Gunman shoots score

Florida man opens fire toward 'anything in sight'

By HOWARD BENEDICT
Associated Press Writer

PALM BAY, Fla. — A gunman "shooting at anything in sight" killed six people in a rampage at two shopping centers before police fired tear gas into the store where he held three hostages early today and wrestled him to the ground, authorities said.

At least 14 other people were injured, two critically, and the hostages were freed unharmed, police said. Police initially said three people were found huddled unhurt in a refrigerated storeroom, but later it was not certain of their number or location. The dead included two police officers.

William Cruse, about 60, of Palm Bay was arrested 7½ hours into the siege.

He has been charged with six counts of first-degree murder, 10 counts of attempted first-degree murder and multiple other counts, including kidnapping, Palm Bay Police Chief Charles Simmons said at a morning news conference.

The gunman was in contact with police by telephone during the siege, but he "was incoherent, rambled," and "went in melancholy fits of rage," Simmons said.

"He asked for cars and airplanes and a number of things," but not money, said Simmons.

"He hasn't stated a clear motive for what he did," police spokeswoman Louise Brown said.

"We're trying to find out what brought it about," said Simmons. "At this time we don't know."

The gunman, who police said was armed with two rifles, one high-powered, opened fire at 6:25 p.m. Thursday at a Publix supermarket, then continued shooting as he made his way across the street into a Winn Dixie supermarket, where he took three people hostage, police said.

"This guy was shooting at anything in sight," said Stephanie Call, who worked in one of the shopping centers. "He didn't care. He was amazing. He wasn't aiming. He was just shooting at anything."

"I felt one bullet go right through the top of my hair," said Fletcher Redmond, 62, a jewelry store owner in one of the shopping centers. "I just dropped to the floor. I just knew the next shot was going to be lower."

The gunman, in contact with police by telephone, released the hostages because "he didn't want to hurt any more women," Brown said from the scene about 1 a.m. today.

About 200 police officers converged on the supermarket, firing into it tear gas and a device that emits a bright flash and a loud noise.

"They started to cuff him when they grabbed him, and he fought them all the way to the car, knocking one of those guys

Rescuers listening for life in building

High-rise collapses, kills nine

By LINDA STOWELL

BRIDGEPORT, Conn. — Rescuers using dogs and sensitive microphones today picked through tons of concrete and steel for 19 workers trapped when an unfinished high-rise apartment building "collapsed like dominoes," killing at least nine.

"The chances of finding anyone alive are very minimal," Mayor Thomas Bucci said late Thursday. "We haven't given up hope. We're hoping there are pockets within the destruction where survivors are located."

Forty-one workers from the construction site were alive and accounted for, including 12 who were hospitalized, Bucci said. Witnesses said some of the workers jumped "like pigeons" from the building as it fell.

"The floors began collapsing like dominoes," said William Curbow, 47, a welder who said he jumped from the sixth floor. "I thought I was going to die."

"Right now we're on hold," ironworker Tony Sciarappa said today at midmorning as work stopped and equipment was shut down to let the microphones operate. "We thought we heard some tapping, but we're not sure if it was an echo."

The sound, like two pieces of metal tapping together, seemed to come from a central location at the site, possible at the first floor, Sciarappa said.

"There are caves and openings — that's really what we're going for — the basement, where the walls have leaned against one another," he said. "The pockets

Families pray hard

BRIDGEPORT, Conn. — Just before midnight, a young man rushed into the high school gymnasium, sobbing loudly, with the dreaded message.

"He's gone! They found him!" he cried out to relatives waiting for some word of the missing workers at the unfinished L'Ambiance Plaza housing project that collapsed Thursday.

"Oh my God!" a woman wailed as she embraced the man who had just brought the news that another body was recovered from the site a few hundred yards away.

Other family members gathered in a tight circle, sobbing and embracing each other.

A minister led the wailing woman away to a classroom as her legs began to wobble. A nurse in a white uniform followed.

Relatives and friends of other missing men began sobbing. Some bowed their heads as if in prayer.

The gymnasium, an arena of joy when the Kolbe Cathedral High School Cougars were winning state basketball championships, fell silent into a house of sorrow.

Future in limbo for suspended Canadian chief

By CATHY SPAULDING
Staff Writer

CANADIAN — Canadian Police Chief John Bradshaw — suspended this week for comments he reportedly made while teaching a law enforcement class — isn't talking about the incident, even though he said he has "lots I'd like to get off my chest."

Bradshaw, 45, was suspended Monday for reportedly telling a law enforcement class that he knew a convicted arsonist was innocent.

Interim City Manager Dean Looper suspended Bradshaw indefinitely with pay after receiving a complaint letter addressed to Bradshaw from 31st District Attorney Guy Hardin.

Bradshaw, hired in August as the city's fourth police chief in four years, said Thursday night that he would have no comment on his suspension or complaint from Hardin. Bradshaw said City Attorney Joe Hayes advised him not to make any public statements.

Looper said Bradshaw visited with him late Thursday morning and later prepared a public statement giving his reaction to his suspension.

"But after visiting with Hayes, we (Bradshaw, Hayes and Looper) all agreed it would be better if Bradshaw said nothing," Looper said, describing Bradshaw's note as "basically a non-statement" confirming that he had been suspended.

Looper said the chief, who teaches law enforcement classes at Amarillo College, seemed "very calm, professional and relaxed" when he met with him Thursday.

"Bradshaw assured me he was confident this would be worked out," Looper said.

Looper said he does not know what could happen next.

"We're in kind of a waiting game now," Looper said, adding that Bradshaw's options include appealing his indefinite suspension to the City Council.

"But we're really not involving the council at this point," Looper said. "If the council, or one or two members want to call a meeting to look into it, they may."

Looper said the next meeting will be a May 4 special meeting when the council interviews city manager candidates.

The interim city manager added that there are "indications of possible litigation."

"And I suppose Bradshaw can wait it off," Looper said.

Bradshaw was suspended when Looper received a letter Hardin had written to the chief. Hardin's letter chastised Bradshaw for comments reportedly made during a lecture six weeks ago at an interrogation class at Amarillo College. The class was for individuals wanting a job in law enforcement.

Hardin quoted Bradshaw as telling the class "we had a fellow in Canadian on probation and we took his confession and extradited him. But I know he didn't do it."

Bradshaw said Thursday that he would neither confirm nor deny such a statement was made.

The comment was taped by a student taking the class and was later sent to Hardin's office, the district attorney has said.

Hardin explained the statement was made in reference to Claude Gene Grinder, who was sentenced to six years in the Texas Department of Corrections after pleading guilty to a charge of arson. The charge stemmed from a Sept. 13 fire at a rural Hemphill County mobile home.

Hardin was scheduled to visit Grinder in prison to get a statement from him this week.

Hardin "fired a letter" to Bradshaw and sent copies to 31st District Judge Grainger McIlhenny and the Hemphill County Sheriff's Department. Hardin said he had not planned to send a copy to the city.

Looper said Hardin's letter to Chief Bradshaw was placed on his desk. Bradshaw, who did not see the letter until Thursday morning, had no comment. The interim city manager added that in discussing the letter with Bradshaw, the chief "is not sure what he said in class."

"He doesn't know if (his statements) were taken out of context," Looper said.

A secretary at Canadian High School confirmed reports that Bradshaw withdrew his son from school Thursday.

Despite the controversy, Bradshaw said he's had an "excellent" relationship with the city of Canadian.

"We got a lot of calls in support of me," Bradshaw said. "And I appreciate that."

down," said Buddy Donald, 25, who lives nearby.

Three victims were pronounced dead at Holmes Regional Medical Center, and three were found dead in store parking lots, Simmons said. No victims' names were released.

As the rampage began, initial police reports of the number killed ranged up to 12 before an accurate count could be made.

Witnesses at first reported two gunmen with red hair carrying military rifles, one in his late 20s and the other in his 50s, Brown said. A man in his 20s was arrested soon after the shooting started, but officers later decided the man holed up at Winn Dixie was the sole assailant.

The second man was accused of interfering with officers, police said.

A neighbor of Cruse, Marguerite Hall, told the Orlando Sentinel that he had fired a gun Thursday evening at two boys who had teased him, then drove away. The boys apparently were not harmed.

On previous occasions Cruse had fired shots into the air, and was being teased by children because he had allegedly exposed himself to local boys last week, she said.

Witnesses reported "people lying in the gutters" after the shooting started.

Of the 13 wounded, a 16-year-old boy was in critical condition with a gunshot wound to the abdomen and five other people were in serious but stable condition after surgery, according to Dr. D. Scott Gettings, director of emergency medicine at Holmes Regional Medical Center.

Three others were hospitalized and four others, including an infant, were treated and released, he said.

Palm Bay, a 65-square-mile city on the Atlantic Coast about 70 miles southeast of Orlando, has a population of about 43,000.

being filled with revelers celebrating a victory, it was lined with grim onlookers and volunteer rescue workers, many of them stunned and frustrated by the long wait. Police cars, Salvation Army vans with food and coffee, and heavy equipment dotted the avenue.

Signs of death were there: the fallen slabs of concrete, the twisted steel beams, a gray hearse.

Inside the gymnasium friends and relatives embraced and sured each other. Some wept alone and silently. Others sat or stood in small groups.

The half-eaten food and the green cots that went unclaimed told of their grief.

"How can you sleep?" asked 76-year-old Rose Pilla, who waited for word of her 65-year-old brother, Anthony Rinaldi of Waterbury.

"Oh, dear God. Oh, dear God. Oh, dear God," she chanted softly over and over. "I am praying. I want him to know we're waiting for him."

A brother, William Rinaldi, 67, also waited with her. He was unable to finish a sandwich and began sobbing.

"What am I going to do?" Rinaldi said. "What's the use of living? We lived together. He's the only one I have."

William and Anthony Rinaldi were bachelors and had lived with their mother and cared for her until she died several years ago. A third brother, David, 68, died a year ago in April.

"I'm praying, but I heard there's no more hope," William Rinaldi said.

"So long to wait," said another woman keeping vigil for her brother.

Boulter sees foreign oil danger

AMARILLO (AP) — The domestic oil industry is an economic wasteland because of the actions of Saudi Arabia, a Panhandle congressman says.

U.S. Rep. Beau Boulter, R-Amarillo, made the comment Thursday in a speech at the annual meeting of the Panhandle Producers and Royalty Owners Association.

Boulter also warned of the dangers of dependence on foreign oil.

"I hear it said that we need to be grateful to Saudi Arabia because if it were not for the Saudis we might have $6 oil," Boulter said. "But I would suggest that because of the Saudis the domestic oil industry is an economic waste land."

Boulter said the Saudis and OPEC "let us know on the record in the newspapers and on television exactly what they intend to do. (They) proclaim a twofold purpose in their manipulation of petroleum markets and prices: one is to eliminate marginal, high cost production, and two is to prevent the development of alternative energy sources."

The Amarillo congress also said that before 1990, the U.S. will be dependent on unstable foreign governments for more than 50 percent of its petroleum needs.

Area libraries offering tips

AMARILLO - A program for "independent scholars" of all types will be held at 2:30 p.m. Sunday at the Amarillo Central Library, 413 E. 4th.

Titled "Getting to the Facts," the program is a panel of representatives of the Harrington Library Consortium, a cooperative effort among Panhandle area libraries.

The free program is designed to help anyone interested in using libraries better.

Areas to be covered in 15-20 minute segments include "Some New Secrets of Reference Research" by Louella Stewart, assistant director for public services of Lynn Library and Learning Center at Amarillo College, and "Independent Study Instructional Support Services" by Arvela Voth, coordinator for computer aided instruction of the Lynn Library.

Also speaking will be Frances Jones, director of Cornette Library at West Texas State University, on "Finding and Using Government and Historical Documents." Karen Ruddy, technical services director at Amarillo Public Library, will discuss "Audio-Visual," "Tracing the Book from Acquisitions to Cataloging to You" and "The Trouble With Subject Matter Indexes."

Diane Pierson, director of Deaf Smith County Library, will conclude the program with "How the Texas Panhandle Library System Can Work for You."

The Harrington Library Consortium was formed in 1983 as a cooperative effort to automate and combine the library resources of Amarillo Public Library, West Texas State University, Amarillo College and Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center.

In 1984 an additional grant was secured to bring on line Deaf Smith County Library, Lovett Memorial Library in Pampa and the libraries at Frank Phillips College, Austin Junior High School and Caprock High School.

In 1985 Hutchinson County Library was added, and databases shared with Perry Memorial Library of Perryton; Carson County Libraries in Groom, White Deer and Skellytown; and Killgore Memorial Library of Dumas.

Rhoads Memorial Library of Dimmitt, Friona Public Library and Canyon Public Library are in the process of being added this year.

Canadian play advances to state

BIG SPRING — Canadian and Panhandle continued their theatrical steamroll to state after taking top positions at the region 1-AA one act play competition Thursday at Big Spring.

The next University Interscholastic League performance of Canadian's What I Did Last Summer and Panhandle's Once Upon a Clothesline should be May 7 at the state UIL meet in Austin.

Canadian's play focuses on a youth's encounter with an exiled eccentric during a summer vacation on Lake Erie.

Mike Wagner was named Best Actor for his portrayal of Charlie, the wide-eyed teen. Anja

Laubhan received Best Actress as the feisty "Pig Woman."

Elise Thrasher made the All-Star Cast as Charlie's spoiled sister. Tiffany Crouch received honorable mention as Charlie's emotionally frigid mother.

A state victory for Canadian may be especially sweet for CHS speech and drama sponsor Tony A. "Tal" Lostracco, who is appealing his recent contract non-renewal with the Canadian school board. A hearing on Lostracco's appeal is scheduled for 6 p.m. Monday at Canadian's Baker Elementary School cafeteria.

Trustees voted in March not to renew Lostracco's contract when they discovered that he failed to garner enough college credits for a teaching certificate.

Meanwhile, in Levelland, Mobeetie's poignant Mr. Flannery's Ocean, an entry in the Region 1-A contest at South Plains College, failed to reach state finals. Still, that didn't keep Greg Langley from making the contest's All-Star Cast for his portrayal of a crochety old Irishman and Dianne Moffett from receiving honorable mention as an American widow.

Vega High School's production of Little Women advanced to state with Cynthia Morrow named Best Actress for her role as Jo.

are big enough for people."

Earlier, the search focused on a two-story mound of rubble in the center of the site and a slightly higher pile on the edge, said John Bourgoin, business agent at Ironworkers Local 832 in Wallingford.

"There were known men there working on scaffolding," Bourgoin said.

Police said the search for those missing in the collapse of the downtown L'Alliance Plaza project could take a week because each concrete slab had to be lifted carefully from the wreckage. Two concrete pillars left standing when the building fell were demolished to protect rescue workers.

"I think some of the guys are still alive. There are some tunnels where they could be getting air from," Larry Edmonds, a construction worker from another site who went to help with the rescue, said late Thursday night.

"Some of the work down there is being done by hand" so as not to disturb the pile of debris, he said.

Frank Mercaldi, director of the city Building Department, said he inspected the site Monday. He said he saw no problems then but was there for only a few minutes. He said city inspectors looked at the site several times a week, and called the building's construction technique, known as lift-slab, "totally accepted."

The technique involves pouring the concrete floors at ground level and then hoisting them into place. Mercaldi said he believes a slab was being put into place when the building collapsed.

Families spent the night at a high school a few blocks away to await news of their relatives.

Rescuers from neighboring towns converged on the site, and construction companies sent crews and equipment. Scores of people in hard hats watched under high-powered lights. Several cranes were used to pull pieces of concrete off one by one and dump trucks hauled away debris.

Several times the scene became quiet. All machinery, including trucks, fire engines, front-end loaders and cranes, were shut off as dogs were sent sniffing across the rubble and microphones lowered in.

After one such eerie silence early today, Gary Rizz, who came to help from another site, said, "There's nobody left alive down there. There's just not enough pockets for people to be in. It's just flat like a pancake."

City officials asked for help from Florida, California and Mexico, where authorities have experience dealing with major natural disasters, Joe Grabarz, assistant to Bucci, said today.

The New York City Fire Department also sent a thermal-imaging camera that lets rescuers see the outline of objects emitting heat, said John Mulligan, a department spokesman.

The $17 million project in Bridgeport, an industrial city of 142,600 people on the southern Connecticut coast 65 miles northeast of New York City, was to be 13 stories tall, with 218 units.

Richard Morales, who lives across the street from the site, said he was walking down the street when the building collapsed.

"It was like two planes crashing together," Morales said. "At first, all I could see was smoke and white clouds. And then all we could see was people jumping."

"She saw the people when they (came) flying down. They waved their hands and look like pigeons. The buildings trembled and people started to scream and wave their hands," said Andy Lopez, translating for his wife, Carmen, who also saw the collapse from across the street.

John Moran, deputy fire chief, said, "As I came up over the hill I was looking for the building. I was hoping that it wasn't that building on the way up. And when I looked into the sky I didn't see it there any more and my fears were affirmed when I got there."

Long court battle over school money ends

AUSTIN (AP) — A bitter 2½-month court battle over distribution of state funds to public schools has ended with property-poor districts being advised to take their pleas to the Legislature.

Attorneys for the poor districts urged State District Judge Harley Clark to order the state to take some school aid away from wealthy districts and give it to the poor. Clark said he would announce his decision Wednesday.

Assistant Attorney General Kevin O'Hanlon told the judge Thursday that the Legislature has determined that the average basic allotment of state funds should be about $2,900 per student.

"If some districts do not get all the $2,900, it is because they have not developed local tax sources to maximize the state money available," he said. "This court cannot order a tax increase to give schools more money — that's a legislative function."

The three hours of final arguments by attorneys Thursday afternoon ended the trial that began on Jan. 20. There have been several lengthy recesses.

The civil lawsuit was filed against the state by 67 property-poor school districts who contend the division of state school funds is discriminatory. The state, joined by 48 other school districts, claims the distribution is fair and adequate.

The poor districts have proposed redistributing as much as $660 million from rich districts to those more in need.

"The present method does not give equal protection to school students nor to tax payers," said Albert Kaufman of the Mexican American Legal Defense Education Fund.

The present system gives hundreds of thousands of school children different educational opportunities than those in other districts, Kaufman said.

David Richards, representing a number of the poor districts, said statistics show the 100 poorest districts have a tax rate of 74 cents per $100 property valuation and can spend only $2,978 per student. He said the 100 wealthiest districts can spend $7,233 per student.

"No matter how you slice it, that's extremely unfair," Richards said.

"I am very sympathetic with these school districts," said Bob Luna, representing a group of wealthy districts, "but a legal case cannot be decided on sympathy. And they are asking this court to rule on the basis of sympathy."

"The state pays about $11,000 a year for each prison inmate," said Rick Gray, another attorney for poor districts, "but poor school districts get less than one-fifth of that for each school student."

Education Commissioner William Kirby, one of the last witnesses for the state on April 1, said a redistribution would hurt large urban districts, such as Houston, Dallas and Fort Worth, which include many disadvantaged and minority students.

The state now distributes about $5 billion to support public schools with another $5 billion coming from local school taxes.

Democrats: It's taxes or cuts

LAREDO (AP) — Democratic legislators, dubbing themselves "the truth squad," are following in Gov. Bill Clements' footsteps and telling Texans there is another side to the tax story.

"The problem with the facts as laid out by Gov. Clements is that they simply are not true," said Sen. Hugh Parmer, D-Fort Worth.

Touring three South Texas cities Thursday, Parmer and five other lawmakers are challenging the Republican governor's argument that $2.9 billion in new taxes for 1988-89 is enough.

The Democrats said that population growth, increased unemployment and inflation mean state government must spend more to provide the same help to its citizens during the next two years than it did in the last two.

"The governor is reducing his budget... on the shoulders of public and higher education and in the area of health and human services against the people that can least afford it. And that's why we're here," said Sen. Carlos Truan, D-Corpus Christi.

The lawmakers cited examples of what they said Clements' $36.9 billion, two-year budget would do to services now provided. Among the effects, they said, would be:

— Increases in local property taxes to continue funding public schools adequately.

— Reductions in Aid to Families with Dependent Children payments from $57 a month to $43 in 1988 and $37 in 1989.

— Loss of nursing home care to about 8,000 elderly.

— Loss of child protective services for about 6,000 abused children.

The legislators, who plan to make every stop Clements does on his scheduled 17-city tour, said they believe the governor is wrong in saying his budget would not reduce services.

"Gov. Clements is going around the state of Texas delivering a message... which is just simply not accurate. Even his arithmetic does not work," Parmer said.

The Senate has approved a $39.9 billion budget, and the truth squad members said that is a realistic figure. They noted that half the Senate's six Republican members also voted for that spending total.

"I believe Gov. Clements is sincere in his belief. But Gov. Clements is sincerely wrong," said Sen. Hector Uribe, D-Brownsville.

Christi; State Sen. Hugh Parmer, D-Fort Worth; State Rep. Eddie Cavazos, D-Corpus Christi; State Rep. Eldon Edge, hidden, D-Poth; and State Sen. Judith Zaffirini, D-Laredo.

Museum finds that three prized sculptures are $18 fakes

DALLAS (AP) — The Dallas Museum of Art has scuttled three of its prized ancient Mexican sculptures after discovering that the supposedly $200,000 collection is actually made up of $18 fakes, officials say.

There may be hundreds of other such fakes, mass-produced in the 1950s and worth about $18 each, in museums and art collections in this country and Europe, the Dallas Times Herald reported today.

At least five other U.S. museums — including the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York and the St. Louis Art Museum — were taken in by the bogus Veracruz sculptures, said Mimi Crosely, an Austin-based writer for Connoisseur magazine who uncovered the forgeries.

Other museums are yet to be identified, she said. The DMA pieces, first exhibited in 1976, have been removed from display.

"We were totally caught by surprise," DMA Director Harry Parker said Thursday. "These are so good in quality that I'm convinced there are other forgeries that will be found in public and private collections here and around the world."

"These pieces have been front and center, published in our catalog, very proudly displayed and have always been admired by pre-Columbian scholars," Parker said.

Working on a tip, Ms. Crosely and an Austin architect, E. Logan Warner, interviewed Brigido Lara, a 45-year-old artist and restorer at a Jalapa, Mexico, museum, who claims he made the DMA's three sculptures.

Although the DMA does not acknowledge Lara created its pieces, an elaborate series of tests were conducted at a Connecticut laboratory.

Turkey observes Bob Wills Day Saturday

TURKEY — The 16th annual Bob Wills Day, featuring the seventh annual reunion of former Texas Playboys, will be held today and Saturday at Turkey.

Dr. Charles R. Townsend, Grammy Award winner and author of San Antonio Rose: The Life and Music of Bob Wills, will also be present and will be the master of ceremonies for the afternoon program.

Townsend's book has been purchased by a movie studio, and Townsend will be a consultant on the movie.

The Texas Playboys reunion will gather at 2:30 p.m. Saturday at the Old Football Field east of the Turkey Auditorium and Bob Wills Center. Some 35 to 40 of the most talented musicians are expected to attend, one of the largest groups of Texas Playboys ever assembled in one place.

Activities will get under way with dancing today from 9 p.m. to midnight at the Bob Wills Center. Ten to 14 former Texas Playboys will be featured.

Other Saturday activities include a parade in downtown Turkey at 10:30 a.m., followed by a barbecue starting at 11 a.m. at the Bob Wills Center. An Old Fiddlers Contest will start at 12 noon at the auditorium center and gym.

All-day events and activities Saturday include a concession stand, with booths selling souvenirs such as Playboys cassettes and albums, caps, totebags, ashtrays and coins; visits to the Bob Wills Museum at Main Street downtown; arts and crafts at the Bob Wills Center; and special movies of Bob Wills, with motion picture and television specials featuring Wills shown upstairs in the Arts and Crafts Building of the center.

Understanding baseball jargon

Off Beat

By Jimmy Patterson

Almost three weeks into the 1987 baseball season, a lot of you by now have either watched a professional game, or in flipping through the channels, seen one in progress.

If you are an amateur baseball watcher (one who watches an inning or two, or just sees results on the 10 o'clock news) then you may be in need of a sort of dictionary to comprehend what it is the announcers are trying to tell you.

Many announcers, as a matter of fact, are in need of help in the words they choose to use.

For the amateurs and announcers alike, I offer the following Baseball Gibberish Dictionary.

(Checkmarks are for acceptable terms; an 'x' indicates a term or phrase that should be banished from announcers' terminology. Definitions of phrases are followed by comments concerning announcers' usage of terms.)

☑ He's outta' there. A close play. Acceptable by baseball standards.

☑ It's outta' here. Synonymous with the home run. Adequate.

☑ Stee-rike. An imitation of the umpire, this is OK to use.

☑ This game is history. Means a game has been decided. At whatever point the announcer sees fit. Should be banned from announcers' terminology.

☑ Whizkid. Old-time baseball term used to describe a great player. Since there aren't that many greats around nowadays, should be used sparingly.

☑ Spitball. A ball greased up with Vaseline, or some other gooey substance. Not thrown that much anymore since it is illegal.

☑ Took the bat right out of his hands. Used when a runner is caught stealing for the third out. The batter is stranded at the plate, unable to complete his turn at bat. Has been around awhile, but OK for announcer use.

☑ Squibber. Ingenious term for a slowly hit ball.

One of baseball's great words.

☑ Nothin' doin' in the top of the inning. Means no runs for the team, and usually no hits. Adequate, but announcers must avoid overusage.

☑ Good crowd, good ballgame. Statement of overzealousness. Should be avoided.

☑ What they want to do now is stay out of a double play. Dumb statement. Does any team ever want to hit into a double play?

☑ Honey of a ballgame. A close game. Bad cliché. Should be banned.

☑ Absolutely brilliant or absolutely amazing. Self-explanatory. It's overuse has thrust many really incredible feats into mediocrity.

☑ They're an outstanding team on paper. Aren't they all. Should be avoided.

☑ Dead duck. Out by a long shot. OK to use.

☑ Rubber game of the series. The final game of a series when both teams have won an equal number of the previous games. Should be illegal.

☑ Stuff. A pitcher who has this has a good pitch and is successful. OK to use.

☑ Twin killing. Not a murder in Minnesota, but another name for a double play. Another one of baseball's best phrases.

☑ This broadcast is the authority of the Atlanta Braves baseball team. Any re-broadcast, retransmission or reproduction without the express written consent of the Atlanta Braves or Turner Broadcasting System is prohibited. Legal happy talk. What it means is if you ever invite Ted Turner over for dinner, hide your valuable collection of Braves games.

These are some of the words and phrases you will hear most throughout the baseball season. Some are good. Some aren't. There will no doubt be more clichés come our way this year, some I have missed.

One of the best descriptions of a home run ball ever came from the late Dick Risenhoover, the former great Texas Rangers announcer.

When the ball was on its way out, Risenhoover would let his radio audience know of the homer by shouting, "Goo-ood-by baseball!"

There hasn't been a phrase to equal that one lately, but there have been many imitations. After all, it is the home run that is one of the most exciting plays in baseball, and one all announcers can instantly capitalize on.

With this handy guide taped to the side of the television for easy reference, you shouldn't have any problems understanding what the announcers are trying to tell you.

Play ball!

Inmate attorneys submit brief in hearing

HOUSTON (AP) — Only the threat of court action or fines can keep the Texas prison system from welshing on its agreement to improve conditions for inmates, according to a court filing from the prisoners' attorneys.

Larry King, one of the attorneys representing inmates, said Thursday that he submitted an 11-page brief to U.S. District Court Judge William Wayne Justice by mail on April 20.

The brief filing followed a three-day contempt hearing before Justice earlier this month, during which he was called upon to decide whether the state should have to pay up to $800,500 per day for failing to comply with his orders for prison improvements.

In the brief, Justice was urged to set guidelines for specific improvements in the prison system and set fines for the state to pay if the improvements are not made on time, according to King, interviewed by telephone at his California office.

King said the brief also suggested Justice require the state to file monthly reports, beginning

June 1, on its efforts to hire additional medical personnel for the prison system.

After the filing of the plaintiffs' brief, the state has 10 days to file a brief.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Opinion

U.S. shouldn't aid Soviet-style justice

The U.S. Supreme Court refused to block the deportation of Karl Linnas — the Estonian immigrant accused of supervising a Nazi concentration camp during World War II — and the former U.S. citizen was bundled onto a plane bound for the Soviet Union.

The court's stance in Linnas' deportation to a country that had already sentenced the man to death raises serious questions about the handling of those accused of war crimes.

Linnas does not deny that he falsified immigration papers back in the 1940s, but he does deny that the Nazis put him in charge of a concentration camp at age 22. The key documents in the case have been provided solely by the Soviet Union, which handed down Linnas' death sentence in absentia in 1962. The trial was so rigged that its results were published in official newspapers before it took place.

It is widely known that the Soviets would like to reduce the effectiveness of anti-communist emigre groups in the West, particularly those made up of refugees from the occupied Baltic countries, and providing evidence (phony or not) that some of their countrymen were Nazi collaborators is one facet of this campaign.

It's fascinating. Most conservatives — with a few honorable exceptions — are reluctant to speak out, perhaps intimidated by the curious alchemy that those who think that even accused ex-Nazis should receive due process must be Nazi sympathizers. Attorney General Edwin Meese had the opportunity and authority to decline to deport Linnas — and to investigate the witch-hunting style of the Office of Special Investigations, which ultimately reports to him. He declined to do so.

Libertarians and those liberals who still take civil liberties seriously have been in the forefront. Former Attorney General Ramsey Clark took on Linnas's case as a private attorney, pointing out that "the fundamental and profoundly important question is whether the courts of the United States... can permit the judicial power of the United States to be used to carry out a death sentence imposed by a foreign power in proceedings totally lacking in due process."

Amnesty International opposed Linnas' deportation to the Soviet Union.

Prosecution of accused Nazi collaborators should have been characterized by the most scrupulous adherence to the highest standards of due process, highlighting the differences between a dictatorship and a free society.

Due process was missing in Linnas' case, and the result is a source of shame to Americans who still cherish freedom and individual rights.

Judge should ride in the Pon

By DONALD KAUL

A federal judge has ruled that General Motors' 1980 X-cars did not have defective brakes. After hearing all of the evidence in a suit against GM brought by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA) he found that, "the government has failed to meet its burden of showing that... 1980 X-cars now present, or have ever presented an 'unreasonable risk' of accidents due to a 'defect' that causes 'premature rear-brake lockup.'"

The amazing part about that is how he kept a straight face while he said it. I happen to be something of an expert on 1980 X-cars; I owned one. I bought it in 1980, fresh out of the box, in a burst of patriotic fervor. There was a "Buy American" campaign going on at the time and I fell for it.

"We're Americans, and we ought to own an American car," I told my wife, whose indifference to cars borders on the supernatural. "Yes, dear," she said.

The X-car was new that year and I was intrigued with its design. It seemed to have a lot of space inside for its size. I liked the fact it was a front-wheel drive which, I was given to understand, provided direction stability. I liked its looks. So I bought a Pontiac Phoenix. I should have known better than to buy a car named after a mythical bird whose main claim to fame is that it destroys itself in flames, then rises from the ashes, reborn.

An even more appropriate bird symbol would have been "Turkey," because that's what it was. As soon as we got it, things began falling off, little things like handles and screws and knobs. Half of the Pontiac logo broke away from the rear deck. From then on it was to be known in the family as "the Pon car." The transmission went out in the first few thousand miles. It took a month to get it fixed because there were so many other Pon cars with the same problem waiting in front of us. But it was the brakes that made the car what it was — frightening.

I don't know what the judge, Thomas Penfield Jackson, was talking about when he said the government didn't present good evidence, but I'd have been willing to give him a ride in my old car or one like it. I'd get the thing up to about 35 mph — nothing superfast, you understand — then slam on the brakes and watch his face while the car careened like a roller coaster, only sideways rather than up and down. And after we'd stopped, I'd lean over and say: "What was that you said about unreasonable risk, judge?"

My wife put that car into a boomerang skid twice.

You don't understand the full significance of that because you've never seen my wife drive. There are slow drivers, there are cautious drivers, then there is my wife. She drives a car as though it is made of glass. She comes to full stops at stop signs. She waits until traffic is completely clear before pulling out of a side street. She goes 55 mph on the highway even when there's no traffic. She never gets a ticket, and she hasn't had an accident in 30 years.

And she put that car into a boomerang skid twice. On the second occasion a car had cut in front of her and she had slammed on her brakes to avoid a collision. The Pon car spun out of control across the center line, across three lanes of oncoming traffic, before winding up facing in the wrong direction against the curb. Miraculously, no other car had hit her, even though traffic was fairly heavy at the time. She was still white-faced and shaking when she got home a half-hour later.

That was it for me and the Pon car. I didn't mind so much that it was a piece of junk that fell apart in your hand — you've got to make some sacrifices for your country — but I wasn't willing to die for my country. If I'd wanted that I'd have joined the Marines and at least got a medal for the risk. I peddled it to a dealer who said he was going to ship it to Puerto Rico. It's a small island, maybe they don't go 35 mph there.

GM was charged not merely with making a car with bad brakes but of knowing that the brakes were bad, of not taking steps to fix them and of failing to provide the NHTSA with information about them. Judge Jackson said the case wasn't proved.

"The government came into court with nothing more, essentially, than a reasonable suspicion, without evidence to prove it." That could be: I didn't sit through the trial. Hey! Maybe GM really didn't know the car was dangerous. Perhaps GM's army of engineers was unable to discover that X-cars had the directional stability of a toboggan.

As an American consumer, however, I had a reasonable suspicion that GM was trying to kill me. I vowed never again to buy a General Motors product.

I never have, and I never will.

Elderly targeted for pitch

Elderly Americans are being victimized by greedy promoters. They're being frightened into buying all sorts of things they don't need.

Rep. Larry Hopkins, R-Ky., says they are also being victimized by an organization called the "National Committee to Preserve Social Security and Medicare."

Elderly Americans are led to believe that the only way to avoid losing their Social Security benefits is to make urgent contributions totaling tens of millions of dollars a year.

Chairman of this NCPSSM is James Roosevelt, son of FDR, former congressman.

Rep. Hopkins notes that James Roosevelt's past financial partners also included fugitive Rep. Vesco and other convicted swindlers. Now, with a "campaign of fear," he is collecting money from most of a million older citizens.

One of Mr. Roosevelt's letters claims that Social Security has only three weeks of solvency. Another letter asks, "Will you spend 45 seconds right now to save Social Security and Medicare?"

Hopkins calls this another kind of "terrorism."

Actually, as a result of bipartisan legislation passed in 1983, the Social Security Board of Trustees reported that "benefits can be paid on time well into the next century."

Social Security Administrator Dorcas Hardy says, "It is really irresponsible to suggest that current beneficiaries have to pay $10 to an organization to save something that's perfectly OK."

Yet, the NCPSSM reportedly took in $30 million last year.

Another member of Congress, Beverly Byron, D-Md., questions "The scare tactics, misleading materials and the ethics of circulating such misleading materials to senior citizens."

These NCPSSM tactics have also been criticized by several responsible senior citizen organizations: The American Association of Retired Persons, National Council of Senior Citizens and the Association of Retired Federal Employees.

Rep. Hopkins' advice to the elderly is to "ignore Mr. Roosevelt's appeals and keep your money."

In the depths of the American Depression, President Franklin Roosevelt rallied Americans with these words: "We have nothing to fear but fear itself."

It is an ultimate irony if his son is enriching himself by becoming what Rep. Hopkins calls a "merchant of fear."

Reagan has more scratches in the Teflon

By Robert Walters

WASHINGTON (NEA) — "I couldn't believe they'd bring the president up here if they didn't already have the votes" an astounded Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., said after President Reagan's recent devastating defeat on the highway construction bill.

Leahy's incredulity was based largely on Reagan's unprecedented action. Never before, in the memory of congressional veterans, had a president personally visited the Capitol to plead for support immediately prior to a crucial vote.

Yet here was Reagan literally begging for a single additional vote from his fellow Republicans in the Senate, only to be rejected and disgraced. (White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater quoted the president as imploring the legislators, "I beg you for your vote.")

The saga of Reagan's humiliating defeat on Capitol Hill is, to some extent, a classic "inside-the-Beltway" story of interest primarily to residents of the Washington area.

Sensible people elsewhere are not likely to change their perceptions of the president on the basis of two days of high drama here — yet that struggle is critical in determining how political opinion leaders and decision makers will regard Reagan now and in the future.

First, it is important to note that Leahy is wrong when he assumes that "they" sent Reagan to Capitol Hill. It was the president who personally made the decisions on the highway bill.

It was he who decided — against the advice of most of his senior aides — to veto the measure, to transform the vote on sustaining that veto into a referendum on his political strength in the wake of the Iran-contra scandal, and to make the ill-fated journey to Capitol Hill.

The president's advisers understood that the more than 150 highway "demonstration projects" authorized by the bill and derided by Reagan as "pork barrel" were crucial to many legislators' constituents clamoring for relief from chronic traffic snarls and delays.

Indeed, those highway projects were hardly the only appealing components of a bill that also authorized:

- Special dispensation for construction of new toll roads, viewed as crucial in many states.

- Generous financial assistance for construction of new urban mass transit systems in Los Angeles and elsewhere.

- An increase in the maximum speed limit from 55 to 65 mph on rural interstate highways, a compelling issue in most Western states.

Reagan also wrongly assumed he could obtain the one additional vote he needed to uphold his veto by promising to approve whatever special requests and pet projects the solons were seeking from the White House.

That traditional strategy didn't work. "We tried everything — and I mean everything," says Sen. Alan Simpson, R-Wyo., the Senate minority whip. "We did a three-tier, layer-cake squeeze on everybody and they refused to come around."

Finally, Reagan's problems were compounded by Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., the Senate minority leader, who sought to mobilize support for the president by bluntly describing what was at stake.

Characterizing the vote as "very critical" and "a test of loyalty," Dole said, "This may determine the strength of the presidency for the next 21 months."

In the end, Reagan's vaunted political instincts and personal charm failed him at a crucial time. Going into the struggle, he was wounded. Coming out, he was crippled.

He may yet stage a comeback, but he is becoming increasingly irrelevant to the political process — a situation aptly described by a fellow Republican when the House overrode Reagan's veto of the highway bill.

"You can bet your spring petunias that this congressman is going to vote to override," said Rep. Arthur Ravenel Jr., R-S.C. "President Reagan? He ain't gonna be runnin' in 1988, but I am."

Nation

Study finds 93,000 workers 'glowing on the job'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The number of workers exposed to radiation in the nation's nuclear plants declined slightly in the latest survey by a watchdog group, but 93,000 workers are still "glowing on the job," the group said.

The report by Public Citizen also predicts that the figure will increase as plants get older.

"The high level of radiation to which nuclear power plant workers are exposed each year represents one of the ongoing, but hidden, costs of nuclear power," said the report titled "Glowing on the Job: Worker Exposure to Radiation at Nuclear Power Plants."

"Aging is a critical factor," said Joshua Gordon, a nuclear policy analyst and author of the report. "Rust is radioactive; major repairs, all these things involve exposure."

Public Citizen, a non-profit research organization founded in 1971 by consumer advocate Ralph Nader, said it based the report on documents from the Nuclear Regulatory Commission.

The survey for 1985, the latest year for which NRC figures were available, did not give the total number of workers at plants where exposure was measured. It said a big share of those affected are temporary workers, called "jumpers" or "sponges" because they jump into jobs and absorb maximum allowed doses of radiation in a short period of time.

As the plants age, the facility becomes more radioactive, increasing the level of exposure to workers, the report said, noting that repair work, which is needed more often with older plants, provides among "the most exposure-intensive jobs."

Plants between 13 years old and 17 years old exposed their workers to more than twice as much radiation as those between the ages of 3 and 7, the report said.

The oldest plants—those built 19 to 27 years ago—exposed their workers to four times as much radiation as the newest plants, it said.

In 1985, the number of workers exposed—93,260 at 83 plants across the country—was nearly four times the number exposed 10 years earlier—25,489, the report said.

However, the total number of workers exposed in 1985 decreased about five percent from 1984 when there was an all-time high of 98,092 at 78 plants, the report said.

"I think the absolute number is a staggering figure," Gordon said. "I believe that (the decrease) will be a blip and not the start of any trend."

The number of workers exposed in 1983 was 85,646 at 75 plants. There were 84,382 at 74 plants in 1982, and 82,183 at 70 plants in 1981. The NRC has not compiled figures for 1986.

The largest group of workers exposed was 3,669. Those workers are employed at the Susquehanna 1 plant in Berwick, Pa. Second was San Onofre 1 in San Clemente, Calif., where 2,693 were exposed, and third was Oyster Creek 1 in Forked River, N.J., where 2,342 were exposed.

Commission standards allow a member of the general public to be exposed each year to 0.50 rems, or the equivalent of 25 X-rays, from a nuclear plant. The average received by all workers, the report said, was 0.47 rems, but 31 reactors exposed workers to higher levels, up to nearly twice that amount.

The highest levels reported were at Quad Cities in Cordova, Ill., where the level was 0.88 rems and at Millstone in Waterford, Conn., where it was 0.83 rems.

NRC spokesman Frank Ingram said the agency released the radiation figures March 12.

Enters plea

Ivan F. Boesky, center, leaves federal court in New York Thursday after pleading guilty to one count of violating federal securities laws. The former stock trader faces penalties of up to five years in prison and a $250,000 fine when sentenced Aug. 21 by U.S. District Judge Morris E. Lasker.

Foreign aid, domestic spending trimmed from spending package

WASHINGTON (AP) — A supplemental spending package of about $8.5 billion for 1987 approved today by the House would plunge the government deeper into red ink but would not surpass spending limits set last fall.

The Democratic-controlled House, in a session that adjourned at 2:55 a.m. EDT, approved the bill 208-178 after voting twice to remove all $651 million in foreign aid from the measure. The Senate is expected to consider a similar measure next week.

"This just means we're being responsible," House Majority Leader Thomas Foley, D-Wash., said after the tally. He and other Democrats contend the legislation keeps the government within the spending ceiling imposed in the budget.

The legislation also contained arms control language favored by Democrats but opposed by Republicans that would forbid most nuclear weapons testing and would force the Reagan administration to obey arms limits set in the unratified SALT II treaty.

The administration already has threatened to veto the legislation, complaining about the arms control measures, its increase to the deficit and what it considers insufficient spending on defense and too much financing for domestic programs.

"This whole exercise today has been an exercise in politics," said Minority Whip Rep. Trent Lott, R-Miss. "This bill is never going to see the light of day."

The measure, attacked by Republicans and some Democrats as a budget-buster, appeared in jeopardy as a day-long debate staggered past nightfall and Democratic support for some of the spending waned.

But House Speaker Jim Wright, D-Texas, and other leaders, sniffling defeat in the wind, decided to back an amendment sponsored by Rep. Buddy MacKay, D-Fla., to cut $2 billion from what initially was an $11.3 billion measure.

That amendment passed on a 263-123 vote after MacKay told his colleagues, "This is the time to say whether we are committed to fiscal discipline."

The overall bill contains money for a smorgasbord of programs, the biggest chunk being $5.5 billion for crop subsidies. Without the infusion, the agency would run out of money in May, according to legislators.

Also included was $1 billion for salary increases and new retirement benefits for federal workers.

Consumer prices up slightly in March

WASHINGTON (AP) — Moderately higher energy prices more than offset declining food costs as consumer prices posted a 0.4 percent gain in March, the government said today.

Gasoline prices rose 2.3 percent, but that was down sharply from February's 6.6 percent jump. Food prices fell 0.1 percent after a 0.3 percent gain in the previous month.

The rise in the Labor Department's Consumer Price Index matched the overall 0.4 percent February increase and amounted to an annual price increase of 5.1 percent.

For the first three months of 1987, consumer prices have risen at an annual rate of 6.2 percent. That compares to the scant 1.1 percent increase for all of 1986, a rate paced by last year's collapse of world oil prices.

Private economists are generally predicting inflation of 4 percent to 5 percent for all of 1987, with higher import prices from the declining dollar, which in Tokyo fell today below 140 yen for the first time since World War II.

Court permits outdoor test of genetically engineering bacteria

BRENTWOOD, Calif. (AP) — An appeals court rejected a last-minute plea by environmentalists and cleared the way for scientists to spray a frost-inhibitor on a strawberry patch today in the first U.S. field test of genetically altered bacteria.

Crews from Advanced Genetic Sciences Inc. were to spread the bacteria engineered to inhibit frost on a small plot on a fenced and guarded property near this Contra Costa County agricultural community, about 50 miles east of San Francisco.

The test was set for 6 a.m. because winds are calmest at that time, said Julio Calderon, a spokesman for the state Department of Food and Agriculture.

On Thursday, Sacramento County Superior Court Judge Darrel Lewis rejected environmentalists' pleas to delay testing to allow a more thorough review of potential effects of the bacteria, known as Frostban.

"There appears to be no chance of harm to animals or people," Lewis said.

Environmentalists then went to the 3rd District state Court of Appeal, which deliberated for two hours before refusing to stay of the lower court's ruling.

"That's it as far as the appeal is concerned," said Scott Keene, an attorney for the environmental groups, including Earth First, Berkeley Greens, and the Foundation for Economic Advancement.

Attorneys for the Oakland-based Advanced Genetic Sciences said nothing has been so thoroughly scrutinized before its field application as the bacteria, Pseudomonas syringae.

The Environmental Protection Agency, the state Department of Food and Agriculture and the state Department of Health Services all previously approved the experiment.

The company insisted there was no risk in releasing the bacteria, which have a small amount of genetic material deleted so they cannot produce a protein that promotes the formation of frost.

The testing, which will measure in what quantity the altered bacteria grow, does not require cold weather.

Frostban has been shown in laboratory trials to protect plants from frost damage at temperatures as low as 23 degrees Fahrenheit. American farmers lose an estimated $1.6 billion a year to frost damage.

Advanced Genetic originally planned to test Frostban in Monterey County, but the EPA withdrew its permit for that test after learning last March that the company put Frostban on some trees on the roof of its headquarters without approval.

The federal agency fined the company $20,000. The EPA said, however, the use did not present a public health threat.

After the company selected the Brentwood site for the Frostban tests, the City Council voted unanimous support. But opponents said they collected about 1,500 signatures from residents within eight miles of the planned test site.

Second nuke waste site in 29 years

WASHINGTON (AP) — It will be another 20 years before the Energy Department selects possible sites for a permanent nuclear waste repository in the Eastern part of the country, the department says.

And it will be 29 years before the president recommends to Congress which of the possible sites should be used, according to tentatively set target dates in an addendum to written testimony prepared by Energy Secretary John Herrington for a congressional hearing.

Herrington did not mention the dates — 2007 for department selection of sites and 2016 for the president's recommendation — in oral testimony Thursday before the Senate Environment and Public Works nuclear regulation subcommittee.

The secretary last May announced that a search for the site was being postponed indefinitely, a move applauded by Eastern lawmakers but criticized by Westerners who said it violated the 1982 compromise law that calls for two underground repositories for spent nuclear fuel.

House Democrats win first round in arms control battle

WASHINGTON (AP)—House Democrats opposed to President Reagan's nuclear arms control policies won the first round early today in what both sides agree will be a long-running fight in the 100th Congress.

The Democratic-controlled chamber approved a pair of arms control restrictions Reagan dislikes when it voted 208-178 passage of an omnibus bill appropriating about $8.5 billion for a variety of federal programs.

The House voted just after 1:30 a.m. EDT.

The proposals, which now go to the Senate, would require U.S. adherence to the unratified SALT II treaty and halt all but the smallest U.S. nuclear weapons tests. The White House opposes both restrictions.

The Appropriations Committee added the restrictions to the bill last month, and Republican opponents dropped their formal opposition Thursday when it became apparent they would lose.

Instead, both sides agreed the House will consider both issues again next month when it votes on a bill authorizing next year's Pentagon budget.

"I'm absolutely sure we would lose if we voted," said Rep. Henry Hyde, R-Ill.

"Since we're going to be considering the defense budget next month and since these issues will be part of that bill, that might be a better time to fight this."

Rep. Patricia Schroeder, D-Colo., an architect of both provisions, agreed with Hyde.

She said "we were surprised" that GOP opponents had dropped plans for a vote, but noted that House Speaker Jim Wright had said the provisions boasted such a "very big majority" of support that formal opposition was useless.

The fate of the bill is uncertain. Opponents in the Democratic-led Senate will be working under different rules that give them wider latitude to delay a final vote.

In addition, Hyde noted, a veto by Reagan is certain if the measure does pass Congress with the arms control restrictions. "These additions to tie the president's hands mean this bill will never, ever be signed by Ronald Reagan," he said.

Shortly before the bill was on the House floor, Vice President George Bush restated the administration's opposition.

"We've made very clear our concerns about tacking these things on" to a spending bill, he told reporters. "I don't know what the House action alone, what effect it would have, but clearly we feel that if such amendments were forced upon us, it would not be good...."

Neither restriction is related directly to the current U.S.-Soviet efforts to eliminate or reduce nuclear weapons in Europe, but the administration said the restrictions nevertheless would hurt U.S. negotiators. Opponents disagreed.

"This president has done pretty well in bringing the Soviets to the bargaining table.... Congress is doing a disservice to that effort," said Rep. Duncan Hunter, R-Calif.

High yen, hot trade

As the Japanese yen hits the postwar high against the U.S. dollar Friday morning, trading on the Tokyo foreign exchange market gets hotter. The dollar fell to a new low of 139.05 yen soon after it opened at 140.00 yen. (AP Laserphoto)

Investigators trace money transfer

WASHINGTON (AP)—Congressional investigators, aided by material provided by businessman Albert A. Hakim, traced the diversion of more than $1 million from Iranian arms sales profits to Nicaraguan Contra rebels, sources say.

Hakim was interviewed Monday in Paris, and he turned over Swiss bank records and other material after receiving limited immunity from prosecution, officials said Thursday.

"Records that we obtained confirmed that some money was diverted," one source told the Associated Press, speaking on condition of anonymity.

"We now have a way to trace the money from Tehran" to the Contras fighting Nicaragua's leftist government, the source added.

The size of the diversion was said by investigators to be more than $1 million, but no precise estimate was available.

Attorney General Edwin Meese III disclosed Nov. 25, 1986 that a diversion of funds apparently had occurred, and he placed the amount at $10 million to $30 million.

The Tower commission appointed by President Reagan to investigate the Iran-Contra matter estimated that about $20 million was available for the Contras from the secret sales of U.S. arms to Iran.

An unidentified congressional source told Knight-Ridder newspapers for a story today that while much of the $20 million may have been intended for the Contras, it appears that "nowhere near" that amount actually reached them.

And The Baltimore Sun reported today that the congressional investigators' preliminary estimate was that under $20 million was diverted.

The material provided by Hakim, coupled with other records previously available to congressional investigators, provide the first confirmation of Meese's report—proof that eluded both the Senate Intelligence Committee in its report last winter and the Tower commission earlier this year.

Koryagin leaves the Soviet Union

MOSCOW (AP)—Dissident psychiatrist Anatoly Koryagin left the Soviet Union today, two months after being freed from a labor camp. He said he was sad to go but felt he must because of "what has happened to me and my family."

The flight departed on schedule at 4:45 p.m. local time, Swiss Air reported.

Koryagin arrived at the airport at mid-afternoon in a Swiss Embassy car along with his wife.

How difficult it is to correct this country's trade deficit

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Most people know by now that the United States has been trying to correct its trade imbalance with other nations primarily by lowering the value of the dollar.

A relatively lower dollar — in relation to other currencies — makes U.S. exports less costly abroad, while raising the price of foreign goods in the United States.

Why then have results been so slow to appear? The possible explanations begin with a devilishly ironic twist that produces a result opposite to that intended. That is, a lower dollar raises the cost of imported goods, adding to the imbalance of trade figures.

In the long run, U.S. officials hope those higher prices will discourage imports, especially if the prices of competitive domestic goods don't rise sharply. But for the time being, Americans seem loathe to give up imports.

There are good reasons for this reluctance. Foreign producers have stressed quality in recent years, and they have poured money into sophisticated marketing and servicing. They have a following; their products are esteemed.

Moreover, some foreign producers have absorbed some of the higher costs induced by the lower value of the dollar. It might be possible for them to do so only temporarily, but that still delays improvement in the trade balance.

Meanwhile, there has been continued reluctance — perhaps temporary — by foreigners to purchase American goods imported to their countries. The reason: many foreign economies, most important those of Germany and Japan, are weak.

U.S. officials would like to see these countries spur their economies, making consumers there more able to purchase American goods. But neither likes the idea of an outsider, the United States, dictating their economic policy.

And they fear inflation. All countries fear inflation, not just for the immediate economic and political disorder that it usually brings, but because it generally is the forerunner to recession.

A common misunderstanding — that the dollar has fallen against most currencies — adds to difficulties in understanding the trade picture. It has not. In some instances, it actually has risen.

True, it has declined against currencies of five big nations — Japan, West Germany, the United Kingdom, France and Italy — but big as they are, they aren't the whole show. The show has spread; more nations are trading.

Hong Kong is a big exporter, and Singapore, Taiwan and Korea are too. India, China and Brazil are boosting exports. An analysis by Shearson Lehman Bros. Inc., the investment firm, makes this cogent commentary.

"The world economy is much more competitive. More countries now compete, making it more difficult for the United States to sell its exports and more attractive for American consumers and businesses to purchase from overseas."

Making this factor doubly significant is that the dollar has not plunged in relation to the currencies of many of these nations. It has changed little against the Hong Kong dollar, and is barely lower against the Korean won.

The U.S. dollar has declined little against its counterpart in Canada — and it cannot be overlooked, as it often is, that Canada is the chief trading partner of the United States.

It took years for the U.S. trade deficit to build to the danger point.

Record $1 million paid for stock seat

NEW YORK (AP) — A seat on the New York Stock Exchange was sold Thursday for $1 million, the highest price ever, a spokesman for the exchange said.

The record price tops $850,000 paid for a seat Monday. Analysts said the sale showed confidence in the market's strength, despite the dollar's weakness and interest rate fluctuations.

The New York Stock Exchange does not disclose participants in the sale of a seat, but a report in The New York Times identified the buyer as Stern Brothers, a small brokerage and specialist firm based in New York. The seller was Irwin Herling, a New Jersey resident, according to the Times.

There are 1,366 seats on the exchange, a number that has been fixed for decades.

Endangered whooping cranes depart Texas

AUSTWELL (AP) — Eleven whooping cranes have left Texas on their ancestral journey to the spring nesting grounds in north central Canada, wildlife officials say.

The whooping cranes will not be seen again on the Texas Gulf Coast until the middle of October, when the endangered species returns to its wintering habitat in the brackish marshes of the Aransas National Wildlife Refuge and on Matagorda Island. Tom Stehn, wildlife biologist at the wildlife refuge near Austwell, confirmed this week after examining Matagorda Island by boat that the straggling sub-adults had finally left for the Canadian Northwest Territory.

Whoopers make a 2,500-mile flight over several weeks to reach the freshwater marshes where they breed and nest.

Galveston City Council bans surrey from seaside wall and boulevard

GALVESTON (AP) — City Council has banned pedal-powered, four-wheeled surreys from the seawall sidewalk and Seawall Boulevard, saying too many of them are going over the edge.

"The point has finally come for this council to consider both the health and safety of visitors and residents who use these vehicles and are sometimes injured or even killed," Mayor Jan Coggeshall said.

The council voted Thursday to pass an ordinance restricting the vehicles to areas away from the seawall that edges part of the island's Gulf side.

Ms. Coggeshall said accidents involving the surreys have caused not only pain and anguish, but suits against the city.

"It is the taxpayers of the city who must pay for these court suits," she said.

Since Jan. 1, six surreys have plunged over the seawall to the sand or rocks about 15 feet below. In 1982, two surreys fell over the side during the entire year, and six in 1984, records show.

Unlike cars that often land on their wheels after going over the wall, surreys are likely to flip and land upside down, causing serious injuries, said Jay Holland, director of the city's Emergency Medical Service.

The penalty for violating the new ordinance would be a fine of up to $200.

Horse trading brisk near Beijing

BEIJING (AP) — A dusty field northeast of Beijing is transformed a dozen times a month into the capital's premier horse market, with wily traders dealing in big money for the animals that are essential to the Chinese farm community.

Buyers and sellers come from as far as 60 miles away to the roadside market held on the 3rd, 5th, 8th and 10th day of the 10-day lunar calendar cycle. Most arrive on straw-laden wagons pulled by the horses to be sold.

On an average day, about 20 horses are traded for prices ranging from about $50 to $350, a hefty sum in China where the annual per capita income among the 800 million residents of rural areas is about $108.

"Some want to trade in their old horses for younger animals. Others sell for money, to buy tractors and even cars," says Wan Fa, a market administrator.

Some horses, broken down by years of pulling plows and hauling rickety carts overloaded with produce and goods made in local factories, are heading for the local butcher.

Most of the traders, their hands buried into oversized greatcoats, their heads covered with earmuffed hats, are pros, here to make a good deal.

Yang Zhengchun, the local tax man who gets a 5 percent cut of every deal, says traders will buy six horses at about $270 apiece and take them to a distant village, selling them for about $320 each.

"People are getting rich by trading in horses," Yang says. Some have joined the ranks of the $2,700-a-year households, the Chinese version of a millionaire, he says.

One young man said he wanted $540 dollars for his 8-year-old steed, a sturdy beast, but with unsightly bald patches on its skin common to many of the horses here.

Wan said he might get $240. Horses and mules being considered for sale are marched up and down the field to show they aren't lame. The traders then gather in little knots to discuss price. Wan says the five or six overseers offer advice, but don't interfere with price-setting.

They also mediate occasional disputes when one party brings a horse back, claiming he was cheated in the deal.

This market has been in business since the late 1970s, when the government began allowing more private enterprise and other reforms which have significantly improved life.

State's oldest town has its first woman mayor

NACOGDOCHES (AP) — In 1977, Judy McDonald was elected to her first term as a member of the Nacogdoches city commission.

Today, 10 years later, Mrs. McDonald is the first woman mayor of the oldest town in Texas.

"This city's success will have to be the result of a team effort," said Mrs. McDonald, who became mayor earlier this month when she was elected chairman of the city commission. "It can't be just one member of the commission. It can't be just the mayor, or management or just one board. We have to work in tandem."

The new mayor sees the creation of jobs as the commission's number one goal.

"We've got to work together for economic development — helping local industry expand. That's our number one goal. Secondly, I think we need to concentrate on development of tourism."

During her first two years as a member of the city commission, Mrs. McDonald says, she kept a diary.

"It wasn't a diary of what I did or anything like that," she said, "but just a record of the calls and questions I received. Eighty percent of the calls were from people outside my ward. I think that shows that you can't get hung up on trying to do things just for the people who reside in your ward."

As mayor, Mrs. McDonald says she will keep her open door policy, serving the people from all parts of the city.

"When this is all over with, I'd like for the people of Nacogdoches to be able to say about me that I never worried about WHO a person was that they called or who they represented or in which area of the city they lived," she said.

"I want to be known for having recognized the problem and having gotten on with the solution."

"Being the first woman mayor was never particularly significant to me," said Mrs. McDonald. "I never really wanted to be the first female to do anything."

She has another distinction on the commission — a custom-made stool under the commissioners' table.

"The chairs we sit in are huge," says Mrs. McDonald, who stands three-quarters of an inch over 5 feet tall.

"I'd sit in those chairs and have trouble seeing over the table. So I sat with my feet in the chair so I'd be taller."

"The rest of the commissioners always teased me because I always had my shoes off. I told them the reason was that I had to sit with my feet in my chair because my feet didn't touch the floor."

Her predecessor as mayor, A.L. Mangham Jr., had a stool special made for Mrs. McDonald so that she'd have a place to rest her feet.

Trial set for woman charged with lying to support father's alibi

CONROE (AP) — A woman accused of lying to support her father's alibi in a sensational murder case is scheduled to stand trial next month on a charge of aggravated perjury.

State District Judge John Martin denied two defense motions Wednesday to dismiss the indictment against Vanessa Fontenot, 25, of Channelview. A May 11 trial date was set.

Miss Fontenot's defense attorney, Lewis Dickson of Houston, argued that the indictment should be thrown out because it was vague about which of Miss Fontenot's statements were false.

Hurley Fontenot was acquitted in February 1986 by a Polk County jury of murder in connection with the April 12, 1985 shooting death of Hull-Daisetta coach Billy Mac Fleming.

Fontenot, a former school principal, and Fleming had dated the same woman, who was a school secretary.

Fontenot's daughter was indicted on the perjury charge four months after he was acquitted. Part of his defense was that he was in Houston the afternoon that Fleming was killed.

led. He said he called his daughter from Houston.

According to the indictment, Miss Fontenot told grand jurors the month after Fleming was killed that her father called her in Austin the morning of the murder.

But during her father's trial eight months later, she told jurors she was mistaken when she testified before the grand jury. The call from her father actually came in the afternoon, she said.

Three businessmen entered the office during the telephone call, she testified.

IN THE CHURCH OF YOUR CHOICE

AFTER THE PARTY IS OVER

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

©Coleman Adv. Ser.

Have you ever felt like this little girl after a big, exciting day at the Fair, or a party? You know how you feel — excited, exhausted; but you feel good, too. Sometimes you just want to lie down and think about it. But like the little one in this picture you, also, are too tired to remove your party hat or your shoes.

Sometimes it is delightful just to lie down and think of something good and wonderful and happy. It is good just to be still and sort of day-dream about what has happened.

There are other times in our lives when we need to achieve a sense of quietness and think of God. The Psalmist says, "Commune with your own heart upon your bed and be still." Psalm 4:4. God says in Psalms 46:10 "Be still and know that I am God."

We invite you to attend church and sense the still, quiet holiness that is God's presence in the midst of the congregation.

Benjamin Weir to speak with Presbyterians

AMARILLO — Rev. Benjamin Weir, a Presbyterian minister and former Beirut, Lebanon, hostage will be the keynote speaker Saturday at a leadership school to be held at First Presbyterian Church of Amarillo.

Weir, who is currently moderator of the 198th General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, will deliver a presentation on the Middle East at 8 a.m. Saturday, hold a press conference at 9:15 a.m. and conduct a worship service at 2 p.m.

The leadership school, entitled "Palo Duro Reaffirming Exploring '87," is sponsored by the Palo Duro Presbytery and will also include 25 courses for adults and children. The school begins at 5 p.m. today.

Weir, a native of Utah, was kidnapped in May 1984 by Shiite Moslems while in Lebanon to assist in organizing and providing resources for youth ministry. He was held captive for 16 months — 14 of them in solitary confinement — before being released and returning to the United States in September 1985.

The weekend session also will include an address by Rev. John F. Anderson, former pastor of First Presbyterian Church of Dallas and a former General Assembly moderator, and a discussion of theology and disability led by Rev. Jack L. Stotts, president of Austin Theological Seminary.

Palo Duro Presbytery includes 65 congregations from Dalhart to Brownwood and from Brownfield to Bowie, including Pampa and Canadian.

His Touch

By Charlotte Barbaree

Scripture: Do not let the floodwaters engulf me or the depths swallow me up or the pit close its mouth over me. Answer me, O Lord, out of the goodness of your love; in your great mercy turn to me. (Psalm 69:15-16 NIV)

One hot summer evening when I was a teenager, a friend and I were sitting on the lawn of my front yard. We were indulging in girl talk when a most bizarre scene grabbed our attention.

A car sped past us on the street with a small, barefoot boy chasing it. He was no more than three years old and was crying at the top of his lungs.

He ran down the middle of the street with incredible speed born of desperation; his fleet little feet were barely touching the hot, pebble strewn asphalt. His father, who was driving the car, was apparently unaware of the child's pursuit; the vehicle quickly faded into the distance.

My friend and I joined the chase, hoping to catch the child before some unwitting driver swerved from one of the closely spaced, uncontrolled intersections and ran over him.

Straining our legs and lungs, we finally caught him. He was hysterical from his run and frightened by our snatching him in midstride. Considerable time was spent calming him and finding neighborhood children who were old enough to show us where he lived.

By the time we returned him to his home, he and we were emotionally and physically spent. When we handed him over to his mother, she merely shrugged and said nonchalantly, "I hadn't even noticed he was missing."

Judging from the response I received to the last His Touch column that concerned depression, the problem must be of epidemic proportions.

How many in our midst are running a losing race against abyssal despondency? How many are futilely chasing the person others expect them to be? How many are crying out? How many's feet are running out from under them? How many are in very real peril of being crushed by their despair? How many have emotionally left our midst, and no one has even noticed they are missing?

Unaware of their need, friends fade into the distance, leaving them deserted and desolate.

But God is near and sees their lonely chase and hears their crying. And He loves them.

Religion Roundup

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — With lawsuits involving the church and ministers multiplying, Samford University has established a new Center for Study of Law and the Church.

Religion

The former McLean Methodist Church building. Historical marker to honor McLean Methodist Church

McLEAN — McLean's First United Methodist Church, thought to be the oldest denominational congregation in Gray County, will be honored with a Texas Historical Marker at 4 p.m. Sunday at the church.

The 85-year-old congregation began in 1902 when Methodist settlers began meeting in homes. Later they met in a one-room school building south of the railroad. The Ladies Home Missionary Society was one of the first groups to meet.

The congregation got its own church house in 1904 when Alfred Rowe of the RO Ranch donated the land to the Methodist Church. The first event held in the new frame building was a children's May Day program. But because construction was delayed, the congregation had to sit on planks laid across nail kegs. The first parsonage was a three-room house.

Rowe did not live long after he deeded the land; he was on the Titanic when it sunk in April 1912.

Part of what is now the current building was built in 1925 by volunteer labor. The church was remodeled in 1951. The current building is located on the original site.

Former McLean mayor Sam Haynes will be master of ceremonies for the marker dedication. Gray County Judge Carl Kennedy, United Methodist Women president Inez Trostle, Ruth Magee of McLean, chairman of Committee on History and Archives, inspects brick monument that will hold the medallion.

Methodist conference history and archives chairman Ruth Magee, and church officials Bill Graham and John Haynes will unveil the marker. Gray County Historical Commission Chairman Darlene Birkes will present a history of the church.

Former First UMC pastor, Rev. Elton Wyatt, and the church's current pastor, Rev.

Billy Wilson, will conduct the dedication. Also scheduled is McLean Mayor George Green.

The children's choir will present several numbers.

A reservation-only meal will follow the ceremony.

The Alanreed-McLean Area Museum will be open at 1:30 p.m. Sunday for visitors.

Central Baptist Church plans revival services

Central Baptist Church, Starkweather and Browning, will have revival services beginning Sunday and continuing through Friday, May 1.

Services will begin with Bible Study at 9:45 a.m. and worship at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. Sunday, with evening services at 7:30 p.m. Monday through Friday.

There also will be noon services Monday through Friday, with a meal being served beginning at 11:45 a.m. and the meetings concluding at approximately 12:50 p.m. There will be a $2 charge for the meal.

Evangelist for the revival will be Steve Stroope, pastor of the Dalrock Baptist Church in Rowlett. Stroope became pastor of the church in 1980 when it was organized as a mission with an attendance of 53. Today the church is averaging more than 900 in Sunday School and has two worship services.

Stroope is widely used as a conference speaker and revival preacher.

Music evangelist will be Ron Lowry, currently serving as development administrator for the Baptist Memorial Center of San Angelo. Lowry is the former minister of music in several churches, his latest being at the First Baptist Church of Lubbock for 16 years.

Lowry has led the music for Glorietta conferences, Baptist General Convention of Texas and twice for the Southern Baptist Convention.

Rev. Norman Rushing, pastor, and the congregation of Central Baptist have extended an invitation to the public to join them in the special revival services.

Calvary Assembly plans crusade

Calvary Assembly of God, located at Crawford and Love streets, will present a special Spiritual Life Crusade at the church Sunday through Wednesday.

Services will be held at 9:45 a.m. and 7 p.m. Sunday and at 7:30 p.m. daily Monday through Wednesday.

The crusade will be conducted by evangelists Johnny and Renita Knight from Arlington, Texas.

"Inspiring vocalists and motivational speakers, the Knights present Biblical truths in each service, creating an atmosphere of faith and worship which will cause you to rise above life's difficulties," said Rev. R.G. Tyler, pastor.

Knight received his ministry training at Southwestern Assemblies of God College in Waxahachie. During college, the Knights traveled with several singing groups, including the SAGC Harvesters choir and Assurance. They minister in rallies, churches and conventions across America.

The Knights recently starred in the leading roles of a motion picture based on the life story of evangelist Ira Stanphill. Stanphill is a gospel song writer who has composed more than 500 songs, including "Mansion Over the Hilltop," "There's Room at the Cross for You," "Come Home, It's Supper Time" and "Happiness Is the Lord."

The film, produced by World Missions Film Inc. of Dallas is scheduled for release in the fall of 1987.

Johnny and Renita Knight

Rev. Tyler said the Knights blend the ministry of music with power-packed messages from the Bible "to point all to the one who has all the answers: Jesus Christ. They invite you to come and be challenged to overcome life's problems and enjoy God's alternative — the life changing, resurrection power of the Holy Spirit."

Tyler said the congregation and he invite the public to attend the special crusade meetings next week.

Religion Roundup

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Reluctantly, 24 Southern Baptist missionaries have left Lebanon after trying unsuccessfully to get the U.S. State Department to let them stay.

Before they and their eight children left in compliance with the U.S. directive for evacuation of Americans, Jim Ragland from Oklahoma who had directed Beirut Baptist School said they were leaving "our hearts behind."

If the government's insistence that they leave was "to protect us, we don't want it," he said. "Lebanon is really up against the ropes. The country needs us."

RIGA, Latvia (AP) — The superintendent of German Lutheran congregations in the Soviet Union says he is in contact with 490 of them, with membership exceeding 1 million.

The Rev. Harald Kalnins said there likely are many more, and new ones continue reporting from "the reaches of the colossal country." He says most Lutheran congregations are in the eastern region of Siberia and Central Asia.

First Love.

If you want to see what love looks like, look at Jesus. If you want to see what Jesus looks like, look at His people.

The distinguishing mark of a real Christian is love — because Christ is love. Love made visible. When you think about it, what good is love you can't see? God showed His love for us right out in the open — on the cross. For all to see.

The family at First would welcome the opportunity of sharing with you the love God has shared with us. First Love lasts forever.

Texas Baptists showing church, mission growth

DALLAS — Texas Baptists celebrated increases in 1986 in all major categories of church and mission growth, according to the annual report of the Southern Baptist Sunday School Board and the Baptist General Convention of Texas.

Baptisms, which are considered a primary barometer of growth, increased from 62,336 in 1985 to 68,046 last year. It was the second highest annual baptism total in the 100-year history of the denomination, said executive director William M. Pinson Jr.

Voicing "gratitude for God's blessings," Pinson said, "In the midst of hard times financially, Texas Baptist churches experienced marvelous times spiritually."

He said the increases in 1986 over the previous year "demonstrate the faithfulness of our people and churches. Mission Texas is working," he said, in reference to the denomination's statewide effort to reach people for Christ, develop believers, strengthen missions and begin 2,000 new churches by 1990.

A record-breaking 305 new churches were started during the first year of Mission Texas from Oct. 1, 1985 through Sept. 30, 1986.

The number of churches and missions in Texas topped the 5,000 mark for the first time in 1986, totaling 5,140 compared to 4,961 in 1985. Statewide, the number of members in the churches increased from 2,398,234 in 1985 to 2,436,647 in 1986.

Sunday School enrollment was up from 1,304,138 to 1,310,939, and average Sunday School attendance rose from 584,812 to 596,973.

Other enrollment increases reported were Church Training, up from 257,911 to 262,079; Woman's Missionary Union, up from 136,120 to 138,915; Baptist Men, up from 70,155 to 71,012; and Church Music, up from 235,939 to 245,957.

In stewardship, the churches increased their gifts for the Cooperative Program, Southern Baptists' lifeline of missions support, from $56,315,662 in 1985 to $59,001,291 in 1986. Total missions giving increased from $118,182,763 to $122,452,647.

The churches reported total receipts of $783,072,625 in 1986 compared to $756,996,636 the previous year.

Prophecy series continues

Faith Tabernacle, 610 Naida, will be continuing its 10-day series with evangelist Darrell McCoy of Port Arthur today through Friday, May 1.

Beginning this past Wednesday, the series features preaching on Biblical prophecy by McCoy, with several of the topics illustrated by films.

Services will begin at 7:30 p.m. daily at the church.

Topics include "Prophecy and You," "Trouble, Trouble, Trouble," "The Prodigal Planets, Parts 1 and 2" and other expository teaching.

Illustrated film topics include "The Road to Armageddon," "Image of the Beast," "A Distant Thunder" and "Wonder Man."

Aaron Thames, pastor, invited the public to attend the special prophecy series.

Thomas honored by A&M, Texas as outstanding citizen

Ralph R. Thomas of Pampa was honored this week at the annual Texas A&M Aggie Muster by the State of Texas and Texas A&M as an outstanding citizen. Thomas, 85, served in World Wars I and II and the Korean War. He received the Bronze Star while participating in the Korean conflict.

He was born in Crosby County on Christmas Day, 1898. He completed high school in Morton and entered Texas A&M University, where he studied animal husbandry. In October 1918, while a student at A&M, he was inducted into the Army as part of a group induction of all A&M students. He was commissioned to the infantry before being released on Dec. 20, 1918.

Thomas received a bachelor's degree in animal husbandry from A&M in 1921. His two brothers also graduated from A&M. He taught vocational agriculture and engaged in farming in the 1920s.

From 1930 to 1960, he was county agent for Gray County Extension Service. During his 30-year career as an Extension agent, he was involved in the construction of hundreds of miles of terraces, as well as the laying out and supervision of numerous dam sites. Many of the original terraces on which he worked are still in existence. He was also responsible for selecting the best sites for water ponds.

During World War II, Thomas was stationed in India and the Pacific as a major with the U.S. Air Force; in the early 1950s he was called to serve in the Korean Conflict with the Far East Air Logistic Force.

Before his discharge in 1952, Thomas was awarded the Bronze Star Medal by the President for distinguished and meritorious service. He retired in December 1959 with the rank of lieutenant colonel after 38 years of active reserve duty.

After his retirement from the Agricultural Extension Service in 1960, he took an active interest in the local 4-H organization.

The Aggie Muster is an annual meeting of Texas A&M alumni, students, family and friends at locations around the world. During the meeting, respects are paid to all those who have died since the last Muster.

Breast cancer forum Saturday

AMARILLO — American Cancer Society's Reach to Recovery volunteers will host an educational forum on breast cancer from 8:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. Saturday at Texas Tech School of Medicine building.

The forum will educate men and women on breast cancer treatment, surgery and alternatives, and the emotional aspects affecting not only the woman, but the man in her life.

Guest speakers include Dr. Daniel Epley, radiation oncologist at Harrington Cancer Center, who will speak on lumpectomy and radiotherapy as an alternative to mastectomy. Dian Cuellar, coordinator of the social services department of Harrington Cancer Center, will speak on the psychosocial aspects of breast cancer. Dr. John C. Kelleher of Panhandle Plastic Surgery will discuss breast reconstruction.

A style show featuring fashions from Colbert's will be modeled by women who have had mastectomies.

Reach to Recovery is a patient visitation program geared toward helping women deal with and recover from the experience of having a mastectomy. The program involves trained volunteers who themselves have had mastectomies. The major impact of the program is to provide support for women who have undergone this operation.

The forum is free and open to the public. For more information, contact the American Cancer Society office at 353-4306.

College offers play therapy seminar

A play therapy seminar for parents and persons working with infants, preschoolers and elementary school-age children will be 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Saturday at Pampa Community Building, corner of Kingsmill and Ballard Streets.

up to age 10 cannot verbalize feelings and problems because they view the world in concrete, not abstract, terms.

Fee for the seminar is $20. The course is being offered by Clarendon College Pampa Campus and is pending approval for A.A.T. credit.

Those wishing to attend may pre-register at the college campus.

Late registration will be 8-8:30 a.m. Saturday, immediately before the seminar begins.

Sponsors of the seminar include Cabot Corporation, Citizens Bank & Trust, First Financial Banking Center, First National Bank, IRI International Corporation, National Bank of Commerce, Simmons Business Services Corporation and Texas Furniture Company.

Great Texas Trash-Off to be Saturday

Eight Pampa organizations, clubs and groups will be out Saturday participating in the statewide Great Texas Trash-Off highway clean-up project.

Pioneers of America and Pampa Board of Realtors, Hwy. 60 west toward Amarillo;

- Downtown Business Association, Hwy. 60 east toward Miami;
- Top o' Texas Kiwanis Club and the Veterans of Foreign Wars and VFW Auxiliary, Hwy. 152 west toward Borger;
- First Presbyterian Church, Hwy. 70 south toward Clarendon; and
- Pampa AMBUCS, Hwy. 70 north toward Perryton.

Each group has adopted a 2-mile section of highway with a commitment to clean up the trash and litter at least four times a year.

Clean Pampa Coordinator Kathy Massick said all the highway entrances into Pampa now are covered by groups in the Adopt-A-Highway program.

"It's moving right along," she said. But she said more groups are still encouraged to join in the project to further extend the coverage in an attempt to keep entrances into the city cleaned up.

Those wanting more information on the program can contact the Clean Pampa office at 665-2514.

Spearman sorority to hold open house

SPEARMAN — The new home of C. Ralph and Johanne Blodgett of Spearman will be the focus of an open house hosted by Xi Zeta Upsilon chapter of Beta Sigma Phi, 2 to 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

Profits from the open house ticket sales will go to fund the sorority's community projects and other activities.

The Spanish-Mediterranean style house was designed by Rodney Seawright of Hooker, Okla. to complement the Blodgetts' collection of paintings and Oriental rugs. The one-story house has approximately 5100 square feet of living space.

The exterior is an R-wall construction with red brick trim and a red tile roof and features several patios and verandas, as well as heated paving under the portico. The interior, decorated by Sheila House of Amarillo, features mesquite floors, red oak doors and trim, an exercise room with sauna, cedar closets, a 28-foot cathedral ceiling in the Great Room, unusual storage areas and a kitchen with innovative appliances.

Blodgett, president and general manager of B and B Farm Industries of Spearman, has served as Spearman's mayor for 11 years and as 1983-84 president of Texas Municipal League.

Coke addiction ruins man's life

DEAR ABBY: I have a serious problem. I started using cocaine two years ago, and now it has become a terrible habit. I seem to need more and more.

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

I am a union steam pipe fitter and my take-home pay is $520 a week, but I'm always broke. My landlord is threatening to evict me unless I pay him what I owe him, and I'm two months behind in my car payments. My girlfriend of three years has left me for good, and my life is crumbling around me.

Abby, I have never used any other kind of drugs, but this one has got me in such a terrible mess because I can't live without it.

There's a drug clinic in town I would like to go to for help, but if I do, how can I keep it from my family? They are good and loving people, but they'd never understand.

I can't give you my name, so promise you, they will understand, and respect you for admitting to a problem you can't handle alone and are dealing with intelligently. Good luck and God bless you. Write again soon and let me know how you are. I care.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 16-year-old girl who has this question for you. Is it proper for a girl to say to a boy on their first or second date, "If you were thinking about kissing me goodnight, it's OK with me?"

ALLENTOWN, PA.

DEAR DESPERATE: Don't hide and don't lie. The stress of deception will only add to your problems. If you have a loving family, tell them the truth. I

DEAR ALLENTOWN: Only if you're absolutely positive he's thinking about it. Imagine how embarrassing it would be (for both of you) if he weren't.

Mavs stampede over Seattle

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

DALLAS (AP) — The loudest cheer in the Dallas Mavericks' record NBA playoff rout of Seattle came with 10 seconds left to play.

That's when third-string guard Dennis Nutt drove in for a layup that gave the Mavericks the most points they had ever scored in a game and a 151-129 victory over the SuperSonics Thursday night.

The 17,007 fans in Reunion Arena had been calling for Nutt since early in the third period of the runaway game that saw nine Mavericks score in double figures.

The mismatch that gave Dallas a 1-0 lead in the best-of-five series was over in about four minutes when Dallas streaked to a 17-8 lead.

"I knew the game was over after four minutes," said Dallas Coach Dick Motta. "We were very intense. We were real serious. We had practiced that way during the week."

Motta said the lifting of the Midwest Division championship banner to the rafters shortly before the game started got the team fired up.

"We were a little uptight early. It got 'em real emotional," Motta said. "We want Seattle to know we are better. Seattle is very capable of giving us trouble if we don't pay attention."

Mark Aguirre scored 28 points to lead the Mavericks and Tom Chambers was high for Seattle with 35 points. Former Maverick Dale Ellis scored 22.

"We felt something early and just played as well as we can," said rookie Roy Tarpley who came off the bench to score 25 points. "We had a lot of confidence."

Other Mavs in double figures included Derek Harper and Rolando Blackman with 18 points each, James Donaldson with 15, Sam Perkins with 12. Detlef Schremf, Brad Davis, and Bill Wennington had 10 points each.

Seattle Coach Bernie Bickerstaff gave Dallas its due.

"Dallas is a great team and we're not supposed to be here," Bickerstaff said. "They hit us where they always hit us with defensive pressure. It was over in the first quarter."

"We've got to be realistic," he added. "Dallas is a better team than we are. We've got to solve our problems and don't have much time to do it. We'll come back with something."

Dallas defeated Seattle by an average of 19 points in winning all five regular season games between the two teams. But Motta cautioned against any premature celebration by the Mavericks.

Detlef Schremf controls the ball.

"We can't carry the points over to the next game," Motta said. "We're the favorites, but Bernie is very good at regrouping a team."

Seattle's Eddie Johnson said, "They beat us but they have to win two more. It's going to be tough to beat Dallas if they play this well the rest of the way."

Game two is scheduled for Reunion Arena on Saturday night.

"We thought we were ready but they just took it away from us," Chambers said. "We got our tails kicked pretty good. They got some full court pressure on us. It was a very aggressive press and kind of surprised us."

Dallas' score was the fourth highest in NBA playoff history. Milwaukee, which scored 156 points in 1970, holds the record.

Pampa teams play at Brownwood

By L.D. STRATE
Sports Editor

The Pampa High girls' golf team has been a model of consistency this spring.

The Lady Harvesters, who have qualified for the Class 4A regional tournament for the third consecutive year, finished in the runnerup spot after six district rounds. Although the Lady Harvesters finished 166 strokes behind district champion Hereford, they had second place locked up for the season with a 92-stroke lead over third-place Borger.

"The girls continued to play well, even though they knew they had a regional berth all but lined up," said Pampa Coach Frank McCullough. "They never quit."

Pampa team members making the trip to Brownwood April 29-30 are Kim Harris, Lisa Lindsey, Kathleen Dunigan, Heather Simpson and Robin Rohde.

Lindsey and Harris battled for individual honors throughout the season.

Lindsey led the team with a 95.5 stroke average per round, followed closely by Harris at 96.2. Lindsey was Pampa's individual leader in four rounds while Harris and Robin Rohde won one round each

"We'll go to Brownwood a day early and try to get in a practice round and hopefully we can move up the ladder a little bit," McCullough said.

The Lady Harvesters won four of five district rounds last year to win the championship, but Harris was the only returning starter off that team.

"I appreciate Coach Davis' (Jerry) help with these girls," McCullough said. "He's worked hard with them, but I know he gives them most of the credit because they had to go out and do the playing and practicing."

While the Lady Harvesters were shooting seconds in every round, the Pampa boys had to come through the back nine to gain a regional playoff berth.

The Harvesters came from fourth place after five district rounds to finish in the runnerup spot behind Canyon.

Pampa finished 19 strokes behind Canyon and 10 strokes ahead of third-place Hereford.

"I didn't think we could win district, but I felt that the talent was there to finish second," McCullough said. "Now, we're going into the regionals with everyone even-steven."

The turning point in the season may have come at the Amarillo Relays where the Harvesters ended a four-year domination by Amarillo High to win the championship trophy. That victory came with three district rounds to go and the Harvesters in fourth place.

The Harvesters kept the momentum going and won the sixth round while placing second in the finale. In the final three rounds, the Harvesters shot a 301 at Dumas, 309 at Pampa and 312 at Borger.

"Those were three super rounds," McCullough added.

Pampa was led by the trio of Brian Loeffler, Monte Dalton and Jody Chase while Brian Hogan and Ryan Teague have been there to take up any slack.

Loeffler's stroke average of 78.6 in district was best among the Harvesters while Dalton and Chase came on strong down the stretch. Dalton was the medalist at the Amarillo Relays while Chase led the Harvesters in the final two rounds. Hogan shot Pampa's best round in district, a 70, while Teague was Pampa's stroke leader in the fourth district round. Loeffler, a senior, shot low rounds of 71 and 72 in district play.

PHS golfer Jody Chase prepares for regionals.

Pampa hosts Estacado

The Pampa Harvesters will try and snap a five-game losing streak when the Lubbock Estacado Matadors come to town Saturday for a District 1-4A baseball game.

The Harvesters are 3-6 in district play with five games remaining. Overall, the Harvesters are 7-9.

Estacado, which battled Levelland to a 10-10 tie in 13 innings Tuesday, is 2-5-2 in district play and 7-12-2 overall. Gametime is 1 p.m. at Harvester Field.

Astros keep home winning streak alive

HOUSTON (AP) — Dave Meads did what he was told and the Houston Astros kept their nine-game home winning streak alive with a victory over the Atlanta Braves.

Meads faced only one batter, did what manager Hal Lanier told him and was able to pick up his first major league victory, a 5-3 win in relief over the Atlanta Braves Thursday night.

"When I went in, Hal gave me a few key words, he told me how to pitch," Meads said.

"Hal told me to get ahead with the fastball and then go to the curve. The first pitch I threw was the fastball and I got ahead, then I went with the curves, so his plan worked," Meads said.

"After I got ahead of Griffey 0-2, I never thought of wasting a pitch. It would have been a good idea."

Optimists seek missing items

The Pampa Optimist Club is trying to locate missing baseball equipment and uniforms before the little league season gets underway next month.

Equipment can be turned in by contacting Marvin Elam at 665-

6192. "We have some things missing over the last two years and people may not know where to go or who to call," Elam said. "People can call me and I'll come by and pick up the items."

Matson better than average on basketball court

ALSO NOTED: Canyon folks think the influx of Department of Energy people could maintain Canyon High School's status as a Division 4A school when the school district's second high school, Valley View located in north Randall County (South Amarillo), is opened for the 1988 season. That could mean some major re-shuffling of the District 1-4A alignment or arrangement.

But could the DOE situation also push Hereford back up to 5A?...Isn't TANYA LIDY, only a junior, the best female athlete ever at Pampa High School? In last weekend's district track meet, she pulled in first-place finishes in the long jump, triple jump, 200 meter dash, and anchored both winning 400 and 800 meter relay teams to record times!...JOHNNY CARLOS, point guard on the 1967-68 Harvester basketball team which won district (26-5), is an attorney with a huge San Antonio law firm...Speaking of attorneys, SAM CUMMINGS, who was just appointed to a federal judgeship, was a classmate and close lifelong friend of Harvester basketball coach ROBERT HALE. However, unlike Hale, who scored 12 points in his career against Pampa while playing for Lubbock High, Cummings was not a basketball player...

The Georgia High School Association has tabled until next fall a proposal to permit spring football practice for high school teams. In that regard, a University of North Carolina study reveals an increase of nearly 300 percent in the number of athletes who died from injuries suffered while playing high school football from 1985 to 1986...The Oregon State High School Activities Association has changed its minimum eligibility requirements for athletic participation, mandating students earn five credits each semester instead of four and make normal progress toward graduation (no cheap courses)...The Milwaukee Brewers are off to a great start this baseball season, but apparently not so for former Amarillo TV sports personality

John Fedko, now with Channel 6 in Brewtown. A most unfriendly TV columnist in that Wisconsin city writes: "Fedko's opening day feature was worse than a waste of news time. Leading fans through staged 'tastes great, less filling!' cheers is a journalistic travesty that degrades the entire newscast." It's all in the eye of the viewer, but it must have been better than the staged "Sportscaster versus —" competitions he was ordered to perform here.

TRIVIA: While the debate continues over establishing a procedure for NCAA Division I football playoffs, can you name the longest-running collegiate championship sports event?

Note to PUTT: You write that RANDY MATSON was only an average basketball player for Pampa. Too bad you don't like the sport so you would attend some games. Matson, whose talent was good enough for him to play collegiately at Texas A&M, paced Pampa to an unbeaten (14-0) district championship in the 1962-63 season; was named all-district; still ranks seventh on the all-time three-season scoring records at PHS averaging 14.3 points over that period; twelfth on the all-time two-season list (14.5); and his 502 points in the 1961-62 season (before bonus free throws) is topped by only 12 other names from a program that has been exceptional through the last four decades. He is eighth on the career field goal list, fifth on the free throw list, (unfortunately, rebounds were not recorded); won the Hustling Harvester Award; and played in the Texas HS Coaches Association All-Star Game. Average player? Your apology is accepted!

Bethea's suicide blamed on drugs

NEWPORT NEWS, Va. (AP)—Success came early to Larry Bethea.

At Ferguson High School, he excelled in class and on the football field, where his exploits as a defensive and offensive end gained him the attention of college recruiters from across the country.

He went on to set records at Michigan State and become the first-round draft pick of the Dallas Cowboys of the National Football League in 1978.

After five years as a defensive lineman with the Cowboys, Bethea switched to the United States Football League for two years and then dropped out of football.

In December, he pleaded guilty to stealing his mother's life savings of $64,000 and was given a four-year suspended sentence in January.

Wednesday night, witnesses say he robbed two convenience stores at gunpoint. Two hours later, he was found dead of a self-inflicted gunshot wound in a friend's backyard.

The police chief blamed Bethea's death on drug abuse.

"This man, who had everything going for him, lost everything, including his life. I believe that Larry Bethea would be alive today if he had been able to stay away from drugs," Chief Jay A. Carey Jr. said in a statement.

High school teachers who knew Bethea said they did not recognize the man described in police reports.

"Of all the athletes I've coached, he would be the least likely to turn out the way he did," said Harlan Hott, a biology teacher who coached Bethea in football at Ferguson. Hott said he understood Bethea began using drugs in college.

"He was a very good student," said Barbara Raines, who taught Bethea advanced English in 11th and 12th grade. "He was the kind of kid who had his priorities in order. He really did. He had a lot of common sense and was a very intelligent, outgoing, personable young man."

"He was a good athlete and not interested in alcohol or drugs," she said. "It's just a shock."

"The thing I remember most about Larry is he always had a big smile on his face," said Detroit Lions Coach Darryl Rogers, who coached Bethea at Michigan State. "When he was with us, we saw nothing in his lifestyle that would indicate problems ahead for him."

Bethea holds the Michigan State record for the most sacks in a career with 43 for 230 yards. He was named to the first team of the all-Big Ten squad in 1977 and to the second team in 1976.

Fiori, Barr share Houston golf lead

THE WOODLANDS, Texas (AP)—PGA tourmates Ed Fiori and Dave Barr have been virtually inseparable this week, both on and off the golf course.

They fished together on Monday and shared a courtesy car Thursday to drive to the first round of the $600,000 Houston Open.

After the round ended, Fiori and his house guest Barr were again companions with identical 6-under par 66s for a two-shot lead over four other players.

"We were in qualifying school together and have been friends since then," Barr joked. "We share condos at tournaments sometimes but not many hotels. He's too hard to live with."

The pair even played only one threesome apart in Thursday's round over the dried out greens that made long-range putting at The Woodlands Country Club hazardous for many.

But Barr had a bogey-free opening round that included birdie putts of 35, 25 and 25 feet and an 18-foot downhill birdie on No. 15 over the par 72, 7,042-yard Tournament Players' Course.

"I never hit it close today," Barr said. "I guess I was a little lucky on a few of them."

Fiori birdied four of the first six holes but he had no long putts. But his short game was effective enough to keep pace with Barr.

Garza to play for Illinois

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP)—Gabe de la Garza, a middle linebacker at Southern Methodist University, says he will attend Illinois his senior year.

"He should fit right in," said Illini Coach Mike White. "He will strengthen us at linebacker where we need some help."

White said de la Garza will enroll in the College of Engineering and could earn his degree in about one year.

SMU announced it would drop its football program for two years after sanctions for violating NCAA rules.
