Nixon Devalues Dollar To Restore Confidence

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has devalued the dollar by 10 per cent in a dramatic move to calm troubled world money markets and restore confidence in the battered U.S. currency.

Nixon's decision, announced at a late Monday night news conference by Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz, marked the second dollar devaluation in 14 months. It swept aside a world currency agreement reached in December 1971.

Although the devaluation was widely expected as a result of tumultuous monetary disruptions on money-exchange markets in the past few weeks, few thought it would be so large. Shultz told newsmen that the move, combined with two other key trade and monetary actions, would benefit the U.S. consumer, workingman and businessman.

The immediate impact of a devaluation is to raise the price of imports from foreign countries. But, because the dollar is now cheaper in relation to other currencies, prices of U.S. exports will be less.

The devaluation will be achieved formally by raising the official price of gold. Although this will take an act of Congress, the dollar depreciation will take place immediately in foreign money markets.

Saigon, Viet Cong Trade Accusations

SAIGON (AP) — The Saigon government and the Viet Cong exchanged hundreds more prisoners today at Loc Ninh, where 27 American captives were freed Monday. They also traded new charges of cease-fire violations.

Three hundred South Vietnamese prisoners also were scheduled for release Monday in Pleiku, but Communist delegates to the four-party Joint Military Commission were reported to have told the commission there was some difficulty in communications with field commanders arranging the release.

The Saigon command said many of the South Vietnamese prisoners freed were suffering from malaria and skin infections.

The Saigon command also claimed 168 more Communist cease-fire violations during the 24 hours ending at 6 a.m., including heavy artillery attacks in Quang Tri Province below the DMZ and infantry assaults on government outposts across the country.

The reported violations and casualties have been running about the same for the past several days.

COOKING THINGS UP — Members of Mrs. Gaylene Skaggs' ninth grade homemaking classes at Pampa Junior High have been preparing a batch of baked goods for Valentine's Day tomorrow. The goods will be delivered to a local convalescent home. Above, getting ready to make some muffins are Serena Shearer, 14, and Gwendolyn Steele, 14.

Football Fans Kicking Back In Congressional Questioning

WASHINGTON (AP) — Confidentially, in a probe of pro football's television blackouts, Congress is questioning fans in the stands about tickets and the tube. A few can't pass up a chance to get in some kicks of their own.

When one ticketholder listed himself as undecided about whether to buy the seat next year, he explained: "I prefer my wife's company to anything the Eagles have to offer."

Some written by hand, a few typed, arriving on various sizes of note paper, these replies accompanied finished questionnaires. In all, 8,200 copies of the 15 basic questions were sent by the House Commerce Committee's special investigations subcommittee to season ticketholders coast to coast.

Pampa Approves Annual Audit

By TEX DEWESE
A stamp of approval was placed on statements and schedules of City of Pampa operations in the annual audit submitted to city commissioners at their regular semi-monthly meeting in City Hall today.

The report, filed by the auditing firm of Nensiel and Doggett of Pampa, stated that "the statements and schedules present fairly receipts and disbursements, fund balances, investments owned and bonded indebtedness for the fiscal year ending Sept. 30, 1972, in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles applicable to municipalities applied on a basis consistent with the preceding year."

Highlights of the audit report show the following facts about the city's condition:

Richard McCampbell, outstanding football and track performer for the Pampa Harvesters, is headed for the University of Oklahoma to pursue his gridiron career. It was announced today.

Sooner coach Barry Switzer is scheduled to be in Pampa either late this afternoon or in the morning to ink McCampbell to a Big-8 letter-of-intent.

Harmon Staus, Harvesters football regular for the past two years, will sign a letter-of-intent with the Texas Tech Red Raiders tonight.

Earlier signees from Pampa today were Jesse Hunicutt and Billy Lemons, both of whom will go to Texas A&M. See story on their signings, Page 7.

Pampa city commissioners voted today to accept the resignation of Ward 2 commissioner R.D. (Jimmy) Wilkerson, who announced Saturday he would resign to run for mayor in the April 3 municipal election.

The resignation became effective today and Wilkerson, immediately following adjournment of this forenoon's council meeting, went to the office of the city secretary and filed his candidacy.

Commissioner Leo Braswell and seconded by Commissioner Arthur J. Rohde, Commissioner George Cree Jr. was absent and the vote was 3 to 0.

PAUL SIMMONS named to board

Board Appoints Paul Simmons

By RAY BAXTER
In three "sittings" the Pampa school board named Pampa businessman Paul Simmons to replace George McCarroll on the panel, elevated James Trusty to the post of assistant superintendent of schools and relegated the fate of Pampa Junior High and the proposed middle school to an action breakfast session Feb. 20.

McCarroll wired his resignation to Board President Bob Carmichael over the weekend. He is on an extended leave from his Celanese post in Pampa to aid a company plant in Canada.

Simmons lost to McCarroll by only 10 votes in the last school board election.

Carmichael said undoubtedly there will be three school board positions on the ballot in April, but the panel was awaiting an opinion from Austin as to whether the vacancy left by McCarroll's resignation would be a two-year or a three-year term.

Tires May See More Road Use

ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP) — The tires you ride on may well serve you long after they've been discarded—under the road rather than on it.

A construction research center here is trying to put old rubber tires under road foundations to give them more resilience. The prognosis looks good so far.

Used under cement floor foundations or under concrete road beds, old tires reduce cracking and moisture, researchers have found.

Researchers at the University of Texas at Arlington Construction Research Center say the idea was discovered by accident when a garage owner pitched a bunch of old tires under the cement foundation of an addition to his garage. The flooring is tough as cement and as resilient as rubber.

Business Mirror

NEW YORK (AP) — You may be forgiven if you cannot understand the jargon of the financial, monetary and economic worlds today any better than you did in high school.

The words of the money world are mysterious and complex.

The balance of payments, for example, is an anomaly. It is never in balance. There is always a plus or a minus in payments, but never, ever, a balance.

The money crisis today is in part a reflection of a minus payments situation, which means we spent more abroad than foreign nations spent here. Last year the figure was $11.16 billion. Such a deficit weakens confidence.

The extent to which language sometimes obscures the reality is illustrated by the extended effort of the Germans to support the contention that the mark is worth 31.03 cents. But the market seems to declare otherwise.

In its attempt to prove that figure correct, the Germans have been forced to buy up $6 billion at that price. So long as they poured out marks in exchange for dollars they could maintain that price. Maybe.

Just before the currency markets closed because of the confusion, demand for marks in exchange of dollars had forced the mark price to 31.9 cents. The Germans were still resisting, but the realities of the market appeared to be winning.

The confusion of meanings is very evident in Phase Three, which supposedly has brought pricing that is unencumbered by the federal bureaucracy and which relies instead on voluntary restraint.

What is voluntary restraint? Some have described it as strong moral suasion in place of firm government controls — a return of authority to private enterprise with the government only wagging an admonishing finger.

The prime rate, which banks are holding "voluntarily" to 6 per cent lest they get struck by the big stick, is supposedly the rate given the most credit-worthy customers, with other rates stepped higher from it.

But some bankers wonder if the thing exists at all, and if it does, what significance it has. Many would like to abolish it because they fear it is only a red flag run up in the face of an angry government.

Just before the currency markets closed because of the confusion, demand for marks in exchange of dollars had forced the mark price to 31.9 cents. The Germans were still resisting, but the realities of the market appeared to be winning.

Many of the stations that are worked from time to time or when conditions permit are located in Austria, Ireland, Germany, France, Spain, Japan, Australia, New Zealand, England and many Latin American amateurs.

The number-one radio operator is W5CRG, Robert A. Wood, who has logged over a hundred foreign nations over amateur radio station W5-GXX.

Your Horoscope

By Jeanne Dixon

WEDNESDAY, FEB. 14
Your birthday today: Relationships are tested by your moods and tendency to project your inner stress. Today's natives are usually popular with opposite sex, may develop such a role that the true nature is difficult to know.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Avoid needless purchasing. Everybody has his own theory about how the world and his neighborhood should be managed.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: You may be on a collision course with rivals. Today is not the best time to settle anything.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Expect distractions; resolve to stick with the basic necessities for the time being. Stay free to act and choose.

Cancer [June 21-July 21]: Discrepancies, flaws come to view and there's no immediate relief.

The fat and solid particles remaining in the pan after cooking meat are called "drippings".

Leo [July 22-Aug. 22]: Your by-word now should be independence! Go it alone, put your resources behind your stated intentions. Head in another direction.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: There are so many ways of spending money that you may as well hold on until time shows which causes are valid.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Even casual strangers get into the act, and you have both help-and-hindrance as you strive to organize a worthy project.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: It is entirely possible you may neglect an important detail out of rare lapse of memory—keep careful notes.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Just when you're sailing along light as a breeze, you are apt to be confronted with the repercussions of long past error.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Doubtful situations contain both promise and threat—the less said about matters beyond your control, the better.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Your kindest comment may be a bit harsh to those who lack your perspective, or who pay more attention to emotional factors.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Impulsive moves to placate or please family and friends precipitate crisis in areas you hadn't anticipated.

Allegro Club Given Program On Churchill

Twentieth Century Allegro met recently in the home of Mrs. Jack Reeve. After a brief business meeting, Mrs. Reeve presented the program on the life of Winston Churchill.

She stated, Churchill was born to Lord Randolph Churchill and Jennie Jerome, a New York socialite. He was born into Victorian England, where he seemed to have a stable life as a small child. At the age of seven, he was sent to boarding school and his distaste for school, especially mathematics, Latin, and Greek, was soon evident. In fact his teachers saw him as a backward child, at the bottom of his class.

During his twelve years of school, he seemed to enjoy only two hobbies, reading and playing with soldiers. This interest in soldiers, led Churchill's father to sending him to Sandhurst, the West Point of England. Winston seemed finally to come into his own at Sandhurst. He graduated eighth in a class of 150 students.

After his schooling was completed, Churchill fought in a succession of wars in Cuba, India, Egypt, and the Boer War in Africa. In the Boer War he earned fame and upon his return to England was able to win a seat in the House of Commons. Thus, his political career began and was to span from the beginning of the 1900's until his death in 1965 at the age of 90.

Churchill earned his place in history in 1940 when he became Prime Minister of England. He finally felt that he was walking with destiny and that he was now doing the job that he was preparing to do all his life. Churchill, during World War II, became the Allied Nations, the most vivid symbol of victory.

After the war, in 1945, he was voted out of office. In 1951 he again became Prime Minister until his resignation in 1955. He then returned to his estate with his wife and pursued his painting and hobbies until his death.

Members present were Mrs. A. W. Bassett, Harris Brinson, Robert Darling, Robert Haggard, Dwane Luke, G. E. Lunsford, Robt. Mack, Phillip McCarley, Robert N. Johnson, John McCausland, Reeve, R. E. Reid, and W.R. Whitsell.

When To Feed Baby

COLLEGE STATION
Almost everyone has heard of baby's "2 o'clock feeding." Forget it—if baby does.

According to a foods and nutrition specialist, the strict feeding schedule with set feeding times or hours may not have to be followed.

"Since a baby will tell his parents when he's hungry, it's sensible to feed him then," Frances L. Reasonover with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University, remarked.

"Most of today's doctors recommend self-demand feedings for baby. This means the schedule is flexible, but has some regularity."

Generally, on the self-demand schedule baby is fed every three to four hours. At first, however, he may require smaller, more frequent feedings.

Such a schedule allows the child to form his individual feeding pattern, the specialist explained. Handled properly, this makes for a happy, well-nourished baby.

Also, a pleasant association between hunger, food and people will be formed.

"Hunger is a basic need for all persons," Miss Reasonover pointed out.

"If hunger signs are ignored and the baby is required to wait until a scheduled feeding hour, he may feel his parents fail him because they don't satisfy a basic need."

Thus, a barrier between child and parent is formed.

"This can be critical since studies show that early experiences with feeding have psychological influences on children in later life," the specialist added.

Learn How To Turn Water Off

By BARBARA A. CURRY
(Fifth in a Series.)

This knowledge is vital not only for doing some minor pipe work but in case the toilet's cup runneth over. Preferably, do a "better safe than sorry" bit and find where any or all of these cut-offs are soon after moving in.

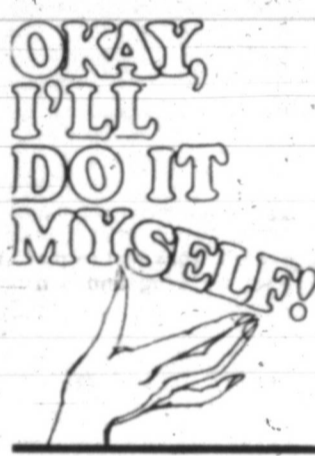

Apartments, especially old ones, are something else again. Some just blissfully ignore the fixture cut-off valves. You might as well do the same and pray a little. If disaster strikes, run for the super and hope he's around to turn off the water.

Mercifully, there is usually a cut-off valve (a wheel-like thing or two if there is hot and cold water) on the pipe leading to each plumbing fixture.

In newer apartments, where the bathroom backs up to the kitchen, you'll sometimes find the cut-off valves for the bathroom under the kitchen sink.

Faucets. There are so many versions of these and probably no picture will match yours.

Be of good cheer. The insides of faucets, no matter how fancy the facade, are essentially the same. To control the water, there is a little water-tight plug (washer) that seals the hole from whence springeth the water.

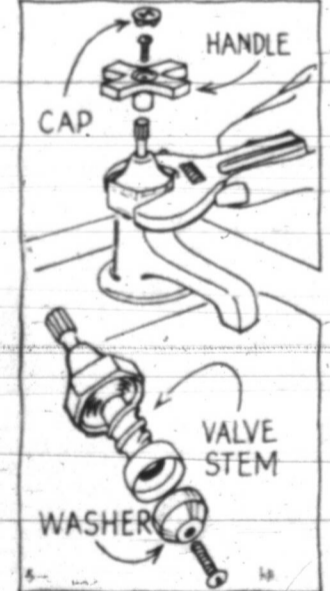

Leaky faucet. If the problem is drip, drip and it's driving you nuts, look to the washer. Since you may not know what kind of washer is in there, buy an inexpensive assortment package at the five-and-ten, hardware store or supermarket. Get this before you begin your repairs. Now loosen and remove the packing nut, then the stem. Keep the parts in order so you don't add complications when reassembling.

You'll find a screw in the bottom of the stem. If the screw gives you trouble, pry out the washer from around it and then use pliers to remove the screw. If it's corroded or defective, replace the screw with a new brass one. Pick out a new washer that is the exact size and shape as the old and put it on with the rounded side down (if there is a rounded side. Some washers are flat).

Bathtub and shower faucets are identical to those in the sink. However, they are more difficult to fix, since the wall tile may make getting to the environs a problem. Some bright soul has designed a special socket wrench (a must) for that job.

Leaky pipes. If one of the lead-in pipes to any of the fixtures springs a pinhole leak, your finger in the dike can be epoxy cement. It promises to seal even wet surfaces and it does fairly well. However, if you can turn off the water, the cement will work easier and faster, because it doesn't have to battle water pressure. This will not work on a real blow-out. When this happens turn off the water and call for professional help.

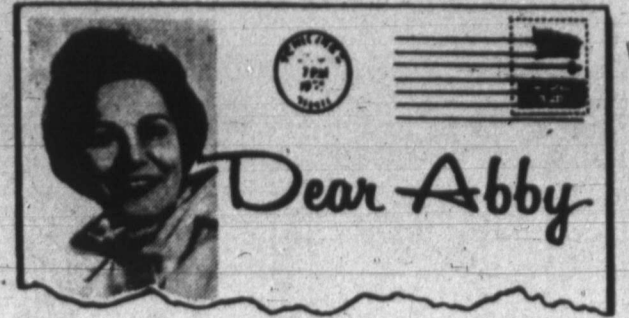

When you turn on the water you "unplug" the hole, when you turn off the water you "plug" the hole.

To keep the water from coming up through the small space where the stem meets the handle (instead of out of the hole it's supposed to) there's a seal called a packing nut.

To fix what ails most faucets you have to get the handle off first. The big trick with some is to find the screw or nut that keeps the handle in place. Keep looking. It's there some place. Most times it's disguised as the H or C. These usually will either snap out or unscrew. Turn off the water if you haven't already.

Note the angle of the handle in the "off" position so you can put it back in the same place when finished. To get the handle off, if you're involved with a

Dear Abby

A Valentine's gift and a twisted arm

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been having the same disagreement for the last six years, and I hope you can settle it.

My husband believes that he should give me a gift on three occasions: my birthday, Christmas, and Mother's Day.

I think he should add one more, St. Valentine's Day, since that is the day above all others when one expresses love. I wouldn't expect an expensive gift. A single flower would do.

My husband feels that a few unexpected gifts brought home during the year mean more than those he is expected to give just because of the date on the calendar. I agree, but he does this very infrequently.

Shouldn't he give me a gift on St. Valentine's Day just because he knows it would make me happy, and I am hurt when he doesn't?

MRS. A.

DEAR MRS. A.: He should, but if he doesn't, you should accept his decision with grace and maturity. A gift which has been asked for loses all of its loving sentiments. And if you have been arguing over this for six years, your husband is stubborn and you are a nagger. Get off his back about it, and one of these days you will come up smelling like a rose.

DEAR ABBY: I am 28 years old and have three children. The baby at six weeks old developed a serious bronchial ailment and had to be hospitalized, so I got a room at the hospital to be with him nights. I was gone a week.

In my absence, my husband got very chummy with our housekeeper, who is only 32 years old. He admitted that this young woman had spent her nights in MY bed. My husband thought I should take it calmly. As he explained it, "I am hiring someone to take care of the children and do your work for you, and I will also have a live-in mistress, so you don't have to worry about my tomatcating around!"

Abby, I don't want anyone to do my work for me, or look after my children, and I don't want my husband to have a mistress.

After a very ugly scene, he let this young woman go, but now I discovered that he has rented an apartment for her near here and he sees her anyway. He insists that he loves me but that he needs her, too.

What should I do? I love my children and don't want to be just another lonesome divorcee.

BETWIXT

DEAR BETWIXT: Better to be a divorcee (who said you had to be lonesome?) than to consent to the arrangement your husband has offered you. The role of a wife and mother is to look after the needs of her husband and children. Don't compromise! If he loves you he will agree to see a marriage counselor.

DEAR ABBY: A Mrs. F. S. wrote to say that she was disgusted with some of the petty things some people found to complain about. She said she found all her answers in prayer and God, and took all her problems to the Lord, but she did have one problem maybe you could help her with. Birds kept nesting in her drainpipe. I think I can help her.

Birds are deathly afraid of snakes. If that lady will get a toy rubber snake and place it where the birds are nesting, they will cease to nest there.

Birds love elderberries, and as soon as my elderberries are ripe and I go to pick them, the birds have beat me to it.

Last year I went to the children's toy department in a variety store and bought a couple of rubber snakes. I placed them on the branches of my elder bush, and not one berry was touched by the birds.

MRS. E. H. ELKHART, IND.

DEAR MRS. H.: Your advice is the berries. And it's not for the birds. Muchas gracias!

CONFIDENTIAL TO "JUST AVERAGE IN WASHINGTON, D. C.": So what? Remember, you're just as close to the top as you are to the bottom.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest.

holds the trick. He cashes the last diamond and discards the 10 of clubs from his hand. West discards the three of the same suit.

Now South cashes dummy's ace of spades and West must make the automatic false card of the queen. South knows that West holds that queen. He doesn't know who holds the 10.

The chances are that South will go up with his king of spades after East follows to the third lead of that suit and make his contract, but it is not a certainty.

On the other hand, if West dropped the 10 instead of the queen, South would have no problem at all.

One of the most elementary forms of deception is the false card, or play of a higher card than necessary, when following suit. Some false card plays should be automatic.

East's king of hearts covers dummy's queen at trick one. The king holds and the 10 is returned. Declarer plays low and west overtakes with his jack in order to lead the nine. South wins with the ace, leads a diamond to dummy's jack and wins the next two tricks with the ace and queen.

West discards the nine of clubs as a signal.

South leads a spade and plays dummy's jack which

Harvesters Meet Dons In District 3-4A Action

The Pampa Harvesters take on the Palo Duro Dons and Fred Mitchell in Amarillo tonight in second half play in District 3-AAA basketball action.

Pampa won the initial game between the two teams, 55-46, Jan. 26. Tonight's game is perhaps the most important one of this year's campaign for the Harvesters.

Should they win tonight, Pampa will take a 3-0 second half record into Friday night's game against the Amarillo Sandies in Amarillo.

Since Amarillo High has perhaps the weakest 4-A team in the state, and certainly in this district, Pampa is almost assured of a win in their fourth outing in the league's second half.

By way of background information, the Sandies are present 0-7 in loop competition. The Harvesters beat the "Golden Sandstorm" by 40 points, 75-35, in their first meeting to the two teams this current season.

A win tonight against the Dons will give the Harvesters a virtual shoo-in for a 4-0 second half record when they meet the Borger Bulldogs in their second half District 3-AAA go-round finale Feb. 20.

But getting by Palo Duro is the thing that Pampa has to worry about tonight and that will not be an easy task. A loss to the Harvesters tonight will virtually eliminate the Dons from any chance at making the district playoffs.

If there is one thing that Pampa can know for certain it is that Palo Duro will be ready to play. In the Dons' own gym that means the Harvesters must play perhaps their toughest game of the year and they had best be at their peak.

Pampa is 2-0 in second half play going into tonight's contest while the Dons are 1-1. The home squad has beaten Caprock and Tascosa while Palo Duro has beaten the Rebels and lost to the Borger Bulldogs.

Getting back to the Dons big threat Fred Mitchell. He is the only man that Pampa has met this year, from this area at least, who has been able to outjump the Harvesters' Freddy Wilbon with any regularity.

Mitchell, a returning all-district performer, gives Palo Duro a great height advantage both on tip-offs and on the backboards. In the last meeting between the two teams he was the main-stay of the Dons' offense and defense.

He is not without support however. Joining Mitchell in Palo Duro's starting line-up are guards Mike Smith and Terry Harris and forwards Jim Ratliff and Zan Walker.

Mitchell is the leading scorer in District 3-AAA with a 19.5 per game average. Harris is hitting at an 11.7 clip and Ratliff is averaging 11.4.

Wilbon has been Pampa's big scoring threat for most of the year averaging 17.2 points per game. His younger brother

Billy is the only other Harvester hitting in the double figures. He is averaging 10.4.

Joining the two Wilbon brothers in the starting line-up for Pampa are Steve Richardson, Randy Warner and A.J. Brewer.

The varsity game gets underway in the Palo Duro gym at 8 p.m. It will be preceded by a JV game at 6 o'clock.

In the other district contests tonight Caprock meets Borger in the Longhorns last chance at salvaging a playoff berth and the winless (in second half play) Tascosa Rebels and Amarillo High meet.

Basketball Roundup

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Indiana Coach Bob Leonard says Darnell Hillman "is becoming one of the best defensive forwards in the game," but the Pacers' second-year man had it at the other end of the court when it counted.

Hillman, who had scored eight points in the first 48 minutes of Monday night's American Basketball Association game against Virginia, got another eight in the five-minute overtime period, outscoring the entire Squires squad, to lead the Pacers to a 127-119 victory.

In the night's two other ABA games, the Utah Stars defeated Denver 119-107 and the Carolina Cougars downed Dallas 118-111. There was no action in the National Basketball Association.

The Squires led by about 10 points through most of the early going until George McGinnis began hitting to lead an Indiana surge that put the Pacers ahead in the fourth quarter. And his tip-in tied the game at 112-112 and sent it into the extra period.

"We got real good play from our guards," Leonard said. "Our four guards got 50 points and 14 assists and played a good aggressive game. Hillman did a great job. He played 51 minutes, got 16 points, 15 rebounds and did an excellent job on Julius Erving," Leonard said.

Erving led all scorers with 35 points while McGinnis topped the Pacers with 28.

Despite the victory, Indiana remained 2½ games behind West Division front-runner Utah, which got 48 points from the team of Ron Boone and Willie Wise against Denver.

Boone had 25 and Wise 23 and they both had the hot hands to turn a one-point first-quarter lead into a 60-55 halftime margin. But it was Zelmo Beaty and James Jones, finishing with 17 apiece, who turned it on in the third period to widen the spread to 95-79 going into the final 12 minutes. The balanced attack countered Ralph Simpson's game-high 28 points for the Rockets.

Dallas went through the first five minutes against the Cougars without a field goal and fell behind by as many as 16 points shortly after the half. But the Chaps charged back to tie the game 83-83.

Then it was Billy Cunningham to the rescue. The Carolina star, who wound up with 26 points, got 10 of them in the fourth quarter to enable the Cougars to widen their lead in the East to five games over idle Kentucky.

Aggies Score Big

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Texas Aggies grabbed two prize schoolboy football plums Tuesday by signing All-State quarterback David Shipman and linebacker Grady Wilkerson off the Class 4A state champion Odessa Permian Panthers.

But Coach Emory Bellard of the Aggies didn't stop there. A&M also signed All-State tackle Jimmy Dean of Brazoswood and reached into Arkansas to ink All-State tight end Dennis Swilley of Pine Bluff.

Shipman, Dean and Wilkerson were rated in the top 12 of schoolboy players in the state in a bluechip poll conducted by the Dallas Times Herald.

A&M also signed two players from Pampa, linebacker Jesse Hunnicutt and offensive guard Billy Lemons. Both are rated as top prospects to help the Aggies in their move toward first-class status in the Southwest Conference.

Shipman said he visited Texas Tech, Texas and Baylor. "I ruled out Texas because something just made me uneasy down there," Shipman said. "I just liked A&M... they are a great bunch of people. They didn't promise me I would be the starting quarterback in the Wishbone next year. They just told me they would give me the chance."

Shipman, who scored 23 touchdowns last year in guiding Permian to an undefeated season from the triple-option Wishbone, said "I'm glad it's over with. It has been a long haul."

Houston, Texas and Baylor were right behind the Aggies in collecting some bluechips.

Houston landed all-state tackle Wilson Whitley of Brenham. Texas signed All-Stater Joe Bizzell, a wide receiver off the Permian team, and Baylor inked AJ Jackson, a fleet receiver from Dallas South Oak Cliff.

Baylor Coach Grant Teaff grabbed a prize in Jackson. Grant also signed nine junior college players.

Teaff said, "Our critical needs was in the secondary people and offensive linemen. The center of our line last year averaged 200 pounds and six feet tall. I got a little tired each week of us being outweighed about 40 pounds."

Baylor assistant coach Bill Young said of Jackson, a first team Class 4A all-state safety, "He's the cream of the crop in Texas. I believe he could have made the varsity this year. He's really a gifted athlete."

Jackson said the battle boiled down to Baylor and Rice.

"The visit to Baylor did it," Jackson said. "They just have great people and atmosphere. I feel at home."

Lemons And Hunnicutt Sign With Texas Aggies

Two Pampa Harvester gridsters, Jesse Hunnicutt and Billy Lemons, signed Southwest Conference letters-of-intent to Texas A&M University this morning.

Pampa head coach Buddy Williams, a graduate of A&M and Aggeland coach Swede Lee, formerly head coach of the Harvesters, were present at the signings, along with the two Aggie hopefuls' parents.

Jesse and Billy visited the A&M campus early this month before making their final decisions to sign with the Aggies.

Jesse, son of J.C. and Doria Hunnicutt, 502 Elm, said that knowing and having been coached by Lee was one of the deciding factors in his ultimately choosing A&M over six other schools that approached him to play football.

Included in those were Oklahoma and Kansas State of the Big 8, Angelo State, West Texas, and Baylor of the Southwest Conference.

Recruited by A&M as a linebacker, Jesse feels that he has "a good future" at Aggeland and that he will have a good chance to play at the school.

Jesse was a two-year letterman for the Harvesters, starting at linebacker for two years and at tight end his senior season. He is undecided on his major.

Billy, son of Rev. and Mrs. Wayne Lemons, 506 Oklahoma, listed four reasons for signing with A&M.

"I liked the kind of people they have down there. They're honest and tell you what they think."

"They also have a good building program (campus expansion) and the Bible chair is very strong."

He also said he felt that the football program at A&M was growing under coach Emory Bellard.

Billy, recruited as an offensive guard by the Aggies, was a three-year Harvester letterman, seeing starting duty all three years.

"His junior year he played tight end on offense and this past season he played offensive guard and defensive tackle."

He was contacted by 10 schools, including most of the members of the SWC, before making his decision to go to A&M.

Billy is as yet undecided on his major but is leaning toward either business or electronics.

UCLA Holds On In Associated Press Roll

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

College basketball purists would love an eventual showdown between UCLA and North Carolina State, both unbeaten and running 1-2 in The Associated Press weekly poll. But it won't happen.

UCLA, with 63 straight victories dating back to 1971, is headed for the National Collegiate Athletic Association tournament to defend its national championship. N.C. State won't compete there since the NCAA suspended the school because of alleged recruiting violations.

UCLA, 18-0 this season, retained its No. 1 ranking in The AP poll with 34 of the 35 ballots cast. The holdout vote went to N.C. State's Wolfpack, 19-0 for the season.

Third place belongs to Long Beach State, sporting a 20-1 record, while Minnesota, 15-2, moved up to No. 4.

Marquette, 18-2, picked up a couple of places, moving into the No. 5 slot and North Carolina, 18-4, remained No. 6 despite dropping a three-point decision to N.C. State.

Three new clubs cracked the Top Ten, with Houston and Providence each jumping four spots to No. 7 and No. 8 respectively, and St. John's of New York picking up five notches from No. 14 to No. 9.

Maryland slipped one notch from ninth to No. 10.

Two losses last week tumbled Indiana from fourth to No. 11. Missouri slipped from eighth to No. 2. Jacksonville, Southwestern Louisiana, Kansas State, Memphis State, Alabama, New Mexico, Virginia Tech and Brigham Young complete the Top Twenty.

Players Consider Offer

By HAL BOCK

Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball's labor problems move into the next inning Friday when the 24 player representatives take a close-up, detailed look at the latest offer of the owners.

Marvin Miller, executive director of the Major League Baseball Players Association, said Monday that the offer would probably be turned over to the entire membership—a procedure that could take three weeks and delay the scheduled March 1 opening of training camps.

"In my conversations with many of the player representatives of the last few days," said Miller, "there was the feeling expressed that this matter is of sufficient importance to be taken to the entire membership."

Baseball's latest offer came last Thursday and was accompanied by a directive to all clubs to postpone the early opening of camps scheduled for this week. Traditionally, pitchers and catchers are invited to start training in mid-February with remaining players usually reporting on or about March 1.

Super News Management

NFL Had Press in Bad Field Position

By MURRAY OLDERMAN

SAN FRANCISCO (NEA)—The assault on the sanctity of the free press, reflected in the Peter Bridge and William Farr cases, hasn't come down to the local level of the sports pages. Yet.

But there are enough symptoms of efforts to control the media in the province of fun and games to flash a red alert.

Charles O.—The man, not the mule—has been Agnewish in his vituperative putdowns of sports reporters who don't write to please him. He tried to bar one from traveling with his club—not a unique occurrence, since the late Vince Lombardi could get equally wrathful over critical reporting.

But at least there was nothing subtle about them. And so the confrontation was open and negotiable.

What concerns us more is the recent, sinuous case of managing the news in connection with the Super Bowl game. And the lethargy of the American sporting press in letting itself be controlled.

For a seven-day period, from January 8 through January 14, the sports sections of America from Florida to California were surfeited with stories of Super Bowl VII from every conceivable angle, including in-depth interviews with such people as Mike Kadish and Henry Stuckey of the Miami Dolphins, neither of whom had appeared in a single play during the season just elapsed.

Why? Well, there was really nothing else for the hundreds of visiting writers gathered for that single event to write about.

The Office of the Commissioner of the National Football League had decreed that Newport Beach, a hip little surf community south of Los Angeles, would be the press headquarters. It would be, the official line went, a nice place for the writers to bring their wives — those that could afford or were inclined to.

It would also be convenient to the training sites of the Washington Redskins and Dolphins leading up to the momentous clash.

And the very efficient publicity apparatus of the NFL would aid them in the reportage with mountains of mimeographed material.

After only a couple of days, it also became apparent that the news managers of the NFL — all of them former wire service or metropolitan newspaper sports writers — had isolated the hundreds of visiting sports writers from every considerable other source of pro football news that week. By mid-week they were interviewing each other in the press room every night.

There were six coaching vacancies to fill in the NFL. All the owners and general managers and most of the incumbent coaches, who could provide a crossfire of opinion on current football issues, were in town. But they all converged on Beverly Hills, which suited their hedonistic tastes more, and which is also 62 miles from Newport Beach.

You might argue that the writers could have gotten off their duffs and gone the 62 miles. A couple of them, like Larry Merchant of the New York Post and Tex Maule of Sports Illustrated, did. But for most it would have been too much trouble. And for what? How could you be sure of finding anybody after an hour and a half?

The poor clods of the NFL Players Association, which has been antithetical to the football establishment and complained bitterly of press bias, stupidly staged a cocktail party in Los Angeles more than 50 freeway miles from the horde of writers.

Part of the flavor of a big sports event is the convergence of all strata of the sport into one spot so that you just normally run across them and get a feel and reading of the event.

Not so at Super Bowl VII.

Even the idea of putting writers closer to the teams was vacuous. They weren't allowed at practice sessions. They were herded by bus to staged press conferences. It would have taken only five minutes longer on the freeway to cart them from a Los Angeles hotel to Long Beach, where the Dolphins stayed, than from Newport Beach. And Disneyland hasn't suffered in luring people from LA to Anaheim, where the Redskins trained.

There's no proof that the NFL maliciously arranged for the separation of press and football people, but pro football sure got what it wanted — an all-out salvo of millions of words focused on one little game that couldn't possibly (and hasn't for seven years) lived up to the prose of breathless anticipation.

The slick hand of Pete Rozelle has always been a factor in manipulating the press to carry the message of pro football as the game of our times. Hand it to Pete. When he got to be commissioner in 1960, an old crony named Pierre Salinger was arriving in Washington to become Presidential press secretary. So there was an immediate pipeline to the White House which has remained open — everyone knows the present occupant's proclivity for the game.

Pete, a smooth old p.r. type, knows his way around a press box. He knows which influential columnist or reporter to visit in making the pre-game rounds. If he has an issue to lobby, such as his insistence on a blackout ban for home games, he knows who will be most flattered by his personal attention and carry the ball for him to the public.

In short, pro football has done a masterful job of propagandizing its product and even controlling the news.

As a matter of fact, when it comes around to time for Super Bowl VIII in Houston next January, I'm perfectly prepared. I've already started checking the historic sites to be seen in Galveston.

Bill Walton Is Awesome

SEATTLE (AP) — Behind the awesome performance of 6-foot-11 Bill Walton, the UCLA Bruins coasted to their 64th consecutive victory, a 76-67 Pacific-8 Conference triumph over the Washington Huskies Monday night.

Walton scored 29 points and grabbed 21 rebounds.

Walton must have been a little surprised at the game's outset when Husky Coach Marv Harshman sent out 6-11 freshman Lars Hansland to oppose the Bruins' giant.

Communes & Cussedness

The commune movement is not only still around, but some of these social experiments are discovering insights into human nature that have eluded philosophers and kings over the centuries, writes Don Oakley of Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

For instance, a recent book about a five-year-old commune in Virginia called Twin Oaks explains that members are required to do full, equal shares of the necessary work.

Within that limit, however, they are free to choose the work they like. They work about 40 hours a week, usually spread over the full seven days.

Assembly-line robots, eat your hearts out!

Soon after its founding, the commune discovered the curious fact that previously desirable tasks, such as hoeing the garden, increasingly tended to be viewed as unpleasant and had to be assigned.

When one assigned a job, he becomes a "manager" of that job.

Our bylaws leave us free to change our form of government at any time," writes Kathleen Kinkade, author of the book. "I personally think Twin Oaks could survive under a variety of government systems, as long as the managerial system remained intact."

Why didn't anybody invent bureaucracy before this?

Instead of money, workers are issued labor credits. These vary with the desirability or undesirability of a job.

The more people who want to do a particular job, the less it "pays," and vice versa.

Oppressive capitalist exploiters, take note.

Each labor credit is worth an hour of free time. Vacations are paid for with surplus credits, which are accumulated by working more hours than are assigned.

Most members bog down in their work from time to time.

and perk up after a vacation or a fresh approach or a change of job, writes Ms. Kinkade.

(Industrial psychologists, get your noses out of the textbooks!)

As happens in the best-run communes, the snake has reared his head a couple of times in the person of members who refused to pull their weight.

One fellow was content to let his girl friend support him by doing her work and his, too. The other guy falsified his labor credit sheets (counterfeiting?).

When reasoning, threats and everything else failed to move these characters, they were simply asked to leave.

(This unique solution, unfortunately, is not practical in the outside world, there being no other "outside world" non-producers can be asked to leave for. Anyway, most unemployment is the fault of the lousy system Twin Oaks and other communes were designed to be alternatives for.)

Twin Oaks is determined to avoid the emergence of a privileged class which does less or has more than anybody else. This means the creation of "an entirely new culture"—noncompetitive and nonconsumerist.

Until this creation is realized, however, "it will be necessary for us to continue to legislate a rough equality," writes Ms. Kinkade.

(How come Mao Tse-tung never thought of that?)

Eventually, she believes, machinery and automation will handle all the undesirable jobs and make it so that nobody has to do any work he doesn't want to.

Then, presumably, everyone will sit around being equal.

(Now here is where Twin Oaks and the outside world are on converging paths—and the prospect gives the philosophers and the kings night-mares.)

The Great Fire God

The witch doctor climbed atop the altar stone and waved his stick, rattled some bones and declared that the great fire god demanded a young virgin be thrown into the flames.

This sacrifice would bring peace to the land, the witch doctor promised.

And so a flower of the tribe was selected for this great honor—death in the flames to bring peace to her people.

Ridiculous!

The exalted politicians of the United States, North Vietnam and South Vietnam decided that peace would come to a troubled land as soon as the hands of a clock rotated a prescribed number of times.

The agreement to halt the bombing and shooting was made and all the high ranking politicians smiled and rubbed their hands because they had come to this memorable agreement.

The war was over.

In the meantime, the orders were to continue dropping the bombs, killing each other and destroying property.

The great fire god demanded the fury continue until the hands of the clock made the prescribed number of revolutions. And it still goes on.

Ridiculous!

Federal aid means federal control.

Fiscal 1974 Social Aid Still High

By RAY CROMLEY
WASHINGTON (NEA) —There is much hypocrisy in the attacks on President Nixon's 1974 social and welfare budget.

Headlines in a prominent national newspaper say "Nixon Budget Lists 100 Programs That Would Be Limited or Ended to Attain a 'Safe' Spending Level... Large Social Cuts... Reductions Are Aimed at Big Poverty and Education Efforts."

The story below that headline pursues the same theme. But a sentence well down in the piece discloses that, after all, "Total social spending in the new budget is higher than last year's." (So is obligatory authority.)

Actually, proposed direct and indirect spending in the civil rights area will rise by $600 million, or 23 per cent. Drug abuse treatment and rehabilitation programs will almost double to $74 million. Federal education outlays will increase $600 million, or 6 per cent. There will be a step-up of 10 per cent, or $10.8 billion, in income security programs, when Social Security is included, or an increase of $5.2 billion, or 9 per cent, exclusive of Social Security.

Medicare expenditures will rise 26 per cent, but payments by the aged will also increase. Health programs exclusive of Medicare will rise $1.3 billion, or 9 per cent. In manpower training and associated programs there will be a decrease in spending of half a billion dollars, or 9 per cent, with the elimination of emergency employment assistance which began in 1972 under Mr. Nixon.

Overall, the 1974 budget calls for spending on social programs at well over twice the level of the last Johnson budget, whether Social Security and Medicare are included or not.

What is developing is a war over the wrong issues. The notion is being spread that if you are not for an old program (inherited from Johnson, Kennedy, Truman or Eisenhower days) you are against the poor, the ailing and the unfortunate. Yet experts this reporter has talked to inside and outside the administration, conservative and liberal alike, agree in private it would be well for all of us, including the poor and unfortunate, if a good many of these programs (or parts of them) went by the board.

Many are inefficient and cumbersome. Some do actual harm. Others are dreadfully expensive for the few they serve, or don't help many of the people they are designed for. Some were good in their time, but their usefulness has in large measure passed. Some were never needed.

But the danger is that this fight will degenerate into a shouting match over who has most empathy with the unfortunate.

The proper argument is over whether Mr. Nixon's new programs will be more effective or less effective than the old, whether program B should be increased at the expense or elimination of program A and whether in some cases a federal program at all is necessary. Is the government attempting to do something people can do better for themselves?

The battle against killing the old program will have its own lobby—the organizers, bureaucrats, administrators, managers and others who profit from these programs. These special interests will attempt to convince the unfortunates who now receive some aid (however inefficiently and unfairly it may be given) that they had better cling to what they're getting or they might not get anything at all.

The fight will be rough.

BRUCE BLOSSAT Stiff Obstacles In Connally Path

By BRUCE BLOSSAT

WASHINGTON (NEA) —The round of recent talk about President Nixon's reported interest in John Connally as his successor nominee in 1976 has speculation in Connally's favor moving at too giddy a pace.

That the President voiced his interest to William Ruckelshaus (head of the environment agency) and some others seems beyond question.

Though Mr. Nixon in his press conference said he is doing no choosing right now, his high regard for the former Treasury secretary came through strongly.

Connally himself gave a sharp signal he may soon switch from Democrat to Republican, an obviously necessary prelude to a GOP presidential candidacy. He accompanied the comment with another intended to detach such a move from a possible quest for the presidency. But many observers who have watched him closely think he is itching for the job.

H. L. Hunt Writes

DANGERS IN LEGALIZING MARIJUANA

The Consumers Union recently published a 623-page study on drugs, in which it calls for immediate repeal of all federal and state laws governing the growing, sale, possession and use of marijuana, on the grounds that it is basically harmless.

A great many experts would disagree. Professor William Paton of Oxford University found that frequent use of marijuana is physically dangerous. Harmful substances accumulate in the body, which may cause miscarriages and liver damage.

Dr. Harold Kolansky and Dr. William Moore, psychiatrists from Philadelphia, have found that psychological damage accompanies the physical harm. They believe that frequent use of marijuana may eventually produce brain damage.

Dr. Harvey Powelson, director of the University of California at Berkeley's student psychiatric clinic for five years, initially supported the legalization of marijuana. But in his observations of the young people who came to his clinic, he discovered that continual use of the drug for more than six months could lead to changes "similar to those seen in organic brain diseases—lands of lucidity intermixed with areas of loss of function."

Dr. Hardin Jones, assistant director of the Donner Laboratory at the University of California at Berkeley, and Dr. Olav Braenden, director of the United Nations Narcotics Laboratory, have also pointed out the harmful effects of marijuana.

The Consumers Union study does not so much as mention any of these authorities. Before any steps are taken to legalize marijuana, the conclusions of these experts should be taken into full consideration, along with the experience of law enforcement officers that heroin addicts usually start on marijuana.

Grant him several advantages aside from the impression he may have the President in his camp. He is charismatic, bears a "presidential look," and fairly exudes strength and forcefulness. He has backed it up with toughness in performance.

All this notwithstanding, some stiff obstacles stand in the way of his nomination by the Republicans in 1976.

First off, there is nothing easy or automatic about the nomination of a well-known, attractive figure, even if he has no close rival in these attributes and is getting constant, warm praise from a president.

Friends of the President, who believe they understand his thinking about presidential politics, say he has always been impressed by the capture of the 1952 GOP nomination by Gen. Dwight Eisenhower, a widely acclaimed national figure whose partisan leanings were mostly unknown until at least mid-1951, like, aided by skilled governors and others, won impressive primary and state convention victories without setting foot on U.S. soil (he was head of NATO)—until five weeks before convention time and he was judged a nearly total political novice.

Yet there is no true parallel. Connally is not a national hero. He is stamped a conservative. Eisenhower, though managed by progressives, was widely seen as "above party," and as a clean sheet on issues, on which voters could inscribe whatever they wished. He was also seen as a leader proved under the severest fire, a very steady hand.

The "parallel" breaks down in another crucial way. Given his stature, the general and his sponsors expected to break the race open fast. They were stunned when rival Sen. Robert Taft, using regulars with their own seasoned skills, won his fair share of victories and made the single ballot fight at Chicago a very close thing.

Connally can find no comfort in that. Nor is it likely he will gain needed party acceptance by taking Mr. Nixon's advice to play it cool now and, in 1974, as the President did in 1966, plunge in hard to help candidates for Congress and governor.

Mr. Nixon's 1966 effort was his seventh on the national circuit. It would be Connally's first. Mr. Nixon would have been faulted had he not done it. Furthermore, it was especially welcomed by a party trying to rebuild from the Goldwater disaster.

Connally's skills in such a role are unmeasured. Anyway, what worked for Mr. Nixon may not for anyone else. History does not repeat.

And what is Connally to do meantime? Serve as secretary of State? If he did, he'd have to resign to campaign in 1974.

Connally may be walking tall today, but he's walking straight toward a thickly-sown minefield.

"Doctor, how long will I have to lie here?" asked one of God's servants who had sustained a hip injury. Replied the wise doctor, "Just a day at a time!"

Your Health Disease Is a Heart Infection

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb—Recently I was hospitalized for subacute bacterial endocarditis. It was explained as bacteria in the heart valve. My temperature was erratic and went as high as 102 degrees. I felt tired and listless all the time. After 11 days of intravenous penicillin, the symptoms disappeared. My temperature was normal and I feel fine. Could you please explain this disease more fully? What causes it or how do you get it? I was told it does not cause heart attacks. Is it contagious?

Dear Reader—Endocarditis means inflammation of the inside of the heart. Bacterial endocarditis merely identifies that bacteria are the cause. Germs lodge usually on the valve leaflets inside the heart and start an infection. Usually individuals who have this problem have had damage to the heart valve before, commonly from rheumatic heart disease.

Birth defects of the heart also predispose to this problem. The infection that develops on the inside of the heart may cause no major damage or it can destroy the heart valve leaving the heart damaged even after the infection had been cured. Small pieces of tissue from the infected area can become dislodged inside the heart and be circulated to other parts of the body.

It's obviously a very important and serious disease when it occurs. Like most infections, it's treated with antibiotics. The choice of antibiotic depends on what kind of germ is causing the problem. Large doses of antibiotics are commonly given until the infection has been eradicated. At that time, the temperature returns to normal and the patient recovers.

Because this is a serious disease, it deserves immediate treatment and even better, it should be prevented. For this reason, heart specialists ask individuals who have damage to their heart valves or birth defects of the heart, to take antibiotics any time they have a respiratory illness, an operation or a dental procedure. Even chewing vigorously will sometimes cause bacteria around the teeth to be dislodged into the blood stream. Then they are carried by the circulation to the heart and if you already have a defect the bacteria may lodge on the heart valve and set up the infection. Taking antibiotics at the time of dental procedures is a must for people with damaged valves or birth defects of the heart and simply having the teeth cleaned alone is a dental procedure. I have seen more than one case of bacterial endocarditis follow simple cleaning of the teeth which had been disregarded and the patient had failed to take the protective antibiotics that his doctor had recommended.

I want to make it clear that for normal, healthy people antibiotics for dental procedures are not necessary. The antibiotic protective measures to prevent bacterial endocarditis are for individuals who already have a problem, specifically,

Inside Washington McGovern Seeks $1 Million for 1974 Senate Campaign

By Robert S. Allen

WASHINGTON — Whatever else Sen. George McGovern is, he's no slouch when it comes to campaign funds: he thinks big!

Inside word among Democratic politicians is that the South Dakota radical is out to pile up a $1 million kitty to finance his third term reelection drive next year.

A campaign chest of that size should make quite an impact in his state.

In population, South Dakota is among the smallest states (7th)—with 666,257 in the 1970 census. Last year, 300,305 votes were cast—161,028 for Nixon; 139,277 for McGovern.

As McGovern is said to view it, he doesn't consider a $1 million reelection fund excessive. He expects to have a tough race both in the primary and the fall election. Certainly he is right about the latter. The Republicans will make a maximum effort to unseat him.

While McGovern's stumping will be in South Dakota, he is not confining his fund-raising there.

Par from it.

In this endeavor, he is operating on a nationwide scale. For that, he is using the list of 633,000 names of contributors to his 1971-72 presidential electioneering. A letter has gone out to the full list appealing for donations to give him another Senate term to continue to champion the same militant policies and proposals he expounded as presidential aspirant.

Handling this countrywide solicitation is the same New York direct-mail firm employed last year.

McGovern considers this list his personal property, and is using it to generate income by renting it out to "selected" applicants. Charge is $35 per thousand names; $22,000 for the full list.

Two known renters so far are Ralph Nader, self-styled "consumer crusader," to get money for his "Public Citizen" activities, and Fred Harris, former Senator from Oklahoma, seeking funds to finance a "tax reform" movement he is trying to get off the ground.

Same Technique

In McGovern's latest appeal for campaign funds, he is resorting to the same formula and tactics used in his two-year presidential drive.

On one hand, the South Dakota radical is spicing his old "poor mouth" line, on the other, he is busily scouring the land for contributions and donations. This canny strategy paid off richly before.

Still incomplete figures indicate McGovern raised and spent more than any other Democratic presidential candidate—some $30 million.

That's approximately 50 per cent more than Humphrey's 1968 race.

—And that isn't all. The Democratic National Committee emerged from that election with a debt of $9.6 million—of which around $4 million is still unpaid.

McGovern lieutenants claim a left-over debt of less than $350,000, and they confidently expect to clean that up in the near future. They emphatically deny that any of the money from his new fund-raising will go for that purpose; it's strictly all to be used for his reelection race.

Admittedly, his devotees throughout the country are being tapped, for that. South Dakota is playing an insignificant role in this financial operation.

Also to supplement his income, he is again resorting to the lucrative lecture circuit. In the past, it paid off handsomely.

In the three-year period (1969-71) before McGovern started actively campaigning for President, he pocketed $147,000 in lecture fees and other payments.

That explains how and why the South Dakota radical now owns a $160,000 custom-built home in a fashionable Washington residential area after living for years in a modest suburban six-room frame house; also a $75,000 11-acre estate on Maryland's Eastern Shore, a "blind trust" that netted $4,200 last year and sundry other assets.

Prior to coming to Washington and latching onto the federal payroll, McGovern never earned more than $6,000 a year.

During the 20 months he was hectoring scrambling for the White House, McGovern was largely away from the Senate—while being paid $42,500 in salary and getting another $450,000 in numerous perquisites and fringe benefits.

In effect, taxpayers considerably financed his presidential race.

Now, McGovern is again busily lecturing—at fees from $1,000 up. His recent fanfare Oxford College sortie reportedly netted $2,500.

In his fund-soliciting letter, he says he intends to "speak out in the Senate" on the issues he raised last year. So far, the Senate has heard and seen little of him—no evident regret of his colleagues.

Addendum: As part of McGovern's reelection strategy, he has organized what is called the "South Dakota Development Group," with an office in downtown Washington. According to a brochure, purpose of the outfit is to "actively solicit new industry and business for the state and to monitor the changing pattern of federal assistance policy." In charge of the office is Owen Donley, onetime McGovern staff member. Politics using the operation as aimed at offsetting McGovern's radical image in South Dakota. Significantly, in all his electioneering there, he has carefully soft-pedaled his dovism and extremism.

Problem Maney

Sen. Edward Brooke, R-Mass., has an unusual problem on his hands—what to do with a $300,000 surplus from his reelection campaign last year. His contributions totaled $750,000—but he only spent a little more than half of that.

Now he is trying to find out what he can do with the unspent balance. Brooke, first black to sit in the Senate since Reconstruction days, harbors presidential ambitions, but admits his prospects aren't promising. Says Brooke, "I intend to get more on the country and to be more vocal on national issues." Whether that will include taking swipes at Vice President Spiro Agnew remains to be seen. It's an open secret. Brooke is opposed to Agnew's being the 1976 GOP presidential standard bearer.

Which Currency Is Right One?

NEW YORK (AP) — The question that seldom can be answered adequately in a monetary crisis is which nation's currency is overpriced and which underpriced. Values are relative, and special interests dictate opinions.

The rush to buy Japanese and German currency may be called a yen or mark crisis and the view can be taken that they are underpriced. You may also view the problem as a flight from the dollar and say it is overvalued.

The corrective action from the German point of view might be a dollar devaluation. But others, mainly the United States, might claim an upward valuation of the yen and mark is required. Either way, some improvement results.

However, no country really enjoys either course. A devaluation, though it might help a nation competitively, is a blow to prestige and confidence. A revaluation is even more unwelcome because it restrains a nation's economy.

WORRY CLINIC

By George W. Crane, Ph.D., M.D.

Gordon was in a clergymen's convention that I addressed 15 years ago. Notice his praise for the progressiveness of newspaper editors. They "jumped the gun" on Medical Seminars as well as Theological Seminars by an actual 25 years!

CASE W-526: Gordon T., aged 37, is a Church of God clergyman. "Dr. Crane," he began, "American editors are often better diagnosticians than physicians, don't you think?"

"For they pioneered your practical column on everyday problems in psychology and psychiatry. And when Dr. Masters, of St. Louis, accuses both the AMA and our theological schools of ignoring sexual counseling until 1960, I beg to differ with him."

"For I heard you at our Church of God convention in Chicago some 15 years ago. You not only spoke for an hour at the official meeting. But then adjourned to a private ballroom where you gave us clergymen a chart talk on how to inform newlyweds on the many vital aspects of boudoir behavior that would prevent divorce."

"And your daily 'Worry Clinic' has explained far more things (and in a dignified scientific manner) than does the sex-book recently released by Dr. Masters."

"So I salute the editors that had the vision to release your daily column as insurance against divorce and teen-age sexual delinquency."

It was first released on the Mutual Broadcasting System; then later became part of a one-hour show on CBS, sponsored by General Mills.

And it maintained a dignified, moral and educational level. General Mills thus included a popular program called "Hymns of All Churches," as well as Betty Crocker's splendid culinary advice, to accompany my "Worry Clinic" marital and child rearing advice.

Experienced editors doubtless consider it amusing to hear Johnny-come-lately advocates of Marriage Counseling try to claim priority in thus releasing medical and psychological counsel to prevent divorce.

Many editors, however, have cancelled this column because stodgy wives put pressure on them to do so, arguing that "Dr. Crane is too frank."

A gray-haired Wisconsin publisher thus dropped this column because of my simple statement: "Most divorces start in the bedroom."

Nothing lewd or vulgar or off color had been mentioned in my discussion that day of a middle-aged couple who had broken up their home, after their children were reared and gone.

I had deplored this sad situation that too often occurs. And had tacked on, without any elaboration whatsoever, that final remark: "Most divorces start in the bedroom."

In this "Worry Clinic" I have faithfully mixed religion and a high moral treatment of marital problems, even using such euphemisms as "boudoir calories" to avoid employing more specific sex terminology.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 15 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Germany's economy is viewed as strong. Reflecting this, the mark is considered safe and highly desirable as an investment.

On the other hand, the German economy has problems. There is evidence of overexpansion, as indicated by a rise in the inflation rate from 2 per cent in 1968-1970 to nearly triple that now.

Japan also is running a huge surplus of exports over imports. Its economy is growing fastest of all the large industrial nations. It is export-minded, sometimes at the expense of domestic needs. But Japan too has inflation, although that is an old story there.

The American economy is much stronger than two years ago. Output is growing, unemployment is falling, and inflation of about 3.4 per cent is the lowest for any of the large industrial nations.

However, the United States still runs a big payments deficit, and some currency holders and traders are skeptical about the future course of the American economy.

What is the correct move? Who is most responsible? The Germans, Japanese, Americans? Which is the correct action, a mark-yen revaluation, dollar devaluation, combination? Even time might not tell.

"The Ruling Class," and Paul Winfield in "Sounder." Nominees for best actress: Liza Minnelli in "Cabaret," Diana Ross in "Lady Sings the Blues," Maggie Smith in "Travels With My Aunt," Cicely Tyson in "Souper," and Liv Ullmann in "The Emigrants."

For best picture of the year: "Cabaret," "Deliverance," "The Emigrants," "The Godfather," "Sounder."

The 3,000 voting members of the Motion Picture Academy have selected the five leading contenders in various fields — actors nominating actors, directors choosing directors and so on. Secret ballots were mailed to the accountant firm of Price, Waterhouse for tabulation.

Nominations are to be announced in all categories except best song, which will be disclosed March 5. Because one of the nominated songs was discovered to be ineligible, the vote had to be taken again.

The awards ceremony will be telecast by the NBC from the Los Angeles Music Center March 27.

Shelby Gantz Retires From Clothing Store

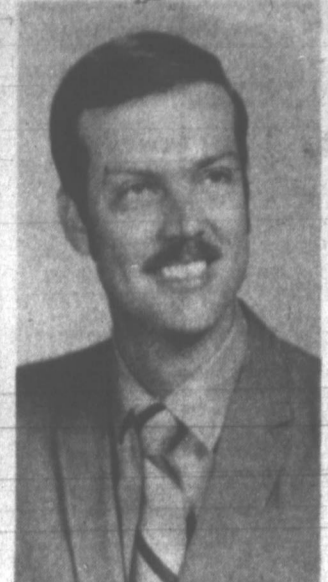

Shelby Gantz, former owner and manager of the Friendly Men's Store in Pampa, retired today from Blackburns clothing store in Amarillo, where he has been one of the mainstays for the past 15 years.

Gantz, 64, was born in Durham, Okla., and has been in the clothing business all his life in Pampa, Flagstaff, Ariz., Enid, Okla., and Amarillo.

He said he plans to stay in the Texas Panhandle and spend much of his retirement years in his ham radio lab.

He became interested in radio, Gantz said, when his oldest son, Bill, an electrical engineer with NASA, set him a ham radio kit.

Gantz is a past president of the Panhandle Radio Club, takes an active interest in electronics and says the U.S. space programs have advanced electronics 100 years.

GETS MEMBERSHIP — Harris Brinson, Pampa High School band director, has been elected to membership in Phi Beta Mu, national bandmasters fraternity. He was installed during the annual Alpha Chapter meeting Feb. 10 in San Antonio, in conjunction with the Texas Music Educators Association convention.

Rep. Price To Undergo Evaluation

Congressman Bob Price of Pampa is in Bethesda Naval Hospital in Washington for evaluation of an incident of chest pain and discomfort.

During the ten days while the Congress is in recess in honor of Lincoln's Birthday, the congressman will undergo extensive testing and treatment procedures.

As a result of several months of strenuous activity involving an election campaign, his office announced, the introduction and preparation of several new bills in the 93rd Congress, trips to the new 13th Congressional District, and the assumption of responsibilities as one of the few members named to serve on two major committees in the new Congress, doctors have detected evidence of extensive physical exhaustion requiring an undetermined period of rest and convalescence.

The office of Congressman Price will continue to operate on a full time basis and staff personnel will respond to constituent inquiries and needs until the congressman returns to the office in the weeks ahead.

The "Oscar" symbol of motion picture excellence, is 10 inches high and weighs seven pounds. It is made of bronze, coated with gold plate.

First edition of a quarterly newspaper, The Opportunity Plan Legend, went into the mails this week. It includes a feature story and pictures on the Twentieth Century Cotillion Club Division of Pampa.

The Legend is published by The Opportunity Plan, Inc., Canyon, which has operated at the West Texas State University campus for about 19 years under the direction of Milton "Buff" Morris.

The OPI has lent interest-free money to more than 3,000 students for post-high school education, with 153 students in 26 schools and colleges during last fall's semester.

"For many years," Morris explains, "former OPI students, contributors, members of the Board, and our staff have discussed the possibility of a newspaper. The staff is now looking forward to getting out other issues, and we hope you will be looking forward to reading them."

The first edition — an eight-page tabloid — was mailed to about 4,000 OPI alumni and contributors. It introduces the new OPI insignia and motto recently designed, as well as pictures and stories of present and former students and the Plan's executive board of directors.

Also included are feature stories and pictures on the Petersburg community division of The Opportunity Plan, Inc., and the Twentieth Century

Cotillion Club Division of Pampa.

The officers and organizational outline of The Opportunity Plan Foundation — composed exclusively of ex-OPI students — are presented with stories, pictures, and its own "house ad." The Opportunity Plan Credit Union is also described in this manner.

Another "house ad" congratulates the 121 students who made the final payment on their OPI accounts during the year 1972. The total amount of these accounts was $292,812.73.

Economic Censuses Deadline Thursday

Thursday, Feb. 15, is the deadline for returning completed 1972 Economic Censuses questionnaires, the Bureau of the Census today reminded millions of the nation's business officials.

The Bureau, part of the U.S. Department of Commerce's Social and Economic Statistics Administration, mailed out forms early this year to collect information for the censuses.

Economic censuses are taken every five years to provide a regular report on the state of the Nation's economy. More than 2 million questionnaires were mailed to the larger business and manufacturing firms. Answering census questions is required by law.

Future Homemaker Might Need Shave

ARCHER CITY, Tex. (AP) — If there's a women's liberation movement at Archer City High School, it suffered a stunning blow recently when Jasper Hulise, 18, was named 1973 Homemaker of Tomorrow.

He is the first male ever to capture the honor in Archer County, just south of Wichita Falls.

The senior accumulated the highest score of all senior pupils on an information and aptitude examination.

It was the first time males have been eligible to compete for the homemaker honor. He will receive an award from General Mills, sponsor of the annual award.

"I actually wanted to win for the hopes of getting a scholarship, but it's a lot of fun to beat the girls at their own game," said Hulise.

He was eligible to take the examination because he is enrolled in the consumer education class. Although the class does not teach the usual homemaker skills of cooking and sewing, the pupils learn how to buy household items, budget money and meet other needs of society.

Of the consumer education class, Hulise said, "It is a good class that teaches a lot of things boys and girls need to know."

He said some of the other male pupils make a little fun of him when in crowds, but said when he sees them individually, they congratulate him.

Hulise said he plans to attend Southwest Texas State University at San Marcos and major in police science.

He is a member of the Future Farmers of America, plays football and basketball and won the best actor award in the junior class play.

State winners, selected on the basis of the high school tests, will receive a $1,500 scholarship.

Scott's Family Dilemma

He Snubs Oscar but Wife Wouldn't

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD—(NEA) — An interesting question may arise this Oscar season. Suppose Mrs. George C. Scott is nominated for an award—would George show up to watch his wife accept?

George C. Scott, of course, doesn't think too highly of the Academy Awards. But his wife—Trish Van Devere—is another matter.

"Yes," Trish says, "I'd accept the Oscar if it were offered to me. George and I disagree about a lot of things and that's one of them. I understand how he feels but I'd still take it if it came."

The question is more than just academic. Trish Van Devere gave a brilliant performance in "One Is a Lonely Number," and it would be no surprise at all if she were nominated in the best actress category.

I hope she gets nominated. It would be fun to see what George would do. Trish would be there but would George escort her? Or would he boycott of the Oscars extend to include his wife, too?

Another source of Scott-Van Devere disagreement is television. George will occasionally let himself be persuaded to appear on the home screen—he even did a series once—but his wife won't.

"I've done no TV at all," the pixieish Trish says, "except for a soap opera for a very short while. And I don't want to do any."

She says once she was persuaded to come to Hollywood to do a test for a series. Before she stepped in front of the camera, she was "shocked" to find she was forced to sign a seven-year contract. If the series sold, she was tied tight.

TRISH VAN DEVERE has never deviated from her acting goal.

"I signed," she said, "but I promised myself that if the series sold, I'd leave the country."

Fortunately, the series didn't sell. Otherwise, she might now be faced with the problem of whether to grant amnesty to refugee TV actresses.

"I've gotten many TV offers over the years," she says, "but I turned them all down, even though I'd have to count my pennies for subway fare much of the time."

Trish is from Englewood, N.J., a suburb of New York. Her father died when she was nine and her mother supported her brother and herself by going into the real estate business. She got interested in acting when she was four—"I did a school play and it was well received and I liked the feeling of acceptance."

She says she never deviated from her acting goal, except for a "flirtation" with psychiatry. Some of the embers of that flirtation still glow—she works with disturbed and/or retarded children whenever she has the time.

Trish says her mother never stood in the way of her career, but she never understood it, either.

"She'd call me, when I was working in New York, at eight or nine in the morning," she says. "I'd have to remind her that I was in a play at night, that I didn't get to bed until three or so, and that I needed to sleep late in the morning."

"She'd say, 'Trish, everybody in the world is up.'"

"I'd tell her, 'O.K., then call everybody in the world but let me sleep.'"

The Scotts are off to Abaco, in the West Indies, where they will co-star in Mike Nichols' next film, "Day of the Dolphins." She says George considers Mike probably the best director around.

After that, they'll go back to Westport, Conn., where they want to find a house to make their permanent home. And maybe start a family. She thinks, with her experience at working with children, that she'd make a good mother.

"We'll see," she says. "At least I hope we'll see."
