Court Amends Order On Filing Fee In Texas

DALLAS (AP) — A federal court which threw out Texas' system of using filing fees to pay for party primary elections Wednesday amended its order to allow the state to shoulder the expense.

The three-judge panel granted an amendment to its Jan. 20 ruling sought by Bob Bullock, Texas Secretary of State.

"The secretary of state is likewise hereby authorized to make such rules and regulations and to take such action as may be necessary to effectuate this order and for the uniform operation of primary elections," the amendment read.

Bullock had told the court in his motion that since "candidates can no longer be compelled to contribute the full cost of the (primary) election, it is essential that the state provide financing for the remainder of the cost of the primary elections."

The order was signed by U.S. Circuit Court Judge Homer Thornberry and U. S. Dist. Court Judges Sarah T. Hughes and William M. Taylor Jr.

In its original order the court ruled unconstitutional a state law which allowed political parties to levy filing fees on candidates for office of up to four per cent of the salary for the position sought.

The money collected by the parties was to be used to pay the expense of conducting the primary elections.

The federal action attacking the filing fee system was brought by Rick Johnston, a candidate for justice of the peace in Dallas.

Johnston said he would have been required to pay a filing fee of $3,456, based on the $21,600 annual salary of the post.

Johnston said he also had asked the court to give Bullock control over the conduct of primaries.

Bullock said that if the court granted him this power, he would permit statewide and county-level political parties to levy "reasonable" filing fees to finance the primaries.

But, he added, such fees should be uniform and not vary from county to county.

In his motion to the court, Bullock said he had found that county political organizations were not operating uniformly.

An aide of Bullock's said that in one county the Democratic chairman was requiring written statements from candidates who filed for office without making a "donation" to the party.

"If the court grants this motion, I will ask the governor to transfer funds to this office which this office will use to make up the difference between the sum collected from reasonable fees and the actual cost of the elections...At present my staff calculates that the state's cost should be about $13 million," Bullock said in a statement Tuesday.

He said, "an untimely special session (of the legislature) prior to the primaries" might be avoided now that the court has granted his motion.

Christian, long an advocate of reform in Texas government, said, "I will continue to push for changes in House rules and procedures, including limitation of the powers of the Speaker of the House."

President Urges Congress To Halt West Dock Walkout

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Nixon said Wednesday the 112 day West Coast dock strike has "thrust a spike into our progress toward economic recovery." He urged Congress to halt it and to enact permanent legislation limiting all crippling transportation strikes.

Nixon, in a message to Congress, said he has exhausted all legal weapons against the dock strike which he estimated had caused the loss of more than $600 million in stranded exports of farm products and other goods. Nixon urged swift passage of his legislative proposal to order the dock strike ended and a binding settlement imposed by a three-member arbitration board for a period of 18 to 24 months. The bill went to Congress 12 days ago.

He also urged early action on his bill to limit all strikes in the rail, airline, shipping, longshore and trucking industries.

The proposal for permanent legislation languished in Congress last year under the title of "Emergency Public Interest Protection Act." In reintroducing it, Nixon renamed it "The Crippling Strikes Prevention Act."

It would give a president three major options for dealing with emergency labor disputes in transportation.

The president could extend the 80-day "cooling off" injunction in the current Taft-Hartley Act for an additional 30 days. Or he could name a special board to decide whether to permit a partial strike in an essential transportation industry and assure partial operation at the same time for up to 180 days.

Or, in the third option, the president could appoint a neutral panel to accept either a union's or industry's last contract offer as a final and binding settlement.

Salary Increase Depreciated By Higher Taxes, Study Shows

NEW YORK (AP) — Wages and salaries have been so seriously depreciated by higher taxes and inflation that breadwinners who gained increases of up to 30 per cent over the past six years may have actually lost buying power, the Tax Foundation says.

Five base incomes analyzed by the private, nonprofit foundation show that in the six-year span a 30 per cent increase in dollar pay resulted in a decrease in "real" pay.

Dr. Elsie Waters, senior research administrator for the New York-based organization, said economists and tax people "are considerably concerned by the trend. They are focusing on whether they will ever be able to control government spending. It seems to have run away."

The Tax Foundation based its calculations on a family of four, with one person working. A 30 per cent increase in a salary of $10,000 in 1966 would be worth $13,000 today.

How much is it worth in buying power now? Actually $156 less, according to the foundation, which deducted $745 as the increase in taxation in that period, and $2,411 deducted as the inflation bite. This represented a 1½ per cent decline in purchasing power.

A raise in salary from $20,000 in 1966 to $26,000 in 1972, less the $4,596 inflation bite and the $1,722 increase in taxation, resulted in a net loss of $318 in buying power, the foundation said.

A raise in salary from $30,000 to $39,000 in 1972 minus the $3-

244 increase in taxes and the $6,523 deducted for inflation, resulted in a net loss of $767, or 2½ per cent less in purchasing power.

Dr. Waters blamed the loss of purchasing power on escalating inflation and rising state and Social Security taxes.

"State and local taxes are going up faster than federal taxes," she said. "From 1965 to 1970 these taxes rose by 12 per cent a year, which doubles them every six years. In that same period consumer spending was up 7 per cent, and the gross national product was up 7 per cent."

Dr. Waters said that 30 per cent was a "conservative" estimate of salary and wage increase since 1966.

"But the figures make it quite clear that you would have had to get increases of at least 35 per cent in that period to just stay even in terms of buying power," she said.

Undeveloped Land

HOUSTON (AP) — The City Planning Department reported Wednesday Houston and Harris County have a lot of room in which to grow.

Of the 47 square miles in Houston, 185 square miles or 41 per cent were classified as undeveloped.

Of the 1,326 square miles in the remainder of the county, including other cities, 1,124 square miles or 85 per cent were classified as undeveloped.

School Fund Issue Remains Unsettled

By RICHARD BEENE
Associated Press Writer
SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — A legislative panel heard many problems but few solutions Wednesday as it held its first public hearing on ways to restructure the Texas school financing system.

One school official told the Texas House Interim Committee on Financing Public Education that Texas political leaders have failed to respond to the financial problems of public schools.

Other witnesses agreed there are broad inequities in the present ad valorem tax arrangement and also agreed that individual school districts should remain separate rather than consolidate.

Dr. Jose Cardenas, superintendent of the Edgewood School District here, said he was "appalled" at the lack of leadership among state officials in reacting to a federal court ruling that declared the present financing system unconstitutional.

He said the State Board of Education voted to appeal the historic ruling, that the governor called no special legislative session to act on the issue, and "other political leaders have not responded with leadership."

Asked if the Texas Education Agency was "remiss" since it apparently was aware of the problems before the court ruling, Cardenas shot back:

"I would say the entire population of the state has been remiss."

333-Mile Gas Pipeline Under Construction

HOUSTON (AP) — Construction of a 333-mile, 36-inch diameter pipeline to move West Texas natural gas to the Houston area is under way.

An agreement forming Oasis Pipe Line Co. as a joint venture was completed Tuesday by Houston Natural Gas Corp., Dow Chemical U.S.A., and Tenneco Co., a subsidiary of Tenneco, Inc.

Construction is under way between Coynosa in Pecos County and New Braunfels, where it will tie into an existing system.

WHICH LOOK-ALIKE was once a world-famous movie star? The former Grace Kelly, right, arrives at London Airport with oldest daughter Princess Caroline, 15, who could be her mother's stand-in.

Queen Elizabeth To Celebrate 20th Anniversary Of Coronation

LONDON (AP) — Elizabeth Alexandra Windsor, queen of Britain and of such outposts as Canada and Australia, will mark Sunday the 20th anniversary of her ascent to the throne.

There will be no celebration, but everyone expects that her silver jubilee five years hence will get a lot of attention.

On Tuesday the queen will start another of the tours that she sees as part of her job—this time to places bordering the Gulf of Siam, the Strait of Malacca and in the Indian Ocean.

Between Feb. 9 and March 26 she will visit Thailand, Singapore, Malaysia, the Maldives and Seychelle islands, and Mauritius. She winds up the tour in Kenya. There in 1952, when she was having a holiday with her husband, Prince Philip, she learned that the death of her father, George VI, had made her sovereign.

She and Philip flew back immediately to London. From then on, Philip had to walk a pace or two behind her in public.

In 20 years, Elizabeth has watched the departure of Winston Churchill, the love-affair problems of her sister Margaret, Britain's political shifts from Conservative to Labor and back again, the British agreement to enter the European Common Market.

She is the mother of four children, and hale and hearty at 45. Few doubt she'll be queen a long time. Prince Charles, heir to the throne, is 22. Britons recall that Edward VII was in his 60s when he inherited the throne from Victoria. That sturdy queen, Elizabeth II's great-great grandmother, reigned for 63 years.

The loneliness of the job is perhaps the queen's biggest burden. She is forbidden to show her own husband the documents in those red leather boxes delivered to her daily for signature. Even the heir, her eldest son, may be briefed only second hand.

She doesn't reply to criticism—not even, for example, when some people were saying her clothes were dull.

Polishing Up Your Double Talks

NEW YORK (AP) — There is no better way to kill a long winter than to spend the time polishing up your double talk.

Then, when spring finally comes, you'll emerge as the most interesting hypocrite in town. But if you let your double-talk vocabulary languish through lack of exercise, you'll be in trouble.

You'll inadvertently start saying in public what you really mean instead of what you want people to think you mean, and thereby blow your reputation as a conversationalist sky high. You'll become a social liability instead of a social asset. It makes people uncomfortable to hear the truth spoken out loud. The truth is to be written only in books. That's because it is easier and more legal to burn a book than it is to shut up a speaker. One requires only a match; the other, a fist.

Double talk is simply the truth turned inside out—You say one thing that is socially acceptable while thinking something else that is

Prince Philip has been attacked in print for his candor about public issues. Prince Charles has been publicized for such things as drinking a cocktail in a bar when he was a student at Gordonstoun. Her daughter, Princess Anne, has been exposed to many questions about her romantic intentions.

The queen never responds to such things, in order to keep the image of monarchy on a high plane of dignity. This is not to say she may not worry about them. Some of her reactions go into personal diaries to be published 50 years after her death.

She has time for her diaries, with one son in the navy, another at boarding school, a husband and a daughter with a full schedule of royal duties, and trips round the globe. The queen is an avid viewer of television and movies shown in Buckingham Palace or Windsor Castle. She likes documentaries, current affairs programs, comedy. For reading she likes mysteries.

A friend of the royal family said: "She's often alone in that huge house, Buckingham Palace, with no one to talk to, and she has a meal on a tray in front of the television. It's a very lonely life."

The pay is good, almost $3 million a year, but much of that goes toward countless receptions, journeys, staff arrangements, mandatory clothing and costumes, and royal handouts inside the family.

When the queen is "off duty" she gets into sweaters and skirts, rides horses, takes walks and tries to have an occasional family picnic.

She never has smoked. Her drink is an occasional sip of champagne. She likes to kick off her shoes and do a crossword puzzle, eats sparingly and never raises her voice.

Make a mistake with Elizabeth and the answer never is verbal... just a cold stare. Once she was told her grandfather, George V, was a very rude man at times and why didn't someone get rude back at him?

"No one is rude to a king," she said.

truer but socially unacceptable.

Here are a few typical examples of double talk. What the person said is in quotes, followed in each case by what he actually thought.

"That project you suggested is doing fine. We've got it in the final planning stage."—Gee, it's a lucky thing I bumped into this guy. I had forgotten all about his idea.

"Glad you'll be able to come, Jack. The party wouldn't be the same without you."—However, it would be more civilized.

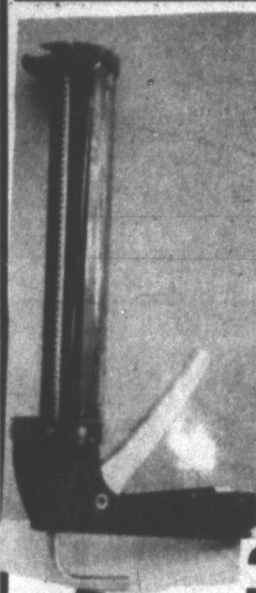

"Nevertheless we wish to assure you that your patronage is gratefully appreciated and that you neglected this small matter only through an oversight."—Pay the bill now, Buster.

"Your face bears a haunted look these days, Wilberforce. Tell me what secret torture is eating at your heart?"—If I can just get this jerk talking about himself, I can close my eyes and take a nice long nap.

Nevada Has Played Role In Hughes' Life

EDITOR'S NOTE—Nevada has long played a big role in the life of Howard Hughes. He was married there, divorced there, and in the four years he lived there, mysteriously and in seclusion, he became the state's largest land owner, employer and casino operator. Following is the third of four reports on the many faces of Howard Hughes.

to his offer to buy the Stardust Hotel, claiming it would give Hughes a monopolistic hold on the Strip. Hughes dropped his plan to acquire the Stardust, but bought a smaller casino next to it.

Hughes' name on his Strip hotels was a visible sign of his growing investment in Nevada. With much less public notice, the billionaire reclusé acquired innumerable tracts of land throughout the state.

By TERRY RYAN
Associated Press Writer
LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — It was on a winter night in November 1966 that Howard Hughes descended on Nevada in an arrival cloaked with the secrecy and intrigue that he has made part of his life.

Hughes arrived on a private train that stopped on the desert outskirts of Las Vegas, according to the court testimony of people who said they were there. He slipped into a car and later walked unnoticed into the Desert Inn Hotel as a covered stretcher was carried through the lobby as a diversion.

With $546 million from the sale of his stock in Trans World Airlines, Hughes went on a buying spree that made him Nevada's largest land owner, employer and casino operator.

People not recognized as Hughes representatives quietly began buying the land in and around Las Vegas. Hughes soon owned nearly every piece of undeveloped land on the Strip, the entertainment heart of Las Vegas.

For four years, until his equally mysterious departure on Thanksgiving Eve of 1970, he reigned as the state's most important private citizen. He has reportedly lived in the Bahamas for the last 14 months.

Hughes also became the owner of 2,700 mines and mining claims scattered through rural Nevada, far more than held by any other person.

The mines and claims may have been one of the few bad investments ever made by Hughes. They remain idle and unworked. An investigator hired by Hughes described them as "the biggest mess I ever saw."

There was much talk during Hughes' first two years in Nevada of a master plan for his enterprises, a giant new hotel, industrial development on his land and a supersonic airport which Hughes offered to build in southern Nevada. Nothing ever came of any of those ideas.

It was in Tonopah, Nev., a mountain mining town with a rugged Western flair, that Hughes was secretly married to actress Jean Peters in 1957. That marriage ended in a Nevada divorce granted Miss Peters in June, 1971.

The Howard Hughes who arrived in Nevada in 1966 had already lived several roles, any one of which would have satisfied most men for a lifetime.

Starting with an estimated $10-million inheritance in the Hughes Tool Co. of Houston, Tex., he built a far ranging conglomerate with interests in the communications, entertainment, electronics and aviation industries, holdings now worth an estimated $2 billion.

A tinge of disenchantment appeared in the relation between Howard Hughes and Nevada. Business leaders and some state officials talked of Hughes as an interloper who simply bought into the state without building anything new or adding to its economic base.

In his Hollywood years, Hughes had courted starlets and produced films. As an aviator, he had set world speed and endurance records.

The state approved Hughes' purchase of a sixth casino, the Landmark Hotel in Las Vegas, primarily because Hughes' money was needed to finish its construction. In 1970, despite some local objection, Hughes purchased Harolds Club in Reno.

Hughes had lived in the penthouse of the Desert Inn for several weeks when he suddenly sent down orders to buy the hotel, reportedly because the management asked him to vacate his suite to make room for high rolling gamblers.

Hughes now employed 8,000 persons, the largest work force in the state. His casinos paid gambling taxes that amounted to more than 5 percent of the state's annual budget. His holdings in the state were worth an estimated $300 million.

Throughout it all, Hughes remained invisibly sequestered in his penthouse retreat above the Strip.

Hughes' empire has run smoothly in his absence and, according to the tool company, also more profitably. The company has announced several times that it has no intention of selling any of Hughes' properties, though it is reportedly willing to listen to interesting offers.

The state was trying to improve its image and Hughes was pointed to as a sign of a new legitimacy in its gaming industry.

The first opposition to Hughes' expansion in Nevada came from the U.S. Justice Department, which objected to his offer to buy the Stardust Hotel, claiming it would give Hughes a monopolistic hold on the Strip. Hughes dropped his plan to acquire the Stardust, but bought a smaller casino next to it.

ROMANCE OF THE SEA has not disappeared entirely yet—not even in the ultramodern Soviet navy. The three-masted training ship "Tovarisch" makes a gracefully non-Marxist call at Valetta, chief harbor of the Mediterranean island of Malta which has been using its strategically located facilities in a naval power play with both East and West recently. Look Away Dixieland

"...Oh I wish I was in Dixie, away, away..."

For the time being at least, it's okay to sing that old song again. This weighty decision was made by no less an authority than the Eighth U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in St. Louis.

How it ever got to be an issue seems absurd.

When the song was played at a school rally in Jonesboro, Ark., a group of 29 black students walked out, claiming the song was offensive. The students were suspended for violating school rules which apparently prohibit anyone from walking out of assemblies.

The matter was taken to court, the blacks claiming they should not have been suspended because the song was offensive to them. The court ruled they were in error and now an appeal has upheld that ruling.

We wonder why the legal minds involved in this case have overlooked the real issue. Individual freedom is the heart of the matter, not a song.

How can the men sitting in judgment of a lawsuit determine what is offensive or not offensive to an individual?

What is offensive is a personal, subjective matter. It is not subject to an arbitrary ruling by a second or third party.

Now this particular case may well have been another part of a campaign by racial minority groups which seek to continue stirring up turmoil, but no one is qualified to rule on how these 29 black students might have felt about the song.

The error was made by the school for suspending the students in the first place. Of what value is forced attendance at a student rally?

It seems clearly to have been a show of force to prove that no individual is privileged to challenge the school authority.

The purpose of the school is to lead the children toward greater enlightenment. Certainly it can be argued that in the short run, school rules and discipline must be maintained. But the rules and discipline should exist for the purpose of helping that institution accomplish its stated goals...greater enlightenment for its students.

To make an issue of so trivial a situation as attendance at a school rally smacks of winning a battle and losing a war.

Red Fishing

In the international game of seizing fishing vessels, the United States has been trailing by about umpteen to zero.

Those powerful nations in South America have almost financed their governments through ransom demands for tuna boats owned by U.S. companies which had been captured within the outsize boundaries of territorial waters.

And although it wasn't a fishing boat, the U.S. Navy ship Pueblo brought a sizeable price in dignity after North Korea took it captive some years ago.

Now, as they say in sports, comes a turning point.

Ships of the Soviet Union were reportedly violating U.S. fishing waters off Alaska and the U.S. Coast Guard is supposed to have them in captivity.

The first sketchy reports indicated the Soviet ships were "resisting arrest" as it were. It will be interesting to see what happens.

If an American-owned ship

"resisted arrest" off Peru or Ecuador, chances are it would be sent to the bottom by the South American gunships.

The U.S. Coast Guard is a police agency which is supposed to preserve the integrity of American maritime boundary and to force compliance with this nation's laws.

But in more recent times, America's integrity seems to be less important to the politicians who have the power to interpret duly constituted laws in their own peculiar way.

We would not be too shocked if the Soviet trespassers were allowed to go on their merry way with profuse apologies from Mr. Nixon's government.

The American eagle looks more and more like a plucked chicken.

GM Heir Seeks Liberal Accord to Control Democratic Derby

WASHINGTON—"Money talks"—and Steward Rowlings Mott, who has a lot to say about it in an effort to shape the hydra-headed Democratic Presidential scramble to his liking.

The 34-year-old bachelor heir of an $800 million General Motors fortune is trying to arrange a Lindsay-McCarthy-McGovern coalition for the purpose of either stopping or blunting front-running Senators Muskie and Humphrey.

They are "too conservative" who describes himself as an "avant-grade philanthropist."

Apparently Mott is not overly concerned by the fact that, while Lindsay, McCarthy and McGovern are out of the same ultraliberal pea-pod, they are personally not exactly friendly.

Lindsay has disparagingly referred to McCarthy and McGovern as "professional Washingtonians," broadly inferring they don't know much about the rest of the world, particularly "urban problems."

He was one of Lindsay's chief contributors in his two mayoralty races, and is footing quite a bit of the cost of his lagging Presidential effort.

As their past and present electioneering benefactor, Mott seemingly feels he can persuade the trio to soft-pedal their personal dislikes, and combine their forces and resources to control the Miami Beach convention.

How He Goes About It To further this coalition scheme, Mott has set up what he calls the "People Politics Committee" — a sort of combination fund-raising and pressure organization.

His avowed goal is a $500,000 operating fund — with the other $400,000 presumably coming from others. Who they might be, he doesn't say. Similarly, there is no indication who the officers are or how they will be chosen.

About the only concrete information about the PPC is Mott's characterization of it as an "ad hoc funding mechanism" — which could well be applied to him.

Since his big-money splash into politics in the 1968 Presidential battle, Mott's role has been primarily that of an "ad hoc funding mechanism" for candidates he has favored.

"People who give money for political purposes should not do so quietly if they want to get effective leverage," says Mott with ingenuous candor. "Let the public know what you're doing, and they'll help you do it."

Mott, with a reputed annual income of $1 million, is the son of the late Charles Mott, largest single General Motors stockholder, who had four wives. Young Mott was the fifth of six children. He lives in a Park Avenue penthouse apartment with a 4,000-square-foot roof garden.

Mott admits he is available for a Cabinet job or ambassadorship — but nothing below that level.

Legislative Politics Rep. Alvin O'Konski, R-Wis., 30-year Congressional veteran, considers himself tops and makes no bones about it.

In a series of lengthy insertions in the Congressional Record (at $140 a page to taxpayers), the self-proclaimed "dean of the Wisconsin Congressional delegation" lauds himself to the skies as a "legend in his time."

KEEP IT LIGHT—Egg fondue with tomato crab sauce is great to serve for Sunday brunch or Sunday night supper. The egg dish requires no tending while baking, and you can make the crab sauce ahead of time.

Cook Light On Sunday With Different Fondue

By Cecily Brownstone
Associated Press Food Editor

We've discovered a lovely main dish to serve for Sunday brunch or Sunday night supper. It's an Egg Fondue with Tomato Crab Sauce.

The egg mixture comes out of the oven in a form that is a cross between a custard and a soufflé. The crab sauce served with it is delightfully seasoned. You can relax while the egg dish is baking because it needs no tending; the crab sauce may be made ahead and reheated at the last minute.

EGG FONDUE WITH TOMATO CRAB SAUCE
8 large eggs
1 cup grated sharp cheddar cheese
1 cup cream-style small-curd cottage cheese
1/2 teaspoon salt
one-third teaspoon pepper
Tomato Crab Sauce
Turn all the ingredients except the Tomato Crab Sauce into an electric blender; cover and blend until smooth. Pour egg mixture into a buttered 1 1/2 quart soufflé dish or similar utensil.
Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until a silver knife inserted in center comes out clean—40 minutes.
Cut into wedges and serve at once with Tomato Crab Sauce.
Makes 6 servings.

TOMATO CRAB SAUCE
1 can (7 1/2 ounces) Alaska king crab or 1 package (6 ounces) frozen Alaska king crab

1/4 cup diced onion
3 tablespoons diced green pepper
1 tablespoon butter
1 can (6 ounces) tomato juice
2 medium tomatoes diced
1 tablespoon minced parsley
1/2 tablespoons red wine vinegar
1/2 teaspoon sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
1-8 teaspoon pepper

1/2 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
Drain canned crab and slice. If frozen crab is used, defrost, drain and slice. Gently cook onion and green pepper in butter until soft. Add tomato juice, tomatoes, parsley, vinegar, sugar, salt, pepper and Worcestershire; simmer 3 minutes. Add crab and heat through.

"By Any Other Name"

COLLEGE STATION—The Food and Drug Administration is considering a proposal to establish new names and standards for identifying types of cottage cheese.

The proposed changes would discontinue the name "creamed cottage cheese," according to Karen Kreipke, Extension foods and nutrition specialist for Texas A&M University.
"Cottage cheese would be the new name for the creamy product now called 'creamed cottage cheese,' and the milk fat content would be not less than four per cent," Miss Kreipke said. "The finished product would not contain more than 80 per cent moisture."
Miss Kreipke said that most consumers do associate the name "cottage cheese" with the creamed product rather than the dry curd product. The confusion of these names is one reason the Food and Drug Administration has been prompted to consider establishing standard names, according to the specialist.

"In response to consumer demands for a creamy cottage cheese product with a lower fat content than the present creamed cottage cheese, there would be a 'low-fat cottage cheese.' This would contain more fat than the 'dry curd cottage cheese,' but less fat than the proposed 'cottage cheese.'"

The "low-fat cottage cheese" would look much like what's now known as creamed cottage cheese, because it would be made in the same way but without fat, Miss Kreipke said. "This new low-fat product would contain from one-half of one per cent to two per cent milk fat and not more than 82.5 per cent moisture."

Celebrities Publish 'Favorite Recipes' Cheese Cake Wins Praise

By Cecily Brownstone
Associated Press Food Editor

By ANTHONY COLLINGS
Associated Press Writer
LONDON (AP)—In case you've ever wondered what famous people like Dame Agatha Christie and the Archbishop of Canterbury like to eat, they've put their favorite recipes into a new book.

Dame Agatha, 80-year-old authoress of best-selling whodunits, smacks her lips over lemon sole Greenway.
The Most Rev. and Rt. Hon. Michael Ramsey, spiritual head of the Church of England, gives his blessing to Burgundy beef with baby onions, mushrooms and "thyme, parsley and a little celery seed tied in muslin."

Recipes from those and other notables such as Prime Minister Edward Heath, actress Hayley Mills, composer Benjamin Britten, singer Tommy Steele and the top chef at the Savoy are in "The Shelter Cookery Book."

Proceeds from sales of the 168-page paperback book are to go to Shelter, a British charity that tries to help the homeless.

Some of the recipes reflect highly personal tastes. Actor Eric Porter recommends eggs cooked with Gruyere cheese, and quips: "I love eggs in any form, except possibly thrown at me during a performance."

Johnny Morris, an entertainer and broadcaster known in Britain for his whimsy, recommends bacon with a type of seaweed known as laver. "A meal for meditation," Morris says.

"Eat in complete silence. You should have some exceptional thoughts generate in your head when you are about half-way through."

Silvino Trompetto, maitre chef des cuisines of the Savoy restaurant, offers a fancy dish known as l'american au crabe a l'Americaine—a chilled mixture of crab, pineapple, chives, pepper, paprika and anchovies.

Film director John Schlesinger, famed for his "Midnight Cowboy" and "Sunday Bloody Sunday," loves something called taramasalata from Greece. It's a mixture of white bread, cod's roe, onion, garlic, olive oil and lemon juice.
"I first discovered taramasalata when I went to Greece to make a documentary...and my interpreter gave me the recipe," Schlesinger says.

Hayley Mills drops prune bombe as her favorite recipe. Benjamin Britten waxes rhapsodic over dark treacle jelly, and Tommy Steele sings the praises of bread and butter pudding the way his mother makes it—with raisins, vanilla extract, and lemon and orange rinds.

The Very Rev. Dr. Immanuel Jacobovitz, Britain's Chief Rabbi, recommends the Jewish dish of apple strudel. Violinist Yehudi Menuhin is fond of a Swiss treat called Birchermuesli, a concoction of oat-flakes, bananas, yoghurt, almonds and berries.

When not running the British government, yachting or playing the organ, Edward Heath likes to sit down and dig into veal with orange stuffing. The bachelor Prime Minister gives this recipe, to serve 4 to 5 persons:
1-1/2 lb. veal steak prepared mustard
flour

SCHOOL OR NURSING PRETORIA, South Africa (AP)—The South African Women's Federation management committee is considering asking the government to impose a compulsory year of service in a hospital for all school-leaving girls.

Cream cheese first started being used as an ingredient in cake more than a dozen years ago, according to our recollection, when such a cake won a large money prize in a bake-off contest.

Now an ingenious cook has invented another cream cheese cake that's absolutely delicious. It's baked in a bundt pan that has a pancoat of butter, walnuts and sugar so the cake doesn't need frosting. Walnuts also give delectable flavor to the cake itself. When tried in our kitchen, we found this cake stayed beautifully moist.

WALNUT CREAM CHEESE CAKE

1 1/2 cups walnuts
2 tablespoons butter for pancoat
2 tablespoons sugar for pancoat
1 cup butter
2 packages (each 3 ounces) cream cheese
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
1 1/2 cups sugar
4 eggs
2 cups sifted cake flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt

Chop one-third of the walnuts very fine for pancoat and chop remainder medium fine for batter.

Butter a 2-quart bundt pan heavily, using 2 tablespoons butter. Sprinkle with the one-third cup very finely chopped walnuts, then with 2 tablespoons sugar.

Cream 1 cup butter with cream cheese and lemon rind; gradually beat in 1 1/2 cups sugar. Beat in eggs, 1 at a time, until thoroughly blended—batter may look slightly curdled.

Resift flour with baking powder and salt; gradually blend into creamed mixture. Stir in remaining medium-fine chopped walnuts. Turn into prepared pan.

Bake in a preheated 300-degree oven until a cake tester inserted in center comes out clean—1 hour and 20 to 30 minutes. Let cake stand in pan placed on a wire rack for 10 minutes, then turn out on wire rack to cool.

CHEESE CAKE—Walnut cream cheese cake is baked in a bundt pan that has a pancoat of butter, walnuts and sugar. It has a delightfully delectable flavor and stays moist for several days.

Youthful looks should be enjoyed, not scorned

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1972 by Chicago Tribune-H. V. News Synd. Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: What is a 25-year-old woman to do when people keep coming to her door and ask, "Is your mother home?" This has happened to me so many times lately I want to scream.

I am a high school teacher, and at the beginning of the school year, a fellow teacher (whom I had not met yet) stopped me in the hall and asked if I had a "pass" to be out of class.

Abby, I try hard to dress and look my age, but no matter what I do, I still come off looking like a 17-year-old kid. Suggestions?

DEAR PATTY: Yes. Relax and enjoy it! Most women complain because no sooner do their pimples clear up, when they start getting wrinkles.

DEAR ABBY: Mike (not his real name) and I were married for 26 years. I loved him so much and always made allowances for his inability to grow up. Most of the burden of raising our six children was left to me, and I had to work outside the home to supplement the college costs.

A year ago Mike left me to go with his girl friend. (She was 25. He was 53.)

I managed as best I could without him. I kept my pride and did not beg him to come home, altho I kept praying he would. (Foolish me!)

He called this morning. His girl friend has left him. He is heavily in debt. He wants to come "home." Everyone knows he left me for another woman.

I still love him, Abby. Would I be a fool to take him back?

TIME TO THINK

DEAR TIME: If you still "love" him, you'd be a fool not to.

DEAR ABBY: When a husband or wife passes on, is it proper to continue to address his (or her) relatives as "in-laws"?

C. B.

DEAR C. B.: Technically, if one no longer has a legal spouse, he no longer has in-laws. But kindness and consideration transcend technicalities, and if the remaining mate feels warmly toward his former in-laws, he will continue to address them as such, unless or until he acquires other in-laws.

DEAR ABBY: I took your advice, and when an acquaintance of mine insincerely said to me (for the 18th time), "Why don't you come over SOMETIME?" I replied, "I would love to. How about Tuesday evening?"

She stammered and blushed, and said, "No, not Tuesday. That's my club night." I decided to teach her a good lesson, so I said, "Well, what night would be convenient for YOU?"

She looked at me like she couldn't believe what she was hearing, and said, "Why don't you let me telephone you, and we'll decide on a date then?"

When we parted, she was still mumbling. I don't expect to hear from her. But I'll bet I cured her of giving those insincere "why-don't-you-come-over-sometime" invitations.

3-AAAA Race Tight Between Old Rivals

SPORTS

The Pampa Daily News

PAMPA, TEXAS 65th YEAR Thursday, Feb. 3, 1972

District stands in a three-way tie between Pampa Harvesters, Palo Duro Dons and the Borger Bulldogs.

Tomorrow night the mighty Harvesters are scheduled to face the canines of Borger at 8 in Harvester Fieldhouse.

It is expected to be a game filled with action as Pampa and Borger are fighting for district position and Palo Duro is picked over their Friday night opponent, Amarillo High.

Borger will be going into the game with a 17-8 season and looking to put Pampa away.

"Last year when we played Borger they were practically out of district contention and we were in sight of the title," commented cager coach Robert McPherson. "Now we both have a chance and that should make a difference in Borger's performance," he added.

Height in Borger is about the same as that in Pampa, though the Harvs have a slight edge.

Borger's 6'8" Mike Burnley dwells in the high-point man position with an average of 21 points per game.

Russell Dixon is at close quarters to Burnley with 16 points per game.

Kevin Cantrell has held his own in double figures as have the Bulldog forward Baldwin.

The Bulldogs have defeated the Tascosa Rebels this season. The Rebs are the only team that has handed a defeat to the Harvesters.

The Harvies are playing at home with a 20-4 season record.

"Being on the road bothers any team, but so far we have done a good job on the opponents' courts," stated McPherson.

Pampa prove: Tuesday night, they can play from the bench and still take a win.

"We substitute from the bench quite a lot and it is obvious that Bill Simon, Freddy Wilbon and A.J. Brewer have the ability to go when the pressure is on," observed McPherson.

"I hope the kids want to get after it as they have been showing in work out," he added.

Preceding the Harvester-Bulldog bout is the Shocker-Bulldog battle at 6.

Want some hard-fought cage action? Be at Harvester Fieldhouse tomorrow night for the clashing of Pampa and Borger squads.

Olympics Open In Pomp And Splendor

SAPPORO, Japan (AP)—Clouds of dissension hanging over the 11th Winter Olympic Games all but dispersed Thursday as the sun shone down on Emperor Hirohito of Japan and a throng of 50,000 at Makomanai Skating Stadium for the glittering opening ceremonies.

The solemn ritual, patterns of bright colors, sunshine on the snow and pageantry obliterated for one brief hour the bitterness over the expulsion of Austrian Ski Star Karl Schranz.

Schranz, kicked out of the games because he made money from advertising, did not even attend the ceremony.

The Austrian team, which at one time had threatened a mass walk-out in protest, was outfitted smartly in red and white uniforms and marched into the arena and saluted the emperor with as much dignity as any of the other 34 national squads.

The Olympic hymn was sung, the flag of the five rings was hoisted and the sacred Olympic flame was ignited in its cauldron atop the stadium, all according to tradition.

Now all is ready for the start of the games—ice hockey eliminations Thursday and the first figure skating, speed skating, bobsleigh and luge events Friday.

The opening ceremony, in this outdoor stadium set amid the lovely snow-clad mountain landscape of Hokkaido, was a color television producer's dream.

It began with the teams marching past the royal box in strikingly contrasted uniforms, and ended with 18,000 balloons being released and colored smoke bombs leaving rainbow patterns in the sky.

The choice of team uniforms ranged far and wide. The Finns looked like black-and-white penguins, the Russians like furry brown bears, the Swiss like delectable red-and-white candy canes and the Spaniards like matadors in black-and-red capes and corodobs hats.

The United States men's squad, in black leather coats that cost $160 each, made a big impression. But the American girls, in boot-length red capes, had a strange look of volunteer nurses.

By tradition the Greeks, heirs of the athletes who competed in the first games more than 2,000 years ago, led the parade. The Japanese, as host nation, marched last, in all-white outfits that blended with the snow.

Izumi Tsujimura, a Japanese girl, skated gracefully into the arena with the Olympic torch, which started out Dec. 28 on its traditional journey from Athens. Hideki Takada, a Japanese runner, bore it up the carpeted staircase and ignited the Olympic flame.

Two personalities in the ceremony caught the imagination of the crowd.

One was Avery Brundage, 84-year-old president of the International Olympic Committee whose dedicated campaign against professionalism led to the ban on Schranz.

The jaunty old president, a black fur hat on his head, strode into the center of the arena and spoke in English and Japanese, calling on the emperor to open the games.

The other outstanding figure was Ingrid Lafforgue, the brilliant French ski star who was kept out of the games by a broken ankle. She limped proudly into the stadium bearing the commemorative Olympic flag which had been in the custody of Grenoble, France, since the last Winter Games were staged there in 1968.

Miss Lafforgue, chosen to represent the mayor of Grenoble, handed the flag over to the mayor of Sapporo.

Dallas-Baltimore Have Best Choices

NEW YORK (AP) — The rich—namely, Dallas and Baltimore, the last two Super Bowl champs—apparently got richer in this week's National Football League draft.

"At first glance," said an executive of one NFL team, who requested that his name not be used, "I'd say Dallas and Baltimore got the best of it over-all. The Cowboys got nine players in the first four rounds and the Colts got some real good athletes, particularly in the second round when they had three straight picks."

Other teams that did well in the first two rounds were Green Bay, Cincinnati, Chicago, Denver and St. Louis, and, of course, Buffalo got the very first pick in defensive end Walt Patulski of Notre Dame.

The shortest NFL draft ever wound up Wednesday evening after 19 hours and 26 minutes, but the 26 teams still managed to select a full complement of 442 collegians over the 17 rounds in what was considered a lean year for pro prospects.

Although they picked 26th and last in the opening round, the world champion Cowboys managed to come up with the player they ranked No. 6 in the country, 227-pound running back Bill Thomas of Boston College.

With three choices in the second round, the Cowboys' famed computer went for Houston running back Robert Newhouse, whose 1,757 yards in 1971 made him major college football's second highest single-season ground-gainer: John Babinex of Vaillanova, a 220-pound line-backer with speed, and flashy wide receiver Charlie "Earl the Pearl" McKee of Arizona.

Round 3 found Dallas choosing Michigan linebacker Mike Keller and Utah kicker Marv Bateman, who led the nation with a 48.1-yard punting average. In Round 4, the Cowboys tapped Northern Michigan linebacker Tim Kearney, San Diego State wide receiver Robert West and Penn State linebacker Charlie Zapiec.

The Cowboys went into the draft looking for depth at running back and linebacker and when they filled both holes relatively early, a representative of one club shook his head in disbelief.

On later rounds, after taking a flyer at semipro defensive back Charles "Doc" Bolden, the Cowboys came up with such prospects as North Carolina A&T linebacker Ralph Coleman, Oklahoma running back Roy Bell, Florida State defensive end Richard Amman and North Carolina A&T defensive end Lonnie Leonard and the disbelieving headshaker muttered, "It's disgusting!"

The Colts' first pick was 256-pound tackle Tom Drougas of Oregon and in the second round they added Jack Mildren, Oklahoma's Wishbone quarterback who will get a shot at defensive back: Michigan wingback Glenn Doughty and Penn State running back Lydell Mitchell.

Baltimore was looking for young talent at wide receiver and quarterback and unearthed three of the former and two of the latter, not counting Mildren.

The wide receivers were Doughty, Michigan State's Eric Allen, who holds the one-game major college rushing record of 350 yards, and Herb Washington, Allen's teammate. The quarterbacks were Van Brownson, who backed up Jerry Tagge for the national champion Nebraska Cornhuskers, and Little All-American Gary Wichard.

On the first two rounds, Green Bay came up with San Diego State cornerback Willie Buchanan, Nebraska quarterback Tagge and Chester Marcol, a record-setting kicker—62 yard field goal—from tiny Hillsdale College.

Cincinnati picked California defensive tackle Sherman White and Louisiana State defensive back Tommy Casanova; Chicago selected Southern Illinois offensive tackle Lionel Antoine and Iowa defensive back Craig Clemons; Denver chose Houston tight end Riley Odoms and St. Louis went for running back-wide receiver Bobby Moore of Oregon and Arizona linebacker Mark Arneson.

Wednesday's selections included the ageless Washington Redskins' taking 27-year-old running back Moses Denison, by way of Maryland State and the Montreal Alouettes of the Canadian League.

The Redskins, who traded most of their early draft choices as George Allen built his Over-the-Hill Gang, were shut out during Tuesday's first seven rounds.

ON THE BALL

Upstart Memphis St. Defeats Louisville

By KEN RAPPOPORT Associated Press Sports Writer

"I just didn't do my normal job tonight," said Ron Thomas, who was sick before and after the game.

"You've got to be disappointed," said Denny Crum, who wasn't feeling too well, either.

Louisville's star forward and coach both reacted rather weakly after Wednesday night's 77-69 basketball loss to Missouri Valley Conference colleague Memphis State.

The upset of the third-ranked Cardinals at Louisville broke a 15-game winning streak and threw the clubs into a first-place tie in the conference race.

Thomas, who hadn't practiced all week with the team because of a stomach ailment, said he felt "real weak." He scored only 13 points, four below his average.

Crum, whose team hadn't lost a game since opening day last Dec. 1, felt his boys were simply outbatted.

"I think the kids really wanted to win," said Crum. "Memphis State just outplayed us, but I feel we can play a lot better. But we can't look back."

Eighth-ranked South Carolina, the other team of status in action Wednesday night, won an easy 98-64 game over outclassed Stetson.

Elsewhere, it was St. Bonaventure 96, Northern Illinois 81; Georgia Tech 82, Georgia 78; Temple 67, LaSalle 56; Virginia Tech 48, Clemson 44; Penn State 81, Syracuse 76 in overtime; Boston College 64, Rhode Island 63 in overtime and Canisius 87, Colgate 72.

Ronnie Robinson, who scored a game-high 33 points, powered a second-half runaway by Memphis State. The Tigers pulled out to a 13-point lead with less than four minutes remaining and won their eighth in a row.

South Carolina had too much beef for Stetson. Seven-foot Danny Traylor and 6-10 Tom Riker grabbed 32 rebounds between them to outbound the entire Stetson team, which had 30.

Traylor had 28 points while Kevin Joyce was runner-up scorer on the winners with 20. Jim Orr, Stetson's floor leader, had 26.

"Stetson certainly couldn't match our size, but I thought they played well," said South Carolina Coach Frank McGuire.

Three fast baskets by Matt Gantt early in the second half gave St. Bonaventure control over Northern Illinois. Gvantz's field goals, part of a 10-2 spurt, moved the Bonnies into a safe 57-44 lead.

Frank Somoylo scored 6 points, 18 from the free throw line, as Georgia Tech survived a torrid finish by Georgia; Temple broke its game open with a six-point spurt in the second half, while Lasalle missed 19 straight shots, and clinched a spot in the Middle Atlantic Conference playoffs; Craig Lieder and Charlie Lipscomb each hit two free throws in the last 34 seconds for Virginia Tech and Chuck Crist scored 16 points for Penn State.

Draft Q And A

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here are some of the questions that 19-year-olds involved in Wednesday's draft lottery might ask and the available answers:

Q. What is the highest number expected to be called in 1973?

A. Draft Director Curtis W. Tarr says he has no idea now. But it's expected to be far below last year's No. 125. Another factor is that the draft authority expires in mid-1973 and is not expected to be extended.

Q. If I don't get drafted under this lottery what happens?

A. You keep the number you received as long as you're exposed to possible draft, normally up to age 26. If you are not drafted next year and you are 1A you drop into a less vulnerable category on Dec. 31 and can't be called short of a major national emergency such as World War II. If you have a deferment and keep it you would be vulnerable to a draft, if there is one, in the year you drop the deferment.

Q. If I am drafted when might I be called?

A. You have to be given at least 30 days notice to report.

Q. How do my chances in this lottery compare with my chances if I had been in last year's lottery?

A. Your chances of being drafted are considerably less.

Q. What about the next lottery?

A. Plans are now to hold a standby lottery early next year even though the draft authority probably will expire. Plans at this time are to give the usual mental and physical exams to men with low numbers.

Q. Are there any prospects for a Volunteer Army?

A. President Nixon is sticking by his promise of a zero draft by July 1, 1973, and all sorts of lures have come into being to try and achieve this. There were two pay raises for the military last year, especially for low rankers. The military is trying to provide better living conditions both for barracks and family housing. Many of the old chores, such as KP and grass-cutting, are being turned over to commercial operations.

Q. Now that they are giving no more student deferments what sort of deferment may I get?

A. The principal one is for hardship. Also there are deferments for those who join Reserve components although some limits have been placed on this.

Q. I do not have a student deferment although I am in college and will graduate in June 1973. If my draft number comes up in January or February, what happens?

A. You'll be permitted to graduate before being called.

NEW YORK (AP) — Heiress Gamble Benedict Gallagher says her elopement in 1960 with Andre Porumbeanu was anything but the romance depicted in the press at the time.

"I was scared to death of him," Mrs. Gallagher said Wednesday at a Manhattan Supreme Court trial in which Porumbeanu is seeking $50,000 in damages from the American Express Co.

"I was scared of the whole situation. I was 19 at the time. I discovered I was not in love with him," the heiress testified.
