21 slaughtered during worship

ISTANBUL, Turkey (AP) — Two Arab terrorists stormed Istanbul's main synagogue Saturda, killing 21 worshipers and wounding four with submachine-gun fire before blowing themselves up with hand grenades, officials said.

Interior Minister Yildirim Akbulut said the gunmen locked the synagogue's main door with an iron bar to keep worshipers from escaping.

'This appears to have been a suicide commando mission," Premier Turgut Ozal said after an emergency Cabinet meeting in Ankara.

The grenade explosions made a charnel house of the Jewish house of prayer, where worshipers were arriving for Sabbath services. Dismembered bodies lay among wrecked rows of chairs. All the victims had been shot, Akbulut said.

"It's horrifying," the official Anatolia news agency quoted Istanbul's deputy governor, Hasan Ali Ozer, as saying.

In Washington, State Department spokesman Bruce Ammerman said seven rabbis were reported among the dead and that Istanbul's chief rabbi, David Asseo, reportedly was wounded. Ammerman said U.S. authorities in Turkey were trying to determine if any Americans were killed

Police sources said all the dead worshipers were Turkish men, and Akbulut said most were elderly. However, Anatolia said the dead included an unidentified visiting rabbi from Israel.

Akbulut told The Associated Press police found 102 spent cartridges on the floor of Neve Shalom Synagogue. He said the assailants entered at about 9:20 a.m., secured the main door, then stood about 10 yards apart and began firing submachine guns into the congregation.

One of the injured said the terrorists shouted in Arabic as they fired. Akbulut said.

Akbulut said the terrorists were killed by three hand grenades they detonated at close range. The legs and lower trunk of one terrorist were blown off by the explosion, he added.

Only four people who were in the building escaped harm, he said

In Jerusalem, Israeli Prime Minister Shimon Peres issued a statement expressing "disgust and deep shock.

Hijack victims are evacuated

KARACHI, Pakistan (AP) — A U.S. Air Force medical transport plane staffed by battle surgeons evacuated 17 victims Saturday, including six Americans, who were wounded in the hijack of a Pan Am jumbo jet that killed at least 15

Pakistani officials, meanwhile, issued conflicting statements about the fate of the four hijackers, all believed to be Palestinians. Some said all four survived. Others said one was killed, one was wounded and two survived.

The gunmen, disguised as airport security workers, seized the aircraft with nearly 400 people aboard early Friday. They initially demanded to be flown to Cyprus, so they could free Palestinian terrorists jailed there.

The hijack ended 17 hours later when lights went out inside the aircraft and the hijackers fired at passengers and hurled grenades. Pakistani commandos wrested control of the aircraft half an hour after shooting began.

Pakistani officials said at least 15 people were killed, among them three Americans. Hospitals reported 127 people injured. White House officials said 17 of the injured were Americans

Airline officials and sources have estimated about 80 Americans were aboard the flight, which originated in Bombay, India, and was headed for New York by way of Frankfurt, West Germany. A C-141 medical evacuation plane was en route

Area towns trail in efforts for grants

By CATHY SPAULDING Staff Writer

AMARILLO — Texline, Claude, Channing, Higgins and Skellytown defeated Lefors, Miami and Carson County in pursuit of a state award that does not come through performance on a playing field.

The cities' goals were a share of a $1.3 million grant that the Texas Department of Community Affairs is giving to towns and counties served by the Panhandle Regional Planning Commission. The TDCA awards the grant on a competitive point basis, with 600 points awarded by the PRPC and another 600 points awarded by the state ageney

Thirty-two Panhandle towns and counties attended preliminary grant hearings Thursday in Amarillo. There, a PRPC hearing committee heard presentations from mayors, county judges, commissioners, engineers and citizens on why their projects should be funded. The hearing officials awarded points on the regional priority, project efficiency, percentage of population helped by the project and the urgency of the

When the preliminary scores were tallied

Texline's request for a grant to fund improvements to its water system came out on top with 456 points. Claude's water improvement request was next with 417 points, followed by Channing with 407 and Higgins with 389.

Skellytown came in fifth with its request for $250,000 to fund improvements to its water system. Skellytowm mayor Wesley Russell said the city needs a new ground storage tank, improvements to its distribution system and a high pressure pump. This is the second year Skellytown has made the request. Last year, the town was ranked 11th place and missed the grant.

Russell said that if the town can't muster up enough points at the state level to get the funds. "we may have to float a bond.

Rounding out the "top ten" were Ochiltree County, Randall County, Vega, Armstrong County and Donley County

Requests from Miami. Lefors and Carson County didn't do so well at the hearing and a PRPC spokesperson said their chances of getting their share of this year's grant are

Lefors, which came in 23rd with 295 points, is seeking $234,150 to improve its water supply system. Miami, which wants to extend city sewer service to people living north of Red Deer Creek, came in 24th with 289 points. The Carson County request to fund the installation of an elevator in the county courthouse, came in next to last (31st) at 264 points.

Miami Mayor Tom Stribling, who accompanied engineer Gene Barber and three council members to the hearing, said the city could try for next year's grant. That's just about the only option the city has to improve its sewer system, he said.

"Only $6,500 in carryover doesn't leave much of a choice," Stribling said.

Before the hearing, Carson County Judge Jav Roselius said that if the grant does not come, he'll modify the plans to cut costs. The county sought the PRPC grant to fund renovation of the courthouse to comply with federal regulations to allow access to handicapped people. The plan was to use the elevtor route that already goes from the sheriff's office on the second floor to the courtroom on the third floor and extend it to the ground

The requests will now go to the TDCA, which will tally its scores in about three weeks. The state bases its points on the number of unemployed people or low income residenes there are in the area

United Way's campaign to be launched Tuesday

Preparations for the 1986 Pampa United Way campaign have been underway for weeks, but the fund-raising activities will kick off officially Tuesday with a luncheon at the M. K. Brown Auditorium. The kickoff will be held at 11:45 a.m. in the Heritage Room with the September membership meeting of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce in support of the United Way efforts.

The luncheon will be a departure from past kickoff meetings, with no outside speaker being brought in for the program. Instead, the emphasis will b aspects of the United Way programs in keeping with the 1986 theme, "YOU Make It Happen — The United Way!" United Way office secretary

FBI employee is murdered

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Federal authorities are trying to determine if the sadistic stabbing death of a 22-year-old clerk-typist for a local FBI office was related her ish with the agency

Forensic experts and behavioral scientists from Washington, D.C., were expected to join local federal agents and police in investigating the death of Donna Lynn Vetter

Her nude, blood-smeared body was discovered in her northeastside apartment by a security guard shortly before 11 p.m. Thursday. Police said she had been stabbed several times in her throat, chest and abdomen and had slashes on both legs.

FBI Agent-in-Charge John W. Dalseg said federal officials are assisting in the investigation because the bureau becomes involved whenever an FBI employee is the victim of such a crime.

"We're trying to determine if there was a federal violation,' said FBI spokesman Pat Cowley. He said the FBI is assisting the San Antonio police who have "primary jurisdiction in the case.

He said FBI agents expected to take part in the investigation in-"two or throe" fo perts and two behavioral scien-

Ms. Vetter's killer "was playing some kind of cruel game with ' by slashing her legs, apparently before the murder. police Detective Richard Roberts told the San Antonio Light.

Bexar County Chief Medical Examiner Dr. Vincent DiMaio determined in an autopsy Friday that Ms. Vetter had been sexually assaulted. Officials said forensic experts likely will check a variety of evidence, such as hair and fiber samples and fingerprints.

Behavioral scientists will attempt to develop a profile of the attacker, officials said. Ten FBI agents searched Vetter's onebedroom apartment near Interstate 35 on Friday.

FBI agents also searched a creek behind the complex and several trash dumpsters but did not find the murder weapon. which authorities believe was a knife. Cowley said Ms. Vetter had worked for the FBI for almost two years.

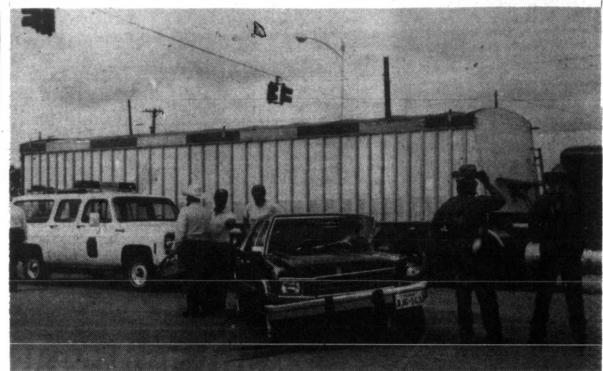

Cowicy caneu ner a very loyal, hard-working, dedicated young lady.'

Police spokesman Sgt. Paul Buske said her body was found sprawled on the living room floor of her $260-a-month apartment after a tenant reported to complex officials that a screen had been removed from a window.

Nothing had been taken from the apartment, police said.

Officers said the killer probably entered Ms. Vetter's ground-floor apartment by removing a front window screen and lifting the unlocked window She appeared to have struggled with the attacker in the kitchen since a bottle of salad dressing had been smashed on the floor and a telephone cord had been ripped from its connection.

One resident of the complex said a trail of blood led from the living room to the kitchen

WHITE DEER COLLISION— Texas Department of Public Safety troopers inspect the scene of a collision between a car driven by 81-year-old Ray Flue of White Deer and a Peterbilt truck driven by Richard Ashford of Mainland, Mo. Ashford was driving east on Highway 60 at about 11:30 a.m. Saturday

Mexico flooding takes nine lives

MONTERREY, Mexico (AP) -Nine people, mostly children, were listed as missing in the aftermath of flash flooding caused by rare, heavy rains in this northern industrial city.

Nine people drowned and 3,500 others were driven from their homes during the day-long downpour, officials said Friday.

"We lament what occurred. ... There were serious damages," Jorge Trevino, the governor of the state of Nuevo Leon, told a news conference

"There are many (people) missing," he said. "Very probably, unfortunately, there will be more" deaths. The rains were described as the strongest here in at least 20 years.

Raul Garza, director of the governor's press information office, said nine people had died, and authorities were compiling a list of the victims.

Authorities reported that on Thursday, up to 8 inches of rain fell during a 10-hour period in some portions of Monterrey and its surrounding suburbs. Monterrey, capital of Nuevo Leon state, is 138 miles from the Texas border at Laredo.

The Pampa United Way has established a goal of $286,021 for the 1986 campaign, only $4,000 more than the amount raised last year, which was the most ever gained in a local United Way drive.

Copeland noted that the emphasis for this year's drive is on the 14 Pampa agencies that participate in the Pampa United Way. He said the local organization is not dropping the out-of-town agencies that had received funds in the past, but the Pampa United Way will not send any money out of Pampa in 1987.

He said people still may designate donations to the out-oftown agencies - Southwest Diabetic Foundation, United Services Organization (USO) and Warm Springs Rehabilitation Hospital — and the local office will see that they receive those donations. But those three agencies will not get any funding from the Pampa office in 1987; instead, the organization will concentrate on the 14 local agencies.

Chamber President Bill Duncan noted the Chamber is pleased to again use its September meeting to support the Pampa United Way

"The Chamber has always supported the United Way because a successful drive helps the economic and industrial development of our community," Duncan said. "In 1986, the United Way will need everyone's support more than

Local agencies being emphasized in this year's drive include the Gray County Chapter of the American Red Cross, Adobe Walls Council of the Boy Scouts, the Community Day Care Center, Genesis Houses for Boys and Girls, Quivira Council of the Girl Scouts, High Plains Epilepsy and the Latch Key Program.

Other local United Way supported agencies are Meals on Wheels, Pampa Family Services, Pampa Senior Citizens Center, South Side Senior Citizens Center, Pampa Sheltered Workshop, the local Salvation Army and Tralee Crisis Center.

Within minutes of receiving Graham's letter, Anastasia apparently drafted a letter to Pampa, her first in six years.

In her letter, Anastasia could barely cover her joy over hearing from Graham that her trunk has been found. "I keep reading it over and over again and find it very difficult to convince myself I am not dreaming," Anastasia wrote. "Your letter, along with the astonishing news it contains, has been the most pleasant surprise I've had for years." How can I believe that those precious belongings of mine still exist in some distant part of the world waiting for me?" she wrote.

That "distant part of the world" may be the home of John T. Mallon of Dublin, Ire.

Mallon, who has a home in Cyprus, found the trunk in 1984 in a storage building in Nicosia. Inside were her 1974 Harvester yearbook, a Bible, an American flag, an AFS plaque and a framed picture of the 1974 graduating class. Touched by the autograph's he read in the yearbook, Mallon wrote to Pampa school officials asking them to "trace this lovely girl and to return these treasured items to her." Attempts to reach Mallon by telephone have been unsuccessful.

Anastasia explained that after the 1974 Turkish Cypriot uprising and the resulting occupation of her hometown of Famagusta, she "had lost all hope of ever seeing those things again.

During the occupation, she and other Greek Cypriots spent days "sleeping in fields without adequate food or medical care.

"Some of the Greek girls had been raped by Turkish soldiers. Greek children were told there would be no schooling until January (1975)," she wrote in a 1974 letter to Davis. In November, 1974, her family made it to Greece, where she tried to enroll at the University of Athens

Throughout her correspondence over the next six years, Anastasia kept asking about where the trunk full of her mememtos was.

'What I regret most was the loss of the great number of photographs I had mailed along with the rest of my souvenirs," she wrote. "If I do get back these souvenirs, I do hope that those photographs will be among them." Mrs. Christodoulides wrote that she and her family "are doing fine.'

"The 16-year old Anastasia you met in 1973 is now the mother of two children, a boy and a girl," she reported. "I left Athens in 1980 and have worked as a teacher at a language institute here in Larnaca ever since.'

Amarillo man hurt

GROOM - A 77-year-old Amarillo man is listed in stable condition in the intensive care unit of High Plains Baptist Hospital in Amarillo following a truck rollover Friday on Interstate Highway 40 east of Groom.

John H. Dekle was westbound in a 1979 Dodge pickup about 7.2 miles east of Groom when the truck's right rear tire blew, according to Texas Department of Public Safety Trooper Greg Eatman. The one-vehicle accident occurred at about 6:30 p.m. near the Texas Highway 70 junction, Eatman said.

Dekle was transported by the Groom Ambulance Service to Coronado Community Hospital in Pampa, where he was treated for head lacerations before being transferred to Amarillo.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Blandness doctrine needn't be studied

One thing the Senate Appropriations Committee managed to get done before Congress recessed for the summer was to send a Federal Communications Commission appropriations bill to the Senate floor. Good old Sen. Ernest Hollings slipped a bit of michief into the finished bill before it was reported out — a requirement that the FCC restudy the so-called Fairness Doctrine and report on its findings by Sept. 30, 1967.

Such unfairness. Such expense. Only a year ago, the Commission released a "final" report on the Fairness Doctrine, concluding it "no longer serves the public interest" and that repealing it altogether should be seriously considered "as a matter of both policy and constitutional law."

The Fairness Doctrine requires broadcasters to devote a "reasonable amount of time to discussing controversial issues of public importance to their communities." It also requires them to cover such issues in a "balanced" manner. Those who feel their points of view were not covered can demand "equal time" at the broadcaster's expense.

But it has precisely the opposite of its intended effect. Instead of guaranteeing coverage of the issues, it provides broadcasters with an incentive to reduce both the quantity and the quality of such coverage.

John Spain of the Radio and Television News Directors Association told the FCC commissioners last "We all know the trigger words in this business: abortion, nuclear power, school integration, police brutality. Under the Fairness Doctrine, the rule becomes, "Deal with the issue rigorously and get burned (by demands for equal time); deal with it blandly and be safe." In effect, the Fairness Doctrine has guaranteed that controversial issues are slighted in the electronic media.

If Sen. Hollings' provision becomes law, it will commit taxpayers to financing another year of useless study of the Fairness Doctrine and commit broadcasters to at least another year of having their constitutional rights to freedom of speech violated. And it would commit the American public to at least another year of broadcast pablum.

Quotas don't mean success

If you haven't tasted honey-dipped beetles before, what do you do? According to that cute cereal commercial, you left Mikey try it. One interpretation of that commercial is that Micky is dispensable. If he barfs, no big thing, nothing's lost.

For nearly a generation, poor black people have played the role of society's Mikey. Politicians, scholars, civil rights leaders, you name it, have performed experiments that have no history of success on blacks, and, what's often the case, these hadn't been tried previously on

Take racial quotas for the purposes of redressing historical grievances. There's no ethnic group in the world that can trace its upward socioeconomic progress to racial quotas. Jews, Japanese-Americans, Armenians, Italians, West Indian American blacks (they were slaves), have faced racial discrimination. But the fact they are now "successful" cannot be attributed to quotas either in employment or

We need not confine our attention to America. Chinese have faced discrimination in Southeast Asia; Indians in Africa; Jews in Europe; Armemians in the post-Ottoman Empire. But, for the most part, these ethnic groups earn higher income than those who discriminate against Racial quotas to address grievances have been tried in India to help the Untouchables, and in Malaysia to help the dominant Malays who discriminate against the Chinese. Business setasides and employment quotas have been tried. The bottom line in both places is failure to achieve the stated objectives.

During the '60s and '70s, elite researchers said the problem of black education was the paucity of black role models. That finding provided grist for the proposition that blacks should be put, meritoriously or by quotas, into jobs as counselors, administrators, and school superinten-

This has happened in some major cities, especially in the nation's capital where you'll find a black school superintendent, numerous black principals and teachers. To boot, Washington's mayor and most of the city leaders and administrators are black. If the role-model theory were right, you'd expect Washington to be the mecca of black academic achievement. WRONG. The academic achievement of its black students is among the lowest in the nation.

American Jews have a reputation for academic achievement, but when poor, uneducated Jews migrated to New York their Americans excel on most standards of academic achievement. But a Japanese student will wait a long time before he sees a Japanese role-model in school Politicians and civil rights leaders deride 'dead-end' jobs like washing dishes, delivering packages and sweeping floors as one of the means for upward mobility. Yet the ancestors of America's ethnic mosaic did just that type of work. In fact, most of the blacks who deride dead-end jobs, and are now successful, at one time worked at those very jobs. So-called deadend jobs teach people valuable work habits such as promptness and respect for supervisors. What's more, a couple, both at minimum-wage jobs, earns nearly $14,000 a year--well above the poverty level.

There are all kinds of experiments on blacks that are ludicrous and untried. A new debate is raging in the black community about the benefits of "benefactors." The question that should come out of this debate so far as programs are concerned is: "Show me where this idea has worked before!" In a word, blacks need to be de-Mikeyfied.

Don't knock basket weaving

As a result of the various investigations into collegiate athletic programs, we are finding that many schools offer so-called "crib" courses that athletes, and other backward students, like I was, can take to help them graduate. As a result of these investigations, it was revealed the University of Georgia offers a course entitled "Insects and Man."

This is not news to me because when I was at Georgia I took this very course.

One day, the instructor held up some sort of creepy-crawler and called on me. "Mr. Grizzard," he asked, "can you identify what I am holding in my hand?"

"Bug!" I said, excitedly. "Good work, Mr. Grizzard," the teacher re-

I wound up making a B in the course, however, because later in class, I swatted a worrisome fly with my notebook and the fly turned out to be one of the teacher's personal pets, Randy

It was also recently revealed that at Georgia Tech, a giant among engineering schools, a course if offered in ceramics.

"Ceramics," said a spokesperson from the athletic department, "is a much more difficult subject than you would think."

I agree completely. I also took basketweaving in college. Do you know how hard it is to get those stupid little strands of straw to stick in the right places?

Same thing with making a pot. You have to remember all sorts of complex things, like which end of the pot is supposed to have the

I also was reading about a course a former Heisman Trophy winner took. It was entitled, The Theory of Track.

After some thought, I believe I have come upon what is exactly the theory of track. It goes: "The dude that runs the fastest wins the race."

Of course, what are easy courses to some might not necessarily be easy to others., Some people who have stayed inside a lot might not know a bug when they see one.

Others who were deprived of modelling clay as children might have one heck of a time passing ceramics.

Still others are generally confused about most everything. A former college football coach told me about the day Bubba Smith, of "Kill, Bubba. Kill" fame, registered for his first classes at Michigan State.

Afterwards, he stormed into an assistant's office with his class schedule and said, "Coach, you said I wouldn't have to take no foreign languages.'

The coach looked at Bubba's schedule and said, "Bubba, you aren't taking any foreign lan-

"Oh, yeah?" replied Bubba. "Then what's this 'English' thing about?'

I credit Joe Namath with the best line about athletes and collegiate work, however, and I think what he said says a great deal about media criticism of making it soft on athletes.

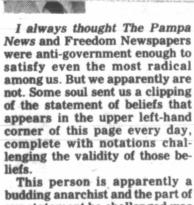

When the Jets signed Namath out of Alabama, he traveled to New York for a press conference. What did you major in at Alabama, Joe," a sports writer asked, "basket-weaving? "No," answered Namath. "Journalism."

Anarchy, freedom go together

This person is apparently a budding anarchist and the part of our statement he challenged was the line that says "Freedom is neither license nor anarchy... He said we are wrong - that anarchy is freedom, and he scribbled things like "Anarchy forever," and "Anarchy is not a thought but a way of life," on the twist. Those of use who belive in libertarian principles are often accused of being arnachists by our more statist-oriented fellow citizens. But I do not recall anyone implying that we are not arnachist enough.

I think the problem here is the general perception of what the word "anarchy" means. Mr. Webster gives us two definitions. The first is "the absense of government" and the second is "the absense of order" brought about by the absense of government.

I don't know who wrote that statement of beliefs. It is something that appears in all Freedom Newspapers that I've seen. But I've got a feeling that the statement refers to the second definition rather than the first, probably because most people think anarchy is simply another word for chaos and the writer wanted to make certain nobody thought Freedom Newspapers favors chaos Libertarians would admit to being anarchists if the generally accepted definition was "favoring the absense of government." But they would not agree that the absense of government would lead to chaos. In fact, they would argue that government causes more discord in society than it prevents. Those who have studied ancient societies tell us that no government ever came into being to prevent discord within a society, but for protection from a perceived threat from outside the society. But the establishment of a government reduces the freedoms enjoyed by those within the society, meaning that the institution established to protect citizens from outside tyrants itself becomes their tyrant. Governments do not go to war to protect the freedom of citizens. They go to war to protect the status of the government. If they were interested in freedom of individuals, they'd simply abolish themselves.

I know what the fellow who sent in the scribblings on our statement of beliefs means, but he's got his wording wrong when he says "Anarchy is freedom." It is not. But I think you have to have anarchy in order to be free, and that's not the same thing. But I suppose it does make me an anarchist...using Webster's first definition, of course.

After the boom

Texas' economic future more complicated than price of oil

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — During a chilly February, state Comptroller Bob Bullock faced the hard facts of a Texas economy gone cold.

Oil prices were in a slide that would take them from $30 a barrel in November to below $10 in March, and with them the tax livelihood of Texas. For weeks Bullock's staff had been working out how much the price collapse would cost the state treasury. A somber Bullock told a luncheon gathering of reporters the grim outlook

"I see state government cut to the bare-bones minimum," he said.

Texas faced a deficit of $1.3 billion then. Six months later the red ink had risen to more than $3

In little more than five years, the state's oil boom had turned to bust.

"Our sesquicentennial year is becoming the most critical turning point which our state economy has faced in several decades," Baylor University forecaster M. Ray Perryman told the Beaumont Enterprise in the first of a 14-part series on the Texas economy.

"By this point in time it seems almost trite to point out that diversification is the key to the future of Texas," Perryman said.

INDUSTRY LEADERS, politicians, analysts and others interviewed by the newspaper see several forces shaping the change: - The oil industry is being restructured, meaning fewer jobs but, perhaps, a stronger industry. - Agriculture is at a crossroads. Burdened by debt and low prices, its outlook is uncertain. - A growing service sector will create most new jobs, ranging from fast-food workers to telecom-

 High tech will be increasingly important as Texas moves into the computer, robotics and biotechnology, and private ventures are launched into space.

"We are moving away from a resource-driven economy and into an economy driven by technology," said David Norton, director of the Space Technology and Research Center at the Houston Area Research Center. "The next economy is based on using brain power."

As a result, Texas' economy will more closely resemble that of the rest of the country, with more emphasis on services and less violent boom-andbust swings, economists say.

Perryman predicts the recession will last through most of 1987, followed by a modest recovery. Over the next 20 years he sees gross state product growing at a compounded annual rate of 2.9 percent — similar to growth in the U.S. economy as a whole.

Still, Texans are reluctant to let go of life as it was before the oil crash.

Per capita personal income soared 160 percent between 1973, when the Arab embargo turned the oil world upside down, and 1983, when the first major cracks began to appear. In those 10 years, per capita income climbed from $4,500 to $11,644 a

HUNDREDS OF THOUSANDS of out-of-staters came for jobs. The state boasted budget surpluses without personal or corporate income taxes.

But in the 1980s, oil prices softened from $40 a barrel in mid-1981 to $34 in 1984. Economists have estimated Texas loses $3 billion in gross economic output and $100 million in local and state taxes for every $1 drop in oil prices. For every $5 drop, reports the Federal Reserve Bank of Dallas, the state loses between 86,000 and

Robert Mettlen, acting director of the Bureau of Business Research at the University of Texas, said everyone is underestimating the likelihood that oil prices will stay low. They are thinking they will come back up. They won't.

But oil prices are only the beginning of the story. The economic downturn now being weathered is the unhappy meeting of many long- and shortterm, often global, problems.

The world is in a period of commodity deflation. Prices for everything from oil to copper to farm products have been falling. Lack of inflation, surpluses and new competitors all play a role, and Texas is a state largely dependent on commod-

The worst shipping slump of the post-war era has devastated the Gulf Coast, closing shipyards, throwing seamen and longshoremen out of jobs, and leaving ports struggling to survive.

Economic problems in Mexico have helped throw the Texas side of the border into a retailing

The results have sometimes been catastrophic.

SOME SMALLER TEXAS OIL communities face a ghost town future, while larger cities struggle. Port Arthur's jobless rate hit 25.8 percent in June before dropping to 21.5 percent in July, in part because of people stopping their search for work or leaving the area.

Yet for millions of other Texans, the downturn remains largely an abstraction. The Texas economy is big, and for many Texans, the oil crash means nothing more than sober headlines and lower prices.

The Central Texas corridor continues to show bright prospects. The area from the Dallas-Fort Worth metroplex to Austin to San Antonio is diversified, big on high tech and electronics, and full of the glitz and quality of life seen in most booming late '80s economies. Defense contracts, too, will continue to strengthen the region.

Southeast Texas, with its dependency on oil refining and petrochemicals, was among the first to be affected by restructuring and layoffs. Now, while the area has seen fewer layoffs since the large cuts of 1984, smaller companies continue to

West Texas, with a backbone of oil exploration and production, was hit later than Southeast Texas, but now is reeling. In Odessa, unemployment exploded from 6.4 percent in January to 17.9 percent in July.

The border has its own troubles in the form of a devaluated peso, which has gutted retail sales dependent on Mexicans who once crossed the river to buy. But winter tourism is growing in the Valley, and citrus production is recovering from the disastrous freeze of three years ago.

THE ECONOMY IS ALSO marked by the differences between rural and urban Texas. Most studies show growth for urban areas, especially larger cities, while small towns and rural areas again, heavily dependent on commodities, face much tougher going.

Statewide, chambers of commerce, economic development corporations and other organizations are chasing new industry while attempting to hold onto existing job-producers.

Perryman says while high tech will be important, Texas needs "a wide spectrum of industrial expansion.

As Texas Research League President Jared E Hazelton wrote earlier this year:

"The economic future of Texas will depend much more on the development of its human remain sources than on exploitation of its natural re-

Seat belt law favored

To the editor,

I am writing this in regard to the article published in your paper Sept. 1 in the "Opinion" column.

It is true that lap belts do cause injuries, but since the seat belt law went into effect the fatality rate has gone down significantly.

I used to work for an ambulance service in another city. I worked many car accidents. I saw many people die simply-because they weren't wearing a seat belt. I saw people mangled for life because they weren't wearing a seat belt. Until you pull someone out of a car wreck and see the terrible injuries you don't realize just how important seat belts are.

Seat belts may cause injuries, but it's nothing like the injuries caused by a person hitting the steering wheel and the windshield and everything in the path. A person thrown from a car has a slim chance of survival. There may be fatalities from seat belts being worn, but there are far more from them not being worn. I'm glad Governor Mark White finally did something to stop the senseless death and destruction.

As far as this law being an invasion of rights, I can give you name after name of people who would be alive today if they had worn their seat belt. But that's not really the worst part. What their rights? they don't have a say-so and the person made the choice not to wear the seat belt. The loved ones left are the ones who suffer.

I think to even consider repealing the law is a shame. We have a way to stop these horrible fatalities, so let's do it.

If you don't wear the seat bel for yourself, wear it for someone who loves you.

Police not always fair

To the editor,

A have lived in Pampa most of my life, and at one ti ne I was very proud to tell anyone that I was from Pampa, Texas, However, that was back when a policeman did what they were hired to do, which was in the '50s, '60s and part of the '70s.

It is altogether different now. The policemen now watch or pick anyone up they do not happen to like until that person gets into a situation where they are forced to say they did something whether they did it or not.

I am not saying the policemen are being bougth off, but it sure seems a little more than strange that people who have money behind them can do anything in front of a policeman and get away with it. I have seen this happen on several different occasions.

I will admit that there are a couple on the force here in Pampa who do their best and treat people right, and it would not do any good to use names of the good or bad policemen.

There are a couple of city employees who were pulled over and were released because they are city employees. If it had been some the policemen did not like, they would have received some kind of citation.

Support Pampa's talent

Thanks for the opportunity to participate in Chautaugua. But it's sad to think Pampa's Fine Arts Association had to spend money for out of town entertainment when Pampa has plenty of excellent local talent (gospel, country and-or rock) who would be willing to perform free for hometown people.

Why can't Pampans support local talent and by doing so, keep Pampa's money in Pampa?

Donations helped the Fine Arts Association through another Chautauqua, but when prices are higher in Pampa than Amarillo, it makes it hard to sponsor another Chautauqua and still keep the money in Pampa.

We, as a group, felt the M.C. was the star of the show. He donated many hours of his time because he is for Pampa. Why can't we all be?

Keep air show going

To the editor.

I would like to say thanks to whoever was responsible for the Pampa air show., from my wife, her father and myself.

As residents of Amarillo, we were very saddened by the news that we would not be having an air show this year. I have to tell you how much we all enjoyed your show. It started with the pleasant surprise at the gate. Admission was only $3 each. (The ones in Amarillo have cost much more and were not near as good). Then to see all those vintage aircraft, what a treat.

I have to tell you that we have gone to three air shows here and we enjoyed your show better than any of them. Please keep having your show. I read in the paper that you may not be able to continue your show because of insurance. That would be so terrible. Charge twice as much for admission and have everyone sign a liability waiver. Whatever it takes will be worthwhile. Just keep it going. It would be terrible not be get to see this type of excellence again.

We will be looking forward to your next show. Congratulations.

gressional elections, which feature the battle to control the Senate. Republicans now hold a 53-47 majority in the chamber, but of the 34 Senate seats at stake this year, 22 are held by the GOP.

A net gain of just four seats would give the Democrats a Senate majority.

Both parties also are looking at this year's contests as a springboard for the 1988 presidential election.

Fiscal fights face Congress as three-week recess ends Having postponed major larly known as Gramm-Rudman.

WASHINGTON (AP) - Congress returns from a three-week recess Monday to face what promises to be an acrimonious autumn dominated by fights over the hard fiscal choices legislators must make before their electionyear adjournment target of Oct.

The crowded legislative agenda for the closing weeks of the second session of the 99th Congress includes final action on the most thorough revision of the federal tax code in a generation and a thicket of budget decisions, as well as a five-year, $8.5 billion reauthorization of the Superfund toxic waste cleanup program and President Reagan's nomination of William Rehnquist to be chief justice of the United States.

And reflecting intense publicity on the topic during the summer, the House and Senate will be considering costly legislation . aimed at fighting drug abuse.

budget decisions all year, Congress now has a backlog of things to do to prepare for the Oct. 1 start of the 1987 fiscal year.

Congress has not completed action on any of the 13 annual appropriations bills necessary to finance government operations and programs. While Congress may complete action on a few of those bills before Oct. 1, legislators are set to wrap most of the money bills into a catch-all measure that also could attract other items that otherwise would not get passed in the short time remaining before adjournment.

While grappling with that spending package, Congress also will be struggling to meet the fiscal 1987 deficit target required by the budget-balancing law popu-

Under that law, the fiscal 1987 deficit is supposed to be $144 billion. The latest official estimate from congressional and administration economists is that the deficit will be $163.4 billion, although some economists say that projection is too optimistic.

Meeting the deficit target will take spending cuts, tax increases or a combination of both.

Many legislators say that federal spending has been reduced enough in the past several years and that the deficit target cannot be met with spending cuts alone. But the president remains adamantly opposed to any general tax increase, meaning the deficit-reduction effort could be stalemated.

iggest round of primary elections Tuesday

By DAVID ESPO Associated Press Writer

Voters in nine states and the District of Columbia stage the year's biggest round of primary elections on Tuesday, featuring a free-for-all for an open Senate seat in Maryland and the political debut of a new candidate from the Kennedy clan.

Many of the most prominent politicians on the ballots have little or no primary opposition, including Democratic Gov. Mario Cuomo of New York and Democratic Sens. Patrick Leahy in Vermont and Christopher Dodd in Connecticut. Republican senators in similar shape are Alfonse D'Amato in New York, Robert Kasten in Wisconsin and Warren Rudman in New Hampshire.

Democratic Govs. William O'Neill Jr. in Connecticut. Madeleine Kunin in Vermont, Tony Earl in Wisconsin, and Cuomo are unopposed or face only little-known opponents. Rhode Island Republican Gov. Edward DiPrete has no opposition for renomination.

But Minnesota Democratic Gov. Rudy Perpich faces a stiff primary challenge from St. Paul Mayor George Latimer and two other lesser known candidates; and there is strong competition to fill open statehouse seats in Arizona and Maryland. Several states have contested races to pick opponents for incumbent senators, including in New York, where millionaire John Dyson is favored over former Ralph Nader aide Mark Green for the right to take on D'Amato in November.

In Wisconsin, where Kasten is seeking reelection, a recent poll reported more than half the Democrats undecided in a race between frontrunners Ed Garvey and Matthew Flynn for the party's nomination.

In all, there are nine governor's races and seven Senate seats on the ballot. The high-profile races aside, there are several other noteworthy contests.

 Bella Abzug, who represented Manhattan in Congress for six years in the 1970s, is attempting the latest in a series of comebacks, this time in suburban Westchester County outside New York. She is one of four Democrats vying for the nomination to oppose freshman GOP Rep. Joseph DioGuardi. Since leaving Congress in a losing campaign for the Senate, the 66-year-old Mrs. Abzug has lost a bid to become mayor of New York and an effort to return to the House.

In Minnesota, where Harold Stassen last won an election in 1942, the 79-year-old former "Boy Governor" is unopposed for a GOP nomination for a House seat in the St. Paul region. Stassen has run numerous times for the GOP presidential nomination. Democratic Rep. Bruce Vento is seeking a new term in the district.

- In Wisconsin, Kevin J. Hermening, a former Marine who was one of 52 American hostages held in Tehran five years ago, is running unopposed for the Republican nomination to Congress. He will face veteran Rep. David Obey in the fall.

- Rep. Morris Udall, D-Ariz., faces primary opposition for only the second time in a quartercentury in Congress. His opponent is 43-year-old state Sen. Luis Gonzales.

Maryland voters face the prospect of a top-tobottom change in political leadership - new senator, new governor and at least five new House members — a chain reaction set off by GOP Sen.

Charles Mathias' decision to retire.

Reps. Barbara Mikulski and Michael Barnes, Gov. Harry Hughes and several little-known contenders are vying for the Democratic nomination to take Mathias' Senate seat. Mikulski is rated ahead in public opinion polls, with Hughes saddled with the political effect of his state's savings and loan crisis. Democrats rate Maryland as one of their best opportunities to pick up a seat in their national battle to take control of the Senate in the Linda Chavez, a former aide to President Reagan, is rated the pre-race favorite in a crowded field of candidates for the GOP nomination.

Also in Maryland, Kathleen Kennedy Townsend. a daughter of the late Robert F. Kennedy, is favored in a three-way race for the Democratic nomination for a House seat. Mrs. Townsend, a 34-year-old attorney, is the first member of a new generation of Kennedys to face the voters. although her brother, Joseph P. Kennedy II, is seeking a House seat in Massachusetts and will be in a primary election later in the month.

Comet may outshine Halley's

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) -Christine Wilson was examining photographs she had taken through a telescope when she discovered the comet that now bears her name: a celestial visitor that might outshine Halley's comet.

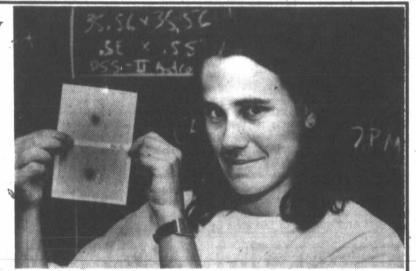

"I felt pretty excited about t," said Wilson, 24, a Califor-nia Institute of Technology astronomy graduate student. "It was kind of a fluke for me to find it. It's so bright it's funny nobody else saw it before

Comet Wilson won't be visible from the Northern Hemisbhere. But to Southern Hemisphere viewers next April and May, it could outshine Halley's comet, said Brian Marsden, director of the Central Bureau for Astronomical Telegrams. Wilson discovered the comet

Aug. 5 using the 48-inch Schmidt telescope at Mount Palomar Observatory northeast of San Diego.

Wilson, an Altadena resident who grew up in Toronto and has dual U.S.-Canadian citizenship, said "it's really heat" to have a comet named after her.

Six others were discovered earlier this year, but none were particularly bright or visible to the naked eve. Marsden said Friday by telephone from Cambridge, Mass., where his agency catalogs discoveries for the International Astronomical Union.

Caltech spokesman Dennis Meredith said comets "are discovered fairly often, but it's fairly seldom they'r this large or will approach this close to Earth.

Comet Wilson will zip within 110 million miles of the sun April 20 or 21, and within 50 million to 60 million miles of Earth, probably around April 30. Marsden said.

While Halley's comet rounded the sun at a distance of 54 million miles Feb. 9, and came within 39 million miles of Earth on April 10, "it's my feeling this is a little brighter," he added.

Scientists are cautious about predicting comets' brightness after many non-scientists were disappointed by the appearances of Halley's comet this year and Comet Kohoutek in 1973-74.

So Marsden said Comet Wilson "could be dimly visible or it could be moderately conspicuous" to Southern Hemisphere viewers.

"It's not going to be anything for people in the United States because it's way down south during the time of its brightness," he said.

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The first major space test of the "Star Wars" defense system was a total success, officials said after two satellites tracked a rising rocket and then destroyed one another in a deliberate colli-

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration also is pleased and relieved about the perfect performance of the Delta rocket that propelled the payloads into orbit Friday. It was the first space rocket success for NASA since the Jan. 28 Challenger explosion.

Friday's $150 million exercise was a major test of President Reagan's proposed Strategic Defense Initiative missile defense system. The Strategic Defense Initiative Office said it came off flawlessly.

Lt. Col. Terry Monrad, an SDIO spokesman, said the two payloads "used a variety of sensors to conduct observations during maneuvers from a variety of viewpoints.'

After they had tracked one another for about four hours, he said, they pointed at each other and collided.

He said that within 72 hours, 90 percent of the debris would reenter the atmosphere.

Monrad said the collision was a key test of technology using kinetic energy, in which one projectile is hurled at another at great speed, demolishing the target.

SDIO, which kept the operation secret before the launch, reported that within two hours after the Delta lifted off, an Aries rocket was fired from the White Sands

Reagan, Congress face showdown

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan returns from a three-week, California vacation this week facing a showdown with Congress over his South Africa policy and a busy fall campaigning for Republican Senate candi-

Delicate negotiations continue in an effort to set up a summit meeting between Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev before the end of the year. And the president, with the help of his wife, Nancy, will join a growing war against drug abuse, making a televised appeal for public support as Congress wrestles with new legislation to cope with what in some areas is seen as an epidemic of cocaine use.

White House strategists are still trying to find some way to head off congressional passage of tough new sanctions against South Africa. But the time for compromise is short, and officials acknowledge Reagan may be unable to make a veto stick as political pressure mounts for a show of U.S. frustration with the white-ruled Pretoria govern-

One presidential adviser, speaking on condition he not be identified, said the White House will try to negotiate a new sanctions package — milder than the separate bills already adopted by the House and Senate but stronger than the year-old executive order Reagan renewed on Thursday.

The order bans the import of South African gold coins and bars the sale of computers and hightechnology equipment to government agencies that help enforce apartheid in the nation where the disenfranchised black majority has grown increasingly restive and confrontations with government authorities more violent.

Some White House officials doubt the last-ditch search for a compromise, coming on the heels of Reagan's steadfast opposition to practically all proposals for punishing the South African regime, has much chance of success.

The House, which overwhelmingly adopted legislation that would impose a near-total ban on trade with South Africa, is now expected to accept a more moderate Senate approach in order to assure passage of some sanctions legislation before the November elections. Reagan then would have to persuade a third of the Senate to sustain his veto, a feat his own aides acknowledge will be difficult in the current climate of rising violence in South Africa at home.

Officials say the budgetconscious president will try to trim the scope of anti-drug legislation proposed by the Democratic House leadership, while recognizing that Republicans as well need to show their determination to step up the fight

U.S. government issues warrants for 3 hijackers

WASHINGTON (AP) - The U.S. government issued arrest warrants for three hijackers who opened fire inside a Pan Am jet in Pakistan, killing at least three Americans and a dozen other people, officials said Saturday.

The warrants charge the three with murder, hostagetaking, attempted air piracy and aircraft sabotage, all of them federal crimes. The men are not named in the warrants but are described as under 30 and traveling with Iranian passports.

The Justice Department, which filed the charges at U.S. District Court here, accused the three of murdering U.S. citizen Rajesh Kumar.

Kumar, 29, who was killed early in the 17-hour ordeal, was taking Pakistani relatives to visit his home in Huntington Beach, Calif.

The White House issued a statement Saturday calling the arrest warrants "standard practice."

'The government of Pakistan is in charge of the investigation into the incident and they have the full confidence and support of the U.S. government," said the statement, issued in Santa Barbara, Calif., where President Reagan is winding up a three week vacation.

Justice Department spokesman Patrick Korten said U.S. authorities have sent the Pakistani government a request for provisional arrest, the first step in the extradition process, but asked that the request be held in abeyance.

"It is to be used only in the event that for some unforseen reason they might be on the verge of release," Korten said. "It is simply a protective mea-

Pakistani officials, Pan Am officials and U.S. diplomats in Karachi, Pakistan, said Saturday at least two other Americans had been killed in the massacre that ended the 17hour ordeal at the Karachi airport. They did not identify the two others besides Kumar.

In Boston, Harvard University spokesman Peter Costa said Syed Nesar Ahmad of Arlington, Mass., was among the Americans killed. Ahmad's wife is an assistant professor at Harvard Business School.

Costa said Ahmad, a scholar, had been returning from an academic conference in Pakistan, his first visit there in 10 years

Authorities in Pakistan said they were holding four gunmen in an army camp and suggested earlier reports that at least one hijacker had been killed were wrong.

The State Department task force said Saturday it was unable to clear up the confusion.

Korten said the Justice Department's latest information indicated there were four hijackers, one of whom had been

Soviet press reports ship warnings ignored

MOSCOW (AP) — The captains of two Soviet ships that crashed on the Black Sea, with 398 people presumed killed, knew for 45 minutes they were on a collision course, but ignored warnings to shift direction, according to official press reports Saturday. The Sovietskaya Rossiya, a newspaper of the Communist Party and government, said the captain of the cruise ship Admiral Nakhimov abandoned his bridge minutes before the crash with a freighter.

"The guilt of both captains, (Vadim) Markov of the Admiral Nakhimov and (Viktor) Tkachenko of the freighter Pyotr Vasyev, is undoubted," the newspaper quoted Politburo member Geidar A. Aliev as saying.

Aliev is in charge of a govern-ment probe of the collision. Both officers were arrested pending outcome of the investigation.

Officials said last week that 116 bodies were recovered, 282 passengers and crew were missing and 836 survivors were pulled from the Black Sea after the Aug. 31 collision. The freighter remained afloat, but the Admiral Nakhimov sank within eight mi-

Sovietskaya Rossiya said divers were removing bodies one by one from the sunken liner, reported to be resting on its gashed starboard side in about 150 feet of

The newspaper did not say how many more bodies were found, nor did officials release new figures on the dead and missing. However, the official media kept up their unusually detailed coverage of the accident, a sharp departure from the Kremlin's usual policy of secrecy regarding disasters.

The press reports stressed that the investigation was not finished, but painted a picture of "criminal negligence," disregard of warnings from shore and indecision by the officers of the ships as they headed toward each other at 10 knots, the equivalent of about 12 mph.

"The actions of the captains cannot be explained by any kind of logic," said Sovietskaya Ros-

According to Soviet reports, the Admiral Nakhimov left the Black Sea port of Novorossiysk at about 10:30 p.m. on Aug. 31. Soon after, the captain was warned that the Pyotr Vasyev was approaching, Sovietskaya Rossiya said.

At the same time, radio operators in Novorossiysk told Tkachenko aboard the grainladen freighter that he was on a collision course with the liner, and urged him to shift direction, the paper said.

The official labor newspaper, Trud, said the warning came 45 minutes before the accident.

"The freighter was obliged to reduce speed and allow the liner to pass," Trud said. "But for some unexplained reason, the captain of the Pyotr Vasyev did not reduce speed.'

The newspapers said the crews talked twice by radio about how to divert their courses but took no action.

After the second conversation, Sovietskaya Rossiya said, "Capt. V. Markov of the Admiral Nakhimov left the bridge completely and went below to his cabin, leaving his second assistant on duty.'

KARACHI, Pakistan — The lights blinked out, the four Palestinian hijackers counted one, two, three, and the plane became a "holocaust" as the terrorists tossed grenades at terrified passengers and opened fire in the darkened cabin. A total of 18 people died in the seizure Friday of a Pan Am Boeing 747 at Karachi airport, including 16 passengers and two of the Palestinians. One of the passengers, an American, was shot and tossed onto the tarmac soon after the hijacking began, and died later at a Karachi hospital. the injured were than 120 passengers and three Pakistan army commandos.

Survivors, many splattered with blood and still shivering from fright, recounted the 17 hours of horror Friday.

They said it began with angry orders by the hostile gunmen who later became friendly and then ended with the vicious attack on nearly 400 hostages in the jumbo

"They started firing wildly," said Hussain Shafi, a passenger from Washington, D.C. "Children were crying. The plane was like a holocaust.

During the first six hours, the passengers were not allowed to eat, drink or go to the bathroom and were not allowed to talk, said Dr. Yashwant Bhandari of Short Hills, N.J.

"Everybody was crowded like cows in the middle of the plane," he said

At one point, the hijackers called three or four people forward, but Bhandari said he didn't know

Mohammed Amin, a Pakistani businessman and passenger, said he understood the Arabic spoken by the hijackers and when the plane's lights went out he heard one of the gunmen tell another:

'The moment for the last jihad has arrived. If we are killed, we will all be martyrs." Jihad is the Arabic word for holy war.

Cynthia Buthello, a passenger from Bombay, India, where Pan AM Flight 73 originated, said the gunmen ordered passengers into the aisle as the plane went dark. "I think they said 'One, two, three' in their language and they just started shooting," she said. David Jodice of Vienna, Va., said the hijackers "were shouting at us in pitch darkness and then we totally panicked when they threw a hand grenade at the passengers.

The grenade exploded with a 'huge blast,'' he said, and screaming passengers, including dozens of women and children, struggled to hide or open the emergency exits as the hijackers opened fire with automatic weapons

The hijackers changed from being "very harsh" to being 'very nice" as the ordeal continued, Jodice said, and flightattendants were allowed to serve the passengers cold drinks and sandwiches

One of the gunmen went around with a bag collecting all of the passengers' passports, the Virginian said, but there was no attempt to divide the passengers into groups by nationality or in any other way.

Negotiations with the hijackers ended in gunfire about five minutes after the plane went dark when the generator for the lighting system ran out of fuel.

The lights along the runway had been turned off, and officials apparently decided it was time to make their move.

Cabinet coordinates efforts of United Way volunteers

Conducting a successful United Way fund-raising drive requires a lot of hard work by volunteers. Coordinating the efforts of the local volunteers for the 1986 Pampa United Way campaign is the United Way Cabinet, a group of local civic leaders, businessmen and interested citizens.

Serving as campaign chairman is Dean Copeland, a local pharmacist who will be overseeing the activities of the cabinet and coordinating the various aspects of the fund-raising drive to reach the goal of $286,021.

Copeland, who served as chairman-elect for the 1985 drive, also will head up the Commercial Division this year as he did last year.

"His division will conduct its efforts among the real estate, insurance, mercantile, restaurant, industrial, automotive and small business community residents.

"After serving as vice chairman in 1985 and seeing the full scope of the United Way process, I know that the United Way is the most efficient way for citizens of Pampa to support the health and human service needs of Pampa," Copeland stated.

With a bachelor of science degree in pharmacy from Southwestern Oklahoma University, Copeland is the owner of Dean's Pharmacy. A Baptist, he also currently serves on the board of directors of Pampa Family Services Center.

He and his wife Carolyn have three children: Nan, 17, a senior at Pampa High School; Neysa Brown of Pampa and Mike Copeland of Clinton, Okla.

Serving as chairman-elect this year and also as co-chairman of the Individuals Division is Bill J. Harris, vice president of Heritage Ford-Lincoln-Mercury, Inc. With co-chairman Evelyn Johnson, Harris and his fellow division workers will concentrate on general donations from individuals and on special gifts to the United Way effort.

"Over the years, having been involved in numerous civic and community activities, I'velearned it has become obvious that the United Way is Pampa's number one asset," Harris said.

"Without the United Way effort, many of our industries would have located elsewhere, life support agencies could have been non-existent and there would be very little challenge for our community," he added. "As the economic situation worsens, the needs grow and the United Way support becomes increasingly important.

"I am indeed honored to have been chosen to be a part of the Pampa United Way," Harris said.

Harris graduated from Dumas High School and attended the Ford Motor Institute. His community service has included serving as chairman of the Administrative Board of the First United Methodist Church, chairman of the Gray County Child Protective Services Board, a member of the board of directors of the Chamber and a member of the Gray County Latch Key Program board.

He and his wife Betty Jo have two sons, Randy Harris and Rick Harris, and a daughter, Judy

Johnson has been a United Way worker for a number of years. She has served on the boards of Pampa United Way and Genesis House and the Executive Council of the Boy Scouts. She is also a past president of the Twentieth Century Culture Study Club and has been very active in Pampa

"The United Way is essential for the good of our community," Johnson stated. "The agencies that are helped by contributions of local citizens are certainly worthwhile.

"And by people giving to the United Way, all these worthwhile causes receive benefits from each individual's contribution," she said.

Johnson attended Amarillo College. A member of the First Baptist Church, she has served on its Finance Committee and Sunday School Council and as director of the 4-Year-Old Department.

Serving as co-chairmen of the Major Firms Division are W. A. Morgan and Brian Vining.

Retired maintenance supervisor at the Celanese Chemical Co.'s Pampa Plant, Morgan has been an active civic and community leader for years. Currently he serves on the city's Parks and Recreation Advisory Board and assists the efforts of Clean Pampa, Inc. An elder at the First Presbyterian Church and a member of the Downtown Kiwanis Club, he has helped Pampa United Way in past years.

"I feel the United Way offers an opportunity for the entire community to give a 'helping hand' to those less fortunate than themselves," Morgan said.

He and his wife Mattie, a retired school teacher, have two children, Cynthia Cohen and Doug Morgan, both of Santa Clara.

A vice president at First National Bank, Vining is involved in numerous civic and community activities.

'The United Way effort in Pampa, 'as adopted by the United Way of America's National Congress, Nov. 30, 1972,' is a standard of excellence,' Vining stated.

A member of the United Way fund-raising council, Vining is a current member, past president and director of the Top o' Texas Rodeo Association Board. His other service has included serving as a former Pampa Key Club advisor for the Downtown Kiwanis Club, a local Salvation Army board member and past president and board member of the Pampa Retail Merchants Association.

Vining also is a past chapter chairman for the American Red Cross, current director and treasurer for the Gray County Mental Health and Retardation Board and a member of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce Membership Committee. In addition, he serves Meals on Wheels and serves on the Frank M. Carter

He and his wife Joan have a daughter, Vanessa Brooke, 5, and a son, Van, three months.

Working as co-chairmen for the Public Division are Danny Parkerson, M. K. Brown Auditorium director, and Lyn Moulton, Pamna Main Street Project manager.

Their division workers will seek contributions from residents involved in schools, agencies, churches and city, state, county and federal government.

"I was very excited to be asked to participate in the United Way campaign," Parkerson said.

"I have participated in the United Way program in years past, but this is my first year to take a leadership role," he added.

Moving to Pampa last year to take the auditorium position, Parkerson was a vocal major at Midwestern State University. Since being in Pampa, he has become involved in ACT I, Pampa Community Concerts Association, the Chamber and the Miss Top o' Texas Pageant.

He has two children, Peyton, 14, and Ryder, 10, both of New Braunfels.

Another newcomer, Moulton began her Main Street position here in January. She also has become active in the Pampa Chamber of Commerce.

"I'm flattered to be asked to serve United Way because of the integrity of the program," Moulton stated. "I had always heard of it, so I decided to get involved here. I'm really anxious to help out since United Way helps the community and the people in it."

versity of Northern Iowa.

Serving as co-chairmen of the Professionals Division are Dr. Ed Williams and David Holt. Their volunteers will seek contributions from attorneys, accountants, dentists, doctors, optometrists and veterinarians.

Williams serves as the health officer for the Pampa City Health Department.

"Our needs are probably greater this year than ever before" because of the changes in the economic situation of the city and surrounding area, Dr. Williams said.

Williams attended Texas Tech University and graduated from the University of Tennessee College of Medicine. He currently serves as vice president of the board of directors of the Tralee Crisis Center and is a member of the board of trustees of Coronado Community Hospital.

He and his wife Mary Earle have three grown children: Mary Ellen, Sansom and Anne.

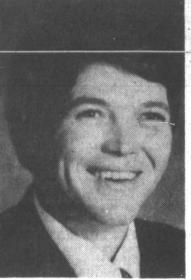

Holt serves on the board of directors of Meals on Wheels and is vice president of the executive board of the Adobe Walls Council of Boy Scouts of America. He is an attorney with Waters, Holt, Fields and Waters.

"This is the first time I've been involved in the Pampa United Way at this level," Holt said. "It's really new to me," but he said he's looking forward to helping the organization achieve a successful drive this year.

Holt received his bachelor's degree at Oklahoma State University and his law degree from the University of Houston.

He and his wife Linda have a son, Parker, a student at Texas Christian University, and a daughter, Susanna, a sophomore at Pampa High School.

Reporter expects to be tried

MOSCOW (AP) — American reporter Nicholas Daniloff called his wife from prison Saturday and said he fears his KGB jailers are preparing to try him for espionage, despite a "fuzzy hint" that a prisoner exchange deal could be arranged, his wife said

Daniloff, 52, was arrested Aug. 30 by the KGB secret police after a Soviet acquaintance handed him a package later found to contain secret maps and photographs. No formal charges have been filed.

Daniloff's wife, Ruth, has said her husband was framed. Daniloff himself has denied any spying. Mrs. Daniloff received the call at the Moscow office of U.S. News & World Report news weekly magazine, for which Daniloff is a correspondent. She said her husband told her a KGB investigator was listening to the 15-minute conversation.

Gary Lee, a reporter for The Washington Post, also listened to the call through an extension in Daniloff's office.

Mrs. Daniloff said she was disturbed by the call.
"I didn't know who he was really talking to, whether he was talking to me, whether he was talking to the investigator sitting next to him, or whether he was talking to the people who were listening in," she said.

Lee said Daniloff sounded like he was under strain and focused on what he believes is an impending trial. He quoted Daniloff as saying: "I probably sound worried. I am worried."

Mrs. Daniloff said she mentioned a plan reportedly offered to the Soviets.

U.S. officials in Washington, speaking on condition of anonymity, have said a proposal was made through diplomatic channels to release Daniloff.

In exchange, Gennady Zakharov would be released to the Soviet ambassador in Washington who would guarantee that he show up for his trial. Zakharov, a United Nations employee from the Soviet Union, is jailed in the United States on espionage charges.

"He (Daniloff) said he had picked up a very fuzzy hint of it," Mrs. Daniloff said. "I don't think he took much notice of it..... Their main line is this will end in a trial and sentence."

Mrs. Daniloff has said that Soviet authorities framed her husband in retaliation for the Aug. 23 arrest of Zakharov.

Foreign Ministry spokesman Gennady Gerasimov has denied that Daniloff's case is related to Zakharov's.

Secretary of State George Shultz said in a speech at Harvard University Friday that a swap has been ruled out.

Lee said Daniloff seemed reluctant to talk about prison conditions.

"He wanted to impress that he was not being

U.S. retaliation considered

WASHINGTON (AP) — As U.S. and Soviet delegates resume talks on curbing nuclear weapons, the Reagan administration is considering retaliating against the Soviet Union for the week-long detention of American journalist Nicholas Daniloff.

The actions could include expulsion of Soviet diplomats and journalists, cancellation of various exchanges or calling off a visit by Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze to plan a summit agenda, U.S. officials said Friday.

But U.S. and Soviet arms experts were set for a second day of talks today and the officials, who demanded anonymity, said there was no consensus within the administration on any punitive measures.

A number of lists were compiled, reflecting disagreement within the administration on whether to retaliate and how strongly. A final decision would be up to President Reagan.

Daniloff's detention in a Moscow prison was mentioned in passing by Paul H. Nitze, chief of the U.S. arms delgation, to Victor P. Karpov, head of the Soviet group, as they broke Friday for lunch, a U.S. official said.

The official, who demanded anonymity, said Nitze expressed hope that the magazine reporter's arrest would not deter progress toward an agreement to curb nuclear weapons.

Hard times hit auto salvage ya

By SUZY MCAULIFFE Corpus Christi Caller

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) - At Bill Hinton's junkyard, wrecked cars and trucks, rusty traffic lights, second-hand radiators and even a newly painted '57 Cadillac offer mute testimony of a sagging economy.

"I've been in business for over 30 years, and I've never seen anything like the last seven months,' said Hinton, owner of Agnes Street Auto & Truck Parts. "There's not any money in circulation. People are broke."

Hinton is not alone in his misery. Those spunky little foreign cars, which junkyard dealers say last longer, and a depressed market for scrap iron have hurt the salvage yard industry locally and nationwide.

in addition, some salvage yard operators say they are being undercut by importers who sell domestic and foreign parts produced in other countries for less than the junkyards charge for used parts.

"I tell you, it spocks me when I think about it," Hinton said. "I hope it gets better soon or I'm going to be in serious trouble."

Hinton's two-acre spread is one of the smaller salvage yards along Agnes Street on Highway 44. His 8-year-old yard is the result of a hobby that began years ago when he owned a few topless bars and a used car lot.

'I'll buy anything that looks too cheap," he said, referring to himself as a 56-year-old "junkie."

"One time I went to the base and bought a truckload of bowling balls. That's the only thing I haven't been able to sell.' Hinton stood in the junkyard, shirttail dangling over his grease-stained blue jeans, and glanced around. Business is down 50 percent, and last year's taxes indicate a loss, he said.

Down the street, 44-year-old Sammy Guajardo Sr., a veteran junkyard owner who said he has annual gross sales of nearly $1 million, tells a similar story.

Profits are down, he cut his staff in half and reserve funds are being hit.

"Used to, the phone would ring an average of once every 30 seconds," Guajardo said, while manning the desk at Sammy's Auto Parts & Radiator Shop. "As you can see, it's dead." Guajardo, who worked at his father's salvage yard before starting his own shop 17 years ago, said business has dropped 25 to 40 percent from last year. More than 3,000 wrecked and junked cars crowd the 20-25-acre salvage yard he shares with his son, Sammy Jr., who runs Sammy's Foreign Car Parts next door.

The younger Guajardo said his business has been even slower than his father's

"I thought it'd be the other way around, because if people aren't working they'll usually fix their car with used parts because they're cheaper," he said. "People are just not buying."

He said the sale of "aftermarket parts," which are made in foreign countries but sold cheaply in the United States, has cut into his profits.

"If my body parts are too high, they'll buy them from someone else. I have to take a loss, just so I can turn my money around, so I can pay for some of these cars.'

He also said foreign cars "are better built" and "don't break down as often." Despite the losses, the Guajar-

dos say they are confident things will pick up. Others aren't as sure. Frank Ochoa, manager of C.C. Auto Parts, said if it weren't for his bumper sales, "we might just close our doors.

Aurelio Sandoval, manager of ABC Auto & Truck Parts, a 21/2acre lot, said he has lowered prices on some items just to attract customers. "On doors, for instance, I'd sell them for like $65, and now I've been selling them for $45 ... just trying to get business," he said.

He said sales last year averaged $500 or more a day. This year, he said, he's lucky to make $300 a day and has seen as little as

In the past, junkyard dealers profited by selling stripped car and truck carcasses to scrap yards, which at one time paid up to $45 or $50 per ton for scrap iron, according to local salvage yard

Now, junkyard owners say they are lucky to get $35-$40 for the average 3,000-pound, or 11/2-ton, car. In an attempt to hold out for a higher price, some are delaying trips to the scrap yard until they're overloaded with wreckage.

"It's very true. Prices are down," said Greg Ledet, manager of Commercial Metals of Cor-formance by the Texas tourist pus Christi, one of the larger local scrap yards.

"It was right around $30 for quite a while ... a couple of years ago. Today, it's in the mid-20s," he said. "It sure as heck decreases the amount of money they get for their scrap."

Scrap iron includes tin, car bodies and other steel products while scrap metal encompasses aluminum, copper, brass, stainless steel and nickel, he said. At the scrap yard the iron and metal is shredded, then sold to steel

An article in the summer 1986 issue of Phoenix Quarterly said "in real terms, the price of scrap is about 70 percent less than it was 12 years ago."

Ledet said summer is traditionally slow because many steel mills are closed for vacations, maintenance and repair. He also blames the drop in oil and gas revenues and a depressed market in Mexico for the industry slump.

Tom Rhodes, secretarytreasurer of Industrial Salvage Co., described the drop in scrap prices as a chain reaction. "As the price comes down from the steel mills and what they pay us for our scrap, the price comes down for the salvage yard owners who bring their car hulks to us," he said. Rhodes, however, said he doesn't think the slow summer "relates necessarily to oil or anything else. It's always slow this time of year."

"There are so many crazy things that affect the scrap business. It's a commodity just like dealing in grain, corn or anything else. It depends on what the world market needs," he said.

Back in his tiny office, far away from the world market, Hinton realizes the magnitude of the economic situation, but admits he likes the salvage yard business too much to give it up.

"I'm single. I like to go out hon-ky-tonking. I enjoy life," he said. "I haven't made a lot of money, but I've had a good time."

He paused and then smiled. "You want to buy a wrecking company?"

DALLAS (AP) - A solid per- this year. Figures through the month of August indicate the state may do even better, he said.

About 386,000 tourists had visited the Alamo by July, about a 10 percent increase over last year, said Alamo chapel hostess June Barth.

'Our daily tourism is up from last year's average of 10,000 to 11,000 and I think that is because of the Sesquicentennial," she

Ms. Barth said more Texans are visiting the historic mission while the number of out-of-state visitors remains about the same.

At another site of the Texas Revolution, the San Jacinto Battlegrounds near Houston, about two million guests were expected by the end of August, said grounds superintendent Jim Frantz. He said the total for all of 1985 was 1.35 million people.

State's summer visitor volume up A special San Jacinto day in April celebrating Texas' victory over Mexican troops drew about 100,000 visitors over a three-day period, he said.

In the Dallas area, two of the top tourist attractions are Six Flags Over Texas and the Southfork Ranch, home to the popular television soap opera, "Dallas."

Ranch spokesman Ken Brixey had predicted at the beginning of the summer that visitor volume this year would double 1985's total of 250,000. Brixey said in the last week of August that the attendance is expected to be within 5 percent of that goal by the end of the summer.

At Six Flags Over Texas in Arlington, more than two million people had visited the amusement park by last week, said spokesman Bruce Neal.

Agin 'Um WARREN HASSE

THERE WAS A STEADY PA-RADE of coaches, athletes, salespersons, maintenance personnel, his secretary, the trainer, media, all interspersed with phone calls. They wanted decisions on schedules, travel arrangements, tickets, bills, equipment and supplies, budgets, practice plans, and a myriad of other matters. And somehow, through it all Pampa ISD athletic director-football coach John Kendall had time to answer a few questions.

Do you have problems juggling the dual role of athletics director and football coach?

"It's very time consuming, but I hope things will change when Coach Hale (newly hired assistant athletics director-basketball coach) gets into the swim of things. I've changed my mind about the work of the AD. I used to think all the AD did was put his feet on the desk. Now I know differently. I think everything could be worked out.

As athletics director HB 72, finances, non-revenue sports must be major concerns. Should we drop programs, add some, soccer?

'Finances are the major problem, with the serious budget cuts. I worked three months on the budget trying to cut without hurting any programs. The addition of two new schools in the district (Hereford, Wolfforth Frenship) has increased our mileage costs 600 miles in most sports. We only have four home varsity football games this year, but should have six next season. The budget is one of the biggest problems. I'd hate to drop any program at this time. We're down to 12 now. We've got 75 out for football, and expect more next year. Cross contry participation has been down, but we feel like there will be a lot of girls coming out. It helps our track program, especially the distance runners, where we need help. As a parent and as an individual I think soccer is a great sport. But with the financial cuts, the distances we'd have to travel to play matches....the closed schools are Wichita Falls and El Paso....and where soccer falls in the UIL sports calendar, during the winter months, I just don't feel it is realistic to add right

What about no pass-no play? What changes would you like?

'No pass-no play makes it easier in some respects for kids to become eligible. After the first six weeks the kids are playing the system. They pass the six weeks they have to and fail the others. I wish they would shorten the punishment phase. We had similar rules when I was in school, so it's nothing really new.

What's the most pressing need for facility maintenance or new facilities?

'Facilitywise, the track and the tennis courts are the most pressing for maintenance and repair. Long range needs include dressing room facilities, especially for the girls. We didn't have all these girls sports programs when the present facilities were built. Because of the number of kids participating we're very crowded and hurting. We're gradually bringing everything up as dollars permit. Equipmentwise we're up to date. We've changed our purchasing program, rotating things to where we don't have big expenses any one year."

Are you getting good support from the school board, administration and the community?

The administration has given super support. Even with the needed budget cuts, the school board has been good to athletics. They allowed the increase for travel due to the two new schools and higher medical services (insurance and physicals). Everything else has been cut.

'Football-wise, for our won-lost record, people have been very supportive. We seem to finally be getting through and getting 48 minutes of effort from the kids. Each year we've had gradual improvement, though not as fast as we'd like. Season ticket sales and home game attendance has been great. Last year we had the best student body support in my four years here. The support of the city has been great. The city manager is doing things to try to help school pride, and the kids notice it. The booster club doesn't have great numbers, but those who are members have given great response in raising dollars to help out. In addition, we've got a lot of silent supporters and many other hard workers. They've provided the signs for the yards of our athlete's families, purchased two video machines, and many other

If you had the power, what changes would you make in the UIL programs in Texas?

'House Bill 72 took a lot of authority away from the UIL. Texas needs the restoration of that power and authority in the UIL. I've worked in several states, under several different programs, and Texas is the strongest and best I've been in.

With only 10 wins in four seasons after having won the Kansas state championship has it been discouraging to you? Do you feel any pressure from the community or the school system?

"The coaches put a lot of pressure on themslves to win. As long as they see effort, Pampa fans seem satisfied, I feel some pressure from the community. Not winning hurts. You get discouraged. Things aren't changing for the better as fast as we want them to, but we see vast improvement among the kids in more than one sport. The best thing is the kids are getting a chance to play in more than one activity. We have a member or our football team who is in the band, and a basketball player on our team.'

Why haven't we done better in football?

"I have a feeling that the kids went into a game with a feeling they expected to lose and did things to lose, not intentionally. For the first time we are seeing kids starting to play the whole football game without completlely giving up. We are just now starting to realize we can play against every team. I felt good about last year, which was one of the most enjoyable because the kids played hard for us. We made a lot of mental mistakes. Our schedule hurts us. We open with three or four tough 5A and 4A schools. We need some confidence builders to help the kids out.

Is there anything else you'd like to add?

"The main thing is, support the kids and keep encouraging the kids in all sports. I feel we can go into every ballgame and win this year. Wear green on Fridays. The athletes at Pampa are good athletes. The thing we have to turn around as coaches and as a community is become positive and let the kids know we can win. The junior classes always seem to fall short in numbers of athletes. I think I have a good coaching staff. We're building progrms up that have been down. The girls' progrmas are really starting to produce, and we're working on problems in some other sports.

And then it was back to the desk, the phone, the never-ending march of enswer and direction seeking bodies.

U.S. Open

Lendl, Navratilova reach finals

By BOB GREENE AP Tennis Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - Martina Navratilova survived a thirdset tiebreak and made the women's final at the U.S. Open tennis championship for the fourth year in a row Saturday after defending champion Ivan Lendl surged into the men's championship for the fifth consecutive year.

Navratilova overcame three match points to beat 17-yearold West German Steffi Graf 10-8 in the tiebreak and won 6-

Lendl, the No. 1 seed, defeated Sweden's Stefan Edberg 7-6, 6-2, 6-3.

The Czech will face the winner of Saturday's second men's semifinal between Wimbledon champion Boris Becker of West Germany and No. 16 Miloslav Mecir of Czechoslovakia.

Navratilova will face Czechoslovakia's Helena Sukova for the women's title. Sukova upset six-time winner Chris Evert Lloyd 6-2, 6-4 on Friday to gain her berth in the

"You guys were saying this was going to be close, but this was ridiculous," Navratilova, seeking her third title in four years at this Grand Slam tournament, said after edging Graf in a match that began Friday but was been interrupted by rain.

'She's a terrific player,' the women's top seed said of Graf. 'I hope she doesn't get too much better or I'll quit. I feel lucky I got through this one. I lost a couple of third-set tiebreakers here before. You can't be pushed any more.

The women's final normally is played on Saturday.

On this Saturday, though, the match was as gripping as a final. Navratilova, who led 4-1 when the downpour began Friday, completed her first-set victory by winning the first two games Saturday, breaking Graf from deuce in the seventh

But Graf showed this would be a different day. She broke Navratilova to begin the second set and held through three decues to increase her lead to 2-0.

The West German teenager, who beat Navratilova the last time the two met, in the final of a clay court tournament in West Berlin in May, broke Navratilova in the ninth game and served for the second set in the 10th at 5-4.

Navratilova broke back, however, then lost her own service to the young right-hander, who served for the second set again, this time at 6-5.

But again Navratilova solved her opponent's game, breaking service to send the set into a tiebreak.

Graf immediately jumped out to a 4-0 lead, increased that to 6-1 and finally evened the match at one set apiece when she took the tiebreak 7-3.

Now it was Navratilova's turn to take an early lead, and she did, breaking Graf's service to begin the third and decisive set. But Graf pulled even when she broke back at love in the eighth game. In the 10th, with Navratilova serving, Graf reached match point twice. And both times the left-hander, who is ranked No. 1 in the world fought back, finally holding serve.

The two battled into yet another tiebreak, and in this one both had chances to grab the victory

Navratilova reached match point at 6-5, only to have Graf save it with a backhand to the baseline that the No. 1 seed couldn't handle. Navratilova had her second match point at 7-6, and this time she was serving for the winning point.

Graf staved off this one when she pulled a forehand service return down the line.

At 8-7, it was Graf's third match point. Navratilova survived when the West German netted a backhand. And the two-time U.S. Open champion reach match point for a third time when Graf made a rare forehand error, sending the ball into the net.

Navratilova didn't waste this chance as Graf netted a backhand service return.

Oilers to test Packers' defense

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) - The strength of the 1986 Green Bay Packers may be defense. And it will be tested in this weekend's regular season opener by Houston Oilers quarterback Warren Moon, who has been rejuvenated by a more wide open offense.

The last two seasons have been tough for the 29-year-old Moon, in his third National Football League season after six years in the Canadian Football League. The Oilers went 8-24 with Moon at the helm.

"I didn't lose confidence so much as courage," Moon said. "As a quarterback you know you're going to get hit, but you have to get back up.

"When you get hit a lot, the more you worry about getting hit. I got antsy," he said. "I started to take off rather than sit there and take a blow.'

But this year, Coach Jerry Glanville has installed an offense designed to take advantage of Moon's ability to scramble and throw on the run.

"It's good for me and good for the team," Moon said.

66 percent of his passes in the pre- ers, under third-year Green Bay season for 539 yards and three touchdowns. He didn't thrown an interception.

The Packers are wary.

"He's stayed in the pocket pretty much." said Packers free safety Tom Flynn. "He'll scramble now, and when he gets on the foot, he's really tough.

With the help of Moon, the Oilers completed their first unbeaten preseason in a decade. They want to continue their winning ways. "I think all of our players would trade that 4-0 to be 1-0 after the first game." said Glanville, in his first full year as a NFL head

It's as though Dallas Coach Tom Landry, who was once an assistant coach for the Giants, holds some magical spell over them.

alls may miss season

DALLAS (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys warned cornerback Everson Walls he can be suspended if his walkout over a contract dispute continues. Walls may not be allowed to return this season if he misses Monday night's opener against the New York Giants. Cowhovs President Tex Schramm and Coach Tom Landry said. "We're talking about a diffe-

Walls told Landry on Thursday he was leaving the team and filing a grievance with the NFL Players' Association to have his contract dispute settled by arbitration. Walls and Weinberg claimed the Cowboys have not acted in good faith during the renegotiation that they are required to undertake because of a clause in the player's contract. Weinberg asked that an arbitrator be appointed by the NFL Management Council. He said that arbitrator would be asked to force the Cowboys to bargain in good faith.

Cowboys officials contend they have negotiated in good faith and have made at least five offers to Walls.

"Negotiating in good faith doesn't necessarily mean that the two sides have to like what the other one wants monetarily," said Schramm.

Walls left two rookie cornerbacks in his place when he walked out. If he doesn't return, Johnny Holloway will start Monday night against the Giants. Rookie Cornell Gowdy will also play some at left cornerback, said Landry.

WHITE DEER — White Deer and Canadian hit each other until depth and a lack of it took its toll ere Friday night, as the Wildcats wore past the Bucks in a 27-6 head-banger.

Canadian coach Paul Wilson, has 33 players on his roster, and though not all are healthy, the 'Cats are all juniors and seniors. White Deer's Windy Williams carries 21, and five of them are sopho-

As the teams' season opener wore on, Wilson's substitutions far outnumbered Williams'. Fatigue, depth and experience became factors. The Bucks held Canadian to a 7-0 halftime lead. Shawn Wright and the Wildcats erupted for 20 third quarter points and sealed the game.

Wright scored Canadian's first three touchdowns and accounted for 139 of the Wildcat's 223 rushing yards with punishing style.

White Deer's Williams doesn't like to lose, but he saw why his Bucks did.

"We hit 'em 'til they wore us out," Williams said. 'I'm not at all displeased with the way our kids played. They stuck their noses in there and got after it every step.

The numbers of personnel, fatigue and it being cool affected us. When you don't have a lot of subs you better be in shape. That's something we'll Canadian's Wilson knew what he saw.

We started out and they outquicked us and outhitus," he said. "We just didn't get tough and get it in. Those White Deer kids hit us.

We kinda sucked it up in that second half and did play well. Overall I was real pleased with our kids. We're pleased to get by White Deer. We felt like they'd be so high on us a few mistakes might cost us the game.

Wilson scored a direct hit on the Bucks' emotions when the game began. The car wreck outside the stadium after the game was a dropped pin compared to the cracking of pads when it started.

After White Deer's first possession was unsuccessful, the Bucks punted to the Canadian 26. On first down, the 'Cats' Denny McLanahan was belted from the ball running a misdirection play, and White Deer's Bart Thomas recovered at the 29.

Nine yards from Mark Greene and three from Lance Cross moved the Bucks to the 17. Greene got three more, then Craig Davis hit Todd Haynes on a slant to the 14.

But Canadian stopped Greene cold on third-andtwo, and Cross' field goal attempt fell short at the 6:24 mark

From their 20, Wright and Vic Perrin carried the Wildcats to White Deer territory, but the drive begged down at the 42.

White Deer's offense stuttered, and the Bucks punted to the Canadian 27. With Wright breaking runs of 10 and 17 yards and quarterback Wade Wilson hitting McLanahan for 19, Canadian drove to a first down at the White Deer 8.

Three runs netted one yard, then the Bucks knocked loose a Wilson to Robert Cervantes pass in the end zone to deny the 'Cats. Again though, after a first down, the Bucks were forced to punt.

It was then, with the drive beginning at the Canadian 44, that Wilson began "getting worried." He inserted Jeff Kirkland, who was not supposed to play due to a minor shoulder injury, and Canadian

An offsides call on the Bucks on third and 12 from the 'Cats' 42 prompted Wilson to call timeout. Canadian came back with a 19-yard Kirkland to Brad Rogers first down pass.

Wright gave the 'Cats a first down at the Bucks' 19, then again at the 9. Kirkland carried to the 2, but a clipping penalty pushed the ball to the 17. Canadian moved to the 5 when Kirkland got seven yards on a middle screen, plus another five and a first down when White Deer was penalized for rough-

Wright carried twice and went in off left tackle. He added the conversion with 40 seconds left in the half, and Canadian went in ahead an uncomfort-

The game swung the Wildcats' way early in the third quarter, in the form of a Kelly Northcott interception and a case of monkey see.

The Bucks' Davis was trying to hit Haynes on a curl out, but the ball bounced off the tight end's hands and to the White Deer 35 and Canadian's Northcott had nothing but grass in front of him and raced unmolested into the end zone. But the Cats were called for clipping on the play and instead got the football on the 37.

But they were back on White Deer's door after a 23-yard Wilson pass to Cervantes, who brought the ball in on his fingertips at the 10.

But White Deer's Greene returned the interception disfavor, taking a deflected Wilson pass to the Bucks' 19. Which couldn't prevent them from fumbling two plays later, and Canadian's Jim Cook from recovering.

Using the usual quick count, Wilson threw right to Kirkland for 13. Wright went left two yards for the touchdown, and after the kick a 14-0 Canadian lead at the 4:51 mark. White Deer's offense failed to gain a first down in the third period, and Cross' punt was returned to the Bucks' 47. McLanahan gained five. Wright's most spectacular run was next.

The 185-pound senior took the ball left, bounced off tacklers, went right, bounced off more, cut to the sideline, bounced off more, then finished the remainder of the 42 yards in a stiff-armed sprint. Probably exhausted, he missed the PAT, but it was

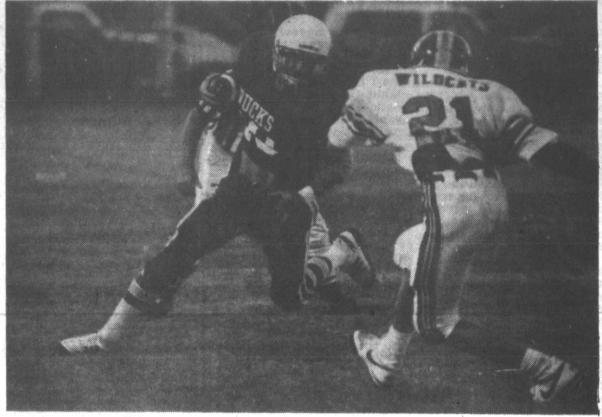

After the kickoff, an 11-yard sack of Davis by Tim Purser and Wright nailing of Todd Lafferty left the Bucks at their 7. Then Kirkland intercepted Davis and returned the ball to the 22.

On first down, Wilson lofted the ball to Cervantes in the end zone, and the junior tight end made another fingertip catch. Wright was good this time, and the Wildcats took a sudden 27-0 lead into the fourth quarter.

Both teams substituted freely the final 12 minutes, during which backups Jason Marler and Bryan Thurmond led White Deer on its touchdown drive. Marler carried twice for 23 yards to the Canadian 41, then got five more on a face masking call. Thurmond took a trap play 20 yards. Bryan Waitman got four, then Green burst 12 yards up the middle for a touchdown. The Bucks missed a twopoint try, and the scoring was finished.

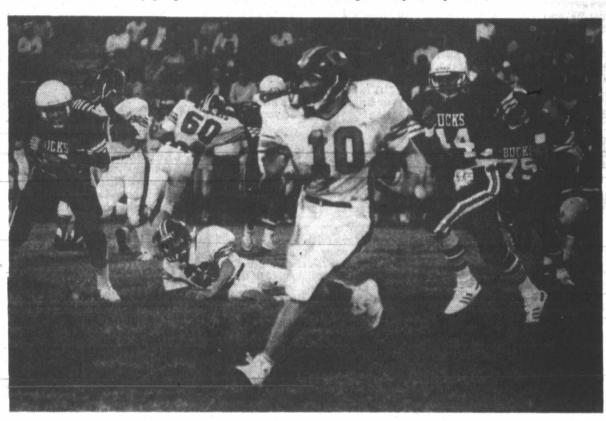

The 'Cats finished with 351 total yards, 128 passing, to White Deer's 106.

'We had more personnel than they did," Wilson said afterward. "Our offense was out of sync as was theirs. We're glad to get out of here.

GROOM — Groom coach Terry move the ball. Coffee feels much better now about his Tigers than he did at half-Rambo was able to calm 'em ten's kick, a 14-6 lead. Clarendon here Friday night.

Then, the Tigers were jittery and slightly disoriented and led the Broncos just 7-6. Now, Coffee and Groom are looking back on a second half assault after which the Tigers had buried the Broncos 41-6.

Groom's players were missing assignments on both sides of the ball in the first half, and everything seemed out of sync. Clarendon had gained 121 yards and taken a 6-0 lead that looked like it might last until the half.

The Broncos scored on a 30yard pass from Wes Hatley to Jake LaGrone but missed a twopoint conversion try, then Groom began clicking.

With two minutes to go, the Tigers drove 65 yards for the tying touchdown, which came on a sixyard Bruce Thornton to Brent Thompson pass with :45 left. A 25-yard Thompson to Stoney Crump screen spurred the drive, and after Jack Britten's PAT Groom led 7-6.

'We had to go back in at halftime and get 'em calmed down a little bit," Coffee said. "I think it lifted the kids up knowing they made that drive, and the coaches found something we could do to time of their season opener with down a little bit and explain the things they needed to change. The main thing he had to do was get 'em to do what they were taught to. I guess they came out with that gleam in their eyes."

> "We came out in the second half and had an excellent defensive game," Coffee said.

Offensively, Groom went about gaining most of its 323 total yards, while Brent Thornton and Britten mowed the Clarendon de fenders. Thornton finished with 117 yards on 18 carries and three touchdowns while Britten had 107 in 17 tries and one TD, and Paul Williams added 64 yards on five attempts.

"Those two boys ran like they were about 250 pounds," Coffee marvelled. "They may be two of the best backs around. It was unbelievable watching those kids. I've never seen our backs run like

Then Brent scored again from eight yards out, and his quarterbacking brother Bruce finished off the scoring on a one-yard plunge, after which Britten missed his only kick. At 41-6, it didn't matter

"It's been a long time since a Groom team came from behind and stayed in there," Coffee said.

Groom had 323 total yards to 132 for Clarendon, whose top two rushers had just 64 yards on 25 attempts. Brent's play at middle linebacker and the efforts of Michael Rose and Thompson in the secondary were praised by Coffee

Really, he was happy with the whole team.

"They made a big impression on us, 'cause we've got to go out and beat some people."

Rampaging Warriors bushwhack Cotton Center, 60-18

COTTON CENTER — Miami had only run two offensive plays in the first quarter against Cotton Center here Friday night, and the Warriors already led the Elks 21-0.

Little changed after that as miann manied Cotton Center 60-16 to kick off a season of high expectations appropriately. The Warriors are -0 while the Elks are 0-1.

Cotton Center got the opening kickoff but Miami held, then Shane Bridwell blocked the Elks' punt and Miami took over 11 yards from their goal. It took exactly one play for Jeff Bass to dart into the end zone, and after Brett Byrum passed to Bridwell for the conversion the Warriors held a 7-0 lead with 7:18 left in the quarter.

Cotton Center then began a drive that ended abruptly as John Locke took a pass interception back 67 yards for another touchdown. Byrum hit Lloyd Cook for the PAT and the Warriors led 14-0 with 2:32 re-

The Elks got the kickoff, but returned the ball to Miami with less than a minute to play. That was their mistake. On the Warriors' econd snap of the season, Byrum found Bridwell for a 56-yard scoring strike and, after the conversion, Miami led 21-0 in a game but 9:18 old.

We only ran four plays in the first quarter," said Miami's obviously pleased Currie McWilliams. "We were really pleased. The kids did a

A good job that continued in the second stanza as the Warriors tacked 20 more points on the board enroute to a 41-6 halftime lead. Locke provided the next score, this time on offense, as with 7:41 left ne took a dive 23 yards for a touchdown. Chad Breeding's run made it 28-D. Locke repeated himself three minutes later, this time from 16 ards out, and the Byrum-to-Cook conversion put Miami up 35-0.

"The touchdowns were all simple dive plays up the middle," McWilliams put in.

Cotton Center finally got on the board following Locke's third TD as Atchlop popped a 52 pender that made the score 35-6 at the 3:38

The first half would see one more touchdown, however, as Bass darted 26 yards with 12 ticks remaining to make it 41-6, which the score remained after the Warriors missed the conversion. The Elks' Rene Garcia broke loose from 16 yards at the 3:19 mark of the third quarter to make the score 41-12, but Miami retaliated quickly With 2:12 to go in the stanza, Locke rambled 38 yards to put the Warriors up 47-12.

At the start of the fourth quarter from the Miami 17, Byrum sent Bass on a deep fly pattern and lofted a towering spiral. Bass scampered under it, caught it then pranced into the end zone, completing a 63-yard scoring strike covered mostly by air.

"It was a beautiful pass," McWilliams said. Breeding's run made the score 54-12 with 9:13 to go in the game. Cotton Center avoided having the game called on points at the 6:19 mark as Atchley scored from four yards out, making it 54-18.

But the Warriors, able to score at will, did 23 seconds later on a

48-yard strike from Byrum to Bridwell, ending the scoring mercifully For the game, Miami had 374 total yards to the Elks' 259, and because the Warriors scored so quickly Cotton Center led in first downs 14-8. Miami exhibited a balanced offense with 182 rushing yards and 192 passing, while the Elks got 242 on the ground and just 17 vi

Locke led the Warriors with 86 rushing yards on six carries, Base had 72 on five Byrum was seven of 10 for 173 yards and TDs, while Eric Gillis hit two of five for 19 yards. Tight end Bri was the leading receiver with three catches for 107 yards.

So powerful was Miami, which next weeks hosts highly-regain Threeway, on offense that Cotton Center recorded just nine tackles and the game. The Warriors began substituting freely with "The Wild Bunch," their younger players, after the first quarter.

Defensively, two Miami players each recorded more tackles than the entire Elks' team.

Noseguard Clint Wheeler, being blocked by an Elk 25 pounds heavier, logged 12 stops and McWilliams' praise. "Clint Wheeler just totally dominated the middle of the field."

McWilliams said. Steve Anderson, Wheeler's replacement midway through the first half, responded with 13 tackles, while Locke had seven, Brock Thompson six and Shane Fields six. Byrum, Breeding and Thompson each had fumble recoveries and Locke an interception.

"The defense did a heck of a job," McWilliams said. "We can move the ball on anybody in the state, but the defense has to do the job for us to win. They played well, particularly Clint Wheeler.

The people in Miami are excited about this season, and more of the Warriors' fans attended the game than did host Cotton Centers'. "The folks are excited about it," McWilliams beamed. "They're really gonna come and support the kids this year. That's good."

So was the Warriors' first performance.

Big plays, luck lift Irish past McLean

SHAMROCK - You look at the statistics and it's tough to figure out how Shamrock beat McLean 32-0 here Friday night.

The Irish gained 305 total yards, but the Tigers gained 189 and had 11 first downs to Shamrock's 10. But then, you look at the turnovers and then at the lengths of the touchdowns, and you see that the Irish big-played McLean to death.

Shamrock converted three of four Tigers turnovers into touchdowns, and stopped two deep McLean drives. Meanwhile, every Irish score was coming from no closer than 22 yards.

"They kept hitting us with the big play," McLean coach Bill Phillips said. "They ran a lot of counter action and our linebackers went with the first flow. We just never really adjusted to it.

'Offensively we did a super job. We were able to move the ball well, and we got more yardage and first downs than at any time last year. To start the game we drove it to their 20 and fumbled the doggone thing. It was a 60-yard drive but we fumbled.

"At the start of second quarter, we got it to their two and they held us. We had a chance to go ahead of them."

Luck stayed with the Irish on the Tigers' next possession, as Eddie Garza intercepted Jim Anderson and returned it 50 yards for a touchdown. Shamrock led 13-0 at halftime.

"The kid just played the ball perfectly," Phillips said. "Our mistakes killed us.

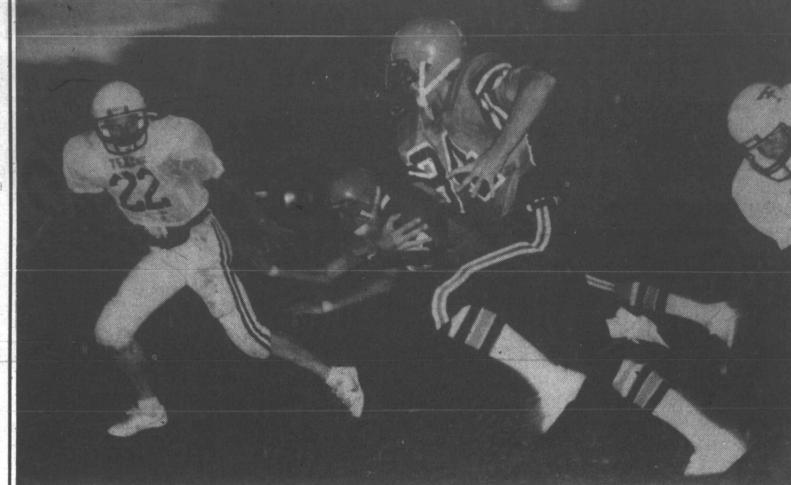

McLean continued to move the ball in the second half, led by Clint Herndon who had 76 yards rushing, but Shamrock continued to hold the luck.

The Irish got a 49-yard burst from Garza and Daugherty broke runs of 34 and 22 yards to finish the scoring. Shamrock had one turnover to McLean's two fumbles and two interceptions.

"Really, I can't fault the kids," Phillips said. "They did a super job and they played as hard as I've seen a bunch of kids play since I've been here. Our kids felt like they played pretty good, and I felt like it, but when you look at the score it doesn't seem that way. That's football though.

six-man ball, and the one Kirk Kerbo made after Keys' score was the difference in the game.

Texline twice got the ball back, but each time the Pirates responded with fierce defense and the Tornado never threatened the Lefors goal. The Pirates soon were celebrating their first six-man win.

"They were pleased with themselves in the second half," Fountain said. "They were very disappointed in their first half. I don't know what it was. I guess it was nervousness.

"Defensively we played the second half a lot tougher than the first half. When we made the some minor adjustments at halftime they adapted to it real well, and it worked. I was pleased with their performance in the second half after we made our minor adjustments. It was really a defensive game.

Lefors finished with 250 total yards (160 rushing and 90 passing with 11 first downs), while Texline had 287 yards, 263 of them

Kent Kerbo led Lefors with 77 yards on 18 carries, while Keys had 69 on 10 carries and Mitchell Flores 18 on four.

Kevin Howe was the leading receiver with 82 yards on four catches, and Jamie Wariner had one catch for eight yards. Lefors fans turned out in numbers for the game, which was better-attended than even homecoming last season.

'They were curious about what this six-man is about." Fountain said. "We won so maybe they'll be back."

If his Pirates keep winning the fans'll keep coming. 'Now maybe that they've got one under their belts it'll be all right," Fountain said. "The kids know they've got to work harder this week and every week. They told us, 'Yessir, we've got to work a lot harder.'

Holieway capped a 12-play, 80-yard drive with a six-yard touchdown run midway through the second period, putting the Sooners ahead to stay, 10-3.

Patrick Collins' one-yard TD run with 2:15 left made it 17-3 following the third of four first-half interceptions thrown by UCLA's Matt Stevens. A fifth interception in the final period equaled the most ever thrown in a game by UCLA.

Sophomore Leon Perry, Oklahoma's backup fullback, rambled 24 yards for a thirdquarter touchdown and Mitchel scered on a 10-yard run barely two minutes after he entered the game late in the period. He also ran a yard for Oklahoma's final touchdown with 6:10 left in the game.

Open seat, five challenges highlight congressional races

WASHINGTON (AP) - Republicans concede that two freshman GOP Texas congressmen are vulnerable to defeat this year, while Democrats insist their incumbents are immune from up-

Both parties say they hope to cut into each other's territory, with Republicans targeting three Democrats and Democrats aiming to reclaim three districts.

'We will pick up seats in November in Texas," said Rep. Tony Coehlo, D-Calif., chairman of the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee.

"Certainly, we don't have the luxury of Ronald Reagan on the ticket in 1986, I wish we did, I'd feel better about our changes to win," said Kelly Johnston, regional field manager for the National Republican Congressional Committee. "But overall, we have no reason not to be enthu-

With Ronald Reagan at the top of the ticket in 1984, Republicans won in four districts that had been Democratic. They also held onto two open GOP seats. That raised their share of the 27member delegation from four to an unprecedented 10 members.

Two of the "six-pack" of GOP freshmen - Mac Sweeney of Wharton and Joe Barton of Ennis - appeared to be in for tough reelection races, according to spokesmen for both parties.

But both parties claim an edge in winning the open seat that Republican Tom Loeffler of Hunt left for an unsuccessful run at the GOP nomination for governor. That race pits long-time Democratic state Sen. Pete Snelson against former Bexar County Commissioner Lamar Smith.

The huge district, which stretches from San Antonio to Big Bend, has traditionally been represented by a West Texan, but the corner comprised by Bexar County has a disproportionate number of the voters.

Loeffler won the seat in 1978 after Democrat Bob Krueger resigned to run for the U.S. Senate.

Snelson was being dramatically outspent by Smith, but Snelson is well-known in the district from his years in the state Senate.

"He's a popular, local Texas Democrat and he's running on his record," said Mark Johnson, a spokesman for the Democratic Congressional Campaign Com-

"This is a Republican district," said the GOP's Johnston, noting that Clements received 62 percent of the vote in the 1982 gubernatorial election even though he lost statewide.

Three Democratic incumbents have been targeted by the Republicans - John Bryant of Dallas, Jake Pickle of Austin and Ron Coleman of El Paso — as being out of touch with voters in their

"Every House Democratic incumbent from Texas will be reelected in the fall," Coehló said flatly

In perhaps the worst trouble is Sweeney, who defeated incumbent Democrat Bill Patman of Ganado in 1984. He has been accused by members of his congressional staff of insisting that they work on his re-election campaign, and newspapers in the district wrote that his congressional office expenditures are the highest among the Texas delegation.

Mac has certainly been the victim of pretty harsh attacks, and some of it may even be justified," said Johnston. "But he's done a tremendous job of representing his district.'

Despite Sweeney's vulnerability, Democrats were unable to recruit a "name" candidate to run against him. He faces attorney Greg Laughlin of West Columbia.

'Sweeney is an extremely vulnerable fella, but our candidate is an absolute novice," said a Democrat in Washington who did not want to be quoted by Both Laughlin and Sweeney have borrowed heavily to finance their campaigns.

Barton faces a more formidable opponent, Fort Worth attorney Pete Geren, former state director for Democratic Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, in a district that Democrats see as basically theirs.

The 6th, which stretches from Houston to Dallas, was represented by Democrats until Phil Gramm switched parties in 1983 and won a special election as a Republican.

Gramm left the seat to run for the Senate. Barton banely squeaked through the 1984 GOP primary, then won the general election without much trouble.

Barton received some negative attention when he was accused of inflating his engineering credentials on his resume. But he has avoided Democratic complaints about Republican response to the woes of the oil industry by going against the Republican tide and supporting an oil import fee. If Democrats are hoping to reclaim Barton and Sweeney's districts. Republicans say they are confident of picking up two districts they say are becoming increasingly Republican.

is running against John Bryant as too liberal for the East Dallas constituency. But Bryant is in better shape for campaign.

In Austin, the constituency is affected by the University of Texas vote, which has been shifting from liberal Democrat to Republican Pickle, who was elected in 1963 to the seat that Lyndon Johnson once held, faces former Austin Mayor Carole Keeton Rylander, who switched to the GOP to run against Pickle.

Like Bryant and Pickle, Republicans say, Coleman's politics are out of sync with his constituency. They are running accountant Roy Gillia against him.

Republicans seem to have dropped their earlier touting of a possible upset in the 12th district represented by Jim Wright, who is expected to become speaker of the House next year.

Wright, of Fort Worth, faces Alvarado businessman Don McNiel.

The other incumbents were not expected to have trouble in their

PHS Rodeo Club hosts annual Tri-State rodeo

Two months of preparation have gone into the Tri-State High School Rodeo, set here Sept. 13, at the Top O' Texas Rodeo grounds, East Highway 60.

Ten members of the Pampa High School Rodeo Club have put hours of work into getting ready for the yearly event which brings an expected 160 high school rodeo contestants from three states to Pampa.

Two performances are planned at the rodeo grounds, the first at 11 a.m. and the second at 6 p.m. The public is invited to watch the high school rodeoers compete in 10 events: bull riding, bareback bronc riding, calf roping, break-away calf roping, ribbon roping, steer wrestling, team roping, barrel racing, pole bending and goat tying.

Members of the Pampa rodeo club who have put their time and talents into hosting this rodeo include Wade Helton, president; Leslie Leggett, vice president; Amy Cockrell, secretary; Keziah Rucker, reporter; and members, Cydney Morriss, Tammy Sexton, Tammy Greene, Kasey Rice, Matt Maul and Cathy Taylor.

Donald and Donna Maul are headsponsors of the club, assisted by co-sponsor, Janice Rucker.

Proceeds from the rodeo help pay entry fees and travel expenses so the Pampa youth can attend the rodeo finals in

"These kids put on as good a rodeo as any professional rodeo in the country," says Rucker. "Some of them compete in the PRCA (the professional rodeo organization)."

Rucker urges local residents to support the local club by attending the Tri-State High School Rodeo here next Saturday. "It's heartbreaking for the kids to do all this and try to pay their way and nobody goes (to the rodeo) but the parents," she says.

Each member school of the Tri-State High School Rodeo Association sends a team of four boys and three girls to nine consecutive rodeos in the fall and about a dozen rodeos in the spring. At the end of the year a high point boys and high point girls team is selected.

Pampa's rodeo club won high point girls team in 1985-1986 and the boys were awarded high point team in 1983-1984. Pampa's girls team won high point at the first rodeo of the season held in Canadian recently.

Dorman-Barkley

Rebecca Joyce Dorman and Randy Allen Barkley exchanged wedding vows, Aug. 2, in an early afternoon ceremony at the First Christian Church of Pampa with the Rev. Dean Rutherford of Christ Christian Church of Yukon, Okla., officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Richard and Jenny Dorman of Pampa. Parents of the groom are Clarence and Linda Horton of Mt. Valley, Attending the bride were Mary Duke of Yukon, and bridesmaids Susette Edwards of Amarillo and Janell Hedrick of Canyon. Flower girls were Jennifer Horton, the groom's sister of Mt. Valley and Allison Jones of Yukon. Carmen Nalls of Yukon registered guests.

Tom Albus of Trinity stood as best man. Groomsmen were Tony Wayne Horton of Pampa, the groom's brother, and Richie Dorman of Pampa, the bride's brother. Candlelighters were Jimmy Duke of Yukon and Jason Horton of Mt. Valley, the groom's brother. Jeremy Horton of Mt. Valley, also a brother of the groom, was ring bearer. Music for the wedding service was provided by Martha Boswell of

Pampa, organist, and soloist Penny Stover of Yukon. After the wedding, the couple were guests of honor at a reception in the church parlor. Serving were Janet Dorman of Dallas and Dara

Henley of Canadian. After a honeymoon trip to Colorado Springs, Colo., the couple will make their home in Yukon.

The bride graduated from Pampa High School in 1984. She attended West Texas State University in Canyon.

Barkley is a 1983 graduate of Labet County High School, Altamont, Kan. He attended Parsons Junior College in Parsons, Kan., and Frank Phillips College in Borger. He is employed by Executive Cabinet Company of Oklahoma City.

The bride is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Myron Dorman Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. Carlton Freeman, all of Pampa, and of Flo Ratliff of Yukon. She is the great granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Merchant of San Angelo and Mr. and Mrs. Joe Deason of Amarillo.

ENROLLMENT TIME IS HERE All Gray County 4-H Clubs are starting their meetings for the 1986-87 school year. Leaders have been planning and making preparations for a year full of great meetings and fun. It's important to attend regular monthly club meetings in order to find out about the projects going on in the county. It's also important to sign a new green enrollment form for this year. Those who do not sign a new one will be dropped from the maning list by October Call the County Extension office at 669-7429 for more information.

TIME TO THINK ABOUT SHOW ANIMALS

It's that time of year to start thinking about getting livestock project animals purchased.

The approximate deadlines for having animals on feed are: steers - Oct. 13; lambs - Nov. 13; and pigs - Nov. 26.

Most already have their steers on feed, most lambs will be bought in September, and most people will buy pigs the last part of October or first part of November. For help in selecting show animals, contact the County Extension office. LAMB FEEDERS MEETING Any Gray Copunty 4-H'ers who will have a lamb on feed need to attend a lamb feeders meeting Thursday at 7 p.m. at the Courthouse Annex.

Selection of show lambs and facilities will be discussed.

RECREATION HELP IS HERE Clubs that needs a shot of fun and enthusiasm may call on the Gray County 4-H Recreation Team. In March, a group of Gray County 4-H'ers participated in Longhorn Recreation Workshop in Brownwood. Since then they have been sharing what they learned in party planning, recreation leadership, vespers and

They are available to come to the club and conduct a party, give a program on various types of recreation, or whatever else needed in the area of recreation. Team members are: Sherri and Stacie McDonald, Mary White, Becky Reed, and leader, Janie VanZandt.

4-H AWARDS BANQUET

It's time to think about our 4-H awards Banquet set for Oct. 25. Some of the awards given are by leaders' recommendations.

Below is a list of county awards which leaders must submit nomination forms for so the outstanding 4-ri ers can be soon

Couple observe 50th anniversary

Ariza and Anna Belle Corcoran of Mobeetie celebrated their golden anniversary Saturday with a reception at the Hospitality Room of the Mobeetie First State Bank. The event was hosted by the couple's children and grandchildren.

Mr. Corcoran married the former Anna Belle Stracener on Sept. 6, 1936, at Mobeetie. They have lived in the community for the entire 50 years of their marriage.

Mr. Corocoran is a self-employed farmer-rancher in Wheeler County. Mrs. Corcoran is a semi-retired cafeteria manager with the Mobeetie school district.

Children of the couple are Arica Lancaster of Amarillo and Ray

Corcoran of SugarLand. In addition to their children, they have four MR. & MRS. ARIZA COROCORAN grandchildren and one great grandson.

Program helps children with aging parents

Understanding the problems of aging parents can be difficult for adult children, says Jana McKinney, director of social services at Coronado Community Hospital. That's why McKinney plans to conduct a workshop "As Parents Grow Older" to help grown children understand these problems.

The six sessions, beginning Sent 18 also enlighten partici-pants about the special needs or the elderly.

Classes are set for each Thursday for six weeks from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. in the hospital's private dining room with the last session on Oct. 23. Anyone interested may pre-register by calling the hospital at 665-3721, ext. 254. Fee for the workshop is $15 per participant.

"Young adults may be surprised at what they find out," McKinney said. A parent may look to his offspring for more support, but there is never a complete role reversal, she said. An adult "child" also should ask for counsel from the elderly in order to protect their self images.

"We try to help people maintain a balance between their own needs, their own family's needs, and the older parents' needs," she said.

The classes also examine the physiological complications of growing older. With media aids, group members experience first hand what it is like to have blur-

Actress Viki Boyle sharpens her microwaving skills.

Boyle shines in comedy

By CATHY SPAULDING Staff Writer

AMARILLO - Viki Boyle spent the last 10 years of her life appearing in 20 Country Squire Dinner Theater production and what thanks does she get?

In Cookin' With Gus, her 21st appearance at the dinner theater, she gets to end each performance drenched in goulash, Jello gelatin and other edibles.

"It's awful," she moans. "I go home in the middle of the night and pick spaghetti out of my

"It's the craziest show," she says of the play, which runs through October 3. "We all end up in a food fight, and I know we're going to end up with somebody's cleaning bill.

"It all happens so quickly," she adds. "We fight and fight and none of it hurts until about an hour after rehearsals.

My character, Gussie Richardson, writes a cooking column and she gets an offer for her own TV show," Boyle explains. 'The only problem is that she's deathly afraid to speak in public.

So Gussie gets hypnotized by her boyfriend to overcome her fear. Her boyfriend (played by Steve Abolt) plants a posthypnotic suggestion that she take a swig when a certain word is mentioned.

"The Vita-mita-vegamin episode of the I Love Lucy show was the first thing I thought of when I read the script," she says. And Cookin' With Gus is a lot like those screwball situation comedies of the 1950s, Boyle

"Oh, there's a nice little love story in there, too," she stresses. 'And there's a gypsy next door (played by Tascosa High School drama teacher Pegi Lovett) who works with her and she's a lush."

For those who think that staging a food fight or other madcap antics is a piece of cake, Boyle begs to disagree.

"I don't think people would just laugh at a pie in the face," she says. "It's hard work to make it look like it's honest. It's harder to get someone to laugh than it is to make someone feel badly.

"But I think it's more satisfying, even if it is messier," she adds. "It's gratifying to see a roomful of people laugh and to know that you had a part of that.

"Serious drama is a sensitive area because you never know how people will be affected by it," Boyle says. "I admire the people who do the dramas, but I don't think I can take the responsibility. That's why Boyle's 21 appearances at the Country Squire have all been comedies. Among them: The Owl and The Pussycat, Lunch Hour, I Do! I Do!, Last of the Red Hot Lovers.

Her first appearance was as a distraught housekeeper in the 1977 production of Boeing, Boeing. And that production, she recalls, may have saved her acting career.

"I was in St. Louis and I was ready to give up and sign up for a real estate course. Then Joe Barone, the play's director, called and said 'Do you think you can come out?' and I said 'I'll be on the next plane,'' she recalls.
That was nearly 10 years ago and Boyle and Barone have come back to the Amarillo dinner theater for more and more and more. For reservations and show times for Cooking With Gus, call Amarillo's Country Squire Dinner Theatre at 358-7486

Aerobics show instructor to conduct classes here today

Internationally-known aerobic show host Gilad Janklowicz is to be in Pampa today conducting two special classes for the public. Janklowicz is to be leading classes at Slendercize in the Pampa Youth and Community Center from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m., today. Enrollment is $5 per class. Locally, Janklowicz can be seen on cable television Channel 5 at 5 a.m. and 11 a.m. in the morning, and two days a week at 5 p.m.

Teacher, lecturer, former Israeli decathlon champion, exercise and fitness expert, instructor and writer, Janklowicz's colorful background coupled with his unique unconventional and physiologically safe approach to a home video aerobic workout program places him at the forefront of his field.

Born in an Israeli kibbutz, the son of American-born parents, Janklowicz's direction in life came early on as he began to excel in athletics. Breaking the youth national record for the decathlon in high school, he was honored "Youth Athlete of the Year" when a senior.

Joining the military service directly after high school, Janklowicz's talents were quickly put to use with his first assignment, taking charge of the base's physical fitness training program. In 1975, while still in the service, he won gold medals for the decathlon and broke the national decathlon record, which remained unbroken for two years. Janklowicz began training for the 1980 Olympic decathlon in America. During his intense training, however, an injury to his Achilles heel put a halt to any hopes of the Olympics. "

Undaunted, the athlete entered U.S.C.A. and also taught aerobics. He later became a personal fitness consultant to some of the best known athletes and celebrities in the country. This business brought him to Hawaii where he was asked to condcut aerobic sessions as part of the convention of the Young Presidents Organization headed by Peter Uberroth on Maui. Former presidents Gerald Ford and Jimmy Carter were in attendence.

Reaction to his workout sessions was so positive that film crews were brought in to create a home video for the 480 members of the Young Presidents Organization to take home, giving birth to Janklowicz's "Bodies in Motion."

Teaching privately and also giving workout sessions at the Honolulu Club, Janklowicz's idea for "Bodies in Motion" became a daily program on KIKU-TV. ABC sports soon placed him under contract with "Bodies in Motion" now appearing on ESPN Cable Network and Oceanic Cablevision in Hawaii, as well as markets in the U.S., Mexico, Canada, Hong Kong. It will soon be seen in Australia, New Zealand, Great Britain and Israel.

Janklowicz has taken the best of his shows produced in Hawaii and put together a montage for the home video market. Entitled "The Best of Bodies in Motion" this home aerobic routine incorporates his famous split workout approach that makes the most of each exercise in complete physiological safety, as well as making maximum use of an individual's mental energy to complement the physical energy exerted during workout.

ans underway for Panhandle's centennial

PANHANDLE - The 21st Carson County Square House Museum Day, Oct. 11, is to coincide with the celebration of Panhandle's 100th birthday and the arrival of the Southern Kansas (Santa Fe) railroad to its Texas terminal, Panhandle City.

Events of the day begin with the opening of an exhibit featuring the art of Frederic Remington whose art depicts not only the rough and rowdy frontier life of the cowboy, but the everyday life of the pioneer. This exhibit is to be in the Opal Weatherly Purvines annex of the museum complex. More than 50 wood engravings, on loan from a private collection in Santa Fe, N.M., appeared originally in Harper's Weekly. Six Remington bronze sculptures from private collections will also be on display. This will be the first time the Remington exhibit has been shown in this

The art gallery opens at 9 a.m. until 9:30 p.m., Oct. 11. The Remington engravings will be displayed Oct. 5 through Nov. . 7, but the bronzes will be on exhibit on Oct. 11 and from 1 p.m. to 5:30 p.m., Oct. 12, only.

At 2 p.m., Oct. 11, the 27th Pioneer Day and program is set in the Panhandle High School auditorium. In a salute to Santa Fe Railway's 100th year and the completion of its grade into Texas in 1886, David Valentine, general manager of the western lines of Santa Fe, is to be guest speaker. A surprise presentation of a major addition to the museum's permanent art collection will also be made at this program. Concluding the program will be the audio-visual presentation, "The First 100 Years: Those Who Came; Those Who Stayed." A historical slide presentation, documented by the Square House Museum from the thousands of old photographs in its collection, will be filmed by Billy Shumate and Don Markham

Schedule Events

9 a.m. to 9:30 a.m. - Art exhibits at museum.

9:30 a.m. to 8 p.m. — Country Store at Agricultural Building.

2 p.m. — Museum Day program at Panhandle High School auditorium. David Valentine, speaker, "100 Years with Santa Fe." Slide presentation, The First 100 Years: Those Who Came; Those Who Stayed. Polish folk music.

3:30 p.m. — Pioneer Tea, War Memorial Building. Judging best costumes. Panhandle City's birthday cake.

4:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. — Barbecue at the Carson County Agriculture Building.

with a narration by Billy Bob Brown, grandson of pioneers, Mr. and Mrs. O.P. Russ. The Russ family arrived in 1910 with a family of 20 adopted children from Missouri. The affternoon program will conclude with Polish folk songs by the Polish citizens in authentic costumes.

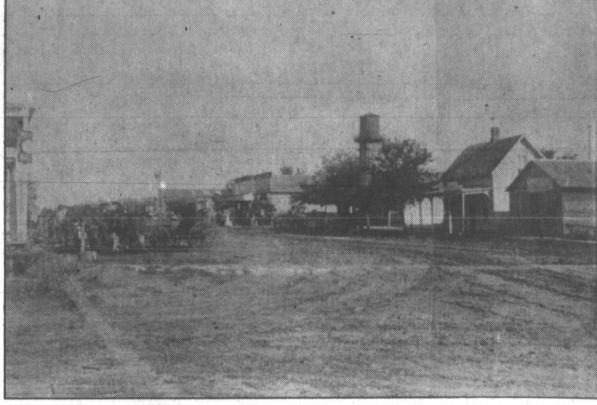

A pioneer reunion and tea is set for 3:30 p.m. at the War Memorial Building.

Citizens are urged to attend the day's festivities in costume. If the traditional pioneer calico dress is not worn, women may chose a dress similar to one worn by a pioneer forebear in a family portrait. Men are asked to wear brown or black pants, string tie, vest with watch chain and either a western hat for cattlemen or the bowler for the city slickers.

Prizes will be awarded to the pioneer who has traveled the greatest distance to attend the reunion, the pioneer who has lived in the area the longest period of time and the oldest pioneer. Three prizes will be awarded for best costumes. A "Happy Birthday - Panhandle 100th Year" cake is to be cut at the pioneer tea.

The annual barbecue is to be served from 4:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. in the County Agricultural Building, 814 E. 3rd St. Area citizens, 375 in all, donate and prepare the food for the barbecue which is the annual fundraising event for the Square House Museum. Tickets are $5 each.

More than 50 beef hindquarters will be barbecued, with servings of large slices of beef typical of prime rib. Almost 50 gallons of sweet pickles have been made, along with potato salad, fresh cooked beans and sliced onions prepared by volunteers at the Catholic Parish Hall. Citizens of Groom are making homemade bread and White Deer residents will bring homemade jams and jellies. Coffee and tea will be served by the Panhandle Rotary Club.

An additional attraction at the barbecue will be 14 door prizes totaling $2,200 including $200 gift certificates to $25 cafeteria gift certificates. Sets of luggage, radios and figurines are among the prizes donated by area merchants. Donors need not be present to win a door prize which will be announced at the conclusion of the day's events.

A unique Country Store features home baked cakes, bread and pies plus crafts at the County Agricultural Building, 814 E. 3rd. St. from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m.

"Charlie Bell: Cowboy" a major video production of the Carson County Square House Museum, funded by Don & Sybil Harrington Foundation, is to be shown throughout the day in the Freedom Hall Building of the museum complex. There is no admission charge to any of the events of the day except the barbecue dinner.

Parents and teens:

Sessions address communication skills

AMARILLO - Today's teenagers are often engulfed by influences and stresses which threaten their physical and emotional health, their social adjustment and their plans for the future. Parents and professionals are constantly seeking ways to improve the communication process with teens and combat potential problems. Six organizations have combined efforts to address these issues by sponsoring "Teens and Parents: How to Talk - How to Listen.'

A unique educational experience, using drama to heighten the awareness of teen problems and pressures is available for teens Thursday. An evening performance by the TeenAge Communication Theatre (TACT) is a different approach to exploring young people's problems. The performance is set for 7 p.m. at Presbyterian Church, 1100 S. Harrison. Cost is $2.

TACT is an improvisational theatre troupe of teens dealing with issues such as peer pressure, teen pregnancy and substance abuse. The troupe stages a three-part production. Part one consists of a series of open-ended skits addressing problem issues.

In part two, actors return to the stage and, while remaining in character, invite questions and comments from the audience. Part three is a question and answer time with the actors about their participation in the TACT project.

"Teen Stress: The Pressure Cooker," "Developing Self Esteem in Children," "Families in Transition," and "Communication about Sexuality,' will be some of the topics for the day-long workshop on Friday, Dr. Drew Alexander, associate professor of pediatrics at the University of Texas Medical School in Dallas will give the keynote address, defining what a "normal teen" is, the changes that occur and how these changes affect behavior. This special workshop offers new approaches and solutions to teen and family problems with emphasis on learning to discuss everyday dilemmas and avert crisis before it arises.

The workshop is also set in Fellowship Hall of the First Presbyterian Church in Amarillo. It begins at 8 a.m. and cost is $25 ($15 for students).

For more information or to make reservations, please contact Planned Parenthood, 606 W. 8th, Amarillo, 79101, or telephone 372-8731.

Co-sponsoring agencies for the two-segment event include Golden Spread chapter of the March of Dimes, High Plains Perinatal Association, Texas Department of Human Services, Panhandle Social Services Forum, Texas Tech University Health Science Center - Department of Pediatrics and Planned Parenthood.

Couple to lead busy retirement

OREANA, Ill. (AP) — Alice and Warren Brooks have prepared resumes, had tests, physical exams and shots and been through several interviews.

After getting ready for more than a year, they sometimes feel like they are going off to school.

But the Brookses instead are prepared for the first two years of what they plan to be a very active retirement. And they don't intend to play bingo and putter around in the yard.

The couple is headed for Swaziland, Africa, to spend two years as missionaries for the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ). Alice will take care of the records; Warren will rebuild rural churches.

'We've always wanted to go somewhere," Alice said. "But we always thought we'd be too old to go. Early retirement gave me the incentive to try. I didn't feel ready to go out to pasture and didn't want to sit in a chair."

Alice, 61, who worked at A.E. Staley Mfg. Co., retired last October when incentives were given for early retirement. And Warren, 63, retired early from Jewel Food Stores in mid-May.

They began applying for mission positions about a year ago. The house is rented to a "young couple who likes to garden," who Alice said would enjoy her 17 flower beds, and the Brookses are looking forward to their adven-

"We thought at first we would live in a hut with a thatched roof," Warren said. "But they are giving us a two-story house. And the town we will be living in is twice as big as Oreana.

The couple said what they will miss most about leaving is their eight grandchildren.

Woman seeks long-term love not just short-term romance

By Abigail Van Buren

every day and have never seen my problem addressed. I am 41, single and a fairly attractive young woman. (Some men have even called me beautiful.) I have a good personality and have no trouble attracting men - but I can't keep After dating a man for a while, by the time I fall in love with him, I find out he isn't "in love" with me. He's comfortable, happy and considers our relationship "wonderful," but he's not interested in me as a lifetime partner. I am not desperate, but every time I find a new man and develop a relationship with him, he makes me feel as if I'm pushing him for a commitment; then he breaks off with me.

Please help me. I don't want to be single forever.

NEEDS HELP

DEAR NEEDS: If every new man in your life makes you feel like you're pushing him for a commitment, you are - either consciously or unconsciously. In your next relationship, say absolutely nothing about where the relationship is going, no hinting about marriage, a solid commitment or anything that could be construed as "pressure." Then if nothing happens, and you think you've invested enough time in the relationship, say goodbye, and mean it! And don't be surprised if you hear from him again. Do not use this as a trick to get a commitment out of him. It won't work. Use it only if you think the relationship has no future.

DEAR ABBY: Is honesty really the best policy? Before I married my husband, I confessed that I had had sex with a steady boyfriend. I thought I loved him and we had gone together for two years. Well, we broke up and drifted apart, but he was the only one.

I thought I was doing the right thing by being honest with my fiance, but was I ever wrong! Now every time we have an argument, he throws it up to me and calls me every vile name in the book.

I never asked him about what he did before he married me, but I have

DEAR ABBY: I read your column heard from some of his longtime friends that he had sex with just about every girl he ever went with, and there were dozens.

DEAR ME: Wrong! In my opinion, honesty is still the best policy. Where is it written that one must answer every question that is asked? It's a person's privilege to say, "Please don't ask me any personal questions and I won't ask you any." Then live by it.

DEAR ABBY: It is very important for me to get an answer from you. When a woman marries a man with children, they become her stepchildren, right? Well, if her husband dies, are the children still her stepchildren? Thanks. CHICAGO QUESTION

DEAR QUESTION: Yes.

DEAR ABBY: In my estimation, there's nothing lower than a pickpocket. As yet, I have never lost anything to a pickpocket; I always carry my money in an inside pocket that's very inaccessible. I do carry a wallet in my hip pocket, but there's nothing in it except a note which reads:

Thank you for finding my wallet. I owe you $100. Please present this note to the desk sergeant at the Indianapolis Police Station next Monday at 9:30 a.m. to collect your reward.

The Texas South Plains has gained national attention as a grape producing area. Fifteen years of research to help grape producers is to be featured at the 77th annual field day of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station (TAES) near Lubbock, Tuesday.

This year's tours and open house are to be from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. at the Texas A&M University Agricultural Research and Extension Center, north of Lubbock International Airport on FM 1294, east of I-27 at the Shallowater

"Texas' grape industry has made significant progress in the past 10 years," said Dr. William Lipe, TAES professor of viticulture. Now 1,500 acres of grapes are under cultivation on the South Plains. Two Lubbock wineries recently captured top honors in national competition.

The research vineyard at the Lubbock station is to be one of the

"The limiting factor to industry expansion is quality," Lipe said. "New problems arise annually, requiring research solutions. Working being conducted at the Lubbock station, which Lipe and his associates will explain to field day visitors, will be cultivar-rootstock evaluations and adaptability, relationship of vigor to winter survival and juice quality, and control of the apple twig borer.

rates from the fruit. To avoid over-ripening, harvest cantaloupes before they naturally separate from the vine. The best way to check maturity of cantaloupes is to place your thumb beside the stem and gently apply pressure to the side. If the stem separates easily, the cnataloupe

Q. Some years my cantaloupes are sweet and tasty and other years they have no flavor at all. What is wrong?

A. Cantaloupe flavor depends upon environmental conditions. High rainfall or excessive irrigation as the cantaloupes near maturity will adversely affect fruit flavor. Also, diseases which reduce the vigor of the plant and the leaves' ability to produce sugar will affect fruit flavor. Maintaining the plants in a healthy growing condition and avoiding excessive watering near maturity will improve cantaloupe flavor. Lack of flavor is not caused by cantaloupes crossing with other vine crops, such as cucumbers.

Q. What is the difference between a honeydew and cantaloupe?

A. Honeydew melons are closely related to cantaloupes but ripen later. Most honeydew melons have white or green flesh and mature within 100 to 120 days after planting. Honeydew melons do not slip from the vine as cantaloupes do and are mature when they become creamy to golden yellow in color and the blossomend softens slightly.

Q. Can seed be saved from this year's squash crop for planting in next year's garden?

A. Yes, but this is not a recommended practice. Because squash has male and female blooms and need bees for pollination, seed saved from this year's crop probably will not breed true when planted next year. This is especially true if you are growing more than one type of squash. If you are only growing one type of squash and there are not other types of squash in the area then seed can be saved with a fairly high degree of genetic purity. If you are growing hybrid squash, such as the variety Dixie, do not save seeds as they will not breed

If you intend to put up pickles, then grow pickling types Pickling cucumbers were developed to go through the brining process and will generally produce a higher quality product. If you intend to use cucumbers mainly in salads then rely on slicing types.

Q. Is a gherkin simply a small pickling cucumber? A. No. Gherkins, also called West Indian or Burr cucumbers; produce small, exceptionally spiny fruit used exclusively for pickles. The culture of gherkins is similar to common pickling cucumbers except the plants are smaller and require less space.

Q. The foliage on my beans has angular, dead spots. some of the spots have a yellow halo around them. The severely infected leaves are falling off the plants.

A. This is bacterial blight of beans. There are three bacteria that can cause it. All can be controlled with foliar sprays of a copper fungicide such as Kocide 101 (R) or copper bourdeaux. This bacteria can also be seed transmitted

Families face child care concerns

By DONNA BRAUCHI County Extension Agent

More than 465,000 Texas families include an employed mother with children under age six. The number of employed women will continue to increase as more women become wage-earning partners in dual income marriages or the sole support in single-parent families.

A major concern of employed women with children is affordable, quality child care. Child development experts characterize quality child care as that which provides small groupings of children; the services of trained caregivers; a high staff to child ratio, especially for infants; continuity of caregiver-child relationships; and a healthy, safe, and developmentally appropriate environment.

When parents find quality child care, then the issue becomes one of affordability. A national study found the average cost in a child care center ranged from $50 to $60 per week for full-day care for children ages three to five. Cost for ca of infants and children under three was usually higher because it requires additional staff. A survey of the major child care facilities in Pampa showed that we are below the national average in child care costs. Average cost in Pampa for full-day care for children ages three to five in a child care center ranged from $35 to $45 per week with infant care in several cases costing

Child care providers are faced with the increasing costs of staff salaries, facilities, food, program materials, and insurance premiums. Therefore, fees may not remain stable.

Another child care option is family day care services. Many individuals care for a small number of other people's children in their own homes each work day. These services provide a homelike atmosphere and continuity of care that is reassuring to both parents and child.

Even when the family day care provider is a neighbor who 'takes in' children, or someone who is caring for children so she can be home with her own child, she is actually running a home business. Just as you would check to see that the day care home is clean and the children happy and well-cared for, you should also expect the day care provider to follow certain good business practices. Check first to see if the family day care provider is registered with the Texas Department of Human Services. Registered providers agree to certain guidelines on the number and ages of children cared for in their homes, to refrain from any form of abuse. and to certain health and sa fety providers give parents a contract to sign. A contract tells you what the fee will be, when it is due, the hours of care, overtime charges, and penalties for late payment. A contract helps you understand your financial obligation and avoid disputes over payment.

In addition, some family day care providers give parents a written policy statement. This spells out what you are responsible for in the way of diapers, formula, changes of clothing, and other items. It tells what the provider supplies, such as meals, standards. Some family day care snacks, transportation services or toys. A policy statement may also contain information on the day care provider's "house rules" for children, what kind of discipline is used, how sick children are handled, and arrangements for vacations. This information, along with your impressions of the caregiver and the home atmosphere, will help you decide whether it would be a good situation for your child or not.

In return be ready to supply the day care provider with health information about your child, information on how to reach you form allowing the provider to seek emergency medical care for your child.

Loving, family-centered child care or quality child care in a center format both require the formality of registration, contracts, policy statements, health records, and emergency forms. They are a necessary protection for the child care provider, you as a parent, and your child.

Canyons, cliffs reveal Indian pictographs treasure trove

EDITOR'S NOTE — The caves and shelters of the Indians that lived thousands of years ago in Southwest Texas provide a treasure trove for archaelogists seeking clues to the ways of prehistore man.

By MIKE COCHRAN Associated Press Writer

LANGTRY, Texas (AP) - "It's warm enough for rattlesnakes," observed Jack Skiles as he headed down the steep slopes of Eagle Nest Canyon toward a rendezvous with prehistoric Texas.

"Better keep an eye out for them," he added, unnecessarily. On the canyon floor, a rock wren flitted between blooming oak and buckeye trees, scolding the intruders as they descended into this strangely quiet and vaguely mysterious crevice.

"You just seem to drop off into another world when you enter this canyon," said Skiles, who grew up exploring the caves and shelters of the Indians that lived in this rocky, rugged region of Southwest Texas perhaps 10,000 years ago.

Skiles, 55, is manager of the Judge Roy Bean Visitor Center in Langtry and his home and the museum are little more than a stone's throw from a canyon "named for an eagle's nest built into a cliffside 106 years ago.

It is here, in the canyons and eliffs along the Rio Grande River. that archaeologists have found a mother lode of rock art and other clues to the lifestyle of prehistorie man

Skiles said the ancient paintings, or pictographs, are scattered across Texas from the Hueco Tanks near El Paso to the Panhandle, to Paint Rock east of San Angelo and through the Hill

But an abundance of rock art in Texas lies within a 50-mile radius of the mouth of the Pecos River, up and down the Rio Grande and along the Devils River and its tri-

Engineers dammed the Rio Grande in 1968 to create Amistad Reservoir, obliterating many pictograph sites, but local historians say those that remain contain distinctive rock art ranging from single paintings to panels of paintings hundreds of feet long.

Just who painted it and why and what it all means are among the questions researchers hope someday to answer.

"Archeologists regard the area as one of the major pictograph regions of the world," said Skiles, smiling as a perspiring companion struggled to avoid live cactus and phantom rattlers.

Besides Eagle Nest Canyon and a popular but remote excavation site called Baker Cave, this archeological wonderland also includes the splendid Seminole Canyon State Historical Park near Comstock.

The 2,173-acre park features a lively little museum, guided tours to major cliff paintings and a hiking trail to a scenic point overlooking Panther Cave on the northern bluff of Seminole Ca-nvon. From the overlook, visitors can glance down and see the huge red panther which gave the cave its name or gaze out across the Rio Grande arm of Lake Amistad into Mexico.

And then there's Seminole Sink, which contains the bones of the oldest burial population yet discovered in Texas.

The November issue of Texas Parks and Wildlife magazine tells how 8,000 years ago a small band of people carried their dead to a final resting place in a cavern 20 feet below the ground.

Discovered by archaeologists in 1984, the ancient burial ground contained the remains of 21 men, women and children lying beneath a rock pile caused by a partial collapse of the vaulted

Why the sinkhole fell into disuse is unknown, but the burial site holds more than a bit of intrigue.

"Atop the pile were the remains of a middle-aged man who was cremated some 400 years ago, bundled into a pouch and dropped down the shaft," wrote Dr. Solveig Turpin, director of the Texas Archaeological

"His remains were covered by only a few rocks, some dirt, burned bone, charcoal and stained soil.

Eagle Nest, Baker Cave and Seminole Canyon are considered the most significant of the many Lower Pecos River archaeological sites in part because they've been studied and written about more than others.

At Baker Cave, a rock shelter on a private ranch in Val Verde County, a research team led by Dr. Thomas Hester uncovered what the San Antonio Express-News called an "archaeological goldmine.

Hester, director of the University of Texas at San Antonio's Center for Archeological Research, described Baker Cave as one of the best preserved rock shelters in America, explaining:

'The artifacts have been protected by the dry southwest Texas weather and by the layers of limestone dust which fell from the shelter roof over thousands of

The research team found charcoal and a dartpoint to help verify an apparent 7000 B.C. occupation and also uncovered part of a basket woven between 4500 and 3000

Baker Cave also yielded sandals, mats, knots, cords and other basketry made from local desert plants along with flint arifacts and waste chips, animal and fish bones, nuts and seeds.

Hester said the rock shelter contained evidence of as many as 20 occupations.

"The top layers indicate that the most recent inhabitation was around 1400 A.D., about the time the bow and arrow was introduced into the south and southwest Texas area," he said.

As a noontime sun beat down on Eagle Nest Canyon, Jack Skiles and his companion trudged along a dry creek bed and into a rock cavern which Skiles called the 'ice box."

"It can be hot as hell out there but so cool in here," he explained. 'Indians once came here for water, before the sheep and goats ate all the grass. Now there's nothing to hold the water."

On down the canyon, Skiles pointed out an excavation site at the foot of a bluff where University of Texas archaeologists uncovered layers of burned bison bones more than 20 years ago.

He said the Indians drove great herds of buffalo over the canyon bluffs and sent them plunging onto the rocks below, butchering the animals where they fell.

The remains of an estimated 800 animals are buried in the exancient buffalo to camels and a 'horse no larger than a dog,' Skiles said

"Can you imagine the feast they had when they got a bunch of buffalo?" he wondered. "They were more accustomed to eating

Actually, they ate just about anything, according to a stomach analysis performed on the body of an Indian recovered by Skiles' parents from an ancient burial

"They found lots of grasshop-pers, prickly pear seed, a white footed mouse and the vertebra of dwellings.

SAN BENITO, Texas (AP) -The ginning should have been a celebration of a year's labor, but for cotton farmer Doug Hansen it just concluded a harvest of frus-

"This is the most disappointing season that I have ever seen,' Hansen said.

"It is a crop that, this year, I did not enjoy growing," he said. "It makes me sick."

Hansen, 43, knows his cotton. He speaks from experience gained over a lifetime in the busi-

He grew up on the family cotton farm that his father founded outside San Benito in the 1930s. He took charge of the operation in 1968 after he graduated from col-

Now the earnings from the 280 acres of cotton and some additional acreage of grain sorghum are Hansen's livelihood. He supports his wife and three daughters with that income.

After last year's bumper crop, he and other Valley cotton farmers, expected a similar yield when they planted in late February and early March. Their cotton is the first harvested in the nation and an important source of Valley income.

But as the season progressed, Hansen gradually saw his hopes for a good yield uprooted by a combination of a very late rainfall and severe boll weevil prob-

The economist cites these sta-

"The rains," he said; "came at the wrong time - just after I irrigated my cotton. The combination of irrigation water plus the rains stunted the crucial early growth of the

Then the boll weevils attacked, causing Hansen and other farmers to repeatedly apply expensive insecticide to kill the pests.

By early summer Hansen knew his crop would not match last year's high yield of two bales per acre. But when he began defoliation this month, he expected to reach 1 1-2 bales an acre.

In the defoliation, farmers spray the plant with a chemical that kills the leaves. The process is necessary because the green leaves would stain the cotton as it is picked mechanically.

The cotton farmers call defolia tion "burning," because the leaves turn brown, as if the plant had been burned.

As Hansen progressed from the defoliation to the harvgst, he realized that the yield was going to be even worse than he expected. It did not even reach one bale per acre.

"It just doesn't seem like it is quite 'there," he said. "Everybody I've talked to is saying the same thing. It's just 'not all

With the combination of the low yield and the depressed price of cotton, Hansen now is afraid he will harvest at a loss. 'This crops this year — with the prices so cheap - you need everything just to break even,"

After the cotton is picked, it is formed into modules, a compressed unit of cotton, or loaded into trucks and taken to the cotton

During the peak of the cotton season, the gins run 24 hours a day, shutting down only for maintenance. The Brownsville Cooperative Gin has the capacity of 17 bales per hour. The dusty and noisy ginning process cleans and dries the cotton. The seeds then are separated from the lint, which is formed into bales, most weighing nearly 500 pounds.

The bales usually are sent to the Port of Brownsville, where they await shipment to their buyer, or they are stored in ware-

"The lamp of the body is the eye: if therefore thine eye be single, thy whole body shall be full of light. But if thine eye be evil, thy whole body shall be full of darkness. If therefore the light that is in thee be darkness, how great is the darkness! No man can serve two masters: for either he will hate the one, and love the other; or else he will hold to one and despise the other. Ye cannot serve God and mammon'' (Matthew 6:22-24.) A person will travel the road of his own thinking and deter-mination. That is if one's "eye be single", devoted to God and the ways of God, his life will be properly directed. But if the motivation be the evil lusts of the flesh, or "dark ness", then one's entire life will be consumed in that darkness.

It is so true that a person will do that which he is motivated to do. But the motivation can be determined by many things. A person can be motivated by covetousness. Paul says that covetousness is ido-latry (Colossians 3.5.) To be cove tous is to desire that which belongs to someone else. But people motivated by covetousness, have committed many crimes and sins such as murder, theft, etc.

We can be motivated by greed, selfishness, hate, lasciviousness, or any one of many evil things. The Bible declares that everything produces after its own kind (Genesis 1:11-12; Matthew 7:16-20.) Evil begets evil, etc. Evil thoughts lead to evil deeds. But we can also be motivated by love, compassion, mercy, pitty, etc. And of course, these are the kind of motivations God would have us to be goverened by. have us to be goverened by.

Jesus told His disciples, "If ye love me, ye will keep my commandments" (John 14:15.) The proof of our love of God is the doing of His will (I John 5:3.) If the love is there, the obedience will follow. To simply profess to love God, however, and not do what He commands makes one a liar. And so, love for God will motivate us in the direction of eternal life. A love for this world will motivate us to the fulfilling of the lusts of the flesh, which will in turn result in eternal death (Galatians

RANGE TOUR TO SHOW GOLDASTER CONTROL

Ranchers from across the Panhandle and upper rolling plains will examine results of efforts to control the pesky goldaster during an area range tour, Tuesday, September 9.

The tour will begin at 9:30 a.m. at the Fowler Camp of the R-O Ranch. The Camp is on Highway 273. 15 miles south of McLean or 14 miles north of Hedley.

The goldaster has been a major weed problem infesting the eastern Panhandle and western Oklahoma causing a decline in grass production.

During the range tour, participants will look at a goldaster control plot where the Texas Agricultural Extension Service has been conducting demonstrations for the past nine years. They also will see plots where aerial controls were applied this year and plots which were sprayed with a ground rig in 1984, 1985, and 1986. The tour will conclude with a free noon meal and program at the Lelia Lake Community Center.

Persons planning to attend the range tour should make reservations by noon Monday. They should telephone the Donley County Extension office at 806-874-2141 or the Gray County Extension office 669-7429. The range tour is sponsored by the Gray and Donley County Extension offices, County Program Building Committees, and the Goldaster Control Weed Task Force.

DR. PATRICK'S PANHANDLE PEST REPORT

Sorghum: Headworms are the major concern in sorghum at this time. Reports from Carson, Randicate we do have economic infestations of this pest scattered throughout the Panhandle. Check individual fields to determine the need for control measures. Control is justified when an average of 2 small headworms per head are found. Cotton: Continue scouting for bollworm. Reports from the South Plains indicate very erratic economic infestations. Bollworms are present in eastern Panhandle cotton but most infestions are below the economic threshold.

Wheat: Begin checking wheat for early season pests. Greenbugs can occasionally cause damage to seedling wheat. As few as 25 per foot of row on small wheat may warrant control. Fall armyworm is usually a problem somewhere in the Texas Panhandle every year. Early worm detection is important in order to avoid potential yield losses. During the day, fall armyworm will usually be found under clods and plant residue in the field. Control measures are justified when an average of 4 to 5 worms per square foot can be found. Russian wheat aphid may be a problem this fall. Please contact your local County Extension Agent if suspected infestations of Russian market people (feedlot operators,

CATTLE FUTURES

IMPACT CASH MARKET The main impact of the futures market on cattle prices may not be as simple as higher or lower prices but rather more violent price changes-as happened during the recent dairy buyout market crash, says Dr. Ed Uvacek, Extension livestock marketing economist.

The very nature of the futures market is alien to the way most cattlemen think. The futures market is, in fact, a huge gambling arena where fortunes are made and lost — most only by trading activity, according to Dr.

Markets that do not move (change frequently) are poor places to make money, so the name of the game is "volatility" Price changes create buying and selling opportunities. Therefore, commodity markets move in response to fact, rumor, intuition, hunches, fear, speculation and hope. These price influencing factors in the futures market are much broader than those which affect the cash cattle market.

FORT WORTH - When five music lovers from Pampa and Miami formed the country band Fencewalker about a year ago, they never dreamed they'd perform where they did last Friday night.

By virtue of their victory in the regional Country Music Showdown, sponsored by local radio station KSZN and held in July at Pampa's Catalina Club, Fencewalker and close to 100 screaming fans traveled to Fort Worth to compete with 14 other Texas bands for a chance at $50,000 and a trip to Nashville, Tenn.

'The Texas Panhandle was well-represented by them and in the crowd," local disc jockey Harry Hoyler said. Hoyler, who said nobody in the club was as loud as the contingent from Pampa and Miami, had the pleasure of introducing Fencewalker to a screaming crowd of 2,000 with a rousing: "The Prrrride of the Texas Panhandle...'

"It was exciting to be able to present that band to that type of crowd," he added.

The showdown, sponsored by True Value Hardware and emceed by country star Moe Bandy, was won by Bonham duo Eric and Casi Blakenship, a brother and sister team that won the regional contest in Denton.

But Hoyler said Fencewalker had nothing to be ashamed of in their performance, noting that the group was one of 14 finalists from 400 or so acts that competed across the state in 21 local auditions. The bands at Billy Bob's represented "the cream of the crop," he noted.

'There was a lot of great talent down there," he said. "There was a lot of stiff competition."

"Everyone of them down there was excellent," added Fencewalker lead singer Bill Farrell, who said he felt "charged and excited" when he took the humongous stage at Billy Bob's. "I would've hated to be a judge."

Fencewalker performed a set of three songs, including one original composition, to a crowd Farrell said he could hear but couldn't see because of the bright stage lights. KSZN also hosted a Fort Worth reception for the band prior to their performance on Locally, Farrell said the band performs mostly at the Catalina with occasional jaunts to Trigger's in Borger or to Miami for private parties and benefits.

The group was formed about a year ago when he and fellow band member Archie Young went looking for a drummer and rhythm guitarist.

The pair found Miamians Rick King and Monty Smith via a classified ad and linked up with bassist Ron Carter to form Fence-

What lies ahead for the band? Farrell said the group hopes to be in the recording studio by next year as several individuals in Oklahoma have shown an interest in getting some of Fencewalker's material down on vinyl.

Meanwhile, back at thradio station, Hoyler is already looking ahead to next year's competition in the hopes of making the local showdown an annual event.

Copies of Fencewalker's Fort Worth performance are available at KSZN. Hoyler said those interested can drop a cassette tape by or mail one in and the radio station will dub its tape of the performance on it for no

Tri-State Fair has free shows

AMARILLO - Visitors at Amarillo's 1986 Tri-State Fair, scheduled for Sept. 15-20, will be finding something new awaiting them for their entertainment: free shows featuring Johnny Rodriguez and Moe Bandy with Amber Pennington. On Wednesday, Sept. 17, Rodriguez will perform two free shows in the Coliseum, Bandy will perform two free shows, also in the Coliseum, on Thursday, Sept. 18. Performance times for both acts will be at 6:30 p.m. and 8:30 p.m. Sponsors for the shows with the fair will be Total Television of Amarillo for the Rodriguez show and KVII-TV and Gebo's of Amarillo for the Bandy show

Tickets will be required for admission to the shows. Locations for the free tickets may be obtained by contacting the spon-

Rodriguez appeared on the country scene in 1968 when only 17. He has produced such hits as 'Pass Me By," "That's the Way Love Goes" and "Down on the Rio Grande."

Bandy has made such song hits as "Just Good Ol Boys," "Bandy the Rodeo Clown," "It's a Cheating Situation" and some 30 other hit songs and 24 albums.

Pennington, a 7-year-old singer from Stinnett, will open each show for Moe Bandy. She opened one of the rodeo performances at the Houston Livestock Show last year in the Astrodome with her rendition of "The Star-Spangled Banner" and has made several television and radio appearances in Nashville and in Texas.

Ray Price also will perform at the Coliseum at 8 p.m. on Saturday, Sept. 20. He has recorded No. 1 hits in the country field since 1956, accumulating such hits as "Crazy Arms," "Release 'Heartaches by the Number," "Danny Boy" and "For the Good Times.

Ray Price tickets will be on sale at Western Plaza Shopping Mall in Amarillo or mail orders may be sent to Tri State Fair, P.O. Box 31087, Amarillo, TX

Merle Haggard was scheduled to perform at the fair, but he had to cancel for personal health problems. The Price show was arranged as a replacement.

LOOKING FOR DOVES — Laredo hunter Robert Muller was stalking the fields Saturday with the opening of white-winged dove season. Some wildlife officials say that more than one million white-winged doves will be available to hunt, but they believe hunters will not be as plentiful as in past years. (AP

White-winged doves plentiful, hunters not, experts predict

By DAVID SEDENO Associated Press Writer

HARLINGEN, Texas (AP) -White-winged doves will be flying high in large numbers, but fewer hunters will have their sights on them during the 1986 season which began Saturday, wildlife and hunting experts said.

"I don't think it's going to be like past years," said Gary Waggerman, white-winged dove project leader for the Texas Parks & Wildlife Department in Edinburg.

"I don't think the enthusiasm is out there. We're not getting the response on our public hunts that we normally get," he said.

The special white-winged dove season began Saturday and today. It continues on Sept. 13 and 14. The mourning dove season runs from Sept. 20-Nov. 14.

Waggerman said there are about one million white-winged dove throughout South Texas and most of them are in the Rio Grande Valley.

White-winged dove season was closed last year because a freeze in December 1983 killed most of the citrus trees, which the birds used to nest.

The citrus industry has rebounded and the doves have returned, Waggerman said.

Hunters, however, don't seem to be convinced about that, Waggerman said."I guess last year had something to do with it," Waggerman said. "Hunters are about like birds; they're victims of tradition.

"If there's a bad hunt one year everybody goes back and tells all of their buddies and the next year

Mike Glick of Glick Twins, a sporting goods store in Pharr, said that hunters will not be as plentiful as in past years. He said he only had 15 hunters registered to hunt on 600 acres of land.

"The way our hunting-lease deal is going, it's going to be pretty slow," Glick said. "I think a lot of people are going to come down and check it out before they spend any money on it. They don't want to get burned."

In past years as many as 45,000 hunters participated in the whitewinged dove season and about 85 percent of those were in the Valley, Waggerman said.

In past years, the white-winged dôve season added more than $20 million to the local economy in sales of guns, ammunition, clothing, hunting leases, accommodations and restaurants, Waggerman said.

Last year, retailers suffered because state officials decided to close the season and many hunters went to Mexico.

"I think closing the season did hurt a little, but I think it will be a benefit to the birds," Wagger-man said. In Texas during the special white-winged season, hunters are allowed to take 10* birds each day.

Hunting is permitted only in areas south of Interstate 10 near Fort Hancock, south of U.S. 90 beginning at Van Horn and ending at Uvalde. It continues south of U.S. 83 at Uvalde until it intersects with Texas 44, proceeding to Freer.

The line then is Texas 16 through Hebbronville, then Farm to Market 1017 to Linn and Texas

186 to Port Mansfield:

South of those lines, with the exception of a sanctuary in the Rio Grande Valley, is open to hunters, said Ron George, dove program leader with the Texas Parks & Wildlife Department in Austin.

Hunters must have a hunting license and a white-winged dove stamp, officials said.

The mourning dove season will begin on Sept. 20 and will include that area, plus an area extending to San Antonio from Uvalde through U.S. 90 and east to Orange on Interstate 10.

During the mourning dove season, hunters will be allowed to take 12 birds per day, including no more than two white-winged doves or two white-tipped doves.

Hunters usually take between 5-7 million mourning doves each year, George said.

George and other wildlife eyperts said many hunters are going into the Mexican state of Tamaulipas to hunt white-winged doves.

The season starts earlier, limits there are much higher and the doves are more plentiful, officials said. "It's going pretty good. There's so many doves down there that there's a lot of hunters going down there," said Joe Ramos, special agent with the U.S. Fish

Teacher instills new citizens with knowledge, pride, humor

The El Paso Times

EL PASO, Texas (AP) -Armando Magellanes, an El Paso construction worker, has passed his citizenship test.

'Yes, it was hard," he tells other members of his citizenship class in Armijo Recreation Center. He thumps his chest to show how fast his heart had beat. When the examiner asked him if his application was "fact," he had not understood the word. He was afraid he'd failed.

'You are giving us a little lift." Luz Rodriguez, class instructor, says. She turns to the other students: "What nationality are

"Mexican," they respond. "And what nationality are you?" she asks Magellanes.

"American," he says laughing. The class applauds. Magellanes hands the teacher a thankyou present: flower plaques.

"The biggest gift is to see you pass the exam. It makes my day," she tells him. "When someone takes the exam, I never wear a blouse with buttons, because I pop them off with pride."

Magellanes is the 42nd success ful graduate of Ms. Rodriguez's ongoing class, organized in 1983 by Armijo Branch Public Lib-

The free class meets at 6 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays. Ms. Rodriguez infuses a little sparkle, even some fireworks, into the citizenship drills.

TULSA, Okla, (AP) — A yearlong investigation by federal and Tulsa law enforcement officers has resulted in 10 indictments, which accuse eight individuals of distributing child pornography and two others of distributing adult pornography.

U.S. Attorney Layn Phillips said two of those indicted were charged with the interstate transportation of obscene matter. He said the material distributed in the adult pornography cases depicted sexual activities with Named for distribution of child pornography in the federal grand iury indictments handed up last week were Bill Williams, 50, of Cisne, Ill.; Ernest Schmeltzer, 43, of Midland, Texas; John Vincent Raines, 29, of West Palm Beach, Fla.; John Irvin Ban-croft, 68, of Port Orange, Fla.; Richard Thomas Bresnahan, 50 of Rensselaer, Ind.; Ronald David Groll, 50, of St. Louis, Mo.; Kevin Bonnier, 35, of Cudahy, Wis., and John Ballard, 25, of Apple Valley, Calif.

Charged with violations of the adult obscenity statutes in the interstate transportation of obscene materials were Albert E. Youngblood, 62, of Detroit; and

Carlos Wright, 57, of Marshall,

Phillips said not all of the alleged offenders have been arrested.

If convicted for distribution of child pornography, the alleged offenders could receive a sentence of up to 10 years in prison and a $250,000 fine.

Conviction for the interstate transportation of obscene matter could result in up to five years in prison and a $250,000 fine.

Phillips announced the indictments at a news conference in Tulsa. He displayed items seized in a search of the homes of the alleged offenders, including cameras, video cassette tapes, computers he said were used to correspond with others interested in child pornography, photos and magazines.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Keith Ward said Tulsa police and FBI agents penetrated the distribution rings of suspected collectors and traders of child pornography after a year-long investigation.

Phillips said the names of those indicted became known to investigators through lists seized in previous pornography arrests around the country.

AUSTIN (AP) — The Legislature's budget-balancing special session ended the way it began with the state deeply in debt and House Speaker Gib Lewis not yet ready for new taxes.

His opposition through the 30-day session was as much a surprise as sunrise.

Despite all of Gov. Mark White's confidence, optimism and talk about compromise when he opened the session Aug. 6, Lewis' message was simple: no new taxes. Good to his word, he held the line.

Rumored daily to be about to bend, lobbied almost daily by the governor, bombarded by editorial criticism, Lewis stood his ground.

And when the end came, without a tax hike, Lewis declined to call it a victory.

"I don't think it's a question of who's won or lost," he said. "It's just a question of what's right." The governor wanted a temporary tax increase to help erase the $3.5 billion deficit. Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, who leads the Senate, wanted a permanent tax hike. Even some members of his own House wanted a tax bill. But Lewis, 49, a self-made millionaire, talked about the pain of laying off employees from his label business. State government can't be immune to the tough times besetting other businesses, he said. Lewis' answer was spending cuts and an array of cash management techniques he said would keep state checks from bouncing. After that - but only after — see if a tax increase still is needed, he said. Throughout the grinding special session, many lawmakers believed the deadlock would break at any minute.

But Lewis said no, as he had for months.

On May 30, Lewis convened a House budget caucus where lawmakers were told the deficit would be at least $2 billion.

'In my address to the members of the Texas House that day, I stated that a tax bill is not and should not be our first and only choice." Lewis re-

On July 17, when White announced he was calling the special session, Lewis said: "I am pleased to see that the governor has not mentioned any tax increases ... this evening."

On the eve of the session, Lewis declared: "With the state revenue situation changing so rapidly, to pass a multibillion-dollar tax bill with the pressure of a 30-day deadline is, in my judgment, overreacting.

On Aug. 6, after White opened the session by asking for a one-year tax hike so the financial crisis 'will not be our Alamo," Lewis said: "I'm still holding firm, no new taxes. We can balance the budget without a tax increase."

After White met privately with lawmakers and publicly recruited former Gov. John Connally and others to the tax cause, Lewis sent newspaper editors a letter.

'With the state's revenue situation changing so rapidly, passing a multibillion-dollar tax bill at the height of a recession and with the pressures of a special session deadline is, in my judgment, not in the best interest of the citizens of this state," he wrote.

By session's end, even Hobby had softened. After insisting for weeks that a permanent solution was needed to the budget crisis, Hobby announced 48 hours before the session's end that a short-term answer was acceptable - including spending cuts, a temporary tax hike and what he called "accounting tricks."

Teachers, gamblers among the winners

AUSTIN (AP) — The state's budget crisis defied the compromise needed to produce a solution, but lawmakers did manage to pass several major pieces of legislation during the special session that ended Thursday.

In a 30-day session that saw little progress on the projected $3.5 billion state deficit, bankers, teachers and gamblers emerged as winners.

The Legislature approved several landmark banking measures, including a bill to end the state ban on interstate banking. Bill supporters say the move would spark an infusion of needed out-of-state investment for struggling Texas banks.

Also approved was a proposed consitutional change that would end the state ban on branch banking. That measure now goes before voters on the November general election ballot.

Teachers won approval for two measures they pushed as necessary to smooth out rough edges in the 1984 school reform act.

Lawmakers passed measures aimed at reducing paperwork and giving school officials broader authority in dealing with trouble-making students.

And gamblers were pleased with the historic vote that would allow Texans to decide in November 1987 on legalizing pari-mutuel betting on horse and dog races, though Gov. Mark White has told lawmakers he probably would veto that bill.

The budget-balancing effort was not a complete failure.

Lawmakers approved bills that could mean about $560 million in added revenue or reduced expenditures for the state in the current fiscal year. Included was a bill that would change pay day for state employees from the last day of the month to the first day of the next month.

That would leave the state with one fewer $200 million monthly payroll to meet during this fiscal

Another approved measure actually saves money for Texans who like their license plates to carry something other than a random series of numbers and letters. The Legislature voted to lower the cost of personalized license plates from $75 a year to $40. The lower price will increase demand and bring the state about $600,000 more this year, according to pe vill's sponeor, Repoblit Coverda, & Richardson

Exact figures on what a special session costs are difficult to calculate, but House and Senate fiscal analysts estimated the most recent 30-day session cost $9,500 per day, a total of $285,000.

Gov. Mark White has called lawmakers back to town for another 30-day session to begin Monday. As happens anytime legislators gather, there was plenty of time in the recent session for less-thanserious matters and general good ol' boy stuff.

There were churches, anniversaries and hometown heroes to be honored in resolutions.

Lawmakers approved a resolution creating ZZ Top Day to honor the Texas rock group and another congratulating the Aaron Kimball Door Shop team for capturing the Central Texas Tee-Ball State Tournament in China Spring.

Among the busiest committees during the 30-day session was the Senate nominations panel, which reviewed and made recommendations on about 550 gubernatorial nominees to assorted boards and commissions, including several controversial ones.

BECOME A POSTAL WORKER. TRAIN NOW FOR EXAMS TO OPEN IN MORTHERN TEXAS THIS MONTH. WANT TO RELOCATE? WE CAN SHOW YOU THE SECRET OF GETTING ON THE HIRING LISTS OF MALIOR BOST OFFICES NATIONALIDE INMEDIATE. MAJOR POST OFFICES NATIONWIDE IMMEDIATELY. MAJOR POST OFFICES NATIONWIDE IMMEDIATELY. The Postal Services hires over 5,000 people a month with the average solary plus benefits being $27,500. There are no lay-offs, no strikes, and no shut-downs. Men and women, regardless of age or experience are eligible to apply. These exams do not test general knowledge. Proper preparation is the key to getting hired, because people are hired for these positions based on their exam scores. The easy to learn techniques taught in this course were designed by Bill Harold. He is a former Postal Employee, the author of three postal exam guides, and has repeatedly scored 100% on Postal Tests.

3 HOLLE WORKSHOP- SCORE 95.100%.

3 HOUR WORKSHOP: SCORE 95-100% A survey in January for Boston's new hiring list indicated that 39 of the first 40 hired had taken a workshop course. Of the 287 people who took our course 1st year in Northwest Indiana, 282 indicated they were affected positions with the Post Section 1.

they were offered positions with the Postal Service. GUARANTEE: The time saving and accuracy-increasing methods taught in this course are so powerful that we will enter into a written agreement.

"You will score 95% or higher or your money will be refunded.

*If you do not receive a job applications/interview within 90 days of your score, your money will be refunded. -

WORKSHOP TUITION is $30 and includes the guaranteed workshop, 3 workbooks covering all 3 major exams, interview hints, study guide with 25 complete take-home exams, follow-up consultation privileges with free information phone number, home study program kit, and the free Postal Alert Bulletin giving you postal exam dates nationwide...and more. You are invited to bring your tape recorder to record the workshop for personal review. Call for a workshop reservation...toll free PHONE 1-800-253-3200, Ext. 818
