William G. McAdoo Expresses Hope For Repeal On Visit Here; Senator Asks Citizens Numerous Questions

Find Missing Heiress

Mrs. Minnie Fullen, 21-year-old missing heiress of Waco, Tex., was found by a detective in Brooklyn, N. Y. She said, 'I guess I'm Mrs. Fullen, but where I've been and what I've been doing I don't remember.'

Famous Californian Enroute To Home Via Airplane

William G. McAdoo, long recognized as a dry, who received never-say-die support of Texas' 40 dry delegates in the democratic convention of 1924 in which the McAdoo and Al Smith forces stood deadlocked for more than 100 ballots stood on a sidewalk here Friday morning and in an informal chat with citizens declared he hoped the eighteenth amendment to the constitution would be repealed.

Mr. McAdoo stopped here more than an hour en route to California by plane. He drove into town, stopped at the Herald office for a visit then got a shave and stood around on the street some time, telling stories of his days as Secretary of the Treasury, asking questions about how the people feel about the principal points in the administration's program and answering questions of citizens.

He was told by those with him that they believed the state would go wet Saturday. One in the group, an ardent, uncompromising dry said "but not with my vote."

"I opposed writing the eighteenth amendment into the constitution," he said.

"I wish intoxicants could be eliminated from the human race," he continued. "But it is very obvious that the present system is no good. I would even rather have the licensed and regulated saloon than to have present conditions."

Mr. McAdoo said he had no idea when William H. Woodin would resign as secretary of the treasury. Asked if he would consider the place, he declared emphatically he would NOT.

"I promised the people of California that if they sent me to the senate I would stay there as long as they wanted me to," he said.

The senator declared states must not be so jealous of their prerogatives in maintaining state banking systems that are poorly organized, poorly directed and poorly financed.

"The most important thing is to have all banks under one federal system, and under that system only," he declared.

Three Official Ballots Will Be Used In Saturday Election

Floods imperilled parts of the east Friday as at least 47 dead were counted in the path of the hurricane that raged up from the tropics and whistled away into the St. Lawrence valley.

Property damage probably never will be known accurately. Some published estimates said ten million dollars. Coast guard cutters sought the motorship Solarina, 1225-ton craft missing somewhere off the Carolinas with twelve persons aboard.

Hundreds were homeless in southwest Philadelphia as waters inundated an area of ten square miles.

Cotton Men Appeal For Farm Agent

Community Control Committees To Ask Retention Of Office Here

Community committees and the county control committee drafted into service for the cotton acreage retirement plan moved Thursday to petition for a county agent.

A committee to carry the plea of the committees, composed almost entirely of farmers, before the court.

Recently at a public hearing on the county budget only three local bankers appeared with a request that the county agent be retained in this county.

C. T. Watson, who called the meeting of the committee, steered clear of the issue, saying, "whether you want a county agent is up to you."

Local Radio Station Operators Furnish $500 Bonds On Charges Of Violating Federal Statutes

Brown And Houser Discontinue Operation Of Station, Rev. Morris Of Stamford Says He Will Fight Charges

E. F. Houser and E. W. Brown, who have been operating a small radio broadcasting station here for about two months, waived hearing before a United States commissioner in Lubbock Thursday and were released on bond of $500 each to await action of a federal grand jury in Abilene October 2. The local station has not operated since Wednesday.

Brown and Houser were among 17 West Texans charged two days ago by federal radio commission investigators with violating federal laws governing licensing of radio stations.

Rev. Sam Morris, Stamford Baptist pastor, declared he would fight the charges and attacked what he termed unfair methods employed by the investigators.

Legalization Of Beer Here To Be Decided

2,300 Qualified Voters In County, Exemption Facts Given

After a pre-election period amazingly devoid of unusual interest, Big Spring, Howard county and the state of Texas will march to the polls Saturday to decide the fate of beer and four constitutional amendments and to express the state's attitude toward national prohibition.

Other than a discussion in which Joseph Weldon Bailey Jr., and J. H. "Cyclone" Davis figured, there has been little or no wet or dry campaigning in this section, except in group meetings the dries have held to solidify their forces.

The wetters are claiming Texas and this section for repeal, dries are ardently hoping that Texas will be the first state to vote for retention of the eighteenth amendment.

Howard county is an uncertainty, but most observers are inclined to believe it will be in the wet column by slight majorities.

In the past, the rural vote has overcome the slight wet lead piled up in Big Spring.

This year Big Spring decidedly holds the whip hand for all rural boxes have only 586 of 2,300 potential votes, and one of the rural boxes containing 126 votes is believed decidedly for beer and repeal.

In three previous prohibition elections, Howard county has gone dry, although the last time was by the smallest margin of the three.

It is a prevalent opinion that the constitutional amendment authorizing issuance of $20,000,000 in relief bonds will carry in Howard county by a substantial majority.

Fate of two others is more uncertain and not one of the voters know that they concern home rule in counties above 62,000 in population, and for exemption of $2,000 assessed valuation on all residence homesteads from state taxes.

The remaining constitutional amendment, that of legalizing the sale of 3.2 beverages, will likely follow the trend of repeal, although there are many who may vote for beer and against repeal, it is indicated.

County Judge Debenport Friday issued a last minute comment on exemption certificates. It is understood, of course, that to vote in any of the four Big Spring boxes, one must present his poll tax or exemption certificate, provided he lives within the city limits.

Judge Debenport's comments follow: Under Article 2960 of the Revised Civil Statutes of the State of Texas, every person more than sixty years old, or who is blind or deaf or dumb, or permanently disabled or who has lost one hand or foot, is entitled to vote without paying a poll tax, and is entitled to an exemption certificate. Under Article 2965 of said statutes, he is entitled to a permanent exemption certificate, and he need not back each year to get another certificate, provided he does not change his voting precinct. If you are entitled to a permanent exemption certificate, and your exemption certificate is not market 'permanent' it is no fault of your own, and I shall advise all election judges here in Big Spring to permit all persons to vote, who come under the above classification and who present an exemption certificate heretofore issued, whether marked 'permanent' or not, if he has not changed his voting precinct.

If you have lost your certificate, you would have to get a re-issuance from the Tax Collector. If you have changed your voting precinct, here in the County you will have to take your exemption certificate to the Tax Collector and have him endorse thereon the date of removal from the original voting precinct, and the date of his endorsement, the new address and precinct to which you have removed. This will have to be under his seal and signed by him. If you are entitled to the exemption certificate, but do not have to secure it, as when you vote in the country boxes, but you move here into Big Spring, and attempt to vote here, you will have to secure an exemption certificate before you can vote under the law.

Those who have secured their exemption certificates for this year, of course will not be affected, as they are entitled to vote anyway.

Miss Modesta Goody has been invited to act as Miss Big Spring in a radio to be held soon in Abilene. She was an outstanding performer in the Cowboy reunion at Stamford.

Sea Trade

Four years of depression have given American exporters and importers a terrific toasting round. It is to be hoped this period of duress has hardened them. The bumps of the past will seem like caresses compared to what the Blue Eagle has in store for their businesses.

Government economists are not talking about this impending problem but off the record they concede it has come over the horizon very definitely.

Our highly nationalistic system of recovery was designed solely to boost wages and prices within American borders. Scant consideration was given to international trade. As a result our exporters and importers are about to suffer plenty.

Trade both ways with our world neighbors today is little more than a quarter of what it was in 1928. As the NRA codes begin to operate domestic production costs will be up so high American goods can not compete with foreign imports unless protected by a much higher tariff.

And when Uncle Sam slaps more tariff on imports it will only be human nature for other nations to retaliate in kind against our goods. They will do it of course where it will hurt most striking a vital blow at American exports.

This is the situation confronting our Recoverites as they struggle to put more money in your pay envelope. (Continued On Page Seven)

Watch For The DAILY HERALD'S Election Extra SATURDAY NIGHT

Woodward Believes Legislature Will Protect Bond Issue Funds

Coleman Senator Sees Revision Of Anti-Trust Laws As Big Job Of Special Session, Doubt Local Option Election Validity

SAN ANGELO—Advocating passage of the $20,000,000 state-wide relief bond issue in Saturday's election, state Senator Walter C. Woodward of Coleman, here this week, said he believed the coming special session of the Legislature would result in passage of regulatory measures to protect the fund from any possible dissipation, misappropriation, fraud or corruption.

He went further to say that he would be on hand in the Senate early and late to do his part in pushing such legislation through.

The $20,000,000 figure is the maximum which would be authorized if the issue carries, the senator reminded. He believes only the amount needed should be issued—and that when it is needed.

There is serious doubt that the Legislature could appropriate relief funds under the calamity cause in the constitution, the senator said, in urging passage of the state-wide bond issue.

Governor Miriam A. Ferguson has announced the special session but has set no date. Senator Woodward was here on private legal business, thinks the date will be September 5.

Important Session
"This special session will be confronted with problems of great importance," the Colman man said, "one of which will be to deal with our anti-trust laws." He continued, "Unquestionably the business interests of Texas can not fully cooperate with the president's program under the NRA without violating our anti-trust laws, especially those prohibitions against combinations of capital and skill which create or tend to create restrictions in trade or to create or carry out restrictions in the free pursuit of any business or to fix, maintain, increase or reduce the price of merchandise or commodities or to prevent or lessen the competition in the manufacture, sale or purchase of merchandise, or to fix or maintain any standard whereby the price of any article or commodity of merchandise shall in any manner be affected, controlled or established or to regulate, fix or limit the output of any article or commodity manufactured, mined, produced or sold," the senator said.

Codes Now Conflict
"There is no question in my mind but that many of the code agreements strictly speaking, are at this time expressly prohibited by our anti-trust laws and come within the definition of trusts, monopolies and conspiracies in restraint of trade. In order to co-operate with the president during these times of distress and as an emergency measure, hoping to relieve the distress of the people and business generally, we are likely to be compelled to recognize trade agreements and business practices which are now prohibited by our laws," he continued.

"I think the Legislature can pass a law which will protect every person, firm or corporation in co-operating with the president without repealing or amending our anti-trust statutes. My idea would be to provide in effect that the compliance with any code or agreement approved by the president would be regarded as a defense against any charge of violating the anti-trust laws of Texas. In other words, such a law would mean that any business conducted by any person, firm or corporation in Texas under any code or agreement approved by the president, would be a complete defense against any charge of violation of any anti-trust law of this state. This act would remain in effect only so long as the president's proclamations are in effect and no longer. Our anti-trust laws would be held in abeyance so as to protect the public against designing or unscrupulous business and as a protection and guarantee against the conducting of a business in a manner not approved by the president. It would protect only those who honestly co-operate with the president.

"If the people vote to authorize the issuance of $20,000,000 of bonds to aid the unemployed and those in distress, the Legislature will have to enact a regulatory measure that will protect this fund against dissipation, misappropriation, fraud or corruption. I believe the people should authorize the issuance of these bonds and believe the Legislature will enact legislation safeguarding the expenditure of the funds. We can direct its expenditure through certain agencies in whom the people have confidence, requiring a strict accounting and publicity of the expenditure. The people may feel safe against any unwarranted or unlawful expenditure of the funds. Under the terms of this amendment, no tax can ever be levied against real or personal property for the purpose of retiring bonds. I believe the legislature can and will provide a method whereby these bonds can be retired without any burden on the average citizen. Unless these funds are provided we are likely to be cut off from federal funds or federal aid greatly reduced in either event, communities like San Angelo or Coleman will be confronted with the problem of taking care of the unemployed, a burden which neither community can bear.

"A million and three hundred thousand people in Texas are today being supported in whole or in part with federal funds. This burden will increase during the winter months, and unless the people of Texas, through the issuance of these bonds, assist the federal government, there will be hunger and want confronting a million and a half people in Texas during the winter months.

Doubt Election Validity
"The best Legislature, anticipating an amendment to the constitution authorizing the sale of beer in Texas, passed a regulatory measure, effective if and when the amendment is adopted. Under this regulatory measure local option elections were authorized in the several counties and other political subdivisions, but as this regulatory act is not to become effective unless and until the constitution is amended, causes me to doubt the validity of these local option elections to be held Saturday. In other words, these elections are being held under authority of a law not yet final. This special session can validate these elections, however, and no doubt will validate all such local option elections fairly and honestly held.

"It would be almost a crime for the next Legislature to impose any additional taxes upon the average citizen. The last Legislature reduced the government expense approximately $16,000,000. I think the government can fairly operate on the monies we have appropriated without any additional taxes. The most important thing is to collect a lot of taxes due the state rather than increase the tax on the man who pays. If tax collectors will operate as tax collectors rather than as tax receivers, we can collect enough money to take care of existing needs and balance the budget. If some business is escaping taxation, or if it becomes necessary to readjust and rearrange our present tax laws, then it might be necessary to do so, but for God's sake let us not start a campaign to increase taxes," Senator Woodward concluded.

First And Third Place Team Win Toss For Texas Play-Off

DALLAS.—Arrangements for the Texas league pennant play-off under the Shaughnessy plan were completed Thursday in the office of President J. Alvin Gardner where delegates from Houston, San Antonio, Galveston, Beaumont and Dallas attended.

The round-robin playoff between the four clubs finishing in the first September 6, one day after the close of the regular league campaign.

Firs' vs Fourth
The team finishing in first place will meet the team finishing in fourth place, and the team finishing second will battle the third place team in series of best three out of five games.

At the meeting, a coin was tossed to determine sites for the first two games of each series. First and third place teams won. This means that the team finishing first will play at home the first two games and then the next two on the foe's field. The same arrangement goes for third place and second.

Taken on tonight's standing, Houston and Dallas would get the first two games of each series. If a fifth game is necessary in either series the site must be determined by the flip of a coin prior to the playing of the fourth game.

The coin flipped by Bill Parker, Associated Press sports writer, fell all both times at the calling of President Fred Ankenman of the Houston Buffaloes and vice-president Bob Tarleton of the Dallas Steers.

The delegates voted a limit of 16 players for the entire playoff. Each club must certify eligible players by midnight, Tuesday, September 5, to President J. Alvin Gardner. Should Beaumont get into the playoff, Art Herring, pitcher recently acquired from Detroit, will not be eligible because he reported too late under a league ruling.

The two winners of the first round series will meet in a best four out of seven game series for the league championship and the right to represent the Texas league in the annual Dixie series against the Southern association champion.

Prices for the entire playoff were announced by Gardner as follows: Boxes and reserve seats $1.00. Grandstand seats 75c. Hierarchy seats 50c.

These prices include the government tax.

Mrs. Ferguson Appeals To Woman For Passage Of Relief Bond Issue

AUSTIN (UP)—Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson today issued an appeal to the women of Texas to support the proposed $20,000,000 state relief bonds in Saturday's election.

Her husband and adviser, former Governor James E. Ferguson, has been stumping the state for the bond issue since last Saturday night.

Today she added her voice to his in an effort to have the bonds authorized.

The first woman ever elected governor made her appeal on behalf of "300,000 underprivileged children directly dependent on relief" and 200,000 mothers.

Picturing the effects of hardship and undernourishment on adolescents, Governor Ferguson appealed to the mothers of more fortunate children. "It is fair," she asked, "that such a child shall be asked later to compete with your child and mine, with our neighbors' children who never have known the lack of wholesome food and proper medical care?"

"Pride in race, an outstanding characteristic of the Anglo-Saxon race, makes inactivity in this emergency a crime," she said.

El Paso Teachers Get Letters Urging Repeal

EL PASO, (UP)—Letters mailed to city school teachers by R. L. Holliday, county repeal chairman, urging them to vote for 32 beer Saturday resulted in protests from some teachers and dry leaders.

Mr. Holliday's letter urged teachers to support President Roosevelt's repeal platform and modification of state dry laws.

Texan, Envoy To Chile, Close Home, Prepare To Embark

AUSTIN (UP)—Laguna Gloria, beautiful summer home of Ambassador and Mrs. Henry Ume Sevier, will be kept closed during their residence in Santiago, Chile, the newly appointed ambassador announced here as he began preparations for his diplomatic mission.

Laguna Gloria is an Italian type country residence erected on the exact Colorado river site Stephen F. Austin selected for his home when he established the colony from which Texas has grown.

"Hal" Sevier, as he is more generally known, stopped in Austin after his appointment en route to Corpus Christi where he and Mrs. Sevier now reside.

The Seviers are a noted Southern family. Originally they were known as Xavier. That was when their ancestors were personages in the part of Navarre now in Spain.

Forced by political changes to become refugees in England, they permitted their name to be Anglicized into Sevier. From London members of the family emigrated to the Maryland colony. Since they have become prominent in affairs of the South. They furnished a governor to Tennessee, a member of the congress of the Republic of Texas and a noted confederate.

The last two were grandfather and father of Ambassador Sevier. His father, broken in health, moved to Sabin, Tex., from Columbia, Tenn., when the boy Hal was 10 years old. There he rode the range, became a newspaper correspondent and took an interest in politics.

Twice he was a member of the Texas house of representatives.

Going to New York he became a member of the financial news staff of the New York Sun in the days of the late "Boss" Lord. Later he published the Austin American.

His state "Savior of the Alamo" also had a grandfather active in the founding of the Republic of Texas. Grandfathers of both Ambassador and Mrs. Sevier fought at San Jacinto.

Mrs. Sevier was Clara Driscoll before her marriage. Returning to Texas after many years spent in Eastern schools and abroad she found the Alamo at San Antonio about to be sold to provide a site for a modern hotel.

She at once set about to save it. Securing an option she time and again personally put up the funds to keep the grounds of the mission.

Finally it was established as a state shrine of patriotism. Her part in saving the Alamo was recognized by the hanging of her portrait in the Texas senate.

Long active in club work, in recent years she has also been active in politics. Since 1928 she has been Democratic national committeewoman from Texas. Her share in the broad Driscoll acres along the Gulf Coast of Texas, enriched by oil and gas discoveries, makes them amply able to undergo the financial strain of American diplomatic service.

Mrs. Sevier has acquired fame as an author. "The Girl of Gloria" and "In the Shadow of the Alamo" were written by her—both tales with a Texas setting. "Mexicans," a light opera by Mrs. Sevier, was produced with much success.

$5 Permanents Too High Says Beautician As Others Hiss Him

EL PASO, (UP)—Hisses and cat-calls greeted Jack Ridenhour, self-styled champion of the "forgotten woman" at the El Paso beauticians' meeting, when he refused to agree to $5 and $6 minimum charges for permanent waves.

Backed by his horn-rimmed spectacles, an aggressive jaw and curly hair, Ridenhour arose as minority leader to assert that $5 permanent waves would come under the head of profiteering.

"I'm thinking of the servant girls who can't afford $5 for a permanent," he said. "I'm making lots of money at $1.95—must I gouge the public because I know business well

Washington Writer Describes Garner As "The Forgotten Man"

Vice-President Fishes While Chief And His Administrators Work Fervently With New Deal Program

By RAYMOND CLAPPER
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON, (UP)—Some- where in Texas a ruddy-faced white haired man with small twinkling blue eyes is fishing. He is the number one "forgotten man" of the Roosevelt administration. He is Vice-President of the United States. The name, it may be recalled is John N. Garner.

When congress adjourned and he no longer had to preside over the senate, Vice-President Garner went back home to Texas. He has been fishing ever since. Texas is waging a prohibition repeal fight which comes to a climax with a state-wide election Saturday. The fight drew the father of prohibition, Senator Morris Sheppard, back home to stump the state. But Vice-President Garner has retired so completely from public activity that he contented himself with issuing, at the behest of friends, a statement appealing to the voters to stand by the Democratic platform and vote for repeal.

President Roosevelt has not called upon Garner for advice, so far as is known, since he began the gigantic administrative task of applying the recovery legislation. Garner has not been called to Washington or to Hyde Park.

When here he attended regular meetings as a routine matter, but otherwise he has been practically effaced from the national picture. Compared with the usual role of a vice-presidential candidate, Garner was largely inactive during the presidential campaign though he was called into conference with Mr. Roosevelt several times.

The present obscurity of the second ranking officer of the federal government has directed attention again to the problem of what should best be done with vice-presidents. In 1920 when he was a candidate for vice-president himself, Mr. Roosevelt gave some thought to the question of making vice-presidents useful as well as ornamental. He once wrote a magazine article suggesting this waste of talent and public salary might be put to use by having the vice-presidential function as a coordinating officer for the federal government, a sort of executive assistant to the president. Many political students have thought the presidential understudy should be given something more important to do than to sit merely as a routine presiding officer over the senate and at night represent the president at banquets and social affairs.

But the theory has broken down in practice because of the varying qualities of vice-presidents. Usually they get on the party ticket through a deal. Roosevelt took Garner to get the Texas and California delegations. In 1928 Hoover took Curtis to pacify the anti-Hoover senatorial bloc. After the vice-presidential is not in close enough sympathy with the president to constitute an effective working partner. That is the main reason nothing has ever been done toward making the vice-presidency a job worth a live man's time.

Garner's passive role now is in contrast to the active part he played for so many years in the house. As democratic minority leader he fought the Mellon tax bills and was a most aggressive and effective critic of the Hoover administration. As Speaker after 1930 he ran the house with a whip hand and was dominant in shaping party issues leading up to the 1932 presidential fight. Mr. Hoover summoned him to the white house often as a spokesman for the democrats in congress.

Now he will go down in the history books and be remembered as a vice-president long after many of the influential figures of the period are forgotten. But until then, he has to ride along as a forgotten man.

Coconut Is Housewife's Friend In Keeping Family Interested In Food

By FRANCES LEE BARTON
Coconut is a friend in need to every housewife who wants to keep the family interested in its food. It adds a new and welcome texture and increased appetite appeal to the simplest dish.

Tosted Coconut Ice Cream
One tablespoon flour; 1-2 cup sugar; 1-2 teaspoon salt; 1 egg, slightly beaten; 2 cups milk, scalded; 1 cup cream; 1 tablespoon vanilla; 1 cup shredded coconut, toasted.

Combine flour, sugar and salt. Add to egg. Pour small amount of milk over egg mixture, stirring vigorously. Return to double boiler and cook until thickened, stirring constantly. Cool. Add cream and vanilla. Freeze, using 2 parts ice and 1 part salt. When partly frozen, add coconut and continue freezing until firm. Serves 6.

Orange Coconut Filling
Three one-half tablespoons flour; 1 cup sugar; grated rind of 1 orange; 1-3 cup orange juice; 3 tablespoons lemon juice; 2 tablespoons water; 1 egg, slightly beaten; 2 teaspoons butter; 1-2 can moist, sweetened coconut, chopped.

Combine flour, sugar, orange rind fruit juices, water, egg and butter. Cook in double boiler 1 minute, stirring constantly. Add coconut. Cool before spreading. Makes enough filling for two 9-inch layers.

Coconut Salad Delicious
2 cups cabbage, finely shredded;

1 cup shredded pineapple, drained; 1 cup shredded coconut; 3-4 cup mayonnaise; dash of salt.

Crisp cabbage by allowing it to stand in ice water. Drain and dry thoroughly. Toss lightly together with remaining ingredients. Serve on crisp lettuce. Garnish with strips of pimiento. Serves 6.

Coconut Peach Dreams
Fill peach halves (fresh or canned) with mixture of sweetened whipped cream and moist, sweetened coconut, flavored with almond extract. Sprinkle additional coconut over top.

Tosted Coconut Squares
One loaf white bread; 1-1-3 cups sweetened condensed milk; 1 can moist, sweetened coconut.

Cut bread into 2-inch squares, 1-4 inch thick. Dip each square in milk and drain slightly. Then dip in coconut, covering all sides well. Bake in slow oven (325 degrees F) 25 minutes, or until golden brown. Makes 3-1-2 dozen squares.

Coconut Cup Custard
Three eggs or 6 egg yolks, slightly beaten; 6 tablespoons sugar; 1-4 teaspoon salt; 1-8 teaspoon nutmeg; 3-4 cup shredded coconut; 3 cups milk, scalded.

Combine eggs, sugar, salt, nutmeg and coconut. Add milk gradually, stirring vigorously. Pour into custard cups, place in pan of hot water and bake in slow oven (325 degrees F) 35 to 40 minutes, or until knife inserted comes out clean. Chill. Serves 6.

Home Made Mayonnaise Made Easily

These are salad days . . . and salads make one think of smooth, creamy mayonnaise. . . real home-made mayonnaise, with that fresh, delicate flavor you just can't buy. Making mayonnaise used to be a lot of trouble. It isn't any more. For there is a brand new mayonnaise maker, as shown above, on the market . . . a simple little glass jar with a top that screws on, and a dasher that goes down through a hole in this top. It has revolutionized the making of mayonnaise. No more slow pouring of oil, then beating, then pouring oil, then beating, wondering all the time whether the mayonnaise will "go back." With this new mayonnaise maker, you simply put the egg and the seasoning, and the lemon juice or vinegar (whichever you prefer), in the bottom of the jar; jiggle the dasher a few times to stir them up; then put the top on and pour in Wesson Oil right from the can, through the small opening . . . meanwhile working it in light dashes up and down quickly, with the other hand. When you have finished pouring, five or six more strokes of the dasher and your mayonnaise is made.

It's so simple you could almost make mayonnaise with your best gloves on. And one of the nicest things about it is that the mayonnaise turns out perfectly every time. The cupped top of the mixer regulates the flow of oil automatically so you just can't put in too much oil at once or too little.

The recipe . . . a very simple recipe for very good mayonnaise is right on the mixer. With a pint can of Wesson Oil you can make a very generous pint of delicious mayonnaise, to taste exactly the way you want it to taste. If you like more mustard than most, you can have it. If you like lots of salt you can have it. You like Mayonnaise a little sweet and want to put in some extra sugar, you can. If you want the mayonnaise especially firm, give the dasher ten or twelve extra jiggles after you have finished pouring, instead of just the five or six usually required.

Your family will rave about the mayonnaise this amazing little gadget turns out. And you, who like to have home made things and yet don't want to spend hours making them, will give thanks to the Wesson Oil People for inventing this mixer which makes real home minutes of whipping.

Many of the grocery stores are now featuring this mayonnaise maker with a pint can of Wesson Oil, at a very special price. . . less, as a matter of fact, than you'd expect to pay for the mixer alone. R. E. Mack, representative for Wesson Oil is in the city this week-end conducting the demonstrations.

Bottled Fruit Pectin, Used In Short Boil Method Of Jellies

By FRANCES LEE BARTON
My grandmother's jams and jellies were delicious but limited in variety to the few fruits which would "jell." My cupboard is filled with every kind of fruit jelly, made the modern way with bottled fruit pectin by the short-boil method, which gives me more glasses of jelly from the same quantity of fruit and jelly of a better color and flavor.

Ripe Peach Jelly
Three cups (1-1-2 lbs) juice; 6-1-2 cups (3-4 lbs) sugar; 1 bottle fruit pectin.

To prepare juice, remove pits from about 3-1-2 pounds peaches. Do not peel. Crush peaches thoroughly. Add 1-2 cup water, bring to a boil, cover, and simmer 5 minutes. Place fruit in jelly cloth or bag and squeeze out juice.

Measure sugar and juice into large saucepan and mix. Bring to a boil over hottest fire and at once add fruit pectin, stirring constantly. Then bring to a full rolling boil and boil hard 1-2 minute. Remove from fire, skim, pour quickly. Paraffin hot jelly at once. Makes about 9 glasses (6 fluid ounces each).

Ripe Plum Jelly
Four cups (2 lbs) juice; 7-1-2 cups (3-4 lbs) sugar; 1-2 bottle fruit pectin.

To prepare juice, crush thoroughly about 4 pounds fully ripe fruit. Do not peel or pit. Add 1 cup water. Bring to a boil cover and simmer 10 minutes. Place fruit in jelly cloth or bag and squeeze out juice.

Measure sugar and juice into large saucepan and mix. Bring to a boil over hottest fire and at once add fruit pectin, stirring constantly. Then bring to a full rolling boil and boil hard 1-2 minute. Remove from fire, skim, pour quickly. Paraffin hot jelly at once. Makes about 11 glasses (6 fluid ounces each).

Ginger Pear Jam
Four cups (2 lbs) prepared fruit; 1-2 to 1 cup diced crystallized ginger; 1-2 cups (3-1-2 lbs) sugar; 1 bottle fruit pectin.

To prepare fruit, peel, core and crush completely or grind about 3 pounds fully ripe pears. Dice about 1-2 pounds crystallized ginger.

Measure sugar and prepared fruit tightly packed, into large kettle. Add ginger, mix well, and bring to a full rolling boil over hottest fire. Stir constantly before and while boiling. Boil hard 1 minute. Remove from fire and stir in fruit pectin. Then stir and skim by turns for just 5 minutes to cool slightly to prevent floating fruit. Pour quickly. Paraffin hot jam at once. Makes about 11 glasses (6 fluid ounces each).

Speeded Plum Jam
Four cups (2 lbs) prepared fruit; 7-1-2 cups (3-1-4 lbs) sugar; 1-2 bottle fruit pectin.

To prepare fruit, pit about 2-1-2 pounds fully ripe plums. Do not peel. Cut into small pieces and crush thoroughly. Add 1 teaspoon each cinnamon, cloves, and allspice or any desired combination of spices.

Measure sugar into large kettle. Add prepared fruit. Mix and bring to a full rolling boil over hottest fire. Stir constantly before and while boiling. Boil hard 1 minute. Remove from fire and stir in fruit pectin. Skim, pour quickly. Paraffin hot jam at once. Makes about 11 glasses (6 fluid ounces each).

Piggly Wiggly Store Operators To Meet In Chicago Sept. 6-8

A two hundred million dollar industry serving more than 2,500,000 persons will be represented when the Piggly Wiggly operators meet in Chicago, Sept. 6, 7, 8.

The operators own their own Piggly Wiggly stores and maintain the mander franchises issued by the Piggly Wiggly Corporation, of which Albert H. Morrill is president.

These food merchants will hold their convention at the Del Prado Hotel. A general program for the convention was outlined recently by E. A. Basse, who heads a chain of Piggly Wiggly stores in Texas. Mr. Basse is president of the National Piggly Wiggly Operators' association.

One of the highlights of the convention will be an address by G. C. Corbaley, advisor to Charles J. Brand, food administrator of the National Recovery Administration. Mr. Corbaley is also president of the American Institute of Food distribution.

In addition to the speech of Mr. Corbaley, there will be an address by Mr. Morrill. Because of the close relationship of the corporation and the store owners and because of rapidly changing conditions in the food industry, the address is looked forward to with interest. Mr. Morrill is also president of the Kroger Grocery and Baking company.

Speakers of national prominence in the food distribution and manufacturing industry will be on the program. The meeting promises to be one of the great interest not only to those attending the convention but to the general public as well, for one of the principal objectives will be the fostering of economical processes of distribution to lower the costs of foodstuff to the consumers.

At the present time, approximately three thousand stores are operated under the Piggly Wiggly system by 300 owners.

Valve Wrench Cause Of Trial In Court

SILVER CITY, (UP)—A lawsuit based on a $4 valve wrench claimed by D. B. Robertson and L. H. Martin, plumbers, provided spectators in Peace Justice Llewellyn Zent's court with a legal burlesque.

Robertson filed the suit asserting the wrench had been missing 10 years. Plumber Martin related with the assertion he bought it six years ago. Justice Zent decided that peaceable possession for six years was sufficient to determine the ownership.

It's great to feel fit!

Everybody has days when every waking hour is packed with work of living. Why not make every day like this?

A frequent drawback to fitness is constipation. It may dull your energy, steal your appetite, lower your vitality. Yet it is so easy to overcome.

Try eating Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. Science shows this delicious cereal supplies "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and vitamin B to promote appetite, and tone the intestinal tract.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that of lettuce. How much safer than taking patent medicines—so often harmful.

Two tablespoonfuls daily will correct most types of constipation. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

ALL-BRAN has iron for the blood. At all grocers. In the red-and-green package. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Imperial Sugar Adds $3,500 To Payroll On NRA Basis Of Wages

The Imperial Sugar company at Sugarland, Tex., is one of the first of the Southwest's leading industries to announce the signing of the NRA code. This concern has added 150 men to its payroll representing an addition of $3,500 per week, assuring the citizens of Sugarland, Tex., that much more money weekly for things they may need for their homes or to wear and will, no doubt, result in better business conditions in Sugarland and the surrounding communities.

Mr. I. H. Kempner, president of the concern said, "We are wholeheartedly in favor of everything being undertaken by the government. We have signed the code and will cooperate with the government in every possible way. All manufacturers in all lines should cooperate with one another in using only products manufactured by companies who are operating under the NRA."

Mr. Kempner brought out the fact that the cooperation of all the

News Reporter In Tough Spot

The world is still a perilously disturbed and suspicion-racked planet; international policies still have a way of colliding head-on, in spite of all we can do to prevent it; and while war may be a most costly and wasteful way of settling disputes, the world does not yet seem to have reached the point at which it can assure itself that war will be no more.

In short, America has very solid reasons for maintaining a strong navy, and a government which failed to do so could properly be called short-sighted. And the same thing doubtless can be said of the Japanese.

Which leaves us, perhaps, right where we started—except that it all underlines the heavy responsibility which rests on the shoulders of the statesmen of the two nations.

There are, after all, more reasons for the United States and Japan to be friendly than there are for them to be enemies.

This country is Japan's best customer; Japan, in turn, buys heavily from the United States, and the development of Japan's Asiatic conquests should logically open still larger markets to American manufacturers.

As both nations prepare for trouble, it should be possible for their statesmen to work out a way whereby they could continue to live in peace.

Self-interest on both sides of the Pacific dictates such a course.

THE VAST JOB OF THE NRA.

The more one studies the program now under way via the NRA, the more does it become clear that a tremendous amount of patience, good sense and straightforward executive ability are going to be required of the host of officials responsible for the program's success.

The sheer bulk of work to be done, to begin with, is appalling. The blue eagles' lieutenants at Washington are tackling one of the most complex jobs ever undertaken by any group of men on earth. Not least of the dangers facing these men is the chance that they may simply get tangled up in red tape.

Furthermore, in working out a way of beating the depression it is quietly likely that policies will be laid down which will affect the life of the nation for many years after the depression has passed. The NRA must not only find a workable program for the present; it must find one that will head us in some direction that we are willing to follow more or less permanently.

All in all, it is an almost overwhelming task. That the work so far has been done so well is a good testimonial to the caliber of the men who are on the job.

Hidalgo To Allow Beer Sales After Saturday

McALLEN, (UP)—District Attorney Sid Hardin and Sheriff T. C. Gill announced beer vendors in Hidalgo county would not be prosecuted if the people of the state Saturday vote to legalize the sale of beer.

It was indicated sale of beer would not be interfered with starting Sunday morning, the day after the election.

The attorney general's office has ruled that sale of beer in Texas would not be legal until Sept. 15, and that persons vending the brew prior to that date would be jeopardizing their chances of obtaining a state license.

CHAPTER XI

MARY arose on the morning of the fifteenth with a dull, ominous headache. Its throbbing reverberated through her whole tense, waxy body. Mom watched her anxiously. Her mother's intuitive sense warned her that all was not well with Mary. She had acted strangely for a week or more. The girl had had a difficult winter, she knew—but this was some recent development. She hesitated to question her, for Mary had always made Mom her confidant. When she was ready, her daughter would come to her with whatever concerned her.

Mary managed to drink her coffee and nibble a piece of toast, nervously. Her parting kiss was a mute appeal for help, for she clasped her mother in desperate, strong arms and rested against her for a moment as if for strength.

She reached the office early, anxious for the day to begin. A futile gesture in the face of the fact that the market would not open until ten o'clock, though lives and kingdoms waited upon its activity.

Foster, also, came in earlier than usual. He was not a little perturbed at the new stock remaining so calmly at the issue price. Many of his best clients were expecting the demand to raise it at any moment. Nine-fifty-five o'clock, Mary tried to type some reports, but her hands perspired and fumbled over the keys. She busied herself about the room, so tense that every sound vibrated through her.

The minute hand of the clock on her desk crept at a maddening pace toward the top of the dial. Mary compared its time with that of her watch. They were identical. She had verified that fact when she arrived at the office.

Foster was restless, too. The door between their offices stood ajar, and she could hear him moving about.

"Miss Vaughn," he called to her, "er—what time have you? Is this clock right?"

She smiled with sympathy. He wore a platinum watch on his wrist that had cost a thousand dollars at Tiffany's—and he asked her for the time.

"Right on the minute, Mr. Foster." She tried to sound casual, but the very sound of his voice had made her jump.

Five minutes yet, until the market opened—four—three—two. The clock in Foster's office chimed with mocking cheerfulness, and there was an instantaneous response in the translux outside in the customers' room, and from the ticker in Foster's office. She knew that he was holding the tape between his fingers, already.

Mary slipped into the customers' room and fixed her gaze upon the moving, letter-and-figure perforated strip that moved across the narrow window at the top of the instrument. The strange characters were almost hieroglyphic, but Mary deciphered them with rapid familiarity, jotting down notes on her pad. It seemed to her as if every stock that had ever been listed, appeared first.

The room was tensely silent, dominated by the droning of the translux and the ticking, and the clicking of the little chips on the board, as the "board boy" slipped them into place with amazing speed and accuracy, stopping only at intervals to tear off another strip of tape from the ticker.

Several women hovered about the ticker, too impatient to await the board boy's progress. A few people sat in their chairs relaxed and calmly interested; others sat rigidly, scanning their "dope books," anxiously awaiting the resume of the ticker during its intervals of buzzing when the trading was slow. The room was already hazy with smoke—but Mary was quite oblivious of her companions and surroundings. Never, in all the months she had followed the market reports, had she realized what drama was involved in it. She had been only an onlooker before, now she was a participant.

At last . . . WMP . . . 100 sh . . . 50 . . . Mary felt giddy. She owed ten thousand dollars for stock that she could not hope to sell. So long as it remained at fifty, or below, there would be no chance to dispose of it. Even if it advanced only a point, she could sell to Frazier, make a little without obligation to anyone—and be free.

But this! It was almost unbelievable! Mary could not remember a time in her experience in the street that so promising and reliable a stock had not advanced on, or before, the issue date. Her hands were cold and moist, her mouth was dry. With a sensation of nausea, she managed to get up and walk into her own office.

She was ruined! She had to have ten thousand dollars somehow! There were two reasons why she could not admit her folly to Foster. If he learned that she had bought stock without money to pay for it, he would dismiss her on the instant. He might consider her a valuable secretary, but his few stern rules were iron-clad. That part of his unrelenting nature had created this very situation for Bonnie. Of course, there was a chance that if he knew she had done it for Bonnie, he might forgive her. But that was the more important reason why she dared not confess the tragic situation to him. Never in the world would she give Bonnie away to him.

Her telephone jangled, causing her to start nervously. She felt like a condemned criminal, tensely awaiting the summons of the executioner. He had expected the voice on the wire to demand her payment of ten thousand dollars.

It proved to be one of Foster's regular customers for whom she had made many transactions. "What's the matter with Well-made Products?" he wanted to know. "Thought it would open with a big advance?"

"That is what we all expected Mr. Benson," she agreed weakly. "It holds its own, though," with an encouragement that was not within her.

"Well, it ought to go up any minute, that's sure. Demand will help it along, too. Get me two hundred more, Miss Vaughn. I'm not discouraged, yet."

Temptation mocked her. She could sell her own two hundred by just telling Benson that there was an order for two hundred in her name that she could not handle. She might offer him the commission on it to keep him quiet. Foster would never need to know about it.

But Mary replaced the telephone with grim resolution, and made out the order. Foster rang for her.

He was pacing the floor irritably. "For Lord's sake, what's the matter?" he demanded, as if Mary were responsible for the obstinacy of the new stock. She could see that it was going to be a bad day for her—a very bad day, indeed. There was every evidence that Foster had invested heavily in the new stock, himself. He always carried a burden of concern for his customer's loss, but his anxiety of this morning was more than that. She half wondered if he had been indiscreet, also—had he purchased more than he could meet with ready cash? "Sales may stimulate the price at any time today," she reminded him automatically. "Benson just phoned an order. There seems to be a lot of faith in the stock." Queer, how she had to reassure others, and her own situation was so desperately serious.

"That isn't figures," he snapped. "Well, take these notes and make out the reports as soon as you can. Watch the prices and sales and be optimistic to customers. You can be glad you are not involved in the market these days."

Mary turned a shade whiter. She wondered that he did not detect something strange in her appearance and actions. To herself, she didn't seem possible that she could look the same.

She made a desperate attempt to be natural, and to give herself to the work, as usual. But it was horrible. She wanted to shriek and run. If she could not tell her awful situation to someone soon, she would go mad. Yet, there was no one whose counsel she could seek. She knew now how the pitiful dumb beasts felt in the cages at the zoo—trapped, bewildered, frantic, helpless.

Mary actually paced the floor of her office in agony, when the strain of sitting at her desk became unbearable. She began to wish that Frazier had not left the city just at this crucial time. If he were here, would she appeal to him, she wondered! Such an appeal would be equivalent to surrender—for her.

She tried to reason it out, knowing that a wire would reach him within the day, and that everything would be taken care of for her. Was she ready to meet him, then on his return, with the reward that would be due him? The cage became smaller and more bewildering.

plan, according to Griffin. In connection with the cotton acreage reduction plan, he believed that checks will be here shortly, the first group having been issued Tuesday at Washington.

He has, he said, received authority to take what legal steps are necessary to force farmers to comply with contracts. This, however, will not be used as all but two have fully complied, and the two are special cases.

He expressed a belief that the long term cotton plan to be made public shortly would make provision for farmers affected by droughts.

Watson called the meeting to discuss relief for destitute farm men, or farmers who will be compelled to seek relief before long.

These farmers constitute committees appointed to ascertain sentiment in their respective communities and to appear before the court Tuesday 3 p. m.: on her kitchen scales whatever cotton goods she buys. Multiplying the number of pounds by five gives her the cost in cents of the tax.

FIGURES

Suppose she buys four white shirts for her husband. They weigh three and one-half pounds. Multiplying by five she obtains the figure, seventeen and one-half. President Roosevelt's agricultural recovery program therefore has cost her 17 1/2 cents for that one purchase.

The shirt buyer then must allow several cents more for labor costs, which have been increased, with higher wages and shorter hours in the cotton mills. An extra five cents per pound of shirt for this cost is considered a generous estimate.

The thrifty shopper is urged by administration leaders consequently to add up the five cents for tax, four and one-half cents for material totaling 14 1/2 cents.

If the three shirts cost much more than 43 1/2 cents above what they would have cost last winter, the buyer can be reasonably sure that someone, somewhere is chattering her.

HELP THE POOR

those in distress.

Homer McNew, in charge of the distribution of R. F. C. funds here, said that relief money here had been restricted this month for fear the bond issue would not pass.

"The only money in sight, and many families and farmers in Howard county are in dire need. Several hundred children won't be able to go to school this year if the measure fails because of the lack of proper food and clothing."

McNew declared that the relief office was not a place to secure regular work as some people think, but is strictly an agency for the relief of those in actual need.

Clyde Thomas brought out the point that the legislature would not issue the bonds until needed, which would help keep interest down. He added that one person out of every five are poverty stricken, and that Texas and California are the only states which have not helped.

Judge Debenport closed the arguments by saying that the constitution would not allow the legislature to vote a single dollar unless the bond passes. "Pellagra is more numerous here than in ten years," he said, "and the people just want a chance."

justice tranquility," he shouted. "We are today witnessing a fight to take special right from a few and restore them to the people."

Excuses Out For NRA Workers Here; City-Wide Canvas To Begin Monday

WASHINGTON (UP)—Provisional use of the Blue Eagle by stores and factories claiming special hardships will be wrought upon them by full compliance with the president's agreement it was decreed Friday.

A white stripe with the word "provisional" printed upon it should be pasted across the eagle in such establishments, pending decision as to whether exemptions asked will be accepted.

Dr. M. H. Bennett, general of local NRA forces, in a statement Friday declared excuses would not be received for failure of citizens appointed to act under the three colorists, and Col. R. W. Henry, in charge of the group that will canvass the entire town to determine whether employers are obeying the President's Re-Employment Agreement, announced that his men would meet at 8 a. m. Monday to begin their work.

"This is an order from the president of the United States through his duly delegated aides in this community in his effort to bring industrial recovery to this country. It applies to Big Spring just as it does to all other communities both large and small. You would not have shirked a minute in time of war if called upon to serve your country. You must not shirk now, for this job is more important in many respects than was that of the war," declared Dr. Bennett.

Colonel Henry pointed out that the large number of men and women named to help in the city-wide canvas would make the job easy for all and that long hours of service would not be necessary, provided all who have been called upon report for duty as they are expected to.

The workers will meet at the Settles Hotel at 8 a. m. Monday, August 28, the day set by the president to begin the first nation-wide canvas to find out whether those who fly the Blue Eagle are abiding by the Re-Employment Agreement as they promised to do.

SIGN-POSTS

IMAGINE yourself on an unfamiliar highway at night in the country. You want to go to Allison. You come to a forked road. No signs! What way? You turn left and come to a crossroad. No signs. You turn right. You come to a town. It proves to be Liberty. You go back to the fork and turn left. A mile or so farther on you come to another crossroad. A sign pointing right says "Allison three miles."

But for that sign-post you might have traveled miles—spent hours, and come short of your destination.

Imagine yourself in need of hosiery, clothing, breakfast foods or anything else, and this newspaper without advertisements! Think of the number of stores you would have to visit, qualities and prices to check, reliabilities to consider.

Advertisements are sign-posts. They are information. They save you from wandering aimlessly from store to store. They keep you advised of the newest products; of the latest values. They save you time, and put greater buying power in your dollars. They assure you of quality and service in merchandise, for only honest goods honestly advertised can stand the spotlight of publicity.

The fourth game came Sunday with the strong team of the Colorado Col-Tex, when both teams battled on the home grounds to a score of 3 to 2, with Stanton bagging the extra point.

Bread...cast on the waters.

IT WON'T BE many days before the bread you cast on the waters in the shape of shorter hours and higher minimum wages comes back in the form of PROSPERITY!

For you're making your own market.

When you sign the President's Reemployment Agreement, cut down working hours, take on more people, increase minimum wages—you're giving people money to spend.

They won't spend it for your product, perhaps. But they'll spend it for things they want—and that will put money in the pockets of the people who want your things.

It's a pleasant circle. Higher wages—more demand for goods. Greater demand—easier to pay the higher wages.

You've felt this ball start rolling during the last few months. Don't let it stop! You can give it your push this very day by signing the President's Reemployment Agreement—and by buying from those manufacturers and retailers that display the pledge that they, too, have signed.
