Commissioners 'lay up' on golf course issue

BY DAN MURRAY
Staff Writer

The Gray County Commissioners approached the Pampa Public Golf Course issue Tuesday like golfers trying to decide whether to lay up or go for the green.

The commissioners, citing a 74 percent public vote in favor of a municipal golf course, wanted to cast a binding vote committing the county to aiding in the construction of the course. Then again, they didn't — not without more information on how much it would cost.

In the end of a meeting that involved Pampa Public Golf Association President Buddy Epperson and stretched into the afternoon, the commissioners voted to do a cost and feasibility study before actually binding themselves to aid in the course's construction.

"Do we want to vote to implicate ourselves in it or do we want to vote to get more information on it?" Commissioner O.L. Presley asked.

"We need to formally go on the record as to whether we are or aren't (going to aid in the course's construction)," County Judge Carl Kennedy said, but the commissioners still held reservations about the cost.

"I'd rather see the cost before I voted," Commissioner Ronnie Rice said, and the court eventually agreed that that was the thing to do.

"We motion to solicit proposals from prospective project directors to construct the course according to the plan they (the PPGA) already have," read the motion that was passed unanimously.

"We want a shopping list as to what we're going to provide, what they (the course builders) are going to provide and what it's going to cost," Kennedy said afterward.

The golf course discussion began with Commissioner Ted Simmons suggesting that the county accept the land deed, build the course, then deed the land to PPGA.

"I don't mind getting it going, then let's get out,"

Simmons said.

But Presley said, "If we do it then deed it back to 'em, we're deeding taxpayers' money to individuals with no compensation."

Epperson, who said he firmly believes the course will pay its own way once constructed, said the county could keep the property and give the commissioners court the final say on any post-construction county aid.

"I want to have the county keeping track to make sure we're doing a good job," Epperson said.

But Rice said, "I don't have any problems with building it, but I don't want to see the county strapped with the golf course from here on."

"If you're going to get rid of something you need to do it clean," Kennedy said. "We are fearful of the ongoing cost of annual operations."

Kennedy said he thought the county could legally deed the course to the PPGA since it's a non-profit organization, but the commissioners will check on that before voting again.

They'll also solicit cost proposals from several golf course builders and make sure the city of Pampa can actually provide proper irrigation water from the treated sewage water it has offered to donate.

Epperson told the court many of the construction items, such as irrigation pipe and sand, would probably be donated, but that won't happen until the county affirms that it will aid in the course's construction.

"The whole future of this project depends on this," Epperson said.

In other action, the court approved a contract with Pampa Medical Service that will not increase the $4,360 monthly subsidy the county pays, but will increase patient costs.

PMS will now charge $195 for advanced life support runs (up from $141.70), $117.50 for basic life support runs (up from $85), and $3.50 for mileage, a $1 increase.

Contra aid vote hailed by Boulter

By LARRY HOLLIS
Staff Writer

Calling the House of Representatives' vote in favor of aid to the Nicaraguan Contras "the most important thing we did last week," U.S. Rep. Beau Boulter said the action will help in the battle against communism in Central and South America.

Addressing a Pampa Chamber of Commerce Legislative Affairs Committee luncheon Tuesday, Rep. Boulter, who is seeking his second term, said the Contras "are the first line of defense against communism" in Central America.

Noting there has been probably nothing more divisive in the House during his first term in Washington, Boulter said the congressmen finally reached the conclusion to support the Contras after the Sandinistas had shown their unwillingness to negotiate any settlement.

Boulter said the Sandinistas gained power in Nicaragua in "legitimate revolution by a gun barrel." But the problem is, he said, "that's the way they're still leading the nation — by a gun barrel."

Sandinista leader Daniel Ortega is an avowed communist who has publicly stated that he will export communism to other nations, Boulter said. And that has created a security problem for the United States, he claimed, by posing the possibility of having a number of communist nations south of its borders.

Boulter said reconnaissance photographs have shown that Nicaragua has been building airports for fighter planes and constructing a deep-water harbor for large ships and submarines, all to provide bases for the Soviets.

"Many (in Congress) have wanted to give the Sandinistas the benefit of a doubt," the Republican congressman said. "But we've done that time and time again," only to have the Sandinistas show they are not interested in negotiation, only in a military victory.

Boulter said the House action indicates that the U.S. not only will support budding democracies, but also will not tolerate communistic governments in the American continent.

Saying the U.S. should continue to support the Contra "freedom fighters," Boulter added that "if we don't stand up for freedom, then there's no hope for our children and our grandchildren" because of the growing communist threat to the south.

"I hope we never reach the point where Texas has to stand off the flood of immigrants and refugees fleeing the communist governments' south of the state," he stated.

The other significant action

REP. BEAU BOULTER

taken in the House last week was approval of a budget, Boulter said.

Boulter said the budget approval was a bipartisan effort by joint resolution, though differences still have "to be ironed out" in House and Senate conferences.

He said one of the best things about the budget was the restoration of $292 billion for defense, a matter that had previously seen serious cutbacks.

Boulter said he feels the public "wants the Pentagon to shape up" and Congress to pass re-

High court backs affirmative action

Administration's position rejected

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Supreme Court, handing civil rights forces a sweeping victory, today reaffirmed the legality of affirmative action in the American workplace to remedy past discrimination against blacks and other minorities.

The court's latest word on affirmative action came in two rulings.

In one, the justices approved a plan in Cleveland that reserves about half the promotions in the city's fire department for qualified minority candidates.

In the other, the court upheld a ruling that a union representing sheet metal workers in New York and New Jersey must significantly raise its non-white membership by August 1987.

The rulings represent a major defeat for the Reagan administration, which sought to limit on-the-job racial preferences.

By a 6-3 vote in the sheet metal workers case, the court rejected the administration's position that only actual victims of discrimination may benefit from court-ordered affirmative action remedies.

The justices said that more sweeping remedies do not violate federal civil rights laws or the Constitution's equal-protection guarantees.

Justice William J. Brennan, in the court's main opinion, said, "We hold that (federal law) does not prohibit a court from ordering, in appropriate circumstances, affirmative race-conscious relief as a remedy for past discrimination."

Writing for the court's 6-3 majority in the Cleveland case, Brennan said agreements between employers and minority groups may provide racial preferences even more extensive than a federal court would have awarded after a trial.

He said such agreements do not amount to unlawful "reverse discrimination" against white males.

Preachers protest 'spirit of Hitler'

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP)—The Rev. W.N. Otwell told 200 supporters rallying against state officials in a boys home licensing battle that, "The spirit of Hitler is ruling the state of Texas."

The minister held the rally at the Tarrant County Courthouse on Tuesday despite Attorney General Jim Mattox postponing until Aug. 5 the sale of property of Community Baptist Church, which operates Otwell's unlicensed boys home.

At the rally, supporters sang hymns and waved signs, one of which declared, "Let God's People Go."

"We must stand here," Otwell said. "Even if it means death we must stand. Even if it means imprisonment we must stand."

Otwell says he will not leave the property even if it is sold. The property was ordered auctioned off to pay about $14,000 in fines that have accrued against the home for operating without a state license, state officials said.

The auction was postponed because part of the buildings up for sale extended onto other church-owned lots, and the court order had to be rewritten to extend the sale to those lots. The sale now is to include all church property, including the sanctuary, officials said.

About a dozen Fort Worth police officers and Tarrant County sheriff's deputies stood back from the crowd and across East Weatherford Street.

Some out-of-state ministers, including the Rev. Everett Sileven of Louisville, Neb., stood on the courthouse steps with Otwell. Sileven served several months in prison during a nationally publicized church-state battle over his unlicensed church school.

Nebraska laws no longer require church-sponsored schools to be licensed.

Norman Want, of Lufkin, dragged a 14-foot cross to the courthouse steps and stood before Otwell.

"We're praying this will be a sign to the people Jesus still lives and the church still lives," he said.

It's full speed ahead for Liberty bash

Lady Liberty awaits unveiling

NEW YORK (AP)—Workmen put the finishing touches on the Statue of Liberty for the big weekend bash as more tall ships glided into view and businesses overlooking New York Harbor reported customers swarming in.

"We're jammed," Dennis Starr, vice president of The Liberty Cafe in the South Street Seaport facing the harbor, said Tuesday evening as noise bubbled around him at the restaurant.

"There's no doubt the celebration is contributing to the increase in business," which was about 25 percent above normal, he said.

At the Vista International Hotel at the World Trade Center, also in lower Manhattan, assistant manager Luis Rosario said his business was "fantastic. It's going to be a madhouse. We've been sold out."

Now through Sunday, all 825 rooms are reserved.

At the Hilton Hotel in midtown, rooms were booked solid for Friday, and the availability of rooms for Thursday and Saturday "looks sort of iffy," said Robert Fischer, the night manager.

The big bash came closer Tuesday as the aircraft carrier John F. Kennedy, flanked by six tugs and two police boats, made its way into the harbor and dropped anchor halfway between Liberty Island and Governors Island.

The carrier will be a floating reviewing stand for the news media during the centennial observances of the statue.

Refurbishing of the statue, which began three years ago, is almost finished, National Park Service spokesman Manny Strumpf said. Workers on Liberty Island were doing some minor landscaping, touch-up painting and stone cleaning, he said.

President Reagan is to unveil the statue with a laser light show Thursday night, kicking off a July Fourth weekend celebration that is expected to attract 13 million people.

It also includes what is billed as the largest fireworks display in the nation's history. More than 20 tall ships, followed by more than 250 smaller sailing ships from around the world, will take part in a Parade of Sail up the Hudson River on Friday.

The National Weather Service predicted rain for today, but clearing Thursday and sunny and clear through Friday.

The Canadian tall ship Bluenose II sailed into the harbor to its berth at South Street Seaport on Tuesday, and the Philadelphia ship Gazela — the oldest of the tall ships at 103 years — was en route.

Another tall ship, the Shabab Oman, navigated through Long Island Sound to the Flushing Marina near Shea Stadium, said Operation Sail 1986 spokesman Gordon Lattey.

Also Tuesday, Lee Iacocca, chairman of the Liberty-Ellis Island Foundation, announced that the money is still rolling in as the fund-raising drive for the two islands has surpassed its $265 million goal by $12 million.

Attorney says statistics fail to prove no-pass rule biased

HOUSTON (AP)—Statistics on the racial breakdown of the state's schools is not enough to prove that the controversial no-pass rule is discriminatory, a special master in a lawsuit challenging the law testified.

But attorney Gerald Treece said statistics collected from school districts statewide pointed to an "imbalance" of more minority and handicapped students being excluded from school activities.

Treece, who served as special master over a five-month period, said in a hearing Tuesday he received responses from 700 of the 1,000 school districts in the state. He was released from duty as special master at his request after turning over the statistical data and boxes of the original questionnaires to the court.

The lawsuit against the statute, which prohibits high school students who fail a course from participating in extracurricular activities during the ensuing six weeks, is set for July 16 on the claim that the law discriminates against handicapped and minority children.

The latest figures gathered by Treece, a South Texas School of Law dean, involved 1.2 million students. His figures showed 29 percent of handicapped children, 23 percent of black students and 22 percent of Mexican-American students were excluded by the law from participating in school activities compared with 15 percent of Anglos.

Treece told State District Judge Marsha Anthony that his initial attempts to gather statistics from the districts "met with significant resistance" because of the expense and time the districts had to invest in collecting the figures.

"I had to spend much time cajoling and begging school districts that would say they'd never submit to the authority of a court in Houston," said Treece, who has not submitted a bill for his services, but said it would amount to "a lot" since he charges $150 an hour.

Treece said the statistics are inadequate to prove a case of discrimination.

"It's a rare case where statistics and imbalance alone are enough to prove an equal protection case," Treece said.

He said the trial will have to expose a historical background of discrimination, specific events that led to the discrimination, any departure from the norm and the legislative history.

"I will agree there is some imbalance between Anglos compared to the handicapped and minorities, but these statistics should only be the beginning of the inquiry, not the end," Treece said.

The judge told attorney Anthony Sheppard, representing the class action suit for the children of Texas, and Assistant Attorney General Kevin O'Hanlon to submit their written briefs by July 16 to answer the questions of whether the lawsuit should be decertified as class action and whether statistics would prove "invidious discrimination."

"I want this case to be finally and fully finished," said Ms. Anthony, a former school-teacher. "The people and children of this state need this case adjudicated."

American, Soviet officials appear optimistic on summit

WASHINGTON (AP)—American and Soviet officials are talking publicly about meeting to make arrangements for a summit between President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev, but both sides say specific plans for a preparatory session have yet to be completed.

A top Soviet government minister drew a warm response from U.S. officials Tuesday when he said "the Soviet Union has proposed to the United States to set up a preparatory mechanism for such a meeting."

But Deputy Foreign Minister Vladimir F. Petrovsky, who made the comment at a Moscow news conference, added that his government wants a meeting between the two superpower leaders to produce tangible results on curbing nuclear arms.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said he hoped Petrovsky's comments were evidence of a willingness by the Soviets "to move forward to preparations for a summit, which we would like to have."

State Department spokesman Charles E. Redman urged the Soviets to send Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze here to make preparations for the summit, which Reagan and Gorbachev agreed to when they met in Geneva last November.

"Let's get on with it," Redman said.

Discussing Petrovsky's remarks under conditions of anonymity, another U.S. official said the Soviets meant to send another "signal" of their interest in a summit meeting. But, he said, before agreeing to a date the Soviets also were trying to bring pressure on Washington in order to shape the summit agenda in ways that suit their position on arms control.

Yuri Dubinin, the Soviet ambassador also made optimistic comments Tuesday when asked at a White House reception for the diplomatic corps whether a summit would be held.

"We are talking about it," he said.

Asked whether there would be a meeting soon between Secretary of State George P. Shultz and Shevardnadze, Dubinin said, "I don't know exactly, but I hope."

Big Spring hires Mack Wofford

BIG SPRING — Former Pampa city manager Mack Wofford has been hired to assume similar responsibilities in Big Spring on July 15.

The Big Spring City Council met in special session Monday and unanimously approved the hiring of Wofford, 50, who replaces Don Davis, who resigned in March.

Officials said over 100 people applied for the job, which pays $47,500 annually.

Wofford served as city manager in Pampa for 14 years before resigning and starting a consulting business about two years ago.

"We have mixed emotions about leaving Pampa," Wofford said. "The people here have always been very good to us and we've always been proud to call Pampa home."

"However, I feel like this is a great opportunity," he said of the Big Spring job. He said he has been impressed with the city and the apparent community spirit of its people.

Although Wofford will begin his new duties this month, he said his family will probably not move until shortly before the beginning of school.

the court the City of Pampa had agreed to the same increase earlier in the morning, but the increases shouldn't affect area ambulance patients much.

"Even though the rates were increased, 80 percent of it was passed on to the insurance companies. With Ready-Care (a "ambulance insurance" program where individuals pay $39 and families $42 for one-year of ambulance use) available, the public shouldn't have to pay for the increase," Black said.

The commissioners also appointed N.L. "Buddy" Roland constable of Precinct 3, a non-paying position in which he'll patrol Lake McClellan.

In other business:

—Dyess Testing and Laboratory Inc. of Amarillo was awarded a contract for $9,231.55 for field testing for future work at Perry Lefors Airport.

—The Lefors Volunteer Ambulance and Fire Department was awarded $15,000, $10,000 for the ambulance service and $5,000 for the fire department.

—The court approved the $700 sale of a tract of land on Somerville.

—Billy Davis, John Triplehorn and Bill Duncan were appointed to the Texas Farm and Ranch Finance Committee, a board that provides funds to veterans for production of food and fiber.

—Bill Hajek of McLean was given permission to close land ports to retain water.

—Payment of bills and salaries totalling $229,396 was approved.

Boulter speaks

forms to better control defense spending and eliminate waste.

The 13th District congressman did say there was "a big disappointment" with the budget: "It did not terminate one single domestic spending program."

But "that's the way the liberal welfare state operates," Boulter claimed, adding that congressmen, politicians and special interest groups also have to share some responsibility.

Too much of federal government spending is "only a form of buying elections with money," he declared. "And I think it's a shame," saying our children's and grandchildren's future "is being mortgaged away," he said.

Boulter said he thinks the U.S. Supreme Court will destroy the Gramm-Rudman bill calling for automatic budget cutbacks. But even without the court action, there's little chance of major cutbacks occurring, he said.

"Congress rarely — in fact, never — enforces a budget," he said, instead overappropriating funds and then not cutting back on the spending once it is approved.

But if the budget is not enforced 100 percent, if inflation rises and if the economy doesn't grow as predicted, there's a good chance the budget deficit will exceed the $144 billion target in the next budget year, he said.

Boulter said he also supported recent tax reform efforts, though he had opposed the House version as being "anti-family, anti-growth" and punitive to oil and gas industries. The Senate version "is much better... a huge step away from the progressive income tax," he stated.

The average working family "will be much better off," he claimed. But "people who have sheltered income are going to have to start thinking differently," he noted. However, the loss of tax breaks for sheltered income "will be better in the long run," he said, saying much of the money will be poured back into businesses and lead to increased productivity.

Boulter said he doesn't know how the final tax bill will come out since it still has to go to conferences. But he won't support it unless it's more like the Senate version, he said.

"Most people understand we need to do something," he said, and he feels the Senate version is closer to a real tax reform effort.

Boulter also had expressions of the need to do something to improve the ailing state and local economies. He said he has been trying to acquaint others in Congress with "exactly what's going on in our state."

But other states, especially in the East and Midwest, have always looked to Texas "for taxes and cheap energy." And with oil and gas prices going down, "our problem is the rest of the country is loving this" despite the economic problems it is creating for the state, he said.

He said he has been asked to head an Energy Task Force to develop a package of reforms and suggestions to take to President Reagan to seek his support.

Boulter said his first priority is tax incentives for marginal wells. He also would like to see more incentives for research and exploration for new reserves, maintenance of the percentage depletion allowance, repeal of the windfall profits tax and a strong oil import bill.

TEXAS/REGIONAL

Clements: there's no 'secret plan' to fix the state budget

AUSTIN (AP) — Bill Clements has a "blueprint" for solving the state fiscal crisis, but the GOP gubernatorial candidate has no secret plan, according to an aide.

Democratic Gov. Mark White said Clements had left him with the impression that he had a secret plan.

"Bill Clements says he has a plan. I believe the voters of Texas deserve to see his secret plan," White said.

Throughout the spring, as he urged White to call a special legislative session to deal with the cash crisis, Clements said he knew how to make the needed spending cuts. But the Republican candidate would never reveal specifics.

"I'm not going to get into a detailed road map and blueprint of where and how you are going to cut that budget," he told reporters April 1.

"I think the voters understand my modus operandi very, very well. When I tell them that detailed road map will be forthcoming prior to the legislative session of 1987, they believe me, they understand me and I have credibility with them.

"Just like I used to tell my children: Santa Claus will appear on Christmas Day. Christmas is coming. Thanksgiving is coming. And November (election day) is coming," Clements said.

Now, White says he will call a special session as soon as legislative leaders come up with a spending cut plan. And the governor said it is time for Clements "to lay your cards on the table."

But Clements press aide Reggie Bashur said Tuesday that Clements never meant he had a specific plan. What the Republican candidate has is a "blueprint of procedures and techniques he would employ to curb spending in the budget," Bashur said.

Saturday, at the state GOP convention at Dallas, Clements told interviewers, "There's no secret plan. Let's lay that aside. That's nonsense. What we're talking about are very well-known systems of scrubbing the budget and setting priorities."

"There's no secret about it," Clements said.

Bashur said what Clements was talking about in past months was "a plan of action."

White said Clements has led people to believe he did have a secret plan.

"As I recall, Richard Nixon had a secret plan, too," White said. "It's time for Bill Clements to fish or cut bait."

Bashur said the Clements "blueprint" involves each agency setting spending priorities.

"White is trying to stir this up. He (White) has no plan. The budget shortfall time bomb is ticking away and he refuses to accept any responsibility for the whole budget process," Bashur said.

Irrigation legislation needed

AUSTIN (AP) — The 1987 Legislature must do something about a $200 million irrigation program tentatively approved by voters, a Senate subcommittee was told.

"This comes up next year because the bond program was written to expire in 1989 if the Legislature does not act," Dr. Herbert Grubb, director of planning for the Texas Water Development Board, told the Senate Subcommittee on Agriculture Tuesday.

Already under way, he said, is a $5 million pilot program to help Texas farmers and ranchers be more efficient in irrigation methods.

Grubb said the 1985 Legislature passed the constitutional amendment as part of the Texas Water Plan, but did not pass a state law that would put it into effect. The law change must be approved by two-thirds of each house before bonds could be sold for the irrigation improvements.

Sen. Bill Sarpalius, D-Amarillo, chairman of the subcommittee, asked if loans would be available to farmers who want to conserve water by changing from irrigation to dryland farming methods.

Grubb said the legislation creating the pilot program apparently was intended to allow loans for dryland farming as well as brush control but lawyers told them the way the bill was written the loans can be given only for regular irrigation.

"This is something you may want to ask the Legislature to amend as soon as possible to get these programs," Grubb said.

Land Commissioner Garry Mauro told the subcommittee he would not ask for any changes in the new Farm and Ranch Finance Program, which is administered by the Veterans Land Board.

Mauro said his department would begin accepting applications Sept. 1 and "we expect to place the first loan this fall."

Sarpalius asked if Mauro would recommend to the Legislature that the loans be used for operating costs as well as purchase of land.

"I would hope it would always be a land program, like the veterans land program, where the loan is secured by the land," Mauro said.

Cotton Exchange remembered as bustling business center

DALLAS (AP) — The last of the big cotton merchants is moving out of the Cotton Exchange Building, leaving the onetime hub of downtown business with only the memory of the days when it spun a vital thread in the cotton industry.

The exchange was built in 1926, serving as the center for Dallas' thriving cotton industry. But as cotton became less important to the area's economy, occupants moved out.

Bob Poteet, executive vice president of the Texas Cotton Association, one of the building's remaining tenants, remembers visiting the exchange in the late 1950s.

"It was a very bustling place," he said. "When I was growing up in West Texas on a cotton farm I used to hear the growers talk about taking their samples to the Dallas cotton exchange."

The exchange was closed in the mid-1960s when advances in technology meant cotton traders could punch up the markets on desktop computers, Poteet said. "The cotton firms that are here, of course, still operate, but not many of them are left."

Officials with the last big trader, Esteve Brothers & Co., self-described as one of the top 20 merchants in the country, said Monday they will move out to a new building in August.

In its heyday, the cotton exchange floor hummed with activity. Western Union was set up on one side of the floor to transmit the latest information from the New York Cotton Exchange. The information was posted up on a big board and principals from the firms watched the market.

Another wall held a bank of telephones used to give orders to buy or sell.

Poteet credits the decline of cotton's influence in Dallas to technological advancements making it possible to harvest cotton with fewer workers, the boll weevil, imports, synthetic fibers and the development of new grasses making cattle grazing popular in East Texas.

Poteet said Texas cotton output has stayed stable, with the state's crop comprising about one-third of the national total at 4 million bales annually.

"It merely takes less people to handle the bales than it used to," he said.

Synthetics cut into the cotton market during the 1960s and 1970s, but the population expanded, keeping the demand for cotton level, he said.

The natural fiber craze of this decade has boosted domestic demand, he said. In the early 1970s, cotton was used for 29 percent of domestic apparel. Figures released this week show cotton making up 40 percent of all apparel produced in the United States, he said.

Some waterbed suggestions

I'd like to shake the hand of whoever invented the waterbed. Back in the '60s when hippies and flower children were rampant, (Wonder what happened to them. Do you suppose they went to seed?) waterbeds were synonymous with wild orgies and drugs and pot and other such things that fine upstanding people certainly avoided.

However, by the mid '70s, when I was a married, young mother, waterbeds had become more acceptable, at least with young marrieds. My parents definitely put their foot down about waterbeds, declaring that the waves would make them seasick. I didn't care about them much one way or the other. If I thought about them at all it was worrying whether they might fall through the floor and whether I would be kept awake all night by the motion of the water.

When I was carrying my second child, my husband (at the time) plopped on our staid proper, traditional bed and announced that he wanted to buy a waterbed. "A waterbed? Whatever do we need with a waterbed?" I asked him. "We're supposed to be settling down in our old age, (all of 22 and 23) not getting a wild hair."

Trying to convince me, he took me to a furniture store and had me try out a waterbed. I was convinced. Within a week, we had one. I have hardly slept on a conventional bed since.

Waterbeds are wonderful when you're pregnant. They gently rock you and the baby to sleep and the mattress allows for all the extra bumps and bulges. They're a little bit hard to get out of when you get to the late stages, but there's two systems to help. One, you can scoot over to the side until you fall out, or you can get your husband to shove you out. Either way works.

After the baby comes, waterbeds continue to help rock a fussy infant to sleep. I hear they have waterbeds for babies now, but I was never fortunate enough to have one.

Waterbeds are never cold in the winter, as long as the heater is working. For someone whose feet register at 32 degrees or below from September to June, this is a real boon. They can be cool in the summer, too, if you remember to turn the heater down.

I prefer the regular waterbed with the giant plastic bladder (that's what they call it, I promise). The waterbed mattresses that go on conventional bedsteads just don't rock around enough for me. My parents had one that squeaked terribly. (Yes, they finally gave in and got a waterbed.) I have no idea how they stood the noise, but they say they never noticed it.

Here's a few don'ts I've learned about waterbeds over the approximately eight years I've been sleeping on them.

Don't let cats peel out on your waterbed unless you like to patch tiny claw holes that make nice little wet spots on your sheets.

Don't ever put satin sheets and pillow cases on a waterbed and then wear a nylon nightgown to bed unless you want to find yourself on the floor on one side and your pillow, sheets and blankets on the floor on the other side. You'll also find you've probably been dreaming of playing on a "Slip 'n Slide."

Don't ever place your waterbed next to a wall. Always leave room to walk around the bed. "No," I told my husband Vic, "I want the bed up against the wall so we'll have more room in our bedroom." Reluctantly he agreed. So now I try to make our bed by crawling up and down it, tucking in the sheets. It is not a chore I cherish, I assure you. Next time we move the waterbed, and anyone having one knows what that entails, there will be plenty of room for me to walk around it.

And finally, waterbeds are not recommended for two people who tip opposite ends of the scales, or rather, when one of them weighs almost exactly twice what the other weighs. Can I help it if Vic displaces more water than I do? Can I help it if I roll over on him every time he moves around? It's just that his side of the bed is lower than mine is, and the natural force of gravity pulls me in that direction.

Vic has learned, too, that he can't plop down on the waterbed when I'm in it. That's another reason why I don't like having the bed so close to the wall. I've been smashed against the wall by great waves too many times.

And another thing... have you ever tried to sit on a waterbed and tie your shoes?

Jesse Jackson attending Farm Aid

AUSTIN (AP) — Besides drawing some 75 musical acts, the Farm Aid II concert Friday will feature a former presidential candidate — the Rev. Jesse Jackson.

Jackson, unsuccessful candidate for the Democratic nomination in 1984 and a leading spokesman for black Americans, will make a speech to the Farm Aid crowd sometime Friday evening, said Andy Welch, spokesman for the Texas Department of Agriculture.

The department is co-hosting the concert organized by singer

Willie Nelson. Welch said Jackson was invited to Farm Aid by Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower.

"What Jesse Jackson can do is take the farm crisis message to an audience that really doesn't know how serious the farm problem is or how directly the crisis affects them," Welch said Tuesday.

Farm Aid II is the second benefit concert for family farmers organized by Nelson. The first concert was held last year at Champaign, Ill.

"Rev. Jackson has been a very strong advocate on behalf of farmers who are going out of business at the rate of about 2,000 a week," said Frank Watkins, a spokesman for Jackson's Washington-based Rainbow Coalition.

The first Farm Aid concert raised about $9 million, organizers say.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

FTC can't overrule U.S. Constitution

It hasn't been that long since the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) found itself in violation of the First Amendment for attempting to interfere with the publication of investment newsletters it believed were illegally dispensing financial advice. Now the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) is traveling down the same path by lodging a complaint against the R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Company. According to the FTC, Reynolds misrepresented the purposes and results of a government study of smoking and health in a series of "issue advertisements" which ran in newspapers and magazines last year.

The ads, which appeared under the headline "Of Cigarettes and Science," argued that cigarette smoking is not as hazardous as the public has been led to believe it is, and cited a government study, conducted under the auspices of the National Institutes of Health, whose findings, according to Reynolds, undermine the supposed relationship between smoking and heart disease.

The FTC contends that this interpretation was made possible only by the tobacco firm's decision to leave out certain of the study's findings. If an administrative law judge who reviews the case agrees with the FTC, Reynolds could be required to run new ads including the information alleged to have been left out of the earlier ones.

There are two problems here, one minor and one major. The minor problem is that interpreting the results of scientific studies is seldom a clear-cut matter. There is almost always room for reasonable disagreement about what a given study proves and which of its findings are more important and less important. Are we prepared to allow government bureaucrats to issue official rulings on which interpretations of research projects are "correct" and which are "incorrect."

But there is another, bigger problem with the FTC's complaint. Even if, in this particular case, there is no ambiguity about the study's findings and Reynolds is clearly guilty of misrepresentation, there is no way for the federal government to do anything about this fact without violating the firm's First Amendment right to speak its mind. The U.S. Constitution does not state that there shall be "no law...abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press, except in cases where people misrepresent the truth or tell lies." It states that there shall be "no law...abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press," period.

The FTC cannot regulate advertising without running afoul of this provision, just as the SEC cannot regulate investment counseling without running afoul of it. Freedom, as we have mentioned on previous occasions in these columns, is indivisible.

Begone, accursed penny

Last year, for my son's first Christmas, his paternal grandparents decided to make a contribution toward his college education. Like most people, they stash their pennies in a jar, rather than carry the little nuisances around. So on Christmas, they presented my wife and me with a cookie tin filled with pennies. This struck me as a thoughtful gift, and as a clever way to dispose of their pennies.

A few days later I loaded the tin into the car, along with a jar of pennies I had accumulated, and set out for a bank that could convert them into some usable form. Upon pulling into its parking lot, I placed my freight atop the trunk and closed the car door. At that moment, the containers slid off the car, fell to the asphalt and scattered the pennies to the four winds.

I spent the next half hour grinding my teeth and retrieving these miniature homages to Abraham Lincoln — all five thousand, two hundred and thirty-seven of them. Had a lawyer been handy at the time, I would have eagerly signed a document formally disowning my parents. Instead, I informed them that all future monetary gifts should be made in a form that will fit into a wallet.

Given this experience, readers will not be surprised to learn of my heartfelt support for a new campaign to overhaul the nation's currency. Step One is to stop minting pennies and allow merchants to round the price of a purchase up or down to the nearest nickel. Step Two is to eliminate the dollar bill and replace it with a coin.

Result: Freedom from our enslavement to an outmoded currency.

The idea is being pushed by a coalition of groups — an anti-blindness foundation, convenience stores, vending machine operators and commercial parking lots. Each of them has a special motive. The blind can distinguish among coins but not among bills, so they would welcome a dollar coin. Convenience stores would be spared the cost of handling pennies. Vending machines would no longer lose purchases by people who have nothing smaller than a dollar. Parking lots could rely more on automated cashiers.

But the rest of us also stand to gain. No more pockets bulging with 1-cent pieces that won't buy anything. No more copper-filled jars on the dresser. No more swearing at balky dollar-bill changers.

The change also conforms to the demands of the Gramm-Rudman era. It would save the Treasury $50 million a year, Fortune magazine reports, since a dollar coin would outlast the paper version. The government would no longer have to replace the 1.4 billion pennies that vanish from circulation every year.

Other government units would also gain: Municipalities that provide mass transit, for instance, would be spared the expense of handling dollar bills. If the dollar bill had been replaced with a dollar coin before now, the Chicago Transit Authority wouldn't have had to spend $15 million to outfit buses with fare boxes that accept bills.

Of course, a dollar coin was introduced in 1979 — a smaller, more practical one than the clunky old silver dollar. But it was abandoned the following year for a disastrous lack of public acceptance. The Susan B. Anthony fell victim to two mistakes: the Treasury's failure to make it easy to distinguish, by sight and by feel, from the quarter, and the preservation of the dollar bill. The Dollar Penny Coalition recommends an 11-sided, smooth-edged, brass coin, to avoid confusion, with the dollar bill scrapped to encourage the coin's acceptance.

All this sounds fine until we get to rounding off prices, where the consumer's instinct is to expect the worst. But the change won't matter much, since the worse that can happen is a 2-cent price increase for an entire purchase — from, say, $23.78 for a bag of groceries to $23.80. Americans are already accustomed to rounding off for purchases of gasoline, which is priced to the 10th of a cent, and of items priced at two for 59 cents. Keep in mind that today's nickel is worth less than a penny was in 1945. Prices then were "rounded" up or down to the nearest cent, but it was done invisibly. If the nation survived the demise of the half-cent piece, which occurred in 1857, it can live without the penny.

Any loss would be more than made up in time saved, productivity increased and aggravation eliminated. If you doubt, try to picture me on my hands and knees in that bank parking lot, picking pennies out of the broken glass, and consider the possibility that next time, it might be you.

A push in right direction

Twins can be different. The Tatge twins of Alexandria, Minn., are different in many ways. But Brock and Carter Tatge, age 14, are alike in their preference for work over play.

They put an ad in the newspaper, "Work Wanted — mowing lawns." They have 15 customers — 15 yards to mow this summer.

There is still some time for swimming and for Little League baseball; both are on the Eagles team.

But eight hours every weekday they are mowing lawns.

Except for a short lunch break for peanut butter sandwiches, the twins hustle. In an average work week they make $160 which they split down the middle.

Careful not to take on more jobs than they can handle, the Tatge twins are building a reputation for "good work," so that they can expand their business to include their younger brother, Josh, when he turns 12 next year.

"Of course it gets a little boring sometimes," the twins agree, "but it's worth it to have money to spend and a future to plan."

I learned about the Tatge twins the same day I received from the Department of Labor unemployment statistics showing that the jobless rate for teen-agers is 20 percent, for black teen-agers 40 percent.

And I wondered why. Most newspapers include offers of jobs in supermarkets, fast-food restaurants, department stores, service stations and so forth. Then how come 20 percent of teen-agers are "jobless"?

Our government has spent more than $10 billion the last 20 years on "youth programs" — yet the jobless rate for teen-agers has continued to increase.

City-based businesses are offered the inducement of tax credits if they will employ "hard to employ" teen-agers.

Yet the dichotomy remains — jobs going begging and teen-agers going jobless.

Several factors contribute:

Most school-agers live at home with their parents, don't really have to work.

Many have discovered the formula of "work a while then collect unemployment pay."

But everywhere apparent in any city is the lure of the underground economy, where a school-ager can make more pushing drugs in one day than he could make in six months on a legitimate job.

And yet they list themselves as "jobless." I think of them — and I think of the ambitious 14-year-old Tatge twins of Alexandria, Minn.

I asked their mother what she did that made the difference. She said, "Don't most of us go in the direction in which we are first pushed?"

Should U.S. support military rulers?

By Don Graff

Panama is different from most of its neighbors.

It is not gripped by crisis and has the appearance, at least by regional standards, of prosperity. Panama City is a consumer paradise of duty-free shops stuffed with imported goods, a mecca for visitors from countries where shortages are the rule.

Arrival there from almost any other point in the area can be a cultural shock. I wrote something to that effect not long ago when I flew in from battered Managua.

But you can't always go by appearances. Panama's military chief, Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega, is now being fingered as a drug-trafficker, gun-runner, money-lauderer, election-rigger and possible double agent. And that could be just for starters.

Actually, most of this has been known or rumored for some time. The Wall Street Journal had a low-key piece on the subject in April. But when the New York Times splashed an expose across its front page for several days running — and embarrassed administration officials reluctantly confirmed the allegations — the story became news.

On the surface, it would appear to be merely another case of high-level, large-scale corruption, scarcely unknown among U.S. client states. Remember the Philippines? But the real issue here is something more disturbing. Or should be.

It is military rule, the crippling affliction of most countries to our south. Panama, despite appearances, is anything but immune.

Let's back up to 1968, when a duly elected civilian president, Arnulfo Arias, was ousted in a military coup led by Gen. Omar Torrijos. Torrijos is a hard one to peg. A chum of Fidel Castro and an early fan of Nicaragua's Sandinistas, he nevertheless had no interest in the Cuban economic model and on numerous occasions made himself useful to U.S. interests. A strange fish.

Whatever his ideological inclination, Torrijos ran Panama with finesse and considerable popular approval until his death in a 1981 plane crash. His eventual successor was Noriega, a very different fish. Finesse is not Noriega's forte. A heavy hand is.

Which brings us to 1984 when, under pressure from Washington, which was eager to keep the tide of democracy rising in Latin America, Noriega agreed to hold Panama's first elections since 1968. The winner was Arnulfo Arias, the same man who had been ousted by Torrijos. But in the vote counting, the military's candidate, Nicolas Ardito Barletta, got the presidency. He didn't hold it long. He crossed Noriega on a sensitive issue and was ordered to resign.

Which brings us more or less up to date. Whether the charges now being made against Noriega are or are not substantiated is incidental to Panama's real problem. And that is continuing military rule with American connivance.

Questioned the other day on Panama, a discomfited George Shultz acknowledged the fraudulence of the 1984 election but said the administration went along because it was Panama's business, not ours: "We don't go around the world certifying elections."

WEHAT REFERENDUM—Texas Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower, center left, and U.S. Sen. Top Harkin, D-Iowa, urge farmers to vote yes on the nonbinding wheat referendum after barn storming across the United States. The vote asks that the 1985 Farm Bill requirement that sets the loan rate under a mandatory wheat program be set at 125 percent of the cost of production. The two were joined by Doug Seal, seated left, and Gerald McCathern, seated far right, both seeking seats in Congress this year. (AP Laserphoto)

Senators, Hightower urge farmer support for wheat controls

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—Support for wheat production controls would force leaders in Washington to realize farmers are "sick to death" of failing agriculture policies, the Texas agriculture commissioner said Tuesday.

Jim Hightower joined Democratic Sens. J. James Exon and Edward Zorinsky of Nebraska and Sen. Tom Harkin of Iowa in urging farmers to support the proposed mandatory controls.

The nation's wheat growers are taking part in a poll allowing them to indicate whether they support mandatory production cuts. Harkin and Hightower are traveling to farm states trying to generate support for the proposal.

"This is a genuine opportunity for farmers of this country to send a message to Washington that even the densest bureaucrat can understand and can't ignore," Hightower said during a news conference. "A yes vote would say we are literally sick to death of budget-busting policies."

Zorinsky, the ranking Democrat on the Senate Agriculture Committee, said the proposal to curb production is based on "common sense and logic in business."

The controls would increase farm prices by leveling production to bring it in line with demand, he said.

"I know of no business that can continue to overproduce year in and year out," Zorinsky said. "As long as we continue to have surplus commodities that we pay storage for instead of sell, farmers are going to be caught in a Catch-22 situation."

Zorinsky said the controls would reduce the amount of federal subsidies needed to boost farm prices.

"The consumers should take over the price structure of agriculture and get government out of it," he said.

Harkin said the wheat referendum gives farmers "an historic opportunity to make drastic changes" in farm policy.

"I can guarantee every farmer that if they vote no, nothing will come out of this," Harkin said. "If farmers vote yes, the pressure will come on Congress to do something."

The push for controls on wheat production is not an attempt to socialize agriculture, Harkin said.

"The federal government can enable the farmer to come together in a cooperative movement so each farmer gains," he said. "It's a chance to get the taxpayer out of the picture."

Exon said farmers need to speak out to reverse the Reagan administration's farm policies.

"The utter folly of the present farm program is that you're going to produce your way out of the depression," he said. "Any program that continues to force down the price of agricultural products, which has been going on for six years, is doomed to failure."

Exon said the administration has stressed lowering prices to increase exports, but that hasn't happened.

"The time is now to do something or we're going to see a continued decline or crash, if you will," he said. "We're also going to continue to see billions and billions of dollars more in money from taxpayers' unless changes are made."

Search for missing plane is continuing

WINNSBORO, Texas (AP)—A "needle-in-the-haystack search" over two days failed to uncover a single-engine airplane presumed lost with four people aboard in the Ouachita Mountains of western Arkansas, Civil Air Patrol officials said.

The Cessna 182, piloted by Mike Chaffin of Winnsboro, left Municipal Airport here early Saturday for Branson, Mo., but never arrived, said Major J.R. Brown, commander of the Civil Air Patrol's 7th Group based at Tyler Pounds Field.

The search was discontinued at about 7 p.m. Tuesday and was to resume this morning, Brown said.

"It's a needle-in-the-haystack search," Brown said. "It just takes time. There's a lot of big mountains out there. We're doing the best we can."

"We're set for a full effort (today), depending on the weather. We'll play it by hear."

Caldwell testifies one co-defendant sang 'ring of fire' as victim's body burned

KERVILLE, Texas (AP)—A co-defendant in an organized crime trial sang Johnny Cash's "Ring of Fire" as an Alabama drifter's body was burned atop a makeshift funeral pyre on a remote Kerr County ranch, another defendant testified.

"What were you thinking about as you watched the body of your good friend, Anthony Bates, go up in smoke?" prosecutor Gerald Carruth asked Carlton Robert Caldwell on Tuesday.

"I was thinking about a lot of things," Caldwell said. "I thought about Junior sitting there singing a Johnny Cash song — 'I fell in a burning ring of fire.'"

Caldwell testified last week that he lit the pyre, which was made of cedar and inner tubes.

Caldwell, 21, along with ranch owner Walter Wesley Ellebracht Sr., 55, and his son, Walter Wesley Ellebracht Jr., 33, are charged with violating the state's organized crime statute in connection with Bates' March 1984 death.

They are accused of taking part in a conspiracy in which hitchhikers were lured to the Ellebrachts' ranch and forced to work as slaves.

In five days of questioning by his attorney, Scott Stehling, Caldwell told how he and Ellebracht Jr. tortured Bates with an electric cattle prod.

Stehling contends that Caldwell is innocent under the "Nuremberg defense" because his actions were prompted by his fear of the Ellebrachts.

But Carruth tore away at that defense, questioning Caldwell about discrepancies between his trial testimony and a statement he gave the FBI.

Caldwell testified he slapped Bates because he was belligerent. But Carruth pointed out a contradictory statement Caldwell gave the FBI two years ago in which admitted hitting Bates in the face with his fist to earn respect.

"So it was you, sir, who committed the first act of violence against Anthony Bates at the ranch?" Carruth shouted at Caldwell.

"No I didn't," Caldwell responded. Caldwell said the FBI misinterpreted what he said. He said agents didn't take any notes until after the interrogation and that he didn't read the 16-page statement before he signed it.

Carruth accused Caldwell of luring drifters to the ranch from San Antonio, where he had worked as a volunteer in a soup kitchen.

"Why did you take your friend, who you knew in San Antonio, to a ranch where there were men you have already testified you were scared of?" Carruth asked.

"Why did you expose your friend to danger?"

Caldwell said torture sessions didn't begin until Bates arrived at the ranch.

Caldwell testified last week he feared the Ellebrachts shortly after he arrived on February 3, 1984, at their ranch where he remained until March 7. He said Ellebracht Sr. had talked about Mafia connections.

Inmates, prison officials agree basics sometimes are lacking in Texas prisons

HOUSTON (AP)—Texas prison inmates sometimes go without basic necessities, prisoners and prison officials agreed during the emotional last day of a federal hearing.

Nineteen inmates testified Tuesday they frequently are denied regular showers, clean clothes and adequate recreational time and facilities.

Inmates occasionally do not receive the basics, agreed Jim Riley, Texas Department of Corrections deputy directors for operations.

But he testified that was because some inmates destroy property and others hoard it, making it difficult for prison officials to replace items.

The inmates' often graphic testimony brought gasps and exclamations from family, friends and ex-convicts seated in the courtroom, where U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice is considering a request that the TDC be found in contempt and fined for violating his 1981 court-ordered reforms.

The hearing included more than a week of testimony from TDC officials, inmates and experts. Justice said later he won't rule until after attorneys submit written briefs by July 21.

During the hearing's last day, inmates testified they do not receive the basics required in the judge's orders.

"It's beyond my comprehension why they (TDC) can't deliver these things," contended attorney William Bennett Turner of San Francisco, who is representing inmates in a class-action suit.

Inmates told Justice that some of them are forced to burn toilet paper or newspaper to heat water, and may be subjected to thorough strip searches before being allowed to participate in recreation.

Other inmates testified they have waited up to two weeks to shower and several days for a change of clothes — especially if they are problem inmates who have been assigned to segregated cellblocks.

Months elapsed before some inmates were allowed to the recreation yards and then there are few facilities available or they are too small, the witnesses said.

They testified said one yard had a volleyball net but no ball, and other yards had new basketball goals but punctured basketballs.

Inmate Jeffrey Tucker said he refuses to participate in recreation because the strip search procedures force him to walk naked down a row of prison cells, subjecting him to whistles, catcalls and "homosexual references to our persons."

But strip searches and thorough searches of inmates' clothes are necessary to prevent violence, Riley said. For example, a knife hidden in a recreational yard once led to a killing, he said.

Special Forces convention in San Antonio

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP)—Former Green Beret Capt. Isaac "Ike" Camacho vividly remembers the night North Vietnamese troops captured him. It was the night he and three buddies learned that President Kennedy had been assassinated.

But the assassination in 1963 would be overshadowed for Camacho for the next two years as he fought for survival in a jungle prison.

He did survive, and in 1965 became the first prisoner of war to escape from the North Vietnamese and live to talk about it.

Camacho was one of more than 600 former and active members of the Special Forces, who wear the distinctive green beret, and the Office of Strategic Services, of World War II fame, who gathered Tuesday in the Marriott Hotel for the start of the national Special Forces Association annual convention.

"We'll talk about the hard times and the good times," Camacho, 49, said between hugs and handshakes with buddies he has not seen for several years.

"We're like brothers," Camacho, retired from the Army, is a supervisor with the Postal Service in El Paso. He served in the Special Forces from 1960 to 1975.

A "weapons man" training civilians in 1963, he and three other Green Berets were with 75 civilians in a camp about 55 miles northwest of Saigon when the enemy hit them. Most of the civilians were killed, and the four Americans were captured and taken into the jungle.

"We did hard labor," Camacho said. "Cutting trees, digging holes."

Living on a diet of rice, rotten fish, worms, roaches and rats, the men, with their legs in metal chains, were forced to sleep in separate, small wooden cages at night.

Often they were beaten with the butt of a rifle or forced to spend days in a dark, wet "spider hole" as punishment.

Camacho began thinking of escape. His break came one night when two more American captains were brought in as prisoners. The guards had run out of chains; so they took off Camacho's to use on one of the new captives.

"I knew it was my only chance," he said. "I knew they would get more chains; so I knew it was time to go."

That night, Camacho managed to use some soap he had saved as a lubricant to loosen one of the wooden pegs to the cage. Luck was with him — the heavy seasonal rains began, enabling him to sneak past a guard and head into the jungle for a four-day, 400-mile journey back to safety.

He could not have tried to help the others escape, he said, because they all were in chains and had no boots.

Using the survival skills he had learned in training, he followed the sun, stars and the flow of water to the Mekong River, where he slowly swam downstream for 24 hours. He remembers hanging onto a branch in the river to catch some sleep, and waking up to a snake staring him in the face.

Insects entered in Dallas contest

DALLAS (AP)—A Smithsonian Institution insect zoo official wants to see if Texas' reputation for producing bigger and better breeds is true.

Sally Love, a curator in Washington D.C., has requested first shot at the burly champion of a Texas roach contest for an entomological exhibit.

The winner of the "Largest Cockroach" contest, which carries a $1,000 grand prize, will have to size up to more than 200 of its kin entered before the deadline Monday, said sponsor Michael Bohdan of The Pest Shop-Bizzy Bees Pest Control Co. in Dallas.

Ms. Love said the zoo already has about four species of cockroaches.

She said one specimen now on display, known scientifically as megablaberus, grows to more than 4 inches long.

The insect zoo attracts about 4,000 people daily and exhibits 60 different kinds of insects, she said. The Texas contribution will get special billing with a label explaining its history, she said.

Monday was the last day to enter contestants and Dallas-area residents brought the creatures in popcorn tubs, peanut butter jars and beer mugs, Bohdan said Tuesday.

Judging will be held July 11, he said.

"What's come out of the woodwork is people have written poems about this contest," Bohdan said. He quoted a few lines from one of the roach odes.

"In size or in significance, they hatch out by the score—why their hearty little critters—they've out-lived the dinosaur."

One captive, named "Roach" was brought in a shoebox.

"To catch ours we had to put this over him and stack heavy books on top of it... We were late for church trying to run around and catch him," said Laura Graul, 26.

A strong contender was "Home-er" who was nabbed in a Texas Woman's University kitchenette.

CRASH — An experimental 343 foot-long airship made from a blimp and parts of four helicopters caught fire and crashed Tuesday at Lakehurst, N.J., on a test flight, killing one of five crew members aboard. (AP Laserphoto)

Mammoth experimental airship destroyed in crash; one dead

LAKEHURST, N.J. (AP) — A massive experimental airship built from a blimp and four helicopters crashed after one copter malfunctioned, killing a crewman during a test flight near where the Hindenburg exploded 49 years ago.

Four other crewmen and a firefighter on the ground sustained only cuts and bruises when the 343-foot-long, 10-story Heli-Stat crashed Tuesday night at the U.S. Naval Air Engineering Station, authorities said.

The craft, sponsored by the U.S. Forest Service, was designed for logging remote areas with a minimum of environmental damage. But some federal agencies criticized it for structural problems and for running behind schedule at a cost of $34 million, more than three times the original projection of $10.7 million.

The Heli-Stat, which had never flown horizontally, was hovering at about 40 feet when one of the four helicopters malfunctioned and lost power, said Nick Grand, a U.S. Naval Air Engineering Center spokesman.

A fire caused by ruptured fuel tanks in the Heli-Stat's helicopters was quickly extinguished, but the airship was destroyed.

Grand said. The Heli-Stat "just burst right in the air," said Petty Officer Chuck Peterson. "I couldn't believe it. Flames flew."

Gary Oleshfski, of Bordentown, who was alone in one of the helicopters, was killed in the crash, Grand said. Tuesday was Oleshfski's 39th birthday.

The craft crashed about three-quarters of a mile from where the German dirigible Hindenburg blew up in May 1937, killing 36 people, he said.

The craft was comprised of four tailless helicopters mounted on an aluminum frame that supported the blimp. The pilot, who survived, sits in the left rear copter and flight engineers in the other three.

Unlike the Hindenburg, which was filled with highly explosive hydrogen, the Heli-Stat's blimp was filled with helium, a non-explosive gas.

The craft, which was 43 feet longer than a football field, was designed by Frank N. Piasecki, a helicopter pioneer who began his assembly in 1979 under a Forest Service contract.

The Navy was monitoring the experiment by the Piasecki Aircraft Corp. of Sharon Hill, Pa., Grand said.

The airship, estimated by Piasecki last year to cost $24 million in federal funds and $10 million in private investment, was designed to lift 24 tons. It was based on the principle that once filled with helium, its resultant buoyancy made the craft almost weightless, so that the thrust generated by the copters' combined 6,100 horsepower could be directed toward lifting the timber.

Grand said he believed Piasecki achieved his first untethered flight in May.

Piasecki said last year the Heli-Stat might reach 72 mph, but conceded it could crash relatively easily if caught in a storm at low altitude.

Forest Service officials said the Heli-Stat had shown promise for logging because back areas could be reached without having to cut roads. Piasecki also said it might be used to fly oil derricks, pipelines and military equipment to remote areas.

But in 1982, the General Accounting Office, the auditing branch of Congress, called it a white elephant, and said the cost of developing, housing and testing the behemoth would surpass $40 million that would never be recovered.

U.S. says Europeans are getting tough on Gadhafi

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department, citing the expulsion of more than 100 Libyans from Western Europe in the past two months, says America's allies are making serious efforts to isolate the government of Col. Moammar Gadhafi.

At the same time, a department spokesman says it's hard to judge whether the Western response has had any moderating influence on the Libyan leader.

"It's a difficult call," spokesman Charles E. Redman said Tuesday. "There are a number of things which we believe may have had an impact on his behavior, but the extent of that impact... I think is just too difficult to evaluate."

In addition to the expulsions, governments of the 12-nation European Economic Community have increased cooperation among their law enforcement agencies to counter terrorism and have augmented surveillance of personnel assigned to Libyan "People's Bureaus," or missions, a department announcement said.

"These actions illustrate the seriousness with which the Europeans have come to view the Libyan terrorist threat and reflect a major change over the past two months," it said.

The campaign to get Europeans to crack down on the People's Bureaus was stepped up in April after the Libyan mission in East Berlin was accused of involvement in a West Berlin discotheque bombing in which two American soldiers and a Turkish woman were killed.

Here is a country-by-country list of European actions cited by the State Department:

Italy: Expelled six Libyan diplomats and 13 staff members from the People's Bureau in Italy and arrested a former Libyan diplomat in connection with an alleged plot to kill the U.S. ambassador in Rome. Another four dozen "non-official" Libyans were also expelled. Italy is also investigating Libyan investments and reviewing legal status of about 3,500 Libyan residents.

West Germany: Expelled 17 Libyan diplomats and ordered the People's Bureau to cut six non-Libyan employees from its staff. The three Western powers in Berlin — the United States, England and France — have banned People's Bureau diplomats in East Berlin from visiting the Western sector of the city.

France: Expelled two Libyan diplomats for their alleged involvement in a plot to attack people waiting for visas at the U.S. Embassy in Paris.

Turkey: Filed charges against the consul general and two other members of the People's Bureau for involvement in an abortive bombing of an American officers club in Ankara.

Belgium: Announced the expulsion of seven diplomats and two staff members of the People's Bureau in Brussels and said the remaining staff cannot travel outside the city without permission.

Denmark: Ordered the bureau to reduce its staff by five.

Britain: Expelled 20 Libyan students. The People's Bureau in London was closed in 1984 after a policewoman was killed by bullets fired from the embassy.

Spain: Expelled six members of the People's Bureau, five Libyan teachers and three students.

Portugal: Reduced by five the number of officially accredited Libyans at the bureau and has required Libyan diplomats to seek authorization for travel 18.8 miles (30 kilometers) outside Lisbon.

American freed in Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — An American held captive for 22 months by Lebanese drug traffickers has been freed unharmed and delivered to the U.S. Embassy, Lebanese officials said today.

The former captive was identified as Steven John Donahue, 32, of Hollywood, Fla., who claims to have been an informant for the U.S. Drug Enforcement Agency.

The DEA has denied he was a drug agent without specifying whether he worked for the agency.

In an interview today, Donahue told ABC-TV he was released because "money exchanged hands, about $400,000."

U.S. Embassy spokesman Robert Gould confirmed Donahue's release, but said he could disclose no details of the case. "It's a question of privacy. I have no right to tell you anything about him. He is a private citizen. He's not working for the U.S. government," Gould said.

Lebanese officials, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said Donahue was kidnapped 22 months ago by Shiite Moslem drug dealers for "poking his nose into the business."

"I was held for economic reasons basically, not political, and the big danger for me was that they were going to turn me over to a political group," Donahue told ABC.

Longshoremen shut down Port of Houston

HOUSTON (AP) — Members of the International Longshoremen's Association have walked off their jobs at 18 ships and shut down the Port of Houston because of a continuing dispute with a stevedore hiring non-union labor at lower wages.

It was the first major work stoppage here since 1968, port officials said.

Officials said a lengthy shutdown could jeopardize highly prized and much-needed new business.

The union's leadership said the walkout was not sanctioned, leaving the rank and file on their own.

About 1,000 ILA members walked off shortly after 9 a.m. Tuesday.

About 45 riot-equipped Houston police officers were in the warehouse throughout the day, but there was no confrontation.

Meanwhile, ILA pickets were set up outside the downtown headquarters of the Port of Houston Authority. One picketer said the dock shutdown and downtown demonstration were born of frustration as the ILA cuts wages and makes other work concessions to help the port but sees Houston Stevedores inching onto its traditional turf.

"I just can't sit there silent," James Colburn said. "I've got to scream a couple of times."

Houston Stevedores has been paying its workers about $10 an hour, a company official said.

"They're not dealing with strong backs and weak minds," picketer Colburn said of the union's concessions.

The West Gulf Maritime Association, the employer's group that hires most of the ILA labor here, came to the union's side Tuesday. It previously backed the union in its dispute with Houston Stevedores.

Chileans stock candles, gas, food on national strike eve

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — Chileans crowded markets to stock candles, heating gas and food before a national work stoppage called by foes of their country's military government started today.

People in long checkout lines said the buying spree was a precaution against violence that could keep them home, whether or not they supported the two-day strike.

"Don't forget candles for the blackout," one woman told her husband in the aisle of a Santiago supermarket, reminding him that leftist guerrillas often sabotage the country's electric power system. Candles were nearly sold out.

Food stores around the capital's vast blue-collar perimeter reported sales up by as much as half Tuesday as workers spent end-of-the-month paychecks to stockpile large quantities of flour, cooking oil and tea.

Sixteen firebombs or dynamite charges exploded overnight Tuesday in Santiago, damaging banks, buses, rail lines, a factory and a school. Police arrested 123 students who seized a closed administration building Monday at the University of Chile.

A two-month-old Civic Assembly representing nearly 3 million organized workers, white-collar professionals, university students and slum dwellers called the illegal work stoppage.

They got the verbal support of centrist political parties like the Christian Democrats, and more enthusiastic backing from Communists and Socialists. However, there were few public commitments by economically powerful groups to stay off the job.

Gen. Augusto Pinochet, the army commander who seized the presidency in 1973 from Salvador Allende, an elected Marxist, dismissed the strike call as "just more bravado" by opponents he has otherwise ignored lately.

However, his government closed all or parts of four major universities for early mid-winter vacations to keep any violence off campus, and his Defense Ministry said Tuesday that soldiers were sent to commuter bus terminals to prevent sabotage.

By late evening, troops also were patrolling some main streets in southern Santiago.

Police announced Tuesday that three members of a Communist-led guerrilla band, the Manuel Rodriguez Patriotic Front, shot themselves to death in a clandestine arms depot during a police raid.

While the guerrilla front has vowed a "combatative strike" to intimidate anyone trying to work, the Civic Assembly's moderate leaders pleaded for a non-violent test of popular strength in favor of prompt elections.

"We don't want to provoke the armed forces because we don't want any more death or bloodshed in this country," said Juan Luis Gonzalez, the assembly's Christian Democratic president. "We just want to demonstrate how many we are."

Since blue-collar workers were inhibited from striking by Chile's 20 percent unemployment rate, the latest challenge to the 70-year-old Pinochet fell on the shoulders of independent businessmen such as truckers, bus owners and shopkeepers.

Only the truckers federation covering Santiago vowed openly to strike.

Standard Oil to lay off 550 workers

HOUSTON (AP) — Standard Oil Production Co. will lay off about 15 percent of its workers in a restructuring effort aimed at making the company more competitive, officials announced Tuesday.

About 550 workers in the company's Houston headquarters and at division offices will be eliminated from a work force of 3,650.

Under the new company's planned reorganization, the continental division in Dallas will become an area production office reporting to an expanded offshore-continental division in Houston, officials said. The Houston division office will now be responsible for the company's oil exploration in the continental United States.

Pontiff decries Colombian violence, crime

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — Pope John Paul II told Colombian leaders in an unusually harsh address that violence, crime and an unjust distribution of wealth hindered development of this overwhelmingly Roman Catholic country.

The pontiff, beginning a week-long trip that will take him through areas rife with guerrillas and right-wing death squads, arrived Tuesday from Rome on his first visit to Colombia. It is his seventh to Latin America since becoming pope in 1978.

The pontiff was scheduled to celebrate Mass today in Bogota at a football stadium and a huge public park, and speak to a bishops conference. Tens of thousands of people were expected to attend the public religious services in the capital city of 6 million.

During his meeting Tuesday at the presidential palace, the pontiff urged government leaders to construct "a society that proceeds in an atmosphere of peace in which violence and terrorism do not extend their tragic and macabre empire."

"Among those factors that make development difficult, one finds violence, insecurity, smuggling, the unjust distribution of wealth, illegal economic activities and ... the massive transfer abroad of capital that is indispensable for the country," John Paul said.

Colombia is a major source of cocaine smuggled into the United States, Canada and Europe. No major Colombian narcotics trafficker has ever been tried and imprisoned in Colombia.

Each major Colombian city also is riddled with blocks of shops openly selling contraband foreign goods, and illegal casinos that blatantly advertise with bright neon signs.

Outgoing President Belisario Betancur, who was joined at the palace reception of about 300 people by president-elect Virgilio Barco and 12 former guerrillas recently elected to Parliament, welcomed the pope to a country which he said "repudiates the sad threat of drugs, terrorism and nuclear weapons."

The government says about 70,000 people have been killed in fighting between guerrillas and government security forces and by guerrillas attacking civilian targets since 1976.

Colombia has about 20,000 leftist guerrillas in six groups, all aligned ideologically with Cuba, the Soviet Union or Maoism.

Right-wing death squads have killed an estimated 2,000 persons in the last seven years.

Earlier Tuesday, the pope addressed 2,900 priests and church officials, among them Cardinal Anibal Munoz, an honorary general in the Colombian army, and urged them to get closer to the poor.

The priests, the pope said, can help the poor only "through the example of Jesus ... which prohibits hate and violence."

In the last three weeks, guerrillas have set off 15 bombs and invaded four churches and seminaries to harangue congregations about the duties of the government and church to the poor.

The pro-Cuban National Liberation Army, known as ELN, claimed responsibility for most of the attacks which have centered in Cali, Pereira and Medellin, three cities the pontiff will visit.

Green seen in blueberries

By JERRY LYNAS
Beaumont Enterprise

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP)—Industrial engineer Wayne Partlow figures that in about three years, when his blueberries are in full production, he will quit engineering, "sit and whittle and watch them grow" and make money.

John H. Kerr sees blueberries as his future moneymaker and has bought 8,500 bushes.

Barbara Devillier and daughter Michelle McCarley of Winnie expect to get back the $5,000 they invested in blueberries in three years and make money.

Does it all sound like blueberry pie-in-the-sky?

Not so, says Lamar Lynch, who has interested many area people in raising berries. His opinion is backed by Texas Department of Agriculture research.

Larry Strange, administrator in the department's agricultural development division, says blueberries are a promising newcomer to the state's agriculture scene.

"It is clear that Texas blueberry producers of all sizes and types are standing at the doorway to a new industry with a positive growth trend and the potential to become one of the state's largest horticultural crops," Strange said.

Strange said Texas must devote enough acreage to allow commercial production of blueberries before other Southern states beat Texas to it.

Until recently most blueberries were grown in northern states because the bushes require a certain amount of cold weather. Blueberry production became possible in Texas through development of a warmer-weather strain known as the rabbit-eye blueberry.

Blueberries sold in local supermarkets from northern states go on the market in mid-July. Texas blueberries ripen earlier and are ready for market in early June, giving Texas growers a potential advantage.

So far, state blueberry production has been hampered by a lack of growers to satisfy demand. But Partlow, Kerr, Devillier, McCarley and others are intent on satisfying that demand.

Robert Hopkins of Silsbee, in his first year as a grower, has about 3,000 berry bushes in production. Buddy Self of Vidor, growing for the third year, has a like amount of bushes. Gene Dishman and his cousin, Bill Dishman, along with Bill Dishman's three sons, are seeing fruit in the 1,770 bushes they put in near China in March.

The growers often come from diverse backgrounds, but are finding common ground producing blueberries.

Partlow, a 1974 industrial engineering graduate of Lamar University, employed by the Fluor Corp., was interested in buying a fast-food franchise before he decided on blueberries.

Kerr, 59, of Beaumont, a retiree from Mobile Oil, is investing about $95,000 in his blueberry venture. His son, police Sgt. John S. Kerr, will help out in his spare time.

Living in Eagle's Nest is just plane delightful

By STEVE KNICKMEYER
Dallas Times Herald

MIDLOTHIAN, Texas (AP) — It's six miles east of Midlothian: 163 country acres with a lake and plenty of shade trees. Birds chirp. Frogs croak.

Only the name gives the hint that this is not the perfect neighborhood for people who hate Love Field noise.

Eagle's Nest residents all have three things in common: they are pilots; they own their own airplanes; and they like to keep their planes at home.

Barry Millet, the man who formed Aerohome Development Co. to create this airpark, puts it this way: "Every pilot's dream is to have his airplane in his back yard where it belongs, not in somebody else's airport."

"We tell people up front Eagle's Nest is for pilots," says Millet. "If you can't live in peace and harmony with airplanes, you'd better find someplace else to live."

The centerpiece of this development is a 3,000-foot, paved and lighted runway. Each of the 109 building sites is connected to the runway by a 4,000-foot system of taxiways.

Ten of the sites have been developed. Two more are under construction and three are being designed. Most of these houses are on an acre-and-a-half of land. They average about 4,000 square feet and cost about $200,000 apiece.

The two main streets, Falcon Way and Eagle's Nest Court run parallel to the runway. The distinguishing feature of each house — other than the one that looks like a falcon when viewed from above — is the hangar out back. The hangars come in a variety of sizes, the largest being 3,000 square feet.

There's a jumble of small aircraft around the Millet hanger, a Cardinal, a Bonanza, a Cessna 152. Sophie Millet, who is also a pilot and Barry's wife, explains: "Everybody's been keeping their planes with us until they get their hangars built."

Most people build hangars before houses, she says.

Barry Millet buys and sells airplanes, so his inventory changes continually. Today his hangar is virtually filled by a twin-engine Piper Navajo, which is being repaired. Normally, this hangar holds three smaller planes and a helicopter.

Millet says he planned this community carefully. "Anybody can put a runway on Farmer Brown's field and call it a development," he sneers. "But I studied the mistakes made by other airparks, such as mixing aircraft and vehicular traffic, and avoided them."

Only airplanes use these taxi-ways, at least most of the time.

Sophie Millet recalls the afternoon a "van full of old people" meandered along the taxiway.

"They were just out for their afternoon drive and didn't realize they were in an airpark," she says, adding: "We're getting more signs made."

Barry Millet describes Eagle's Nest as "a very neighborly community. If you're called away suddenly, you'll find when you get home that your mail and newspapers have been picked up and, if it gets high enough, your lawn will even get mowed."

Pilots live here, but not necessarily those who make their living from aviation. There's a high school principal, an antique dealer, a computer executive, an engineer. But aviation is the common link.

Now—a valuable alternative to an IRA rollover

If you are about to receive a lump sum from a qualified plan, consider the advantages of a Deferred Distribution Annuity.*

- Distribution amounts are tax-deferred like IRAs.
- Premature withdrawal would not be subject to the 10% penalty tax.
- Non-qualified contributions may be included and may not be subject to the 5% early withdrawal penalty tax for non-qualified annuities.
- Offers current, competitive interest rate.

Hot dogs make great partners on buns, bagels or breads

Hot dogs on rye. Hot dogs in pita pockets. Hot dogs on an onion roll. What faster matchup than hot dogs and a wide variety of breads and buns available for creating an "out of this world" sandwich. What a perfect way to celebrate July — National Hot Dog Month.

Hot dogs were first paired with soft buns at the St. Louis "Louisiana Purchase Exposition" in 1904 by Bavarian concessionaire, Anton Feuchtwanger. Now there's as many different styles of hot dogs as there are breads on which to serve them.

Rueben Dogs, Pita Hot Dogs and Torpedo Frankabobs are three easy to prepare hot dog recipes that will add variety to your next barbecue or family meal.

Torpedo Frankabobs
4 hot dogs, cut into 1-inch chunks
1 can (16 oz.) pineapple chunks
1 can (16 oz.) dark sweet cherries
1 can (16 oz.) apricot halves, optional
1 green pepper cut in 1-inch chunks

1 jar sweet and sour sauce, or orange marmalade
Arrange hot dogs and other items on skewers, alternating hot dogs and fruits. Brush generously with basting sauce and barbecue (or broil) over moderate heat until frankfurters and fruits are heated through. Serve on torpedo rolls, onion rolls or poppy seed buns.

Pita Hot Dogs
4 hot dogs, cut to curl
4 pita bread pockets
1 small jar spaghetti sauce
1 med. onion, thinly sliced
1 med. green pepper, thinly sliced
Grated Parmesan cheese
Lightly cook green pepper and onion slices in butter or oil. Pat dry with paper towel and set aside. Using pita bread as a base, brush with spaghetti sauce. Add onions and peppers. Place curled hot dogs on sauce. If desired, add additional sauce to top and sprinkle with Parmesan cheese.

To make curled hot dogs: Make 7 to 11 cuts down one side of hot dog without cutting completely through. Heat franks in simmering water for about five minutes, until curled. Curled hot dogs may also be barbecued on the grill for 1 to 2 minutes longer if desired.

For S-shaped hot dogs, cut 10 crosswise slits (5 on one side and 5 on the other) on each hot dog, cutting about 1/4 through.

Reuben Dogs
6 frankfurters
6 buns, rye bread, or favorite bread
1 can (8 oz.) sauerkraut, well drained
1/4 lb. sliced Swiss cheese
2 T. thousand island dressing
Mustard
Dill pickle slices

Heat frankfurters in boiling water, microwave oven or broiler. Slice heated frankfurters down the center lengthwise and place in center of bread or buns. Spread with a little mustard. Add 1-6th of the sauerkraut; top with 1 t. of thousand island dressing. Cover with Swiss cheese and place under broiler or in the oven until cheese is melted and beginning to bubble. Garnish with dill pickle slices and serve immediately. Yield: six servings.

Try tasty Texas shrimp!

By ANN GRANQUIST
Department of Agriculture

Spain's flag was the second of the six flags to fly over what is now known as Texas. Spain actually had two ruling periods, from 1519 to 1685 and from 1690 to 1821. The Spanish helped influence the style and development of Texas cuisine and the influence of the Spanish settlers is still felt today.

Spaniards were hearty seafarers and have left their mark on the type of seafood we eat. One of the greatest treasures in the Lone Star State is the harvest of Texas shrimp.

Most Texas shrimp are called brown shrimp, referring to the gray-brown cast to their shells. Though shrimp is available year-round, most shrimp are harvested between May and December, with peak harvest in July and August. Texas and Louisiana led the United States in the harvest of shrimp according to Ralph Rayburn, executive director of the Texas Shrimp Association. Shrimp is the number one seafood landed from Texas water, with an economic value of more than $180 million.

From a nutritional perspective, shrimp is a valuable addition to the diet. Shrimp is classified as a lean meat, containing less than two percent fat. A 3 1/2 ounce serving contains only 86 calories. Shrimp adds potassium, phosphorus, and iron to the diet. It is high in polyunsaturated fat and low in cholesterol.

When selecting fresh Texas shrimp check to see that the shrimp smells fresh and briny and the flesh feels firm to the touch. When there is an ammonia-like odor the shrimp is not fresh.

If you buy shrimp in the shell to save money, also cook them in the shell. It adds flavor. Shell shrimp within 20 minutes of cooking to keep the shell from becoming brittle and hard to remove.

When cooking fresh shrimp, it's important not to overcook.

Shrimp are done when they turn pink. Overcooking makes them tough and rubbery. If buying frozen shrimp, do not thaw completely before cooking. Thawing causes the texture of shrimp to break down and lose moisture, so cook them before they are completely thawed. Also never refreeze thawed shrimp.

Versatile shrimp can be used in a number of dishes, like the following recipes. For more information on Texas shrimp plus free recipes, write to the Texas Department of Agriculture, 3652 N. Dixie St., Odessa, 79762.

Spicy Texas Shrimp
1 lg. chopped onion
2 lg. minced garlic cloves
2 T. oil
2 lg. chopped tomatoes
1 (4 oz.) can chopped chilis, drained
2 lb. medium shrimp, peeled
1/4 c. freshly squeezed lime juice
1/4 c. chopped cilantro
1/2 t. salt
Warm flour tortillas
Guacamole
Sour cream

In large skillet, cook onion and garlic in hot oil until tender. Add tomatoes, chilis and shrimp. Cook, stirring gently until shrimp turn pink and opaque. Stir in lime juice, cilantro and salt. Serve shrimp wrapped in warm flour tortillas with guacamole and sour cream. Makes four servings.

Lemon-Garlic Broiled Shrimp
2 lb. Texas shrimp
2 cloves finely chopped garlic
1 c. melted margarine or butter
1/4 c. lemon juice
1/2 t. salt

1/4 t. black pepper
Chopped fresh parsley
Peel and devein shrimp and set aside. In a small saucepan, cook garlic in margarine until tender. Remove from heat. Add lemon juice, salt and pepper. Arrange shrimp in a single layer on a baking pan. Pour sauce over shrimp. Broil about four inches from heat for six to eight minutes, or until shrimp are pink and tender. Baste once during broiling with sauce in pan. Sprinkle with parsley. Serve with crusty bread to absorb sauce. Makes four hearty servings.

Shrimp Creole
1/2 c. chopped onion
1/2 c. chopped celery
1 clove garlic, minced
3 T. salad oil
2 c. tomatoes (one 1 lb. can)
1 (8 oz.) can seasoned tomato sauce
1 1/2 t. salt
1 t. sugar
1/2 to 1 t. chili powder
1 t. worchestershire sauce
Dash tabasco sauce
1 t. cornstarch
12 oz. raw cleaned shrimp
1/2 c. chopped green pepper

Cook onion, celery and garlic in hot oil until tender, but not brown. Add tomatoes, tomato sauce and seasonings. Simmer uncovered 45 minutes. Mix cornstarch (optional) with two teaspoons water; stir into sauce. Cook and stir until mixture thickens. Add shrimp and green pepper. Cover and simmer until done, about five minutes. Serve over a bed of rice. Serves six to eight.

Wheelchair-bound teacher brings more to classroom than science

JENKS, Okla. (AP) — Paul Huston sits very still in front of his eighth-grade earth sciences class and explains how stars are formed.

As he lectures about mass and heat and energy, his hands lie motionless in his lap.

Only his face seems alive. His eyebrows lift in inquiry as he asks about the difference between a star and a planet, then tilt with gentle mockery at a wrong answer.

Every so often, he nods to a boy sitting in the front of the room, who changes the page on the overhead projector.

Huston says he still loves teaching, but admits, "It is not quite the same as it was before." "Before" was five years ago, before the 40-year-old Jenks Middle School teacher was diagnosed as having Lou Gehrig's disease, a terminal illness that destroys motor neurons, the nerves in the spine that control muscles.

Before he lost control of his limbs and body. Before he became confined to a wheelchair, and had to rely on others to take him to school, wheel him to class, take him to the restroom, feed him.

Despite the difficulties, he is determined to keep teaching as long as he can.

"I am firmly convinced you have to have a challenge to look forward to each day, to get you out of bed in the morning and keep you from feeling sorry for yourself."

Fourteen-year-old Courtney Ford said she does not think of Huston as different from any other teacher.

"At first, we thought we might be able to get away with lots of stuff," she said, "But he's definitely not that way."

James Clark, 14, said Huston is one of his favorite — and best — teachers.

"We love him — most of the time," he said.

Huston said he misses being able to move around the room, being able to stop and help youngsters with problems.

"But the kids have been troopers. In some ways it's a real burden to them, trying to understand a concept, when I can't jump up and draw a picture to explain it. But the only thing they have complained about is that I'm too hard."

He said his illness gives him an opportunity to educate the children about more than science.

"When most people see a person in a wheelchair, or an amputee, the natural reaction is to shy away. In addition to teaching science, I have been able to teach them that people with handicaps are human, and have desires and feelings and ambitions like everybody else."

Huston said he never would have been able to continue teaching the past several years, "if it weren't for a bunch of real loving, warm people."

Dozens of staff members have donated money to help with expenses. Faculty members help him go to the restroom and feed him at lunch. Student aides grade tests, duplicate papers and record grades.

One day, school maintenance workers came to his home and installed a ramp leading up the front stairs.

"They just surprised us," said

Huston's wife, Ginny.

The staff at the preschool where Mrs. Huston works helps pay for a housekeeper to come in every two weeks.

"We're surrounded by people who care — church, school, neighborhood and family," Huston said. "I wouldn't say it's easy, but it's sure more bearable with people like that."

Lou Gehrig's disease, named after the New York Yankee first baseman who died of it in 1941, is the common name for amyotrophic lateral sclerosis, or ALS.

It afflicts about 30,000 Americans a year, and in the latter stages often leads to paralysis and loss of speech. The cause is unknown, and there is no treatment; most patients die within five years, doctors say.

Huston said the first sign he had was in the fall of 1981, when he found he could not work fingernail clippers with his left hand.

"I didn't worry about it. I figured I'd pulled a muscle or something."

After he started getting cramps in his hands, he visited a doctor, and tests confirmed he was afflicted with the disease.

At 35, Huston said he was from 10 to 40 years younger than most victims at the onset of ALS, which is why his condition has deteriorated at a slightly slower than normal pace.

He started wearing a leg brace in 1983, and in the fall of 1984 began using a wheelchair to go long distances. He continued to weaken. Since February 1985, "I had to resign myself to the fact that I would be in the wheelchair most of the time," he said.

The Muscular Dystrophy Association, he said, has furnished him with most of his equipment, including the wheelchair.

Huston said his two sons, ages 8 and 4, are "very much aware" of his illness. "They have been real understanding, and very, very helpful. They're good runners and fetchers."

Huston, in his ninth year of teaching at Jenks, said it is difficult to predict if he will be back next year. He is beginning to have throat problems, and is afraid he may lose his voice.

"I would like to keep teaching. If I can't teach, I would like to stay in the school in some capacity, maybe as a part-time consultant, or something with student involvement," he said.

"As long as I can talk, I want to be involved some way with the school."

Realtors attend meeting

Members of the Pampa Board of Realtors attended the 66th annual convention of the Texas Association of Realtors (TAR) in El Paso, June 17-21. Those members who attended included Claudine Balch, president of the Pampa board; Janie Shed, TAR director; Marilyn (Mike) Keagy, member of the TAR builder-Realtor committee; and Judy Edwards, member of the TAR professional standards committee.

Real estate professionals from throughout the state participate in the annual convention of Texas' largest trade association, TAR, learning more about real estate through education programs and workshops. Speakers presented ideas on better living and career satisfaction for those who attended. Leaders for 1987 were also elected.

Realtor is a registered collective membership mark which may be used only by real estate professionals who are members of the National Association of Realtors (NAR). Pampa Board of Realtors belongs to NAR and subscribes to the organization's strict code of ethics.

Dear Abby

Short trip in a hearse is no way to go to church

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1986 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I thought this was so good, more people should see it. It's written in a half-teasing way, but there's a lot of truth in it. It came with our church newsletter, "The Kitsap Adventist News." I hope it makes your column.

V.M., BREMERTON, WASH.

DEAR V.M.: It did:

Dear Church Member: Don't wait until the hearse hauls you to church. If you do —

1. You will go, regardless of the weather.
2. You will go, regardless of the condition of your body.
3. There will be beautiful flowers there, but you won't enjoy them.
4. You will go, regardless of how your family feels.
5. The minister may say many good things, but they will do you no good.
6. There will be beautiful music, but you won't hear it.
7. There will be heartfelt prayers, but they will not touch your heart.
8. There will be friends and relatives there, but you won't worship with them.
9. You will go, no matter how many hypocrites are there.
10. You will go, no matter how much you are needed at home or at work.
11. You will receive no blessing from the service.
12. You won't feel concerned about your clothes.
13. You will never have to decide about attending church again.

Aren't you glad to be alive and well and full of zest and able to choose to go to church?

WALTER NUESLE, PASTOR, PORT ORCHARD, WASH.

DEAR ABBY: In answer to the lady who was upset when her mother-in-law referred to police officers as "pigs" in the presence of her 8-year-old daughter, and she (the child's mother) remained silent: A dear friend who is a retired police officer was once asked if it bothered him to be called a "pig." He replied, "On our force, we don't mind being called 'pigs' because to us it stands for P-ride, I-integrity and G-uts!"

A POLICEMAN'S FRIEND IN WINCHENDON, MASS.

DEAR FRIEND: Wonderful! Perhaps the lady can pass this on to her daughter, thus helping her to appreciate and respect the fine men and women who have chosen a profession that requires them to put their lives on the line daily in the line of duty.

DEAR ABBY: You correctly informed "Ohio Dropout" regarding the GED test. However, you failed to say that anyone age 18 can go to a junior college, regardless of whether he or she has completed high school, or received a GED. After completion of the required program, one can transfer to a four-year college and receive a bachelor's degree.

I know, because that's what I did. I went back to college, received my BA, and am now working toward my law degree, even though I, too, began as a "high school dropout."

CHARLOTTE HUGGINS, SAN FRANCISCO

DEAR ABBY: "Sue From Delaware" is absolutely right. It's amazing how few people know their geography. Our son, who was born and raised in New Castle, Del., is now stationed in Hawaii with the Navy, and when he's asked where he's from, he says "Pennsylvania" because it's easier than explaining where Delaware is. Abby, Delaware happens to be the home of the DuPont Co., the largest chemical company in the world.

WAKE UP, AMERICA

Toppings make a difference

How do you top your hot dog? Mustard is still most popular, but runner-up in a recent survey included sauerkraut, relish, ketchup, cheese and chili.

Breaking away from tradition isn't easy — but it can be tasty! Other ways to give hot dogs a gourmet flair are by topping them with creamy or tangy cole slaw, pickled vegetables such as artichoke hearts or button mushrooms or a mixture of cheese which when broiled blend deliciously together.

For a hot dog treat all year 'round, add these toppings to your menu. Or, serve them as an appetizing dip with cocktail wieners, Polish sausage or knackwurst chunks or even over a ring bologna.

Remember that hot dogs now are available in a variety of sizes: jumbo, quarter pound or dinner; flavored with cheddar or nacho cheeses, bacon or onion bits; and hickory or mesquite smoked.

Sunnyside Sauce

1 (8 oz.) jar pasteurized process cheese spread
1/4 c. catsup
1/2 t. dry mustard
Melt cheese spread. Stir in remaining ingredients. Makes about 1 1/4 cups. Serve warm.

Islander Spread

1 (8 oz.) can crushed pineapple in juice
3 T. coarse-ground prepared mustard
2 T. thawed, frozen orange juice concentrate
Combine all ingredients; mix well. Serve with dinner franks, smoked sausage, sliced luncheon

Pepped-up pinto beans

By NANCY BYAL

Better Homes and Gardens Food Editor

PEPPED-UP PINTO BEANS

2 cups dry pinto beans
1 4-ounce can chopped green chili peppers, drained
2 teaspoons chili powder
1 teaspoon salt
2 cloves garlic, minced
1 6-ounce package shredded Monterey Jack cheese or Monterey Jack cheese with jalapeno peppers.

Rinse beans. In a large saucepan or Dutch oven combine beans and 8 cups water. Cover and soak overnight. (Or, bring to boiling; reduce heat and cover. Simmer 2 minutes. Remove from heat. Cover; let stand 1 hour.) Drain beans.

In the same pan combine the drained beans, chili peppers, chili powder, salt, garlic and 2-3/4 cups water. Bring to boiling; reduce heat. Cover and simmer 2 to 2 1/2 hours or until beans are slightly mushy. Top with shredded cheese. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

To serve at a barbecue, keep beans warm for second helpings in a cast-iron pan on the grill.

meats, bratwurst. Makes about 1 1/4 cups.

Texas Chili Alarm

1 c. water
1 (1 1/2 to 1 3/4 oz.) envelope chili seasoning mix

2 T. corn syrup or honey
In saucepan stir water into chili seasoning mix until well blended. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until thickened — two to three minutes. Remove from heat and stir in corn syrup. Serve hot over grilled or steamed franks, Polish sausage, cheese wieners, garlic sausage. Makes about one cup.

Calico Pepper Relish

1 c. chopped sweet peppers

1/2 c. chopped onion

1/4 c. vinegar

3 T. salad oil

1 1/2 t. sugar

1 1/2 t. Worcestershire sauce

1/2 to 3/4 t. garlic salt

1/2 t. black pepper

Pinched crushed red pepper flakes, or to taste

Boil vinegar with oil and sugar for one minute. Stir in Worcestershire sauce, garlic salt, black pepper and red pepper. Add sweet peppers and onion. Mix well, then remove from heat.

Serve hot or cold with grilled hot dogs, links of Polish or Italian sausage. Makes about one cup.

Hot dogs make great partners on buns, bagels or breads

Hot dogs on rye. Hot dogs in pita pockets. Hot dogs on an onion roll. What faster matchup than hot dogs and a wide variety of breads and buns available for creating an "out of this world" sandwich. What a perfect way to celebrate July — National Hot Dog Month.

Hot dogs were first paired with soft buns at the St. Louis "Louisiana Purchase Exposition" in 1904 by Bavarian concessionaire, Anton Feuchtwanger. Now there's as many different styles of hot dogs as there are breads on which to serve them.

Rueben Dogs, Pita Hot Dogs and Torpedo Frankabobs are three easy to prepare hot dog recipes that will add variety to your next barbecue or family meal.

Torpedo Frankabobs
4 hot dogs, cut into 1-inch chunks
1 can (16 oz.) pineapple chunks
1 can (16 oz.) dark sweet cherries
1 can (16 oz.) apricot halves, optional

1 green pepper cut in 1-inch chunks
1 jar sweet and sour sauce, or orange marmalade

Arrange hot dogs and other items on skewers, alternating hot dogs and fruits. Brush generously with basting sauce and barbecue (or broil) over moderate heat until frankfurters and fruits are heated through. Serve on torpedo rolls, onion rolls or poppy seed buns.

Pita Hot Dogs
4 hot dogs, cut to curl
4 pita bread pockets
1 small jar spaghetti sauce
1 med. onion, thinly sliced
1 med. green pepper, thinly sliced
Grated Parmesan cheese
Lightly cook green pepper and onion slices in butter or oil. Pat dry with paper towel and set aside. Using pita bread as a base, brush with spaghetti sauce. Add onions and peppers. Place curled hot dogs on sauce. If desired, add additional sauce to top and sprinkle with Parmesan cheese.

To make curled hot dogs: Make 7 to 11 cuts down one side of hot dog without cutting completely through. Heat franks in simmering water for about five minutes, until curled. Curled hot dogs may also be barbecued on the grill for 1 to 2 minutes longer if desired.

For S-shaped hot dogs, cut 10 crosswise slits (5 on one side and 5 on the other) on each hot dog, cutting about 1/4 through.

Rueben Dogs
6 frankfurters
6 buns, rye bread, or favorite bread
1 can (8 oz.) sauerkraut, well drained
1/4 lb. sliced Swiss cheese
2 T. thousand island dressing
Mustard
Dill pickle slices

Heat frankfurters in boiling water, microwave oven or broiler. Slice heated frankfurters down the center lengthwise and place in center of bread or buns. Spread with a little mustard. Add 1-6th of the sauerkraut; top with 1 t. of thousand island dressing. Cover with Swiss cheese and place under broiler or in the oven until cheese is melted and beginning to bubble. Garnish with dill pickle slices and serve immediately. Yield: six servings.

Try tasty Texas shrimp!

By ANN GRANQUIST
Department of Agriculture

Spain's flag was the second of the six flags to fly over what is now known as Texas. Spain actually had two ruling periods, from 1519 to 1685 and from 1690 to 1821. The Spanish helped influence the style and development of Texas cuisine and the influence of the Spanish settlers is still felt today.

Spaniards were hearty seafarers and have left their mark on the type of seafood we eat. One of the greatest treasures in the Lone Star State is the harvest of Texas shrimp.

Most Texas shrimp are called brown shrimp, referring to the gray-brown cast to their shells. Though shrimp is available year-round, most shrimp are harvested between May and December, with peak harvest in July and August. Texas and Louisiana led the United States in the harvest of shrimp according to Ralph Rayburn, executive director of the Texas Shrimp Association. Shrimp is the number one seafood landed from Texas water, with an economic value of more than $180 million.

From a nutritional perspective, shrimp is a valuable addition to the diet. Shrimp is classified as a lean meat, containing less than two percent fat. A 3 1/2 ounce serving contains only 86 calories. Shrimp adds potassium, phosphorus, and iron to the diet. It is high in polyunsaturated fat and low in cholesterol.

When selecting fresh Texas shrimp check to see that the shrimp smells fresh and briny and the flesh feels firm to the touch. When there is an ammonia-like odor the shrimp is not fresh.

If you buy shrimp in the shell to save money, also cook them in the shell. It adds flavor. Shell shrimp within 20 minutes of cooking to keep the shell from becoming brittle and hard to remove.

When cooking fresh shrimp, it's important not to overcook.

Shrimp are done when they turn pink. Overcooking makes them tough and rubbery. If buying frozen shrimp, do not thaw completely before cooking. Thawing causes the texture of shrimp to break down and lose moisture, so cook them before they are completely thawed. Also never refreeze thawed shrimp.

Versatile shrimp can be used in a number of dishes, like the following recipes. For more information on Texas shrimp plus free recipes, write to the Texas Department of Agriculture, 3652 N. Dixie St., Odessa, 79762.

Spicy Texas Shrimp
1 lg. chopped onion
2 lg. minced garlic cloves
2 T. oil
2 lg. chopped tomatoes
1 (4 oz.) can chopped chilis, drained

2 lb. medium shrimp, peeled
1/4 c. freshly squeezed lime juice
1/2 t. salt
1/2 c. chopped cilantro

Warm flour tortillas
Guacamole
Sour cream

In large skillet, cook onion and garlic in hot oil until tender. Add tomatoes, chilis and shrimp. Cook, stirring gently until shrimp turn pink and opaque. Stir in lime juice, cilantro and salt. Serve shrimp wrapped in warm flour tortillas with guacamole and sour cream. Makes four servings.

Lemon-Garlic Broiled Shrimp
2 lb. Texas shrimp
2 cloves finely chopped garlic
1 c. melted margarine or butter
1/4 c. lemon juice
1/2 t. salt

1/4 t. black pepper
Chopped fresh parsley
Peel and devein shrimp and set aside. In a small saucepan, cook garlic in margarine until tender. Remove from heat. Add lemon juice, salt and pepper. Arrange shrimp in a single layer on a baking pan. Pour sauce over shrimp. Broil about four inches from heat for six to eight minutes, or until shrimp are pink and tender. Baste once during broiling with sauce in pan. Sprinkle with parsley. Serve with crusty bread to absorb sauce. Makes four hearty servings.

Shrimp Creole
1/2 c. chopped onion
1/2 c. chopped celery
1 clove garlic, minced
3 T. salad oil
2 c. tomatoes (one 1 lb. can)
1 (8 oz.) can seasoned tomato sauce
1 1/2 t. salt
1 t. sugar
1/2 to 1 t. chili powder
1 t. worchestershire sauce
Dash tabasco sauce
1 t. cornstarch
12 oz. raw cleaned shrimp
1/2 c. chopped green pepper

Cook onion, celery and garlic in hot oil until tender, but not brown. Add tomatoes, tomato sauce and seasonings. Simmer uncovered 45 minutes. Mix cornstarch (optional) with two teaspoons water; stir into sauce. Cook and stir until mixture thickens. Add shrimp and green pepper. Cover and simmer until done, about five minutes. Serve over a bed of rice. Serves six to eight.

Wheelchair-bound teacher brings more to classroom than science

JENKS, Okla. (AP) — Paul Huston sits very still in front of his eighth-grade earth sciences class and explains how stars are formed.

As he lectures about mass and heat and energy, his hands lie motionless in his lap.

Only his face seems alive. His eyebrows lift in inquiry as he asks about the difference between a star and a planet, then tilt with gentle mockery at a wrong answer.

Every so often, he nods to a boy sitting in the front of the room, who changes the page on the overhead projector.

Huston says he still loves teaching, but admits, "It is not quite the same as it was before." "Before" was five years ago, before the 40-year-old Jenks Middle School teacher was diagnosed as having Lou Gehrig's disease, a terminal illness that destroys motor neurons, the nerves in the spine that control muscles.

Before he lost control of his limbs and body, before he became confined to a wheelchair, and had to rely on others to take him to school, wheel him to class, take him to the restroom, feed him.

Despite the difficulties, he is determined to keep teaching as long as he can.

"I am firmly convinced you have to have a challenge to look forward to each day, to get you out of bed in the morning and keep you from feeling sorry for yourself."

Fourteen-year-old Courtney Ford said she does not think of Huston as different from any other teacher.

"At first, we thought we might be able to get away with lots of stuff," she said. "But he's definitely not that way."

James Clark, 14, said Huston is one of his favorite — and best — teachers.

"We love him — most of the time," he said.

Huston said he misses being able to move around the room, being able to stop and help youngsters with problems.

"But the kids have been troopers. In some ways it's a real burden to them, trying to understand a concept, when I can't jump up and draw a picture to explain it. But the only thing they have complained about is that I'm too hard."

He said his illness gives him an opportunity to educate the children about more than science.

"When most people see a person in a wheelchair, or an amputee, the natural reaction is to shy away. In addition to teaching science, I have been able to teach them that people with handicaps are human, and have desires and feelings and ambitions like everybody else."

Huston said he never would have been able to continue teaching the past several years, "if it weren't for a bunch of real loving, warm people."

Dozens of staff members have donated money to help with expenses. Faculty members help him go to the restroom and feed him at lunch. Student aides grade tests, duplicate papers and record grades.

One day, school maintenance workers came to his home and installed a ramp leading up the front stairs.

"They just surprised us," said

Huston's wife, Ginny.

The staff at the preschool where Mrs. Huston works helps pay for a housekeeper to come in every two weeks.

"We're surrounded by people who care — church, school, neighborhood and family," Huston said. "I wouldn't say it's easy, but it's sure more bearable with people like that."

Lou Gehrig's disease, named after the New York Yankee first baseman who died of it in 1941, is the common name for amyotrophic lateral sclerosis, or ALS.

It afflicts about 30,000 Americans a year, and in the latter stages often leads to paralysis and loss of speech. The cause is unknown, and there is no treatment; most patients die within five years, doctors say.

Huston said the first sign he had was in the fall of 1981, when he found he could not work fingernail clippers with his left hand.

"I didn't worry about it. I figured I'd pulled a muscle or something."

After he started getting cramps in his hands, he visited a doctor, and tests confirmed he was afflicted with the disease.

At 35, Huston said he was from 10 to 40 years younger than most victims at the onset of ALS, which is why his condition has deteriorated at a slightly slower than normal pace.

He started wearing a leg brace in 1983, and in the fall of 1984 began using a wheelchair to go long distances. He continued to weaken. Since February 1985, "I had to resign myself to the fact that I would be in the wheelchair most of the time," he said.

The Muscular Dystrophy Association, he said, has furnished him with most of his equipment, including the wheelchair.

Huston said his two sons, ages 8 and 4, are "very much aware" of his illness. "They have been real understanding, and very, very helpful. They're good runners and fetchers."

Huston, in his ninth year of teaching at Jenks, said it is difficult to predict if he will be back next year. He is beginning to have throat problems, and is afraid he may lose his voice.

"I would like to keep teaching. If I can't teach, I would like to stay in the school in some capacity, maybe as a part-time consultant, or something with student involvement," he said.

"As long as I can talk, I want to be involved some way with the school."

Realtors attend meeting

Members of the Pampa Board of Realtors attended the 66th annual convention of the Texas Association of Realtors (TAR) in El Paso, June 17-21. Those members who attended included Claudine Balch, president of the Pampa board; Janie Shed, TAR director; Marilyn (Mike) Keagy, member of the TAR builder-Realtor committee; and Judy Edwards, member of the TAR professional standards committee.

Real estate professionals from throughout the state participate in the annual convention of Texas' largest trade association, TAR, learning more about real estate through education programs and workshops. Speakers presented ideas on better living and career satisfaction for those who attended. Leaders for 1987 were also elected.

Realtor is a registered collective membership mark which may be used only by real estate professionals who are members of the National Association of Realtors (NAR). Pampa Board of Realtors belongs to NAR and subscribes to the organization's strict code of ethics.

Dear Abby

Short trip in a hearse is no way to go to church

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1986 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I thought this was so good, more people should see it. It's written in a half-teasing way, but there's a lot of truth in it. It came with our church newsletter, "The Kitsap Adventist News." I hope it makes your column.

V.M., BREMERTON, WASH.

DEAR V.M.: It did:

Dear Church Member: Don't wait until the hearse hauls you to church. If you do —

1. You will go, regardless of the weather.
2. You will go, regardless of the condition of your body.
3. There will be beautiful flowers there, but you won't enjoy them.
4. You will go, regardless of how your family feels.
5. The minister may say many good things, but they will do you no good.
6. There will be beautiful music, but you won't hear it.
7. There will be heartfelt prayers, but they will not touch your heart.
8. There will be friends and relatives there, but you won't worship with them.
9. You will go, no matter how many hypocrites are there.
10. You will go, no matter how much you are needed at home or at work.
11. You will receive no blessing from the service.
12. You won't feel concerned about your clothes.
13. You will never have to decide about attending church again.

Aren't you glad to be alive and well and full of zest and able to choose to go to church?

WALTER NUESSE, PASTOR, PORT ORCHARD, WASH.

DEAR ABBY: In answer to the lady who was upset when her mother-in-law referred to police officers as "pigs" in the presence of her 8-year-old daughter, and she (the child's mother) remained silent: A dear friend who is a retired police officer was once asked if it bothered him to be called a "pig." He replied, "On our force, we don't mind being called 'pigs' because to us it stands for P-ride, I-integrity and G-uts!"

A POLICEMAN'S FRIEND IN WINCHENDON, MASS.

DEAR FRIEND: Wonderful! Perhaps the lady can pass this on to her daughter, thus helping her to appreciate and respect the fine men and women who have chosen a profession that requires them to put their lives on the line daily in the line of duty.

DEAR ABBY: You correctly informed "Ohio Dropout" regarding the GED test. However, you failed to say that anyone age 18 can go to a junior college, regardless of whether he or she has completed high school, or received a GED. After completion of the required program, one can transfer to a four-year college and receive a bachelor's degree.

I know, because that's what I did. I went back to college, received my BA, and am now working toward my law degree, even though I, too, began as a "high school dropout."

CHARLOTTE HUGGINS, SAN FRANCISCO

DEAR ABBY: "Sue From Delaware" is absolutely right. It's amazing how few people know their geography. Our son, who was born and raised in New Castle, Del., is now stationed in Hawaii with the Navy, and when he's asked where he's from, he says "Pennsylvania" because it's easier than explaining where Delaware is. Abby, Delaware happens to be the home of the DuPont Co., the largest chemical company in the world.

Toppings make a difference

How do you top your hot dog? Mustard is still most popular, but runner-up in a recent survey included sauerkraut, relish, ketchup, cheese and chili.

Breaking away from tradition isn't easy — but it can be tasty! Other ways to give hot dogs a gourmet flair are by topping them with creamy or tangy cole slaw, pickled vegetables such as artichoke hearts or button mushrooms or a mixture of cheese which when broiled blend deliciously together.

For a hot dog treat all year 'round, add these toppings to your menu. Or, serve them as an appetizing dip with cocktail wieners, Polish sausage or knackwurst chunks or even over a ring bologna.

Remember that hot dogs now are available in a variety of sizes: jumbo, quarter pound or dinner; flavored with cheddar or nacho cheeses, bacon or onion bits; and hickory or mesquite smoked.

Sunnyside Sauce
1 (8 oz.) jar pasteurized process cheese spread
1/4 c. catsup
1/2 t. dry mustard
Melt cheese spread. Stir in remaining ingredients. Makes about 1 1/4 cups. Serve warm.

Islander Spread
1 (8 oz.) can crushed pineapple in juice
3 T. coarse-ground prepared mustard
2 T. thawed, frozen orange juice concentrate
Combine all ingredients; mix well. Serve with dinner franks, smoked sausage, sliced luncheon

Pepped-up pinto beans

By NANCY BYAL
Better Homes and Gardens Food Editor
PEPPED-UP PINTO BEANS
2 cups dry pinto beans
1 4-ounce can chopped green chili peppers, drained
2 teaspoons chili powder
1 teaspoon salt
2 cloves garlic, minced
1 6-ounce package shredded Monterey Jack cheese or Monterey Jack cheese with jalapeno peppers.

Rinse beans. In a large saucepan or Dutch oven combine beans and 6 cups water. Cover and soak overnight. (Or, bring to boiling; reduce heat and cover. Simmer 2 minutes. Remove from heat. Cover; let stand 1 hour.) Drain beans.

In the same pan combine the drained beans, chili peppers, chili powder, salt, garlic and 4 2/3 cups water. Bring to boiling; reduce heat. Cover and simmer 2 to 2 1/2 hours or until beans are slightly mushy. Top with shredded cheese. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

To serve at a barbecue, keep beans warm for second helpings in a cast-iron pan on the grill.

Nutrition information per serving: 264 cal., 17 g. pro., 35 g. carbo., 7 g. fat, 19 mg. chol., 383 mg. sodium. U.S. RDA: 10 percent vit. A, 30 percent vit. C, 28 percent thiamine, 12 percent riboflavin, 23 percent calcium, 33 percent phosphorus, and 19 percent iron.

meats, bratwurst. Makes about 1 1/4 cups.

Texas Chili Alarm
1 c. water
1 (1 1/2 to 1 3/4 oz.) envelope chili seasoning mix

2 T. corn syrup or honey
In saucepan stir water into chili seasoning mix until well blended. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until thickened — two to three minutes. Remove from heat and stir in corn-syrup. Serve hot over grilled or steamed franks, Polish sausage, cheese wieners, garlic sausage. Makes about one cup.

Calico Pepper Relish
1 c. chopped sweet peppers

1/2 c. chopped onion
1/4 c. vinegar
3 T. salad oil
1 1/2 t. sugar
1 1/2 t. Worcestershire sauce
1/2 to 3/4 t. garlic salt
1/4 t. black pepper
Pinched crushed red pepper flakes, or to taste

Boil vinegar with oil and sugar for one minute. Stir in Worcestershire sauce, garlic salt, black pepper and red pepper. Add sweet peppers and onion. Mix well, then remove from heat.

Serve hot or cold with grilled hot dogs, links of Polish or Italian sausage. Makes about one cup.

Sports Forum and Agin 'Um WARREN HASSE

FROM THE NOTE PAD: Did the interview here yesterday lock up the job for the next Harvester basketball coach? Parents are very concerned about dedication to basketball and "role model" as prime criteria for the one appointed... Speaking of basketball, the PHS class of '55 will reunite Saturday, bringing back such members of the state champions as ZEKE, the MAYOR OF KINGSMILL, and possibly even the OLD COACH, who by coincidence, is vacationing in the area, and hopefully will be around for the Saturday morning registration period at the Coronado Inn... TOM LANDRY wrote the forward to Ditka, the autobiography of the Chi-Bears Super-Bowl-winning coach, now on the bookstands. Filled with profanity in its preliminary form, caused Landry to tell his former assistant: "It won't help sell one extra book." Ditka agreed and deleted some of the colorful language... Good to hear that ART RANKIN is on the road to recovery from a near-fatal auto accident. His congenial smile and quiet demeanor has welcomed sports fans to Harvester football games for many years as he stood at the gate taking tickets. His pride in his city and school has been evidenced many times as he was seen picking up trash around the football field after the high school children had left for the day, so visiting fans would get a better impression of our school and town and its residents... Good to hear from DAN ROCHE (PHS '49), now a resident of Biloxi, Miss., who still keeps his track interest alive as a senior runner. He recently sped a 6:20 mile. And another former Harvester, GARY MCCARRELL and his stock broker wife Sharon recently competed in a marathon in Stockholm. They are Amarillo residents... The annual Top O Texas Gun Show is scheduled for Brown Auditorium July 12-13, tying in with the TOT Rodeo... There are too many athletes on campus who don't qualify to be there. That will always be a problem until the standards of admission are brought up. The image of college football has suffered. The requirements to attend college have been so lax that it has been an embarrassment... says DARRRELL ROYAL, former UT-Austin football coach... Good luck to the Pampa Babe Ruth 13-year old All Stars as they begin play in the District Tournament at Dumas this weekend... Longtime area basketball coach ROY YOUNG could be seen in the stands at the summer basketball league games at McNeely Fieldhouse watching his son, who will play at Frank Phillips College next season, perform... Former Dallas Cowboy defensive end HARVEY MARTIN reportedly kisses and tells in his book, Texas

Thunder, due out next month. Wait for the movie... Opinion: MERCURY MORRIS had the greatest upper body strength I've ever seen on a football player that size. Muscles on muscles, and a good reason he was so hard to stop... Didjano the first television commercial was shown on WNBT-TV in NYC in 1941, cost $9, and hustled Bulova watches. Which reminds, did you note that that loveable little fellow who has been selling shaving items for Gillette is not associated with the All-Star baseball game this year. Whahappened?

TOM KENSLER, former sports editor of this paper now working for The Daily Oklahoman and covering Oklahoma State sports says: "It's too bad TERRY (FAGGINS, ex-Harvester) didn't get Division I out of high school. He might have developed into an NBA-type shooting guard." Faggins is attending summer school at Stillwater to complete work on his degree. In that regard, despite all the bad press, seven of the 18 seniors picked in the first round of the NBA draft graduated from college; all the rest (other than the late Len Bias) are less than a year away, exceptional on the demands of major college athletics and stardom therein... KEVIN O'MALLEY, one of four CBS Sports executive producers, has been demoted in a shakeup of that network's sports operation. His father served several years as GM of the Amarillo pro baseball operation... "It's really amazing how well he's done," exclaims RANDY MATSON in describing the fantastic shot putting performance of A&M freshman Randy Barnes this spring. Matson, the former Pampan and Olympic gold medalist and first person in history to put the 16-pound ball past the once impossible 70-foot barrier, saw the 19-year old Barnes flip it 71-9/2, surpassing Matson's school mark by four inches. The world mark is 74-2 1/2 held by East German Ulf Timmermann... Former AHS Sandie coach BUM PHILLIPS may add his colloquialisms as a pro football analyst this fall. Between horse shows he's talking with NBC and CBS about the booth job... The Lone Star Conference, which WTSU has joined, was not recommended for automatic qualification in the Division II Women's Basketball Tournament, bad news for Coach BOB SCHNEIDER... And now the ultimate in fleecing the fans, as announced from Irving. The DC's America's Team, are offering six weeks of afternoon training camp practices to cable subscribers on a pay-per-view basis. The sweat sessions can be viewed from 5:30-7:30 p.m. daily in the Metroplex area, for a price, of course.

Phillies win with unusual defense

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Sports Writer

In a game that had just about everything, including a trick defensive formation by the Philadelphia Phillies, the Pittsburgh Pirates were left with nothing but another number in the loss column.

"We had our chances," said Pirates Manager Jim Leyland, whose team stranded 15 runners in Tuesday night's 5-4, 12-inning loss to the Phillies. "They tried to give the game to us and we wouldn't take it."

Before Mike Schmidt decided things with a 12th-inning homer off Larry McWilliams, 1-5, the Phillies used an unorthodox five-man infield to turn a double play in the 10th, after reliever Steve Bedrosian had wild-pitched home the tying runs on successive pitches.

The Phillies eventually overcame two rally-killing baserun-ning mistakes, four errors and three runners caught stealing to hand the Pirates their 26th loss in 41 home games.

In other National League games, San Francisco defeated Atlanta 9-6 in 10 innings; San Diego stopped Houston 7-4 and New York edged St. Louis 2-1. The Montreal-Chicago game was suspended after seven scoreless innings because of darkness and the Los Angeles-Cincinnati game was rained out.

Giants 9, Braves 6

Candy Maldonado, who forced extra innings with a pinch-hit homer in the ninth, singled in two runs with two outs in the top of the 10th to lead San Francisco over Atlanta.

Maldonado's single made it 8-6 and another run also scored on the play when the ball got past right fielder Terry Harper for an error. The victory snapped a two-game losing streak for the Giants and a five-game winning streak for Atlanta.

Jeff Robinson, 5-2, got the victory with two scoreless innings of relief. The loss went to Joe Johnson, 6-7.

Padres 7, Astros 4

Garry Templeton's two-run single capped a four-run sixth inning, leading San Diego over Houston and knocking the Astros out of first place in the National League West.

Eric Show, 7-4, pitched five innings to win his fourth straight game, giving up two runs on three hits. Gene Walter and Goose Gosage finished up, with Gosage gaining his 14th save.

Houston starter Mark Knudson was the loser, going five innings and giving up three runs on seven hits.

Mets 2, Cardinals 1

Mookie Wilson hit a home run and New York took advantage of baserunning mistakes by St. Louis to beat the Cardinals for the sixth straight time at Busch Stadium.

The Cardinals' baserunning mistakes helped New York left-hander Sid Fernandez, 10-2, weather four hits in the fifth inning and extend his winning streak to five games. Roger McDowell pitched the last two innings for his seventh save.

Rangers return to first place

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — The Texas Rangers were back in first place today in the American League West thanks to some basics, good pitching and defense, on their part and a little help from the Chicago White Sox.

The Rangers, who had lost six of their last eight games, snapped out of their doldrums Tuesday night with a 5-0 victory over the Minnesota Twins.

They moved back into first place about two hours later when the Chicago White Sox defeated the California Angels, 5-3.

Veteran knuckleballer Charlie Hough, 8-3, provided the pitching and the Rangers infield turned four double plays and made four other spectacular plays in the victory over Minnesota.

Hough, notching his first shout-out in more than a year, was backed by home runs by Pete O'Brien, his ninth, and Pete Incaviglia, his 14th, in snapping the Twins' four-game win streak.

Hough allowed five hits, walked three and struck out two in besting Twins right-hander Mark Portugal, 2-7.

"I don't think Charlie had his real good stuff in the first few innings," said Rangers manager Bobby Valentine, "but he got better as the game went along, and the defense played great behind him."

The infield turned four double plays in the first five innings to keep the Twins off the board.

"I didn't throw the ball all that well," said Hough, winner of six of his last seven decisions. "but the harder they whacked it, the better the defense was behind me. They made some spectacular plays."

Twins manager Ray Miller gave an exasperated sigh when discussing the trouble his players had in handling Hough's knuckler.

"We did everything we could against him," said Miller. "You try everything you've got and nothing seems to work. Guys like him are frustrating.

"When it comes time to pick the pitchers for the All-Star game, I hope they've got him in there. He deserves it."

O'Brien, who had a tough June, gave Hough all the runs he needed with a 2-run shot in the fourth. The Rangers got a run on three singles in the sixth, and Incaviglia homered with a man on off reliever Neal Heaton in the eighth.

Hough didn't allow a hit over the final four innings.

Pampa team plays Saturday in district 13 tournament

Pampa will play Top O' Texas at 5:30 p.m. Saturday in the opening game of the District One 13-year-old Babe Ruth Baseball Tournament in Dumas.

Named to the Pampa All-Star Team this season were Tommy Adkins, Chris Archibald, Tony Bybee, Bryan Ellis, John Grimsley, Will Hacker, Ricardo Armendariz, Chuck Jones, Steve Murphy, Andrew Ramirez, Steve Sanders, Guy Savage, Terence Tillman, Jayson Williams and Quincy Williams.

Warren Smith will manage the team. Coaches are O.K. Lee and Weldon Ellis.

Other teams in the tournament are Randall County and North Plains of Dumas. These two teams will play each other at 8 p.m. Saturday.

The double-elimination tournament will run through next Tuesday. The championship finals will be played at 6 p.m. Tuesday. A second game, if necessary, will be played 30 minutes after the first game.

Pampa will be the site of the District One Senior League Girls' Softball Tournament, which starts July 14 at Optimist Park.

Canadian meets Dumas at 8 p.m. while Hi-Plains East takes on Borger at 6 p.m. July 14. The Pampa team drew a bye and will play the Hi-Plains East-Borger winner at 8 p.m. July 15. Games start at 6 p.m. nightly.

The championship will be played at 8 p.m. July 19.

Bias' case brought to grand jury

UPPER MARLBORO, Md. (AP) — A grand jury investigating the cocaine-induced death of University of Maryland basketball star Len Bias has been briefed by police and prosecutors but won't start hearing testimony from witnesses for three more weeks.

Members of the grand jury spent more than two hours Tuesday listening to State's Attorney

Arthur A. Marshall Jr., members of his staff and the officer heading up the county police investigation.

Marshall refused to discuss what he told the grand jury or who the first witnesses will be.

Grand jury members also refused to discuss the investigation.

In a related development, two television stations reported Tuesday that a federal drug investigation has been under way at the University of Maryland for the past six months.

According to WJZ-TV in Baltimore and WRC-TV in Washington, the investigation is centering on drugs allegedly sold in a campus dormitory and may involve athletes.

Marshall denied any knowledge of a federal investigation. Breckinridge Willcox, U.S. attorney for Maryland, did not return calls made by The Associated Press to his home and office.

Bob O'Leary, special agent for the Drug Enforcement Administration's Washington field division, said he could neither confirm nor deny whether the DEA, the lead agency in federal narcotics investigations, was involved.

Bias, a 22-year-old all-American, collapsed in his dormitory room June 19, two days after being drafted by the NBA champion Boston Celtics as the second player in the draft.

Dr. John Smialek, state medical examiner, said Bias died from cocaine which he had probably inhaled only minutes before his heart stopped beating.

While Marshall wouldn't discuss his future plans Tuesday, he said last week that he expects to call before the grand jury some University of Maryland officials and coaches as well as people who were in the room with Bias the night he died.

Several friends and basketball teammates were in the room to help him celebrate the realization of his dream to play for the Celtics.

Marshall said he is interested in finding out who might have used illegal drugs in addition to Bias and who supplied the cocaine or helped Bias buy it.

A homicide charge might be filed if someone other than Bias was found to be the supplier of the cocaine, the prosecutor said.

Mandlikova holds off underdog in Wimbledon tennis quarterfinals

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — The match had gone exactly according to form.

Hana Mandlikova, No. 3 seed at Wimbledon and ranked fourth in the world, had broken underdog Lori McNeil in the second game of the first set Tuesday. After seven games, Mandlikova led 5-2.

This was no time for longshots, not in the quarterfinals of the world's most prestigious tennis tournament, not with Chris Evert Lloyd and Martina Navratilova still waiting on the draw sheet. Save the fairy tales for bedtime. It was nice knowing you, Lori.

Then, all at once, the air went out of Mandlikova's balloon. Faced with five set points, McNeil fought her way back to deuce each time against Mandlikova's serves. Finally, she broke Mandlikova.

Later, threatened with another break that would have cost her the set, McNeil battled back to hold her service and force a tiebreaker.

And when she won that 7-4, Lori McNeil, ranked No. 77 by the computer, was one set away from a semifinal appearance at Wimbledon.

But if you were expecting a panic on Hana's side of the net, you came to the wrong place. Mandlikova majors in cool, even-handed tennis. If there was to be a panic, it would be by No. 77.

Palmers win at Amarillo

Wendell Palmer of Pampa won the discus with a throw of 131-5/8 last weekend in the Texas Track and Field Classic held in Amarillo.

Palmer, competing in the Open Masters Division, also placed second in the shot and third in the javelin.

Tom Palmer, also of Pampa and the son of Wendell, competed in the Young Men's Division and won the javelin and placed second in the discus. Palmer plans to compete in the West Texas Junior Olympic AAU Track Meet in Borger Saturday.

The elder Palmer plans to compete in the Ozona Masters Meet July 12-13.

Joe Brown of White Deer won the long jump in the Young Men's Division with a leap of 19-2. Richard Smith of Wheeler won both the shot and discus.

In the Intermediate Boys' Division, Bart Thomas of White was second in the pole vault.

In the Bantam Boys' Division, Tom Lambert of Groom won three events — the 1,500 walk, shot and 3,000 walk. Jay Belcher of Groom was third in the 800.

Trey Smith of Wheeler won the discus, high jump and shot put in the Midget Boys' Division. Matt Fields of Groom was second in the 3200 racewalk.

In the Bantam Girls' Division, Suzy Poole of Groom won the 1500 and Angela Reed, also of Groom, won the high jump. Stacy Fields of Groom was second in the 800.

In the Midget Girls' Division, Angela Belcher of Groom won the 3200 racewalk and placed second in the high jump.

Donna Wessner of White Deer won both the shot and discus in the Intermediate Girls' Division.

Cathy Williams of White Deer won the long jump in the Young Women's Division and placed third in the triple jump.

No coach yet

A new Pampa High basketball coach is expected to be named before the next school board meeting July 15, according to PHS Athletic Director John Kendall.

"We're in the process of interviewing a number of applicants this week and we hope to have a new coach before the board meets again," Kendall said.

Kendall, along with Superintendent James Trusty, are conducting the interviews and will pass on their recommendations to the school board.

"I can't give out any names, but we've got some good ones to choose from," Kendall added.

The head coaching job became vacant when Garland Nichols resigned to accept a similar position at South Garland. Nichols had been the Harvester head coach since 1979.

All-Stars chosen

The Pampa All-Star Team from the 11-12 age division has been selected for the Babe Ruth Bambino District Tournament July 11-12.

Players selected include Philip Sexton, Dwight Nickleberry, Tye Snapp, Joe Yurich, Jesse Hernandez, Brandon Wells, Cederick Wilbon, John Donnelly, Heath Stevens, Larry Reed, Brandon Brashears, Buddy Plunk, Troy Black, Donnie Medley and Monty Waters. Coaches are Robert Morris, Steve Yurich and Loyd Bohanon.

The Pampa All-Stars will play practice games with another Pampa team today and Thursday, starting at 7 p.m. at Optimist Park. The second team includes Jeff Cloud, Chester Jackson, Chad Snapp, Jason Brantley, Clarence Reed, Todd Mason, Darren Jones, Mathew Clark, Dustin Dunlap, Michael Harz, Jeremy Stone and Torey Sellers.

Pampa will play Booker in a best two out of three series July 11-12. The first game will be played at 7 p.m. July 11 at Booker. The second game will be played at 8 p.m. July 12 in Pampa. A third game, if necessary, will be played at 8 p.m.

The winner advances to the state tournament July 18-20 in Plainview with three teams entered. The winner advances to the Southwest Regional Tournament in Arkansas with the winner there going onto the Bambino World Series.

Ex-Marine says the secret to playing glasses is never stop

By RICK SMITH
Sherman Democrat

BONHAM, Texas (AP) — Ray Chapman has earned a living from many jobs during his 64 years, but he lives for his music. Pianist, singer, trumpet player, Chapman can blow ragtime on harmonica or tap out a symphony on 27 water glasses with two wooden dowels.

"Not many people play the glasses. I guess they just never attempt it. It's difficult. You have to concentrate. You have to forget the audience. It's just you and the glasses."

As he spoke, he was tuning 27 glasses, tapping them with a small wooden stick and adjusting the water level to change the pitch. Tap, ping, more water; tap, ping, more water.

"I've had all kinds of experiences playing glasses. Last night I was playing before 200 people and broke a glass. Sometimes the glasses tip over and spill. Then you have to whistle that note when you come to it, or sing it. "But you don't stop. You never stop."

"The secret," says Chapman, "is to keep going, whatever happens. Don't stop!"

Chapman, a Marine veteran, lives and works at the Sam Rayburn Memorial Veteran's Administration Center here.

Tap, ping, more water. Tap, tap, ping, a little less.

As a member of the Marine Corps Band, he played for combat troops in the South Pacific during World War II.

Chapman doesn't like to talk about those days.

"It was very depressing playing for those soldiers. You would see them all bloused up. Legs bloused off. Arms bloused off. And you'd have to go in there and carry on with a smile."

But he never stopped playing. "We were about the only entertainment they had. We couldn't stop."

He still plays for soldiers, the patients and residents of the VA center here.

"There's a lot of sadness here," he says.

"These men never talk about their wars. They never mention it. But there's sadness. A lot of these men can never get out of here."

Tap, ping. Tap, ping. Music, he thinks, helps.

"It makes me happy to play for people and it seems to make people happy hearing it."

"I've had a lot of people say, 'Ray, I came in here depressed, feeling blah, but that music just picked me up.'"

"Music makes people happy. They can be down, but it makes them happy, cheerful, right off."

Tap, ping; tap, ping.

Chapman taught himself harmonica when he was a 5-year-old and, later, played vaudeville theaters in his native California in the '30s.

He says he was on "The Ed Sullivan Show" in 1958 and also on "The Gong Show," "Hee Haw" and Jerry Lewis' telethon.

But, always, he's had to take other jobs to support his music.

"I've been a painter. And I haven't been above washing dishes. I never cared a lot about money."

Last year Chapman traveled to Washington, D.C., a winner in a national Veteran's Administration music competition.

"I played 'Stars and Stripes Forever' on 37 glasses. That was a thrill."

Tap, ping, tap, ping.

Tuning finished, Chapman dipped his sticks in the red and green food-colored water, the better to hold onto them.

Mildred Savoie accompanied him on the organ. Chapman raced up and down a long, glass-lined table, never missing a note.

He slid a little on the floor, but his music never slipped. And Chapman smiled as he played.

After the concert, Chapman began to pack his glasses, pouring the colored liquids into gallon jugs.

Three burly construction workers listening outside, came in and shyly asked Chapman for another tune.

He dipped the sticks in water and belted out one of his favorites, "Lady of Spain."

The cheap Walmart glasses rang like fine crystal. Chapman did a little dance, sprinting back and forth, up and down the table, ringing this glass, then that.

Water sloshed and glasses teetered, but Chapman didn't stop. He smiled and the construction workers smiled, too.

GLASS MUSICIAN — Ray Chapman of Bonham checks the water level in his glasses. Chapman has earned his living from many jobs during his 64 years, but he lives for his music. He can blow ragtime on harmonica or tap out a symphony on 27 water glasses with two wooden dowels.

Cousins charged in farmer's 1984 slaying

BROWNFIELD, Texas (AP) — A Mexican man has been arraigned in two West Texas counties and his cousin held in Minnesota in connection with the 1984 abduction, robbery and execution-style slaying of a farmer, authorities said.

Defendant Eracilio Otero-Maranda was first arraigned Tuesday on capital murder charges in Games County, prosecutors said.

He then was taken to Terry County, where he was arraigned on charges of kidnapping and theft over $750 dollars, said District Judge Ray Anderson.

The charges stemmed from the Nov. 4, 1984 abduction of Darryl Vandivere from his farm near here.

The victim's remains were found about one year later in Gaines County.

Otero-Maranda, a Mexican national, was arrested June 8 in New Mexico after crossing the border from Mexico, the FBI said. He then waived extradition to Texas.

Meanwhile, the defendant's cousin, Salvador Maranda-Otero, was arrested Tuesday on a charge of unlawful flight to avoid prosecution, said Lawrence G. Lawler, special agent in charge of the Minneapolis office of the FBI.

"Authorities in Terry County Texas had requested the FBI's assistance in locating Maranda. He was arrested while working on a vegetable farm in northern Anoka county, just north of Minneapolis, using the name Antonio Grado," Lawler said.

He was scheduled to appear today before a U.S. Magistrate, Lawler said.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Guitarrist Chet Atkins will fill in Aug. 16 for Garrison Keillor as host of the public radio show "A Prairie Home Companion."

The Country Music Hall-of-Fame musician, who has been a guest before on the popular show, also will perform when he takes Keillor's place, Atkins' publicist, Susan Hackney, said Tuesday.

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) — Folk singer Pete Seeger, who joined the Great Peace March for Global Nuclear Disarmament briefly in Denver, will hitch up again when participants in the 3,100-mile trek hit Iowa City, an organizer says.

Seeger will join the march to accept a banner signed by the 600 participants, and plans to take the banner with him to the Aug. 6 ceremony in Japan marking the World War II bombing of Hiroshima, Martie Olson said Tuesday.

The trek began in Los Angeles March 1 with 1,025 participants but stalled in mid-March when its organizing group collapsed. After a 1½-week delay, about 500 people set out again.

MIAMI (AP) — G. Gordon Liddy, trading on his notoriety as a Watergate burglar and on Americans' fear of terrorism, says he is opening a corporate security training academy and renting out the services of a 10-man multinational commando squad.

Both are necessary services never before offered in the United States, the 55-year-old former FBI agent said Tuesday. He said his "Hurricane Force," made up of former Israeli and Cuban commandos and British intelligence officers experienced in fighting terrorism, is available for hostage rescues.

A Hurricane Force rescue would run from $500,000 to $1 million, Liddy said.

Liddy served more than four years in prison for his conviction in the 1972 burglary of Democratic Party Headquarters and the office of Pentagon Papers-leaker Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist in 1971.

rean War battles, an official says.

"They can come up with another title," said Donald Baruch, a special assistant to the assistant secretary of defense for public affairs.

"We're waiting to talk with them. I believe it is appropriate we should ask them," Baruch said Tuesday during a telephone interview from Washington. "The title is not appropriate for the script that they have."

"It's a pretty rotten deal" because the script depicts Eastwood's character as a modern-day Marine Corps sergeant.

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Alabama and the Marshall Tucker Band will be among nearly 50 recording artists who will pay tribute to the Future Farmers of America in a 12-hour concert next month, the FFA says.

Johnny Paycheck, John Anderson, Dave Mason, Richie Havens, Rare Earth, Gary U.S. Bonds, Gene Cotton, Tommy TuTone, Del Wood, Shirley Ceasar and others also are expected to appear Aug. 2 at Arrowhead Stadium, the group said Tuesday.

The concert is organized as a salute to the 500,000 members of the national organization of high school vocational agriculture students.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Pentagon will seek a name change for Clint Eastwood's upcoming film "Heartbreak Ridge" because it wrongly credits the Marines for one of the Army's bloodiest Korean War battles, an official says.

"They can come up with another title," said Donald Baruch, a special assistant to the assistant secretary of defense for public affairs.

"We're waiting to talk with them. I believe it is appropriate we should ask them," Baruch said Tuesday during a telephone interview from Washington. "The title is not appropriate for the script that they have."

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

THE PLANNING & ZONING COMMISSION of the City of Pampa, Texas, will hold a Public Hearing at 3:30 P.M., July 17, 1986, in the Lovett Memorial Library Community Meeting Room, 111 N. Houston, Pampa, Texas, to consider the following proposed change: Zoning change from Retail district to Specific use permit for the following tract:

A tract of land out of the Southeast corner of Block 1 of the RE-PLAT OF BLOCKS 1 and 2, NORTH CREST SECTION 1, an Addition of the City of Pampa, being a portion of the Southeast Quarter of Section 117, Block 3, T&GN Ry. Co. Survey, Gray County, Texas described as follows:

BEGINNING at an Iron Rod found at the Southeast corner of said Block 1 from which the Southeast corner of Section 117 bears N 89° 16' E, 40.0 feet and S 00° 09' 10" E, 30.0 feet;

THENCE, N 00° 09' 10" W, 100.0 feet along the West line of Hobart Street to a point for the Southeast corner and PLACE OF BEGINNING of this tract;

THENCE, N 00° 09' 10" W, 100.00 feet along the West line of Hobart Street to an Iron Rod set for the Northeast corner of this tract;

THENCE, S 89° 16' W, 135.0 feet parallel with the South line of said Section 117 to a point for the Northwest corner of this tract;

THENCE, S 00° 09' 10" E, 100.00 feet parallel with the West line of Hobart Street to a point for the Southwest corner of this tract;

THENCE, N 89° 16' E, 135.0 feet parallel with the North line of TWENTY-THIRD AVENUE to the PLACE OF BEGINNING.

For the proposed purpose to better utilize property.

All interested persons are invited to attend and will be given the opportunity to express their views on the proposed changes.
