

Huge Narcotic Cache Found At Handley

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS: The National Whirligig

WASHINGTON By George Burne

Reports from London infer that our financial manager, Dr. O. M. W. Sprague, is returning from the Economic Conference to resign.

American correspondents covering what's left of the world party would have you believe Sprague is in a huff. They cable that he feels President Roosevelt threw him at a critical moment.

The truth is that Mr. Roosevelt and Dr. Sprague still see the same horizon on American monetary and exchange problems.

Our going to have a managed currency, Sprague is going to manage it.

He's coming back for that purpose. He'll approach it according to American needs, not European dictates.

Trade—Back of the disintegration of the London Conference is the start of a first-class trade war.

The United States is out to grab Oriental and South American trade.

With the dollar rating at 83 or 79 cents in foreign exchange we can do it.

Our leading competitors don't like this at all but it's just too bad. President Roosevelt is looking for markets because new markets mean increased employment at home.

Good-Bye—Don't get the idea that Laurence Steinhardt, our new Minister to Sweden, is carrying any heavy instructions to London.

It is said that this effect were printed but those close to him admit privately that about all the President told him was good-bye.

If it had been necessary our strategists on this side were prepared to build Steinhardt up as a mystery messenger.

When Mr. Roosevelt has important instructions for our delegation he picks up the 'phone and calls London.

Orders don't get garbled in transmission that way.

Boom—The manner in which building trades are picking up is most heartening to administration specialists at the bedside of business.

Index figures about to be released will show wholesale prices of building materials to be almost 80 per cent of normal.

Contract awards in the three major construction groups will total around $100,000,000 for June. This is by far the greatest activity since last fall.

Building trades are the barometer the government is watching closest. When they swing up everything follows.

The internal administration dispute over how intensively a public works program should be applied at present may well be decided on the strength of this improvement.

Codes—Retail dry goods tradesmen had better look out or they will find Mrs. Roosevelt hot on their trail.

Representations have been made to the First Lady about the industrial recovery code that is being proposed by the department stores.

There are indications she might be ready to take up cudgels if the code is submitted as advertised.

Mrs. Roosevelt, along with Madame Secretary Perkins, has long been a champion of women's rights in industry.

Howard-Glasscock Oil Run To Storage Producers Await Hike To 45 Cents

Major Purchasers Elect To Take Full Share Of Added Output

Producers of a major portion of the allowable of the Howard-Glasscock county oil field were refusing Tuesday to sell crude at thirty cents per barrel.

The production was being held off the market due to posting of 45 cents per barrel, an advance of 15 cents, by Magnolia Petroleum Company.

The producers declared to pipe line men they preferred storing their oil to await developments in the market situation.

Magnolia buys no crude from this field, taking only the production of its own wells.

Proposed reduction in the field allowable in East Texas likely will be the high spot of the hearing.

It has indicated will retake pressures in the field under the present allowable to check decline of pressure against decline under the former order.

Purchasers from the field are Shell, Humble, Cosden, Col-Tex and Big Spring Pipe Line company.

Daily allowable of the field was raised July 1 from 16,000 to 20,000 barrels per day.

Some trouble was being encountered by local companies purchasing from the field in obtaining a sufficient supply of crude to meet their needs.

Humble and Shell, which were understood not to wish to buy any additional crude, announced they would, nevertheless, not relinquish any connections and would, therefore, take their full share pro rata to the nominations of the various purchasers.

Col-Tex also decided not to drop any connections. These decisions of the larger purchasers materially reduced the amount of crude available for purchase by the local companies.

It will do you good to drive out and watch more than 100 men busily engaged in operating, as well as reconstructing the Cosden Oil Corporation's refinery, or to witness the renewal of activity by the Howard County Refining company and the Great West Gasoline company.

Drought has given us a nasty break, double tough, coming at this particular time.

We must bend every possible effort to help the farmers live through this trying period.

With the drought upon us so heavily we ought to have impressed upon us more than ever just how much this oil field and these refineries mean to us.

This is an old song-and-dance for this column. But we expected to keep singing the same old tune because it cannot be too forcibly stressed that Big Spring ought to be loyal and cooperative toward the oil producing and refining industries, as well as the farming and stock raising industries.

What would there be left in the way of a payroll of any consequence if the oil field and the refineries were shut down right now? Operation of the refineries means a lot to our shrunken railroad payroll.

It is one bright spot, one really fortunate break that conditions are improving in the oil business and that J. S. Cosden succeeded in successfully reorganizing his company in the face of obstacles that would have been insurmountable for most any other man.

Always bear this in mind: If you play ball with the man in the oil industry they'll play ball with you.

Jimmie Mattern Was Lost 16 Days In Frozen Wilds

First Comprehensive Account Of Texas Aviator's Adventures After Crash Related From Siberian City

MOSCOW (UP)—A dramatic story of how Jimmie Mattern, American aviator, was lost for 16 days in the wilds of northern Russia before being rescued was related early Monday in a special dispatch to the newspaper Izvestia from its correspondent at Khabarovsk.

The dispatch gave the first comprehensive details of the mishap to Mattern, who took off June 14 from Khabarovsk in an attempt to fly to Nome, Alaska, on another stage of his solo round-the-world flight.

The Texas flier last week sent a telegram here, saying he was safe at Anadyr, Siberia.

Fourteen hours after leaving Khabarovsk, the Izvestia dispatch said, Mattern noticed that his motor was beginning to falter and he decided it would be better to land.

Finding no suitable place in the wild desolate country, he pressed on, apparently hoping the trouble would right itself, only to meet with a virtual complete failure of the engine.

In his laborious trek, Mattern required eight days to reach the river bank, his scanty food supply having given out after three days of wandering.

What he did for food the remainder of the time was not brought out by the correspondent but it was felt here that he probably put a rifle given him in Khabarovsk to good use, avoiding starvation by shooting small game.

Reaching the river he saw two small boats going downstream but the occupants of neither observed his frantic signals from the shore and passed him by, the dispatch (Continued On Page 5)

Kidnapers Of New York Boy Send Message $250,000 Ransom Asked; Illinois Banker Abducted

ALBANY (UP)—The kidnapers Tuesday sent Dan O'Connell a note calling for a new coded list of the men to serve as go-betweens in the effort to free his nephew, who was abducted and is being held for $250,000 ransom.

O'Connell was spirited away mysteriously about one a. m. Friday. A series of threatening messages and demands were received Friday and Saturday by his uncles.

As rumors of the kidnaping spread throughout the state the messages ceased abruptly. The O'Connell family Tuesday refused to give out information.

ALTON, Ill. (UP)—August Luer, 77, semi-invalid, wealthy banker, was abducted from his bedroom Monday night by a young woman and two men.

Survey On No. 9 North of Big Spring To Start This Week; Department To Station Resident Engineer Here Soon

15 Lads Off For Camp Of Boy Scouts

Fifteen Big Spring Boy Scouts, vanguard of possibly fifty who will go to the annual camp from this city, departed by truck Tuesday morning for Barkdale, Texas.

Tuesday afternoon word was received that the group had encountered car trouble and was being held up pending repairs.

The truck, carrying Troop No. 3 scouts, had two additional boys from Troop No. 2 on board.

Four boys, two from Troop No. 1 and two from Troop No. 5, originally scheduled to make trip Tuesday, were delayed until Wednesday.

Despite instructions to condense baggage and a positive ban on trunks, several boys brought trunks and "everything but the kitchen stove."

Anxious parents, many of them gathered for the first time, saw their boys off. If there was any pathos, it was fostered by lads left behind and the parents.

Plans called for an overnight stop and arrival in camp shortly after noon Wednesday.

The second contingent, leaving here Wednesday morning, is scheduled to arrive in camp only a few hours after the first division.

An incomplete list of those making the trip include Charles Ray Settles from Troop No. 2 and these from Troop No. 3: Halbert Woodward, Jimmie Moyers, A. J. Prager, J. B. Bronstein, Jim Brigham, Harold Talbot, Lawrence Liberty, Gordon Buffington, Sidney Metlinger, Harold Plum, Louis Coffey, and Jack Hatch.

It'll Do That! Girl, Climbing Bush In Bare Feet, Screams For Door To Be Opened

Maybe Frankie and Johnny were lovers, and all that sort of rot, and maybe he done her wrong.

At any rate she was charged Monday in justice court with drunkenness in a public place.

Maybe she wasn't intoxicated, but Special Deputy L. A. Eubank thought it queer when he discovered her, barefooted and attempting to climb a cedar shrub, while she voiced threats of assault, mayhem, and battery if the "door" were not opened.

Howard county is expected to have some road construction under way later in the year.

When a contract is awarded the contractor is required to allow a committee of three citizens of the county to receive applications from residents of the county for jobs on the highway.

The contractor is required to hire men approved by the committee of three citizens. He may discharge any man for incompetence or other plausible reason, but he must continue to hire men listed by the committee so long as any names remain on that list.

Mr. French said the department had found this plan practical and that it resulted in a satisfactory distribution of jobs among residents of the county in which construction is done.

H. C. Coke, Sr., 77, Succumbs In Dallas

DALLAS, (UP)—Henry Cornick Coke, 77, senior member of the law firm of Coke & Coke and chairman of the board of the First National Bank of Dallas, died here Monday after a lingering illness.

Although the veteran attorney had been a partial invalid for several years, he remained actively engaged in his numerous business and legal activities until three weeks ago, when his condition grew critical.

He was best known in Texas for his brilliant legal mind. He was counsel for the state in the first railroad commission case ever tried and was chief defense counsel for the Standard Oil company when Texas sought to dissolve the company as a corporate entity in this state.

He helped to build the American Exchange National bank and later to consolidate it with the City National bank to form the First National bank in Dallas and one of the largest and strongest banks in the southwest.

Mayors Asked To Fight Hike In Bread Price

WASHINGTON (UP)—Secretary Wallace Tuesday telegraphed mayors of forty-nine cities, including Houston, in twenty five states, announcing the government will use its full powers if necessary to prevent "unwarranted increases of bread prices."

Frederick C. Howes, who heads the section in the Farm Administration to project interests of consumers, said "every effort will be made to check advances in food prices where they are unjustified."

Man Behind Mail Truck Job Is Held

Drugs Worth $500,000 Found; Triple Slaying And Robbery Linked

FORT WORTH (AP)—Officers searching the home of O. D. Stevens, north of Handley, Tuesday, found a cache of narcotics they estimated to be worth $500,000.

Officers believe they have found headquarters of the largest narcotic ring in the southwest.

FORT WORTH (UP)—Officers declared Monday O. D. Stevens, 33, was the man behind the scene in the $71,000 mail truck robbery here February 21, and the man who flew to New York to convict the law.

Stevens is under charges of robbery in connection with the hold-up. He also is linked by murder charges with disappearance of Jack Sturdivant, Harry and J. B. Rutherford whose blood-stained clothes were found in Trinity river Sunday.

FORT WORTH—Federal charged growing out of the February 21 robbery of a mail truck here worth $72,000 was taken in loot were filed against five men last Monday after four of the five had been charged in justice court with the murder of Jack Sturdivant, Harry and J. B. Rutherford, Dallas and Ellis Rutherford, Abilene.

Meanwhile a search of lakes on the property of one of the suspects and of a portion of Trinity river where clothing, of the missing trio, was found Monday had failed to disclose any bodies. Sheriff J. L. "Red" Wright issued a call for volunteers to start at 6 a. m. Tuesday in an effort to cover every foot of heavily wooded territory in the vicinity of the farm residences of the suspects.

O. D. Stevens, W. D. May, M. T. "Blacker" Howard, Alvin Pollock, and three men were charged with the slaying of the three men. The same four and Weldon Routt were named in complaints drawn by United States Attorney Clyde E. Zantus charging robbery with a deadly weapon and conspiracy to rob the United States mails.

Bonds for the suspects in justice court were set at $10,000 in each case—a total of $30,000 for each suspect. An examining trial was set for 10 a. m. Thursday.

Federal bonds were set at $50,000 for each of the five men charged with the federal offense.

The three men missing are believed to have been shot. Officers, as a result of information given officers in the mail robbery, officers said.

The coupe in which the three missing men drove from Dallas to Handley—and to their supposed deaths—is the object of a state-wide search. A clue which, if found, may lead to the whereabouts of the three men, is a quick end to their efforts to complete the solution of the crime.

Deputy Sheriff Frank Rimmer saw the men Saturday night talking with others on a Handley street corner—the last time they were seen.

Their clothing found in a crude basket of hog-wire and weighted with rocks, was found by accident Sunday near the new bridge on the road from the Handley Mill road to Birdville. A section of the same wire was found today by deputy sheriffs on the farm of May which adjoins that of Stevens.

The piece of fence wire matched exactly the portion which the clothing was wrapped in, officers said.

The clothing which contained money, watches and identification cards, 3 "users searching the river bottom today found also Sturdivant's pocket knife at the spot where the clothing was found."

Identity of the clothing was partially established by papers found, and Dallas officers were requested to go to the address of J. B. Rutherford and detail persons found there. The officers arrived at the address shortly before Mrs. J. B. Rutherford and Mrs. Sturdivant with Stanley J. Wiggins, 26, of Abilene and James C. Taylor, 25, of Clark, returned to the houses from Fort Worth.

The party had come to Fort Worth in search of the missing men.

Party In Search The women said their husbands and Harry Rutherford left the Dallas home Saturday morning, promising to return by 1 o'clock in the afternoon. When they had not returned by nightfall, Mrs. Sturdivant, a bride of three months, became frantic. She induced Mrs. Rutherford and Mrs. Sturdivant Fort Worth, but their search was vain.

Bloodstains on the clothing, were dim but Rutherford's shirt was cut down the back and on the neck as if by a knife or razor. Sturdivant's shirt is badly torn, and Harry Rutherford's shirt has a small hole in the neckband believed by officers to have been caused by a small calibre bullet.

Federal and state authorities working on the case were told since the last statewide hearing.

CHAPTER 12

Mary had to work late at the office the next three nights. The new stocks were issued on Wednesday and it was midnight every night when she reached home. Wednesday was a hectic day, as usual days always were. It seemed to Mary as if she were actually in several places at once. While she talked over the telephone, she watched the translux with one eye, read letters with the other and quoted prices and sales to Foster. Order clerks, salesman and customer came and went. It was a big day and the new stock gained two points at once. Foster was vastly pleased. He, too, was overworked from work, anxiety but his mood was genial and solicitous toward Mary. He realized that much he accomplished was an indirect result of her loyalty and ability.

Frazier dropped in leisurely. His manner was magnanimous. "Well, little girl," he greeted her. "You should be celebrating, too. Just think, Mary, if you hadn't been so prudent, you might have made a neat little sum on my proposition. How aren't you sorry you didn't? I've made two thousand today without lifting a finger."

"Oh, yes, you lifted your whole hand when you signed your check a few days ago," she reminded him. "I might have made that effort, only I don't want to sign."

"You didn't need one. I told you what I would do. Besides, Mary, you could be signing checks if you would listen to reason," significantly.

"That is—listen to you," she mocked him with good humor that she did not feel at all toward him.

"Well, anyway, let's celebrate the day. You've been working like a dog and you deserve a little vacation. Come, we can have dinner, take in a show, then go somewhere to dance. Okay?"

"You forget that I have to get to work in the morning, don't you? Besides, I'll have to work tonight, too, and maybe every night this week. An extra big day puts us back two or three, as well as making extra work."

He regarded her closely for a moment. Then he leaned forward and said, "Mary, why do you always find such good reasons for not accepting my invitations? I believe I know. I would do anything in the world for you, if you would let me. Come, be nice to me, and see if you don't like me better than you think you do. You don't give me a chance, even."

Mary was disturbed. She would like to tell him never to come into her office again—but she didn't. "I can't understand why you insist upon entertaining me, Mr. Frazier. I'm not a good companion, anyway. Besides, I don't care about the things you like, I'm sure. In all New York, can't you find many other girls whose company you would prefer to mine?"

"Not one," he assured her so solemnly that she almost laughed aloud. But Mary didn't know that when a man of a persistent temperament once sets his mind on a certain girl that he will move heaven and earth to obtain her. "I'll give you time to think it over, little girl. But you never will get to know me with just talking business here in the office. Let me prove to you that what a good fellow I can be."

It was only that evening that the issue of her treatment of Martin Frazier came up again. Foster had remarked as they worked. "By the way, Miss Vaughn, I wonder if you could be a little more cordial to Frazier, just on business principles. You know what he means to the business, and just now—well, he could almost make or break us, you know. I've known him a long time and he's really a good sort—just don't take him too seriously. He will probably want to hold your hand. Kid him along. You can do it. Several times he has referred to you and the other day he remarked that you were about as cold as a polar bear on an iceberg." Foster laughed with awkward understanding.

Mary flushed with resentment. "I am always cordial to Mr. Frazier, but he continually annoys me with invitations to go out with him, and I can't accept them."

"Hm! Any special reason?"

"Yes, several. I dislike and distrust him, for one thing. I haven't the time to give him and he isn't a man with whom I would enjoy being with, anyway."

Foster looked troubled. "Well, of course, I wouldn't put you under obligations to entertain him, but you might find some way to please him so he will stand by us."

"Why, if you think that by going out with him occasionally, I can be of special service to you, I'll try, Mr. Foster."

"It would be a special service to me, Miss Vaughn and I'd appreciate it mightily, right now."

So it was that when Martin Frazier came into the office two weeks later, Mary had crossed her Rubicon and was awaiting her encounter with enemy or friend, as Frazier might prove to be. She literally held her breath until he had gone through the usual preliminary remarks and reached the personal part of the rehearsal. He was respectful in new attire, from tips to toe, and immediately grounded. In fact, he was almost handsome, she had to admit.

"I see you survived the latest ordeal with the usual tranquility. You're a great girl, Mary. That's why you attract me. You are one in a million. Yes, my dear, I mean it. (He, and I intend to stay on the subject until you are convinced that I am serious.)"

Mary smiled sweetly, serenely, knowing that she was about to hurl a bomb at him. "Then I might as well take you seriously here and now, to prove to you that you won't enjoy my company as much as you imagine you will. Is that a propo-tion?" She might as well have brushed off a bomb. At a moment he acted as if his ears and eyes had deceived him. "Say that again, Mary," he began dully and continued with mounting exultation. "It's too good to be true! Say, Mary, you've been kidding me along all the time. Smart girl, you are, Mary. Well, well! Now you have me so fussed I don't know where to invite you. I can't think of names or places, even. Let's see—anywhere you say, dear. How shall we celebrate, anyway?" He was really quite as surprised as he acted, Mary knew. He amused her. How absurd that a man who commanded unlimited resources could act as if she had granted him the most coveted thing in the world, by accepting an invitation to go out with him!

"Any of the dozen or more places you have already suggested, will do," she offered indifferently.

"When, tonight, or tomorrow night? Make it both. It will be Saturday—a half day and no getting to work the next morning."

"Mary, don't wake me up and tell me I'm dreaming and don't—whatever you do—phone me after I leave and tell me you are joking."

"If you don't she laughed. He could be a pleasant companion if he chose, she knew that. But, somehow, she had never liked him and she never would think of going out with him for her own pleasure, alone. Business men entertained their associates and clients for strictly business reasons. So would she. It was part of the game of being modern and diplomatic.

Well, that meant a new evening dress. She would have to select one the next afternoon that could be worn without alterations. Bonnie had ruined her new red chiffon before she even had a chance to wear it. This time she would buy a dress and wear it before anyone else saw it.

Besides, she had to have a new dress for Sunday night, as well. Dick was taking her to a studio party in the village.

She told Foster that she was going out with Frazier on Saturday evening. He was pleased. "I hope you have a better time than you anticipate. You know, it's good business to entertain clients. And when they prefer you to me, it's all in the firm. I do appreciate your interest, Miss Vaughn, and you won't lose anything by it, I can tell you. It's good experience for you to meet all kinds of situations and cope with them."

Entertainment, Enlightenment And Economy Combined On Trip To Exposition By School Teachers

Entertainment, enlightenment, and economy were all combined in the trip of five Howard county school teachers and a driver to A Century of Progress in Chicago.

Making the trip in a new car purchased expressly for the journey, the party visited fourteen states and crossed over into southern Canada, toured around Lake Geneva, saw Niagara Falls, and inspected Missouri caverns.

Ted Phillips drove for the five teachers, Misses Twila Lomax, Ann Martin, Opal Creighton, Winnie Houston, and Arah Phillips. At the exposition there was no sign of depression, said members of the group. While they were there people were clicking the turntables at a 100,000 per day rate.

Every minute had something in store. They visited fifteen leading universities and pronounced the University of Michigan the most attractive; saw the Athletics defeat the White Sox; took in the national intercollegiate track meet and cheered John Simmons of A.C.C.; enjoyed the first women's track meet any of them had ever seen; were on hand when Rose bested Canozero for the lightweight crown in boxing.

They had the good fortune to meet two former Big Spring people. At Chicago they saw Dupree Wooten, who is a boxer and likes the Windy City so well he thinks he will stay. At Lake Geneva in Wisconsin they visited Miss Abbey Nell Rhotan, a former Big Spring girl who is now head of the Ohio Girl Scout camp at Konosha Camp.

While in the Missouri caverns a guide inquired of Ted if all of them," he added significantly. "If I can help you in anyway—"

"I believe not, thank you," she might have told him that it would cost money to dress for going about with Frazier, but it was typical of Mary that she never would take advantage of a thing like that to gain anything for herself. The problem might even cause her some concern, but she would never let anyone know it.

group were one family. When Ted replied they were five school teachers the guide sorrowfully shook his head and sought to console him with, "Well, you ought to have a nice trip anyhow."

Weather was alternately hot and cold. Crops between here and Chicago are little better than those of this section, except around Abilene and for the most part to Texarkana.

The party went via Oklahoma, City and St. Louis but returned by the way of Nashville and Little Rock.

Two weeks were spent at the fair.

Vote On Beer Is Called In Jones County

Has Never Had Legal Liquor; Dry Leaders Issue Challenge

ALBANY — The commissioners' court Monday granted a petition of 444 qualified voters in Jones county to hold a local option election, Aug. 20 on the sale of 3.2 beer. It has never been sold in this county.

Judge Olin Miller of Jones county, returning to his home late Monday night from a dry rally at Albany, gave the following statement:

"As chairman of dry forces in the 26th senatorial district, I challenge the voters to call a local option election in every county of the district. Since it became known here Saturday that an election would be called, upon petition, of the required number of voters, prohibitionists have taken the offensive, and the same thing will happen in every county if the matter is put to a test."

Judge Miller, on a tour with D. B. Martin of Wichita Falls, was to speak Tuesday night at Throckmorton Wednesday night at Baled and Cline, respectively and Saturday at Mealand and Gorman.

Two Eastern Howard Tests To Be Spudded

Frazier's No. 1 Hall And Test By Donnelly Announced

While the fraternity watched developments in the J. L. Rush et al test northwest of the Denman-Dodge pool of eastern Howard county, news of preparations to drill two additional tests was received Tuesday. Strong showing of oil was encountered at 2,655 feet.

A. J. Frazier's No. 1 G. T. Hall is scheduled to start soon. It will be located 330 feet from the south and 1650 feet from the west lines of section 2, block 30, township 1 south, T & P Ry. Co. survey.

W. J. Donnelly of Fort Worth was en route here Tuesday to begin preparations to drill a test in the Denman-Dodge area. Location of the proposed test had not been announced.

Maracaibo's 5-A Settles To 800 Feet

Success Would Force Offsets, Holman's Kloh Drilling

Drilling of American Maracaibo company's No. 5-A Settles, Howard county, had advanced to approximately 800 feet Tuesday.

The test, spudded a year ago, is being drilled by Ned Ferguson, local contractor.

Production in No. 5-A Settles would force drilling of an offset south by Continental Oil company on its strip lease, and success there would, in turn, force Continental to offset further south on its Eason lease.

North of the American Maracaibo company's drilling well Holman and others' No. 1 Kloh is progressing. A producer there likely would force an east offset by Taylor-Link.

Permit Issued For Ector Test

Permit has been issued Frank Giffin, Jr. of San Angelo to drill for Ector county 440 feet from the east and 250 feet from the south lines of section 22, block 42, township 1 north, T & P Ry. Co. survey.

Reports of Tuesday from exploration projects in Ector county included the following:

Waggoner Western Corporation No. 1 Addis, section 25, block 42, was shut down at 4,112 feet, flowing 78 barrels daily.

Fred Turner's No. 1 T. V. Addis, section 25, block 42, was shut down at 4,112 feet, pinched to 70 barrels daily.

Cherry and others' No. 1 Johnson, section 41, block 42, was drilling at 4412 feet.

Producing wells in the northern Ector county area, as well as the Turner and Waggoner western tests which are ready to go on regular production, are awaiting completion of a pipe line into the area by Humble Pipe Line company. Right-of-way matters which blocked construction of the line several days have been ironed out and the line will be completed promptly, it is reported.

State Petroleum Council Convenes

HOUSTON (UP)—The Texas Petroleum Council, an organization designed to aid state authorities in regulating the oil industry, was formed here Tuesday at a meeting of about 100 operators.

Joseph B. Cullinan, Dallas independent operator, was named chairman of the meeting, which was called to order by George A. Hill, Jr., president of the Houston Oil company and sponsor of the organization.

Hill said the purpose of the meeting was "to make a serious effort to bring about a spirit of conciliation and harmony among oil men."

INGRAM TO ADOPT MUSLEM FAITH

Rex Ingram, American motion picture producer, has announced his intention of abandoning the motion picture field and of embracing the Mohammedan faith. He has frequently visited Morocco where he became interested in the philosophy and religion of Islam. When he takes up the religion he will become known as Ben Alfen-Nadir ed Ben, which means "son of the wise victory of faith." He is shown here in Arabian robes and as he appeared while working in films. (Associated Press Photos)

He appointed a committee to perfect a permanent organization. Col. Ernest O. Thompson and C. V. Terrell, members of the state railroad commission, addressed the gathering.

After the railroad commissioners had praised the spirit of the meeting, Joseph B. Cullinan, president of the American Petroleum Institute, took the floor with an outspoken address opposing selection of a president not familiar with the oil industry's problems.

Six names had been presented to the meeting by the nominating committee. Some were oil men and some disinterested parties.

"What we want is an organization to represent the petroleum industry, not the American Petroleum Institute or the independents or the majors, but the industry as a whole," said Cullinan.

"I think we should select for our president an oil man who knows the problems of the oil industry. I want to state my opposition to the selection of any of these ballyhoo people out of the Chamber of Commerce. I think that would be an insult to the industry."

The list of names included Herbert M. Harrison, executive vice president of the East Texas Chamber of Commerce, and Walter D. Cline, president of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce.

Cullinan nominated for President Cook Wilson, Beaumont independent operator. After he left the floor, the chair received nominations of W. E. Wrather, Dallas geologist, and R. W. Stayton, member of the law school faculty at the University of Texas, for president.

A committee was appointed to name the president and vice presidents.

Not much debate. One of the popular delusions of our time is that congress wastes hundreds of hours in useless and pointless debate on trivial matters.

It isn't true insofar as the house is concerned. The senate, proud of its distinction of being "the greatest deliberative body in the world," takes a little more time in argument.

Rep. Smith of the state of Washington got out his pencil the other day and figured that the "over day" house used only 40 hours and 40 minutes in debating twelve of the principal bills passed by the late special session.

The emergency banking relief, for instance, took up only 40 minutes of debating time.

Muscle Shoals occupied six hours, industrial recovery the same. Relief of small home owners required only ninety minutes of debate.

Agricultural relief, farm mortgage and currency regulation, five and one-half hours.

The real work in the house, as in all similar legislative bodies, is done in committee.

The public hears little of what takes place in committee. It draws its conclusions from what takes place on the floor, where as a matter of fact the lower house spends very little of its time.

The late session made a splendid record both in quality and quantity. House and senate by their good work, did much to regain the respect of the country.

Congress as a debating society is no longer a true picture. It is in reality a hardworking institution.

WE MANAGE OUR DOLLAR. When this country set forth on a project of a lift commodity prices revive trade and increase employment, one of the major devices brought into play was a "managed currency."

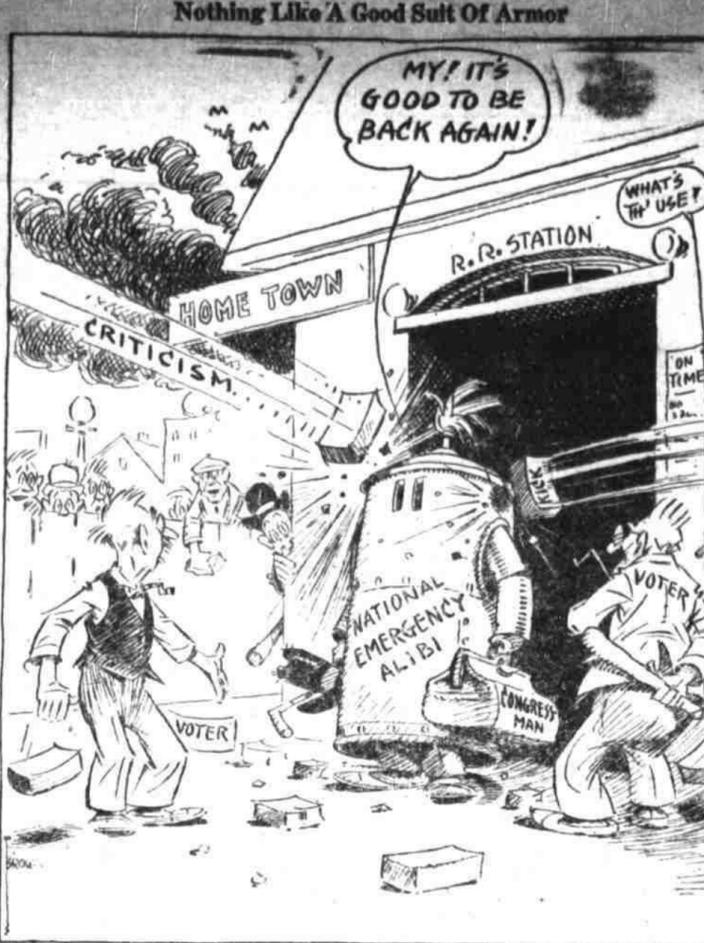

The chief feature of this managed currency was abandonment of the gold standard, which involved withdrawal of support from the dollar abroad, so it could find its proper level with respect of other currencies.

Europe decided Uncle Sam did not have the right to manage his own currency, and took steps to manage it for him by dictating a policy under which the dollar's value would be pegged at a certain level most convenient for Europe.

In most un diplomatic language, Mr. Roosevelt told Europe that the United States would not, under any circumstances, permit Europe to manage the American dollar. That is a right American reserves for herself.

Undoubtedly the president will have the united support of the people at home in this matter. The American people are not yet ready to turn the management of their currency over to France and her allies of dependent (financially) nations.

Nothing Like A Good Suit Of Armor. MY! IT'S GOOD TO BE BACK AGAIN!

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1) department store employees now work 56 hours a week or better. He offers this as an argument for the 48-hour code.

If he is referring to women employees there are laws against working this long.

Sweetser says further there is but 10 per cent unemployment in retail stores at present.

Latest government statistics show employment to be 77 per cent of the index year 1926. Payrolls are less than 80 per cent of normal. Both figures are a slight drop from previously collected data.

Freight— A decision is to be passed down shortly by the Interstate Commerce Commission on the petition of organized agricultural, coal and lumber interests for a reduction in freight rates.

Don't be surprised if the petition is denied.

The decrease was asked originally because of the differential between freight rates and commodity prices.

Commodity prices are moving steadily up. This is in line with the administration's inflation policy. Lowered freight rates would be deflationary.

The railroads probably will get a break this time.

Notes— Maybe it shouldn't be mentioned

BOY HELD IN BANKER'S KIDNAPING

City School Board Delays Fixing Budget Pending Per Capita Rating

Because of the large amount of delinquent district school taxes and failure of the State Board of Education to set the per capita apportionment rate for the coming school year, the Big Spring independent school district trustees decided in a meeting Monday evening to delay fixing of the annual budget. Information as to probable revenues was insufficient to allow a budget to be accurately drawn, it was declared. It is expected that the board will be able soon to determine more definitely the length of term and whether it will be able to properly operate the schools next session. The board elected Miss Neal Cummings a member of the regular teaching staff. She will be assigned later. It was decided not to elect more teachers if at all possible to operate without them, because of lack of funds. All vacancies caused by resignations have been filled except that in the Spanish department of high school caused by resignation of Miss Ione Drake. This place will be filled by appointment of Supt. W. C. Blankenship in a few days.

Home Owners' Loan Office To Be Open In Dallas Thursday

DALLAS, (UP)—State headquarters of the Federal Home Owners' Loan Corporation will open here Thursday. Manager James Shaw announced upon his return from Washington where he conferred with administration officials. Shaw was to go to Austin Monday night to make arrangements preliminary to the opening of the office here. He hopes to have the organization in full swing within ten days. He estimated the Dallas office and the three sub-offices at Houston, San Antonio, and Amarillo, would handle between $50,000,000 and $75,000,000 in refinancing loans on Texas homes.

Railroad Coordinator To Confer Friday With Regional Carriers' Committees; 'Key' Men Appointed

WASHINGTON (UP)—Federal Railroad Coordinator Eastman revealed he would confer next Friday with the carriers' regional committees, and at the same time announced appointment of "key" men to aid him in reorganizing the affairs of the railroads. After obtaining approval of President Roosevelt for his organization, Eastman appointed 15 men to important positions here and in the field. He said other appointments would be made later. He will deal with railroad reorganization through units or sections located at Washington. One of these units will be a "section of freight carrying to meet motor truck competition. Eastman's personnel included: O. C. Castle, Houston, Texas, superintendent of transportation for the Southern Pacific lines in Texas and Louisiana, director of the section of car pooling; V. V. Boatner, Chicago, former president of the Chicago Great Western Railroad, Western regional director; C. E. Hochstedler, Chicago, traffic director of the Chicago Association of Commerce, Western traffic assistant. Eastman appointed four men to his research staff, which will undertake a study of the railroads' problems and attempt to formulate a permanent improvement plan. They were: O. S. Beyer, Washington, consulting engineer for the war department; Leslie Craven, Texas Railroad Commission, Barton succeeds C. D. Kallogg, who resigned recently.

WINTER BUSINESS UP FORT WORTH, (UP)—John Winter emerged from the business depression with an entirely new line of business and one which he enjoys far more than his old one. Winter was sole owner of the American Cedar Chest and Rug company, owned his own building and did a thriving business. Business reversals, a bank failure and other factors erased most of his assets.

So Winter cleaned out his wares with a series of sales. In his vacant building he moved in several long tables, put chairs around them, bought several bibles and other religious publications and began a bible class. He also built six prayer booths in the rear of the main room. "I call these rooms my customer booths," Winter said. "They furnish a place where the man from the street may drop in without any embarrassment and worship God in his own way. All classes, however, attend Winter's Bible classes. He conducts a special Bible class for business men and his wife conducts one for business women.

THE ROMANS had a phrase for it --

"CAVEAT EMPTOR," meaning "Let the buyer beware." This wasn't used as a bit of balm to ease the ancient conscience; nor, yet, was it placarded in the booths and stalls of the market-place. It was a piece of every-day knowledge, born of dear-bought experience.

A shopkeeper knew little about the source of his merchandise. This tunic he bought from a trader, who said it came from Byzantium. So he sold it as the latest Byzantine style. The trader told him the dye was pure Tyrian—it wouldn't fade. So he sold it as Tyrian dyed. But the buyer knew the responsibility was his own. If he guessed wrongly, or his judgment was poor, it was his hard luck.

Today, fortunately, there are safer guides than the blanket-warning to "let your eyes be your market."

These guides are the newspaper advertisements. In this newspaper, they are a daily catalog of the best values in town—signed by responsible firms. If the goods are not all that is claimed for them, their sponsors would need to "beware." For no business can thrive on a one-time sale, or on dissatisfied customers.

A signed advertisement is, in a way, like a promissory note. The advertiser has made a statement, and affixed his signature as a sign of good faith.

So, read the advertisements before you start out on a buying-trip. Make this a daily habit, and see how much you save . . . in time, in temper, in money, in shoe-leather.

High Hat Oysters To Be Cultivated

HOUSTON, (UP)—Any little oyster spawn that attaches itself to a tree branch or smooth rock in Matagorda bay this summer is going to be in a hot spot about the autumn of 1935. But it need never be ashamed of itself, for under its "graduation robe" of tomato sauce or warm milk will be the pride of an oyster that knows it has been reared in the very best surroundings. Fat, sleek and solid, it will be able to behave among common oysters like a Harvard man or a Bryn Mawr girl in a local dance hall. The superior oyster can look back on a life of ease spent in the comfortable beds of the Texas Cultivated Oyster Farms, Inc., a firm announced to establish a sort of finishing school for bivalves. The company has a state lease on 100 acres of bay bottom in Matagorda and Jackson counties and school will open soon. It takes a cultivated oyster three years to attain its full size and beauty, but the company hopes to be able to market some "yearlings" in the autumn of 1936, according to J. W. Sartwell, an official. "Our natural oyster beds are being rapidly devastated," said Sartwell. "Unless something is done, we will eventually find ourselves eating oysters grown for us in some other part of the country, and the hardy, pioneer oyster of the Texas coast will have vanished." The Texas oyster, said Sartwell, is a gentleman and has fewer enemies than other oysters. In fact, he said, it has only two foes, the drum, a fish which able to crack oysters with its teeth, and the conk, which waits for oysters to open and then sucks them dry. Sartwell added that cultivation of oysters such as his firm planned would cause the oyster to yield about a gallon more meat to the barrel than other oysters but that the social advantages of such cultivation could not be measured in mere dollars and cents.

MATTERN—

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1) On the ninth day he moved a short distance downstream to a bend in the river where it was narrower but the days passed without sign of another boat. To protect himself from cold and wind, he improvised a small hut of scrub growth in which he remained six more days, the Khabarovsk correspondent reported. On the night of June 29, two more boats passed down the river. They were manned by native fishermen who this time saw his signal and took him to their camp about 11 miles from Anadyr and there they gave him food and he slept. Shortly afterward he was taken to the coast, a short distance away, where natives brought a soviet frontier guard to his assistance. The guard, which had been on the lookout for the missing aviator for some days in response to instructions from Moscow, took Matern immediately to Anadyr village where everything was done to make him comfortable.

It is not what we propose but what we illustrate by our action at home that matters. The net result of the conference thus far has been to impress the minds of men with the hope that the American experiment will succeed and because of that hope they will forgive much and will not dissociate themselves from us. More and more skeptics have become convinced that the depression can be overcome by deliberate national action in each country. The likelihood of "international" decisions on important questions is no greater than it was. But such decisions were never very likely nor very necessary at this stage. The likelihood of parallel action in a larger number of countries is considerably greater though no one should underestimate the strength of the forces opposing it. By not adjourning formally but by adjourning the topics that cannot now be dealt with internationally, the force of the American example will continue to operate upon the imagination of the peoples and the governments.

(Copyright, 1933, New York Tribune, Inc.)

The conference goes on with the intention of finding out how it can go off. In its next phase it will not make decisions as to policies but discuss. It will seek to find out what subjects it can explore, given the fact that the United States will not now make commitments on monetary policy and that the gold countries will not participate in debates on money and on tariffs and other restrictions which are closely related to money. The old conference will, therefore, endeavor to provide itself with a new agenda.

Whether this can be done nobody knows. But the majority have preferred to hang together and see what can be done. This particular way of confronting the essential deadlock does not, of course, resolve the deadlock. Nevertheless the outcome may prove to be quite significant. The gold countries have become observers. The United States, the sterling bloc, and the silver countries become the active participants in the discussion. It appears that within the sterling bloc the dominions and the Scandinavian countries have succeeded in persuading the British government, which was already half persuaded, to move very much nearer the United States and considerably away from the gold bloc.

It is hard to say whether these prints inspired the new frocks or whether the frocks inspired the prints, but at any rate the combination is irresistible. Welfare, Employment Committee Installed For County Includes Four Men From Former Relief Group

McNew Made Administrator; McDonald New Chairman

A welfare and employment committee to replace the old relief committee was installed here Monday afternoon by J. J. Boley, district relief and rehabilitation agent, representing the state administration.

The newly appointed committee includes four members of the old relief committee and one new man, Martine McDonald, who was made chairman. Holdovers are C. T. Watson, Shine Phillips, E. J. Mary, and E. V. Spence.

Boley announced the appointment of Homer McNew as administrator for this county. He accepted the unanimous recommendation of the committee in choosing McNew for the position.

For the past three months McNew has served in the capacity of administrator for the relief committee. His continuance as head relief officer, said Boley, will rid the committee of much detailed work and simplify its task.

Duties of the new board consist largely in advising the administrator when necessary and extending other aid. In event public works money is received here, Boley declared it would likely fall on the lot of the committee to act as an employment board.

Boley expressed satisfaction with the manner in which relief had been administered in this county.

The Big Spring committee will take control July 15. It was the second installed by Boley, who was accompanied here by Lee Francis, San Angelo, recently appointed assistant district director who will supervise the western end of Boley's jumbo district.

Each contestant will model the dress she has made. The aim of the contest is to raise the standard of personal appearance and to have better garments for the money invested.

The Big Spring Chamber of Commerce is making this contest possible. There will be prizes for the winning contestants.

The Conference Continues

LONDON, July 7. The decision is not to adjourn the conference but to consider what discussions of what subjects it is necessary to adjourn. Thus the conference as a thing in itself remains in being. But the matters with which it is to deal are to be limited or postponed as seems necessary under further examination. It is a skillful diplomatic arrangement which may achieve the effect of a recess without entailing the political consequences of recognizing that there is a recess.

Reach for a Lucky

—for always Luckies Please!

With me... my cigarette is a personal, intimate thing

I suppose, men would call my reason for liking Luckies just a feminine whim. Maybe it is, but it's a whim that I love to indulge... for I am always conscious of the intimate relationship between my cigarette and my lips. And if there's anything I'm sensitive about, it's that feeling of feminine daintiness. Certainly, Luckies Please! I can well understand why men praise Luckies' fine tobacco character and mellow-mildness—but as for me—I value particularly the assurance of purity which "Toasting" brings—for, with me... my cigarette is a personal, intimate thing.

Sergeant Chapman Leaves Big Spring

Sergeant Chapman, who was in charge of the United States army recruiting station here eighteen months prior to his discontinuance June 30 left with Mrs. Chapman early Tuesday for San Antonio. They will go from there to Wisconsin, Chapman's old home, for a visit before he reports to Fort Bliss, El Paso October 8, for further duty.

The sergeant will complete 30 years service in the army within two years and retire. He is a veteran of many campaigns. During his stay here he formed many friendships and good wishes go with him and Mrs. Chapman as they leave the city.

Space has been provided in plans for the new Big Spring federal building for the army recruiting station and Chapman ventured the opinion it would be reopened when the new building is completed. Few recruiting stations now are being maintained where rent must be paid, he said.
