Freshmen More Middle-Of-The-Road

WASHINGTON (AP) — This year's college freshmen describe themselves as more middle-of-the-road politically and more interested in academic success than their predecessors, says a nationwide survey by the American Council on Education.

Freshmen reporting they had participated in demonstrations before entering college declined from 31.5 per cent last year to 9.2 per cent this year.

The survey released this week indicated that fewer freshmen expect to get married during, or immediately after, college. Cigarette smoking is up; beer drinking is down; and there is increasing interest in joining fraternities and sororities.

About 46 per cent of the freshmen said they favored legalizing marijuana, up from 38.7 per cent last year and 19.4 per cent in 1968.

There was a significant swing away from the physical sciences, engineering and education as major areas of study. About 12 per cent plan to become teachers, compared to 23.5 per cent in 1968. The survey indicated an increasing interest in careers in health care and law.

The survey was based on responses from 188,900 freshmen at 373 schools across the country.

The percentage of freshmen describing themselves as middle-of-the-road politically increased from 44.4 per cent in 1969 to 46.8 per cent last year and 48.3 per cent this year.

Students defining themselves as far left or liberal declined from 38.1 per cent last year to 35.2 per cent this year. In 1969, 32.6 per cent of the freshmen considered themselves left or liberal.

About 16.6 per cent of the freshmen said their political views were conservative or far right, compared with 15.2 per cent last year. In 1969, 22.9 per cent said they were moderately or strongly conservative.

Freshmen who feel the federal government is not doing enough to promote school desegregation declined from 51.7 per cent last year to 48.4 per cent this year. There was an increase from 48.1 per cent to 50.3 per cent in students who feel the courts are too concerned with the rights of criminals.

The percentage of blacks among those entering college increased from 6.3 per cent last year to 8.7 per cent this year.

Increasing interest in academic success was reflected in responses to several questions.

The academic reputation of the college was cited by 48.4 per cent of the freshmen as a very important reason for selecting their school. Last year, 36.1 per cent said it was important.

Freshman who said they expect to make at least a B average increased to 32.7 per cent from 23.6 per cent last year.

In one year, there was an increase from 42 per cent to 48 per cent in students who said they planned to do graduate study in some field.

Rhubarb originally came from Mongolia, but is grown both in Europe and America. Technically it is a vegetable, but people usually prepare it as a dessert food, mostly as pie fillings and sweet sauces.

Indonesia Expels American

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — The adventure of Wyn Sargent, an American writer-photographer who married a tribal chief in the jungles of West Irian, ended Wednesday. The Indonesian government ordered her to leave Indonesia by Saturday.

Miss Sargent, a tall, slim woman in her 40s, said in a telephone interview she had exciting moments during her 4½-month experience among one of the most primitive and savage tribes in the world, "where cannibalism is still practiced."

She said her Jan. 8 marriage to Obaharak, a tribal chief from the territory of Siapoksi Muliame near the muddy frontier town of Wamena in the central highlands of the Baliem Valley, was not legal "for both of us agreed not to legalize the marriage."

"When I first tried to see Obaharak, he had 30 warriors around the village to keep foreigners out. But I brought three gifts — an axe, a long knife and a spade — for the chief," she said, "and he was overwhelmed."

"I married Obaharak to bring the three savage warring tribes to live together in peace and harmony. And it was only a traditional wedding."

Miss Sargent said she spent some exciting time trying to bring the hostile tribes together in friendship in the jungle region by becoming a blood sister to two tribal chiefs and by going through a traditional wedding with Obaharak.

"They cut my wrist and the wrists of the other two chiefs, bled them together with my hands and thus made us blood brothers and sister," Miss Sargent related.

Miss Sargent, a widow from Huntington Beach, Calif., said she first came to West Irian to take pictures and study the life of the West Irian tribes and "certainly not to study the sex life of the tribes."

"I only need 30 days more to complete my work so that I can say with satisfaction that my work has brought peace and harmony among the hostile tribes," she added.

Oscar Owl Pulls A Cool One

UMPQUA, Ore. (AP) — A veterinarian says he doesn't know how it could happen, but Mr. and Mrs. Mark Vanderhoof and their son Russ all say there's no doubt that it did happen.

Oscar knows, of course, but says nothing.

When the Vanderhoofs reached the World Wildlife Safari in nearby Winston carrying a small screech owl they had named Oscar, they told their story to veterinarian Tom Follis, zoo manager at the commercial wildlife preserve.

Mrs. Vanderhoof accidentally hit a bird with her car while driving near here home Dec. 26. "He didn't move, his feathers were all torn, and we were sure he was dead," she said. One eye had been damaged. A friend of Vanderhoofs' concurred that the bird was dead.

The family wrapped the bird in a paper bag and put it in a freezer, which already had some food in it and was being kept just above zero. They had decided to take it to a taxidermist on their next trip to nearby Roseburg.

Russ went to the freezer Jan. 6 for some food and, out of curiosity, peeped into the bag.

The owl's good eye was open, peering back, and his beak was clicking, Russ said.

The owl was taken out of the freezer, fed hamburger from a toothpick and water from an eyedropper until he was able to eat small rodents that the family trapped for him daily.

He was named Oscar after a character on the children's educational television series Sesame Street.

"Owls, like most small birds, require high caloric intake to maintain body temperatures at 105 to 110 degrees," said Follis after examining the bird.

"It is utterly amazing that a small owl could withstand sub-freezing temperatures for two weeks without food."

Whatever the story, Oscar, whom the Vanderhoofs plan to return to the wilds in the spring with help offered by the Federal Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife, doesn't seem befuddled.

He sleeps in a box at the Vanderhoofs' home, squabbling only occasionally with some of their four cats and hardly at all with their small dog.

Canadian Released

OTTAWA (AP) — One of two Canadians held as prisoners of war has been released in Hanoi, the government announced Tuesday.

He is Marc Cayer, a volunteer agricultural worker from St. Raymond, Que., who was captured in Vietnam during the 1968 Tet offensive. Foreign Secretary Mitchell Sharp told Parliament that Cayer was released into the custody of a Canadian representative at Hanoi.

Senate Plans Hearings On Superport

WASHINGTON (AP) — While oil magnates talk of looming fuel shortages, a Senate subcommittee plans hearings on one suggested remedy: development of an East Coast superport.

Advocates and some critics say the giant deepwater harbor must be built if the nation is to significantly increase oil imports.

But critics say such a facility would cause environmental damage far exceeding benefits for energy users.

In the first congressional probe of the issue, the air and water pollution subcommittee of the Senate Public Works Committee has announced hearings beginning Feb. 26. Sen. Joe Biden, D-Del., whose state has been swirling in debate of the plan, will conduct the hearings and has invited Delaware and New Jersey officials and a representative of the Army Corps of Engineers to testify.

A spokesman for Biden said the freshman senator was chosen by committee chairman Edmund Muskie, D-Maine, to conduct the subcommittee probe because of the extensive impact a superport could have on Delaware.

Federal agencies have pinpointed a site near the Delaware-New Jersey coast as the most logical location for the multimillion-dollar harbor. The recommendations have alarmed area residents who fear oil spills would contaminate beaches and wreck the tourist trade.

The superport movement picked up steam last November when the Corps of Engineers issued a consultant's report recommending development of offshore harbors large enough to handle giant tankers requiring 100-foot-deep water.

Because of the concentration of refineries in New Jersey and Delaware, the report suggested location of a superport near that area.

The Federal Maritime Administration released another consultant's report the same month. That study was more specific in its recommended location, pinpointing an Atlantic Ocean site off the coast of Cape May at the southern tip of New Jersey and east across Delaware Bay from the Delaware resort town of Rehoboth Beach.

The Corps of Engineers came out with its own feasibility study last month, again zeroing in on either the Cape May-Cape Henlopen spot or another off the coast of Long Branch, N.J., as "the most environmentally acceptable and logical site."

The female mosquito is the one that bites. Though she can live on plant juices, she prefers blood.

JANET L. MORROW

Janet L. Morrow, 18, has been named Pampa High School's 1973 Betty Crocker Homemaker of Tomorrow. Chosen on the basis of scores in a written knowledge and attitude examination administered to high school seniors here and throughout the country last Dec. 5, she will receive a specially designed award from General Mills, sponsor of the annual Betty Crocker Search for American Homemakers of Tomorrow. In addition, she remains eligible for state and national honors.

The State Homemaker of Tomorrow, to be selected from all school winners in the state in judging centering on results of the Dec. 5 test, will receive a $1,500 college scholarship. A 20-volume reference work, "The Annals of America," will also be presented to the state winner's school by Encyclopaedia Britannica Educational Corporation. The second-ranking student in the state will receive a $500 scholarship.

In late April, the 51 Betty Crocker Homemakers of Tomorrow representing every state and the District of Columbia, — each accompanied by a faculty adviser, will gather in Washington, D.C., for an expense-paid educational tour of the capital city and Colonial Williamsburg, Va. Personal observation and interviews during the tour will be added to state-level judging results in the selections, to be announced at a dinner in Williamsburg, of the 1973 Betty Crocker All-American Homemaker of Tomorrow and three runners-up. Scholarships of the four national winners will be increased to $5,000, $4,000, $3,000 and $2,000.

Janet, a senior at PHS, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Morrow, 1821 N. Zimmers. Reading, sewing and cooking are listed among her hobbies and she is sharing three of her favorite recipes with our readers today.

Enthusiastically,
Bobbys

Use your kitchen knives for cutting food — not for cutting paper or string or for sharpening pencils. Store the knives in a knife holder or in sheaths that fit over the blades.

When yeast dough is smooth and springy, and when tiny bubbles appear beneath the surface of the dough, it has been kneaded enough.

A small amount of cooked leftover macaroni may be added to the egg mixture you are going to use for an omelet.

Precut Frozen Beef Could Lower Price

By GAYNOR MADDOX

The cost of beef is a major national concern. The price will continue up despite the fact that the supply this year increased by 600 million pounds. The demand for the better cuts continues to go up. As long as people have money they figure they have the right to enjoy beef.

The cost of getting beef to the retail market is high. Is there any way of cutting costs in this area? Most of the beef is shipped in carcass form, side and quarters. That means paying for freight on a lot of inedible bone and fat.

Another method is for the packer to pre-cut meat at the packing house, removing the bones and most of the fat. The final trimming is done at the supermarket. This method saves on freight, therefore cuts some costs.

Another method of cutting shipping costs on meat to the retail market is to freeze it at the packers, bone and fat removed, and ship frozen. Many marketing experts believe this method will be come more accepted and that sales figures will climb. Selling some meat in frozen form would definitely help reduce costs to consumers. As transportation costs continue to climb retailers find this method economical.

Homemakers, however, are still opposed to buying raw frozen meat at the market. Yet they freeze fresh meat for their home freezers. But these same customers say they would not buy raw meat already frozen.

Why? They have doubts about how long the meat has been frozen. They also are not sure about its quality. Yet they buy frozen beef in other forms — as pot roast in frozen dinners, beef stroganoff and chopped with vegetables, etc. Still their aversion to raw frozen meat persists.

One major reason for this is the color of frozen beef. It takes on a gray look far different from the bright red of raw meat. Wrapped in the display cases in the retail stores, discoloration takes place. The taste and quality remain, but the color changes and discourages customers.

To overcome this objection to raw frozen meats, several meat processors have combined cryogenic freezing of red meat at temperatures as low as minus 150 degrees to minus 250 degrees with new packaging. The new package film enables the meat to retain its bloom rather than darkening. This holds true even when displayed at retail for several months at 0 degrees or below.

This new process may be the breakthrough to wider consumer acceptance of frozen red meat.

A discussion with various processors indicates that fresh frozen beef is not a new idea. It has been tried several times. It is an expensive operation and will take backing of the industry.

International Payments Deficit Hobbles US

By JOHN CUNIFF
 AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Many economists believe that, in the past 18 months of dollar crises and attempted solutions, the nation has cut ties with the past and with old ideology and may be severed the irons that made it a dragging giant.

The past was the post-World War II world in which the United States served as banker, protector and teacher of the non-Communist nations. But now the United States no longer is unique; it has talented, productive competitors.

Despite this, much of the world adhered to old notions. While berating the United States for not putting its house in order, other nations sometimes spun a web of obstacles to U.S. exports that prevented the desired order sought.

Added to this was the U.S. self-image as omnipotent, a leftover belief that was exploded during the late 1960s, when the nation sought social uplift at home and a war abroad without higher taxes. Inflation soon raged.

The old faith was buried in 1971, when the country devalued the dollar for the first time in its history and imposed price controls and restraints traditionally deplored in a country dedicated to free enterprise.

The ankle iron that hobbled this nation as the crisis peaked was the growing international payments deficit.

Peel off the outer layer of almost any international economic problem in recent years, and you'll find the U.S. payments deficit at the core, ranking and souring economic, political and even social relations.

It was the major element in Monday night's 10 per cent dollar devaluation.

The deficit, or dollar outflow, fueled inflation abroad. And, because so many dollars were available, they became less desirable to hold. They were considered overpriced, so those who held them got rid of them for stronger currencies.

If they had been returned to the United States in payment for American goods, there wouldn't have been a problem. But they weren't. They stayed abroad.

In the past three years, the U.S. government and its citizens have sent, spent or invested more than $50 billion more overseas than foreigners have here. Never has the drain been so bad.

The money went in many ways: It was used to aid friendly nations, to pay for huge imports of German and Japanese automobiles, to sustain a military establishment in Europe and to support the war in Vietnam.

It was carried in the pockets of tourists bent on a good time and sent there as investment capital by American companies.

Some of what left came back, of course, because the United States is a big exporter of goods, because foreigners want to invest and travel here and because some investments abroad are now returning dividends.

But billions didn't come back. Foreigners chose not to buy American, partly because prices were high, the result of inflation. But, even when that was reduced, the problem remained.

Moreover, other considerations were worsening the situation. In order to fight price inflation, import restrictions were lowered, tending to worsen the deficit. The need for oil imports also added to the problem.

In spite of problems, many economists interviewed before the Feb. 12 devaluation believed the worst of the deficits were behind and the U.S. competitive stance was vastly stronger than in 1970 and becoming more so.

Said Albert Cox, chief economist for Lionel D. Edie, consultants: "In terms of the last 100 years of American history, the economy now looks pretty good. In relation to the rest of the world's economies, it looks darn good."

If returning strength was noted before the devaluation, many economists feel it will be much stronger following this week's action.

Among immediate possible effects of the devaluation are an influx of dollars to the American stock market because shares now can be purchased by foreigners for 10 per cent less.

A devaluation is a recognition of reality — that a currency is worth only what the market is willing to pay for it and not what a nation insists its value. And recognition of reality is seen as economic sanity.

A deficit which lasts many years is considered a weakness, suggesting that a nation is living beyond its means. Continued, it distorts currency relationships and, eventually, world trade.

Big deficits also are reflected in the job markets. If the United States has an imbalance, as it has, with Japan and Germany, it means that these nations are selling more to us than we to them.

If continued for years, it means depressed employment in the American industries affected.

After years of relatively ineffective action, the United States felt a critical need for a sudden devaluation that, in theory, would make exports more competitive and imports more costly, thus reducing the deficit.

A dollar devaluation means that Americans must pay out more of them for foreign goods, so imports are discouraged. In contrast, American exports to foreign nations become less expensive, because foreign currency is worth more.

Eventually, it is hoped, devaluation will correct a negative trade balance. That it hasn't appeared yet seems less discouraging to private and government economists than to those who trade in currencies.

This is the trade balance, one segment of the payments balance:

1963	plus 5.2 billion
1964	plus 6.8 billion
1965	plus 4.9 billion
1966	plus 3.8 billion
1967	plus 3.8 billion
1968	plus 0.6 billion
1969	plus 0.6 billion
1970	plus 2.2 billion
1971	minus 2.7 billion
1972	minus 6.4 billion

In maintaining a payments and trade balance or surplus, reduction of government spending abroad helps enormously. Limitations on private investments overseas help some, even though such investments eventually pay in a return flow.

In fact, Robert Roosa, former treasury undersecretary and now an investment banker, believes the return on private investments, plus payments received for licenses and royalties on American technology, will be a big plus in coming years.

Import restrictions also tend to maintain a payments balance, but they also are considered dangerous antidotes because they can result in reprisals by other nations. Surcharges are another technique with the same weakness.

Most recommended for long-range payments stability is a curtailing of inflation. An inflation rate lower than that of other nations makes a country's exports more attractively priced.

Inflation is shadow and substance of a deficit. If one is present, look for the other. Look also for big government spending, whether overseas or at home; if it doesn't contribute directly, it does so by creating or worsening inflation.

The U.S. payments deficits deepened as inflation persisted. From January 1968 to January 1970, prices climbed 5.5 per cent in the United States, compared with only 2 per cent in Germany and 3 per cent in Italy. The deficit soon worsened.

What caused inflation? Big spending for war without a compensating tax increase, for one thing. The continued burden of cold war defenses around the world and social programs at home lagging productivity.

But international tensions may be easing; the war is wound down; and U.S. productivity is wound up. The United States now has the lowest consumer price inflation of any trading nation. These are the rates from March 1971 to March 1972:

United States	3.1 per cent
United Kingdom	6.5
Japan	5
Italy	6
Germany	5.9
France	6.1
Canada	4.8

Later figures, when available for all nations, are expected to show the same relationship.

The 1971 trade deficit was the first since 1888. Still another is expected this year, but there is general agreement among economists that it will be less than in 1972, perhaps between $3 billion and $4 billion.

Television And Radio

NEW YORK (AP) — Two 30-second commercials about a common female complaint are scheduled to be broadcast here this weekend on WCBS-TV. They'll try to sell an idea instead of a product.

Their message is that job discrimination because of sex is just plain stupid. The commercials, called public service announcements, are being shown at no cost to the sponsor.

The sponsor is the National Organization for Women (NOW), an activist women's rights group that hopes CBS' four other television stations and other broadcasters will run the ads.

Both commercials are low-key. One shows a baby girl, with an off-screen female voice saying: "This healthy, normal baby had a handicap. She was born female."

"When she grows up, her job opportunities will be limited and her pay low," the voice says, adding that job discrimination based on sex is both illegal and a waste of human resources.

The other commercial illustrates the waste by showing a young woman, with a college degree and academic honors, being interviewed by a man in the personnel department.

"You know, of course, that we start all our girls in the typing pool," he tells her.

The commercials, filmed last October at CBS' owned-and-operated station in Philadelphia, were put together by NOW members with the CBS Television network footing the production costs.

They came after two years of work by NOW members to find a way of starting a free national campaign to get their message across to the public, says Midge Kovacs, a NOW official here.

Although WCBS-TV officials say they'll run the ads, their counterparts at CBS-owned stations in Philadelphia, St. Louis, Chicago and Los Angeles still have to decide if they'll carry them.

But at least it's a start, says Midge Kovacs.

"We hope these announcements will raise questions in people's minds as to women's role in our society and if women have been fairly treated," she said.

Itinerant Homer Creates Panhandling Acting Role

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — The handout man hasn't been around today. He wasn't here yesterday. But you can bet he'll be around tomorrow — or the day after, for sure.

Sooner or later each week, and sometimes twice in a week, a shadow will fall across my desk. I'll look up and standing there will be the finest actor I've ever met — the handout man.

And unconsciously, I'll reach in my pocket and hand out two one-dollar bills to him.

The handout man isn't a professional actor. He's a middle-aged panhandler, growing old ungracefully, who has been haunting me for 20 years. In that time I figure I've handed him out maybe $1,500 — enough to keep me in cheap cigars in my own old age.

I've known my handout men in my life, but none who has had the lasting quality shown by Jack, an itinerant Homer who acts out the roles he creates.

The main trouble with Jack isn't the money he takes from your pocket but the time he takes from your busy day while he tells his story and gives his performance. You break his heart and lower his dignity if you won't listen to his story and watch his performance before giving him his $2.

Each time they are different. One day he comes in dressed with the distressed charm of an oil salesman whose well has just run out of oil. This is when he tells you of the big job he almost landed but just missed, usually because of a conspiracy by his enemies.

The late Lon Chaney was known as "The man with a thousand faces." I think Jack has him beat by at least one role.

This day he's on crutches, the other day on a cane. Last week his daughter became a drug addict, and he's trying to raise enough money to get her off the habit. This week his son will probably break his arm — again. Next week his wife will have another female operation, and the week after that he himself will have to have his 25th — or is it 26th — operation for a hernia.

Jack has a regular route of 25 to 50 clients, and plods it as conscientiously as a mailman. He has the persistence of a bloodhound, and if you play hide-and-seek from him successfully one week, he simply makes two calls next week.

"A number of us have tried to help Jack. But what good would we do if — an unlikely event — we did succeed in reforming him?"

It ordered that his famed art collection, containing works of Renoir, Picasso, Monet and Degas, be sold.

The widow also received their Beverly Hills home, valued at $250,000, and various paintings

Dear Abby
Give your married man his walking papers

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I have been dating a very wealthy married man for the last three years. I was married when we started seeing each other, but I got a divorce because he said if I were "free" he would divorce his wife and marry me.

He told me that he had not laid a hand on his wife for five years, now all of a sudden she's pregnant! (He explained it by saying he had to give her something for their last anniversary!)

I am wondering now if I am foolish to wait for him? He has children, and so have I. I quit work to be available to see him during the day, but there are days I never see him, and I am getting bored. He takes good care of me financially, but I am a young woman yet and need to know the future is secure.

I have had offers of dates with other men, but have stayed true to him. Please tell me if you think I'm being played for a fool. Or should I wait out his wife?

TIRED AND IMPATIENT

DEAR T. AND I: Why don't you give HIM something for his anniversary? His walking papers. If it's security you're after, you won't find it with him.

DEAR ABBY: When you go to a restaurant and order a sandwich, and it comes with a few slices of pickle on the edge of the plate, are you supposed to eat the pickle? Or is it just there for decoration?

We took a survey at our school. Out of 125 students, 75 rejected the pickle, and 50 ate it (mostly with their fingers). Can you just imagine all the pickles that are wasted in the city of New York alone? How would you vote, Abby?
IN A PICKLE

DEAR IN: With the pickle eaters.

DEAR ABBY: You have absolutely made my year! I have had 21 years of moans and groans because of the name I gave my youngest daughter. And then you come along and print a letter from a girl who at age 18 actually CHOSE that very name out of all the names in the world!

My thanks to you, and to Bethany Lyn Brown from the mother of another Bethany Lyn.

FRIDAY, FEB. 16

Your birthday today: As the year progresses, you are more determined than ever to achieve your original goals. Today's natives follow unspoken psychic guidance into extreme personal projects which they seldom share with friends.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: As you strive for a creative group or community enterprise, your share may not be extensive but it is important to all.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Now is the time for getting out of old ruts of habit; install changes, new furnishings and appliances, or take up a new abode.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: It is a day of good news, reconciliations, shared nostalgia over people and places you may never see again.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Experiments are encouraged, within reason, according to your natural urge for creative change. You may not return to an old way.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Stop long enough to think thru your roster of friends and contacts; realize you are neglecting somebody of value.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: What you want is more readily achieved by quietly doing what is indicated, as opposed to offering public explanations.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: In cooperation with old friends, you triumph in some personal ideal. What's ever your status, you can lend authority.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Get busy early as there are preparations to make, more than you can do singlehanded; share your anticipations, enlist help.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Make this a day of inspection, set guidelines for those under your supervision. Review your home and its conditions.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Take all that is coming your way—it's payoff or harvest time for your past efforts. Add to your reserves.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Take a good look at where you are in your relationships; resolve to enrich your life with more wisdom.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Take matters in hand for a normal day's adventure in the art of living, to see how much satisfaction you can get from the ordinary.

Muhammad Ali Beats Bugner In Close Bout

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Muhammad Ali came up with a commodity in short supply for him in these days of devaluation of the dollar—an opponent who looks good against him.

The former heavyweight champion of the world collected $275,000 for his Wednesday night fight against England's Joe Bugner who forced him to 12 full rounds before losing a close decision.

Muhammad went into the scrap at the Las Vegas Convention Center favored by 8-1 or more. In the seventh round, the 22-year-old Briton belted him with a right cross to the head which Ali reviewed with. "I was semi knocked out."

He didn't appear to be and won the round on the cards of all three judges. And he also won the final three to insure his victory.

Bugner looked clumsy at times but threw punches so willingly that Ali could never get any rhythm.

With the 1,500 Britishers in attendance among the crowd at the Convention Center, Bugner was the favorite and a return match between the European heavyweight champion and Ali in London could undoubtedly be a money maker.

And since George Foreman, the current champion, has shown no immediate inclination to meet Ali, who won the title nine years ago, big money fights are what he wants. And Joe Frazier, the only man to beat Ali in his 41-1 career, also seems unanxious for a return bout.

Ali sliced Bugner's eye in the first round, the first cut the Briton has suffered in five years of professional fighting. Danny Holland, the cut man in the Bugner corner, kept the slice under control except for the 10th round when Ali opened it with left jabs.

But by the 11th, when Ali rallied in his stretch drive for victory, the cut was halted again.

Ali told newsmen that Bugner "could be the world champion within two years," but stressed that was only after he himself retired. And a couple of days before, Ali had said he might fight until he was 40.

But the betting favorite didn't move with his former speed and he wasn't able to find Bugner with knockdown punches, even though he was unmarked.

"He is much better than I when we sparred in Ireland," Ali declared. "He had good footwork and he really moved about this ring."

Ali weighed 217½ while the Hungarian-born Bugner weighed 219.

Bucks Lose Game And Abdul Jabbar

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Comedian Jackie Gleason's stock line, "How sweet it is," might be the best way to describe the feeling of the Philadelphia 76ers as they ended a 29-game losing streak, longest in National Basketball Association history.

The sad sacks of professional basketball beat the tough Milwaukee Bucks 106-104 Wednesday night on a goal-tending basket with 16 seconds remaining. Rookie Freddy Boyd put the shot up, and Dick Cunningham illegally touched it coming off the glass.

While the 76ers whooped it up for the first time since defeating Seattle last Jan. 6, the Bucks suffered not only the ignominy of losing to the worst team in basketball, but also the loss of its 7-foot-2-star center, Kareem Abdul Jabbar.

Jabbar, who scored 29 points and grabbed 13 rebounds, drove for the basket at the end of the third period, crashed into Philadelphia's Elmer Ellis, plummeted to the floor and lay still. Milwaukee's trainer worked feverishly over the big guy, and he finally got up, limped to the foul line and converted a pair of free throw.

Seconds later, as the Bucks brought the ball up court, Jabbar stopped along the sideline, his face contorted in obvious pain. He was taken to the dressing room where a preliminary examination by Dr. Joseph Torg brought the report that the Bucks' star had suffered an acute lower back sprain on the right side and a muscle spasm. He was admitted to Temple University Hospital where X rays were taken Thursday.

The 76ers celebrated the end of their losing streak as if they had won the NBA title. They hooted and hollered, slapped backs, and let loose the frustration of the last five torturous weeks. It mattered not that this was only their fifth victory against 58 losses, the first at home since Dec. 6, their first since rookie coach Kevin Loughery took over 12 games ago.

Russian Gymnasts To Tour

HOUSTON (AP) — Olga Korbut. The Associated Press Woman Athlete of the Year, and Ludmila Tourischeva, a double gold medal winner, will head the Russian Olympic Gymnastic team in a seven-city tour of the U.S. beginning with an Astrodome performance March 10.

After opening their tour here, the team will make stops for one-night performances in Buffalo, Los Angeles, Miami, Philadelphia, Washington and New York.

Miss Korbut won three gold medals and a silver medal in the Olympic games at Munich to earn the AP award. She will receive the Babe Didrickson Zaharias trophy March 23 in New York. She is the first Iron Curtain athlete to win the honor.

Miss Tourischeva won two gold, a silver and a bronze medal and took the all-around championship at the Olympics.

The Russian team includes six men, six women and six specialists in acrobatics, tumbling and trampolines.

"After they've seen Olga and Ludmila and the others, every girl in the United States will want to become a gymnast," said Frank J. Cumesky, director of the sanctioning U.S. Gymnastics Federation.

Colts Hire New Coach

BALTIMORE (AP) — Howard Schnellenberger has a name too long for newspaper headlines, but he has many qualities which appeal to General Manager Joe Thomas of the Baltimore Colts.

As a result, Thomas has hired the former assistant coach of the Miami Dolphins to become head coach of the revamped Colts.

"I was first looking for a man who could discipline himself," Thomas said Wednesday when he announced the signing of Schnellenberger to a long-term contract.

"A coach like that," Thomas added, "is then able to discipline his assistants, and this carries through to the football team."

The Dolphins posted a 34-7-1 record during the three seasons Schnellenberger served as offensive coordinator and coach of the Miami receivers. But he has been associated with winners much longer than that.

While he assisted George Allen at Los Angeles for four seasons, the Rams had a 46-13-3 record. And prior to that, Schnellenberger served as an aide to Bear Bryant at Alabama won national collegiate titles in 1964 and 1965.

Although there will be many new players on the Colts this season because of mass trading by Thomas, Schnellenberger said it was a definite advantage to be taking over a team once coached by Shula.

He referred to the terminology, or numbering system for plays and formations, which are similar at Miami and Baltimore.

Reapers Finish Season

Pampa Junior High's basketball teams finished out their season this week. The ninth-grade Reapers were 14-0 for the year and captured the district crown with a 10-0 record.

Included in the ninth grade's unbeaten season was victory in the Berger Tournament.

The eighth grade Reapers closed their season out with a 48-30 win over Berger South this week.

High scorers for the eighth were Rayford Young and Randy Britton with eight points. Henry Williams added six.

The eighth Reapers finished the year with a 10-4 mark. Two of those losses were to the REL Wolverines, district champs with a 17-0 record.

Lefors Girls To Levelland

LEFORS — The girls basketball team from Lefors beat Hedley, 45-40, Tuesday night to advance to the regional tournament for the third straight year.

Connie Eudey, who led the Pirate girls with 22 points in the game with Hedley, has averaged around 20 points a game this past season.

She and the rest of the team will be in Levelland tomorrow for the regional tourney's opening round.

Should Lefors win that tournament it will advance to the state tourney later in the month.

Six Bowlers Attend Clinic

Six Pampa bowlers attended an instructor clinic at Western Bowl in Amarillo last weekend.

The clinic, held under the auspices of the American Junior Bowling Congress, was taught by Johnny Watts of Kingston, Tenn.

Pampans who qualified as bowling instructors for juniors are: Ronny Stokes, Warren Copenhagen, Vickie Moose, Perry Moose, V.E. Wagner and Ray Covalt.

PROLIFIC LATECOMER — EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Dutch soccer-style placekicker Dirk Krijt joined Michigan State's football team for the last three games of 1972. Yet Krijt (pronounced Krit) was the Spartans' number two scorer with 23 points. He kicked six field goals and five extra points and featured the upset of Ohio State.

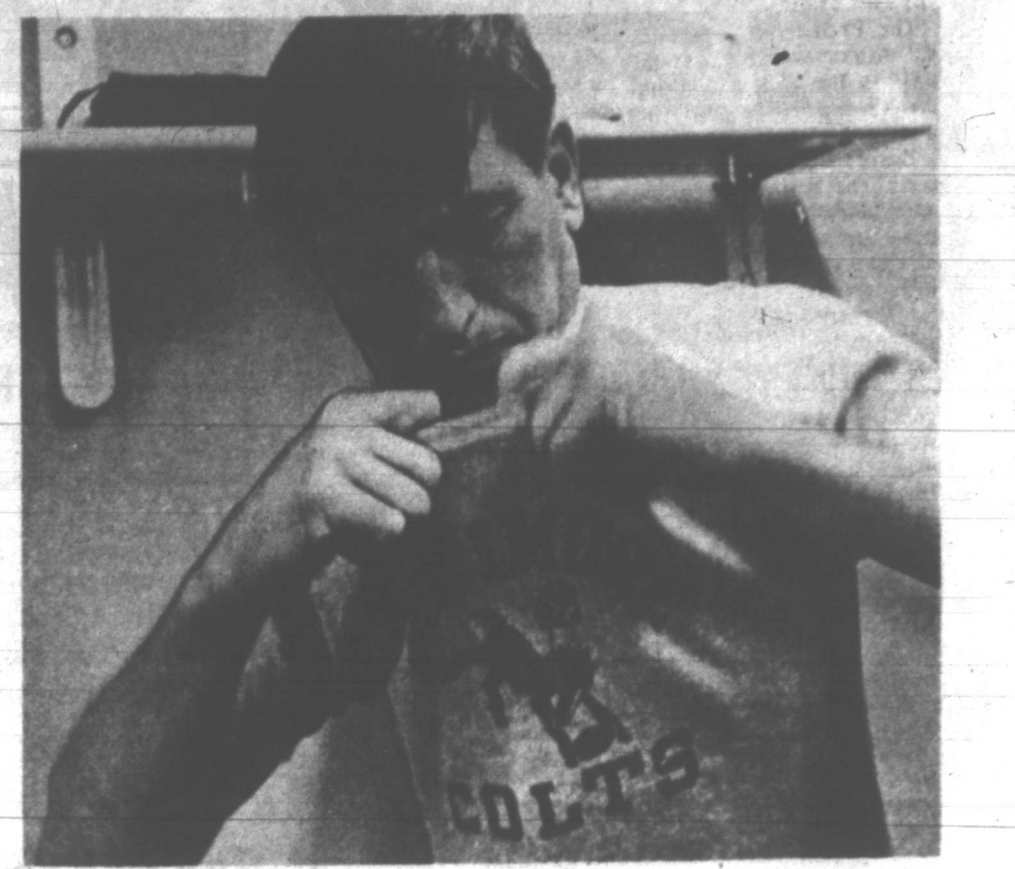

Unitas at 40 An Immortal Doesn't Look Back

By IRA BERKOW NEA Sports Editor

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (NEA) — From the front, Johnny Unitas is still a young man despite last season. He has a cowlick, an almost mischievous gleam in his eyes and a good hunk of teeth in his smile. His belly is flat.

Yet he is nearing 40, an ancient age for football, a game as brutal as time, which exposes "immortals" for the vulnerable human beings they are.

Johnny Unitas is one of these so-called football immortals. He was voted by sportswriters the greatest quarterback of all time, during the commemoration of the National Football League's 50th anniversary. He was named football player of the decade, in the 1960s. He has three times been the Most Valuable Player, six times named all-pro quarterback and led the Baltimore Colts to a handful of championships in his 17 seasons. He has set dozens of passing records.

FOR THE LAST TIME, Johnny Unitas sheds his Colts shirt.

Unitas, however, is aware that, like Orpheus, one gains nothing by looking back.

"People don't even ask what have you done for us lately," he said. "They ask, but what have you done for us five minutes from now."

Unitas says he is no complainer, not his nature. But he has just come off what he calls "the worst year of my football career" and there is uncamouflaged bitterness in his voice.

Midway last season he received a phone call while in the Colts' training room that hit him the way few linemen ever have.

The caller was Joe Thomas, new general manager of the Colts.

"He said," recalled Unitas at the recent American Airlines golf classic here, "that they were going with youth and that Marty Domres was going to be the quarterback from now on."

Unitas hung up, and went to John Sandusky, the new coach who had replaced Don McCafferty in the team shakeup.

"I told John Sandusky I'm not going to be one of those run-out-the-clock quarterbacks," said Unitas. "He told me he didn't want me to be either, but that his orders were to play me only if Marty got hurt."

Domres got hurt on one play. It was a nationally televised Monday night game against San Francisco. Unitas was called in. He trotted onto the field. The crowd caught its breath. There was great sympathy for the old god, who had withstood the siege of the mod age by maintaining a short hair style and black high-top cleats.

Unitas was also the tough-fibred man's man, poised and unbowed in the greatest of adversities. Even the story that he had recently kicked a locker-room towel in anger was hotly denied by him ("When I pitch a bitch, I'll do it to a man's face").

He dropped back to pass, was hit from the blind side and fumbled. The other team recovered. Unitas came out of the game for good. It seemed that the pillars of the Temple would fall next.

Unitas, on the golf course of the El Conquistador Hotel, was asked to reflect on that faraway moment. Was it embarrassing?

"No Somebody missed a block. I wasn't embarrassed, but I was unhappy."

He said that for the first time, football was no longer fun for him. Hope was gone. He felt that the Colts had "thrown in the towel on the season." He came to practices the way a factory worker punches the clock. It was a chore. Back in 1955, when he was cut from the Pittsburgh Steelers—as a rookie, he was sad but there was hope. He was a young man just out of college. That fall he played for the Bloomington, Pa., Rams, a semi-pro team, for six dollars a game. But there was hope. Next season the Colts invited him to a tryout. He made the team. It was the dawn of a dream-come-true.

There also had been calamities through those years, of course, like losses in two Super Bowls, a and broken ribs, a punctured lung, shoulder contusions, knee injuries, torn tendons in his throwing arm, a torn Achilles' tendon. Surgery on several occasions.

Joe Thomas saw not a god, after 17 years, but an aging football player. He traded Unitas to San Diego at the close of the 1972 season.

A personal services contract with the Colts that calls for Unitas to get $1 million over 10 years after he retires has complicated the deal. Unitas is waiting to see what the Chargers will do to pick it up.

Unitas, though, will play more football because he feels he can still do the job. "And, it is a job; but it's also been my whole life."

The rigors of the life—the 17 pro years of being slammed on football fields across the country — are revealed more from the back than from the front.

As Unitas walks away down the fairway, one notices his deeply sloping shoulders and funny bowed legs. The walk is determined, but it is not frisky.

GILMOUR WINS AGAIN — WESTBURY, N. Y. (AP) — For the second straight year Buddy Gilmour won the harness racing driving title at Roosevelt Raceway Gilmour won 150 races. Fellow Canadian Herve Filon was the runnerup at the Nassau County course.

WON SANS A WHIP — NEW YORK (AP) — Johnny Ruane and Laffit Pincay were riding side by side in the stretch at Aqueduct race track when Pincay passed Ruane he said "Hey, You've got my stick." "What happened," Ruane said after the race was over, "I was hitting my horse left-handed and Pincay was hitting his right-handed. I was going down and he was coming up with his whip hand. I ended up with two sticks. Then I dropped Pincay's."

Ruane's horse finished third.

Michigan State's 19-12 upset of Ohio State in 1972 gave the Spartans a 7-6 edge in the football series with the Buckeyes.

Penn State's gymnastic team will play host to the Hungary men's and women's teams on Feb. 23 and 24.

Service Violators Happy With Prisoners' Return

LOMPOC, Calif. (AP) — Seven men confined at a federal prison here might be expected to have mixed feelings about the return of American prisoners of war, resenting the fact that they too won't be free. But there is little sign of it among the seven, all U.S. Selective Service violators.

"I think it's great the war is over and these guys are coming home," said one, a 24-year-old musician with wife and 17-month-old son waiting at home in Sacramento, Calif. "I'm only sorry the war didn't end at the beginning."

Daniel Listed On Dean's List

Joe Daniel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe M. Daniel Jr., 1928 Evergreen is on the dean's list at the University of the South, Seawee, Tenn., academic achievement for the first semester's work.

A grade-point average of 3.62 or higher on a four-point scale is required for inclusion on the list. The university, owned by 24 southern dioceses of the Episcopal Church, was recently named as the only southern college on a list that has produced 30 per cent of the nation's leaders with only two per cent of the enrollment.

The United States ranks 16th among world nations in land use for highway purposes.

maintain vehicles and make furniture. A condition of the interview was that only the men's first names be published.

None of the men held hope of being released early because of the cease-fire.

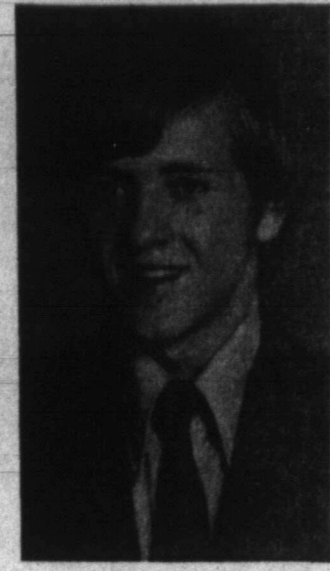

"From what I've heard of the President's views, he doesn't believe in granting amnesty," said Michael, 26, of Redondo Beach, Calif., who has completed 1 1/2 months of a six-month sentence for refusing induction.

About a month before the cease-fire, a parole was denied a middle-aged dentist at the camp who was convicted of aiding and abetting draft evaders.

"I don't have any regrets about my antiwar activities," he said. But he added, "Now that the war is over, the United States is shaking hands with North Vietnam, Russia and China. I think we should offer the same compassion to our own young people in Canada and Sweden."

All agreed they feel even stronger in their antiwar convictions now than when they were sentenced, because, as one explained, "now we have to live up to our convictions; before we just had them."

The men said they believed the Vietnam conflict made Americans realize the horror of war. "It opened the eyes of a lot of Americans," Don said. "It moved both their consciences and their consciousness. They learned that war is not some glorious ideal-some romantic conquest. It's a gruesome, bloody business that benefits no one."
