By TERENCE HUNT AP White House Correspondent

WASHINGTON — President Reagan, promising to seek ways to "strengthen Western solidarity," set out for Italy today for an economic summit likely to be dominated more by trouble in the Persian Gulf than by trade disputes and currency imbalances.

Before boarding Air Force One to embark on the 10-day trip, Reagan appeared at a departure ceremony on the White House's South Lawn and spoke about some of the issues that will be raised at next week's meetings with the leaders of Britain, West Germany, France, Italy, Canada and Japan. "I will look around the table and see — thanks in part to the generosity and wisdom of our nation over the past 40 years — not the leaders of broken, desperate and despotic nations, but the leaders of strong and stable democracies, countries that today are our partners for peace on the world stage," he said.

The underlying question at the summit, Reagan said, is "how can we help make the next 40 years as prosperous as the last 40? How can we help our peoples live in a world of even greater opportunities in the next decade and the next century?" He said all the nations should work to end huge trade imbalances, reform agricultural policies that are dependent on government subsidies, restore stability to international currency markets and eliminate barriers to international trade.

Reagan said the talks also will focus on East-West relations, arms reductions, human rights problems, regional conflicts and other subjects.

"Our discussion in Venice will help strengthen Western solidarity, which is indispensable to progress on issues of contention between East and West,"

Reagan said that "despite this long agenda, we won't find all the answers to those questions about our future at this summit — not by a long shot. . .But we will take steps."

He did not mention the tense Persian Gulf, which officials said would be a major subject at the summit.

The president got a sendoff from his Cabinet, White House staff members who are staying behind and the graduating class of James Madison High School from Vienna, Va.

Accompanied by his wife, Nancy, Reagan will arrive in Venice shortly before midnight local time and take up residence for five nights at Villa Condulmer, a hotel about 20 miles outside the city. On Saturday, the Reagans will make a day trip to Rome to meet with Pope John Paul II, and on Monday, the president will move into Venice for three days' of summit talks on San Giorgio, one of the city's 117 islands.

Previewing the trip Tuesday, Secretary of State George P. Shultz said Reagan would underscore the need for an "adequate force" to protect Persian Gulf oil shipments from becoming targets in the Iran-Iraq war.

While saying the leaders also ould discuss arms control, Shultz said the summit group was not "the appropriate one See SUMMIT, Page 2

WASHINGTON — Assistant Secretary of State Elliott Abrams testified today "it is shameful for the United States to go around rattling a tin cup," but he solicited $10 million from the sultan of Brunei because the Nicaraguan Contra rebels were Gomez, a pseudonym for Felix Rodriguez, a former CIA operative in Costa Rica who was involved in the private effort to support the Contras. At issue was the extent of Abrams' knowledge and involvement in the Contra aid campaign at a time when Congress had banned all direct or indirect U.S. military aid to the Nicaraguan rebels.

WASHINGTON — Newly nominated Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan is likely to undergo trial by fire as he attempts to keep the U.S. economy from derailing under multiple pressures caused by sluggish growth, renewed inflation and a plunging dollar, analysts say.

And these observers also say Greenspan, nominated Tuesday to be the 13th chairman of the Fed, will need the nerves of a safe-cracker and the hide of an elephant to succeed in the new job.

Greenspan has a tough act to follow in the departing Paul Volcker, who in eight years as head of the central bank had gained worldwide stature as an inflationfighter and champion of economic stability.

Volcker's standing was brought home within minutes of See FATE, Page 2

In his second day before the joint House-Senate hearings on the Iran-Contra affair, Abrams said a central lesson to be learned from the current controversy over the Reagan administration's Nicaragua policy is that foreign policy should be carried out by the State and Defense departments and the CIA.

"It should not be implemented through the National Security Council staff, it should not be implemented through private citizens, it should not be implemented by going to foreign governments asking them for money," Abrams said.

Abrams, who runs the State Department's Latin American division, added, "That is not the way a great nation should run its foreign policy."

Moments later, Abrams got into a testy exchange with Sen. William Cohen, R-Maine, over the State Department official's previous statements about Max

Building

Abrams did assert that the U.S. government never officially approved as policy a secret plan for the Contras to seize control of part of Nicaragua and establish a provisional government. Private contributors to the Contras have told the investigating committees that such a plan was disclosed to them by former White House aide Oliver L. North.

Abrams said the plan, which included a U.S. Navy blockade of the leftist Sandinista government in Nicaragua, was rejected during inter-agency talks.

Under questioning by Cohen, Abrams said he felt betrayed by North "at times" and by other White House officials when he gave what he acknowledged was misleading testimony to Congress about foreign government aid to the Contras.

Cohen said he was worried about "how misrepresentation, crucial omissions and deliberate de-

Splash: Pool opens

Skies were gray and fog swept over the city this morning, but Parks and Recreation Department officials still hoped to open M.K. Brown Swimming Pool today.

Department Director Reed Kirkpatrick said the north city pool would open at 1 p.m. today, but opening of the Marcus Sanders Pool was delayed several days.

The M.K. Brown Pool, at Sloan Street and Kentucky Avenue, will be open from 1 to 6 p.m. daily, with Family Nights held from 7 to 9 p.m. Mondays and Tuesdays.

The city will sponsor a Splash Day from 1 to 6 p.m. Saturday, with all swimmers admitted free. Admission will be $1 a person at other times.

Kirkpatrick said the opening was delayed for painting at M.K. Brown Pool. The rain of the past couple of weeks had delayed the painting, and more time was needed to allow the paint to dry, the said.

The decision to open the municipal pool today was made about 4:30 p.m. Tuesday, Kirkpatrick said.

Other repair work is in progress at Marcus Sanders Pool, including installation of new waterfiltration and pump systems, a Tetravalent chlorination system and repainting work.

Kirkpatrick said he hopes that work will be completed in the next few days, but weather condjtions could affect the painting projects.

In addition to its regular hours of operation, the M.K. Brown Pool also will be available for group rentals on Wednesday through Sunday nights. Arrangements for renting the pool for the 7 to 9 p.m. evening use can be made by contacting the department office at 665-0909.

Valuation of permitted Pampa construction has fallen more than $2 million below both the calendar and fiscal year periods, according to the latest monthly report.

Pampa Department of Building Inspection personnel issued 13 building permits in May, with total valuation for construction listed at $113,190. One fewer permit was issued in May 1986, but valuation was listed then at $168,000.

Last month's valuation pushed the fiscal year totals to $4,512,114, down more than $2.5 million from the $7,068,591 recorded for the same 1985-1986 fiscal year period. The fiscal year begins Oct. 1.

BUILDING PERMITS Pampa couple buys Etheredge mansion

By PAUL PINKHAM Senior Staff Writer

A Pampa couple plunked down $29,000 on the courthouse steps Tuesday and walked away with a title to the two-story home of Bethany Trust founder Tom Etheredge.

But part of what looks like a bargain includes responsibility for thousands in back school, county, state and federal taxes.

Danny and Debbie Stokes, 2113 N. Zimmers, were the only bidders during a trustee's sale conducted by Pampa lawyer David Holt at the Gray County Courthouse. In addition to the threeacre homestead on West 23rd, the Stokes outbid one bidder to obtain Etheredge's satellite dish for $150.

Most of the proceeds from the sale will go to settle a $25,500 first lien held by First Bank and Trust of White Deer. Other claims against the property include two Internal Revenue Service liens totaling more than $18,000, records in the Gray County clerk's office show.

Etheredge's Bethany Trust and Co., based in the Hughes Building, was shut down in April 1984, after Texas banking officials failed to verify more than $10 million in reported company assets. Investors in four states, who had been promised a 25 percent return on their money, lost about $1.3 million when Bethany fell.

Etheredge had told investors their money was being placed in various companies controlled by Bethany around the world and was backed by a $5 million Swiss bank account. Prosecutors have since claimed that few, if any, of the Bethany companies existed and that the balance of the Swiss bank account was never greater than $50.

Etheredge is currently serving a five-year prison sentence for securities violations in Kansas. And despite pleading guilty to fraud in Kansas City, Mo., he has maintained that investors would have received their money back had the state of Texas not interfered.

Fate

President Reagan's surprise announcement that Volcker was stepping down and Greenspan was being nominated as a replacement. Stock prices went into a nosedive, the value of the dollar plunged, and the price of gold, considered a good barometer of inflation fears, soared. The reaction was only slightly less violent in Congress and in foreign financial centers. Sen. William Proxmire, D-

Wis., who is chairman of the Senate Banking Committee, did not even bother to mention Greens-

ing about some aspects of U.S. involvement in the Contra aid campaign, and occasionally resorted to hair-splitting evasions in answering congressional inquiries

Cohen said Abrams, assistant secretary for inter-American affairs for the past two years, was engaged in "misrepresentation by omission and silence." Abrams, testifying under oath and without immunity, was to be followed by Albert Hakim, an Iranian-American businessman who pan's name while lamenting the departure of Volcker, which he termed a "serious loss for the country.

'There is very little respect for what is known of Mr. Greenspan,'' complained Michale Osborne, chief economist of a British brokerage firm. "He is a man of very small reputation."

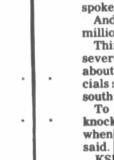

Still, the complaints seemed aimed mainly at Volcker's leaving rather than at Greenspan's arrival

Supporters said Greenspan, a respected economist in his own right, should have little trouble winning Senate confirmation.

Greenspan, 61, won widespread praise for his handling of two previous government jobs: chairmanship of the Council of Economic Advisers under President Gerald Ford from 1974 to 1977 and as head of a presidential blue-ribbon commission which recommended ways to overhaul the financially troubled Social Security system in 1983

Economists who knew Greenspan predicted few major changes in monetary policy and some predicted Greenspan may pursue even tighter credit policies than Volcker would have in an effort to gain the respect of worldwide financial markets.

enate sends tort reform package to House

AUSTIN (AP) — Senators approved and sent the House a package of legislation aimed at revising civil justice laws and providing more regulation of liability insurance.

"The Senate action tonight is a very positive step in the direction of economic development in Texas," Gov. Bill Clements said after Tuesday night's vote. "Hopefully, the House can move in a similar fashion very soon."

The House was expected to vote on the measures today.

The Senate approved the measures Tuesday on voice vote in the special session called by Clements after a filibuster by Sen. Craig Washington killed the regular session Monda night. Washington again postponed a vote on the bills Tuesday night for several hours.

tort reform measure at the end of the

"This is not a filibuster. I'm just asking questions," Washington said after he had been on his feet for more than three hours before a committee made up of the entire Senate membership.

The Senate approved 30-2 an allied measure making numerous changes in state liability insurance law. The bill creates a new consumer protection division in the State Board of Insurance and authorizes a public counsel for the department.

Efforts to place a two-year freeze on liability insurance prices failed by votes of 19-12 and 18-13.

The Senate approved the tort reform bill measure by Sen. John Montford, D-Lubbock, by a vote 29-3. Montford said the bill was the same as the Senate-House compromise that failed Monday night.

The package of bills presented to the Senate Tuesday involve an overall measure making numerous changes in civil justice procedures, including the responsibilities of defendants and plaintiffs in personal injury and property damage suits.

After weeks of discussion, the House and Senate had reached a compromise on the package that included placing caps on punitive damages and the liability of cities, sanctions for frivolous lawsuits and limits on the liability of defendants in multiparty suits

The House had approved on Monday night the compromise between rival measures passed by the Senate and House on civil justice reform.

But there was never a vote in the Senate on the compromise because of a brief filibuster by Washington which used up the short time remaining before the midnight deadline.

Clements called the follow-up special session only for the tort reform bills, plus strengthening of liability insurance laws.

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby said he and Speaker Gib Lewis urged Clements to call the immediate special session on tort reform because "otherwise, I was afraid the momentum might be lost."

"Another thing, I would hope the June 22 special session (scheduled earlier by Clements) would be focused entirely on budget issues," Hobby said. "I would hope we would not be distracted by a very time-consuming issue such as tort reform."

Residents forced from homes

By The Associated Press

South Texans are assessing flood damages that likely will run in the millions of dollars, while North Texans braced for new floods and watched one of the state's largest lakes reach its highest level in 30 years.

Dozens of Wichita Falls residents abandoned their homes Tuesday, surrendering to new flooding on the Wichita River that one said was the worst in 46 years.

Red Cross spokeswoman Stacy Ryan said at least 20 homes had more than 6 inches of water inside and at least 20 more had minor damage from the floodwaters.

The water level still was rising Tuesday, she said, stranding several families. "It's going to just get worse," Ms. Ryan told the Wichita Falls Record News, adding that the number of East Side homes damaged by flooding is expected to be even higher on Wednesday.

City officials said the water rose Tuesday because a storm sewer backed up into a major drainage way.

The river, which overflowed into more than 100 area homes over the weekend after a tributary creek was deluged with heavy rains, was receding in some places Tuesday, but a lake filled with runoff threatened to pour into another flood-prone creek that courses through the heart of city, officials said

'We're not trying to alarm anyone, but we're watching this very cautiously," said City Engineer David Zelenok said.

To the east, runoff from heavy rains has Lake Texoma headed for its highest crest since 1957, a spokesman for the Army Corps of Engineers said. And in South Texas, flood damages could cost millions of dollars to repair, officials said Tuesday. Thirty to 50 Duval County homes were damaged severely; about 20 of which are in the Rios area about 20 miles southwest of San Diego, county officials said. The other homes are in nearby Realitos, south of Benavides and in La Rosita.

To the north in San Antonio, heavy weather knocked two radio stations off the air Tuesday when it toppled three broadcast towers, officials said.

KSLR General Manager Bob Lepine said the towers - one 500 feet high and two 320-foot structures --- fell around 3 a.m. KISS also went off the air because that station maintained an antennae on the taller KSLR tower, he said.

Damage from weekend storms in Bandera County could top $1 million, officials said. About 36 families suffered damage to their homes because of rising water.

Duval County officials will be assessing damages this week and should have a preliminary damage report completed by week's end.

County Judge Frank S. Garcia estimated that thousands of acres with crops, including corn, hay, sorghum and watermelons, have been damaged severely.

"It could be in the millions of dollars. It involves thousands of acres." he said.

At the other end of the state, water is pouring into Lake Texoma from the rampaging Red and Washita rivers eight times faster than it is flowing out, with a predicted crest of 6 feet below the spillway on Thursday, officials said.

With the lake taking on water at 320,000 cubic feet per second, it was rising Tuesday at a rate of 7 inches every four hours, officials said.

More rain in its sodden watershed would run off quickly and the lake could go over the spillway for only the second time in 44 years, officials said.

Lake Texoma was built primarily for flood control. It can discharge water at a 85,000 cfs rate water now is flowing out at less than half that — but Corps officials said they won't let water out faster until conditions improve downstream.

Upstream, the same turbulent Red River that broke an oil line and overturned oil storage tanks has broken down any danger to the environment, officials said.

Up to 10,000 barrels of oil drained Saturday from a 24-inch line owned by Texaco Pipeline Inc. that broke south of Temple, Okla.

"I don't really feel like there is going to be enough oil anyplace where it can be picked up," Texaco spokesman V.L. Hoing said.

"It appears that the oil that was spilled is being diluted and broken down by the water and turbulence and there isn't going to be an impact," said EPA spokeswoman Karen Brown.

Hoing said Texaco isn't the only company suffering from the effects of a furious flow along the Red River. Tank batteries north of Nocona, Texas, overturned and some oil flowed into the river, he said.

Tucker, right, enters 175th District Court da Smith on Tiuesday. Attorneys continue selecting jury in officer's murder trial

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Attorneys said they hoped to have a jury selected late today in the murder trial of a patrolman accused of slaying a suspected vigilante policeman.

Farrell Tucker, 36, is charged in the death of his best friend, Stephen R. Smith, 31, who was a suspect in vigilante activites and allegedly wanted to kill three top law enforcement officials.

Tucker maintains he shot Smith in self-defense last Aug. 18

Because of the adverse publicity in the case, State District Judge Phil Chavarria, defense attorneys and prosecutors are questioning individually the 60 people summoned for jury duty.

During questioning Tuesday, one woman acknowledged she had many questions about Tucker's and Smith's relationship.

"I feel they were involved in something underhanded and that (Smith) was killed to cover up that knowledge," Carol Harris wrote in a question-

Defense attorney Terry McDonald asked Chavarria to dismiss Ms. Harris, arguing that she already felt Tucker was guilty Chavarria refused, saying Tucker has not denied shooting Smith. Several people have been dismissed because of in church's Pampa District LUBBOCK - Ten changes in the Pampa District

Methodists make 10 changes of the Northwest Texas United Methodist Conference were announced Tuesday night, including the appointment of a new district superintendent. The changes in pastorates and other assignments were among the business conducted Tuesday night at the Northwest Texas Annual Conference of the United Methodist Church held in Lubbock.

The naming of a new conference director and two new district superintendents highlighted the announcements at the meeting at First United Methodist Church in Lubbock.

Named new conference director was Rex L. Mauldin, who previously served five years as Big Spring District superintendent. Mauldin replaces J. Douglas Wofford, who served as conference director for five years.

Wofford has been appointed pastor of the Roswell, N.M., First UMC.

Replacing Mauldin as Big Spring District superintendent will be Milton Chester, who previously served two years as pastor of Grace UMC in Alamogordo, N.M.

In the Pampa District, Albert Lindley has been named as superintendent. He replaces C.B. Melton, who served as district superintendent for six years before retiring recently. Lindley previously served as pastor of the Perryton UMC for four years

A number of pastorate changes also were announced Tuesday. United Methodist ministers are assigned by Bishop Louis W. Schowengerdt of the New Mexico and Northwest Texas Conferences to appointments at the annual conference meetings

In Pampa, Jim Wingert is the new pastor at St. Paul UMC. Wingert previously served two years as an associate pastor at First UMC in Big Spring. He replaces James William Putnam, who served at St. Paul for three years. Putnam has been granted disability leave by special appointment.

Also in Pampa, Alvareta G. Richards has been named pastor at Harrah UMC and at the Lefors UMC. Mrs. Richards comes from Loraine-Westbrook, where she served four years. She replaces Gene B. Louder, who served two years. Louder has been appointed to Matador-Roaring Springs UMC.

Mark Wilson is the new pastor at McLean-Heald UMC. He replaces Bill M. Wilson, who served five years. Bill Wilson has been appointed to the Miami UMC, where he will be the new pastor.

At Miami, Bill Wilson replaces Jerry E. Klaverweiden, who served three years. Klaverweiden has been named associate pastor at Lubbock St. Luke's UMC.

Jimmy Davis is the new pastor at Mobeetie-Kelton UMC, replacing Stephen Venable, who served two years. Venable has been named associate pastor at Plainview First UMC.

At Shamrock, Steve Rogers is the new pastor at Shamrock UMC. He comes from Panhandle, where he served two years. Rogers replaces T. Todd Dyess, who served six years. Dyess has been appointed to Spearman, where he replaces C. Lane Boyd, who served four years. Boyd has been named pastor at Sweetwater First UMC.

Jesse Dea is the new pastor at Wellington UMC. coming from Lamesa Northridge UMC, where he served three years. Dea replaces Thomas H. Thomson, who served 10 years. Thomson has been appointed to Midland St. Paul UMC.

James Holman is the new pastor at Perryton UMC, coming from Midland St. Paul UMC, where he served eight years. He replaces Lindley, named new district superintenent.

Witnesses say man covered with blood

BECKVILLE (AP) — The man arrested in the beating death of an 18-year-old legally blind woman returned to a graduation party with "blood up to his elbows" and was cleaned up and taken home by chaperons, a Longview newspaper has reported.

The Longview News-Journal said the party for Beckville High School graduates Friday night featured kegs of beer being served to under-age participants and video movies including a documentary depicting actual death scenes.

David E. Metcalf, 19, was released from the Panola County Jail on $75,000 bond Tuesday after being charged with murder in the death of classmate Theresa Ann Downing.

Metcalf was arrested shortly after the student's body was found Saturday afternoon after he went to the sheriff's office to tell them what he knew about her death.

Officers said Metcalf gave them a statement concerning the slaying.

Officers told the News-Journal Metcalf left the party with Miss Downing and later returned alone with blood on his shirt and arms. Metcalf claimed to have been in a fight and fled an attaker

Witnesses said some of the chaperons then cleaned him up and drove him home.

Panol County authorities say they do not believe anyone else was involved in the slaying. Officers said witnesses saw Metcalf running from the area where the body was found.

Both Miss Downing and Metcalf were classified as students with learning difficulties, Beckville Superintendent Dr. Andrew Nutt said.

Glynna Goza, a classmate and close friend of the victim, told the newspaper that about 65 students attended the party.

"There were two kegs of beer and the young people swam and watched movies," she said.

They hope to get a 12-member panel to begin hearing the case on Thursday. The trial is expected to last three weeks.

Bexar County Assistant District Attorney Bill Harris said Tuesday that he thought a jury would be impaneled by today

The prospective jurors had answered a questionnaire about their knowledge and opinions of the

Mother, two small children found slain

ARLINGTON (AP) — Tarrant County authorities were attempting today to determine the cause of death of a mother and two of her small children found slain in their home

The names of the victims were withheld to give authorities time to notify relatives. Both the man and his wife were natives of India, friends said.

Officers said the bodies were found when the woman's husband returned home Tuesday night from the video store he owned in nearby Duncaville.

Arlington Police spokeswoman Dee Anderson said the 38-yearold man found his 4-year-old son's body in the front entry of the home, his 6-year-old daughter in a downtstairs bedroom and the body of his 32-year-old wife in a bathroom next to the bedroom where the daughter's body was found

Police said early today they were trying to determine if the three died of gunshot wounds or had been beaten to death. There was no sign of forced entry and the residence apparently had not been ransacked, investigators said. They said they have not determined when the slayings occurred and have not found a weapon

Anderson had said late Tuesday the three died of gunshot wounds to the head, but early today he said the three had been killed with a blunt instrument.

Police said a neighbor boy said he saw a man come out of the house several hours before the body was found. He said he did not recognize the man.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Opinion

Questions about gulf policy require study

It's not as if all parties didn't know about the hazards of the Persian Gulf.

Indeed, U.S. ships cruise the area because U.S. officials know full well of the area's dangers. Since 1984 about 230 ships have been hit by Iraqi and Iranian attacks, and 120 sailors killed. Only hours before the USS Stark was hit — apparently by Exocet missiles from the Iraqi Air Force and apparently by mistake — a Soviet tanker was damaged when it hit a mine off Kuwait. And Iran has blustered that vessels flying superpower flags will not be safe from attack.

The attack on the USS Stark was the most devestating to date, with at least 28 Americans killed and 21 more injured, in the so-called "tanker war." Preliminary information indicates that the Iraqi warplane that is supposed to have fired the missiles was tracked from take-off by Saudi-based AWACS surveillance aircraft, whose information is supposed to be available instantly to all seven U.S. ships in the Gulf. The attack did occur after dark, and the sea-skimming Exocet missiles are notoriously difficult to detect. But the Stark had sophisticated anti-missile systems, which were never activated.

So why were the missiles fired? Was it merely a mistake by a lone pilot, or is some deeper, more convoluted motive to be found?

The United States now plans to register 11 of Kuwait's 21 tankers and place American captains on board, so those vessels can fly the U.S. flag and officially come under the protection of U.S. warships. Iranian spokesmen immediately announced that no ship, whatever flag it flew, would henceforth be safe. Is this policy a mistake, creating even more immediate danger for U.S. ships and seamen? But why did the attack come from Iraq, not from Iran, as nearly everybody would have expected?

As U.S. officials sort out such questions, Americans will be asking even more fundamental questions. Are core U.S. interests so deeply at stake in the Iran-Iraq war that it is necessary to put U.S. ships and U.S. sailors in harm's way? The Iran-Iraq war spread to the Persian Gulf because both countries heavily depend on exports. Ships of other countries, including Kuwait, Bahrain, Qatar, and the United Arab Emirates have been attacked, leading to increasing involvement and offers of protection by both the United States and the Soviet Union. At one point the Persian Gulf supplied up to one-fourth of the West's oil supplies, so one can understand concern at the possibility of an extended interruption. On the other hand, despite their bluster, neither Iran nor Iraq would welcome a complete cut-off; both need to keep selling oil. Western Europe and Japan are more heavily dependent on Persian Gulf oil than is the United States. Why should it be the United States that puts its ships and men at risk? Should the United States feel obligated to lend a helping hand and endanger its military people

Farm act appeals to lunacy

American farm policy is so bad that you might assume it can't get any worse. But it can and, if the sponsors of the Family Farm Act get their way, it will. The scheme incorporates some of the worst errors made in managing agriculture, magnifies them and presents them in a fraudulent package

Stephen Chapman

Sen. Tom Harkin (D-Iowa) is one of two chief sponsors. The other is Democratic presidential contender Richard Gephardt, a Missouri congressman, notorious as the author of a dreadfully protectionist trade amendment. But even if Gephardt doesn't get to the White House, the bill may be a preview of a Democratic president's farm policy

This bill is supposed to boost farmers' income dramatically while reducing federal expenditures. The device to achieve this is what the sponsors, with Orwellian ingenuity, call "supply management." In laymen's terms, that means a sharp and forcible cut in the amount of food and fiber that farmers produce.

Harkin and Gephardt will object to the term "forcible," since the producers of each crop will get to vote on whether to join the program and accept the acreage reductions. "Is that mandatory?" asks Harkin. "No, that's democracy." Actually, it's both. The vote is binding on all the farmers involved. Those who would rather produce all-out don't have a choice, unless 51 percent of their collegues agree.

The people who will be paying the tab, though, don't have a vote in these referenda. The whole point of the plan is to raise prices to consumers. A nine-page fact sheet sent out by Sen. Harkin doesn't get around to that unpleasant fact until Page 7, where it concedes that "American consumers will pay slightly higher prices at the supermarket." "Slightly higher" means an extra $10 billion or so a year.

The point is that any savings to taxpayers are phony, since they have to be made up by consumers. The bill amounts to a surreptitious tax on food, collected by farmers instead of the IRS. If that isn't bad enough, the change shifts the burden of the farm programs from the affluent to the poor, who pay little in taxes but spend an outsized share of their income on food.

The sponsors claim to guard against this by proposing higher spending on federal nutrition programs for the poor, but even if that change fully offsets the price hikes, it won't be much help to Americans who are merely lower middle-class. Those whose sympathy for the poor doesn't end at the border should note that one of the bill's stated purposes is to force consumers in other nations to pay "significantly higher prices."

That brings up one of the obstacles to raising U.S. crop prices - competion from abroad. If American farmers sell their wheat for less than $4.72 a bushel and those in Canada or France will accept $3.50, makers of flour and bread (and their customers) will buy foreign. To prevent that, this bill sanctions whatever import barriers are needed.

But that's not the worst of it. The bill also requires the president to begin negotiations to 'increase world market prices and preserve market shares." The goal is a world food cartel one more comprehensive, expensive and powerful than OPEC ever was. If other countries refuse to go along, which is highly probable, the United States would try to keep its overseas customers by the liberal use of export subsidies. When that trick is used by Japan or France, we call it dumping, and we punish it

But the cost is not just to principle: The export subsidies could cost $9 billion a year or more. according to the American Farm Bureau Federation. Noting unpublicized expenses like this, Texas A&M University's Agricultural and Food Policy Center predicted that, instead of reducing federal spending on agriculture, this bill would actually raise it - this in addition to higher prices at the supermarket.

All this would be hard enough to justify in a good cause. But doing it in order to save the family farm borders on lunacy, if only because the family farm isn't in danger. Families and individuals own 75 percent of all U.S. farmland. compared to 14 percent owned by corporations (most of them also family enterprises). The number of farms and farmers is shrinking, but that shift has been going on since the 1930s and is perfectly normal in a growing modern economy. The vast majority of American farmers 85 to 90 percent — have no serious financial problems.

tude than hard-pressed owners of gas stations, shoe stores or dry cleaning establishments. The Harkin-Gephardt bill is merely the latest installment in our futile, expensive effort to spare agriculture the risks of a free economy. As policy, it's the moral equivalent of crop failure.

SPEAKING IN TONGUES

Paul Harvey Farmers climbing from pit

My travels recently have included much time in farm country

I've seen the worst of the agricultural recession and the best of the recovery.

With respect for the casualties, I am convinced that - on average, on balance, in most all segments of agriculture --- the worst is past. The trouble is that it hurts even when you bounce

Farmland peaked at $4,000 an acre in the late 1970s.

By the mid-1980s some values plunged to $450 an acre.

And with commodity prices falling and operating prices rising, there was no way that farmers in debt could pay that debt.

At the same time, dwindling exports and record production resulted in huge surpluses until, on average, the value of farm assets plunged 30 percent in five years.

Until this year.

There's been a painful thinning out of our professional farm population, but farmers who've weathered the storm are going to make a small profit this year.

Agriculture has become many things in recent years - from cotton to catfish, from bees to trees - and that diversification was accelerated when meat and grain prices sagged.

Net cash income — the difference between the cost of farming and the dollar harvest - will increase about 5 percent this year, to a record $46-$48 billion.

This is based on a projection of declining production expenses for things like fertilizer and pesticides. Also, an interest rate decline of 4.1 percentage points from 1984

Total farm debt - not counting farm homes is down from $204 billion in 1982 to $176 billion by the end of last year. That much debt in the present environment is manageable, and it will decline further this year.

There will still be some improvement in exports this year.

There are still 100,000 American farmers in trouble. You will be seeing some of these on TV as their equipment is sold at auction.

But the 1985 farm bill mandates that foreclosed farmers must be given the right to buy back their own land at a "fair market value" rather than at the inflated price they paid for it in the late 1970s - and many or most will. And I'll tell you something farmers are not going to do again: They are not going into hock for an even larger acreage at whatever interest rates.

And though farmers will always be at the mercy of weather, bugs, bureaucrats and bankers ---out of the painful experience of this last decade may come more "stability" than American agribusiness has ever known before.

Aides without morals are real obscenity

By Robert Walters

WASHINGTON (NEA) - Attorney General Edwin Meese's office has proclaimed that "child pornography and obscenity have been named as two of his top criminal justice priorities."

Indeed, Meese appears to be transfixed by obscenity. He has ordered that almost 100 Justice Department lawyers be designated as "obscenity specialists" and has created a "National Obscenity Enforcement Unit."

The dictionary says obscenity is that which is "disgusting to the senses." Under that definition, what's obscene is that Meese, the country's chief law enforcement officer, has established two new records for ethical laxity

. He is the first sitting attorney general to be investigated for criminal wrongdoing by a special

prosecutor

· He is the first public official to have been the target of two separate special prosecutors' investigations. He was cleared of charges following the first investigation.

The dictionary also says obscene is that which is "abhorrent to morality or virtue." Under that definition. what's obscene is that so many of the people appointed by President Reagan to serve the public have used government service to enrich themselves.

The staff of the House Civil Service Committee has identified more than 200 Reagan appointees alleged to have engaged in unethical conduct. Time magazine says the current administration has fostered "impropriety on a grand scale.'

Dozens of federal officials have been forced to resign in recent years after appropriating government funds, property, facilities and employees for their personal use.

Others have been caught awarding contracts to former business associates, offering preferential treatment to favored corporations and violating federal laws to help their friends

Still others have been charged with engaging in fraudulent business transactions before joining the government - which should have disqualified them from entering public service.

Some Reagan appointees have cheated on their government expense accounts, then pocketed the money. Others have attempted to bill the taxpayers for thousands of dollars in unustifiable travel costs.

But the transgressions that most directly reflect upon the president's morality - or lack thereof - are those committed by three men who are his close personal friends and loyal political allies.

Indeed, all three were members of Reagan's inner circle when they served on his White House staff. They are Meese, Michael Deaver and Lyn Nofziger.

Deaver has been indicted on five counts of perjury following a special prosecutor's investigation. Like Nofziger, he is alleged to have improperly used contacts inside the government to earn lucrative fees as an influence-peddling consultant soon after leaving office.

Nofziger and Meese, whose activities are still being probed by a special prosecutor, have been linked with a growing scandal involving the Wedtech Corp., a New York City firm al-leged to have enlisted greedy Republicans and Democrats to help it secure government contracts.

Nation House, Senate differ on Persian Gulf disclosure

WASHINGTON (AP) - Congress wants more information about President Reagan's military plans for the Persian Gulf, but members of the two Democratic-controlled chambers disagree on just how to seek those facts. The House voted 302-105 on Tuesday to seek the new details on how Reagan plans to protect Kuwaiti tankers in the gulf, but the measure says the administration can go ahead with its plan once the information is sent to Capitol Hill.

The vote sent the bill to the Senate, where it was promptly stalled by Democrats who want tougher language that would effectively delay the implementation of any plans until Congress reviews them.

That view won 91-5 endorsement from the Senate two weeks ago, but was attached as an amendment to an unrelated bill which will not become effective for several weeks. That would be after administration plans take effect. Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., said he would send the House bill to a pair of committees for study. Byrd said the votes mean both chambers are "firmly on record expressing reservations about the course of administration policy in the Persian Gulf." The two votes "send important signals which cannot be ignored by the administration.

Reagan plans to protect Kuwaiti ships by putting American flags and captains aboard the tankers as they travel in the gulf, home of much of the oil used by the West.

The gulf also is bordered by Iraq and Iran, who have been fighting a long, bloody war. Kuwait, an ally of Iraq, has had its tankers targeted by the Ira-nians, and the Kuwaitis are seeking the protection of both the United States and the Soviet Union.

Congressional fears about involving the United States in hostilities have been heightened by the May 17 Iraqi missile attack on the Navy frigate USS Stark, which killed 37 American seamen.

In other developments:

The Navy's investigation has not turned up any evidence to dispute Iraqi statements that the Stark attack was a mistake, Rear Adm. David N. Rogers told the Senate Armed Services Committee, according to Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., chairman of the panel. Rogers, head of the initial Navy inquiry into what happened to the Stark, testified behind closed doors Tuesday about his investigation. Rogers declined to talk to reporters, but Nunn said Rogers said U.S. investigators believe "this was indeed a mistake. It was not an intentional attack."

Ownership of the 11 Kuwaiti oil tankers to be placed under the American flag has been transferred to a U.S. company at a cost of $7 million, a U.S. official said Tuesday. The ships have been re-registered with Chesapeake Shipping, based in Delaware, and American captains are being recruited. said the official, who spoke on condition of anonymity. The official said six or seven of the Kuwaiti vessels had already passed Coast Guard safety inspections.

Two polls released today gave differing signals about the extent of support for Reagan's plan to re-flag and protect Kuwaiti tankers in the gulf. An ABC-Washington Post poll showed 53 percent of respondents support plans to re-flag Kuwaiti vessels, and 57 percent said the United States should take all steps, including the use of force if necessary, to ensure adequate oil supplies from the Arab world.

A Los Angeles Times poll, however, found only 27 percent support plans to have U.S. Navy ships to escort the tankers. Thirty-two percent opposed the plans, while 41 percent were unsure.

Only 29 percent of those surveyed in the Los Angeles Times poll said the United States should strike back if Iran attacks a ship given U.S.-flag protection.

Both telephone surveys were completed early this week and had margins of error of three percentage points either way.

First human trials of AIDS vaccine produce modest boost

WASHINGTON (AP) — A researcher who courageously injected himself with an AIDS vaccine to be certain it was safe says it now has produced a modest boost in the immune systems of 10 AIDS victims and 12 healthy people who have received it.

Some researchers feared that Daniel Zagury of the University of Paris would damage his own immune system by injecting himself with the experimental vaccine, which contains fragments of the virus that causes AIDS.

But Zagury, reporting on his research Tuesday at the Third International Conference on AIDS, said none of the vaccine recipients has suffered immune system breakdown or other ill effects.

He cautioned, however, that it is still too soon to tell whether the improvements in the recipients' immune systems will be enough to improve the health of those with AIDS or to prevent AIDS infection in healthy volunteers.

Zagury used a smallpox vaccine that was genetically engineered to include fragments of the AIDS virus. The vaccine produced immunity to two very different strains of the virus — an important finding that suggests a single vaccine might be able to protect against all strains of the virus, Dr. Robert Gallo of the National Cancer Institute said.

The volunteers were Zairians who were treated in cooperation with the Zairian AIDS research program and with the sanction of its ethics committee and of the Zairian government, Zagury said.

Acquired immune deficiency syndrome is a contagious disease of the body's immune system. rendering it incapable of resisting other diseases and infections.

By taking the vaccine first, "Zagury has done a very courageous thing," said Dani Bolognesi, an AIDS researcher at Duke University in North Carolina

Gallo said studies of vaccine in chimpanzees have so far been disappointing. No one has yet been able to protect a chimpanzee against AIDS infection, he noted.

Vaccines have produced high levels of anti-AIDS antibodies in chimpanzees, but those antibodies recognized only the particular strain of virus used in the vaccine, and had no effect on other strains, Gallo said.

In other reports at the conference:

Researchers at the National Institutes of Health said five of a group of 4,955 gay and bisexual men now have no signs of AIDS infection after having tested positive for the disease. But the researchers said they have not yet confirmed the men were initially infected with AIDS.

The Centers for Disease Control said American blacks are nearly three times as likely as whites to get AIDS, probably as a result of intravenous drug abuse.

A potential anti-AIDS drug that appears to have fewer side effects than AZT, the only drug now approved as an AIDS treatment, will soon begin expanded trials, said Dr. Samuel Broder of the National Cancer Institute. The drug, called dideoxydytidine or DDC, appeared promising in limited initial trials, Broder said.

Dr. Jonathan Mann of the World Health Organization reported that as many as 10 million people worldwide are already infected with the AIDS virus, although they show no no signs of infection. As of Monday, 51,535 cases of AIDS had been officially reported in 113 countries, Mann said.

Dr. James Curran, head of the AIDS program at the Centers for Disease Control, estimated that 1.5 million people in the United States are infected. This would mean that perhaps one in 30 men between the ages of 20 and 50 carry the virus. By 1991, he said AIDS is likely to be the second leading cause of premature death, after accidents, among American men

Attacks police with sword

A man identified as Merrill Davis swings a sword as he approaches Cleveland police officers responding to the scene of a domestic dispute on the city's east side Tuesday afternoon. Police said Davis was shot in the abdomen after he failed to heed police orders to drop his weapon. He later underwent surgery at a Cleveland hospital.

WASHINGTON (AP) — American blacks are nearly three times as likely as whites to get AIDS, and illicit drug use probably accounts for most of their increased risk of the lethal disease, federal experts say.

Figures compiled by the U.S. Centers for Disease Control show that the AIDS risk also is relatively high among Hispanics, but Asian-Americans are substantially less likely than whites to develop the disease.

"The most likely attribution for most of the increased risk among blacks and Hispanics is related to intravenous drug abuse in the cities where intravenous drug abusers have large amounts of AIDS," said Dr. James Curran, head of the AIDS

AIDS, politics a dangerous mixture

WASHINGTON (AP) - Ronald Reagan and George Bush got just a small dose this week of the dangerous mix that results when AIDS and politics come together. The president and vice president were booed in separate speeches when they proposed mandatory AIDS tests for some groups. And Bush stepped further into a political minefield after his speech Monday when he was heard to say of the boos, "Who was that, some gay groups out there?' Those reactions show clearly why some politicians are tiptoeing very, very carefully around the AIDS issue.

"This is one time we've got to listen to the experts in the field," opined Republican presidential hopeful Bob Dole on Monday.

"Politicians ought to try to legislate and not polarize the issue," the Kansas senator said. "We're scaring a lot of people to death with some of the political statements being made.

Politicians aren't the only ones who feel uncomfortable when confronting acquired immune deficiency syndrome. It is a difficult topic, bringing together the intensely personal and emotional realities of sex and disease. And for the nation's homosexual community, it is an issue of life and death. The AIDS debate is heating up just as the 1988 presidential nomination campaigns are beginning to take shape. Candidates are facing questions about AIDS as polls say it is much on the voters' minds.

The results of AIDS tests given to military recruits also suggest that the epidemic may be increasing more rapidly among young blacks than among whites.

Two-thirds of the more than 35,000 AIDS victims in the United States so far have been male homosexuals, while 14 percent got the disease through needle drug abuse.

Experts believe that male drug addicts may infect their wives and female lovers, who in turn pass the AIDS virus to their children during pregnancy.

Most of the heterosexual transmission and perinatal transmission," or spread of the infection in the womb, "resulted from sexual contact with intravenous drug abusers," Curran said. The studies were released Tuesday at the Third International Conference on AIDS.

Blacks make up 11 percent of the U.S. population, yet 25 percent of all AIDS victims are black. Hispanics are 8 percent of the population and 14 percent of AIDS cases.

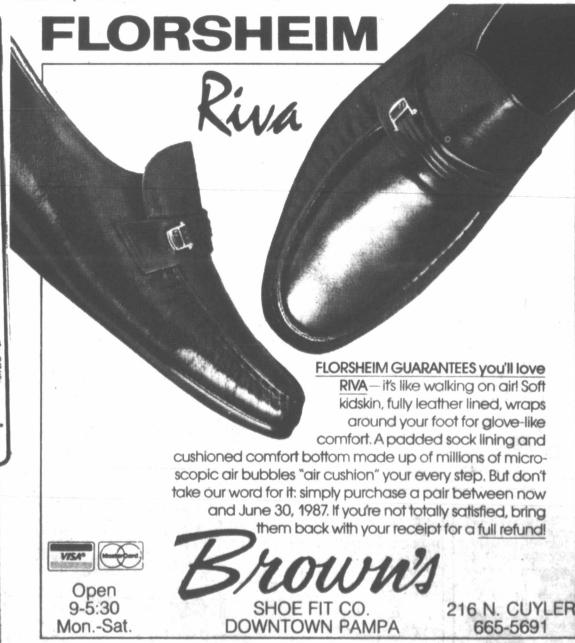

A study directed by Dr. Richard Selik of the CDC found that blacks and Hispanics account for the majority of AIDS cases transmitted by intravenous drug abuse or heterosexual contact and spread from mothers to their unborn children.

The research shows that overall, blacks are just under three times as likely as whites to get AIDS, while Hispanics are about 21/2 times as likely to contract the disease. Asian-Americans, by contrast, have only half the AIDS risk.

Black women and black children both were 13 times as likely as whites to get AIDS, while Hispanic women and children had about seven times the risk

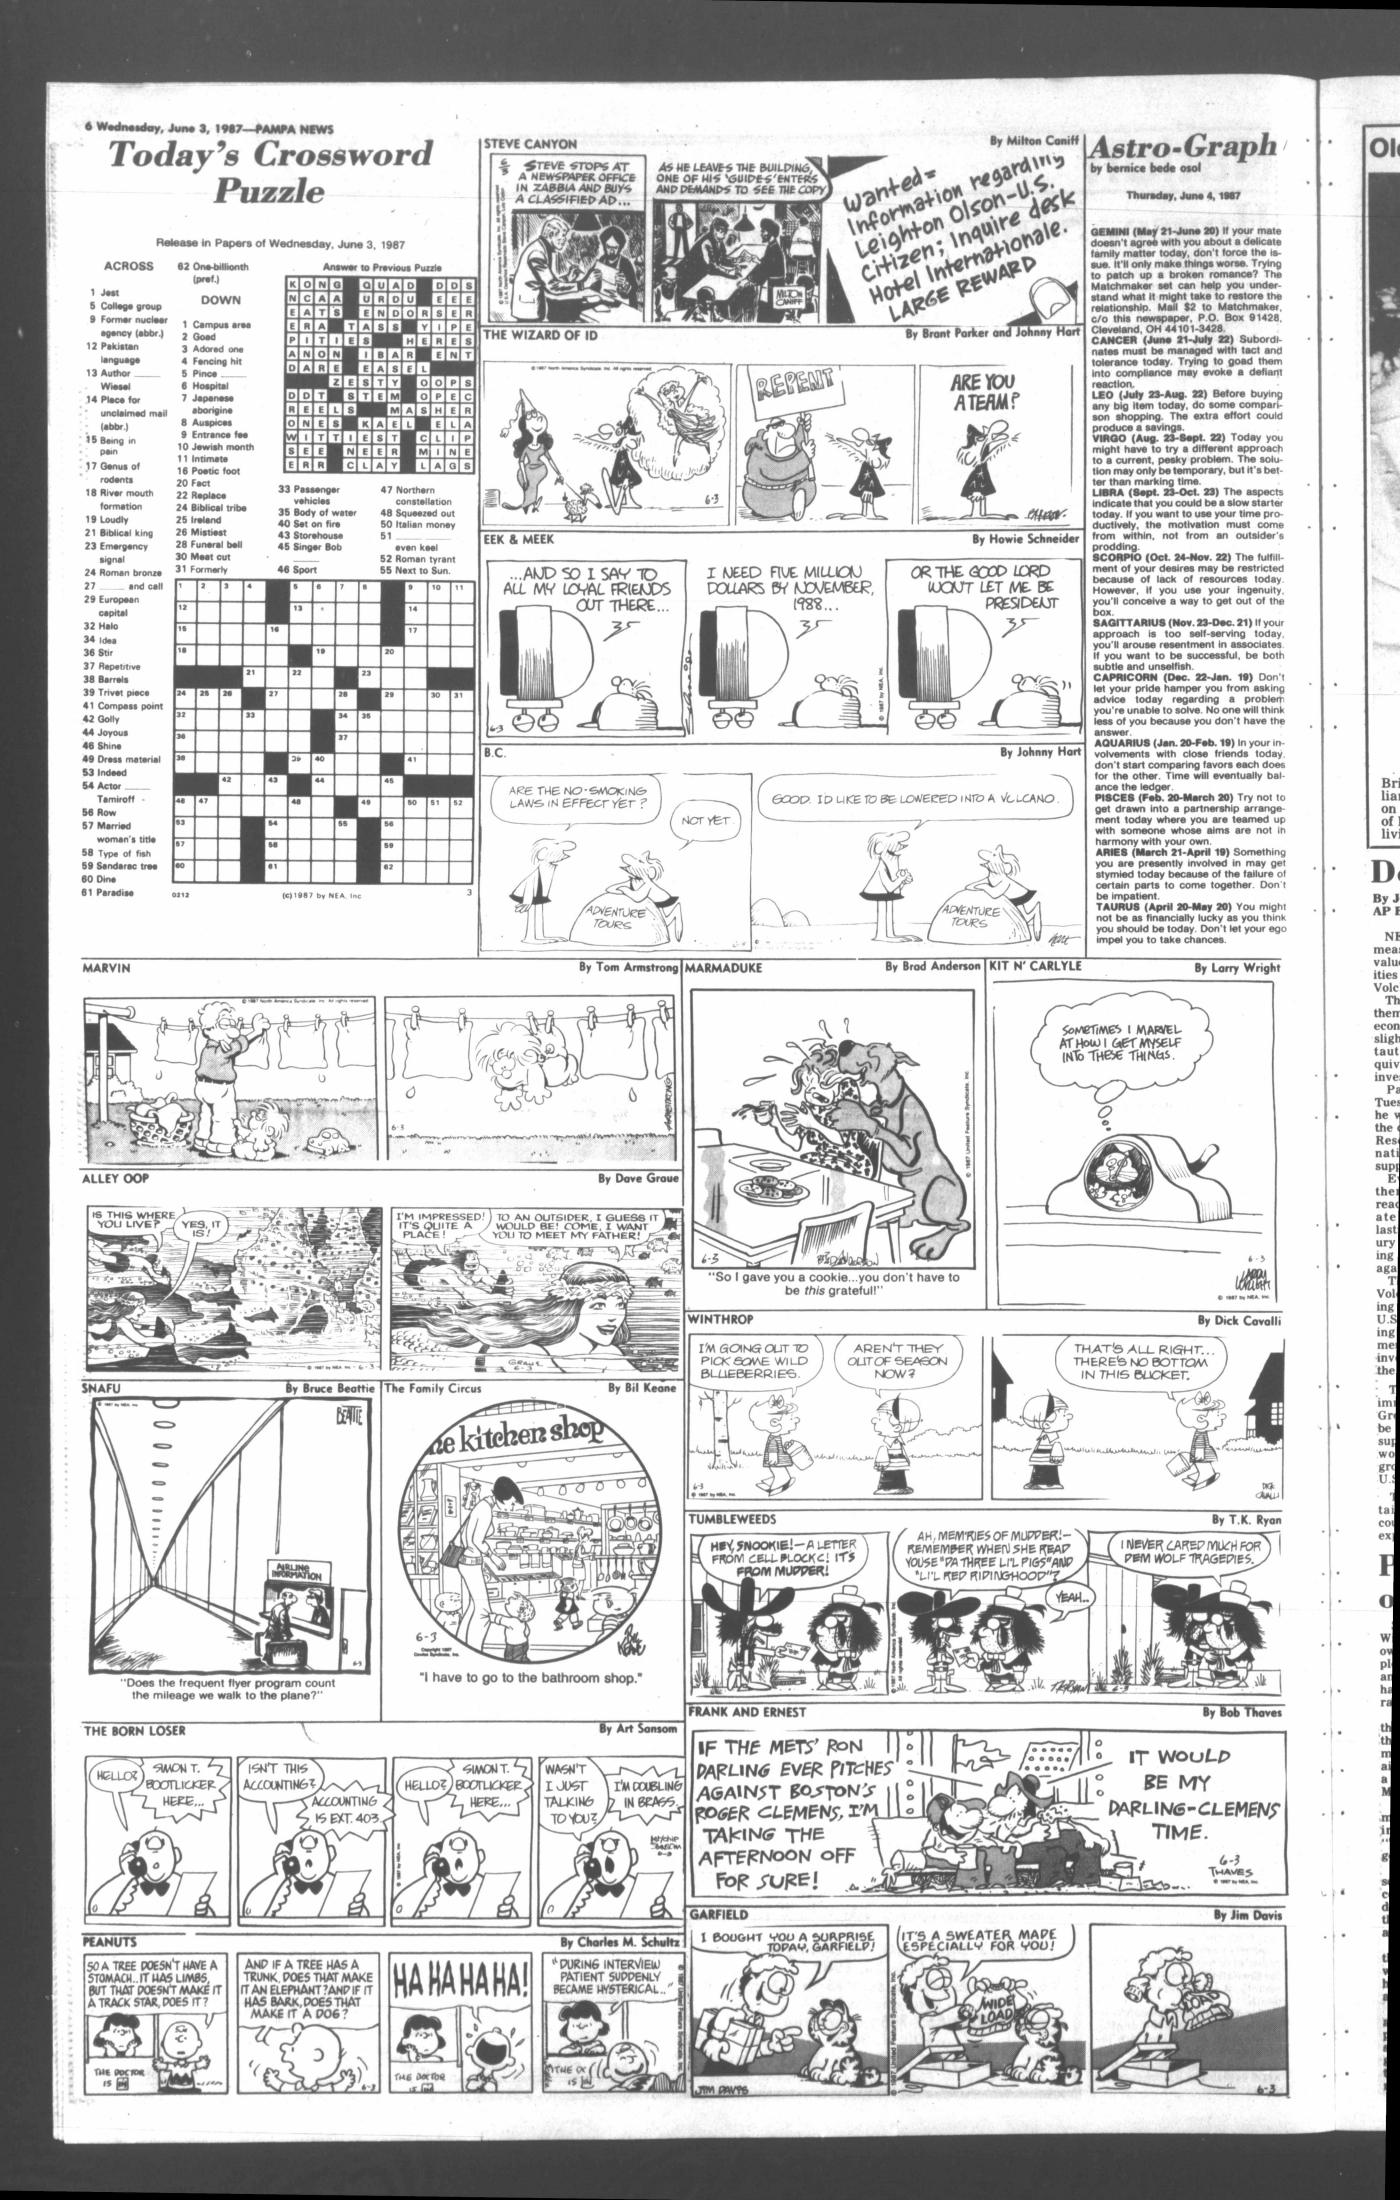

In a separate report, Dr. John F. Brundage of the Walter Reed Army Institute of Research presented the results of tests performed on 963,077 recruits during the first 18 months of the military AIDS screening program.

He found that AIDS infections were five to six times more common in black recruits than in whites

But those who support a tighter money policy are inclined to argue that a further decline in the dollar threatens not just a recession but an economic disaster, with foreigners abandoning their U.S. assets.

The latter scenario is that a declining dollar would cause foreigners to pull their funds out of the United States, thus depleting the nation's capital base and causing a shortage of funds that would drive up interest rates.

In effect, those who want the dollar to fall further and those who want to stabilize it or even cause it to rise buttress their views with the same threat, that of economic disaster.

Paralyzed student gets his own graduation ceremony

SAN ANTONIO (AP) - Jimmy Wilson has been honored with his own graduation ceremony, complete with gifts of fishing gear and hugs from classmates who have helped him adjust to his paralysis and speech loss.

"I, Jimmy Wilson, want to thank all of you here for making this graduation day possible for me," the 21-year-old said with the aid of a talking typewriter during a ceremony Tuesday at Fair Meadows School.

"Thank you for encouraging me and it's been a pleasure com-ing here to learn," he said. "Thank you all for your patience, good care and friendship.

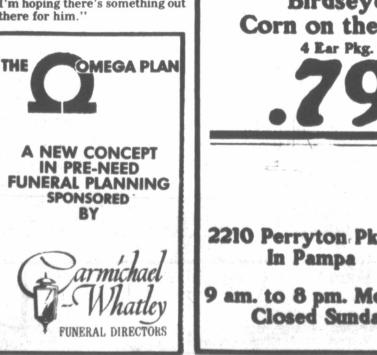

When he was 13 years old, Wilson suffered a head injury in a collision with a basketball pole during a physical education class that left him paralyzed and unable to speak.

"When he came back to school, the hardest thing for him to learn was to accept himself as he was,' his mother, Vivian Wilson, said after the ceremony. Each special education class and the school's Special Olympics team presented Wilson with store-bought and handmade gifts, most of which centered on a theme of fishing, Wilson's favorite hobby.

When he was 18 (years old), he didn't leave school," teacher Nancy Hunter said after the ceremony. "He wanted to stay with his friends. The kids in the school have grown to love him.'

"He liked coming to school here so much," Mrs. Wilson said. "I don't want him to sit at home. I'm hoping there's something out there for him.'

Have pan-fried fish without frying dried coriander, crushed

By NANCY BYAL Better Homes and Gardens Food Editor

Fry fish without fat? You bet. Do it in the oven in a baking pan sprayed with non-stick spray coating. The herb-seasoned crumb coating cooks as golden and crispy as pan-fried. For another taste adventure, opt for the tangy bok choy relish in place of tartar sauce

SESAME FISH WITH BOK CHOY RELISH 4 fresh or frozen catfish or orange roughy fillets 1 pound) 1/4 cup skim milk 1/4 cup fine dry bread crumbs

1/4 cup cornmeal 1 tablespoon toasted sesame seed

1 tablespoon snipped fresh cilantro or 1 teaspoon

Your oven is a convenient way to bake fish that looks and tastes pan-fried. Top with tartar sauce or a bok choy relish. Cauliflower makes a good side dish.

I live within 150 feet of a church with a P.A. system that broadcasts hymns twice a day - at noon and again at 6 p.m. These are lovely and enjoyable. However, once in a while something goes wrong with the "timer," and the machine throws the program off schedule. Like last night, the chimes were released at 2 a.m. This is not unusual

Members of the group are Keri Cook, Amy Cross, Will Hacker, Mitch Haynes, Logan Hudson, Spencer Neff, Gia Nix, Alicia Parrish, Cade Phillips, Tara Webb and Wendy Winkleblack. Accompanying the group was Tamra Johnson.

Serving as escorts were Shannon Sehorn, Gabriel Griego, Connie Rutledge and Doug Williams.

Following the assembly, stu dents were treated to refreshments prepared by eighth-grade mothers in the school cafeteria.

Among the reasons those surveyed gave for enjoying reunions were being with family members, rekindling ties, meeting new relatives, learning more about their heritage and seeing photographs of ancestors.

The summer was cited as the most popular season for reunions, with nearly 35 percent being held outdoors, in a park or garden. More than 27 percent were held in a residence and others were held at a banquet hall, restaurant, country club or hotel.

Good planning is essential for a successful family reunion, the BH&G Family Network advises, with the key being to arrange activities for all ages and to encourage participation without making anyone feel either obligated or neglected.

But activities should be planned that encourage people to mingle, notes the Network, which offers these tips for guaranteeing the success of a reunion:

to add or delete names and addresses. -Form committees to handle specific tasks such as food coordination, entertainment and finances

-Select a representative from each branch of the family tree to serve as liaison between reunion organizers and individual relatives.

-Keep careful records of all your arrangements, including names, addresses, food quantities, so that whoever plans the next reunion will have a head start.

-When selecting a public site, consider size, acoustics, kitchen facilities and restrooms, and always confirm a week prior to the event itself.

-Plan for at least one "alltogether" meal. Buffet style is usually easiest, but make preparation assignments clear so you don't end up with too much of any one item.

-If lodging reservations are going to be necessary for out-oftowners, look into group rates through YMCAs, campsites, hotels and some colleges during summer term.

By KEN PETERS

AP Sports Writer

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) - Pat Riley is worried that the Lakers have ignited the Celtics, but K.C. Jones sounds as if Boston is in danger of rapidly going down in flames.

"We have to keep in mind all we did was light a fire under the Celtics," Riley, the Lakers' coach, said after Los Angeles raced to a 126-113 victory over Boston in Tuesday night's opening game of the NBA final.

"I'm sure they'll come back stronger; they don't like getting beat like this.'

But Jones, Riley's Boston counterpart, said, "They are totally in control. A sweep is a possibility.

Thursday night at the Forum.

"Neither one of us scored in the first minute or so and I guess Magic and Worthy said; 'Enough of that, let's run.' They did and after that it was a romp," Jones said.

Magic Johnson, engineering the Lakers' fast break to perfection, scored 29 points and handed off 13 assists, and James Worthy, dazzling with his gravity-defying dunks, scored 33 points on 16-of-23 shooting to pace the Lakers.

Los Angeles led 35-26 at the end of the first period, built its advantage to 69-54 by halftime as Worthy poured in 23 points, and led 101-85 heading into the final quarter.

Only the scoring of Larry Bird, who had 32 points, kept the defending champion Celtics from being completely embarrassed.

"Larry was the only thing going for us," Jones said.

"I was disappointed in our effort," Bird said.

"This isn't Detroit or Atlanta we're playing, it's the Los Angeles Lakers, probably the best team in the league.

"It's going to take a great effort on our part and we just didn't have that."

The Lakers, coming off an eight-day layoff, dominated the Celtics, who had had just two days off, in virtually every phase of the game.

Led by Kareem Abdul-Jabbar's 10 rebounds, Los Angeles outrebounded Boston 51-40. The Lakers shot 55.6 percent from the floor, including 60.4 percent as they took charge in the first half. The Celtics, who rarely got off a shot without a Laker defender right in their face, made 54.9 percent of their shots.

And the Lakers' diversity showed. Byron Scott had 20 points, Abdul-Jabbar 14 and A.C. Green 10 as all five starters scored in double figures.

"They have so many offensive weapons that it's hard to key on one or two individuals," Bird said.

"What we have to concentrate on is getting back on defense.'

The last two times the two clubs squared off for the NBA title, a blowout in the first game was a bad omen for the winner of that contest. The Lakers beat Boston by a lopsided score in the first game of the 1984 championship series, but the Celtics came back to win the title. The next year, Boston won the opening game going away, but Los Angeles bounced back to win the series.

The series will shift to Boston for the third game Sunday and the fourth next Tuesday. A fifth game, if necessary, will be June 11 in Boston. Possible sixth and seventh games would be played at the Forum on June 14 and June 16.

Robinson's status in doubt

NEW YORK (AP) - For David Robinson, the when is known, the where is anything but clear.

Robinson, the 7-foot All-America center from Navy, can't play in the NBA for two years. Under a ruling issued by Navy Secretary James Webb, he must fulfill his limited term of naval service, which expires after the 1988-89 season

Although the San Antonio Spurs have indicated they will select Robinson with the top pick in the draft later this month, just where he actually will wind up in the NBA could be determined by the courts

An NBA statement, issued Tuesday in the name of general counsel Gary Bettman, said it probably will be up to a judge or abitrator to decide Robinson's pro basketball status if he does not sign with the Spurs or another NBA team within the next year.

The league said that, under the current collective bargaining agreement with the players association, the team that drafts Robinson has a year to sign him whether he plays or not. The Navy does not object to that and the Spurs have said they hope to draft Robinson and sign him to a futures contract.

The league also has a by-law that would make Robinson a free agent if he has not signed with the team that drafts him within two years The Spurs claim they have two full years to sign Robinson. The NBA Players Association maintains that if San Antonio can't sign him within a year, he should become eligible for the draft in June 1988.

Two Texas pitchers go in first round of college draft

By The Associated Press

A Texas schoolboy southpaw was the pitching-poor Texas Rangers' first-round pick in baseball's 1987 amateur free-agent draft.

The American League team, owning the 19th choice, Tuesday named Brian Bohanon of Houston North Shore High School as its top selection.

Bohanon had a 16-1 record for North Shore. He is scheduled to pitch tonight against Clearlake in the Texas high school regional playoffs.

The Houston Astros of the National League, picking from the 22nd position, went for heavy hitting Seton Hall catcher Craig Biggio, who hit .407 this year with 14 homers, 7 triples, and 17 doubles.

Biggio, a native of Kings Park, N.Y., had an 18-game hitting streak this year. He's the second catcher in the school's history to be drafted. The other was former New York Yankee catcher Rick Cerone.

The Rangers also had another first-round pick and went for a catcher, Billy Haselman of UCLA. Haselman, a sophomore, hit .303 this year with nine home runs and 51 RBIs.

Texas Pitcher Kevin Garner, selected by San Diego with the 10th pick overall, was the only other Texan other than Bohanon to go in the first round. 'We're very happy to get Boha non," said Texas Public Relations Director John Blake.

Bohanon had a 1.12 earned run average during the regular season with 156 strikeouts in 93 and two-thirds innings. He had four Bettman said, "San Antonio's position is certainly within the spirit of the draft rules.

But he said, "If San Antonio does draft Robinson but cannot sign him, a judge or an arbitrator would have to resolve the dispute between the club and the player over whether the draft rights could continue beyond one year."

Of course, if the Spurs can sign Robinson within the next year, the entire issue would be academic. And if they do not sign him within two years, he would become a free agent.

Robinson has indicated he wants to play in the 1988 Olympics. He can sign a futures contract with the Spurs — or another NBA team if San Antonio doesn't draft him or trades his rights ---and still play in the Olympics.

considers several athletic changes

UIL considers numerous athletic changes AUSTIN (AP) — Proposed changes in Texas high school sports include a suggestion to stop having state football championships

About 30 proposals covering every major high school sport were submitted to the University Interscholastic League Athletic Committee Tuesday.

The 13-member committee was to consider the proposals today and either dismiss them or recommend approval by the UIL Legislative Committee, which meets in October

Pharr-San Juan-Alamo head coach and atheltic director Charlie Williams recommended that football playoffs come to an end at the regional level with eight teams left in lieu of a single state champion in each classification.

"Once you have a state championship, it's hard to take it away," said UIL Athletic Director Bill Farney. "The horse is out of the barn so to speak. Somebody is going to have a state championship.

Williams' proposal would also include an all-star game in each region. The practice of stopping play at the regional level is already being used in California.

There was also a recommendation to eliminate winning games by number of penetrations or coin flip.

In one of the most closely watched items on the agenda, there were several speakers in favor of letting high school coaches continue to coach summer league baseball teams such as American Legion squads.

The UIL found in some areas that high school coaches were requiring players to participate on their American Legion teams during the summer or they would not be allowed to play during the next baseball season.

"I don't think there is any way you can control this situation," said Round Rock Westwood baseball Coach Bart Bratcher, past president of the Texas Association of Baseball Coaches. "If a coach is going to force a player to play on his team, he can just as easily tell him to play for someone else if he's not coaching the team."

Bratcher also proposed that playoffs in class 4A and 5A be returned to the two-outof-three format. Currently, if only one of the coaches wants a one-game playoff, they do not have to play two-out-of-three.

Other propositions for baseball included eliminating the Friday-Saturday playoff format to allow one day of travel and also allowing a team a warm-up game before its first state playoff game even if it has played its allotted amount.

The committee will also look into banning steel cleats because of a high number of injuries.

In basketball, the committee heard a proposal concerning registering summer basketball camps.

Also, Nazareth head coach Sandy Hyman, speaking on behalf of the Texas Association of Girl's Basketball Coaches, asked that Friday and Saturday games be allowed instead of playing in a tournament, while teams could still play on the following Tuesday. She also requested that the regional tournament be played with a two-day format to avoid playing two games on a single day.

She also suggested that the class A playoffs be structered so that two teams from the same district don't face each other until the regional finals and that regional tournament directors pick referees from neutral regions.

an air museum, clean track in Pampa Hoping for

Plans for an air museum by the Pampa Air Force Base Association are admirable to sustain a little bit of history. And efforts to secure a WW II B-25 Mitchell attack bomber as the centerpiece are very exciting.

Having just gone through a similar experience with two different B-17s at opposite ends of the country, a word of warning is needed. For years, the bestknown bomber, The Memphis Belle, sat pedestalled beside the Liberty Bowl in the city for which the plane was named. My own 8th AF bomb group, the 390th, obtained another B-17 which sat on the ground at the Pima Air Museum adjacent to Davis-Monthan AFB at Tucson. The ravages of the weather and time and humanity took its toll on both craft and nationwide requests went out through all Air Force veterans association publications for funds to restore the planes.

Last March, the 390th ship was nearly completed and was moved inside a large hangar paid for by donations from friends. A few days ago work was completed on The Belle, and it, too, was moved to friendlier confines, thanks to contributions from caring individuals. Parts for these antique craft are almost impossible to obtain today, despite world-wide appeals. Even the greatest air museum in the world, located at Dayton's Wright-Patterson Airfield, constantly begs for old plane parts (nose cones, ailerons, turrets, etc.) and has added still another massive hanger in which to store it's invaluable collection.

So, if a B-25 is obtained (and we hope it is) it would also be most astute to have in place the financing for maintaining it in A-1 condition. The Panhandle's sandstorms, hailstones, wind and heat will take its toll and quickly desecrate what is being planned as a tribute to the airmen who trained at PAAF and flew the twinengined, low-level attack bombers. Certainly, it would not be a memorial to them to have the plane desecrated. If it is given in honor, it should be forever maintained in honor with pride.

Which takes us to Randy Matson track at the high school. It was built for the use of the school system and community, and named to honor one of Pampa's greatest athletic sons, an Olympian with a gold medal, the first person in the history of the world to put a 16-pound shot past the once impenetrable 70-foot barrier.

The condition of the track surface has been disgraceful for several years now, and remedial action is apparently being initiated. But there is no excuse for that area being a trashground. Those who use the facility to walk or run for their health find the same cups, cans, papers, programs, even debris from last football season strewn amidst the weeds two-feet tall. Even the monument honoring the Olympian is in need of repair.

McNeely Fieldhouse, named to honor the former coach, is in borderline condition. M.K. Brown Auditorium is a good example of maintaining honor and respect for the individual for whom it is named.

Dick Bivens Stadium in Amarillo is another that continues to honor a great sports fan. But, right next door a monument testifies to the enthusiasm and dedication of a group of Amarillo baseball supporters, placed there to honor their years of volunteer effort. But the facility the monument fronts, Gold Sox Stadium, is in disgraceful condition, and those men and their families must be saddened to be associated with it.

Visit the high school at Elkhart, Kansas sometime and see how beautifully the school and town's sports hero, Glenn Cunningham, is honored. His accomplishments are duly noted so the students will forever know who he was, what he did, and why his hometown is proud.

The B-25 would be excellent, if maintained in honor and respect.

Even in the off-season the District 4-5A football powerhouses, Odessa and San Angelo, battle head-to-head. Each has a major football clinic slated this month. The three day affair in Odessa is scheduled June 5-7, sponsored by the Odessa Chamber of Commerce. San Angelo's four day affair runs June 18-21. At Odessa, for the $40 fee, coaches can listen to 13 associates from high schools and colleges. Included are Don Cumpton of Hereford, Preston Smith of Wheeler, Doug James of Palo Duro, along with Hayden Fry and Spike Dykes.

For $60 you can hear 21 college and professional coaches gathering along the Concho River. Included in that group are WTSU's Bill Kelly, Houston's Jack Pardee and others from Oklahoma, Nebraska, UCLA, Michigan and Penn State.

Round the clock activities, barbeques, etc. are features for both as they bid for huge enrollments to enhance the clinic stature and boost the economy.

I like Odessa, where the AD John Wilkins, serving as clinic director, has also made arrangements for some good door prizes: trips to Las Vegas, Sun Bowl and Cotton Bowl tickets. But, none of the truly hard to get items are featured: tickets to Odessa Permian versus San Angelo Central or Midland Lee grid games next fall

PAMPA NEWS-Wednesday, June 3, 1987 11 Pirates pound Santo; advance to regional

VERNON - The Lefors Pirates took the "wild" out of the Santo Wildcats in regional semi-final action here Tuesday afternoon, firebombing the Cats 11-

Playing with confidence and expertise throughout the game, the Pirates put the game away in a 7 run third inning. The Pirates finally ten-run ruled Santo in the sixth.

With one out in the third, Lefors struck with three straight hits. The Pirates combined for eight hits in the inning - seven of which were singles.

Every player in the starting lineup contributed as the team combined for 14 hits, including a triple by Kirk Kerbo and a double by brother Kent.

Jimmy Hannon led all hitters, going 3-for-4. His first inning bunt started the attack.

"It was a situation where it seemed like I was coaching a junior college team," coach Brent Fountain said. "They were that disciplined out there." Fountain noted the school board's approval of a charter bus to transport the team to the game weighed heavily in their favor in terms of being relaxed. "The kids used the bus to relax and concentrate on the game. They were real confident.

Santo had three-strikes against them before the game even started.

Their everyday clean-up hitter left last week to take a job in Alaska; their number-five hitter left Monday to begin spring football workouts in Kansas, and the former Wildcat baseball coach left before the team's district winner and Santo had to settle for their basketball coach to lead them.

Lefors pitcher Kirk Kerbo added yet another gem to his trophy case. Kerbo pitched a quick game, giving up only 3 hits and striking out 10.

In that damaging third inning, Jimmy Hannon struck out to lead off the frame. It was his only time at bat that Hannon did not connect with the ball.

Dusty Roberson, Richard Hernandez and Marshall Keys followed with singles. After Kirk Kerbo's fly out to center, Jamie Wariner, John Ledbetter, Jarrod Slatten and Hannon belted out four straight singles and Kent Kerbo added his double to run the score to 9-1. The Pirates added their final run in the sixth when Kirk Kerbo scored from second on a ground out by Ledbetter. Lefors, who looked at the beginning of the season like they wouldn't make it quite this far, runs its record to 6-2.

The Pirates will travel back to Vernon Regional Junior College on Friday for a 4 p.m. game with Gunter (18-1 on the year). The winner of Friday's regional will land a berth in the high school baseball tournament in Austin next weekend.

Sox rough up Hough, route Rangers

Valentine says

pitching will improve in time

ARLINGTON (AP) — It might seem something of a contradiction, but Charlie Hough's knuckleball was so outstanding it cost him a shot at his sixth straight victory.

The Texas Rangers veteran was shelled from the mound in the second inning Tuesday night as the Chicago White Sox hit five home runs en route to a 15-5 victory at Arlington Stadium.

Hough gave up only one of the home runs, but in his brief stint he walked five, and three of them were aboard when Greg Walker unloaded his 11th home run of the season off reliever Ron Meridith which all but settled matters in the second inning.

"Hough has been one of the most consistent starters against us," said Walker, who had two homers in Monday night's 11-9 loss to Texas. "But tonight his knuckler was really moving and we laid off the bad pitches. He couldn't find his control.'

"Hough's knuckler was so good tonight that he couldn't get it over the plate," said Chicago manager Jim Fregosi, whose team has hit 21 home runs in the last eight games.

Jerry Royster homered in the first off Hough to give the White Sox a 1-0 lead. It was his fourth of the season and second in two nights.

"I'm making solid contact once or twice a game," said the 34-year-old infielder. "I'm just happy to play, and I'm really having fun."

When Hough lost his control in the second, the Sox scored six runs on only two hits, one of them Walker's grand slam as the first batter Meridith faced.

It was the third time this season for a Ranger reliever to surrender a grand slam to the first batter he faced

"Our pitching will come around," said Rangers manager Bobby Valentine of a staff that has allowed 65 runs in the last eight games. "I've got to believe in the guys I have in uniform."

The Rangers got 13 of their 14 hits off Chicago starter Bill Long, 2-1, including Larry Parrish's 13th home run of the season and second in two nights.

'We had Long on the ropes a few times," said Valentine, "but we just couldn't get him. We get all those hits and score the runs and can't get the win."

Trailing 12-3 in the seventh, the Rangers got two runs, but left the bases loaded. They also loaded the bases in the eighth and failed to score.

"Even with the big lead I wasn't comfortable," said Fregosi, whose team blew a 7-1 lead Monday night and lost 11-9 and blew a 9-2 lead Sunday and lost 10-9 to Boston. "Those were the three toughest games back- to-back I ever had."

In the first two games of their series, the Rangers and White Sox combined for 14 home runs and 16 doubles

mazin' Andre astounds A

By JOE MOOSHIL AP Sports Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — Amazing Andre Dawson's feats for the Chicago Cubs are dangerously bordering on the realm of unreality

Dawson hit two home runs, a triple and a single Tuesday to lead the Cubs to a 13-2 victory over the Houston Astros that left observers, including Manager Gene Michael, shaking their neads "He's been everything; I knew he was good, but I never realized he was this great," Michael said. Dawson's performance, which might have been the best of his career, followed his effort Monday when he hit two home runs including a grand-slam in a 6-5 loss to the Astros. It also rivaled his career-high eight runs batted in against the Cubs in 1985 when he was a member of the Montreal Expos. "I hit three home runs that day," Dawson said. "This one may have been better. I haven't thought about it that much.' Dawson was thinking about something else — which was hitting for the cycle a second time this season, something achieved only once before. Babe Herman of the Brooklyn Dodgers did it in 1931 when he had a home run, a triple, a double and a single in two different games. Dawson singled in a run in the first inning and hit a two-run homer in the third before a heavy thunderstorm threatened to wash out the game. Play was resumed after a two-hour, 46-minute delay. In the fifth, Dawson tripled in two more runs as the Cubs piled up a 9-1 lead. Michael was tempted to take Dawson out of the game but said later he left him in the game to get a chance to hit for the cycle again, a feat he accomplished April 29 against San Francisco

Dawson hit a line shot into left field in the seventh inning, but he hit it so hard that the ball carried into the seats for his 18th home run which raised his RBI total to 53 for the season and 12 in two games.

"I'd like for him to be more careful out there, but that's his nature," Michael said.

Dawson's response to taking a chance on Davis' fly was this: 'When I went after it, it was still in play and could have landed fair.

Dawson said he was more worried about how he would get dressed to get home during the rain delay because he couldn't get to his locker. The storm flooded the Cub locker room with 4 inches of season. He has hit safely in 25 of

Catholic conference: Get residency before Social Security number

DALLAS (AP) - Illegal aliens should protect themselves by not seeking a Social Security number until their amnesty applications win final approval, according to the U.S. Catholic Conference.

Applicants who seek a number before receiving temporary residence might leave an easy trail for the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service to track those denied amnesty, cautioned the conference, the nation's largest voluntary network helping undocumented aliens apply for amnesty.

"We know there is some kind of mechanism of understanding between the INS and the Social Security Administration," said Gilbert Carrasco of Washington, D.C., a spokesman for the conference, which operates 100 field offices and hundreds of satellite offices nationwide

"We recognize the utility of having a Social Security card and a valid number,' he added. "But the cooperation is making it disadvantageous for the applicant."

The Immigration Reform and Control Act of 1986, INS regulations and amnesty applications do not mention the need for a Social Security card application.

As a courtesy, an INS spokesman said, Social Security application forms are included in legalization packets to encourage aliens to apply for amnesty and Social Security simultaneously.

"The policy that we are going to use is to ask them to

Goetz doesn't take stand in own defense

nhard Goetz's attorney says he rested his case without calling the subway gunman to testify because jurors already had seen him at his moment of truth --- when he confessed on tape about shooting four youths made after his surrender in Concord, N.H., Goetz told police he felt he was about to be robbed by four young men on a subway train in 1984 and that he turned into a "monster" who wanted to "murder" them.

fill out the form, but we are not going to deny them if they don't," said Cheryl Dean, a spokeswoman for the INS Southern Region office in Dallas.

Although not in North Texas, some INS officials mistakenly are refusing amnesty applications based on an alien's decision against applying for a Social Security number, officials said.

Robert Gibbs, a Seattle lawyer, said a Mexican citizen he accompanied last Friday to a Washington legalization center was turned away when he declined to seek a Social Security card, which he legally obtained more than a decade ago

"They refused to accept the application because he said it was incomplete without an SS-5 form," said Gibbs, whose client documented living at the same address and working at the same job since May 1981, well before the Jan. 1, 1982, amnesty cut-off date.

A policy directive last week from the INS central office in Washington, D.C., states: "Each applicant should be encouraged to complete the SS-5 form with the legalization packet."

After accepting an amnesty application, the INS issues aliens work permits valid for six months and encourages them to seek the number. The Social Security Administration mails a new card to the INS, which is held until aliens eventually receive temporary residence.

posing as a police officer visited his physics class, questioned the teacher and began removing her clothes, school officials said.

Caroline Williams delivered the valedictory address. although the program listed Woosley as valedictorian.

When the announcer passed over Woosley's name, the crowd started yelling his nickname -'Wooz!'' Two spectators put up a sign reading "Let Wooz Walk." but police promply removed it.

"I don't think the (school) board acted correctly on this. But what has happed has happened and they can't back out of their actions " Woosley said as he entered the football stadium. All around him, fellow students were yelling what became an overnight cheer: "Let Wooz Walk."

One student, Telle Crofts, wore a T-shirt with the cheer on the front and "Wooz for President" on the back

"I think it's ridiculous," Miss Crofts said of Woosley's punishment. "Everyone in the whole school is supportive of him. There are people that got busted for drugs and they're out there walking.

Banners supporting Woosley appeared outside his home, on car windows and even a freeway overpass

Woosley has said his prank had been taken wrong.

"We had just been in our physics teacher's class for two years, and we liked him a lot, it was just a joke," he said. "I think it was to school officials when he said the lady was a guest of the class and would be making an educational presentation," Ms. Collier said.

She said many parents supported the school's actions in sus pending the teen-ager.

Woosley attained a 4.96 grade point average on a 4-point scale by earning A's in classes for honor students.

He had to explain his absence from the ceremony to his parents who flew in from Atlanta, Ga. He has been living with family friends since his parents moved to Georgia last year.

"My parents are pretty exasperated and I think a little bit manipulated. The office of public information said my parents supported the school district and my parents never made any such statement." Woosley said. His parents have declined to comment.

It's not Woosley's first bout with school regulations. He was cited earlier this year for violating the dress code when he appeared wearing an earring and sunglasses.

"I didn't think it was fair to be restricted from graduating ... when you think of some of the kids who have been in trouble for drugs, for fighting and for weapons," Woosley said. "I don't think the school acted properly, yet two wrongs don't make a right.

Woosley has a Navy ROTC scholarship and said he plans to enroll at the University of Virginia in the fall and pursue a degree in engineering.

The tapes were played by the prosecution earlier in the attempted murder trial.

"He's been seen by the jury at his most tender moment of truth. There's no need for him to take the stand now and repeat what he said before," defense attorney Barry Slotnick said after resting his case Tuesday

Assistant District Attorney Gregory Waples indicated he will call rebuttal witnesses on Friday, Justice Stephen Crane said the case could go to the jury by the middle of next week

The defense rested after former Detective Charles Penelton testified that one of the shooting victims, while in the hospital for treatment of gunshot wounds, said all four men 'stood around'' Goetz because he "looked soft.

The testimony is important because Goetz claims he was surrounded by the youths and was about to be robbed and hurt when he opened fire.

Under cross-examination, however, Penelton said that the victim, Troy Canty, didn't say anything about robbing Goetz. The detective also acknowledged that during the 5- to 10-minute interview. Canty was heavily drugged, very drowsy and nodded off several times.

> will have to answer to a woman boss when actress Kirstie Alley replaces Shelley Long as the female lead on NBC's "Cheers."

Miss Alley, 31, will play Rebecca Howe. who is made manager of the Cheers bar after Malone, played by Ted Danson, sells it to a big corporation. "Sam Malone will not know what hits him when he meets his new boss," said NBC Entertainment President Brandon Tartikoff, who announced Miss Alley's casting at the network's affiliate meeting Tuesday. Miss Long, who played the intellectual barmaid Diane Chambers, decided to leave the series after a fifth season to pursue roles in movies.

LOS ANGELES (AP) Joan Rivers is still good for a laugh at NBC, even if she isn't likely to show her face on Johnny Carson's show anytime soon.

Hundreds of people attending an affiliates meeting Tuesday were given Joan Rivers masks and told to put them on, clap their hands with their arms straight out, a la Miss Rivers, then take the masks off and throw them into the air. The gag was videotaped, made into a mock promotional ad for "The Tonight Show Starring Johnny Carson" and shown to the crowd a half-hour later.

"Joining Johnny tonight ...," said an announcer as the masks appeared on the screen. 'You'll never know what surprises you'll see and what fun you can have."

Here's what Federal Reserve does

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Federal Reserve system, nicknamed the Fed, is one of the most powerful government agencies and one of the least understood by the general public.

By controlling the amount of money in the banking system, America's central bank influences how fast or how slowly the economy will expand.

The Fed tries to supply enough funds to the banks to keep the economy growing at a healthy rate that will reduce unemployment. But it must guard against providing so much money that it triggers renewed inflation.

It performs this tightrope act principally through what are known as the Fed's open-market operations. It can inject money into the system or drain it out.

If the Fed wants to add money to the economy, it simply buys government securities on the open market. This adds funds, known as reserves, to the account of the bank from which it purchases the securities. The bank is then able to lend out these reserves several times over, creating even more money. The process usually drives down interest rates as the supply of money grows. When the Fed wants to tighten up on funds, it sells its government securities, taking cash away from banks.

The central bank also exercises control over interest rates when it sets its discount rate — the rate it charges on loans to financial institutions. A change in the Fed's discount rate is the most dramatic signal the central bank can send that it intends to tighten or loosen credit conditions.

The discount rate decisions are made by the seven-member board of governors of the Federal Reserve, while overall monetary policy is controlled by the seven board members plus five of 12 presidents of regional Federal Reserve banks, who serve on a rotating basis.
