German firm buys Celanese

Celanese Corp. and American Hoechst Corp. today jointly announced they have signed a merger agreement for American Hoechst to acquire Celanese.

The boards of both companies unanimously approved the acquisition for a total value of $2.848 billion.

The announcement was made by Dieter zur Loye, president and chief executive officer of American Hoechst, and by John D. Macomber, chairman and chief executive officer of Celanese.

American Hoechst will make a cash tender offer for all shares of Celanese chemical stock at a price of $245 a share, the companies said.

The Celanese board recommends that shareholders accept the offer, according to a news release dated today.

The announcement rocketed Celanese stock on the New York Stock Exchange today. Celanese stock was listed at 244½ this morning, up 26¼. Friday morning the stock was listed at 219½.

In a telephone interview this morning at his New York office, Celanese Vice President Ronald K. Shelp said the transaction accord was reached late Sunday.

"There's still a lot of things to work through," he said, adding that he thinks it is "a very positive development" for both companies.

Shelp said American Hoechst has "some phenomenal technology," with a value of more than $700 million in technological investments that will add a number of new product lines for Celanese materials.

Shelp said he believes the merger will "very favorably" favorably affect all Celanese operations, though all the details are still to be worked out.

Celanese Chemical Co.'s Pampa plant Manager Ron Guard was in a meeting this morning and unavailable for comment.

The tender offer for shares is expected to start on or about Tuesday, the news release stated. The offer will be conditioned on, among other things, at least 51 percent of the outstanding shares of common stock being validly tendered.

The merger agreement contemplates that shares not purchased in the offer will receive $245 per share in the subsequent merger. American Hoechst also will tender for all the outstanding shares of Celanese Convertible Preference Stock at $172.40 per share, and for the 7 percent Second Preferred Stock at $102 per share.

"We're delighted with the Hoechst offer," Celanese Chairman Macomber said in the news release.

"In 1982 our management began a broad-based restructuring program to maximize the full value of the corporation's assets," Macomber said. "That successful effort has resulted in a significant increase in Celanese's market value."

Macomber said the merger with Hoechst "is yet another step forward."

He said the merger provides a significant additional increase in value to Celanese shareholders "and, equally important, increased growth opportunities to our employees."

Shelp said he is not yet certain how the merger

Voter turnout key in governor's race

Polls show White closing on Clements; voters turned off by negative images

Texas Gov. Mark White is closing in on Republican challenger Bill Clements, and political polls indicate voter turnout may be a key factor in who wins the gubernatorial race Tuesday.

Clements, a former Texas governor ousted by White in the 1982 election, has a seven-point edge over the Democrat in-cum-bent, according to a Gallup Poll.

Meanwhile, a Clements poll conducted by the Houston Chronicle and KTRK-TV in Houston shows Clements with a five-point lead.

White has improved his standing from April, when he trailed Clements by 18 points and in September when he trailed by 12, according to the Chronicle-KTRK poll.

Although Clements still leads, Murray said the momentum is with White. The governor knocked Clements out of office after Clements had served one term as this century's first Republican Texas governor.

"Clements looks to be the casualty of the negative campaign," Murray said, noting that White's personal rating hasn't changed much, but Clements' earlier high positive image rating has dropped to nearly the same level as the incumbent.

"A lot of voters are clearly turned off. That probably means fewer people voting next Tuesday," Murray said. "If that's the case, then the election is going to come down to which side or which candidate can do a little better job of motivating their people to go to the polls."

James Shriver III, a vice president of the Gallup Organization Inc., said "Clements has a lead that is going to be tough to overcome."

Clements called the poll results "a warm, comforting thought."

White, campaigning this past weekend in Houston and South Texas, seemed undaunted by the results.

"That was last week. And it's

Volcano scorched Pompeii swingers

POMPEII, Italy (AP) — Archaeologists have made new X-rated discoveries in Pompeii, unearthing fresh evidence of the libertine habits of the ancient Romans.

Pornographic mosaics depicting combinations of two, three or four men and women engaged in sexual activities were found in what experts describe as a combination bathhouse and bordello.

Baldassare Conticello, the archaeological superintendent of Pompeii, said the finds were unique in Pompeii and "unusual even for Romans."

"Erotic scenes of more than two people are very rare in classical art," he said in an interview.

The mosaics were part of a series of recent discoveries in Pompeii, a bustling city with an opulent lifestyle that was buried when Mount Vesuvius erupted in 79 A.D.

They came to light after a long-sought allocation of government money permitted archaeologists to undertake limited excavations.

In the two centuries since the first excavations, much has been learned about the lifestyle of the ancients, their architecture and use of urban planning. But one-third of the city is still buried under 19 to 23 feet of volcanic ash and debris.

That Pompeii's wealthy merchants and visiting sailors had a touch for the erotic has been documented.

Freed hostage offers hope for other captives

WIESBADEN, West Germany (AP) — David Jacobsen, saying he felt fit enough for a long jog after 17 months of captivity in Lebanon, today told the families of other American hostages to keep the faith that their loved ones will likewise be freed.

Jacobsen, who in a videotape released by his captors several weeks ago had criticized the Reagan administration for what he termed inaction on the hostages, also said he was proud to be American.

The director of the American University Hospital in Beirut, who was freed Sunday, arrived at the U.S. military air station in Wiesbaden aboard a Lear jet chartered by the State Department after he was flown out of Beirut to Cyprus aboard an American military helicopter.

He gave a brief news conference at the airport in Larnaca, Cyprus, before flying to West Germany, where he will undergo a thorough physical examination and be debriefed by U.S. authorities.

Some of his family members are expected to fly from the U.S. to Wiesbaden for a reunion with Jacobsen before they go home together.

"The best things in life are free, and by God they are," he told journalists upon arrival in Wiesbaden at about 11:30 a.m. (5:30 a.m. EST).

The bearded, 55-year-old Jacobsen looked tired and drawn, with bags under his eyes.

Earlier, in Cyprus he said: "To Jean Sutherland and the daughters, to the family of Terry Anderson and families of the other American hostages, and to all the other hostages, I would like to just give you a message, a message that served me well.

Voters to decide eight contested local races

By PAUL PINKHAM
Senior Staff Writer

Gray County voters go to the polls from 7 a. m. to 7 p. m. Tuesday to decide a number of local races in one of the most active political years in memory.

More than 850 voters already have made their choices, casting absentee ballots through Friday's 5 p. m. deadline.

Tuesday's election features eight contested local races, nine state races, including a rematch battle for the governor's mansion, four constitutional amendments and a race for 13th District U.S. House seat.

Of the 11 county offices currently up for grabs, only three are uncontested: county judge, where incumbent Republican Carl Kennedy is seeking a third term; Precinct 4 justice of the peace, where Democrat R.C. Parker, of McLean, also is seeking re-election; and the Precinct 3 constable's office, where Buddy Roland, appointed by the Commissioners Court this summer, hopes to stay on board as an uncontested write-in candidate.

District judges Don Cain and Grainger McIlhany, both Democrats, also are unopposed in their re-election bids.

On the other side of the scale, three men are running for Precinct 4 county commissioner: incumbent Ted Simmons of McLean, who jumped to the GOP in February, Democrat Tony Smitherman, also of McLean, and write-in challenger Buddy Epperson of Pampa. The district includes southeast Gray County, including McLean and Alanreed, and northeast Pampa.

February, Ronnie Rice of Pampa. His opponent is another Panpan, Democrat Jim Greene.

The precinct covers northwest Gray County and southeast Pampa.

Precinct 2 voters will choose a new justice of the peace to replace the resigning David Potter.

Democrat Wayne Roberts, 700 E. Craven, faces write-in candidate Margie Prestidge, 1020 E. Scott. There is no Republican candidate for the office.

In Precinct 1, voters from northeast Gray County, including Lefors and Laketon, and northwest Pampa, also will select a new justice of the peace. Republican Bob Muns of Pampa faces Democrat Pat Steele of Lefors.

Countywide, voters will be filling the offices of district clerk, county clerk and county treasurer. In the race for district clerk, incumbent Mary Clark, a Democrat, faces a challenge from Republican candidate Vickie Walls.

Another incumbent Democrat, County Clerk Wanda Carter, is being challenged by Republican hopeful Carol Peet.

In the county treasurer's office, where officeholder Jean Scott is stepping down in December, voters will choose between Democrat Lodema Mitchell and Republican Scott Hahn.

The race for 13th District U.S. representative features first-term incumbent Beau Boulter, an Amarillo Republican, and challenger Doug Seal, a Wellington Democrat.

Won't be voting

I don't know if I am a bad citizen or a good libertarian, but I won't vote Tuesday.

I dutifully studied the candidates and the issues to make sure to make the right decision. But I got so caught up with other junk that I failed to change my voter registration to my new address in time. As a result, all my favorite local candidates are going to find themselves one vote short Wednesday.

As for the state races, I'm glad I'm not voting in any of those circuses. With the exception of attorney general candidate Roy Barrera, I can't think of any candidates for state offices that are worth my vote.

Downstate Republicans blew it when they ignored county surveyor George Collis, probably the most qualified candidate for land commissioner anyone could ever hope for, and nominated one M. D. Anderson Jr., a dance hall owner who has the same name as a famous hospital. Dumb, dumb, dumb.

The Democrats, on the other hand, have Mark White. Equally dumb, dumb, dumb.

I'm tempted to slip into Oklahoma to vote for Republicans like governor candidate Henry Bellmon. Like Bill Clements, Bellmon used to be governor. Unlike Clements, Bellmon is a level-headed, straightforward leader. He's a very popular guy with both parties. Tuesday's election may as well be his coronation.

Of course it helps that he's with the "in" political party this year.

You may have seen some of this party's half-page ads, listing such Democrat "evils" as gun control and pro-choice for abortions. And if you look at the state party platforms you will see a difference: the Republicans want to invade your privacy and the Democrats want to invade your pocketbooks.

But I fail to see any need to apply party platform politics to local races. What does a woman's right to an abortion have to do with a person's ability to keep court records or "Star Wars" with the administration of a small claims court?

The half-page ad says "it matters at the county level because the local Democrat elected officials help establish state and national party platforms." I agree. It does matter. But maybe electing "conservatives" at the grassroots level may change the minds of those "liberals" at the top. And I'm saying this as a proud — albeit unregistered — member of the party of Abraham Lincoln and Theodore Roosevelt. My choices include people from both parties as well as write-ins.

I bet if Representative Foster Whaley or Tax Collector-Assessor Margie Gray never disclosed their party affiliations, nobody would be able to guess whether they were Democrat or Republican.

If you vote Tuesday, forget the labels that have been bandied about and keep away from that "straight party" box.

Sorry about the confusion in Wednesday's story on the Waterfield-Buchanan race. When the story jumped from page one to page two, some of the paragraphs accidentally got switched.

To make sense out of the story on page two, start reading midway through the first column, at the paragraph which begins "The only reason . . ." and read through the bottom of the column. Then go back to the top of the column and read through the paragraph which ends ". . . a lot of votes there."

There, does that read better?

These things happen from time to time, and it is a bit embarrassing.

Still not even this story could top a boner we pulled two years ago in a story I did on Gerald Ford. I was quoting from a speech and when the story jumped from page one to page two, the story read: "Four of those dollars would come from new taxes and one dollar would come from a . . . Ford."

Hundreds of prison inmates released to halfway homes

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Prison overcrowding did not play a role in the recent release of hundreds of inmates to halfway houses, a Texas Department of Corrections spokesman says.

The number of prisoners released through the TDC Pre-parole Transfer Program increased from 35 in mid-September to 398 last week.

"It's not used to control prison population, but it's another option TDC has," said prison spokesman David Nunnelee. "It's a good idea to get them into a halfway house and give them a head start in finding a job and getting on their feet."

U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice in September rejected the state's proposal to house 300 inmates at Fort Wolters in Mineral Wells and an additional 95 at the TDC hospital in Galveston.

Prison officials wanted to transfer prisoners to those locations to keep the state's prison population at 38,374, a cap established by a 1983 state law.

But TDC spokesman Charles Brown said the rapid expansion of the halfway-house program after Justice's rejection of the Minerals Wells proposal was coincidental.

"We've had the pre-parole option for a long time.

Michael Wiley of Plainview is entering his fifth year of waiting for a heart transplant.

Man waits four years for heart

PLAINVIEW, Texas (AP) — When Michael Wiley of Plainview was diagnosed nearly four years ago as having cardiomyopathy, a deterioration of the heart muscle, doctors gave him at most five years to live unless he received a heart transplant.

This month, Wiley will enter his fifth year of waiting for a donor. It is a vigil that has drained his family's finances and placed him more than once on death's doorstep.

It has been a long wait.

Feeling weak and thinking he might have pneumonia, Wiley went to a doctor in Hale Center in the fall of 1982. Unable to diagnose Wiley's illness, the physician referred him to Lubbock for further examination. A transplant operation was recommended after cardiologists diagnosed Wiley's illness cardiomyopathy.

"I was told the only cure was a transplant," he said. "My heart muscle should normally contract 55 percent to 60 percent. At the time, mine was only doing 10 percent."

In January 1983, Wiley entered St. Luke's Hospital in Houston. He was admitted with hardly any pulse at all, he said. He was discharged after a week of "head-to-toe" examinations.

He was readmitted two years later when doctors thought they were on the verge of finding a donor. But the gift of life didn't materialize, and he was again discharged to wait for another opportunity.

"The Lord has brought me out of the hospital twice . . . when I shouldn't have come out at all," Wiley said.

Today, the 36-year-old man works as a buyer for a Plainview farm equipment distributor. It is a job he has held for 10 years, but since his diagnosis four years ago he has kept to a 20-hour-a-week schedule.

Despite limited physical activities, Wiley said he still encounters difficulties in daily life.

One problem is that he perspires easily. He said that, even in air-conditioned rooms he must frequently turn on fans to keep cool.

After directing choir for 17 years, he gave it up last year after his doctor advised him that it was too physically demanding.

Besides suffering from his heart ailment, Wiley said that he also suffers from frequent kidney stones.

Chicken Ranch plots for sale

LA GRANGE, Texas (AP) — If the idea of a museum in a famous bordello seems unlikely, consider the way two entrepreneurs plan to raise money for construction.

They plan to sell inch-square parcels of land from the site of the Chicken Ranch, immortalized in "The Best Little Whorehouse in Texas," and give buyers a legal deed and free admission to a museum due to be built by next summer.

"It's really a piece of history. It will be like a national monument," said Todd Hoffman, president of The Original Chicken Ranch Inc. "It will be first class, a place to bring the wife and kids."

The bordello, officially called Edna's Fashionable Ranch Boarding House, operated at the site for more than a century. It got its nickname in the Depression, when chickens were accepted as payment for services.

It later was the inspiration for the musical, "The Best Little Whorehouse in Texas," but all that past bawdiness will be downplayed at the museum and no liquor will be sold, Hoffman said.

"It's going to be tasteful," agreed Bob Burns, Hoffman's partner.

Since the judge denied Fort Wolters and Galveston, we're just using it," he said.

Inmates transferred to a halfway house are no longer included in the prison census, but they legally remain prisoners.

"We have a greater degree of control over them," said John Byrd, state parole board executive director. "We can return them to prison immediately. Parolees have to be given due process."

Although many state prisoners are released through the program, about 40 percent of the inmates interested are turned down, Brown said.

Since the program began in February 1984, 551 prisoners have been released with 86 being returned to prison.

Inmates at the houses can be reported as escapees two hours after they're discovered missing and can be charged with felony escape.

Those released in the pre-parole program are selected by prison and parole officials. Inmates who have had probations revoked or who are serving time for violent or sex crimes are eliminated from consideration.

Firm to supply cash instead of kilowatts

AUSTIN (AP) — A company planning to generate electricity by burning cattle manure at two power plants in the Texas Panhandle will be sending the city of Austin cash instead of kilowatts for the next two years.

A check for $31,000 from Valley View Energy Corp. is due within two weeks as the company begins penalty payments for missing a deadline to begin delivering electricity to Austin, city officials say.

But officials for the Dallas-based company, who could end up paying a total of $1.4 million over two years, say they are determined to see the project through.

Initial plans had called for the first plant to begin delivering power to Austin by October, with the second plant beginning operation six months later.

But a variety of problems in getting agreements with several power companies to transport the electricity to Austin has set the project back about two years, company officials say.

The current schedule calls for construction of the first plant to begin in March. The plant, which is to be built near Hereford in Deaf Smith County, is to be operating in the fall of 1988. The second unit, to be built near Gruver in Hansford County, is to be operating in the spring of 1989.

Both are near cattle feedlots, which will be the source of the fuel, and each is to be capable of generating 50,000 kilowatts of electricity.

The contract, signed by city and Valley View officials with great fanfare two years ago, requires the company to pay Austin $1,000 a day if it fails to deliver power from the first plant by Oct. 1.

A second $1,000-a-day penalty will be added for the second plant beginning next spring.

City electric officials say they are looking forward to getting the manure power, but emphasize that the delay in getting the power will not affect the city's ability to supply electricity to customers.

"We think the plants will help in diversifying our fuel sources, but the delay is not going to make or break us," said Milton Lee, manager of generation planning for the city Electric Department.

"We greatly underestimated what it would take to get the agreements in place, but are going to live up to the contract," said Valley View President Don Lieb.

The first penalty check covering the month of October will be delivered the second week in November, he said.

The last of seven key agreements with power companies to transport power between the plants and Austin was signed two months ago, Lieb said.

Merger to net less on stock payout

HOUSTON (AP) — People Express Inc. is faring so badly that it and Texas Air Corp. have had to rework a merger agreement to cut $24 million from what People Express stockholders will get in the deal, Texas Air officials say.

To save the merger proposal in the face of worsening People Express earnings, the companies are also seeking concessions from the holders of People Express preferred stock and convertible debt issue, Texas Air spokesman Bruce Hicks said Sunday.

The new agreement calls for People Express to ask for other airport concessions from the Port Authority of New York and New Jersey, Hicks said.

In return, Texas Air has agreed to increase the amount of pre-merger financing it is pumping into Newark, N.J.-based People Express.

"Their financial condition has worsened in such a way to precipitate changes in the agreement," Hicks said. "But I don't see any other problems, and it is our hope and belief we can complete this merger quickly."

People Express' 25 million stockholders were to split $134.3 million under terms of the original merger agreement, but that amount was reduced to $110.4 million Sunday night.

Those face-value figures were calculated from the $38 per share Texas Air stock brought when Wall Street closed Friday.

Under the revised terms, each common share of People Express will be exchanged for 0.05 a share of Texas Air common stock, compared to the 0.08 a share in the original agreement.

People Express said preliminary third-quarter results indicate it has lost $110 million, including the provision of $55 million for the loss on its investment in Frontier Airlines.

That would mean a nine-month loss for the period ending Sept. 30 of about $243 million, and even more losses are expected in the fourth quarter, Hicks said.

Sunday's new agreement will also impose more conditions on Texas Air's obligation to complete the merger, including the exchange of People Express' Series A and B preferred stock for shares of a new issue of Texas Air stock.

Hasenfus says he can't link CIA to rebel supply flights

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — American mercenary Eugene Hasenfus, on trial before a revolutionary tribunal, broke his courtroom silence to say he had no direct knowledge of CIA links to a rebel supply operation.

The 45-year-old former Marine was ordered brought before the "people's court" again today for the fourth consecutive day.

Hasenfus acknowledged during Sunday's hourlong trial session that he had written and signed a four-page document the prosecution has described as a confession to charges he was a part of the operation.

But the chief prosecutor, Justice Minister Rodrigo Reyes, said he did not consider Hasenfus' statement to the court Sunday to be significant.

"Independently of the confession of Hasenfus, we have a strong, strong case," Reyes said. "What is important to me at the moment is to prove that he committed the crimes he is charged with."

Reyes said that at today's session he will present flight logs, weapons and other items found in the C-123 cargo plane shot down Oct. 5 in southern Nicaragua.

Hasenfus, 45, of Marinette, Wis., was the only survivor of what he has publicly described as a mission to drop supplies to U.S.-backed Contra rebels. Three crewmen died in the crash, including two other Americans.

Besides terrorism, Hasenfus is charged with conspiracy and violations of public security and could be sentenced to 30 years in prison.

After declining to comment during the previous two days' sessions, Hasenfus spoke up Sunday to object to a section of his written statement dealing with alleged Central Intelligence Agency involvement in his activities.

"I do not have the direct knowledge to definitely, personally know that," he said through an interpreter to the three-member People's Tribunal trying him on a charge of terrorism.

Hasenfus' remarks on Sunday conflicted with earlier statements to reporters.

After his capture he told reporters that two nationalized Cuban Americans, Max Gomez and Ramon Medina, worked for the CIA.

JOINT PROBLEM AND MUSCLE PAIN

If you've developed symptoms that make you think you have arthritis, it would be wise to have an examination to see if the muscles in the affected area are out of balance.

Muscles help keep a joint stable and assist it through its normal range of motion. But if the muscles on one side of the joint are weak, this puts a strain on the joint. It may also cause arthritic-like symptoms.

The doctor of chiropractic will test the muscles to determine their balance and strength. He will also evaluate nerve patterns and may take an x-ray to study the joint structure involved. Perhaps some laboratory procedures will also be needed.

If the problem is in the muscles around the joint, treatment can be given to strengthen and return them to proper balance. Once this is achieved, the arthritic-like pain and discomfort may be greatly relieved or eliminated.

14 states rated toss ups in gubernatorial races

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican governors are likely to see their ranks grow after Tuesday's election, but their chances of gaining a majority of the statehouses for the first time since 1969 hinge on 10 toss-up races, according to an Associated Press survey.

In election-year arithmetic that favors the GOP, Democrats find themselves defending 27 of the 34 governorships they now hold. The GOP, with but 16 governors, defends only nine.

The AP survey, completed five days before the election, showed that all told, 14 races were too close to call.

Democratic candidates appeared safe in 11 states and were leaning ahead in two more. Five states were safe for the Republicans, and four more were leaning GOP.

Republican strategists are optimistic about the gubernatorial races, the last in which President Reagan's popularity could be a factor.

"I feel very good about picking up 10, optimally," said Michele Davis, executive director of the Republican Governors Association. Said retiring Pennsylvania Gov. Richard Thornburgh, chairman of the GOP governors' campaign committee: "What we're looking at is a reasonable figure of six, and with a few breaks, eight to 10."

Democrats said that figure was too high, but conceded it would be difficult to hold their pre-election margin.

Paul Kirk, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, conceded his party could lose four governorships, ending up with 30 seats total.

The wild card was a large number of gubernatorial contests in which the candidates were running neck-and-neck. "There's just too many close ones to call," said Chuck Dolan, director of the Democratic Governors' Association.

In the 14 states rated toss ups, 11 are being defended by Democrats — Kansas, Texas, Arizona, Alaska, South Carolina, Florida, Wyoming, Nebraska, Wisconsin, Hawaii and Alabama.

Three states in the too-close-to-call category have Republican governors who are leaving office: Tennessee, Oregon and Pennsylvania.

Recorded Reagan telephone calls irritate Mesquite hospital patients

MESQUITE, Texas (AP) — The last thing patients in Mesquite Community Hospital expected last weekend was to get a telephone call from President Reagan. But the president called and called again.

It was an apparent malfunction of a telephone system used by the Republican National Committee to get out the vote in the elections Tuesday.

The phone calls contained a recorded message from President Reagan urging people to vote for Republican candidates.

Hospital officials don't know how many calls they received because the hospital in this Dallas suburb recently installed a system where patients can receive direct telephone calls, said Bob Grimes, associate hospital administrator.

But the calls came every few minutes between 5 p.m. and 9 p.m. Saturday, Grimes said.

"Hello, this is Ronald Reagan. They're keeping me on a pretty busy schedule around here, so I hope you'll understand I can't call you in person," the calls began. "I know you're probably busy, too. I'm calling because I need your help."

But the hospital official said the calls were not welcomed by the patients and nurses.

"There were a lot (of calls), and they were very aggravating. I'd like to know who did it," Grimes said.

The Republican National Committee doesn't know who made the calls.

Hospital officials and patients alike were upset and perturbed by the calls, which were apparently destined for a targeted list of voters.

"It was very disturbing," said Robert DeMoss of Garland, who was visiting his mother-in-law on the hospital's third floor, where intensive-care and surgical patients are located.

"Finally, the people on the third floor took all the phones off the hook," DeMoss said.

Bob Schermund, press secretary for the national committee in Washington, D.C., said the calls were supposed to be part of an unprecedented effort to get out the vote this year by reaching 5 million voters over the weekend.

"This is a targeted program. This is not placing calls into the moonlight," Schermund said. "Despite what people say, we don't have a bottomless pot of gold. We do have to target it."

The calls, he said, were supposed to go to registered Republicans and Reagan supporters in specific areas of 25 states. The committee did not place any calls to Texas voters over the weekend, he added.

Paul Peck, vice president for TBS, a Richardson firm, which was making some of the automated calls, told the Dallas Times Herald Sunday the firm was making calls to Ohio, including the Cleveland area.

The area code for Cleveland is 216, the same as the prefix for the new telephone system at Mes-quite Community Hospital, Peck said.

"I'm dead, 100 percent convinced we dialed those long-distance calls (and not local numbers)," Peck said.

Peck did say, however, that there were switching problems with the long distance system Saturday night, so TBS switched to another service.

The campaign is using several telephone companies like his, so Peck said it may be impossible to determine who was making the calls that deluged the Mesquite hospital.

"They're making these phone calls all over the country, so anything could have happened, Peck said.

Give the United Way.

Salmon anglers

Crowded shoulder to shoulder along the banks of the Salmon River in the upstate New York village of Pulaski, N.Y., fishermen attempt to hook on to one of the salmon making their way up river recently. Hundreds of anglers from across the country arrive in the town each year for the event, in what many consider to be one of the nation's greatest salmon runs.

Film festival edited down to one film after racism cries

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — What started out to be a cowboy film festival got clipped down to just one movie after Hispanics and an Indian tribe denounced the event for promoting what they called a racist art form.

The event was the Western Film Festival, or more accurately, what was left of the project: one free showing Sunday of "Silverado," a Western movie released last year.

Originally scheduled to be a three-day festival with out-of-town speakers and a program of old Westerns, plans eroded when El Concilio de El Paso and the Tigua Indians decried the festival and its movies as racist.

Patricia Roybal-Sutton — chairwoman of El Concilio, an umbrella organization of Hispanic groups in El Paso County — says the groups objected to how Indians and Hispanics are portrayed in the movies.

Indians are depicted as savages and Hispanics are either lazy or banditos, she said.

Plan two for the festival was to be a fund-raiser showing of "Silverado" and a barbeque lunch. For lack of interest, that event was canceled last week and the Western Film Festival planning committee decided to show "Silverado" free to anyone interested in seeing it.

About 40 people showed up, some of whom didn't realize what they were seeing was the remainder of a project that some hoped would promote El Paso.

The marquee outside the theater didn't even indicate the showing was a Western Film Festival project.

John Lasby was one of those who came.

"I drove by the theater and saw the movie was free," he said after the movie. "I didn't know about any film festival plans."

INSIGHT INTO EYESIGHT

Dr. Diane Simmons
—OPTOMETRIST—

HOW WE SEE

What happens when we see? First of all, there must be a source of light (even a cat can't see when it's pitch black). The light is reflected off every object which is exposed to it. These light rays travel from the object to our eyes. They enter through the cornea, the transparent membrane in the center of the eye. The cornea bends the rays slightly inward on the way to the lens, which narrows them even more.

will be blurred. That indicates that the eyes need corrective glasses. Difficulty in focusing on objects at a distance or up close are the most common. However, there are many other vision problems which the optometrist can detect through his examination.

In normal eyes, the rays converge together in sharp focus when they reach the retina. This is the "back wall" of the eye that transmits the image to the brain.

The kind of image the brain receives depends on how sharp the picture is. If it isn't in focus, it

Both sides upbeat as election finally nears

WASHINGTON (AP) — The long and nasty 1986 campaign is closing out with Democrats optimistic about regaining control of the Senate and Republicans insisting they will beat the historic odds by minimizing losses in Congress and gaining several governorships.

On the last full day of campaigning, President Reagan kept hammering away in his drive to keep the Senate in Republican control. He had appearances today for GOP underdog candidates Jim Santini in Nevada and Ed Zschau in California.

In addition to deciding party control of the Senate, where Republicans now have a 53-47 majority, voters will select 36 governors, determine the makeup of the 435-member House and select thousands of state legislators and local officials.

As the campaign neared its end, word came from the Middle East that David Jacobsen, an American being held hostage in Lebanon, had been released after 17 months in captivity. Democratic and Republican leaders said they doubted his release would have an impact on the U.S. elections.

Republicans were talking about having a long-shot chance to come out of the election with a majority of the nation's gov-ernorships. There are Democratic governors in 27 of the 36 states choosing chief executives and 15 of them are not running for reelection. A gain of 10 would give the GOP a majority.

The House was certain to remain in control of the Democrats who have a 253-180 majority. Two seats formerly held by Republicans are vacant.

White House political aide Mitch Daniels said that even if the GOP fails to keep its majority in the Senate, the party will win more than half of the 34 Senate races on Tuesday.

Not since World War II, said Daniels, has a president's party won a majority of the Senate races in his sixth-year midterm.

Frank J. Fahrenkopf Jr., chairman of the Republican National Committee, took a similar tack, saying on NBC-TV's "Meet the Press" that it was remarkable to even be talking about the GOP retaining Senate control.

"I'm willing to confess, there are a lot of very dicey races out there," said Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole of Kansas, who nonetheless said he expected the Republicans to keep control.

Appearing with Dole on CBS-TV's "Face the Nation," Democratic Senate leader Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia said the next Congress would have a 52-48

Democratic majority in the Senate.

In a five-minute echo of his recent campaign speeches, the president appealed to Americans on Sunday night to "please vote. And, please vote Republican."

The pre-recorded advertisement was broadcast on the ABC, NBC and CBS television networks at a cost of $500,000, a price Republicans would consider well worth it if Reagan swayed votes to GOP candidates in half a dozen key states that both sides agreed were too close to call.

Those states are Alabama, Colorado, Idaho, North Carolina, North Dakota and South Dakota. All but Colorado have Republican Senate incumbents fighting for survival against strong Democratic challenges.

List names best trees for area

By JOE VANZANDT
County Extension Agent

Two weeks ago, I discussed some trees that I would not recommend for our area. It doesn't mean that those trees will not grow here, but it means that there are generally some problems that those trees are more likely to have.

I have lists of recommended trees for our area. These will have some discussion about size and characteristics. If anyone wants a copy, give the Gray County Extension Office a call.

HEAD LICE STILL A PROBLEM

Despite the highest living standards in history, head lice appear to be increasing in the United States.

Dr. Carl Patrick and Dr. Phil Hamman, entomologists with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, say head lice problems increase in Texas during the winter time. The tiny pests suck blood, causing intense skin irritation and itching. Continuous scratching may cause skin abrasions that could lead to bacterial infection.

Head lice are grayish, flattened, wingless insects about 3 millimeters long. The adult female attaches 50-100 eggs, or nits, to the hair near the scalp. They spread easily by physical contact. Even under the best sanitary conditions, infestations may occur among school children who are in close, daily contact, point out the entomologists.

Personal hygiene and not using another person's comb, brush or hat are the keys to preventing lice infestations. Shampooing with soap and water normally will not remove nits from hair since they are attached by a "cement", explain Patrick and Hamman.

Thorough laundering in hot, soapy water (125 degrees F. or more for at least 10 minutes) or dry cleaning kills lice and nits in clothing and bedding. Personal items (hats, combs, hairbrushes, wigs) can be heat sterilized.

Infested persons should see a physician, emphasize the entomologists. Medicated lotions or shampoos can be prescribed for effective control.

For Horticulture

Joe Vanzandt

Also, report suspected infestations to a physician, local public health authorities or school officials so the source can be located. Prevention is the most important control of head lice, emphasize Patrick and Hamman.

THE COMPOST PILE — THE ORIGINAL RECYCLING CENTER

Gardeners can get-back-to-basics and save money too by developing an old stand-by — the compost pile. And with fall here, plenty of leaves are available for composting.

With transportation costs pushing the price of peat moss and other bulky types of organic matter higher, the backyard compost pile or compost bin is becoming more and more important.

With our soils lacking in organic matter, composting is an excellent way to add humus to the soil while at the same time disposing of unwanted plant material from the yard and garden.

Leaves, straw, lawn clippings, sawdust, garden debris and even shredded newspapers can be converted into usable humus through the decomposing process. These composted materials will make both clay and sandy soils more suitable for growing vegetables and ornamentals.

It is usually best to have three compost bins — one bing filled, one in the process of decomposing, and another ready for use. The most workable size for most gardeners is a 4 feet by 6 feet bin, with one side hinged or removable for easy access.

Gardeners should select a convenient site near a source of water, yet out of sight of the outdoor living area.

Start the compost pile by spreading a 6-to-8-inch layer of debris. Top this with a 1-to-2-inch layer of soil or finished compost. Sprinkle about two cups of a complete fertilizer over each layer of soil and organic matter to encourage bacterial action and hasten decomposition. Manure may be used instead of fertilizer. Water thoroughly; then add the next layer as materials become available.

Repeat the layering process until the pile is 4 to 5 inches high. Keep the center slightly lower than the sides to aid in retaining water. Keep the pile moist for rapid decomposition; however, avoid saturation or bad odors develop.

Dear Voters of Gray County:

You were kind enough to elect me District Clerk for twenty nine years. I believe you recognize that efficient public service from this office is more important than the political affiliations of the candidates for that office.

Mary Clark was my Deputy Clerk for 4½ years and was elected District Clerk in 1982. I can recommend her to you as a person with the maturity, experience, and sensitivity to provide the professional and courteous service you have learned to expect from this office.

I am casting my vote for Mary Clark. Won't you support her too?

Indian Summer brings end-of-October discoveries

Indian Summer brings a time change, tremendous displays of fall flowers in full color and a few end-of-October discoveries you will want to read about.

Patsy McKnerney had a special guest in her backyard last week. A large roadrunner stopped by for a few minutes, perhaps to dine on crumbs Patsy thoughtfully tosses out for the birds. He stayed only long enough to be admired. Last week a large flock of geese followed by as many ducks passed over Pampa while heading south for the winter.

Did you know Sandie and Dr. Ed Williams are enthusiastic bird watchers? They frequently take time out of a golf game to watch and enjoy the birds with binoculars.

Etta Johnson at 92 is a spry and snappy little lady who does her own housework. That means moving furniture around from time to time, the way she does it.

ONCE AGAIN Pampans are generous in buying goodies and services from Pampa High School band and choir students. Profits will fund a May trip to Washington, D.C., where students will perform in the Lincoln Center for the Performing Arts.

Both Linda Crabtree and her bet Schnauzer are proud owners of new bedroom furniture. When Linda bought hers, her father, thinking nothing was too good for the family pet, took great pleasure in making a doggie bed out of the old but still in excellent shape headboard. The dear doggie has a toy chest to complete his suite. All three are as pleased as can be.

Redskins rally in overtime

By BARRY WILNER
AP Sports Writer

Three missed extra points forced the Washington Redskins to work overtime. Thanks to Gary Clark, the Skins only had to go an extra 106 seconds for a thrilling 44-38 victory over Minnesota.

Clark, the NFC's leading receiver, ignored a strained hamstring to catch a 38-yard touchdown pass from Jay Schroeder Sunday, lifting the Redskins to victory. Washington, 7-2, remained tied with the New York Giants atop the NFC East.

Clark caught the ball on the left sideline at the 30, spun out of the grasp of Minnesota defensive back Carl Lee, then went into the end zone untouched.

"Once I saw the emotional peak we were hitting, I just had to come back," Clark, who had been removed by Coach Joe Gibbs, said. "I just felt the tempo rising and had to be part of it."

In other close games, it was Kansas City 24, San Diego 23; Cincinnati 24, Detroit 17; Tampa Bay 34, Buffalo 28; and St. Louis 13, Philadelphia 10. The routs included the New York Jets' 38-7 whipping of Seattle; and Pittsburgh's 27-3 victory over Green Bay.

Also, Denver beat the Los Angeles Raiders 21-10; New Orleans surprised San Francisco 23-10; New England downed Atlanta 25-17; and Cleveland kept Indianapolis winless 24-9.

Tonight, the Los Angeles Rams are at the Chicago Bears.

Chiefs 24, Chargers 23

Al Saunders was seven seconds away from winning his first game as the Chargers' head coach. But Kansas City, trailing 23-21 with 57 seconds remaining, drove from its 31 to the San Diego 19 in five plays. Nick Lowery's 37-yard field goal then won it.

The Chiefs are second in the AFC West with a 6-3 record.

Bengals 24, Lions 14

A 49-yard pass and a bump by Demetrius Johnson set up the winning 1-yard touchdown run by Larry Kinnebrew with 40 seconds remaining. On a second-and-20 at the Cincinnati 40-yard line, quarterback Boomer Esiason passed for Cris Collinsworth. Johnson bumped Collinsworth at the Lions' 11, giving the Bengals a first down. Four plays later, Kinnebrew scored.

Stanley Wilson had touchdown runs of two and four yards for Cincinnati, while Detroit's Eric Hipple threw a 36-yard

Bucs 34, Bills 28

The Bills lost their 21st straight road game, two short of the NFL record, thanks to poor ballhandling on kick returns. Buffalo's Eric Richardson ran a kickoff to his 10, where he handed off to Ron Pitts on a reverse. Pitts, who later scored on a 49-yard punt return, dropped the ball, tried to pick it up at the 8 but was hit by Bucs linebacker Kevin Murphy. The ball rolled into end zone, where Pat Franklin recovered for a 10-0 lead.

Later, the Bills' Walter Broughton muffed another kickoff in the end zone. He kicked the ball out to the 2, where Rod Jones recovered. Steve Young scored on the next play.

The Bills came on as Jim Kelly passed for three second-half touchdowns and finished with 28 completions in 39 attempts for 343 yards.

Cardinals 13, Eagles 10

Backup quarterback Cliff Stoudt rallied St. Louis with a 14-yard scoring pass to Roy Green with 5:04 remaining, then Stump Mitchell ran one yard to score with 36 seconds left. Stoudt, who replaced Neil Lomax to start the second half, completed seven of 10 passes for 54 yards.

Jets 38, Seahawks 7

The Jets set a team mark with their seventh straight victory on the arm of Ken O'Brien, who had four touchdown passes and 431 yards. O'Brien found Al Toon for scores of 50 and 36 yards, hooked up with Wesley Walker on an 83-yard bomb and hit Mickey Shuler for a 1-yard touchdown.

Toon caught nine passes for 195 yards, his best day in his two seasons as a professional, while Walker made six receptions for 161 yards.

Steelers 27, Packers 3

Weegie Thompson, filling in for injured Louis Lipps, caught three touchdown passes from Mark Malone. Thompson made an 18-yard first-quarter scoring catch following Gary Ellerson's second fumble, caught a 9-yarder in the third period to make it 20-3, and had a diving 6-yard touchdown catch in the fourth period. Thompson caught six passes for 78 yards after making eight catches for one touchdown in the Steelers' first eight games.

Browns 24, Colts 9

Bernie Kosar threw three touchdowns passes, including a 72-yarder to Herman Fontenot, as Cleveland stayed in a tie with Cincinnati for first place in the AFC Central. Kosar also hit Brian Brennan and Ozzie Newsome for scores.

The Colts, 0-9, are off to their worst start ever.

Aggies take break to regroup energy

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

Defending Southwest Conference football champion Texas A&M is off next weekend and the Aggies are more than ready to give their cliff-hanging act a rest.

"The open spot is a big welcome," said A&M Coach Jackie Sherrill. "Our players are spent mentally and physically."

A&M came from 11 points behind to clip Southern Methodist 39-35 on Saturday to remain unbeaten at 5-0 in league play. Three weeks ago, A&M rallied from 17 points down to edge Baylor 31-30.

"We've left every ounce of energy we have on the field," Sherrill said. "It's time to rest."

In other games on Saturday, Texas Tech defeated Texas in Lubbock 23-21 as David McWilliams beat his former boss, Fred Akers; Texas Christian broke a 14-game SWC losing streak by bouncing Houston 30-14; and Arkansas crushed Rice 45-14 to remain alive in the league chase with just one loss.

TCU junior halfback Tony Jeffery, the SWC's leading rusher, suffered a separated clavicle in the first quarter of the Horned Frog victory.

"Tony may be through for the year," TCU Coach Jim Wacker said.

A&M has a week off to get ready for its road trip to Arkansas. The Razorbacks could have two losses before A&M gets there because Arkansas have to play Baylor at noon this Saturday in Waco on homecoming.

Baylor had the past weekend off.

In other SWC games on Saturday, Houston is at Texas, Texas Tech is at TCU and SMU is at Notre Dame.

Quarterback Kevin Murray pulled off his magic act once again for A&M against the Mustangs who led 28-17 in the second half. Murray's 34-yard scoring pass to Keith Woodside with 1:48 to play was the Mustang-breaker.

"We never got down on ourselves," said Murray, who had three touchdown passes to bring to 44 his SWC career-leading total. "We came from 17 points down to beat Baylor. We knew we could do it. We've done it before."

Sherrill said the game with over 800 yards offense and seven lead changes was one for the archives.

"It will go down in history as one of the greatest games played in this conference or any other conference," said Sherrill.

Sherrill said Murray is getting into Vinny Testaverde's class.

"Kevin never lost his poise and was in control all the way," Sherrill said. "There's not a finer quarterback in the country. Everybody talks about Testaverde at Miami but Kevin has had a great season."

SMU Coach Bobby Collins said Murray has never been better.

"It's hard to describe what Murray means to that team," Collins said. "He's so strong he can throw the ball with people hanging on him. You could confuse him with your defenses a year ago. It's hard to do that now."

Sherrill said the Aggies have the confidence they can overcome any situation.

"I don't think they can be beat right now," Sherrill said. "This is the 10th or 12th time in the past two years that we've come back to win."

Tech's victory fueled rumors that McWilliams might go to Texas if Akers is fired at the end of the season.

"The whole thing has been awkward," said McWilliams.

JOHN SHARP FOR RAILROAD COMMISSIONER

Texas has serious economic problems, in the oil fields and across the state. Forty percent of the oil America purchases comes from OPEC. Domestic reserves are being depleted. Jobs in the oil field have vanished. Ongoing oil development has become a thing of the past, and many producing properties have been abandoned or plugged.

Non oil-producing states are able to purchase Texas gas at below replacement costs. Texas gas utility customers pay increasingly higher bills. Texas farmers, dependant upon reasonably priced energy, are witnessing bankruptcies and farm foreclosures at an alarming rate.

Texas needs a leader to work for the development of energy, wealth, and above all else, jobs. John Sharp, candidate for the Railroad Commission of Texas, knows that when rigs aren't running and pumpers aren't looking after production, but demand for oil is high and reserves are dwindling, we've got to change the way business is done.

Let's elect a strong leader, with a vision of what a viable oil and gas industry can do for Texas and Texans. Vote for the leadership to promote a healthy Panhandle oil and gas economy. John Sharp, a statesman who'll work with Democrats and Republicans, at both the state and federal levels, to get the rigs running and the wells pumping. Vote for John Sharp for Railroad Commissioner.

For Proposition 4

Imagine if there was a law that said you could shop at only one grocery store or buy gasoline at only one service station. In 1904, such a law was passed. It says that no Texan can make deposits or cash checks at more than one office of the same bank.

Proposition 4 changes that law.

Gambling, environmental issue, taxation, abortion, face voters on Tuesday

By The Associated Press

Chatting with voters, speaking in interviews, writing in campaign literature, referendum organizers present this year's crop of ballot issues in stark terms of good and bad.

"It's just plain wrong," asserts George Harper. "We recognize this to be a moral issue," says Kevin McCray. "Organized crime will be involved," warns Robert Dempsey.

Harper, a Helena, Mont., minister, is leading opposition to a state lottery proposition, one of six such proposals on ballots around the nation.

McCray is director of The Unborn Child Amendment Committee in Arkansas, which is promoting a measure that would prohibit spending state money for abortions unless a mother's life is in danger. Three other state ballots include abortion funding measures.

Dempsey, commissioner of the Florida Department of Law Enforcement, lined up with other officials against a county-option casino gambling proposition.

Voters will have the final say Tuesday on 226 measures on ballots in 43 states. Only Delaware, Louisiana, Minnesota, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Tennessee and Wisconsin have no propositions.

Other issues include: tax-cutting measures on five states' ballots, and environmental protection propositions in Washington, New York, Massachusetts, Oregon, California and other states.

Besides Montana, states with lottery proposals are Kansas, Idaho, North Dakota, South Dakota and Florida. According to a Miami Herald poll in mid-October, voter sentiment was running against casinos in Florida, 60 percent to 35 percent, but in favor of a lottery, 58 percent to 34 percent.

Kansas voters, according to a poll by the Wichita Eagle-Beacon, favor amendments permitting a lottery, pari-mutuel wagering and liquor by the drink in restaurants. Drinks are now served only in private clubs in Kansas, a limitation Gov. John Carlin has called hypocritical.

In addition to Arkansas, states with measures that would restrict government funding for abortions are Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Oregon. Patrick McGuigan, editor of the newsletter Initiative and Referendum Report, called them close contests.

Tax-slashing measures include California's Proposition 62, which would require a two-thirds vote of the local governing body and a majority vote of the people to increase tax levies.

Under Montana's Initiative 27, all property taxes would be abolished and a vote of the people would be required for creation of a sales tax or any increase in a sales tax or income taxes. Opponents say public services, including police protection and highway maintenance, would suffer.

In Massachusetts, voters will decide whether to cap taxes by holding state tax revenue growth to the level of growth in wages of state residents.

Colorado's Proposition 4 stipulates that no new state or local tax could be levied without a vote of the people. In Oregon, voters will weigh four overlapping proposals affecting sales, property or income taxes.

Referendum 40 in Washington state would protest the selection of Hanford nuclear reservation as a finalist to become the nation's nuclear waste dump.
