DPS settles suit in Pampan's death

By PAUL PINKHAM
Staff Writer

An assistant attorney general's signature is all that remains to complete a $375,000 settlement reached by the Department of Public Safety and the family of a Pampa woman who died after a collision with a DPS vehicle.

223rd District Judge Don Cain said the family of Candace Ketchum Smith, 35, who died following the collision at 17th and Hobart just days before Christmas, 1984, and the DPS reached the settlement in district court.

Cain said Friday that Assistant Attorney General Adrian L. Young, representing the DPS, had verbally agreed to the settlement.

A copy of Cain's order has been sent to Young for his signature and is expected to be returned this week, the judge said.

The Smith family had filed a $4.71 million civil suit in March 1985, against the DPS and Trooper Johnny Garth Carter. The suit claimed Carter used "excessive force" in pursuit of two speeders north on Hobart, causing the collision.

Mrs. Smith died the day after the accident. Her husband William Arnold Smith and daughter Andra, 13 at the time, as well as Carter, were injured.

The suit also alleged that the DPS vehicle, with grill-mounted flashing lights, was "inherently defective and dangerous." Cain said part of the settlement reserves the Smiths' right to sue Ford Motor Co. in federal court concerning the vehicle.

The DPS had responded to the suit by maintaining that Mrs. Smith, who was driving, turned in front of Carter's patrol car, causing the collision. But Mr.

Smith and his daughter denied that she would have had any reason to turn left on 17th, as the family was on the way to a church hayride.

Details of the agreement were unavailable pending Young's return of the judge's order but Cain said money was to be divided among William and Jana Smith, the family's other two children, Richard and Tiffany, and Mrs. Smith's father, Richard V. Ketchum of Pineville, Ore.

William Smith has since remarried, and the family is living in Broken Arrow, Okla.

Smith said Saturday that he is satisfied with the settlement.

Under the settlement, the Smith children will be paid in installments as they grow older, Cain said. If Young should not sign the order for some reason, it would become null and void.

Jim LaFavers, investigator for Templeton and Garner, the Amarillo law firm that represented the Smiths, said no amount of money can make up for the loss of a wife and mother but noted that, under Texas tort laws, the Smiths were limited in what they could receive from the DPS to $500,000.

Under the settlement, the department will pay $350,000 and Carter's insurance will pay the remaining $25,000. Carter is still employed locally as a highway patrolman.

"In any case like that, there's no such thing as a winner, and you can't put a dollar figure that would replace the life of a mother and a wife," LaFavers said. "But operating within the limits of the law, then, I think this is probably an equitable settlement. I think everybody's glad it's over."

DPS spokesman Mike Cox in Austin said the department has no comment on the settlement other than to say that the matter is closed.

Boulter urges oil import fee

By PAUL PINKHAM
Staff Writer

A strong domestic petroleum industry and decreased reliance on Persian Gulf oil are crucial to U.S. national security, U.S. Rep. Beau Boulter said Saturday night during a campaign visit to Pampa.

The Amarillo Republican, who is challenged by Democrat Doug Seal of Wellington in the Nov. 4 general election, held a town meeting at Austin Elementary School. The meeting was attended by about 40 residents.

In a brief press conference before the meeting, Boulter said support for an oil import fee is building within the Reagan administration. He said he and other oil state legislators from both parties plan to continue pushing the administration to enact a variable oil import fee, using the authority of a 1962 trade act which enables the president to impose import fees if national security is threatened by foreign trade practices.

Boulter co-hosted a meeting Wednesday of oil state legislators and petroleum industry representatives and said he has met with White House cabinet members and aides frequently in recent weeks. He said there is now a "fighting chance" Reagan will impose an oil import fee on his own authority.

"What good does it do to spend billions on defense when we don't have enough fuel to fill our tanks and planes," he said, adding that the Persian Gulf region is too unstable to depend on for the military's petroleum needs.

A letter sent to members of Congress from National Security Advisor John Poindexter stops short of calling for an import fee, but maintains that a strong domestic petroleum industry is important to a viable national defense, Boulter said.

Boulter also said he feels the group's pressure helped keep the oil industry from being devastated during tax reform discussions.

Another option oil state legislators are pursuing is seeking import fee legislation in Congress, but Boulter said such legislation has virtually "zero chance" of passage in the House. However, he added, an import fee bill currently pending in the Senate has a 50 percent chance of passage in that body.

Boulter said the United States must do what it can to stay competitive. He noted that Saudi Arabia maintains a state-controlled

Accused spy swap opens doors for summit meeting

WASHINGTON (AP) — The pretrial release of American reporter Nicholas Daniloff permits U.S. planning for a superpower summit to proceed — but his arrest casts a shadow over already faltering efforts to arrange a meaningful meeting.

"Things like this shift the tone, shift the ability to work problems out. That's just a fact of life," Secretary of State George P. Shultz observed Friday, as he announced Daniloff was leaving his Moscow jail cell for the comfort of the U.S. Embassy in the Soviet capital.

Shultz will go ahead with a meeting this Friday with Eduard A. Shevardnadze, the Soviet foreign minister, to work on an agenda.

Other planning sessions will be held, along with a resumption of U.S.-Soviet negotiations in Geneva on Thursday on the nuclear weapons buildup and space-based defenses.

But the Reagan administration is going into the talks after reluctantly striking a tenuous deal.

The administration gained Daniloff's release only by turning over Gennadiy Zakharov, a Soviet physicist accused of spying, to his ambassador Moreover, Daniloff is not free to leave the Soviet Union, a condition President Reagan had demanded in a message to General Secretary Mikhail S. Gorbachev, his prospective summit partner.

This means Daniloff remains a "hostage" under Shultz's own definition and faces trial on espionage charges that Reagan and the secretary of state have both denounced as fabrication.

"He is a hostage," Shultz said Thursday. "He is not an agent. He is a hostage to the Soviet Union as long as he is there, whether he is in jail or some other place. That doesn't change the fact that he is a hostage."

A package containing maps marked "secret" was thrust on Daniloff on Aug. 30, a week after Zakharov, a U.N. employee, was arrested and a federal judge rejected a Soviet appeal for his pretrial release.

Immediately after Daniloff was seized by KGB agents, the administration proposed privately to the Soviets here and in Moscow that Zakharov be placed in Ambassador Yuri Dubinin's custody pending trial.

Golf course on hold until Jan.

Velasquez

By PAUL PINKHAM
Staff Writer

Pampa's public golf course may be stuck in the rough for now, but supporters hope to take their next shot come January, provided land for the course is still available.

Gray County commissioners tabled any action on the golf course proposal Friday, their first meeting after learning that placing a referendum on the issue on the Nov. 4 general election ballot would be against the law. But commissioners said they would again discuss the course in January, when the Texas Legislature reconvenes in regular session, provided developer E.M. Keller is still willing to donate land for the course north of Pampa on Texas Highway 70.

Keller said Friday he could not answer questions concerning whether his land would still be available.

Meanwhile, a suggestion by Scott Hahn, Republican candidate for county treasurer, that the Pampa Public Golf Association form a corporation and sell shares to those interested in the project in order to raise money for construction drew mixed reviews from commissioners and the golf association president.

The association has been seeking county help in constructing the course by requesting $650,000 in funds left over from the sale of Highland General Hospital, plus county equipment and manpower.

Seventy-four percent of those responding to a mail survey on the issue expressed support for the golf course in June. However, commissioners had decided to place the issue on the general election ballot in November after receiving the $650,000 estimate from the golf association, only to learn earlier this month from attorneys in the secretary of state's office that such a referendum would be against state election statutes.

County Judge Carl Kennedy said efforts made to put the issue before the current special legislative session have been unsuccessful but added, even if legislators were to permit Gray County to hold a golf course referendum, there would be a 90-day waiting period after the governor signed

Langley named managing editor

Former Pampa News staffer Jeff Langley has been named the newspaper's managing editor. Publisher Louise Fletcher has announced.

Langley, 34, 2231 Mary Ellen, replaces Wally Simmons, who has accepted the city editor's position at the Valley Morning Star in Harlingen, another member of the Freedom newspapers group.

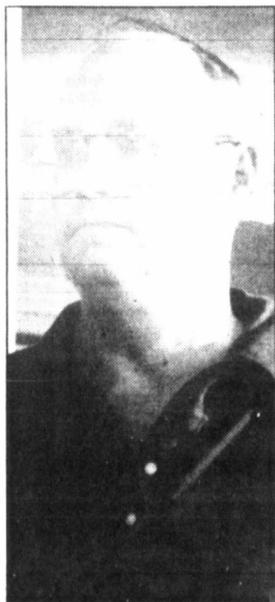

Simmons served three years in the top editorial post at The Pampa News.

Langley comes to the paper from The Odessa American, a Freedom newspaper where he worked as city editor.

The new managing editor started work at The Pampa News, as a reporter in February 1982. He was named senior staff writer before moving to Odessa in June 1985.

Langley started his news career in 1976, working as a reporter for KFDD-TV in Amarillo.

Langley and his wife, Diane, 33, have three children, Ivan, 9, RaeAnne, 7, and Ryan, 3.

the bill before it would take effect. He said Rep. Foster Whaley, D-Pampa, has spoken with several officials about the issue at the county's request.

"His efforts to date, if it were feasible at all, have not met with any favorable indication," Kennedy said, noting the issue boils down to counties not having ordinance-making powers. "At least maybe we've planted the thought that counties need to ask their citizens before they launch out and spend money."

No action was taken Friday on a motion by Precinct 4 Commissioner Ted Simmons to ask the legislature to consider the county's plight when it reconvenes in regular session as commissioners opted instead to wait until the legislature is back in session to pursue the question.

But golf course supporters may face another sandtrap then if Keller's land is no longer available. Keller told commissioners Friday he is not issuing an ultimatum but if another offer comes along, he may take it.

"After all these three years of this, that and the other, I thought for sure it would all be resolved by now," the developer said. "I have things in mind. If I did get an offer, I might just take it as opposed to giving (the site) away."

petroleum industry. "The fact is that in today's global economy, it's country vs. country," he said. "It's our country, which wants a free market, vs. a state-controlled economy." Boulter admitted the U.S. will never compete with the Saudis in terms of supplying oil but "it should be our goal to decrease dependence on Persian Gulf oil."

Indigent care adding to county expenses

Gray County taxpayers were spared a tax increase Friday when county commissioners voted to maintain the current 2.6-cents per $100 valuation tax rate.

The tax rate will fund a 1987

He advised commissioners to check with him before spending money pursuing an election.

Commissioners and at least one spectator praised Hahn's proposal, which Hahn compared to how money was raised 30 years ago for the Coronado Inn after a group of people decided Pampa needed a hotel. Simmons said he would still be willing to lend equipment and manpower for dirtwork at the site, provided the county was permitted to do so.

County resident John Triplehorn said Hahn's proposal would get the issue "off the backs of taxpayers" and "should show what kind of support a public golf course really has."

Triplehorn said he initially opposed the idea of county involvement in the course, then was led to believe only manpower and equipment would be used, which he said he supported. However, he said he changed his mind again when golf association officials asked for $650,000 in county funds.

"It was my understanding, and a lot of people's understanding, that 'his vote was taken for men and equipment only,'" he said. "There are a lot of people that would vote yes for manpower and dirtwork that would vote no for tax dollars."

Triplehorn said the golf association appears to be seeking everything it can get, following the overwhelming support expressed in the mail ballots.

Pampa businessman Ray Velasquez agreed that the commissioners should return to the "original request or just drop the whole thing."

But PPGA President Buddy Epperson said the association came up with the $650,000 figure after the commissioners requested it, which occurred after the mail balloting. He said the association believes donations for the project will increase once construction begins, cutting the cost considerably.

Epperson said he would not mind presenting Hahn's proposal to the association's membership but doubted how successful it would be. He said he thinks the county would be prohibited from helping with construction under the proposal.

"In view of the fact that we would not have the use of the county equipment, the cost on construction of the course would be quite a bit greater than it is now," Epperson said, estimating the increase at about $500,000. "I'm still a firm advocate of taking it to the voters."

Epperson said he would have preferred to see the issue on the November ballot but added he will go along with trying to get it on the ballot in the spring.

The congressman also focused on what he perceives as another national security problem — illegal aliens. However, he said he can't support an immigration bill that puts the main burden for catching aliens on employers and grants amnesty to certain illegal aliens.

The only way to stem the tide of illegal aliens is with more personnel on the border, he maintained. If the state exercised its obligation to crack down on those illegally entering the country, Boulter said, he could support punishing employers who illegally hire aliens.

"I would not at all say we shouldn't use military troops (on the border)," Boulter said.

budget of $4.18 million, down from this year's figure of $4.48 million. Commissioners have attributed the lower budget to a $160 million decrease in taxable property values forecast by the county appraisal district.

The court had been considering raising taxes 2.1 cents to fund state-mandated indigent health care, which went into effect Sept. 1 and requires counties to spend up to 10 percent of their budgets on health services for the poor. The program is expected to cost the county about $257,000 in 1987.

Commissioner Ronnie Rice said the 1987 budget actually reflects a 2.1-cent tax decrease, the amount commissioners estimate will be needed to fund indigent health care.

Pampan stabbed

A 52-year old Pampa woman was in stable condition at Coronado Community Hospital after being treated for head lacerations Saturday night.

Pampa police Sgt. R.J. Howell said that Helen Louise Jordan of 624 S. Barnes, was stabbed at her residence Saturday night. Pampa police responded at about 9 p.m. A Pampa Medical Services crew transported her to CCH for treatment of stab wounds to the head.

"Apparently there was a drinking party," Howell said, adding that police had a suspect in the assault. At press time, the name of the suspect was not released.

Four killed in San Antonio wreck

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Four people, including a mother of six and her 2-year-old daughter, were killed Saturday in a one-car accident in southwest Bexar County, police said.

Nine people were riding in the car when it left the northbound access road of Interstate 35 South between Benton City Road and Loop 1604, hit a ditch and flipped two or three times, county officials said.

Dead at the scene of the 12:30 a.m. wreck were Herlinda Guerra, 34; her daughter, Loretta; and Abel Lugo, 24, all of San Antonio.

A man identified as a Mexican national in his 20s was rushed to Brooke Army Medical Center, where he died. Officials were withholding his name pending notification of relatives.

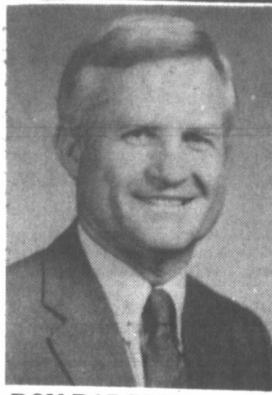

Two of Ms. Guerra's daughters were in critical condition at BAMC Saturday with multiple injuries. The car's driver, identified as Arnulfo Martinez of Macdonna, suffered scratches and bruises but did not require hospitalization, officials said.

Another car occupant was taken to a hospital, but sheriff's deputies did not release any information on his injuries.

Officers believe a ninth person in the car fled the scene.

Work of loaned executives crucial

It takes a lot of volunteer efforts to raise the funds needed to support the agencies receiving assistance from the Pampa United Way.

One group volunteering time and labor is the loaned executives, men and women taking time off from their workdays with local businesses and industries to help with the 1986 United Way campaign.

With the support of their employers, the loaned executives join numerous other volunteers to seek donations toward helping Pampa United Way reach this year's goal of $286,000.

Eight loaned executives are assisting the United Way fundraising drive this year.

They include Don Babcock, First National Bank; Duane Harp, Citizens Bank and Trust; Barry Hedrick, Cabot Research and Development; Mark Langford, Wal-Mart; Rick Lebo, IRI International; Curt Maune, Celanese Chemical Co.; Kaye Roberts, National Bank of Commerce; and Rick Smith, Coronado Community Hospital.

The 1986 loaned executives received training last month from Bill Helmer, a Celanese employee who served as a loaned executive for the 1985 drive.

A graduate of Pampa High School and Texas Tech University, Babcock is serving as a loaned executive in the Pampa drive for his second year.

"The United Way agencies are excellent agencies worthy of community support," he said. "I'm sold on the United Way concept as opposed to depending upon government agencies to help those in need."

Babcock had also assisted the United Way of Amarillo before moving back to Pampa in 1985. A deacon at First Baptist Church, he is a past president of the Kiwanis Club of Amarillo and served as campaign chairman for the March of Dimes in Amarillo.

He is a trustee of Wayland Baptist University, a member of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce and a member of the Executive Council of the Adobe Walls Council of Boy Scouts of America.

Babcock and his wife Caron have two grown children, Melissa and Daron.

Harp, another returning loaned executive, said, "While each of us makes our individual response to the United Way as our convictions lead us, the response of the city as a whole is a reflection of our concern for the health of our community."

"If some of us seem to be obsessed with United Way, it is only our attempt to keep everyone aware of the needs and opportunities available in Pampa," he added.

Harp is an elder at First Presbyterian Church, where he also is a Sunday School teacher and a stewardship chairman. In civic and community activities, he is chairman of the city's Parks and Recreation Advisory Board, treasurer of the Pampa Fine Arts Association and a board member of the Pampa Youth and Community Center and the Downtown Kiwanis Club.

He received a bachelor of science degree in finance at West Texas State University.

Harp and his wife Anita have two sons, Matthew, 6, and Joe Bob, 2.

A Pampa High graduate and a former Clarendon College student, Hedrick said, "Until last year I was like a large group of people in Pampa who wasn't against the United Way, but I didn't support it, either."

"After going on a tour of the agencies supported by the United Way, I realized what the money donated was going to and actually met the people who were being helped as a result of the donations," he said, referring to his service as a 1985 loaned executive. "I am proud to say that I am a full supporter of the United Way as a result of that experience."

A member of the National Association of Purchasing Managers, Hedrick attends Mary Ellen and Harvester Church of Christ.

He and his wife Karen have two daughters, Brooke, 6, and Kelci, 16 months.

Langford, another returning 1985 loaned executive, said, "I feel the United Way does a great deal to help people in Pampa; not only those who actually need and use the funds, but everyone in Pampa benefits from this drive."

"I feel honored to be a part of the United Way drive again this year," he added.

Langford received his bachelor of arts degree at Wayland Baptist University. He and his wife Sandra are members of the First Baptist Church.

Lebo is a newcomer to Pampa, having moved here with his wife Sherrie from Beaumont last December. He said he is not very familiar with Pampa's United Way but looks forward to working in the drive and becoming more acquainted with the activities of the local agencies.

Lebo received his undergraduate degree from the University of Illinois and his graduate degree from Indiana University. He is a member of St. Vincent de Paul Catholic Church.

Another new loaned executive, Maune serves on the board of directors for the Salvation Army.

"In the past, contributing to the United Way was important," he said. "Today, with the deterioration of the oil-related economy, no doubt more people will need help from the United Way."

"Therefore, it is even more important now for those of us who can afford to contribute to do so," Maune stated.

Maune earned his bachelor of science degree in chemical engineering from the University of Missouri at Rolla, Mo.

Roberts, who is married to William S. Roberts, said, "The United Way is definitely worthwhile. I like the idea of monies collected staying on a local level for local people," noting that the United Way board of directors has specified no money will be sent to out-of-town agencies in 1987.

She has served as treasurer of the Altrusa Club of Pampa.

Another returning loaned executive, Smith said the United Way "is a worthwhile cause for the citizens of Pampa. It helps us help ourselves."

"We have many needy people in Pampa," he added, "and it is good to know that nearly all of the funds contributed to United Way go directly to these needy people."

Smith continued, "The more you learn about United Way, the more you appreciate the job the represented organizations and United Way is doing. It is more important today than ever before that United Way have a successful campaign this year.

"We hope that those who have been fortunate in these trying times will help those who have been less fortunate," he concluded.

Smith received a bachelor of business administration degree from Abilene Christian University and a master of science degree from the University of Houston.

Attending Mary Ellen and Harvester Church of Christ, he is a board member of United Way and the Sunrise Rotary Club. He also is a member of the Pampa Toastmasters and the Membership Committee of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce.

Also a member of the Harvesters 4 singing group, Smith is chairman-elect of the Panhandle Division of the Texas Hospital Association and a member of the Community Awareness Emergency Response (CAER) Committee.

He and his wife Leesa have a daughter, Ashlee Renae, 2.

A sensible solution at last

Amidst all the noise during the past six months over whether county taxpayers should help construct a public golf course in Pampa, can be heard, finally, a sensible solution to the whole controversy.

County commissioners heard Friday a suggestion that the burden of payment be shifted from taxpayers to private citizens who would buy shares in the project, much like the way Pampa's Coronado Inn was built 30 years ago. That project has proved to be an asset to the city and one of its most successful enterprises, without a lick of taxpayer handouts.

Friday's proposal, offered by county treasurer candidate Scott Hahn, may or may not have any bearing on his abilities for that office and support of it here should certainly not be seen in any way as an endorsement of his candidacy. Both myself and this newspaper have a longstanding policy against endorsing candidates for public office.

However, it's most definitely nice to hear a common sense solution to a problem, the importance of which has been drowned in rhetoric and quick-fix solution ideas for far too long.

A well-planned, affordable golf course would certainly be an asset to our community. I don't think anyone has ever argued with that. Recreation areas rank right up there with schools and private giving as one of the things employers look at to determine whether a given community is a suitable spot for relocation.

No, the golf course idea hit a snag when it became apparent that taxpayers, some of whom may never have seen a golf club, nor want to, would have to foot the bill. Vote or no vote, someone will wind up paying for something he neither wants, uses nor needs.

Hahn's proposal is the only one offered so far that adequately answers that problem. Those who want to play on a more affordable course than is currently offered here, or merely those who agree that a public course would be an asset to our community, would pay to have it built, thereby preserving the rights of those who have no interest in such a project.

And I can speak for myself — although I have no use for the idea of public funds being expended, I'd probably be one of the first in line to buy my shares in the project, were that avenue open to me.

Supporters may ask, "what happens if not enough shares are purchased and the project falls through?" If that happens, it means but one thing: there was not enough support for the project to justify the taxpayers supporting it either.

That's one of the risks of living in a free nation, where we are not set up to have our government hand everything to us on a silver platter. A free society should be judged by what it's people do, individually and collectively, not by what its government does in the oft-mistaken notion that it is acting on behalf of the wishes of the people.

I am reminded of my days as a weekly newspaper editor in a tiny Kansas county where we had a set of county commissioners that decided our community needed an industrial park to attract business and industry. They expended county funds and today, almost three years later, that park sits empty in a former wheatfield. The only growth it provided were the weeds that now surround a sign at the never-used entrance.

One of the three commissioners was forced to resign, and two were voted out of office — one, a 20-year-veteran, lost in his own party's primary.

The point is not that they failed in what could have been a worthwhile project — it was probably more a victim of timing than anything else. The point is that they became engaged in an endeavor that, more rightly, belonged to the private sector.

The subject of selling shares came up at that time, too, but it was ignored, much like I fear it may be ignored this time. The expedient way was chosen and the final result was disaster, much like so often happens when we choose the easy path in our personal lives.

But there exists another reason the golf association should jump on Hahn's suggestion and set it in motion. Time is of the essence.

It has become apparent that a vote on the issue could not be held until spring, by which time the developer who agreed to donate land for the course says he may accept another offer for the land, which, no doubt, would drastically increase the price of the land and, logically, the price of the course. To take a chance and wait on such a worthwhile idea could mean a tremendous loss in terms of what could have been.

There is, of course, the matter of pride. Golf course supporters may feel hurt by their so far unsuccessful attempts to force this issue.

But that's another wonderful lesson that life teaches us: when pride keeps us from looking at all the options, we sometimes lose sight of our original goals. For the golf association to let wounded pride allow it to reject out-of-hand Hahn's proposal would be akin to cutting off one's nose to spite one's face.

Tiger Cubs open to more youths

Changes in the membership requirements for Tiger Cubs and Cub Scouts will now allow more boys to participate in these two programs of the Boy Scouts of America.

Mike Donnelly, Kiowa District Cub activities director, explained that all first graders will now be allowed to join Tiger Cubs, and all second graders will be registered in Cub Scouts as a result of a new expanded Cub Scout program started Sept. 1.

"Membership requirements were previously based on age rather than grade in school," Donnelly said.

The new expanded program will be phased in over a three-year period. Cub Scouts who are already in the program will not be affected by the new entrance requirements.

Pampa scout leaders are hoping for a record turnout Tuesday when the annual citywide roundup is held at 7:30 p.m. at the M. K. Brown Auditorium.

The roundup is for all advisors of the BSA. It will also include programs for Boy Scouts and Explorers. Exploring is now a coeducational program for all youth 14 to 20 years of age.

Promotion fliers have been distributed at all Pampa schools. A video tape was being shown this weekend on Pampa's local cable television outlet and all day Saturday at Hawkins Video and TV at the Coronado Center.

Donnelly said at least one parent should plan to attend the roundup with their scout prospect. Parental consent is needed for registration, and parental leadership is required.

"The Tiger Cub and Cub Scout programs all over Pampa are in dire need of adult leaders," Donnelly stated.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Hispanic poverty easily explained

It would be a mistake to accept at face value the report on Hispanic poverty in the United States released recently by the Center on Budget and Policy Priorities. It would be an even graver mistake to adopt a higher minimum wage as proposed by the center's director, Robert Greenstein.

The center contends that by 1990 Hispanics are likely to replace blacks as the most poverty-stricken ethnic group. As of 1985, according to the census figures on which the center's study is based, the black poverty rate was still higher than the Hispanic rate. But while the former rate has remained unchanged at a little over 31 percent since 1979, the latter rate has climbed from 21.8 percent in 1979 to 29 percent in 1985.

Ominous figures, these, but they should be viewed skeptically. Many Hispanics are recent immigrants, speaking little or no English and having few marketable skills, and their numbers are rapidly increasing. Under these circumstances, their steadily declining income is hardly surprising.

But this has been the case with every previous immigrant group. Even the English-speaking Irish immigrants of the mid-19th century suffered abject poverty for generations, as their numbers continued to swell faster than their employment opportunities. Unskilled, victims of prejudice, the Irish could obtain only the most arduous, menial and underpaid jobs. Yet this did not deter millions of their fellows from following them to these shores, for even these jobs were a godsend next to what they had to endure in the Old Country. What passed for poverty in the New World was worth crossing an ocean to get.

Over time, the Irish bootstrapped themselves out of poverty. They or their children acquired the education and the skills to obtain more lucrative and dignified employment. Today, the average Irish-American is no poorer than anyone else.

A similar saga was enacted by Italians and by Central European Jews. It will be enacted again by Hispanics. It is premature to despair over the declining fortunes of Hispanics in our midst.

Government income figures for Hispanics probably are unreliable. Precisely because so many Hispanics are recent immigrants, and because most of those immigrants are illegal, perhaps a majority of them earn their livings in the counter-economy. They receive payment in cash, and no record of their income reaches government. As a result, official figures on the poverty of Hispanics are almost certainly grossly exaggerated.

Even if they weren't, poverty-stricken Hispanics cannot be helped by increasing the minimum wage, as Greenstein suggests. Though long touted as a protection for the working poor, the minimum wage in fact shuts the poorest workers, those with the fewest skills and the lowest productivity, out of the labor market altogether. By forcing employers to pay such workers more per hour than the value of the goods or services they are capable of producing in an hour, the law discourages employers from hiring such workers, thereby forcing the workers out of jobs.

The minimum wage protects no one except workers higher up the economic ladder who might otherwise have to face competition from eager newcomers. Among the best things we could do to help the working poor of this county, including the newly arrived immigrants among them, is to abolish it altogether.

Modern justices lack depth

How could he have known how wrong he would be when, in "The Judges as Guardians of the Constitution," Alexander Hamilton wrote, "The judiciary has no influence over either the sword or purse; no direction either of the strength or of the wealth of the society; and can take no active resolution whatever . . . the judiciary . . . will always be the least dangerous to the political rights of the Constitution; because it has the least capacity to annoy or injure them."

Hamilton may have been right during his time, when the Supreme Court could boast of brilliant men like Chief Justice John Marshall. Today's bench is occupied by men who, in terms of intellectual breadth, scholarship and moral integrity couldn't stand high enough to hold a candle to John Marshall's toe. This assessment easily applies to the court's composition over the last fifty years.

Let's look at the evidence. The court has virtually repealed the 10th Amendment, which holds that rights not expressly given to the federal government are reserved by the states. The Constitution doesn't mention the federal regulations governing your local schools. There's nothing in the Constitution permitting federal regulation of state speed limits, yet through sleight-of-hand it's regulated by the fed. The recent court decision on sodomy acknowledged state's rights, but it is a trivial step on a trivial matter.

The court has weakened the Fifth Amendment in the Hawaii Housing Authority vs. Midkiff where it held, contrary to eminent domain laws holding that private property, with just compensation, can be taken for public use, private property can be taken for private use. These few examples belie Hamilton's prediction that the judiciary is the least dangerous branch. The way I see it, the court is running neck and neck with Congress in the enemies-of-our-Constitution race, and as irony and hypocrisy would have it we find ex-Chief Justice Warren Burger in charge of that document's 200th anniversary celebration.

What's just as bad is that today's court is devoid of significant intellectual substance. In the July ruling in Posadas de Puerto Rico Associates vs. Tourism Company of Puerto Rico, newly appointed Chief Justice William Rehnquist told us, as reported in the Washington Post (presumably with all his intellectual faculties), products or activities like cigarettes, alcoholic beverages and prostitution do not enjoy any constitutional protections and could be banned or heavily regulated. Rehnquist's pronouncement makes as much sense as Jesse Jackson's classic pronouncements, such as: "From the outhouse to the White House," "From disgrace to amazing grace."

Since Rehnquist says cigarettes, alcoholic beverages and prostitution don't enjoy constitutional protections, I'm going to ask him whether chairs, b-flats or the bossanova enjoy constitutional protections. Such an assertion reflects either demagoguery or poor wisdom. I suspect it's the latter. Good wisdom would have told him that goods cannot have rights; only people can have rights. If it were possible for your chair to have rights, it might tell you, "Don't sit on me," and you'd have to acknowledge its right. How would you like them apples?

The only prospect I see for the court to regain its lost distinction is with President Reagan's newest appointee, Antonin Scalia, who has the raw material and moral charter to ultimately measure up to John Marshall. The only other alternative is for Reagan to appoint me to the Supreme Court. "But Williams, you're not a lawyer", you say. Far from a disadvantage, that'd be my advantage. In fact, there's no constitutional requirement that a Supreme Court justice must be a lawyer. Maybe the framers were thinking of me.

Poor get it coming and going

I dropped by to see my accountant Willard "The Shark" Houdini. He was in a most jocular mood.

"I'm celebrating," he said. "Let me guess," I said. "You finally had a client to survive an IRS audit?"

"Very funny," he replied. "What I am celebrating is the new tax bill. Have some champagne?"

I declined. Never accept an offer of champagne from an accountant wearing a skyblue leisure suit. That's one of the first things you learn in Economics 101.

"Pardon my ignorance, but I thought accountants were going to lose business because of the new tax bill, which was supposed to simplify how we do our taxes."

"Are you kidding me?" said Willard. "Have you ever known anything to come out of Washington that was simple?"

He had a point.

"Listen," he went on, "this new tax deal is the best thing to happen to accountants and lawyers and financial consultants since the three martini lunch. "Nobody has any idea how this new tax thing is going to work or how they are supposed to find the loopholes in it."

"But," I interrupted, "I thought the new tax law was supposed to do away with loopholes?"

"Do away with loopholes? That would be un-American."

I was confused. "Let me tell you what all this is really about," said Willard.

"In the first place, it's an election year and nobody is going to vote against tax reform that allegedly will lower taxes. So here's what's going to happen: real estate tax shelters, where rich people hid their money, will become obsolete, and the tax liability for people who make a lot of money will increase and big companies will owe a lot more taxes, too."

"That's what I thought," I said. "You don't understand," said Willard. "Rich people who can afford the fees will go to see their accountants or financial consultants and lawyers to see what they can do about lowering their tax liability, and some smart cookies will find a way.

"As far as the big companies are concerned they simply will pass along whatever increase they have to pay to their customers."

"But aren't the poor people getting a tax break?" I asked.

"Sure," said Willard, "but don't forget this. Not only will prices for goods go up, but there will be a slowdown in construction of, say, new apartments, so apartment owners will be able to go up on their rents and the poor will still get the shaft."

"Isn't there something that can be done about such an inequity?" I asked.

"Of course," explained Willard. "This time next year there will have been so much griping and complaining and lobbying that the big companies will get their tax breaks back, and well-off individuals will be back in the tax-shelter game. It's just a matter of time."

"And the poor?"

"They aren't my problem," said the Shark, guzzling another swig of champagne.

Reflections on leaving Pampa

I have almost always had mixed emotions when I left one place and one job for another after an extended period of time. It is no different today as I conclude a three-year tenure as managing editor of The Pampa News and prepare for a move to Harlingen and a different job with another Freedom newspaper.

When making such a move, I suppose one should reflect on whether he has been successful at the assignment he's leaving. But the difficulty in being objective in evaluating yourself almost always results in an affirmative answer, while the inner knowledge that you could have done more tends to dampen any feelings of accomplishments. So such reflections, for me at least, have never produced a conclusive answer.

Some of you have said nice things about the paper during the time I've been here. I appreciate the remarks, but I'm reluctant to claim credit for the things you might have considered improvements. If a newspaper has a good staff, about all it needs in the way of an editor is someone who has enough sense to stay out of the way and not be too much of a hindrance. We have been blessed with some exceptionally good staff members while I've been here, which made many facets of my job a snap.

I am grateful I had the opportunity to work at The Pampa News for the past three years. Because of their editorial philosophy, this paper and others in the Freedom group are the only newspapers I know of that allow people like me to write in support of human freedom and individual liberty; not the state-determined pseudo-freedom that politicians talk about, but real freedom in which individuals control their own lives.

If I am proud of anything, it is that, to my knowledge, during the past three years we have never published an editorial or an editorial column advocating more government control over individuals or calling for government to take anything from one segment of society and give it to another.

You rarely know if the things you write or cause to be published have any influence. But if the thoughts we have offered on our opinion pages during the last three years have caused anyone to alter their concept of freedom to any degree and influenced them to become a stronger advocate of individual liberty, then something has been accomplished. I once told the late libertarian philosopher Robert LeFevre that I often felt like a preacher without a congregation in espousing our beliefs to a society that largely identifies itself as statist Democrat or Republican. He told me if you live the philosophy, then it is impossible not to have influence, and I've learned to come pretty close to living it in recent years.

Leaving a place and a job is little bit like dying. You know that in circles where your presence has been real and your activities considered important, you will become a dimmer and dimmer memory that eventually fades away entirely. But if anyone remembers me at all, my greatest hope is that I will be remembered as a person who cherished freedom, saw it eroding in our society, and did what little he could to stop it.

Thank you for tolerating me the past three years. And goodbye.

Judge refuses prison moves

AUSTIN (AP) — A federal judge issued a temporary order to keep Texas from moving 300 prison inmates to a National Guard barracks near Mineral Wells, but Gov. Mark White said he believes the judge ultimately will approve the idea.

U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice in Tyler on Friday issued a temporary restraining order sought by inmates wanting to block the move.

The order forbids relocation of prisoners to Fort Wolters.

White said he believes Justice wants time to analyze the plan to ease prison crowding.

"I think the court will be persuaded," White told his weekly news conference.

The governor said the current prison crowding problem won't lead to quicker release of inmates. "No early release," he said.

White said the Mineral Wells plan isn't meant to evade Justice's reform orders on prison conditions, but to provide temporary additional space at a time when large numbers of criminals are being sentenced to state prison.

"We're not trying to avoid the impact of his (reform) order. We're trying to expand capacity in the prison. We've had a remarkable increase in the number of people sent to the prisons," White said.

TDC officials said as many as 300 inmates could be housed at the Fort Wolters barracks, which would be converted into a minimum security facility.

TDC spokesman David Nunnelee said the inmates would be trustees who had behaved well in prison.

The Fort Wolters facility is to be used while the TDC awaits completion of 10 trusty camps that will hold a total of 2,000 inmates. The camps are being built at existing prison sites. The first two are scheduled for completion in March. The others should be ready by May, Nunnelee said.

White said the state will present evidence to Justice to show the need for the extra prison capacity and detail this plan.

He said the state "will demonstrate to the court that it's a benefit to those inmates and it's a lawful method for Texas to expand its capacity."

White also said he hopes to ease fears of Mineral Wells residents who have voiced opposition. The barracks is about five miles from the town, and Mayor H. Arthur Zappe said many residents aren't happy about the idea.

Kitty rescue

Houston park police officer Dan J. Mechura emerges from a storm sewer at Memorial Park with a kitten. Several joggers reported hearing what sounded like a baby crying in the sewer, and Mechura, believing they were right, went in and found the kitten.

Texas Department of Human Services cutting 200 jobs

AUSTIN (AP) — A Texas Department of Human Services official says the agency will begin to trim its payroll by 200 positions, with layoff announcements scheduled next week.

Human Services Commissioner Marlin Johnston said on Friday layoffs were planned to meet anticipated reductions in the agency's budget. It is being cut as the Legislature tries to overcome a projected $2.8 billion deficit.

Johnston said the reduction in staff will not be completed until late October. He said employees whose jobs will be abolished will be notified in the next week.

"Right now, we don't know how many people will be laid off," he said. "Some people already know they're in a function (position) that will be deleted."

He said the number of jobs being cut was based on the assumption that the House-Senate conference committee on spending revisions will cut no deeper than what was proposed by the Senate.

The Senate voted to trim the agency's budget by abolishing about 200 jobs. The House proposed cuts that translate into a loss of 404 positions.

The conference committee resumes work at 2 p.m. Sunday. It will try to reach a compromise on the budget cuts, which are part of the effort by lawmakers to bring spending into line with revenues.

Johnston said he could not afford to wait until the conferees finish work.

"The longer I wait to get something in place, the more (layoffs) it will take to take care of the problem," he said.

He said the reduction in force will be limited to the agency's state headquarters and 10 regional offices. Vacant positions will be abolished first, he said.

"None of these are front-line, service-delivery jobs," he said.

Anyone whose post is being abolished will be offered help to find a job, Johnston said.

Meanwhile, the head of the Texas Public Employees Association said that agency employees spared this time should organize to head off further reductions.

"Maybe the DHS dismissals will make many state employees more aware of what is happening at the Capitol," said association Director Gary Hughes. "It is high time, they may realize, that 'organizing' could be the only way to keep this from happening again this year and the during regular (legislative) session next year."

White Deer responder saving precious time

By CATHY SPAULDING
Staff Writer

WHITE DEER — When minutes counted at two major traffic accidents this week, the White Deer Volunteer Fire Department's first responder unit was ready.

On Saturday, Sept. 6, an 80-year-old White Deer motorist collided with a tractor-trailer rig at the intersection of U.S. 60 and Main Street.

The elderly man appeared uninjured at the time, but he suffered internal injuries.

Before an ambulance could reach White Deer from Pampa, the White Deer VFD team had extracted Ray Flue of White Deer from his car, placed him on a "backboard" to immobilize him, checked his vital signs and prepared a case history.

Flue later died at Northwest Texas Hospital.

Tuesday morning called forth a similar story.

Ricky Clifton, 27, of White Deer was injured when his pickup truck rolled over after hitting another pickup head-on, two miles south of White Deer.

Again, the first responder team had the victim ready for transport when a Pampa Medical Services unit arrived at the scene.

Clifton remains in stable condition at Coronado Community Hospital.

"He is alive today because of the quick response," Pampa Medical Services spokesman Jim Howard said. "They enabled us to put him in the ambulance and take him to Pampa as quickly as possible."

Howard said that, unlike the ambulances, first responders arrive at an emergency to prepare the victim for emergency transport. They have no authorization to transport victims.

"They are an like an extension of Pampa Medical Services," Howard said. "They get no salary, but we do provide them with training and equipment."

White Deer VFD Chief Virgil James explained that some of the volunteers are certified Emergency Medical Technicians. Some have had training as Emergency Care Attendants, a lower class than EMT. Some are just concerned residents wanting to help out.

He noted that the Fire Department members have always been available for such emergencies as auto accidents or heart attacks. But it wasn't until the Pampa Medical Services donated equipment to the squad in February that they've become a full-fledged first responder unit.

James said that while not all the volunteers are EMT's "we always have an EMT meet us at the accident scene."

The system works on an on-call basis, James explained. Ten telephones are hooked up to the White Deer VFD line. When a person calls the White Deer City Hall or the VFD line to report an emergency, the call reaches these homes. Other members of the 25-man pool are dispatched if needed.

"At night we don't have a problem getting responders; most everyone is at home," James said. "During the week, it's harder because pretty near everyone works out of town."

Fatal fire called deliberate

HEWITT, Texas (AP) — A shed fire that left two boys dead has been classified as criminal, prompting authorities to exhume the boys' bodies for autopsies and probe a gravel pit where the charred shed was dumped.

While investigators were busy searching the pit Friday for a hasp and a lock belonging to the shed, the bodies that had been exhumed Thursday morning were reinterred a few miles away.

McLennan County investigator J.C. Rappe led the search through debris of the shed where Joby Graf, 9, and Jason Graf, 8, died in a fire Aug. 26 behind their home in Hewitt.

Their bodies were exhumed and taken to the Southwestern Institute of Forensic Science in Dallas for autopsies.

Racists blamed for prison killing

ANGLETON, Texas (AP) — The Aryan Brotherhood plotted the death of a convict and then tried to make the stabbing appear it occurred in self-defense, two former gang members testified.

Officials said Virgil Barfield, 30, stabbed Calvin Massey 42 times on March 21, 1985 at the Darrington Unit in full view of a video camera.

Barfield killed the 21-year-old

THE VERACITY OF GOD'S WORD

"And for this cause we also thank God without ceasing, that when ye received from us the word of God, ye accepted it not as the word of men, but, as it is in truth, the word of God, which also worketh in you that believe" (I Thessalonians 2:13.)

What a joy it is for a teacher of the word to have people accept what he teaches, not as the word of men, but as it is in truth, the word of God. At the same time, how tragic that many will accept the word of men as though it was as good as the word of God. Still others maintain that the Bible, which claims to be the word of God (2 Timothy 3:16-17), is only a fabrication of men. The Thessalonians to whom Paul was writing, had accepted his preaching as the word of God and for that Paul was thankful.

But how can we know whether "the message" is in truth the word of God or simply the word of men? John records: "That which was from the beginning, that which we have seen with our eyes, that which we beheld, and our hands handled, concerning the word of life (and the life was manifested, and we have seen, and bear witness, and declare unto you the life, the eternal life, which was with the Father, and was manifested unto us); that which we have seen and heard declare we unto you also, that ye also may have fellowship with us: yea, and our fellowship is with the Father, and with His Son Jesus Christ: and these things we write that our joy may be full" (I John 1:1-4.)

John was writing about those things he knew to be true concerning Jesus Christ in order that those who accepted them could have the same fellowship that he enjoyed with Christ and God.

The apostles were eye-witnesses of Christ. They listened to His teaching, they saw the miracles He performed, they saw Him crucified, and they saw Him after His resurrection from the dead (I Corinthians 15:1-8.) Thus they were convinced of His Deity and declared it unto the world.

The Bible affirms that it is the word of God and has never been proven otherwise although many have tried. We should believe it, respect it and obey it as the word of Almighty God.

Rehnquist skeleton exhumed

WASHINGTON (AP)—The bumpy road taken by William H. Rehnquist's nomination to likely confirmation as chief justice has given the Senate and the nation a rare chance to scrutinize the record, character and candor of the man chosen to be America's top judge.

While some senators have questioned the effectiveness of the confirmation process, it at least may have enhanced public awareness about Rehnquist, the job he seeks and the role of the Supreme Court.

Despite vigorous opposition by some Democrats, the nomination appears on track for confirmation by a comfortable margin Tuesday.

If so, that approval will have followed five days of often-contentious hearings before the Senate Judiciary Committee and four days of floor debate.

No one disputes the considerable intellect or personal warmth of Rehnquist, who for 14 years has been the Supreme Court's most politically conservative member. But his critics say Rehnquist is insensitive toward minorities and women and owns a "pinched view" of individual rights.

Opponents disclosed that the deed of Rehnquist's summer home in Greensboro, Vt., contains a restrictive covenant barring its sale to Jews.

Rehnquist said he had been told about the legally unenforceable restriction by his Vermont lawyer when he bought the home in 1974 but had forgotten about it. He now is taking legal action to have the restriction stricken.

As a lawyer in Phoenix, Ariz., two decades ago, Rehnquist owned a home with a deed bearing a similar clause barring its sale to non-whites. He said he had not known about it.

His brother-in-law, Harold D. Cornell of San Diego, says Rehnquist unethically did not tell him about the terms of a $25,000 family trust in which Rehnquist had a legal duty. Rehnquist has refused to comment on the allegations.

Five people swore under oath that Rehnquist played an active role in harassing and intimidating black and Hispanic voters as a Republican Party official in Phoenix in the early 1960s. Rehnquist swore under oath he could remember no such incidents.

As they had in 1971, Rehnquist opponents said a 1952 memorandum he wrote supporting racial segregation reflected his narrow constitutional view of equality. Rehnquist again testified that the memo did not represent his personal beliefs.

Hurricane Earl moving out

MIAMI (AP)—Hurricane Earl intensified but continued moving away from land toward open sea Saturday, making it unlikely that the storm's 90 mph winds and rain would hit Bermuda, forecasters said.

At 6 p.m. EDT, the fifth-named storm of the 1986 Atlantic hurricane season was located near latitude 30.8 north and longitude 54.4 west, or about 625 miles east of Bermuda, according to the National Hurricane Center in Coral Gables.

Satellite pictures showed Earl moving north-northeast at 5-10 mph, said forecaster Miles Lawrence.

The direction indicates the hurricane is nearing prevailing westerly winds that will push it out to sea. If it follows those wind currents, it could die in several days, forecasters said.

"There was a period of time when there was a remote possibility it could (have) affected Bermuda and we were watching that for a while, but even that possibility seems to be eliminated," Lawrence said.

Earl was initially dubbed a mini-hurricane because its eye and larger active core were much smaller than most storms. However, the eye—a ring of thunderstorms surrounding a clear area—expanded to 40 miles across Saturday from eight miles wide Friday, Lawrence said.

Forecasters are relying on Air Force reconnaissance flights and satellite pictures to gauge the storm.

Also Saturday, forecasters were watching an area of thunderstorms accompanied by a low pressure system 600 miles east of the Bahamas that seemed to be drifting westward. But Lawrence said the weather system was not well-defined and posed no immediate threat to land.

Telling cops about daddy's drugs may damage young narcs' minds

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Encouraging children to report their parents to police for using drugs might do more harm than good, social workers say.

Following endorsements by police officials, California Attorney General John Van de Kamp and state Superintendent of Schools Bill Honig of such calls by children, social workers at a national meeting Friday advised caution on the matter.

"It's a very harsh message to say that if your parents are doing drugs, turn them in," said Isadora Hare, senior staff associate of the National Association of Social Workers, Inc., in Silver Spring, Md.

Children ought to be told by school or community authorities that it's all right to do something about parents using drugs, perhaps by seeking help from school counselors, relatives, neighbors or family doctors, she said.

"Obviously, the kind of message that you should turn your parents in to the police, and then the police are going to prosecute them and send them to jail, that is destructive," she said. "The bottom line is that people need help, not punishment."

Several social workers were asked their views on the subject following recent arrests of parents turned in to police by their children.

"We need to be extremely cautious in applying any kind of breakup of the family and make sure the damage we do doesn't outweigh whatever's going on in the household," said Ann W. Aukamp, a social worker for the Maryland Department of Human Resources.

While children need to be able to talk to an adult about things that are of concern, such as sexual abuse or child abuse, encouraging them to inform on their parents' drug use in some cases may produce traumatic results, said Ms. Aukamp, who has worked for governmental agencies dealing with child abuse and neglect in Maryland, Virginia and New York.

In cases where heavy drug use is involved, police and court intervention may be warranted, but in cases where more casual use of marijuana is involved, a call to authorities could result in more harm than good, she said.

"There needs to be some mechanisms set up for helping those children that are in family systems that aren't good for them," Ms. Aukamp said. "But a direct report to the police is not necessarily the best way to achieve that."

Quake rocks Greek cities

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — A powerful earthquake rocked southern Greece on Saturday, and police said at least three people were killed in the collapse of an apartment building.

Authorities reported about 200 people were injured, 15 seriously.

A police spokesman in the southern city of Tripolis said three people perished when a five-story apartment building collapsed in the seaside town of Kalamata. Tripolis is 57 miles north of Kalamata.

The quake occurred at 8:24 p.m. and had its epicenter 156 miles southwest of Athens in the Messiniakos Kolpos, a gulf in the southern Peloponnesus region, said an official at the Athens Seismological Institute.

He reported the earthquake measured 6.2 on the open-ended Richter scale. A quake of magnitude 6 can cause severe damage in populated areas.

Athens police said communications with Kalamata were down. Kalamata reportedly suffered the worst damage.

"Many buildings have apparently collapsed. We don't know if they are apartment buildings or houses," said an Athens police official who spoke on condition of anonymity.

A Kalamata policeman contacted by telephone before communications lines failed said there was a power blackout.

"It was a powerful earthquake. Windows in the police station have broken and plaster has fallen from the ceiling. I don't know how much damage it caused," the officer said. He declined to give his name.

The earthquake was felt throughout the Peloponnesus and in Athens.

The Richter scale is a gauge of the energy released by an earthquake, as measured by the ground motion recorded on a seismograph. Every increase of one number, for example from 6 to 7, means that the ground motion is 10 times greater.

An earthquake with the magnitude of 7 is considered a major quake capable of causing widespread, heavy damage.

Iraqi bombs still pounding oil fields

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — Hundreds of thousands of mourners shouting "Revenge, revenge!" marched through downtown Baghdad in a funeral procession Saturday for 24 victims of Iran's long-range missile attack on the Iraqi capital.

Simultaneously, Iraqi planes bombed five oil fields in western Iran, the military command said. It said one Iraqi plane was shot down.

A war communique said pumping stations in oil fields at Ram Hormoz, Razan, Tang-i-Fanni, Bagh-e-Malek and Val Vava were destroyed in midmorning raids.

The communique did not say if Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency, monitored in Nicosia, Cyprus, said Iraqi planes bombed an unspecified industrial target in Lorestan and that Iranian anti-aircraft fire shot down an Iraqi plane southwest of Khorramabad. IRNA said the pilot was badly wounded and hospitalized.

The Iraqi communique conceded the loss of one aircraft.

IRNA said air raid sirens sounded in Tehran, Iran's capital, as Iraqi jets scrambled over western Bakhtaran, Hamadan and Khorramabad regions. It said the warplanes were chased away by anti-aircraft fire before the raids were the retaliation Iraq has vowed to exact for the missile attack on Baghdad Friday that killed 24 civilians and wounded 78.

Oil field raids a 'legitimate right' in destroying installations with which Iran finances its aggression.

— Iraqi communique.

Information Ministry officials said Saturday three wounded victims died overnight. The military command said Friday that 21 civilians were killed in a densely populated, poor neighborhood, and 81 were injured in the attack.

Saturday's communique said the oil field raids "fall in line with our legitimate right to destroy the installations with which the enemy (Iran) finances its aggression."

Iran and Iraq have been at war since September 1980. Neither side allows foreign observers into battle areas as a rule, and their war claims can rarely be independently confirmed.

Friday's surface-to-surface missile was the second in a month lobbed by Iran against Baghdad. When the first was fired on Aug. 12, Iraq within hours sent planes on their first long-range foray of the war over the Persian Gulf to strike at Iran's Sirri Island oil terminal.

Razan is east and Tang-i-Fanni is southwest of Khorramabad city in Iran's western Lorestan province. Ram Hormoz and Bagh-e-Malek are east of the western city of Ahvaz.

Fugitive

British fugitive John Robert Fleming, escorted by a U.S. Immigration officer, steps off a plane bound for the Dominican Republic Friday at the Miami International Airport. Fleming was refused permission to enter the country because he is wanted by Scotland Yard in the 1983 robbery of $38.7 million in gold bullion taken from a warehouse in London.

Poland releasing Solidarity figures

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — The government released more senior imprisoned Solidarity trade union activists Saturday under a general amnesty that it said has emptied Poland's jails of political prisoners.

Among those released Saturday were Wladyslaw Frasyniuk and Bogdan Borusewicz, two former Solidarity underground leaders; Henryk Wujec, a Solidarity adviser, and Leszek Moczulski, leader of an outlawed anti-communist political organization who has been reported in poor health.

The amnesty, which began in July, runs through Monday. Its wide scope set the stage for possible improvement in Poland's relations with the United States and other Western nations.

The release of political prisoners has long been a major condition set by the Reagan administration for lifting remaining U.S. economic sanctions. The sanctions were imposed 4½ years ago when Solidarity, the Soviet bloc's first free trade union movement, was suppressed under martial law.

Washington still denies Poland most favored nation trading status and new financial credits to help its troubled economy. The two countries also have not exchanged ambassadors since 1981.

State Department spokesman Charles Redman said Friday in Washington the United States would assess improving ties with Poland when the amnesty is completed.

Pakistan can't explain forces' role in hijack

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — Mystery still surrounds the hijacking of Pan Am Flight 73 and its bloody climax, with authorities failing to answer why security agents failed to prevent the Sept. 5 takeover and what triggered its end.

Also unclear is what role the government played in the last moments of the hijacking by four Palestinian gunmen, in which 20 people were killed and scores wounded.

Some Pakistani newspapers have said security forces intervened and forced an end to the 17-hour drama in the best way possible. Other newspapers have voiced suspicions that officials bungled.

"The least the authorities could do following the airport disaster in Karachi was to hang their heads in grief, if not in shame, and not go claiming, American testimonies in hand, how well they had acquitted themselves," the Frontier Post said in an editorial last Monday.

"It was like adding insult to raw injury," the newspaper said.

President Mohammad Zia ul-Haq said at a Sept. 7 news conference that remaining questions would be answered quickly "and we'll find out where the fault was."

But senior officials since have refused to discuss the hijacking, saying only that an inquiry is under way.

On Thursday, in the first official indication that the hijacking may have been mishandled, the government ordered the deputy air force commander, Marshal Shabbir Hussain Syed, to take any action needed to find out what happened.

The government directed him "to bring out security lapses and fix responsibility, to bring out inadequacies if any during the conduct of the anti-hijacking operations, to assess any weakness in the system of security at Karachi airport."

The hijackers' strategy enabled them to evade tight security inside the airport terminal, where passengers must go through two X-ray checks and a body search.

Aquino meets with priest

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — President Corazon Aquino and a maverick Roman Catholic priest-turned-rebel leader agreed Saturday to a cease-fire between government forces and mountain tribes who are demanding local autonomy.

Mrs. Aquino flew to the tribal homeland in the Cordillera Mountains, 160 miles north of Manila, where she gave rebel leader Conrado Balweg a Bible and a rosary in pledge of peace. Armed forces chief Gen. Fidel V. Ramos gave Balweg an M-16 rifle with a yellow ribbon tied around the barrel. Balweg's Cordillera People's Liberation Army until recently was allied with the larger communist New People's Army, with which Mrs. Aquino also has been seeking a cease-fire. She worked out a truce eight days earlier with a Moslem rebel group.

Presidential spokesman Teodoro Benigno told reporters that Mrs. Aquino and Balweg immediately "hit it off."

"The reason for this visit is to show that my government is different from the previous one," Benigno quoted Mrs. Aquino as telling Balweg and about 150 of his fighters at a tourist lodge on Mount Data.

State fair gearing up for Sesqui- and Centennial bashes

By DOUG CRICHTON
Associated Press Writer

DALLAS (AP)— Chinese acrobats, apple pie-toting moms and some 4 million people will begin their descent on a renovated Fair Park this month when the State Fair of Texas celebrates its 100th birthday and the state's 150th.

"This is a special show for a special year," says State Fair spokeswoman Nancy Wiley. "Where else could you see an original Magna Carta a few yards away from pig races?"

An expanded 31-day version of the State Fair, dubbed "Texas 150" in honor of the state's Sesquicentennial, opens at the 277-acre park Sept. 26 and continues through Oct. 26.

Renovations that are part of an $18 million Fair Park facelift aren't quite complete, but by month's end, visitors will find new sidewalks, parking lots, paint jobs, trees, fountains and elaborate flower beds.

Even the auto building, an unheated, uncooled hulk of a structure since the original burned in 1942, was restored to match its art deco sister building across the esplanade.

Police officials say there are other, less tangible improvements: Because of an unprecedented 22 assaults and two murders at the fair last year, patrols are being beefed inside and around the park.

Capt. Dwight Walker says more than 115 officers in cars, on horseback and on foot will patrol the park's perimeter, and Ms. Wiley adds that shuttle buses will let visitors off inside the fence, not outside like last year.

"I think it's going to be a safe fair this year," Walker says. "We're going to be prepared for any eventuality, and lighting at the park is much better this year than last."

Not since the Centennial Exposition of 1936, when Texas was celebrating its 100th anniversary of independence from Mexico and Fair Park was almost completely rebuilt to accommodate the 178-day fete, has the State Fair run so long.

It usually lasts 17 or 18 days, and the last experiment with a longer run — 1984, when it was 24 days — almost drowned under 17 days of rain. Ms. Wiley says the fair length will return to normal next year.

The centerpiece of "Texas 150" will be the Texas Pavilion exhibits, which will fill the Hall of State with historic documents, photographs, maps, artifacts and other items that trace the Lone Star State's heritage.

Besides the 7½-century-old Magna Carta, the pavilion will include copies of the U.S. and Texas declarations of independence and Col. William B. Travis' final letter from the Alamo.

Then there are all the home-cooking, handicraft and livestock competitions that make a state fair a state fair. And Big Tex will be pumped back up and moored near the main esplanade to make it a truly Texan state fair.

But there will also be some foreign spice: a 17,000-square-foot China Pavilion will feature a replica of the Great Wall of China, eight shows daily of the Incredible Acrobats of China and on-going artisan displays.

"We have been working to get the China display for several years," Ms. Wiley said. "And with the longer run this year, it just all worked out."

In addition to the usual auto show that will preview the 1987 car models, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration is building a mock-up of a space station that will also display space suits and other gear.

One fair staple, the Comet roller coaster, will have to sit idle this year because of soaring liability insurance rates, Ms. Wiley said. The cost of that insurance has jumped 800 percent over the last two years — $50 million worth of insurance cost $120,000 two years ago, but now $15 million costs $950,000.

"There's no question this is painful, but we just felt we couldn't operate the ride or contract it out to anyone," she said.

History of 100 years to be celebrated at fair

DALLAS (AP)— It got to be a joke that first year — "Let's go to the state state fair."

What started out to be the first and one-and-only Texas state fair split in two after a dispute over whose land should host the event. So in 1886, fair-goers could choose between the Texas State Fair and Exposition and crosstown rival Dallas State Fair.

That year, men wore bowlers and spats and women bustled gowns of taffeta silk as they stepped into fairs that charged 50 cents per person and proffered chariot races in full Roman costume, balloon shows and elaborate gardens where bald prairies had been just a few months before.

Horse-racing — or more specifically, horse-betting — was the main attraction, a spot it held for decades until it was outlawed in 1937.

Both fairs lost money, however, and agreed the next year to consolidate as the Texas State Fair and Dallas Exposition. That year, it featured a model of the Washington Monument made entirely out of human teeth and Texas-raised camels.

Here are some highlights from the Texas State Fair's colorful past:

— In 1900, Booker T. Washington delivered the principal address on Colored People's Day.

— In 1909, William Howard Taft became the first president to visit the fair.

— In 1919, at the close of World War I, fair-goers witnessed a reenactment of the Battle of Chateau-Thierry, complete with a 35-ton tank that crushed trees and plowed through brick walls.

— In 1922, the Mistletoe Creamery exhibit showcased a cow and milkmaid sculpted entirely out of butter.

— In 1923, the fair held a Ku Klux Klan Day on Oct. 24 that featured Imperial Wizard Hiram W. Evans. He preached the Klan doctrine of "Americanism" but cited three groups that were "absolutely unblendable" with the American way of life — Negroes, Jews and Catholics.

— In 1933, beer was sold on the Midway for the first time since 1915.

— In 1936 came the Texas Centennial celebrating the state's 100th anniversary of independence from Mexico. Planners wrote that "the Central Exposition must be Texanic in its proportion," and the fair was almost completely torn down and rebuilt. A new Fair Park was built by an army of more than 8,000 laborers in less than a year for about $25 million. Ginger Rogers was crowned the Centennial Queen, and the fair featured nude dancers on the Midway. The World's Fair exposition ran 178 days and drew 6.35 million people.

— In 1942, fire destroyed the auto building, which was restored only this year.

— From 1942 to 1945, World War II forced the cancellation of the State Fair.

— In 1952, the 52-foot-tall "Big Tex" made his debut with size 70 shoes and 75-gallon hat. His crooked nose was straightened out the next year.

— In 1961, a version of "State Fair" starring Pat Boone and Bobby Darin was filmed in Fair Park.

— In 1978, Texas World Music Festival began.

— In 1979, the Swiss Skyrider malfunctioned and one car came crashing down on the Midway. One man died; 15 others were injured.

— In 1986, the fair celebrated its 100th birthday after undergoing an $18 million facelift.

Clements: White's been ugly to President Reagan

AUSTIN (AP)— Texans would have a better chance of solving problems in the oil and agriculture industries if they had a governor who could talk with President Reagan, former Gov. Bill Clements says.

"This governor that we have seems to have a fetish, if you will, to say ugly things about President Reagan," Clements said.

Clements, who lost to White in 1982 and is challenging White this year, said White has been so critical of Reagan that when the state needs help, no one in the administration wants to listen to him.

"You can't be governor of Texas and, so to speak, fall out of bed every morning saying ugly things about the president and then pick up the phone and say, 'You know, we've got a little problem in petroleum I'd like to talk to you about,'" Clements said.

His comments came in a speech to the Austin Young Council of Realtors.

Clements said that even though Democrat Jimmy Carter was president for two of the years that Clements was governor, the state's access to the White House remained good.

"I did not admire everything that he (Carter) did. I think some of you may remember that. But that didn't alter the fact that our line of communication was constant and good on issues that affected us in Texas," Clements said.

Clements said that White has damaged the state's ability to get federal attention on issues involving oil and gas, agriculture, defense contracts or the expansion of military bases.

"He does not seem to understand that President Reagan is the most popular president that has ever been so far as Texas is concerned. He (Reagan) has a 77 percent favorable rating in Texas today," Clements said.

For months, White has urged Reagan to impose an emergency tariff on imported oil to help bolster the price of Texas oil and refined petroleum products.

Clements noted that when Reagan called a summit meeting on oil problems, he invited the governors of Oklahoma, Wyoming and West Virginia, but not White.

"If you're going to act ugly about the president of the United States, then you give up, if you will, that sense of cooperation and that line of communication that is so imperative for us to have, particularly in these difficult times," Clements said.

The former governor also continued to insist that the state can deal with the $2.8 billion budget shortfall without White's proposed one-year, 1½-cent increase in the sales tax.

Northeast Texas town turns eyesore into miniature park

By DOUG WINTERMUTE
The Paris News

COOPER, Texas (AP) — From the rubble of a torn-down building comes a work of art that displays community pride and an appreciation for history.

What was an eyesore of weeds and rubble at the southwest corner of the square in Cooper has been transformed into a "mini-park," complete with neatly trimmed green grass, trees, flowers and benches.

On the south side of the small park, a plain, brick wall has been transformed into a wall-size artist's canvas, painted the blue of a clear summer sky.

In the middle of the wall, painted brown, is the rectangular outline of a building with two small eagles painted at the top of two spires. Work on the project is still going on, but it catches the eyes of motorists driving by the park on Dallas Avenue.

The painting is of the old Delta County Courthouse which was located in the middle of the square, but torn down around 1939 to provide work for the Works Progress Administration, which then constructed the current courthouse one block west of the square.

The artist is Foy Burns, a local accountant, who said he agreed to paint the mural because "Someone asked me to do it."

The "someone" who asked Burns to paint the mural was a member of the Professional Women's Club, a local organization which is sponsoring the project originally as part of a Texas Sesquicentennial project.

"It started back last year kind of as a project of the Sesquicentennial group," said Nell Hardy, president of the Professional Women's Club. "We tried for some time — and it took us about a year — to get down to the point where we could get approval because that is a privately owned lot. So we had to get permission to do what we have done with it."

Mrs. Hardy said the owner of the lot is James Garrard, who lives in South Texas and gave permission for the project when contacted by a club member.

The minipark was built first on the 70-foot by 25-foot lot last spring, and then the idea of the mural was presented and accepted.

Mrs. Hardy said the club started with a $500 donation toward the project from the Delta County Chamber of Commerce, and the rest of the approximately $2,000 used so far has come from donations.

Burns, who is president of the Delta County Chamber of Commerce, said he wanted to become involved in the project.

"Anything they (the professional women's club) do is of interest to us (the chamber), of course, and when one member asked if I would paint something on it, I told them I'd be glad to paint something on it," he said.

He said the mural helps improve the town's image. "I'm a local businessman," he said. "If we don't do something, this little town is going to just dry up and blow away. Really, the only businesses that are left here are virtually service business, mostly, and without them, we wouldn't have anything at all."

Burns said being a local businessman isn't the only reason he is involved in the project, though. "I'd probably be involved in it if I worked (in Paris). I'd probably be involved in it anyway."

Burns also views his work realistically, and said it will probably fall victim to vandalism. "I think we would be fortunate if it will last until Christmas," he said.

But even with that in mind, Burns said he wants to finish the project. "If we didn't put it up there because we thought somebody was going to tear it down, we never would do anything."

Burns said he has spent about eight hours working on the mural and estimates it will take until the end of September to complete because of the many, intricate details of the old courthouse.

"The large part is basically finished," he said. "It's the little parts that really add up to the time. I've got as much time in the eagles as I have in the whole building. They're hard to paint. You've got a small brush, and the texture is so rough that it's just difficult. But we'll keep on working here until we get it."

But Burns said he is willing make the sacrifice.

"It's worth it," he said. "It's just personally worth it. I paint watercolors mostly — flowers and floral arrangements — but this is the first time I've ever tried to paint the side of a wall, and certainly not anything that big."

Wall Street in heavy panic; one crisis feeding another

NEW YORK (AP) — Wall Street's second big drop was sparked by investors' panic at news of the record plunge the day before, say analysts, blaming that decline on computerized selling amid nervousness about interest rates.

The market's best-known indicator, the Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks, ended Wall Street's busiest week by tumbling 34.17 points to 1,748.72 on Friday after the record 86.61-point drop Thursday.

Thursday's selloff was due in large measure to "program trading," the computerized selling by professional investors playing individual stocks against futures contracts on market indexes, analysts said.

The programs allow traders to move huge sums at a moment's notice.

On Friday, by contrast, the primary sellers at the opening appeared to be individual investors frightened by news accounts about the market's plunge.

"This is the people, as opposed to the programs yesterday," said William LeFevre at the firm of Purcell Graham & Co.

The five biggest declines in the Dow Jones industrial average have occurred in the first nine months of 1986. In the same period, the market has also witnessed five of the 10 biggest gains on record.

In Friday's trading, four issues fell in price for each one that rose on the New York Stock Exchange, as volume soared to 240.49 million shares, breaking the previous record of 237.57 million shares set Thursday.

"We've never had numbers like this before," said LeFevre. This week the Dow Jones average plummeted 141.03 points, easily surpassing the previous record weekly drop of 82.50 points in the week ended April 4.

However, no percentage change for the Dow in any single session this year has come close to the 12.9 percent loss — on a drop of 38.33 points — recorded on Oct. 28, 1929, in the Great Crash. Thursday's drop amounted to only 4.6 percent of the market's value.

The market has had an extraordinary rise since August 1982, when the Dow Jones industrials stood at 776.92.

One of the triggers for Thursday's nosedive was investors' growing belief that the economy is picking up steam, and thus could lead to higher interest rates and inflation.

While some forecasters were proclaiming the end of Wall Street's four-year bull market, and others were insisting that the drop was only a short-term setback.

GM to raise '87 prices

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors Corp., stuck with a nearly 80-day supply of 1986 models, says it will raise the sticker price of its 1987 models by an average of 2.6 percent.

GM said the increases reflect the company's increased material, labor and other costs. The 1987 models go on sale Oct. 9.

The price changes were to the manufacturer's suggested retail prices. Few cars are sold at the sticker price, but rather at a price negotiated with a dealer.

"The range in base prices would go from a reduction of $828 on the (Chevrolet) Chevette coupe to an increase of $778 on the Cadillac Brougham," said Cliff Merriott, GM spokesman.

The price of the low-end Chevrolet Cavalier four-door sedan will increase by $250 to $7,449; the Olds Cutlass Supreme, by $450 to $11,539; and the Buick Electra Park Avenue, by $686 to $18,769, Merriott said.

GM's 1986 models on average were priced at 3 percent above the previous year's, Merriott said.

GM has been offering bargain-basement financing of 2.9 percent a year on its 1986 models in an effort to clear out its supply of unsold cars. Competing Ford Motor Co. had about a 50-day supply at the end of July, and Chrysler Corp. had about a 65-day supply.

Utility accused of scare tactics

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Attorney General William Guste Jr. has accused Gulf States Utilities of resorting to scare tactics in a bid to secure a 26 percent rate increase.

Guste filed documents Friday asking the Louisiana Public Service Commission to reject the GSU request, which would total $202 million. The utility also awaits action on a request for an interim rate hike of $100 million — part of the overall $202 million — which it wants by November.

"Gulf States has reached a financial crisis of such proportion that without significant ... rate relief, Gulf States has no hope of meeting its upcoming cash obligations," the utility said.

Guste said the company's management and stockholders, not consumers, are responsible for GSU's financial problems.

He also accused GSU management of irresponsibility in deciding to build the River Bend Nuclear Plant at St. Francisville, now priced at nearly $5 billion.

The Point Is Pets

by Ron Hendrick, D.V.M.

CAT FACTS

Kittens born during the peak breeding season of late Spring/early Summer are due their first checkups and vaccinations around late Summer/early Fall.

While cats outnumber dogs 50 million to 49 million, less than half of America's cats receive the health care they need. This is in part due to the cat's ability to look well even when it is not, and partly because the owners simply don't know what is necessary to keep their pet healthy.

The only way to ensure your cat's good health is through regular visits to the Veterinarian. He will outline a program of deworming, good nutrition, and vaccinations against rabies, distemper and leukemia. He'll probably recommend a time to neuter it. (Spay or Castrate), if you're not seriously wanting your cat to have or sire kittens.

Out on the JOB

FOR POWER LINES

Out on the job, power lines bring needed electricity to the site. But they can be dangerous ... if you don't watch up! You need to be especially careful when you are handling re-bar, pipes, scaffolding, or tools that are long enough to contact overhead lines. Contact with power lines is also a potential danger to operators of front-end loaders, dump trucks and any other equipment of unusual height.

Keep an eye up for power lines. Watch up, for safety's sake.

Texans are celebrating the Mexican Independence Day

By DAVID SEDENO
Associated Press Writer

With the Texas Sesquicentennial as a backdrop, celebrations begin this weekend for Mexican Independence Day, which commemorates the day in 1810 when a Mexican priest called on his countrymen to revolt against their Spanish rulers.

Beginning Saturday, thousands of people will gather in the Mexican-American communities across the state, listening to mariachi bands, patriotic speeches, viewing folkloric dancers and plays, crowning queens and eating ethnic foods.

The celebrations will climax Monday night when local dignitaries will cry for independence, trying to emulate the shout given by Father Miguel Hidalgo y Costilla on Sept. 15, 1810, in Dolores, Mexico.

The shout is known as "El Grito de Dolores" or the "Cry of Dolores." The priest, who later was executed for stirring revolt against the Spanish rulers, is regarded as the "Father of Mexican Independence."

Sept. 16 — diez y seis de septiembre — is regarded as Independence Day in Mexico, much like July 4th in the United States.

Although Texans have celebrated this year the state's 150-year independence from Mexico, many Mexican-Americans continue to celebrate Mexican Independence Day.

"I've always argued that Mexican-Americans are bicultural people. They have allegiance to two countries," said Dr. Arnoldo De Leon, a history professor at Angelo State University. "Their patriotic allegiance is to the United States and their cultural allegiance is to Mexico."

In Laredo, a parade on Saturday will wind down the streets of the border city into Nuevo Laredo, Mexico, which is hosting its annual nine-block fair and exposition. A softball tournament, 10 kilometer run, a fashion show and dances also are on the agenda in Laredo.

Mike Herrera III, chairman of the Laredo festivities, said the border celebration is unique.

"It's more of an authentic flavor because the ambience is so strong here because of the interaction of the two cultures," Herrera said. "That's what it really is: friendship and camaraderie."

In San Angelo, thousands are expected to gather on the grounds of Fort Concho for a four-day celebration, beginning Saturday. A scholarship pageant, a parade, food booths, Mexican rodeo, and historical pageant incorporating the Texas Sesquicentennial theme are among the attractions.

"We're going full blast," said event co-chairman Alma Perez. "I think we can celebrate diez y seis and the Sesquicentennial because we had Mexicans fighting at the Alamo."

De Leon, a Texas historian, has written a five-act historical play beginning with the conquest of the Aztecs by the Spaniards and the arrival of Mexicans in San Angelo in the 1800s and their evolution in that West Texas city.

He has added a sixth act portraying the roles of Mexican Texans during their fight with Mexico in the mid-1830s. Many Mexicans died while defending the Alamo in March 1836 after Texas, then a Mexican state, declared its independence from Mexico.

Celebrations also are planned in small towns and in the metropolitan areas of Austin, Houston, Dallas and San Antonio.

In the border town of Hidalgo, dignitaries from the city and Reynosa, Mexico, will place a wreath on statue of priest.

In Dallas, a parade is scheduled for Sunday and thousands are expected at Pike Park, west of downtown, to celebrate the event with food, songs, dances and speeches.

In Austin on Tuesday, State Sen. Gonzalo Barrientos, D-Austin, will sponsor for the 11th year a noon celebration in the Capitol Rotunda.

In San Antonio, a queen's coronation, parade, charro ball and a Mexican rodeo are on tap for a four-day celebration. At the downtown market, food booths, singers and dancers will highlight a weekend of festivities.

"There always have been non-Mexican businessmen that support this thing," said Henry Guerra, president of the San Antonio Mexican-American Friendship Committee which is sponsoring the celebrations.

THUMBIN' FOR A JUMP — Corpus Christi resident Johnny J. Rodriguez has cables for his disabled auto, but no one to give him the necessary boost. When his car went down in traffic, no one stopped to help, so he resorted to thumbing, only for a jump, not a ride. Of course, after the photo was taken, the man received help from the photographer.

Nebraska producers fear Texas shipment may be halted

KEARNEY, Neb. (AP) — The NIK Nonstock Marketing Cooperative in south central Nebraska is moving millions of bushels of grain to the Texas Panhandle but a rumor that shipments may be halted has elevator operators concerned.

About two million bushels have been moved locally in the past week, NIK manager William Seebree of Kearney said. The U.S. Department of Agriculture is letting several cooperatives transport 3.7 million bushels to Lubbock-area elevators. The government will reimburse them for transportation costs.

Eleven area NIK members from Edison to Beatrice plan to send seven to eight million bushels in all this fall.

Texans, who are about to harvest their own crop, are worried Nebraskans are flooding the market. "All the publicity hasn't helped," Seebree said. He said Texans are holding back space for their own grain.

The cooperative is awaiting word on whether shipments will be stopped, he said.

WARREN HASSE

BY THE TIME ANY SPORTS fan gets through watching a weekend of football or basketball games live and on television he or she feels fully qualified to coach at the high school or college level. And there is no doubt you are ready for a head job in the NFL after sitting through analysis, replays, analysis, strategy, analysis, interviews, etc., on Monday Night Football.

It used to be almost that simple to coach: just know where to move the X's and the O's, and do it at the right time. But the job of being a head coach today is so much more difficult than ever before, made so by the pressures of better athletes, spiraling financial problems, volumes of off-field rules and regulation, attitudes of players and parents, winning, an endless liturgy of new responsibilities and qualifications that far outstrip a simple knowledge of the game.

Here are some examples of what employers are looking for in sports coaches and administrators, excerpted from recent help wanted ads in sports publications. All demand a Bachelor's degree minimum, and express a strong desire for a Master's degree, with experience.

Head Women's Basketball Coach, Indiana U.: "Responsible for the development and management of a highly competitive women's basketball program. The coach is responsible for all program components including scheduling, recruitment, promotion, budget, basketball staff supervision and public relations related to the program."

Softball Coach, Mt. Holyoke College: "Coach varsity softball team. Coordinate intramural program with student board and teach following areas: fitness, aquatics, tennis, squash, fencing and folk dance."

Sports Technician, U.S. Coast Guard Academy: "Handle the administrative duties of the Athletic Division which include payroll, timekeeping, preparing contracts for athletic contests, administering the awards program, arranging team travel and acting as ticket manager. In addition, the incumbent will type letters, memoranda, reports, etc., with the use of word processing equipment."

Assistant Football Coach, Loras College: "Loras College seeks a minority recruiter-minority coordinator-assistant football coach to assist the college in furthering the minority recruiting effort, develop needed program, to facilitate institutional services, and assist with the intercollegiate football program. We are seeking candidates who understand the special problems and challenges minority students have in a predominantly white, selective, liberal arts college."

Men's Varsity Football Coach: "Qualities desired: 1. Leadership abilities that provide for the coordination of all facets of NCAA Division I-AA football program, which would include team coaching, recruiting, public relations, public speaking, fund raising, and academic counseling. 2. Ability to interact effectively with students, peers, faculty, alumni, administrators, area coaches, and the general public in order to reach objectives of the Institution. 3. A willingness to adhere to the regulations of the University, the NCAA, and the Gateway Collegiate Athletic Conference in representing the SMSU Athletic Program."

Director of Intercollegiate Athletics: "Responsibilities include the development and administration of all intercollegiate athletic programs, managing budgets, coordinating use of athletic facilities, supervising athletic personnel and representing the University. The University is needing a qualified and experienced person with an appreciation of Jesuit education and a commitment to academic progress for student-athletes; an understanding of NCAA policies and practices; demonstrated ability in collegiate sports management, marketing, radio and television contract negotiations, and communicating with media; and an ability to represent the University effectively."

Each week there are several pages of similar ads searching for properly qualified persons. The theme-line in most of them pays little heed to X'ing and O'ing ability. The job of coaching and sports administration has entered a new day, and one wonders why some people want in the business.

"I look at it this way: I'm a coach, and the reason I am is that I love dealing with young people and making them better football players and people. It doesn't matter if it's at Notre Dame, Akron or Chauncey Gilbert High School...If your perspective is right, it doesn't matter. A coach can be happy if he is just working with young people."...Gerry Faust, head football coach, Arkon U.

A good coaching friend, very successful but who left the profession several years ago to enter private business, called the other day. He said the business he bought was going very well, was paid for, and he was enjoying fishing in the big river that bordered his back yard. "What do you know about the job opening at Bradley?" he explained his call. "I'm getting restless and want to get back into coaching." He wouldn't accept for efforts to tell him how well off he and his family were in comparison to his coaching days.

Or perhaps the best example is right at home. PHS football coach-athletic director John Kendall arrived home shortly after 10 p.m. one recent night and slumped down exhausted on the couch. He had been gone since 7 a.m., working on the countless, unending duties necessitated in the dual job. He was tired, hungry, frustrated.

"Do you still enjoy coaching," sympathized his faithful and understanding wife, Brenda. His answer: "Yes."

Harvester rally falls short as Sandies prevail, 16-14

By L.D. STRATE, Sports Editor

AMARILLO — Close scores may only count in horseshoes, but the Pampa Harvesters can still claim a moral victory over Amarillo High Friday night. Had Pampa been successful on a conversion, at least a tie could have been salvaged in the 16-14 AHS win here in Dick Bivins Stadium.

"The kids played a good game. They made some mistakes early in the game that hurt, but the kids fought back and never gave up," said Pampa Head Coach John Kendall. Trailing 16-0, the Harvesters scored twice late in the fourth quarter and almost pulled out an opening-game victory. Both of Pampa's scores came in the final minute and time just simply ran out on the Harvesters before they had a chance to get their hands on the ball again. When the final gun sounded, it was hard to tell who won. The Sandies stood heads bowed, stunned by the sudden Pampa comeback while the Harvester players and fans were jubilant by the near-victory. The Harris Ratings had picked Pampa as a 23-point underdog.

AHS owes its narrow escape to Todd McPhail, who booted three of four field goal attempts when the Sandies found Pampa's defense too tough close to the goal line.

Senior quarterback James Ellyson was the main instigator of the Pampa rally. He guided the Harvesters on a 14-play, 88-yard drive and plunged over himself from the one for their first score with just 53 seconds remaining. The wiry Ellyson completed four consecutive passes in the scoring drive, three to tight end Joel Farina and one to Billy Butler. On the second of those catches, Farina grabbed the aerial for a 36-yard gain after it bounced off the Sandies' Todd Ringo. The last Farina catch put the ball at the AHS 13 and six plays later Ellyson ran it in. Ellyson tried a keeper again on the conversion attempt and was stopped at the line of scrimmage. That defensive play turned out to be the biggest one of the night for the Sandies as they prevented the Harvesters from deadlocking the non-conference clash.

The Sandies could hardly foresee the disastrous results of their next possession. Pampa kicker Dustin Miller booted an onside kick and the Sandies recovered on their own 41, seemingly in safe territory with just 50 ticks left on the clock. But Brent Ellis fumbled on the very next play and Wil Stanley recovered after the ball took a Pampa bounce to the Amarillo 29. Two plays later, Ellyson stepped back, dodged a couple of defenders, and lofted a pass to Brad Abbott, who got behind the Sandie safety and caught the ball in the end zone for the TD. With just 21 seconds remaining, Mark Williams plunged over for the conversion to make it 16-14 and leaving the Sandies in a dazed state.

However, the Sandies made no more mistakes and ran out the clock on their own 43.

First-game mistakes hit the Harvesters hard in the first half. Pampa coughed up the ball on three of its first four possessions and AHS took advantage of one of those mistakes to go on top. Russ Rabel set up the Sandie TD when he intercepted a Mark Williams pass and returned it 30 yards to the Pampa 31.

AHS running back Timmy Smith, who rushed for 155 yards on 26 carries for the night, shook off a tackle that almost brought him to his knees and scored from 31 yards out with 8:02 to go in the first quarter.

From there on out, however, the Harvester defense toughened up in their own territory. AHS drove inside Pampa's 13-yard line four times, and had to settle for three McPhail field goals to get on the board.

Jon Roe knocked down three passes for the Harvesters while Mark Williams came up with an interception.

Williams was Pampa's top rusher with 75 yards in 18 carries while Rodney Kelly had 41 yards in eight steps. Lonnie Mills rushed for 32 yards on six attempts, all in the second half.

"Overall, we were moving the ball pretty good, but we would get bogged down and hurt ourselves with our miscues," said Kendall.

Pampa's offense performed well enough to end up with more total yardage than the Sandies, 306-231. Offensive linemen Shawn Greene and Cam Moore were praised by Kendall for opening up some big holes for Pampa ballcarriers.

"After watching the film, Moore and Greene graded the highest of any of our offensive backs," Kendall added.

Ellyson, who won the starting quarterback job, after a long battle with two teammates, completed seven of 18 passes for 127 yards. And that passing yardage was just for the second half. He was 0 for 3 in the first half.

"Ellyson had a good game, but we just had some miscues that kept us from taking the ball in and scoring," Kendall said.

Farina shared four of Ellyson's passes for 70 yards while Butler caught a pair for 27 yards.

Pampa missed out on an early opportunity to knot the score after a long 66-yard march following an AHS kickoff. Williams couldn't handle a hand-off on the Sandie four and Shawn Webb recovered. It was Pampa's deepest penetration until the fourth quarter.

Oilers meet Browns

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston quarterback Warren Moon realizes that in the eyes of many fans, he's only as good as his last performance.

And since Moon's last game was a blockbuster, a 31-3 blowout of Green Bay, he's on solid ground with the fans going into Sunday's AFC Central Division clash with Cleveland in the Astrodome.

But Moon says he won't be blindsided into thanking he's achieved lasting adoration.

Moon remembers being toasted after a season opening upset of Miami last season. He then was roasted as the season degenerated into a 5-9 effort with Moon receiving much of the blame for a season gone sour.

"I'm taking it all in stride, just like I did when things weren't going as good as they are now," Moon said. "I know that in one week's time they could be all over me again. You are only as good as your last ball game."

Moon completed 14 of 21 passes against the Packers for 218 yards and two touchdowns. Coach Jerry Glanville said Moon read every coverage correctly, even on his first pass that was intercepted.

The Oilers converted 15 of 19 third down attempts and dominated the Packers from start to finish.

Boosters need members

Like the marines, the Pampa Harvester Booster Club needs a few good people.

The Booster Club meets at 7 p.m. Monday night in the high school fieldhouse and more sports fans are urged to join and help support the Harvesters, a club spokesman said.

A film of the Pampa-Amarillo High game be shown and new officers will also be elected during the meeting.

Herschel & Co. invade Silverdome

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — Herschel Walker. Herschel Walker. Herschel Walker. Herschel Walker. Herschel Walker.

That's just about the story on Sunday's NFL game between the Herschel Cowboys and the Detroit Lions.

They used to be the Dallas Cowboys before last Monday night's nationally televised game. But that's all changed since Walker's heroic replacement of Tony Dorsett, which helped the Cowboys to a dramatic 31-28 victory over the New York Giants.

Now they're coming to the Motor City, ready to showcase the $5 million wonder and avenger last year's 26-21 loss to the Lions.

That might be a lot to ask of any mortal man, but Cowboys Coach Tom Landry doesn't think it will bother Walker. It never has.

"I don't think there's any pressure on Herschel," Landry said. "He's just so unimpressed with being a star that he's really kind of amazing to me."

"He's so different. He has speed and he's got size. And he's very adaptable to being a receiver or being a running back. I think he will be a great player in our league."

Probably a good guess. There still is the chance, however, that Dorsett will be able to play against the Lions. He sprained his ankle in the first quarter against the Giants and still was able to run 36 yards for a touchdown with a screen pass before the ankle stiffened.

"Tony's ankle is sore," Landry said. "We really won't know until game time (1 p.m. EDT). We'll wait and see. Herschel will play in his place if Tony can't play."

"Tony is still our tailback and will be there as long as he can carry the ball."

Talk like that gives the Lions the willies.

"We really haven't changed our thinking," Lions defensive coordinator Wayne Fontes said. "We know that Coach Landry still is going to call their offense and shape it very much."

"The thing about Herschel, though, is that he's strong. With both Herschel and Dorsett playing, they can attack both flanks. I don't think there are two better backs anywhere."

"Both can hit the home run and go all the way. They're both fast and I learned a long time ago that speed kills."

William Gay, the Lions' right defensive end, said he fears Dorsett more than any runner he's faced.

Pampa ninth-graders open season with victory

Pampa's ninth-grade football squad opened the season with a 24-12 win over Perryton Thursday night.

"I was real pleased with efforts of the kids," said Pampa Coach Steve Porter. "Perryton was unbeaten as eighth-graders and our players as seventh and eighth graders didn't win very many games, so we're real tickled with the win. We're not very big, but we've got a lot of quickness and we really get after people."

Antione Wallace rushed for 101 yards on 10 carries and scored twice for the Threshers. His first TD, a 55-yard run, came on the very first play from scrimmage. His second score came on a touchdown pass from quarterback Mike Cagle. Heath Parker scored on a conversion run and James Bybee added another conversion on a pass from Cagle to give Pampa a 16-6 halftime lead. Perryton scored its first TD in the second quarter.

Pampa didn't score again until the fourth quarter when backs Junior Busby and Doug Budd teamed up behind some good blocking to lead the Threshers on a long scoring drive. Busby plunged over for the score after a Cagle to Parker aerial put Pampa on Perryton's one.

Other Pampa rushers were Budd, 5 carries, 30 yards; Busby, 6-29 yards and Parker, 5-20 yards. The game's outstanding blockers were Bybee, Greg Wilson and Chris Roden.

"Our defense looked outstanding. We did a lot of gang-tackling," Porter said.

Perryton scored its final TD late in the fourth quarter.

The Threshers visit Dumas Thursday night.

'Greenies' lead Bucks' 62-0 bashing of Claude

CLAUDE—More impressive than the 62-0 score of White Deer's bashing of Claude here Friday night was, to Bucks' coach Windy Williams, who made it happen.

The wide-eyed sophomores, the greenies, of the Bucks' loss last week to Canadian suddenly became veterans.

"We had a lot of sophomores that really came on," Williams said. "Our young kids didn't make the sophomore mistakes like we did in the Canadian game. We got a whole bunch better after Canadian."

This much better: White Deer rolled up 518 yards rushing and 561 overall, while allowing Claude but 24 yards of total offense. The Mustangs never threatened White Deer's endzone, while the Bucks lived in theirs.

"We really played well, and Claude is not that strong," Williams said.

Appropriately, it was a sophomore who scored White Deer's first of many touchdowns.

Bryan Waitman rushed in from 12 yards out early in the first stanza, and Craig Davis' kick gave the Bucks a soon-to-be-padded 7-0 lead. Padded by junior Mark Greene, who jaunted in for a 30-yard score that, with Davis' kick, gave the Bucks a 14-0 lead they took into the second quarter.

Another sophomore, 140-pound Jason Marljar, accounted for both White Deer touchdowns in that period, and from long range. Marljar's first scoring burst was from 44 yards out, and Davis' kick made it 21-0. Following a 29-yard Marljar touchdown tear, Davis missed his only kick of the night, and the Bucks led 27-0 at the half.

Waitman got back in on the action to start a 21-point Bucks' third quarter, rambling in from 30 yards away and making it 34-0. His senior brother Lyn Waitman was hospitalized with severe abdominal pains suffered from a blow in the game and kept overnight for tests and observation.

Williams said doctors indicated the injury was a bruised abdominal wall, and wasn't serious.

While White Deer was doing what it pleased against Claude, the Mustangs were accomplishing exactly zero against the always hard-hitting Bucks' defense.

"We were very aggressive. We just hit every play," Williams beamed. "I was so pleased with their effort."

Bryan Thurmond became the first White Deer senior to score, breaking one from 19 yards away midway through the third stanza, and the score was 41-0. Junior Lance Cross made it 48-0 entering the fourth with a 52-yard touchdown dash.

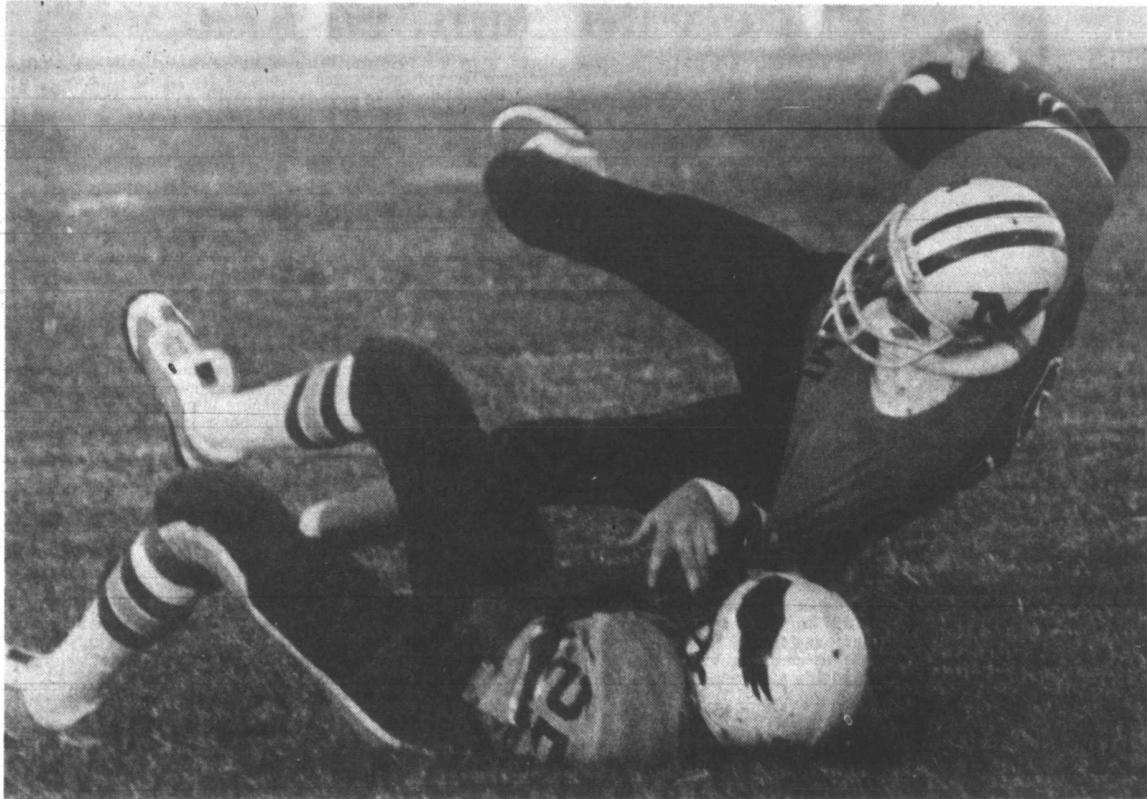

Thurmond's 'I can beat that' was next, a 60-yard scoring excursion that was followed by a 30-yard Cross touchdown jaunt for the 62-0 final. The Bucks gained 294 yards on their touchdown runs alone, and got 43 passing on a 3 of 5 night by Davis.

"We just executed much better than we had been," Williams said. "It was a good game for us in that we got a win, but it was a better game for us in that we accomplished some of the things we wanted to for ourselves as far as technique and hustle."

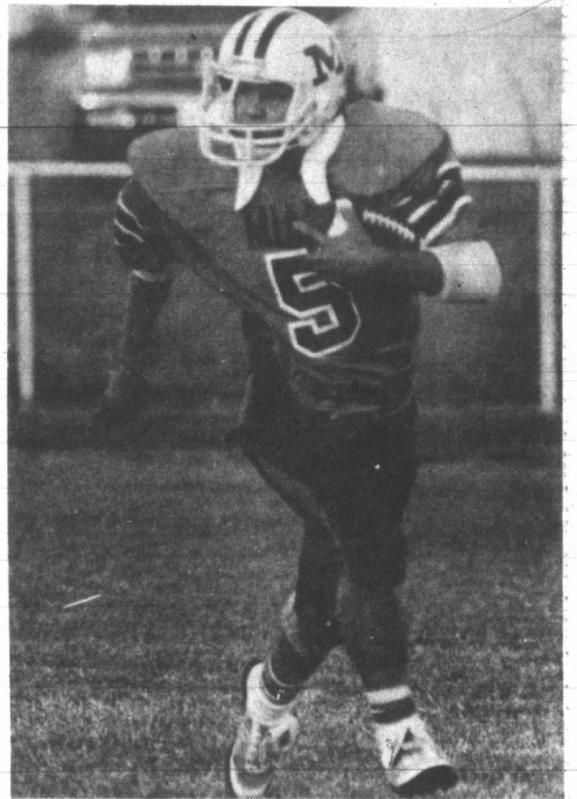

"Waitman, Marljar, Brady Burns, Mike Hill, Bart Thomas...gosh those guys played well. That just made our football team a much better football team. Our older guys look around and they're seeing these pups help 'em out now."

"I was so tickled with 'em the way they got so much better."

Three Way outruns Miami in 59-32 smoker

Miami's Shane Bridwell is stopped by Saul Guillen.

The Warriors' Jeff Bass gains ground.

By DAN MURRAY
Sports Writer

Guillens, speed the difference for Eagles

MIAMI—Quickness met power here Friday night, and in a scene not unlike pit bulldogs chasing motorcyclists, this time quickness won.

Three Way used its Saul Guillen to Oscar Guillen combination for three touchdowns and its quickness for four more as the Eagles ran past Miami 59-32 before a capacity Warriors' crowd.

All of the four Saul to Oscar TD passes covered 20 yards or more, as the Miami defenders couldn't keep up with the fast-footed, soft-fingered Guillens. The elusive quarterback Saul threw for two more touchdowns and ran for another.

"Some of those our guys had 'em covered and they still got it. He can throw," said Miami coach Currie McWilliams. "For the most part we played pretty decent defense. We just turned the wrong guy loose sometimes and made mental mistakes. We had to play smart football and sometimes we didn't."

While Three Way was passing for most of its yardage, the majority of Miami's came on the ground...and in the second half, which the Warriors entered trailing 22-6.

Twice in the final two quarters

Miami drew within a touchdown of taking the lead, once at 22-19 and in the fourth quarter at 37-32. The first time the Eagles came back and scored. The second time, at 37-32 they drove to the Warriors' 17, where they survived the play that might've changed the outcome.

Saul scampered back to pass, and tried to hit Robert Zamora at the Miami 10. But Zamora tumbled to the turf and the ball hit Miami's Shane Bridwell, with nothing but grass in front of him, in the hands but slipped to the ground.

Three Way scored two plays later and then iced the game with two more touchdowns.

"If we'd have gotten that interception I think it would've been a lot different," McWilliams said. "I think after that there was a little letdown."

Miami's achilles heel was its first half offensive showing, in which the Warriors spotted the Eagles the two touchdowns they could never make up.

The Warriors' vaunted ground game couldn't get untracked, with the exception of a 26-yard Jeff Bass touchdown run.

"We just did not execute in the first half," McWilliams said. "I think the kids were nervous, a little tight. We came back out the second half and looked a little better. The kids did some good, but other times they didn't."

For all the scoring in the game, there was none in the first quarter. There almost was, as a 24-yard Saul to Zamora pass helped the Eagles drive to a fourth and goal at Miami's 2. Saul tried to pass, but Lloyd Cook, Clint Wheeler and Greg Alexander were on his case at the snap and the Warriors halted the drive.

But Three Way got the ball back at the Miami 37, and on second down Saul and Oscar connected for the distance, and the Eagles led 6-0 at the 9:38 mark.

Miami fumbled at its 15 on first down after the kickoff, and the Eagles' Albert Belez recovered. Saul then found Zamora on an outpattern for a touchdown, and Curtis Tucker's PAT kick made it 14-0 with 13 seconds between touchdowns.

Finally, Miami got something started as Brett Byrum hit Bridwell on a diving sideline catch for 15 yards, and Bass went left for 19 to the Three Way 26. From there Bass, who had 144 yards on 16 carries, took a pitchout right for the distance and it was 14-6 with 8:38 to go.

In the final four minutes the Eagles drove to the Warriors' 1, where Saul found Matt Sowder and dumped the ball to him in the endzone. Tucker made it 22-6, and the half later ended on a harmless fumble recovery by Miami's Cook.

While Saul eluded Miami's defenders in the first half, the Warriors were having problems with Three Way's quick, swarming defense. They didn't in the third quarter.

On Miami's opening third stanza possession, John Locke carried five straight times to move the ball from the Miami 20 to Three Way turf, but a holding call put the ball back to the Miami 33.

There, Byrum handed to Bass on a trap right, and the speedy senior darted to the sideline and sped 47 yards unmolested for the score. Byrum passed to Cook for the point-after, at it was 22-13 at the 8:33 mark.

The Warriors forced the Eagles to punt then drove 54 yards for another touchdown. Bass' 16-yard carry and a Byrum to Bridwell out pattern helped Miami moved to the Three Way 7, where the two teamed again for the touchdown, with Bridwell making a spectacular over-the-shoulder fingertip catch. The PAT failed but Miami had narrowed the gap to 22-19 with 5:24 left in the third.

The Eagles widened that, though, using Belez runs and Saul to Oscar passes to march 70 yards for a touchdown. The final 24 came on a Saul pass to Oscar on a flag pattern, and a one-point conversion made it 29-19.

On the first play of the final stanza a two-yard Zamora run and a Tucker PAT kick made it 37-19, then Miami charged back.

That score stood for only the 11 seconds it took Bridwell to take Tucker's kickoff 79 yards up the right sideline for a touchdown, and Byrum hit Bass for the PAT to make it 37-26. Bridwell's return came on the first kickoff Tucker hadn't put out of the endzone all night.

Miami forced Three Way to punt, and Bridwell returned it to the Three Way 19 and caught a fourth down Byrum pass for a first at the Eagles' 4. Locke popped in from the 3, and the Warriors were back in the game at 37-32. Miami then tried and failed on an onside kick. Three Way drove to the Warriors' 17, where Bridwell let the interception opportunity slip through his fingers. Saul scored from the one after getting there on a screen pass from Zamora, and the Eagles proceeded to ice the game.

Saul and Oscar combined for the final two scores, and their speed was the game's biggest difference.

"All week I thought it was gonna be," McWilliams said. "When we made mistakes they used their speed to take advantage of it."

The Eagles finished with 425 total yards to the Warriors' 268. Miami's stands were packed for the game, compared to the 12 souls in Three Way's bleachers.

"I really did appreciate the turnout we had and the way the fans supported the kids through the whole ballgame," McWilliams said. "I don't think they gave up on 'em."

Nor did the Warriors give up, only this time the bulldogs couldn't quite catch the bikers.

McWilliams' Warriors are 1-1 following the loss and awaiting a date with Lefors next week, while Three Way, probably playoff-bound, upped its season record to 2-0.

Lefors' Marshall Keys plows for yardage during the Pirates' 6-4 loss to Silverton Friday night. The Pirates, while outstanding on defense, never could get their offense going, gaining only 80 total yards. They'll entertain Miami next week in a non-district game.

Offense abandons Pirates in Silverton's 6-4 comeback

LEFORS—Lefors had the six-man football defense, but couldn't find the offense as the Pirates dropped a baseball score to Silverton 6-4 here Friday night.

Lefors held the Owls to 169 total yards and led 4-0 going into the fourth quarter. But the Pirates mustered just 80 total yards, and when Silverton finally did score a touchdown it was enough.

"Good defense, no offense," Lefors coach Brent Fountain said. "They were quicker than we expected them to be."

Fountain summed the game up best, saying, "one, two, three, kick," as the two teams punted at total of 11 times.

They started out exchanging boots before Lefors' Jimmy Hannon recovered an Owls' fumble at the Silverton 25. The Pirates lost two yards in three plays, then Kirk Kerbo missed on a long-range field goal attempt.

In the second quarter, Lefors got its lone score after holding Silverton at its 35, then driving to the Owls' 11. A 19-yard Kent Kerbo run sparked the drive, and with 26 seconds left before intermission, Kirk booted a 28-yard (four-point in six-man) field goal to make it 4-0.

Lefors couldn't move the ball in the third quarter, nor could Silverton, and the Pirates led entering the fourth.

"We tried to run dives and leads and the defensive ends were getting us, so it was just missed blocking assignments," Fountain said.

Lefors gave Silverton the break it needed when the Pirates fumbled at their own 7, and with 4:29 left in the game the Owls' Neal Edwards carried the distance for the winning touchdown.

Twice, the Pirates tried to come back but failed. Once, a drive failed when the Pirates failed in two downs to gain one yard, then as the final seconds ticked away a pass to Norman Howard glanced off his fingertips at the Silverton 35. The Owls ran out the clock.

Injuries were part of Lefors' offensive stumblings, as Jamie Wariner was knocked from the game with a slight shoulder separation, and John Ledbetter ousted with bruised ribs. Kevin Mayfield also suffered an ankle injury but finished the game.

Kent Kerbo accounted for most of Lefors' offense with 62 yards on 20 carries. The Pirates were understandably upset with their first six-man loss. Lefors is 1-1, as is Silverton.

"They knew what their mistakes were and they were upset about it," Fountain said. "I told 'em hey, we gotta start playing and getting ready for Miami (next week's opponent). That seemed to fire 'em up. We gotta work a lot harder this week."

"I told 'em hey, it's better to lose one now. We're not even in district. I think we'll be fired up for Miami. I hope so."

Salyer injured as Wheeler lurches by Irish

WHEELER — Wheeler beat Shamrock 17-8 for the Wheeler County championship here Friday night, in spite of Murphy's Law.

"Those things that you anticipate happening bad in your first game, well they all happened to us," Wheeler head coach Preston Smith said after he saw top running back Dicky Salyer go down early with a knee injury and his Mustangs stumble through a plethora of first-game mistakes.

Salyer, who was expected to be the main cog in Wheeler's offense this year, was injured on the Mustangs' second offensive series and sat out the remainder of the game. Saturday morning he was on crutches.

"It's not good I don't think," Smith said. "We'll take him to the doctor Monday and find out."

The first time Wheeler got the ball the Mustangs drove down and scored on a seven-yard Salyer burst. Richard Smith booted the PAT and it looked like just another typical Wheeler game.

Salyer was injured on the second possession, and Wheeler settled for a 33-yard Smith field goal to make it 10-0. The Mustangs didn't score again until the fourth quarter, matching their longest scoring drought of all last season.

"We kind of lost our poise when we lost Dicky," Smith said. "It took us a little while to regroup and get going again."

While Wheeler was regrouping, Shamrock managed to drive to the Mustangs' 35, thanks mostly to a 30-yard Chuck Daugherty pass completion. The Irish quarterback then found John Terry for a touchdown strike, and Terry's PAT run made the score 10-8. While the Mustangs' offense was coughing, their Black Death Defense kept the game secure. The lone touchdown drive was the only offensive threat the Irish could muster, as they finished with 18 yards rushing to go with 113 passing, most of it from the TD trip.

"We never lost control of the game," Smith said. "Our defense kept us in the football game. Other than that one series, our defense played well. I was impressed with our defense."

Wheeler's offense, with Bubba Smith replacing Salyer, continued to move the ball, as the Mustangs finished with 232 total yards. But two fumbles and 95 yards in penalties kept killing Wheeler's drives.

"We did a lot of things that you do in first games that can beat you," Smith said. "But you have to give Shamrock a lot of credit. They played well and did the things you have to do against us. They came up to the line of scrimmage and crowded us with 10 people, stunting and things."

"We kind of anticipated the first game mistakes, and everything we anticipated came true." The Mustangs finally sealed it though, converting a fourth quarter drive with a one-yard Bubba Smith touchdown plunge and brother Richard's PAT to make it 17-8.

The Irish fell to 1-1, while the Mustangs are 2-0 with the forfeit over Highland Park. Wheeler next hosts Hobart, Okla., that state's No. 2-rated Class 2A team. Smith hopes he doesn't see the mistakes and injuries next week.

"We're just trying to win the football games one at a time," he said. "We need to rally back next week and do some things good that we didn't do this week."

Tony 343!

TCU's Tony Jeffery (27) set a Southwest Conference rushing record with a 343-yard day against Tulane Saturday. The total is the highest in the nation this year. The Horned Frogs won the game, 48-31.

Penalties plague Canadian in tie with Sanford-Fritch

FRITCH — Like climbers stuck near the peak of a mountain, the Canadian Wildcats spent most of Friday night here close to the Sanford-Fritch endzone, but not in it.

What ended up in the books as a 6-6 sister-kissing tie with the Eagles was really the Wildcats marching up and down the field, then stubbing their toes on the goal line.

Michigan holds off Notre Dame, 24-23

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Jamie Morris scored his second and third touchdowns six seconds apart in the third period on a 1-yard run and a 27-yard pass after a botched kickoff return as third-ranked Michigan spoiled Lou Holtz's Notre Dame coaching debut Saturday by rallying for a controversial 24-23 victory.

The two quick touchdowns by Morris, who also scored on a 8-yard run in the first period, put Michigan ahead 24-14 and made Holtz only the second Notre Dame coach in the 20th century to lose his inaugural game. Elmer Layden's 1934 team bowed to Texas 7-6.

Notre Dame's John Carney, whose missed extra-point was the difference, was wide left on a 45-yard field goal attempt into the wind with 13 seconds remaining, one of three times Notre Dame drove into Michigan territory in the final period only to waste two of them.

Morris' short touchdown run from one of numerous wishbone alignments shown by both teams capped a 12-play, 78-yard drive with the second-half kickoff and put Michigan ahead 17-14. It was the first lead of the game for the Wolverines, who were favored by a touchdown.

Rick Sutkiewicz's short kickoff was held up by the 12 mph breeze and blown away from Notre Dame's James Sass, a sophomore walk-on.

Michigan's Doug Mallory recovered at the 27. On the next play, Morris caught Jim Harbaugh's perfectly thrown pass in the end zone despite tight coverage by cornerback Marv Spence to make it 24-14.

Steve Beuerlein, who passed Joe Theismann and became Notre Dame's career passing leader, brought the Irish back with a 2-yard touchdown pass to tight end Joel Williams at 11:50 of the third period but Carney's extra-point try sailed wide to the left. Carney's second field goal, a 25-yarder with 4:26 left, left the Irish one point short of a dramatic victory.

One play before the field goal, the officials ruled that Williams' foot came down on the rear line of the end zone after catching a pass from Beuerlein. Television replays appeared to show that he was in bounds.

of lineup and it showed...For some of 'em it looked like we were just starting to play football.

"We had great individual play at times but we just weren't playing as a team, he continued, citing the efforts of Wright, and on defense Shawn Spoon, Denny McLanahan, Mike Wagner and Lance Cates. "We had too many individual breakdowns. We need to get our acts together and play as a unit...We're really out of sync right now."

The Wildcats, now 1-0-1 while S-F is 0-1-1, started off fine. Wright, who had 104 yards on 30 carries, capped off a first quarter Canadian drive with a one-yard scoring plunge. He missed the kick but the 'Cats led 6-0.

But the goal line blues set in after that, and in the second quarter the Eagles' Jeff Snider popped one in from 29 yards out and tied the score. The kick missed and the scoring was finished for the game.

While Canadian moved the ball at will then bogged down, Sanford-Fritch never got it going again. The Eagles failed to cross midfield in the second half.

"We handled 'em real well defensively," Wilson said. In the fourth quarter Canadian thrice threatened, and the last play of the game was a 37-yard Wright field goal attempt that sailed true, but just under the bar.

"We had that rascal about three times down there in the last few minutes and didn't get it in," Wilson said.

"I can't gripe about the effort. We put out a bunch of effort and lots of determination. We'd come right back and get it down there."

College Scores

Washington 40, Ohio State 7
SEATTLE (AP) — Chris Chandler passed 31 and 5 yards to Lonzell Hill for touchdowns and Tony Zackery fell on a blocked punt in the end zone for another TD Saturday as 17th-ranked Washington shocked 10th-rated Ohio State 40-7 in the Huskies' football opener.

Washington's victory was less surprising than the 33-point margin. The Big Ten Conference powerhouse Buckeyes were 1/2 favorites over the host Pacific-10 Conference team.

A 16-10 loser to fourth-ranked Alabama in the Kickoff Classic in New Jersey last month, Ohio State dropped to 0-2 for the first time since 1894.

The Buckeyes trailed 24-0 at halftime after a three-touchdown Washington barrage in three minutes and 20 seconds late in the second half.

Rick Fenney, Washington's senior fullback, scored on a 2-yard run with 3:44 to go in the half and the rout was on.

Mississippi St. 27, Tennessee 23
KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Mississippi State quarterback Don Smith ran 62 yards for a fourth-quarter touchdown as the Bulldogs came from behind to shock No. 8 Tennessee 27-23 Saturday in the Southeastern Conference opener for both teams.

Tennessee missed a last chance to score from the 16-yard line when Volunteer quarterback Randy Sanders overthrew flanker Terence Cleveland, who was wide open in the end zone with 1:53 remaining.

The Bulldogs' Bruce Plummer intercepted Sanders' next pass on fourth down to seal the win and lift their record to 2-0, 1-0 in the SEC. The Vols fell to 1-1 overall, 0-1 in the SEC.

Alabama 31, Southern Miss' 17
BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Mike Shula connected with Greg Richardson on two scoring passes and placekicker Van Tiffin set a Southeastern Conference record Saturday as fourth-ranked Alabama defeated Southern Mississippi 31-17 in a non-conference game.

Shula completed five straight passes in the final minute of the first half, capped by a 6-yarder to Richardson to give 3-0 Alabama a 14-10 halftime lead, the second time the Crimson Tide came from behind in the contest.

Alabama held a 24-10 lead when Shula found Richardson in the end zone for a 31-yard touchdown early in the final period.

Tiffin kicked four extra points, giving him 105 in a row to break the SEC record of 101 set by Georgia's Rex Robinson in 1977-80. Tiffin's conversion extended Alabama's NCAA record to 164, dating back to 1981.

Dallas-Giants heavily watched

NEW YORK (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys' 31-28 victory over the New York Giants was the fifth-highest rated Monday Night Football season-opening game in the 17-year history of the telecasts, ABC said Friday.

Earlier in the week, it was reported that the game, which drew a 21.2 rating and a 38 share in a 12-city overnight sampling, was the fifth-highest rated Monday night game of all time.

Ratings equal a percentage of homes watching a particular program at a specific time. A share point is the percentage of televisions currently in use tuned to a program.

The highest-rated Monday night game was between the Chicago Bears and Miami Dolphins last year, which drew a 29.6 rating and a 46 share.

Pampa netters sweep past Lobos

Pampa won its first five matches in the boys' division enroute to a 13-5 triumph over Levelland in high school tennis action Saturday at the PHS courts.

Reagan Eddins, Pampa's top boys' seed, defeated Jody Herring, 7-5, 6-1, and Andrea Adcock, Pampa's top-seeded girl, also won her match, 6-3, 6-3, over Michelle Herring.

"We were impressive," said Pampa Coach Jay Barrett. "I think we surprised them. They didn't expect us to be that good."

David Bradshaw defeated Terry Strucker, 6-4, 6-2; Matt Walsh won over Kent Etchison, 6-1, 6-0; Bern Avendanio downed Danny Mack, 6-4, 6-0, and Alex Hallerberg outlasted Kyle Burt, 7-5, 3-6, 7-5, for Pampa's other victories in the boys' division.

Shelli Teague defeated Nikki Jackson, 6-4, 6-4; Susanna Holt won over Tara Abbe, 2-6, 6-7, and Angie Stroud was victorious over Ashley Bordelon, 6-3, 4-6, 6-0, for Pampa's other wins in the girls' division.

In doubles play, the Pampa boys swept all three of their matches. Eddins-Bradshaw defeated Herring-Strucker, 7-6, 6-3; Walsh-Avendanio downed Mack-Holcomb, 6-1, 6-0, and Hallerberg-James Thompson defeated Etchison-Burt, 6-2, 6-2.

On the girls' side, Holt-Allyson Thompson defeated Hill-Parker, 6-2, 2-6, 7-5, and Adcock-Stroud won over Abbe-Bordelon, 6-0, 6-2.

Pampa's next match is also at home against Palo Duro Tuesday, starting at 4 p.m.

The remainder of Pampa's schedule is: Canyon, Sept. 20, 3 p.m. there; Borger, Sept. 23, 4 p.m. there; Estacado, Sept. 30, 4 p.m. home; Dumas, Oct. 4, 10 a.m. home; Dunbar, Oct. 4, Dunbar, 3 p.m. home.

"We've got our tough matches coming up against Canyon and Hereford," Barrett said. "We have to play both of them on the same day on their courts, so we're going to have to be up for them."

The Harvesters are now 2-2 in dual action this fall.

TCU outlasts Tulane

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Texas Christian running back Tony Jeffery didn't want his record-setting afternoon to end.

"Can we spend the night?" he asked Coach Jim Wacker after leading TCU to a 48-31 triumph over Tulane in a college football game Saturday.

Jeffery turned in the best rushing performance in major college football so far this young season and just 14 yards shy of the NCAA all-time record of 357 yards in a game.

He got 343 yards on 16 carries, including five touchdown runs. "It isn't that hard when you are getting the kind of blocking that I was from your offensive line and your receivers downfield," Jeffery said after the game. "They were doing a great job opening holes — big holes."

"Also, the quarterback was doing a terrific job of reading the tackle and making the pitch," he added. "I would just read my blocks and take off. Truthfully, I was dreaming about having a good game last night, once I finally got to sleep."

"The biggest difference between this year and last year? Experience and a desire to win," Jeffery said.

Pampa girls pull off near-upset of Tascosa

Pampa geared up for district play by giving Class 5A powerhouse Tascosa quite a battle before succumbing, 16-14, 12-15, 10-15, in a high school volleyball match Friday night in McNeely Fieldhouse.

Pampa dropped to 5-9, while Tascosa improved its record to 16-5.

Pampa opens district play Tuesday against Dumas on the homecourt with matches starting at 6:30 p.m.

"We played an awesome match against Tascosa. The girls were up against them and Tascosa wasn't as up for us as they should have been. We jumped right on them and stayed after them," said Pampa Coach Phil Hall.

Hall praised Tanya Lidy, Rhonda Brown and Melinda Jackson for their blocks on big attempts by Tascosa's kill frontline.

"Serina Clinkingbeard and Keitha Clark came off the bench and did an excellent job," Hall added.

Pampa hosted a junior varsity tournament Saturday and Caprock came away with the championship trophy by defeating Palo Duro, 8-15, 15-10, 15-7, in the finals.

By PAUL BAILEY
Austin American-Statesman

AUSTIN (AP) — Apples probably won't become a major agricultural product in Texas any time soon, but Bud Burnett of Hays County is trying to make it a major crop on his farm.

While apples don't even register on the statistical scale of measured Texas-grown products, Burnett has 4,000 apple trees of various varieties that he hopes will be making him a living over the next several years.

"I am serious about the prospect of making apples a viable crop for my farm," Burnett said, "and I hope they become a better identified product in Texas."

Burnett, a retired county judge, began last month marketing the first crop of apples from his 4-year-old orchards.

The Texas apple is a fresh-market apple, as opposed to apples that are stored from a previous season and sold throughout the year. Apples from Washington, Illinois and other northern states are in the produce market all year, being distributed from cold storage as demand requires.

Burnett's apples, and other apples grown in Texas, go to the produce markets and grocery stores as soon as they are harvested. Burnett is selling most of his apples through the Safeway store in San Marcos. As his orchards age and production increases, he hopes to widen his marketing area.

"There are over 2 million people living in this immediate Central Texas area," Burnett said. "There is no reason for my apple crop, or any other fresh-food crop, going unsold. Our apples are fresh from the tree, while all other apples on the market during this time of year have been in storage 8 to 10 months."

Burnett, whose farm is near Wimberly, said his apple production is a 10-year project and includes experimenting with several new varieties of trees. He is being assisted in the program by Hays County Agricultural Agent Cliff Caskey. They have planted and root grafted about seven varieties for fruit production ranging from mid-July into September. He has another group of trees that are experimental varieties for this area.

"I have made some mistakes with the project, but I try not to make them more than twice," Burnett said with a laugh as he pointed out some trees that didn't get good early development.

Caskey said one major problem with apple production in Central Texas has been cotton root rot.

"We have been trying to solve the root-rot problem with improved varieties of apples and other means of experiments," Caskey said, "but there is still that chance of losing a tree to the disease."

A number of people have tried to start an apple industry in Central and West Central Texas, but most have fallen victim to cotton root rot. Gillespie County has five or six apple orchards today.

Several growers have gone out of business there due to the root disease.

Gillespie County Agricultural Extension Agent Duery Menzies said several large peach growers tried to develop an apple industry in the county, but most were met with the same old problem: cotton root rot.

"The apples are good, and the prospects are good if continued production is successful," Menzies said, "but most growers shy away from the crop because of the prospect of losses."

Burnett and Caskey agree that the Texas apple is not the prettiest on the produce shelf, but under the peel is quality plus. Specialists point out that apples ripened under the hot Texas sun never attain the pretty color of northern apples since the red pigment needs cooler weather to form. But, they add, it certainly doesn't affect flavor and firmness.

A study cited by Extension Service horticulturist Dr. John Lipe of Fredericksburg confirms this. The study compared Red Delicious apples from Washington and Illinois, Yellow Delicious apples from Washington and Red Delicious apples grown in Fredericksburg. All were bought at supermarkets in late summer.

The qualities measured were sugars, firmness, acidity and malic acid content. In the all-important sugar content, Texas apples contained more than 16 percent, or 2½ percent more than the Washington Red Delicious and 4 percent more than the Illinois Red Delicious and Washington Yellow Delicious.

In taste comparisons, 70 percent of participants chose Fredericksburg apples as the best. Washington Yellow Delicious was a distant second with 11 percent. The Texas apple was also rated tops in texture by 52 percent. Illinois won the color rating.

Burnett, who also grows peaches on his farm, said he is satisfied with some of his apple varieties and will continue to experiment in hopes of finding some that provide even better taste and production. His Red Chief, Mollie Delicious, Smoothie, Prime Gold and Stark Crimson Red Delicious apples are producing well and are popular sellers.

Commission to study future of U.S.-Mexican relations

MEXICO CITY (AP) — An independent commission made up of 18 top-ranking officials, intellectuals and business leaders from both sides of the border was formed last week to study the future of U.S.-Mexican relations.

The target is to have a report ready by the time new presidents take office in Mexico in December 1988 and in the United States in January 1989, said Sen. Hugo Margain, a former ambassador to Washington who is the chairman of the Mexican group.

The U.S. group is chaired by William D. Rogers, a Washington lawyer who was a former assistant secretary of state for inter-American affairs.

Margain said the commission would meet for the first time on Oct. 9 in Tijuana, Mexico, and the following day across the border in San Diego to "catalog" the problems for study.

Three joint meetings are scheduled next year, the first in Mexico in January.

"This was not done by a government agreement," Margain said at a news conference. "There is absolute independence."

Here is it sponsored jointly by the Ford Foundation and other private organizations, while the Ford Foundation announced the commission's formation in the United States.

Margain said the study will be of "all types of bilateral problems," including economic, political, social and cultural issues. He said the focus will not be on "immediate problems" but rather will be on the long term.

A statement describing the goals said the research would identify "those issues that will affect the agenda of the relations between Mexico and the United States from now until the end of the century."

It said the commission also would seek "solutions and recommendations of long range tending to strengthen and make mutually more advantageous these relations."

Among the U.S. members are Yvonne Brathwaite Burke, former U.S. congresswoman from Los Angeles; San Antonio Mayor Henry Cisneros; U.S. Sen. Nancy Kassebaum, R-Kan.; Robert S. McNamara, former defense secretary and former president of the World Bank, and Charles W. Parry, chairman of the Aluminum Company of America.

YOU can make it happen — the United Way There's no better way!

RANDY MATSON

The following letter was written by Randy Matson, a Pampa High School graduate and former Olympic shotput Gold Medal winner. Now executive director of the Association of Former Students at Texas A&M University, Matson wrote the letter in support of the local Pampa United Way campaign.

Mrs. Evelyn Johnson
President, Pampa United Way

Dear Evelyn:

Thank you very much for your letter concerning the Pampa United Way for 1986-1987. I've had the opportunity, this year, to work on the video tape for the Bryan-College Station United Way, and am pleased that you've asked me to help in a small way in the Pampa campaign.

I was very fortunate to have had the opportunity to grow up in Pampa in the 1950s and early '60s. One of the things I remember most about Pampa was that its citizens were concerned about each other and were willing to help those that were in need. Through the United Way, the citizens of Pampa are still helping each other — the young, the elderly, and others that are in need. By contributing to the Pampa United Way, you have an opportunity to support many worthwhile organizations in your community. The United Way organizations touch most of the families in Pampa and provide a very necessary service to your community. Please join with others in supporting the Pampa United Way campaign for 1986-1987.

Sincerely,

Randy
Randy Matson '67
Executive Director

DANNY PARKERSON entertains at the Pampa United Way 1986 campaign kickoff luncheon last week. Serving as manager of the M. K. Brown Auditorium, Parkerson is one of the volunteers offering his time in the fundraising drive to help raise contributions to support the local United Way agencies. Parkerson is co-chairman of the Public Division. (Staff photo by Paul Pinkham)

The Pampa United Way's 1986 fundraising campaign offers an opportunity for Pampa area residents to support 14 local human and health service agencies providing assistance in youth and elderly programs and food, shelter, clothing and comfort to the ill, hungry, homeless, distressed and otherwise needy residents — not just in Pampa but in the surrounding cities and counties.

The United Way board of directors has set a goal this year of $286,000 to help support the goals, aims and activities of the agencies.

The board decided that money raised in this year's drive will go strictly to the local agencies, helping those here at home. The three other agencies supported in the past — Southwest Diabetic Foundation, United Services Organization (USO) and Warm Springs Rehabilitation Hospital — are not being dropped, but they will not receive any funding this year from the Pampa organization. Instead, the money raised in the current drive will go in 1987 to the local agencies. The money will be used here, at home.

Though the money is important to ensuring the continuing success of the agencies, success that has been a source of pride for the community, the agencies also need the support of the people in the community. The drive's monetary success will depend on the willingness of people to give their donations so the agencies can continue to perform and function well in meeting the needs of others.

But the agencies also depend on the numerous volunteers who give of their time, energy and labor to help others: working with youth, helping the elderly, assisting the handicapped, preparing to assist in emergency situations or just taking the time to care and to love.

Giving the United Way is a means of helping others and of insuring that the aid is there whenever you might need it. And the donations and service work together, along with the many hours of willing volunteers, to form a caring and productive community.

So when the United Way drive volunteers knock on your doors or visit your places of employment, or when the pledge cards come in the mail, know that the money will be wisely used: it is managed by people like you, distributed by ordinary citizens from every area and from every line of work. They make sure every penny they allocate is needed and spent efficiently and effectively.

It only takes a few minutes to make out the pledge card, but the benefits will stretch over a number of months.

And if you want to give more than money, the agencies are always looking for volunteers to help their programs and to provide the much needed service to others.

You CAN make it happen — the United Way!

AMERICAN RED CROSS

The Gray County Chapter of the American Red Cross provides blood pressure clinics and health care, CPR, first aid and water safety courses. It also offers help for disaster victims and military families, a loan closet for home patients, hospital and convalescent home volunteers, youth programs and daily contacts with homebound through a "reassurance" program. Volunteers provide an estimated 2400 hours yearly.

BOY SCOUTS, ADOBE WALLS COUNCIL

The Boy Scout program develops leadership and self-confidence through character building and citizenship training. It gives young men a chance to explore careers, develop outdoor skills and personal fitness. Scouting stresses respect, reverence, honesty, self-reliance and other basic concepts. Troop and resource leaders of all ages volunteer hundreds of hours.

COMMUNITY DAY CARE CENTER

The Community Day Care Center provides a place for parents to drop off their children while at work or involved in other activities in which they cannot watch over their children. It offers two balanced meals and a program of activities for 86 fulltime preschoolers. Fee is based on family income.

GENESIS HOUSES FOR BOYS AND GIRLS

The Genesis Houses provide a home-like environment with a parental-type discipline in a 24-hour program of emotional, educational and vocational rehabilitation for youth 13 to 18 years old. Though there's a trained staff on duty, many volunteers instruct the residents and transport them to many activities.

GIRL SCOUTS, QUIVIRA COUNCIL

Girl scouting develops leadership and self-confidence through character building and citizenship training. It also gives young women a chance to explore careers and develop outdoor skills and personal fitness. Programs also stress respect, reverence, honesty, self-reliance and other basic concepts. Troop and resource leaders of all ages volunteer hundreds of hours.

HIGH PLAINS EPILEPSY

The organization, which has a local office in the Red Cross building, provides medications, makes medical arrangements and offers family counseling, interagency referrals and coordination, and educational materials.

LATCH KEY PROGRAM

Offered now at Wilson, Austin and Mann elementary schools, the Latch Key Program provides after-school day care for elementary children of working parents, giving them a place to enjoy supervised activities until their parents can pick them up.

MEALS ON WHEELS

More than 150 nutritionally balanced meals are delivered weekdays on a pay-as-you-can basis to the elderly and handicapped through the efforts of 300 volunteers a month. The service also includes visiting with and checking on the needs of the participants.

PAMPA FAMILY SERVICES

Pampa Family Services provides individual and group therapy and counseling.

PAMPA SENIOR CITIZENS CENTER

The center at 500 W. Francis provides noon meals for 150 to 250 people each weekday. A program of activities is also offered to senior citizens.

PAMPA SHELTERED WORKSHOP

The workshop offers a weekly program for 20 men and women with mental handicaps, including study, social activities, grooming and a sheltered workshop giving them training in various employment skills. Volunteers help with some programs and provide transportation to many activities.

SALVATION ARMY

The Pampa Salvation Army provides disaster and emergency services and coordinates community transportation. Staff personnel and volunteers also provide food baskets and toys at Christmas, a visitation program, a Golden Agers monthly luncheon-bingo, youth activities and a Thrift Store.

SOUTH SIDE SENIOR CITIZENS CENTER

The center at 438 W. Crawford provides weeknight programs and daytime referral services.

MRS. JAMES LLOYD BOHANNON
Dianna Sue Freeman

MRS. B.B. REEVES
La Jona Taylor

CHRIS LEONARD & KIMBERLY BOOKER

Freeman-Bohannon Taylor-Reeves

Dianna Sue Freeman became the bride of James Lloyd Bohannon Saturday evening at the First Baptist Church of White Deer. Officiating at the ceremony was the Rev. Harold Abney assisted by Father Clifton Corcoran of Sacred Heart Catholic Church in White Deer.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C.D. Freeman of White Deer. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. A.B. Bohannon, also of White Deer.

Janet Timmons of Lubbock attended the bride as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Tonya Freeman of White Deer; Connie Maxwell of Crosby, the groom's sister; and Angie Bohannon of White Deer, sister of the groom.

Shane Grange of White Deer was best man. Groomsmen included the bride's brothers, Johnny Freeman and Joe Freeman, both of White Deer; and Allen Weese of Pollett.

The bride's brother, Matt Freeman of White Deer, lit the candles for the wedding service. Justin Freeman of White Deer carried the rings. Flower girls were Amanda Freeman of White Deer and Ara Maxwell of Crosby.

Guests were escorted to their seats by Monty Carroll of Houston, John Ingle of White Deer, Michael Lopez of Lubbock and Jessie Asencio of White Deer. Kristi Rogers of White Deer attended the guest register.

Special wedding music was provided by pianist Shela Terry and organist Nita Ramming, both of White Deer. Mary Mitchell of White Deer was soloist.

The couple were honored with a reception in the church parlor following the wedding. Assisting were Leia Srader of White Deer, Linda Kay Rapstine of Lubbock, and Trena Ruthardt of Amarillo. A wedding dance honoring the newlyweds followed in Parish Hall.

After a honeymoon trip to Birmingham, Ala., the couple plan to make their home in Snyder.

The bride is a 1981 graduate of White Deer High School. She graduated from West Texas State University in Canyon in 1986. She is employed by Western Texas College in Snyder.

Bohannon graduated from WDHS in 1980. He also holds a degree from WTSU. He is employed as a coach by Snyder Independent School District.

A western theme of denim and boots was carried out in the wedding of La Jona Taylor and B.B. Reeves, Aug. 31. The couple were united in marriage in an outdoor ceremony at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Taylor of Pampa, performed by Sharon Harper, Skellytown justice of the peace.

The groom is the son of Mr. Bun Reeves, also of Pampa.

Attending the bride as maid of honor was Sana Alexander of Howe.

Flower girl was Nikki Nettle of Liberal, Kan.

Best man was Jeff Williams of Pampa. Stormy Nettles of Liberal was ring bearer.

A reception and barbecue honored the couple following the ceremony. Assisting were Donna Caskey, Darlene Plunk and Edwina Reeb.

A 1981 Pampa High School graduate, the bride was a member of the Pampa Rodeo Club and the Tri-State High School Rodeo Association.

Reeves attended Pampa High School and is employed by Care Plumbing of Amarillo.

Booker-Leonard

Mr. and Mrs. Alvin E. Malone of Hereford announce the engagement and marriage plans of their daughter, Kimberly Kay, and Chris Allen Leonard, son of Mr. and Mrs. A.L. "Chunky" Leonard of Pampa.

Oct. 25 has been set as the wedding date to take place in the St. Vincent de Paul Catholic Church here.

The bride is a 1984 graduate of Dimmitt High School. She holds an associate's degree in secretarial sciences from West Texas State University in Canyon. She is employed by the Walcott Independent School District.

Leonard graduated from Pampa High School in 1982. He holds a bachelor's degree in business administration degree in accounting from West Texas State University and has passed his certified public accountant's exam. He is employed by William Allen & Co., certified public accountants, in Hereford.

MR. & MRS. ORVILLE WHINERY SR.

Whineries celebrate 40th anniversary

Alice and Orville Whinery are to be honored by their children today in celebration of their 40th wedding anniversary with a dinner at the Energas Flame Room.

Hosts for the event are the couple's seven children, Kathy Harvey of Clovis, N.M.; Letha Whinery of Meridosia, Ill.; Barbara Bennett, Johnnie Whinery, Linda Crocker, Mary Couch and Orville Whinery Jr., all of Pampa.

Alice Marie Wadsworth was married to Orville William Whinery on Sept. 16, 1946, in Pawhuska, Okla. They moved to Pampa in 1960. They are now retired and living at 736 N. Davis.

In addition to their children, the Whineries have 17 grandchildren and one great grandchild.

MR. & MRS. ROGER CRAWFORD

Crawfords honored

Roger and Linda Crawford of Pampa are to celebrate their 25th wedding anniversary today with a reception at Lamar Full Gospel Assembly Fellowship Hall from 2:30 p.m. to 4 p.m.

Hosts of the event are the couple's children, Lori Crawford and Mr. and Mrs. Lynn Crawford, all of Amarillo.

Roger Crawford married the former Linda Allison on Sept. 15, 1961, in Pampa. Mr. Crawford is employed at Celanese. Mrs. Crawford is employed by Drs. Laxman and Chand Bhatia.

The hosts invite friends of relatives of the Crawfords to join in the celebration.

Using right bulbs saves on electricity bill

By DONNA BRAUCHI
County Extension Agent

Lighting accounts for only about 10 percent of the average household electric bill, but it is easy to save on that 10 percent if you know something about light bulbs.

Watts are units of measurement for the amount of electricity needed to power a light bulb. A 200-watt bulb, for instance, uses twice as much electricity as a 100-watt bulb. The more watts used, the higher your electric bill.

Most of us buy light bulbs according to watts, without ever paying attention to the lumens listed on the package label. But the lumens will help you pick the most energy efficient bulb. The lumen is a measure of the light given off by a bulb. A bulb giving off 2,000 lumens is twice as bright as one that produces 1,000 lumens.

Now, consider both watts and lumens on different bulbs. For example, compare one 100-watt 1750 lumen bulb to two 60-watt, 870 lumen bulbs. Together, the two 60-watters consume 20 percent more electricity than the 100-watt bulb, but produce 10 less lumens of light. A 100-watt bulb, with more lumens per watt, is the energy-efficient choice in this situation. Your best buy will be the bulb that gives you the most lumens per watt, has the longest life, and will cost the least over its life.

Although standard frosted incandescent light bulbs are the most commonly used household bulbs, they are the least energy efficient since they produce less than 20 lumens per watt. However, there are several ways to use incandescents more efficiently. Wherever you can, use a single

Homemakers' News

high-wattage bulb instead of several low wattage ones. High-wattage bulbs don't last as long as low-wattage bulbs, but the money saved in electricity will more than compensate for the price of a new bulb. Check to make sure your fixture can accommodate high-wattage bulbs before installing them.

In fixtures with two or more bulb sockets, use just one high-wattage bulb. Place burned out bulbs in the empty sockets to guard against someone sticking a finger in the socket. Also, moisture can penetrate an empty socket and cause a short circuit.

Look for bulbs marked "energy efficient". Although they may be more expensive than standard bulbs, the energy-efficient models should save you money in the long run. Don't confuse "energy-efficient" bulbs with those marked "long-life". Long-life bulbs do last about three times longer than ordinary incandescents, but they deliver up to 20 percent less light than standard bulbs of equal wattage. But long-life bulbs may best be used in hard-to-reach spots such as closets and stair-wells.

With three-way bulbs, you can adjust the light to your particular needs and eliminate waste. For added savings, try the new energy-saving 30-70-100 watt and 15-35-150 watt three-way bulbs. They produce more light per watt than the standard version.

A new family of incandescent bulbs in 34, 52, 76, 90, and 135 watts are available to replace the standard 40, 60, 75, 100, and 150 watt bulbs. These new bulbs also have higher lumens per watt than the bulbs they replace. Switching from incandescent to fluorescent lighting will improve the energy efficiency of your household lighting. One 40-watt fluorescent provides the same lumen output as three 60-watt incandescents with a total of 180 watts. Fluorescents last up to 20 times longer than incandescents.

Some people dislike the color of fluorescent light and the type of fluorescent fixtures typically seen in schools, offices, and public places. However, there are now fluorescents made especially for household use.

Tubular bulbs, installed easily with special snap-in features, are ideal for under kitchen cupboards. New circular fluorescents fit into many conventional fixtures and ceiling sockets. Fluorescent bulbs are now also made to give off a softer, warmer glow that's flattering to skin tones and colors around the house. While fluorescents cost more initially, you'll save with them in the long run.

With these facts in mind, you should be ready to "lighten" your energy load, rather than simply grabbing the least expensive bulbs off the store shelf. For more information of energy saving ideas, contact your Gray County Extension Office.

Desk & Derrick members ready for annual convention

More than a dozen members of the Pampa Desk & Derrick Club plan to attend the 35th annual International Convention of the Association of Desk & Derrick Clubs, Sept. 18-20, in Cleveland, Ohio. More than 500 members will be attending along with 94 delegates from the United States and Canada.

Pampa members planning to attend include Martha Sublett, ADDC first vice president; Doris Odom, Region V director; Charlotte Lewis, Pampa president and delegate; Marilyn Lewis, Pampa vice president and alternate; Carolyn Kitchens, treasurer and Region V tax exempt representative; Maxine Morgan, secretary; and Carla Schiffman, director. Also attending will be Linda Slaybaugh, Carol Cofer, Esther McAdoo, Glenda Fletcher, Teresa Snow and Emily Washington. Pampa club members are to host a Western theme get-together for members in Region V to honor Sublett, who is an official candidate for 1987 ADDC president and Odom, Region V director. Fletcher and Kitchens are co-chairmen of the event.

"Back to the Future" is the theme of this year's convention, hosted by Cleveland Desk & Derrick Club. President Cheryl Recorschek of Marathon Petroleum Company, is to preside over the event featuring business meetings, field trips and seminars on petroleum and allied industries.

Charles E. Bishop, manager of economics of Marathon Oil Company, is to address the opening business session. Loretta Owens, immediate past president of ADDC, will speak Sept. 19. Dr. Susan Arpad, director of women's studies at Fresno State College, Fresno, Calif., is to give a social history of the petroleum industry at the Industry Appreciation Luncheon, Sept. 19. Lee Wilson Hoover, first president of the ADDC, is to speak at the awards luncheon, Sept. 20. Frank E. Mosier, president of Standard Oil Company, is to be featured speaker for the banquet that evening.

1986 officers and regional directors are to attend a pre-convention board meeting, convention and post-convention board meetings. 1987 regional directors-elect also attend these meetings.

ADDC is an organization of women employed in the petroleum and allied industries. With a goal of educating their members about their industry, the ADDC has 117 clubs and more than 7,000 members in the United States and Canada.

Next meeting is to be at 7 p.m., Oct. 14, at the Coronado Inn.

Altrusa Club of Pampa

President Louise Bailey called to order the Sept. 8 meeting of Altrusa Club of Pampa. Carla Stout, a Pampa High School senior, was introduced by Rena Belle Anderson as the September Altrusa girl of the month. She was presented with an Altrusa charm. Plans were made for the fundraisers to finance the club's service projects for the year.

President Bailey announced that the Altrusa Club of Pampa is to host a reception at the Altrusa International 31st District IX annual conference for outgoing District IX Governor Glyndene Shelton of Pampa. The conference is set for Oct. 17-19 at the Holiday in San Angelo. Theme of the conference will be "Treasures of the Concho."

Finance chairman Georgia Johnson announced the club made $400 at the desert booth at Chautauqua. Geneva Tidwell gave a quiz on Altrusa facts as the Altrusa Accent. Hostesses were Evelyn Mason and Geneva Tidwell.

Next make-up meeting is set for Monday at 7 p.m. for a tour of the Tralee Crisis Center. Carolyn Chaney is in charge of the meeting. A program meeting is set for 7 p.m., Sept. 22, at the Coronado Inn.

Las Pampas Garden Club

Las Pampas Garden Club met recently at Lovett Library for their Guest Day Coffee. Georgia Mack, president, welcomed guests Heidi Chronister, Pat Reeves, Pauline Watson, Mary Nace and Carolyn Kessel.

Joyzelle Potts and Lilith Brainard furnished refreshments. Members told of special gardening successes this past year. Special guest Carolyn Kessel was the first president of the club. She said she was proud of the seeds planted in 1972 when the club was formed. She congratulated members for continuing the club and making Pampa a more beautiful city.

Yearbooks were given to members by Donna Goodwin. Members and guests viewed the garden area south of the library, a special club project. Planting and planning of the area will continue this year.

Next meeting is to be in the home of Virginia and Lloyd Harvey who will give a program on their trip to Europe.

Pampa Art Club

The Pampa Art Club begins their new year with a salad luncheon at the home of Sally Stringer at Walnut Creek Estates, at noon Tuesday. Hostesses will be Sally Stringer, Erma Lee Barber and Catherine Stringer.

Pampa Opti-Mrs.

Pampa Opti-Mrs. Club met Sept. 2 for the installation of officers by Rochelle Lacy. Member agreed to continue a scholarship fund to Julia Turner and voted to continue to have an emergency fund for needy children.

Opti-Mrs. planned to decorate a Christmas tree for the Festival of Trees. Sue Willis was selected chairman with May Davis as co-chairman. Willis will also replace Whitney Kidwell as telephone committee chairman this year.

Program chairman Alicia Snelgrooves announced the style show given by Tiny Tinkum's with children and grandchildren of the club members modeling on Nov. 11 at Optimist Club building.

Rochelle Lacy installed the following new officers: Berdena Richardson, president; Alicia Snelgrooves, first vice president; Betty McGuire, second vice president and membership; Wanda Watson, secretary; Nelda Lancaster, treasurer; and May Davis, parliamentarian.

Quilts are good ways to keep warm

KINGSTON, R.I. (AP)—Quilts nowadays are used in much the same way as in olden times — as centerpieces that set the color scheme of a bedroom for example.

One way they are not used today is to provide warmth under heavy, metal suits of armor, as was done during the Crusades, according to the curator of a quilt exhibition at the University of Rhode Island.

Pampans, all ages, back in school

School enrollment from preschoolers to adults involved Pampans and area citizens. What a joy it is to see so many area people, eager to soak up more knowledge, signing up for classes at Clarendon College - Pampa Center, some for fun, some for added credits.

Back to the little ones... St. Matthew's Day School boasts full enrollment of three-year-olds to kindergarten age. Jan Morris is administrator.

Pampa youth spent 1,289 hours as junior volunteers at Coronado Community Hospital under the direction of Nancy Paronto. At the annual swim party and hamburger fry at the Pampa Country Club, 50-hour pins were given to Tara Webb, Chris Wasilanski, Sherry Thomas, Jeffrey Lane, Erica Jensen, Dollie Haynes, Ann Forister and Benjamin Edwards. Those receiving 100-hour bars included Tammy and Jeffrey Lane, Kristy King, Dollie Haynes, Shelli Hahn, Juli Enloe, Sara Depee, John Dawson Jr., and Julie Collins.

Melissa also discovered a Schneider Hotel recipe for another goodie, which may be added to the menu.

Coronado Community Hospital employees enjoyed their annual picnic at Optimist Park with activities for all ages. Victims of the dunking board included Linda Haynes, Aggie Foster, Shawn Poland, Rick Smith, Mike Sears,

Peeking at Pampa

By Katie

Bob Gregory, Lindsay Chapman, Nita Anderson, Kathy Land, Donald Pena and Bill Fuller. Congratulations to employees of ICU at the hospital. They recently received a quality performance certificate from the local Celanese plant, because of a nomination from a patient - Celanese employee's recommendation.

GIVEN GILL, R.N., a brand new nurse on the OB floor, recently received the distinct honor of being named an ACT hero for outstanding efficiency and calmness in a crisis. That also included a Boomerang Award, which resulted in a gift certificate of a dinner for two at Danny's Market.

Jeraldina Rogers was named employee of the month at CCH. The honor included a check, certificate, and picture hung in the hall. Congratulations!

Overheard at Pampa Senior Citizens Center... Edith and John Rankin visiting with Majunta and Forrest Hills. Some of the laughter came from Majunta's desire to sign up for a class in janitorial service. All in fun! John and Edith are faithful in keeping an eye on John's relatives in Amarillo.

Mab and Bill Callaway took their granddaughters Jennifer and Jessica back to their home in Virginia after enjoying them in Pampa for a week.

BETTY AND Bill Harris; Judy, Steve, Brandon and Kevin Osborn; Cindy, Rick and Taylor

Harris; Pam, Randy, Kim, Kelley and Kamron Harris attended a family reunion in Dallas recently. It was the Cox family on Betty's side of the house.

Pat and Hub Homer, and Katherine Sullins attended the wedding of Pam Homer in Washington, D.C., recently.

Charlotte and Bob Cooper vacationed in Tennessee. Heard the pictures Bob took of Debbie (Mrs. Robert) Douglas at her sister's wedding in Amarillo were beautiful beyond measure. Debbie wore pink chiffon and lace.

Warm wishes to Madge and David Tidenberg who will be making their home in Hawaii in their work with the Youth with the Missions organization. While Allen McKean helped them move, Majunta and the four boys kept the home fires burning.

SENIOR CITIZENS choir of First Baptist Church rode the church bus to the Baptist Church in Clarendon to sing a program. Afterwards there was a dinner and lots of socializing. John Glover is the director.

Clare and Jim Sarong and their two boys have been sporting a new Jeep around town and having a lot of fun with it, too!

Spied Pat Johnson making a quick dash to the door of Clarendon College - Pampa Center. She was dressed for the cool day in bright, bright emerald green. Very pretty!

Special congratulations to Imogene and B.V. Hinkle, who celebrated their 53rd wedding anniversary only days ago. Janice and Dr. Earl Hoffer and Carol and Dr. M.W. Horne were seen enjoying dinner together. The story goes that the candles on Dr. Hoffer's birthday cake melted before he could blow them out. That was a few weeks back, but too cute to withhold.

JOY AND Ron Rice came back to Pampa to rest up from an extended vacation with their daughter Tracy and her family in Germany. The vacation included a whirlwind of activities all over Europe.

The beautiful painting hanging in Floyd Sackett's office in the new Pampa Community Building is a gift from the artist, Dona Cornutt. Recipients of her paintings consider them to be of the treasure-forever variety.

Somewhere around 30 residents joined in the fifth annual block party, held each year in the 2200 block of North Dwight. Hosts this year were Rob and Judy Martin who provided the front yard for the event. Other neighbors brought casseroles and homemade ice cream, and they all ate barbecue. Tom Wheeler of the Pampa Fire Department was guest speaker. He spoke on... you guessed it... fire prevention. A sparkler extravaganza ends the party each year, and this one was no exception.

Don't forget to get your tickets for the Rotary's annual Travel Films. This year's schedule includes films about Hawaii and the Caribbean islands. In addition to their usual door prizes, the club is also offering a special drawing for two tickets to anywhere in the continental U.S., Mexico or the Caribbean. Just ask a Rotary Club member for more details. It's bound to be loads of fun!!!

See you next week! KATIE

Local parents seek to form ToughLove support group

Several Pampa parents are to sponsor a meeting addressing the problems of teen drug and alcohol use, Tuesday at 7 p.m. in the Pampa High School library.

Diana Bosch, program manager of the Adolescent Care-Unit of St. Anthony's Hospital in Amarillo is to speak on "What You Don't Know CAN Hurt You!" Members of the Panhandle Parents Support Group Using ToughLove will also be present at the meeting. Plans are underway for beginning a similar support group in Pampa for parents and students returning from drug and alcohol abuse treatment. ToughLove is a non-profit educational organization offering self-help materials to parents, kids in trouble and the professionals working with them.

The program was created by Phyllis and David York, parents of three grown daughters, who formed ToughLove out of their frustration and helplessness. Through their own experiences, they formed an effective self-help program for the parents of unruly young people and the professionals who work with them. It is a combination of philosophy and action which helps parents regain control of their family. ToughLove does not advocate or support physical or verbal abuse.

After attending a seminar in August, several school personnel and parents have been planning ways to deter drug and alcohol use among teens in the community. This year, Pampa schools are enforcing certain policies in an effort to control this problem.

Anyone interested in teen drug and alcohol abuse is encouraged by the sponsors to attend the meeting Tuesday.

One-of-a-kind event increases popularity

PERRYTON — The ninth annual Golden Spread Antique Machinery Show is set for Sept. 20-21 at the Donald Sell farm, southeast of Perryton. A one-of-a-kind event in the Texas Panhandle, the antique machinery show has increased in popularity each year.

"It seems our biggest advertisers are people who come one year and return the following years bringing friends and relatives with them," said Mrs. Richard Sell. "We often have people express surprise at the quality and quantity of our show."

Sponsored by the Golden Spread Antique Machinery Association, the show provides an opportunity to educate the public and increase appreciation for the country's agricultural heritage.

To get to Sell farm from Perryton, drive 10 miles east on FM 377 (9th Ave.), and five miles south on FM2711.

During the show, a 2-hour parade of machinery is driven past grandstands with information given on each vehicle. This event is featured both days at 1:30 p.m., concluding with an old-time wheat thrashing. John Deere is the feature tractor this year.

"Exhibitors come from all over the country, and each year is a new show," Mrs. Sell said.

Kids still enjoy bedtime stories

NEW YORK (AP) — Despite living in the age of television, many parents prefer to lull their children to sleep in the old-fashioned way by reading or telling a story at bedtime, a recent national survey indicates.

The study, conducted by Springs Industries Performance Products, which produces indoor bed tents, shows that 52 percent of parents polled frequently read or tell stories to their children to help them go to sleep.

Other popular bedtime routines, according to the survey, include a kiss or goodnight hug, with 92 percent of those parents polled saying they almost always tuck their children into bed, and 65 percent almost always say prayers with their children at bedtime.

Admiral Campbell chosen to become top Navy lawyer

Rear Admiral Hugh D. Campbell, son-in-law of a Pampa resident, will become a two-star admiral and the Navy's Judge Advocate General on Nov. 10. Admiral Campbell has been nominated by President Ronald Reagan and confirmed by the Senate for the position.

Admiral Campbell's wife is the former Martha Marsh of Pampa, whose mother Leona Simpson presently lives at 1304 Duncan St.

As Judge Advocate General, Admiral Campbell will be the top military lawyer for the Secretary of the Navy. He will also be the top legal advisor for the Navy's Chief of Naval Operations, and Commander of the Naval Legal Service Command which includes 21 Naval legal service offices worldwide.

In addition to his present position of Assistant Judge Advocate General, where he earned his first star, Admiral Campbell also serves as Inspector General for the Naval Sea Systems Command (NAVSEA).

Admiral Campbell's assignments have included staff judge advocate for the Commander of Submarine Flotilla TWO, special legal assistant to the Assistant Secretary of the Navy, and subsequently executive assistant and Naval aide to the Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Shipbuilding and Logistics. Prior to his present position, Admiral Campbell served as deputy assistant JAG for administrative law.

He is a 1959 graduate of McMurry College. He also holds a juris doctorate from Southern Methodist University and an LLM from George Washington University in international law. He is past president of the Pentagon chapter of the Federal Bar Association.

He and his wife live in Springfield, Va., with a son, Lex, and a daughter, Amber.

DATES
Sept. 15 — 6 p.m., Gray County 4-H Horse Project, Top O' Texas Rodeo Arena.
Sept. 15 — 7 p.m., 4-H Fashion Group, Courthouse Annex.
Sept. 14-20 — Tri State Fair.
HORSE PROJECT MEETING
The Gray County 4-H Horse Project will meet at 6 p.m. Monday, Sept. 15, at the Top O' Texas Rodeo Arena. We will have a hot dog cookout and 4-H'ers attending are asked to bring a salad, your parents and your horse.

At this meeting, we will eat, have some horseback activities and discuss plans for the group for the coming months.

TIME TO GET READY FOR LIVESTOCK PROJECT
It's that time of year to start thinking about getting your livestock project animals purchased. The approximate deadlines for having your animals on feed are: steers - Oct. 13; lambs - Nov. 13; and pigs - Nov. 26.

4-H Corner

Jeff Goodwin

These are the deadlines but most people already have their steers on feed, most lambs will be bought in September and most people will buy pigs the last of October or first part of November.

If anyone needs help in selecting their show animals, contact the county Extension office at 669-7429 and we will be glad to help.

ENROLLMENT TIME IS HERE
All Gray County 4-H clubs are starting their meetings for the 1986-87 school year. Leaders have been planning and making preparations for year full of great meetings and fun. It's important that you attend your regular monthly club meetings because this is where you will find out about all projects going on in the county.

It's really important that you sign a new green enrollment form for this year. If you do not sign a new one, you will be dropped from the mailing list by October.

So get fixed up ready for an enjoyable fast-paced, and exciting year. If you have any questions, call the Extension office at 669-7429.

RECREATION HELP AVAILABLE
If your club needs a shot of fun and enthusiasm — you need to call on the Gray County 4-H Recreation Team. In March, a group of Gray County 4-H'ers participated in Longhorn Recreation Workshop in Brownwood. Since then they have been sharing what they learned in party planning, recreation leadership, vespers and more.

They are available to come to your club and conduct a party, give a program on various types of recreation or whatever else you might want in the area of recreation. Team members are: Sherri and Stacie McDonald, Mary White, Becky Reed, and leader, Janie VanZandt. Give them a call.

Book focuses on women, language

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — Words are power, and women who have grown up with words such as "businessman," "spokesman" and "mankind" aren't getting their share, say the co-authors of "A Feminist Dictionary."

"There's a growing body of research that demonstrates ... that women and girls feel excluded by a number of those terms," said Paula A. Treichler, assistant professor of medical humanities and social sciences at the University of Illinois' medical school in Urbana-Champaign.

Ms. Treichler said she and Cheris Kramarae, both linguists, put the book together to combat the inequities of common speech.

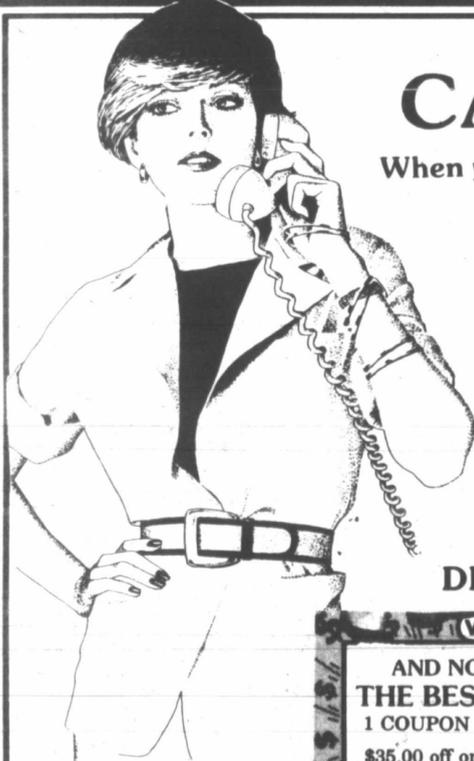

"Language is part of everyday reality and can be empowering or disempowering in things we do every day," Ms. Treichler said.

A recent study showed the effect on teen-age girls and boys of help-wanted ads that say "man," "male" or "he," she said.

"The boys felt qualified to apply for the jobs they found interesting," she said. "The girls felt excluded and therefore not qualified."

Ms. Treichler, who received her doctorate in linguistics from the University of Illinois in 1972, said that when women are left out of the language, they're also excluded from opportunities.

"There is overwhelming evidence that to be left out repeatedly is an alienating experience for women."

Fiddler becomes fiddle maker

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Fiddle maker Joie Dreis recalls exactly how she came to fall in love with fiddle music.

"I played the clarinet in my grade school orchestra," she said, "and our conductor was this great Hungarian fellow who played the violin and the viola. After the horrors of conducting all day and the strain of listening to us play, he would lock himself in a practice room and play gypsy violin music until he wept."

"Of course, we would gather around and listen. One day, he opened the door to the practice room and half a grade school orchestra fell in the door."

About five years ago, Dreis decided to learn to play the fiddle for herself, but found she couldn't afford the $5,000-$6,000 it takes to buy a good one. So she decided to make one.

True to her heritage, the daughter of Howard's Bookstore owners Howard and Mary Canada made her first fiddle out of plywood after reading a book on violin making. Teardrop-shaped and modeled after the old-fashioned Irish fiddle, her first instrument had a soft, wispy delicate sound.

Dreis isn't sure exactly how many fiddles she has made since then, but there are fiddles of all shapes and sizes hanging from tiny nooses all over her living room walls. After her first plywood fiddle, Dreis made several more, some of which became very elaborate.

She is especially fond of the ones carved with gargoyles on the fiddle head.

"They're the real traditional gargoyles, with their tongues hanging out," she said.

A couple of years ago, Dreis

WOOD WORK — Joie Dreis of Bloomington, Ind., surveys some of the fiddles she has made since she decided to learn to play the instrument about five years ago, but found a good one cost thousands of dollars. (AP Photo) graduated from plywood to popular and hard rock maple wood, materials that create a sound that is louder and sweeter. Popular is a soft wood, but maple is among the hardest of woods, creating yet another set of problems. "I use a cooper's adz, a sculptor's adz and a hatchet," she said. "And I just sit out in the yard and whack away. It may not be the way they made the Stradivarius in Italy, but that's the way you do it in southern Indiana."

Even whacking away with a hatchet, she manages to whittle the maple wood fairly close to the ideal 1-16th inch thickness necessary to get the correct vibration from the wood, using a sharp piece of glass for the fine whittling.

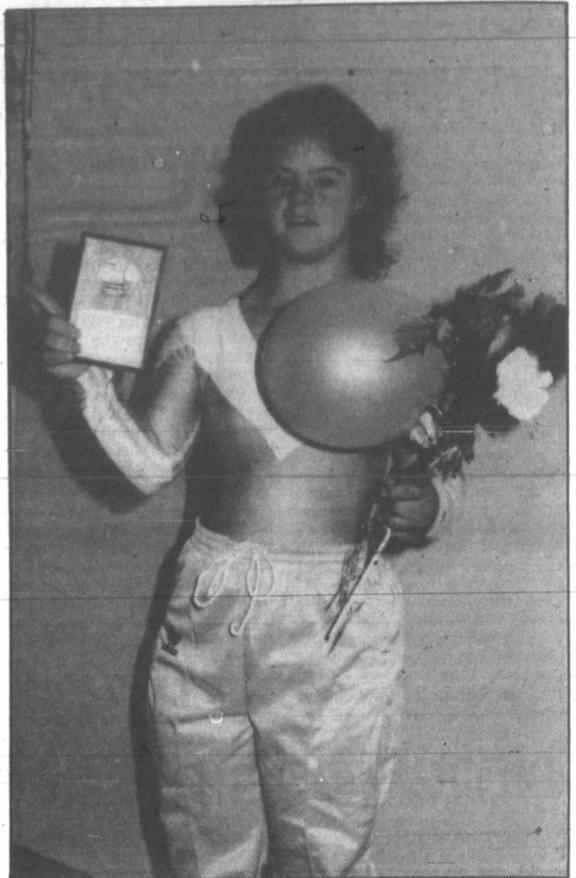

She said more traditional violin makers are skeptical of violin makers who use native American wood rather than the traditional European wood.

"But then, I'm not trying to make violins," she said. "I make fiddles. A folk fiddle-maker is looking for a different kind of sound."

About a year ago, Dreis was working at Howard's Bookstore and happened to notice a couple of workers cutting down a tree on the Monroe County courthouse lawn. She wandered across the street out of curiosity to find that the tree was not just a maple tree but a "fiddleback maple."

Dreis bought the tree for about $20 and had it cut into fiddle-sized pieces, but she said the wood will be aging in her chickenhouse for at least a couple of years before it has dried enough to begin carving.

Though she has more fiddles than any one fiddle player can use, Dreis, who plays clarinet with the Howard's Bookstore Basement Ragtime Band and the Bloomington Community Band, said she can't really bear the thought of selling her fiddles. However, she said she has been happy to lend them to local fiddle players, including a member of the Bloomington Symphony Orchestra, who wandered through the door at Howard's one day and ended up playing a still unvarnished fiddle.

JENNIFER RODEN, 16, is pictured here with the plaque, balloon, carnations and U.S. Olympic Team leotards she received for competing in the National Sports Festival in Houston recently. Rhoden received second place in the southern division of gymnastics for special athletes at the event, a showcase of the nation's Olympic-caliber athletes. She is the daughter of Joey and Monica Roden of Pampa. (Special photo)

Attorney urges calm approach to divorce

BINGHAMTON, N.Y. (AP) — The more rationally a divorcing couple behaves, the easier it will be on their children, says a lecturer in "Family and the Law" at the State University of New York at Binghamton.

Common sense? Perhaps, but few people behave sensibly or think clearly when they split up, says Bruno Colapietro, an attorney who devotes more than half of his practice to matrimonial law.

"Stay reasonable," is the first advice Colapietro gives to his clients. "It isn't the end of the world."

He cautions that while the court has the power to sever marriages, it does not have the power to sever the biological mother-child or father-child relationship.

Too often, he says, lawyers treat divorcing people as adversaries.

"That's a poor way to set out," he notes. "The problems are better resolved if the couple, and both attorneys, recognize that it should be handled calmly."

Colapietro says a badly handled divorce can have the same long-term effects as a chemical oil spill: it may pollute the waters for generations to come.

He tries to imbue new lawyers with his philosophy through his classes at the University Center at Binghamton, at Cornell University and through the New York State Bar Association.

Give some garden space a rest

By JOE VANZANDT
County Extension Agent

For Horticulture

Joe VanZandt

Planting a fall garden is a wonderful idea! However, it is very likely that your fall gardening venture may not be as large and ambitious as your spring activities. So, why not give part of your garden a rest? What can be done with the "resting" space that has been left unplanted in your garden? An unplanted area in the garden during September and October presents a golden opportunity next spring. Early fall is the ideal time to plant a cover crop, also known as a soil-building crop.

A cover crop will keep the soil from blowing during some of the fierce Texas winds, as well as prevent erosion during our heavy Texas downpours. Another especially important consequence of a cover crop is the addition of valuable organic matter to the soil when it is turned under in the spring. Increased organic matter in Texas soils raises their water-holding capacity in addition to causing the soil to more easily release the nutrients that plants must take in to grow vigorously.

The Texas Agricultural Extension Service recommends Elbon

rye as an excellent cover crop for this area. In addition to the benefits of cover crops just mentioned, Elbon rye provides help with a widespread problem in Texas soils — nematodes! Those tiny microscopic-size eel worms that live by feeding on plant roots are discouraged from feeding by the presence of the roots of Elbon rye; and those that try to suck juices from the roots are trapped by the roots. This provides the home gardener with an inexpensive and very effective control for nematodes, which results in the soil being relatively free of nematodes by next spring. Tall-growing wheats such as Scout and the new Sioux-land are well-adapted to culture for cover and windbreak crops.

The best time for turning the cover crop under the soil is when it is fully grown, just before it forms seed heads and while it is still green. This provides the maximum amount of organic matter that can be easily tilled in and avoids the problem of seed production which could allow the cover crop to become a weed. Of course, some areas that will be used for very early crops will require tillage much earlier while the cover crop is still relatively short.

There is a magic trick that can be performed by the home gardener with a cover crop such as Elbon rye or the tall-growing wheats or triticale. Swaths or strips of the cover crop can be left growing in the spring. If a swath twelve inches wide is left on the side of the prevailing winds, a quiet, comparatively wind-free area six to ten feet wide is provided for early spring planting. Abracadabra! An automatic windbreak is provided from a cover crop. When one considers the speed of spring winds, this is indeed a magic trick. When the winter grain has grown to its full height and while the seed is very immature, the crop can be killed and left standing with the application of glyphosate to the crop with a rope wick applicator. The plants will be killed, but the straw will stand tall and continue to shield the vegetables from the wind. Read and obey the glyphosate label.

The cover crop must be fertilized with additional nitrogen in the spring if you desire to have the grass grow vigorously and tall for a windbreak. Before cutting the swaths with your tiller, broadcast one cup of ammonium nitrate per 100 square feet and irrigate it into the soil with an overhead sprinkler. Let the soil absorb the moisture for a day or two and then come in with your tiller and prepare your planting areas, leaving the strips of windbreak to grow.

Seminar to help adults cope with aging parents

A six-week seminar to help adult children take care of their aging parents begins Thursday at Coronado Community Hospital, announced Jana McKinney, director of CCH's social services. The six two-hour sessions, scheduled for each Thursday evening through Oct. 23, focus on understanding older parents and helping them deal with the problems often associated with aging.

Anyone interested in attending the sessions may pre-register by calling 665-3721, ext. 254, to speak to McKinney. Fee for the seminar is $15.

Going full tilt!

Computerized schools arrive

By MARK FRITZ
Associated Press Writer

HARTFORD, Mich. (AP)—When school officials decided it was time little Hartford went high-tech in a big way, they started out with two computers and only a vague idea how to work them into the curriculum.

That was five years ago. Today, even kindergarten students are expected to put down their crayons and punch a keyboard.

The rural southwest Michigan district now has 150 microcomputers — one for every 10 students — mandatory computer classes for grades six through eight and a blinking video screen in nearly every classroom.

"We're going full tilt now," said Carol Godlew, principal of Hartford Middle School.

That sort of high-tech explosion, echoing throughout the nation's schools, has prompted the National Education Association to study Hartford and two other districts to see how schools are teaching students about computers and how computers are being used to teach.

"We're taking three snapshots of three districts to see where they've been with computer literacy, where they are right now and where they are going," said Roy Fuentes, NEA manager in instruction and professional development.

Hartford has been picked to represent a rural district; Dallas as an example of an urban environment; and Concord, N.H., as an example of a suburban district, Fuentes said.

"We were very, very pleased with Hartford," Fuentes said. "A lot of people would go into a rural district and not expect to see much in technology. But they were very sophisticated."

Hartford developed a computer literacy program for the district's 1,500 students with the aid of the University of Michigan, said school Superintendent Robert Pobuda.

Kindergarten and elementary students use computers to recognize shapes, letters and colors, then later to assist with spelling and other classwork. Students begin learning how to load software and operate the machines in third grade, said Red Arrow Elementary School Principal John Busch.

Middle school students take on more sophisticated tasks, including some introductory programming and word processing. Training becomes more technical in high school, where computer classes are optional.

But the district also uses computers as teaching tools for nearly every other class, including to assist special education students, Pobuda said.

"Every year the students get a little better," said Jim Webb, the high school computer science teacher.

In home economics classes, one software program allows students to punch in what they ate for lunch and find out whether the meal was nutritionally balanced.

Classes that use computers to teach students traditional subjects result in higher achievement scores for students, said James Kulik, a research scientist with the University of Michigan's Center for Research on Learning and Teaching.

Kulik said the center recently completed an analysis of 200 studies of computers in the classroom.

At Wits End

Erma Bombeck

I'll bet you didn't know there was a special name for unhappy people. They suffer from "anhedonia," the inability to experience pleasure. And here's the weird part. There are nearly two million Americans who suffer from this malady, and by my count I have met all but one of them.

Some have been teachers, editors, talk show hosts, bankers and shopkeepers. Hard to believe, but nearly everyone I dated suffered from "anhedonia."

You've met a few in your time, too, I'll bet. What about the guy in the audience of "The Tonight Show" who has just stumped the band. When Johnny Carson presents him with a certificate for dinner for two at a fancy restaurant, he looks pained and whines, "I'm here with 30 members of the Cedarlake Frisbee Team. Can't they have a free dinner, too?"

Sometimes it seems to go with the job. Somewhere it is written that people on the Supreme Court can never show their teeth or their emotions. Mr. T. always looks like someone who would take a winning lottery ticket, chew it up and spit it out in your hand. Teenagers sometimes experience anhedonic tendencies for five or six years. If you told them they looked nice, they'd say, "What do you mean by a crack like that?"

Once gave a lecture in a Midwest city and halfway through it I realized I was speaking to a convention of anhedonists who had gathered to frown for three days.

I cannot imagine what it would be like to be married to someone who could not see humor in his life, but these people do exist. If you serve some men braised parakeet lips for dinner, they snarl, "I had it for lunch."

I was at an airport recently when I sat down next to a woman who looked like she was in mourning.

"Business or pleasure trip?" I asked.

"Daughter's getting married," she sighed.

"That's wonderful. A lot of young people are living together and not even bothering."

"They did that already. She had to get married."

"Well, thank goodness," I said, smiling. "Some fathers refuse to accept the responsibility of a child when it is thrust upon them."

"What responsibility? He's out of work."

"You're so lucky to have lines of communication open. At least they confide in you."

"We'll have a lot of time for that!" she said. "They're moving in with us."

"It will be nice to have a small baby around the house again."

"I never wanted 'em the first time around."

Two million Americans who have "anhedonia" and I have met... all of them.

Men fail wives on first aid test

DEAR ABBY: You have many faithful readers who are senior citizens, so we wish you would print more in your column that would benefit us. We are a large group of over 65ers in Brighton Beach, Brooklyn, who have a problem we need your help to solve.

There are more widows than widowers here, and we now know why. First we questioned the women on first aid: "What would you do if your husband suddenly collapsed with a heart attack, and was laid out on the floor just staring at you?" Nearly all the wives came to the same conclusion. They said it would be so traumatic and unnerving that they would first have a glass of tea, then finish the lemon meringue pie, then spring to action and try to revive the husband. If they failed, they would call for help.

We husbands concluded from this that when a man reaches the age of 65, he should immediately divorce his wife and marry a nurse who doesn't care for lemon meringue pie.

What do you think?

DEAR ABBY: First, let me say that I love my daughter-in-law as I would my own daughter. Now the problem: Some years ago, my son and his wife were given a lovely sterling silver heirloom tea service by a family member. It was complete with coffeepot, teapot, cream pitcher, sugar bowl, tray, etc. Over the years, it has become tarnished. I doubt if it has ever been polished. It is out in the open, and I cringe every time I go to their home and see that lovely set so badly tarnished.

I do not want to tell my son privately to tell his wife to polish it. She is a good homemaker, and we get along beautifully, and I want to keep it that way; however, this oversight bothers me.

Last year I brought a jar of silver polish to her saying I had extra jars, but she didn't get the hint.

Am I being petty? My husband says I should mind my own business.

DEAR MOM: Petty? No. Your husband is blessed with sterling wisdom. Heed his advice.

DEAR ABBY: Twenty-seven years ago I wrote to you for advice, requesting a personal reply. I was a pregnant, frightened, Ohio farm girl with no one to turn to. You sent me to the Catherine Booth Home for Unwed Mothers in Cincinnati and you added, "I care" on your letter. I can't tell you how much those two words meant to a young girl who felt like no one cared.

My daughter was born at the home and I placed her for adoption. I saw her only once, briefly, through the nursery window — then no more. Since she was born on the Fourth of July, I was reminded yearly of her birth in a "hang-up" way. I'm sure some people wondered why I cried while watching fireworks.

Well, my daughter found me after an eight-year search! What strong feelings surfaced after all those years. I was in a daze for a while. We sent pictures and talked on the phone, and now she, her husband and their two children are coming to see me! I want you to know about this, Abby, because I have always considered you an important part of my life.

Thank you, not only for your column, but for the personal help you give people privately. I'm signing my name, but please don't use it.

YOUR FRIEND

DEAR ABBY: "Afraid to Love" (age 15) asked when she'd know she was ready to go to bed with her boyfriend. He was 16, and had been pressuring her.

You replied: "You will be ready when you are so sure you will not have to ask anyone."

My answer would have been: "You'll know you are ready to go to bed together when you can openly discuss what methods of birth control you will use, and what action you will take, should you become pregnant." Sign me ...

Researcher cures plant diseases with lost relatives

EDITOR'S NOTE — He often returns to the ancient origin of a particular type of vegetable or fruit hoping to find a long-lost relative that will be able to ward off a modern-day disease — watermelons in Zimbabwe, squash in China, lettuce in Turkey. Rosario Provvidenti is a virus fighter.

By RANDOLPH PICTH
Associated Press Writer

GENEVA, N.Y. (AP) — The local grocery clerks all know Rosario Provvidenti. He's the guy who buys the worst-looking cucumbers and lettuce on the shelf.

The agricultural research community knows him, too. He's one of the top plant virologists in the world. He has helped conquer the deadly viruses that afflict all kinds of vegetables, making them grotesquely wither on the vine.

"Sometimes I can find a virus that's not supposed to be in this country, right here in Geneva," Provvidenti says in a heavy Italian accent. "Nobody else knows except me."

When he has identified the virus, he looks for other strains that are resistant to it, blending the resistant genes with the succulent ones.

Governments seek his help in figuring out what is killing crops in their countries. He has cured papayas for Hawaii, cucumbers for Brazil and Chinese cabbage for China.

His work results in perfect pea pods and kink-free zucchini and saves farmers from acres of deformed plants and consumers from shabby produce in the supermarket.

"Mother Nature has provided the resistance. It's rare, but it's there," the 64-year-old Prov-videnti says in an interview in his office, dotted with gourds and melons, at the New York State Agricultural Experiment Station.

So, he often returns to the ancient origin of a particular type of vegetable or fruit hoping to find a long-lost relative that will be able to ward off a modern-day disease.

Provvidenti searches for cures in obscure places — isolated forests in China, fields of weeds in Turkey or in technical publications from Zimbabwe — battling time and the onset of biotechnology that will wipe out the worthless plants he finds so valuable.

For watermelons, he looks in Zimbabwe. For squash, he looks in Central America. For cucumbers, he looks in China. And for lettuce, he looks in Turkey or Greece.

Once, in a remote part of China, hundreds of villagers surrounded him. They had never seen a white man before.

"I just started shaking hands with them," Provvidenti says, but he had to stop. There were too many hands and the guide got upset at the delay.

Once in Turkey, Provvidenti found himself in a coffeehouse holding up handfuls of weeds and asking farmers if they had any in their fields.

"I heard one farmer ask, 'Why do these Americans want our weeds?' and another say, 'Well, they have everything else,'" Provvidenti recalls.

Sometimes he just looks in professional journals from other countries and then asks a researcher to mail him seeds.

Provvidenti came to Geneva 32 years ago from his native Italy, where he received a doctor of science degree from the University of Palermo. He was honored last year by the Northeast Division of the American Phytopathological Society for his three decades of research.

When he finds a plant variety resistant to a particular virus, Provvidenti mates it with a modern relative to create a new variety that is also resistant to the virus and still edible.

He recently received a cucumber from Taiwan that helped him cure Zucchini Yellow Mosaic virus, which he calls the "AIDS of cucurbits." The cucurbit family includes squash, melons, pumpkins and cucumbers.

In his greenhouse, where pea plants from Iran, China and the United States grow side by side, Provvidenti points out the smart viruses from the stupid ones. The smart ones allow the plant to live while controlling it, the stupid ones take over and kill the plant and destroy themselves.

Unlike bacteria-based and fungus-based diseases which growers can fight with chemicals, viruses attack individual cells.

Pesticides are used to try and kill bugs that transmit the virus to the plants, but they are not as successful as giving a plant a built-in shield to the virus.

This is where the weeds come in.

In Agriculture

By JOE VANZANDT
County Extension Agent

PANHANDLE PEST REPORT
Dr. Carl Patrick, Extension entomologist, reports that cotton bollworms are very active in the southeast Panhandle area.

Sorghum headworms remain the big pest in grain sorghum. He has received reports of economic infestations from viturally every part of the Texas Panhandle. Farmers need to inspect for this pest. Damaging infestation may need to be treated to prevent excessive stand loss.

MULTI-PERIL WHEAT INSURANCE

Farmers have until Sept. 30 to insure small grain crops with multi-peril crop insurance.

Producers who insured wheat, oats and barley last year will have their contracts renewed automatically unless they cancel them. However, those desiring to make changes in the level of coverage or price election must do so by Sept. 30.

Crop insurance protects a farmer from large, unpredictable yield losses. It can assure a farmer a minimal cash flow in case of a major crop loss so that he will have a chance to farm the next year.

Multi-peril crop insurance for small grains will be available only under the Actual Production History (APH) program. Under APH, yield guarantees are based on actual production records of the insured or grower rather than on county average yields as was the case previously under the care coverage plan. Thus a farmer must provide evidence of previous year's production and acreages.

To select crop insurance, a farmer must choose a yield guarantee and a price. The yield guarantee is either 50, 65, or 75 percent of past production history. Price elections are $1, $1.25 or $1.50 per bushel for barley; 60 cents, 80 cents or $1.05 a bushel for oats; and $1.50, $2 or $2.60 a bushel for wheat.

The combination of yield guarantee and price election determines the level of insurance coverage and cost of the premium, which reflects a federal subsidy. Interested producers can obtain additional information by contacting a local firm that offers multi-peril crop insurance.

VOLUNTEER WHEAT CAN HURT NEW CROP

Farmers should plow up volunteer wheat in summer fallowed fields before planting their new crop. Volunteer wheat hosts a growing number of insects and disease-causing organisms that reduce grain yields and frequently require one or more applications of expensive fungicides or insecticides. Such problems can be avoided or reduced by one or two light tillage operations or the use of an effective herbicide. Problems aggravated by volunteer wheat overwintering are rust disease, brown wheat mites, wheat curl mites, wheat streak mosaic virus and Russian wheat aphids.

Try Life Without Bifocals

Do you currently wear bifocals or trifocals? Or, do you wear "half-eye" spectacles, or reading glasses which you must remove when you move about?

If you are wearing one of the above spectacle corrections, and feel somewhat limited by the type of vision they provide, come in for your free demonstration of a new spectacle lens called "Varilux".

Varilux is the name given to a new, patented, spectacle lens which replaces bifocals, trifocals, "half-eyes", and reading glasses. Varilux is referred to as a "Progressive Addition Lens."

The Varilux progressive addition lens is comprised of a patented series of gradually changing lens curves. These curves provide a smooth focusing change for your eyes when you look from distance to near. Those abrupt shifts in vision which you see with bifocals and trifocals are eliminated with Varilux.

Varilux patents are the result of years of clinical testing. Millions of people are now wearing them. The Varilux spectacle lenses are available in glass, in lens materials that change in sunlight, and in plastic tinted to any color.

We have made available a set of demonstration lenses to show you these new progressive addition lenses. Call our offices to arrange for your free demonstration of Varilux, and try life without bifocals.

Legend of Joaquin Jackson

By CARLOS VIDAL GRETH
Austin American-Statesman

UVALDE, Texas (AP)—When Nick Nolte needed a model for a movie role as a Texas Ranger, he chose Joaquin Jackson of Uvalde.

Jackson, a 20-year veteran of Company D, would make a fine recruiting poster for the Ranger force. Though Rangers don't wear uniforms, he favors chocolate and tan outfits that clearly identify him as a peace officer. The tooled leather holster on his hip sheaths a .45-caliber Colt Commander, the trigger modified to fit a hand like a grizzly bear's paw. The elaborate silver- and gold-plated pistol grips, a gift from a Mexican policeman from Coahuila, show a horse's head and the profile of the Aztec ruler Montezuma.

You don't want to fool with Joaquin Jackson. His face, as worn and weatherbeaten as the scabbard of his Winchester rifle ("If I can see you, I can hit you with it"), is sometimes about as friendly as a "Don't Mess With Texas" sign. A fine Swiss-made cheroot or a Lucky Strike often projects horizontally from his lips. The forbidding visage surmounting a 6-foot-5, 200-pound body adds up to one intimidating character.

"With this Stetson on and a pair of boots, I'm damn near 7-foot tall," Jackson said with a hearty guffaw. "Everybody thinks Rangers look alike. But the most dangerous men I ever met were under 6 feet."

The Ranger got quite a kick out of the screenplay for "Extreme Prejudice," a film based on a third-generation Texas Ranger which will be released this year. The title refers to the military expression "to terminate with extreme prejudice," meaning don't take any prisoners.

"Those Hollywood writers don't have the first idea of what Rangers are all about," he said. A publicity photo of Jackson posing with Nick Nolte showed that the actor, at least, got the hang of it pretty fast.

"I told him right off he has to cut his locks," said Jackson, who became close friends with Nolte. "And I explained that Rangers don't wear facial hair." In the photo, Nolte's clipped mustache remains, but the Doberman expression and eyes like a diesel truck coming at you in the night make them look like brothers.

Jackson calls Nolte "an artist."

"Nick asked me to come visit him in El Paso during part of the filming," he said. "He dressed like me, walked like me and had my body language down."

If he was successful, the actor captured the independent, frontier spirit of the man behind the tin star and ironwood hide.

"My personal philosophy is I'm going to do my job," he said. "The hell with lawsuits. Any officer who uses common horse sense and acts in good faith will come out on top."

Maybe it sounds like a John Wayne imitation, but Jackson is far from one-dimensional. Years of patrolling scarcely populated counties along the border have given him plenty of time to ponder life's mysteries.

"This job teaches you to believe in predestination," he said. "When bullets fly, some people get hit and others don't. When it's your time, you're going to get it. Young folks never think they're going to get shot. As you grow older and see people come and go, you realize you're dispensable."

Jackson, who was a distinguished member of the Highway Patrol for nine years before he was promoted to the Ranger ranks, patrols Real, Uvalde, Zavala and Dimmit counties. It's a 5,000-square-foot mile beat, or an area about as big as Connecticut. That size territory for a Ranger is not unusual because there are only 94 of them.

Driving his unmarked, bronze Chevrolet Caprice, Jackson seemed a part of the landscape, a specimen of a race of Rangers who evolved in Southwest Texas.

There is a stark beauty in the land, inhabited largely by Mexicans and Mexican-Americans, a handful of Anglos, white-tail deer, armadillos, occasional mountain lions and feral hogs. Under an endless, turquoise sky, the spring-fed Agua Frio, Nueces, Sabina and Leona rivers cut through scraggly stands of mesquite, black brush, cat claw, huajillo, sagebrush and cactus.

When you're accompanied by Jackson, the land yields as many criminal stories as prickly pears. "I don't mess much with cock fights," he said, honking at a buzzard feasting in the middle of the road. "Last one I broke up, there were 400 people. Hell, I wasn't going to chase them through the brush for a Class C misdemeanor."

"Now you get two of these drug pushers, give them knives and let them go at each other. You could sell tickets to that."

Ray Coffman, 35, rode shotgun with Jackson to see how Rangers get the work done. New to the force, he left a higher-paying job with the Department of Public Safety Narcotics Service to become a Ranger.

"Joaquin is about as close to Ranger legend as you'll see today," Coffman said. "I heard about him when I was growing up in McAllen. I remember one case where he tracked some criminal in the brush for 10 to 12 days with only a backpack for company."

Coffman envies Jackson's early days in the Ranger service. "Civil rights and new laws have changed things. You can't threaten to kill anyone any more if they won't talk. Intimidation used to be a powerful investigative technique," Coffman said.

Jackson tempered his colleague's remembrance of things past. "I don't want a man to fear me. If you corner him, he'll kill you to get away. If he respects and trusts your word, he might just put his gun down."

The Rangers pulled up in front of the Dimmit County Jail, a crusty, 50-year-old edifice in downtown Carrizo Springs. Years before, under the command of now retired Ranger Capt. A.Y. Allee, Jackson helped thwart a break-out there.

The inmates, led by a prisoner sentenced to life in the state penitentiary, had broken into the deputy's apartment downstairs and captured his guns. By the time Jackson arrived, tear gas poured out the windows and the prisoners wanted to talk terms.

"You want to talk, I'll give you till the count of 10 to come out of there," Jackson remembered Allee saying. The captain counted, then proceeded up the stairs of the jail, clearing the way with a scattergun.

"When we got upstairs, we found four men in the drunk tank huddling under two, low metal bunks," Jackson said with a laugh. "Until this day, none of those men have been back in jail. I figured it was a good cure for alcoholism."

"Old Allee, he had a heart as big as a washtub. I saw him buy a meal for many a derelict. On the other hand, if you were in the wrong, he'd likely shoot you dead."

Friends remember Elvis at Fort Hood

By CRAIG RENFRO
Temple Daily Telegram

KILLEEN, Texas (AP)—In the 1950s, when crew cuts and bobby socks were in style, a singer named Elvis Presley was the "The King" of rock 'n' roll.

His reign was interrupted by a two-year hitch in the U.S. Army, including six weeks at Fort Hood. People here still remember his stay.

Presley arrived in Killeen on March 28, 1958, for 25 weeks of training after completing basic at Fort Chaffee, Ark.

Bob Young lived next door to the house Presley rented for his parents on Oak Hill Drive, and he remembers how teenagers would swarm the neighborhood to see their idol.

"There would be people lined up for a mile to see him," Young said. "I thought it was kinda silly them acting that way, but I guess I can understand it."

Young said Presley would visit his parents almost every night, arriving in a chauffeur-driven limousine that would have him back at Fort Hood by the 11 p.m. curfew.

Presley would get out of the car on Business Highway 190 and cut through back yards to get to his parents' house without being mobbed by fans, Young said.

"He used to get out and just run across the road to make it to his parents' house," Young said. "One day I gave him a key to my deer pen so he could come up the back way to the house."

Presley was assigned to A Company, 37th Armor, 2nd Armored Division. Henry Coley, first sergeant in A Company, remembers Presley as a model soldier.

"The army would've been better off if it had a few more soldiers like Elvis Presley," Coley said. "The other soldiers were a bit apprehensive at first on how he would be treated," he said. "But once he got there and began pulling his own weight he fit right in. You couldn't have asked for a better situation."

Presley was trained as a light truck driver with a tank unit, and he didn't receive any special favors because of his celebrity status, Coley said.

"Everybody's the same, and they are treated the same," he said. "He had to do his guard duty and KP (kitchen patrol) just like everyone else. If everyone's not treated the same, you would have problems."

Young said Presley enjoyed spending time with his parents and relaxing in a quiet atmosphere.

Presley and his parents would come over to Young's house on Saturdays to drink coffee and play with Young's 3-year-old daughter, he said.

"He loved kids. Everywhere he went he took her with him," Young said.

People would call Young's house at all hours of the night and ask if Presley was visiting his parents, he said.

"People would always ask 'Did you see Elvis last night?'" he said. "And I'd say I didn't look for him."

Young said he wasn't awed by Presley's celebrity status and found the singer to be just like any other person.

"I would never bother the man, and I never asked for his autograph," he said. "When he got over here he was just 'Plain Old Joe.'"

However, one day Presley did take some snapshots of Young's daughter and autographed them, he said.

Young said Presley's father, Vernon, would always come to his house to drink coffee. The elder Presley always talked about how things were easier before his son's success.

"He would always talk about how he wished he was still driving a truck and had his hog farm," he said.

"You would never know he was Elvis' dad because he was always laughing and cutting up," he said. "Elvis wasn't like that. He was kind of quiet and a little nervous."

At the end of his training, Presley was assigned to the 3rd Armored Division in Germany, where he reached the rank of sergeant. He was honorably discharged on March 5, 1960.

Vernon Presley kept in contact with Young after leaving Killeen and invited him to the funeral when Elvis died nine years ago, Young said.

Reports of drug abuse surrounded the entertainer's sudden death, but were never conclusively proven in an autopsy. Young and Coley say drug abuse was not characteristic of the youthful soldier they knew.

"The strongest I ever saw him drink was a Pepsi Cola," Young said. "It's just nothing like the man I knew."

Networks take chance this fall

By DIANA LOEVY

In the past couple of TV seasons, the networks' fall schedule was lined with subpar Aaron Spelling productions, blatant "Miami Vice" rip-offs and unspeakable detective pairings. They failed.

This year's schedule will have its share of failures, too. But if some of these shows fail, they will fail a little more honorably.

The new season has its share of familiar TV faces, familiar TV genres (sitcom families will never go away as long as "The Cosby Show" rules the ratings) and derivative programs that are mere filler for the inevitable commercials. Some new entries, ranging from the nutty "The Wizard" to the embarrassingly unoriginal "Together We Stand" seem especially doomed.

However, the networks also are offering some shows that are chancier, more interesting and more responsive to the competitive atmosphere that is television today.

Of course, this year's TV season is dominated by family shows: families with many generations ("Life With Lucy," "The Ellen Burstyn Show," "Our House"), a family with multi-racial kids ("Together We Stand"), a family with a live-in alien ("ALF"). But it also features some of the hardest hitting ("L.A. Law," "Crime Story") and adult-funny ("Designing Women," "Sledge Hammer!") series in years. Here are some of the highlights:

Our House (NBC, Sundays) has an unenviable time slot opposite "60 Minutes." But NBC has nothing to be ashamed of with this family drama that skids to the brink of sentimentality and stops short. Much of the credit for the show's no-nonsense warmth goes to wise curmudgeon Wilford Brimley. He is tough but tender with his newly moved-in family including his daughter-in-law (Deirdre Hall) and her kids.

In ALF (NBC, Mondays) a furry, snouted alien has the good fortune to crash into the home of Max Wright and his family. ALF (for Alien Life Form) is one wise-acre alien, but he really is cute, especially when his ears fold over and when he tells bar jokes from his native planet, Melmac.

Pam Dawber ("Mork and Mindy") returns to series television as a perky, but kind of bossy free-lance photographer in My Sister Sam (CBS, Mondays). Her San Francisco apartment, which doubles as a studio, becomes a sitcom train station trafficked by her rambunctious teenage sister (Rebecca Schaeffer) and a variety of clients and neighbors. No one here is very interesting and the pilot, which will be the first show aired, is strained. But Dawber is a popular television performer and CBS has given this show a good time slot.

Double entendres and dates named Shadow dot the universe of Designing Women (CBS, Mondays), a sophisticated modern comedy about women who really let their hair down. The series stars Dixie Carter, who gets some of the best lines, funny Annie Potts as a self-conscious type, Delta Burke as a femme fatale and Jean Smart as the office manager, a wonder of tough but breathless comic timing. They are partners in a decorating business located in an Atlanta townhouse, but the centerpiece of the show is the verbal repartee among these bold Southern gals who dress in dangerous blouses.

Andy Griffith scored so well in last season's TV movie "Diary of a Perfect Murder" in which he starred as down-home, but shrewd Southern lawyer Benjamin Matlock, NBC gave him a series, Matlock (NBC, Tuesdays). Fans of Griffith (and they are legion) will welcome his series return. Linda Purl co-stars as his daughter and junior partner.

"Miami Vice" producer Michael Mann has created another controversial series with Crime Story (NBC, Tuesdays), a hard-boiled but stylish rumination about cops and criminals. Dennis Farina is Lt. Mike Torello of Chicago's Major Crime Unit. He speaks in a tough guy vernacular — to his wife, his buddies, but especially to his enemy, young mobster Ray Luca, played by intense Anthony Denison. Stephen Lang is David Abrams, the prosecutor. "Crime Story" is a continuing serial — the story begins in Chicago in 1963 and will wind up in Las Vegas in 1980 by season's end. Like "Miami Vice," a contemporary sound track accompanies the constant display of sleek cars and neat-o coffee shop interiors. Unlike "Miami Vice" there appears to be a heavy concentration on plot.

Head of the Class (ABC, Wednesdays) is a formulaic, '70s flavored sitcom, though, at first viewing, it's not up to the standards of such golden ABC hits as "Happy Days," "Laverne and Shirley" and "Mork and Mindy." Cool sitcom favorite Howard Hesseman plays a substitute teacher for a class of smart misfits, high school our hero talks to his gun, has a bumper sticker proclaiming "I (heart) violence" and casually bazookas a building to get just one sniper. Second City alumnus David Rasche plays Sledge as Dirty Harry gone terribly, terribly wrong. He is assisted by a (comparatively) sane female detective played by Anne-Marie Martin. Series creator Alan Spencer has acknowledged the show's debt to "Get Smart" early and often. Expect lines like Sledge's motto ("Trust me, I know what I'm doing") to be repeated constantly if the show lasts.

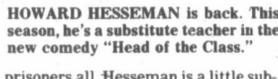

Overlapping dialogue, sharply etched characters played by an ensemble cast that is neither one-dimensional nor likable for the most part let you know you're in Steven Bochco country. In L.A. Law (NBC, Fridays), the creator of "Hill Street Blues" places his usual human comedy elements into an upscale Los Angeles law firm where gallows humor vies with pedantry, silliness and ongoing discussions of money. Best of all, most of the scenes build and pay off. Harry Hamlin is a conflicted young partner, Jill Eikenberry plays a tough, idealistic associate, Corbin Bernsen is a slimy divorce-attorney, Alan Rachins is a Reagan-era senior partner and authoritative Richard Dysart is the head honcho. The season's best bet.

Great actress Ellen Burstyn actually has it both ways in The Ellen Burstyn Show (ABC, Saturdays), her prime-time series debut. She gets to have actress opening and closing monologues which she delivers facing straight into the camera, and she gets to be funny, mad and understanding in a standard domestic sitcom. Surprisingly, Burstyn has a pleasing television manner. She plays a writer in residence at a Baltimore college (the show is actually taped in New York) and shares a house with her mother (Elaine Stritch), her daughter (Megan Mullaly) and her grandson (Jesse R. Tender). Much is made of these multi-generation mothers living together amid tension and love. But Broadway veteran Elaine Stritch leaves the whole thing with humor. In the pilot episode, she is discovered smoking in the closet wearing a dressing gown and an important piece of jewelry.

Whether second-year surgical resident Kay O'Brien is battling to save a patient in the operating room or trying to cheer a youngster with magic tricks, she's a superwoman who knows how to operate and look good. Patricia Kalember plays the lead in Kay O'Brien (CBS, Thursdays) and she tackles all life and death situations with considerable charm. The dramatic tension between "Kayo" and a smarmy fourth-year surgical resident (Brian Benben) is the best this lackluster medical series has to offer.

In Sledge Hammer! (ABC, Fridays)

HOWARD HESSEMAN is back. This season, he's a substitute teacher in the new comedy "Head of the Class."

Historic Alamo letter gets new life from UT restorers

By MONTY JONES
Austin American-Statesman

AUSTIN (AP)—Time has been kind to the memory of Col. William Barret Travis since he took command of the besieged Alamo in February 1836 and promptly dashed off his defiant "Victory or Death" letter.

But the letter itself, addressed in Travis' florid style "To the People of Texas and All Americans in the World," did not fare so well.

Faded, stained, torn in half, crudely mended here and there with tape, the letter marked its 150th anniversary earlier this year as a sadly tattered reminder of the glory won by Travis and his men.

But that was before it went to the conservation laboratory at the Harry Ransom Humanities Research Center, a rare book and manuscript depository at the University of Texas.

The HRC lab was asked by the Texas State Library to restore the letter as well as the badly deteriorated Texas Declaration of Independence for a Sesquicentennial exhibit this fall at the State Fair of Texas in Dallas.

Work on the documents, mostly undertaken by conservator James Stroud, went so well that "we hope they won't deteriorate any more," said Don Etherington, the HRC's assistant director and chief conservator.

The HRC also designed cases for the documents so they can be displayed without damage from light, and so the declaration, which was written on both sides of six sheets of paper, can be viewed in its entirety.

About $20,000 worth of work was involved, Etherington said. "We're doing this sort of as our contribution to the Texas Sesquicentennial," he said. "It's our gift to the state."

Chris LaPlante, director of the archives division of the State Library, said, "We couldn't be more pleased" with the restoration.

"As with everything else that the HRC does, this was first-rate," LaPlante said. "We think now that if these documents are kept in a proper storage environment, as we have at the archives, they will last for many hundreds more years."

The HRC was a natural choice for the restoration because "there is no other place in Texas that could have done the work, and few other places in the United States," Etherington said.

Etherington's staff fights a never-ending battle against deterioration of the 800,000 books, 9 million manuscripts and 4 million photographs in the HRC collection.

Preserving books printed before the mid-19th century "is a piece of cake," Etherington said, because of the high-quality paper that was made from rag and was low in acidity. The real problems come with later books and manuscripts that use paper made from wood pulp, he said. Without proper storage and treatment, they will fade, grow brittle and crumble away to dust.

"The deterioration is usually not gradual, but drops dramatically after a while," Etherington said. "There comes a point when it becomes so brittle that it is sort of like rust, so that if you touch it it will just fall apart. What we do is try to preserve it before it reaches that point, but we can only do so much. One could argue that we could use 100 conservators."

Instead of 100, Etherington has 14 conservators plus six other staff members. A committee that includes HRC curators meets annually to decide which parts of the collection have the highest priority for preservation treatment.

"No part of the collection is too brittle to be used, but perhaps a couple million out of the 9 million manuscripts couldn't be handled without some form of physical support," Etherington said.

Staff members are continually putting materials in transparent, protective sleeves that will prevent damage by researchers. "All the staff helps with this,"

Etherington said. "Even the receptionists, when they have free time, will be putting things in sleeves. We couldn't do it with only the conservator staff."

The long-range hope for saving information in many documents may be to use optical discs that preserve an image of a document electronically, Etherington said.

"It's a difficult balance, because people come here to see the originals, and basically we want to preserve the artifact, not just the information," he said.

One of the oldest artifacts Etherington's staff has worked on recently is the almost 700-year-old copy of the Magna Charta owned by Dallas billionaire H. Ross Perot. The HRC repaired holes in the document written on animal skin, "relaxed" the vellum parchment so it would lie flat and designed a protective display case.

The Magna Charta will also be in the State Fair exhibit, which is being sponsored by the Dallas Historical Society.

The Texas documents—which had been made dirty and brittle by time, previous conservation attempts and the effects of acid in the paper—were washed by the HRC with calcium hydroxide to remove impurities and create an alkaline buffer against the acidity. The chemical treatment is expected to halt deterioration caused by the high acidic content of the paper, Etherington said.

Other work involved removing tape that a long-forgotten caretaker had used to mend tears in the Travis letter, and rips in both documents were meticulously filled in with paste and tiny slivers of new paper.

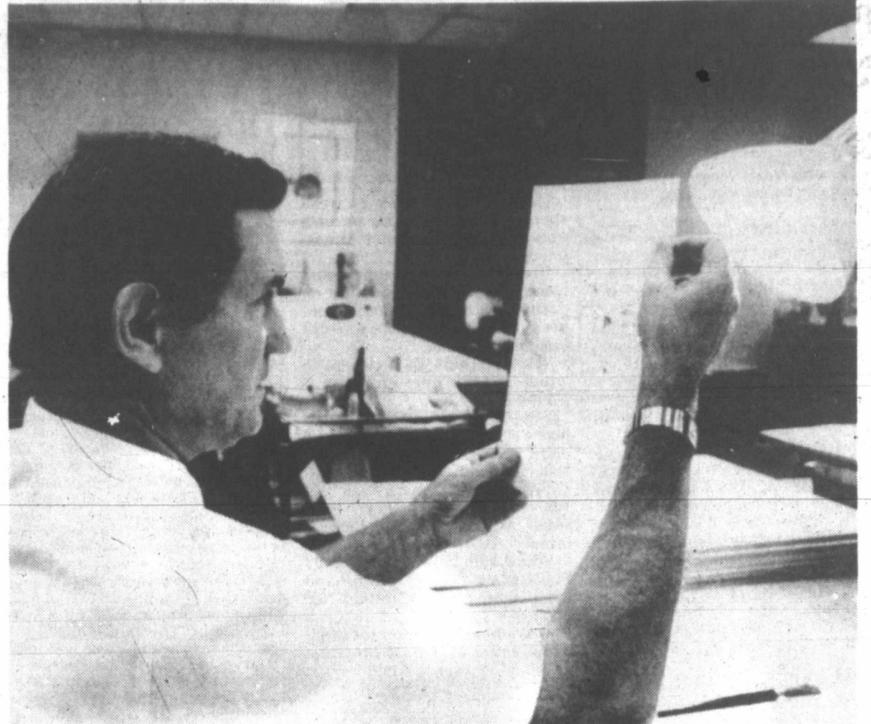

"We use very fine Japanese paper because it's very strong and has long fibers that are thin and flexible," Etherington said.

Part of the cleaning involved undoing the work of an earlier conservation attempt, in which someone in the late 1920s had applied a silk coating to the documents. That old-fashioned preservation technique did not work.

"The silk coating deteriorates and darkens, and they probably used an acidic paste, which also causes the paper to deteriorate," Etherington said. "Eventually all that restoration had to be redone."

The poor condition of the documents was partly a result of the rough treatment they received before entering the state archives.

After being folded up and secreted out of the Alamo in a messenger's sweaty buckskin pocket,

ALAMO LETTER GETS NEW LIFE — Don Etherington examines a document at the Harry Ransom Humanities Research Center at the University of Texas at Austin. The

the Travis letter was handed on at Gonzales to another messenger, who carried it to a citizens committee in San Felipe.

Both messengers, Capt. Albert Martin and Lancelot Smither, added notes to the page on late-breaking war developments, and the letter must have been folded and unfolded many more times as it was passed from hand to hand by the San Felipe town leaders.

According to the state archives, copies of the letter were soon printed and widely distributed, but the original was returned after the war to Travis' family, who kept it until 1891, when Travis' great-grandson sold it to the state.

After some dickering over the price, the state Department of Agriculture, Insurance, Statistics and History finally bought the letter for $85. That agency was a predecessor of the Texas state Library.

The Declaration of Independence and other documents related to the Texas Revolution were sent to the State Department in Washington soon after the war, apparently to encourage U.S. recognition of Texas as an independent republic.

For years the declaration was presumed lost, but it surfaced in a State Department file in 1896 and was returned to Texas. The State Board of Control eventually was given custody of the document, and it was displayed in the Capitol from 1930 to 1940, when concern for its preservation led to its being placed in the archives. Light had faded one side of each sheet during the years the document was on display.

Despite its tortuous journey from the Alamo to the archives, the Travis letter has survived with all the writing intact. A few parts of signatures on the Declaration of Independence have been lost.

Mexican American task force urges higher education help

AUSTIN (AP)—A task force of Mexican American leaders recommended Friday that the Legislature create a "South Texas Region" in developing higher education for Mexican Americans in Texas.

"We want to underscore the importance of this new South Texas Region," said Dr. Miguel A. Nevarez, president of Pan American University and chairman of the Mexican American Task Force that made recommendation to the Select Committee on Higher Education.

He told the news conference the region would include the 24 southernmost counties of the state.

The primary recommendation of the task force was that institutions of higher education in San Antonio, El Paso and South Texas be expanded and strengthened.

"The task force recommends that any reorganization of higher education in Texas require the presence in the South Texas Region of a fully supported comprehensive university, as implied by the terms 'flagship' of 'first tier' institution, to provide genuine and equitable access to the full scope of higher education to the citizens of that region," said one recommendation of the task force.

Another task force recommendation urged the Select Committee on Higher Education not to close, merge or reclassify any higher education institutions in South Texas, El Paso or San Antonio "which action would lead to a reduction or elimination of educational opportunities for Mexican Americans."

His effort to save railroad keeps town postmaster busy

By JEFF BARNARD
Associated Press Writer

LAKEVIEW, Ore. (AP) — Orval Layton fondly remembers the days before he wound up leading the drive to save Lakeview's railroad.

"I used to fish every Thursday afternoon until this railroad thing started," he said. "It just eats you up."

"If anything goes wrong now, I get called," he said. "One Sunday they were switching cars and they blocked the highway too long. Some irritated person called and said, 'Hey, Layton, your train's blocking the highway.'"

But without him, this town of 2,755 in the high desert of eastern Oregon stood to lose the 55-mile shoreline to Alturas, Calif., and the four lumber mills that depended on the railroad for shipping.

Besides being Lakeview's postmaster, Layton was chairman of the transportation committee of the Economic Development Commission when this railroad thing started on April 23, 1984.

"In a town this small, you know how rumors fly," he said. "Somebody came in and said, 'They're going to shut down the railroad.'"

"I called Tom Hauptman, who was the manager of Lakeview Lumber—I was associated with him through the Lions Club—and he called Southern Pacific and then called me back and said it was true," said Layton.

"I said, 'What the hell are we going to do about this? We can't let it go down the tubes.' And Chuck said, 'You're the chairman. What are you going to do?'"

"So that's how I got involved."

Now he's chairman of the Railroad Commission. But Layton always has been the kind of person who gets involved. He's chairman of the Utility Commission, chairman of the Library Board, served 10 years on the Lake County Planning Commission (two years as chairman), was president of the local United Way drive for four years and has led the local hunters' safety program for 25 years.

"Sometimes you kind of back yourself into a corner where you feel obliged to do something if you are available to do it," he said.

The Nevada, California & Oregon Railway came in 1912 to Lakeview, the end of the line for the narrow-gauge railroad out of Reno, Nev.

Losing money, the railroad tried to abandon the entire line in 1922, but the California Railroad Commission wouldn't allow it, saying the line was vital to the ranchers and mills in the area.

It was bought by Southern Pacific in 1926 and expanded to standard gauge.

Last year, claiming losses of $500,000 a year from the line, Southern Pacific gained approval to abandon the line.

According to a state survey, letting the weeds grow over the railroad tracks would mean the loss of 220 out of 434 jobs in the lumber mills, an immediate loss to the local economy of $2.2 million and a secondary loss of $3.3 million, for a total of $5.5 million, Layton said.

"Without the railroad, I don't think the mill would be here," said Don West, who took over recently as general manager of Lakeview Lumber. "I think all of them would be gone. It would take the truckers about 10 minutes to find out the railroad was gone and then their rates would go up."

But despite the stakes, the county commissioners were against the idea of buying a railroad until it became apparent it wasn't going to cost them any money.

"Purely and simply, we didn't have the money to buy it without the lottery funds becoming available," said County Commissioner Louis "Bud" Lamb. "That's something that cropped up along the way."

Less than a year old, the state lottery agreed to give the county an economic development grant of $475,150 to buy the railroad.

The four mills — Woodgrain Mouldings Inc., Lakeview Lumber Products Co., Louisiana-Pacific Corp. and Fremont Sawmill — came up with the remaining $83,850 to cover the $560,000 Southern Pacific wanted for the railroad.

Before the deal could go through, the Legislature had to pass a new law allowing the county to own land outside the state so it could buy the track and right-of-way on the California side of the border.

"One minute we'd have it and the next minute we wouldn't," Layton said of the last days before the deal became final.

The day before Christmas Eve and one week before the line was to be shut down, Gov. Vic Atiyeh signed the check for the lottery grant.

Students learn to work with hands as well as heads

SWANNANOVA, N.C. (AP) — Students at Warren Wilson College can do more than analyze a Shakespearean sonnet or ace the law boards — they also can breed pigs, install a sink or replace a truck valve.

"Everyone has to work," said Dr. Reuben Holden, retiring president of the small Presbyterian-related liberal arts college near Asheville. "It has a very leveling effect on the whole campus."

"The effect is that the students go out into the world with a good solid educational background in liberal arts, plus the best of two worlds ... they can do things with their hands."

The college's 470 students work 15 hours per week in exchange for room and board. The 67 campus work crews include auto mechanics, foresters, computer programmers, plumbers, photographers and admissions recruiters. The farm crews provide fruits, vegetables and 70 percent of the beef for the campus dining hall.

In addition, each student must complete a 60-hour non-credit service project. Many complete their service in Third World villages in what Holden calls a "mini-Peace Corps." Others go back to their hometowns and, for example, help build a new church.

Holden said the students' education was further broadened by the makeup of the student body. About 12 percent come from 22 foreign countries; and while the college was founded in 1894 by the Presbyterian Church, it has students from 21 different denominations, including Hindu and Buddhist.

"We don't require chapel anymore, but we still feel strongly the need for a basis of values in any education," Holden said.

Some of the graduates go into social work, but many also go into business, law and medicine.

Religion in the middle of mesquite and rattlesnakes

EDITOR'S NOTE — For nearly a century, ranchers and cowboys, farmers and townfolk have been gathering each summer in the arid West to preach and to pray. The cowboy camp meeting has changed little. No phones, no showers, "nothin' but mesquite and rattlesnakes," says organizer Darrell Farmer.

By ROBERT H. JOHNSON

Associated Press Writer MESA REDONDA, N.M. (AP) — The preacher pacing the tent's red dirt floor tells the story of the Samaritan woman at the well: "Why, she was shackled up with some guy she wasn't even married to. She would have made a Hollywood movie star deluxe. And Jesus offered her living water!"

His congregation is intent. Scattered through the crowd are murmurs of "Amen!" and "Praise the Lord!"

This is the Mesa Redonda Cowboy Camp Meeting — three days of preaching, praying and hymn-singing for people who live so far out in the country it's hard for them to get to church.

Ranchers and cowboys and their families, farmers and some townfolk have come from eastern New Mexico, the Texas Panhandle and western Oklahoma — even, this year, from Kansas.

The faces are sunburned and leathery; the smiles are wide beneath sun-narrowed eyes; the handshakes for newcomers are strong and warm. The praying and preaching are heavy duty, and so is the hoarowing — Southwestern for kidding.

The camp is on the Bove-Farmer ranch about 13 miles south of Tucumcari and about 40 miles west of the Texas border.

The preacher is the second speaker to use the story of the woman at the well. Leading a prayer meeting and speaking in a clear country tenor, C.L. Bove, one of the ranch owners, has already told it this way:

"She was an outcast. She'd been married five times — five! — and she was living with number six. And yet she wasn't married. She was a reject. But nobody is a reject from Jesus. Jesus said, 'I'll give you living water.'"

Water as a metaphor for salvation is never lost on stockmen, especially in this arid country, which has known hard times and hard cases.

Mesa Redonda is a landmark of the Old West, a high tableland scarred by canyons, where rustlers and robbers rode and an ambush settled a feud.

The camp meeting at its base is one of nine interdenominational revivals held every summer by an association called Ranchmen's Camp Meetings in the Southwest.

The granddaddy of all cowboy camp meetings, still going strong, began in 1890 in Stillman's Canyon west of Fort Davis, Texas.

Fifty years later, Joe M. Evans, a cowboy who loved those Texas meetings, started another one at Nogal Mesa near Carrizozo, N.M. From it grew the circuit that includes Mesa Redonda and camps near Lenapah, Okla.; Gruver and Canadian, Texas; Des Moines, N.M.; Kiowa and Cortez, Colo., and Willcox, Ariz.

Mesa Redonda is called "the camp that started on a pigging string." That's because Darrell Farmer went to Clovis to see a calf-roping contest.

Farmer, a cowman and consulting veterinarian, attended a sunrise service in the roping arena. A Clovis preacher did sleight-of-hand with scissors and a pigging string — the cord cowboys use for tying a roped calf's feet — to show how God restores lives that are in pieces.

Farmer sought out the preacher, the Rev. Bill King. Two years later, in 1978, they had worked up the first Mesa Redonda Cowboy Camp Meeting on the ranch where Farmer is partners with C.L. Bove.

Nearly 400 people attend night services and, with some coming and going, total enrollment is more than 800. About 150 campers stay for the full meeting. Others drive back and forth as they can while tending jobs and livestock.

Three white poles stand on a low hill at the edge of the campground. They fly the national and state flags and the Christian flag.

Les Hight, a 74-year-old cowboy whose shoulders are hunched but whose spirit is unbent, had the idea for the flags. His grin is wide as an accordion keyboard when he tells how it is his job to raise them.

cooking and eating. Portable toilets are brought in. Water is hauled from Tucumcari.

Darrell Farmer insists the camp will stay primitive. He is a compact man of 55 who moves and talks fast. Farmer has two university degrees, but the herd healer stomps on grammar to underscore his points about the camp.

"The year we started this," he says, "an old friend of mine from an older camp meeting came up here and we didn't have a pole barn or nothin' except some old tents, and he said to me then, he said: 'Doc, you got something going here that we don't have any more. Keep it thataway.'

"We ain't got no phones. We don't have no showers. We don't have nothin' but mesquite and rattlesnakes. It's just like it was 50 or 100 years ago."

Well, just about. In the old days, the men built brush arbor tabernacles — pole frames roofed with brush — for the preaching. Now they pitch the big open-sided tent.

People once traveled in covered wagons and buckboards or on horseback. They slept in the wagons or in bedrolls on the ground. Now they tow trailers or come in motor homes with air conditioning.

The old-timers cooked over open fires. The cowboys shot antelope or deer. The camp rules here prohibit individual fires, firearms, horses and pets.

The meeting begins with ranchers and cowboys gathering to raise the tabernacle tent — a tan canvas top that stretches about 70 by 30 feet. The bosses of the Bell Ranch, a big spread north of Tucumcari, bring half a dozen young cowboys, thin and limber as quirts, embossed belt buckles glistening in the sun.
