Lebanon's prime minister killed in bombing

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Prime Minister Rashid Karami was assassinated today when a bomb exploded in an attache case under his seat on a military helicopter. Injured in the explosion was Interior Minister Abdulla Rassi and three of the other 12 aides and crewmen on the aircraft. Military sources initially said Rassi was critically wounded, but doctors said later he was treated for superficial cuts.

Sources at the army command said the blast was a "premeditated assassination by a time bomb." The sources spoke on condition of anonymity.

A man identifying himself only as Capt. Hammoud claimed responsibility for Karami's assassination on behalf of the previously unknown Lebanese Secret Army. The caller, who spoke in Arabic, made the claim in a call to a Western news agency in Beirut. There was no way to authenticate the claim.

The 65-year-old Sunni Moslem had been Lebanon's longest-serving prime minister, holding office 10 times in 32 years. He was backed by Syria, the main power broker in Lebanon.

Karami was the most prominent Lebanese official assassinated since a 1982 bombing claimed the life of President-elect Bashir Gemayel, the brother of President Amin Gemayel.

Kararmi's helicopter was halfway between Karami's summer residence in Bgaa Sefrine and Beirut, 60 miles to the south, when the explosion ripped through the aircraft.

the wounded pilot, Maj. Antoine Bustani, and landed the crippled Puma helicopter at the Halat military airbase in the Christian heartland, the sources said. The victims were rushed to a hospital in Byblos, 19 miles north of Beirut,

The Moslem-controlled Voice of the Nation said Karami died on the operating table. But there was no official announcement as to the timing of his death.

ordered an "immediate investigation to determine the cause of the explosion,' according to radio reports. The palace source said Gemayel took charge of arrangements to bring Karami's body to his hometown, the northern port of Army commander Gen. Michel Aoun convened an emergency session of the army's six-man military council to investigate the helicopter blast, a military communique said.

Coronado included in HCA sales plan

From Staff and Wire Reports

HCA Coronado hospital announced this morning it will be part of a new 100-hospital company to be owned principally by an employee stock ownership plan (ESOP) of Hospital Corporation of America.

The announcement is part of a $1.9 million restructuring plan of Coronado's current owner, Hospital Corporation of America, based in Nashville. HCA, the world's largest publicly owned hospital management company, will retain a signifigant minority interest in the new company.

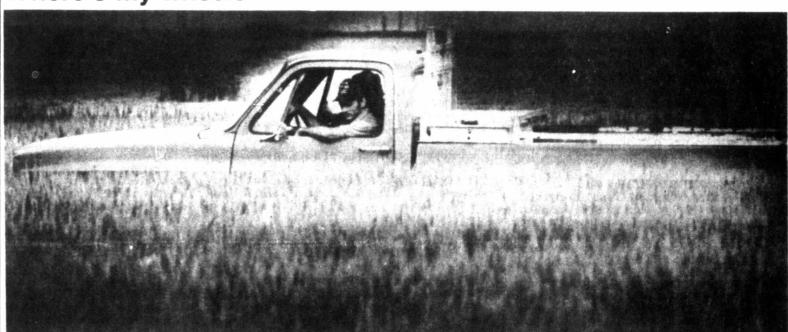

"We at HCA Coronado are excited about this opportunity,' said Coronado Hospital Administrator Norman Knox. "We won't have the pressures of Wall Street. HCA has gotten too big and too bureaucratic. So I feel some good will come from this restruc-

R. Clayton McWhorter, current HCA president and executive officer, will be chairman and chief executive officer of the new company. Charles Martin, current HCA executive vice president will be president and chief operating officer. Donald McNaughton, current HCA executive committee chairman, will head the new company's executive committee.

"Our new company will continue HCA traditions of physician orientation nad high quality health care," McWhorter said. 'We believe the innovative ESOP structure, which becomes primary retirement plan for employees, offers a tremendous opportunity for our employees to benefit from company's suc-

Clean-up begins in Ward 3

City crews are moving into Ward 3 this week as the city's annual Clean-Up, Paint-Up and Fix-Up Campaign continues its progressive run

Wards 1 and 2 have already concluded their initial cycles, with Ward 3 next on the list. The cleanup drive will emphasize Ward 3 through June 12 before moving into Ward 4 on June 15

Sanitation Department Supervisor Larry Simpson reminded residents of a few rules to be followed in helping city crews complete their work. "The city requests that each of you help in any way you possibly can by cleaning up your yards, alleys and areas around your premises," he said. Simpson said residents need not wait on city crews to come by on their routes to take advantage of the clean-up efforts. "For those who live in the city, there will be no charge at the landfill" during the campaign that ends June 26, he noted He stressed that observance of a few limitations and suggestions can greatly aid the crews on their pick-up services during the campaign. Due to the pick-up limit on the sanitation collection trucks, only materials such as household refuse, grass clippings and hedge trimmings should be placed in the joint-use containers (dumpsters). ■ Heavy materials SHOULD NOT be placed in the dumpsters and instead should be disposed of by the owner or occupant of the property on which such refuse is generated.

Hazardous chemical materials, such as pesticides or oil drainings, should not be placed either in the dumpsters or in containers beside the dumpsters for collection by the city crews.

Bulky items such as ice boxes, stoves and furniture to be discarded should be stacked in the alley behind the resident's house.

Simpson said the larger items should not be placed near the dumpsters since they interfere with access of the collection trucks to the dumps-

"Also, since this type of refuse is collected only on special occasions, it is not fair to your neighbor who has the container behind his house for you to place your refuse there," Simpson said.

Residents also should not place boxes, bags or other containers outside or around the dumpsters. During the clean-up drive, such materials may be placed in the alleyways behind the resident's own home or, in cases where there are no alleys, in front of the house

"We also ask that you cut your tree limbs in 4-foot lengths," Simpson said, adding that it assists the workers in placing the limbs on the truckbeds used during the clean-up drive.

Because of the recent rains impairing access to many alleys, city crews may have gotten behind on picking up refuse in Ward 2. Efforts will be made to get to those areas as soon as possible, but emphasis will still be on keeping up with the regular ward schedule for the drive

Residents who have been missed by the drive or who were out of town during their ward's time may call the Sanitation Department at 665-1689 to get placed on a list for pick-up after the regular drive

Summer recreation registration scheduled

Registration for the city's second annual Summer Recreation Program begins a week from today with all school-age students in grades 1 through 12 being encouraged to participate.

The Pampa Parks and Recreation Department will start registering students for the 1987 program at 8 a.m. Monday, June 8, at the department's office, located at 816 S. Hobart just south of the Hobart Street underpass.

Registration will be held next week from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Wednesday. Classes will start Monday, June 15, according to Recreation Supervisor Jackie Harper.

The Summer Recreation Program will be conducted for four weeks through July 10. Coordinator for the program is Kay Crouch, who has collected Pampa school teachers, coaches and students to form the staff.

The department is offering a giveaway in conjunction with this year's program. Harper said details will be given over Radio Station KGRO on how students may win a free class or T-shirt. She said the city will be giving away three Summer Recreation classes and five blue Summer Recreation T-shirts.

Activities currently scheduled include softball, tennis, adult tennis, basketball, gymnastics, cheerleading, weight lifting, arts and crafts, soccer, volleyball, children's aerobics, computers and track. "These classes are organized to teach basic rules and fundamentals of each recreational activity," Crouch said. "All classes are for instructional purposes only," but students should still be able to have a lot of fun, she

Low interest loan rates announced for business facade improvements

The Pampa Main Street Program announced today that low interest loan rates have dropped from 7.5 percent to 6 percent on loans available for facade improvements on local business buildings. Each of Pampa's four financial institutions have guaranteed $30,000 for the loan fund. Cooperating in providing the loans are Citizens Bank and Trust Co., First National Bank, National Bank of Commerce and Security Federal Savings and Loan Association.

Property owners interested in the fund's available $120,000 have the opportunity to improve their businesses' facades with a maximum loan of $10,000 per building project.

Prospects should contact the Main Street office in the Administrative Suite on the third floor of City Hall with a letter of intent indicating their choice of bank, along with specifications and two separate contractor's bids on the project.

The Facade Fund Board of the Main Street Program then will review the project. Loans will be awarded by the bank's Main Street representative.

The money is available to any Pampa business and-or property owner interested in the maintenance or improvement of their building facades upon the approval of the Facade Fund Board.

Inquiries should be made with Main Street Proiect Manager Lyn Moulton, P.O. Box 2499, Pampa, Texas 79066-2499, or by calling 665-8481

Since December 1985, $1,899,595 has been reinvested by the private sector in Pampa's central business district. Jim Bakker says family has only $100,000

NEW YORK (AP) - Evangelist Jim Bakker says he's so broke he may have to borrow money from his daughter, and is calling for a cease-fire in battle with the new leaders of the PTL ministry.

"I have about $50,000 cash to my name, and my daughter has $50,000 saved from her music work, which she'll probably loan me if I need it," Bakker said in an interview published in the June 8 edition of Time magazine.

While reports persist that he and his wife were paid nearly $2 million last year by the PTL ministry, Bakker told the magazine in an interview at his Palm Springs, Calif., home, that money was his most pressing problem.

Bakker also said also he regretted making public comments about the controversy that has embroiled his troubled PTL television ministry.

"I made a mistake by ever stepping out and trying to tell our side of the story," he said. "If this be a holy war, I am declaring a cease-fire and a truce" he told the magazine.

Among his recent public appearances, Bakker was seen twice last week on ABC's "Nightline" program, once in a taped interview and once live.

The Bakker's lavish lifestyle has been an issue in the scandal that has rocked PTL.

Work to begin on new city budget

By BOB HART Pampa City Manager

The City Commission will soon begin preparations for the 1987-1988 budget. Public hearings will be conducted to solicit ideas concerning community improvements, service delivery methods and areas where we can reduce

Input is important in the commission's establishing goals and providing policy direction for the

As an example, the primary direction of the City Commission in 1985 was to try to achieve greater operating efficiency and develop better budgeting techniques to insure a strong financial base from which to work.

During the past two years, the city has incurred a major decrease in sales tax revenues and the termination of the General Revenue Sharing Program, representing a decrease of about $500,000 to the General Fund.

The city has been able to maintain existing services levels and, in some cases, increased service levels while at the same time reducing the total number of employees from 213 to 184. This has been accomplished through an active goal-setting process by the City Commission during the budgetary process and by increased expectations and pride of city employees.

Because of the concerns of the City Commission and the effort Harvester and Lynn streets: put out by staff and personnel, the city can point to a number of accomplishments and changes in the past couple of years.

Listed below are what we feel have been some of the worthwhile accomplishments and changes implemented through the efforts of the commissioners and staff: □ the development of a new city

□ placement of agendas, budget and audit (Comprehensive Annual Financial Report) at Lovett Memorial Library for public inspection;

the placement of a "Citizen's Request" on the City Commission agenda;

□ the reorganization and revitalization of the M.K. Brown Auditorium Board;

the establishment of the Zoning Board of Adjustments, the revitalization and reorganization of the Traffic Commission, and the creation of the Parks and Recreation Advisory Board; □ hiring a manager for M.K.

Brown Auditorium; □ the creation of a fulltime Municipal Court judge position;

the painting of the crosswalks, dumpsters, fire hydrants and street sign names around Pampa High School;

□ Pampa's selection as an official 1986 Main Street City:

□ completing requirements to become a TEXCEL certified city; □ the placement of signal lights at 23rd and Duncan, the removal of signal lights at several intersections, and the replacement and upgrading of the intersections at Highway 60 and Cuyler, Highway 60 and 70, Kentucky and Hobart, Hobart and Francis, and Hobart and Foster:

□ removal of bumps in a number of streets throughout town; □ the reconstruction of parking and drainage areas in front of the Post Office:

□ the reopening of Marcus Sanders Swimming Pool; the installation of handicapped ramps in the downtown area; □ street improvements, including the reconstruction of Somerville Street and the paving of Crawford, Albert, North Hobart, ☐ City Hall renovation and restoration;

the reclamation of two water wells; the contract operation of the water and waste water facilities with Operations Management In-

Gov. Bill Clements said Sunday he will veto a 5-cent increase in the motor fuel tax if lawmakers won't pass the remainder of the $2.9 billion tax plan that he wants.

"We're going to veto the highway (fuel) tax if they don't do the other tax,' Clements said

Clements visited the House chamber Sunday to discuss the special legislative session he has scheduled for June

He called that session so lawmakers can finish work on the 1988-89 budget they failed to pass during their 140-day regular session that ends Monday.

In the budget deadlock, Clements has insisted that lawmakers approve no more than $2.9 billion in new taxes — by keeping the sales tax rate at 51/4 percent and leaving the motor fuel levy at 15 cents per gallon.

Both taxes were raised last year, but lawmakers scheduled them to revert to their old rates — 41/8 percent and 10 cents per gallon - on Sept. 1.

Besides being unable to agree on a spending plan, the House and Senate also failed to agree on the sales tax increase. But the two chambers did approve making the 15-cent fuel tax permanent.

Although Clements said Saturday night he saw no reason not to OK the gas tax increase that would raise $888 million over two years, Sunday he insisted that the sales tax changes must be

"They go together," he said.

But a conference committee hasn't even meet to work out House-Senate differences over the sales tax, and both the House and Senate budgets require far more money than the $2.9 billion tax limit Clements set.

Asked about the veto promise, Speaker Gib Lewis said, "You never want to vote twice on the same bill. But that's Sen. Bob Glasgow, D-Stephenville, accused the Republican governor of playing politics with the gas tax hike. Glasgow said Clements may hope to help GOP candidates next year by forcing Democratic lawmakers to vote twice on a gas tax increase.

"I just think that is crazy," Glasgow said. "Why in the world would he want to veto a tax bill that he's recommended? Unless he just wants the Legislature to have to vote on it again? . Now that stinks a little to me of poli-

Clements' announced the special session Saturday night, following a 45minute meeting Saturday night with Lewis and a telephone conversation with Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby.

The governor said he would give lawmakers three weeks off so they could go home and hear what the public thinks about higher state spending.

"This rarified atmosphere here in Austin kind of goes to people's heads. They need to get back out there with the home folks and find out what's really going on," Clements said.

Lewis said lawmakers will achieve in the 30-day special session what they failed to accomplish in 140 days.

'When you're talking about the numbers we've been talking about - the severity and the time to reach an agreement — it's very difficult to do that. I think we'll progress along. The process is working. It's just taking longer to work this time," Lewis said.

Clements dismissed questions on whether a single special session would suffice when the 140-day session was too

'We don't need to be facetious about it," he said. "We don't need to be joking about extra sessions. I think we can do the job that we need to do in one ses-

Heavy rains, storms, lash

The Associated Press

Heavy rain continued to drench southern and western portions of Texas, causing flooding across a vast area and claiming the life of a San Angelo man.

A flash flood watch was in effect for the Texas Hill Country and nearby areas, including San Antonio.

The body of a man who drowned in floodwaters was recovered at sunrise Sunday in San Angelo, authorities said.

The body of Clarence Martin, 57, was discovered at daylight Sunday, police Sgt. Dave "Apparently he and his wife were returning home in separate cars (late last night). She drove into the water and, of course, was washed out of the car and he drove in and apparently tried to assist her and drowned," Caudle said.

"He was washed up nearly in front of his house," Caudle said

He said the wife was unharmed. Caudle said police assisted several motorists from their cars Saturday evening. 'We still have a few cars buried in the river but we don't expect to find any bodies in them." he said.

Authorities had been searching for an 8year-old boy late last night, but he was found at about midnight, Caudle said. The child was found at a friend's apartment.

Between eight and nine people, including a police officer, were rescued from the Red Arroyo, which was running between 12- and 14-feet deep.

Officer Elaine Walton was rescued by Firefighter Charles Goode after she tried to save a man whose car was swept into the river.

Goode was tied to a rope, but when the rope ran out, he swam to Walton and pulled her to safety. The man she had been trying to rescue was later pulled to safety.

Senate OKs stronger open meetings act

AUSTIN (AP) - A bill that would require government bodies to keep a record of what they do when they meet in closed-door sessions was on the governor's desk today

The Senate voted in favor of the bill on Sunday, 29-0, sending it to Gov. Bill Clements for his signature. The House approved the bill Thursday. The governor's aides indicated he would sign the bill.

"This bill was agreed to by a wide variety of persons ... groups that originally opposed strengthening of the act," said Sen. Kent Caperton. D-Bryan, Senate sponsor.

Since 1977, news media groups have tried to tighten provisions of the Texas Open Meetings Act, which was intended to provide the public the right to know what goes on at state and local government meetings.

During this year's legislative session, news media groups, schools and universities and others negotiated to close loopholes in the act.

Currently, the act allows government bodies to meet in closed-door sessions or "executive sessions," to discuss certain matters. The measure approved Sunday would require govern-

Glass sculpture finally dedicated

ABILENE (AP) — For about five years, the only evidence that Abilene residents saw of a $100,000 glass sculpture called the Wind Wedge was an empty pit where it sat briefly in 1982.

At first the sculpture wasn't all it was cracked up

Cracks appeared in some of the piece's glass sections just two weeks after it was initially dedicated, and repeated efforts to solve the problem

Since then, a new foundation has been designed by engineers accustomed to working with glass structures, and it's expected to keep the sculpture from cracking. So on Friday, Abilene Cultural Affairs Council members gathered to re-dedicate

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Ruling protects free expression of ideas

The Supreme Court sure can complicate things. In 1973, the justices strove mightily to conceive a definition of obscenity that would allow prosecutors to seek convictions of pornographers without violating constitutional protections of free expression. They seemed to find one. Now, 14 years later, the court has decided we need a new definition.

The key to the 1973 ruling was that juries should use 'community standards' in judging whether material had redeeming qualities or was simply prurient. In a democracy, that sounded right to a lot of people; let the community decide. Indeed, there have been a handful of celebrated obscenity convictions under that

Now the court has taken away that criterion, ruling recently that jurors in obscenity cases should not look to the community at large, but rather consider what a "reasonable person" would think of the material in

Under the old rule, juries at least could arrive at a vague definition of "community standard." Were enough people outraged by the material to warrant labeling it pornography? But who qualifies as a "reasonable person"? The court left this definition

This is, many will say, so slippery a standard as to make obscenity prosecutions impossible. But it should be very difficult, if not impossible, to prevent the expression of ideas in America, no matter how offensive they might be to some people.

The Supreme Court may well have complicated matters for prosecutors looking for headlines by hauling pornographers into court. It may cause some uneasiness in communities that are honestly fearful of an onslaught of dirty bookstores or dirty movies.

But American democracy is a fragile thing that should not come easy. It has never been as simple as enshrining the wishes of the majority. In many ways, it has been something of the opposite; that is, protecting the rights of the minorities against the power and force of the majority, whether held by a mob or by government, or, yes, even by good people who find some ideas offensive or sinful or degrading.

Those people, some of whom have been the target of scorn for their religious and personal beliefs, ought to know how precious the right of free expression is. The Supreme Court recently made it more difficult for the majority to abridge that freedom.

That's an expression that deserves to win in the marketplace of ideas.

History repeats in scandals

One of the constants of American life is the urge to wallow in collective guilt. The 17th century Puritans had periodic fast days in which the community's attention was devoted to prayerful repentance, in the hope of appeasing a wrathful God. We are now experiencing the modern secular equivalent, a national despair over the state of our souls.

Not that it's surprising, given the seamy quality of recent news. The parade of malefactors -Michael Deaver, Ivan Boesky, Oliver North, Jim and Tammy Bakker, the Moscow embassy guards, Gary Hart - sometimes seems endless. To some minds, all these examples betray a general disintegration of morality.

Columnist Haynes Johnson of The Washington Post says we are mired in a "season of scandal, when betrayal of trust is persuasive. . . I say we're up to our hips in garbage, and I say it stinks." The subject even warranted a cover story last week in Time magazine, which lamented that "the heedless lack of restraint in their behavior reveals something disturbing about the national character. America, which took such back-thumping pride in its spiritual renewal, finds itself wallowing in a moral morass. .Has the mindless materialism of the '80s left in its wake a values vacuum?

This last question reflects the prevaling view that what is to blame for our ethical breakdown is the race for money unleashed by Ronald Reagan's celebration of laissez-faire capitalism. But business and personal rectitude are not necessarily antagonists, as Max Weber noted.

advantageous in the short run, almost guarantees eventual failure.

Apart from fraud and other cheating - which predate modern capitalism by innumerable centuries — the beauty of the market system is that the greedy can realize their goals only by catering to others. And in the age of Apartheid, the Ayatollah and the Gulag, we should reflect on Samuel Johnson's adage: "There are few ways in which a man can be more innocently employed than in making money.

Some of the scandals could have happened in any decade. The PTL debacle is hardly the first time a shrewd, amoral charlatan has exploited religious sentiments for his own pleasure and profit. The Moscow Marines weren't the first soldiers to let loneliness or lust override their better judgment.

Some of the other scandals are novel, but not in the way some think. They reflect not different behavior but different standards. Gary Hart did nothing that other politicians haven't also done. What he didn't realize is that the old expectations have changed: The public will no longer tolerate some types of behavior.

Deaver may have made the same mistake. Government officials who used to abuse their positions weren't subject to the exacting legal requirements of the 1978 Ethics in Government Act. Obviously some Reagan administration officials, many of them new to public service, haven't adjusted to the change.

But the clearest example is the Iranamok affair. Americans are justly angry at the dis-

Most managers know that dishonesty, however covery that the Reagan administration used every means to evade a law barring aid to the Nicaraguan rebels. But that pales next to what Franklin Roosevelt did in secretly trying to bring the United States into World War II, against the clear demands of public opinion. Things that used to be accepted now shock us which suggests that our ethical standards are rising, not falling.

It's easy to overlook other improvements in our norms of conduct. Racism, one of the darkest blots on the American character, used to be taken for granted; today, although far from eradicated, it generally is recognized as evil. Women, once forcibly consigned to subordination, now expect and enjoy the same rights as men. Intolerance - which used to sanction the persecution of unconventional religious sects, homosexuals, political radicals and other minorities — has waned considerably.

In fact, one of the central virtues of our modern civil morality is tolerance — a willingness to accept the right of our fellows to live as they choose and a commitment to resolve differences through peaceful means. The appeal to the supposedly higher morality of the past often cloaks a nostalgia for enforced conformity and a distrust of freedom.

Self-scrutiny is healthy, and Americans have plenty of shortcomings to correct. But the current orgy of guilt about our national character is unwarranted. Much of what looks like decline is merely diversity, the product of a growing respect for the sanctity of the individual. That change should evoke pride, not despair.

Military gains secret control of contracts

By Robert Walters

WASHINGTON (NEA) - The nation's military contractors and their allies in the armed forces have quietly gained control of Defense Department procurement operations formerly managed by civilians.

That development constitutes a significant victory for the forces about whom President Eisenhower warned in his 1961 farewell address: "The conjunction of an immense military establishment and a large arms industry is new in American experience.... We must not fail to comprehend its grave implications...

'We must guard against the acquisition of unwarranted influence, whether sought or unsought, by the military-industrial complex. The potential for the disastrous rise of misplaced power exists and will persist."

Among the key figures in the recent shift in power are Vice Adm. John Poindexter, formerly the president's national security adviser, and David' Packard, co-founder and board chairman of the Hewlett-Packard Co.

Hewlett-Packard, a leading producer of electronic equipment, long has been hostile to civilian oversight. In the early 1960s, for example, the company sought in vain to prevent the General Accounting Office from auditing its government contracts.

Similarly, Packard demonstrated his insensitivity to ethical concerns when he refused to divest himself of approximately $300 million worth of Hewlett-Packard holdings while serving as deputy secretary of Defense from 1969 through 1971.

In the mid-1980s, President Reagan's massive military buildup and the Pentagon's wasteful procurement practices came under mounting criticism from Congress and voters scandalized by corruption, extravagance and incompetence.

In an effort to neutralize pressure for reforms, Reagan in 1985 established the Blue Ribbon Commission on Defense Management to examine military procurement and named Packard as its chairman.

But an analysis of that panel's work recently prepared by the staff of the House Commerce Committee notes that "the Packard commission members, staff and consultants were riddled with pro-contractor bias as well as conflicts of interest.'

Rejecting the traditional practice of oversight of Pentagon contracts by government auditors, the commission concluded that "self-governance is the most promising mechanism to improved contractor foster compliance."

Similarly, the commission audaciously suggested that the indictment or conviction of a defense contractor should not be cause to suspend or debar that firm from receiving additional government business

Poindexter promptly drafted - and Reagan signed - National Security Decision Directive 219, which implements some of the recommendations of the commission in a form that encourages the transfer of control over Pentagon procurement from civilian authorities to military officers.

An Air Force reorganization recently completed in compliance with NSDD 219, for example, dramaticallyshifts procurement authority from civilians to the Air Force Systems Command and Air Force Logistics Command

The Air Force Financial Management Office, formerly headed by a civilian, now is under the direction of a three-star general, while another three-star general is to become the Air Force director of acquisition.

"Reagan allowed special interests in the defense industry who wanted to continue the upward spiral of (military) spending... to perpetrate a virtual coup in acquisition management in the Air Force," concludes the analysis prepared by the staff of the House Commerce Committee.

Precisely what has occurred is not known, however, because NSDD 219 carries a national security classification - and neither the White House nor the Defense Department will reveal its contents

It was more like the first of August than the first of June as a recordroasting heat wave melted streets and sent more than a million people to the beach as it baked America east of the Rockies despite cooling thunderstorms.

"My feet practically stick to the ground when I walk," Neal Grady, 15, said in New York, where it was 94 degrees Sunday. "At first I thought it was my sneakers melting, but it's actually the tar from the street."

Meteorologist Hugh Crowther of the National Severe Storms Forecast Center in Kansas City, Mo., predicted highs at least in the lower 90s today in the mid-Atlantic and southern New England. Temperatures should start heading back to normal Tuesday, with highs in the 80s, and a cold front is expected to push through the East on Wednesday, Crowther said.

Thunderstorms killed at least three people this weekend, whipped up 70 mph winds that downed trees and power lines, spawned lightning that injured six in New York and Connecticut, and brought more flooding to Texas.

Sunday afternoon storms in the Northeast and Midwest provided only a little relief on the third straight day of 90-plus temperatures.

On Sunday, one of the Northeast's hottest spots was Newark, N.J., where it was 96 degrees, breaking the record set in 1985 by 1 degree. Other record highs included 95 degrees in Hartford, Conn.; 94 in Portland, Maine; 92 in Atlantic City, N.J. and 86 degrees in Alpena, Mich

A million people flocked to beaches in the New York City area alone; nearly 70,000 jammed Atlantic City, N.J., beaches, and the beach at Revere, Mass., north of Boston was packed, officials said.

"If we had them every weekend during the summer, all of the Boardwalk merchants could retire," said Atlantic City Beach Patrol Chief Bob Levy.

Tempers boiled over in New York City when a motorist whose car was sprayed by water from a fire hydrant in the Bronx slightly wounded an 11-yearold boy and two men.

At least 20 of 550 passengers were overcome by heat Saturday when a New York-to-New Jersey train lost power in a tunnel under the Hudson River, said NJ Transit spokesman Anthony Grazioso. After two hours in the dark, passengers were led a half-mile through the tunnel to the nearest exit, in

Shortage of lifequards said due to economy in Northeast

By The Associated Press

Lifeguards are in short supply this season at beaches, summer camps and swimming pools in the Northeast and Florida, and some officials are worried swimmers may be risking their lives when they go in the water.

Reasons cited for the shortage include low pay in an otherwise boom economy and a new awareness that the job is a serious responsibility that involves more than catching the rays.

At a recent meeting of parks and recreation directors from 11 Northeastern states, all the directors complained about lifeguard recruiting, said William J. Hawkins, chief of Rhode Island's Division of Parks and Recreation.

"Last year, we were short approximately 20 lifeguards throughout the summer," Hawkins said. There were a few areas where we were unable to offer lifeguard services."

Michael Angell, director of health safety and youth services for Rhode Island's Red Cross chapter, said several municipal pools had to cut their seasons short last year when young lifeguards returned to school.

A shortage in Rhode Island this year prompted the Red Cross to warn swimmers on the eve of Memorial Day weekend the situation might jeopardize safety. A new Red Cross lifeguard training program may ease the crunch this year, Angell said, but if the shortage continues, pools will have to cut back hours, a fear also expressed in Miami. "If we don't get any more guards, it's conceivable we may have to close some of the pools," said Bob Scharbert, Dade County park and recreation chief of operations. The shortage also has affected beaches.

Some officials suggested that people are beginning to realize how much responsibility is involved. "Lifeguarding is not really glamorous anymore," said Tom Renick, a Daytona Beach (Fla.) Marine Patrol supervisor.

Gene Bergman, aquatics operations supervisor for the Fort Lauderdale Beach Patrol, called it a "tedious, tough, hard job. The lifeguard has to be

Government will ban multiple licenses for truck, bus drivers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government is taking a first step today to crack down on commercial bus and truck operators who hide poor driving records by holding two, three or in some cases a dozen or more driver's licenses.

The Transportation Department is publishing new regulations which for the first time make it illegal for truck and bus drivers to hold more than one commercial driver's license.

Penalties of up to $5,000 can be assessed against both the driver and employer, and the driver could face up to a 90-day jail sentence under some circumstances if found to be using more than one commercial license after July 1.

According to the government and the trucking industry, as many as one-third of the country's long-distance truck and bus drivers may be holding more than one commercial driver's license. Licenses are often easy to get since in 19 states little more than an automobile driver's license is required

Pebble Beach fire destroys 32 homes; 175 evacuated

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Two hundred firefighters battled a forest fire Sunday that raged out of control through exclusive Pebble Beach, destroying 32 homes and forcing at least 175 evacuations, authorities said.

The fire, which leaped from house to house, closed Highway 68 as high winds spread heavy smoke and ash through the scenic area, the California Department of Forestry said

At least 175 people, mostly families, have gone to a Red Cross evacuation center set up at Monterey Peninsula College, said Monterey County Deputy Sheriff Lloyd Gash. Three firefighters suffered minor injuries, officials said.

Four people sought shelter at a motel

'They've lost everything," said Robyn Noe, manager of the Park Crest Motel who allowed the four to stay free. "Some got out with a few clothes, some got out with nothing." Pebble Beach, one of the world's most expensive pieces of real estate, is also home to one of the most famous golf courses, the Pebble Beach Golf Links, site of the former Bing Crosby Open.

Monterey Peninsula Hospital was on standby for any patients who came in needing help. One firefighter suffered was treated at the hospital and released, said Jackie Scoggin, a forestry department spokeswoman. The others suffered smoke inhalation. The blaze scorched at least 100 acres as it moved in a southerly direction parallel to Highway 68, jumping from house to house, she said. By late Sunday, the wind that had fanned the blaze died down, but many of the homes' wood-shingle roofs fed the flames.

"That's the main problem," she said.

Small enameled copper boxes had many uses

Small boxes have always delighted collectors, and in the 18th century enameled boxes were prized

For many years, collectors called all of these boxes "Battersea" boxes, but research has shown that many English, French and continental firms made metal boxes with enameled designs.

The boxes were usually made of copper. The metal was rolled thin, then the pieces hammered or stamped to form the box.

Enamel was made by grinding glass and mixing it with chemicals. This was applied to the copper and fired, then other colors were applied.

Boxes were small. They were made to hold candy, beauty patches, snuff, or as "toys."

The most unusual boxes were three-dimensional depictions of animal heads, birds or cherubs. Others were oval or rectangular, enameled inside and out.

Often mottoes were included in the design with sentiments such as "Love constitutes the value," or "A trifle from Bilston."

In 1970 an English firm revived an interest in enamels, and reproductions are being made today.

Could an adjustable piano stool be that old?

A. Yes. By 1800 there were many cabinetmakers working on the Eastern seaboard. The piano stool had been imported from England and was so popular, local makers produced many.

The mechanism to raise the seat appealed to the lovers of modern inventions. The adjustable seat was necessary for women who had to play the piano well so they could be considered

The other champions: Edmonton, Dallas win

Oilers take third Stanley Cup

AP Sports Writer

EDMONTON, Alberta (AP) It took some embarrassing moments and some soulsearching, but the Edmonton Oilers finally learned that an NHL game lasts 60 minutes.

And because they played hard for all 60 minutes Sunday night, they were able to keep the Philadelphia Flyers at bay in the third period and taste champagne from the Stanley Cup for the third time in four

"We read the newspapers and we watched the TV and there was criticism and rightfully so." said Randy Gregg, part of the Edmonton defense that held Philadelphia to two shots in the final 20 minutes as the Oilers posted a 3-1 victory in the seventh and deciding game of the championship

In their three losses in the finals, the Oilers had blown a 3-0 lead in Game 3, 2-0 and 3-1 advantages in Game 5 and a 2-0 edge in Game 6.

When the Flyers stayed within 2-1 entering the final period, they thought they had the Oilers right where they wanted them.

"We thought exactly that," said Flyers captain Dave Poulin, whose team was hoping to become just the second team in NHL history to win a championship series after trailing 3-1 in games.

But Edmonton's defense stifled any Philadelphia advances. And the Oilers poured 12 third-period shots on Flyers goaltender Ron Hextall — and hit the post four more times in the final 20 minutes.

They just really bore down," Philadelphia defenseman Brad Marsh said.

Hextall made 40 saves in the game and won the Conn Smythe Trophy as the outstanding playoff performer. He became only the fourth player from a losing team and the third rookie so honored.

Oilers goalie Grant Fuhr faced 20 shots and wasn't tested as often throughout the

"After we got the second goal, we checked them to a standstill." Fuhr said of Jari Kurri's tie-breaking tally with 5:01 left in the second period. For the first time in the series, the Flyers scored first. Murray Craven beat Fuhr just 1:41 into the game, as Oilers Mark Messier and Paul Coffey were both serving penalties.

Messier quickly made amends for his penalty, scoring at the end of a beautiful feed from Kent Nilsson and beating Hextall at 7:45. Nilsson had taken a brilliant pass from Glenn Anderson, who beat Lindsay Carson at center ice to set up the play.

"We were trying to move up on their best individuals to keep them from getting their speed going," Carson said. "I thought there were still three people back, so I went at (Anderson). I got a piece of the puck, but not enough.

Edmonton took the lead for good when Esa Tikkanen's check of Doug Crossman in the corner enabled Wayne Gretzky to get the puck over to Kurri, who snapped a low shot past Hextall from the faceoff

Anderson clinched the cup with 2:24 left in the contest when his 30-foot slapshot hit the inside of Hextall's left pad

Tatu, including the tiebreaker in the fourth quarter, to beat the Cleveland Force 4-3 Sunday night, eliminating Cleveland from the best-of-seven Eastern Division championships four games to one.

"They left a gap for me, and I said, 'Whoa, if you can get it between them...'" Tatu said. "So I went for it, and after that it was time to celebrate.

Cleveland, which beat the Sidekicks five of six times during the regular season, won the first game of the series before dropping four in a row. The Force was distracted by controversy during the past week because of reports that some players lacked respect for Coach Timo Liekoski.

"That was very unprofessional," Jago said. "How can a group of players do that at this point in the season? They selfdestructed."

Liekoski agreed, saying: "Certainly that indicates that all minds are not geared towards beating Dallas, at least not 100 percent. And certainly that has to take something away from you."

Cleveland, the Eastern Division regular-season champion, lost in the division finals for the fifth straight year.

The Force tied the game 3-3 on Ali Kazemaini's goal with 4:47 to play in the third quarter.

After Tatu put Dallas back up 4-3, Cleveland pulled goalie Chris Vaccaro and added a sixth attacker with just over three minutes to go, but the Force could not score again.

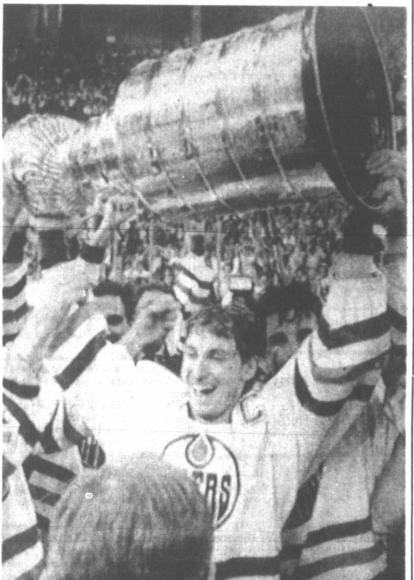

Tatu scored twice in the second quarter as the Sidekicks took a 3-2 halftime lead.

Craig Allen put Cleveland ahead 1-0 on a power play in the first quarter. Tatu and Willie Molano scored goals 49 seconds apart for a 2-1 Dallas lead early in the second period, but Cleveland's John Stollmeyer tied it 2-2 with 5:13 to play in the first Tatu answered less than a minute later with his 11th postseason goal.

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) -One of sport's supreme rivalries will be renewed as the Boston Celtics and Los Angeles Lakers continue what has been a virtual twoteam monopoly of NBA titles in

The Celtics, who have collected three league championships in the '80s, and the Lakers, who have also won three crowns, open the 1987 title series Tuesday night at the Forum.

It would seem the Lakers' turn

They were the champions in 1980, 1982 and 1985. The Celtics won titles in 1981, 1984 and 1986 and no team has repeated as league champion since Boston did it 18 years ago.

Only the Philadelphia 76ers, who beat the Lakers in the finals in 1983, have kept Boston and Los Angeles from sharing all the NBA championship rings handed out since 1979.

The Lakers, who had the league's best regular-season record at 65-17 and are 11-1 in the playoffs, come into this year's finals completely healthy and with eight days' rest.

The Celtics, extended to seven games by both Milwaukee and Detroit in their last two series, are wounded and probably quite

"I wish this were the end of it," an obviously tired Larry Bird said Saturday after he led Boston to a 117-114 victory over the scrappy Pistons in the deciding game of the Eastern Conference

'But we've got another step in front of us. ... I've been tired since January. We could have quit a long time ago," Bird, who played all 48 minutes in the seventh game, added. "We're not going to quit now.

The Celtics made it to the league finals despite a rash of ailments, including injuries to center Robert Parish, forward Kevin McHale, guard Danny Ainge and backup center Bill Walton.

"I look at the players on our team and ask them, 'Are you hurt?' And I go from there," Boston Coach K.C. Jones said.

Boston faces a Lakers squad that hasn't played since last Monday, when Los Angeles completed a four-game sweep of Seattle in the Western Conference finals

Lakers Coach Pat Riley, who moved his team to the coastal community of Santa Barbara for a mini-camp over the weekend, likes the fact that his players are rested and healthy. But he's concerned that they also might be a little rusty. "The pro of the lavoff is obviously the rest," he said. "The con is the staleness. "I feel the series is the best against the best," said Lakers guard Magic Johnson, the league's MVP this season. "Boston has been doing it for so long, even before we got here (to the finals). So it's a special feeling." The Celtics barely survived to make it to the title round. The seventh game of the Eastern finals might well have gone the other way had not the Pistons lost their leading scorer, Adrian quarter. He suffered a mild concussion when he and teammate Vinnie Johnson collided head-on while diving for a loose ball. The appearance in the NBA finals will be the 19th by the Celtics, who are a remarkable 16-2 in previous trips to the championship round. The Lakers, who moved from Minnesota to California in 1961, have been in the finals 19 times and have won the title nine The second game of the best-of-seven series will be played Thursday night at the Forum, with the third, fourth and a possible fifth game scheduled in Boston on June 7, 9 and 11.

DALLAS (AP) - With the pride of a new mother, Kay Guynes beamed as she described how her son Mike reached with his right hand to scratch the back of his head. The story would be typical if Mike were an infant and not a 16-year-old who has struggled for the past year to overcome a football injury In May of last year, Mike Guynes, a defensive back for the Arlington Martin high school football team, collapsed unconscious on the practice field after a blocking drill at spring practice

Since then he has undergone 10 operations and has struggled to regain control of a body that fails to respond to his brain's commands.

'It will take a long time for him to come back," said Kay Guynes, who has spent the last year at her son's bedside. She has learned "more nursing procedures than I ever wanted to know," she said. And now she and her family have returned home after a long separation.

Since the accident, Mrs. Guynes has been with Mike in three hospitals. Mike's younger brother, Jeff, lived with his grandparents in Oklahoma; and her husband, Duane, has maintained their Arlington home

At the end of April, Mike Guynes moved from a coma-stimulus center in Austin to the Dallas Rehabilitation Institute, bringing the family together again in the Dallas area. At the institute, Mike is undergoing intense therapy to help him relearn basic physical skills. Mike has been given approval to spend the day at his parents' home and to see many of his friends for the first time in a year.

'I'm a lot happier than a year ago, and I'm a lot more hopeful," Mrs. Guynes said. "Mike's a fighter. And we have a long way to

Since his collapse, Mike has suffered numerous complications - pneumonia, difficult operations and infections. During his first months of hospitalization, his weight dropped from 160 pounds to 119 pounds. But since the fall, he has grown two inches to 6 foot, 2 inches and weighs a healthy 170 pounds. Mrs. Guynes says he makes progress every day, whether it's scratching his ear, pointing to his nose or waving to a friend. "Those are little things, but you're talking about a kid who wasn't supposed to do anything," she said.

Mike's improvement has been slow but steady, she said.

On June 1, 1986, he first opened his eyes. In November, he was somewhat alert, but still in a light coma. Then on March 17, he began to communicate through sound and slight movement. On Easter Sunday, he waved for the first time.

He can read, he can point, and he can express happiness, anger and discomfort through specific sounds. He cannot speak and is still learning how to eat.

"Those are things that will take time," she

Although Mike is improving, his mother is still very protective of him. No reporters or photographers are allowed to see him, and she has discouraged many of his friends from visiting him in the rehabilitation center until he is more aware and mobile. She says she doesn't want to embarrass her son or add to his discomfort. Mrs. Guynes' devotion to her son has struck many as wasteful self-sacrifice, and people have told her to leave her son's bedside and return to her own life, she said. "This is my life," she responds softly "This is my kid."

Before he collapsed, Mike Guynes was practicing a drill called the "shed block," which called for him to block a succession of players who rushed him from about six yards

He later underwent an operation to remove a blood clot from his head, which doctors said was triggered by a severe blow or series of blows to his head that ruptured a blood vessel on the left side of his brain.

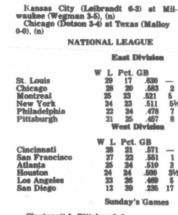

Mike will continue his recovery for at least three years, his mother said. He will probably spend another year at the Rehabilitation Institute and will be able to visit his parents' home often, she said.

The medical bills, which have topped $1 million, will continue coming, but most bills are covered by insurance. Her expenses in Austin and Denver, where Mike was hospitalized for about three months, were paid with money raised by Arlington residents and other people in the Dallas-Fort Worth area, she said.

"People in Arlington and the Metroplex have been absolutely incredible," she said. "Their money and their support have helped bring a long-distance family together."

Astros win behind another strong outing from Smith

ST. LOUIS (AP) - As far as the Houston Astros are concerned, there's only one element missing from veteran reliever Dave Smith's pitching.

"We just aren't seeing enough of it," Manager Hal Lanier said after Smith nailed down Sunday's 8-7 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals. "We haven't had enough leads in the ninth inning to make good use of what he throws."

Smith, who was summoned in the eighth inning with the bases loaded and none out, retired six of St. Louis' last seven batters to gain credit for his eighth save.

"My fastball's been good, because I haven't been pitching," said Smith, 32. "You get 3-4 days off (and) you throw the fastball every time. The key to getting people out is you've got to throw strikes."

Smith, who threw 32 pitches, struck out four of the batters he faced and extended his scorelessinnings streak to 18.

Counting spring training, he hasn't yielded an earned run since last year. He's given up only five hits during the regular season and struck out 24 while walking only two.

"He's been as dominant as any relief pitcher I've ever seen," Astros catcher Alan Ashby said. "You've got to look at the whole season, but I think the job he's done has been awesome." Smith, the last of six Houston pitchers, saved the victory for Jim Deshaies, 4-2, who left after 5

1-3 innings with a 7-2 lead. Larry Andersen and Dave Meads both failed to check the Cardinals in relief. Julio Solano gave way to pinch hitter Chuck Jackson in the Astros' eighth, and Smith bailed out Aurelio Lopez in the bottom of the eighth.

Tony Pena's single followed by walks to Jose Oquendo and John Morris brought on Smith to protect Houston's 8-5 edge.

Smith then struck out St. Louis pinch-hitter Rod Booker. Ozzie Smith doubled off Jackson's glove in center field to score Pena and Oquendo, but Tommy Herr struck out and Terry Pendleton grounded out to second Cardinals manager Whitey Herzog said he had not considered ordering a squeeze bunt from Herr despite Morris' presence at third.

"I wasn't going to squeeze in the situation we had; I wanted a base hit," Herzog said. "They were playing back. I just didn't think he (Dave Smith) was going to strike Tommy out." Lanier, like Herzog, consi-

Rangers win in 1 KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) -

Scott Fletcher's career batting average against Dan Quisenberry may smell up the joint, but it's hard to fault his timing.

With the go-ahead run at third base and two out in the 10th inning Sunday, Fletcher may have been looking for hit No. 1 against the ace of the Kansas City relief corps. And he found it, a double that brought Steve Buechele home with the decisive run in a 3-2 conquest of the Western Division leaders by the Texas Ran-

"I haven't faced Quiz much in my career, just a few times," Fletcher said. "I think that was my first base hit off him. It came at a timely moment."

Quisenberry relieved Jerry Don Gleaton, 1-1, after Buechele's one-out double eluded leftfielder Bo Jackson's outstretched glove by a fraction of an inch. A passed ball sent Buechele to third, then Darrell Porter was walked intentionally and Geno Petralli was retired on a fly ball to set the stage for Fletcher. Fletcher pulled Quisenberry's pitch down the left-field line barely fair.

"It was a sinker," he said. "I was just looking for the ball, trying to get one I could handle in that situation."

The victory gave the last-place Rangers a 2-1 advantage in the three-game series over the West Division-leading Royals. Dale Mohorcic, 4-2, got the victory with four innings of two-hit relief.

"Mohorcic was near perfect," Valentine said. "Fletcher had a real good game. Just when you think you've got the little guy down, he gets the game-winning

Even though Gleaton took the loss, starter Danny Jackson received most of the sympathy after the Royals stranded 14 runners. Through eight innings, Jackson had nine strikouts, three walks and only three hits. But his record remained 2-6. In those six losses, the Royals have scored exactly six runs

"Jackson pitched great," said Royals' Manager Billy Gardner. "He's in a good groove right now and should feel good about the way he's pitching. Like I've said before, he is going to win his share of games.'

Before winning two games in Kansas City, the Rangers were suffering through a 1-4 road trip.

"Any time you take two out of three from the club that's leading the pack, you got to be happy with it," Fletcher said. "Even though it's early, you don't want to get too far back. Now's a good time for us to get hot and a good time for them to get cold."

Pete Incaviglia tripled home the Rangers' first two runs in the third but had to be X-rayed for his trouble.

Hard-luck Brewers win second straight

By BOB GREENE AP Sports Writer

The two sides of Juan Nieves are frustrating to Milwaukee Manager Tom Trebelhorn. When he's good, Nieves is very, very good. Then there's the other side. On Sunday, Nieves was good.

"He's young, and if you think about what he's going to do next, you'll go nuts," Trebelhorn said of Nieves. "Every time you think he's got it going, and then, oops.' There was no "oops" Sunday as Nieves held Cleveland to a run on six hits in 8 1-3 innings in like three good starts in a row, you think he's OK, Milwaukee's 7-1 victory over the Indians. He increased his record to 4-2 as he struck out five and walked five.

Milwaukee also found the hitting to back the pitching. Dale Sveum and Robin Yount hit solo home runs in the fifth and Greg Brock added a three-run homer in the ninth.

The victory was the Brewers' second straight, but only their fourth in 22 games. Cleveland has lost six of seven.

Yankees 9, Athletics 5

Henry Cotto, subbing for Rickey Henderson, led off the bottom of the first inning with a home run, added a double and drove in three runs in New York's victory over Oakland.

Willie Randolph also homered, doubled and had three RBI before a crowd of 55,034.

Although Oakland had its four-game winning streak ended, Mark McGwire hit two solo home runs off winner Tommy John, 5-1, and tied Cincinnati's Eric Davis for the major league lead with

Blue Jays 7, Angels 2

George Bell tripled and homered, driving in three runs and scoring twice to back the four-hit pitching of John Cerutti, 2-2, as Toronto handed California its ninth straight loss.

Bell hit a two-run homer in the fifth, his 16th of the season, off Angels left-hander John Candelaria, 4-2. It was his 11th homer in May, setting a club record for home runs in a month. His three RBI gave him 42 on the season — 31 coming in May, also a Blue Jays' record. Mariners 8, Orioles 5

John Moses had four hits and Jim Presley homered to lead Seattle over Baltimore. Rookie Lee Guetterman, making his first start of the season, ran his record to 2-0 since being called up from Calgary on May 21.

Twins 11, Tigers 3

Two home runs by Tim Laudner in the second game sparked Minnesota over Detroit and gave the Twins a sweep. The Twins won the first game by taking advantage of an eighth-inning error by Detroit's Tom Brookens.

Phillies finally climb out of cellar

By DAVE GOLDBERG AP Sports Writer

The Philadelphia Phillies, expected to challenge for the National League East title, are finally out of the cellar.

Rick Schu, filling in for Mike Schmidt, who is on the disabled list with a pulled muscle in his rib cage, had a homer and sacrifice fly to back up the pitching of Shane Rawley and Steve Bedrosian as the Phillies beat the Los Angeles Dodgers 3-1 Sunday to get out of last place for the first time this

"We're playing like we're capable of playing now," said Rawley, who won his fifth straight to run his record to 6-2.

The Phillies, who jumped over Pittsburgh into fifth place, were the only NL East team to win Sunday.

Rawley went seven innings, allowing five hits, striking out five and walking one. Then he gave way to Bedrosian, who pitched the final two innings and now has 10 saves and a victory in his last 11 appearances.

Braves 2, Cubs 1

Gerald Perry dumped a single to short center following Ken Oberkfell's two-out double to give Atlanta the victory in the fourth extra-inning game the teams played in their last six outings.

Doyle Alexander, in only his second start since re-signing with Atlanta, pitched 5 2-3 hitless innings before opposing pitcher Scott Sanderson singled to left.

Reds 5, Pirates 2

Dave Parker's homer broke a 2-2 tie in a threerun sixth as the Reds completed a three-game sweep. That atoned for a sweep by the Pirates in Cincinnati last weekend and ran Pittsburgh's losing streak to six straight.

Ted Power, 4-2, was the winner, allowing seven hits over eight innings, striking out four and walking one

Padres 1, Mets 0

Ed Whitson allowed four hits over 7 2-3 innings, then gave way to Goose Gossage, who got the final four outs as the Padres ended a seven-game losing streak and broke the Mets' five-game winning string. Whitson, 5-6, now has almost half of San Diego's 12 victories this year.

Rookie John Mitchell allowed just six hits and the only run, which came on Garry Templeton's two-out fifth-inning single that scored John Kruk. The only Met to reach third was Lee Mazzilli, who tripled with two out in the first but was left stranded when Kevin McReynolds grounded to short.

Giants 8, Expos 0

Kelly Downs threw a five-hitter and was supported by 17 hits, including home runs by Robby Thompson and Jeffery Leonard as the Giants snapped an eight-game home losing streak and five-game losing streak overall.

Texas gas producers foresee positive signs in U.S. market

DALLAS (AP) — Texas natural gas are betting on a turnaround of market conditions later this year.

Some producers shut in wells as the industry was hit in recent years by low prices caused by a surplus in gas supplies.

Wellhead prices for Texas producers that climbed as high as $8 per 1,000 cubic feet in the early 1980s sank as low as $1.30 last year.

But some analysts have projected that prices could climb this year to an average of $2 per 1,000 cubic feet. Adding to the improved outlook for gas producers is this year's rally in oil prices.

In 1986, producers not only had to contend with surplus gas supplies but also declining demand. Gas consumption was at 16 trillion cubic feet in 1986, down from 17.3 trillion in 1985. Dorchester Hugoton is among a host of Texas producers betting that the decline in drilling activity, stable oil prices and winter demand for fuel finally will revitalize the domestic gas market this Dorchester, a Dallas-based partnership, saw an immediate improvement in its competitive position last week when the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission decontrolled some of its reserves in the Hugoton Field in Kansas.

Now, instead of getting only 59 cents per million Btu for its gas. Dorchester will be permitted to receive as much as $1.40 on the free or spot market.

"I think the recent actions that the FERC has taken are positive for the natural gas industry, not only in deregulating wellhead prices but also in the deregulation of the transportation of natural gas." said Howard Wadsworth, general manager of Dorchester Hugoton.

Natural gas competes in price with fuel oil for many residential consumers, and low oil prices gave the crude oil byproduct a big competitive

Oil company officials say any price improvement for natural gas will be limited by the price of No. 6 fuel oil for a long time to come.

But despite the competitive pressure from other hydrocarbon fuels, industry officials expect natural gas to move back toward a better price balance

Based on a traditional industry formula of a unit of gas commanding about one-tenth the price of a unit of oil, gas would sell at $2 per 1,000 cubic feet if crude climbs to $20 a barrel.

"Obviously, we were nowhere near there because of the large gas surplus," Richard Sharples, vice president of hydrocarbon marketing for Diamond Shamrock, told the Dallas Times Herald. Sharples said the natural gas industry is hoping to regain the price parity with oil, possibly as early as the winter heating season. The gas industry, which requires a complex pipeline transportation system to deliver the fuel from producer to user, has been turned on its head by low prices and oversupply. Gas purchasers have walked away from the higher-priced, traditional long-term contracts as cheaper gas became readily available through shorter-term sales agreements in the spot market. Analysts now are saying that the decline in drilling activity brought on by the oil-price collapse last year will squeeze available gas supplies and strengthen prices as early as this winter.

House, Senate members say ban on SSC site incentives will fail

WASHINGTON (AP) - A ban on considering incentives from Illinois, Texas and other states in site selection for a $4.4 billion nuclear particle accelerator has little chance of House approval, lawmakers opposed to the proposal say.

Similar legislation sponsored by Sen. Pete Domenici, R-N.M., was approved in the Senate recently as an amendment to the appropriations bill for the Department of Energy.

It would prohibit the DOE from using costsharing inducements from states as a criterion in deciding where to house the Superconducting Supercollider, a giant atom smasher intended to help scientists discover more about the nature of

"Obviously, Domenici is trying to say that states that have the resources to bring in the SSC ought not to be able to use those resources," said Rep. Terry Bruce, D-Ill. "I think that's a poor way to run the shop around here.

Bruce called the proposal grossly unfair to states which have spent lots of money on schools, hospitals, roads and facilities to make sites more desirable for the project.

'We've done that, and, as state taxpayers, we've paid heavily for it," he said. "So we ought to be able to put that in our proposal."

Bruce is a member of the House Science, Space and Technology Committee, which may take up its version of the DOE bill within the next few days. "I don't see that there are enough votes in the House to do what Domenici has done," Bruce added. "But I could be wrong, and we're spending a lot of time making sure that doesn't happen."

Joining the fight against a ban on incentives is Rep. Joe Barton, R-Texas, who claimed allies from New York, California and other large states. "We're putting a little coalition together, and I think we can beat it," said Barton.

Rep. Dennis Hastert, R-Ill., contended such an amendment threatens the entire future of the accelerator project.

"The bottom line is to try to build this thing as economically as possible," Hastert said Friday. "If anything drags it down, it will be the federal government having to pick up the whole cost of it. So I think that's a good argument to take off or at least modify the Senate amendment. The proposal also drew criticism from Energy

Secretary John Herrington, who sent a letter outlining his concerns to House Appropriations Committee Chairman Jamie L. Whitten, D-Miss. 'The location that is chosen for the SSC would almost certainly receive substantial economic benefits," he wrote. "It would thus not be unreasonable for those competing for the SSC to offer to contribute to the cost of construction and operation of the facility.

Battleship Texas board members handed subpoenas in pay lawsuit

HOUSTON (AP) — Members of the Battleship Texas Advisory Board must appear before a judge this week in connection with a lawsuit filed against them for allegedly failing to pay a commission for fund-raising activities.

The board met Saturday aboard the rusting battleship to discuss fund-raising activities and were surprised to be served with subpeonas ordering them to appear in State District Frank White's court Thursday.

Texas Dynamics Inc., a fund-raising organization fired by the board in February, is suing to obtain a $508,000 commission it claims is due on a $5 million grant.

The U.S. Navy has withheld its grant until the dispute can be settled. Board Chairman Denny Hair would not comment on the suit, nor would he allow the board to discuss it. While the legal battle continues, the Battleship Texas, a 72-year-old veteran of two world wars, is in danger of rusting apart in its berth at San Jacinto State Park. 'We're now beating a slow retreat as the sea claims compartments we can no longer hold the sea back from," said Stratford Morss, a former employee of the Battleship Massachusetts who was appointed to head restoration efforts on the

The ship, which has suffered two significant leaks in recent weeks, could be lost if it is not put in dry dock for major overhauls by the winter of 1988, officials say

Orin Knox, overseer of the battleship for the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department, said $558,000 in state funding authorized by the state Legislature should see the ship through preparations for dry dock.

The Navy grant is earmarked for work scheduled on the battleship after it is placed in dry dock. Marine architects have said the ship cannot be saved without extensive structural work.

Before the board received the subpoenas Saturday, they appointed a planning and development committee to examine fund-raising possibilities. After an hourlong discussion, the board agreed to raise money by staging foot races in Houston, Corpus Christi, San Antonio and in small Texas Entry fees and donations at the foot races would raise some money while Veterans of Foreign Wars offices throughout the state will stage fund-raising events in each town. "If we can organize ourselves properly, there's no doubt we can succeed," Hair said. "We are totally committed to saving the battleship."

Newspaper: White House contradicted itself on NSC

MIAMI (AP) - The White House stand that the National Security Council is not covered under a law prohibiting aid to Contras apparently contradicts an earlier presidential order naming the NSC coordinator of U.S. intelligence, a newspaper reported.

The discrepancy is contributing to private speculation among congressional leaders that they may have to consider punishing President Reagan or some of his senior officers over the Iran-Contra affair, The Miami Herald reported Sunday.

Although the word "impeachment" is scrupulously avoided by most, one Texas congressman filed articles of impeachment against Reagan almost three months ago, the newspaper said. The resolution, filed March 5 by

Rep. Henry B. Gonzalez, has not yet been referred to the House Judiciary Committee, a first step toward impeachment. Gonzalez, a 13-term Democrat from Texas, charges Reagan with six legal violations ranging from arms shipments to Iran to secret NSC aid to the Contras. House Speaker Jim Wright, D-Texas, insists "nobody is interested in looking at impreachment," said an unidentified aide quoted by the Herald. "People just want to find out what happrosecute anyone," Fascell said. "But if we find it, we won't dodge it. We can't ignore it."

A House Foreign Affairs subcommittee neither ignored nor forgot the 1981 presidential order. And it reminded the White House of the order in a 1985 letter in which it discussed whether the NSC was covered by the Boland Amendment, which prohibits federal aid to the Contra rebels.

The amendment outlawed aid to the Contras, specifically forbidding the administration from spending funds available to the CIA, Pentagon "or any other intelligence agency or entity" to help the Contras directly or indirectly.

The White House maintains that the Boland Amendment did not apply to the NSC between Oct. 12, 1984, and Sept. 30, 1985. The amendent, which underwent several revisions, expired in October 1986 and Congress appropriated $100 million in aid to the

The Herald said congressional investigators believe the law covered the NSC because of the Dec. 8, 1981, order signed by Reagan.

The White House declined to comment Friday on the order, the newspaper said.

Reagan said last week that the Boland Amendment "doesn't legally apply to me.

However, the Herald said that the president's 1981 order and the subsequent congressional reminder are expected to figure in growing debates over whether Reagan and his advisers broke the law by helping the Contras while the amendment was in effect.

Reagan discusses AIDS testing.

Some states look to courts and the law in battling AIDS

By The Associated Press

AIDS is first and foremost a health crisis, to be treated in hospitals, studied in laboratories and prevented through education, but some states have enlisted their courts and police in the battle as

In some cases, laws or regulations have been invoked to prevent victims of acquired immune deficiency syndrome from transmitting it through sexual activity; in other cases, judges have used their sentencing discretion to order testing or counseling for prostitutes or sex offenders.

The Rev. Pat Robertson, responding recently to an Associated Press questionnaire for potential presidential candidates, predicted that states eventually will be compelled to enforce a quarantine of AIDS vic-

"It's a stupid way to handle the epidemic, to try to criminalize the victims and the people that are ill," said Ellen Gillis, Lesbian-Gay Liaison for the San Francisco Human Rights Commission. "When you start driving people underground, you are losing a chance to educate them, and education is the best way to fight AIDS.'

Minnesota Gov. Rudy Perpich has been presented a bill that would give the state health commissioner authority to order treatment, or up to six months' commitment at a treatment center, if someone infected with AIDS is determined to be endangering the public.

Rep. Lee Greenfield, who sponsored the bill, said it was aimed at AIDS-infected prostitutes who do not seek treatment. "If all else fails, yes, they can create some kind of locked facility just as they do for the mentally ill," he said.

Indiana has a new law that permits the state's health director to seek a court order to quarantine a person who posed a threat to pub-

Reagan booed for AIDS tests remarks

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Reagan, drawing a mixture of boos and applause for his first major speech on AIDs, is calling for wider testing for the deadly disease as well as education to stem its spread.

Reagan issued his call Sunday night in a speech to a private research foundation's fund-raising dinner. His remarks came less than 12 hours before the opening of the Third International Conference on AIDS.

Vice President George Bush was delivering the keynote address today to the conference, which drew more than 6,000 scientists to Washington to share latest research on the disease.

Reagan, declaring education "crucial to stopping the transmission of the disease," said schools can help with that task. He expressed hope "that AIDS education or any aspect of sex education will not be value neutral."

"Values are how we guide ourselves through the decisions of life," he said, and "how we behave sexually is one of those deci-

Alluding to prior recommendations of Surgeon General C. Everett Koop, the president said teaching children to respect themselves and others is the best way to counter drug abuse and sexual promiscuity. AIDS is spread primarily by sexual contact and sharing needles by intravenous drug abusers.

"Now, we know there will be those who will go right ahead," the president continued. So, yes, after there is a moral base, then you can discuss preventatives and other specific measures.'

Koop — praised by Reagan at the outset of his speech as "what every surgeon general should be" - has urged the use of condoms by those who refuse to either abstain from sex or to engage only in a monogamous relationship with a partner who is not infected with the AIDS virus.

Reagan's reference to Koop elicited enthusiastic applause from more than 1,000 people attending the fund-raiser sponsored by the American Foundation for AIDS Research. and he was applauded repeatedly when he called for compassion for AIDs victims.

However, his support for what he called "routine" testing for the AIDS virus drew hisses and boos on several occasions.

The first came when Reagan said he was asking that AIDS be added to the list of diseases for which immigrants can be denied permament resident status and again when he said he has instructed the Justice Department to plan for testing of all federal prisoners. Although Reagan did not use the word "mandatory," his remarks left no doubt he was calling for required testing in those categories.

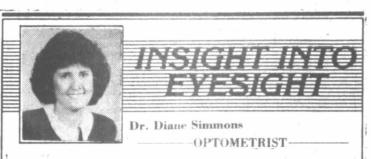

The testing question was sensitive to the audience members, who paid a minimum of $250 to attend Reagan's speech and a dinner that followed.

Actress Elizabeth Taylor, national chairwoman of the private foundation, had said before Reagan spoke that "voluntary, confidential testing is in the best interest of pub-lic health." She also had observed that some people might find it distasteful to talk about condoms, but that "we cannot allow moral judgments to interfere with our willingness to speak up about AIDS prevention."

Miss Taylor kissed the president on the check after his remarks and returned to the stage a few minutes later, appearing somewhat ill at ease with the reception he had received.

"About the testing, there are differences of opinion," she said, "but I think it was gracious and wonderful of the president to speak as he did."

Mervyn F. Silverman, president of the foundation, then restated the group's policy backing "voluntary, confidential testing, accompanied by intensive counseling."

A. Nearsighted people, as you know, can see clearly up close but three. not far away.

Although nearsightedness is a common problem, its cause is not known for certain. Prevention, then, is not clear cut but optometrist can, in some cases, prescribe treatment that may help stop or slow its progression.
