Former Pampa family sues Ford

Carter's Ford Mustang hit Smith vehicle.

By PAUL PINKHAM
Senior Staff Writer

A former Pampa family — who in September won $375,000 in a wrongful death suit against the Texas Department of Public Safety — is suing Ford Motor Co. and three other firms for $825,000.

The family of Candace Ketchum Smith claims in the suit filed in U.S. District Court in Amarillo that the design of a Ford Mustang — used as a DPS patrol car and reportedly known in law enforcement as a "pocket rocket" and "unidentified flying object" — contributed to Mrs. Smith's death.

Mrs. Smith died from injuries sustained in a collision with a DPS patrol car driven by Trooper Johnny Garth Carter on Dec. 21, 1984, at 17th Avenue and Hobart Street. Her husband William Arnold Smith and daughter Andra, as well as Carter, were injured in the collision.

Smith has since remarried and moved with his family to Broken Arrow, Okla.

In September the Smith family, and Mrs. Smith's father, Richard V. Ketchum of Prineville, Ore., won $375,000 in an out-of-court settlement with the DPS and Carter.

The family and Ketchum are listed as plaintiffs in the suit against Ford as well.

In addition to Ford, the wrongful death suit also names North American Signals Inc. of Chicago and Leif Johnson Ford Inc. and Fred Stroud Co., both of Austin, as defendants. North American Signals is the manufacturer of the flashing signal lights that were mounted on the grill of Carter's patrol car.

The suit claims that the Ford Mustang was ill-equipped for use in an "urban area" by the DPS because the emergency lights were mounted on the car's front grill and not the top of the car, where they could be seen more easily by passing motorists.

"Ford Motor Co. knew or should have known that the vehicle as equipped would be used exactly in the manner as it was being used, and they failed to give adequate warnings or instructions to its user, and to its owner, the Texas Department of Public Safety," the suit alleges.

The other three companies also failed to warn the DPS about the dangers of placing the lights on the front grill, the suit contends.

Robert Garner of Amarillo, attorney for the Smiths, said he and the defendants' lawyers are currently engaged in settlement negotiations. He said he has granted the defendants an extension until mid-March to

Court favors pregnant workers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court, in a major victory for working women, ruled today that states may require employers to provide special job protections for pregnant employees.

The justices, by a 6-3 vote, upheld a California law requiring employers to grant leaves of absence to pregnant workers who request them — even if leaves are not granted for any other disability.

According to court documents, at least eight other states have similar laws.

The California law had been challenged by the California Federal Savings and Loan Association and other employers whose leave policies did not meet the law's requirements.

The court discounted arguments by employers that the law forces them to discriminate illegally against men and non-pregnant women.

The law says employers must provide up to four months of unpaid disability leave to pregnant employees who need it and must reinstate those workers in the same job if possible.

Six justices said the California law does not conflict with a 1978 federal law, the Pregnancy Disability Act, that bans discrimination based on pregnancy.

The decision produced four separate opinions, and no clear majority opinion.

Writing for himself and three other court members, Justice Thurgood Marshall said the state law does not require employers to do anything banned by the 1978 federal law.

Justices William J. Brennan, Harry A. Blackmun and Sandra Day O'Connor joined Marshall.

Justices John Paul Stevens and Antonin Scalia agreed, for differing reasons, that the federal law does not pre-empt the California law.

Chief Justice William H. Rehnquist and Justices Byron R. White and Lewis F. Powell dissented.

In an opinion for the three, White said "preferential treatment of pregnant workers is prohibited" by the federal law.

The dispute over California's law arose when Lillian Garland, a receptionist at the savings and loan office in Los Angeles, began a pregnancy leave in early 1982. When she said she was ready to return to work three months later, she was told her job had been filled and no comparable job was available.

Hostage taken during talks

By RODEINA KENAAN
Associated Press Writer

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Anglican Church envoy Terry Waite said today that he has many people to see and wants to avoid public statements as he resumes efforts to win the release of American and other foreign hostages held in Lebanon.

"I will not be making any more press statements at all, because it is necessary for me to be quiet and to be out of the way for a while," he told reporters as he strolled down west Beirut's Ein Mreisseh seafront boulevard after breakfast.

A vendor offered him a cup of Arabic coffee as he walked on the sunbathed corniche, and Waite accepted.

Even as Waite began his mission to free captive foreigners, a new hostage was taken.

Friends of French freelance journalist Roger Auque said he was seized by gunmen this morning as he left his apartment in Moslem west Beirut. Auque also holds a Canadian passport.

A French reporter who was with Auque fought off the attackers and escaped, police said.

There was no immediate claim of responsibility.

CBS-TV reported that shortly after Waite's arrival Monday in Beirut, the envoy was contacted by an intermediary who helped him arrange previous meetings with a group holding hostages.

Asked about the report, Waite said, "I haven't anything more to say. We're just going to go on with the work." He would say only that he had "a lot of people to see."

Waite said Monday he expected to stay in Lebanon about a week. Asked if he expects at least one American to be freed during that time, Waite said: "I always remain hopeful."

The envoy, a layman and personal representative of Archbishop of Canterbury Robert Runcie, said he disapproves of arms-for-hostages deals. He also said he was not aware of U.S. arms sales to Iran during his previous missions to free hostages in Lebanon.

Waite began his mission in mid-1985 and has been credited with helping win the release of three American hostages held by Islamic Jihad,

Legislators seeking to wipe away debt

By MICHAEL HOLMES
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Legislature convened today, another year older and deeper in debt.

Lawmakers, who have been struggling with spending cuts and tax increases for more than two years, are opening the 1987 session with a budget deficit estimated at $5.8 billion, or 15 percent of the current spending total.

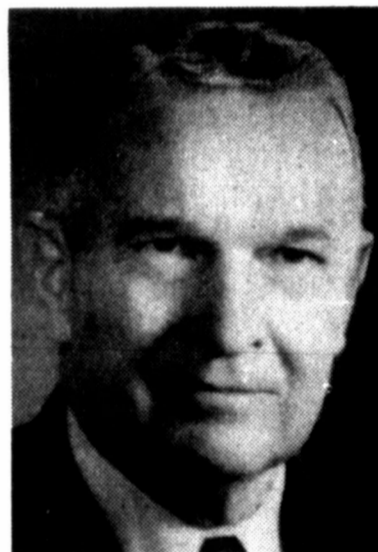

On Monday, Comptroller Bob Bullock raised the key question lawmakers must answer in the next 140 days. In a speech to a Texas Association of Business seminar, he asked:

"Can you honestly and can you sincerely say... that we can make 15 percent cuts without doing serious damage to the fundamental responsibilities of state government?"

The deficit total — $1 billion for the current budget year ending Aug. 31 and $4.8 billion for 1988-89 — is larger than the entire state government budget was in 1975, Bullock said.

"It is more than we will bring in in the sales tax this year. It is more than we will bring in in franchise tax and oil and gas taxes over the next two years," he added.

Bullock also noted that tax collections are expected decline 2.9

Clements

percent for 1988-89, the first revenue drop in 30 years.

That fact raised the second big issue facing the new Legislature, taxes.

In pointing it out, Bullock made another pitch for his plan to reduce the state's dependence on the beleaguered oil and gas industry by expanding the sales tax to include the fast-growing service industries.

"We have a tax structure that leans too heavily — oil and gas," he said. "The answer rests, in my opinion, with broadening our tax base to fairly reflect all sectors of the new Texas economy."

While Gov.-elect Bill Clements has pledged to offer a no-new-taxes budget later this month, most officials in the Capitol say there is no easy solution to the money issue or the numerous other problems looming.

"It is not expected to be a cakewalk," Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby in a speech Monday to the Northwest Texas Legislative Council.

Hobby noted, however, that the deficit may not be as bad if lawmakers keep the 1½ percent sales tax increase and nickel-a-gallon gas tax hike approved last summer.

"If the taxes enacted in last year's special session are continued through the next biennium, that would reduce the general revenue deficit by $2.5 billion. It is very likely that the gasoline tax, at least, will become permanent," Hobby said.

"It's going to be a hard session. If you take the money out of it, it's still going to be a hard session," added Gordon "Doc" Arnold, a former legislator who now is chief aide to House Speaker Gib Lewis.

Many lawmakers suggested that the problems may be so tough, Clements may have to call lawmakers back into special session this summer.

Sarpalius flat on his back during Legislature's session

By CATHY SPAULDING
Staff Writer

AMARILLO — When the 70th Legislature convened in Austin this morning, State Sen. Bill Sarpalius was in his room at Northwest Texas Hospital, preparing for additional back surgery.

The Canyon Democrat suffered a fractured vertebrae Dec. 26 when he was driving a four-wheeler along the banks of the Canadian River about two miles from Cal Farley's Boys' Ranch in northeastern Oldham County.

Sarpalius' administrative aide, Joel Brandenberger of Austin, said Monday that the senator will undergo surgery about 7 a.m. Wednesday. Brandenberger said doctors plan to remove a free-floating bone fragment near the senator's spinal cord.

Brandenberger added that while Sarpalius is not in any immediate danger because of the fragment, the bone could cause future problems if it lodged in the nerves. The Wednesday operation is preventative surgery, he said.

"It's pretty routine as major spinal surgery goes," Brandenberger said, adding that the extra operation could set Sarpalius' schedule back another two to three weeks and that it may be the third week in February before the senator can return to the Legislature.

Brandenberger said that because Sarpalius was injured on a Friday afternoon on a holiday weekend, news of his injury was delayed until his family and staff could be notified.

"It was late Friday afternoon before he got to the hospital," Brandenberger said. "A lot of key people could not be reached at that time, and the senator did not want his staff or family to read about it in the paper or on TV first."

"I did not know about it until that Sunday night," he added. "But that Monday morning I got the press release out. I was in Houston visiting family so there was no way to get ahead of me." Brandenberger added that because the accident occurred on a river bed, Sarpalius' accident was not reported to nor investigated by area law enforcement agencies such as the Department of Public Safety or the Oldham County Sheriff's Department.

"It was a single-person deal," he said. "As a rule, off-the-road motorcycle accidents aren't reported to law enforcement agen-

Sues

answer the suit, filed Dec. 17.

Garner has maintained since being hired by the Smiths that the grill-mounted lights contributed to the accident.

"Our claim is that these are defective and not suitable for in-town use," he said.

Trooper Carter reportedly was chasing speeders north on Hobart — a busy city street that's also part of Texas 70 — when his Mustang patrol car slammed into the Smith vehicle.

Tom Foote, official spokesman for Ford in Dearborn, Mich., said Monday that his company would have no comment until its attorneys have more time to review the suit.

But James Neiman, a spokesman for North American Signals in Chicago, said this is the first time in 25 years that his company has been sued over lights sold to law enforcement agencies. He said North American Signals has nothing to do with what an agency does with its lights.

"We sell this equipment to law enforcement agencies all over the world," he said Monday. "What they do with it, we don't know, nor do we have any control over."

Neiman said the lights are manufactured to be used anywhere on a vehicle. He said specifications for where they are to be placed are written by the state and federal governments.

He said North American Signals will let the firm's insurance company handle the suit.

Richard Tulk, an Austin attorney representing defendant Stroud, said he doubts his client ultimately will be held liable in the suit.

Stroud was the dealer who sold the flashing lights to the DPS.

"All (Stroud) did was take an order from the DPS and send it on to North American Signal," Tulk said. "He never even had the darn lights in his possession. They were shipped directly from North American Signal to the DPS."

Tulk predicted that the suit will eventually focus on Ford Motor Co. He said Garner told him he had evidence that Ford at one time suggested that law enforcement agencies mount flashing lights on the grill rather than the roof to cut down on wind resistance and save money on gasoline.

Ford spokesman Foote had no comment on whether Ford ever suggested mounting lights on the grill.

Robert Johnson, designated spokesman for Leif Johnson Ford in Austin, could not be reached for comment and did not return phone calls placed to his office Monday and Tuesday.

In a sworn deposition last January, Pampa DPS Sgt. Jim Powell testified that flashing lights were mounted on the grills of some vehicles in 1982 or 1983, following a field survey of troopers across the state.

Powell said troopers surveyed thought grill-mounted lights would make speeders easier to catch. The sergeant also said drunken drivers tended to stare at overhead flashing lights, often slamming into patrol cars parked along roads.

things more to talk about. Do we?"

Sarpalius was taken to Northwest Texas Hospital, where he was listed in satisfactory condition today.

Brandenberger said that the senator's visitors are restricted to his immediate family and close staff members and that he is taking no telephone calls.

Brandenberger conceded that Sarpalius' strong anti-liquor and pro-seat belt stances naturally prompted unfounded questions whether Sarpalius had been drinking before the accident.

"I'm sure that thought has occurred to someone," he said, adding that he has seen newspaper readers' letters that question circumstances of the accident.

"When you have been as vocal as Sarpalius has been, you can expect people to question his character," Brandenberger said. "He was expecting people might think that. But he definitely was not drinking."

Prisons may close doors to more prisoners

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — Texas prisons may be closing their doors soon to new prisoners to avoid being held in contempt by a federal court, officials say.

Prison board members approved Monday a motion to close prison doors once the inmate population hits 95 percent capacity — a court-ordered ceiling that would be reached with the arrival of only five more prisoners.

"Once we have a number of inmates come into the system, we don't have at that same time an equal number of inmates to release," said Texas Department of Corrections Board Chairman Al Hughes of Austin.

TDC risks being held in contempt if prisons exceed the capacity limit set by U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice, Hughes said. Prison board members also can be cited for contempt if Justice's order isn't carried out, Hughes said.

"He can order fines or order us to be locked up," the chairman told reporters after the prison board meeting in Huntsville.

Board member Robert Lane of Austin said if prison doors are closed to new inmates it would probably take a few days to reopen them. Prison officials would evaluate parole possibilities and "set out to open the doors again," he said.

TDC had 38,328 inmates Monday — five short of 95 percent capacity, which equals 38,333 prisoners, prison spokesman Charles Brown said.

Hughes said he considers the capacity rule effective immediately even though the board is waiting on a ruling from the state attorney general's office concerning the population issue.

The state legislature amended its prison management act to stipulate that before the act could be triggered, the 95 percent rate would have to remain in effect for five consecutive days or 20 days out of a 30-day period.

The prison system already is in contempt of court for failing to meet reforms ordered by Justice. He issued the contempt order last week saying the state had failed to live up to agreements made in 1980 to improve inmates' living conditions and staffing within the Texas prison system, the nation's second largest.

The judge gave the state until March 31 to meet the standards or risk fines of up to $800,500 a day.

Board members voted Monday to appeal Justice's contempt order to the U.S. 5th Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans.

Assistant Attorney General F. Scott McGowen said the order is being appealed because "the department sees the facts differently than the judge."

The prison system has done much to institute reforms and will continue to do so for the next 80 days, he said.

"The department is going to make a lot of progress," Hughes said, adding that "the world will look a lot different."

"But everything won't be fixed by April 1," McGowen said the state may then file a motion with Justice asking for more time to complete the reforms.

Hughes said he believes state officials can meet most of the requirements except for the hiring of about 800 medical personnel.

Medical personnel, he said, are hard to attract to remote areas and at prison salaries.

Also, the board approved the appointment of a search committee to pick a new prison director to succeed Lane McCotter, who has submitted his resignation effective Jan. 20.

Jim Lynaugh was named as interim prison director. He previously held the post of deputy director of finance. He told reporters he will not apply for the permanent position.

Task force says state can't ignore economy along border

AUSTIN (AP) — Spending $4.5 million among the 16 ways a task force has recommended to halt the decline of the Texas-Mexico border region, an area that costs the state twice as much as it generates in tax revenues.

The Border Economic Development Task Force made the recommendations Monday in a report to the governor and legislative leaders. The report follows a year of study that included public hearings in several border cities.

The task force said the 16-county border area stretching from El Paso to Brownsville has the highest and most persistent unemployment rates in Texas and contends with diseases most often associated with Third World countries.

The area also has some of the worst high school dropout and illiteracy rates, the report said.

By improving the region, the state can take advantage of an increasing economic interest in the Texas-Mexico border which can produce jobs for workers on both sides of the Rio Grande, the report said.

"Mexico gives the border not only its unique, binational culture, but also its unique economic development potential," the report said.

"A new foundation must be laid to foster long-term growth and diversification that will take advantage of the border's growing labor force, its agricultural base, and its international ports of entry."

To begin the improvements, the task force recommended that the Legislature form a Border Development Commission to encourage businesses to locate in the Rio Grande Valley.

The task force also recommended:

- Creation of a state revolving loan fund for small businesses in distressed areas.

- Expanding programs offered at higher education institutions in the region to offer a mix of disciplines and higher degrees.

- Appointments to the Texas College and University System Coordinating Board that would include adequate representation from the border region.

- Lower tuition rates charged students from Mexico to attend Texas public colleges than those charged other out-of-state students.

The state's cost of implementing the 16 proposals is not expected to exceed $4.5 million over a six-year period, said task force chairman Ruben M. Garcia.

Garcia said that cost will "amount to no more than a six-day investment in food stamps and unemployment benefits" already going into the area.

Paramedic arrested in sexual assault of his young daughter

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A firefighter is charged with sexual assault on his 8-year-old daughter, and police are searching for the girl's 18-year-old step-sister, who has been missing since the day of the younger girl's attack.

Ray Moberg, 39, a paramedic for 10 of his 14 years as a firefighter, was in the Bexar County Jail Monday in lieu of $500,000 bond on Monday.

Police looked within a 50-mile radius of San Antonio for Debbie Moberg, who may have been shot and her body dumped in a water pond, police said.

"They are going on what the little girl told police. It's not totally reliable, but that's all that they have," patrolman Ricardo Valdez said Monday.

Moberg was arrested at a San Antonio motel on Sunday after police spotted Miss Moberg's car in the parking lot.

Moberg and the girls' mother, Jane Moberg, have been divorced for five years.

Moberg's daughter told police that her step-sister picked her up at a daycare center on Friday and drove her to their mother's house. Their mother was out with her boyfriend, but their father was in the house and had a pistol, the child told police.

"We don't know what the conversation was that transpired, but the 18-year-old turned to run away and the little girl said she heard shots," homicide detective Lt. Albert Ortiz said.

"She saw her sister fall to the ground and (Moberg) told the 8-year-old that it was just a dart gun and that she was asleep," Ortiz said officers were told by the child.

The girl said her father took her into another room and she never saw her step-sister again. Minutes later, he returned to get her, took her to Debbie's car, told her to go to sleep, and drove out of San Antonio, the child said.

"She remembers waking up near a large pond of water with tall plants and shrubs and her father coming from a wooded area, homicide detective Lt. Albert Ortiz said.

The child said they then drove for about an hour before getting back into San Antonio, where her father checked into a motel room and sexually assaulted her.

The following afternoon, her father dropped her off near her grandmother's house, the girl said.

The child told her mother she had been sexually assaulted and at a hospital gave the account of her step-sister's shooting, police said.

Blood and spent .22-caliber bullets were found at the home, police said.

"It is possible she may still be alive," Valdez said. "They are looking at a 50-mile radius because it apparently took one hour to go out and one hour to get back."

"He's real uncooperative," Valdez said. "But they feel he's got the capability of telling them where the other girl is."

The lessons in how to wing it

Extemporaneous adj. Not rehearsed or prepared in advance. Impromptu.

Cute word, huh.

I first ran across the word in high school when I was yanked from my junior year complacency to compete in women's extemporaneous speaking at high school speech contests. There I was, ready to wow the judges and take state with my dramatic reading (butchering is the more appropriate word) of Anastasia when my speech teacher decided I would be the perfect contestant for the Oklahoma Association of Secondary Schools' equivalent of a chamber of horrors.

In women's "extemp," the contestant is given her choice of one of five topics of current interest — which at the time fell under the headings of "Watergate" and "Arab Oil Embargo." She has less than a half hour to prepare a five minute speech on the subject she chooses.

Sounded easy enough, at first.

Then I saw who I was up against. As I sorted through the meager stack of month-old Newsweeks that our school used as a reference library, I watched in fear as dressed-for-success contestants from Tipton High School rolled in three file cabinets full of cross-referenced articles from The Wall Street Journal, The National Review, U.S. News and World Report and numerous specialized publications.

But I persevered. At my first trial, I passed up the topic "Does the 55 mph speed limit constitute blackmail?" because I knew I wouldn't be able to find anything on the topic. Instead I settled for "Is Henry Kissinger the Antichrist?" I scoured our collection for anything that even remotely resembled the topic and resisted the temptation to read the movie reviews and personality pieces.

After 15 minutes of frustration, I gave into my instincts and decided to wing it: "Kissinger is not the Antichrist because he is a nice man."

I fidgeted, fretted and stuttered through five minutes of incoherence, only to be told the disheartening news: the judge liked it. I made finals, and I had to go through the whole ordeal again. And again at regional competition.

It was in the ladies' room of the Southwestern State University student union that I learned the contest directors' dirty little secret. There on the floor of my potty stall was a wadded-up U.S. News article entitled "Does the 55 mph speed limit constitute blackmail?" The creeps picked their topics from the titles of magazine articles.

The trauma of picking out some obscure topic and researching and writing a speech on it is behind me, but the lesson I have learned from the experience remain. The lesson was not how I can organize my thoughts and write a speech within a 30-minute deadline, but that I can do it.

What better training could a future newspaper reporter have?

But the lesson does not apply to the deadline-oriented media world alone. It also applies to procrastinating Sunday school teachers.

In the absence of our pastor at First Pres, I am responsible for finding a person to do the children's sermon each week. Due to my penchant for putting things off to the last minute, sure enough, I end up doing the sermonizing myself.

Last Sunday, I wasn't sure of the sermon topic or the Scripture until I read the bulletin at the morning worship service. Consequently, I spent the opening hymn, the call to worship, the prayer of confession and the Gloria Patri to think of something for me and my puppet, Blue Gas Flame, to present.

I had to wing it. But thanks to the trials of women's extemp, I knew I could do it.

Delay of Cave trial being considered

AMARILLO (AP) — A federal judge said she will consider postponing a Jan. 20 trial for Fort Worth District Judge Tom Cave, accused of exchanging lenient sentences for sex.

Cave, Fort Worth attorney Ronald Aultman and bail bondsman Joe Dorsey Adams, filed the continuance motion Monday in a hearing before U.S. District Judge Mary Lou Robinson.

About 10,000 pages of documents already have been turned over to Cave and his codefendants, but attorneys for all three said they need more time to interview and collect information about government witnesses.

Cave, Aultman and Adams were indicted after an 18-month investigation by FBI and Fort Worth investigators.

All three pleaded innocent to the charges by a federal grand jury at Fort Worth on Nov. 14. Among the charges against them is conspiracy to violate civil rights.

Airline security misses two objects

GRAPEVINE (AP) — Two

devices used to test security at airports passed undetected through an American Airlines checkpoint at Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport two days after a hostage incident there, officials say.

The Federal Aviation Administration did not cite the airline for the oversight, however, and was "pleased overall" with the airline's security program, American spokesman Al Becker said Monday.

FAA officials would not comment on details of the test at American or whether it was prompted by incident in which a 10-year-old boy was held for nearly eight hours by a gunman demanding to go to Egypt.

The ordeal, which ended peacefully when the man surrendered to authorities, began at about 4 p.m. Jan. 5 near a Delta Air Lines ticket counter and not inside Delta's security checkpoint, officials said.

Officials confirmed Monday that screeners for American missed two items during the test last Wednesday.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Attraction to home pulls Soviets away

From a strictly human perspective, it is difficult not to feel some satisfaction that 50 people who had left the Soviet Union for the United States, then decided that this country was not to their liking, were able to return to the Soviet Union. People really should be free to live where they prefer to live.

The Soviet government no doubt hopes to reap some propaganda benefits by reversing its previous policy of not permitting disillusioned emigres to return, but the new policy is to be commended whatever the reasons.

The fact that some people would prefer to live in the Soviet Union, even under a repressive regime, points up two important facts.

First, most peoples' homeland, whatever it is, exerts a certain pull, even for those who complain about it. Mother Russia seems to call her sons and daughters with particular urgency. Even the strongest anti-communist Russian in the West seems to feel nostalgia for Russia and a certain "fish out of water" uneasiness away from her.

Second, freedom is not easy for many people to cope with. While freedom is necessary for the fullest development of human potential, living in freedom means taking full personal responsibility for making choices about one's life — and living with the results, for good or ill, of those choices. Many people — including many born in the United States — shrink from such responsibility, preferring to evade it or to trade some freedom for a promise of security.

Some of those who returned to the Soviet Union cited stress, social ostracism and the lack of guaranteed jobs in the U.S. as factors in their decisions. Such conditions are inevitable in any reasonably free society.

Whatever the reasons for their decision to return to the Soviet Union, we wish these people, as individuals, all the best in living with the results of their choices.

Imagination makes best toy

CHARLESTON, S.C. — As a working rule of thumb, grandfathers ought not to write about their grandchildren. They ought to write about Congress, the Supreme Court and the invidious Iranians instead. But today I am minded to write about granddaughter Alina, not because she is something special, though of course she is something special, but because there's a moral that goes with the story.

I arrived in the Holy City, as Charlestonians are wont to term it, just before Christmas, and I was therefore on hand when the three Charleston grandchildren opened presents on Christmas morning. It was a scene that must have been repeated in millions of living rooms across the land. Ten minutes after the carnage began, it looked as if a battle had been fought with ribbons and bows.

All the aunts and uncles appeared to have sent plastic ponies for Charlotte, 4, and Jamie, 2. Ponies are very big this year. There was a tricycle for Charlotte, a plastic train for Jamie, a book or two for everyone. More to the point of this tale, there was a teddy bear for Charlotte and a set of blocks for Alina. The thing about the teddy bear is that it came with chips or transistors, or whatever, concealed in its innards, and when you said, "This is Thursday" to the bear, the bear said, "This is Thursday" back to you. If you said, "It's a pretty day." This bear just repeated everything said to him.

The blocks were — well, blocks. They were sturdy pieces of smoothly sanded pine, and they supplemented a set of maple blocks that our sons had played with as children. These blocks didn't do anything electronically. They sat quietly in their box, waiting for a child to build a castle.

A few days after Christmas I discovered that Alina had done exactly that. Most of the time she is 10 years old; sometimes she is 10 going on 22, but this past week she stayed 10 years old all the time. On the floor of her bedroom her castle soared five stories high. She explained the living arrangements:

"The king and queen, of course, live on the first floor, and there is their throne room and here is their bedroom. You see that their bed has a big canopy over it. A colonel and his wife have the second floor. She's a nurse, and they have a daughter, and their bedroom has just a little canopy. Now, two families live on the third floor. One of them is the Eskimo family. He's in the military and she's a teacher. They have one son. Across this hall is the ambulance driver and his daughter. Up on the fourth floor — it's a little crowded up there — lives a sailor and his two sons. His wife died some years ago, and he's stayed a widower. The royal hospital is on this floor, along with sleeping quarters for the royal retainers, and up above them is an attic sort of space because you have to have lots of closets in a castle."

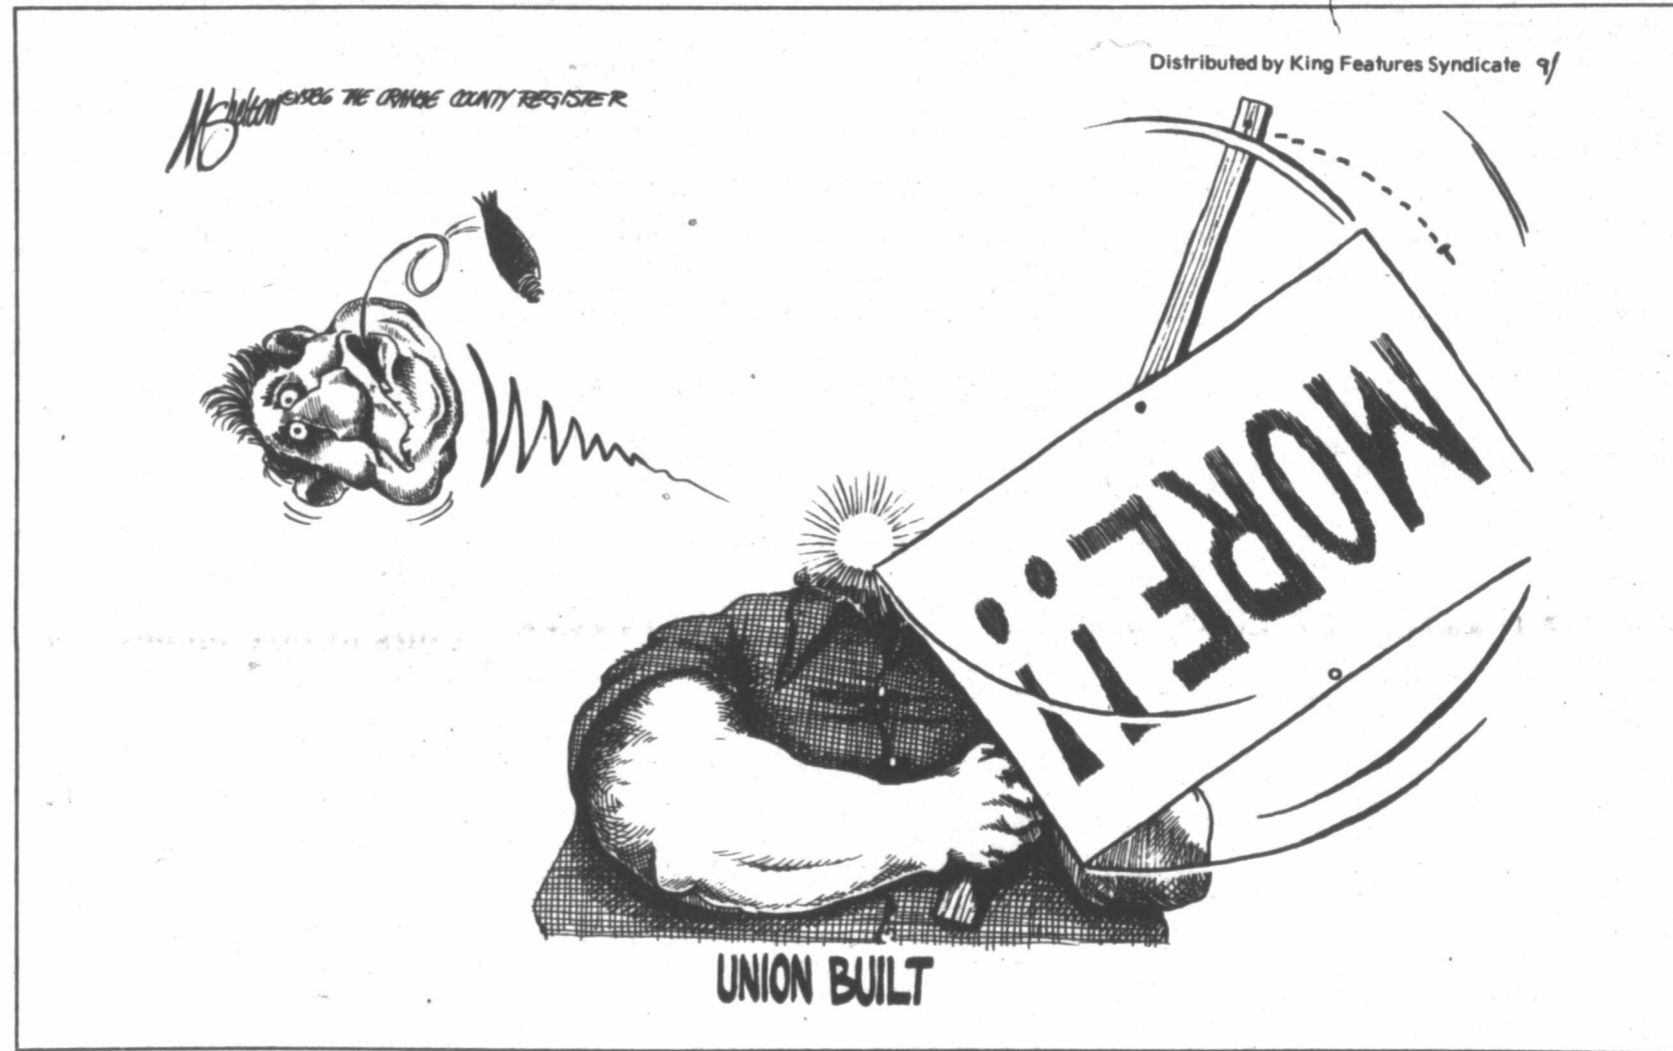

This remarkable structure, it appeared, was peopled in part by paper dolls. Mainly it was peopled with imagination. The castle was inhabited by kings, queens, colonels, sailors, teachers, nurses, Eskimos, ambulance drivers and boys and girls, and they all had names and they all had adventures, and if this seemed an odd sort of royal palace to a grandfather, it seemed a picture of transparent reason to Alina. The king, she explained, felt he should live close to his subjects. Oh, I said.

Isn't this the way toys should be? In recent years, if I am not mistaken, manufacturers have produced a stream of toys that do everything by themselves. It is a manifestation of a kind of passivity, sired by the one-eyed orge of television. The toy train goes round and round on a plastic track, and the track can be put together in one way only. Punch a button and lights come on. "You are a nice bear," says the child. "You are a nice bear," says the bear.

On the Sunday afternoon after Christmas, when all the presents had been squirreled away, I inquired about this repetitive beast. The two little ones, Charlotte and Jamie, still were playing with the new bear, but they had abandoned the electronic microphone that had been contrived with such ingenuity. The bear still could talk, but they were bored with talk that went nowhere. They were listening to the bear's heart with a plastic stethoscope, and they were putting covers on the bear because the bear had a very bad cold, and if the bear spoke at all it was through the voice of a child.

As for Alina, she was talking to the Eskimo on the third floor of the royal palace. The Eskimo was doing fine.

Putting priorities in order

ORLANDO, Fla. — I was down spending a few warm holidays with a friend. His name is Gerald Rutberg, and I've known him since we were promising young men together.

Rutberg would have made a great newspaperman. He had all the moves of a crack investigative reporter. He could be getting to the bottom of the Iran arms deal today but he chose to study the law instead.

"What I do," he has explained to me, "is try to keep people out of the joint."

For the record, he has a winning percentage.

It was maybe two years ago when I got a call from another of Rutberg's friends telling me that Gerald had gone to the Mayo Clinic to find out why he was in so much pain all the time.

"He's been living on aspirins," the friend told me.

The news was terrible. Rutberg, so the initial diagnosis went, had cancer.

He would have to undergo a dangerous operation to remove the tumor.

Even if he lived, the doctors said, he likely would be paralyzed from the waist down.

Rutberg couldn't make it that way, his friends agreed. This is a man of enormous energy who has been known to decide to go to a Super Bowl 3,000 miles away on the day of the game and pull off the whole thing, complete with tickets on the 50-yard line.

We prayed. We all cried a little, together, and then, privately, Rutberg is a lot of people's best friend.

We got the miracle we prayed for. When the tumor was removed it turned out not to be malignant after all.

Rutberg emerged from the operation still able to walk. In a matter of months he was as active as ever.

"The first time I went to softball practice after the operation, and ran over and caught a line drive down the left-field line, I appreciated life more than I ever had before," he said.

There was just this one other thing. Doctors told Rutberg he might never be able to father children. The operation he had had been known to render patients impotent or sterile or both.

Miracle number two.

I saw her for the first time a few days before Christmas. Her name is Leah, and she has just turned 15 weeks.

She has beautiful eyes.

"She hardly ever cries," Rutberg said.

He held his child in his arms, and she turned those eyes on her daddy.

Rutberg calls his daughter, "Miss Pazoozer."

"Imagine what she's going to say to me when she's 16 and I'm still calling her that," he said with a laugh.

Leah's mother is Beth, who is also a lawyer. We had lunch together, and she brought Leah along.

Other diners stopped by our table to remark on how well-behaved the little baby had been.

The new parents, fully aware of their blessings beamed with pride.

True business climate includes intangibles

By Robert Walters

CHICAGO (NEA) — Do the relatively undeveloped states of North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska and Utah enjoy "the best overall manufacturing climate in the nation?"

Are heavily industrialized New York, Pennsylvania, Michigan and Ohio among the least appealing locations for manufacturing?

If the highly publicized annual study conducted by the Chicago-based management consulting and accounting firm of Grant Thornton is correct, the answer to both questions is yes.

For seven years, Grant Thornton's "Annual Study of General Manufacturing Climates of the 48 Contiguous States of America" has commanded respect from business and political leaders throughout the country.

People are intrigued by any type of ratings — and Grant Thornton's rankings receive special attention because they purport to provide a quasi-scientific basis for determining the best sites for manufacturing plants.

Now, however, the reports are being criticized by academic researchers and independent consultants who offer convincing evidence to support their contentions that the rankings are fundamentally flawed.

After studying the Grant Thornton ratings, two University of Michigan economists concluded that they are "not a reliable predictor of... manufacturing performance, general business performance or general economic welfare."

Two University of Wisconsin researchers found some relationship between the Grant Thornton ranking and actual job growth in traditional forms of manufacturing but "no correlation at all" with growth in high-technology industries that are increasingly important.

By far the most devastating critique has come from the Corporation for Enterprise Development, a Washington, D.C., organization that provides advice to state governments on business location and relocation.

Grant Thornton is obsessed with direct and indirect labor costs, CED notes, to the extent that they account for more than 63 percent of the components of the state rankings — and skews the rankings in favor of states with regressive policies.

Thus, states that provide the most generous unemployment and disability compensation payments are penalized, while states that offer more limited payments are rewarded for their stinginess.

Similarly, states in which industrial workers earn the highest wages and are the most extensively unionized score the lowest.

"The Grant Thornton index knows the price of everything but the value of nothing," says CED's recent report. "It emphasizes the costs of labor but not its productivity.... It even dismisses the goal of increasing workers' standard of living."

The 101-page CED report also notes that "in general, the more developed a state, the lower it is ranked on the index." Thus, North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska and Utah have attained the highest average score in the past two years while New York, Pennsylvania, Michigan and Ohio ranked among the 10 least desirable states.

Finally, all that counts in Grant Thornton's index are things that can be counted. The Chicago firm acknowledges the importance of intangibles but makes no attempt to integrate them into the rankings.

VA stops heart operations at four hospitals

WASHINGTON (AP) — Heart operations no longer will be performed at four Veterans Administration hospitals following a study of death rates and other factors affecting the quality of care.

The VA announced Monday it was permanently closing cardiac surgery units at four of the 45 VA hospitals that perform heart surgery: in Brooklyn, N.Y.; East Orange, N.J.; Long Beach, Calif.; and Washington, D.C.

The closings were recommended by the VA's department of medicine and surgery following a study by an outside advisory panel, VA spokeswoman Donna St. John said. VA Administrator Thomas Turnage signed an order approving the closings on Friday, she said.

"The decision to consolidate the programs is based on a review of the entire program, taking into account the recommendations by a special advisory committee formed in 1985," St. John said.

That committee, made up of heart surgery experts not associated with the VA, recommended the VA close heart surgery units conducting fewer than 150 operations a year, and where mortality rates were greater than 5 percent.

Heart surgery at two of the units, East Orange and Washington, was halted last year because of concerns about death rates and quality of care. St. John said they will not reopen. Heart surgery at the other two will be phased out this year.

According to the VA, the four units had the following records in fiscal 1986:

- At Brooklyn, 100 heart operations were performed and there was a 7 percent mortality rate.
- At East Orange, 15 heart operations were performed before it was closed in May, and there was a 20 percent mortality rate.

■ At Long Beach, 78 heart operations were performed and there was a 6.4 percent mortality rate.

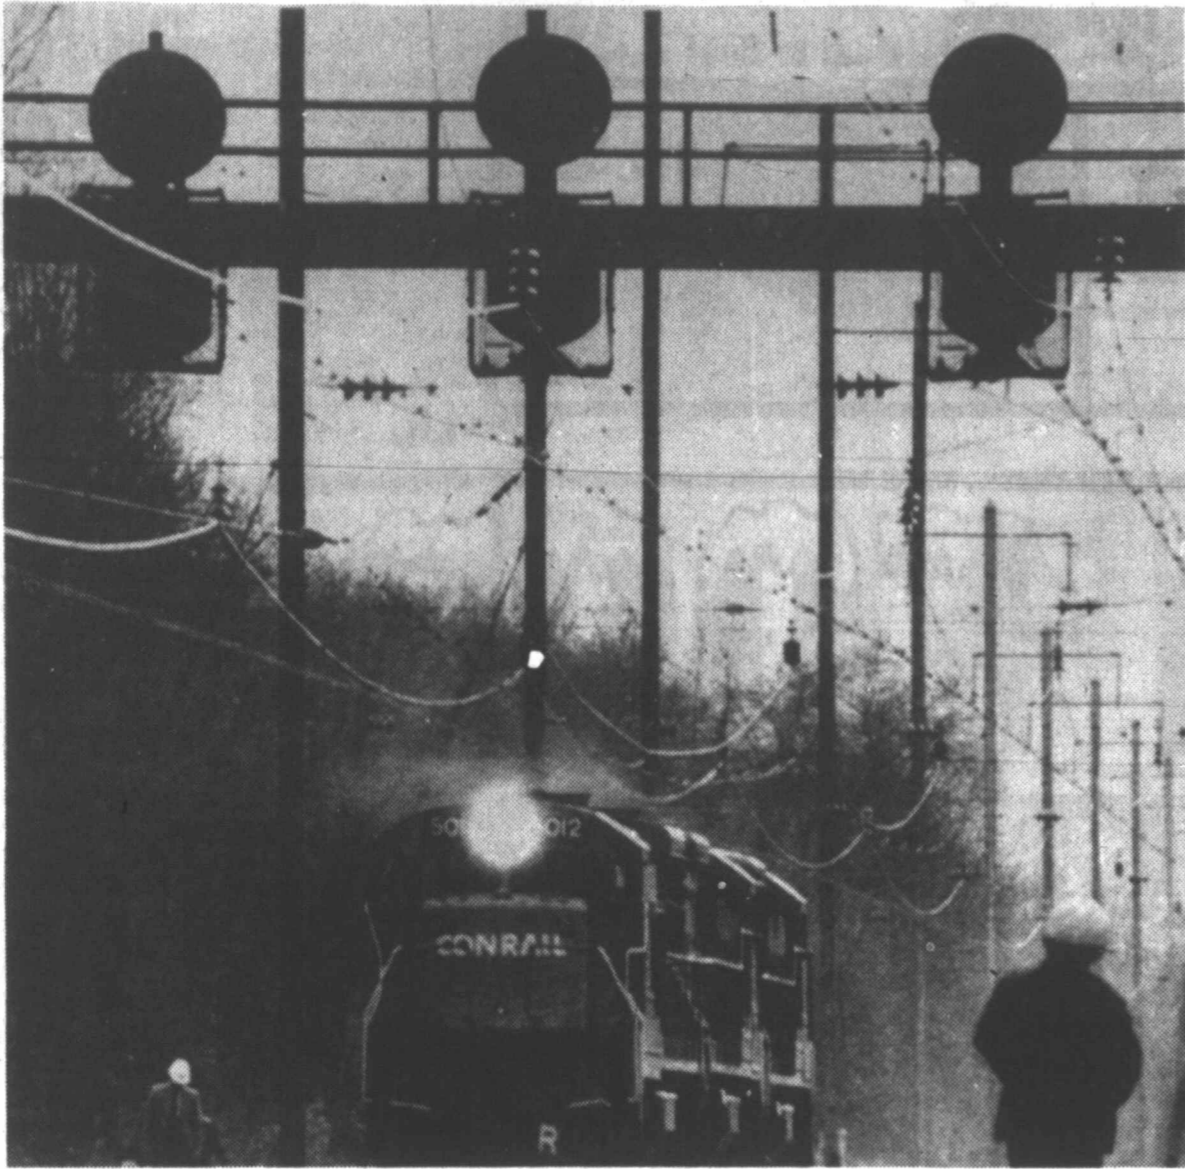

■ At Washington, where heart surgery was suspended in September, there were 96 heart operations and the mortality rate was 10.4 percent.

Patients will be transferred or referred to other VA hospitals where the surgery is performed. In the case of an emergency, the VA will pay for surgery at another private or public hospital, she said.

St. John said the VA based its decision on mortality rates, the number of cases handled per year, cost efficiency and projections of the number of veterans to be served in the future.

The VA operates the largest hospital system in the country, with 172 hospitals and hundreds of clinics and nursing homes for veterans of military service. Its hospitals admitted 1.3 million patients last year, and an additional 18 million were treated as outpatients.

Braking tests cast more doubt on Conrail engineer's account

CHASE, Md. (AP) — Human error remains the focus of an investigation into the collision of an Amtrak train and three Conrail locomotives, said authorities recreating the conditions leading to the crash that killed 15 people and injured 176.

In Monday's re-enactment, three Conrail locomotives were able to stop about half a mile before they would have been hit by the high-speed Amtrak train. On Jan. 4, three locomotives slid past a stop signal and into the path of a Washington-to-Boston Amtrak train filled with holiday travelers.

Joseph Nall, a National Transportation Safety Board member who was aboard the freight locomotives during the simulation, refused to draw any conclusions from the tests, but said investigators continued to focus on the "human performance aspect" of the accident.

Meanwhile, Baltimore County State's Attorney Sandra O'Connor said Monday that she would study the possibility of filing criminal charges in the accident.

Mrs. O'Connor said she would look for evidence of gross negligence, specifically trying to determine if crewmen were impaired by alcohol or violated or ignored signals.

Federal authorities said they hoped to have the results of drug and alcohol tests today. The Conrail crew was tested after the crash, but Amtrak did not test its surviving crew members. Tissue samples were taken from the body of the dead Amtrak engineer.

"It's not even a question of whether there was gross negligence," said Stephen Tully, lawyer for Conrail engineer Richard Gates. "There is no evidence that I see of even near negligence."

On Monday, the NTSB used three locomotives like those involved in the accident to test how far away Gates should have been able to see the stop signal before the crossover where crash occurred.

The tests began about 1:30 p.m., the same time as the accident. The sun had emerged about 10 minutes earlier, allowing investigators to determine whether sunlight shining into the signals may have impaired the engineer's vision.

The brakes on the Conrail train were jammed on at the point where investigators could first see the stop signal, and at what is known as a code change point, Nall said.

Gates has said he jammed on his emergency brakes when he first saw a final stop signal but was unable to prevent the locomotives from sliding 500 feet past the lights into the path of the train.

"It was a particularly sunny that day, and it's hard to see the signals," Tully said. "And the people on the (test) engine were absolutely looking for the marker."

Democrats favor Reagan's massive job-retraining plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — With drastic changes expected in the U.S. labor market by the year 2000, the Reagan administration's call for a massive new $1 billion program to retrain laid-off workers is drawing cheers from a Democratic-controlled Congress.

Three House members said Monday they plan legislation enacting Reagan's proposed Worker Adjustment Assistance Program to provide training, counseling, job information and relocation aid to 700,000 of the 2 million workers who annually lose their jobs to imports, plant closings and new technology.

The administration is still drafting its own bill to carry out Reagan's proposal, Labor Department officials said Monday.

But the program's broad outline and the justifications for it were being presented today by Labor Secretary William E. Brock III in his first appearance before a new Senate Labor and Education Committee chaired by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass.

The Labor Department projects the U.S. economy will generate 11 million new jobs by the mid-1990s atop the 2.4 million created in 1986. But nine out of 10 of them will be in traditionally non-unionized and generally lower-paying service and information industries with continued net job losses expected in manufacturing, mining and farming.

With the post-World War II Baby Boom completed, the labor market is expected to decline from an annual growth rate of 3 percent in the 1970s to an all-time low of just 1 percent by 1995.

According to Labor Department estimates, 80 percent of the new entrants will be women, blacks and immigrants — people who, as groups, now hold the fewest job skills.

For employers, according to Assistant Labor Secretary Roger Semerad, that likely will mean a smaller pool of qualified workers, particularly at the entry level, and some skill shortages.

For workers, the tighter labor market is likely to bring higher wages, but only to those with higher levels of skills necessitated by increased international competition and rapid technological change.

Because of those trends, and a desire to dampen enthusiasm for protectionist trade legislation, Brock overcame objections from Reagan's budget drafters to call for a three-fold increase in the government's job retraining efforts.

The new program would replace two current ones: Title III of the 1982 Job Training Partnership Act, which effectively subsidizes an employee's wage during retraining and Trade Adjustment Assistance.

Continental absorbs People Express, New York Air

NEW YORK (AP) — Continental Airlines is promoting a limited two-for-one-ticket sale to publicize its absorption of regional carrier New York Air and former low-frills leader People Express.

Officials of Texas Air Corp., parent company of all three airlines, announced the promotion Monday.

The names People Express and New York Air will disappear on Feb. 1, employees of those airlines will wear Continental uniforms, and their aircraft and airport facilities will be repainted in Continental's red-gold colors.

The sale, which applies only to flights originating in New York and eight other cities, will enable travelers to fly coast-to-coast for as low as $55 during February and to London for $99 during February and March.

There was no immediate move to match the promotion by other major airlines.

Army offering longer tours to save money

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army said it hopes to save as much as $185 million by lengthening its average tour of duty for soldiers at U.S. bases and continuing to offer early discharges for soldiers non-re-enlisting.

The decision to continue offering "early outs" to soldiers who have decided not to re-enlist is expected to save an estimated $100 million, primarily in salary costs, Maj. Bruce Bell, an Army spokesman, said Monday.

Use a curio cabinet

Display those collectibles

By BARBARA MAYER
AP Newsfeatures

We have become a nation of collectors. There are, for example, a documented 6.4 million plate collectors in the United States, as well as a plethora of other groups of collectors. For every individual who belongs to a group, there are at least five without an official affiliation.

Where do all those collectors put the objects they are assembling? One place is in curio cabinets, which, according to several authorities, are enjoying unusually brisk sales these days.

"Last year, when our dealers asked us for cabinets that would display their customers' collections, we decided to enter the curio market. The initial response was so great that we've already expanded our program," said Richard J. Udouj, president of Riverside Furniture Corp.

Curios are certainly not a new item of furniture, but, according to Dave Zagaroli, an independent furniture designer from Hickory, N.C., they have been improved upon lately.

"Today, a curio is an extremely flexible display case," says Zagaroli. There are more styles and configurations to choose from. Features include interior lighting which can be controlled by a rheostat; leveling guides; mirrored backs; plate rails and security locks. The new angled cabinets provide as many as five or six sides of glass for in-the-round viewing.

Originally, curios were small cabinets for the storage and display of small "curiosities."

They were typically only about a foot or so wide, a foot deep and 64 inches high. Today, they come in a great assortment of sizes from slender cabinets to china size, and bunched cabinets can be stacked to form walls of display space.

The price range for curios also has expanded. The most popular price points are from $199 to $299, according to Zagaroli, who has created curios for a number of producers. He added that prices can easily go up to $1,000.

Besides the size and workmanship, other factors controlling price include the materials employed and features offered.

If the cabinet has a wood center shelf required for structural strength in larger sizes, there has to be a source of light in the bottom of the cabinet. Often it is a fluorescent light. But the more expensive models may have incandescent light in the bottom, which is preferable, in his opinion, because it is softer and more flattering to objects.

The more expensive cabinets can usually be levelled from the inside bottom with a screwdriver. They offer a potential adjustment of from 2 to 2½ inches. If several cabinets will be bunched, it can be a tricky installation, according to Zagaroli, since the units will have to be aligned with one another as well as leveled on the floor.

The more expensive units generally use thicker glass shelves. The thicker shelves are more luxurious and sparkling, in his opinion. Better quality glass may also have greater clarity.

Although the curio selected should relate comfortably to the other furniture in the room, the cabinetry itself is not the primary style issue, say Udouj and Zagaroli.

The most successful curios are almost unobtrusive in style, since their purpose is to show off the pieces that are displayed. Because they are usually mostly glass and often have either a glass or mirrored back, they are not bulky in appearance.

Ideal locations for the cabinets include entries, hallways and unused wall areas or jogs in a wall — spaces that may be going to waste at present. The cabinets also work well bunched to make a display wall in a living room, dining room or den.

Besides taking into account the style of the room and other furnishings, consider, too, what will be displayed inside the cabinet, said Udouj. He said a massive cabinet would dwarf a display of small, delicate things such as sea shells, even if the collection were large.

Keeping drunks from driving is everyone's responsibility

DEAR ABBY: No! No! No! Although I've been a strong supporter of yours for many years, I've never written to you before. Now I feel compelled to because I'm so angry and ashamed of you! I'm referring to your reply to "People Against Drunks." Shame on you for joining the guilty-until-proven-innocent mob and jumping on the anti-drunk drivers' bandwagon.

I think the allegedly drunken man did extremely well to keep his composure for 10 minutes before resorting to physical tactics to retrieve his car keys from that neighbor who judged him as too drunk to drive.

Answer me this: If this man was (as his neighbor described him) so drunk he could hardly walk, how could he have overpowered the guy to get his keys back? I've never committed a violent act in my life, but if some self-righteous busybody confiscated my car keys because he decided that I was too drunk to drive, I'd be tempted to dynamite his house! Maybe in communist Russia this could happen, but here in America, a person is presumed to be innocent until proven guilty.

DON IN EUGENE, ORE.

DEAR DON: Are you serious? Drunks who can hardly walk have been known to commit mayhem with their bare hands. And what do you mean, a person is presumed to be innocent until proven guilty? Getting drunk is not a crime, but driving drunk is! Must we presume a person to be "innocent" until he has killed someone because he was guilty of driving drunk?

I stand by my advice: It's your business, my business, and the business of every person to do whatever is necessary to prevent a drunk from driving. Please, read on:

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: How I wish someone would have taken my car keys away from me last Feb. 18, when I was drunk but got into my car, crossed over into the other lane and hit another car head-on, killing a young woman instantly. She left a husband and two small boys.

I'm now in prison in Lincoln, Neb., serving 20 months to five years — a cheap price to pay for taking someone's life.

Abby, please tell people who let drunks drive, that they are as much to blame as the driver if he kills someone. And they should ask themselves how they would feel if their child or wife or husband was killed by a drunk driver.

Although I will be a free man one day, I will never be free of the guilt I will carry for the rest of my life.

NO. 37405

DEAR ABBY: I am writing in response to "People Against Drunks." In 1982, a 17-year-old girl was killed by a drunk driver on the night of her high school baccalaureate ceremony. This girl believed in and worshiped God with all her heart. She was a good friend and a caring stranger, but her life was cut tragically short because someone let a man drink and drive.

I live in a small town called Marion, Va., and we decided to take some action against drunk drivers, so our police department developed a system last year that has cut the number of drunk driving fatalities in half! It's called R.A.I.D., which stands for "Report All Intoxicated Drivers."

There's a phone number that anyone in or around Marion can call to report a possible drunk driver. The callers need not give their names unless they want to; they just have to describe the vehicle, the license number and the approximate location. The police will then check out the report. I think this system is what every town needs.

CONCERNED TEEN-AGER
IN MARION, VA.

DEAR CONCERNED: Three cheers for Marion! I hope other cities will adopt the idea. And fear not that it will encourage friends to snitch on friends. Friends don't let friends drive drunk.

(For Abby's booklet, "What Every Teen-Ager Ought to Know," send a check or money order for $2.50 and a long, stamped (39 cents), self-addressed envelope to: Dear Abby, Teen Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054.)

Landry picks Giants

DALLAS (AP) — Tom Landry, whose Dallas Cowboys were responsible for one of two New York losses this season, likes the Giants in Super Bowl XXI over the Denver Broncos — but just barely.

"It's hard not to like the Giants the way they are playing," Landry said Monday.

Landry's Cowboys nipped the Giants 31-28 in the season opener but fell 17-14 later in the season when Dallas also lost quarterback Danny White to a broken wrist.

Dallas lost 29-14 to Denver in a meeting at Mile High Stadium as Landry fell to his former assistant, Dan Reeves.

"Of course my sentiment is with Danny," Landry said. "He's one of my former players and coaches and I'll be pulling for him."

Landry said he likes his "old team" (the Giants) to win because of a superior defense.

"Usually the best defensive team wins in the Super Bowl," said Landry, who played and coached for the Giants in the 1950s. "I think the Giants have the best defense but we learned Denver is pretty good, too."

Landry said it should be a field goal game.

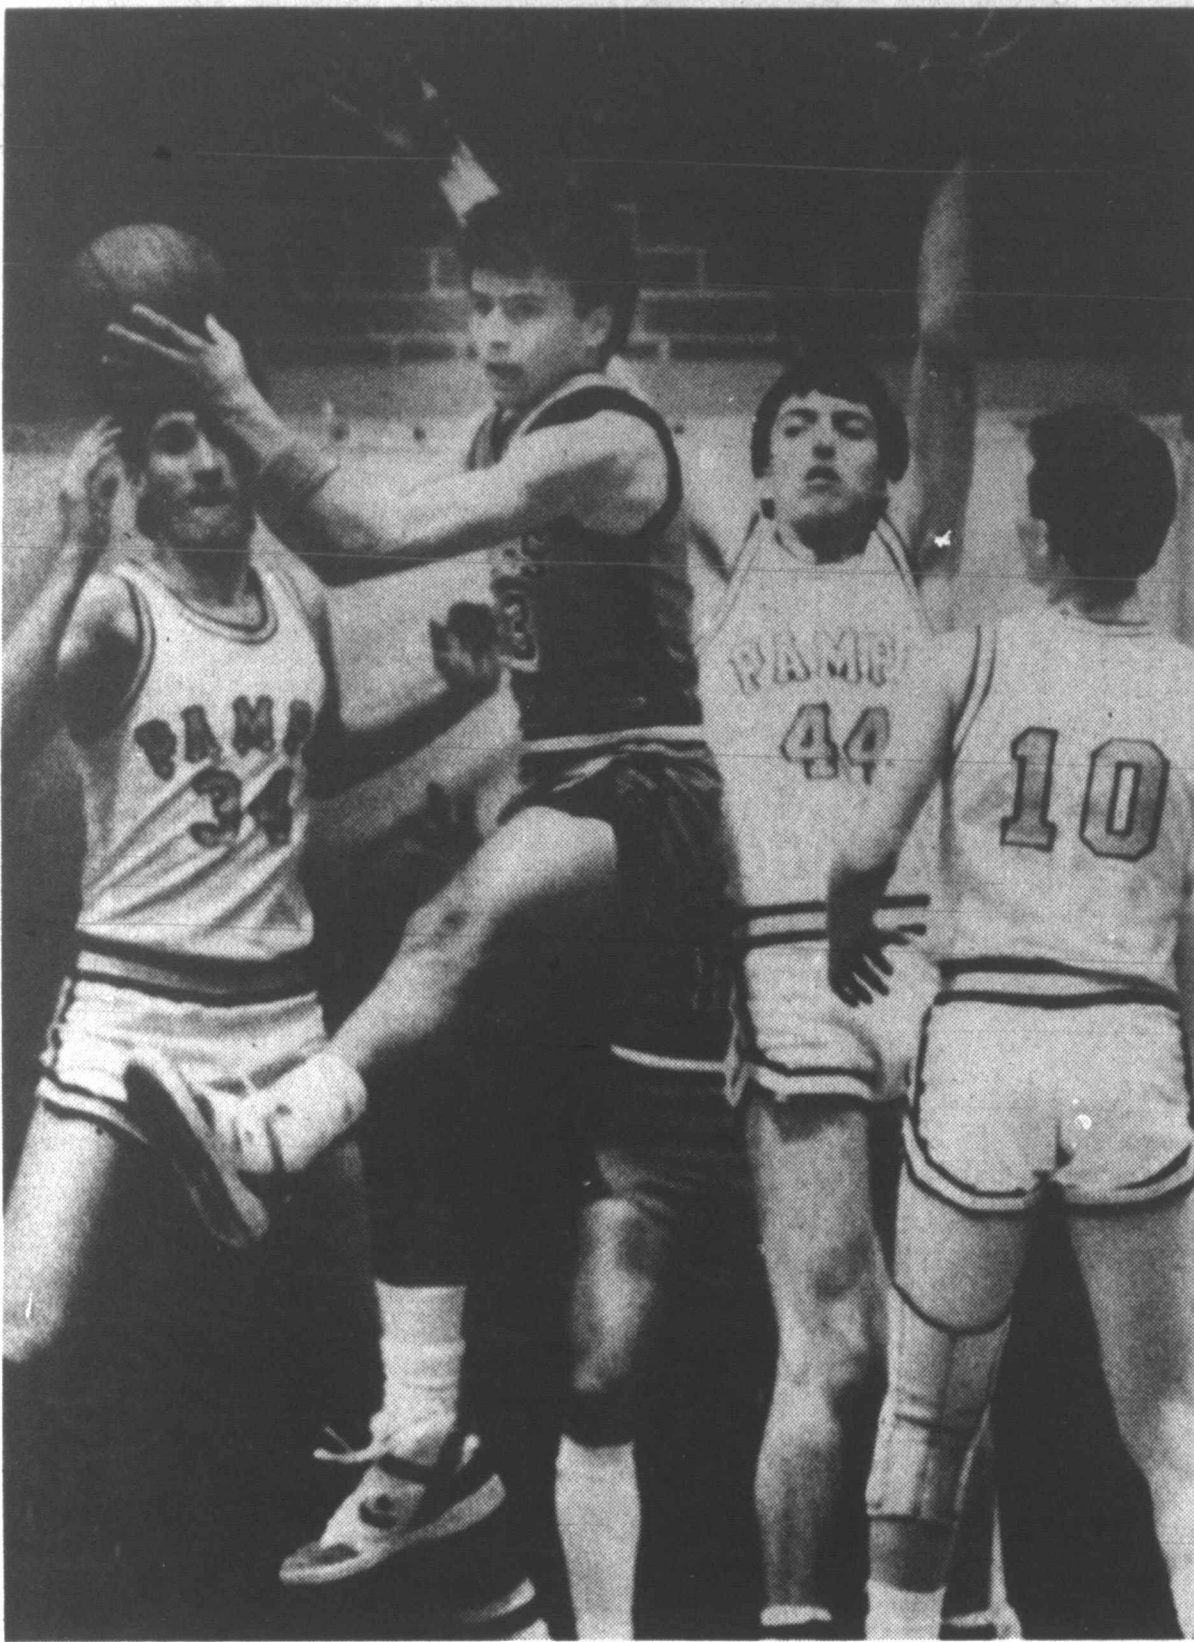

"I think it will be very close," Landry said. "I don't subscribe to the blow-out theory."

The Giants are eight-point favorites over the Broncos.

Landry said the key for Denver will be quarterback John Elway's magic.

"Denver won't be able to run much so it will depend on what kind of game Elway has," Landry said. "He had a great game against Cleveland and that could carry over."

Landry talked by telephone with Reeves on Monday.

Dumas' Dallas Smith is surrounded by Pampa's Dustin Miller (34), Mark Spain (44) and David Doke (10).

Pampa cagers sweep two from Dumas

By L.D. STRATE
Sports Editor

The Pampa Harvesters jumped back on the winning track with their most effective third quarter of the season Monday night. And the most effective Harvester in the third quarter was 6-3 sophomore Dustin Miller.

Miller scored 12 of his 14 points in the second half and the first six points of the third quarter as Pampa whipped Dumas 49-39 in a District 1-A game in McNeely Fieldhouse.

With the score tied eight times in the first half and Pampa leading by one after three quarters, the girls' game showed promises of going down to a last-second shot. But Pampa's defense turned aggressive in the fourth quarter, allowing the offense to run off seven consecutive points as the Lady Harvesters posted a crucial 53-47 district victory over the Dumas girls.

Pampa outscored Dumas 14-9 in the third quarter of the boys' game and built a 16-point bulge going into the final eight minutes. The Harvesters held off a Dumas rally in the fourth quarter to lift their district mark to 3-3. Overall, the Harvesters are 7-13. Dumas is 11-9 overall, but remains winless in district play at 0-6.

Pampa trailed only once in the game and led by seven, 21-14, at halftime. Miller put the Harvesters comfortably in front in the opening minutes of the third quarter by hitting a 15-foot jumper and a pair of follow shots.

The Harvesters led 35-19 after three quarters, but suffered some anxious moments in the fourth quarter when the Demons cut the gap to eight, 35-27. However, Chris Evans put the Harvesters out of danger by scoring the next five points on a short jumper, a layup and a foul shot.

Lonnie Mills tied Miller for game-scoring honors with 14 points and both Harvesters pulled down nine rebounds apiece. Evans added 11 points to Pampa's scoring attack, followed by David Doke with 5, Jason Farmer 3, and Grant Gambelin 2.

T.J. Summersell led Dumas with 12 points while Larry Reynolds followed with 10.

"We had a good performance from all the players we put on the floor," said Pampa Coach Robert Hale. "Dustin did a good job of rebounding and when anybody's rebounding good for us, it seems to make the entire team look good."

Pampa and Dumas girls had 5-2 district records going into last night's meeting and both played on equal terms until the fourth quarter. That's when Pampa's defense, led by Jackie Reed, forced seven Dumas turnovers leading to a 7-0 run by the Lady Harvesters.

Reed, a 5-10 senior, had one of her finest all-around games of the season with 17 points, 10 rebounds and 6 steals to her credit. Yolanda Brown added 13 points, including a 5 for 5 night from the foul line.

Also scoring for Pampa were Keitha Clark with 8 points, Landee Cummings 7, Tacy Stoddard 6, and Camillia Brown 2. Pampa had to play without the services of starter Holly Hoganson, who suffered a severely-sprained ankle in Saturday night's game with Frenship. Clark started in place of Hoganson and was a perfect 4 of 4 from the floor.

Stephanie Bechtol was top scorer for Dumas with 16 points.

Both the Lady Harvesters and Demonettes are 13-5 for the season.

Both Pampa teams play at Levelland Friday night with the girls' game starting first at 7 p.m.

Smith-Tyson bout billed as 'Superfight' by King

By ED SCHUYLER JR.
AP Boxing Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — "I feel Mike Tyson and myself are the two hardest punching heavyweights in the world at this time," James "Bonercrusher" Smith says.

"Superfight" is what promoter Don King called it at a news conference Monday.

The two sluggers — the 20-year-old Tyson, recognized as champion by the World Boxing Council, and Smith, considered champion by the World Boxing Association — are scheduled to fight March 7 at Las Vegas, Nev.

"I'm sure there aren't going to be any problems," Allen Kornberg, who co-manages Smith with Carl King, Don's son, said at the news conference.

But Alberto Aleman of Panama, chairman of the WBA's Championship Committee, thinks there are problems.

In a telephone interview from Panama, Aleman said Smith is obligated to fight the WBA's No. 1 available contender within 120 days of his title victory, which occurred Dec. 12 when he beat Tim Witherspoon.

The No. 1 WBA contender currently is Tyrell Biggs, but his managers have said they do not want to fight Smith at this time. Tony Tubbs had been the No. 1 contender before pulling out of a fight against Witherspoon, claiming injury. Smith substituted and stopped Witherspoon in the first round. Tubbs no longer is ranked in the WBA top 10. Aleman said Smith isn't required to fight the top contender, but the top available contender.

Kornberg said an application has been made to allow the fight under the WBA's Rule 19, which allows for the staging of a fight that, under normal circumstances, would violate the rules.

"I have not received a formal request for an exception under Rule 19," Aleman said.

He said such an exception would have to be approved by six of the eight members of the championship committee, by WBA President Gilberto Mendoza of Argentina, and by 16 of the 24 members of the WBA Executive Committee.

If the fight is approved under Rule 19, Aleman said, it "must be 15 rounds and WBA rules must prevail."

The WBA championship limit is 15 rounds, while the WBC limit is 12. King said a determination hasn't been made yet on the number of rounds for the Tyson-Smith fight.

The fight would be the seventh in the HBO television heavyweight title unification series.

The eighth fight would match the Tyson-Smith winner against Michael Spinks, the International Boxing Federation champion, for the undisputed title.

HBO currently is involved in litigation concerning Spinks' intention to fight Gerry Cooney outside of the series because Cooney won't agree to continue in the series should he beat Spinks.

Briscoe boys down Wheeler

BRISCOE — Briscoe extended its district record to a perfect 3-0 mark with a 58-53 win over Wheeler in boys' basketball action Monday night.

Briscoe, 15-4 overall, had a balanced scoring attack led by John Shields with 17 points, Robert Hall 15, and Eldon VanHooser 14.

Rusty Elisor paced Wheeler with 16 points while Drew Thomas chipped in 12.

"We hung in there good against Wheeler," said Briscoe Coach Ron Van Vranken. "We were hitting our free throws (20 of 27), which helped us get the victory."

Briscoe jumped out to a 29-23 halftime lead and held off a Wheeler rally in the third quarter.

Wheeler boys are 4-4 overall and 2-1 in district action.

Briscoe couldn't stop Wheeler's Marlo Hartman, who pumped in 42 points to lead the Lady Mustangs to a 66-29 victory in the girls' game.

Hartman, a six-footer, hit 15 field goals and was 12 of 16 from the foul line.

"We were just too short to handle her," added Van Vranken.

Tammy Baker added 8 points for Wheeler.

Amy Shields topped Briscoe with 8 points, followed by Christy Zybach with 7.

The Lady Mustangs led at half-time 40-12.

Wheeler girls are now 16-2 overall and 3-0 in district play. Briscoe is 12-7 and 1-2.

Briscoe hosts Allison Friday night in basketball homecoming.

Wheeler hosts Samnorwood Friday night.

Rice tramples over Trinity

HOUSTON (AP) — Rice got a much-needed morale booster with a basketball victory, even if it wasn't against a Southwest Conference team.

"This win has got to help some but our guys know that this is not the caliber of competition that we face in our league," Coach Tommy Suits said Monday night after a 94-42 romp over Trinity University of San Antonio.

"I do think that tonight our quick players looked quick, our big players look big and our shooters looked like they could shoot. It was good because we hadn't looked like that in a couple of games," Suits said.

Greg Hines scored 17 of his game-high 23 points in the first half in the nonconference game and D'Wayne Tanner and Ronald Fuller each added 14 points for the Owls, 0-3 in the SWC, improved their season record to 6-8. The Tigers, 3-7, were led by John Spillane and Paul Hensley with 12 and eight points respectively.

"D'Wayne looked like a blur out there. Greg looked strong and quick and smooth. Ronald (Robertson) got his hands on more passes than any one guy I've ever seen in one game. I thought we pitched the ball around well tonight. There were some very crisp passes," Suits said.

"Lately, we've been very tentative. Hopefully, it will carry over. Arkansas (Wednesday's opponent) is very good. We've looked at their films and they're big, talented, strong, quick, deep — they're just good."

Tonight's SWC schedule called for Texas to play at Texas A&M.

Lendl eyes first grand slam title at Aussie Open

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) — The world's top two men's tennis players, top-seeded Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia and West Germany's Boris Becker take to the grass courts at Kooyong in their opening matches at the $1.65 million Australian Open.

Lendl, winner of the French Open and U.S. Open last year but still looking for his first Grand Slam title on grass, will take on Danny Saltz of Newport Beach, Calif., and the 19-year-old Becker, who has won Wimbledon the last two years, will face Australian Broderick Dyke in second-round matches.

Also seeing action for the first time Wednesday is defending women's champion Martina Navratilova of Fort Worth, Texas. She will face Jamie Golder of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., in her second-round opener.

All seeded players were granted first-round byes as the year's first Grand Slam tournament got off to a slow start.

On Tuesday, reigning NCAA champion Dan Goldie of McLean, Va., powered his way into the second round of the $1.65 million tournament, but former finalists John Sadri and Steve Denton both were eliminated.

Goldie, a 23-year-old Stanford economics graduate in his first year as a professional, recovered from a slow start to down veteran Mike DePalmer of Knoxville, Tenn., 1-6, 6-4, 6-1, 6-2. A tall serve-and-volleyer, Goldie took less than two hours to stop DePalmer and move into a second-round meeting with Russell Simpson of New Zealand.

Simpson defeated Gary Donnelly of Scottsdale, Ariz., 7-6, 6-7, 6-3, 7-6 in his opening-round match.

Sadri, who was beaten by Argentina's Guillermo Vilas in the 1979 Australian Open final, was given a Code of Conduct violation Tuesday after spitting at a linesman in his loss to Australian Davis Cup member Wally Masur. The Charlotte, N.C., right-hander was subsequently fined $500.

Masur defeated Sadri 6-3, 6-7, 6-4, 6-0 in 2½ hours.

Also falling on Tuesday was Steve Denton of Driscoll, Texas, who was runnerup in 1981 and 1982. Once ranked in the top 10 in the world, Denton was eliminated by Gary Muller of South Africa 6-7, 6-3, 6-4, 6-4.

Masur now faces Kelly Jones of San Diego, while Muller must play young Australian Mark Woodforde.

Alford shoots Indiana past Michigan

By The Associated Press

His team was trailing by one point. There were eight seconds to play and he had to take the ball the length of the court. Steve Alford did.

Alford, Indiana's senior guard, made a short jumper with one second remaining Monday night to give the fourth-ranked Hoosiers an 85-84 Big Ten Conference victory over Michigan.

"I just happened to get it through three guys and fortunately I got the shot off and it bounced around and went in," Alford said, sounding humble while describing a great shot.

Alford's heroics were set up by a tenacious Michigan defense in the second half that enabled the Wolverines to overcome a 73-58 Indiana lead with 8:10 left.

The Wolverines might have had their fourth straight victory over Indiana but Gary Grant made only the front end of a 1-and-1 with eight seconds to play, setting the stage for Alford's game-winning shot.

In other games involving members of The Associated Press' Top Twenty Monday night, No. 9 Georgetown beat Villanova 80-73; No. 12 Clemson remained undefeated with a 108-55 victory over Florida International; No. 15 Alabama defeated South Carolina 73-63; No. 16 Oklahoma beat Louisiana State 94-85; No. 18 Pittsburgh downed Duquesne 102-77; and No. 19 Navy edged George Mason 59-57.

College Basketball

No. 9 Georgetown 80, Villanova 73

The Hoyas had to hold off a furious rally by Villanova, as the Wildcats trimmed a 21-point halftime deficit to three with 1:35 remaining in the Big East Conference game played at The Spectrum.

Reggie Williams, Georgetown's only senior, scored 20 points, but it was the free-throw shooting of freshmen guards Mark Tillmon and Dwayne Bryant that made the difference. Georgetown, 12-1 and 3-1, led 66-45 with 9:32 remaining. Villanova, 10-5 and 3-2, used streaks of 11-0 and 13-0 to outscore Georgetown 26-8 and draw within 74-71. But Bryant made four throws and Tillmon two around a field goal by Villanova's Pat Enright for the final margin. Mark Plansky led Villanova with 22 points.

No. 12 Clemson 108, Florida International 55

Clemson broke the 100-point mark for the fourth time this season, set a school record for blocked shots and remained one of the five undefeated Division I teams as the Tigers pounded the visiting Division II Sunblazers.

Horace Grant, who played just 20 minutes, scored 24 points and grabbed 13 rebounds to lead Clemson, 14-0.

Florida International is 4-7.

No. 15 Alabama 73, South Carolina 63

Jim Farmer scored 24 points and grabbed nine rebounds to lead the Crimson Tide, 11-2, to its eighth consecutive victory.

Alabama never trailed. South Carolina is 7-6.

No. 16 Oklahoma 94, Louisiana State 85

Oklahoma outscored Louisiana State 34-18 from the free-throw line as it improved to 10-3 with a win in Oklahoma City.

Tim McCalister aided the Sooners from beyond the 3-point line, making him made five long-range jumpers as part of his game-high 29 points.

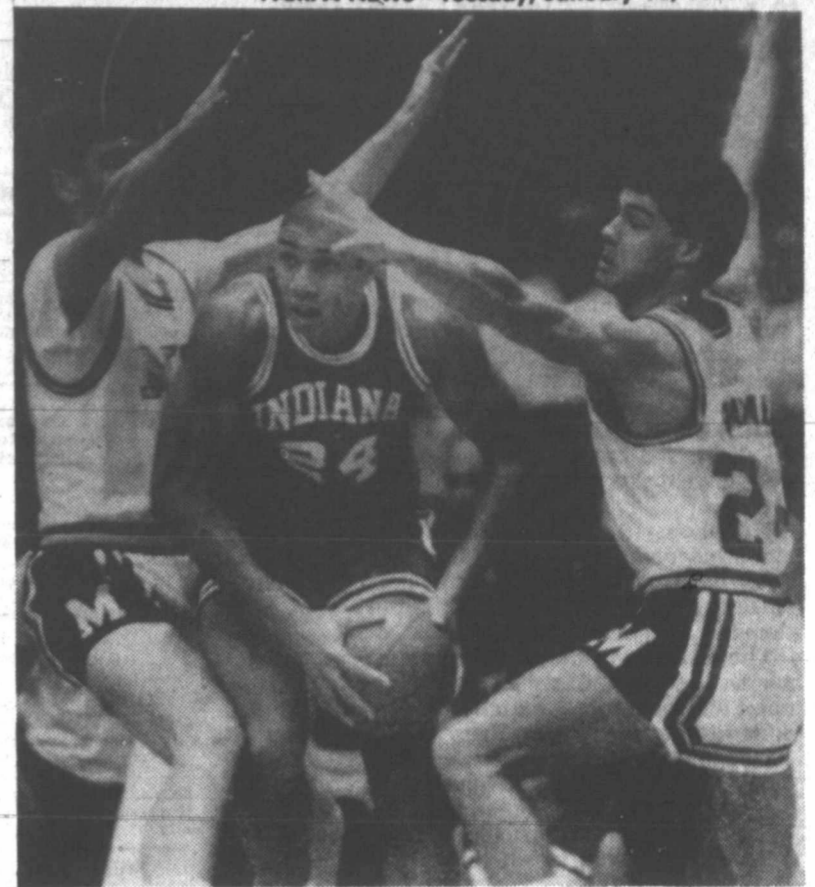

Louisiana State is 9-7.

No. 18 Pittsburgh 102, Duquesne 77

The intracity rivalry isn't what it used to be as the Panthers cruised to their fifth consecutive victory over Duquesne.

Charles Smith had 27 points and 17 rebounds and Jerome Lane had 21 points and 12 rebounds as the Panthers, 11-3, out-rebounded Duquesne 51-32.

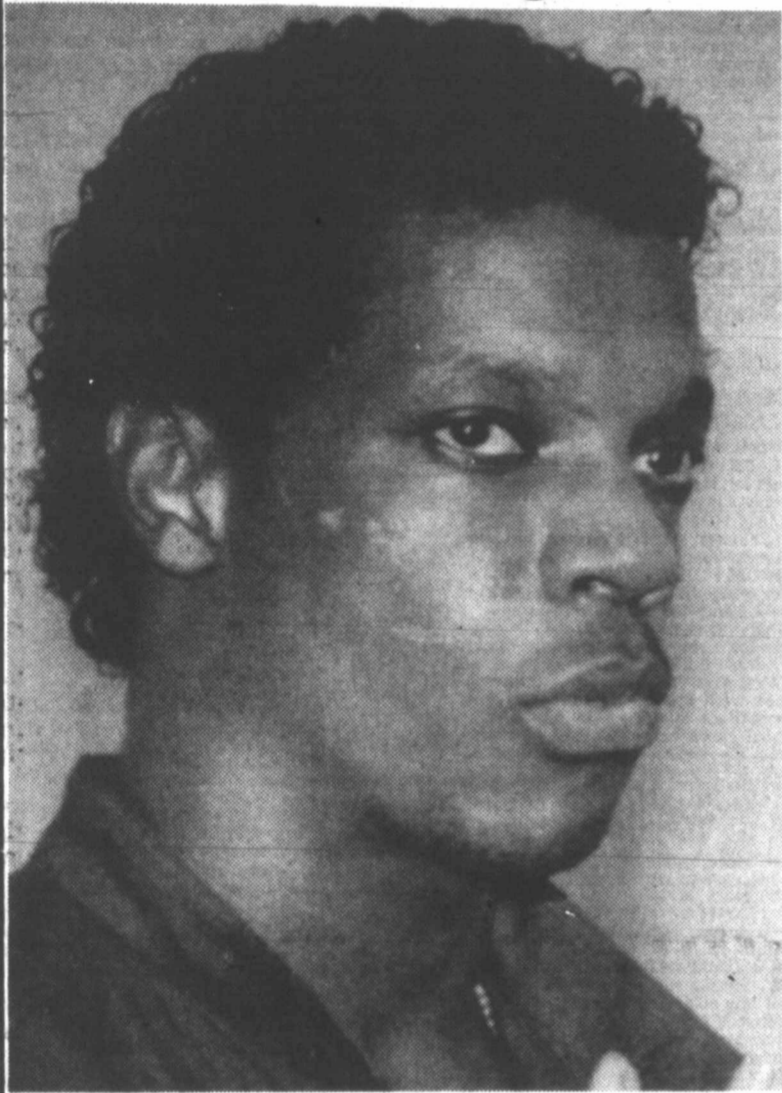

Tony Petrarca led the Dukes, 6-8, with 22 points.

Michigan's Mike Griffin (24) is hemmed in.

Mets' pitching ace formally charged

Felony charges face Gooden.

By FRED GOODALL
AP Sports Writer

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — An attorney for Dwight Gooden says no decision has been made on how the New York Mets pitcher might plead to charges arising from a Dec. 13 altercation with Tampa police that ended with the arrest of the star right-hander and four companions.

Formal charges were filed Monday against Gooden, 22, and three other men in the case. Each was charged with resisting an officer with violence, while Gooden alone was charged by the Hillsborough County state attorney's office with battery on a law enforcement officer.

A fourth defendant was referred to juvenile authorities, State Attorney Bill James said.

"I want to make it crystal-clear to everybody within the community that I view these particular offenses as among the most serious we investigate," James told reporters. "I can assure this community that these cases will be dealt with in a very stern fashion."

The two third-degree felony charges against Gooden, who posted a 17-6 record in helping the Mets to the world championship last season, both carry a maximum sentence of five years in prison and a $5,000 fine.

The others arrested with the 1985 National League Cy Young Award winner were Gary Sheffield, 18, Gooden's nephew and a highly regarded prospect in the Milwaukee Brewers' organization; Vance Lovelace, 23, a California Angels minor league player; Phillip Walker, Jr., 23, and Derrick Pedro, 17.

Ron Cacciatore, an attorney for Gooden, said he had not had an opportunity to talk with Charles Ehrlich, another lawyer for the baseball player, or review the specific charges. He added that a decision has not been made about possible Gooden strategy at a Jan. 22 arraignment.

Asked if discussions aimed at a settlement of the charges will continue with the state attorney's office, Cacciatore said: "Obviously, you try to maintain open lines of communication with the prosecution's office."

Ehrlich was in a meeting Monday afternoon and did not return a telephone call from The Associated Press. Jim Neader, Gooden's agent, said: "Dwight and I have no comment."

Police said Gooden was stopped for a possible traffic offense on the night of Dec. 13 after an officer spotted his silver Mercedes and a red Corvette driven by Sheffield weaving in and out of traffic on Nebraska Avenue.

Mahaffey nervous going into Hope golf tourney

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

LA QUINTA, Calif. (AP) — Early-season tournaments present some peculiar problems for the touring pros of professional golf.

"You haven't played for a while. You don't know exactly how well, or how bad, you might be playing. You don't know what's going to come off the club face," former PGA champion John Mahaffey said. "But you're anxious, excited to find out."

The veteran Mahaffey said he was "anxious, excited, a little nervous," at the start of his 17th season.

"But that's good. You want to feel a little nervous. When you don't feel nervous and excited, it's time to hang it up," Mahaffey said before a practice round for the $900,000 Bob Hope Chrysler Classic, the second stop on the Tour this season.

Mahaffey was in contention through the first three rounds of last week's Tournament of Champions before drifting back to finish 11th.

It did nothing to dampen the renewed enthusiasm of Mahaffey, who has scored nine Tour victories, including two in this 5-day, 90-hole event.

"I'm really pretty pumped up about the year. I'll tell you, winning the TPC (the Tournament Players Championship) last year was like the weight of the world was off my shoulders," Mahaffey said.

More important that the TPC prize money was the 10-year qualifying exemption awarded to the winner.

"We sat down over the winter and made out our schedule for the year," Mahaffey said. "Play here, don't play there. Made it out, and that's it. It's set. I haven't been able to do that in a long time."

"I'm cutting back a little bit, and I think I'll play better for it. If you're out here week after week, you find you're just going through the motions. I don't want to do that."

"I'm excited about playing now, and I want to keep on being excited," said Mahaffey, who has collected more than $2 million in career earnings.

He faces a field of 128 pros who play one round each over four desert golf courses, each day with a different three-man amateur team, before the pros-only finish on Sunday.

This year, the wind-up will be on PGA West, a new, extremely difficult Pete Dye-designed course that was the site of the 1986 Skins Game and is being used in the Hope for the first time.

Stars & Stripes draws first blood in America's Cup

FREMANTLE, Australia (AP) — Dennis Conner drew first blood as Stars & Stripes led all the way and hammered New Zealand by one minute, 20 seconds in heavy seas and winds today to capture the first race in the America's Cup challenger finals.

Stars & Stripes led at the start and showed superior boat speed in the 20-26-knot winds on the choppy Indian Ocean course off this small port city.

Conner was able to run the race on his terms throughout. He gained control at the start and led by 15 seconds at the first mark.

Once out in front, Conner refrained from getting into a tacking duel with New Zealand skipper Chris Dickson, staying instead with a straight-line strategy that worked to perfection.

New Zealand made it close for five legs, cutting the deficit from 30 to 18 seconds on the two reaching legs. But on the third beat to weather, the winds picked up — and so did Stars & Stripes, which gained 23 seconds for a 41-second edge entering the final spinnaker run.

Stars & Stripes, the San Diego Yacht Club entry, added eight seconds on the downwind run and 31 more on the beat to the finish line. Dickson, who saw his 28-race winning streak go sailing away, desperately attempted to lure Conner into a tacking duel, but Conner kept a loose cover on his foe during the race to the finish line.

The race proved that, in heavy conditions, Stars & Stripes is faster and more powerful than its smaller opponent. New Zealand is believed to be more maneuverable and to accelerate faster out of a tack, but can be beaten by an opponent who can get out in front and play the wind, rather than engaging in a tacking duel.

Conner had compared the two boats before the race to a clash between a drag racer and a Porsche. "We're the drag racer," he said at a news conference Monday.

The second race in the best-of-seven series is tentatively scheduled for Wednesday, but either boat can ask for a lay day. Each boat is allowed one lay day during the first four races and a second lay day during the final three.

Bosworth wants to play for Sooners

By RICK WARNER
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — All-America linebacker Brian Bosworth says he may delay his pro football career and play one more season at Oklahoma because he wants to win another national championship.

"I've already won one (in 1985) and I think we'd have a good chance to do it again next season," he said Monday following an appearance on NBC's "Late Night With David Letterman."

Bosworth said if he had to make a decision today, he would stay in college.

"I'd like to stay where I'm comfortable," he said, "and right now that's Oklahoma."

Bosworth said he will make his decision by April 13, the last day college players who plan to graduate early can declare themselves eligible for the NFL draft. The flamboyant Sooner is scheduled to graduate in May, but could play another season at Oklahoma because he was redshirted his first year.

Bosworth said he plans to talk to Oklahoma Coach Barry Switzer before making a decision.

Last Monday, Switzer said he didn't want Bosworth to return for his senior season. Switzer changed his mind the next day after Bosworth apologized for his behavior during the past season.

The NCAA banned Bosworth from the Orange Bowl after he tested positive for steroid use. Despite the ban, he showed up at the New Year's game wearing a T-shirt that referred to the NCAA as "National Communists Against Athletes."

Shultz visits Ivory Coast

ABIDJAN, Ivory Coast (AP) — Secretary of State George P. Shultz meets today with President Felix Houphouet-Boigny, who practices economic programs favored by Shultz and agrees with the United States on most foreign policy issues.

Shultz arrived Monday in the Ivory Coast, his fifth stop of a six-nation tour of sub-Saharan Africa. He is the highest ranking American official ever to visit this West African nation of 10 million people.

Houphouet-Boigny, who has led the country since independence in 1960, has encouraged private enterprise, foreign investment and agricultural development. The results make the Ivory Coast the envy of much of Africa.

The country is the world's main producer of cocoa and also boasts an abundance of coffee, palm oil and cotton. Abidjan is a luxurious metropolis with modern skyscrapers and elegant shops. Houphouet-Boigny agrees with Shultz on most foreign policy issues. Both have sharply criticized Libya's military presence in northern Chad.

The Ivory Coast contrasts sharply with Shultz' previous stop, Nigeria, which has been plagued by political instability for years.

The Reagan administration appears to be encouraged by what it considers sound economic policies pursued by Nigerian President Ibrahim Babangida, an army general who took power in a coup 17 months ago.

Shultz met with Babangida and other senior officials on Monday.

"They have bitten the bullet on economic policy," said a U.S. official, alluding to a controversial currency devaluation the government imposed last fall. The official spoke on condition of anonymity.

The economy of Nigeria, Africa's most populous country with 94 million people, has been shaken by falling oil prices.

Shultz also discussed with Nigerian leaders what he described as a "considerable flow" through Nigeria of Asian heroin bound for the United States.

A U.S. official said the smuggling of heroin from Pakistan, India, Thailand and possibly other Asian countries is creating a new generation of millionaires in Nigeria.
