthony Warren Bates to work as a slave before killing him on March 3, 1984, and burning his body.

Haynes called 22 witnesses during the four-day defense which began Monday.

Thursday he called William Fred Klein, a resident of Kerr County and a friend of Ellebracht's for 43 years.

Klein testified that he had warned Ellebracht Sr. in the early 1980s not to bring drifters to the ranch.

"You could tell they were drifters by the way they looked and acted," Klein testified. "I told him not to bring those people to the ranch."

He said Ellebracht Sr. put the men to work because he felt sorry for them. Klein said he visited the ranch 12 times during the 1980s, twice to pray with Ellebracht Sr. after his wife left him for one of the drifters who had worked at the ranch.

Klein said living conditions weren't bad in the ranch workers' bunkhouse — the site of alleged torture sessions during which Bates was shocked in the eye socket and on his tongue and genitals.

"Not bad. Better than what they're used to — sleeping on the side of the road or culverts," Klein testified.

A nightmare came true

Last week I briefly mentioned my fears about the horrible effect the Reagan Administration will have on American social life for decades after he leaves office. This week one of the nightmares came true.

Warren Burger's shocking announcement that he's stepping down as chief justice of the Supreme Court gave Reagan the awful opportunity I prayed he would never get. Reagan got to appoint a new associate justice, plus was able to move William Rehnquist to the chief justice position. Run for cover.

The Supreme Court shapes the future through its interpretations of a constitution that probably was never meant to be interpreted in the first place, and sets the laws of the land. Though it shouldn't, politics plays a key role in the court's decisions.

The most lasting effects a president can leave on the nation are the deficits he leaves, the wars he starts and the men he appoints to the Supreme Court, provided that he's given the opportunity.

Reagan's been chomping at the bit for his, and in all likelihood 50-year-old federal appeals court judge Antonin Scalia will be confirmed as the court's newest and youngest member.

Since Nixon took office in 1968, the Supreme Court has made a hard swing to the right, which Reagan wants to continue. Chief Justice Burger was conservative, but Rehnquist is even more so, and Scalia makes them both look like flaming liberals.

Scalia surely won't find much support from the media, for we've been on the losing end of several of his First Amendment decisions, and he's shown a tendency to disregard separation of church and state. But our support doesn't matter, and when the year 2000 gets here, after Reagan is cold in the ground, Scalia will probably be Chief Justice.

What that means is that I, and freedom lovers like me, will be doomed to live most of our adult lives under the ghost of the totalitarian Reagan regime.

But wait! A quick check shows that four of the court's members not counting Burger are over 77 years old, and 77-year-old human beings have shown an unerring tendency to die.

If, in the next two years, Reagan gets to appoint more members of the court, he will have, like Nixon, stacked the deck so heavily to the right that liberals will probably be jailed on sight.

That's when I'll get serious about finding a new country to move to.

Only when a man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Make deregulation of airlines complete

Crediting President Reagan for helping to blaze the trail, British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher has been presiding over a sort of government garage sale, selling off companies and properties that had been nationalized by her predecessors.

Jaguar, the automotive company, and British Telecommunications, are among those that already have gone on the block. But when it comes to selling off British Airways, which the prime minister had hoped to accomplish this spring, Thatcher says it is a disagreement with Reagan's government itself that stands in the way.

Current government rules, which expire in July, restrict the ability of British airlines to serve American cities — and prohibit British carriers from competing with their American counterparts on domestic routes. The outcome of current negotiations to abandon, change or continue the rules could have a dramatic impact on the price Thatcher could get for British Airways.

The British say the restrictions hamper their ability to compete fairly with American carriers. They argue that privately-owned American airlines, such as Pan American World Airways and Trans World Airlines, fly trans-Atlantic routes to Britain and then use it as a hub for flights to the rest of Europe.

But British Airways, which has a London to New York flight that continues on to Baltimore and Pittsburgh, is prohibited from selling a New York to Pittsburgh ticket.

The flaw in Thatcher's argument is in ignoring the fact that her government has some restrictions on the quantity of these continental flights by American carriers: American airlines can sell some seats from Britain to the continent; British airlines can sell no seats from one American city to another. Both countries should move to end the restrictions so passenger preference rather than government regulations will determine who flies on which airlines.

Clearly, if airline route deregulation is to be a reality in the United States — something the Reagan administration champions — that would include dropping route regulations of foreign airlines as well.

Given the current congressional bent toward protectionism, this is a tough political stance, but it is practical as well. It would benefit all American carriers that fly international routes, and the British carriers — or any foreign airline — aren't going to have the resources to compete on a large-scale basis with strictly domestic American airlines.

The negotiations call for a tradeoff: eliminate the restrictions on American flights to the continent, and the United States open up its domestic market to British carriers. Politically, one cannot happen without the other, but surely the idealist in both heads of state — Reagan and Thatcher — can find some way to make deregulation and privatization a reality to match their rhetoric.

Stephen Chapman

A father's big burden

All parents must eventually acknowledge their children's approaching maturity and surrender them forever to the uncertainty of the outer world. I am now steeling myself for that unhappy day. Ross Chapman, a strapping youth whose capacity for mirth is exceeded only by his ambition for destruction, is just 10 months old. But he has produced his first tooth and with this milestone, I see my firstborn's childhood flashing by.

The evolution of an infant from a squalling, insensible bundle of demands into a squalling, reasoning bundle of demands concentrates the mind. By now I have gotten acquainted with the imposing responsibilities of fatherhood — from daily obligations, like changing diapers, to long-term ones, like saving for his college education. Give or take a few hours' lost sleep, I have adapted.

Other burdens, however, weigh more heavily. It occurred to me the other day, as Ross lay gurgling merrily on my chest, that his first model of manhood will be his father. This is not my preference: I can think of dozens of people I would prefer him to emulate. It certainly won't be his preference: In a few years he will take his inspiration from professional athletes, TV cops and rock stars.

Right now, though, I'm the only full-time male in his life, except a couple of four-legged ones, and for the next couple of decades I intend to be the most intrusive one. It is a relief to know that he will also have the example of his mother. The potency of chromosomes, which can override the best or worst of parental efforts, is another consolation.

But a father serves a fateful function. Most of my son's formative notions of what a man is will come from me — less from my instruction, I fear, than from my example. When he gets old enough, he may choose to accept those notions or to rebel against them. But they already will have made their imprint.

This is an alarming discovery. A thorough grounding in Calvinist theology has given me an acute awareness of my failings, which are too numerous to catalogue here. In me, I find them just tolerable. But I'm not eager to see them reproduced in my son.

Fortunately, nature provides an interval between the time a father realizes this danger and the time when it becomes real. As long as Ross' verbal repertoire is limited to outbursts of expressive noise rather than actual words, I don't have to worry about him repeating my uncharitable descriptions of bad drivers. As long as he can't reach the phone receiver, he can't acquire my habit of slamming it down whenever a solicitor calls.

But this period of amnesty won't last forever. One day, I know, he will say or do something that will infuriate me — until I remember that he learned it by faithful attention to his father, at which point I will have to direct my dissatisfaction at the truly guilty party.

I will leave it to anthropologists to answer whether codes of morality actually originated with the family. But it is hard to think of a better curb on immoral, irresponsible or obnoxious behavior than the risk that it will be imitated by one's offspring, achieving immortality through transmission from one generation to the next. This is to parents what a choke collar is to dogs — a forceful reminder of how to behave.

Luckily, the Almighty rigged things so that parenthood is an education in self-control from the beginning. Children, ungrateful creatures that they are, place a low value on their parents' ease. It requires a firm suppression of natural instincts, upon being awakened repeatedly in the middle of the night, to respond with soothing words and comforting hugs. But I trust that restraint will get easier the more I practice it — which, given my son's rambunctious disposition, will be often.

If so, then one day I may get to claim credit for helping to mold an admirable human being. And, with luck, I may provide my son with the same pleasure my father has provided me — to hear yourself compared to your father, and take it as a compliment.

Keep experience in the air

President Ronald Reagan has accomplished something else, also. He has made 75 seem young.

Former Ohio Gov. Rhodes was thus encouraged out of retirement at 77 to run again.

North Carolina's former governor, Terry Sanford, has come out of political retirement to run again at 68.

It is the year of the "seniors."

Jack Nicklaus became the oldest golfer ever to win the Masters.

Kentucky Derby winner Ferdinand was ridden by the oldest jockey, Shoemaker at 54, and trained by the oldest trainer, Whittingham at 73.

Winner of this year's Winston Cup car race was the oldest NASCAR driver, Bobby Allison, 48.

And that's not all...

More than ever before, men and women in their 60s and 70s are returning to classrooms to prepare themselves for "new careers."

Professional airline pilots are seeking to delay mandatory retirement, citing such statistics as this:

There are more active pilots over 60 in the United States than there are pilots in most of the rest of the world!

Medical, sanitarional and nutritional sciences have added seven years to your life in the past 25 years.

That airline pilots are considered "too old at 60" is an outdated concept.

An American who has made it to 65 years of age today has a life expectancy of 80.8 years.

And because pilots generally enjoy better than average health, their life expectancy is even greater.

Among our nation's active pilots over 85 are five who are over 90.

But must not the airplane pilot be more mindful than most of the possibility of heart attack or stroke?

Yes.

But chronological years are not proper measure of susceptibility to either. Since 1970 heart disease death rates have dropped a dramatic 26 percent and strokes have decreased by 48 percent.

And experience counts for so much — whether it is not choking on the last holes of the Masters, or coming through a wall of horses at the Derby, or flying an airplane.

Here are the numbers:

Among professional pilots, those who have the most accidents are ages 16-19; 24.24 per thousand.

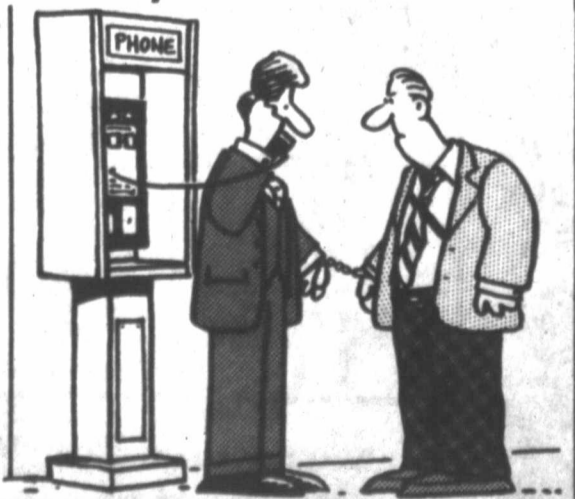

Pilots 20-24 are twice as safe.

And the correlation continues almost without variation — the more years of experience, the fewer accidents.

Until, where young pilots have 24 accidents per thousand, pilots over 60 have fewer than five.

"I have to give up insider trading for a while. It looks as if I may become an insider of a different kind."

Laxalt could move into GOP picture

By William A. Rusher

A good many thoughtful observers are by no means convinced that the 1988 Republican presidential nomination is "all locked up" for George Bush, despite the vice president's continued (though diminishing) lead over various possible rivals in the polls.

At the same time, they note that Rep. Jack Kemp has thus far failed to project himself as the chief, let alone only possible, alternative to Bush. In order to win the nomination, Kemp must not only persuade the GOP's powerful conservative bloc that he is its tiger but that Bush — and for that matter anybody else — just won't do. Thus far Kemp has failed to make any such demonstration, and as a result his candidacy hasn't yet "taken off."

The nomination, therefore, may very well still be up for grabs. And that may be why there is increasing speculation these days about Sen. Paul Laxalt of Nevada.

Laxalt's assets as the possible 1988 nominee are several and impressive. At 63 he has served four years as a governor and is now retiring from the U.S. Senate after two full terms there. He is well liked by his colleagues — and also by President Reagan, who regards Laxalt as his closest friend and ally in the Senate. On the safe assumption that the 1988 Republican convention will want to nominate someone who is Reagan's ideological soul mate, committed to carrying on Reagan's program, Laxalt fills the bill.

In addition, Laxalt is familiar with the gritty details of party work, currently serving as general chairman of the Republican Party. People familiar with his work in that capacity speak favorably of his skills as an administrator — useful attributes not always found in a legislator.

In some ways most important of all, Paul Laxalt is a man of the West, where (along with the South) the Republican Party has its greatest strength today. As pointed out recently in this space, all but a small handful of the names on the "long list" of possible Republican presidential nominees belong to Easterners or Midwesterners. Not counting Bush (who moved to Texas to go into business and politics but remains almost the archetypal Easterner), only three people spring to mind: California Gov. George Deukmejian, Colorado Sen. William Armstrong — and Laxalt.

On the debit side, the principal item is a loose newspaper accusation that a Nevada gambling casino of which Laxalt was part-owner was skimming the profits, and (by implication) that Laxalt was aware of this. Laxalt has sued the paper for libel, and a verdict is expected around the turn of the year. If, as widely anticipated, it is favorable to Laxalt, that will totally erase that particular debit item.

Observers sometimes wonder whether Laxalt has the necessary

"fire in the belly" to go through an arduous struggle for the nomination, followed by the general election campaign. "I think Paul would like to be president," former Senate Republican leader Howard Baker once wisecracked, "but I'm not sure he wants to run for the job." But Laxalt's apparent diffidence may be misleading — a matter of personal style rather than anything else. You don't, in this tough world, get to be governor and twice a U.S. senator purely by acting the shrinking violet.

Laxalt has made no open moves toward the nomination (nor will he, in any case, until that libel verdict is in), but he is letting those who want to back him — and that includes some powerful people — keep on talking the idea up. As far as Bush and Kemp — or for that matter just about anybody but Armstrong and Deukmejian — are concerned, Laxalt would balance the ticket nicely as the vice presidential candidate.

CRASH SITE — Erath County emergency personnel look over wreckage of one of two Marine Corps F-4 Phantom jets that crashed three miles west of Morgan Mill about 5:40 p.m. Thursday. The two jets, stationed at the Dallas Naval Air Station, crashed while on a routine training mission. The four crewmen ejected and parachuted safely.

Marines survive crash of two F-4 Phantom jet fighters

MORGAN MILL, Texas (AP)—Four crew members were in undetermined condition after safely parachuting from two Marine Corps F-4 Phantom jet fighters that crashed over a hillside into pastureland, authorities said.

The four, whose names were not released pending notification of relatives, were on a routine training flight when their military airplanes crashed about 5:40 p.m. Thursday in Erath County, about five miles west of Morgan Mill, said Frank Ratterman, a spokesman for the Dallas Naval Air Station, where the planes were based.

The crew members were taken to the Naval Air Station medical center, Ratterman said. Their conditions were not released, but a witness reported that at least one of the pilots had a cut on his cheek.

Local authorities first said the planes had collided but Ratterman said he could not confirm that or give any other details of the crashes.

Marine Corps investigators were at the crash scene, Ratterman said.

Col. R.D. Lancaster, a Morgan Mill resident, told reporters he heard four loud explosions and rushed to the scene of the crash, where separate fires were burning.

Two Erath County residents, Lynn Kinsey and his son, David, picked up two of the pilots who had ejected from their craft and ferried them into Morgan Mill, where the fliers notified the military of the crash.

The pilots declined to give their names or ranks, nor would they provide reporters or curious residents details about the crash.

Sheriff's deputies and Bob Bowman, who owns the Cee-Bar Ranch on which the jets landed, kept spectators from the scene, warning of the danger of explosion.

Witnesses at the scene said debris from the two multi-million-dollar jets was spread over a half-mile area.

On Wednesday, a New Jersey Air National Guard F-4E Phantom jet on a training mission crashed in a remote area of the Pine Barrows, but both crew member ejected safely, officials said.

The fighters were based at McGuire Air Force Base, and the two crew members who ejected suffered minor injuries.

Senate sets Tuesday for final vote on landmark tax overhaul

WASHINGTON (AP) — A weary Senate is within striking distance of giving its overwhelming approval to landmark tax-overhaul legislation that promises to cut the tax bills of millions of Americans.

Senators have agreed to take a final vote at 4 p.m. Tuesday on the sweeping measure drafted by the Senate Finance Committee. Amendments were being considered today, Monday and Tuesday.

"We're down to hardly anything," Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., said of the Senate's time-consuming effort of the past several days to whittle a stack of amendments to the legislation.

Nonetheless, as the Senate began its 11th day of debate on the measure today, there were more than 60 amendments pending, covering items ranging from the treatment of income derived from raising reindeer to low-income housing.

Following two consecutive marathon sessions Tuesday and Wednesday, bleary-eyed legislators decided Thursday night that enough was enough.

"This is absolutely crazy," said Sen. David Pryor, D-Ark., a frequent critic of the Senate's eccentric work habits.

If we "get more sleep ... we'll make some sense around here," Pryor told his colleagues.

Dole also admonished fellow senators to curb their appetites for amendments, saying, "Sooner or later, you just have to pass it."

Shortly thereafter Thursday night, Dole and Senate Democratic Leader Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia struck a deal limiting the number of amendments that will be offered and locking in the time for the final vote.

"I'm sure we'll pass this bill by an overwhelming margin," Dole said.

After the the Senate completes action, negotiators from the House and Senate will meet to work out the differences between the Senate package and the one passed by the House late last year.

Senators who do not serve on the Finance Committee and will not be part of those negotiations have been scrambling to attach pet amendments to the legislation.

In action Thursday, the Senate approved by voice vote a partial deduction for some state and local sales taxes.

The Finance Committee legislation would have continued deductions for state and local income and property taxes but would repeal the writeoff for sales taxes. The tax overhaul plan passed by the House would continue full deduction of all state and local taxes.

The amendment, sponsored by Republican Sens. Slade Gorton and Dan Evans of Washington, would allow a person whose state and local sales taxes were higher than state and local income taxes to deduct 60 percent of the excess. For example, a family that paid $1,200 in sales taxes and $800 in income taxes could deduct all the income tax plus $240 — 60 percent of $400.

A person who paid $1,000 in sales tax and no income tax could deduct $600.

The amendment would benefit any taxpayer in any state who pays more sales tax than state and local income tax. It would have the largest impact in 14 states — Alaska, Connecticut, Florida, Louisiana, Mississippi, Nevada, New Hampshire, New Mexico, North Dakota, South Dakota, Tennessee, Texas, Washington and Wyoming — where sales taxes are a bigger source of revenue than income taxes.

To help pay for the sales tax amendment, the Senate agreed to require that every person age 5 or older who is claimed as a dependent have a Social Security card.

The idea is that requiring the listing of the Social Security numbers would significantly reduce cheating, particularly by divorced or separated couples who both might claim the same child as an exemption.

Also on Thursday, the Senate adopted by voice vote an amendment by Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, allowing Individual Retirement Account investments in gold and silver coins.

Bell residential phone bills could drop

AUSTIN (AP) — The Public Utility Commission staff says the $35.4 million rate hike tentatively approved for Southwestern Bell should include a nickel a month drop in basic home phone bills.

In a recommendation issued Thursday, the staff said the increase should be covered by new charges for help from an operator.

The commission, which voted 2-1 for the $35.4 million hike last Friday, scheduled a meeting today to talk about which rates should go up to cover the increase.

Southwestern Bell wants a $277 million rate hike package that would include increases of up to $2 a month for basic home service.

The PUC staff proposal for a nickel decrease adds up to $4.5 million a year less in revenues for the phone company.

The staff is calling for a $1 charge for operator assistance in determining if a line is in use and a $1.50 charge to interrupt conversations.

LEATHER COMPANY[®] DEALER

LEATHER FOREVER

2,000-year-old leather sandals were recently discovered in Spain. In good condition. Surprised? Tandy Leather wasn't. We know that leather is one of the sturdiest materials ever found.

That's why we say with Tandy Leather, you'll love us forever. Because that's how long leather lasts. No, we weren't around 2,000 years ago, but we do recognize leather's timeless qualities. We know that leather has both durability and flexibility. And it's valued for its versatility in creating clothing, bags, wallets, upholstery, wallcovering ... even moccasins and sandals.

No, we weren't surprised at the condition of 2,000-year-old leather sandals in Spain. We were amazed to hear about the 5,000-year-old leather sandals in Egypt, though. They were only in fair condition.

If you haven't discovered the timeless art of leathercrafting, isn't it about time you did?

What's Coming

With sharp eyes and a good telescope it is not difficult to see what's coming one's way. But what can we know of the coming future? Will it bring rain or shine, sickness or health, prosperity or poverty, war or peace? Will the future reveal the next scientific marvel to be as horrifying as the atomic bomb or as helpful as penicillin? No man can say what will come, but one thing we do know about the future, and that is — Who is coming — God! The same God who laid out the universe and gave each of us life is still in command and will come bringing our future. It is secure in His hands for those who trust Him.

Is something wrong with your life — an inner restlessness, dissatisfaction? The answer to every human problem comes only from God our Maker. He alone can forgive and reassure. Through the church God has committed the provision and proclamation of His forgiveness and redeeming love. Without a church relation no one is securely related to God. Everyone should be in the Church and the Church should be in everyone.

REV. BILL WEBB

Rev. Webb joins counseling center

Rev. Bill Webb has joined the staff of the Samaritan Counseling Center of Amarillo as a resident in pastoral counseling. Webb began his service in the Pampa branch office June 17 on a one-day-per-week basis.

As a resident in pastoral counseling, Webb will be extending his formal training in pastoral counseling and preparing himself for full clinical membership in the American Association of Pastoral Counselors.

His service with the center includes individual, marriage and family counseling to clients of the center; receiving clinical supervision of that service by the staff, and meeting necessary requirements for professional standing in AAPC.

"We are delighted to have Rev. Webb join our staff for two reasons," says Dr. Paul Hopkins, Samaritan executive director. "First, Bill is a highly competent and caring pastor whose experience and training in counseling already enables him to minister effectively in this setting.

"Additional specialized training he will receive while a part of our staff will strengthen his skills and equip him with appropriate credentials for continuing work in pastoral counseling."

An ordained Southern Baptist minister, Webb comes to the staff of Samaritan Counseling Center after three years as associate minister of Paramount Baptist Church in Amarillo. His work there included ministry with families and significant involvement in counseling. Prior to his work at Paramount Baptist, Webb had been a staff chaplain at High Plains Baptist Hospital.

Webb attended Howard Payne University and is a graduate of Southwest Texas State University. He holds a master of divinity degree from Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary in Fort Worth. He has served as a pastor in congregations in Texas and Wisconsin.

He is a member of the American Association for Counseling and Development, the American Mental Health Counselors Association, the Texas Council on Family Relations and the Texas Baptist Family Ministers Association.

He and his wife Bettie are the parents of one son, Scott, who is 18.

Samaritan Counseling Center is an interdenominational pastoral counseling service. Its 21-member board of directors come from 15 different congregations of eight denominations in the northern Texas Panhandle. Counseling services are by appointment. Fees are based on a sliding scale.

Central offices of the center are located in the First Christian Church building of Amarillo. Services are also provided in branch offices in the First Presbyterian Church of Pampa and First Baptist Church of Canyon. Appointments for counseling are made through the central offices by calling 353-1668.

HIS TOUCH

By Charlotte Barbaree
Scripture: The heavens declare the glory of God; the skies proclaim the work of his hands. (Psalm 19:1 NIV)

An early morning school band rehearsal for one of my daughters compelled me to brave the biting chill in semi-darkness.

From the band hall, I turned the car toward the east. As I approached our home, I was regaled by a breathtaking sunrise. I parked the car and watched in awe as the sky orchestrated a visual symphony of praise to the Creator.

The open field was silhouetted against the brilliant gold and soft orange beams that diffused into multi-hues as they passed through atmospheric prisms.

A bank of scalloped clouds was laced in fluorescent pink. The sun appeared at the horizon with a convection of dazzling white. The simple prairie field became adorned by the dawning of a new day.

I sat small and quiet in the presence of my glorious God.

DON AND FAITH DUNLAP

Dunlaps to bring ministry to local church on Sunday

Don and Faith Dunlap, involved in the traveling ministry over the past 14 years, will be ministering at the Lamar Full Gospel Assembly, 1200 S. Sumner, at 7 p.m. Sunday.

The Dunlaps, with their unique presentation of preaching, teaching and singing, are a truly powerful combination, said Gene Allen, pastor.

"From the beginning they have been instrumental in leading people into a fresh approach to praise and worship through their ministry of the Word and singing of scripture music," he said.

They have adopted as their theme, "A Ministry of Life." Allen said the couple knows that the singing of Scriptures in ministry to the Lord prepares the hearts of the people for their main emphasis: the preaching and teaching of God's word.

"Don's preaching, spontaneously mixed with his own natural humor, makes his messages and their practical applications unforgettable," he said.

His wife Faith is a versatile and accomplished vocalist, singing in a diversity of styles which give her the ability to relate to people of various musical preferences. She is actively involved as a guest speaker for Women's Aglow and various women's organizations. Her focus is to present practical Godly principles taught in parable form.

The Dunlaps have participated in many church conferences and interdenominational gatherings. They have ministered in such countries as England, Wales, Belgium, Holland and Germany.

They also have enjoyed being guests on the TBN television network with Paul and Jan Crouch. Other television programs have included California Tonight with Ron Haus in Concord, Calif.; Getting Together with Ross and Norma Bixler in Wall, Penn.; Action 60s with Herman Bailey in Clearwater, Fla., and Prime Time Video with Al and Tommy Cooper in Roswell, N.M. The Dunlaps have recorded nine albums.

They live in Roswell, N.M., with their son Lee, 11, who travels with them.

Texan experiments with shallow oil recovery

By JOYCE ROSE
San Angelo Standard-Times

SAN ANGELO, Texas (AP) — The word "mining" brings several things to mind — coal, gold, silver, sulphur. But oil? Certainly.

If you doubt, there's a 100-foot shaft in Comanche County, a few miles from Texas State Highway 36, and a persistent oilman named Roland Elledge to prove it.

The Brownwood native recently lifted the veil of secrecy from a year of hard work that brought into existence the only producing gravity flow oil mine in the United States.

Elledge recently played host at the mine site to a number of visitors that included Texas Railroad Commission Chairman James Nugent and other in-state and out-of-state officials, as well as members of the news media. Those who came, not only viewed a totally new concept in oil production, but also received a jar of oil from the pioneer well, dubbed the MAROE No. 1.

Elledge explained that the "MA" is for the first two letters in his wife's name, Margaret. The "RO" is for the first two letters in his own name. The "E" stands for Elledge.

"The name particularly is in honor of my wife, who has been my best friend and most loyal supporter during the past year. She encouraged me and kept me going over the rough spots. There were stumbling blocks. We made mistakes. We stopped the project and redesigned until we got it right. She stuck with me through it all and was never ready to give up," Elledge said.

For the most part, Elledge kept the project a secret until the oil mine was ready for production. "I felt all along that it would work, but explaining my convictions to others would have been a problem, so I kept it quiet until I could actually demonstrate how it works," Elledge said.

Formerly in the construction business in Port Arthur, Elledge later moved to Nacogdoches and became involved in the shallow oil drilling business in the Oil Springs area of Nacogdoches County. "I became frustrated just knowing the huge reserves of oil that lie at shallow depths in that area and not being able to get more of it out of the ground. I knew there must be some way to bring more of it to the surface."

When the idea for oil mining came to mind, Elledge invested everything he had and raised additional funds to formulate the project. The uniqueness of the idea caused an array of preliminary work. The Texas Railroad Commission had no rules for oil mining. The Water Quality Board had to be consulted, along with the Texas Air Control Board. Elledge found himself in meeting upon meeting, explaining his project and obtaining special permits to begin designing the project.

With the help of four other men, Elledge used his construction and oil well drilling experience, along with his knowledge of physics and much trial and error, to accomplish the feat.

"Picture a wagon wheel lying flat on the ground. The hub is the shaft in the ground, the spokes are the horizontal holes into the formation," he explained.

Elledge's shaft is 100 feet deep. At the bottom he has erected a 110-barrel tank to receive the oil flowing from 30, 4-inch (cased) diameter horizontal holes drilled into the formation. Maximum penetration of the horizontal holes is 500 feet. The drilled holes are approximately 70 feet from the surface and five feet apart.

"As we learn from science," Elledge explained, "fluids take the path of least resistance and seek their own level. In doing this, fluids will go to a low pressure area." He noted that conventional drilling operates on much the same theory. "You drill a vertical hole into the oil zone, perforate and acidize and create a low pressure area for hydrocarbons to seek. Aided by a gas lift or water drive, it's brought to the surface. We don't ask our oil mine to have added drives. We rely on gravity flow," he said.

Elledge noted that where conventional drilling is costly, the cost of oil mining is approximately $1.00 a barrel.

Hi-Land Christian schedules VBS

Vacation Bible School will begin Monday at Hi-Land Christian Church, 1615 N. Banks. The school will continue through Friday, June 27.

Theme for this year's school is "Jesus, I Love You."

Classes will begin daily at 9:30 a.m. and last until noon for children ages 2½ through sixth grade.

Activities include Bible study, singing, crafts, puppet shows and refreshments.

Special guests this year are four college students from Dallas Christian College who will be assisting with teaching and missionary study.

For more information, call the church office at 669-6700.

Once the oil flows into the tank, Elledge uses a submersible, explosion-proof pump that cycles automatically to bring the oil from the bottom of the shaft to a separator and then to oil tanks near a county road. From there it's picked up by a tank truck and transported to its destination.

A potential of slightly under 10 barrels of 37 gravity oil recently was filed for the well at the Texas Railroad Commission. However, Elledge explained that this is coming from only five of the 30 holes in the formation. Others will be produced later.

Conventional Railroad Commission forms were used for permitting and completing the well, but the information thereon looks a little different. For instance, the space allowed for a conventional 10-64 or 18-64-inch choke reads "12-foot open flow." Instead of 4¼ or 5½-inch casing, the space reads "12-foot casing."

"Permission to begin the mining was given in a meeting at Texas Railroad Commission headquarters in Austin with three commissioners present," Elledge said. "If it hadn't been for the cooperation I received from them, the project would still be on the drawing board. After all, this was an entirely new concept and the rules hadn't yet been formulated."

Elledge noted that the recent statement of potential filed with the Railroad Commission was somewhat of a token completion. The commission must still decide how its standard regulations apply.

Before Elledge actually began his mining operation, he drilled 16, 100-foot test holes around the area where he eventually put the shaft to determine at what depth the oil could be found. "Our mine is producing from 70 feet in the upper Strawn formation of the Comanche regular field," Elledge said.

According to Elledge, the potential for additional oil mining is mind boggling. "The reserves are here and we are foolish to depend upon unreliable foreign sources for our oil when it can be produced in our own country. The Department of the Interior has released a study that shows this country has 300 billion barrels of oil at depths of less than 500 feet that is considered unrecoverable."

He noted that in the "old days" there were no conservation methods for natural gas, hence it was flared. "This depleted the basic drive in the formation. National statistics show that because of this, operators left 75 percent of basic oils still in place."

Elledge recently learned that a Canada company, Devran Petroleum Ltd., in London, Ontario, has begun a joint oil mining venture with Shell Canada. "Their $6.3 million project is trying to accomplish what I have accomplished on my own. I've been to their mine and they came to my project May 7. They brought senior engineers and a 40-year veteran in the oil business to learn about my operation. Until then, they thought they had the first oil mine. They didn't know an old country boy from Texas had already accomplished that feat. They expressed interest in coming to Texas and doing some work with my technique," Elledge said.

Local Church of Christ plans Family Vacation Bible School

Plans are currently underway for the Family Vacation Bible School at the Mary Ellen and Harvester Church of Christ.

The format will be somewhat different in that the classes will be held from 7:30 to 9 p.m. each evening except Sunday and there will be classes for the entire family.

The Bible school will begin on Sunday, June 29, and end on Wednesday, July 2.

Keynote speaker and teacher of the adult classes will be Mike Gardner of Amarillo. Gardner is the pulpit minister for the Southwest Church of Christ. His theme will be "The Book of Mark."

Gardner will teach the Sunday morning combined adult classes, bring the morning worship lesson and teach the evening lesson at 6 p.m. on Sunday. He also will teach the adult classes Monday through Wednesday from 7:30 to 9 p.m.

Several teachers from the Central Church of Christ of Amarillo will be teaching the pre-school through junior classes as follows: Edie Advance, Junior; Jackie Pyeatt, Primary, and Gina Love, Pre-School.

Carl James, missionary from Miami, Fla., will be teaching a special class for the Spanish-speaking. James and his wife are currently serving as missionaries in Florida to the Spanish-speaking people of that region under the direction and oversight of the elders of the Mary Ellen and Harvester Church of Christ. A door-knocking campaign has been planned for Saturday, June 28, to recruit enrollees in the Bible school program.

The church buses will run each evening to allow more children to attend the classes. A fellowship dinner also has been planned for Sunday following the morning worship service.

ANOTHER MISSILE FAILURE — Workmen dismantle the remainder of an Atlas missile that collapsed while on display at the Air Force Museum at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base in Dayton, Ohio, Wednesday night. The pressurized missile sprung a leak and collapsed when the compressor supplying air couldn't maintain sufficient pressure. The missile had been on display since the early 1970s.

Miller convicted; looks forward to appeal

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Richard W. Miller, the only FBI agent ever convicted of espionage, faces possible life in prison but cheerfully anticipated an appeal of the guilty verdict in his second trial.

"Let's say thank God for the court of appeals," the smiling 49-year-old defendant said Thursday as he was led out of court clutching folders of legal papers between his handcuffed wrists.

Miller, a 20-year veteran who worked in the counterintelligence section of the FBI's Los Angeles office, was convicted of spying for the Soviet Union. U.S. District Judge David Kenyon set sentencing for July 14.

Jurors said Miller's own admissions to FBI inquisitors before his arrest Oct. 2, 1984, had clinched the case against him. They rejected his claim that his affair with a Soviet woman, Svetlana Ogorodnikov, was part of his plan to become a double agent and infiltrate the Soviet KGB for the FBI.

Jurors discounted Mrs. Ogorodnikov's dramatic testimony on Miller's behalf as self-serving lies.

"I think her motives were plain," said juror Cathy Lamprecht. "If we found Miller innocent, she would be innocent. She was lying to us a lot."

Mrs. Ogorodnikov, 36, and her husband, Nikolay, 53, are serving federal prison terms after pleading guilty during their spy trial last year.

The 10 women and two men on the jury deliberated 21 hours over four days before convicting Miller on six counts of espionage and bribery. They said they were deadlocked on a seventh count accusing Miller of accepting a $675 trenchcoat as a bribe.

Miller was convicted of conspiring to pass classified documents to the Soviet Union, of copying classified documents and of delivering them to a foreign government with knowledge they would be used to the advantage of a foreign power, the Soviet Union, and to the disadvantage of the United States.

Miller, whose first trial ended in a deadlock last November, was also found guilty of communicating the documents to a known representative of the Soviets, and of soliciting $50,000 in gold and $15,000 in cash.

Miller, wearing a three-piece charcoal gray suit and a red tie, sat motionless staring at the jury. His attorneys said they had prepared him for the worst and he was calm.

Kenyon agreed to a government request that the seventh count be dropped.

The judge warned jurors not to disclose classified information they had learned, and lifted a gag order barring attorneys from talking to the public during the trial.

"The verdicts are a tribute to the collective common sense of the jury system, and this jury in particular," U.S. Attorney Robert Bonner said. "Had the FBI not moved as quickly as it did in this case, far greater damage would have been done."

Defendants: they're soldiers following orders

GENOA, Italy (AP) — The defendant accused of shooting American passenger Leon Klinghoffer aboard the Achille Lauro cruise ship retracted his confession and denied in court testimony that Klinghoffer was even aboard the ship.

Youssef Magid al-Molqi, 23, declared in testimony Thursday that the charge "was a frame-up between the Americans and the Syrians." U.S. officials identified Klinghoffer's body after it washed ashore in Syria.

Prosecutors say the Palestinian pirates, who seized the luxury liner off the Egyptian coast last Oct. 7, planned to kill an American or British hostage every five minutes unless their demands were met.

"I did not kill him, this is not true," said the young Palestinian described as the leader of the pirates. Klinghoffer "was not on the ship and I did not see him," he said.

Judge Lino Monteverde, who is conducting the trial of 15 people charged in the hijacking, read from a confession Molqi gave a prosecutor Nov. 8.

In it, Molqi said the four Palestinians who seized the ship off Port Said, Egypt, decided to kill a hostage because Syria refused to help press their demands that Israel release 51 Palestinian prisoners. The liner was off the Syrian port of Tartus at the time, but was denied permission to enter.

Monteverde read from the confession: "I remember that it was 3:12 (p.m.). I went down where the hostages were and I forced a Portuguese waiter to bring the American to the stern of the ship.

I shot twice, once to the head and once to the chest."

"I and Bassam agreed that the first hostage to be killed had to be American. I chose Klinghoffer, an invalid, so that they would know that we had no pity for anyone, just as the Americans, arming Israel, do not take into consideration that Israel kills without discrimination women and children of our people."

Monteverde also read from the part of the confession in which Molqi told prosecutor Luigi Carli that he first told a Portuguese waiter to throw the corpse into the sea:

"But he (the waiter) wasn't able to do it. So then I stopped an Italian and together with the Portuguese I ordered them to throw the body in the water."

Molqi testified for two hours in the heavily guarded chamber built like a bunker under a Genoa courthouse. He sat before the judge with an armed policeman at either side.

Two other accused hijackers on trial are Ibrahim Fatayer Abdelatif, 20, of Lebanon, and Ahmed Marrouf al-Assadi, a 24-year-old native of Damascus, Syria.

Bassam al-Ashker, accused of being the fourth hijacker, is to be tried separately in a juvenile court because he was 17 when the ship was seized and the 383 people aboard taken hostage.

Only five defendants are in custody. Among the fugitives is Mohammed Abbas, a Palestinian guerrilla leader also known as Abul Abbas. Prosecutors say he planned the hijacking.

Fourteen defendants are charged with the actual hijacking, hostage-taking and murder or as accomplices.

The missing defendants are being tried in absentia.

Early votes show Reagan won't get the full Star Wars funding

WASHINGTON (AP) — Early voting in the House and Senate shows President Reagan isn't going to get all the money he wants next year for "Star Wars" research, congressional sources say.

An 8-5 vote Thursday afternoon by the House Armed Services research and development subcommittee approved a total Star Wars budget for fiscal 1987 of about $3.6 billion, said the sources, speaking on condition of anonymity.

Reagan wanted $5.4 billion in the fiscal year starting Oct. 1 for the anti-missile program, which is known formally as the Strategic Defense Initiative.

But he won't get that amount, according to the early votes taken by the Armed Services panels in the Democratic-controlled House and the Republican-controlled Senate.

The House subcommittee vote came as the panel wrote its part of next year's Pentagon budget and was the first vote of the year by any House subcommittee on Star Wars spending.

At the same time, the Senate Armed Services Committee is also writing a defense budget. A subcommittee last week approved a $4.6 billion Star Wars budget, but the full committee is likely to vote for a lower figure, the sources said.

The two panels are taking the first steps in the long process of preparing next year's defense budget. The spending bills which pass the committees and are later approved on the floor will have to be reconciled in a House-Senate conference committee.

For the current fiscal year, Congress has approved $2.75 billion in Pentagon SDI spending and another $280 million in Energy Department projects.

Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger appealed to Congress on Thursday to support Reagan's budget and repeated his argument that increases are needed to meet the Soviet military build-up.

Former bank president says he will appeal

MIDLAND, Texas (AP) — A former Bank of the West president said he will appeal guilty verdicts of embezzlement, misapplication of bank funds and making false entries in bank records.

Bill Tapp, who remained free on bond, heard a jury return guilty verdicts on 10 of 12 counts after more than three hours of deliberations Thursday.

Sentencing is scheduled for July 16 before U.S. District Judge Lucius Bunton of Midland. Tapp faces a maximum 50 years in prison and $50,000 in fines, assistant U.S. attorney Jim Blankinship said.

Before sending jurors off to deliberate, prosecutors had asked the panel to "seek the truth and follow the laws."

"Without them (the laws), we would allow the Bill Tapps of the world to go into these banks and play with other people's money," assistant U.S. attorney Tom McHugh of El Paso said during final arguments Thursday in Tapp's trial.

Prosecutors portrayed the former Odessa banker as a man whose alleged criminal actions betrayed bank customers' trust, while defense attorneys tried to show the banker himself was a victim of misplaced trust in a friend.

Three bank directors, including former Odessa Mayor Bob Bryant, testified Wednesday that their initials approving a $34,000 loan handled by Tapp had not been signed by them.

That loan made to D&M Pipe & Supply was used to purchase $26,000 of pipe from Tapp's business, Falcon Tubular Services, according to trial testimony.

Tapp denied three other charges that he owned undisclosed stock in Donco Services Inc., an Odessa pipe inspection company that received 10 loans from Bank of the West with Tapp acting as loan officer.

THE TRADITION DRIVES US!

In 1866, a historic occurrence took place in Texas. The Civil war had just ended, and the country was starved for good, fresh beef. An enormous cattle drive, which was to endure through 1885 commenced from San Antonio and ended at the rail head in Abilene. It was the beginning of the national demand for Texas Beef, and the legends and stories concerning the old Chisolm Trail have lived on throughout the years. Furr's is proud of that heritage, and even prouder to present to our shoppers the original "genuine article"; Texas grown, Texas raised beef — tender, succulent, full of flavor, and steeped in tradition. Texas Beef — raised by Texans, for Texans — a Furr's exclusive!

Expert: everyone can learn music

CHICAGO (AP) — There is no such thing as being too young or too old to participate in music, says Dr. Frank R. Wilson, a neurologist and assistant clinical professor of neurology at the University of California School of Medicine, San Francisco.

"Humans are 'born musicians,'" he says, "because we all have the neurological and muscular capability to develop musical skills."

Wilson, who is also a special consultant to the American Music Conference based in Chicago, is a leading authority on the relationship between the brain and an individual's capacity to play a musical instrument.

He first became interested in music and its connection to neuromuscular control when he noticed his daughter's progress on the piano. "I realized that a remarkable physical and mental evolution was taking place in her which I couldn't account for," he says.

After several years of reviewing results of research on the brain's control of skilled movements and concluding that virtually everyone has the potential for developing musical skills, Wilson began taking piano lessons at the age of 40.

"I felt terribly clumsy during the first few months, but knew that I should see results by the end of the first year," he says. "I wasn't disappointed."

Another of Wilson's conclusions, discussed in his recently published book, "Tone Deaf and All Thumbs?: an Invitation to Music-Making for Late Bloomers and Non-Prodigies," is that there is "very little to distinguish the serious musician from the serious athlete."

The only difference between the two from a physical standpoint, he says, is that musicians are developing the smaller muscles of the body — especially those of the hands and mouth — and that they rely on their hearing more than on their vision.

"The one difference that really does count is the effect of age," he says. "Time is on the musicians' side. They can look forward to continued maturation and refinement of their skills well beyond the age at which even the most durable football or basketball player has retired to the sidelines."

"The key to success in musical studies, as in sports, is having the right goals," he explains.

Dear Abby

Perfect gift requires few dollars but lots of sense

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1986 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I hope you print this real soon so we can get the response from other people. I know you probably won't agree with me, but I am being realistic. It's June, the time for wedding gifts. I think it is a very good estimate that about half of the gifts will never be used.

I have decided that unless I know what a couple needs, I am going to send money. It may be only $5, but it can be put toward something the newlyweds need and will use.

I will never send another gift out of town because it usually doesn't get there on time, and it is too much trouble to wrap and mail.

A card with a check in it is much easier, and will be appreciated just as much — maybe more. This may sound like a tacky idea to some people, but most couples I've talked to agree with me.

So, Abby, tell your readers if they want to give a gift that will be definitely used, to send money.

SMART GIFT GIVER DEAR SMART: Much would depend upon the circumstances of the giver, and the recipients. Common sense should be the key. To give a struggling young couple who are trying to make ends meet a sterling silver pickle fork seems thoughtless to me. But to assume that all young couples are devoid of sentiment and prefer cash is presumptuous.

Moreover, it's the privilege of the givers to give whatever they wish. Some are more comfortable buying a $10 gift that looks like $25 than sending the couple $10.

DEAR ABBY: I have a very fine son who is married to a lovely girl.

For 15 years she called me nothing. When she addressed me, she merely looked at me and made her statement. About a month ago, she started calling me "Shirley" — my given name.

I am not comfortable with this kind of familiarity. I am her mother-in-law — not her girlfriend. Though I care for her deeply, I feel that she is showing me no respect when she calls me Shirley. I do not like it. I never really liked it when she called me nothing, but I like it even less now that she's calling me Shirley. I prefer that she go back to calling me nothing.

I must tell her before it gets to be a habit she can't break, as it is rubbing me the wrong way. Would I be wrong to tell her?

CALL ME NOTHING

DEAR CALL ME: You would be wrong not to tell her. But tell her soon — and in a friendly, non-critical way. It will require some gumption on your part, but it beats being rubbed the wrong way.

(Getting married? Send for Abby's new, updated, expanded booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send your name and address clearly printed with a check or money order for $2.50 and a long, stamped (39 cents) envelope to: Dear Abby, Wedding Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.)

Kaysi and Alicia have become good friends through participating in pageants, their parents say. They both are now eligible to compete in the state finals in Denton. (Special photo)

Gena on Genealogy

By GENA WALLS

Are you a first generation Texan or possibly a sixth? As early as 1830 TEXAS had more than 20,000 Americans living within its boundaries, as well as many French, Spanish and Mexican citizens.

Often, particularly immediately following the Civil War, people moving to Texas changed their name. It is difficult, but not impossible to locate them. If you have an unusual Christian name, check for it first and look at least two generations to allow for children to carry the family name forward. During this time it was an unspoken rule that no one was asked questions relating to the past and this appealed to a large number of people wanting to rebuild their lives following the war.

An excellent source for information is the Clayton Library for Genealogical Research, 5300 Caroline St., Houston, 77004. The staff cannot do the research for you but will send a list of persons willing to search and a brief summary of what material is available. Remember, for a reply you must send a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Fort Worth has a branch of the National Archives. For information from this, write Chief, Archives Branch, Federal Archives and Records Center, 4900 Hemphill St., P.O. Box 6216, Fort Worth, 76115. If you plan to visit the archives, write for their booklet "Getting Started: Beginning Your Genealogical Research in the National Archives."

Amarillo Public Library has a variety of microfilm and printed material. Its staff is helpful to the beginning genealogist. When visiting, take along a lineage chart and family group sheets for ready reference. If your family has lived in the area for several generations you might consider joining the Amarillo Genealogical Society, P.O. Box 2171, Amarillo, 79101.

Pampa's library has a good start on their genealogical material. They would welcome your contributions. Do you have books you no longer need? Someone might benefit from them and any donations to the library can be used as an income tax deduction.

PUT YOUR THINKING CAPS ON. It's time for a TECAT quiz on Pampa sports trivia:

1. This county commissioner holds the Harvester record for most consecutive free throws made during games.
2. This former Harvester athlete threw the javelin for a Southwest Conference school, although he never picked one up in high school.
3. This Pampa HS golfer was beaten by Nancy Lopez in a high school meet.
4. This National Football League head coach told Randy Matson: "I don't care how many Olympic gold medals you've won, I want you off the practice field when we're working."
5. This former Pampa Oiler got the lone base hit in the major league record game for the fewest hits by both teams in a nine-inning game.
6. This former Harvester basketball scored 21 points for the North team in the Texas HS All-Star game, a total surpassed by only nine other players in the 41 games played.
7. And this Harvester scored 19, a total bested by only 16 others.
8. This former Harvester athlete was a college roommate of golfing tour professional Miller Barber.
9. This football coach was the first former PHS coach named to the Texas High School Coaches Association Hall of Honor.
10. This former Pampa Oiler went on to have a successful 20-year career in the major leagues. And now, let's see how you did.
 1. Sam Condo, Roberts County commissioner, hit 42 free throws in a row, before nearly breaking the backboard when he missed his first attempt in the second period at Lubbock Monterey 2-5-57. Prior to that he had 12 straight vs. Amarillo HS, 14 at Palo Duro, and 16 against Borger (and that was before the bonus FT was heard of). The national record at the time was 44 straight. It's now 126.
 2. Don Ayres, who was a fine basketballer at PHS, turned to track and field and the javelin while a student at Texas A&M in order to become a roommate of high school friend Randy Matson. Ayres is now a banker in Baton Rouge, La.
 3. Harvester golfer Greg White, playing in a high school tournament at Andrews in the 1976-77 season, lost to Nancy Lopez, representing Albuquerque's Goddard HS, by one stroke. Lopez has won about all women's pro honors available. Harvester golf coach at the time was Deck Woltdt.
 4. New St. Louis Cardinal

Coach Gene Stallings, then in his first season as head man at Texas A&M, ran Randy Matson and his teammates off Practice Field No. 10, used by football and also the school's discus throwers. The temperate action by Stallings caused Matson to announce he was leaving the College Station school. But cooler heads intervened and worked out a truce between the two sports programs.

5. Former Pampa Oiler Louis "Slick" Johnson blooped a double down the rightfield line in the seventh inning of the Sept. 9, 1965 game in which teammate Sandy Koufax pitched a perfect game in beating the Chicago Cubs, 1-0. The lone run was attributed to Johnson, who walked in the fifth inning, was sacrificed to second, stole third and continued home on catcher Chris Krug's bad throw. Bob Hendley was the losing pitcher for the Cubs.

6. Mike Nelson, now a member of Gerald Myers' Texas Tech Raider team, led the North team to victory in the 1983 Coaches School game with 21 points, on seven field goals and seven free throws.

7. And Jimmie Bond tallied seven field goals and five free throws in the 1954 game. Despite his effort, and that of tall Temple Tucker of Bowie, who scored 20, the South beat the North, 61-60.

8. Pampa attorney Malcolm Douglass, then a member of the Texas A&M golf team, was a roommate of Miller Barber. Barber, who recently became the second golfer on the Senior Tour to reach the million dollar mark in winnings, couldn't hack (pardon the expression) the grades at A&M and transferred to an Oklahoma school at mid-term his second year. Douglass was an outstanding basketball player for Clifton McNeely at PHS.

9. Buck Prejean, now deceased, was named to the Hall of Honor in 1973, with a class that included L.S. McConachie, Austin; Morris Southall, Brownwood; Chatter Allen, Corpus Christi; B.L. Blackburn, Abilene; and Emil Hanicak, Pine Tree. Prejean, then listed from Tyler, was the Harvester's head coach in 1941 and 1942, compiling an excellent 14-5-1 record.

10. No, it wasn't Warren Hacker. It was Ed Sudol, who played first base-outfield for the 1952 Oilers. He hit .293 with 21 home runs and 83 runs batted in. He was sold after the season, and spent the winter at umpiring school. He began his umpiring career the next season, eventually working his way onto the National League staff, where he labored 20 seasons. He is now retired and living in Florida.

Randy's rally past Pulse

Randy's Food Store came from behind for a 22-12 victory over Taylor Pulse Brothers in a little league girls' softball game Thursday night.

Randy's won the first-half title with a perfect record while Warner-Horton is the second-half leader with one week remaining in the regular season.

Winning pitcher was Kerri Barr while Shannon Harper took the loss.

Randy's was trailing 12-2 when they scored 19 runs in the bottom of the fourth inning. Susan Thornton was the starting pitcher for Randy's, then Kasey Bowers took over. Barr came in and finished the game.

Susan Thornton was Randy's leading hitter with four hits in four times at bat. Other top hitters for Randy's were Dori Garcia, 3-3; Keri Barr, 3-3; Kasey Bowers, 2-3; Nickie Ryan, 2-2; Joy Cambern, 2-4, and Jennifer Wells, 3-3.

Jerrie Douglas was the leading hitter for Pulse with three hits in four times at bat. Kilyn Shelton was one for one and Shannon Harper was one for two.

Brooke Hamby played outstanding defense.

In tonight's action, Warner-Horton meets Downs at 6:30 p.m. and Utzman plays King at 7:30 p.m.

Mariners stumped by Candiotti's knuckler

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

The term knuckleball is a misnomer. The pitch actually is gripped with the fingernails. But what happens when a knuckleball pitcher splits a nail while warming up?

"I cut my workout short, ran in here, cut the nail off and put some hardener on it," Cleveland's Tom Candiotti said Thursday night. "This kind of crack wasn't so bad, though. Other cracks this year have gone down the nail vertically. This one was across the top of the nail."

Candiotti treated the nail with a solution known as "Hard As Nails." He also has been treating his nails recently with a substance generally not used on humans.

"Right now I'm using something that they use on horses' hooves called 'Hoofmaker.' It's supposed to make them harder," Candiotti said. "I'll try anything."

The cracked nail forced him to use the tip of his index finger, rather than the nail, to grip the ball.

"Maybe it's not a fingernail ball after all. It seemed to work," he said.

It worked to the tune of a five-hit 8-1 victory over the Seattle Mariners, Candiotti's fifth complete game of the season.

Elsewhere in the American League, Texas nipped Oakland 3-2, Toronto outlasted New York 10-9 in 10 innings, Detroit downed Baltimore 7-5 and Chicago outslugged Minnesota 9-8. Boston, California, Kansas City and Milwaukee were not scheduled.

Rangers 3, A's 2

Rookie Edwin Correa pitched a four-hitter and Steve Buechele and Oddie McDowell homered as Texas ended a five-game losing streak and retained undisputed possession of first place in the AL West, one game ahead of idle California.

The 20-year-old Correa had a shutout until the eighth when Dusty Baker doubled, took third on an infield out and scored on Alfredo Griffin's bunt.

Blue Jays 10, Yankees 9

Damaso Garcia doubled to score Willie Upshaw from second base in the 10th inning. Upshaw, who hadn't homered since the third game of the season but hit a three-run shot in the second inning, opened the 10th with a single off Yankee relief ace Dave Righetti. Buck Martinez's sacrifice bunt was fielded by first baseman Don Mattingly, whose throw to second was late. Garcia then drilled his game-winning hit over the head of center fielder Ricky Henderson, sending the Yankees to their fifth straight loss.

Tigers 7, Orioles 5

Pinch hitter Darrell Evans singled home the tying and lead runs in the eighth inning and Lou Whitaker added a two-run homer.

Crenshaw hopes for new beginning

AUSTIN (AP) — Golfer Ben Crenshaw hopes the final round of the U.S. Open was the beginning of a new period in his career.

For the first time in 1 1/2 years, his name was back on the leader board and the 1984 Masters champion again was in contention for a tournament title.

And although Raymond Floyd eventually won, Crenshaw is pleased that his game finally seems to have returned.

"I'm really very proud of the way I played. It was like I remembered how to do it," said Crenshaw, who returned home Tuesday after finishing in a tie for third at Shinnecock Hills.

"Sure, I was disappointed not to win when I had the chance. But I made a bunch of little mistakes and you just can't do that," Crenshaw said.

Still, Crenshaw played well. But why? He had won less than $40,000 coming into the tournament and hadn't been a factor this year.

Apparently, the effects of a thyroid problem — which caused him to lose weight and energy — continued to hamper him earlier, despite his taking medication since January. And his confidence probably wasn't at an all-time high going in, although Shinnecock Hills is one of his favorite courses.

The Crenshaw comeback may have started two weeks ago, when he quit taking medication to control the thyroid problem.

Since January, Crenshaw had taken 40 milligrams of Inderal a day, supplementing that for almost five months with Propylthiouracil. Two months ago, Crenshaw went to St. David's Community Hospital in Austin and took radioactive iodine. He quit taking Propylthiouracil then, and with his thyroxin level dropping he quit taking Inderal two weeks ago.

Crenshaw isn't sure whether the medicine affected his game, but after chipping two shots close during the final round, he's got more confidence in his short game.

"I had a long thought that the medicine had affected my nerves. I wasn't shaky or dull. It was like I had no feel," he said. "I could hit the ball well, got my dis-stance back, was thinking clearly. But my short game was giving me problems."

Another reason for success may be the different grip he put on his putter, he says.

His schedule for next month includes the Canadian Open and another tournament — the Hartford or Anheuser-Busch — and then the British Open at Turnberry, Scotland.

Stunned sports world awaits Bias autopsy

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP)—While a stunned sports world awaited the result of an autopsy on Len Bias, reports indicated the University of Maryland basketball All-American may have used cocaine before he died of an apparent heart attack.

Bias, 22, collapsed in his dormitory room Thursday morning, less than two days after the NBA champion Boston Celtics made him the No. 2 overall pick in the annual league draft.

Both the Baltimore Sun and the Boston Globe, in today's editions, quoted sources as saying Bias may have used cocaine or another drug in the hours preceding his death.

The 6-foot-8 forward was pronounced dead at 8:50 a.m., EDT, at Leland Memorial Hospital in nearby Riverdale, after two hours of unsuccessful attempts to revive him. His body was taken to the Maryland medical examiner's office in Baltimore for an autopsy.

Dr. John Smialek, the chief state medical examiner, estimated a complete report would take several days and said his office would not release a preliminary finding. But Dr. Yale Kaplan, a toxicologist with the office, said: "we may know something" by noon today.

Kaplan told the Associated Press that "cocaine has multiple mechanisms that can cause death, either cardiac (heart) or pulmonary (lung) events, but it would not cause heart tissue damage."

Dr. Edward Wilson, chief of emergency services at Leland, said there was "major damage" to Bias' heart but "we don't know what caused the damage."

The Sun quoted Arthur A. Marshall Jr., the Prince George's County State's Attorney, and Dr. John Rogers, the deputy medical examiner for Prince George's and Montgomery counties, as saying that drugs, possibly cocaine, may have been found in Bias' system during the emergency rescue efforts at the hospital.

Marshall said a drug screen conducted on the body "indicates there may have been drugs," while Rogers was quoted as saying urine tests showed "a trace" of a by-product of a drug that could have been cocaine.

Bob Law, a spokesman for Prince George's County police, said authorities were awaiting the autopsy results to determine the cause of death and whether drugs were involved. He said it could take as long as a week to determine the exact cause of death.

The Globe quoted Celtics President Red Auerbach as saying he was told by Maryland Coach Lefty Driesell that Bias probably used cocaine, perhaps for the first time, at a Thursday morning party.

Auerbach said Driesell called him Thursday afternoon to say authorities told him there were traces of cocaine in Bias' urine.

"He (Driesell) understood that Bias was out someplace, had a couple of beers with his friends and came back to the dormitory," Auerbach was quoted as saying. "Some guy, another student, joined the party and allegedly said, 'Come on, let's have a real celebration.'"

With that, the Globe said, the student allegedly produced the cocaine.

Driesell answered no questions during an emotional news conference, but Athletic Director Dick Dull, when asked about the reports of cocaine use by Bias, said: "I don't believe in unnamed sources. It would be premature to speculate."

Dull said the school had performed routine drug tests on Bias and other members of the team and "we've never had absolutely any kind of indication that there was excess of alcohol or any kind of drug involvement by Lenny Bias."

Chris Patton, one of two Maryland basketball players who died within 10 months of one another a decade ago — of a rupture of the aorta — was diagnosed as having Marfan syndrome, a congenital disease that weakens the body's connective tissue. That affliction, which also killed U.S. Olympic volleyball star Flo Hyman earlier this year, is most often found in tall, thin people.

Frank Grimaldi, noting Bias was in top physical shape, said: "I'd be willing to bet he had 30 to 50 physicals in the last month. The NBA is very careful about the players they're drafting."

Celtics General Manager Jan Volk declined to say if Bias was tested for drugs during his physical examination, but Volk added, "If it (the report of cocaine usage) is true, I would be shocked."

Regardless of his physical shape, Bias collapsed at about 6:30 a.m., in the presence of Terry Long, a former Maryland teammate who tried to revive him with cardio-pulmonary resuscitation. The procedure was continued on the 1½-mile ambulance trip to the hospital.

"The heart was stimulated by chemical and pacemaker means," Wilson said. "There was no response. The heart was not pumping, and the lungs were not working."

"We'll always consider him a member of the Celtics' family," said Auerbach, who called Bias the best athlete in the recent draft.

OU-Miami rematch scheduled by CBS

NEW YORK (AP)—A rematch between defending national champion Oklahoma and Miami of Florida plus two Notre Dame games are among the college football contests CBS-TV will televise nationally this fall.

The network announced six of its TV games Wednesday, with the rest of the schedule to be determined 12 days in advance. The announcement includes the games for September, plus three games on the final two weekends of the season.

The first CBS telecast will be Ohio State at Washington on Sept. 13, with the time to be announced later.

On Sept. 20 at 1:30 p.m. CDT, CBS will show Notre Dame, under new head coach Lou Holtz, at Michigan State, which features junior Lorenzo White, the nation's leading rusher in 1985.

Miami was the only team to beat Oklahoma last year and the Sooners get a chance to avenge that setback when they visit the Hurricanes on Sept. 27 for a 2:30 p.m. CDT game. Miami quarterback Vinny Testaverde and Michigan State's White are considered among the pre-season favorites in the Heisman Trophy race.

Young photographer battles cystic fibrosis

BY LINNEA SCHLOBOHM
The Baytown Sun

BAYTOWN, Texas (AP) — For every student who receives a high school diploma, graduation is a mark of accomplishment. For some, however, the achievement compares to scaling Mount Everest — to standing atop a mountain peak that at times seemed unreachable.

Kevin Hendon, who graduated last month from Ross S. Sterling High School, is one of those people.

He has cystic fibrosis and at 18 has already outlived many of his fellow sufferers of the inherited disease which clogs the lungs with mucus and ultimately makes breathing impossible.

Kevin Hendon is dying. He is also living — and doing it with determination and grand style.

When Kevin was diagnosed — at 17 months — of having CF, doctors told his parents that he would probably not live to school age.

Rather than accept what seemed like the inevitable, Ann and Jerry Hendon vowed to fight as hard as they could to keep Kevin alive.

In the process, the couple infused Kevin with an inner strength which today enables him to continue fighting and winning against incredible odds.

Every day of Kevin's life includes two or three periods of therapy and extensive doses of medication. He takes approximately 53 pills each day, 371 per week and 19,345 per year. He fights pain and bouts of depression.

During his four years of high school, Kevin was absent for more than one-fourth of the time, not including extended periods of hospitalization when he received homebound instruction.

"Living" has to be sandwiched in between being kept alive.

Yet, Kevin graduated in the top quarter of his class. He has also been a photographer for the student literary magazine, "Piece of Mind," and been named to Who's Who Among High School Students in America.

During his sophomore year, Kevin received the Key of Courage award from the RSS Key Club and this year was named as the school's recipient of the national "I Dare You" leadership award, which recognizes excellence in character, well-balanced personal development and leadership potential.

RSS Principal Ed Wachtel, who presented the award, said, "Kevin has been uplifting and motivating to all of us."

Wachtel said the "I Dare You" award recipient is nominated by faculty members and selected by a committee of teachers, counselors and assistant principals.

Normally, he said, approximately 20 students are nominated for the award. This year, however, Wachtel said Kevin was the almost unanimous choice of the RSS faculty.

Ann Hendon said she felt Kevin deserved some kind of recognition for the courage he has displayed throughout his high school years.

"I knew if there was an award he should get it. When it came true it was wonderful — gravy!" his mother said.

In raising a child with CF, Mrs. Hendon said there is a fine line between preserving life at any cost and maintaining "quality" life.

"When we first learned Kevin had CF we were devastated," she said. "But I guess we have a lot of bulldog tenacity."

Evidence that Kevin was absorbing his parents' determination surfaced early in his life. One day while driving the Baytown tunnel on the way to treatment in Houston, Mrs. Hendon said to her son, who was then in elementary school, "Does it bother you that you can't do what other kids do?"

His instant reply was, "There's not anything they can do that I can't."

Over the years Kevin has proved he can do plenty — and do it well.

His interest in photography began in the eighth grade. Although he photographs a wide range of subjects, sports photography interests him most.

"I'm good at it," he said. During his sophomore year, a creative writing class was the catalyst for bringing out the poet in Kevin.

At first he was reluctant to share his poetry and once took many of his poems into the backyard and burned them — and act he now regrets.

No longer ashamed to call himself a poet, Kevin said he now has 150 poems stored on computer disks.

In addition to writing poetry, Kevin has developed an intense interest in music.

Forced by his illness to spend much of his life in the company of adults, Kevin said that in music he has found a force which ties him to his peers.

Among his favorites is Eddie Van Halen's "Get Up," which includes the lines "Feel like throwing in the towel, don't be a fool... There ain't no power around can keep a good man down... Hold your head up high, look 'em in the eye, never say die, get up and make it work."

The lines could be Kevin's theme song. He not only manages to maintain his own positive attitude most of the time, but encourages and inspires those around him.

As a project for his senior psychology class Kevin wrote a speech chronicling his fight against CF. When Kevin had finished his presentation, one of his fellow classmates passed him a note which said, in part, "Your courage gives me the strength to go forward."

Going forward is what Kevin does best.

He perseveres in spite of numerous surgeries to correct physical problems that arise as CF takes its toll on his body.

In his psychology class speech, Kevin told his friends, "I now stand before you, a year and three months past my fourth surgery, still alive, still hoping and still fighting."

He perseveres in spite of the heartache he endures knowing that finding that special girl, that someone who can love but not pity someone with a terminal illness, may be an unreachable dream.

"My worst fear in life," Kevin said, "is that of dying alone, not being loved by someone."

He perseveres, sometimes incredibly lonely, but never really alone.

Behind him stand two parents who were determined their son should live and not merely exist.

At the banquet where Kevin received the "I Dare You" award, Jerry Hendon told the audience, "Throughout the years, a lot of time was devoted to fighting cystic fibrosis...his physical health has deteriorated...but together we have triumphed."

What does Jerry Hendon want for his son in the future?

"I want him to continue to work through the ups and downs so he can cope. I want him to have the ability as the disease progresses to continue to cope as well as he has."

Having come this far, Kevin has no plans yet to concede the battle.

He plans to study photography at the Houston Art Institute with a goal of somebody having his own portrait studio.

"I look to the future, never forget my dreams and fight like hell to make them come true," he said.
