Hanoi Releases New List Of POWs Due Freedom

SAIGON (AP) — The United States announced tonight that the North Vietnamese had turned over a list of 106 American prisoners and two Thais to be released over the weekend. But it said the Viet Cong had not yet turned over a list of 30 Americans to be freed from camps in South Vietnam.

The U.S. delegation had initially said 106 Americans would be freed by North Vietnam and 34 by the Viet Cong, but it was discovered later that these figures included the two Thais held in the North and two West Germans and two Filipinos held in the South.

A Viet Cong spokesman said the American prisoners scheduled for release by them included 26 servicemen and four civilians.

The U.S. announcement said "The Democratic Republic of Vietnam representative on the POW subcommittee, four-party Joint Military Commission, presented to the U.S. representative a list containing the names of 106 U.S. POWs and two Thai POWs. The United States has not been advised of the time and place of release. No new information has been received on the detained personnel held by the Provisional Revolutionary Government.

This is the government of the Viet Cong in South Vietnam.

The chief spokesman for the North Vietnamese delegation, Bui Tin, said the POWs would be freed over the weekend.

Immediately after the list was turned over to the American delegation, it was transmitted to Washington so that relatives of the American prisoners could be immediately notified of their impending release.

Once the next of kin are notified, Washington will make the list public.

There were no names released in Saigon either by the U.S. or North Vietnamese delegations.

Nixon Defends Changes To Social Welfare Aims

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon, observing that his revamped social welfare program already has aroused "intense controversy and considerable misunderstanding," defended his changes today in a special message to Congress.

The lengthy message itself contained no surprises and confirmed expectations that Nixon would back away from his 1969 welfare reform program that would have in effect guaranteed a minimum annual income for poor families.

Much of the emphasis was on justifying the reorganization and in some cases scrapping of past federal activities in the area of human resources.

Pledging that he will display compassion that works—not simply compassion that means well—Nixon took credit for a record human resources budget he put at $25 billion—nearly twice the amount that was being spent on such programs when I took office in 1969.

The overall effect of these reforms will be the elimination of programs that are wasteful so that we can concentrate on programs that work.

Nixon, who said the welfare mess cannot be permitted to continue, acknowledged he was abandoning broad welfare reform since the legislative outlook seems to preclude passage in the immediate future.

However, he said he is ordering vigorous steps to strengthen the management of aid to families with dependent children—a program he described as "inadequate, inefficient and in need of reform."

With $2.8 billion of federal funds having been spent since the program was launched in 1965, Nixon said further funding "no longer seems necessary or desirable."

280 Americans still held in North and South Vietnam and Laos, according to Hanoi. They are scheduled to be released in two more groups, with March 28 the deadline for the repatriation of the last ones.

The United States had expected the release of the second big group on Tuesday, 15 days after the first big group was handed over. But the Communists balked, demanding that the United States and South Vietnam come to terms on the release of civilians held by the Saigon government and guarantees to end harassment of the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong representatives to the peacekeeping commissions in Saigon and other South Vietnamese cities.

The United States retaliated by suspending the withdrawal of American troops and the sweeping of mines in North Vietnamese waters. President Nixon also ordered Secretary of State William P. Rogers to boycott the activities of the Paris conference on Vietnam until the POW issue was cleared up.

Discussing his controversial dismantling of the Office of Economic Opportunity, Nixon pictured the move as strengthening antipoverty programs by moving them into Cabinet departments directly concerned.

The only major OEO program for which termination of federal funding is recommended in my budget is community action, he said.

With $2.8 billion of federal funds having been spent since the program was launched in 1965, Nixon said further funding "no longer seems necessary or desirable."

Insurance Premium Approved

Members of the local insurance association appeared before the Gray County Commissioners Court this morning with new premium figures for the new insured period.

Gross premiums are up 30 percent over the past insured period but the various machinations of the business that brings about a 15 percent discount along the line brings this to a 15 percent additional cost.

Almost all of this is reflected in inflated costs of replacing buildings and contents. The panel voted to accept the figures with two minor alterations.

In other business a vacation policy was made official. The county historical survey committee was granted $300 tax and fire contracts with the city were renewed and six roads in precinct three were named.

Persons who have been consistently employed by the county from one to nine years will get a two weeks vacation. Those with 10 years or more uninterrupted service will get three weeks. This is not cumulative nor will pay be made for a vacation not taken within the work year.

The city tax contract remains unchanged as to cost. The cost of fire protection provided by the city is up $15 per run over last year. Each run outside the city limits will cost the county $190. The bill came to approximately $11,000 in 1972.

County roads in the south precinct were named Jericho Steed Lamb Boydston Knopp and Latta. The state highway engineers had requested names for these arteries.

The remainder of the meeting was involved with routine transaction of business.

Woolldridge Pleads Guilty To Bribery

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Further charges involving alleged fraud in the operation of overseas GI clubs may result from guilty pleas entered by Sgt. Maj. William O. Woolldridge and two other servicemen the Justice Department says.

As part of a plea bargain, Woolldridge, William E. Higdon and Theodore D. Bass agreed Wednesday to cooperate with any future questioning by the permanent U.S. Senate subcommittee that first turned up evidence of the GI club irregularities.

The three defendants themselves would be virtually immune from further prosecution, as part of the agreement.

The U.S. attorney's office in Los Angeles said after the proceedings, "It is anticipated that disclosures by the defendants before the Senate subcommittee or a federal grand jury may lead to further prosecutions of other persons."

After lengthy bargaining with the judge Tuesday and Wednesday Woolldridge, 50, formerly the Army's top-ranking enlisted man, pleaded guilty to two counts of bribery and Bass, 38, pleaded guilty to one count.

They had originally been charged with conspiracy to defraud the government. The charges involved an alleged system of bribes, kickbacks, profit skimming and stealing among the sergeants who operated the noncommissioned officers clubs in South Vietnam.

The third defendant, William E. Higdon, 44, pleaded guilty to a limited count of the conspiracy charge.

U.S. Dist. Court Judge Warren Ferguson delayed sentencing to April 30. He said in passing the sentences he would consider whether the defendants cooperated with renewed investigation.

Woolldridge of Junction City, Kan., could receive a maximum sentence of four years in prison and fines totaling $20,000.

Suit May Delay Grant Approval

By TEX DEWESE

The suit filed yesterday by the State of Texas against the Nixon administration to force release of $184.6 million in pollution control money the President has ordered impounded, could possibly hold up decisions on federal aid grants to Pampa and other Texas cities.

The possibility arose as the Texas Water Quality Board ended a two-day meeting in Austin yesterday to formalize priorities for federal aid which already reportedly had been set.

There continued to be no word on the fate of Pampa's application for a $255,000 federal grant to help with the $340,000 improvement project at the city's sewage treatment plant.

City Manager Mack Wofford, when questioned by The News today, admitted the possibility exists now that the suit could "at least delay action on the Texas board's recommendations for federal aid in Texas."

There was speculation too, that any recommendations the TWQB forwards to Washington could run into delay there pending outcome of the suit filed by the State of Texas.

Attorney General John L. Hill filed the petition in U.S. District Court at Austin Wednesday after the State Legislature asked him to take the case.

The Texas Senate voted 26 to 5 in favor of a resolution calling for a court test of President Nixon's constitutional authority to block spending of funds allocated by Congress for construction of sewage treatment plants and other pollution control facilities in Texas and other states in 1973 and 1974.

The resolution already had been approved by 150 House members last Feb. 8 with only five votes against it.

Democrats claimed the court test is needed to show Nixon he cannot appropriate money already allocated.

Republicans voting against the resolution counter charged that the suit to invalidate Nixon's fund stoppage if it is successful could wreck the nation's economy.

Indians Continue Siege, Await Senators' Arrival

WOUNDED KNEE S.D. (AP) — South Dakota's two senators were flying to their communities today in an effort to end a two-day siege by militant Indians holding 11 residents hostage.

I have this assurance through an intermediary, and I know the American Indian Movement — AIM — leaders are aware of it, he said. "I'm confident we can negotiate the release of the rest once we get there."

Their plane was expected to touch down around midmorning.

The 200 Indians have demanded a Senate probe of the Bureau of Indian Affairs' return for freeing the hostages. Aside from one brief meeting with an FBI agent, the Indians have kept law enforcement officers at a distance and there was an exchange of gunfire Wednesday morning.

Contacted in Washington before his departure, Abourezk said he and fellow Democrat McGovern would be accompanied by members of the staffs of Sens. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and J.W. Fulbright, D-Ark.

The Indians also had demanded that Kennedy and Fulbright come to the reservation to discuss their grievances which include the government's handling of U.S. Indian treaties and the way in which the Ogala Sioux tribe elects its leaders.

Sen. James Abourezk said he had been assured that one and possibly two of the captives held since the takeover Tuesday night would be freed when the plane carrying him and fellow Democrat George McGovern arrived in South Dakota.

The senators first planned to land at nearby Pine Ridge, the closest town with an airport, but Abourezk's office in Washington said later their plane would arrive at Ellsworth Air Force Base near Rapid City. They were then to be helicopter directly to Wounded Knee.

Members of the American Indian Movement, who seized control of Wounded Knee, the scene of tragedy for red men during the wane of the great westward push of the 19th Century, said they had no intention of hurting their hostages, ranging in age from 12 to 82.

At least six of the captives are over 65, the FBI spokesman said.

He said there had been considerable gunfire Wednesday morning.

An estimated 250 federal marshals, FBI agents and BIA police from the Pine Ridge and other Indian reservations cordoned off the tiny valley town. They kept to the heights more than half a mile away along four roads.

LIKE FRUSTRATED LAMB March's Arrival Brings Moisture

March came into Pampa and the Texas Panhandle last midnight like a frustrated lamb.

There was no blowing blizzard or drifting snow to make it come in like a lion, but there was enough thunder lightning, rain and fog to give the lamb a case of the heebie jeebies.

Pampa received 23 inches of rain Wednesday night to bring the total since Jan. 1 to 159 inches.

By early morning the rain had stopped and cloudy skies gave way to bright sunshine about 10 a.m. The overnight low temperature in Pampa was 45 after a high of 48 Wednesday.

A warming trend was expected to send the afternoon high into the mid 60s today, then slide back to a low in the mid 30s tonight.

The sunny and warm trend was expected to keep temperatures about the same Friday. Prospects for a pleasant weekend also were in the forecast. The mercury had climbed to 56 degrees in Pampa at noon today.

The showers and thunderstorms after developing in the Panhandle last night, marched across the state. Early this morning the forward edge of the frontal system lay along a line from Dabhart southwest past Wink and into Mexico.

In addition to the freakish foggy weather of yesterday, hail was reported last night in the Hereford area. The marble size hailstones reportedly did little if any damage.

Mild weather for practically all of the state was predicted for Friday and through the weekend.

IN PROPOSED LEGISLATION Hobby Lobby Laboring Against Fakes, Copies

WASHINGTON (AP) — Along with worldly wares and money matters, there's talk on Capitol Hill about a White Carnival Glass Indian Chief toothpick holder and a Mt. Washington Peachblow vinegar cruet. The hobby lobby is hard at work.

This too, involves the world and money—imports and rare coins—as well as consumer spending in such places as flea markets and antique shops.

According to the hobby lobby, the problem is in telling what's truly old or really new—and what's just a copy or a fake.

In a little batch of bills under study by the House Commerce Committee are a proposed Hobby Protection Act and legislation on antique glassware. They're aimed at protecting against purchase of a copy that's either mistaken to be—or fraudulently represented as—an original.

Rep. Fred B. Rooney, D-Pa., in a statement to a House commerce and finance subcommittee.

Hospitals Send Patients Home In British Strikes

LONDON (AP) — Hospitals became the latest victim today of British labor unions' strike-aid campaign against the government's wage controls. Thousands of patients were sent home and many hospitals accepted emergency cases only.

This will cause patients a lot of extra suffering, said one hospital chief, of the walkout and go-slow protest launched by nonmedical hospital staff.

The workers — porters, cleaners, cooks and laundry women — struck at more than 200 of Britain's 2,250 hospitals. They used a "noncooperation" campaign at most of the others.

Meals, laundry and cleaning services were immediately hit. A spokesman for the Merseyside hospital area warned that relatives of patients may be asked to wash sheets and blankets as "unclean bedding could become a major health hazard."

The unions calling the strike pledged to maintain emergency services, but the Merseyside spokesman described this as "inadequate."

Don Alexander, administrator of the hospital, said Dr. Traverse will present the first in a series of lectures on the use of inhalation therapy in the treatment of pulmonary diseases and explain various programs available on the subject.

The lecture will be accompanied by film, slides and demonstration of equipment.

Alexander said the lectures are preliminary to planned establishment of an inhalation therapy department at Worley Hospital.

Dr. Norman Traverse of Boston, Mass., director of Pulmonary Therapy Services, will speak at a special meeting of the Worley Hospital medical staff at a 6:30 a.m. breakfast session next Monday in the Emerald Room of Coronado Inn.

Transportation Controls Needed

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Transportation controls will become necessary for seven urban areas in Texas, the head of the Environmental Protection Agency in Washington says, if they are to comply with new air quality standards.

Another EPA spokesman in Dallas added Wednesday that the impact of the pollution controls may even extend to occasional gasoline rationing and the impact will be greatest on the Houston-Galveston vicinity.

EPA administrator William D. Ruckelshaus told Congress that most major metropolitan areas across the nation will be affected, and he listed 37 of them.

Speaker as the House environment subcommittee started hearings on a one-year extension of funding provision under the Clean Air Act. Ruckelshaus listed the other Texas urban areas as Austin, Beaumont, Corpus Christi, Dallas-Fort Worth, San Antonio and El Paso.

In Dallas, an EPA spokesman said Dallas-Fort Worth, San Antonio and El Paso are other cities they may find pollution control measures required to stay within permissible levels that go into effect in May of 1975.

"We are reviewing all the information available on environmental pollution in Dallas-Fort Worth, San Antonio and El Paso," the spokesman said. "We do not feel the moment that any restrictive measures will be needed in those areas."

Houston, however, "probably will have some fairly strict regulations on transportation," he added.

Texas has until April 15 to submit to the federal government a plan to comply with the pollution controls.

"We are expecting a transportation strategy plan for Houston," the Dallas spokesman said, "that will be reviewed and implemented if the state fails to provide the plan, then, under the Clean Air Act of 1970, the federal government will propose a strategy of its own."

He said the possible remedies to reduce pollution include stimulation of mass transportation systems, restrictions on parking areas in downtown sections and encouragement of car pools.

"The ultimate measure would be gas rationing," the spokesman said, but he explained that rationing would be imposed only during critical periods of the year.

The spokesman said air pollution levels in Houston already are above the permissible limits.

In Washington, Sen. John Tunney, D-Calif., said the EPA is considering gas rationing for 27 areas in 18 states including the metropolitan areas of New York, Phoenix, Denver, Pittsburgh and Philadelphia.

Ruckelshaus told congressmen that "none of the regions needing transportation control approach the severity of problems faced" in the Los Angeles area, where "we have proposed, under court order, regulations which would require expensive retrofitting of pre-1975 motor vehicles, conversion of fleet vehicles to gaseous fuels, greater control of stationary sources, and extensive gasoline rationing during the six worst months of the year."

There weeks of public hearings on this proposal will begin March 5 in Los Angeles.

The list of urban areas needing transit controls, he said, also includes metropolitan New York, Los Angeles, Chicago, San Francisco, metropolitan Philadelphia, Washington, D.C., Boston, Baltimore, Pittsburgh, metropolitan Kansas City, Indianapolis, Minneapolis-St. Paul, Cincinnati, Dayton and Toledo, Ohio; Birmingham and Mobile, Ala.; Phoenix-Tucson, Ariz.; San Diego, Sacramento and Bakersfield-Fresno, Calif.; Denver; Springfield, Mass.; Portland, Ore.; Salt Lake City;

Seattle and Spokane, Wash.; Fairbanks, Alaska; Syracuse-Utica-Rome and Rochester-Elmira, N.Y.

Generally, he said, in reviewing state air quality implementation plans, "we found a number of urban areas in need of transportation controls if air quality standards are to be met as the law requires."

Some measures being considered by the states, he said, are improvements in mass transit, auto-free zones, parking surcharges, staggered work hours and conversion of fleet vehicles to gaseous fuels. Also being looked at is the potential of gasoline rationing, he added.

St. Matthew's Episcopal Church, 727 W. Browning, will hold the 17th annual Pancake Supper from 5 to 8 p.m. Tuesday in its Parish Hall.

A part of Shrove Tuesday activities, the supper will cost $1.50 with children under six admitted free when accompanied by an adult, according to Ab Conway, chairman.

Members of the Episcopal youth groups and of the congregation are contending for titles of King and Queen plus two attendants. Coronation and presentation of prizes for the top ticket sellers will be at 6:15 p.m. by Rev. Sam B. Hulsey, rector of St. Matthew's.

Tickets are also available at the church office and may be bought at the door Tuesday.

Shrove Tuesday, the Tuesday before Ash Wednesday, is the English equivalent of the French "Mardi-Gras" and the Italian "Fat Tuesday." The English custom of eating pancakes on this day arose from the economy of using up eggs and fat, which were formerly forbidden articles of diet during Lent.

Coin Collection Reported Stolen

A Pampa residence was burglarized of a coin collection valued at approximately $150 yesterday between noon and 9:15 p.m. while the owners of the house were out of town.

Entrance was gained through an unlocked garage door.

Several drawers throughout the house had been ransacked before the couple returned home, but nothing was missing except the coins and a pillowcase, supposedly used to haul the coins away.

Police are investigating the burglary.

Treaty Okayed Again

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Foreign Relations Committee has approved for the third time the 24-year-old genocide treaty.

The treaty, to which 75 nations now are parties, would make it an international crime to attempt the destruction of entire ethnic, national, racial or religious groups.

ONE DISSENTING VOTE

Committee Okays Summer Primary

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — A bill to move the Texas primary from May to August is on its way to the full Senate after being passed by a committee Wednesday with only one dissenting vote.

Sen. Raul Longoria, D-Edinburg, in voting against the measure said the bill would disenfranchise the poor, the migrant workers, and students.

Sen. Nelson Wolff, D-San Antonio, sponsor of the measure, said it would cut the expense of office-seeking by shortening the time required to campaign.

The bill would basically shift elections and corresponding political conventions closer to the November general elections.

The primary, now in May, would be the first week in August. Runoffs would be in September. And all election days would be on Tuesday, instead of Saturday.

The deadline for filing would be moved from February to the first week in June, on an amendment by Sen. Jack Ogg, D-Houston.

Longoria said summer elections were "out of the question in Texas." He said voters "have got to go to work or to school. They won't be home in July or August."

Wolff later predicted his "only hope is in the House" for defeat of the Wolff bill.

Wolff said he wasn't convinced changing the election time would alter voting patterns. "I had more votes in June than in my first primary in May," he said.

He told the Senate State Affairs Committee 11 states now have primaries in June, none in July, 10 in August and 14 in September. He said 42 states hold elections on Tuesdays instead of some other day.

An amendment by Sen. Bill Moore, D-Bryan, to retain the February filing date was defeated, with Ogg remarking, "It's ridiculous the amount of time you have to run for office."

The committee also moved out two bills making it easier for invalids and certain others to cast absentee ballots, but it temporarily delayed action on another plan by Wolff that would facilitate all types of absentee voting.

OF SPIRO

THE MESSAGE is perfectly clear as displayed by Brad Zielinski, 11, on Guam. His daddy is Col. Lester Zielinski, deputy Andersen Air Force Base commander there.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Confident of enough strength to override another veto if necessary, the Senate has given overwhelming approval to a $4.8-billion vocational rehabilitation bill that President Nixon rejected earlier.

Wednesday's 86-2 vote sent the bill to the House where action is expected next week. The bill was the fourth of a dozen pocket-vetoes by Nixon last year that has re-passed the Senate.

Sponsors say it likely will be the first of the vetoed measures to reach the President's desk, probably in mid-March. They said they are confident Nixon can be overridden if he vetoes it again.

The House Education and Labor Committee approved its version of the legislation Tuesday.

On another front, Congress decided Wednesday not to battle any more with Nixon over two appropriations bills that still have not been passed for the current fiscal year which is two-thirds over.

Instead, it sent him an emergency resolution extending funding for the agencies covered by the bills through June 30, the end of the fiscal year.

Hardin testified that he recommended to the grand jury that the 21 be no-billed because several had proved that they were not where Murray had said they were when the alleged sales were made.

HOW MUCH AND WHEN?

Governors Trying To Find Answer To Money Question

WASHINGTON (AP) — For all the speeches, briefings and resolutions, what the nation's governors really want answered in Washington is a simple question: How much money is coming, and when?

They tried at the White House, and they tried at the Capitol, but they haven't got the answers yet.

Complaints about administration budget cuts and the impact on aid to the states became the central theme of the governors' midwinter conference, with the Democrats doing most of the protesting, and Republicans most of the defense.

Gov. Linwood Holton of Virginia, a Republican, said his instincts tell him that it will work out, and that state programs will not suffer.

Democratic instincts differed. "The governors and the states are caught as pawns in the fight between Congress and the President," said Gov. Dale Bumpers of Arkansas.

"We were assured—I think we were assured—that we would receive no less money," said Gov. Marvin Mandel of Maryland, a Democrat and chairman of the National Governors Conference.

But everybody agreed that the administration had not come up with an accounting of how much money would be forthcoming for specific state aid programs.

Ironically, the controversy in volved what was the governors' pet project, the sharing of federal revenues with the states.

A five-year program, totaling $30.2 billion in unrestricted aid to states and cities, already is under way.

Democratic Gov. Kenneth Curtis of Maine called it nonsense for anyone to suggest that revenue sharing can make up for cuts in the domestic budget.

And Bumpers said the governors are feeling the pressure.

"We hear it all the time—go see the governor, he's got all that revenue-sharing money," the Arkansas governor said.

Next up is President Nixon's plan for special revenue sharing, eventually combining some 1,100 categories of federal aid for specific programs into broad grants to be used in four general areas.

But the governors were told at the White House that it isn't ready yet, and at the Capitol that it may not become law in the near future anyhow.

Holton said Nixon is not proposing cuts in aid to the states. "Everybody is going to have more money," he said.

But that is in comparison with past budgets. Inflation and built-in cost increases can mean that a bit more federal aid will actually do the work of less.

Old Actor Kellaway Dies At 79

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Veteran character actor Cecil Kellaway, known best for his roles as kindly doctors and family friends in scores of movies, is dead at 79.

Kellaway died Wednesday at a West Los Angeles convalescent home after a long illness.

He was born in Capetown, South Africa, on Aug. 22, 1893, and after attending college there and in England, toured Europe and the Far East as a stock company actor.

In 1939 he came here to appear in "Wuthering Heights" with Laurence Olivier and Merle Oberon. From then on he was one of the screen's most servicable character actors.

Kellaway was nominated for an Academy Award in 1967 for his supporting role in "Guess Who's Coming to Dinner?" He played a priest who counseled a white couple whose daughter was planning to marry a black physician.

Survivors include his widow Doreen, sons, Peter and Bryan, and four grandchildren. Funeral services will be private.

Aviation Group Censures Israel

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — By a vote of 106-1, the International Civil Aviation Organization has condemned Israel for shooting down a Libyan airliner over the Sinai Desert last week.

It was the most decisive roll call against Israel ever recorded by an agency of the United Nations since the Jewish state was born in 1949.

Israel cast the lone vote against the resolution, adopted Wednesday by an assembly of ICAO. Colombia and Malawi abstained from voting on the measure, which also orders an ICAO investigation into the Feb. 21 tragedy that claimed 106 lives.

Israel indicated it would cooperate with ICAO and other official investigators, although it opposed the condemn-and-investigate resolution on grounds that it prejudged the issue.

Tech Choir To Perform

The Texas Tech Choir will appear in Pampa at 7:30 p.m. Monday at the Robert E. Lee Junior High auditorium.

Under the direction of Gene Kenney, the choir is on tour through the Wichita Falls and Amarillo areas.

Three Pampa students — Rick Harris, Mark Turner and John Duggan — are currently on tour with the choir. Each were members of the Pampa High School Concert Choir and of the Texas All-State Choir.

Admission charge is $1 for adults and 50 cents for students.

IN DRUG CASE

Guy Hardin Testifies As Defense Witness

DIST. ATTY. Guy Hardin, of 31st District Court, was one of the principal defense witnesses in a narcotics trial in Amarillo yesterday afternoon.

Hardin appeared as a witness in the case of 25-year-old Billy Calloway of Amarillo, charged with the sale of marijuana.

The 31st District attorney testified that Danny Murray, one of the undercover agents involved in the investigation that led to Calloway's arrest, was not to be believed.

Murray had previously testified for the prosecution that he bought a lid of marijuana from Calloway on last Aug. 17 in Calloway's home.

Hardin testified for the defense that Murray, who had been an undercover agent in the Pampa area, did not, in his opinion, have a good reputation for telling the truth.

In testimony that the jury did not hear, Hardin said that 21 grand jury indictments, which had resulted from Murray's work in Gray County, were dismissed because attorneys for those indicted had threatened to file motions questioning the indictments.

On the advice of Judge Grainger McIlhoney of the 31st District Court, the cases were submitted to another grand jury, which refused to indict the 21 persons.

Hardin testified that he recommended to the grand jury that the 21 be no-billed because several had proved that they were not where Murray had said they were when the alleged sales were made.

McIlhoney Supports Statement

Wednesday afternoon, District Judge Grainger McIlhoney made a statement regarding his rejection of a change of venue motion by Charles Fairweather, defense attorney for accused rapist Thomas Edwin Puryear.

"I just did not find the facts presented justified a change of venue. I feel Mr. Puryear can get a fair trial here in Pampa. It is as simple as that," McIlhoney said.

Fairweather had moved for the change of venue on what he termed adverse and voluminous references to the case on area television and in newspapers.

The case now is tentatively set for March 19. There is a murder case docketed for that date ahead of Puryear's trial and that must be tried first if it comes to court.

If there is such a delay in that case, the judge will hear the case against Puryear based on an alleged rape of an Oklahoma woman near Pampa in February, 1972.

By Oswald & James Jacoby
When the master point list was established in 1936 the late David Bruce was given the number one place. Dave was generally regarded as the best bidder of those early days and he was also quite a dummy player as may be seen from the way he handled this 4-3 trump fit in the 1935 Vanderbilt.

Dave's play at trick one is probably the first case of a classic coup. He refused to win the trick in order to retain trump control.

What's so unusual about that? Just look at the hand. Would you think of letting East hold the first trick?

After this unusual play East was helpless. There was no way to keep Dave from drawing trump and setting up dummy's long suits.

In the actual play Dave made an overtrick since East led a second heart.

Dave ruffed in dummy. Then he played the king of trumps and led a diamond. East ducked and Dave was on lead. He pulled the last trump while discarding two clubs from dummy. Then he went back to diamonds.

East held off until the third lead and then had to either lead a heart to allow Dave to discard the queen of clubs on his ace or a club away from his king.

New Food Experiences For Baby

COLLEGE STATION — Although baby can't live on milk forever, ideas vary on when to start adding solid foods to his diet.

Frances L. Reasonover, foods and nutrition specialist, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University, cited the current trend as starting between the first six to eight weeks.

"Opinions, however, vary from a few days to four months of age," she noted.

"An infant, in fact, can digest and utilize solid foods even during his first few days of life."

The specialist maintained that solid foods, as any other new food, should be added gradually. Usually, they're first introduced at the night feeding.

Precooked cereals are the first addition. Cereals are enriched with B-vitamins and iron—found in small amounts or lacking in milk.

At first, Miss Reasonover warned, "a baby may have some difficulty moving solid food around in his mouth and then swallowing it, so it should be diluted with milk or water."

"Before long, baby will learn to handle this new experience—to manipulate and swallow." After cereals, pureed fruits and vegetables may be added—generally between the ages of one and four months.

"As before, feed only a small amount and increase gradually. To provide new flavors and textures, serve a variety of fruits and vegetables."

"If a certain one is refused, then substitute."

"Food habits are formed very early in life," Miss Reasonover explained, "so parents should promote pleasant and happy experiences with food. For example, they should show pleasure when tasting baby's food." After fruits and vegetables are well-established in the diet, add egg yolks and strained or pureed meat.

"Both are excellent sources of iron," the specialist continued. "Iron becomes increasingly necessary after the infant is three months of age."

Egg whites are usually withheld because during the first year many infants are allergic to them.

Certain foods serve additional purposes. Toast and crackers, for example, help train baby to chew his food. Later, they are considered "finger foods" and are easily managed by baby when learning to feed himself.

"By three months of age, baby should be receiving a variety of foods from the four basic food groups."

If there is an "average diet," a one-year-old will consume the following daily: three to four cups of milk, one whole egg and two tablespoons meat, poultry or fish.

Also, two tablespoons each of potatoes and green leafy or yellow vegetables, one medium orange or 1/4 to 1/2 cup tomato juice, 1/4 cup other fruit, 1/4 cup cereal, 1/4 to one slice of bread, one teaspoon margarine and vitamin D supplements.

As a sample menu utilizing these foods, baby might have cereal, egg, toast and milk for breakfast. Lunch could include potato, meat, fruit and milk while dinner might consist of cereal, fruit and milk.

Orange juice, crackers or toast may serve as snacks, the specialist concluded.

More than 7,000 varieties of apples have been grown and named, including hundreds in the United States alone.

Inflation Pressure Still Exists

NEW YORK (AP) — Pocket-book problems are going to be big news in coming months, and don't be surprised if some tempers are tested beyond the breaking point. Yours, George Meany or maybe even the President's temper.

The fact is that there is still a lot of inflationary thrust beneath consumer prices, especially for food, and there isn't much that can be done at the moment to prevent further rises in the next few weeks and months.

Administration spokesmen concede their inability to bring quick relief from rising food prices by increasing the supply. And it is unlikely that families will reduce the pressures by lowering their consumption.

The unhappy situation is directly at odds with the goal of price stability that President Nixon has sought through fundamental fiscal and monetary changes. Short of admitting failure, his only option is direct intervention.

More than once in recent days the President has reminded listeners that he can act directly — that he has a "big stick" in the closet. It is "totally wrong" to assume controls have ended, he said in a radio address.

There is the likelihood also that the family shopper will be tempted to take direct action, although her power is limited to boycotts, protests and the like. But voluntarily lower her family's standard of living? No.

Whereas a housewife can pare her budget for clothing, transportation and entertainment, she can lower the quantity or quality of food served to her family only with a great deal of anguish over their health.

The frustration will be made even less tolerable by the expectation that wages will be restrained, if only through psychology rather than controls. And this surely will test the temper of Meany, the AFL-CIO leader.

Meany already has warned that organized labor "will push wages up unless prices come down." Since there is little chance that prices will fall, a Meany-Nixon confrontation could put the big stick policy to its first big test.

About the only certain relief in sight for workers are the big refund checks from the Internal Revenue Service that are going out to hundreds of thousands of workers who failed to adjust their withholding forms last year.

These checks, however, are a one-time blessing and inflation is a continuing curse.

Could it be the farmer who will be most severely tested? While farm prices have been rising very sharply, the amount of the food dollar that goes to farmers is still well below what it was 25 years ago.

Still, because of the direction in which farm prices have been moving, it is likely that pressure will build for food price relief at the source, the farm.

Some trying days are ahead for budgeteers, and if there is any escape it isn't highly visible now. Meatless days, perhaps?

Constitution Group's Composition Hit

AUSTIN (AP) — Five House members-all from Houston—have signed a petition to reject the 37 members appointed to the Texas Constitutional Revision Commission Saturday by six top state officials.

No senators have signed the petition. Three Houston Republicans, Reps. Bill Blythe, Ray Barnhart and Don Henderson, signed, in addition to Reps. Mickey Leland and Ben. T.

Reyes, both Houston Democrats. Leland is a black.

The commission appointments take effect March 9 unless the petition is signed by 16 senators and 76 representatives, a majority of each chamber of the legislature.

Blythe issued a statement saying he signed the petition because "the commission is not representative of the philosophical or political characteristics of the State of Texas."

Harris County is the largest Republican metropolitan area in the State of Texas and has not one Republican representative serving on the commission. In analyzing the philosophical makeup, it is obvious that the commission is overwhelmingly liberal oriented," Blythe said.

He said that Speaker Price Daniel Jr. and Atty. Gen. John Hill "labored to no avail" to put a Harris County Republican on the commission by voting for Bill Cox, former president of the Conservative Club.

The commission was chosen Saturday by Daniel, Hill, Gov. Dolph Briscoe, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, Presiding Judge John F. Olson of the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals and Chief Justice Joe Greenhill of the Texas Supreme Court.

Thick folds of skin over their ears shut out the water when alligators and crocodiles are below the surface.

Vincent Price To Lecture At West Texas U.

CANYON — Vincent Price, villainous aristocrat of Hollywood films and in real life one of the world's best known bon vivants, will lecture at West Texas State University Friday night.

His 8 p.m. appearance in the Activities Center ballroom is under auspices of the WTSU Special Programs Committee.

Born in St. Louis, Price's initial aim in life, he says, was to become a teacher and collector of art, an aim stimulated by his purchase of a Rembrandt etching when he was only 12 years old.

He attended the Country Day School in St. Louis and went on to major in art at Yale University. He continued his studies at London University while working toward a master's degree.

While in London he satisfied another artistic interest—the theatre. His first major role was in "Victoria Regina," which was later brought to New York by Gilbert Miller. Price returned to the U.S. with the company to play Prince Consort Albert opposite Helen Hayes as Victoria.

Since then, Price has been a leading film, television and stage star. He has starred in more than 100 films, among the best known of which are "Song of Bernadette," "Laura," "Dragonwyck," "House of Seven Gables," "Ten Commandments" and "Story of Mankind."

It was as a guest on the late Edward R. Murrow's "Person to Person" program that a nationwide audience was introduced to Vincent Price, the art connoisseur. A patron of several contemporary American artists, as well as a collector of major works, Price writes a weekly arts column for the Sunday Chicago Tribune.

He has received an honorary doctor's degree from the California College of Arts and Crafts, and an LL.D. from Ohio Wesleyan University. He is on the board of the archives of American Arts, on the national committee of the Whitney Museum of American Art in New York and a member of the Royal Academy of Arts in England and the Art Council of the University of California.

He has been narrator with such musical groups as the St. Louis Symphony, the Roger Wagner Chorale and the El Paso Symphony. In addition, he is an amateur archaeologist and anthropologist.

Tickets for his WTSU appearance are priced at $2 for adults and $1 for non-WTSU students. Students, faculty and staff at WTSU may obtain tickets without charge.

Government Blames Farm Prices For Increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department said Wednesday that higher farm prices were entirely to blame for last month's record 2.5-per-cent increase in supermarket food costs. Beef and pork prices hit record highs; eggs were up to 18 per cent.

Middlemen, including those who buy farm products, transform them into retail items and sell to consumers, actually absorbed part of the January increase, the department said in a report.

Translated into annual terms, a "market basket" of food— theoretically enough to feed a typical family for an entire year—cost a record $1,375 in January. That was $37 more than the annual rate in December.

The 2.5-per-cent increase for the market basket was the largest since the government began gauging costs of take-home groceries in 1952.

The "farm value," or a farmer's share of what consumers pay for food, was $588 in January, up $40 from December. The middleman took $787 in January, down $3 from December.

Compared with a year earlier, the January market basket cost $102 more, including a boost of $85 for farmers and $17 for middlemen.

The report dealt only with retail food items which originate on U.S. farms. Imported products and seafood are not included in the market-basket calculations.

The department two weeks ago predicted that supermarket food prices for all of 1973 may go up 6 to 6.5 per cent, with the pressure on consumers expected to ease later in the year as more livestock and other products move to market.

Meantime, the report showed that prices advanced in January for most of the basic food needed by family meal-planners.

"Substantially higher prices for beef, pork, poultry, eggs and fresh vegetables accounted for most of the rise."

Meat as a group accounts for nearly 30 per cent of the average family's grocery bill, according to government economists.

Men, Beware Of Girls Who...

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — What kind of a girl should a man marry?

That isn't too hard to figure out. A man should marry the girl he's in love with and can get along with, and who loves him and can get along with him.

What kind of girl should a man avoid marrying? Any other kind.

But he should be at special pains to avoid marrying the kind of girl who—

- Spends more on her hair than he does on his entire wardrobe.
- Thinks being "a mere housewife" — as she calls it — is somehow degrading.
- Feels a husband should wash his own socks.
- Takes pride in the fact she doesn't cook well and has no desire to learn.
- Can't keep a home looking reasonably tidy as well as lived-in.
- Can't keep from keeping a home unreasonably tidy.
- Expects to dole out his lunch money every day instead of once a week.
- Is so wasteful her husband will have to throw out two sacks of garbage every night.
- Doesn't think any comic strips are ever funny.
- Vows that the first thing she'll do when she marries a man is reform him.
- Keeps her fingernails twice the normal length and broods for days if she breaks one.
- Never thinks it is fun to get wet in a sudden summer rain.
- Believes her relatives invariably show more character than his do.
- Would rather play with an old doll than a new baby.
- Would rather start a new war with her mother-in-law than keep an uneasy truce.
- Serves either too many leftovers or never serves any at all.
- Thinks all men are really "just little boys — and bad little boys at that."
- Spends most of her time proving she can play bridge better than any other woman in town.
- Is secretly ashamed that the diamond in her engagement ring isn't as big as she'd like it to be.
- Expects her husband to come straight home on paydays with his uncashed paycheck in his mouth — but wouldn't think of ever greeting him at the door with his house slippers in her mouth.
- Thinks an article like this is too ridiculous for words, because, "after all, let's be serious — what man ever knew anything about women in the first place, now really?"

Shook Tire Co. Bought By Baldt

Sale of Shook Tire Co. a Texas chain of 15 retail-wholesale tire stores and two wholesale stores in 16 cities, including the Pampa store at 220 N. Somerville, has been announced by Melvin C. Shook, president.

Purchaser of the far-flung tire organization is Baldt Corporation of New York City, a diversified manufacturer of industrial products. John Moran is chairman of the board and president of Baldt, a publicly-owned corporation which is controlled by Dyson-Kissner Corporation, also of New York City.

Consideration involved in the sale was not disclosed. Terms of the sale also provide that certain of the present store locations are to be retained by Shook Realty Co., in turn being leased to Shook Supply.

"For those of us who spent all, or part, of 42 years doing business and building what many call the largest tire dealership in Texas, the decision to sell Shook Tire Company was not an easy one," said Melvin Shook. "However, we felt it was to the best interests of our personnel and to the future of the company to take this move."

John A. Moran, chairman of the board and president of Baldt Corp., stated that the acquisition of Shook Tire Co., which will be operated as a wholly-owned subsidiary of Baldt Corp., under the name of Shook Supply Co. Inc., will mark Baldt's entry into a new line of business.

Moran further stated that the tire distribution business represents an attractive opportunity for Baldt to develop a broader revenue and earnings base, with what he believes to be significant expansion opportunities.

In connection with the sale, Shook Supply Co. Inc. has been formed as a Delaware corporation authorized to do business in Texas.

Melvin Shook is president of the new corporation; Ray Shook, San Angelo, is vice president in charge of operations; M.C. Shook, Jr., San Antonio, is vice president and supervisor of Southern Zone stores; and G.V. (Jerry) Fulton, Lubbock, is vice president and supervisor of Northern Zone stores.

Retail outlets are located in Pampa, San Angelo, Abilene, Amarillo, Brownfield, Brownwood, Hereford, Lamesa, Littlefield, Lubbock, Muleshoe, Odessa, Plainview and Sweetwater. Wholesale outlets are in Dallas and San Antonio.

B.F. Dorman is manager of the Pampa store. No local personnel changes are planned.

Television And Radio

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — "Honor Thy Father" is a huge, well-researched book by Gay Talese. It's about New York's Cosa Nostra, its various "family" squabbles and the resulting thumps of falling bodies. The book has been fashioned into a two-hour movie that airs tonight on the CBS Television network. For some viewers, this may be an offer they can refuse. Others may give it a try if they've enjoyed Talese's fine, real-life account of the affairs of Salvatore "Bill" Bonanno and his father, Joseph "Joe Bananas" Bonanno, the latter listed in government files in 1963 as head of his own Cosa Nostra family here.

But a warning: After movies like "The Godfather" and "The Valachi Papers," "Honor Thy Father" comes across as just another Italian "Our Gang" tragedy.

It is suggested, should you watch it, that you have a copy of the Talese book at the ready.

It's a necessity if you are to keep track of the assorted "family" references that zip by faster than one can say feticini.

The show's composers try to keep things together with an off-screen narrator, Joseph Campanella, who periodically describes who is fleeing, fighting or fooling around with whom.

It's of little help. The correct note is sounded by a peace delegate from the big boys who, upon facing Joseph Bonanno's small army at a parking lot meeting, asks: "What's going on here?"

There also are scenes of men dying of heart failure attributed to pistol and submachine gun bullets in their persons. And so it goes, not all of it violent, until the Bonanno empire is whittled down. The final whittle involves the use of a credit card that puts Salvatore Bonanno in jail for four years. The movie was an ambitious project, but it seems too familiar, too long and too disjointed. It was shot on location in New York, and after seeing it I wish New York had shot back.

Wallace's Brother Accused

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — The Grievance Committee of the Alabama Bar Association has accused Gov. George C. Wallace's brother, Gerald, and two other lawyers of unethical conduct in the handling of bond issues for the state. The Associated Press has learned. In a report to the association's Board of Commissioners, which has authority to take disciplinary action, the committee charges that Gerald Wallace, state Rep. Rankin Fite and bond lawyer Alfred Rose improperly split $280,000 in fees paid by the state for legal work on two bond issues.

The charges contain no allegation of federal or state law violation, only the contention that the handling of the issues was unethical.

Gerald Wallace and Fite declined to comment on the committee action. Rose could not be reached.

Proceedings before the grievance committee are confidential, and the members who made the report have refused to discuss it. So have members of the Board of Commissioners and officials of the bar association.

But it became known 16 months ago that the committee was investigating the payment of the bond fees. Publisher-editor Harold Martin of The Montgomery Advertiser-Alabama Journal was questioned by the committee after he reported that Fite and the governor's brother received part of the $280,000 paid to rose. Gerald Wallace $20,000.

The complaint filed by the committee after its investigation charged that Rose, a Birmingham bond lawyer, paid Fite $60,000 and that Fite in turn gave Gerald Wallace $20,000.

The fees were paid to Rose for work done on a $116 million school bond issue authorized by the legislature in 1965 and a $160 million road bond issue approved in 1967.

WORRY CLINIC

Tony's dad was a rational patient but needed the simple medical facts below. Alas, too many doctors enjoy "throwing their weight around" in long, jawbreaker terms. But the art of persuasion involves being fully understood by patients, prospects and parishioners.

CASE W.540: Tony G., aged 20, asks some shrewd medical questions.

"Dr. Crane," he began, "my father is 52 years old and a victim of heart attacks."

"So I have reminded him of your advice about rapid deep breathing whenever he feels pain in his chest."

"And our doctor has given him nitroglycerine tablets to take if he feels any symptoms of an oncoming seizure."

"But I find that he is swallowing the pills."

"Yet our physician told him to hold them under his tongue and thus let them be absorbed directly into the blood."

"Dad argues that it doesn't make any difference, so can you give me some specific facts to prove my point?"

MEDICAL PSYCHOLOGY
Tony is wise in wanting specific medical facts.

For that's the best way to persuade his dad, or sell merchandise or teach or keep an audience fascinated.

If you place nitroglycerine tablets under the tongue and thus let them be absorbed directly into the blood, they go directly to the heart.

But if you swallow nitroglycerine pills, they first reach the stomach and intestines, where they soon pass into the liver and are destroyed there.

Chances of gaining custody of grandson slim

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1972 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My 29-year-old daughter recently divorced her husband. Bernice has a four-year-old son who is staying with me while his mother is off on a weekend trip.

I just found out Bernice went on this trip with her boyfriend, which is something I do not approve of. She has always been a respectable girl, and if this gets around, I'm afraid it will ruin her reputation and spoil her chances for marrying a nice man.

I am a 63-year-old widow. I own my own home and enjoy cooking and keeping house. More than anything else, I love my grandson and he loves staying with "Grandma." I could give him a wonderful home.

If I can obtain proof of my daughter's immoral conduct and prove her to be an unfit mother, what are my chances for gaining custody of my grandson?

CONCERNED GRANDMOTHER

DEAR CONCERNED: Are you concerned for your grandson or for yourself? I don't recommend pursuing your scheme. Your chances for gaining custody of your grandson are small, and should you lose, your daughter would probably never let you see him again.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is a nice guy, but he has lousy grammar. My problem is that my oldest child is in the first grade, and even though I've corrected her when she talks like her father, she has picked up some of his bad habits.

I hate to hurt my husband's feelings by correcting HIM in front of the kid, but if I don't, I'm afraid she will sound like he does, which is pretty bad. I would appreciate your advice.

STUCK MOMMY

DEAR MOMMY: Keep correcting HER, and don't worry about your husband. The good Lord seems to look after children in such circumstances. How else can we explain those who were reared in homes by parents with "lousy" grammar but speak beautifully?

DEAR ABBY: You had a letter in your column from a man who met an unwed mother. He said he had respect for her honesty and courage, and in his letter I found hope.

At this moment I am 18 years old, pregnant, and unmarried. My boyfriend, also 18, pledged his undying love for me and told me if he got me pregnant, he would marry me. He was the first and only man who ever touched me, and we planned to be married in a year.

Well, when I told him I was pregnant, he found one reason after another to postpone our marriage. Then he said he wasn't sure he was the father, and he stopped calling and coming to see me. Now he's seeing another girl.

I'm too far along to do anything but have the baby now, but, thank God, my family is standing by me. I am praying for a healthy baby and I hope some day I'll meet a man who won't hold this mistake against me.

Abby, please warn other girls who think they are in love to tell the boy that real love is protecting the girl and caring for her.

I don't want child support, and I don't want to see my boyfriend punished. Now I can see him for what he really is, and I want nothing more to do with him. After I have the baby I plan to finish my education and start a new life far from here.

I never thought this could happen to me. If you think it will help some other girl, you may print this, but sign it SHATTERED DREAMS

DEAR SHATTERED: Thank you for telling your story. I'm sure your letter will be read and remembered by many. God bless you and good luck.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69706, L. A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Lana Blocker Becomes Bride Of Ronnie Duck

The marriage of Lana Gail Blocker and Ronnie Lynn Duck was solemnized at 8:30 p.m. Feb. 2, in Lamar Full Gospel Assembly Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McCann, 713 Buckler, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Elvis Duck, 1005 S. Dwight.

THE CEREMONY
 Nat Lunsford officiated for the double-ring ceremony. Elmo Hudgins was organist, and Mr. and Mrs. Ronnie Barton sang, "Because," and "The Lord's Prayer."

The church was decorated with candelabra entwined with greenery, and two basket arrangements of gold gladioli. Pews were marked with gold bows.

THE BRIDE
 Given in marriage by Thomas McCann, the bride wore a formal gown of silk organza over bridal taffeta, designed with a fitted bodice of Venice lace overlay, a Victorian neckline, and sheer full sleeves caught at the wrists by deep lace cuffs.

The sheer skirt, gathered at the empire waistline, was enhanced with a monic ribbon sash. Her chapel length mantilla of illusion was edged in Venice lace and fell from an organza tiara. She carried a bouquet of yellow carnations with matching streamers.

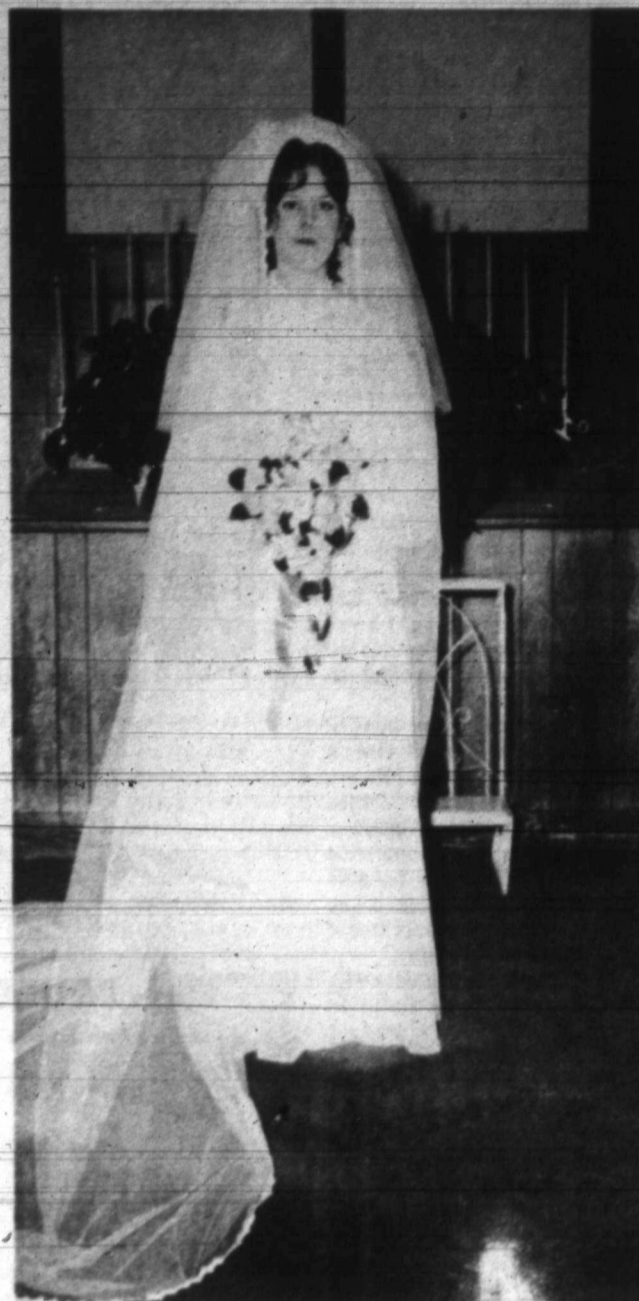

ATTENDANTS
 Ms. Kay Maghan, was matron of honor and bridesmaid was Renel Tigrett. They were attired in gold floor-length gowns and carried gold and orange flowers.

Serving as best man was Lakan Mariano. Groomsman was Wayne Bruce and ushers were Timmy Blocker and Bob Stueker. Scotty Barton served as ringbearer and Penny Summers was flower girl.

RECEPTION
 For the reception in the church hall, the serving table held an arrangement of gold flowers, flanked by two candelabra. The white-wedding cake was decorated with yellow roses and white lilies, topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom.

Jane Shaw, Mrs. Barton and Allen Keeton, assisted with the serving.

For the wedding trip to Amarillo, the bride traveled in blue and white velvet floor-length empire-styled dress trimmed with white lace. She lifted the corsage from her bridal bouquet. The couple will reside at 1116 S. Hobart.

The bridegroom is a Pampa High School graduate and is presently employed at Cabot Corp.

Mr. and Mrs. M.M. Keeton, Lubbock, and Mr. and Mrs. Lesley E. Brown and family, Amarillo, attended from out-of-town.

Tower Goes To Bat For Servicemen

By ROBERT ALLEN
WASHINGTON — One of the most influential leaders of the Senate is now actively participating in the intensifying drive for the recomputation of military retired pay.

Sen. John Tower, Tex., chairman of the Republican Policy Committee, is sponsoring a "compromise" recomputation bill—with the support of a bipartisan group of important Senators. They include:

Sens. Vance Harke, D-Ind., chairman of the Veterans Affairs Committee and author of the recomputation measure approved 82 to 4 by the Senate last fall; Robert Dole, Kans., former Republican National Chairman; Henry Bellmon, R-Okla.; Wallace Bennett, R-Utah; and Sam Nunn, D-Ga.

In addition to these significant factors, Tower's bill is also of special moment for the following reasons:

(1) As well as being a top GOP leader, Tower also exercises a lot of legislative weight. He is a ranking member of the Armed Services Committee, which has jurisdiction over recomputation legislation. This puts the able and forceful Texan in a key position to exert strategic pressure for the measure.

(2) His bill fits in neatly with the $360 million item in President Nixon's budget earmarked for recomputation. Cost of Tower's proposal would be considerably less than this allotted amount. Also the context of his "compromise" is in general similar to the formula favored by the administration.

(3) There are authoritative reports that Tower sponsored his measure following consultations at both the White House and Pentagon. Certainly he has direct access to them as an influential Senate leader and chairman of the Republican Policy Committee. It is therefore very likely that there is a definite connection between his bill and key administration authorities.

It is noteworthy that in presenting his measure to the Senate, Tower vigorously stressed that it is "legislation designed to rectify an inequity that has existed since 1958."

WHAT IT DOES
In effect, Sen. Tower's "compromise" sets up two categories of recomputation:

(1) Immediate recomputation for military retirees before 1958; (2) recomputation for retirees after that date when they reach the age of 60.

Asserted Tower: "This is a fair compromise. It will remove a grave injustice done our servicemen by Congress some 15 years ago."

Tower rejected as wholly inadequate the existing system of revising retired pay on the basis of the consumer price index, pointing out: "The trouble with that is that the CPI does not increase as rapidly as have active duty pay scales."

Similarly, he emphatically refuted the two major arguments against recomputation—high cost and early retirement.

"Some argue," said Tower, "that the costs of recomputation are too high. My bill tempers those costs by restricting recomputation to servicemen retired or in a career status at the time that retirement system was changed. It is this group of retirees that has the strongest case for restoration of recomputation for it can be misguidedly argued that those men joining after the retirement system was changed were not induced by the striken recomputation provisions."

Tower contends his proposal deals fairly and equitably with servicemen who retire after 20 years.

"Those who raise this issue," he said, "argue that these retirees can get another job and have not only retired pay but, in many cases, a quite reasonable salary besides. These opponents argue that to give these retirees recomputation in addition is an unnecessary waste of federal funds. My bill has a provision that recomputation will not take place until the age of 60, after the retiree has reached the end of his normal work life. It is precisely at this point that the additional income from recomputation will be most needed."

In addition to Tower's bill, some 23 other recomputation measures have been introduced in the two months this Congress has been in session—19 of them in the House.

Still to be scheduled are committee hearings on this long-pending issue.

The stage is definitely set for the later this year—with the necessary funds already earmarked in the President's budget.

"But Don't Get Any Other Ideas!"

BRUCE BLOSSAT Nixon Aide Klein's Future Elsewhere

By BRUCE BLOSSAT

WASHINGTON (NEA) — If he keeps to his indicated plans, Herbert Klein, President Nixon's communications director, will be leaving his post before much more time has passed. The move will break a link that has been little understood in recent years.

Not many people in this capital realize that the roots of the present story go all the way back to 1960, when Klein served as Mr. Nixon's press secretary in his first campaign for the presidency, against John Kennedy.

Mr. Nixon concluded then that not the least of his difficulties was that he got a "bad press." Anyone who remembers his celebrated, emotional lament two years later after he lost the California governorship, will recall that press treatment of him was the central theme.

Nothing he has done or said since that time suggests the President has wormed to the press or believes he is getting a fair shake. But Mr. Nixon is a learner, and he pays attention to criticism even as he evidences his resentment of it.

There is no way to know to what extent he really accepts any personal responsibility for his troublesome experiences in 1960 and 1962. But it is eminently clear from the record that he determined that in any future campaign things would be done differently.

Jules Witcover's admirable book, "The Resurrection of Richard Nixon," documents carefully the President's elaborate efforts in 1968 to accommodate to newsmen and capture their good will.

Whatever burden he took upon himself for the mishaps of 1960-62, it can also be said, however, that he did not choose to bear the whole load. He spread it around, and some of the blame was laid at Herb Klein's door. After all, it was he who was "handling" the press in Mr. Nixon's darkest hours.

I was told in 1968, on a confidential basis by a highly trustworthy source, that the President had decided very early that Klein never again would be his press secretary. I was told further that Mr. Nixon and certain aides searched some 11 months for a fitting candidate, before finally abandoning the "outside quest" and settling upon Ronald Ziegler, the present secretary.

For all his youth and evident inexperience, Ziegler's poised performance in that role during the campaign impressed Mr. Nixon. With maturity and four years' White House duty, Ziegler's skills in serving this particular president in the way he wants to be served have impressed nearly everybody—including dozens of skeptical newsmen.

At this point in the Klein story, a contradiction arises. I was informed that Mr. Nixon in 1968 had no particular wish to have Klein in his entourage at all, but out of old friendship took him aboard when Klein asked to join. Klein says flatly that Mr. Nixon's top aide, H.R. Haldeman, came to him and told him the President wanted him.

However that may be, Klein was not a central figure in the campaign. His post-election appointment as communications director was incorrectly appraised in many quarters as giving his "czar-like" powers over the whole administration press operation. It did not.

Energetic resourceful and perhaps imagining that Ziegler would not cut it, Klein made the most of his job. He built a sizable staff, dispensed widely a prodigious amount of pro-administration material, broke some log-jams for reporters who couldn't get to see some key figures made himself accessible to newsmen (who generally like him personally).

But the 1972 political-and-information operation under Charles Colson undercut Klein seriously. He appears to have decided that his future lies elsewhere.

Kidney Conserves Vital Elements

Dear Dr. Lamb — Please discuss renal threshold, particularly with respect to diabetes and its variations in time and in different people. Is there a pattern of change in the renal threshold according to age, duration of diabetes and from time factors?

Dear Reader—The kidney is a giant filtering plant for the body. When the body contains too much water the normal kidney will eliminate the excess. If our diet contains more salt than we need, the excess salt is eliminated by the kidney. If the blood glucose (commonly called blood sugar) rises too high the excess glucose is filtered out by the kidney.

At the same time, for the filtering mechanism to work properly, the kidney is set to conserve vital elements. If we're not drinking enough water the kidney quits eliminating water. If we don't eat enough salt, the kidney restricts the elimination of salt in the urine. In order to accomplish these complex mechanisms the kidney has a threshold level for most substances so that when an excess amount accumulates in the blood, it is eliminated.

Regarding blood glucose, the filter level is set at values of about 170 or 180. If the glucose level is greater than this, the excess glucose is eliminated. Normal people can have sugar in their urine by this method. If they eat a lot of sweets which are rapidly absorbed from the digestive tract the blood glucose level will rise sharply and above the 170 level of the renal threshold. The excess sugar is lost in the urine. The blood sugar returns to normal and after that the glucose is conserved and no more is eliminated in the urine.

People do have different renal thresholds for glucose and when people get older, particularly if they have associated kidney disease, the threshold for loss of glucose is raised. A person can have a high blood glucose level and be a severe diabetic and still not be spilling a lot of sugar in the urine. This problem is why doctors rely on blood sugar tests while they're actually doing the major-portion of regulating a diabetic. It is more reliable than using the urine test. Also there are some individuals who have a very low renal threshold and commonly tend to lose sugar in the urine though the blood sugar level has not become markedly elevated. This is a very rare condition, however.

In normal people, the renal threshold for eliminating blood sugar is fairly constant and doesn't vary much throughout the day or with time unless disease develops. The big change is in the level of the blood sugar which fluctuates in accordance with what's eaten and how the body handles it. When the blood sugar exceeds the threshold then it's eliminated and when it's below the threshold, it is conserved.

Inside Washington

Is Justice Ailing? Reports Denied by Douglas' Friends
By Robert S. Allen

WASHINGTON — Sources closed to Justice William O. Douglas categorically deny it, but reports persist that he is "ailing."

While accounts of the nature and extent of the reported illness are rather conflicting and hazy, they do relate to the long-standing cardiac condition of the 74-year-old radical jurist.

Some five years ago, a battery-powered heart pacemaker was implanted in his side by specialists at the Army's Walter Reed Hospital. At regular intervals, he returns there to be examined and have the device checked and recharged.

No military veteran, Douglas enjoys free medical care and treatment at Walter Reed as a VIP—paying only a nominal per diem bed-and-board service charge.

As a member of the Supreme Court, he gets $80,000 a year for life.

Outwardly Douglas evinces no sign of being sick. On the bench, his face appears somewhat thinner and more drawn, but this may be due to medication or dieting. On physician's orders he adheres to an austere regime to keep weight down.

One thing is certain about the leftist jurist: he will give up his militant crusading role on the tribunal only if seriously incapacitated—a stroke or other crippling impairment.

He will not voluntarily retire despite his advanced age and evident physical decline.

Several months ago, Douglas went out this way to make that known when long-time congressional critics indicated intention to renew efforts to investigate his extra-judicial activities—particularly those involving his heading a foundation with Las Vegas gambling properties.

For this moonlighting job, from 1960 to 1969, he got $12,000 a year plus expenses. Douglas defiantly put out word he would have considered retiring if McGovern had been elected, but emphatically not with President Nixon continuing in office.

Still Brewing
The plan to seek another investigation of Douglas is waiting for House Democrats to finish their long-drawn-out so-called "reform of the rules."

Congress has been in session two months, but this loudly-touted shake-up is still to be completed. One reason for the protracted delay is rank-and-file indifference and apathy.

Repeatedly, Democratic caucuses have had to be abandoned because of lack of quorums, not enough of the "faithful" bothered to show up.

Also, the rules changes so far adopted are inconsequential and of no real moment.

Aim of Rep. Joe Waggoner, D-La., leader of the proposed Douglas investigation, is the creation of a special bipartisan "commission" to study the various charges against the radical jurist's extra-judicial business activities and connections.

If justified by the findings of the probe, impeachment proceedings would be instituted.

Douglas hurriedly quit his lucrative moonlighting operations, particularly with the Parvin Foundation, after they came to light—following the forced resignation of his close liberal friend Justice Abe Fortas, because of a highly irregular outside financial arrangement.

Mrs. Cathy Douglas, the jurist's 28-year-old fourth wife, is trying to get a job with the U.S. District Attorney in Washington. It pays $10,000.

A few weeks ago she applied for it after passing the bar examination several months ago. She has no legal experience, and presumably would handle only minor matters. She stressed she would abstain from any case that might go to the Supreme Court.

Under an act passed by the last Congress, the pension of Supreme Court widows was increased to $10,000 from $5,000 a year.

WHAT THE GOOD LORD GIVETH SHOULD NOT BE TAKEN AWAY

That's the caption of a brief item in the Congressional Record that rocked the House with hilarity when sarcastically declared by its author—Rep. Wayne Hays, D-Ohio, witty chairman of the Administration Committee and a ranking member of the Foreign Affairs Committee.

The sarcastically mocking incident (unreported in the media) involved Rep. Donald Riegle, Mich., officially a Republican but ideologically a New Left Democrat. He talks like a militant Democrat, votes that way and no Democrat is more caustically critical of the President than Riegle.

Recently, he leaked to liberal (Eastern) newsmen that he was going to change party affiliation and join the Democrats. He intimated he had assurances the "delighted" Democrats would allow him to keep his prized Appropriations Committee seat.

Alas and alack, the bombastic young Michigander was very wrong about that.

It turned out that the hot political scoop was actually only a trial balloon, and that the Democrats were markedly indifferent to his joining them and definitely had promised him nothing.

In fact, some party leaders were flatly against his changing political ties.

Foremost among them was Rep. Hays, moderate in viewpoint but a sizzler in rhetoric. Taking the House floor and looking directly at Republican leader Gerald Ford, Mich., Hays with simulated anguish pleaded with him not to "infect" Riegle on the Democrats.

While Hays' colleagues listened with undisguised relish, he sarcastically orated:

"I want to implore the Republican side of the House to try to dissuade Mr. Riegle from switching parties. We in the majority have treated you fellows pretty nice, so I don't see why you want to inflict him upon us. After all it is said and done, we have enough troubles of our own, and I don't think you ought to send any of your troubles over on our side."

"We had a couple of switches around here a few years ago, and somebody said at that time the Lord giveth and the Lord taketh away, blessed be the name of the Lord. Well, this time I just hope, since the Lord gave him to you, that He keeps him over there and you do all you can to keep him, too."

Shouted one Democratic legislator fervently from the rear, "Amen, brother, amen!"

Diamond Crew To Open In Anadarko

"Inexperienced" is the word Coach Jim White uses to describe the 1973 Harvester baseball team as it prepares to open the current season tomorrow in Anadarko, Okla. Pampa will also play a double-header there Saturday.

The 25 man squad has only four seniors on it and only three players on the team saw regular duty last year. They are first baseman Bill Simon, right fielder Rick Musgrave and second baseman A.J. Brewer.

Simon and Brewer were both on the Harvester basketball team that just finished its season last Saturday and have not been able to work out until this week.

The pitching staff is extremely short on experience, having no seniors at all on it. None of the pitchers on the team this year have ever thrown in a high school game.

Catcher is also a possible weakness. Bobby Hendricks was a squad man at that position last year but he saw little action playing behind all-district performer Dale Ammons. White is therefore justly concerned about the battery, but he has been encouraged by the attitude and enthusiasm of all the players out for the team.

"We are capable of having a good, quick defensive team but because of the inexperience we're going to be real weak on the mound," he said. "We've had real good practices and effort when the weather permitted."

Seniors out for the team are: Simon, Brewer, Musgrave and Mike Robbins. Robbins transferred to Pampa High from Lefors last fall and has never played high school baseball before.

Juniors out are: Ricky Bigman, Toddy Black, Gary Davis, Tony Frogge, Hendricks, Jack King, Steve Lockett, Terry Moore, Keith Samples, Ricky Smith, Alvin Stokes and Joe Watkins.

Pritchett Will Have Surgery

CANYON, Tex. — Billy Pritchett, West Texas State's standout running back, will undergo surgery Friday to correct an injury to his right knee.

Pritchett, who was named to the All-Missouri Valley Conference first team two years ago, injured his knee in the Bulls' sixth game of the season this past fall. He earned second team all-MVC honors despite missing the final four games.

"As we had plenty of time to work on Billy's knee, we felt it would be better to wait as long as possible before an operation," said head coach Gene Mayfield. "We have had Billy on an exercise program and that is always better if a knee will respond as well as it should. It is now time to operate."

Pritchett, 6-4 and 247 pounder who runs the 40-yard dash in 4.6, will miss spring practice because of the operation, but is expected to be at full strength next fall for his senior season.

"We won't miss Billy in spring training as we already know he is a quality running back and it will give us a chance to look at some other backs," said Mayfield. "Billy has proven himself to be one of the nation's better backs and it shouldn't hurt his season to miss the spring practice."

Pritchett will undergo surgery in an Amarillo hospital.

In order to get a better idea about the players' abilities, White plans to use two different teams in Anadarko.

Friday's starting lineup will be composed of Hendricks at catcher; either Davis or Morris at pitcher; first baseman Robbins; second baseman Bigman; Stokes at third, shortstop Black; King in left field; Musgrave in right; and Frogge in centerfield.

Beginning the double-header Saturday will be Drinnon or Willett catching; Edmondson or Lockett pitching; Moore at first; Quarles at second; Morris at third and Adair at short.

In the outfield, Smith will be in left, Watkins in center and Davis in right.

Including the games tomorrow and Saturday in Anadarko, the Harvesters will play nine non-district games (excluding tournament play).

They will participate in two tournaments—the Top O' Texas Tournament in Pampa next Saturday and in Hereford March 15-16.

The Harvesters will begin a 10-game district schedule March 30 against Caprock.

Basketball Roundup

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

When Seattle SuperSonics Coach Bucky Buckwalter was asked about his team's defense against the Milwaukee Bucks that sagged on Kareem Abdul-Jabbar Wednesday night and backfired, he said, "You give up and they take it somewhere else. They moved the ball well to get it to their strength."

"Their strength," better known as Abdul-Jabbar, scored 26 points and led the Bucks to a 124-110 National Basketball Association victory over the SuperSonics.

The Bucks also received 24 points from Bob Dandridge and Curtis Perry and Lucius Allen both added 21.

Perry, who had missed 10 games with a badly sprained ankle and returned to action Sunday, led the Bucks in rebounds with 13.

"We were concerned with his condition because he was out so long, but he was outstanding," Coach Larry Costello said.

"My timing was off, especially on defense," Perry said.

In other NBA action, Philadelphia beat Baltimore 102-96. Boston edged Golden State 118-111 and Kansas City-Omaha edged Phoenix 109-107. The SuperSonics opened a four-point lead in the third period before the Bucks pulled ahead to stay at 88-84 on two Oscar Robertson baskets with a minute remaining.

Spencer Haywood of Seattle led both clubs with 36 points. Teammate Fred Brown, with a 12.4 point per game average, added 25.

Don May and Fred Carter scored clutch baskets in the final period and helped the 76ers defeat the Bulls.

May scored 11 of his 15 points and Carter collected eight of the last 10 Philadelphia points in the final period as the 76ers won their ninth game of season against 60 defeats.

It was the fifth victory in the last seven games for the resurgent 76ers.

In the American Basketball Association, New York beat Memphis 115-108. Kentucky blasted Virginia 117-97. Carolina topped Denver 104-96 and Indiana beat San Diego 109-106.

Bearcats First

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Sam Houston State continues to rule as king of the college division.

In the next-to-the-last Associated Press poll released Wednesday, the Bearcats were voted an overwhelming No. 1 by a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters.

The top-ranked club puts its 25-0 record on the line tonight against St. Mary's of Texas in the post-season district playoffs of the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics.

Sam Houston State captured all but one of the first-place votes for 216 points and a healthy margin over runner-up Augustana, 111, with 178.

Philadelphia Textile, ranked fifth last week, moved up two spots to No. 3 while Stephen F. Austin dropped a spot to No. 4.

Assumption, Mass., which received the only other first-place vote, dropped a notch to No. 5.

The rest of this week's Top Ten includes Roanoke, Wisconsin-Eau Claire, Kentucky State, Akron and Louisiana Tech.

Right fielder Cesar Geromimo of the Cincinnati Reds batted .220 in 94 games with Houston in 1971. This year, Cesar hit .275 in 120 games for the Reds.

Suspense Will End

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The suspense ends today for several college basketball teams seeking a spot in post-season tournaments.

In some cases, the mystery is not who's going—but where.

The National Collegiate Athletic Association extends the first bids today and such powerhouses as Marquette, Providence and Houston no doubt will be invited to the prestigious post-season party.

After the NCAA skims off the cream of the independents, the National Invitation Tournament will make the first of its selections.

Invitations go out from NCAA headquarters in Kansas City by telephone at 9:30 a.m. campus times. Two hours later, the NIT begins calling from New York.

Only the independents will be selected by the NCAA since the rest of the berths will be filled by yet-to-be-decided conference champions. Predictably, the NIT will keep several spots open for some conference runners-up.

While fifth-ranked Marquette, 22-2, No. 7 Providence, 20-3, have obviously earned berths to compete for the NCAA's national championship, several other teams are walking tightropes between the two tournaments.

Terms Unanimously Accepted

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Marvin Miller and 22 of the 24 player representatives met in Miami Wednesday and the reps agreed unanimously to the terms of the recent agreement with baseball's owners.

While they were signing autographs in Miami, players from the 24 major league teams were autographing their 1973 contracts and some were not.

The New York Mets lack only one autograph, Rusty Staub's, from completing their 1973 roster. Wayne Garrett and Ken Boswell agreed to terms Wednesday to narrow the field to one. Staub and General Manager Bob Scheffing are dickering over what Scheffing calls "a small thing." He added "at least I think it's small, but Rusty doesn't."

Catcher Thurman Munson accepted a $50,000 contract from the New York Yankees and five other Yankees came into the fold. Those dissatisfied with their contracts include outfielders Bobby Murcer and Roy White, pitchers Sparky Lyle, Fritz Peterson, and Steve Kline, and infielders Bernie Allen and Gene Michael.

Second baseman Joe Morgan and first baseman Tony Perez signed their 1973 contracts leaving only eight Cincinnati Reds left unsigned. Among them are outfielder Pete Rose and pitcher Ross Grimsley.

Veteran Detroit Tiger Norm Cash signed his contract for a reported raise, leaving only catcher Duke Sims and Pitcher Fred Scherman unsigned.

Pitchers Tommy John and Claude Osteen signed their contracts with the Los Angeles Dodgers, leaving pitcher Don Sutton and outfielder Willie Crawford as the club's only unsigned players.

Nine Chicago White Sox remained unsigned as Carlos May signed his new contract for a reported $70,000.

Carlton Fisk, the American League's rookie of the year, signed his 1973 contract with the Boston Red Sox. Pitcher Sonny Siebert also inked his new contract leaving only Marty Patin out of the fold.

The Minnesota Twins have twelve players still unsigned.

Jose Napoles Dispels Doubts

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — World welterweight boxing champion Jose Napoles dispelled any thoughts he might be a candidate for a rocking chair when he smashed a wicked right uppercut to the head of Ernie "Indian Red" Lopez.

The challenger first went up into the air and then flat on his back for a full two minutes—a knockout victim of the Cuban refugee in one minute 36 seconds of the seventh round.

They had been crowded for 15 before a Forum ticket of 17,176, which paid a gross $185,817.

Lopez had opened two cuts on the Napoles face but the man who soon will be 33 years old didn't worry. He had Angelo Dundee, the trainer of Muhammad Ali, in his corner to treat the cuts and Angelo did his job.

In the seventh, Napoles exploded a left hook that put half of the Lopez face to sleep and then came on with two quick uppercuts.

Spring Sports To Get In Full Swing

The Pampa girl's volleyball team plays host to Berger tonight in District I-AAAA play. Pampa is currently 2-1 in district, 1 game behind three Amarillo schools: Amarillo High, Caprock and Tascosa. They each stand 3-1.

"Tomorrow finds Pampa's boys golf team in Amarillo at the Southwest Golf Course there for District 3-AAAA's second round.

Pampa's golfers are presently in seventh place in the league with 343 total strokes. Amarillo High leads with 323.

The PHS girl's golf team, in its first season, will host a tournament at the Pampa Country Club Friday.

The Harvester tennis team will travel to Perryton tomorrow for matches there.

Pampa's track team will get its season underway Saturday as it hosts its own Top O' Texas Meet at Randy Matson Track.

The team was originally slated to start the current campaign last Saturday in Plainview, but the bad conditions of the track there caused Coach Ed Lehnick to withdraw the team from the meet.

Water was standing on the cinder track at Wayland Baptist College's track and Lehnick did not want to risk injury to any of his athletes.

Teams entered in this year's meet are Pampa, Tascosa, Berger, Dumas, Perryton, Plainview and Hereford.

Rodnina Wins 5th

BRATISLAVA, Czechoslovakia (AP) — Bewitching Irina Rodnina of the Soviet Union skated off with her fifth consecutive world pairs title pairs gold medal Wednesday as a temperamental American brother and sister turned the 1973 Figure Skating Championships into an uproar.

The tiny brunette Miss Rodnina and her new partner Alexander Zaitsev put on a new nearly flawless free skating exhibition, skating more than two minutes of their routine without music, which ended abruptly when a power failure cut off an electric recorder.

U.S. teen-agers Melissa and Mark Militano shocked skating officials and the capacity crowd of 11,000 by twice stopping their routine to make protests.

In their first protest, less than a minute into their routine, the Dix Hills, N.Y., pair shouted that their recorded music was being played too fast.

They tried again, but broke off just as abruptly when their apparently losing their balance—a slip they said was caused by litter on the ice.

Their third try went off without a hitch and they finished eighth over-all but Melissa confessed later that the incident had taken the edge off their performance.

American hopes for a gold medal had been shattered earlier Wednesday when ace solo skater Janet Lynn fell twice in a short program and ruined her chances for the title.

A BIG MACHINE—Lee-Tex Machinery, located on the Borger highway west of the city, recently purchased a 57,000 lb. boring mill at a cost of $22,500. Largest in the Panhandle and one of the largest in the Southwest, the machine can bore up to a 96-inch hole and comes with 3, 5 and 7-inch boring bars, with two facing bars and a steady rest. It was made by Ingersoll-Rand of Philadelphia and was shipped on two separate trucks.

Fast-Talking Texan Wooing Demos

Editors—New chairmen are in charge at the Democratic and Republican national committees. In this, the first of two stories on the party leaders, AP Political Writer Carl P. Leubsdorf reports on the take-charge efforts of the Democrats' new man, Robert Strauss.

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF
AP Political Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Robert S. Strauss, the fast-talking Texan who heads the Democratic National Committee, has spent most of the past two months trying to get Democrats of different shades under the same umbrella—and talking to one another.

"It doesn't do any good to get under the umbrella unless you communicate once you get there," he said in an interview at his Watergate office. "If you're going to kneel and elbow and kick when you're under the umbrella, then you're better off

Another part of the story is the resistance of what Strauss calls "a small, hard-core group" of critics who oppose his chairmanship.

Strauss said he isn't going to worry about them.

His next step is to announce this week a party advisory council, expected to have on it the likes of Daley, Wallace, Mondale, Kennedy and Ford, plus the George McGovern, Hubert H. Humphreys, Edmund S. Muskie and Shirley Chisholm.

Wooing elected Democrats, many of whom felt they were left out of party activities in 1972 as the youthful legions of Sen. George McGovern swept to control and, ultimately, electoral disaster, has been a major Strauss goal.

Other steps the 51-year-old chairman has taken include:—An effort to improve relations among the national committee. Democratic governors enacted a year ago. "There are a small hard-core group that are never going to be satisfied by Bob Strauss and that's their business. I wouldn't be satisfied with them."

Help Line, which averages 50,000 calls a year, was started in February 1970 by Marble Collegiate Church at the direction of Dr. Norman Vincent Peale. Christie said about 35 per cent of the calls concern mental-health problems.

Proxmire Claims Nixon Made 'Grave Mistakes'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. William Proxmire said Wednesday President Nixon has made "grave economic mistakes" that will mean higher prices for all Americans.

These mistakes, the Wisconsin Democrat said in a speech prepared for radio broadcast, include "weak economic policies" that brought a second recent devaluation of the dollar and a proposed $19-billion budget deficit in the next fiscal year.

Proxmire made his charges in a reply to Nixon's radio address on the economy a week ago. Proxmire, vice-chairman of the Senate-House Economic Committee, was chosen by Democratic congressional leaders to make the answer.

The devaluation, Proxmire said, will cost American families $50 to $100 a year in higher prices, for gasoline, fuel oil, television sets and other imports, and also for products made in this country.

"This is because the devaluation will aid American exports by making them more competitive," the senator said.

But he declared that one of the biggest U.S. exports is food, and that increased shipments of farm products also will drive up prices at home.

As for the projected $19-billion deficit in the fiscal 1974 budget, Proxmire said it would be one of the biggest dollar increases in federal spending in history.

It is bound to be inflationary, he said. He added that Democrats in Congress will do all they can to reduce the deficit.

WOMEN HAVE BLUES OR ADMIT IT MORE

NEW YORK (AP) — Twice as many women as men dial a special New York telephone number to reach a sympathetic ear, a crisis-intervention center reports.

H. Leslie Christie, executive director of Help Line Telephone Center, said women call out-number men two to one, and he said 50 per cent of the calls are from persons under 30, most of them female.

Help Line, which averages 50,000 calls a year, was started in February 1970 by Marble Collegiate Church at the direction of Dr. Norman Vincent Peale.

Christie said about 35 per cent of the calls concern mental-health problems.

BALD FIREMEN ARE SAFEST

WELLINGTON, New Zealand (AP) — Skinheads make the best firemen, according to New Zealand's Fire Services Council.

Breathing apparatus should not be worn by firemen with beards or sideburns, the council has told district fire authorities.

The council says that hair prevents breathing apparatus being closely sealed on the face, enabling gases to seep through and cause asphyxiation.

ROBERT STRAUSS
...you don't worry about people not under it."

In a recent two-day stretch, Strauss had dinner with Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley, an early morning meeting with Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace, an evening meeting with Sen. Walter E. Mondale of Minnesota plus sessions with Sen. Edward M. Kennedy and Kentucky Gov. Wendell Ford.

That in itself, Strauss said, is the story of what's happening in the Democratic party.

Local Students Complete Work

CANYON — Thirteen students from Pampa are among 312 who completed requirements for graduation at West Texas State University during the fall semester.

Those completing work in the College of Education were Beverly Lynch Reed, Wilma Brock Hogan, a member of Alpha Chi, Ann Littlejohn Gerton, Sue Sanders Green, Debbie Lynn Ward, Judy Brown Rogers, Dwight L. Rogers, D.D. Patton, and Molly Kay Rafferty.

Donald Ray Gordon, John Bruce Hesse and Howard E. Mcgraves each finished a course of study in the School of Business. Danny Mack Reed is a candidate for a degree from the School of Agriculture. and the party's leaders in Congress. He's planning to hire a full-time liaison man to work with them.

—Signing on a national committee staff of people from all wings of the party. Strauss named Mary Lou Burg, who supported Eugene J. McCarthy for president in 1968, as his deputy. He picked Bob Keefe, a former aide to Sen. Birch Bayh and a key AFL-CIO operative in the fight that led to Strauss' election as chairman, to be political director.

—Reorganization of fund-raising activities with Joseph Cole, a Cleveland industrialist and presidential backer of Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, as full-time national finance chairman. Peter McCoolough, a Xerox Corp. executive who helped Strauss raise money for 1972 congressional candidates, is party treasurer.

—Creation of a new, "really meaningful research operation," one that would use computers to provide Democratic candidates with information on issues and the records of their opponents.

—A courtship of the leaders of organized labor who stayed neutral or helped President Nixon in the 1972 campaign. A day after Nixon met last week with AFL-CIO leaders in Miami Beach, Strauss was there. Predictably, the major oppo-

Today In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Today is Thursday, March 1, the 60th day of 1973. There are 305 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1781, the American colonies adopted the Articles of Confederation, paving the way for a federal union.

On this date in 1552, 1,200 French Huguenots were slain in a massacre at Vassy, France, provoking the first war of religion in France.

In 1780, the Pennsylvania legislature passed an act abolishing slavery.

In 1867, Nebraska became the 37th state.

In 1932, the infant son of Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh was kidnapped from the Lindbergh home near Hopewell, N.J.

In 1954, five U.S. congressmen were wounded as three Puerto Rican nationalists fired wildly from the gallery of the House of Representatives in Washington.

Ten years ago: CIA Director John A. McCone reported that up to 1,500 Latin Americans had gone to Cuba in 1962 to be trained in guerrilla warfare and subversion.

Five years ago: In Britain, a law was passed drastically reducing the immigration of British citizens of Asian ancestry from Kenya.

One year ago: Syrian jets bombed Israeli positions in the Golan Heights in retaliation for Israeli air and artillery strikes against guerrilla hideouts in Arab territory.

Thought for today: A woman is constantly inspiring a man to do great things, and then preventing him from accomplishing them — Oscar Wilde, Irish writer, 1854-1900.

Ethnic Minorities Gaining Better Images

Editor's Note — Under pressure from leaders of minority groups, the TV industry has wrought great changes in the portrayal of blacks, Indians, Mexican-Americans and other ethnic characters. The following first of two parts on the Ethnic Revolution in entertainment tells what is occurring on the home screen.

By JERRY BUCK
Associated Press Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — From Fred Sanford's junkyard to Banacek's town house, ethnic minorities are getting a new image on television.

The industry not only is trying to erase the stereotypes, but is recognizing that successful characterizations and stories can be derived from ethnic sources.

The bland, faceless, neuter image of so many roles is being altered. "Banacek" quotes Polish proverbs and speaks admiringly of his heritage. Elena Verdugo is proudly Mexican-American on "Marcus Welby, M.D." "Mannix" draws on his Armenian background.

National and ethnic heritages are plumbed in "Sanford and Son," "Bridget Loves Bernie" and "All in the Family." Dramatic and comedy series planned for next season feature blacks, Jews, Italian-Americans, Mexican-Americans and Polish-Americans.

"We're trying to change the image of minorities on television, working from the concept stage through to the filming," said Stanley Robertson, an NBC programming vice president and the highest-ranking black executive in television.

"In lead roles and in minor roles, we want to reflect minorities as they really exist in our society. Sometimes casting directors just go out and grab the people they know. But we're insisting that they put minorities in their films. If they don't, we're going to send it back to them."

Thomas Swafford, CBS vice president for program practices, said, "We're continually providing our program people with suggestions on how minority groups should be represented and I think we're seeing the results. We're getting away from the stereotypes that have been obvious and that obviously have been offensive to minorities."

The break-through is twofold: Not only are minorities, particularly blacks, being cast routed in so-called Anglo roles, but parts and shows are now being created specifically to delineate ethnic characteristics.

"The image of blacks on television is more substantive and more realistic than blacks in the movies," says Junius Griffin, president of the Beverly Hills-Hollywood branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

"I don't want to paint the picture that television is perfect. Of course, they had prodding. But you can't turn on television now without seeing blacks involved in some kind of dramatic role. It may not be the biggest role, but why should it be?"

Jay Rodriguez, a spokesman for Nosotros, which is seeking to improve the image of Mexican-Americans in the entertainment industry, said, "I think television is making an honest effort to eliminate the stereotype. Not just to play the bandits and peons, but to be included at every level. What we're looking for is a balance."

But Gilbert Avila, the immediate past president of Nosotros, believes the networks still have a long way to go. "Santa Barbara has a 30 per cent Latin population, but you don't see that reflected in Owen Marshall," he said. "The San Fernando Valley has a high Latin population, but you didn't see many on 'Adam-12' until we called it to their attention."

Avila said his group has had personal meetings with the studio heads, producers, casting directors and keeps a monthly tabulation on the number of Latin actors used. "We feel there's a lot of apathy," he said. "We'll talk to them and they'll cast a few people and then drop it. We don't like to be a thorn in their side, but that's the only way to accomplish it."

Recently the American Federation of Television and Radio Artists, the union for taped and live shows, sent a letter to producers urging them to hire more Orientals. The letter said, "Every effort should be made to afford first opportunity for employment of these qualified performers in Asiatic roles."

For too long, television's idea of an ethnic minority was someone with an English accent. After the uproar over "Amos 'n' Andy" and the Italian gangsters on "The Untouchables," the networks swept ethnic recognition under the carpet.

In the mid-1960s, under the prodding of the black civil rights movement, blacks began to appear in shows.

Bill Cosby was cast as the second lead in "I Spy" in 1965 and it set off the era of the black second banana. Then Diana Ross starred in "Julia," followed by Lloyd Haynes in "Room 222" and "The Bill Cosby Show." Leslie Uggams had her own variety show for a brief period. "Sesame Street" cast two black co-stars.

But the criticism from many blacks was that the performers were in essentially white roles reflecting white attitudes.

"Sanford and Son" changed that.

"Maybe it was time for 'Sanford and Son,'" said Demond Wilson, co-star of the hit NBC comedy. "I have no doubt that something will come along more outspoken. But this is where it's at now. Maybe in 22 years black youths will think of 'Sanford and Son' as 'Amos 'n' Andy.' It was a product of its time, too."

Redd Foxx, star of "Sanford and Son," said: "We're trying to show black life as honestly as possible, not just to get a laugh. I don't want to put my people down just to get a laugh. I'm as black as they come."

For next fall the networks are considering more than a dozen pilots that run the gamut of ethnic backgrounds. Among them: CBS is considering a "Shaft" series; a show with the movie "To Sir With Love," and Rosey Grier in "Big Daddy." ABC is developing "The Fuzz Brothers," a comedy-drama about two black policemen; a black family comedy called "The Furst Family of Washington," and "Pomroy's People," a drama about a black minister in a small Kentucky town. NBC has "Poor Devil," a fantasy-comedy with Sammy Davis Jr., Pat Cooper in an Italian-American family comedy, "Patsy," and Herb Edelman in a Polish-American comedy, "Koska and his Family."

Increased use of drugs during the 1960s led to more facilities being built, whereupon the federal government took the position that treatment was primarily a local responsibility.

Today, the patient population at the center is around 275 and while the patients are receiving treatment, it is "only as a benefit or side effect of the research," Conrad said.

"A lot of the problems these people have relate not only to the chemical but to their real life," Conrad said.

"It's not simply a question of separating an individual from his drugs. You have to separate him from the wish to solve all of life's problems and overcome all of life's miseries by getting stoned."

Part of treating an addict, Conrad said, involves "giving him some awareness of the gratification I guess of what you would call the old-fashioned moral virtues — things like hard work and industry and thrift and getting an education — things that really sound corny to most of our patients."

The center currently supervises 19 in-patient facilities around the country and about 150 aftercare agencies. More than 1,800 people are involved in three-year aftercare programs.

Conrad said about 15 per cent of those people are making a good adjustment while nearly 40 per cent are doing satisfactorily.

There are plans, he said, for follow-up studies on those who complete the program and those who drop out or are dropped because of unacceptable behavior. Such studies are needed, he said, to prove that the program really works.

Conrad said much current research is aimed at creating longer-acting forms of methadone, a synthetic drug used as a narcotic substitute, and narcotic antagonists to counteract the effect of drugs. He said more research also is needed on drugs other than the opiates.

Groundup ladybugs were once considered a remedy for toothaches, colic and measles.

Drugs Called Symptom Of Addicts' Problems

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Few drug addicts seek treatment because they are tired of addiction, the director of the Clinical Research Center here says. Usually it comes from outside pressures such as divorce or the threat of jail.

Dr. Harold T. Conrad, looking back over the center's past five years, added, "The biggest mistake anybody could make would be to assume that a heroin addict is an otherwise normal person who just happens to use heroin."

"Most of our patients have a long history of severe disturbance in their relationship with other people and society long before they use drugs," he said.

The center was created by the National Institute of Mental Health in 1967 at the site of the former U.S. Public Health Service Hospital here.

For years, the hospital — opened in 1935 — was one of only two federal drug treatment facilities in the country. The other was at Fort Worth, Tex.

Increased use of drugs during the 1960s led to more facilities being built, whereupon the federal government took the position that treatment was primarily a local responsibility.

Today, the patient population at the center is around 275 and while the patients are receiving treatment, it is "only as a benefit or side effect of the research," Conrad said.

"A lot of the problems these people have relate not only to the chemical but to their real life," Conrad said.

Current Birthday Customs Stem From Ancient Times

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — In celebrating the February birthdays of George Washington and Abraham Lincoln, Americans are helping to keep alive what was once a custom reserved only for royalty.

No records were kept in ancient days of the birth dates of the common people, so their only knowledge of such events was the annual celebration of the birthdays of royal personages, according to Hallmark Cards researchers.

But today children of the poor and the rich and adults in all walks of life the world over sing familiar birthday tunes, light candles on birthday cakes, make secret wishes, give presents and send greeting cards.

One of the first birthdays ever recorded was that of Pharaoh, described in the Book of Genesis. The celebration included a great household feast to which all the servants as well as the family were invited. Prisoners also were released from jail on that day.

It took a special resolution by the Senate in the days of the Roman Empire to declare the emperor's birthday a day of national observance. During the reign of the Emperor Caligula, birthday announcements went out, far ahead of time, through all government channels. All work ceased on the specified day, and everyone was expected to honor the emperor.

The Greeks were among the first to keep birth records for everyone, including women and children — for tax purposes and to record military service — but only important family heads celebrated their birthdays.

The crumbling of the Roman Empire led to a decline in the celebrating of birthdays and keeping of records, according to the Hallmark historians. During the Dark Ages, few records were kept and most people had no idea of their birth date. Few even knew how old they were.

The early Christian leaders associated the idea of a birthday celebration with the customs of the pagan Greeks and Romans, and thus discouraged any celebration of the natal day.

However, by the 12th century Christians were keeping birth records and baptizing their children with the name of a chosen patron saint — often the same saint who was honored on the date of the child's birth, the researchers said. The custom led to the celebration of the name's day rather than the birthday among early Christians.

The custom of recording birth dates spread quickly with the rise of western civilization. The common people adopted many of the ancient traditions, which are still followed today, for their celebrations of these personal holidays.

For example, birthday candles were once believed endowed with special magic for granting wishes — a theory started by the ancient Greeks, the study revealed. That's why even today children make a wish before blowing out their birthday candles.

Birthday cakes also had their start with the ancients. Records show that the Roman Emperor Hadrian sent his special messengers with cakes for all those who were invited to his birthday celebration but were unable to attend.

Birthday cards first appeared in England and America about 1850 — shortly after the first Christmas cards appeared.

Birthday parties for children are sometimes thought to be native to the American culture but they actually started with the German "kinderfeste" or "children's festival."

Today children's parties are replacing traditional family feasts in countries throughout the world, the study showed. Refreshments, games, decorations and gifts are basic to every party. But custom still dictates many aspects of the celebration.

In Holland children make up a "Verlanglijst," listing all the items they would like as presents. But it would be considered impolite for a Japanese child to request a specific gift or even to indicate a preference.

The Russians have a birthday pie almost as often as a cake. Icelanders are treated to canned fruit at the celebration, and the Danes hang a flag out the window to indicate that someone in the family is celebrating a birthday that day.

IRS Gets Incomplete Forms

By RAY DE CRANE

One of the big holdups in the speedy processing of income tax refunds is the failure of taxpayers to complete the revenue sharing portion of their return.

Of the 15.6 million tax returns filed to date, 35% of them show this section left blank.

Perhaps because it is a new feature, calling for information never before requested on a tax return, filers are either considering it an optional item or are bypassing it because they are confused by it.

The revenue sharing portion of your tax return — it appears on the back page of both the 1040 and 1040A forms — asks for only four entries. The abbreviation of your state, the name of your county, name of your city or township of residence and the number of people listed on your tax return who either will file their own return or were not living in your home last Dec. 31.

The purpose of this information is to help insure that your home community will get its proper share of federal tax revenues which are now being apportioned around the country.

Completing this section on your return is not an optional matter, it is mandatory. There is provision for a $5 penalty against those who ignore it.

While IRS indicates it has not levied any penalties, the attempt to complete this section of the return in the IRS service centers is slowing down the processing of the paper work and the payment of refund checks.

Another new feature on this year's tax return is proving mighty unpopular. Only 3.6% of all the early taxpayers are completing a Form 4875 which designates $1 of your tax money (as much as $2 on a joint return) to go into a 1976 Presidential Election campaign fund.

Designating the $1 or $2 for this purpose will not add to one's taxes or reduce a refund, as many taxpayers must believe.

Furthermore, you will not be indicating your political affiliation to an IRS auditor who will be checking your return and who may be of the opposite affiliation.
