Pantyhose thief gets probation

Former White Deer school employee makes restitution

By CATHY SPAULDING
Staff Writer

PANHANDLE — Former White Deer school Business Manager Beverly Gaines today pleaded guilty to stealing almost $13,000 in school funds during more than three years with the district.

Gaines pleaded guilty to felony theft between $750 and $20,000 in 100th District Court in Panhandle.

In return for her guilty plea, Gaines received three years' deferred adjudication, meaning that if she successfully completes the probation, the charge will be removed from her record.

District Judge John Forbis also ordered the former business manager to pay a $300 fine, court costs of $133 and a $20 monthly probation fee.

As part of the plea bargain, Gaines also gave the court a cashier's check for $12,982, as restitution to the school district.

During the half-hour hearing that started about 10 a.m. today, Gaines briefly answered attorneys' questions from the witness stand while admitting her guilt.

Part of the stolen school funds were used to by hundreds of dollars worth of L'eggs pantyhose in less than a year, the defendant admitted.

Dressed in a black blouse, a calf-length plaid skirt and flesh-colored pantyhose, the defendant declined to comment about the plea. She quickly departed the courthouse and left in a maroon Pontiac Firebird.

Following the court action, District Attorney David McCoy of Childress said Gaines was not a hardened criminal.

"She got easy access to dollars and cents," McCoy said. "People just trust people more in places like Panhandle and White Deer. Characteristically, these people want to pay it back."

The missing school funds were revealed in a February audit by the Texas Education Agency and a private audit by the Amarillo accounting firm of Cornell & Co. The audits showed that Gaines used a school Visa card to buy $764 in pantyhose within a year.

Gaines already had reimbursed the district for about $500 of the pantyhose purchases, according to today's court pleading.

"It's just inconceivable that one person could get that much" pantyhose in a year, McCoy said today.

The audits previously indicated that school district funds were used for more than $5,000 in questionable expenses, but today's court action revealed that Gaines had taken an additional $7,291 from cafeteria cash.

The court record also said that Gaines stole $1,986 to pay her personal American

Pampa names chief finalists

By PAUL PINKHAM
Senior Staff Writer

Pampa's interim police chief, Jesse Wallace, is among five finalists for the permanent chief's job, city officials announced Tuesday.

Wallace, 42, has been serving as interim chief since January. Prior to that, he was a lieutenant in charge of the department's patrol division.

Joining Wallace on the list of finalists are Warren Whitton, 53, director of the University of Houston's Criminal Justice Center; Daniel Dearth, 39, associate professor of criminal justice at Pan American University in Edinburg; Robert Eberz, 45, director of police at Louisiana Tech University in Ruston, La.; and John Dunaway, 40, a Littleton, Colo., stockbroker.

All four of the other candidates have police experience.

Former Police Chief J.J. Ryzman left Pampa in January to become chief of police at Corsicana, south of Dallas.

In releasing the finalists' names Tuesday, City Manager Bob Hart said each candidate is progressive and contemporary in his views on police issues. All have demonstrated good administrative skills and are committed to community service and personnel development, Hart added.

"We think that all five of them meet the criteria very well," the city manager said.

Hart and Personnel Director Phyllis Jeffers were asked by city commissioners to conduct the search for Ryzman's replacement.

Hart said interviews will begin Monday and the new chief probably will be announced at a city commission meeting a week later.

"We would like to announce the selection on May 12," Hart said. "That's our target date — at least the week of May 11."

Hart said that Wallace will be weighed equally with the other candidates and will not be given any special preference because he is from Pampa. He said Wallace was chosen as a finalist because the interim chief has demonstrated many of the traits Hart and Jeffers are interested in.

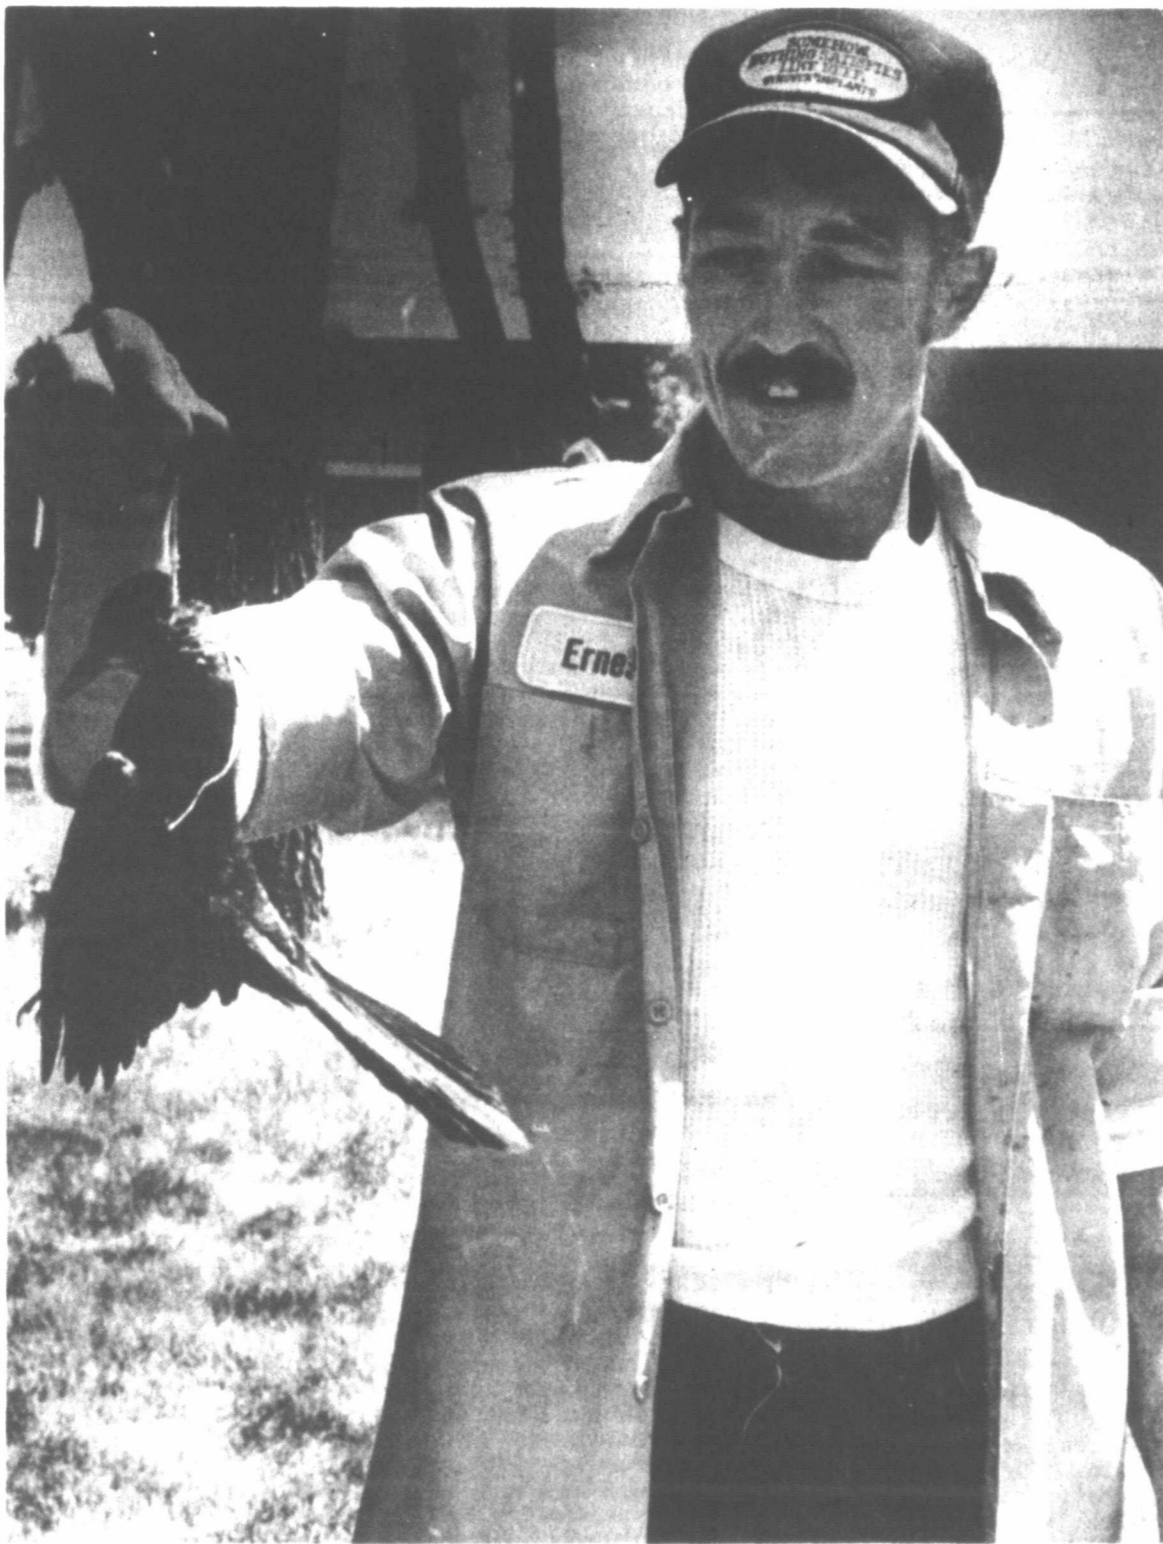

"I wouldn't say he had an advantage or a disadvantage either way," Hart said of Wallace.

Five applications were received from officers in Pampa.

Before coming to Pampa, Wallace was a sergeant with the Carson County Jail trusty Doug Medley examines a bird with a noose around its neck that Medley retrieved this week from a tree on the Carson County Courthouse lawn. The bird was found hanging by its neck on a string dangling from a tree limb 20 feet from the ground. The bird struggled to free itself from the tiny noose while Medley and other trustees tried to knock or cut it from the tree. After nearly 20 minutes, the trustees retrieved the bird, only too late to save its life.

City off the first tee toward course

The city of Pampa has hit its initial drive toward a public golf course, but golfers need not get out their bags and clubs anytime soon.

During the regular City Commission meeting Tuesday night, Pampa city commissioners authorized city staff to undertake a feasibility analysis for a proposed public golf course.

But City Manager Bob Hart said the study will probably take two to three months to prepare before it's brought back to the commission for its consideration.

Hart said the feasibility study would include contacting personnel at other public golf course sites, checking out proposed sites here, analyzing the sites for development needs, preparing cost and maintenance estimates and getting together with Gray County commissioners to review the proposal.

All that will probably take two to three months before the staff can bring back an opinion to the City Commission for its study, Hart said.

The city has found itself faced with having to consider the golf course issue following a county-sponsored referendum voted on by Gray County residents on April 4. Pampa voters carried the weight to favor the golf course, though the residents in other parts of the county generally turned down the proposal.

The non-binding referendum calls for the county to contract with the city of Pampa to help construct a public golf course, with the county providing personnel and equipment plus money not to exceed $300,000. The referendum noted that "it is presumed that the city of Pampa will own and operate the golf course."

In addition, the Pampa Public Golf Course Association, which

Truckers roll over home parking ban

By LARRY HOLLIS
News Editor

Truckers can continue to drive their rigs home without worrying about barricades keeping them out of residential areas following the failure of a proposed parking ban during Tuesday's City Commission meeting.

An ordinance that would have prohibited drivers from parking large trucks, semi-trailers and other similar vehicles at home failed for lack of a motion from commission members.

But the commission did vote to send the proposal back to the Traffic Commission for further study on a more general ordinance concerning safety hazards from obstruction of vision on city streets.

Though the commission has held two public hearings to receive comments on the proposed ordinance — which was recommended for approval by the Traffic Commission — truckers and their supporters again showed up to voice objections at the Tuesday night session.

Herman Jeter claimed the ordinance would be unconstitutional, saying the prohibitions against parking at home would be interfering with the truckers' business operations. He also said the city would be asking the truckers to keep their valuable vehicles outside the city, where they could not be taxed to help city coffers.

Trucker Layne Conner said he had been on the road and had only recently become aware of the proposal. Conner said city residents are dependent on truckers for their food and other goods. "What happens to this city if the truckers boycott Pampa?" he asked.

The ordinance is not right, Conner claimed. He said the trucks are probably safer than most cars, and yet the city is not asking

PTL mentioned in Pampa church fracas

A Pampa preacher was left with bruises on his forehead and face after coming to blows with a member of his congregation Monday over plumbing bids for the church and references to PTL, police reports and the preacher say.

The Rev. Earl Maddux, 61, pastor of Fellowship Baptist Church, 622 E. Francis, went to the mat with Chester Howard Ingram, 625 N. Wynne, after the preacher told Ingram, a plumber, that the church was accepting bids on plumbing work, police said.

Ingram apparently felt that, because he was a member of the church, he should automatically do the work, police said.

Screaming "you're a Jim Bakker preacher," Ingram allegedly punched Maddux in the face Monday, while comparing him to the fallen head of the PTL Club, reports state. Ingram later filed a report with police, claiming Maddux attacked him with a 2-by-4 board in the incident at the church, police reported.

Rev. Maddux, who declined to file a complaint against the man, said today that he only was trying to defend himself. He said he has forgiven Ingram and one of his workers, whom he claims joined Ingram in the fracas.

The preacher admits to picking up a 2-by-4, but claims he didn't use it and picked it up only after Ingram and the other man came after him with a shovel.

"When two men's coming at you with a shovel, you've got to do something to protect yourself," Maddux said. "I don't think you'd blame a man for defending himself, even if he was a preacher of a church."

"I could have whipped both of them, but somehow I just couldn't hit them. When the Lord saved me, he took all that stuff out of me."

Maddux, who will have been in Pampa 30 years in August, said he "turned a deaf ear" toward Ingram's reported reference to Jim Bakker and the PTL ministry.

"He just lost his head and began to scream," Maddux claimed.

The preacher said Ingram called and apologized for the incident. Ingram has since dropped his complaint against the preacher, Municipal Court records state.

"There's no winners in this case," Maddux said. "It's a tragedy that these things have to happen over nothing."

Montana residents fearful after escape of 4 snipers

By STEVE MOORE
Associated Press Writer

WOLF CREEK, Mont. — Wary residents kept guns at hand today as police searched the wild country for up to four snipers, including two escaped killers linked to a total of six slayings, who fled after a four-hour shootout.

Aircraft with heat sensors buzzed through the night skies over the foothills around Holter Lake, a reservoir on the Missouri River. More than 100 law officers searched for the heavily armed fugitives, who slipped away after trading hundreds of rounds with police Monday and wounding two campers.

Two of the suspects are wanted in a double-slaying last weekend in Colorado, authorities said. "My gut feeling is they're still in the area," Lewis and Clark County Sheriff Chuck O'Reilly said Tuesday evening, but he conceded that the suspects could slip into neighboring Cascade and Meagher counties.

The snipers apparently climbed mountains northeast of a ridge where the shootout occurred, O'Reilly said. He would not say what new steps authorities might take.

Police searched cabins and bathhouses, warning residents to lock their boats.

Frenchy Forgette, who operates the Oasis Bar, said Tuesday that residents are keeping guns within reach. Forgette quoted one patron as saying he planned to have a "Wolf Creek lunch"—a can of beer and a loaded gun—and empty both.

"I got the gun out," said a clerk at the Canyon Store and service station, who refused to identify himself.

County, state and federal officers combed the sparsely populated area Tuesday, but found no trace of the snipers. Three planes and a helicopter flew over thousands of acres surrounding the reservoir, and a tracking dog was brought in.

The shooting broke out Monday afternoon after shots were fired at officers investigating an abandoned, rolled-over van near Holter Lake.

O'Reilly said the van was taken from the scene of the double slaying.

The shooting intensified, and two campers were slightly wounded when gunfire struck their car. The shooting lasted until darkness, when deputies backed off and began evacuating residents and campers from the recreation area midway between Helena and Great Falls.

The two male suspects were identified late Tuesday as escapees from a California penal institution where they were serving terms for homicide.

Steven Miller, 34, and John "Doc" Whitus, Jr., 36, escaped Feb. 21 from California Medical Facility in Vacaville, said prison Lt. Bob Houston. Whitus was convicted in 1972 of two drug-related killings; Miller was convicted in 1976 of two slayings, including a police officer.

Demos get another candidate

MANCHESTER, N.H. (AP) — Massachusetts Gov. Michael S. Dukakis today joined the roster of contenders for the 1988 Democratic presidential nomination, offering leadership that would leave America "greater, better, stronger, prouder and more beautiful."

Dukakis, 53, formally announced his candidacy in a speech combining an attack on Reagan administration policies, a subtle dig at Democratic front-runner Gary Hart, and an appeal to voters to judge his own fitness for the White House by his performance as governor for nearly a decade.

"Ask more than what we are going to do. Ask what he has already done," Dukakis said at a renovated mill building in snowy New Hampshire.

"Ask more than whether we have new ideas. Ask whether we have already made new ideas work," he said in remarks that seemed designed to challenge Hart's self-styled campaign of "new ideas."

Dukakis embarked on his campaign as a long shot in national polls, hoping to parlay his popularity in New Hampshire—the nation's first primary state—and the economic turnaround of his own Massachusetts to the party nomination.

Two recent polls have said that Dukakis is even with front-runner Hart in New Hampshire.

By his announcement, Dukakis joined Hart, former Arizona Gov. Bruce Babbitt and Rep. Richard Gephardt of Missouri as official Democratic candidates. Sens. Joseph Biden of Delaware, Paul Simon of Illinois and Albert Gore of Tennessee as well as the Rev. Jesse Jackson are expected to run, and Arkansas Gov. Bill Clinton is also considering a campaign for the Democratic nomination.

On the Republican side, former Nevada Sen. Paul Laxalt, 64, announced Tuesday formation of an exploratory committee, saying his decision to run is "as close to final as it could be."

J.C. Penney may move to Dallas

NEW YORK (AP) — Efforts by city officials to keep the headquarters of the J.C. Penney Co. in New York have failed and the company will relocate to Dallas, city officials said.

The company would not comment on the reported move and telephone calls Tuesday and early today to the home and office of a Penney spokesman, Harvey McCormick, were not returned.

About 4,000 people working at Penney's 45-story downtown tower would be affected.

The move had been rumored for two years. City officials who negotiated with Penney for several months in an effort to keep the headquarters in New York said the loss of so many jobs would cost the city millions in income tax revenues but would not lead to a contraction of the local economy which has been expanding.

"Even with these moves, we have experienced substantial job growth this year," the deputy mayor for finance and economic development, Alair A. Townsend, said. "And that comes on top of the increase in jobs we had last year, about 64,000."

A Penney announcement could come only days after a similar announcement by the Mobil Oil Corp. which said Friday it was shifting its headquarters to Virginia over the next three years. The American Telephone and Telegraph Co. had started, but then suspended, a move of most of its headquarters staff to New Jersey last month.

The latest exodus of major corporations differs from the wave of relocations that shook the city in the 1960s and early '70s as they come at a time of economic growth and declining local and state taxes.

The latest relocations are the result of turmoil in specific industries, such as oil, retailing and communications, rather than from declining city services.

Departing companies also position themselves to earn substantial profits from their headquarters buildings, properties that have grown tenfold in value since 1977, The New York Times noted in today's editions.

Penney has seen its earnings as a retailer stagnate, while the value of its headquarters building at Sixth Avenue and 52nd Street has soared. The Times said the company indicated to consultants working on the move that it would either sell or lease its 24-year-old tower after the move to Texas.

For tax purposes, the building is currently valued by the city at about $100 million. Real-estate analysts estimate that it could bring as much as $400 million on New York's soaring real-estate market.

Texas has no personal or corporate income tax and its real-estate taxes are a fraction of what Penney pays in New York.

Jury selection starts in Animal's trial

BELTON (AP) — A judge denied a request to delay the capital murder trial of Jerry "Animal" McFadden, but the move delayed jury selection.

State District Judge F.L. Garrison denied the motion by defense attorneys, but the request ended trial proceedings for the day Tuesday.

Jury selection in the capital murder trial began Monday and was scheduled to resume Tuesday, but was interrupted by the motion. McFadden, 39, a convicted sex offender, is accused of killing 18-year-old Suzanne Harrison, a Hawkins high school honor student in May 1986.

The proceedings have been postponed four times, the last time by Upshur County officials, who said they couldn't afford the case, which officials estimate will cost $250,000.

Last summer, McFadden, who calls himself "Animal," led lawmen on a three-day chase after escaping from the Upshur County Jail.

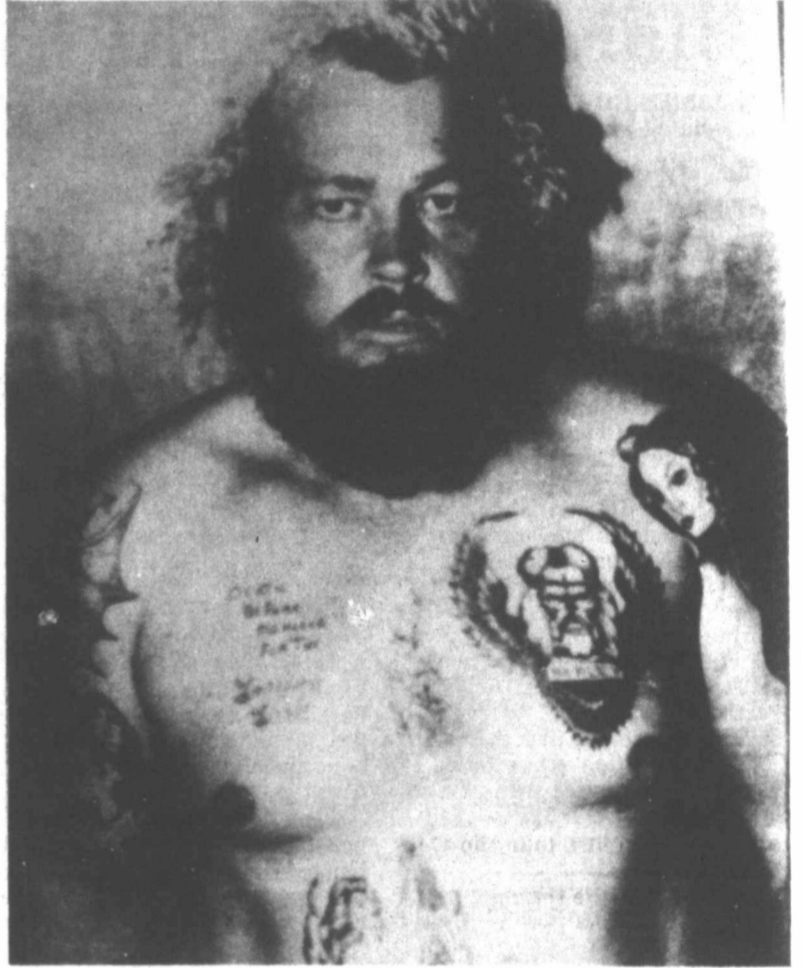

The trial was moved to Bell County earlier this year after a judge determined there was too much pretrial publicity. Judge Garrison issued a gag order after the news media learned about information concerning last-minute medical tests.

Court-appointed defense attorney Vernard Solomon of Marshall said before the gag order was issued that McFadden was a victim of circumstance.

"He was just in the wrong place at the wrong time," Solomon said.

McFadden pleaded guilty in 1972 to the rape of 14-year-old girl in Denton. One year later, he pleaded guilty to the rape of a junior high school teacher in Haskell.

In 1978, he took an 18-year-old Hamlin secretary hostage and raped her. He received 15 years for the crime after pleading guilty.

Building collapse search continues

BRIDGEPORT, Conn. (AP) — Rescue workers continued their grim search today for 10 men missing in the twisted rubble of an apartment building that collapsed last week, killing at least 18 people.

The number of confirmed dead rose Tuesday as the bodies of Herbert Goeldner, 37, of South Hadley, Mass., and Terrence Gruber, 54, of Patterson, N.Y., were pulled from the ruins of the L'Ambiance Plaza project.

The seventh funeral for construction workers killed in Thursday's disaster was set for today. Three victims were buried Tuesday.

The search for survivors, now in its sixth day, has no deadline, said Mayor Thomas Bucci, who previously suggested the hunt would end Saturday.

Rescue workers burrowing into shattered concrete and mangled steel have said they found pockets with enough air in them to sustain life, but hopes were dim.

"One void went down quite a way. We felt the condition was too dangerous to put anyone in there," said Jonathan Best, the city's director of emergency management. "We looked around with a camera. We haven't seen anything."

On Tuesday night, a construction worker placed a large wreath of red and yellow carnations with a banner reading "Brothers" on a fence ringing the site.

Nicaragua blames U.S. for American volunteer's death

MATAGALPA, Nicaragua (AP) — U.S.-backed rebels killed a young Oregon engineer working on a rural development project, according to Sandinista officials who accused the Reagan administration of responsibility.

The death Tuesday of Benjamin Ernest Linder, 27, of Portland, was the first reported slaying of an American working on behalf of Nicaragua's leftist government.

Nicaragua n officials said Contra rebels killed Linder and two Sandinista militiamen in an attack in the northern village of La Camaleona in Jinotega province, where the rebels have been increasingly active in recent months.

Linder — described by acquaintances as short, bearded and thin — was working on the construction of a small hydroelectric plant in the village 85 miles northeast of Managua.

An American acquaintance of Linder said he usually carried an assault rifle "for protection" when he ventured outside the village, but did not know if he had the gun with him Tuesday. One report said he was unarmed at the time.

Sandinista authorities said Linder's body would be brought to Matagalpa, the nearest sizable town and the capital of the province of the same name. A wake was to be held in the office of the presidential delegate in Matagalpa and many wreaths were piled in a large room waiting for Linder's coffin.

Foreign Minister Miguel D'Escoto sent a protest note to Secretary of State George Shultz saying the attack was carried out "by a counterrevolutionary group under contract to the U.S. government."

D'Escoto said the attack "makes clear once again the terrorist and criminal nature of the acts promoted by the administration of the United States within its bloody official policy of state terrorism, a practice that has been condemned by the international community."

There were conflicting reports on the slaying. A government official, commenting on condition of anonymity, said six Contras walked into Linder's office and shot him. D'Escoto's note said Linder was "kidnaped and later murdered."

Eduardo Griffin Noland of the private U.S. group Witness for Peace and some Nicaraguan travelers who arrived at the scene shortly after the raid both quoted witnesses as saying the attack occurred while Linder and six Nicaraguans were on the outskirts of town surveying a pipeline.

The travelers told reporters in Matagalpa that Linder was unarmed when a Contra commando unit struck with grenades and rifle fire. They said four of the Nicaraguans with Linder were militiamen, who customarily provide security in small settlements in the war zones.

They quoted the witnesses as saying Linder was killed by a grenade and that two of the militiamen were killed after returning fire.

In Washington, State Department spokeswoman Sondra McCarty said she had no information on the reports of the death. "We're checking into them," she said.

Mexico's central bank has had economic news

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Mexico's central bank released the official bad news on the economy Tuesday, saying the gross domestic product declined 3.8 percent in 1986.

"In 1986, a year in which it was expected that advances achieved during the present administration would be consolidated, the country faced the most unfavorable foreign economic situation of the last half century," the Bank of Mexico said in its annual report.

Deterioration in oil income and a lack of foreign credits last year especially aggravated the existing economic crisis, the report said. But it said production declined in all sectors except livestock and electricity.

The average price for Mexican crude oil in 1986 was $11.80 a barrel, 46.6 percent of the 1985 average and far below the $23 price that was used to figure the original economic plans for last year, the report said.

As a result, exports of crude oil and petroleum products brought in $8.5 billion less than the $14.7 billion in 1985.

"To appreciate the magnitude of this loss, think that it exceeds the contribution of all national agriculture to the gross domestic product," it said.

Growth in non-petroleum exports compensated in part for the decline, but because they did not represent a high percentage of the total could not totally counteract the fall in internal demand, it said.

Increasing prices of raw materials caused sales to fall, which in turn prompted production cutbacks, it said. But exports became more competitive because of the continuing devaluation of the peso currency against the dollar and more open foreign markets.

"In the future it will be possible to continue correcting in a similar way the current balance of payments account, if the profitability of production aimed at foreign markets improves permanently through greater opening to international trade and if demand policies do not provoke excessive internal spending," the report said.

International reserves fell $1.88 billion in the first seven months, but recovered as of September and reached $6.79 billion on Dec. 31, an increase of $985 million from 1985.

Exports declined 26 percent, from $21.7 billion in 1985 to $16.0 billion in 1986, while imports dropped 13.5 percent, from $13.2 billion to $11.4 billion. The trade surplus was $4.6 billion, down 45.6 percent from the $8.46 percent in 1985.

The balance of payments deficit of was $1.3 billion, compared with $1.2 billion surplus in 1985.

In contrast to the three previous years, agricultural production fell 4.2 percent in 1986.

Senate committee approves changes in teacher education

AUSTIN (AP) — A bill that would require prospective teachers to receive a bachelor's degree in a discipline other than education received approval of a Senate committee, but not before elementary school teachers were exempted.

The Senate Education Committee approved the amendment after much opposition from Sen. Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur.

"The amendment will insure that minority students get second rate teachers," said Parker, sponsor of the bill. He said minorities usually end up with the worst teachers and exemption of elementary school teachers will continue the production of bad teachers.

After Sept. 1, 1991, aspiring teachers would be required to have a bachelor's degree with an academic major or interdisciplinary major.

Sen. Carlos Truan, D-Corpus Christi, touched off a heated debate in the committee meeting when he offered the amendment that would also exempt special education, bilingual education and other specialty teachers.

The amendment was approved 5-4.

Students seeking teaching certificates also would be restricted by the bill to taking only 18 hours in education courses, excluding student teaching hours.

"This will not do away with the colleges of education. It will not mandate a five-year program," said Parker, adding the intent was to give prospective teachers a broader education.

Robert Hardesty, president of Southwest Texas State University, disagreed. He said lawmakers need to "resolve philosophically" whether they want to increase college course plans for prospective educators.

"They're adding so much, (a prospective teacher) couldn't get student teaching in in four years," Hardesty said.

Controversy also surrounded a bill that would require college students who fail state mandated assessment tests to take remedial courses. The bill is an attempt to replace the Preprofessional Skills Test administered to education students who had to pass it before entering the institution's college of education.

Under the bill, students would be given three tests they would have to pass before taking upper level education courses. Originally students who fail would be required to take remedial courses and would be prohibited from taking upper level courses.

Truan successfully amended the bill to also allow grade point average, faculty letters of recommendation, and other assessments to be considered in deciding whether a student should be allowed to begin upper-level course work.

"To require that a student could not continue in advance courses, as if the test was anointed by the good man upstairs, would be an injustice," said Truan. Truan said the future of a student who was not a good test taker could be ruined if he or she were not allowed to begin upper-level courses.

"If they can't be coached well enough to pass a freshman English test two years after they've been in college, they have no business graduating. . . . If you can't take a test, you're going to hit a dead end anyway," said Parker, author of the bill.

Both measures now go to the Senate floor for a vote.

In other action, lawmakers say the board that oversees state higher education in Texas can recommend how big colleges and universities should be allowed to grow and what they should offer, but final decisions are up to the Legislature.

During a Senate Education Committee Monday, members approved new duties for the Texas College and University System Coordinating Board, but wouldn't approve a transfer of power to the panel.

A bill sponsored by Sen. Parker would have allowed the coordinating board to take over the duty of setting enrollments and determining the course and degree offerings of each institution.

Instead the committee voted 5-3 to require the board to make recommendations to the Legislature on those areas.

"I don't want any board or agency to have the autocratic power to make those determinations on its own without consulting the Legislature or . . . having a fair and public forum on it," said Sen. Chet Brooks, D-Pasadena.

"At this time I vehemently oppose shifting it from the Legislature to the coordinating board, but I want the coordinating board to work as a partner," he said.

Stew reflects authentic Mexican cooking

Mexican Chicken Stew captures the flavor of Mexico in a haunting, spicy concoction bubbling with flavor.

Mexico has influenced American cuisine to such an extent that Tex-Mex food is now a very popular and spirited part of cookery across the country. You will find Tex-Mex restaurants in most large cities and many small ones.

Authentic Mexican cookery, however, is more complicated than Tex-Mex. Their classic dishes have a delicate flavor and a change-of-pace taste. South of the border, there are wonderful things with chicken, for example, and we offer two examples that display the range of possibilities in Mexican specialties. Try them both; they are delicious though different.

Mexican Chicken Stew is a straightforward stewed chicken with vegetables and spices. Chopped chili peppers add heat, a cinnamon stick its musky flavor and orange juice and sections contribute an unexpected jolt of piquancy. Despite the peppers, this is a comforting dish that young and old will enjoy.

Oranges also appear in Chicken in Mexican Green Sauce, but in a more sophisticated guise. The chicken is browned and cooked in a seasoned chicken broth-orange juice mixture. The accompanying Mexican Green Sauce is a blend of Romaine lettuce for color, almonds for delightful flavor, chili peppers for warmth and coriander for spice. When blended, the mixture is placed in the pot with the pan juices, tequila and orange sections to add the final touch to the sauce. This is a superb dish suitable for entertaining.

Whether casual or formal dining is your preference, Mexican chicken entrees hold promise.

MEXICAN CHICKEN STEW

- 2 tablespoons vegetable oil
- 2 1/2 to 3 pounds chicken pieces
- 1 medium onion, chopped
- 2 cloves garlic, minced
- 1 can (16 ounces) tomatoes, undrained
- 1 1-3 cups orange juice
- 1/4 cup canned, chopped green chilies
- 1 3-inch cinnamon stick
- 1/2 teaspoon dried leaf thyme, crumbled
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1 pound small white onions, peeled
- 1 pound carrots, cut in chunks
- 1 green pepper, sliced

- 1 tablespoon water
- 4 teaspoons cornstarch
- 2 oranges, peeled and sectioned

In Dutch oven or heavy saucepot heat oil; brown chicken on all sides; remove and set aside. Add onion and garlic; saute until onion is tender. Stir in tomatoes, orange juice, chili peppers, cinnamon stick, thyme and salt; mix well. Return chicken; add whole white onions and carrots. Cover.

Cook over medium heat 25 minutes, or until chicken and vegetables are tender. Add green pepper; cook 5 minutes longer. Remove chicken and vegetables to deep serving dish; keep warm. Remove and discard cinnamon stick. Bring liquid in pot to boiling. Combine water and cornstarch; stir into pot until mixture boils. Boil 1 minute. Add orange sections. Pour over chicken and vegetables.

Yield: 4 servings.

CHICKEN IN GREEN SAUCE

- 2 tablespoons olive oil
- 1 chicken (2 1/2 to 3 pounds), cut in pieces
- 1 large onion, chopped (1 cup)

- 3 cloves garlic, minced
- 1 cup orange juice
- 1 cup chicken broth
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper
- 1 1/4 cups lightly toasted, sliced almonds, divided
- 1 cup shredded romaine
- 1/2 cup chopped, canned green chilies
- 1/4 cup fresh coriander leaves
- 1/4 cup tequila
- 3 oranges, peeled and sectioned

In large skillet heat oil; brown chicken on all sides; remove. In same skillet saute onion and garlic until tender. Stir in orange juice, broth, salt and pepper; return chicken. Cover. Simmer 25 minutes, until chicken is tender; remove to serving plate; keep warm. In blender or food processor combine 1 cup liquid from skillet, 1 cup almonds, romaine, chili peppers and coriander; process until smooth. Add sauce to skillet; stir in tequila. Simmer, uncovered, 5 minutes; stir often. Add orange sections; pour sauce over chicken. Sprinkle with remaining 1/4 cup almonds.

Yield: 4 servings.

Celebrate Cinco de Mayo with Mexican fare

The fifth of May, Cinco de Mayo, is one of Mexico's merriest national holidays. Celebrated with fun and feasting, it commemorates the Mexican army's 1862 victory in battle over the invading French in the small town of Puebla. It's a great excuse to celebrate with a casual fiesta of your own.

South of the border, many celebration menus will star Mole Poblano, the national dish of Mexico, created by nuns in Puebla to honor visiting clergy over 200 years ago. Spicy, full-flavored and often requiring over 30 ingredients including unsweetened chocolate and a multitude of chiles and spices, this popular dish requires more time and effort to prepare than most north-of-the-border cooks can spare. This quick and easy one-dish meal, inspired by this famous creation, will please American cooks who love Mexican flavors but lack the time for involved preparation. Mole Poblano Style Stew teams chicken, pinto beans, tomatoes, onion and peppers in a rich, dark sauce that preserves the traditional taste of the original dish. To streamline preparation of the distinctive sauce, unsweetened cocoa replaces hard-to-find Mexican chocolate, and picante sauce replaces tedious-to-prepare chiles. Made with only fresh, natural ingredients including tomatoes, onions and fresh jalapeno peppers, the lively Mexican food sauce provides garden fresh, authentic flavor and just the desired amount of "heat."

Team this mildly-flavored stew with a warm and fragrant loaf of quick-to-fix Fiesta Cheddar Bread for a super celebration meal. A great go-along for stews, soups and salads of all kinds, the bread boasts the lively flavor and spicy jalapeno pepper punch of picante sauce, in the cook's choice of mild, medium or hot.

- MOLE POBLANO STYLE STEW
- 1 cup coarsely chopped onion
 - 2 garlic cloves, minced
 - 2 tablespoons vegetable oil
 - 1 1/2 pounds boned and skinned chicken breast (about 3 whole breasts), cut into 3/4- to 1-inch cubes
 - 1 can (28 ounces) whole tomatoes
 - 1 can (15 ounces) pinto beans, drained
 - 1 medium green pepper,

- coarsely chopped
- 1/2 cup picante sauce
- 2 tablespoons unsweetened cocoa
- 1 teaspoon ground cumin
- 1 teaspoon oregano leaves, crushed
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- Dash of ground cloves
- Dash of ground nutmeg
- Dash of ground allspice
- Cook onion and garlic in oil in Dutch oven or large saucepan until onion is tender but not brown. Add remaining ingredients; bring to boil. Reduce heat; simmer uncovered 20 to 25 minutes or to desired consistency, stirring occasionally. Serve with additional picante sauce. Makes 6 servings, about 7 cups stew.

FIESTA CHEDDAR BREAD

- 3/4 cups buttermilk baking mix
 - 1/2 cup (3 ounces) shredded sharp cheddar cheese
 - 1/4 cup water
 - 1/2 cup picante sauce
 - 1 egg
- Combine ingredients; beat vigorously for 30 seconds. Pour into generously greased and floured 9 x 5-inch loaf pan. Bake in preheated oven at 350°F. about 45 to 50 minutes or until golden brown. Remove from pan; cool on wire cooling rack. Makes one loaf.

Celebrate Cinco de Mayo, the lively Mexican national holiday, with casual, quick-to-fix fiesta fare. Mole Poblano Style Stew, an easy crowd pleaser inspired by the national dish of Mexico, will star on the menu.

Carrot cake has pineapple frosting

By NANCY BYAL
Better Homes and Gardens

- 1 carrot
- 1-3rd cup cooking oil
- 2 eggs
- 8-ounce can pineapple slices (juice pack)
- 1 tablespoon margarine or butter
- 2 tablespoons brown sugar
- 1 cup whole wheat flour
- 1/2 cup packed brown sugar
- 1/2 teaspoon baking powder
- 1/2 teaspoon baking soda
- 1/2 teaspoon ground cinnamon
- 1/2 cup finely shredded

Drain pineapple, reserving juice. Halve pineapple slices. Melt margarine in 9 x 1 1/2-inch round baking pan. Stir in 2 tablespoons brown sugar and 1 tablespoon reserved pineapple juice. Arrange pineapple in pan; set aside.

In a large mixer bowl stir together flour, 1/2 cup brown sugar, baking powder, soda and cinnamon. Add carrot, oil and eggs. Beat with an electric mixer on medium speed until combined. Beat 2 minutes more. Gently spoon batter evenly into pan over pineapple mixture. Bake in 325-degree oven about 35 minutes or until a wooden toothpick inserted near the center comes out clean. Cool 5 minutes in pan. Invert onto serving plate. Serve warm. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

- 11-ounce can pineapple tidbits and mandarin orange sections drained
 - 1 kiwi, peeled and sliced
 - Lettuce leaves

- 1/4 cup mayonnaise or salad dressing
- 1 tablespoon milk
- 1/4 cup broken walnuts

Arrange pineapple tidbits and orange sections and kiwi fruit on 4 lettuce-lined plates. In a small bowl stir together mayonnaise and milk. Spoon over fruit mixture. Sprinkle with nuts. Makes 4 servings.

Try these cooking hints

To melt chocolate in your microwave oven: Place chocolate in a glass measuring cup. Microwave, uncovered, on 100 percent power (high) until almost melted, 1 to 1 1/2 minutes for 3 ounces or 1 1/2 to 2 minutes for 6 ounces. Remove from the oven. The chocolate may still hold its shape but give it a quick stir and it will be melted.

To make a lump-free sauce: Use a wire whisk to prepare cooked sauces that are satiny smooth. Stir often and don't neglect corners. Stir vigorously, if necessary, as the sauce cooks.

To stuff a pork chop: Buy 1-inch-thick chops for stuffing. Using a sharp knife, cut a 1 1/2- to 2-inch slit about 1 1/2 inches deep on the fat side of the chop. Spoon about 1/4 cup of stuffing into the pocket. Secure the opening with 1 or 2 wooden toothpicks.

4-H'ers win in district meet; some advance to state level

CANYON — High Plains 4-H'ers from 14 of the 20 counties in Extension Panhandle District 1 qualified to compete in the State 4-H Roundup at College Station, June 9-11, by taking top honors in district competition April 25 in Canyon.

Senior division honors included Gray County, six wins; Hemphill, two wins; and Carson, one win.

To qualify for state contests, a team or individual must have a first or second place win in the senior division, which is for those age 14 and older. Juniors do not compete beyond the district level.

Gray County earned nine wins in the junior division. Carson and Hemphill counties also had first and second place junior wins.

Six rounds of district competition were staged earlier. Dairy Cattle, Meats Judging, Soil Judging and Range and Pasture Grass events were held April 4; Livestock Judging and Horse Judging were April 11.

About 250 boys and girls participated in the one-day April 25 event which included 39 contests. Ribbons were presented at an awards assembly which followed the contests at Canyon High School Auditorium.

Top contest winners in senior and junior divisions included:

MEATS JUDGING — Senior Division: Gray County, second place. Team members were Stacie Smith, Denise Ingram, Kevin Collingsworth and Rodney Nickel.

Junior Division: Gray County, first place. Team members were Kirk McDonald, Jason Huckins and Dennis Williams.

SOIL JUDGING — Senior Division: Hemphill County, first place. Team members were Paul Ward, Jonathan Joslyn, Kevin Osterson and Howard Varnell.

Junior Division: Hemphill County, first place. Team members were Shawna Wagoner, Mark Cornett and John Rivers.

LIVESTOCK JUDGING — Junior Division: Carson County, third place. Team members were Jason Howell, Kade Hefner, Jarrett Andrews and Kim Immel.

HORSE JUDGING — Senior Division: Gray County, second place. Team members were Enoch Phetteplace, Jeff Osborne, Don Rowell and Eva Jo Isbell.

Junior Division: Gray County, second place. Team members were Michel Reeves, Matt Reeves and Shelly Stubblefield.

PUBLIC SPEAKING — Senior Division: Mindy Oler of Hemphill County, second place. Sherrie Palmer of Carson County, third place.

OPEN CLASS — Senior Division: Gray County, second place. Team members were Jeffrey Lane and Tamara Lane.

Junior Division: Gray County, second place. Team members were Amanda Kludt and David Kludt.

ENERGY — Junior Division: Gray County, first place. Team members were Shelby Vinson and Laura Williams.

COMPANION ANIMALS — Senior Division: Heather Kludt of Gray County, second place.

AGRONOMY — Junior Division: Gray County, second place. Team members were Amy Maul and Carily Downs.

SHARE THE FUN — Senior Division: Gray County, second place. Team members were Donna Eakin, Roy Lott, Brian Fleming, Dori Kidwell, Sherri McDonald, Sheila Romines and Keziah Rucker.

MECHANICAL SKILLS — Junior Division: Dave Davis of Gray County, first place.

HORSE DEMONSTRATION — Junior Division: Hemphill County, second place. Team members were Katie Cornett and Penny Lyons.

SAFETY AND ACCIDENT PREVENTION — Junior Division: Gray County, second place. Team members were Dennis Williams and Jason Huckins.

CITIZENSHIP IN ACTION — Junior Division: Tommy Pennington of Gray County, third place.

CONSUMER LIFE SKILLS — Junior Division: Carson County, second place. Team members were Chad Bertrand and Jeff Milican.

FAMILY LIFE EDUCATIONAL ACTIVITY — Senior Division: Carson County, first place. Team members were Helen Lee and Katie Fraser.

HOME ENVIRONMENT EDUCATIONAL ACTIVITY — Junior Division: Erin McCracken of Gray County, second place.

FOODS AND NUTRITION — Junior Division: Gray County, second place. Team members were Lori Sutton and Grace Sutton.

CLOTHING — Senior Division: Gray County, first place. Team members were Stacie McDonald and Becky Reed. Kristi Burch of Hemphill County, third place.

Dangerous poisons spring from 'harmless' sources

DEAR ABBY: I just finished your column on childhood poisoning. It was very good, but you missed one very important poison that parents don't recognize as such.

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

When my son was a toddler, he almost died of nicotine poisoning. He had eaten several cigarette butts from an ashtray. I called the poison control center immediately, and they didn't know what to do! As it turned out, ingesting cigarette butts can lead to shock, and then respiratory failure.

Please, please, tell parents not to leave ashtrays or cigarettes where children can get at them. We are lucky that our son is still alive, but we still question whether he suffered brain damage from this incident. I hope this will prevent others from going through what we did.
